DETROIT LADS FAIL, TRYING PERFECT CRIME

Taken at Toronto After Robbing Pontiac, Mich., Bank

USED AIRPLANE TO MAKE ESCAPE

Make Slip Transferring Money That Leads to Arrest

TORONTO, May 22 (CP)—A youthful bandit who studied aviation for three weeks in preparation, police say, for the "perfect crime" had his wings clipped here tonight. With his companion, he is now in a local cell awaiting extradition for a bank robbery at Pontiac, Mich. Louis Kish, 21, Detroit, is the short-time aviator; Adam Morgan, 20, Pontiac, Mich., his companion.

When the two were changing trains for Montreal here, detectives took them into custody and $12,863 they admitting stealing from the bank was recovered. Their statement to the police was decidedly of the "dime novel" variety, and one of the weirdest and most daring local officials had ever heard.

STOLE MOTOR CAR

On Thursday, May 21, they stole a light motor car in Detroit, they said. As they were starting the motor of the car, the owner came out of his residence. They promptly dragged him into the automobile, drove 10 miles out, and then gave the owner two dollars to return to his home. They drove the car to Pontic, and parked it in a vacant field on the outskirts of the city. Then they went back to Detroit by auto bus.

In Detroit, the pair went to an aviation field where Kish had been learning to fly. They stole an aeroplane, two five-gallon cans of gasoline, and early in the morning of Friday flew the ship back to the field at Pontiac where they had parked the automobile. They had a key to fit the door of the Pontiac Commercial Savings Bank and Trust company.

LAY IN WAIT

Before the bank employees came into the bank that morning, the two thugs had entered the bank and lay in waiting. Six of the bank's employees were imprisoned in a vault as Kish held a gun on them. Morgan picked up one of the bank's currency sacks and crammed it full of money. Among the money were many silver dollars, and the bag was extremely heavy.

The two rushed for the car and decamped, hurrying still more when a curious pedestrian looked in and saw the bag full of money. At the field, they again climbed into the aeroplane and took off. Over Lake St. Clair they became lost in a fog and wandered around until almost out of gasoline. They landed at a small field near Leamington, Ont., but took off quickly when the field attendant, after they had told him they were flying from Windsor, pointed to the United States registration marks on the aeroplane.

LAND IN FIELD

Five miles west of Chatham they landed in a farmer's field. When they told the farmer they were in a hurry to reach Chatham, he drove them to that city. Here they bought a new club bag and transferred the money from the bank sack. But in their hurry, they left several bills in the old bag, and this aroused suspicion.

The mistake led to their apprehension here tonight. They left and Chatham hotel where they had registered, and boarded a train, buying tickets for Montreal. Toronto is a junction point, and the Montreal train did not leave for 15 minutes. As they crossed the tracks to board the waiting flyer, Toronto detectives took them into custody.

After examination, Kish and Morgan waited extradition and will be returned to the United States for trial tomorrow.

SOLDIER SHOOTS WIFE THEN ENDS LIFE WITH GUN

Colonel Hilliard Lyle Uses Gun After Domestic Differences

EDMONTON, Alta., May 22. (CP)—Distinguished soldier and early-day sport notable, Colonel Hilliard Lyle, 52, and his wife, formerly Mrs. J. C. Sloane, of Owen Sound, Ont., are dead at their little northern home in the village of Beaver Lodge, Alta. The northern village is 400 miles from Edmonton.

Colonel Lyle shot and killed his wife, and then ended his own life. Following domestic differences, the couple had been separated for nearly a month, the colonel, who was the proprietor of a general store, leaving home and residing at a Beaver Lodge hotel.

DAUGHTER IS WITNESS

Collis, a daughter of Mrs. Lyle, witnessed the tragedy. Another daughter, Helen Sloane, returned a few minutes later, following a short absence from home, to find her mother dead at the door of the house. Colonel Lyle's body was in the basement.

Born in Bruce county, Ont., Colonel Lyle moved to Winnipeg in the late '90's. He was a noted lacrosse player in the early days, winning a position on the old Winnipeg lacrosse team which played for the world championship at Cleveland, about 1898.

A soldier of fortune, he had fought in the South African war, the great war, in Mexico, and in some South American republics. He had decorations conferred upon him for his services in South Africa and France, where he was a member of the famed Princess Patricia's Canadian light infantry. Following her marriage in 1929 to Colonel Lyle at Owen Sound, Mrs. Lyle and her three daughters made the long journey to Beaver Lodge, in the Peace river country, by motor. Mrs. Lyle's maiden name was Gertrude Tennyson, and she came from Drayton, Ont. She was a distant relative of Lord Tennyson, English poet.

NEW KIND OF CENSUS TAKER MAKES A HAUL

WINNIPEG, Man., May 22.—(CP)—Just a little ahead of the rest of Canada, St. Boniface, across the Red river, is having its census taken. And, says Chief of Police J. H. Baudry, "that ain't all." The chief's men are looking for a self-styled census-taker believed responsible for several burglaries. He gains entry to homes on the pretence of questioning for the census and thereby gets "the lie of the land." One home yielded him $75 in cash.

FATAL BLOW IS STRUCK BY EX-PRIZE FIGHTER

MONTREAL, May 22 (CP)—The blow that caused the death of Captain William H. Ransome of the lake steamer Aycliffe Hall, who died shortly after a fight staged at an uptown night club yesterday was struck by Jack "Kid" Thomas, local pugilist, according to the verdict of a coroner's jury today. The boxer will be arraigned in court tomorrow on a charge not yet definitely fixed.

Captain Ransome, who lived in King, Ont., died from cerebral hemorrhage brought on by a low blow on the temple and aggravated by the man's intoxicated condition, according to evidence at the inquest. Thomas, learning that he was wanted for questioning reported to police this morning.

He described the fight between Ransome and Thomas and said that the former was knocked down twice. The second time he failed to rise.

William Boistridge, door-keeper of the club, testified that Captain Ransome remarked on the shape of the ex-prize fighter's nose and "tweaked" it, starting the fight.

PROPOSAL TO REDUCE NUMBER OF SEATS IN B. C.

Coast Conservatives Recommend Drop From 48 to 20

WOULD RESULT IN SAVING OF $50,000

Would Be a Greater Centralization of the Responsibility

VICTORIA, B. C., May 22.—Reduction from 48 to 20 in the number of seats in the provincial legislature by a gradual process that would ultimately save between $50,000 and $75,000 annually in the sessional costs was unanimously recommended by Ward 5 Conservative association on motion of W. C. Winkel, its chairman.

Mr. Winkel, stating his personal views, gave seven reasons for the suggested reduction in provincial representation in the legislature. Forty-eight members were not required to run the business of 600,000 people, he averred. The entire directorate of the Canadian Pacific railway, with interests stretching around the globe, was less than half that number. Cities such as Victoria and Vancouver did not require duplicate membership to the extent they now enjoy, and in years of economic depression there was little excuse for so large a house, Mr. Winkel stated.

"Besides the monetary saving of $50,000 a year, there would be a greater centralization of responsibility on the part of the private members; a vast saving in sessional time; greater efficiency in conducting the parliamentary affairs of the country, and greater unity and accord in the councils of the government, said Mr. Winkel.

Mr. Winkel's resolution was endorsed unanimously by the meeting.

After a free and open discussion, the meeting passed a resolution favoring the summoning of a provincial convention of the party, if in the opinion of the provincial executive of the association such a course were justified at this time.

FANATICS COST THE COMMUNITY SUM OF $235,000

Has Been Cost of Reconstruction of Buildings in the Past Two Years

VICTORIA, May 22—Disorders attributed to the Sons of Freedom sect have cost the regular Doukhobor communities $235,000 in the past two years, Peter Verigin, Doukhobor leader, informed W. R. Dunwoody, assistant provincial police commissioner, who has reported to Hon. R. H. Pooley, attorney-general.

This money was spent in reconstructing buildings destroyed allegedly by the radicals.

Settlement of the Doukhobor problem has been put squarely up to Verigin, Mr. Pooley said.

"We are waiting now for Verigin to go ahead with his plan to give the Sons of Freedom a place of their own."

So far, however, the Sons of Freedow have shown no disposition to move to lands at Crestova which has been offered to them, Mr. Dunwoody reported on his arrival from the interior. Members of the sect stated to him that "Peter Verigin has no right to divide God's soil"

It is almost impossible to deal direct with these people, the government believes.

ARCHIBALD ENDS FLIGHT ACROSS THE DOMINION

TRURO, N. S., May 22.—(CP)—What is believed to be the first transcanada flight was accomplished this afternoon when W. Munroe Archibald, mining engineer of Trail, British Columbia, completed a trip from Vancouver to his former home here, flying a Puss-Moth plane. He planned to begin the return flight west tomorrow.

Mr. Archibald left Vancouver some time ago on a business air trip to Montreal, and decided to continue east for personal as well as business reasons.

CLARK REFUSES TO TELL STORY ABOUT SHOOTING

Former Deputy District Attorney at Los Angeles Is Saving Facts

LOS ANGELES, May 22 (AP)—The witness chair waited today for David H. Clark and his story of what took place on Wednesday afternoon behind the doors in the private Hollywood office of a political boss, Charles Crawford, scene of the murder of Crawford and a friend, Herbert Spencer, magazine editor and former newspaperman.

At the end of a day which moved swiftly for Clark as the law laid the ground for prosecution of him on two charges of murder following his surrender late last night, the tall boyish looking lawyer, until recently a deputy district attorney, broke for a moment a silence about his alleged connection with the crime.

Blayney Matthews, chief investigator for the district attorney's office, said Clark made one statement other than his repeated "I have nothing to say" and it was:

"There were three of us there together."

The rest, will be told, Clark said, when he takes the witness stand.

REFUSES TO SPEAK

His lips shut tightly after that and he forced a smile to a barrage of questions from newspapermen as his only response.

During the day he was charged formally with the murder of both men and quick action followed to speed his trial. He was arraigned in municipal court and a preliminary hearing was set for next Thursday morning.

Then, as a precaution against a possibility that insanity might be offered as a plea, District Attorney Buron Fitts placed him under observation in the county prison hospital.

A stream of friends, curiosity seekers and those of speaking acquaintance with the accused man passed throughout the day to the jail high up in the hall of justice building where only three months ago Clark worked as one of the "coming" deputies in Fitts' office and then resigned to become a candidate for a municipal judgeship. Fitts said he resigned by request, but explained no further.

ROWBOAT PIRATE IS NEW GAG AT VANCOUVER PORT

VANCOUVER, May 22—A "rowboat pirate" made his appearance on Coal harbor here last night.

Rowing to the Imperial Oil company's service scow, he boarded the craft and at gunpoint made Jack Dunphy, attendant, reveal the hiding place of his money, and put off again with $51 cash.

Dumphy was left tied up hand and foot and was not freed until his shouts attracted help from a nearby boat.

The roller was being used to smooth the race track for the Empire Day sports.

There are three surviving children in the family.

GANDHI UNABLE TO ATTEND THE LONDON MEETING

Will No Leave India Until Hindu-Moslem Communal Problem Solved

SIMLA, India, May 22 (AP)—Arrangements for the federal structures committee meeting in London on June 29 preceding the Indian round table conference were upset today by Mahatma Gandhi, Nationalist leader, who said he could not attend on that date.

Gandhi notified Viceroy Earl Willingdon that he had not receded from his original intention to remain in India until the Hindu-Moslem communal problem is solved, and all of the government's obligations under the Delhi pact are fulfilled.

Elaborating on his stand by long distance telephone, the mahatma said it would be futile for him to go to London while these two major matters were pending, adding however, that he would give Earl Willingdon his definite decision on June 3.

MAYOR TAYLOR RETURNS FROM EASTERN TRIP

VANCOUVER, B. C., May 22.—With the main objective of his Ottawa trip, the validation of the Second Narrows bridge, accomplished, Mayor Louis D. Taylor arrived back in Vancouver tonight, looking as fit as ever, and maintaining a tight-lipped silence on the outcome of the numerous other prospects which took him to the capital.

"I have nothing to say just yet; my report will be made to the council on Tuesday," his worship replied to questions concerning the result of his negotiations concerning Kitsilano reserve, Burrard street bridge, unemployment and other things.

"It's great to be back in Vancouver among friends," his worship said, smilingly, as he replied to greetings from Acting Mayor G. C. Miller, Alderman E. W. Dean and other civic functionaries.

With his worship was City Solicitor J. B. Williams, who accompanied him to Ottawa as legal adviser.

VOLCANIC ASH AT CALGARY IS BIG SURPRISE

Alberta Professor Amazes Colleague With Discovery

FINDS FOUR INCH BED IN DEPOSIT

Was Discovered a Month Ago; Source Is Unknown

TORONTO, Ont., May 22.—(CP)—Discovery of a four-inch volcanic ash-bed within the city of Calgary, Alberta, was announced today by J. A. Allan, professor of geology at the University of Alberta. Speaking at a meeting of the Royal Society of Canada, the geologist surprised his colleagues by delivering an unexpected account of volcanic activity in Alberta, the surface of which has been heretofore considered purely cretaceous, or chalky.

Dr. Allan said the Calgary ash-bed, discovered by him four weeks ago, is without impurities, as though it had just been dropped by the wind from a distant volcano. It extends for one-half mile and is about to be hidden by the construction of a reservoir. "Where did it come from?" he asked, declining to offer his own explanation.

Other geologists working in Alberta have located traces of volcanic activity, said Dr. Allan. In 1924 J. O. G. Sanderson found a series of at least 20 impure ash-beds hidden in grey sand-stone near Edmonton. A 16-inch ash-bed is known to exist 250 feet below a coal field in the Belly river district.

THRUMS STORE IS BURNED TO ASHES; VALUABLE STOCK

Fire Breaks Out After Midnight; Loss Close to $6000

Attributed by the owner and by the provincial police to spontaneous combustion, fire, breaking out in the store of William Abrosimoff, Independent Doukhobor, at Thrums, about 2 o'clock Friday morning, completely destroyed the two-story frame structure, and all its contents except a few bags of shorts which were dragged out of the burning building.

Neighbors of Abrosimoff about a quarter of a mile away first observed the fire, which broke out through the roof, and by the time people were on the scene, the fire had gained such headway that it could not be affectively fought.

Gasoline and oil were said to be in the stock carried by Mr. Abrosimoff, and this fact suggests the spontaneous combustion theory.

The loss in goods and building is estimated at between $5000 and $6000. Insurance was carried.

Mr. Abrosimoff built the store and started in business about 1913.

ENGLAND'S NIGHT CLUB QUEEN MUST SERVE JAIL TERM

LONDON, May 22 (AP)—For the fourth time in her career as "night club queen of England," Mrs. Kate Meyrick, mother-in-law of two peers, was sent to jail today for her alleged irregular activities as a professional entertainer.

Accused of selling liquor at her "46 club" without a license and of permitting unlawful gaming, she was sentenced to seven months of hard labor, fined £30 sterling and assessed £30 sterling court costs.

Her counsel said she had been ruined by the falling value of her investments and ran this night club as a means to paying her debts.

GIRL TO FACE MURDER TRIAL

ROCKLAND, Ont., May 22 (CP)—Lucia Goulet, comely 17-year-old domestic servant, will face trial at the next court of competent jurisdiction on a charge of murdering her mother, Mrs. Adelard Goulet, here on May 1. She was committed today to stand trial by Magistrate W. T. Erskine who early this week conducted her preliminary hearing.

Mrs. Goulet, in her 56th year, was found dead in the humble Goulet home at East Rockland of multiple wounds apparently inflicted with a slender pair of embroidery scissors. It was at first believed she had committed suicide but the case was reopened on the request of Lucia's elder sisters and the 17-year-old daughter placed under arrest the day of her mother's funeral.

CHINESE TROOPS CONCENTRATE TO MARCH ON REVOLT

Press Censorship Is Clapped on Veiling the Movement of Troops

SHANGHAI, May 22 (AP)—While bandit and Red armies ravaged central China provinces today, the government clamped on a censorship of press dispatches that veiled movement of rebellious troops about Kwangtung and Kwangsi and of loyal forces mobilized to combat them.

Prior to the censorship it had been reported that 100,000 soldiers were concentrating in Kwangtung and Kwangsi for a northward march against the nationalist government at Nanking. A government force of 250,000 men had been reported mobilizing to check the rebellion.

LOYALTY QUESTIONED

Whether Kwangtung and Kwangsi provinces would throw their forces into the rebellion or remain loyal to the central government appeared to await the action of Sun Fo, 30-year-old minister of railways.

Sun Fo, was en route to Canton from Shanghai. He is the son of Sun Yat-Sen, founder of the Chinese republic, and some reports said he would associate himself with the rebellion against Chiang Kai-Shek, chairman of the nationalist government and his father's protege. Other reports, however, said the revolt against Chiang had been postponed in the hope that Sun Fo was the bearer of a compromise proposal from the government head.

Bandits and reds continued their unchecked depredations, said reports from Honan and Hupeh. Three thousand bandits were reported hammering at the walls of Sungtow, in Hupeh province.

MUSICIAN ABLE TO RAISE $495 ON THE STREET

SEATTLE, May 22.—(AP)—An old cardboard box today held $495.02 which came to Nicholas Ceconomacos, clarinetist of the Seattle symphony orchestra, as as result of his playing on the streets of Seattle yesterday.

Seattle business men gave him a party in his little sitting room last night, the walls of which are pasted with programs of concerts in all parts of the world in which he was the soloist.

Ceconomacos announced a week ago that he was threatened with eviction because of non-payment of rent, and his lights had been turned off for the same reason. Lack of demand for musicians forced him to the streets, he said.

NEW GOVERNOR TO SPEND TERM IN FALKLANDS

LONDON, May 22 (By Thos. T. Champion, Canadian Press staff correspondent)—Sir James O'Grady, 65 years of age, left London today to take up the governorship of the Falkland Isles. He returned from a term of six years as governor of Tasmania only last April and his new post is one of the most exclusive—in one sense of the word—that his majesty can bestow. The Falklands are in the south Atlantic, with a population of little more than 2000, mostly engaged in sheep farming.

The Falklands will always be remembered for the punishment meted out there to Von Spee and his German battle cruisers by the special force under Sir Doveton Sturdee, in reprisal for the German victory over Craddock's squadron at Coronel some months earlier.

Sir James took with him a large assortment of boxing gloves. "I love boxing," he said, "and I hope to make the people there keen on at." He was not accompanied by any of his family.

IS IMPORTANT STEP BY THE NEW REGIME

Is First Official Step Toward Threatened Break

ALL RELIGIOUS CREEDS EQUAL

Catholic Religion Not Official With Government

MADRID, May 22. (By George M. Johnson. Copyright, 1931, by the Associated Press) — The Spanish provisional government struck what is generally regarded as the first important step in its avowed program to separate the church and the state when the cabinet tonight decreed absolute freedom of worship for all creeds in Spain.

Although the measure does not yet actually mean separation, since there is a signed concordat between Madrid and Vatican City which must be terminated by mutual agreement, the decree provides that the government no longer professes the Catholic religion as official. This is regarded as highly significant.

Under the new measure, which was submitted by Minister of Justice Delos Rios, who has charge of the religious question, all religious creeds are equal in the official eye.

IS NOT OFFICIAL

Under the monarchy the Catholic religion was official and the only one permitted to practice its beliefs publicly. Formerly, all creeds could worship, but had to do so within their own temples, and not publicly.

The new law says all creeds are equal before the Republican government, and they can worship in any way they see fit, provided they do not disturb public order.

Coincident with the religious freedom decree, the cabinet tonight also decided that public schools in the future will not be required to keep the Catholic religion.

Children will receive religious instruction only when their parents demand it.

Another decree passed tonight limited the sale and disposition of objects of Spanish art and literature, many of which are owned by the Catholic church. These objects now can be sold only with the permission of the government.

Tonight's important decree comes upon the heels of widespread anti-church agitations, during which much church property recently was burned in various sections of the country.

FROTHBLOWERS TO BE NO MORE

LONDON, May 22—(CP)—Ye Ancient Order of Frothblowers is no more. The world-famous organization of merry souls has decided to wind itself up voluntarily, according to a notice in the London Gazette. But behind them they leave their great "anthem"—"The more we are together, the merrier we'll be," and a fine record of charity

Founded in 1924 by the late Sir Alfred Fripp, eminent surgeon, the Frothblowers in four years raised more than $500,000 for children's charities. They endowed 50 hospital cots with $2500 each, and gave $70,000 for the development of Boy Scouts and Girl Guide troops in poor areas.

ABSENTEE CAUSES SONS OF FREEDOM TRIAL POSTPONED

Kazakoff Not Found by Officer Sent to Get Four Accused

COMMUNITY HAS ITS WITNESSES

Case Remanded to Wednesday; Accused Again at Liberty

Owing to the failure of Pete Kazakoff, one of the four Sons of Freedom charged with assault, and at liberty on their own recognizances, to be at his home when a provincial police officer called for the four at Thrums Friday morning, the trial of the case was not proceeded with Friday.

COURT OPENS AT NOON

When noon arrived and Kazakoff was still absent, Stipendiary Magistrate John Cartmel convened provincial police court—which had to be accommodated in the provincial police office owing to county court being in session—and, with the consent of all concerned, including C. H. Hamilton, counsel retained by the Christian Community of Universal Brotherhood, Second Vice-president J. P. Shukin, who represented Peter Verigin, the provincial police, and the three accused present, Pete Maloff, John Perepelkin and Nick Jerekoff, further remanded the case to next Wednesday.

Staff.-Sergt. A. T. Stephenson was confident that Kazakoff had been informed of the change of date set for the trial, which had been twice remanded, but Magistrate Cartmel said he wished to be equally sure, and suggested that Kazakoff had probably misunderstood.

Magistrate Cartmel pointed out he could assure having the accused present by returning those now present to jail and having Kazakoff brought in and placed there also. However, on the three accused present undertaking to be ready for the officer next Wednesday, he let them go once more on their own recognizances.

SHUKIN COMPLAINS

Vice-president Shukin, who stated Mr. Verigin was anxious for the charges to be disposed of as soon as possible, pointed out that the Community was being put to expense by these additional appearances.

"You do not have to bring the whole Community, but only your four witnesses," commented Magistrate Cartmel. The magistrate said he was sorry for those who had come into town to be spectators at the trial, but after all, they were not parties to the trial, and were present only out of curiosity, and could not be considered in the matter.

He pointed out that to proceed with the three accused who had arrived would not expedite the matter, as in such case the entire ground would have to be traversed again for Kazakoff.

The four men are charged with assaulting Alex. Baulin, a Glade elder of the Community, when he was trying to unload at Thrums a wagonload of effects belonging to Sons of Freedom who were being informally evicted by the Community from Community property at Glade.

FINE CARD IS LINED UP FOR THIS EVENING

Prominent Wrestlers Appear on Local Mat; Hanson Meets Rumberg

WRESTLING

J. O'Brien, Great Falls, vs. George Goniak, Nelson, four rounds.

Billie Root, Cranbrook, vs. Leo Numa, Seattle, eight 10-minute rounds.

Charlie Hanson, Seattle, vs. Carl Rumberg, Salt Lake City, eight 10-minute rounds.

BOXING

Jack Edwards, South Slocan, vs. Dean Pierce, Nelson, three rounds.

Above is the card which will be presented to local and district wrestling fans tonight at the Opera house. Charlie Hanson, who pleased a large crowd of fans here some weeks ago when he won from Billie Root in a spirited match, arrived in Nelson yesterday, and brought with him his protege, Leo Numa, of Seattle. Hanson, a pupil of Farmer Burns, is in the best of shape, and has been wrestling on an average of four times per week. He first wrestled as a professional in Grande Prairie in 1918. For some years he has lived in Canada, and is at present on a visit to his father, Nels Hanson of Creston. He meets Carl Rumberg in one of the two main bouts. The winner of this bout will be matched with the winner of the Root-Numa match, probably in Nelson or Cranbrook, on July 1.

Numa, a strapping giant, 22 years of age, is visiting in Canada for the first time. Hanson claims he is a coming champion. He meets Root in the second main event.

A large number of Cranbrook fans will be on deck to witness tonight's bout. They will be headed by Henry Laker, promoter there. Jack Routledge of Spokane will arrive in Nelson today.

William Freno will handle the bouts, and Joe Holland will act as timekeeper. The card starts at 9:30 p. m.

NELSON WINNERS AT THE FESTIVAL EXHIBIT TALENTS

Enthusiastic Audience Is Entertained With Fine Program

FINE SINGING BY THE CHOIRS

Ross Fleming Thanks All for Splendid Support at the Festival

Before a large audience at the junior high school auditorium on Friday night, the Nelson winners at the recent Kootenay musical festival at Trail displayed their talent, talent which won the hearty applause of all those present.

Before the first item on the program, Ross Fleming, on behalf of the committee, thanked everyone for the support given at the Nelson festival last year, which made possible the taking of the children to Trail. He also thanked the Nelson competitors at the recent festival who made it such a success, and the employers who made it possible for employees to attend.

BAND WINS APPLAUSE

The program opened with the City band and the audience singing "O Canada." Then the Nelson City band, winners of the Blaylock cup, played "Memories of Britain," which, interpreted by Bandmaster Spencer Newell, won the merited applause of the audience. The program continued with a pianoforte solo by Rosemary Fleming, who played exquisitely "Rondo in C," by Mozart. Two children's choirs, the central school choir, conducted by Miss Winnifred Borthwick, and the junior high schcool choir, conducted by Miss Enid Etter, gave the audience a wonderful exhibition, and received enthusiastic applause from the whole auditorium. The boys' choir of St. Paul's church also sang splendidly.

Miss Mary Jarvis was especially congratulated, for at the festival she not only won the solo soprano open event, but also the soprano and contralto duet and ladies' quartette events. Another competitor, Miss Theodora Rhodes, rendered a beautiful contralto solo. It was Miss Rhodes' first appearance in public at the festival.

Before the concert concluded, Ross Fleming thanked the donors of the cups and medals, and also the school board, for the use of the auditorium.

KASLO HOLDING OWN FESTIVITY FIRST OF WEEK

Monday's Program Drawn Up Sports, Baseball, May Queen Event

KASLO, B. C., May 22.—Victoria day will be observed in Kaslo on Monday, May 25. Owing to the fact that the committee was unable to secure an excursion boat, the celebration will be a local affair, though it is expected that many will take advantage of the holiday and fine road conditions to visit the city over the week-end. The good fishing is also apt to draw many week-enders to town.

The program for the day, as outlined by the committees in charge, will be an interesting one, and will provide pleasure and amusement for all throughout the day.

At 9 a. m. the children's sports will take place, these including bicycle and running races, jumping contests, etc. Trap shooting will be provided for the older sportsmen.

At 12:45 the crowning of the 1931 May Queen will take place.

At 1:15 there will be a softball game between the high school girls and the city girls. This will be followed by a baseball game between the Benedicts and Bachelors. Several novelty events are also promised.

All events will be held at Vimy park, strictly on schedule time. The Kaslo city band will be in attendance throughout the day. In the evening there will be a dance in the drill hall with the popular Canadian Legion orchestra furnishing the music. With fine weather, the day promises to be a success.

Ruth Nichols, speaking of her intention to fly the Atlantic soon, said she believed her chances of a safe journey were 98 per cent. "The other two per cent," she added, "amounts to the chance you take of being hit by a taxicab every time you cross the street."

KETTLE VALLEY RAILWAY BILL GIVEN READING

OTTAWA, Ont., May 22.—Third reading was given in the house of commons tonight to a bill authorizing the Kettle Valley Railway company to construct a line of railway on the Osoyoos subdivision of its road in British Columbia. Seeking an explanation of its purpose, A. W Neill (Independent, Comox-Alberni) declared that extensions of time had apparently been granted to this company 16 times in the last 30 years.

This was scarcely correct, declared Grote Sterling (Conservative, Yale), who sponsored the measure. There had been only three extensions—in 1903, 1915 and 1918.

The bill would authorize the construction of a line eight miles long on the west side of Skaha lake. The Kettle Valley railway was interrupted by this lake and traffic had been carried across it by scow since 1913. Increased business, particularly in the southern section of the valley, made the construction of this road necessary.

The bill was carried in committee of the whole, and then given third reading.

CARRYING MAIL BY DOG SLED INTO BIG BEND A DANGEROUS UNDERTAKING, FOLKS ANXIOUS

Await Return of Daring Man; Haskins Had Foresight; Had Smelter Built Revelstoke; Dispatch Is Built '88

By E. PICARD

INSTALMENT TWENTY-FOUR

The government had given the town the name of Revelstoke instead of Farwell, this name being used because of the original location of the townsite and the surrounding lands.

This country, three or four years before, had been a wilderness, but during the railway construction, towns or camps had sprung up here and there, and these had done well as long as the construction gangs came in and spent their month's pay, but when the railway was finished there were no more pay-days, and as many of these towns had no other means of support, it became necessary to get out and find something to do.

Every other man then became a prospector, and in a short time we had discovered many different kinds of mineral all through this country. Then it was necessary to get outside capital to open up these prospects.

HASKIN A MAN OF ACTION

There comes to my mind a man who is now dead and gone, according to newspaper reports. He was found dead in a cabin on a northbound steamer from Vancouver to the Klondyke, and was at that time taking a gang of men and supplies to open up a claim in that country. This man's name was J. W. Haskin, who had come into Revelstoke about 1888. He was a man about 35 years of age, and was action from the tip of his toes to the top of his head. He did not pack grub out into the hills merely to eat it, as some did, but came back with prospects, and he talked mineral, as it is found, where it is found and how to find it. He talked about concentrators, crushers, smelters. He was a miner who knew what he was talking about, but we did not understand him, and of course, as always when one knows more than we do, the easy way out of it is to say, "Oh, he's a windbag," or some such name as that.

But in spite of this, J. W. Haskin made an estimate of the mineral there was in the surrounding country, and with his knowledge of minerals he went to Winnipeg and organized a company to build a smelter at Revelstoke, and it was built when he was nominated for M. P. in a British Columbia election in the assembly government—that was before the party lines. He was defeated, simply because he knew more than we did. I do not know what success he had after leaving Revelstoke, but he was of the class of men that one cannot pass by without noticing that they are big men, no matter how poor. They are upright, honest, think of their fellow man, their country; and this class of men does not look for money at any cost, nor do they care for cheap honors. They get their reward in knowing that they have helped their country, and some poor devils climb the hill to the top, then pass on, forgetting about it. These are the real men who open a country, and not the men who get rich doing it.

BUILD THE "DESPATCH"

These were hard times in this part of the country. There was no government work to speak of—a few miners working in the Big Bend and a few working at George Buchanan's sawmill. An odd prospector would come into town now and then to get a grubstake, and pull out again in a day or two, perhaps leaving a few dollars over the hotel bar. Old John Hedinton went in for a pig ranch where the C. P. R. yard is today. Paddy Miles and Joe Dolen took a farm across the river, that the called the Cattail farm. R. W. Green and W. H. Vickers staked a piece of land two miles up the Big Bend trail. Sam Crowell took up a homestead down by Montana slough—and this was about all the progress that had been made around Revelstoke in two years, so that when Toad mountain came on the map with no other way to get at it, only down the Columbia river from Revelstoke, J. F. Hume, W. Cawss and R. Sanderson built their steamer, the "Despatch," to take passengers and supplies to Sproat's landing, near Robson, and that put some life into the old town. R. E. Lemon, general storekeeper, built a 10-ton scow and practically moved his store down to Nelson; also, J. F. Hume moved part of his stock down there and opened a store. Frank Teetzel moved his drug store. McGillivray Bros. of the C. P. R. hotel went to Nelson. G. M. Sproat, who was gold commissioner, government agent, and judge, sent a gang of men down to build a pack trail from Sproat's landing, or Robson, to Nelson.

WINTER OF 1888 IS HARD

Then the winter of 1888 shut off all connection with Nelson and the Big Bend, with the exception of the government sending the mail once a month to the miners in the Big Bend country. Johnny Nelson took the mail up there with a dog train, at least 150 miles to the round trip, travelling sometimes on the river ice and other times on a steep sidehill, holding on to his sleigh. He had no road to follow, there being only a summer pack trail cut through the woods, and with four or five feet of snow on this trail it could not be followed. He had to cross a number of creeks with no bridges over them. They were hard and dangerous trips to make, and everyone in town would anxiously await his return—would he come back or not?

EMPIRE DAY IS EMPHASIZED FOR TRAIL KIDDIES

School Children Parade to the Rink to Hear Address on 'Flag and Empire Day'

TRAIL, B. C., May 22.—The significance of Empire was brought vividly home to Trail school children this afternoon in their celebration of flag day under Rotary club auspices.

Thirteen hundred Union Jacks and Canadian ensigns were presented to them and they heard a short address by Rev. N. D. B. Larmonth, whose theme was "The Flag and Empire Day."

Pupils of Central and Tadanac schools formed up at the city hall, and led by a city fire truck paraded to the skating rink where East Trail pupils joined them. Boy Scouts and Girl Guides in uniform, carrying the colors, took part in the parade.

Singing of "O Canada" opened the ceremony at the rink, and following Mr. Larmonth's address "God Save the King" marked the conclusion.

Leading citizens, including members of the Trail Rotary club, the city council and the school board, attended.

SERVICE CLUB'S CELEBRATION TO START TONIGHT

Treasure Hunts to Be Big Events in Children's Sports

Tonight the service clubs of Nelson open their big carnival, which is being held in aid of the Kootenay Lake General hospital linen fund, with a dance and booth attractions. On Monday a full day of celebration will commence at 9:30 with children's sports.

Two treasure hunts, one for the kiddies up to 10 years of age, and the other for kiddies from 10 to 14 years, will feature the morning sports. Foot races, jumping, bicycle races and other sports will be open to all children under 14 years of age.

In the afternoon the Nelson senior ball nine clashes with the Old Timers as one of the main events of the day. A novelty relay race between Gyros, Rotarians and Travellers, a 100-yard dash open to all comers and a rugby football game will also be afternoon attractions.

In the evening a program of the same nature as this evening's will conclude the affair.

Children's draws will be made by Mayor J. P. Morgan at 5 p. m. and the senior draw at 10 p. m.

ANAEMIA IS NOT HOPELESS AILING

TORONTO, Ont., May 22.—Pernicious anaemia, until a few years ago one of the most hopeless of incurable diseases, can now be successfully treated by dietetic means, Dr. E. J. Maltby, of the University of Toronto, reported to the Royal Society of Canada today.

"The disease is now in nearly all cases amenable to dietetic treatment in which liver or liver extract plays a large part," Dr. Maltby said. "It has been found the half-digested contents of the normal human stomach, after a meal of lean meat has been taken, when fed to a patient suffering from pernicious anaemia, will bring about in increase in his production of red blood cells, with consequent amelioration of the disease."

PROVINCE GAINS $600 FROM FIRST TWO RAID CASES

Lapointe and Berg Both Plead Guilty; Fines of $300 Are Imposed

STACKS OF WET GOODS IN COURT

Provincial Officers Brought in From Outside Points As Witnesses

Eight police officers—five of them from the provincial force and three from the city force—and stacks of wet goods formed part of the background in the city police court Friday morning, when Magistrate William Brown imposed fines aggregating $600 on George Lapointe and Emil Berg after their pleas of guilty to charges of infringing the Government Liquor act, the $600, which was paid on the rising of court, being taken charge of by Staff-Sergt. A. T. Stephenson, who later paid it into the government agent's office, for the provincial treasury.

Besides Staff-Sergt. Stephenson, the provincial force was represented by Sergt. G. J. Duncan of Penticton, Corpl. J. F. Johnston of Trail, Constable John White of Kaslo, and Constable J. L. Smith of Nelson, the men who raided the two establishments concerned, and who were brought in to give evidence if required. Chief of Police Thomas H. Long, Sergt. Alex. Stewart, and Constable Robert Harshaw of the city force were present.

STACKS OF EVIDENCE

The wet goods stacked on and around a table, in gunnysacks, suitcases, unopened parcels of half dozens of beer from the government liquor store, and individual bottles were part of the proceeds of eight successful liquor raids made by a detachment of 16 provincial police on May 8 and 9. The lot allegedly secured in the raid on George Lapointe's tobacco store consisted of 12 dozen of beer, and a part bottle each of rum, gin and whiskey. That credited to the Klondyke hotel, of which Emil Berg is proprietor, comprised 16 2-3 dozen of beer, two part bottles of whiskey, and a part bottle each of rum and gin.

GARLAND NOTES AMENDMENT

Before the cases were called, C. B. Garland, who was appointed by the attorney-general as special prosecutor for the cases arising from these raids, said he would direct the court's attention to the recent amendment to the Government Liquor act which provided that any fines accruing in municipalities from liquor convictions secured by the provincial police were to go to the provincial treasury.

Magistrate Brown remarked that this was an administrative matter, of which he did not require to take note.

Each of the accused in turn pleaded guilty to the charge read by the magistrate, and each pleaded guilty, and was sentenced to a fine of $300, or indefault to three months imprisonment in the common jail at Nelson with hard labor.

Mr. Garland then moved for the confiscation of the liquor seized by the provincial offices in these two cases, to which Magistrate Brown stated that confiscation followed automatically.

LIQUOR FOR COAST

After court was over the provincial officers packed the beer and liquor back to the provincial police offices in the courthouse, whence it will probably be shipped ultimately to Vancouver to the order of the government liquor board.

The six remaining cases will probably be brought to trial next week.

Marriage a la Mode

By VIDA HURST

The actual obtaining of this sum which seemed enormous would not be difficult. Her parents had sent $1000 for a wedding present, and Jerry's father had sent $5000 which Jerry had insisted on dividing. Having seperate bank accounts had been her idea to which Jerrry had agreed since her father was to continue her allowance. He had suggested investing their wedding money in bonds, but she had not taken his advice as yet. She had bought some clothes and some additional furnishings for the apartment, but her account still showed a balance of almost $3000.

If Jerry had shown any sign of relenting towards her that night she would have confided in him. But although he took her to dinner, his face and manner were cold. In silence they ate. In silence they returned home.

Before they retired to their respective sleeping quarters, Jerry said, "Don't you think we're carrying this misunderstanding a little too far?"

With a combination of hurt pride and resentment Corliss asked, "I suppose if I admit I was in the wrong everything will be all right again?"

He smiled as only Jerry could.

"Of course! I'll forgive you, darlin'."

"Well, I'm not asking to be forgiven," Corliss answered with more spirit than she had yet exhibited.

* * *

Jerry actually looked surprised. He lifted his eyebrows and sighed as one does over a rude unspeakably naughty child, and returned to his newspaper.

Wait until she told him she was going to be starred. His manner would change then. Working as an extra and being starred by a famous director were two different matters. And—now, at last, Corliss, too would have a profession of her own. Contacts and friends to take up her time while Jerry was nurturing his beloved magazine. . .

She met M— the following morning in the bank and presented him with $2500 cash as he suggested.

He pocketed the money casually. Two or three thousand dollars seemed to be nothing in his director's life, but Corliss felt positively faint over the transaction. He asked her to meet him the next afternoon at the studio on Cahuenga.

"We'll start your training right away now," M— promised.

CHAPTER 10

That night for the first time since the quarrel with her husband, Corliss slept soundly. The thought of the new interests she would have as a motion picture actress did much to comfort her. Although she could see that her indifference puzzled Jerry even more than her outburst of several nights before.

She came to the studio on Cahuenga, which was really nothing but a cottage, in high spirits. Greeting the girl at the desk in the front room with a friendly smile.

"Is Mr. M— here yet?"

"Mr. M— has left a message for you, Miss Newman. He has been called to New York."

"Called to New York," Corliss repeated stupidly.

"Yes: He said to tell you he will be back as soon as possible. Not later than a couple of weeks."

Corliss tried to smile, but her disappointment was evident. The other girl stared at her, curiously.

"Did he say when he wanted me to come again?" Corliss asked.

"He will telephone you. He said to leave your telephone number."

* * *

Rather casual that! To drop out of sight with her $2500! But being such a famous person M— had probably not given that a thought. The afternoon she had expected to spend so profitably lay like a dreary stretch of hours before her. What should she do with it?

She turned her car toward the boulevard, driving slowly along Cahuenga, when like a flash Jerry passed in his car with the disdainful Gail Norworth beside him. Neither of them noticing the gaudy little roadster driven by Jerry's wife.

Jealousy so fierce that black clouds swam before her eyes made Corliss turn back in their direction. But by that time they were far ahead. Although she raced recklessly far out Cahuenga she could not catch the other speeding car. . .

Tears rolled down her cheeks. Yet she told herself she was not surprised. She had not needed the sight of Gail Norworth cuddled down in Jerry's car to tell her that her husband was losing interest. . .

Realizing finally how impossible it was to catch them she slackened her speed and drove back to the apartment. Put the car into the garage, and sat down, drearily, to face her problem.

* * *

Three months of happiness. Sybil had said she would give them one. Jerry's father, in the week-end they had spent with him, had said warningly, "Marriage will be a fine thing for you, Jerry, if you're willing to settle down. You'll find it quite different from the kind of affairs you've indulged in up to date."

How they had laughed at the old-fashioned advice he had insisted on giving them.

"Marriage is a serious compromise," he had said, seriously. "One or the other of you will have to be sacrificing constantly."

"Sacrificing what, father?"

"Ideas, ideals, theories. . ."

"That means you," smiled Jerry to Corliss.

"I mean both of you," David Newman, corrected.

He seemed to approve of Jerry's choice. He kissed her cheek.

"I hope you will be as wise as you are beautiful, Corliss," he said, kindly. "Jerry is the finest boy in the world, but being married to him is going to take a good deal of patience."

"He's a wonderful husband," Corliss had answered, wondering at the sadness in the older man's eyes as he answered, "I hope you'll always think so."

* * *

She was beginning to know what he had meant. Marriage to Jerry meant a gay, light-hearted companionship, with no curtailment of freedom. No checking up. No suspicions. She could picture herself pleading for his faithfulness. It was the last thing she would ever do. Beg him to be true to her? Never! If that was all marriage meant to him they might as well quit.

With her sleek head burrowing into the crimson cushions, Corliss tried to tell herself she should give Jerry up. Why "stick around" when he so obviously no longer cared for her?

"Where's your pride, you ole fool?" she questioned in Sybil's favorite manner. And could have wept at the answer. Because she hadn't any pride where Jerry was concerned. She just wanted him to love her. That was of course, the trouble. She had been too amenable to Jerry's ideas and suggestions. It was hard to be independent when you loved any one as much as she loved him.

Dabbing her eyes with a bit of tear-soaked linen, Corliss determined to make a desperate fight for her husband before she abandoned him. She would not admit she knew anything about Gail Norworth. Would sweetly and unsuspiciously give him the freedom he desired. Taking an equal liberty herself, she would flirt with the first presentable man she met. And let Jerry wonder as to her reasons. . .

She kept her word. When Jerry came to take her out to dinner, her smile was so unexpected that he returned it eagerly.

"Everything all right, now?"

"So far as I'm concerned, I don't want to quarrel with you, Jerry."

* * *

How could he kiss her so tenderly, knowing that less than three hours before that he had been with another girl? How could she permit him to kiss her? It was significant that even under such circumstances she clung to him madly.

"I love you, Corliss. I do love you!"

She dared not answer. She closed her eyes to keep in the tears and pressed her lips to his without a word. . .

Later while they were celebrating at the Lafayette club, Jerry said, "There are a couple of fellows I used to know. Would you like to meet them?"

Determined to play the game according to the rules he had prescribed, Corliss nodded. While dancing with them she proceeded to make herself as fascinating as possible. The younger of the two, ruddy-faced and blonde, responded eagerly.

"That was marvelous! You like to dance don't you?"

"Rather dance than eat."

"I suppose Jerry takes you dancing about every night, doesn't he?"

It was the opening she wanted.

"Not any more. Jerry is too busy. This is the first time we've danced together for weeks."

They were approaching her table.

"Care to go out with him in the afternoon?" the good-looking one whispered.

"Call me up," Corliss responded. And winced to see the fondness in Jerry's eyes. He was adorably attentive! So sweet! How could it all be assumed?

* * *

Nevertheless the memory of Gail Norworth's petulant face beside his was not to be forgotten.

Two days later when Harry Morton repeated his suggestion over the telephone she did not refuse.

Harry came for her and they went to the home of one of his friends The party, as he explained, was "going good" before they arrived. Corliss was welcomed joyfully. A boy with a uke, immediately composed a song about her. It took her back to college days to have everyone dancing attendance just as if she weren't Mrs. Jerry Newman.

"Call me Corliss," she suggested and they did so with a friendliness which warmed her heart.

An Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

A girl about to visit her fiance's family has written to ask some questions about making a good impression. She says if her married life starts off with feuds or near-feuds it won't be her fault. She hopes she has TACT—that Heaven-sent gift which the dictionary define as: "Appreciation of what is fit and proper." She's sold to first impressions, perhaps too much so, since we've all had the experience of having to go into reverse about our first enthusiasms or prejudices. But a first imprint of personality—specially in the case of a new daughter-in-law—is an important matter.

It might be well for her to take stock of how much she has in common with this family of which she proposes to become a member. Do they think alike about the real things of life—home, children, marriage and religion? And if she doesn't agree with them about these things, it would be fatal to pretend she does for later it will be held against her.

Of course, it's not necessary, these days, to hold the same convictions as your in-laws, or future in-laws. Suppose this girl is not at all domestic, that after marriage she intends to keep her job, and she and her husband propose to take their meals "out". Why should she tell her fiance's mother that she adores making layer cake and embroidering initials on towels?

Later, when the mother-in-law is compelled to adjust her point of view in regard to the young lady's domesticity, naturally there is likely to be what is known as "feelings".

A guest always makes an agreeable impression, whether she has matrimonial designs on the family or not, if she concerns herself with those things which interest the others. Without perjuring herself, she might admire their cherished possessions—books, pictures, handiwork about the house, a view from some particular window, etc.

The young people of a family—girls and boys—are likely to be a guest's most severe critics, and by the same token, his or her staunchest admirers.

So many girls have missed happiness before marriage, as well as afterward, by utterly neglecting the mother and father of the young man they intend to marry. It is not necessary to marry the whole family certainty but why not become pleasantly acquainted with them?

These older people—the mother and father—have gone through the mill. At least they have survived life's handicaps up to the present time. They know more about the game of life—the things that count—than the most self-confident girl or boy. Why not make them your friends instead of critics?

The Beauty Box

BY Helen Follett

If middle-aged women are to keep in touch with their youth, retain the erect figure, trot along in the modern pageant, they must have recreations, some form of outdoor life. A lot of life's beautiful illusions have blown up. Ambition doesn't seem important. Something has to be done to keep the old heels nimble and the eyes a-shining. At the age of 50, every woman should have learned that being serious all the time is one way of being foolish. All work and no play makes her morose. A brisk walk, a game of golf, or romping with the children puts her in form.

Dry hair needs brushing, plenty of it, to bring forth a greater flow of lubricating oil from the scalp glands to be distributed the length of the hair shafts. The night before the shampoo, friction olive or mineral oil into the scalp. Immediately after the shampoo, apply perolatum to the roots of the glorious crown. Select a bland soap for the shampoo.

Dead skin between the toes, with flesh pink and inflamed, are signs of ringworm. Ringworm can be picked up on the sands of bathing beaches. It is a trouble that should have medical attention. It can attack the hands, cause itching and discomfort. A member of a family suffering from ringworm should have his or her own bath mat, as ringworm is infectious.

Beware now of becoming a leatherneck. Too much exposure to the sun's rays and strong winds will put freckles, tan and ugly brown patches on the back of the neck and the shoulders. By anointing with cream and dusting over with powder before going out of doors, old Mr. Sun will be thwarted. Cosmetics form a protective barrier.

Beauty kits for motoring are provided with compartments for powder, rouge, lipstick, hand lotion and eyeshadows. Manicuring instruments and nail cosmetics should be kept in cases. Nice ones can be made of heavy silk, to roll up neatly, though the shops have charming containers at reasonable prices.

THE SUMMER PARTY

Surely in vacation time, when the young people are home from school and college, many parties will be given, and it is not too early now to plan that jolly affair we wish to invite our friends to sometime next month.

An excellent type of party into which the entire family may enter is that old, but still popular, "Childhood Party", or its twin, the "Tacky Party". For these funny-costume affairs are suited to guests of all ages.

Table decorations for the Childhood Party should be infantile—lollypops for favors, a teddy bear in the center of the table, animal (this is done by first dipping the animal's feet into cake icing, then pressing the feet to the cookie, before the icing hardens), etcetera. The old childhood "kissing games" may be played, indoors; out of doors, such games as Blind Man's Buff or Hide and Seek are suitable and fun provoking.

For table decorations at a Tacky Party (the word "tacky" meaning "untidy" in some parts of our country) we shall want very unfashionable effects—such as candles stuck into empty gingerale bottles, wilted flowers hanging forlornly over the edges of a broken vase, etcetera. The host and hostess, like the guests, will of course be garbed in a slovenly style—unlaced shoes, buttons missing, a torn handkerchief in evidence, patched garments, and unkempt hair! In the invitations, ask every guest to bring one extra garment which is either out-of-date or hideous or ragged, so that the following game may be played:

Clothing Grab: Heap all the extra garments on the floor. Stand everybody against a wall. Blow a whistle as a signal for all to walk (not run) forward, snatch up one garment, walk to the opposite wall, put on the garment—whether trousers, coat, dress or shirt—then walk back to the starting wall. The first to get there, wins. This game will prove so very popular, that your guests will want to repeat it many times!

FASHION HINT

How to make my old short skirts conform to the new length was a problem to me until I hit on this plan. I dropped the hems; and as the part that had been turned under was darker than the rest, I redyed the entire dress, after having *bleached the goods, following di*rections in the Diamond Dyes package.

"I used Diamond Dyes for the redyeing, of course. I have dyed many things with these wonderful colors. They have saved me many dollars and have never failed to give perfect results—smooth, even colors—fast to wear and washing. Friends think my things are new when I redye or tint them with Diamond Dyes. They do give the most gorgeous colors!"

Mrs. G. C. Levis, Quebec.

Congratulations Rossland

Ratepayers of Rossland on Wednesday last voted overwhelmingly in favor of four bylaws calling for expenditure of $50,500 on necessary civic and school improvements. The ratepayers voted $26,000 for street paving, $9,500 for necessary alterations to the high school and $9000 for a new fire truck.

Ratepayers in Rossland are to be congratulated on their foresight. The interest shown goes to prove that the Golden city is forging ahead with the rest of the district despite setbacks since the days of the mining boom.

In addition to borrowing at a cheap rate at present, Rossland will get its work done at a time when labor is cheaper and when citizens need employment.

Why and Wherefore of the Census

On June 1, the seventh comprehensive decennial census to be taken since Confederation will be under way across the Dominion. In Canada the fundamental legal raison d'etre of the census is to determine the representation in the federal parliament. By the British North America act, the province of Quebec was given a fixed number of seats in the legislature (65). The number assigned to the other provinces was pro rata, with an agreement that adjustments should be made at each census. Thus a census is taken primarily to enable a redistribution bill to be passed by parliament.

The census is a great periodical stock-taking of the Canadian people. In addition, censuses of other dominions in the Empire are taken about this time, so that within a few months there is available a large, harmonious body of data, showing not only the Empire's relation, dominion with dominion, but the relation of the Empire with the rest of the world.

Thus it will be seen that the census merits the support of each and every citizen as a patriotic duty, notwithstanding features that may be irksome.

The census is taken for the benefit of the community as a whole, and therefore, directly or indirectly, of every member of the community. Never before has there been the like need for census information. Since the last census the aftermath of the war, setting up new strains and stresses and generally creating conditions of the utmost consequence to our national future, has left scarcely a branch of the national life untouched. Especially is an appraisement of the national status necessary at the present moment of acute economic depression.

An appeal to the people is therefore made to assist in this great national undertaking by furnishing the information fully and accurately, and thus helping to render the census worthy of the Dominion and of the serious purposes which it has in view.

Robbed of Their Dues

It is a rare thing for governments to give any substantial assistance to the inventor and for such an instance we must look to the Irish Free State, the government of which has just made a grant of $100,000 to Dr. Drumm of Dublin to enable him to experiment with his electric battery rail car.

Many of the world's greatest inventors have died in poverty, while others have benefited by the invention. Only a few weeks ago, forgotten and unsung, the centenary of Henry Bell's death was passed on the calendar. To Bell we owe the steamship. Even James Watt did not see the wonderful advantages of the steam engine for marine use. Yet Henry Bell had to depend on charity to eke out an existence.

Kay, the Walmersley genius, who invented the fly shuttle, died in poverty in an attic in Paris. Hargreaves, the inventor of the spinning jenny, spent the whole of his life fighting the manufacturers who robbed him of his patents. Crompton, the Bolton fiddler, who invented the spinning mule, was shamefully cheated by the manufacturers, who, having promised a miserable pittance for his machine, went back on their word.

Millions were made out of these inventions. The inventors themselves did not receive 1,000,000 cents.

The Ogopogo has come to light again. Not having been seen this year so far the famed monster of the Okanagan breaks into the newspapers as given up for dead. It would be a dull spring without something to read about Old Ogopogo.

Seen and Heard in NELSON

(By J. B. C.)

This is the age of salesmen. We have salesmen to sell us insurance, automobiles, refrigerators, radios, electric stoves, newspapers, books and hundreds and hundreds of articles too numerous to mention. We sometimes declare we are pestered to death by salesmen. Our granddads missed something. They missed particularly a persistent insurance agent. If they wanted a certain article they went out, looked 'em over and made their choice, or they just picked up a catalogue and ordered it. Times have changed. But speaking of salesmen, I came across a story concerning a real salesman, and he wasn't so old either. He tried to sell measles, and he did it, too. And he started a small epidemic at 10 cents a case.

* * *

It was in Wilmington, North Carolina, that a school lad, quarantined with measles, decided to sell them. He invited a pal and sold him the measles for 10 cents. His pal summoned seven other boys who were sold for a dime apiece. Then the epidemic started. That's real salesmanship.

Thursday was a day off for J.B.C. Got out of bed the wrong side and felt so disgusted with the world that he hid himself indoors and wouldn't talk to anyone. Consequently he saw very little about town. Thank God, I can hear some readers say. But did you ever get out of bed feeling like you could bite a spike in two? I did Thursday. Was so glum I went without breakfast. At the office one of the fellows asked me how long I had been out of bed. Just got up, I replied gruffly. Thought so, he replied, and beat it pronto. Tried to work. Typewriter jammed so got another. Wrote a news story. Got into an argument with an advertising salesman. Came out second best. Left office in disgust. Can't remember seeing anything or anybody down town. Wandered about aimlessly. Tried a ginger ale and listened to Al Gelinas then departed. Home to dinner feeling as bad as ever. Then asked, why feel that way, and decided to brighten up. Asked myself why I should feel that way. Answered my second thought that with the new time a fellow works an hour longer and loses an hour more sleep.

Observed for a few minutes the activities at the recreation grounds the other afternoon. In one particular group they were attempting to teach the young girls how to jump a long way . That is they were showing them how to do a running broad jump successfully. The girls ran and jumped, but in doing so they had to clear a bar set at not too great a height. I recollected that to be a successful broad jumper one had to jump high at a good speed. Your weight does the rest. But one girl could not get going. After watching her try three times I became disgusted and went along.

* * *

In another part of the field the high school teachers were having their afternoon's fun. They were booting and chasing a rugby ball. They appeared energetic. But the teachers must keep in shape to handle some high school lads I am acquainted with.

Watched Colonel M. V. Allan playing tennis. He plays a steady reliable game. Making a mental note I walked on. Was looking at some new car models when J. A. McDonald appeared. He was going to look 'em over when his dog and one belonging to Bert Allen looked daggers, one at the other. Mr. McDonald withdrew. No time for a dog fight. And so he went along and Hugh Ross went with him. So did the dog.

So This Is Progress!

Thoughts of Empire Day

By GERALD S. REES

Including one quarter of the entire human race, the British Empire is today confronted by a series of problems, anxious and perplexing, every one of which affects the future of its far flung sovereignty. In many regions, there appears a sense of unrest, more or less acute, which is due to difficulties that, at the moment, baffle even the most sagacious statesmanship. At one and the same time, these various and formidable issues are, as it were, knocking loudly at the door of Downing street, the official residence of Britain's prime minister, who is elseways sorely beset by the internal trials of the motherland, and whose present difficulties are augmented by the many divisions within his own Labor government. Here, may it be said is it not true that no nation in the world today faces more difficult burdens, or carries a heavier load, or does it with a braver heart, or a better mind; she is actually paying her creditors 20 shillings in the pound sterling! History discloses no parallel.

There is India and unemployment, a vast war debt, and Egypt, and a stern necessity to rebuild the structure of a commercial policy, in the face of keen, and at times unscrupulous competition, which touches the four corners of the earth. And any one of these problems might exhaust the endurance of any nation that ever existed, but Great Britain (hats off to her once in a while) exhibits the will and the purpose to settle with them all. The latest budget speech by the British chancellor of the exchequer, always a very much abused minister of the Crown, is a token of that will and purpose. It was John Bright who said of England, "August mother of free peoples." She can still bear to stand among the nations in the possession and the responsibility of that high name, "to encompass the vast orb of her destiny."

Here have we an ancient and a proud people, greatly tried by adverse circumstances, still equal to its destiny as a great leader and pioneer of human civilization, bearing without respite and with cavil the great burden of these perplexing times.

Every component part of the Empire, including countries hitherto static, is in motion, violent motion in some cases. Not one stands where it did five years ago, no, not even one year ago. The central sovereignty is subjected to a severe stress. It is not "a decline and fall," but the major disturbances are due to the opening of the flood-gates to what is commonly known and accepted as progress.

"THE CHANGING YEARS"

The status of Great Britain itself has changed from that of a Mother Country to that of sister, an elder sister, and elder sisters, do not always command the respect due to them by their seniority. Parental authority has been lost. Britain gave up the "mother" job in 1926, giving her Dominion children their own latch keys, and some of them have been staying out rather late at nights! Withal, however, the Crown still remains the great symbol. Crowns, generally speaking, are very much at a discount these days. The increasing popularity of the British monarchy is one of the most striking political developments of our time, though space precludes a recital of the varied factors that have combined to bring about the great advance of the crown in the affections of the peoples of "This Britannick Empire."

WHAT DO YOU KNOW?

The plain citizen, of course, takes the British Empire very casually, due mostly, not to an inherent modesty, but because he is not "frightfully interested," and knows little about it. He knows a great deal of the world map is colored red, with India part of the prevailing redness; he has heard of Ghandi's fondness for illicit salt, and knows that, like Australia, it is a long way off, with a mixed population of Hindoos and Mohammedans over-ruled by luxurious-living native princes; that the mention of rice, snakes, elephants, tigers and Rudyard Kipling in any talk of India are conversationally correct. If pressed for further detail by his schoolboy son, he may remark that India is "the brightest jewel in the British crown." (Ask the new viceroy of India, who recently left our shores) and that east is east and west is west, which is indubitably true. And if he reads statesmens' speeches, either contemporary or historic, he can as a brilliant afterthought quote Lord Rosebery's words, "The British Empire has grown as trees grow while men slept."

THE SPIRIT OF ADVENTURE

England, by the way, might never have had an Empire. It was the opening of the Americas to trade by the Atlantic routes which thrust England at a single sweep from her obscurity upon the outer edge of the world into the unique position of sea centrality and (look at your atlas, please!) the plumb center of the land surface of the globe. This was the "accident" and a seafaring race, in the eternal spirit of adventure, creating a hobby of the work that lies at hand, made the most of it.

Maybe the Empire, as an Empire or even a Commonwealth of Nations—if you prefer the ponderosity—is doomed. Many say so, for they know that other empires have been born, grown old, decayed and died; the analogy of Rome is usually quoted, but generally without a very profound knowledge of the factors that brought about the decline and fall of the Holy Roman Empire. Many of these factors are, thanks be, entirely alien to the British Empire, even in its more robustious moments. Still, there is real cause to wonder, for there are many rumblings, many misgivings. Unrest in India, and in Egypt, stupendous war debts, political unrest Empire-wide, a declining commerce, with its offspring unemployment, loss of markets, transference of wealth to alien nations; you may make further additions to the despairing list, if you feel like it, but I hope you will not.

"DUST TO DUST . . ."

Greece, Rome, Carthage, Assyria and Byzantium, all died from self complacency, self satisfaction and indulgence. They died of ennui. But there is no ennui in the British Commonwealth of Nations, and to offer an estimate of the seething and sizzling eruption of the present day crises would be hazardous. Apparently, it is another case of new wine—science, communications, newspapers, machinery—pouring into old bottles—the traditions, prejudices and revalues of a former day—the onward march of human progress. Empires die hard, it may be swift and violent, but ever they die hard, and 1918 was a fair example, as many have cause to know. The British Empire, as at present constituted, has many "doctors" who promise to save it if it takes their medicine, or shall we not say, "dope." Each has a different remedy. You pay your money and take your choice.

One may believe in these days of piping autonomy that the dissolution of the British Commonwealth would be one of the greatest disasters that could happen to human history at present. There are far too many hostile small nations in the world now. The net result for the world war, for example, has only been to create a bigger Balkany all the way from the Bay of Biscay to the China sea, and there appear as well to be too many huge, amorphous and unwieldy nations like Russia, China and some others. What the world really needs most of all at present along the lines of a developing internationalism are more friendly families of nations like the British Commonwealth.

The future of the British Empire is not second in magnitude to any question of the twentieth century; with its vast proportion of the whole world's area, with the marvelous plenitude and variety of its natural resources, its future is a subject of vital and absorbing interest to all mankind. Everything that weakens the Empire as an entity endangers the peace of the world, as every statesman knows.

SEES NECESSITY FOR MORE ROADS ON ARROW LAKES

To the Editor of the Nelson Daily News

Dear Sir: I am pleased to see how promptly you took advantage of the stage as a means of transportation. I cannot tell you how glad we are to have a daily paper daily for the first time since leaving England in 1913. Many of us are of the opinion that the C.P.R. withdrawal is a blessing in disguise and will further our demand for the road south, which, I am pleased to see, you are advocating.

What a convenience it will be for Nelson and Trail people to get direct to the coast by Robson, Castlegar, Edgewood, Vernon, Kamloops, etc., without having to go via Slocan and Nakusp. It will give Inonoaklin valley farmers an outlet, provide summer homes and sports for Trail and Rossland and do more good generally than generations of railway.

After 100 years the road is coming back to its own.

Foster's Weekly Weather Report

WASHINGTON, May 23— Storm wave of moderate force, expected to cross continent during week centering on 26, will be a cold storm center in northern sections and cool wave in south, causing the last sharp temperature drop of May. Storm wave of mild force, expected to cross continent during week centering on 31, will cause a warm wave that will extend a few days into June. Greatest increase in precipitation during last part of May is expected to occur on north Pacific slope and in Alaska. In a great part of sections east of Rockies, precipitation will be expected to decrease as summer advances; this condition will be especially unfavorable in areas where subsoil moisture is now short. I do not expect this to be a repetition of 1930 drouth and heat, but do expect considerable damage to result to crops that mature after July 15.

Crop weather features expected during month of June will appear in next weekly bulletin. Moon phases that occur in the near future are as follows, given to nearest hour of Greenwich civil time; to change Greenwich civil time to your local standard time, count one hour earlier for each 15 degrees you are located west from Greenwich: Full moon May 31 at 15 hours; last quarter June 8 at 6 hours; new moon 16 at 3 hours; first quarter 23 at 0 hours; full moon 30 at 1 hour; last quarter July 7 at 0 hours.

The season for artificial rain makers is fast approaching. Up to now, no method of causing rainfall that would a dry area has been found. Scientists have made raindrops in small quantities in laboratories; by shooting charged sand from an airplane, fog has been precipitated; some moisture has been precipitated by shooting high explosives into the air; but so far such experiments have not caused rain in sufficient quantities to wet the soil of a farm. Where a drouth is holding forth, there would not be moisture in sufficient amount to justify the considerable expense it would take to cause precipitation. The time has not come when we can have man made weather and it is very doubtful that it will ever arrive. Still there will always be those who claim to make rain, at a good price. If they accidentally hit a shower, they collect. The U. S. congress once gave $30,000 to investigate a system of rainmaking that looked good to them, but decided the system had no practical merits.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON

FOOD MORE THAN CALORIES

A few years ago it was the habit of health writers to talk about calories or health units. A food was spoken of as being rich or poor in calories; butter for instance being rich in calories for its size or weight and cabbage poor.

The five classes of foods were proteins (meat, eggs, cereals) carbohydrates or starches (potatoes, bread and vegetables), fats (butter, cream fat meat); salts; and water.

It was quite naturally believed that a certain proportion of these foods used in the diet daily would make an ideal diet.

And to a large extent that was true and it is true today.

However some scientists began to make up or manufacture foods containing these various foodstuffs and fed them to animals.

What happened?

The animals began to get sick, developed various diseases, and some of them died.

What was the matter?

There was something in the natural foods besides proteids, carbohydrates, fats, salts and water. And that something was vitamin.

Now the exact chemical nature of these vitamins is not known, but much is known of their physical properties and what foodstuffs contain one or more vitamins.

And when certain vitamins are not in the diet despite the amount of food eaten, the body will show it.

For instance if animal fat or green vegetables are not eaten, the individual will not grow properly, and will not resist infection well because vitamin A is deficient. This is also one cause of "rickets" in children.

Lack of vitamin B (whole wheat cereals) interferes with the appetite; lack of vitamin C (fruit and vegetables) causes scurvy; lack of vitamin D (fats and oils) causes softening of the bones and teeth.

This knowledge of the value of vitamins to the body, doesn't mean that we should not count the calories or number of heat units we take in every day, but it does mean that certain foods—fruits, vegetables and some fat—should be included in the daily diet.

Not only do the vitamins help to prevent ailments, but that the body gets more food value out of them. Vitamin B, found in milk for instance makes the cereal—oats, corn, wheat—give up 20 per cent more food or heat units for the body's use.

CRANBROOK CITY COUNCIL LEAVES GRANT AT $200

Unable Raise Board of Trade Donation; Approve Power Agreement

CRANBROOK, B. C., May 22.—The city council met in special session on Monday evening, May 18. Messrs. M. A. Beale and J. P. Fink were present and referred to the necessity of special efforts being made to raise funds for the board of trade program for the year, and asked that consideration be given to the matter of increasing the grant to $300 as in former years. In view of the uncertainty of the amount of revenue to be raised by the city, and the efforts being made to curtail expenditures, it was moved by Alderman Scott, seconded by Alderman Balment, that the grant be left at $200, with the understanding that the matter might be reopened later in the year if conditions warranted.

An application from the Cranbrook Agricultural association for a grant was also held in abeyance until the fall fair committee had decided whether or not a fair is to be held.

A grant of $50 was made to the Slavation army in Vancouver in connection with their social service work.

Correspondence with the municipality of Fernie and with the East Kootenay Power Company, Limited, with reference to application for renewal of the power agreement was approved.

Correspondence with James Kerrigan and company, regarding their gas tank and pump installed on city property was filed.

Four by-laws authorized the construction of sidewalks under the local improvement act, were given final reading, as was also a by-law to amend the trade licence by-law.

By-law No. 546, authorizing the sale of lot on Clarke avenue, was advanced to its third reading.

FAMILY IS FOUND LIVING IN PIG STY

AUCKLAND, N. Z., May 22 (CP)—A story of a family of six who lived in a pig sty, although the husband and father was the owner of two houses, for each of which he drew $20 a month rent, was told at Durham, when Robert Milner, aged 43, was sentenced to a month in prison for neglecting his four children. His wife was bound over.

It was stated that Mr. and Mrs. Milner and their four children had previously lived in a house which was condemned and demolished, and they were found living in the pig sty, in the corner of which was a young pig. Rain came through the roof. The children were poorly clad, and were removed to the Poor Law institution.

In addition to the rent money received by Milner regularly, he also received $8 a week unemployment benefit.

The theatrical career of "East Lynne" dates back to March 23, 1863, when it was performed at a New York theater, Tripler's hall. Clifton W. INVENTOR RETIRES

WELINGTON, N. Z., May 22.—(CP)—The inventor of the automatic penny stamp machine, which has been adopted in most countries of the world, R. J. Dickie, of Devanport, has retired from the New Zealand post and telegraph department after nearly 40 years of service.

Mr. Dickie invented his machine in New Zealand in 1904 and his first order came from Canada two years later. The machine was given its first tryout in England in 1907 when one was installed at the post office of the house of commons. Several countries adopted the device before it was accepted in his own country.

UNEMPLOYED IN AUSTRALIA ARE SEEKING GOLD

Flock to Fields; All Grades of Society Are Represented

SYDNEY, N. S. W., May 22.—(CP)—Australia's unemployed are flocking to the gold fields.

More than 3000 men are now engaged in the search for gold in New South Wales as a result of the prevailing unemployment in the cities. There have been minor gold rushes to all the reputed gold-bearing districts, but so far few of the prospectors have had much success.

The miners are subsidized to the extent of one pound a week for four weeks, and after that htey collect the dole.

The men find that living in the gold fields is cheaper than in the cities, and in many cases they have taken their families with them and established them in their primitive homes of canvas and bark.

At many of the camps a grain or so of gold is the sole reward for a week of back-breaking work, but that grain is enough to keep the prospector at his self-imposed task.

Experts agree that there is as much gold in New South Wales as has been won from the state—perhaps more. Is it any wonder therefore that more men are lured each week to likely fields. Practically all grades of society are represented on the fields. They are not the riff-raff or the "unemployables," but include men who not long ago occupied sound positions that gave them every reason to regard the life ahead of them as an easy, settled proposition. There are lawyers, accountants, clerks and even doctors. Of course, most of them are "new chums", and that might account for the fact that to date very little gold has been found. It takes an experienced miner, it is said, to find gold in areas that have already been prospected. Still, there is always the possibility that some day even the beginner will strike it rich.

The most favored area is that vast stretch of country bounded by the towns of Bathurst, Molong, Yeovil, Wellington, Gulgong, Mudgee, Capertree. This area includes many famous fields. One prospector at El Dorado was very disgusted. "I always thought an El Dorado was a very rich place," he said. "The chap who named this must have been thinking of rabbits. There are plenty of rabbits here, and that is about all we can find. And they don't take any looking for."

One man arrived at his claim two months ago in a sedan car. He was formerly the manager of a big city business, which has been compelled to close its doors. He is not getting enough gold to pay for his "tucker", and when he goes to the nearest town for his "dole" he walks, as he has not enough money to pay for the gasoline his car would use on the journey.

Headgates Ordered on Linklater Creek

NEWGATE, B. C., May 22.—W. Blanc, water engineer from Nelson, spent a couple of days in Newgate last week inspecting the irrigation, dams and ditches. As a result of his visit all the farmers using water from Linklater creek for irrigation purposes are putting in head-gates at their dams.

FORTY BUSH FIRES IN PAST WEEK BUT OF SMALL CALIBER

Average Cost $12.50; East Kootenay 16; West Kootenay 9; Okanagan 15

Forty bush fires, costing an average of $12.50 each to handle, occurred in the southern interior in the seven days ending Thursday at midnight, the compilation made by the forest branch headquarters here Friday, from the weekly reports of the rangers, records.

Many of these fires would be "spot" fires, ignited by an ember from another fire or from a passing train, and put out on the spot by the observer. None of the 40 were of sufficient size to be brought to the attention of headquarters before the weekly report. There were 16 in the East Kootenay, nine in the West Kootenay, and 15 in the Okanagan.

These fires boost the total for the southern interior for 1931 to date to 165, while the $500 expended on them brings the cost of fighting fires for the same period to $7425.

45 YEARS SHOWS GREAT DIFFERENCE CITY OF VANCOUVER

VANCOUVES, B. C., May 22.—(CP) — Vancouver had its forty-fifth birthday on May 6 with no special observance beyond a glance over its accomplishments.

Since the scattered settlement of one thousand persons living along the south shore of Burrard inlet was incorporated on May 6, 1886, the population has increased 242 times and the value of assessable property 141 times.

Vancouver's revenue for the first year of its incorporation amounted to nearly $1700. Last year the city received more than 16 million dollars.

Six weeks after its incorporation the little city was destroyed by fire. Rebuilding followed and on May 23, 1887, the first train arrived from eastern Canada.

Today Vancouver covers more than 43 square miles and has assets valued at 86 million dollars.

Deep sea vessels from every corner of the globe bring cargoes to Vancouver and carry grain, lumber, canned salmon or general cargoes away. The flag of every maritime nation is to be seen in Burrard inlet in the course of any single year.

Last year various commodities were shipped to 110 different countries.

The port is served by 52 regular steamship lines.

In 1930, a year of depressed conditions, imports were above 79 million dollars and exports more than 127 million dollars.

SELFISHNESS AND LAZINESS ROOT OF MOST OF THE CRIME

VANCOUVER, May 22 (CP)—Selfishness and laziness, together with lack of proper training, are the root of most of the crime in the world today, according to Lieut.-Col. E. C. Edgett, D. S. O., warden of the provincial penitentiary at New Westminster.

Contrasting prison populations of today with those of a decade ago, Colonel Edgett said the average age of New Westminster inmates was about 24. He declared this was a hopeful symptom, as it was possible for the prison authorities to train such convicts so that, when they are released at the expiration of their terms, they are in a position to rehabilitate themselves.

Every inmate at New Westminster, said the warden, does from nine to 10 hours' work daily. During the two-hour luncheon period, inmates may attend school if they choose, and every effort is being made to inculcate higher ideals into the convicts.

Commenting upon improper home surroundings as the breeding ground of crime, Colonel Edgett said it is a common occurrence in many homes for the mother or father to talk disparagingly of legislation, thus unconsciously instilling contempt for law into children who overhear such conversations. He said, in his experience, unemployment is often wrongly blamed for crimes, as convicts, seeking an excuse for themselves, will frequently avail themselves of it as a plausible reason for their wrong doing.

A. A. Wilson, former warden of Kent county, died at Tilbury.

GALA DAY IS PLANNED 25th AT CRANBROOK

Events Will Draw Premier Athletes of East and West Kootenay

CRANBROOK, B. C., May 22.—Given good weather on Monday, May 25th, the program of sports arranged for the day should satisfy the most critical. The city's premier sprinters who go to Nelson Friday for the Empire day sports to be held in that city Saturday will have returned and the 100 yard dash, the race holding perhaps the most interest of all on the program, promises to be even more interesting this year. Fred Large, who has for some time held this title undisputed, though pitted against some of the Dominion's best runners, is to meet a new contender for the title in the person of Douglas Corrie, late of Fernie but now of this city, who has recently distinguished himself in the 100 and 220 yard races at a Calgary technical school. Fred Martello, present holder of the Cranbrook Sash and Door company grand aggregate cup, is expected to compete again.

Katie Martin and Evelyn Eley, girl runners who have distinguished themselves at home and at various other meets, will be close contenders for the girl's 100 yards title. It is over three years since these two runners have competed in a race and interest in the result is running high. They will have some very keen competition for the honor in Miss Janet Brown and Miss Emma Peters of Fernie, Miss Betty Kolmar of Trail and Miss Andrews of Kimberley, all of whom are doing intensive training and who have coaches who are confident of victory.

Three prizes are provided for bicycle races for boys under 14. Creston and Michel ball teams will meet in a game that promises to be fast and closely contested. A novelty motor race on a 300 yard track will be another interesting feature of the program. Management of this race is in the hands of F. M. MacPherson and Ross Pascuzzi.

Indian pony races, an old-time feature of Cranbrook sports, are again included in the program, this feature being in the hands of W. E. Worden and G. Thomas.

At 3 p.m. a soft ball game between Kimberley and a local team. J. M. Clarke has the management of this event.

Concessions for the refreshment booth have been secured by Mrs. Gregory Thomas.

The crowning of the May Queen, the Maypole and folk dances and the finals of the annual school sports will also be interesting features of the day.

Talks Over Phone Over Distance 17,200 Miles

SYDNEY, N. S. W., May 22 — (CP)—One of the longest distance telephone communications yet made between a subscriber's telephone and a ship at sea was carried on recently between an officer in the commonwealth post office at Melbourne with officers of the steamer Belgenland while that vessel was standing off Colombo, Ceylon. The route distance was 17,200 miles because of the necessity to relay the 10-minute message from London.

The Belgenland, on a special cruise with a party of tourists, is fitted with a special long distance telephone apparatus, which has been operating on a special wireless schedule during the voyage. The research branch had been trying for some days to get into touch with the vessel for the purpose of carrying out a test and finally succeeded with little difficulty in establishing communication.

Contact was first made with the British post office over the channel in use for commercial wireless telephone messages, and with the co-operation of the British post office a call was put through to the ship from London. The speech came through to Australia perfectly, and an interesting conversation was carried on between the Australian official and the officers of the ship.

With increasing nerve force the appetite is sharpened, digestion improves, the vital organs resume their natural functions and you feel yourself again.

Abbreviated Wills of War Days Still Valid in Courts

VANCOUVER, May 21 — (CP)—Wills made out on the abbreviated forms supplied by the government to overseas troops are still valid in a court of law, according to a ruling of Mrs. Justice W. A. MacDonald in the British Columbia supreme court.

The time limit of such wills was set by statute as one year after the cessation of war, but the judge held that when there was no document to supersede the will made at the front, it should be regarded as an expression of the will maker's desire.

The ruling was made in connection with the estate of Herbert James Botten, who left Victoria for service overseas with the 67th battalion Western Scots. Botten died at his home in Victoria in April of this year. The only will that could be found, J. Percival Walls, counsel for Mrs. Botten and the family, told the court, was the will made at the front in the abbreviated form used by soldiers and in which, in a few words, he left everything to his wife and family.

The justice pointed out that in cases where there were no other wills, the now unrecognized will made while the man was a soldier during the war assumed importance as it made clear his intentions as to how he desired his property dealt with. He pointed out that soldiers during the war in making these wills were not able to secure legal assistance, so their wills now should be given latitude in regard to interpretation.

Mr. Walls applied for administration of the estate by the widow without bond, so that she would not be put to unnecessary expense.

The court granted limited administration as to the personality but the question of the realty was left in abeyance with liberty to apply.

AMERICANS BEAT THE CANADIANS IN DOUBLE MATCHES OF DAVIS CUP PLAY

Shields and Wood Win From Wright and Rainville, 8-6, 6-4, 6-2

MONTREAL, May 22 (By R. L. Condy, Canadian Press correspondent)—United States Davis cup team wound up the second day's matches of their series with Canada to determine the ascendancy in the American zone with a lead of two events to one and two to go.

This afternoon Frank X. Shields, of New York, teamed with Sidney B. Wood, also of New York, to defeat the Canadian doubles team of Dr. Jack A. Wright and Marcel Rainville of Montreal, 8-6, 6-4, 6-2.

Yesterday Shields beat Wright in the first singles match while Rainville scored for Canada over Wood.

Tomorrow afternoon Wood plays Wright. Judging from showing to date the Canadian veteran would seem to have at least an even chance. If Dr. Wright wins it would even the series at two-all. The final match of the afternoon will find Shields, rangy six footer, playing against Rainville, who is almost a foot shorter.

In today's doubles match, Wright and Rainville played Wood relentlessly. It proved fatal to give Shields, anything overhead within his reach.

MANY FOOT-FAULTS

The only weakness shown by Shields was a tendency to foot-fault continually. He was penalized for this several times. He showed fine control, however, and instead of getting rattled guarded against recurrence of the error. Wood lacked steadiness, served a series of double faults and was caught flat-footed frequently by the two Canadians.

Shields served first and with each side winning service to the seventh game, the United States led at 4-3. Then, though leading at 40-15, Wright lost his service and things looked bad. Canada retaliated in the ninth game by breaking through Shield's mighty service and then Rainville made it five-all. At six-all Canada had game-point twice and all but broke Shield's service. He recovered, however, and then Rainville lost his service to give the United States the set at 8-6.

Both Wright and Rainville played good steady games, each being brilliant shots, up to the end of this first set it looked as if there might be a fight.

HOPES STRENGTHENED

Canada hopes were strengthened in the second set at first Wood lost his service, then Wright won and Shields lost his, giving the home team a lead of 3-0. At this point the complexion of the game completely changed. The United States players appeared to have played themselves in and there was no holding them.

The Americans took four games in a row to lead at 4-3, Shields unloosing an imposing array of terrific smashes which sent ball after ball out of court, and uncanny cross court placements that went a long way out of reach of his opponents. Rainville won his service in the eighth game but the Americans took the next two games and the set at 6-4.

The completeness of their ascendancy at this time was made evident when after Wright served three fine balls to lead at 40-love, Shields almost entirely alone won the next five points and the set.

The United States players were never in danger of playing a fourth set and took the third at 6-2 to win the match at 8-6, 6-4, 6-2.

COCHET MAY NOT PLAY TENNIS IN PRESENT YEAR

LYONS, France, May 22. (AP)—Henri Cochet, French tennis ace, told the Associated Press tonight that his health was such he might be unable to aid France in her defence of the Davis cup this year.

The world's first ranking amateur came back to Lyons tired from a continental tour, and fell easy prey to a severe attack of grippe. Although he was forced out of the French championships at Auteuil it had been believed Cochet would be in shape to play in Davis cup competition.

"I do not know whether my health will permit me to play Davis cup tennis or not," Cochet said tonight.

He denied an announcement by a boxing promoter in Paris that he had decided to turn professional after playing in the Davis cup challenge round. "I don't know what I'll do," Henri said.

KING'S PLATE CLASSIC AWAY TODAY IN EAST

Track at Woodbine Is Lightning Fast; 12 Thoroughbreds Ready

WOODBINE PARK, Ont., May 22.—(CP)—Only the weatherman, who is not a respecter of traditions, can dim the brilliance of tomorrow's renewal of the king's plate, the oldest continuously run horse race on the continent. Twelve thoroughbreds are ready after months of training to race over the mile and an eighth distance for the king's 50 guineas and the $10,000 added by the Ontario Jockey club.

Cloudy and cool is the forecast, with a hint of rain. The racing strip at the beautiful old home of the Ontario Jockey club is in lightning fast condition tonight.

The king's plate is the fourth race on the card. Entries include three from the Seagram establishment, which in years gone by had a strangle-hold on the eastern Canadian turf classic, and still hold the record for most victories with 18. Seagram's last victory was with the good filly Young Kitty in 198. The stable's hopes are the four-year-old Freethinker, ridden by J. D. Mooney, and the three-year-old Golader and Mythical Lore.

THREE STARTERS

The Thorncliffe stable, who won the race two years ago with Shorelint, also plan to start three horses in the plate—Brone, Fess and Oil Rite, all three-year-olds. Brone, unplaced in his four starts last season, developed a grand colt over the winter.

Of the six individual entrants, R. W. R. Cowie's Froth-Blower will likely go to the post as public choice. Froth-Blower won four starts and was second four times in a brilliant two-year-old season. He has shown better trials than any other contender, including a full distance run in 1.55 flat, which is four-fifths of a second better than the race record. Frankie Mann will ride Froth-Blower.

Ryland H. New, winner with Aymond last year, will start the four-year-old Par Excellence. The four other entrants are the Upland Farm's five-year-old Vestip; W. H. Wright's three-year-old Kirkland Post; Harber Stable's three-year-old Sedgerose, and R. S. McLaughlin's three-year-old Skygazer.

BETTY NUTHALL WINS TWOFOLD TENNIS VICTORY

Wins in Mixed and Ladies' Doubles; U. S. Men Win Doubles

AUTEUIL, France, May 22 (AP)—Miss Betty Nuthall, British tennis star who holds the singles championship of the United States, scored a two-fold victory in the French hard court title matches here today, winning in the mixed doubles and the women's doubles.

Miss Nuthall and her partner, P. D. Spence of South Africa, raced through the quarter-finals to defeat Jean Borotra, French ace, and Miss Elizabeth Ryan, California girl who makes her home in London. The scores were 9-6, 6-3. H. W. (Bunny) Austin and Mrs. Shepherd-Barron, British duo, defeated the Franco-German combination of Christian Boussus and Cilly Aussem, 7-5, 6-2.

Paired with Mrs. Eileen Bennett-Whittingstall in the women's doubles Miss Nuthall played a large part in the overcoming of the French-Spanish team of Mme. Mathie and Senorita de Alvarez, 7-5, 6-3. In the finals the British pair encountered Miss Ryan and Fraulein Aussem, who today disposed of Mme. Jung Henrotin and Jon Josarme Sigart, 6-4, 7-5.

John Van Ryn and George Lott, United States players, sailed through their opening singles matches without being seriously extended. Lott romped to victory over Andre Piel of France, 6-1, 7-2, 9-7, while Van Ryn was disposing of another Frenchman, Rene Viellard, 8-6, 6-3, 6-3.

In tomorrow's doubles semifinal found, Lott and Van Ryn, favorites, are paired against the British combination from John Olliff and I. G. Collins.

Play in women's singles opens tomorrow.

HIGH SENIORS WIN SOFTBALL CHAMPIONSHIP

Nose Out thhe Third Year Team, 13-12; Best Game of Schedule

Coming from behind in the eighth inning with a couple of good clouts from Rhodes and Duffy, the seniors nosed out third year by a 13-12 score on Friday afternoon, to take the championship of the high school interclass softball league.

The game was easily the best performance of the entire schedule, the high score being the result of one bad inning for each squad. Third year were never really dangerous except for the third inning, when they drove in seven men to lead 8-4 After that the upperclassmen settled down to overtake them in methodical style.

The victory of fourth year was largely due to the battery, Chace and Gustafson, and Rhodes on first base. This trio has played a steady and clever game during the whole league and deserves much of the championship credit.

The corresponding three on the matric squad, Stewart, Davidson *and Irwin, also turned in a con*sistent performance, Davidson being particularly effective at bat. Gus Airey played a stellar game at third, making sure of no less than five foul flies.

Fourth year—K. Gustafson, F. Chace, N. Rhodes, P. Duffy, L. Truscott, R. McArthur, L. Emerson, J. Buchanan, J. Vingo, I. Ritchie.

Third year—H. Davidson, L. Stewart, V. Irwin, H. Varner, E. Airey, C. Smith, A. Harper, G. Kirby, J. Wallace, W. Hanna.

Umps Must Know Their Baseball

By AL DEMAREE
(Former Pitcher, New York Giants)

A strange decision occurred recently in Chicago in a game between the Cubs and Pittsburgh. An overflow crowd made ground rules necessary and a fly ball into the crowd was a two base hit. With Pirate runners on base, Riggs Stephenson, the Chicago outfielder, juggled a fly ball and lost it in the crowd. The umpires decided he had held the ball "momentarily"—called the batter out, but allowed the base runners two extra bases.

Umpires are strange creatures. Bill Johnstone forfeited a game to the Giants in Philadelphia a few years ago because the fans in the center field bleachers took their coats off when the Giants were hitting and put them on when the Phillies batted. This gave the Phillies a dark background to bat against and an indistinct background of white shirts for the Giants to pick out the ball.

Johnstone forfeited the game to the Giants 9-0 eventually, but he was reversed later and the game was played off as a triple-header several months later in New York.

WHITCOMBE AND BARBER IN THE PRO GOLF FINAL

LEEDS, Eng., May 22 C P cable) Great Britain retains one of the richest plums of British professional golf. Ernest R. Whitcombe, Ryder cup player and Tom Barber, of Derbyshire, will battle for the Leeds $5,000 golf tournament championship tomorrow and sole United States entry left in the tournament will watch from the sidelines.

Whitcombe today eliminated Tony Manery, of Elmsford, N. Y., by two and one in the semifinals, while Barber downed A. J. Lacey, a Ryder cup nominee, three and one, Manero slipped badly in the afternoon match after playing smart golf to defeat Percy Allis, four and three, in the quarter finals earlier in the day.

MARTIN-SMITH WINS THE AMATEUR GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP OF ENGLAND

Youth From London Beats De Forest in Thrilling But Not Brilliant Game

WESTWARD Ho' DEVON, Eng., May 22 (AP)—Eric Martin-Smith, 22-year-old Londoner and Cambridge university student, who entered the British amateur golf championship just for fun, today succeeded Bobby Jones as the titleholder.

Martin-Smith today defeated John de Forest, son of a rich baron and a fellow member of the Bachelors' club, by one hole in the final 36-hole match in a finish that was exciting but not particularly good golf. His medal score was around 80 for each round. It was his first national championship.

The upsets and surprises of the 1931 tournament, which saw the elimination of 15 United States entrants, including George Voigt and two British aces, Cyril Tolley and Roger Wethered, former champions, but one of the tournament in the fifth round, carried right through to the final.

DE FOREST FAVORITE

De Forest was the favorite to take the title but Smith led him throughout in a ding-dong match which was squared several times, the last time as late as the 34th hole and went to the last green for decision.

The runner-up has been putting in great style all week and today's defeat was largely due to his lapse in that department. Martin-Smith, the champion, is a smiling youth with an attractive, natural golfing style free of mannerisms. His father, a London banker, was once a runner-up for the amateur, and was at the course to see his son win.

During the lunch hour Martin-Smith sent a telegram to the captain of the Cambridge university team, of which he is a member, saying he was two up on de Forest. He got a reply which he said couldn't be made public. He said his captain had told him he didn't believe the telegram and had expressed himself in emphatic terms.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, May 22 (AP)—Christopher "Bat" Battalino, featherweight champion, successfully defended his title tonight in a disappointing 15-round match with Fidel la Barba of Los Angeles. There were no knockdowns and the crowd of 9100 booed the dispirited milling all the way.

KANSAS FROSTS RAISE WHEAT ON CHICAGO BOARD

Corn Establishes New Low Price Records for Season But Rallies

CHICAGO, May 22 (By John P. Boughan, Associated Press market editor)—Heavy frost over Kansas gave wheat prices a lift today, especially in the final dealings. Wheat was also assisted upward by a late announcement that the first export sales of United States 1931 crop wheat had been made today for July shipment, and that New Orleans had cleared some domestic wheat. Corn established a new low price record for the season but rallied on account of Iowa reports that corn in some sections had been hit by frost.

Wheat closed irregular, ⅛ cent off to ⅜ up, corn at ⅝ declined ½ to ½ advance in oats unchanged to ⅝ higher, and provisions 7 to 7 cents down.

WINNIPEG WHEAT ADVANCES A BIT

WINNIPEG, Man., May 22.—(CP)—Fractional advances in wheat figures occurred on a dull and featureless grain exchange today. Export demand was small and trading was extremely light throughout the session.

Wheat quotations moved upward ⅛ to ⅜ with May closing at 60 cents, July 61 to 61⅛ and October 62¾ to ¾ split. Cash wheat and coarse grains were unchanged in price.

MONTREAL STOCKS DOWN A FRACTION

Slight Improvement on New York Is Reflected in Few Issues

MONTREAL, May 22—In light trading, prices on the Montreal stock exchange were fractionally lower today. Ten stocks touched new low levels for the year or longer.

The slight improvement in New York was not reflected in the action of the market but the easiness did not assume any serious aspect. Leading issues such as Montreal Power, International Nickel, Brazilian Traction, Canadian Pacific and National Breweries all confined their losses to fractions. A depression feature was the continued weakness in the bank stocks, Nova Scotia losing 12 at 300, Royal 4½ at 249 and Montreal 3 at 252, all new lows. Consolidated Smelters was also lower declining three points a new low at 82.

GOVERNMENT LOANS HIGH

With two exceptions all the gains were fractional. Two new highs were touched by government loans. The close was unsteady.

Among closing prices were: Abitibi up ½ at 3⅞; B. C. Power, up ¼ at 33¾; Building Products, up ⅛ at 18; Canadian Car, unchanged at 12¼; Car preferred, ¼ higher at 21¼; Canadian General Electric preferred, up 1⅞ at 63; Canadian Pacific, off ⅝ at 27⅞; Goodyear preferred, up ½ at 103; Dominion Bridge, unchanged at 32½; Dominion Textile, up ¼ at 66¼; Eastern Dairies, up 2 at 20; Lake of the Woods, ½ higher at 101½; Massey Harris, off ⅛ at 4½; National Breweries, off ¼ at 26¾; Price Brothers, down ¼ at 31; Power Corporation, off ½ at 46½; Shawinigan Power unchanged at 40½; Quebec Power, unchanged at 35 and Southern Canada Power, off ⅜ at 25⅛.

GOLDS AND OILS RECOVER ON THE VANCOUVER LIST

Pioneer Gold Opens Strong; Advances 11 Points Before Close

VANCOUVER, May 22—The Vancouver stock market came in for additional recovery today with British Columbia oils and golds prominent in the forward movement. Accumulation in the featured issues during the early dealings imparted a more optimistic tone and stocks reached their high points for the day prior to the noon close. However, on resumption of trading, prospects of the long holiday recess prompted rather heavy profit taking, and leaders eased from their best levels.

Despite the realising in the last minute popular shares finished the day with fair advances. An outstanding feature was Pioneer, which reacted favorably on the optimistic addresses made by the company's officers at the annual meeting.

PIONEER ADVANCES

Pioneer opened at 2.30 and steadily advanced to a closing selling price at 2.35, to end the day at 2.36 bid, a net gain of 11 points. Lorne Gold, a neighbor of Pioneer in the Bridge river district, was also in demand, but the rally during the morning was offset by profit taking and the stock closed unchanged at 9¾ cents bid. Premier sold a new peak for this movement at 78 cents and closed firm at 75 cents bid.

Bullish news from the Flathead valley caused a steady buying flurry in Amalgamated and Crow's Nest, Amalgamated opened nearly 2 cents higher at 12 cents and rose to 15 cents during the forenoon session. In the late trading was shaded down to 13 cents, to close at the morning price, a net gain of 1½ cents to 12½ cents but eased in cents to 12° cents but eased in sympathy with the shares of the holding company, to end the day with a net increase of 1¼ cents at 10¾ cents bid.

In sluggish trading leaders in the Turner Valley Oils group declined, but the extreme apathy in this division held losses within modest limits. C. and E., continued to slide and the price closed 2 cents below Thursday final bid at 34 cents. Home at 52 cents and Mayland at 17½ cents both closed 1 cent net lower.

C. G. E. DECLARES DIVIDEND

TORONTO, May 22—The board of directors of Canadian General Electric Company, limited, has declared the regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent on preference shares and $1.00 per share, or 2 per cent on the common stock.

It was stated the earnings for the first four months of 1931 were well in excess of dividend requirements, also that while the company's total volume of business is lower than a year ago, the sales of incadescent lamps and electric household appliances, are being well maintained and in most cases are ahead of last year.

Marriage, liquor and labor now loom prominently among numerous handicaps which are retarding the successful completion of the Soviet Union's five-year plan.

TORONTO STOCKS PRICES DECLINE

TORONTO, May 22 (CP)—Declines continued today on the Toronto stock exchange but pace was slacker and volume lower. Total turnover amounted to 14,567 shares.

British American and Canadian oils registered gains. International Pete was off ⅜ to a new low of 10½. Supertest was off 1 to a new low of 17. Bell Telephone made a slight gain to close at 130. Brazilian Traction at 15 was off ¾. C. P. R. was off ¼ to 28.

Ford of Canada fell to a new low of 16¼, closing ⅛ higher. Walker moved up to 5½. Distillers Seagrams gained ¼. Smelters gained ½ to 84 while International Nickel was off ⅜.

NELSON BUYS B. C. TOMATOES

So States Victoria Report; Texas Potatoes Down on Prairies

VICTORIA, B. C., May 22.—The following wire was received from Nelson, British Columbia, says the market news letter, department of agriculture, Victoria: "Mexican tomatoes entirely off the market which is being supplied with hothouse product mainly from Victoria, and a few shipments coming from Lethbridge. Hothouse cucumbers are also coming in from Victoria. Local green onions, radishes, spinach and asparagus now on the market. Supplies of potatoes are all coming from the surrounding districts with more than enough available to take care of the demand. Oregon onions made their first appearance on this market two weeks ago and wholesaling at five cents per pound. These are of excellent quality but showing considerable growth. There are still a lot of old root vegetables available in the district but the demand for these is practically over and they will probably be used for stock feed. Weather over week-end has been cool and cloudy with heavy rains."

Calgary—High winds with light snowfall prevailing today. The moisture is hardly needed. Two cars of Arkansas strawberries in quarts arrived in Calgary over the week-end; one car partially unloaded in Moose Jaw, Calgary taking the balance; other car equally divided between Calgary and Edmonton. The berries are in good condition but owing to lack of demand, partly on account of weather, the price broke rapidly from $10.50 to $9.50 per case. Armstrong rhubarb is quoted at 80 to 90 cents f.o.b. The local jobbing price on rhubarb ranges from $1.40 to $1.50. First car of California cantaloupes expected today and jobbers are quoting $6 for standards and $2.50 for flats. New Texas potatoes have dropped to 6c per pound locally. All other prices same as last week.

Vancouver—Excerpt from report of British Columbia Livestock Exchange, Ltd., May 16, 1931:

Cattle—The market this week has been active on most classes of cattle at steady prices, the cattle being mostly real good baby beef, well finished and light weights. Heifers that were wasteful or calvy were as usual side-stepped by the buyers. A few odd tops sold at $6.50

Hogs—The market has been about the same on hogs, but buyers are backward in trading more hogs than immediate requirements on account of market fluctuation on other markets.

Sheep—The lamb market is holding about the same with very few good grain fed lambs arriving on the market and few spring lambs offered for sale. We look for a good sprinkling of grass fed yearlings and a few spring lambs on the market within the next couple of weeks.

BUTTER PRICE IS REDUCED ON TRAIL MARKET

Is Quoted at 35 Cent Pound; Another Reduction Appears Likely

TRAIL, B. C., May 22—Reduction of butter to 35 cents a pound featured this morning's public market. The former price was 40 cents, two for 75. Another reduction is pending, it is believed.

Bedding plants and cut flowers continued to command attention at this morning's session. Some of the bedding plants prices were reduced, but the majority sold at 35 cents a dozen and moved quickly.

There were no new vegetables on the market, though the supply of this commodity was good.

Neat prices were unchanged.

The demand for broiling chickens was exceptionally heavy.

TORONTO MINES ARE LISTLESS

TORONTO, Ont., May 22.—(CP)—Listless trading with reactionary prices in leading metal issues featured the movement today on the Standard stock and mining exchange. Higher-priced oils showed firmness. Total sales ran to 203,020 shares.

Noranda and International Nickel moved downward, each losing 40c for the day. McIntyre lost 72c to $20.50; Dome broke sharply to sell off 55c to $10.20. Vipond at 65c closed at a new low for the year.

Cities Service was up 40c to $11, while Imperial Oil at $11.15 and British American at $9.50 advanced 15c. Royalite with five shares traded broke $2.75 to a new low of $7.

FREIGHT RATES PLEA WILL BE TREATED SOON

Attorney - General Pooley Makes Excuses On Behalf of the Federal Body

VICTORIA, May 22—Early consideration of British Columbia's plea for reduced freight rates has been promised by the federal government, Acting Premier Pooley stated today following discussion of this matter in the house of commons yesterday.

"There seems to be some misunderstanding of this whole question," Mr. Pooley said. "The idea that we have not been active in pressing for a reduction in rates is entirely wrong. We have been pressing for it ever since we came into office.

"Our case, on appeal from the railway board, was argued by our counsel before the Canadian privy council which, at that time, was the Mackenzie King government. We pressed that government many times to render a decision, but it went out of office without doing so, now, of course, there is a new privy council headed by Mr. Bennett, a complete new set of judges. Naturally the case must be argued again from the beginning. Mr. Bennett has agreed to give us a hearing at the earliest possible moment, but anyone can realize that it has been impossible for him to do so to now in view of all the work facing his new government."

Mr. Pooley said he hoped that the case would go before the privy council shortly after the propagation of parliament, some time in the summer.

"The attempt of Liberal members of parliament to blame the present government is a boomerang against their own party," Mr. Pooley said. "It is indirectly an attack on the former Liberal government for its delay in handing down a judgment in this case. We intend to press this issue to a conclusion with a minimum of delay," he added.

It was expected at the legislative buildings that Premier Tolmie on his return here shortly would have some word for the government concerning the date of the government's rate appeal.

NEW YORK LIST HAS STOCKS IN A FIRMER MOOD

Rails Put the List on the Upward Track; Eventually Lose a Bit

NEW YORK, May 22 (AP)—Most stocks were steady to firm today, ignoring group weakness in the chemicals and coppers, trading was dull, but the market closed fractionally higher, on the average.

Rails put the list on the upward track with a rally of a point or two in the morning. The carriers eventually lost part of their gains, yet their recovery, based on the move for a rise in freight rates, was followed by a relaxation of pressure against the pivotal industrials and utilities.

Chemicals reduced extreme losses of one to nearly five points. Sales for the session totalled 1,600,000.

Following the omission of the Gulf States Steel preferred dividend that stock broke 7 points. Case rallied more than four points in response to the regular disbursements voted after yesterday's close. People's Gas threatened to drop below 200 but held at 203 after a 15-point tumble and cut its loss to three.

American Telephone, National Biscuit, American Can, North American, Southern Railway and Woolworth gained one to two net. U. S. Steel, closing at 100, was ⅛ higher. Sears Roebuck, whose sales from April 24 to May 21 were off only nine-tenths of a per cent, firmed. Eastman Kodak had a sharp reaction, losing 3 points. Foreign exchanges were firm, especially sterling cables which advanced 3-32 to $4.8610-31.

Bonds were irregularly higher. The averages composed of the closing prices of 10 bonds each of the rail, public utility and industrial groups were all higher than on Thursday. Trading was somewhat less active, however.

MONTREAL CURB PRICES LOWER

Foreign Securities off ⅛ at 7⅞ and International Petroleum down ⅛ at 10½. Other recessions included Associated Oil, Distillers Seagram, Imperial Oil and International Utilities "A".

Noranda closed at $19.50, off 75 cents, while Siscoe lost 3 cents at 42 cents. Sullivan Mines gained 1 cent at 15 cents and Wright-Hargreaves advanced to $2.78, up 8 cents.

ADAMS WINS SUIT AGAINST SHEELER FOR $1000 BONUS

Judge Nesbit Gives Judgment After Day and Half of Testimony

Judgment for the plaintiff was given at the noon hour Friday by Judge W. A. Nisbet in the action of H. H. Adams, ore mill expert, vs. W. L. Sheeler, Slocan mine operator, which has occupied the time of the county court for a day and a half. Mr. Adams was awarded the amount of his claim, $1000, and costs.

Friday's single session was devoted to the examination of Mr. Sheeler by his counsel, E. C. Wragge, and his cross-examination by James O'Shea, K. C., counsel for the plaintiff, respecting the nature of the verbal agreement between himself and Mr. Adams, as to the remuneration of the latter for special work to be done in connection with the Galena Farm mill, Mr. Sheeler denied promising Mr. Adams a bonus for satisfactory completion of the work, whether or not a bonus was promised being the bone of contention in the aftion.

After the cross-examination of Mr. Sheeler, respective counsel waived the addresses, and his honor gave judgment for the plaintiff.

PIPE TESTED by a RANCHER

"Some months ago I visited my ranch on the Prairie. I travelled home as usual in the smoker. Delightfully relaxed after my outing in the wind and sun, I was enjoying my pipe immensely. The man who shared my seat suddenly placed his hand on my arm and said, 'What kind of tobacco is that you are using? . . . I presume from the aroma that it is one of those imported brands.' 'Oh, no,' I replied, 'I used to be a smoker of imported tobaccos but this seems to suit me better . . . its name is Turret pipe tobacco and the price is moderate too. I have been a constant user of it (Turret pipe tobacco) for months.'"
