Dog Fails Locate Body of Slide Victim

ttle Hope Retrieving Buried Man Till Spring Is Belief of Searchers

rles Woodrow's Dog Covers Slide at Reno Mine but Shows No Sign of Scenting His Lost Master Buried in Tons of Snow

S OF SNOW IN MAIN SLIDE LANDED ON TOP OF WOODROW, STATE SURVIVORS

e Is Dug, Poked and Carefully Covered to No Success; Fellow Miners Grief Stricken; Woodrow Last Seen With Hands Stretched Out

Piled deep in a draw a short distance from the Reno ine, 14 miles above Salmo, the snow slide which claimed e life of Charles O. Woodrow, pioneer Kootenaian, conues to keep its secret. The body of the trapper-miner s not been recovered despite a diligent search conducted fellow miners Thursday and Friday, and additional arches over Saturday and Sunday by friends of Mr. oodrow, aided by the lost man's dog, "Willie." Hope as been about abandoned for recovery of the slide victim's dy before spring.

When efforts of the entire crew of 18 men of the eno mines at which Mr. Woodrow was employed, failed unearth the body after searching all day Friday, it was cided to send the dead man's pet dog on the chance that e dog could locate it. Accordingly, the dog was taken the slide Saturday by Dr. H. B. Morrison, business assoated and close friend of the lost man, accompanied by onstable H. H. Vickers of the provincial police at Nelson. staff reporter from The Daily News accompanied the men. hen the men arrived on the scene of the slide it was alost seen at once that there was a very small chance success.

O SUCCESS

Altogether over two hours were put in leading the dog cross the slide where it piled up below the road, after weeping Mr. Woodrow from the road in its race down e mountain side about 4:30 Thursday afternoon, but no cent would be located. It was almost too much to expect e dog to locate the body unless by a slim chance it ad come to rest within a few feet of the surface.

t. Woodrow had been working with other men clearing the road the Reno mine to the foot of mountain and had gone on ahead he crew when a slide came down mountainside on top of him. The other men, Alex Starey, Mike mac and William Hamilton, were ed about 70 feet down the hill- y a small slide which flanked main one but escaped uninjure.

BY TRACTOR

Morrison and Constable Vickers Met at Salmo by William Hamlin charge of the mine tractor to h was coupled and open sleigh conveying supplies to the mine. two cases of eggs and a 100-d sack of sugar for seats, the men given instructions on what proe to take should they be successby Constable W. R. Henley of provincial police. Salmo, as started out on a four-hour slide he mine.

e party stopped at Mr. and Mrs. son's residence at Sheep Creek miles out of Salmo, for dinner were served a splendid repast. d taken two hours to travel that and the stopover was welcomed the party.

he next lap, although only six s took another two hours, for it all up the mountain, necessitat- a series of switchbacks. As climbed higher the party ran into ist and a fine powder-like snow, did not increase its comfort.

MILTON'S STORY

illiam Hamilton, the tractor man ularly known at the camp as "Bill", was one of the three to be carried a flank of the slide, told of his erience while relieved on the way the mine. Above the roar of the tor as it labored up the mountain, voice, with its broad Scottish nt, held a note of deep sorrow.

"I had just returned from the mp where I had gone to get mething for the boys to eat," e said, "when I saw Charlie ahead d signaled to him asking how ep the snow was packed where e was. He held up his outstretch- d arms to signify the depth and I en turned back to shoveling as continued towards us.

HEARD A ROAR

"All of a sudden I heard a roar d before I could turn or look p my feet were swept out from nder me and I was being carried er the bank. As I went sliding own I could feel the snow piling p behind me, feeling as though were trying to creep up over my houlders. I rolled to keep ahead f it and at the same time yelled the other two to roll and head the trees that stood to one ide. I tried to work myself in he direction of the trees but beore it was necessary to grab hold f them we came to a stop.

"As soon as I saw the other two ere all right I called for Charlie", he said, and with downcast look on his face he added, "He didn't answer."

WENT FOR HELP

"I told the fellows to look for him while I went at top speed in the tractor to the camp to get help. The whole crew went to the scene of the slide, but although we worked till after dark we couldn't find him.

"I used to have plenty of nerve," Mr. Hamilton continued, "but this has certainly wrecked it. It gives a fellow a horrible feeling to have a thing like this happen to a man who worked right along-side of him. And Charlie was such a good scout."

"Bill" told how, if the slide had waited another two minutes, all four men would have been buried along with the tractor, for by that time they would have been on the stretch of the road over which the worst part of the slide passed.

IN WORST PART

Neither "Bill" nor the other two men who so narrowly escaped death, could tell with any degree of certainty, approximately where Mr. Woodrow was when the slide came down. The worst part of the slide was about 200 feet wide where it crossed the road, but whether Mr. Woodrow was near either edge of it or in the middle could not be told. That he was in the 200 feet was agreed by all three.

"Bill" Hamilton is a young man of about 21 or 22 years old, hailing originally from the land of the heather and with hair that is all but red. He came from Spokane in December to operate the tractor for the Rneo mine and had never seen a slide or as much snow before. He was greatly attached to the lost man.

FIRST VIEW OF SLIDE

About a mile from the Reno camp the sleigh passed below where the slide had come to a stop, and men could be seen at work, digging and poking in their search for what was almost impossible to find. As the men had their first look at what had brought them there, hopes for the success of their mission sank considerably. On the next switch-back the party came above the slide and came to a stop at about the place where Mr. Woodrow had been when the slide came down.

Greetings were exchanged and introductions made and then O. C. Thompson, manager of the Reno mine, who had directed searching operations, conducted the men to the camp.

DOG KNOWS CLOTHES

Immediately the party arrived at Mr. Thompson's office where a warm fire took some of the chill out of the men, a man was sent to the cabin further up the mountain that Mr. Woodrow had shared with three fellow workers.

GENERAL BOOTH MAKES MOVE TO HIS OWN HOME

Accepts Council's Offer to Have His Counsel at Session

LONDON, Feb. 3.—General Bramwell Booth, whom the high council is attempting to remove as head of the Salvation Army, today caused general surprise by making an unexpected journey by road from his seaside cottage at South Wold to his home at Hadley Wood. Not long ago the aged general was hardly expected to recover from the serious illness from which he had suffered for months.

The general expressed pleasure at finding himself at home again after his long convalescence at the seashore. His health has shown a decided improvement during the last few days.

It is understood on good authority that General Booth has sent a reply to the high council accepting their invitation to be represented before them. As a result of his show of strength there even is the possibility that the general may appear personally, provided that the council will agree to fix the date for the meeting some time ahead, so as to give him time to recuperate his strength.

The personality of Lord Davidson, retired Archbishop of Canterbury, entered the situation, when it became known that the aged prelate had sent a letter to Bramwell Booth, suggesting that retirement would be a good way out of the difficulties. The letter from the former archbishop urged peace on his aged co-worker in religion. The epistle pointed out that the general, like the writer of the letter, was old and tired from Life-long service to humanity.

Freighter Crew Rescued at Sea After Ship Sinks

SUNDERLAND, Feb. 3.—The entire crew of 17 of the British freighter Paddington were landed here by the steamer Olavus, which picked up the lifeboats in which they had fled their sinking ship. Many of the men had only their night clothes, for there was no time to collect their belongings after the collision yesterday off Flamborough.

Their arrival here set at rest fears that resulted from the fruitless search yesterday of a lifeboat which put out from Flamborough.

OTTAWA HOUSE TO OPEN DOOR ON THURSDAY

Canada's Sixteenth Parliament Will Have Active Session Is Forecast

PREMIER AND HIS CABINET AT WORK

Speech From Throne Ready, but Is Carefully Guarded; B. C. Legislation

OTTAWA, Feb. 3.—With all resplendency of ceremony that tradition dictates, parliament will open on Thursday afternoon. Hon. R. B. Bennett, will return from the west tomorrow, Premier W. L. MacKenzie King and practically all the Dominion cabinet ministers are in the capitol, and with the gradual drifting in of senators and members over the weekend, the political atmoshphere betokens of the near approach of the session. The ceremony on Thursday afternoon will mark the opening of third session of Canada's sixteenth parliament.

New faces will be seen in the house of commons and in the red chamber. In the committees R. W. Gray, for West Lambton, Ont., will take seat for the first time. He is recently elected Liberal member. The entry of Mr. Gray will not make any change in the strength of the parties.

In the Red Chamber three new senators will be ushered in. Senator H. H. Horsey, Ottawa, Senator Walter Foster, Saint John, N. B., and Senator Hance J. Logan, Amherst, all three are Liberals. Vacancies still exist, both for the province of Quebec.

The speech from the throne is being carefully guarded. It was rumored however, that reference will be made to the intention of the government to bring down legislation this session for the payment of Canadian civilian claims for war reparations. Approximately 1,613, claimants scattered throughout the dominion are concerned, and the claims approved by Royal Commissioner James Friel are for amounts totalling $4,200,000.

The speech from the throne may also make reference to the negotiations for the return of natural resources to Manitoba, Alberta and British Columbia. In the case of British Columbia, expectations in official circles are that a bill on the subject will be brought down by government during the coming session.

Revolt Against Premier Primo De Rivera Occurs; Martial Law Is Ordered

Bloodshed Occurs in City of Valencia; Garrison Attempts Release Former Premier, Which Results in a General Clash

SPECIAL COURT DECREED IN ORDER TO MAINTAIN CONTROL

Revolting Troops Subdued; Censorship at Work; Revolt Occuring Last Tuesday Supressed; De Rivera Has Situation in Hand

PARIS, Feb. 3.—Information which eluded the Spanish censorship at a dozen different points today disclosed that a revolt against the dictatorship of Premier Primo De Rivera has broken out in the city of Valencia with resulting bloodshed and the proclamation of martial law.

The Paris Journal received word that part of the Valencia garrison attempted to liberate former Premier Jose Sanchez Guerra from the military prison where he has been held incommunicado since he surrendered to the authorities following collapse of the general revolt several days ago. These troops were opposed by others with resulting bloodshed.

Premier Primo De Rivera conferred today for two and a half hours with King Alfonso, regarding the new developments. His majesty signed several decrees to tighten government control. By one of these, a special temporary court was created under the jurisdiction of the ministry of the interior but presided over by an army officer, in order to establish closer relations between the police and the military organizations affecting both members of the army and civilians.

SEVERAL DECREES

Another decree provides for the employment of patriotic unions for surveillance and gathering information. The press of the entire country is compelled by another decree to maintain at the disposition of the government, one-sixteenth of its pages for insertion of official and semi-official communiques and appeals to public opinion.

Litut.-General San Surgeo has been sent to Valencia with unlimited powers to remove all civil and military officials and appoint others in whom he has confidence. The revolting troops were said to have been subdued by the neighboring garrisons and to be closely confined to barracks.

The premier, according to advices from Madrid, did not appear greatly perturbed by the latest turn of events. He believed that the measure adopted, vastly increasing the dictatoral powers, would smooth the situation.

Last Tuesday a revolt which apperently had been planned for simultaneous action in several of the larger cities, especially in the south, resulted in the capture and retention for about 12 hours of Ciudad Real by the first artillery regiment. This was suppressed without bloodshed when the troops returned to their barracks after promises had been dropped from airplanes that the government would prosecute only the leaders. This revolt was alleged by the premier to have been plotted abroad. The return of Former Premier Sanchez Surgeo from France and his surrender to the authorities indicated the interest of prominent citizens in the affair.

TWENTY-SIX SEA FOLLOWERS DIE

German Ship Sinks After Being Driven on Rocks; No Chance for Crew

LISBON, Feb. 3.—Twenty-six members of the crew of the German steamer Diester were drowned today when the steamer sank in the Douro river after being driven on the rocks during a violent gale.

A huge hole in the side of the vessel caused her to flounder immediately. The crew assembled on the top deck, but before they could equip themselves with life preserves or lower a boat, the enormous wave hurled 21 of them overboard. Five others clung to the rigging and went down with the ship.

Rescue boats had hardly more than started for the foundering vessel when she was seen to disappear. Not a man was seen in the swirling waters when the rescue craft arrived at the scene.

Jury Recommends More Frequent Bridge Inspections on Rail Bridges; No Blame Attached for C. P. R. Railwaymen's Deaths

REVELSTOKE, B.C., Feb. 3.—More frequent inspection of railway bridges was recommended by a coroner's jury here which today investigated the death of Engineer Bert Woodland and Fireman J. H. Griffiths of the Canadian Pacific railway on Monday morning, January 28, when their engine crashed through a bridge near Cutbank, 50 miles east of here. The engine was one of two coupled together and proceeding light from Glacier to Beavermouth, on the main line.

After hearing evidence of trainmen, bridge inspectors, and others, the jury, after finding that the deceased died from injuries received at the time of the accident, and that no blame could be attached to either of the deceased, or those with them at the time of the accident, declared "we find that the collapse of the bridge resulted from some unknown cause" and that it would "appear to the jury that the time elapsed after the previous minute inspection made in November, 1927, was insufficient to insure the safety of employees and the travelling public." Further the jury recommended that all railway bridges have a thorough inspection at closer intervals.

Boy Scout Doings

In the Kootenay and Boundary Districts

This column is open to all Scout organizations in the Kootenay and Boundary districts. Scout news must be in the editorial department by Saturday night at the latest.

FIRST NELSON TROOP BOY SCOUTS

The troop is gradually getting back into its stride again, there being an attendance of 55 at Friday night's meeting, and the various activities during the week showed an increased attendance also. There was practically a full turn out of instructors, and we were glad to have Assistant Scoutmaster Bill Price with us again, after a holiday at Cranbrook. While at Cranbrook he visited the Cranbrook scouts and cubs, and spent several pleasant evenings with them. We had also the assistance of Nelson Ball, formerly the Scoutmaster of the 2nd Nelson Troop, Mr. Ball is giving a special course of instruction, but more of this in the future.

The various subjects studied on Friday were: signalling, knot tieing, map reading and kindred subjects, advanced first aid, and reading the compass. The class for teleraphy, which was arranged for Friday nights is being held at present on Thursday nights, owing to the instructor not being able to be with the boys on Fridays. This class was fairly well attended, but there will be an increased attendance when it is known that in future this class meets on Thursday.

At the close of the regular meeting there was a special meeting of the leaders, held, for the purpose of considering ways and means to make the meetings more interesting, and also for appointing an officer to every patrol. There were many suggestions brought up, and all were considered, and the ones approved will be acted upon immediately. There was keen competition amongst the Patrol Leaders in securing the officers they wished, and everyone seemed pleased with the allocation. These officers will look after the interests of their own individual patrols. Looking after the attendance, and the general well being of their own patrol, and when this scheme is fully working, we expect to see a big advancement in the efficiency of the troop. Several of the scouts have expressed their willingness to assist the ladies auxiliary, by donating specimens of their handicraft work, for the sale in March. And there is not the slighest doubt that the scouts and cubs will do their best to make useful and attractive articles. It is seven years ago this week, since the scoutmaster joined the troop. There have been many ups and downs in that length of time, and he is the only one left of those who were in the troop seven years ago. But still the organization is carrying on, and will continue to carry on, as it has in the past, an influence for good on the boy life of the city.

FIRST NELSON WOLF CUB PACK

There was again a splendid turnout of the members of the pack last Tuesday night, despite the cold weather. There was an attendance of 50 under the charge of Assistant Cubmaster Garnet Kerr and Len Walton, assisted by the cubmaster. In spite of the fact that the furnace was in full blast, the hall was rather on the cold side so that instruction classes were cancelled, and other forms of Cub instruction were substituted in order to keep the boys on the move all the time, and keep them warm, however all are looking forward to warmer weather, in order that we can get on with our star work.

The attendance right through the winter has been very satisfactory, and several new boys have been in attendance. It must be admitted that from time to time, boys attend, stating that they wish to join the Pack, we have them with us for a few nights, and then they quit, not that they did not like coming, but they did not like the discipline. But it must be borne in mind, that when a large number of boys are handled night after night, there must be discipline, and the discipline and conduct of the pack as well as that of the troop, compares very favorably with other boys organizations, of any description.

SUMMER CAMP

The Cubs are saving up for the annual summer camp, which we expect will be a large one, and it will not be long till plans are being laid for the long-looked-for outing. The writer has enjoyed being at several scout and cub camps, and expects to be present at many more. To some of our friends, the work and responsibility that a boys camp demands is out of all proportion to the benefit the boys reap. But speaking from experience, everyone at camp gets to know each other and understand each other to a far better extent, than ever before, streaks of selfishness disappear after a few days at camp, and the general spirit of camp life is, "Not how much I can get out of it, but how much I can do for the other fellow" and that camp spirit, remains with the boys long after camping time is over.

TO NELSON SCOUTS

The members of the Auxiliary held a very successful tea and bake sale in the institute rooms on Saturday January 26. Though the affair was very successful, it would have been more so and the day not beem so inclement.

The monthly meeting of the organization was held in the Armory on Tuesday last, Mrs. C. Morris in the Chair.

A very satisfactory report was read, as regards the amounts raised at the recent bridge party and tea and bake sale, and a motion was passed to turn over to the troop funds $75, to help to meet the rent bill which falls due at the end of February. With this contribution from the auxiliary, the troop and pack will be able easily to pay the rent for the use of the Armory, and a check for the full amount $150 will be forwarded to the city clerk in the near future. No doubt the receipt of this check will bring cheer and comfort to the heart of our worthy city clerk, not to mention, to the hearts of our city fathers.

SUMMER CAMP FUND

At the meeting on Tuesday, ways and means were discussed, as to the raising of funds to help with the expenses of the summer camp. Bridge parties and tea and bake sales will be the order of te day, also an illustrated address, by a well known speaker. During March an exhibition and sale of spring flowers will be held. These flowers will have been grown from bulbs, which were given to the Cubs to look after, and also at the sale, there will be a display of handcraft work done by a number of the scouts and the cubs.

TROOP COMMITTEE

This committee has not met for sometime, as it is too cold to hold a meeting at the Curling rink, however with the advent of warmer weather, the committee will get into harness again.

FIRST TRAIL TROOP NEWS

This week the troop changed it's usual routine to allow the Patrol Leaders to have full charge of the meeting, instead of their usual Patrol Corners. This change came about as the result of a conference with the Scoutmaster, of former patrol leaders and the troop leader. In the Corners the Patrols discussed camp and how to raise money to get the necessary patrol equipment. Following this classes were given in signalling, first aid, knot tying and other parts of the Tenderfoot work.

Recuit Francis McDonald was invested and has become one of the great brotherhood. Recruit Tom Woods passed with a very high mark the knots and signs for the Tenderfoot test. Harry Graves was invested with the rank of second of the Cougar patrol. Bill Baldrey has been appointed as second of the Eagles, with the usual month probation. Allan Hood and Burnett Jackson are each trying the position for a month in the Bear Patrol, after which the most efficient one will be chosen. The second has no soft job, and one that requires almost constant attendance at the meetings.

The competition for January was very close, the Wolves winning the cup by a small margin. Hockey seriously interferes with the attendances, but as it is expected that it will be over at the end of the next month, it will give the patrols a chance to catch up.

The meeting on Friday was finished by the Scoutmaster reading a story of Scouting in the country round about Spokane, from that official magazine "Boy's Life". Next Friday the troop will enjoy a talk on China, which will be illustrated, by S. H. Hopkins, who is an old Scoutmaster in B. C. scouting circles.

IMPROVEMENTS IN NAKUSP DISTRICT WATER WORKS MADE

Intake Level Is Raised 43 Feet; Margin Assets Over Liabilities $2555

NAKUSP, B.C., Feb. 3.—The annual meeting of ratepayers of the Nakusp development district was held Thursday evening when about 25 ratepayers were present.

Water rents received during last year amounted to $3789.05, and taxes paid totalled $2587.85. Total receipts were $7012.17.

Included in the disbursements were: Salaries, $553.46; interest on debentures, $2510; installation, $1043.25; sinking fund, $1400.

The total cost of the water system was shown at $32,192.38. There were debentures outstanding of $29,200, and the margin of assets over liabilities was $2555.98.

G. H. Gardner, as commissioner, occupied the chair, with George Keys and K. Neubrand, commissioners, and Hugh Martin, clerk, present. Mr. Keys, whose term of office expired, was unanimously reelected for a period of three years.

During the year the commissioners built a new intake which raised the water level 43 feet. This provided a better supply for the Glenbank farmers, who lived at a higher altitude.

It was decided to allow the commissioners a nominal salary of $25 each for 1929.

Mr. Emery Lemay knows this. Writing from 88 St. Famille St., Montreal, he states, "I was always constipated and bilious, which made me feel tired and out-of-sorts. One day a travelling man recommended 'Fruit-a-tives.' You should see me to-day—in perfect health, full of energy, and the constipation all gone."

This is one of the great virtues of "Fruit-a-tives"—its wonderful cleansing powers. It acts on the three great eliminating organs, the bowels, kidneys and skin, keeping the body free of waste, purifying the blood, building up strength and energy. "DREAM ISLAND" TO BE REBUILT

Sunken Isle Off Pacific Coast Found by Plane; Plans to Rebuild It

CLEVELAND, Ohio., Feb. 3.—A "dream island" sunk in the Pacific Ocean off the California coast is the destination of a fantastic cruise headed by R. M. Bramley, paving contractor, who has bought the steam yacht Peary from Donald B. MacMillan, explorer, for the expedition.

Bramley's Island lies under twenty feet of water, where it was first revealed to him in a dream while in Cleveland. So vivid was his dream and so inviting was the prospect of twentieth century exploration and discovery in seas sailed for centuries by ships of every nation that Bramlet set out in search of his island while in California.

A ship was chartered and he made soundings for days without success. He gave up the idea and was about to return when persistent promptings to find his "dream island" caused him to charter an airplane for further search. He found it, plainly visible from the cockpit, he said, in fifteen or twenty feet of water.

Now he means to build a breakwater about the place, pump sand from the bottom of the sea to make new land and erect thereon a fishing and outing paradise.

"It may be fantastic," Bramley said, but investigation of stone prices for the wall about his island demonstrated his earnestness to go through with the plan anyhow.

The Peary is a fitting ship for the cruise. Its history is as colorful as some aspects of Bramley's dream. It was built first by the French government as a mine sweeper, but lay in dry dock until a private purchaser fitted it luxuriously as a yacht. Then Commander MacMillan bought it for the Arctic expedition of 1925 with Commander Richard E. Byrd. He named it the Peary in honor of Rear Admiral Robert E. Peary, his commander on the expedition which discovered the North Pole.

MacMillan, here for a series of lectures, was in negotiations for the sale of the ship to Haiti which planned to make a war vessel out of it when Bramley appeared with the purchase price. It is now at anchor in Boston.

Cranbrook Member Shows Wealth of the Kootenays

MacPherson Protests Against Lack of Cabinet Representation in Rich Area of Interior; Backs Labor Legislation

Speaks in Reply to the Address From Throne; Shows Immenseness of Great Sullivan; Urges Roads and Trails Improvement Existing Roads

VICTORIA, Feb. 3.—A protest against no cabinet representation for the Kootenays; a picture of the wealth of his riding and adjacent Kootenay ridings, and an urge for improvements to roads and mining trails in the Kootenays, featured the address in reply to the speech from the throne delivered by F. M. MacPherson, Liberal, Cranbrook on Friday.

"The first thing I wish to do," said the Chanbrook member, "is thank sincerely the electors of the Chanbrook riding for electing me as member of this seventeenth parliament of British Columbia, and trust that I will merit that confidence by upholding the dignities of the seat which I occupy.

Mr. MacPherson stated that reference had been made in the house to the weather by different members. It was his wish to draw attention to the fact that the last weather of this kind was in the last days of the Conservative reign of 1916, "so, sir, the start of this government is stormy in more ways than one," he stated.

"Let me add my congratulations to those you have already received on your election to the high office you hold," stated the Cranbrook member addressing the speaker, "and also let me assure you that I will, as a new member respect your office in every way, and I feel sure that you will, owing to your long service in this house, and your knowledge of the procedure, fill the office with dignity and honor to yourself and this parliament."

Mr. MacPherson recalled excellent progress being made by the King and expressed the hope that his condition may still improve and that he, with his consort, Queen Mary, may long be spared to grace the throne of this great Empire of ours."

TO THE PREMIER

"Mr. Speaker," he continued, "I, with other members of the opposition am glad to hear that the health of the prime minister has improved greatly and we can look forward to seeing him in his seat at an early date. I am doubly sorry, as I wished to address a few remarks to him personally and trust the honorable attorney-general, as floor leader will convey them to him for me.

"I listened with interest to the addresses of the mover and seconder to his honor's speech, and others who followed, and what seemed strange to me as a new member, that in almost every case only a passing remark was made to this important document, or what should be important, then each speaker launched into a speech on the good qualities of his riding, and following this course, it is my intention before I sit down to tell the honorable members of this house where Cranbrook riding is, and all its good points though many on the goernment side will recall that Cranbrook is the only riding in the last election which was won by the now Liberal opposition from a Conservative sitting member.

TOO MUCH TALK

"It seems to me," emphasized Mr. MacPherson, that a good deal of this talking and speech making is just taking up the time of this house which could be better used in the furtherment of legislation, which we are primarily here for, instead of trying to be an advertising agency for the district we represent, and I can asure you, that what I have to say will be brief.

The Cranbrook riding's representative congratulated "to some extent the premier of this province on his selection of ministers of the crown. I say to some extent, because I had hoped that when he performed this important task he would consider British Columbia as a whole and not confine these appointments to practically one locality more especially when he deemed it advisable to appoint two extra ministers without portfolios. It has left a large area of this province without ministerial representation. I speak in particular of the Kootenay distrist," said the member. Mr. MacPherson then quoted the following remarks by Sir Clifford Sifton, in the Manitoba Free Press, January 30:

"'Over 30 years ago, Messrs. Van Horne and Shaugnessy approached the then federal government for assistance in building the C.P.R. into the Kootenay district, and as the C.P.R. was at that time on the verge of bankruptcy, they built the line, and the Kootenay mining development saved the C.P.R. and saved a good many other things in the house. If this district was important, and saved the C.P.R., 30 years ago, how much more important is it in the mining development of British Columbia at this time."

RICH DISTRICT

"I speak in particular of the Kootenay district, with nine members in this house, five of whom sit with the government of the day, and it seems to me that in the formation of his cabinet, the prime minister of this province could have found among these five men who I contend are just as capable men as we have in this house, to fill a portfolio and administer it.

"I speak particularly of the mines portfolio," said the member, "for with the amount of mining in the Kootenay district, and the revenue to the government from the mines of this district, I feel it would have been good business on the part of the premier that a member from among these five men should have found a place in his cabinet.

"Another thing that I wish to call to your attention is that in the trips of the ministers of the crown who have journeyed inland, that with the exception of the minister of education, who opened a school at Michel, all such trips have ended at Nelson or Creston. I hope that this does not mean that the government is going to adopt a policy which will be unfavorable to the riding which I have the honor to represent, for reasons which I wish to state now, he continued.

THE GREAT SULLIVAN

"You, Mr. Speaker, have heard several members state that they have the largest mine of its kind in the world. Others have told you about the Sullivan mine of the Consolidated Mining & Smelting company, the largest silver-lead mine in the world, and silver mine in Canada. Now this is where advertising my district comes. This mine, I want the members of this house to know, is situated at Kimberley in Cranbrook electoral riding, and has probably more than other mines, done more to focus the eyes of capital and the investor on mining in British Columbia, as it was this mine, and the development of it, that awakened the interest we see in mining everywhere about us today. The member of Nelson has told you that one-tenth of the revenue of this province comes from the mines of the Kootenay district. Well, I want to go a little farther and tell you that nine-tenths of this one-tenth comes from the Sullivan mine of which I speak," said the Cranbrook member. He quoted mining receipts to the Trail smelter to emphasize his statement. For the week ending January 21—7878 tons of concentrates went from Sullivan mine, while 705 tons of concentrates went from all other mines.

"First, In opening up new trails and maintaining old ones into mines which today are in the prospect stage, but which, if given the chance I ask for, may develop into another Sullivan. For we have several prospects there now which are capable of big things if given aid such as I ask.

"Second. In sepnding money on the Red Transcontinental trail, which is the shortest route from the prairie provinces to the coast and which is deserving of such attention as it passes through Fernie, Cranbrook, Creston, Nelson, Kaslo-Slocan, Trail, Rossland, and Grand Forks ridings, being the oldest of the Trans-Provincial highways in British Columbia.

"Third." In my district we also have the blue trail from California to Banff and a trail which is one of the biggest feeders of tourist travel, and which enters B.C., at Kingsgate and between Yahk and Cranbrook follows the Red route, but then branches off, and one route takes you through Kimberley, then connects again near Wasa. I hope, that these roads will receive the attention merited, as well as the roads and trails in the farming district which forms a large part of my riding. I speak of these roads, as I understand the government has under survey and contemplate, new roads which will require large sums of money, and we in the Cranbrook riding feel, and I am sure I can speak in this regards to the Kootenay district, that we would like to see the roads already in existance completed and in first-class condition before any new projects are started."

FOR THE LABOR MAN

"Mr. Speaker," continued Mr. MacPherson, "as the working class and laborer form about 75 per cent. of the residents in my constituency, I want to assure the government of the day, that any labor legislation, such as amendments to the Workmen's Compensation act will have my support, as I feel that any additional benefits accruing to injured men, and the widows and children of deceased employees should have the support of every member of this legislature, because in helping particularly the boys and girls of today, we are performing a service to the Province of British Columbia, as these boys and girls will be in the future men and women of our province, and in helping them, we are helping British Columbia."

In closing Mr. MacPherson gave assurance that it was his intention to support all legislation which was a benefit to Cranbrook riding in particular, and British Columbia as a whole.

UNDER-SEA "LUNGS" LATEST IN STATES

Designed for Use of Men Trapped in Submarines; Is Only Small Device

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Feb. 3.—The United States navy has developed undersea "lungs" for submarine crews to such an extent that a Pittsburgh concern now is manufacturing 700 of the devices. The "lungs" are designed for use of men trapped in submarines when such vessels sink.

The apparatus weights slightly more than two pounds and has been used satisfactorily, it is said, at a depth of 243 feet under conditions such as exist in a submarine disaster.

Under plans for use of the equipment submarines are to be equipped with an escape chamber at each end. In the event of a disaster, the members of the crew enter the chambers in groups of eight, close the doors leading into the ship and then prepare to enter the water through outer doors in the escape compartments.

While the sailors put on their "lungs" water is admitted to the chambers until the pressure within equals that of the sea without. One by one they leave by the outer doors, the last men leaving closing these outer doors so that others may use the compartments.

Variance in the water pressure at varying depths have made similar apparatus impractical, but the "lungs" are provided with valves which permit oxygen in rubber bags to escape automatically as the wearer rises to the surface of the sea.

The pressure within the bag is always slightly greater than that of the water outside; thus the bags remain inflated. Those who wear the apparatus obtain their supply of oxygen from the bags.

Three navy men designed the equipment. Apparatus similar to that made here has been designed before, but have proved unwieldly on account of the oxygen containers. The "lungs" may be folded into a small package.

Ensembles have changed from the perfect matching of the frock and coat, next the perfect harmony of two shades or blending colors, and now comes the note of perfect contrast—not just any contrast, but one that will withstand all scrutiny and criticism.

Question Mark Quintet in Ball Will be Watched

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—A five-man crew took the question out of the Question Mark of aviation by piloting the sturdy tri-motored ship bearing that name to one of the greatest feats in the history of flying.

Another Question Mark, a figurative ship, will hop off this spring in a flight that will grip baseball in much the same way as the performance of the real Question Mark gripped aviation.

The Question Mark of baseball also will have a five-man crew, a crew comprising some of the most talked of men in modern baseball. Pennock, Goslin, Lazzeri, Meadows, Wilcy Moore—five men whose past feats on the diamond are beyond question, but whose future is far from certain.

Pennock, Moore and Meadows, all pitching stars of 1927, had to quit the game in 1928 because their arms gave out. Goslin and Lazzeri were in and outers, especially the latter, who finished the season more as a substitute than as a regular.

Each member of the pitching trio won 19 games in 1927. Pennoch and Moore helped hurl the Yankees to the American League pennant and the world's championship, while Meadows likewise assisted the Pirates to the National League title.

Moore and Meadows succumbed early in 1928, both retiring together after miserable luck on the mound. Meadows pitched but one full game and was credited with one victory and one defeat. Moore won four and lost four. Pennock's trouble developed after mid-season, and before he quit in August he had won 17 and lost 6.

Goslin's arm was a total loss from the very start, but being an outfielder with a remarkable batting eye the Goose could, and did, virtually eliminate throwing. His achievement in winning the league batting championship with an average of .379 speaks for itself.

Lazzeri was stricken about the same time Pennock dropped out, but because of the weakened condition of the desperate Yankees he did a Goslin and played when he could stand the pain of handling the ball, finishing the season with a batting mark of .332.

In a period of the year notorious in baseball for the breeding of false optimism, the reports are that all five will be back. But the likelihood of their Question Mark sustaining flight long enough to enable all to become 1929 dependables will be given less recognition than accorded the crew of the real Question Mark when they hopped off for their goal of 100 or more hours in the air.

AUTO RACING TOOK GREAT TOLL IN 1928

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 3.—Knights of the roaring road—those helmeted chaps in tiny racing automobiles—paid a fancy price in 1928 for brief moments of glory and acclaim.

Some were killed in action. Others, broken by injury, will never race again. A few voluntarily have hung up their goggles. Two of the racing clan went down with the steamship Vestris.

The tragic death of Frank Lockhart at Daytonna Beach, Fla., last April, while attempting to establish a new straight-away record, started the year wrong for the speed demons. A month late Dave Lewis shot himself to death in his California ranch home.

Frank Comer was killed on the board track at Salem, N. H., in October. Norman K. Batten of Brooklyn and Earl De Vore of Los Angeles were en route to South America for winter racing, when they were lost with the foundering of the Vestris.

De Vore, the debonair driver took his victorie and hard luck with the same happy grin. He was a veteran of the game although only thirty-five years old.

George Sounders of Lafayette, Ind., winner of the Indianapolis race in 1927; Peter De Paolo, twice the American champion, and Louie Schneider, Indianapolis youngster, brushed shoulders with death in spills.

And not to be forgotten, for he still is dashing through the dust of the dirt tracks, is the veteran Ralph De Palma. One of the greatest sportsmen of the roaring road, he still is at a sport that has battered his body and whitened his hair.

The true purpose of a budget

Every year you spend a large proportion of the money you get. So much for clothing. So much for shoes. So much for things to eat—for house furnishings, books, and what not.

Here is the way to get the most for your money.

Keep a budget. Decide what you can afford to spend for each item, and hold yourself within this amount.

Then—to get the most for your budget money read advertisements carefully. The advertisements you read tell you what is newest and best. They give you the latest ideas and improvements. They help you to get more from each dollar you have apportioned in your budget—and so live better and dress better with the same income.

The true purpose of a budget is to enable you to spend wisely—and only by careful reading of advertising can you hope to accomplish this result.

The Work of the Board of Trade

Nelson board of trade has in its 1928 work a record to be proud of.

Behind the Nelson board are more than three decades of activity in the interest of the district upon which Nelson depends and 1928 was another year of good work of which the members, and particularly the officers and council, had every reason to be proud.

There will be lots of work to be done during 1929.

Never has a year opened with better prospects for tremendous development of industry in the district, with corresponding growth in business and, of course, corresponding growth in problems and the need for public works and other activities of public importance.

At its annual meeting on Thursday the board started the year with a number of important resolutions, the most striking of which was that involving the renewal of the campaign for the completion of the Hope-Princeton link in the Vancouver-Nelson highway.

All southern British Columbia, the portion of the province in which lives the greater portion of our population, outside of the large coast cities, is deeply concerned in the demand for the early construction of this highway.

It is absurd that in order to travel by automobile from coast to Kootenay, from Kootenay to coast, we should be compelled to make a long detour via Kamloops and the Fraser Canyon. Kootenay is entitled to a direct route, and should keep on pounding away until it gets it.

London Banking House Reports Favorably Many Canadian Industries

The monthly letter of a prominent London, England, investment house that has just been received in Canada contains a favorable report of Canadian conditions as they impress themselves upon one of the partners, who had just returned from a three months' trip to Canada. The tour of investigation that was carried on by this representative included visits to plants of leading Canadian corporations, such as Consolidated Mining & Smelting company in British Columbia, and the Frood properties of International Nickel company at Sudbury, Ont.

Canadians will be impressed with the enterprise shown by this London banking house in having one of its members make a personal investigation of Canadian corporations in which English clients are deeply interested.

There will be a feeling also of satisfaction at the fact that the first-hand knowledge that is being laid before these clients will aid materially in bringing home to investors overseas the great future that lies before a number of Canadian corporations whose shares play a prominent part in the day-by-day operations of the Canadian stock exchanges. The report referred to reads in part as follows:

"Since my visit to Canada 12 months ago, the country has continued to steadily develop its vast natural resources. The agricultural communities have just harvested a record crop, and although in the western provinces the quality of the wheat has suffered from damage by frost, the financial result should prove satisfactory.

"In every branch of industry there has been increased prosperity during 1928, with the possible exception of the newsprint industry, where a state of over production has brought about a temporary fall in the value of the product. Developments are particularly noticeable in the large base metal deposits of the country, and the writer was fortunate in that he had an opportunity of visiting such plants at that of the Consolidated Mining & Smelting company at Trail, B.C., and the International Nickel company's Frood mine at Copper Cliff, near Sudbury, Ont. These and other developments which are taking place of the enormous ore bodies which Canada possesses, should prove an increasing source of wealth to the country and will still further broaden the basis of its prosperity.

"Although Canada is a young and rapidly developing country, it is able at the present time to show a satisfactory favorable balance in its foreign trade, and the large tourist traffic which it has increases this trade balance by some $270,000,000 to $280,000,000 a year. It is thus enabled to readily meet its indebtedness to outside holders of its securties and have a large balance in hand to aid in still further developing its natural resources. The financial position of the country is, therefore one of increasing strength.

"The various public utility undertakings, as the Montreal Light, Heat & Power Consolidated, Shawinigan Water & Power company, Quebec Power company, and the British Columbia Power corporation, are continuing to show the same steady progress as they have done in the past, and the country as a whole looks as if it is in for a period of further progress and increased prosperity."

A VINDICATION OF WOMEN

As a woman I am much abused—for a dozen different reasons. Listen to some of the epithets that are hurled at me: changeful, capricious, uncertain, inconstant, fickle, unreliable.

Is there no truth in these? Indeed they are apt, but elusiveness is my strength. How long could I hold a man if I were not so?

There are women who are reliable, soused in common sense, dull and blunted.

Do men fall in love with them? Now, isn't the question ridiculous!

If I am not independent, I am in the hands of a man. To hold his interest, I must be engaging. For exciting his curiosity I am blamed. For failing to excite his curiosity, I am overlooked. Blustering man, you are more unreasonable than the most rudimentary woman!

Take a look at the result of our dependence upon you. Are you blind to your shortcomings? Indeed your handiwork is no credit to you—incompetent buffoon! Put that in your pipe and smoke it.

Things are improving; we are less and less subservient to you. With our competition we shall soon have the bother of deciding whether or no we shall allow you a subsistence allowance. Maybe we shall—but what if we lose it at Poker, or on the way home?

The tables are turning—pull up your socks!

Sour Cream Muffins: Into a mixing bowl break one egg and beat well. Add one cup of thick sour cream. Sift one and one-half cups of bread flour with two teaspoons of baking powder, one-half teaspoon of salt and one-fourth teaspoon of baking soda. Stir this dry mixture into the former mixture, beat well, and bake in greased muffin pans in a hot oven (400 degrees F.) for 20 minutes.

Princess Pudding: Stir one and one-half cups of bread crumbs into two cups of sweet cold milk, then add one-fourth cup of sugar and a pinch of salt; cook this mixture for 15 minutes in a double boiler before adding to it the beaten yolk of one egg and one-fourth teaspoon of vanilla. Now pour it into a buttered pudding dish and cool. Then spread with any favorite jelly, dot with a meringue made with one stiffly whipped egg white and two tablespoons of sugar, and bake in a moderate oven 325 degrees F.—for 20 minutes.

Apricot Charlotte: Wash one-fourth pound of dried apricots, then cover them with cold water and let soak overnight; next morning, cook them in this same water in which they were soaked, and when very soft force them through a fine strainer. Soak one-tablespoon of granulated gelatine in one-third cup of cold water for several minutes, then dissolve it in one-third cup of boiling water; add the juice of one lemon, one cup of granulated sugar and one cup of strained apricots. Cool and when the mixture begins to congeal (that is, when it will cling to the sides of the bowl containing it) beat it till light and into it fold the whites of three eggs stiffly beaten. Continue beating till the mixture holds its shape. Chill and serve either with whipped cream, or without.

That Body of Yours

Home Life and Work

I have spoken about a preacher in the old country who was in the midst of a serious church union disturbance.

He was the subject of many bitter attacks in a portion of the press, and at public and private meetings.

Notwithstanding all this, he went about his work, well, happy, and smiling.

Asked how he could maintain such a calm and happy front he replied "Everything is all right at home with the wife and children; they are all well."

I likened this man's home life to the recharging of a battery each night when he returned home, as he thus disconnected the wires of his busy troubled life, connected them with the storage battery of the home life, and thus was ready the next day for his work.

Now Glenn L. Gardiner studying the lives of industrial workers, tells us that the home life of the worker has much to do with his producing, his product at the factory.

He says "The worker whose home life is not heathful, who is not eating the right food, who does not get enough of the right kind of rest, is sure to lose his pep in his job.

Observation of lunches carried by working men led to the conclusion that there is a close connection between what a man puts into his stomach and what he puts into his job."

What about this?

There isn't any question but that only three things enter into the health of the worker.

Work, food and rest.

If he is working in an up to date factory he is likely getting proper light and ventilation, as he does the physical work required of him.

The other two factors, food and rest, depend upon himself and his wife or housekeeper.

Clean food, well balanced in meats or eggs, vegetables and bread, milk, butter and fats, with plenty of liquids, is squarely up to the housewife. That is her job.

His rest depends upon himself. Not less than eight hours of solid sleep should be his portion, if he is going to be able to do his work properly and avoid the accidents that happen so frequently to tired workers.

The Story of a Social Climber

By LUCILLE VAN SLYKE

Chapter LXXXIII

Chalk Dust

The train was a bit late, she dismissed Geachin, but he nodded towards the baggs and said stiffly,

"Best for me to wait, ma'am."

But in her restless, unhappy mood she couldn't sit still. So she clambered out of the station cart and paced up and down the platform. Other station carts and many cars were parked in the blue stone space.

"There's Quimby!" called a gay voice. "Oh, Mrs. Quimby, mother says you and Nannette are to come to luncheon with us Saturday after the water sports!"

"So sorry," she answered dully, "I can't. But her Aunty Dee is visiting her. Perhaps they could go."

"Mercy no!" the frankness of fourteen answered, "I'm scared stiff of her Aunty Dee! I do wish you could!"

An eager eighteen year old youth hailed her from the opposite side of the tracks, calling through his cupped hands,

"I say, Quimmy! Some of us are getting up a treasure hunt for Saturday night! Would it be asking an awful lot to ask if we could use your place?"

She forced herself to smile.

"Suppose you phone Nannette's aunt. She's at the house in charge. I'm on my way to town. I'm sure she'd say yes."

Perfectly silly of her to feel her knees wobbling. Utterly childish of her to care so much about their liking her and wanting her! The boys friendly grin made her want to cry, it was so inexpressibly dear. The train rumbled in, she clambered aboard and leaned out from an opened window.

"Goodbye!" she called. Not just to the boy but to the whole blessedly sweet world she was leaving behind her.

Then she shut her tired eyes.

Back of her voices were speaking guardedly.

"No, the little woman in the seat ahead, Mrs. Harrison Quimby. Isn't she pretty? He's ages older than she but perfectly crazy about her. They have the most wonderful old place about a mile from the station. Gee, it must be fun to live the way she does. She's terribly popular, everybody likes her."

"Some people have all the luck," the other voice was discontented. "I'm so sick of schoolteaching I could just die. Same old thing, year after year. Chalk dust and bells and papers to mark."

It bore in upon Rosalie's unhappy thoughts that the Maine job was for a brief time, that she would have to find a job for the winter, that this same chalk-dust, bells and papers-to-mark that the voice back of her condemmed was all in the world that she knew how to do and that at the best it would provide a drab living.

Figures danced wildly in her mind. Quim's secretary had paid the household bills, handing her a check each week for her personal expenses. She had saved every penny that she could out of it, meanin to give it back to Quim when she could make enough to fill out the entire amount. But it was going to cost her quite a bit for her tickets to Maine and her wages there would barely make enough to pay for her return tickets. All the old pinching, grudging, horrid economies of her girlhood would begin from this moment!

Town was gastly hot. She found that her train left at midnight. She bought her ticket, frugally engaging an upper berth, checked her bags, then went over and sat down, rather limply, on a side bench and watched with unseeing eyes the travelers and the comuters who hurried or lagged through the station. Her sombre eyes fixed themselves upon the street clock over the information booth. Every moment that it checked away made a picture for her.

Now Nannette and Aunty Dee would be getting up from the luncheon table to saunter arm in arm out to the shaded terrace. Aunty Dee would doze in the comfortable long basket chair while Nannette played paper dolls. She could picture the child running lightly along the path to stand tiptoe beside the sundail eager for the time when the shadows fall athwart the "III" upon the dial. For at three o'clock around Greachin would come with the station cart, and the bathing suits and off Nannette would go to frolic in the big pool with the other youngsters. The gastly humidity of the station made Rosalie think longingly of the cool water. And the youngsters mothers and nurses calling to them from the big stone benches beside it.

They would get deliciously shivery and go off to play tennis to warm up and then they'd dive under the shower-baths to cool off again.

She stirred uneasily, she'd forgotten that she had an engagement to play nine holes of golf at four o'clock, with young Mrs. Glidden and her niece and Nannie. She rose, found a telephone booth, got Mrs. Glidden's house and left a message with her maid.

"Mrs. Quimby is sorry that she cannot play golf this afternoon."

Awfully hard to keep her voice level. And she was frightfully dizzy when she went back to her appointed seat. She remembered that she had had no luncheon but couldn't think of a thing in the world that she wanted to swallow.

How the minutes dragged! She went back to information booth, consulted the bored clerk again, asking him again if he was sure there was no earlier train.

"None that make any sort of connections with your town, ma'am," he replied. "You could take a train here but you'd only wait somewheres along the line till this through train came on, or else if you went on now and changed, you'd have to change twice and would be getting into Deerhead at three in the morning. Day coaches only."

Decidedly, that wouldn't do. She went back to her bench. Five o'clock now. Stimson would be wheeling the teawagon out on the terrace, there would be lemonade for Nannette and iced tea for Aunty Dee. Mabe some of the neighbors would have dropped in. She could visualize them in their cool, pretty frocks, sipping tea and laughing and gossiping. Filling in the time until they would drift to the country club to pick up their golfing brothers and husbands. They wouldn't miss her at all, but she would miss them horribly. She could imagine Quim's sister explaining things brusquelly:

"Rosalie? Well, my dear, she's left Quim. Perfect little fool! Made a perfect mess of things for him!"

Hateful to think how people would stare at Quim! Dear, grossled Quim, who had been so generous with her! Brusque, of course, keenly critical—but justly so. None of Chet's easy going, mamby-pamby way about Quim!

She shuddered when she thought of Chet, with his picayune economies and his small town standards.

"I must have been mad to have thought that I loved him!" She remembered that dreadful day Chet and Quim had faced each other in the ugly little sitting room of the hotel. Chet so ineffectual and cowardly and Quim, towering over him, looking through and through him.

"Quim looks downright distinguished!" she exulted in her thoughts. Any woman would be proud of Quim!"

An incoming crowd was pouring out from a gateway, porters with bags, men, women, children, shoving into the station, scattering every direction, she watched them idly.

"Not one man as splendid looking as Quim—"

Then suddenly, she stifled a little cry!

Quim himself was coming through the gate, hurrying ahead of the porter who was struggling with his bags. He didn't see her, but rushed past the little figure waiting on the bench. She could hear his dear voice saying: "Stay here with the bags. I want to telephone—"

How tired and hot he looked! Half-ill with worry! Quite without her own volition she called out, "Oh, Quim!"

THREE MINES ARE CLOSED DOWN IN SILVERTON ZONE

Turn Water Out of Flume at Mammoth; Breakages at Bosun and Galena

SILVERTON, B.C., Feb. 3.—A mine and a mill in this vicinity were forced to close down temporarily because of machinery breakages, and one was forced to suspend operations because of extremely cold weather during the past few days.

At the Mammoth the compressor ceased to operate when it was necessary to turn the water out of the flume, due to cold. A number of men were laid off but most of them remained at the mine boarding house awaiting moderate weather.

New parts to replace those broken on the Bosun mine compressor will be installed in a few days and operation will immediately resume.

FARM MILL CLOSES

Flaws in two of the cylinders of the diesel engine in use at the Galena Farm mine forced a shutdown at this mine. The engine was formerly used at the Paradise mine. Three shifts of mill men are out of employment, but it is expected repairs will be made in a few days.

Residents are looking forward to the opening of the Van Roi mine in the near future. Development of ore bodies will proceed, and in the spring the concentrator will be remodelled.

Subzero weather has been the rule in this district. The following figures indicate degrees below zero; Sandon, 18; Alamo, 25; New Denver, 10; Silverton, 8; Hewitt mine, 21; Mammoth, 22, and Galena Farm, 16.

ercy Williams, B. C. Sprinter, Wins in Boston Races

ncouver Flash Trails Field Only to Sprint to Win by Two Feet in the 40-Yard Dash; It Was a Great Finish

y Ball Fails to Get Going in Boston Race; Percy Wins First Heat, Places Second in Second and Wins in the final by a Fair Margin

BOSTON, Feb. 3.—Percy Williams, the young man from ouver, B.C., who captured two sprints for Canada in the pic games last year, began his invasion of the United s last night with an impressive victory in the 40-yard dash at the Boston A's fortieth annual meet. Williams trimmed an exceptionally fast field without much difficulty. His triumph was the more astounding and devastating from the viewpoints of his American rivals, since it was his first start at short distance on a board track indoors.

PERCY WILLIAMS

Williams' time in the final was 4 4-5 seconds, two-fifths of a second slower than the world's indoor mark. He had a poor get-away compared to his starts in the first two heats and half way down the track was behind but with characteristic dash, he uncorked a streaming swiftness that carried him forward in the brief 20 yards and he finished with plenty of light between him and the second place winner, Karl Wildermuth of Dartmouth university.

Phillip Edwards, the Canadian middle-distance star, was forced to take second place in the 1000-yards, which was won by S. H. Martin of Boston in 2:17. Edwards partially made up his prestige again by leading the New York university's quartet to victory in the one-mile relay. The time was 3:31 1-5.

MY BALL LOSES

Running at a new distance, 600 yards, and under conditions with which he was not familiar, Jimmy Ball, Winnipeg pic star, was caught in the jam at the first turn and, trying to adjust his stride to the short turns on the board track, d not recover. He finished fourth. The race was won by ie McCafferty of Holy Cross university in 1:14 2-5. Fred of New York university was second and Oliver Proudlock, ark A.C., third. Ball was about 10 yards behind Proud-he Canadian supporters are dent that when he has been accustomed to the indoor ing conditions and to the ce, Ball will be able to repeat the extraordinary showing he made at Amsterdam in the 400 meters.

PICKARD SECOND

Victor Pickard, the fourth Canadian Olympic man in last night's events, took second place in the pole vault for Pittsburgh university, with a leap of 13 feet. Fred Eric Sturdy, of Yale, won the event going over the bar four inches higher. Paavo Nurmi won his third two-mile race in eight days, when he defeated Ove Anderson, his countryman, by a good three-quarters of a lap in the event for the Williams' trophy.

Percy Williams' time in the final of his race was one-fifth of a second slower than that of the first heat. Students of the track, after watching the Canadian's performance, expressed the opinion that familiarity with conditions would enable him to equal the world's record during his present tour of the eastern American tracks.

At the very commencement of his running on this side of the line, Williams got away like a tornado and his remarkable legs swing up the yardage in a manner which caused the eyes of spectators to protrude, and small difficulty in breasting the tape in 4 4-5 seconds.

The semi-final heat was not quite so good. He may have saved himself a most, finishing second to Linwood Lewis of Boston university.

The finals saw such athletes as Paul Uber, Oliver Dowd of Newark, and George Martin of Holy Cross on their marks with the Canadian flier. The field appeared to be the match of Williams, but at the half-way mark, he was running by a yard, whereupon the race was.

Then the Vancouver legs began to function again. The wonderful speed put them down five yards from the tape to break it two feet ahead of the Georgetown sprinter.

Pitcher Gets Mouthful of Dirt in Glove

By AL DEMAREE
(Former Pitcher New York Giants)

Nobody knows how many ball games have been won or lost because of superstitions of ball players.

Most players coming out of the box drop their gloves with the palm downward near the foul line. If some player comes along and kicks the glove aside or upsets it, many times the pitcher becomes so upset he can't go on at his regular pace.

Spit ball pitchers usually leave the gloves with the palms up and their slippery elm, or whatever they use, in it. Frequently players of the opposing club come along and toss gravel or dirt into the glove, so the pitcher gets a mouthful when he goes back to the hill.

Most players have their own little pet superstitions, but there are many general ones, such as stepping over the foul line, going behind the catcher when going up to bat, and tapping the plate with their club, which become generally adopted throughout a league.

PIRATES-MAROONS FAIL TO TALLY

Benedict in Montreal Goal Is Star; Lots of Penalties at Pittsburgh Game

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 3.—The Pittsburgh Pirates and the Montreal Maroons battled through 70 minutes of fast and exciting National league hockey to a scoreless tie here last night.

The Pirates, managed by Benny Leonard, seemed possessed of their owner's ring lore and did their best to prove it but the Maroons also were pugnacious, the result being most interesting and fastest game seen here this season.

Benedict, Maroon goalie, was by far the star of the game. At times he was forced to play the entire Pirate team alone, so often was the penalty box occupied by Maroon players. In all, 15 penalties were called.

HOME CLUBS ARE VICTORS IN CUP TIES, SCOTLAND

Huge Crowd Sees Rangers Defeat Partick Thistle; Some Casualties

GLASGOW, Feb. 3.—Second round games in the Scottish football association play Saturday saw the departure of many of the weaker clubs and the promotion of most of the first division teams competing. The games were played in showery weather on soft ground. Of the sixteen ties seven home clubs were victors, four away while five games were drawn.

The biggest gate was that at Ibrox Park, where the Rangers defeated Partick Thistle. Seventy thousand passed through the turnstiles.

While many of the matches were of the rough and tumble variety, the accident list was very small, only one serious injury being reported. This happened to Meeps, center forward of Stenhousemuir, who was taken to the infirmary suffering from internal trouble.

TORONTO STOPS AMERICAN TEAM

Score Is Three-One in Season's Roughest Battle Played at New York

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—Toronto swamped the New York Americans tonight 3-1 in one of the season's roughest N. H. L. contests in New York. The victory put the Leafs in a tie with the Montreal Maroons for third place in the Canadian section.

Most of the scoring and penalties came in the second period when Rabbit McVeigh started the action with a goal for the Americans and Ace Bailey came back with two for the Leafs less than 20 seconds apart. Eight penalties including a major to Dye were claimed in this frame, and Connacher, American defence star, was fined $25 for battling with Andy Blair in the "cooler." At the end of the game they resumed their scrap and several other members of both teams joined in.

Eighteen Met Death in This Crash

When a Greyhound bus was struck by a Lake Shore electric interurban in a blinding snowstorm near Belleville, Ohio, on January 22, 18 were killed and 13 seriously injured. The electric car struck the bus in the middle, almost tearing it in half and came to rest on top of the bus in a ditch. All of the dead and badly injured were passengers of the bus. Photo shows demolished bus and trolly car shortly after the crash.

Fail to Find Body of Slide Victim at Reno

He was to obtain some articles used by the victim. He returned with a pillow, a stocking and a hat, and Dr. Morrison held them down to "Willie."

One sniff was enough. The dog's ears stood up, his tail began to wag, and he started to shift around, trying to jump up on Dr. Morrison. Dr. Morrison held the articles out of the dog's reach and ordered him to go and lie down. "Willie" obeyed but lay under the table with his ears 'perked' and an eager look in his eyes.

EXPECTS MASTER

In the next few minutes the dog was forgotten. As the men started to put their coats on in preparation to again going out in the cold to the slide, and were moving toward the door, "Willie" rushed out from under the table and began to bark excitedly. There seemed to be an eager, expectant note in the bark, as if the dog thought he was to be taken to his master, whom he had not seen since Christmas.

As the three men, Doctor Morrison, Constable Vickers and Mr. Thompson, neared the scene of the slide, they met the men who had been searching, returning to camp. One of them was asked to accompany the party, bringing an extra shovel.

DOG IS EXCITED

With every hope for success, although realizing the almost impossible task with which the dog was faced, the victim's hat was again held to "Willies" nose and the dog became more excited than ever. Doctor Morrison put the hat in his pocket and started over the slide, but it soon became evident that the dog was too excited to work and it was believed that it was because of the presence of the hat in Doctor Morrison's pocket.

Constable Vickers went down from the road onto the slide and brought up Doctor Morrison's coat and hat, but although all scent from the hat must surely have been taken away from Doctor Morrison, the dog continued to act excited, jumping up and down and barking occasionally.

MEET NO SUCCESS

Doctor Morrison coaxed him on and led him over the snow but although the dog once or twice sniffed at the ground at one certain place, he showed no signs of lingering there. Deep holes had been dug by the men in the snow piled up by the slide—holes that reached right down to the old snow—so that the dog could be taken into them and take advantage of the possibility of obtaining a scent from the walls.

A heavy mist hung over the men as they worked and a fine snow was being blown in their faces by a fairly strong wind, but Doctor Morrison continued with the dog for an hour, without success. As it grew dark it was decided there was little use searching while the dog remained excited and the party returned to camp.

CIRCLE INCOMPLETE

A splendid six-tube radio set, being in operation for the first time, helped during the evening in a small way to keep the men's minds off their grim errand. Although catchy tunes came over the air, a melancholy feeling was ever present as every miner off duty gathered in Manager Thompson's office to listen in.

One thought was apparently present in everyone's mind and that was that the circle was incomplete. Mr. Thompson, with a catch in his voice that belied the half-hearted smile that he tried to force, told how, when the machine had been brought to camp a few days before and it was founnd that a storage battery was not obtainable, that Mr. Woodrow had said: "Well, anyway, there are lots more nights to listen in." The battery was not obtained till Saturday.

WONDERFUL SIGHT

Yesterday morning the sun was shining brightly, the mist had cleared and it was a wonderful sight that greeted the party. The beauty of the snow covered mountains with the sun shining on them, was admired for a short time—until the men remembered what some of that beautiful snow had done on Thursday.

Many subjects were broached as the men tried to talk about other things, but always the conversation reverted to their immediate task and, although almost convinced of the futility of the project, their hopes were high as they once more started for the scene of the slide.

SCENTS COYOTE

This time the dog was not excited, except for once when it sniffed the tracks of a coyote which had crossed through deep snow during the night and cut across the slide. It was an exciting moment for all as the dog followed the scent but when it reached the edge of the slide and it was seen that it was the coyote's scent the dog had picked up, the men's hopes fell again.

After an hour the hopelessness of the thing was at last as apparent as it could be and it was with reluctance that the men admitted it. If Mr. Woodrow's body had been within two feet of the surface anywhere on that 60,000 square feet of snow the dog would have scented it.

BURIED DEEPLY

That the body was buried from 20 to 30 feet with a hundred tons of snow on top of it was the conviction of the searchers. To have a slide start under a man's feet and carry him with it, was altogether different than to have approximately 54,000 cubic feet of snow drop on top of him, which was the case in this instance.

Dr. Morrison and Mr. Thompson, who are both well acquainted with the actions of slides, and Constable Vickers, talked the problem over and arrived at what was figured to be a fairly accurate summing up of the whole tragedy.

COMB FORMED

Where the slide started could be seen plainly from the switchback road below the road on which the men were working at the time. Appearances at the top showed that a comb had been formed by the wind banking up the snow and that finally the comb had broken off starting the slide. This was 50 feet above the road where the men were working, but could not be seen from there. Even had Mr. Woodrow seen the snow coming down in time to seen looking up he could not have have escaped being buried.

SPLIT ON BLUFF

The reason for this was that a bluff projected out of the mountain side about 50 feet above the road any anything higher than the bluff could not be seen.

Signs showed that when the slide encountered the bluff it ran up on it, split and slipped off the side, taking with it every bit of snow and two or three trees, leaving the bluff bare stone. Above and below the bluff the slide consisted of only recently fallen snow riding on top of the older snow.

DROPPED OUT OF SKY

After the slide split on the bluff it came together again hitting the road in about the vicinity that Mr. Woodrow was with full force. The road had been cut out of the snow and the side of the road would be as high as Mr. Woodrow's head. The slide, it was figured, literally dropped out of the sky onto Mr. Woodrow, giving him no chance to escape.

Whether he was killed instantly when the slide struck him and was spared death by suffocation or by having the life crushed out of him, could only be hoped, but it was the general belief. Enormous blocks of snow, almost as solid as a rock, came down the mountain side with terrific speed and it was only with mining shovels that the road was cleared. The snow refused to yield to ordinary snow shovels so tightly was it packed. It was found impossible to lift some of the blocks and as impossible to break them.

GAINS SPEED

These blocks, gaining speed every fraction of an inch and adding to their numbers every foot, hurled themselves down on the road, swept over it and on down a draw, the shape of which, piled the edges in on top of the center, when the toe of it came to a stop in some huge trees. As the toe came to a stop, the slide telescoped, so that in the center of the draw the snow was packed with the edges of the slide rolled in on top, and the end crashing on top of it all. The slide filled the road to a level with the slope of the mountain.

SLIDE SETTLES

If Mr. Woodrow was not killed when the slide struck him or was not immediately suffocated or crushed to death, he was dead within an hour after the slide came down, it was thought. All three men, Dr. Morrison, Constable Vickers and Mr. Thompson agreed in that when Mr. Thompson told what happened while the men searched for the body the day of the slide.

"We had been working on the slide about an hour," Mr. Thompson said, "when there was a terrible thud and we felt the snow under us sink. It must have sunk a foot, and when that snow settled, all hopes of finding Charlie alive were gone. We worked on, though, until darkness forced us to abandon the search until the next day."

DANGER OF ANOTHER

For a few seconds the settling of the snow made even the pulses of the stout-hearted miners beat fast, for there was the even-present danger of another slide, starting higher than the first, coming down and probably wiping out every member of the crew.

The flank of the slide that caught the other three men did not gain enough speed, probably through not starting as high as the main slide, to carry its entire length over the road, a great part of it coming to a stop above the road. Huge blocks of snow came to a stop and piled up on the higher side of the road, within reaching distance. It was only loose soft, snow that swept over the road carrying the three men with it and was probably that that saved their lives.

AFFECTED MINERS

That the tragedy affected the sturdy miners in no small way attested to the popularity of the unfortunate, man. Friday the majority of them had returned to their work in or about the mines but it was with heavy hearts. One of the men who shares a cabin with Mr. Woodrow could not bear to sleep in it after the tragedy, and the dead man's belongings had not been touched when Constable Vickers inspected the cabin yesterday.

"Willie," the victim's 12-year-old pet, became unmanageable when he accompanied the officer, Mr. Thompson and Dr. Johnson in the cabin. He sniffed at the bed clothes, ran around the room and barked joyously as if expecting every moment to find his master. He jumped on the bed and down again and looked pleadingly up to the men.

POPULAR AT CAMP

Mr. Thompson told of a few reasons why Mr. Woodrow was extremely popular at the camp. "Whenever the men were grouchy, Charlie was the one who got them in good humor. Whenever there was work to be done—extra work, I mean—he was always the first to volunteer," he said. "Charlie made life pleasant for us here," he continued, and then sighed as he remembered other things that had endeared Mr. Woodrow to every man at the mine.

"The day of the slide," Mr. Thompson continued, "Charlie was on that work as a result of his good nature. It was extra work, but he was there with a will and this is his reward. It isn't fair.

WORKED LATE

"If he had been an ordinary fellow he would never have suggested they work through till dark, and he would have been here today. Quitting time was at 4 o'clock, but it meant nothing to Charlie, for his work wasn't done," Mr. Thompson continued.

"Bill Hamilton, the tractor man, came up to the cook house and got some eats to take back to the men so that they could keep on clearing the road until darkness forced them to stop. It was only a few minutes after Bill got back that the slide came down."

RETURNED TO NELSON

Dr. Morrison and Constable Vickers ing the trip from the Reno mine to returned with the dog yesterday, mak- Salmo in the open sleigh coupled to the tractor and from Salmo to Nelson in an uncovered back of a truck. They were cold, tired and stiff when they arrived here and were glad to turn in for a good night's sleep after their hard journey.

RAILWAY SHARES TAKE SPOTLIGHT

Interest on 'Change Revived by News of More Trunk Line Consolidations

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—Rail shares again led the way to higher ground on the stock market Saturday; interest in this group being enlivened by developments in trunk line consolidation plans. Moderately heavy week-end profit-taking caused a number of recessions in the industrial group.

Baltimore & Ohio announced its intention to undertake to acquire the Reading and the New Jersey Central, and the Taplin interests filed a petition with the interstate commerce commission on the part of the West Virginia for permission to acquire the Western Maryland.

The Associated Press price index of 20 rails rose fractionally to another new high, while the indices of 50 industrials and 20 utilities receded slightly.

Jersey Central led the rails, with a jump of 20 points to 350, a record price, in a small turnover. St. Louis Southwestern rose nearly 9 and Union Pacific about 5½ to new tops.

Chemical shares again surged upward, Allied Chemical mounting 10 points to 301, having sold as low as 145 last year. Columbian Carbon jumped about 7 points to a record price. International Cement moved up 8 points on its favorable earnings statement for 1928. Eastman Kodak, General Cable, Johns Manville, National Bellas Hess, McKesson & Robbins, and Abraham & Strauss sold 4 to 7 points higher.

Motors were inclined to heaviness and Chrysler selling off nearly 3 at one time. White Motor was a strong point, however, crossing 50 to a new high.

Radio, having shot up 33 points in the previous session, slid back about 17 points, then rallied, reducing its loss to 9½. American Express fell 14. Greene Cananea, Dupont (new), and Woolworth lost about 3 points each and U. S. Steel receded more than 2.

SALMO CON. HAS MINERALIZED ZONE OF NINETY FEET

Face of Crosscut Opening It Has Not Yet Reached the Further Wall

NOT YET CERTAIN IT IS SAME VEIN ABOVE

Work Is Now Under Shaft of Early Days But Will Be Carried Further

Deeper development of the Salmo Consolidated, represented by a crosscut tunnel begun last October from a point below the wagon road and intended to tap at new depth the vein opened for approximately 100 feet by an inclined shaft, has for some time been in mineralized zone whose dimensions and dip are not yet known.

SOME MILLING ORE

The crosscut has so far made 275 feet, and for the last 90 feet it has been passing through quartz and calcite impregnated with galena and zinc, some of it constituting milling ore. While the tunnel is now about under the shaft with the face still mineralized it is not yet clear whether this mineralized zone is a broadening out of the vein developed by the shaft, or is another, and, on the theory that there may be another mineralized belt ahead, Manager P. P. Horton figures the exploration on the new level might well be carried another 25 feet.

In the shaft, which was sunk 30 years ago, on the most conspicuous of numerous small veins showing on the surface, the ore gradually widened and when the shaft was cleared out last season a crosscut in the bottom, about 100 feet vertically from the surface showed the ore widened to eight feet to the east, no crosscutting being done to the west. The new tunnel will given another 66 feet vertical feet of depth.

MANY SURFACE SHOWINGS

The ground of the Salmo Consolidated in the vicinity of the shaft is intersected by a large number of parallel showings, and it has been the theory that with depth these would probably come together, in deposited ore. Opening of this wide mineralized zone seems to lend support to this theory. What the mineralized zone may contain laterally will not appear until drifting is done.

A crew of 12 is carrying on the development, using machine drills.

Utica Mines Ltd.

We still have a small block of this stock at the prelisted price of 35 cents.

We are advised that Stobie, Forlong & Company intend listing the shares on both the Vancouver and Toronto Exchanges in February, the papers now being prepared for listing.

Oregon Copper sold at 50 cents and the day listed was quoted at $1.25. Bluebird was selling at 18 cents last week, was listed yesterday and was quoted 25 cents bid.

Utica shares are $1.00 par and will certainly respond when listed on the Exchanges.

The property is fully equipped, ore already shipped to the Smelter has averaged $101.00 per ton. $65,000.00 has been paid in dividends and engineers have estimated that by extending the lower tunnel about 250 feet the ore will be found 600 feet below the old workings.

The Utica has always been considered a good mine and we believe the new work proposed will make it one of the best.

We recommend the purchase of these shares at 35 cents as a Mining Speculation of the highest merit.

NELSON-COAST DIRECT PHONE AT END MONTH

Nicholson Announces New Direct Vancouver Service Start About March 1

AWAIT INSTALLATION REPEATERS PENTICTON

Repeaters Nelson, Cranbrook to Give East Kootenay, Crow Telephones

That Nelson would obtain direct telephone communication with Vancouver about March 1, and that shortly after, when installation of "repeaters" was completed, that Nelson would have good telephone communication with the whole province and with Alberta, were announcements made Saturday by H. A. Nicholson, Kootenay manager of the B. C. Telephone company, at a luncheon of the Nelson Associated Canadian Travelers at the Canadian Legion building.

Good cables had been installed between Vancouver and Nelson, Mr. Nicholson said, the line being completely in British Columbia except over Anarchist mountain. At present the gap was covered by a line from Osoyoos to Oroville, Wash. and thence to Grand Forks, a line about 25 miles in length. The Anarchist mountain line would be constructed in the spring.

AWAIT INSTALLATION

The company was already speaking directly to Vancouver, and the line would be thrown open to the public when "repeaters" were installed at Penticton, stated the telephone official. Until the "repeaters" were installed the present service to the coast over American lines would be continued.

"Repeaters," equipment for magnifying the voice for distance communication, would also be installed at Nelson and Cranbrook. With this service Vancouver would have direct communication over a southern route with Calgary. Vancouver-Calgary communication was at present maintained via Kamloops, but the new route would give an alternate service. Mr. Nicholson declared.

Communication between Cranbrook and Nelson was maintained at present, but improvements planned on this line would afford service through East Kootenay and the Crow.

PROVINCE NETWORK

Nicholson presented, by a blackboard sketch, the main lines of the provincial network now in use. These lines, originating in Vancouver and coming inland over one route to Hope, spread out from Hope as follows:

Hope to Kamloops to Calgary.

Hope to Brodie to Princeton to Penticton to Vernon to Kamloops.

Hope to Brodie to Meritt.

Hope to Brodie, to Princeton, to Pentiction, to Osogood, to Oroville, Wash., to Grand Forks, to Nelson and east.

TRAVELERS WILL URGE BRIDGE FOR CASTLEGAR FERRY

McHardy Says Suggestion Is to Build Real Road on East Side Columbia

Urging construction of a bridge to replace the Castlegar ferry, the Associated Canadian Travelers, Nelson club, will send letters to southern interior members of the provinical governmen indorsing a resolution of the Associated Boards of Trade of Eastern British Columbia. At a luncheon of the club Saturday Bruce Grady, chairman of the transportation committee, read the letter which will be sent. It also urged general improvement to Kootenay roads.

The letter pointed out that the present Castlegar ferry though new and of much greater capacity than the craft it displaced, would be unable to handle the fast increasing auto traffic in this district. A bridge would be the only solution.

OPEN ROADS BOON

Keeping district roads open in the winter would prove a great boon to business, the letter said. Appreciation for this work was expressed.

The letter will be sent to the following members: J. H. Schofield, Rossland-Trail; Capt. James Fitzsimmons, Kaslo-Slocan; Col. Fred Lister, Creston; and Dr. L. E. Borden, Nelson. These members are now at Victoria.

Appreciation to the City of Nelson department of public works, for its efforts to keep roads and sidewalks in Nelson passable, was expressed in a motion.

C. F. McHardy suggested that relocation of the Nelson-Trail road was now the talk at Victoria. If the suggestions were carried out the road might cross the Columbia over the Doukhobor bridge at Brilliant, continue on the east side of the river, and recross the river at Trail on the present bridge.

ICE CONDITIONS ON UPPER ARROW LAKE ARE ACUTE

Residents Without Mail Six Days; Farmers Unable to Market Products

NAKUSP, B.C., Feb. 3.—Ice conditions are still bad on the Upper Arrow lake and transportation facilities are much impeded. Farmers between Demars and Burton are unable to ship their products to market, and for six days the residents were without their mail. On Thursday the post office department made arrangements to convey it to all offices between Nakusp and Burton by motor car. This service commenced on Thursday and will continue until the dredging operations at Rock Island are completed in such manner that steamer Minto can run through or over the sand bar formed there.

Meantime, however, ice has formed on that part of Upper Arrow lake, 10 miles south of Nakusp, which seriously hampers the steamer's progress through the channel made by it. The lake from Nakusp to Demars is about covered with ice. The Canadian Pacific railway is doing all possible to maintain steamer service between Nakusp and Forest Glen, where passengers from the south can board the steamer.

The "bus" service maintains a tri-weekly service between Nakusp and Fauquier, connecting with the steamer Columbia from Robson.

The government dredge is hard at work at Rock Island and Assistant Engineer W. A. Richardson of Nelson is on the scene. The provincial department of works is helping in every way to keep the highway clear by plowing between Nakusp and Fauquier. The government is also arranging to maintain a ferry service between East and West Arrow Park.

The past week has been the coldest on the Arrow Lakes for over 20 years, the thermometer falling to 12 below zero.

TRAILITES PLEAD GUILTY RECEIVING STOLEN MACHINES

Broun Gets Five Months in Jail; Partner Released, Suspended Sentence

Charged with receiving stolen goods when knowing the goods were stolen, M. W. Broum and J. R. Cam of Trail pleaded guilty before County Court Judge W. A. Nisbet. Brown was sentenced Thursday to serve five months in the provincial jail at Nelson, with hard labor, and Cam was released on suspended sentence of one year.

The men were committed by Deputy Magistrate H. E. R. Bedford of Trail a week ago. Appearing before Judge Nisbet they elected speedy trial and pleaded guilty.

They were charged with receiving slot machines stolen from the recreation club, owned by Burnip & Mervin, Trail. Broun admitted in court here that he had stolen the machines. His partner had nothing to do with the theft, he said.

HUDDERSFIELD BEATS EVERTON

Score Is 3-0; Everton Misses Sure Score When Forward Shoots High

EVERTON, Feb. 3.—Huddersfield Town proved themselves complete masters of Everton, English league champions, in their soccer match here Saturday, the visitors winning three goals to nil. Everton were a disappointment.

Huddersfield started strongly, Davies the Everton goalie, being called on to save in the first two minutes. Everton came back and Troup had a fine chance when Forshaw gave him a good pass. Troup shot over the bar. Huddersfield took a lead in the seventh minute through Maylor.

After the turnover, Jackson of Huddersfield missed a couple of chances with Davies out of his goal. However, he made amends a moment later, scoring clearly and repeating just before time.

STOCKPORTS WINS OVER BRADFORD

Score Is 2-1 With Attendance of 23,000 Soccer Fans

STOCKPORT, Feb. 3. — Stockport County showed real class to defeat Bradford City in an English league, third division, northern section, soccer match Saturday by two goals to one.

Stockport pressed at the outset and Fielding dropped the ball in front of the Bradford goal, Burgess placing it neatly in the net. Russell was able to equalize on a penalty shot but Stockport went out in front again when Boardman picked the ball out of a scrimmage and scored.

The game attracted an attendance of 23,000.

Bronze bust of Alexander Hamilton was stolen from Hall of Fame in New York City.

FATHER AND SON SUNDAY IS HELD TRINITY UNITED

Bob Carlson and Jack Buchanan Give Talks; Leaders Are Congratulated

Hundreds of fathers and mothers packed Trinity United church morning and evening to take part in the services conducted by their sons—The Trail Rangers and Tuxis boys. The Trail Ranger boys conducted the morning services, and the evening services were conducted by the Tuxis boys.

Bob Carlson, Kootenay West member of the boys parliament, in a concise but well delivered address explained to the fathers and mothers how the parliament operated for the betterment of boys' work in this province. Bob explained how the boys presented a petition that cadet training should be placed under the provincial minister of education instead of under the federal department of national defense.

The young speaker also pointed out how the parliament taught the boys the spirit of playing the game. One of the main objects was to throw the responsibility on the boys' shoulders. It was the boys who ruled and guided the great and powerful movement of the Trail Ranger and Tuxis boys' organization, he declared.

CONGRATULATE LEADERS

Rev. W. C. Mawhinney expressed to the leaders the congratulations of the parents and congregation. The pastor also expressed the pride of the congregation in Bob Carlson.

A. C. Emory, a leader of the work in Nelson, occupied a seat in the pulpit. Charles Haddon, member of the Tuxis group, conducted service.

Rev. W. C. Mawhinney thanked the congregation for its expression of appreciation in turning out in such numbers. A father should be his son's hero, and a son should be his father's greatest care, the pastor declared.

JOSEPH AND SON

Joseph was the model of fathers and Jesus was the model of sons. One read in the gospel of St. John how Joseph took Jesus into his carpenter shop. It was more than likely that over even the door of that humble little shop in Bethlehem were the words. "Joseph & Son, Carpenters".

Quoting the words of scripture, "A wise son maketh a glad father," the speaker showed how, although fatherhood entrailed many and heavy responsibilities, sons also had their burdens. They should take advice from their fathers and should be guided by their councils.

Father, church, Trail Ranger work and Jesus himself were calling the boys to higher things, to play the game, and to be true Canadians.

TRAIL RANGER SERVICE

The musical feature of the service was a duet entitled "Love Divine" by Mrs. E. Mardsen and John Kerr.

A. Parker conducted the Trail ranger service in the morning.

Jack Buchanan, in a spirited address, gave a live and vivid outline of work done by the Trail Ranger movement.

He explained what the work meant to the younger boys and how it was started in Nelson. A Trail Ranger should not follow the beaten path of the crowd, but should strike out for himself on a new trail beaten by him for himself, he asserted.

"Near my God to Thee," a vocal solo, was given by W. Lowrey. H. Amos led in the prayers from the pulpit.

Mr. Mawhinney spoke on father and son relationship.
