OKANAGAN IS STUNNED WITH FRUIT REPORT

Associated Presidents Ask if Past Work Is Failure

"COUNSEL DESPAIR" SAYS F. M. BLACK

Independent Shippers Are Highly Optimistic, Present

KELOWNA, B. C., Jan. 19.—Sanford Evans' report on the fruit industry has hit the Okanagan valley like a bombshell. While some of the leaders in the fruit business had a glimmering of its character, there does not appear to have been anyone who anticipated that it would recommend scrapping completely existing organizations and a reversion to competitive selling.

"Is the work of eight years' upbuilding to be smashed to pieces in one fell blow, and the whole industry thrown back to the conditions of chaos prior to 1922?" asks E. J. Chambers, president of the Associated Growers. "Surely we have reason to hope for something better than that."

R. B. Staples, manager of the Sales Service, and spokesman for the independents, was in a happier and more hopeful frame of mind. He was delighted with the Evans recommendations and said:

TRUE REPRESENTATION

"The report is a true presentation of the situation, as it exists, and the real facts of the position are presented to the public openly fearlessly and correctly for the first time."

A "counsel of despair" was how it was described by F. M. Black, chairman of the Committee of Direction, the originator of the central selling plan now advocated, and the storm center of the battle in the valley between the contending factions.

For months the valley has been like a house divided. One section

EXAMINES GRANTS GIVEN TO FAIRS IN THE DOMINION

WINNIPEG, Man., Jan. 19.—Tomorrow Hon. Robert Weir, federal minister of agriculture, will confer with delegates attending the annual meeting of the Western Canada Association of Exhibitions, here

Mr. Weir, who arrived tonight from Ottawa, will discuss grants given by the Dominion government to fairs.

"The federal government gives to the fairs of the Dominion $750,000 annually," said the minister of agriculture, "and my purpose in discussing the grants is to discover whether the benefit to agriculture is commensurate with the amount of money we are paying out."

Mr. Weir wished it understood that the grants would not be cut in any way.

IS CONVICTED FOR INFRINGEMENT MARKETING ACT

SASKATOON, Sask., Jan. 19—Convicted of attempting to induce wheat pool farmers of the Maidstone district to dispose of wheat to him in payment against accounts, George Grant, representative of the Wholesalers' and Retailers' Collection Agency, was fined $50 in court here today. It was believed to be the first prosecution under the province's amended marketing act.

The new act provides a penalty to "every person who, having knowledge of the existence of a marketing contract between a member and an association, induces anyone to sell any agricultural product which is the subject matter of such contract." It was alleged that Grant accepted wheat from pool members which in turn was disposed of on the open market.

UNDER ARREST, HELP OFFICER

BELLINGHAM, Wash., Jan. 19.—(AP)—After a week of exposure in the snow and cold of the upper Skagit district, near the Okanogan county and Canadian border lines, Deputy Game Warden Vernon Titus returned to Bellingham today to tell a story of how a man and youth he had arrested for the alleged unlawful trapping of fur bearing animals had played the role of good samaritans and helped him back to the nearest outpost of Diablo, after he had been crippled by rheumatism in his battle with the elements.

The prisoners, O. I. Howlett of Hope, British Columbia, and John Bauquier, 17, of Puyallup, await a hearing in justice court. They were trapping furs together.

Furs valued at about $300 were

J. C. Rykert Dies at Rykerts After Long and Eventful Life

Was Well-Known to All as Customs Collector

ONCE ENTERTAINED "TEDDY" ROOSEVELT

Established Customs Port Which Still Bears His Name

CRESTON, B. C., Jan. 19.—John Charles Rykert, 74, retired customs collector at Rykerts, six miles south of Creston, is dead at his somewhat historic home at Rykerts, and in his passing the Kootenays have lost a pioneer citizen who figured prominently in the history of this country from the early 80's, among other things having the distinction of conducting the first government sale of town lots in Nelson.

The end came at about noon today after a lengthy illness at his home, which has been in charge of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Davis, Mr. Davis taking on the work of customs collector at that port on the superannuation of Mr. Rykert about seven years ago. His wife predeceased him about nine years.

Mr. Rykert was born August 9, 1857, at St. Catharines, Ont., of United Empire Loyalist stock. His father was the late Hon. J. C. Rykert, a prominent lawyer, who died in 1917. He was the last surviving member of Canada's first parliament.

In 1873, as a boy, the late Mr. Rykert was articled to an engineer and took part in the preliminary survey of the C. P. R. in the Great Lakes country, which work gave him his first taste of frontier life in its reality.

In 1874 he joined the R.N.W.M.P., and was with "F" troop at the founding of Macleod, Alta., in 1874, and Calgary in 1875. The Hon. Cecil Denny was the first sub-inspector under whom Mr. Rykert served.

INDIAN PARLEY IS ADJOURNED BY MACDONALD

Prime Minister Wishes India Success in Becoming a Dominion

LONDON, Jan. 19. (By George Hambleton, Canadian Press staff correspondent)—In the glitter of camera flashlights, the Indian round table conference this afternoon concluded nine weeks' labors.

"You have opened a new chapter in history," read a farewell message to the delegates from his majesty.

And while the Indian delegates cheered again and again, Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald said: "I hope, I trust, I pray that India will possess the only thing she now lacks to give her the status of a dominion among the British commonwealth of nations. What she now lacks for that—the responsibilities, the cares, the burdens and the difficulties, but—" he paused for a moment and then continued, with a proud toss of his head, "the pride and honor of responsible self-government."

CANDIDATES TO BE NOMINATED SOON, NORFOLK

NORFOLK, England, Jan. 19.—(CP Cable) — Candidates will be nominated in all the Norfolk constituencies before March 1 in preparation for any new general election that may occur, it was decided by the Norfolk branch of the National Farmers' union in a meeting Saturday night.

With the exception that Lord Beaverbrook attended the meeting little information was vouchsafed about this new political development.

Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express said today the movement was bound to spread. "It reveals a complete breakdown between Hon. Stanley Baldwin and the farmers, who are the backbone of his party."

ENGLISH MINERS' LEADER HAS HIS LEG AMPUTATED

LONDON, Jan. 19.—(AP)—A. J. Cook, spectacular and fiery leader of the men who muck for coal in British mines, fought the biggest of his many battles today.

As his "boys" returned to their pits in South Wales after a 19-day mine tie-up, Mr. Cook's leg was amputated in an effort to relieve the intense pain occasioned by a 28-year-old injury received in a coal mine.

Tonight physicians said that he was "doing as well as could be

PRINTERS STRIKE IN SPANISH SHOPS

MADRID, Jan. 19.—(AP)—The government's own newspaper, the Official Gazette, was affected by the strike today of members of the printing crafts. About 4000 men were affected by the strike. They asked for a reduction of working hours from eight to seven daily and an increase of two pesetas (about 20 cents) in their daily wage.

The present high cost of living made the increase necessary, they declared.

Only job printing work and occasional publications were affected. Daily newspapers were exempted by

OIL SPOT MAY BE A CLUE TO MISSING PLANE

KETCHIKAN, Alaska, Jan. 19.—(AP)—An oil spot sighted today near Davidson point, 15 miles south of here, will be investigated for possible clues as to the whereabouts of Pilot Robin Renahan's plane. The pilot and two companions disappeared near here last October.

A diver will investigate the vicinity over which the oil was sighted tomorrow. The United States cutter Ocgan and a provincial police boat were continuing search for further wreckage of the plane about Prince of Wales island.

CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSIONER ARRESTED, EAST

Leo. Bouchard Must Make Explanations of Exam Irregularities

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 19. (CP)—A warrant was issued tonight for the arrest of Leo Bouchard, civil service commission examiner, on a charge of conspiracy to defraud in connection with post office department examinations. Announcement of the issuance of the warrant was made following a long meeting of the commission, at which Mr. Bouchard was put through an examination. The charges were laid in respect to examinations conducted in Montreal.

Civil service commissioners questioned Bouchard as to his explanation of irregularities which have taken place in connection with examinations at Montreal.

Allegations of fraud and conspiracy in the submission of certain of these examination papers have been made.

Already Lionel Chartrand of Aylmer, Que., has been arrested, and it is intimated that other arrests may follow.

As a result of the irregularities which have been disclosed, a list containing several hundred names of eligible candidates for the civil service will, it is said, be discarded. Only a small percentage of these candidates, of course, were in any sense parties to the irregularities.

BRITISH BOY IS LOST EN ROUTE FROM THE PEACE

Note Is Found by Search Party; Was Written on November 15

VICTORIA, B. C., Jan. 19.—"Have failed to get through to Fort McLeod, and run entirely out of food. Am going back. A list of supplies taken by me is here. My feet and finger tips are frost bitten, I have abandoned my horse," so ran the brief message dated November 15—written by John Noel Patch Bennett, 18-year-old British school boy who set out against all advice to make his way from Pouce Coupe, in the Peace River district, through the pine to Fort McLeod on October 14 last. The plight of the youth is believed serious, as he had only a week's stores which he obtained from a trapper's cabin before setting back on his trail.

The note was one of many found by a party of three men sent out from Pouce Coupe on December 19, at the request of the Imperial bank of Grand Prairie, acting on London advices. Ted Strahd, a trapper named Kelly, and another named Sunderland, all experienced woodsmen, were in the party that followed Bennett's trail, and who arrived at Prince George today according to advices received here by the provincial police from Inspector W. E. Spiller over the police wireless system late this evening.

MONTREAL HAS SECOND HEAVY FALL OF SNOW

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 19.—(CP)—Montreal's second heavy snowfall of the season came today ranging in depth from seven to eight inches but without the high wind that characterized the storm of a fortnight ago. Traffic was maintained with difficulty as hundreds of automobiles stalled on the streets and added to the difficulty of the tram company.

The storm was a boon to the unemployed as the work of clearing away the last snowfall had been almost completed.

HOOVER MAY COME TO OTTAWA SOON

THINKS INDIA WILL NOT TAKE PARLEY TERMS

Representative of Indian Congress Says That Trouble Due

IS CRITICAL OF CONFERENCE

Objects Method Indians Were Nominated to Conference

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—Premier Ramsay MacDonald's declaration for Indian self-government will not be acceptable to the all-Indian national congress, according to Dr. Haridas T. Muzumdar, semi-official representative of the congress in the United States and the editor of "India Today and Tomorrow."

"The round of festivities in London came to a close today," he said, "On January 26 the world will hear the Indian side of the story.

"All over India, I have received word that demonstrations are going to be held in all cities where there is a large Indian population."

"Our criticism of the London round-table conference of India are fourfold," Dr. Muzumdar declared.

"First, the Indians at the round-table were nominated by the British government and not elected by any political or civic organization in India.

"Secondly, we of the congress party question the right of any Indian to sell the liberties of our country for a mess of pottage.

"Third, the reservation of finance under the control of the British is positively unacceptable to the congress.

"Fourth, the round-table failed to approach the minimum demands of Mahatma Gandhi. One of the minimum demands is that the so-called public debt of India be submitted for examination to an Imperial international commission of economic experts, whose decision as to India's responsibility should be accepted both by Britain and India.

"We do not propose to repudiate our public debts as the Russians did, but if Britain fails to accept arbitration in the matter of our so-called public debt, we may be forced to give her a taste of repudiation of obligations which are imposed unjustly upon us."

FIND THE FROZEN BODY OF TEACHER

Think Young Woman Was Struck by Car and Thrown From Bridge

FORT MORGAN, Colo., Jan. 19—(AP)—An irrigation canal today gave up the body of Enid Marriott, 28-year-old Wiggins, Colo., school teacher who dropped from sight November 16. Frozen so completely that the county coroner said at least three hours would be required to rid it of clinging ice and sand, the body was taken from the canil late today after more than two hours' work by hundreds of volunteers armed with axes and saws. Coroner L. H. Parker said determination whether the woman had been killed and thrown into the canal would have to await the thawing of the body.

The body was discovered in what is known as the work lateral, about about 100 yards east of the main canal and two and one half miles east of a bridge from which Morgan county authorities believe it was thrown after the woman had been abducted or struck and killed by an automobile.

SAYS PROVINCE HAS WEATHERED DEPRESSION WELL

Retiring President Vancouver Board Trade Praises Hon. H. H. Stevens

VANCOUVER, B. C., Jan. 19.—At the annual meeting of the board of trade here tonight, Col. R. D. Williams, retiring president, outlined the accomplishments of the past year.

Vancouver, said Col. Williams, had weathered the period of depression better than even the most optimistic would have prophesied, and he noted a turn for the better. Events of the past year, including the tour of the Orient, the fight for a Peace river connection, appointment of J. Fyfe Smith to the board of Canadian National Railways and the organization of the Vancouver council of social agencies and Vancouver Welfare federation, were reviewed by Col. Williams.

He paid a tribute to Hon. H. H. Stevens, minister of trade and customs, for his suggestion that a loan should be made to China to recoup her for the decline in her monetary value, as one of the steps which might be taken to restore normal trade conditions.

As a suggestion for the coming year, Col. Williams intimated that taxation reductions should be made by both civic and provincial governments, especially in their educational and administrative expenditures.

FATALITIES IN ALASKAN WATERS IS INVESTIGATED

KETCHIKAN, Alaska, Jan. 19.—(AP)—A series of mysterious disappearances of boatmen in southeastern Alaska was being investigated by the United States marshal's office and department of justice agents today.

While the circumstances in several of the cases were similar, officers said they had not found sufficient evidence to prove the disappearances were plotted by a single killer.

Those missing include: Albert Farrow and L. C. Davis, who left Petersburg, near here, for the west coast of Prince of Wales island about November 9 and were never heard from; Albert C. Anderson, who went hunting ashore from his boat and failed to return, and John Wyckstrom, a troller, who disappeared, together with his boat, near here.

Another violent death being investigated is that of John Marshal, fish buyer, who was found slain aboard a boat which left Ketchikan in October.

WILD OIL WELL FINALLY SHUT IN, OKLAHOMA

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Jan. 19.— (AP) —Another roaring menace of the oil field at Oklahoma City's doorstep—the wild No. 1 Wespage oil well—was throttled late today.

The well, wild since morning, was shot in by John Gordon, tamer of the famous "Wild Mary" Sudik, Oklahoma's most notorious well, which ran wild for 11 days before being shut in.

With the flow of the No. 1 Wespage under control, firemen and national guards men took precautions against the danger of fire in the area soaked by oil from the wild gusher.

WICKERSHAM LAW COMMISSION HAS REPORTED, HOOVER

Result of Over Year and Half of Work Will Soon Be Known

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—(CP)—Exactly 19 months and 23 days after embarking upon its task, the Wickersham law enforcement commission today laid its study of the nation's prohibition problem before President Hoover.

Almost immediately Mr. Hoover dropped other cases to begin his study of it.

The president's engagement list was ordered held to a minimum, and if expectations at the White House are fulfilled he will be able to send it to congress, probably with some form of message attached, by tomorrow noon. It then will be released for publication.

Days before the long awaited document was placed in Mr. Hoover's hands it became known through sources close to the commission, that the majority report of the 11 members at least would carry no recommendation for repeal of the 18th amendment or modification of the Volstead act to permit wines or beer.

Despite the few words that have leaked out from behind the commission's long closed doors, however, the main portions of both the majority and individual reports have remained shrouded in a secrecy almost unparalleled in Washington.

SANFORD CLARK IS DEPORTED TO CANADIAN SOIL

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Sanford Clark, 17, whose testimony two years ago at the trial of his uncle, Gordon Stewart Northcott, figured strongly in sending him to the gallows, was deported to Canada today.

Two and a half years ago, Clark was brought to California from Canada by Northcott through misrepresentation about his nationality. He lived on the Wineville chicken ranch owned by Northcott and his mother, Mrs. Sarah Northcott, who is serving a life term in San Quentin penitentiary for the murder of four boys slain there. Clark witnessed the murders and after enduring tortures at the hands of his uncle fled and revealed the crimes to authorities. Since then he has been at a state school near here.

"Northcott got what he deserved," Clark said as he was about to depart on a steamer bound for Vancouver, British Columbia, with 35 other aliens.

TRELLE SAYS THE PEACE COUNTRY MUST HAVE OUTLET

VANCOUVER, B. C., Jan. 19.—The transportation problems of the Peace river will never be solved, and that most promising of all Canadian territories will not come into its undoubted future until there is direct rail outlet to the Pacific coast, it was declared by Herman Trelle, famous Peace river king of wheat growers, in his address under the auspices of the ON-to-the-Peace association here today.

FIND THAT MEN AND SLOTHS WERE ONCE COMPANIONS

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 19.—Proof has been found that man lived in southwestern America 20,000 years ago, with ground sloths for companions.

Dr. James A. B. Scherern, director of the Southwest museum, said today that the first sure proof of a Dawn age man's existence on this continent had been uncovered with human bones in Gypsum cave, near Las Vegas, Nevada.

Before the cave was excavated, paleontologists and geologists believed man had made his advent in North America not more than 10,000 years ago.

The first evidence yielded by the cave was a dart. It was found beneath refuse left by sloths, but was not considered sufficient proof that man had been there before the giant creatures disappeared from the earth. Later, pieces of baskets were found. The bones of a man were found at last by Mark R. Harrington of the museum's staff. They reposed beneath a strata bearing sloth refuse, and near them was the charcoal of a fire.

Starting January 11, a hurricane swept islands of American Samoa for five days. Last Thursday the wind reached a velocity of 60 miles an hour. No loss of life was reported.

CASTLEGAR MAY BUILD COMMUNITY HALL THIS YEAR

Is Discussed at Meeting of 40 Residents; Plan More Activtiy

CASTLEGAR, B. C., Jan. 19.—A meeting to further the interests of the young people, by arranging for more social functions of a larger scope than could be taken care of in an ordinary home, was held last Friday evening in West's hall.

The convenor, Mrs. E. Robinson, called the meeting to order, stating that she was concerned by the lack of social entertainment for the younger people, and that she had called the meeting for the purpose of publicly discussing ways and means to provide what was lacking. Mrs. Robinson then outlined a tentative plan to accomplish the desired object, and asked D. Maxwell to take the chair for the rest of the evening. Mr. Maxwell threw the meeting open for a general discussion during which it was brought out that there was no desire to curtail the efforts of the Castlegar Community club, otherwise known as the C. C. C., but rather to spur them on to greater achievements; also that if any profits accrued from the proposed gatherings, that they would be turned over to the Boy Scouts.

Reference to the Boy Scouts brought out the fact that the boys were about ready to take their tenderfoot tests and had increased in numbers.

The question of a community hall was brought forward and there is a possibility that ways and means of erecting such a building can be devised during the coming year. This building, if erected, would house the C. C. C., the Boy Scouts, and also would be available for public entertainments, school concerts, basketball, badminton and public meetings.

There were present, 40 people, a large number of whom took part in the good-humored but spirited discussion which resulted in agreeing to the plan as outlined, and entertainment is now assured for the winter months.

ANCIENT BUTCHER SHOP DISCOVERED

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Jan. 19.—Discovery of a butcher shop more than 20,000 years old was reported at the recent meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science by Dr. Harold J. Cook, of the Cook Museum of Natural History, Agate, Nebraska.

Bones of the huge elephant-like mammoth that had ben hacked with flint knives by the ancient butchers, and some of the knives themselves, have been found in Yuma county, Arizona, by Perry and Harold Anderson, Dr. Cook said.

The knives buried with the bones show men must have lived there at the same time as the mammoths, Dr. Cook believes. Some of the mammoth bones showed evidence of having been hacked while still fresh, or tough and "green". A bison bone evidently used in flaking off particles of flint in making the stone knives also was discovered.

"Some of the bison and mammoth bones found here also appear to have been gnawed," Dr. Cook said. He did not say whether he thought they had been gnawed by men or animals.

The dry Arizona plateau where the bones and knives were discovered was a well-watered flood plain when the ancient butcher shop was in operation, Dr. Cook explained. Streams were flowing across it from the mountains toward the east. All evidence indicates the flood plain existed in the pleistocene age, which extended from about 1,000,000 years ago to within 20,000 years of the present. There is no probability that the flood basin is more recent than that, he declared.

The flint knives were similar to those found at Colorado, Texas and Torrington, Wyoming. They are well made, indicating their makers were comparatively far advanced toward civilization.

"The constantly increasing evidence of this character makes it appear that early man not only existed at a much earlier date in America than has been, until recently, commonly believed, but that he had reached a relatively high state of advancement, at least in certain directions, in pleistocene times in this country," Dr. Cook said.

BRITISH POLICE DISTRICTS PLAN AID EACH OTHER

LONDON, Jan. 19. — Theorizing that two heads are between the one, plans are being advanced for closer cooperation between the police districts of England and Wales and Scotland Yard in Great Britain's age old war against crime and criminals. Under conditions that have existed for years each borough of England and Wales has sole jurisdiction over its respective territory and Scotland Yard has no standing whatsoever outside the metropolitan area of London, unless called in by officials of he borough.

It is a famous trick of sensational novelists to bring into their stories a Scotland Yard detective who takes control, ignoring almost entirely the local police. While unquestionably some of the finest detectives in the world today are attached to Scotland Yard, and the organization for the detection of criminals are maintained primarily to deal with crime within the London metropolitan area.

Some time ago, Lord Bentford, who, as Sir Joynson Hicks, was the then Home Secretary, notified every chief constable in the country tht the services of Scotland Yard officers were always available to them, and urged the need for closer cooperation between "the Yard" and provincial forces. Particularly cases of murder and other serious crime was it urged that the assistance of "the Yard" should be obtained at the earliest possible moment.

Under the present regulations, however, there is no power to compel local police forces to call in help from Scotand Yard, and in some counties the view is held that local detectives are better equipped to deal with local murder cases. Many counties and boroughs, however, have adopted the suggestion of the home secretary with excellent results.

STINK BOMB IS CAUSE OF GREAT COMMOTION, EAST

NEW YORK, Jan. 19. (By the Canadian Press)—Patrolman Harry Hunt did his duty—more, he did a sound bit of constructive detective work. His reward—shunned by everyone.

When he appeared, strong men screamed at him to begone. Women trembled and fled in dismay. A magistrate fled from his bench at mere sight of him. He emptied two police stations of hardened attaches when he crossed their thresholds.

Patrolman Hunt was aware of recent labor troubles at a tea room on West 47th street, and hid himself in the dark shadows of its hallway. Someone had been flinging things—things known to the trade as stink bombs.

Then, along came Charles J. Davis of the Bronx, who flung the contents of a bottle into the hallway. The fluid saturated Patrolman Hunt from head to foot. An odor, so strong that it seemed to take material form and choke him almost out of his shoes, despoiled the neighborhood.

The policeman fought it bravely, staggered out and clutched the astonished Davis. Passersby drew back or ran gasping. They stumbled into the 47th Stret police station.

"Get out of here," roared the lieutenant over his shoulder as he ran, pushing his way through fleeing policemen.

Hunt smiled sheepishly and went. They arrived at the 30th Street station, and it was cleared immediately.

They went to the West Side Court, and Magistrate Richard McKinlry left the bench without waiting to declare a recess. Clerks of the complaint room listened to Patrolman Hunt's troubles outdoors, but he had to wait some time before he was received indoors by any court or police official.

DO NOT PROFIT BY EDUCATION

So Declares Micmac Indian Discussing the Problems of His Race

TRURO, N. S., Jan. 19.—Claiming that "trapping, basket and axe-handle making" are the natural trades of his people, an Indian of the Truro reserve, writing under the nom de plume "Glooscap", expressed his views in the "Letters to the Editor" column of the Truro News on the proposed Indian College to be built at Shubenacadie, N. S.

"Not very long ago," the letter states, "I was asked what I thought of our some thousand dollars Indian college at Shubenacadie where the final touches of our long drawn 'civilization' is to be given, where every thing 'Indian' is to be forever obliterated or cast into the Bottomless Pit, I was told, in less than 10 years' time, some smart young Indians can become priests, doctors and lawyers, young squaws, school teachers, stenographers and saleladies just like the Whites today.

"Remembering my own experience of the effects or consequences of White Man's education upon an Indian and knowing how unchangeable Lo The Low Indian is, I had to utter one of my great great grand-father's grunts and prayed to our old Father Glooscap to come and save us which I hope he will do, for to be an Indian is to be forever in constant state of being nothing more than a looker on, longing for the good things of this world which he sees but never can get. It is nearly 40 years since the Indian schools were introduced in all our reservation in Nova Scotia. Millions and millions of dollars have been spent to educate "The Indian'. Today we have not one single Injin who can earn his bread and butter through or by the use of his pen.

"As some one said, three months after an Indian Priest is ordained and Indian doctor and Indian lawyer graduates you will find the three working together at baskets and handles.

"Modernism instead of improving the condition of Micmac Indians in Nova Scotia, is playing havoc with them, and everything else 'Indian'.

"Our last Christmas in our reserve here was a modern one. Go to church in the morning, go back to our own house, enjoy your own dinner. If any Indian done it 60 years ago no prayers could have saved his lost soul.

"For 60 years ago an old Indian Christmas was all 'Indian', all saucy whites, including priests were excluded from the Holy of Holies where feast upon feasts raged form a day before Christmas until New Year. A New Year was always a reconciliation and kissing day. So our modern Indian Christmas here was a mere shadow of our former ones."

J. C. RYKERT DIES AFTER LIFE FULL GREAT INTEREST

ness. In 1879 he was married to Ella Wells, daughter of Mark Wells of Niagara Falls, N. Y. Mr. Wells was the founder of the first express company, the Wells-Fargo Express company.

In 1881 Mr. Rykert could no longer withstand the lure of the west, and joined the Canadian customs department, serving at first on the boats plying between San Francisco, Calif., and Victoria, B. C., but after the completion of the Northern Pacific, the first railway through the northwest, he was commissioned by his department to locate and open a customs port of entry to handle the goods entering Canada destined to the Kootenay country. The late Mr. Rykert chose the location where the Kootenay river enters Canada, north of Bonners Ferry, Idaho, and about six miles south of Creston. And this point, his home since 1883, is known as Rykerts.

After opening the customs house at Rykerts, named in honor of himself, his customs work consisted in the handling of pack trains at first, then the small boats, and finally the big steamers that navigated the Kootenay to Kaslo and Nelson.

WAS GREAT PORT OF ENTRY

Through this port of entry there passed into Canada almost all the imports of the then great mining district of the Kootenay, and so continued until after the building of the Canadian Pacific railway in the later 90's. Mr. Rykert's territory extended from Cranbrook to Waneta, and thousands upon thousands of dollars were collected in gold dust, for which Mr. Rykert had sometimes to pay as high as 3 per cent to get remittance carried to the nearest post office, then Mud Slogh, near Sandpoint, Idaho.

An example of the implicit faith the department of customs had in Mr. Rykert's honesty was shown by the fact that his office was not inspected for seven years after it was established.

Among the visitors who enjoyed the well known hospitality of the Rykerts was the late President Theodore Roosevelt. Before becoming president, "Teddy" spent part of oe summer with the Rykerts in the late 80's, and a large caribou shot locally by the famous president is still in the Rykert home over the fireplace.

In the long span he was in the civil service and at a time of development in a wide but sparsely settled area, Mr. Rykert, in addition to customs work, served as immigration agent, provincial government agent, mining recorder, justice of the peace, and held several other such offices, as well as selling the first town lots in Nelson for the government.

C. D. Blackwood received a wire from Charles Davis, collector of customs at Rykerts, yesterday, reporting the death of Charles Rykert, and stating that Rev. Mr. Garlick of Creston would be assisting with the funeral services, which would be at Rykerts Wednesday.

D. A. McFarland, who got acquainted with Mr. Rykert in 1884, two years after he opened his customs office, Lorne A. Campbell, J. G. Bunyan, collector of customs at Nelson, T. J. Scanlan, and others who were acquainted with the news, all spoke in terms of highest appreciation of Mr. Rykert, and his remarkable career.

RAILWAY HEARINGS BEGIN, ENGLAND

LONDON, Jan. 19. (AP)—Hearings began today before the national board on request of the railway companies to reduce wages of employees £11,000,000 yearly, and demands of the men for wage increases amounting to £7,000,000 annually.

After the board makes its final report, the unions and the companies will decide whether to accept it or reject it. The board's findings are not legally binding on either side, but with one exception they have been accepted ever since the board was established under the Railway act of 1920. The wages of 600,000 men are involved.

Claims Mentality Stationary During Hundreds of Years

LONDON, Eng., Jan. 19.—If mankind wants to be proud of its self it will have to get up nd hustle. Sir William J. Pope says man hasn't improved any, physically or mentally, on his cave ancestors. Sir Williams declration was made in his Norman Lockyer lecture. Even in many of the arts, literature and possibly such abstract subjects as moral philosophy, no progress has been made for many centuries past," he says. He even hints that the situation is hopeless.

"This absence of progress," Sir William concludes, "seems to force upon us the conclusion that certain forms of intellectual expression were worked out thousands of years ago to the utmost limit of the capacity of human intelligence.

SHOULD THE CHILDREN EAT IT?

PARENTS, particularly mothers, are paying a lot of attention to children's diet these days. For it is more economical and pleasant to keep a child well by feeding him correctly than by nursing and doctoring him back to health.

Of course the doctor should be consulted regarding what a child should eat and what he should not eat. But do you realize that the leading manufacturers of food seek the advice and approval of the leading nutritional authorities in the country, relative to the claims they make for their products in their advertising?

In other words, food advertisements are reliable sources of information regarding diet. They are based upon the results of the latest approved scientific discoveries about vitamins, minerals and roughage, in relation to vigorous bodies, clear complexions, sound teeth and properly regulated systems.

So read these advertisements carefully. Consult your doctor about them. Very often the advertiser invites you to do this because he has asked authorities, whom your doctor respects, about those advertisements FIRST.

Farthest North Area Is Now Mapped From the Air

Northward "the tide of Empire takes its way" in 1930 and surveys engineers must keep pace with mapping requirements even though in an area nearly as large as Russia, only maps of the river valleys have heretofore been available

Fortunately, in striving to comply with the insistent demand for accurate maps, geographers and mappers now have the aid of the airplane with the modern navigator-surveyer, plus photographic equipment. Thereby a country, practically unknown to any but the wild things, has been revealed in a large portion of the exploratory edition of the Fitzgerald sheet of the national topographic series, issued by the topographical survey, department of the interior.

The new map, which embraces an area of about 4870 square miles on a scale of four miles to the inch in the extreme northeast corner of Alberta, is obtainable upon application to the surveyor general, Ottawa, for the sum of 25 cents in sheet form, or 50 cents, if on linen back or in folder cover.

At township 115 just outside the southeasterly corner of the mapped territory, is the present terminus of the surveyed portion of the fourth meridian which is the longest surveyed straight line in the world.

A portion of Lake Athabasca occupies roughly eight townships in the southeasterly corner. In the fur trading days this lake was about 70 days' canoe travel from Fort William, the old capital of the Northwest company. Now the aviator-surveyor takes only as many hours to make the trip, including time for re-fueling. By train and steamer seven days are required for this journey, if close connections can be made at Edmonton and to the end of the steel at Waterways with the boats which navigate Athabasca river and lake and which continue down Slave river to Fitzgerald.

SLAVE RIVER BOUNDARY OF PRECAMBRIAN FORMATION

Slave river, part of the Mackenzie system connecting Lakes Athabasca and Great Slave, divides the Fitzgerald area into two distinctly different classes of country. To the west is an almost level plain with few lakes but many sloughs and hay meadows varied by salty plains, in some cases grass-covered. Outside of the grassy meadows and salt plains are growths of young popular. This is a natural range country. Horses and cattle from Fitzgerald and Fort Smith graze over it all the year round, and come out in the spring in splendid condition.

Here is the only herd of wild buffalo left in the world, the last remnant of the wood buffalo. In the past few years bison from Buffalo national park at Wainwright Alberta, have been brought in and, together with the wood buffalo, are increasing rapidly. The greater part of the area west of the Slave falls within the sanctuary of the Wood Buffalo park which extends into the areas embraced by the Peace Point map, and portions of the Lake Claire and Chipewyan maps.

All of the mapped territory east of the great precambrian shield, displaying rocky ridges and knolls with netted lakes between them. Along the river on this side is a fringe of lake spruce Farther back jackpine sparsely clothes the ridges with spruce, tamarack and birch in the hollows. Here is fair trapping ground into which hunters from Fitzgerald and Fort Smith penetrate.

Lake trout and whitefish are plentiful in the innumerable lakes and streams, in contrast to the jackfish and suckers which frequent the waters of the portion west of the Slave Lake Athabasca is famous fishing ground yielding quantities of whitefish, which are shipped in ice on scows to Waterways, on the Athabasca river, to the south, and loaded on express trains for Chicago and other outside points.

Known formerly as the "Lake of the Hill," referring to the rough precambrian country along its northern shore, Athabasca lake is said to have been a traditional and central gathering point of the Indians such as Onondaga lake was to the Iroquois

DROP OF 116 FEET, POTENTIAL WATER POWER

Fort Smith has been determined by survey to be just inside the Northwest Territories It is, therefore, immediately outside the Fitzgerald map, but shown upon it in a marginal inset.

On Slave river between Fitzgerald and Fort Smith, a distance of 16 miles, is a source of potential water power in a series of rapids with a drop of 116 feet. These are circumvented by a good portage served by motor trucks, where formerly oxen and Red river carts, or oxen in four-in-hands with wagons, did duty. A telephone line connects the two settlements.

At the "Rapids of the Drowned," near Fort Smith, Cuthbert Grant, in 1786, lost five of his men, two canoes and some merchandise while on his way to found the post on Great Slave lake, which Alexander Mackenzie mentions as having been located on the south shore in that year.

Mackenzie, leaving old Fort Chipewyan on June 4, 1789, to discover the river which now bears his name, and to traverse it to its mouth, reached the vicinity of Fort Smith on June 5 after portaging six times. At the Mountain rapid, the location of which the map shows, he lost a canoe. Just above he noted numbers of pelican which have given the name to Pelican rapids, the second of the series below Fitzgerald. Descendants of Mackenzie's pelican of over a century ago still persist on the wooded islands in the swirling rapids. Here they are at one of their most northern breeding places They make their nests in slight depressions in the sand and feed their young on fish, contrary to the prevailing poetic idea of the mother pelican whose "beak unlocks her bosom's stream to still her famished nestling's scream."

The autumn of 1789, Mackenzie passed up the Slave having accomplished a journey of over 3000 miles in canoes. It is worthy of note that he and his five white men, with the Indian occupants of two other canoes, lived off the country though armed only with the lingering flint locks of the time.

FAMOUS STEAMERS ON THE MACKENZIE SYSTEM

Not to mention airplanes, Mackenzie's canoemen would have been amazed if they could have seen the capacious flat-bottomed steamers which now navigate the Mackenzie system in a relay north of the rapids. According to Surveyor William Ogilvie, F.R.G.S., of Yukon fame, the first of these boats, on the lower Mackenzie system, the "Wrigley," which was built at Fort Smith in 1837, navigated from there to the delta of the Mackenzie. The lumber for its hull and housings was all hand-sawn from timber at hand. The machinery made in eastern Canada, reached Edmonton by train and boat and from there was freighted on carts and wagons over 100 miles to Athabasca Landing, then down Athabasca river and lake nearly 450 miles to Fort Chipewyan and onward another 100 miles or so to Fort Smith where the parts were assembled. Up to that time, or before the portage road was cut, small boats ran the rapids. The "Wrigley" was 80 feet over all, 14 feet beam and 10 feet deep. When fully loaded she drew six feet of water at the stern

Another old boat, the "Grahame," launched in 1883, navigated from Fitzgerald up the Slave river and on up the Peace to Vermilion chutes It had much larger dimensions, being 140 feet long with a 26-foot beam and required nearly a quarter of a million feet of lumber, all of which was cut in the country from native timber, hand sawn for the purpose. Both of these boats went on long ago to the steamboat's heaven.

Still another steamer, the "Athabasca," navigating, for the most part, the river after which it was called, has been replaced by a second steamer of the same name. All of the Mackenzie river system steamers, then, as now, burned cordwood which is contracted for and then cut and piled on the rivers' banks at various points.

TIMBER, GYPSUM AND SALT

Commenting on the timber along the Slave, Surveyor Ogilvie said: "There is an abundance of underbrush, alder, willow and hazel. Alders and willows grow to a size which would surprise people from the eastern part of the country. I have seen alders more than eight inches in diameter and 30 feet high, while willows are often seen a foot in diameter. I have met with one 16 inches in diameter. Poplar is found in groves seldom exceeding 12 to 15 inches in diameter and from 100 to 120 feet high." From this report it is obvous, that in addition to the lumber obtainable from spruce, there is a supply of timber in this northern region for fences, buildings and fuel.

Although rail connection now extends to Waterways, Alberta, Ogilvie, on his way to the Fitzgerald region and beyond, travelled northward from Calgary in 1892 by construction train to the end of the steel at that time, 30 miles south of Edmonton. From there he employed wagons to transport his supplies in to Edmonton and on to Athabasca Landing where he found the old steamer "Athabasca" awaiting the arrival of the "up" boats with the yearly fur returns, by which means he reached Grahame's Landing, later named Smith's Landing for Sir Donald A. Smith of the Hudson's Bay company who became Lord Strathcona and the third Canadian commissioner to Britain.

To avoid confusion with Fort Smith, the "landing" was changed to Fitzgerald, in memory of a gallant gentleman, Inspector Fitzgerald of the Royal North West Mounted police, who laid down his life in the north on the McPherson-Dawson patrol in 1911.

At Fitzgerald there are trading stores, warehouses, dwellings, a post office and a mission church. The settlement owes its existence chiefly to the fact that it is the point where the freight from the steamers is unloaded and re-loaded on trucks for the portage road to Fort Smith. Government administration buildings are located at the latter, with a mission school, church, stores, post office, wireless station and depot of the Royal Canadian Mounted police. Both Fitzgerald and Fort Smith have a weekly mail from about April to November.

At the fort the Slave river is about a mile and a half wide. The lower portion off the map to the north, toward Great Slave lake, flows through low, swampy land and is so tortuous that the earlier surveyor-explorers, travelling by it, had to go three times as far as the modern aerial surveyor. Just below the fort the banks begin to rise until at the fort itself the height above the water is about 160 feet with drift of clay, gravel and sand on top of granite. This formation, varied with exposures of calcareous sandstone containing small masses of gypsum, characterizes this portion of the Fitzgerald area

On the west side of the Slave, opposite La Butte, about 34 miles in an airline south of Fitzgerald, outcrops occur of about 10 feet of gypsum, overlaid by 20 feet of broken limestone. Between this and Fitzgerald are several other outcrops of gypsum on islands, down to Caribou island. The upper beds of these sections are used locally for making lime, benefit of which is shown in the whitewashed houses of both the settlements.

Southwest of Fitzgerald on the Salt river another deposit of 20 feet of gypsum is found overlaid by about 10 feet of dolomitic limestone. This escarpment extends more or less continuously in a sinuous line northwestward for about 40 miles to the Little Buffalo river on the Peace Point map. The top of the escarpment is broken and pitted with sink holes in a way characteristic of a gypsum region. Geologists express the opinion that a great part of the drainage is subterranean through the gypsum strata, and that the source of the salt in the various brine springs is to be found in crystals disseminated through the gypsum.

RICH FLORA AND VARIED FAUNA

Early travellers on the western prairies exclaimed over the wealth and beauty of the flowers. Not less varied and rich are the flowers of the Fitzgerald country "whose glory and whose multitude rival the constellations," to quote Bryant's lines on the flowers of the prairies to the south. Here, lending beauty to the summer landscape are dandelions, accompaniment of man's civilization, yarrow, cacopsis, dog roses, goldenrod, pin anemones, harebells of such heavenly blue as are never seen in more southern latitudes, lady's tresses, pink ladies-slippers, tall meadowsweet, flaming prince's plume and wild marsh marigold shining "like fire in swamps and hollows grey."

Added to these are the blossoms of small fruits, with later the fruits themselves, such as high bush cranberry, cherries, strawberries, wild currants, gooseberries, blueberries, together with raspberries which spread their canes always over newly-burnt country

Water birds, migrating in spring to the mud flats of the delta of the Slave, cross the water areas east of the river and the fewer lakes and streams to the west of it. The universal Canada goose nests anywhere from old muskrat houses to trees 40 feet high. Swans, cranes, plovers, grouse, songsters, the pirate crows, and varieties of many species of bird known to other parts of Canada, people the woods and opener wilds. Other denizens are moose with bear, beaver, otter, foxes, wolves and other furbearers, and that most majestic brute of all, the buffalo.

Such then is this land, two-thirds of the way between the international boundary and the Arctic circle, which lies in the same latitude as Leningrad, Russia.

The Fitzgerald map, with the Peace Point sheet west of it, represents the most northerly territory on Canada's mapping program to be mapped from the air with the accuracy of detail which that method reveals. With the maps of Chipewyan and Lake Claire to the south and Peace Point to the west an area of nearly 20,000 square miles is depicted.

GOLD MINES IN DOMINION DRAW EYES OF WORLD

World currency problems and the increased purchasing power of gold have focused attention on Canada's gold mines, says the Financial Post.

Just before the war Canada was producing about 800,000 ounces of gold annually, but after the war developments in Porcupine and Kirkland Lake areas brought rapid increase until the total of more than 2,000,000 ounces, valued at $43,000,000, was reached in 1930. There are good prospects of further steady increase in Canadian production of gold as there are still many developments pending or under way involving the increase in the productive capacity of existing mines and exploration work goes on intermittently seeking to discover new mines in promising areas.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics has estimated Canadian gold production to reach $46,500,000 annually by 1940 but this estimate, made last March, has already been shown to be based upon a very conservative method and the estimate of Joseph Kitchen of $55,000,000 annually by 1940 is a more liberal estimate. Obviously, further governmental co-operation is stimulating exploration and development might speed up the growth in Canadian production with the advantage both to the world at large and to this country.

Gold mining in Canada is decidedly of more than ordinary interest now with a world shortage of that valuable metal. There are potential gold mines in practically every province and if good luck attends the efforts of our explorers and developers our annual production may continue to rise for many years yet. This production has a perculiarly important value to Canada not only in providing wages, freight, taxes, and wealth in other forms but in aiding us in the maintenance of stabilized currency and in meeting obligations abroad that may be due to any deficits in our international balance of payments, both visible and otherwise.

MADAME JOFFRE PENSIONED

PARIS, Jan. 19.—(AP)—The finance committee of the chamber of deputies today approved a pension of 100,000 francs a year (about $4000) for Madame Joffre, widow of the marshal. The pension is similar to that voted the widow of Marshal Foche in 1928.

The Queensland government has extended the provisions of the Sugar Acquisition act of 1915, permitting the government to acquire all the flour in the province with the object of saving the wheat growers from financial ruin.

THE OLD ARMCHAIR HIS ONLY AMBITION

But Wife Says "No!"

Wilkinson was a half-sick man—no energy—no desire to work—no ambition. But his wife was on the job—she told him the secret of how to attain that youthful feeling that makes life a joyous adventure. But let him tell the story.

"I owe you and Kruschen an apology. I used to smile at the clever ads. of Kruschen Salts, and have often remarked that it was no better than Epsom—but, being of rather heavy build, I used to get up in the morning with not the least appetite for work, wishing all the time that I could just sit in an armchair and sleep—but my wife one day saw some Kruschen Salts, and persuaded me to try it. The effect was a revelation. I never miss it, and am a real live man, mentally and physically—keen all day and every day. I have been taking it now for about 8 months, and must confess that had it not been for Kruschen I do not know how I should have got through the worry and drive of business. I owe it all to 'the little daily dose.'"
—L. Wilkinson.

If you have never tried this perfect blend of six natural mineral salts that keep liver, bowels and kidneys in superb healthy activity, you've got the surprise of your life coming.

Kruschen is different from all other salts. It brings to half-sick, worn-out men and women that glorious feeling of joyous health—and keeps them feeling that way.

A quarter of a teaspoonful in hot water every morning keeps you free from constipation, biliousness, headaches, over-acidity, rheumatism and even eczema. Millions the world over take it every morning to keep themselves in superb condition.

It's the little daily dose that does it. Kruschen Salts is obtainable at all Drug Stores at 45c. per bottle.

system as Sargon and Sargon Pills," declared Mrs. Thomas Marchbank, 2577 7th E., Vancouver. "I say that not only from my own personal experience, but from the wonderful way the treatment has helped my husband, my mother and any number of my friends.

"I want to especially recommend the Sargon Pills. Epsom salts and even enemas had ceased to act rightly for my condition and it was certainly a blessed relief to find a laxative that acted as gently and thoroughly as nature itself.

"The Sargon liquid overcame every trace of indigestion I suffered with and also freed me of backaches and terrible pains I used to have in my legs. I have a comfortable feeling of health and well-being now that I haven't had in years and years.

The Gamin

CHAPTER SIXTEEN

The police, the assistant district attorney, were all surprisingly decent to Connie. These men, through long experience in dealing with criminals of both sexes, had developed a psychic insight that enabled them somehow to appraise Connie for what she really was. Their attitude was sympathetic, understanding. When she told them she had known none of the details of the proposed robbery, they believed her. In any case, her story was not important, for two of the men had confessed.

She saw Eddie in the Tombs, his ghostly face strained close to the bars. His eyes were bleak. Before they said a word, one to other, the realization that she had gambled and irretrievably lost, beat into Connie's soul like an acid. She had hoped against hope that Eddie might have been strong enough to go straight; that at bottom, he was really sound. Now, looking at him caged like an animal, she knew all her hopes had been counterfeit. Everything was lost, wasted. Her body was alive, but some nameless flower was dead.

"I done it for you, Connie—I swear to God I thought it was the best way to make you happy." Eddie said. "I thought I was wise. It looked like a cinch. But I didn't have anything to do with knocking off that watchman. I swear I didn't. What's more, the cops know I didn't. All I done was to stand out in the street and watch. I didn't even have a gun on me.

"I'm going to tell everything I know; I'm going to turn state's evidence. They're not going to make a goat out of me. I won't go to the chair, and I won't serve a long stretch. That's fixed. I'll only get 10 years at the most, and serve six or seven. If I get a parole I'm out sooner. I been a sap, Connie, and I know it. But it's like the Salvation Army says—a man may be down, but he's never out. I'll make you happy yet."

From the depth of her misery, Connie Neville realized that Eddie Costello, never again, in any way, could contribute in the slightest measure to anything that might be called her happiness. But this she kept to herself.

"What do you want me to do, Eddie? Is there anything I can do?"

"I won't ask you to stay true to me," he said, "because I know you're on the level. You wouldn't cheat. There's nothing you can do about the legal end of it. I really don't need a lawyer; the court will appoint one. All you got to do is sit tight and wait till I get out. It won't be long. You forgive me for all this mess, don't you, honey?"

It was borne upon Connie that the easiest thing of all was to forgive Eddie Costello. He was unsound. She pitied him. Her heart throbbed with sorrow at his plight. But love . . . now she knew that never, really, had she loved him.

"You don't have to ask my forgiveness, Eddie. I understand you did what you did because you couldn't help it. I tried to save you, but every human being chooses his own path. You turned your back on me and walked in another direction. If there is anything I can do to help you, I'll do it. But get me right—you and your mob killed a man; that man had a wife and children. My sympathy is with them. I'm sentimental, but I'm not sentimental enough to think it perfectly all right to knock off some poor old man that struggling to support a family on $60 a month. If you were my own father, or my brother, or my own son, I still think you ought to pay the penalty. That's the way I feel, Eddie."

His eyes blinked rapidly. "So that's the way you feel about me!" he cried hoarsely.

"That's the way I feel," she repeated steadily.

His lips drew back from his teeth. "So you turned on me, did you? You turned on your own husband. Why, damn you for a—"

She left him abruptly, her face scarlet.

The next day she was working in a factory making artificial flowers. Her pay was $15 a week; the rent on the flat was $50 a month. Eddie's sister May was about due to return from the Island. Until May should come back Connie decided to stay in the flat.

The days passed, wearisome with toil. May Costello was freed from Welfare Island, but she did not come back to the old home. There was a note addressed to Connie. May had gone to Chicago, with a friend—a man.

At the end of a month the gangsters were tried. Connie herself did not appear in the courtroom; her testimony was not needed. All day long she sat in the little apartment moving restlessly about, abstaining from food. Eddie had written a brief note . . . "Keep away from the trial," he had said. "they might call me some pretty hard names that I wouldn't want you to hear."

Connie knew that Eddie meant his record, his past crimes, would be brought out. He would be stamped and labeled with the brand of a criminal . . . there would be things brought out that would shame him to have her hear. Yet . . . he was her husband.

"I am his wife, and my place is at his side," she told herself.

But there was a false ring to her logic. He had embittered her . . . had blasted all of her faith. Grimly she told herself that she had been swindled in love; that false sentiment was as contemptible as any other form of hypocrisy. Nevertheless she wept almost constantly; wept for the shattered ideal, the dream of happiness that was gone forever.

That evening she read the results of the trial in a newspaper. One of the gangsters was sentenced to the electric chair, three were sent to Sing Sing for life.

Eddie Costello was sentenced to 10 years imprisonment!

Rain Coats Very Gay

Little Gaiters Used to Protect Hosiery

Dull skies and moist atmosphere reigning in Paris have made women acutely conscious of rain apparel—clever coats and the requisite accessories, including umbrellas and overshoes.

Days of downpour have brought out chic uniforms which exhibit considerable ingenuity on the part of their designers.

The slicker, shining and slim looking, is colorful in its bright yellow, red, green, lavender, even black. With this is teamed an umbrella made of the same transparent waterproofed material. Provided with patent fastenings the newer coats look something like slip-ons, fastening from the neck to hem and fitting the cuffs closely to the wrists.

For those who have a penchant for matching from top to toe there are little slicker-like hats and gloves that harmonize in tone if not in actual shade.

The rubberized theme has been extended to hand bags. What looks something like patent leather is really rubber in pocketbook form. But for one's own bag there is a little case to be slipped over it to prevent spotting.

While Americans usually walk on tiptoes to avoid splashing stockings, the Parisian is favoring new little gaiters which can be donned over the shoes and are sufficiently high in back to protect the hosiery. These have patent fastenings and are trimmed with a bit of fur around the top—equally as good for snow or rain. It goes without saying that Paris supplies these in colors to match other rain attire.

BULLETIN BOARD

A good kitchen idea is to have a little bulletin board made of linen, bound in your kitchen colors. Onto this, stick new recipes which you see in periodicals, or a pretty picture that you may want to look at once in a while, or a scrap of appealing poetry that you would like to learn.

Chicken Sandwich Includes Pineapple

To make a hot chicken sandwich heat two cups of chopped, cooked chicken with one-half cup of drained, crushed pineapple. Serve on hot rolls or buttered toast.

GENE AND THE WIFE

Major Gene Tunney, retired heavy-weight boxing champion and newly appointed aide to Governor Wilbur L. Cross of Connecticut, is shown wearing his formal full-dress uniform, with Mrs. Tunney at the brilliant inaugural ball at Hartford. The ball was given by the Governor's Foot Guards, and was one of the most brilliant social events of the season. During inauguration ceremony of new governor, the famous boxer outshone even the state head as a center of crowd interest.

Scarfs Still Smart as Chic Accessory

Both Fur and Cloth Scarf Becoming and Useful

PARIS, Jan. 19—There seems to be an indication that scarfs are not quite so popular as they were some seasons back. There is, of course, a very good reason for this. Scarfs were an inseparable adjunct to the various types of sports suits or ensembles which women then wore until dinner time. It is only natural they should tire of one of the most pleasing accessories of the former mode.

This does not mean to imply that the scarf has altogether disappeared from fashion's scheme of things. It has, in fact, evolved as all other items of women's dress and the present day scarf is a very sophisticated article indeed, as regards cut, design and coloring.

A fashion creator cannot very well afford to ignore the scarf or its possibilities. It presents a number of very practical qualities and it can also be a very subtle decorative medium.

This winter launched the fur stole, or scarf, for evening wear to fill a practical as well as a decorative need. It has been shown that there were many occasions when a woman, unable to retain her cloak or wrap as altogether too cumbersome, still felt the necessity of some protection for her arms and shoulders. The fur stole was never meant to be anything more than an accessory, however, the gown itself retaining all interest, but it was practically the only accessory that could harmonize with the sumptuous character of formal evening dress and, what is more, enhance its splendor.

The same principle rules in regard to the narrow fur scarf which is meant to accompany a simple morning dress or suit. Altogether far less important than the evening scarf, it imparts a trim, finished look to the modern out-of-door dress, whether it is worn with one end slipped through the other or tied around the neck. When worn with a jacket the ends can be worn outside or not, as preferred. It is extraordinary how youthful such a tie can look, much more so than the fox scarf.

With a black or somber-hued afternoon dress, the chiffon scarf or square is always a successful complement. It supplies the note of gayety much in the same way that a piece of jewelry will, but it has the greater advantage of being at once more personal, feminine and dainty.

Here also the scarf must remain an accessory and never risk, by too original a design or coloring, being more conspicuous than the dress itself.

That is way we prefer all mousselines with delicate designs in pastel shadings to the bolder colored modernistic patterns. Beaded or paillette-embroidered accessories are not in good taste for the afternoon.

There is one type of dress where the scarf plays a more important role than that of just simply an accessory.

This is the simple, light dress, somewhat akin to the tennis dress, that is created for winter resort wear, but a little more fanciful in the matter of cut and trimming. Here the scarf plays an excessively decorative role and is part of the set of accessories, comprising hat trimming and bag, that complete the toilette. A careful study of all proportions, design and fabric is necessary in order that these accessories be absolutely perfect, otherwise the whole atmosphere of the dress and its background is defeated and its greatest charm, that of simplicity, completely destroyed.

TAILORED SUITS WILL BE WORN BY LADIES, SPRING

PARIS, Jan. 19—(AP)— Broad shoulders, fitted waist lines and skirts 12 inches from the ground are the newest styles noted on suits which smart women will wear this spring in what Paris stylists predict will be the greatest tailored suit season for several years.

The collection of one of the most important tailor-dressmakers shown today exhibits tailored suits with pinched waist lines and occasional belts.

HERE'S EASY PLAN FOR TOMATO SOUP

An easy way to make tomato soup. Heat contents of cans of tomato juice. Season with salt, pepper and onion juice. And there you are.

PERSIMMON PICKLING PLAN

Various fruits are used as garnishes for roast meats and poultry. Among these is the persimmon, which, when spiced, is especially nice with baked meats that have rather a large amount of fat, such as ham.

Steam the persimmons until tender, then place in a crock or bowl and cover with sweet spiced vinegar. Let stand overnight—a little longer is better. Skim the fruit out carefully and arrange on lettuce leaves around the roast platter.

CHOCOLATE CHANGES FLAVOR OF CEREAL

You can change the flavor of cooked cereal by adding two or three tablespoons of ground chocolate or cocoa when the cereal is cooking.

In recipes where honey is substituted for sugar it should be used cup for cup but the quantity of liquid should be slightly reduced.

Thinking of Leaving Home

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a high school graduate, rather attractive, and I can get along nicely with most people. However, my parents are very strict, and they really made my days right miserable! You may say that they know best and are being strict for my own good, but really it is hard for me to enjoy living when I can't even go to see my girl friend. It makes me feel downhearted, and I have decided to leave home. But I really would like to find another way of solving my problem, and I know you can help me!

Please answer this very soon, as I will be waiting patiently for it.

HIGH SCHOOL GIRL

I hope you are not in earnest when you talk of leaving home in this season of unemployment. If you are reckless enough to do that, it's safe to prophesy you'll look back on home, strict as it may be, as a paradise compared with conditions you'll have to contend with. I have the deepest sympathy with girls who are kept like caged creatures by their parents, and my experience has been that such a course is often more disastrous than letting them have a normal amount of freedom. But—you'd better stay at home and try to break down what I'm going to call their company-resistance than drop out of the nest too young and unprepared. In most families there is someone blessed with good common-sense who is regarded as a "regulator"—some comfortable Aunt Mary, Cousin Ella, or even a wise old grandmother. Get such a relative or friend to talk to your parents and see if they won't relax a little. If they won't "stay put" till you're older, wiser and have a good job. This will answer Betty Blue, Kate T. S., "Miserable," 'Homesick-at-Home" and scores of other girls who have written me about the same thing.

Father "Yells" at Her

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Please advise a discouraged girl what to do. I am at the breaking point. Whenever I hear screaming or yelling, beast or man, I think a grouchy, irritor me. Ihave a grouchy, irritable father, who yells instead of talking. When I do anything wrong, I'm not corrected but I am yelled at by someone who likes to use the latest cuss words.

You may say to me: "You must do everything wrong, if you can't respect your father;" but, Miss Fairfax, I think more of my father and mother than I can express, but who could understand a father that never spoke kindly or shows that he loves me. I really try to do the right thing after I have been corrected, but then I lose all heart. Every time I am corrected, I end up crying. How many young girls do this? Don't you think he can correct and talk to me in a more dignified manner. Do not talk to me in front of my friends by yelling, because it really gets me sick and nervous. J. M.

Your father is probably not aware of his unfortunate habit, and would be much surprised if he knew how it affected your peace of mind. It's pretty difficult for a girl to question her father's privileges around his own home, even that of "yelling," but if you told him tactfully that it was making you ill and nervous—as I see it is—he might try to control his harsh manner of speaking to you. Get as much diversion in your life as possible. Go out with your friends, cultivate a taste for reading, join a class at the "Y" or similar organization, and try to bear in mind that your Dad probably imagines he's the best of fathers.

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES

Young Reader: "Please publish a recipe for Fresh Ham Roast."

Answer: Fresh Ham Roast: Leave the bone in, or not, as you desire. If you have the butcher remove it, fill the cavity with a bread and onion poultry dressing. Then put the fresh ham in a roasting pan, dredge with flour, salt and pepper, add one-fourth cup of boiling water and sear the meat, in the pan, in a very hot oven for 15 minutes. Now reduce the oven temperature to moderate—a little below 400 degrees F., and continue roasting, allowing 30 minutes to the pound. After the first hour, pour two cups of cider into the pan-bottom and baste often, with this liquid. At the end of the second hour, the cider may have cooked away, in which case pour in two cups more of it. When meat is tender, make a sauce by thickening the liquid with flour. Serve with the hot meal.

Newlyweds: "How can we re-size a rug which has become very limp?"

Answer: Dissolve one pound of granulated glue in one gallon of boiling water. Tack the rug on the floor, face down, and apply the hot glue to the back with a whitewash brush. Let dry before turning over.

Economy: "How is a shiny surface removed from woollen clothes?"

Answer: Wring a piece of cheesecloth out of water containing a few drops of ammonia and sponge the shiny part of the fabric with this, then press under a damp cloth. On heavy suitings, which have become glossy, however, you may have to rub with fine sandpaper, instead.

Miss T.: "How are hair brushes best washed?"

Answer: Fill a basin with cold water and to it add a little ammonia. Tip the basin enough to let the brush be swished up and down in this cold water without wetting the back. Rinse in clear water, shake well, and lay on its side or face to dry. Never wash brushes in hot water and never let them dry on their backs.

The Beauty Box

BY Helen Follett

Stretch for beauty's sake. Also for the sake of muscles and digestive organs. Babies and animals stretch upon awakening. They follow Nature's laws; they know what they are about, even if they don't know why. When awakening in the morning, extend the arms upward, send the legs to their limit of length, stretch the toes. During sleep circulation is sluggish, breathing is light, the entire physical system is getting as much rest as it can. Stretching rings all the little bells in the human frame-house, wakes everybody up, helps to start the day right.

When hair has been bleached to such an extent that the shafts will be found more successful than the usual three eggs beaten slightly. Friction well, rinse with tepid water, apply three more eggs, rinse again. Excessive bleaching makes the hair take on the "feel" and quality of jute. It is bad business

Freckles will return upon exposure to wind and sun. They can, if not too long established, be kept in abeyance by nightly application of peroxide, followed by a light smearing of cold cream. The skin should be protected from exposure by a brimmed hat and the generous use of powder. Powder forms a barricade against the ravages of the elements.

When ankles are large because ankle bones are bulky, not much can be done about them. If fat is at fault, get a jumping rope and do your stunts twice a day. Nothing like a jumping rope to make the fat cells fly. The same exercise will fill out skinny legs; it strengthens muscles.

Pint-sized girls, girls with elbows sharp and collar bones showing, should settle down to the occupation of fattening. Not difficult when the find is put on it. A dish of cereal every morning, with plenty of cream and sugar. One egg a day. Every meal topped off with a glass of cream and milk, half and half. And 10 hours sleep every night. Easy!

Mrs. J. C. Winters, Janow, Man., writes:—"I have every reason to praise Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup as it has done me a world of good. I had a very bad cold on my chest, and had to stay in bed two weeks, and could hardly speak on account of coughing so much. I tried every medicine and liniment I could think of, but I got no relief. My husband read about Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup so I decided to try it. I took only one bottle and I am ready to recommend it to anyone with a cold."

MATCH FAMOUS WALL PAPER AT MOUNT VERNON

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 19—Perhaps the impatience of Martha Washington which prompted her to put some gay wall paper on unfinished walls at Mt. Vernon was responsible for a search which has extended to many parts of the world.

Probably no woman matching goods with a scrap of cloth ever had any more difficulty than Col. Harrison H. Dodge, superintendent of Mt. Vernon, in matching that paper.

But at last he has found it in and old house in Maine, and now the room will be papered once more just as it was when Washington occupied it. The paper is sepia brown, bearing pictures in vivid buff, blue and crimson of mountains, sunsets, churches, lakes and swans.

Colonel Dodge discovered the original old paper recently while making repairs to Washington's bedroom in preparation for the George Washington bicentennial in 1932.

Underneath the smooth white plaster walls he discovered scraps of paper which had been pasted on the unfinished plaster in 1775.

Colonel Dodge believes that the mistress of Mt. Vernon may have done the papering when she became impatient to occupy new unfinished bedrooms which were part of an addition her husband started to build when he was called away to war. At any rate she had the room papered without waiting for the white finishing plaster.

Bushrod Washington became the owner of Mt. Vernon in 1802, and he immediately selected for his own use the bedroom which had been occupied by his uncle. He had the paper removed and the walls covered with white plaster.

After much effect Colonel Dodge uncovered enough of the paper to piece together and photograph. The photograph was sent far and wide in an attempt to identify the paper.

Finally a duplicate of it was located in an old house near Portland, Maine. The pattern was faithfully reproduced for repapering the bedroom walls.

CHIEF JUSTICE OF ONTARIO IS 87 YEARS OLD

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 19.—(CP)—Without deviation from his daily round of judicial duties, Rt. Hon. Sir William Mulock, chief justice of Ontario, today celebrated his 87th birthday.

At luncheon in Osgoode hall, Sir William was presented with a basket of 25 roses in token of his 25 years on the supreme court bench of Ontario as well as his celebration of one more birthday.

The first car of a crowded seven-car train from New Jersey split a switch and virtually cut itself in two against a curtain wall of steel and concrete in Hudson Tubes terminal, at 33rd street and Sixth avenue, New York. Of the 50 passengers in the car 19 were injured.

DECEMBER FERRY RETURNS HAVE A LARGE INCREASE

Auto Traffic at Nelson About Doubled; Many Trucks Are Handled

Traffic handled by Nelson, Harrop and Castlegar ferrys during December 1930, showed an enormous increase over that handled during the same month in 1929.

Auto traffic on the Nelson ferry was over half as much again and that of the Castlegar substantially increased.

While 320 heavy trucks was carried by the Nelson ferry and 205 by the Castlegar craft in December, 1929, 582 were carried by the former and 575 by the latter during December, 1930.

Freight in the case of Nelson showed as large increase in the case of Castlegar over twice as great, and in the case of Harrop almost half as much again as that of the previous year.

Cause of heavy traffic may be attached to the weather. December conditions last year were much more favorable to travel than during 1929.

ROTARY MEMBERS FELICITATE ON "CIVIC SPIRIT"

Five Offered for Public Service in the Recent Elections

MR. BLAYLOCK WILL BE SPEAKER SOON

S. J. Gridley Gives Description of Trip to the Old Country

Five members of the Rotary club on the happy suggestion of President C. B. Garland, were formally congratulated at Monday's weekly luncheon, on "their exhibition of civic spirit."

The allusion was to the fact of them having offered themselves for public office in Nelson, and the five were R. W. Dawson, newly elected alderman; G. A. Brown, E. P. Dawson and Dr. John Gansner, newly elected school trustees; and R. A. Peebles, who ran for alderman and just missed success.

Following its long established custom, the Rotary club will invite Mayor J. P. Morgan and all the members of the 1931 council, to be its luncheon guests next week.

MR. BLAYLOCK TO SPEAK

A speaker in the early future will be S. G. Blaylock, vice-president and general manager of the Consolidated Mining & Smelting Company of Canada, who will speak on "Buying in Canada." George Dvorjetz, chairman of the Buy-in-Canada committee, reported that on instructions of the club he had got in touch with Mr. Blaylock, and that Mr. Blaylock had consented to address the club on this subject and would advise the date on which he could conveniecently discharge this duty.

The Canadian program committee was in charge of the program, and S. J. Gridley, who with Mrs. Gridley made a trip home to Scotland in the summer, gave a vivid description of the trip.

Apart from matters of scenic interest, such as Shakespear's house at Stratford-on-Avon, the ancestral Washington home at Poole, the Ann Hathaway cottage, and other shrines, Mr. Gridley related how in England a man with a pack on his back boarded their railway compartment, and turned out to be a pilot of the Consolidated on leave from his work in the northland, and how the heads of the Canadian Pacific offices in London inquired after J. S. Carter, who had taken them around this district.

LIVED ON FISH FOR TWO MONTHS

Miss Joan Graham Describes Teaching Experience on Labrador Coast

MONTREAL, Jan. 19—Living on a daily diet of salmon and potatoes, unadorned by such vitamines as milk, fruit or green vegetables, in a colony consisting of two families, the mothers of which were sisters, teaching the children not only the three R's but also how to play with a ball and the art of singing, also doing pioneer work in introducing applause was the experience of Miss Jean Graham during the past summer.

Miss Graham, who addressed the Nolan-Cornell chapter I. O. D. E., described her volunteer teaching experience at the tiny spot on the Canadian Labrador coast called Rocky Bay. The Quepec provincial chapter makes a grant towards the travelling expenses of teachers doing volunteer eduational work in Labrador.

During the two months she was at Rocky Bay, Miss Graham received mail from home only twice, for there is no mail boat service. The two families, with one of which she stayed, consisted of 12 persons, six children composing her educational establisament, classes of which were held in one of the homes. None of these youngsters had ever been to school, and only one could read a little. There was, of course, no equipment, Miss Graham remarked, and teacher and pupils sat around a home-made table for lessons, one little girl having the special distinction of using the family sewing machine as a desk.

Games were an entirely new idea to the children, and the ground did not lend itself to sports, being rocky and lacking level places. However, Miss Graham had taken a ball with her and she taught the children to play with it. Prior to her coming they had never sung, yet to such good purpose did they absorb her teaching of songs that a concert was given to wind up the school season, with music and recitation. Ia was on this occasion that the colony learned what applause was, registering some astonishment when Miss Graham clapped her hands after the various numbers on the program.

Salmon fishing is the only industry at this spot, which is at the mouth of a river, althouvh cod is the usual product of the Labrador coast. No farming of any kind is possible because the territory is all rock, said Miss Graham.

All Fruit Growers Watch Kelowna

Today at Kelowna fruit and vegetable men from the province of British Columbia will assemble on the occasion of the 41st. annual convention of the British Columbia Fruit Growers association. This meeting promises to be a notable event in the history of the organization.

Discussion and action on a plan for central selling promises to be the big feature of the gathering. The executive of the association has committed it to an endorsation of a growers' marketing plan.

But all growers will not be present , as certain independent fruit and vegetable men have signified their intention of non-attendance. If carried out, this threat will not greatly aid the industry. Whether opposed to the central selling plan or not every member possible should attend the Kelowna meeting today.

All eyes of the province interested in the fruit industry will be focused on Kelowna today and tomorrow. Difference of opinion among the growers has made the 41st annual convention one of the outstanding ones of the association's lifetime. The Kootenays will be well represented, and decision reached at Kelowna will be taken up in local branches with haste.

B. C. Telephone Density Great

The installations of telephones in Canada continued to increase during 1929, the total number installed, 1,399,986, exceeding the total for 1928 by 65,452, or 4.9 per cent. The average number of telephones per 100 population was 14.29 and the United States with 16.93 (1928) was the only country with a greater density.

Germany with 2,950,430 and Great Britain and North Ireland with 1,759,686 (1928) were the only other countries with large numbers of telephones, but their averages per 100 population were only 4.6 and 3.8 respectively.

The greatest provincial density was in British Columbia where the average was 21.2 telephones per 100 population. Ontario was second with 18.9, Sask- and Manitoba fifth with 14.3, Alberta fourth with 12.4 and Manitoba fifth with 11.9. Quebec, New Brunswick Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island and the Yukon Territory following in this order.

Growth of English Language

A hundred years ago German was spoken by 32,000,000 people; it is now the speech of between eighty and ninety millions, while twenty more millions understand it. The other Teutonic lanugages show an increase of well over 100 per cent., the respective figures being: Dutch, from 6,300,000 to 15,000,000; Swedish, from 3,200,000 to 7,500,000; Danish, from 2,100,000 to 5,000,000. Growth of the languages of Roman origin is seen to be not quite so rapid. Italian leads with an increase of 21,400,000 to 45,000,000; Spanish coming next with figures that have advanced from 35,200,000 to 50,000,000. The record for French gives it place as a tongue which has advanced from 32,400,000 to 45,000,000, and the claim that it is now understood by 75,000,000 foreigners.

What of English? A century ago it was spoken by nearly 20,000,000 people; today it is the language of 160,000,000, with 60 more million understanding it even if they do not call it their mother tongue. And in view of the further statement that English, spoken by 220,000,000 people, now occupies the first place, there being no part of the world where English is not spoken, the time may come when it will be almost the universal language.

Vice-president of Sears Roebuck announces that after a trial lasting the full year the thirteen-month plan of conducting the business has proved successful. The advantages pointed out are accurate acturing, operating and sales costs and the facillitating counting and comparisons of production, manufac- of budgeting. The plan affects 40,000 employees who was reported as being happier. We can understand that. Two or three days is a long time to wait for a check at the end of the month, even if the figures are not so large.

And now we are told by radio enthusiasts that it will not be long before we shall pick scenes that happened centuries ago. Nero fiddling over Rome and and the Trojan horse are still knocking about the universe. We are about to corral the ray of light from these events as they come bouncing back from the stars of the sky.

Seen and Heard in NELSON

(By J. B. C.)

Ho hum! Aanother day and Monday at that. What can we write about today? There are lots of things to write about, but to find something suitable for all is rather a hard assignment. What about Clara Bow? Not being an ardent movie fan I do not know much about the "henna haired" movie queen. But Clara is certainly in the limelight down south just now. Clara is charging her former secretary, Daisy Devoe with the theft of $15,300.

Every paper from California has glaring headlines, and the general public is reading the court proceedings, which are printed verbatum Clara, from evidence given by her secretary, a former beauty parlor worker, employed by Clara at a salary of $75 per week, has been stepping high, wide and handsome. Prior to working for Clara she was earning $42.50. Her first duties when employed by the "it" girl, were to tend to Clara's beauty wants, her hair, her face and her finger nails and dainty hands. Then Clara fired her secretary and turned the work over to Daisy who was to get a raise which she claims she did not get. Then came a quarrel, as only two young people who have been friends can quarrel.

Miss Devoe's real name is Deboe. She is from Kentucky and evidence in the case reveals that her father is in prison for having dealings in liquor, and for operating a still in that southern state. Her mother has been hard up and Daisy admits sending her money. Some promised her by Clara.

From what I can gather Miss Devoe is going through the trial with a firm upper lip. This blonde miss, whom Clara charges was in love with a Chinese, says she is going to show up Hollywood, and that Clara will be out of the movies forever when she tells the world all she knows.

Both Clara and Daisy appear to be hard boiled on the stand, but Daisy is playing the part of the lady. Her speech is excellent and she uses the best of grammar. Clara on the other hand throws the slang around pretty well, and has on several occasions caused Daisy to break forth in the real Hollywood style.

The "it" maiden, who is declared to be highly emotional, has shown this on the stand. She appeared at the trial the first few days decked out in dark glasses. She has thrown fits of temper that have stopped court proceedings, and she has come out of these remarkably fast. Of course a movie queen should be able to throw one of these fits and the jurors would not know whether she was acting natural or just giving them movie stuff, or perhaps practising for a future picture.

However, as the case goes on, there are stories of liquor parties in which Clara spent hundreds of dollars for wine and whisky. There are stories of gambling. Miss Devoe says Clara lost heavily, but on the stand Clara says she plays a mean hand of poker and usually wins. Miss Devoe says Clara is unmanagable, but that has been generally known.

Well, the case will likely drag along for some time and someone will likely win, but the suit will cost both girls a pretty penny . . . but the advertising will be great. Although pulled from one picture on account of the case, her nerves having been shaken too much for work, we can rest assured that we will see Clara again in all her enchanting roles and playing to bigger houses than ever. Movieland has to have some kind of a shakeup once in awhile. Who knows the limelight of the court case may be Daisy's means of starring in the films.

So much for Clara, now for our local people. These people I am about to mention have not necessarily got "it" but I noticed them in my ramblings yesterday afternoon . . . .Charlie Young, C. P. R. dispatcher. . . . .was carying a large parcel up and down the street. . . . It looked like a large picture or something of that nature. . . . .And Douglas Creney deliberately walked across Ward street. . . .And cut the intersection . . . He was just jaywalking. . . . . As was Frank Simms—who looked all the more prominent with his white grocery apron tied around him. . . . .And R. J. Hewitt came up Ward street and crossed Baker. . . . .He was carying his gloves in one hand. . . . .And Tom Choate was about to do a little jaywalking . . . . .But changed his mind. . . . . And in front of the Bank of Commerce C. W. Appleyard and L. V. Rogers were in conversation. . . .Mr. Rogers had a parcel under one arm . . . And directly across the street . . . . .But at the same time, Charles Munroe and O. Tapanila were discussing railway topics. . . .And up the street E. Townshend, of Willow Point was watching two automobiles being untangled . . . And a moment later was met by Alex Leith who transferred a parcel to Mr. Townshend. . . . It was wrapped in. . . . .What looked to me, an old copy of The Nelson Daily News. . . . .No I didn't see Clara Bow—But I had a lady call me on the phone the other night and she said she was Joan Crawford. . . . And she wanted to make a date. . . . Funny the ideas some women get into their heads . . . I hsould have said I was the Prince of Wales. . . . Let's go.

Finger Bowls Old Custom Down in Mexico

The city of Mexico is said to be the oldest metropolis on the North American continent, reaching back to the dim and primitive past, and while full of human interest for all, it and its environs is a veritable gold mine for the student, the writer, and the architect. Mexicans of today are keenly alive to the archaeological possibilities of their country and they encourage explorations that will bring to light the buried story of a remarkably advanced civilization that dates back, in the the case of the Mayas, 2000 years or more.

The city which is called the "City of Palaces," lies in the great bowl of the Anahurac valley, 8000 feet above the sea, and is ringed about by tail, volcanic mountains that tower 10,000 feet above the plain.

Buried beneath the present city lie the ruins of another great metropolis founded in 1325 by a little band of starving, half-clothed Aztecs, refugees who had fled to the marshes of Lake Texcoco to escape extermination. By super human effort they built on small islands some of them artificial the city of Tenochtitlan, destined to become the imposing capital of the Aztecs empire.

FIRST CITY DESTROYED BY THE CONQUERING SPANIARDS

To. this in 1519 came Spain's great explorer, the conquering Cortez, and his soldiers, who, though dazzled by the wealth and magnificence of the glittering metropolis, were so shocked by the religious practices of the Incas, cruel and barbaric beyond measure, that they razed the conquered city, leaving not one stone upon another, and leveled the ruins to make a foundation for a new city on Spanish lines, which was destined to grow into the present city.

Life in the City of Mexico today centres around the magnificent cathedral, largest and oldest in the western hemisphere which stands on the site of the stone-capped pyramid on which the Aztecs offered up their human sacrifices, and down which flowed the blood of 60,000 slaves, butchered in a year.

The National Museum already houses rare carvings, picture-writings and Mayan books that give evidence of a civilization in which the nobles ate at tables set with silver and gold plates, had chafing to keep their food warm, used napkins and finger bowls, and smoked after-dinner cigarettes.

WHERE THOUSANDS PERISHED AS HUMAN SACRIFICES

The sacrificial stone on which thousands of human beings perished as offerings to the gods was found near the cathedral and the famous Aztec calender stone, recording their system of dividing the year into eighteen months of twenty days each with five "nameless" days at the end of the year was dug out of the earth under the great plaze. Both are in the museum, as is the shield of Montezuma and the coronation coach of the Emperor Maximilian.

Such books as escaped the destruction of the Spaniards in their religious fanaticism show a remarkable literature of poetry, philosophy, science, a highly civilized form of government, which encouraged agriculture; a highly developed skill in working gold, silver and copper, and a rare knowledge of dyes.

PYRAMID OF THE SUN GREATER THAN ANY IN EGYPT

Dating further back than the Mayan civilization are the great pyramids of the Sun and Moon at San Juan Teotihuacan, which are supposed to have occupied the center of the ancient sacred city. So buried in the remote past are these great monuments that even the historian is able to thow only scant light on the people that erected them.

The Pyramid of the Sun occupies an area considerably greater than that of the great Pyramid of Egypt, though it is less in height. Magnificent carvings flank a majestic stairway which leads to the base of the pyramid.

From the top there is a magnificent view of the valley with the smaller Pyramid of the Moon to the north, and the temple of Quetzalocatl to the south, while east and west as far as the eye can reach are small mounds.

LEGEND EXPLAINS RABBIT SIGN IN THE MOON

According to the legend they will tell you in these parts it was here on the top of the great pyramid that the gods assembled to create the sun. They lighted a great fire and brought offerings. Two of the gods were chosen to sacrifice themselves by jumping into the fire. One was Tecuziztecatl, a powerful and rich god, wro brought offerings of jewels and incense. The other Nanaoatzin, poor and ugly, could only offer flowers, grass and thorns.

Three times Tecuziztecatl tried to jump into the fire, but fear held him back. Then Nanaoatzin jumped, and immediately emerged as the sun. Shame overcame Tecuziztecatl and he jumped, also emerging a sun.

This so enraged the gods that they seized a rabbit and flung it against the second sun, thereby dimming its light. This, your guide will tell you, is why we see the sign of a rabbit in the disc of the moon!

What the Press Is Saying

MR. STEVENS SUM UP

Just as Mr. Bennett in his address to the Board of Trade and the Kiwanis Club recently looked things squarely in the face, so his Minister of Trade and Commerce, Hon. Mr. Stevens, makes no pretence of ignoring unpleasant truths. In a statement on the conditions of trade issued recently and published in all the press, the Minister sums up the events of the past year and says in effect, "Things have not been good." But after showing us frankly and fearlessly just how bad they really have been Mr. Stevens directs attention to the bright spots and some of the facts and figures he quotes will astonish most of us. He shows us, for instance, that the condition of wholesale and retail trade, the business of buying and selling things, actually reached a higher figure than the record year 1929, thereby establishing a new mark. Again, the fact that figures in the building construction trade while lower than those of the two previous years are higher than in any year from 1913 to 1927 helps to emphsaize the folly which most of us have permitted ourselves of comparing the subnormal with the abnormal and attempting to reach conclusions from the result. If we compare the admittedly subnormal year of 1930 with a normal year we shall find, as the Minister has attempted to show us in the case of the building trades, that the year which is gone was but little below the average. Or, as Mr. Stevens puts it, "While the times through which we are passing are admittedly difficult, they are not so difficult as those we have faced before," and the reason for this, "that Canada is wealthier and better able to withstand adversity" seems to suggest that the rigors of hard times as known to our pioneer frontiersmen may not be expected to recur.

But facts and figures are cold comfort. What has the Minister to say of the future? What indication does he see of the turn of the tide? Like his review of past events, his vision of the early future is based on fact and when he sees improvement close to hand we may be sure that it is not a thought which is child only of the wish. Reading his message one feels that his confidence that depression has touched bottom is not guswork but rather that it is a scientific calculation worked out, not only by the minister himself but by the indeed, Mr. Stevens quotes as most qualified economists whom authority for his foregast that when the normal processes now at work are completed "prosperity will return and cheap capital will facilitate the inauguration of new enterprises and the increase of employment."—Calgary Albertan.

That Body of Yours

By JAS. W. BARTON, M. D.

TESTING YOUR HEALTH KNOWLEDGE

It would seem that in these days when there is so much known about the care of children and the prevention of serious ailments such as diphtheria, scarlet fever and measles that when children grew to manhood and woman hood that a fairly large percentage would be in good physical condition.

What do we find?

That about 75 or 80 per cent of the men called up for war service were below normal physically. All sorts of defects were found—sight, hearing, dental, overweight and underweight, hernia, hammer toes, flat feet, varicose veins, undersized chests, heart disease and so forth.

Now how much should the average man and woman know about themselves, about their body and its care?

Dr. Livingston Farrand, president of Cornell university, has devised an intelligence test on health for the "educated" person, but it could readily be tried by anybody. Just as Edison and others like a question students as to their general knowledge of history, science, and invention, so Dr. Farrand suggests that to pass an intelligence test on health one should know:

(a) The basis for sound health habits such as sleep, posture of the body, sitting and standing, exercise, and the getting rid of wastes from the body—Sweat, urine, breath from lungs, and waste from intestines.

(b) Know types, amounts, and proportion of food necessary for proper nourishment of the body.

(c) Know the normal mental actions, and conditions that might cause variations in mental actions.

(d) Understand sex instinct.

(e) Know about infection, and how body can be artificialy protected against diphtheria, smallpox, typhoid fever and so forth.

(f) Know causes bringing on trouble with heart and blood vessals, so as not to break down in middle age.

(g) Know how to guard oneself against polluted water, milk and so forth.

(h) Appreciate the necessity of frequent medical and dental examinations.

(i) Choose wisely medical and dental advisers, remembering that the practice of medicine is grounded on science, not on mystery, fancy, and tradition.

(j) Know the important health problems facing a community, and study the best methods of attacking each problem.

Why not ask yourself how you would get along if you were required to pass an examination required on the above simple health matters.

America Discovered in the Year of 1492 or in 1477

When did Columbus discover America—in 1492 or 1477?

A Peruvian scholar, Luis Ulloa, it is who raises the question, and the New York Times has given to American readers the first salvo of the Peruvian's heavy artillery yet fired in an English translation. From the records so offered, which exhibit the central feature of Ulloa's case, at least it must be said that this South American student has placed before historians a worthy intellectual problem. The concessions which Ferdinand and Isabella offered to Columbus before he set out in 1492, the authentic text of the compact declares that the sovereigns grant to him.

in recompense for what hee has discovered in the seas of the ocean and of the voyage that he is now, with the help of God, to make upon them.

Hitherto historians have relied upon a modern version of the text of the compact which a Spanish student published in 1825, declaring that the grants are made to Columbus "in recompense for what he is to discover."

Not only does the official text—recently brought the light in a reorganization of the Spanish archives—show the wording to which Ulloa now calls the world's attention, but also the certified copy from which the erroneous form was first taken has been found again by Ulloa, and this copy also shows that the grants were made to Columbus in recompense for what "he has discovered in the seas of the ocean" as well as in prospect of the fruits of his new voyage. Again, the notes from which the final compact was drawn have been found, and they also show the same wording. Moreover, the handwriting is clear and exact beyond question, the problem cannot be one merely of a clerk's error.

What was it that Columbus had already discovered? The Peruvian's investigations led him to the veiw that Columbus had made, during the decade from 1470 to 1480, voyage to Iceland, and thence on to the North American shore.

"One thing must be recognized," comments the Bostan Transcript," "Trade relations between Europe and Greenland via Iceland were by no means so defunct at the time of Columbus as historians have supposed. As Dr. Vilhjalmur Stefansson shows, recent excavation of graves of members of the ancient Norse colony in Greenland havep roved that the colony was not yet lost to the ken of Europe at the close of the 15th century. Clothes have been found upon the skeletons which are designed in the fashions that prevailed in Europe in the year 1480. Moreover, microscopic examination of the texture of these garments show them to be of the same stuff and quality as certain clothes manufactured at this time in Europe. If Columbus ever did approach the shore of America before 1492—and that remains to be proved—at least it is not unnatural, but extremely natural, to suppose that his voyage may have been made by way of Iceland and Greenland."

DUD BLACKWOOD IS INSURED AGAINST "CRICK IN NECK"

Trail Curling Sympathizers Send Him Beneficial Device

IT IS AUTOMATIC IN ITS WORKING

May Size Up Weather Many Times a Day Without Evil Effects

If visitors to the office of C. D. Blackwood should find the genial "Dud" on his back on the floor with a thin board bound to the back of his head, or should see him on Baker street shooting strangely mechanical glances at the sky with alternate steps, they should not hastily conclude that he has the willies. He will merely be trying out an "anti-crick in the neck" device received yesterday from Trail, the kindly gift of the "Senior league" to a veteran Nelson curler assumed to be in the throes of anxiety over "curling weather" for the British Columbia bonspiel, which should have opened here Monday.

The small board or "splint", to which two small rolls of bandage were clasped by elastic band, was received by Mr. Blackwood yesterday, accompanied by an explanatory letter from a Trail member of the British Columbia Curling association executive. This letter was as follows:

TO ALLEVIATE SUFFERING

Dear Dud—At a recent meeting of the Senior league (poker) the forthcoming Nelson bonspiel came under discussion, and in view of the very uncertain weather we are having, and knowing that those responsible for weather forecasts and the success of the bonspiel in general are, while this uncertain weather lasts, prone to cast the eyes skyward several hundred times per day, and God knows how often in the night time, resulting in what is known to those outside the medical fraternity as "crick in the neck", it was felt that those of us who had gone through the tortures of first aid should apply what little knowledge we gained through sitting out those lectures, to alleviating the suffering of our curling brethern.

It is a well known fact that some of our own curlers have suffered in by-gone years from this serious malady, notably Cruick and big George, who developed such a pain in the neck prior to a 'spiel here that for months afterward the mere mention of the word "weather" was taken as a challenge for a fight.

In order that no such distressing incidents may occur among your members we are sending you a small device which may at least be very helpful even if it does not entirely prevent such an occurrence.

LIE ON FLOOR

To apply the device properly, the patient should lie flat on his back with shoulders and back of head touching the floor; tilt the head back slightly, and then put the splint in position at the back of the neck, taking care that it does not reach too far up on the head nor too low down on the spine.

The bandage is now brought into play, and the splint bandaged tightly, but not so tight as to interfere with breathing or swallowing. The breathing is not so important, but a curler who can't swallow, particularly during a bonspiel, is in a helluva fix, so watch this detail carefully. When properly bound the patient may then stand up, and he will find to his surprise that his neck is quite comfortable.

WORKS WHILE WALKING

You will notice a hole in the spline. To this should be attached a short rope, the other end of said rope being fastened to the right or left heel as the case may be, so that when the patient walks abroad his head will be jerked back every other step, this giving him a perfect view of the skies, stars, weather, or whatever he had been looking for before he became afflicted.

NOT FOR MEAGHER

The number of times per minute one can view the "weather" in this manner depends of course, on the speed of locomotion of the individual, and right here we wish to issue a warning that we do not recommend this device for speedy curlers like Joe Meagher, who, we understand, hold the local golf course record of something under 59 1-5 seconds. We do, however, heartily recommend it to gentlemen of a dignified and leisurely gait, like Jack Bunyan or yourself, and feel sure you will find it a boon and a comfort. Speed merchants like Joe Meagher we are afraid would suffer from a disruption of the spleen or colon or whatever it is that causes curlers to bellow, etc., during a bonspiel, and we feel that a curler, and particularly a skip, whose organs of sound are damaged, would be playing under a very severe handicap.

SPEED SKATERS FROM PRAIRIES WILL GO EAST

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 19, (CP)—Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta will send representatives to the Canadian speed skating championships to be held at Ottawa February 6 and 7 during the carnival of winter sports. Manitoba has been represented at eastern skating meets before, but it will be the first appearance in the east of speed skaters from Alberta and Saskatchewan.

As every province in Canada except British Columbia will have contestants here, the Ottawa meet will be the most representative skating event ever held in Canada.

Elimination trials are now being held in several centers in each province. Montreal and Toronto speed artists met last week-end. A large delegation is coming up from the three maritime provinces.

Entries have been received from several athletic clubs across the border for the American ladies' speed skating championship, which will be held in Ottawa in connection with the Canadian and Olympic events.

PRAGUE, Czecho-Slovakia, Jan. 19. The rink was covered, most of the time, with an inch of snow.

"Big League" BOWLING

By AL DEMAREE
(Former Pitcher, New York Giants)

Losing your temper when bowling is just as fatal to the success of your game as it is to a golfer or baseball player when he becomes temperamental.

If you get "tapped" even though the pins seem to have been hit perfectly, take it good naturedly and keep plugging. Things will change for the better. If you allow yourself to become irritated when the breaks go against you, your mental distress will interfere with your aim and co-ordination on the next ball you deliver.

Many players become so emotionally upset when they think they were entitled to a strike that they throw away a spare.

Don't think you have all the bad luck. The breaks will even themselves up in the course of a few games.

"Railroads" are just as much a part of the game as "strikes".

Keep your temper under control and you will find your game is improving.

Al Demaree has prepared an illustrated bowling leaflet on "Spares" which he will gladly send to any reader requesting it. Address Al Demaree in care of this paper and be sure to enclose a self-addresed, stamped envelope.

BILLY TOWNSEND WINS KNOCKOUT IN 35 SECONDS

Third Blow Downs Hornier of New York; Townsend Challenges Phillips

TORONTO, Jan. 19—(CP)— A smashing right jolt to the jaw which travelled barely a foot, gave Billy Townsend, knockout artist from Vancouver, the quickest victory of his career over Jackie Hornier, St. Louis, 35 seconds after the start of their 10-round main bout on the Queensberry Athletic club's boxing program here tonight. The winner weighed 145½ and Horner 145¾.

The Vancouver blonde has challenged Jackie Phillips, Canadian welterweight champion, Toronto, for a titular match which will be held here on February 2. The bout with Horner was expected to prove a good conditioner for the challenger. Horner has fought here twice before and became an instant favorite with the fans by his aggressiveness. He gained a decision over Phillips and lost to Pinkie Kaufmann, New York, and it was expected he would keep Billy busy during most of the 10 rounds.

IMPRESSIVE APPEARANCE

Townsend was making his third appearance here also and while he made it brief, it was decidedly impressive and he has already been established a heavy favorite to take the crown from the local boxer.

Only three blows were struck in tonight's headliner. After sparring for a moment Townsend tapped Horner with two sharp lefts to the head. The last turned the St. Louis boy's head slightly and almost in the same motion the Pacific coast blonde snaked over a short right hook which connected squarely on the side of the American's jaw and he collapsed to the canvas completely out.

HAMMOND'S RUNS ARE FEATURE OF CRICKET, AFRICA

DUBBAN, Jan. 19—(C P cable)—Wally Hammond's innings of 83 runs for England featured the test cricket match with South Africa today. South Africa completed their first innings, scoring 177. England then started their first inhings with Wyatt and Hammond and the two put on a fine first wicket stand. Between them they scored a hundred in an hour and 46 minutes. Hammond hit out all round the wicket and gave two chances, one when he was four and again when 32. When stumps were drawn England had 130 runs to which Wyatt contributed 45 and Hammond 83, both not out.

After almost two days without play being possible the South Africans went in this morning having lost four wickets on Friday for 59. The wicket was wet underneath after the recent rains, but recovered under the influence of the sun. It caused the ball to come off the patch at varying paces. The cricket was rather perfunctory as there is only the faintest chance of the match being finished. South Africa did their utmost to retrieve their bad start, employing defensive tactics. Voce was a constant menace to the Springbok batsman.

Scores:

England first innings:

Wyatt, not out, 45.

Hammond, not out, 83.

Extras, 2.

Total for no wickets, 130.

The teams:

Cardinals—M. Matthews, 12; R. Leckie, 2; B. Hoefer 2; B. Morris 2; Mawdsley, Rose Severn, 2; R Balfour.

Stenos—Mrs. J. D. Hartley, 6; B. Anthony, 8; L. Hunter, V. Hastings 7; E. Ritchie, 9; M. Hoefer, J. P. Brown.

HAZARDOUS COURSE

Play for the E. W. Beatty challenge trophy in the annual Empress mid-winter golf tournament at Victoria, February 23-28, this year will be played over the rock-bound Oak Bay course. The picture above vividly portrays the rock hazard to be overcome, which, coupled with the warm off-sea breezes makes the course one of Canada's trickiest. ROOT SYSTEMS IN APPLE TREES NEED BE HARDY

Recent investigations conducted in both England and America have called attention to the fact that form, hardiness, productivity and longevity of apple trees may be very materially influenced by the character of the root systems on which they are worked. The common practice in America is to bud or graft commercial varieties of apples on seedling roots. There is now general agreement that greater care should be taken to insure that apple trees are provided with roots of uniform vigour and hardiness. There is, however, great difference of opinion as to how this result can be most satisfactorily and economically achieved.

On the one hand, the suggestion has been advanced that the solution of the problem lies in the vegetative propagation of root stocks. Attempts to secure commercial varieties of apples on their own roots have not given very encouraging results. Fortunately, however, a number of comparatively free-rooting apple stocks have been isolated, and fairly rapid and economical methods of increasing these by layerage and root cuttings developed. Certain advantages in the control of tree size, fruit production, diseases and insect pests are claimed for these vegetatively propogated stocks. The chief objections to their general use at the present time are the cost of reproduction, the limited supply of roots available, and the lack of knowledge as to how trees propogated on these stocks will perform under commercial conditions.

As against the necessity of using vegetatively propagated roots to secure uniformity in apple trees, there is some evidence to support the contention that equally good results can be more economically obtained by the use of seedlings of selected parentage and by improvement in the technique of budding and grafting.

A comprehensive investigation of both seedling and vegetatively propagated root stocks is being carried on at the Summerland experimental station In a project of this character experiments must be conducted over a period of years before definite conclusions can be drawn. However, some very suggestive results have already been secured. Commercial nurserymen are keenly interested in the work and can be trusted to put the findings into practice.

WOULD NOT KNOW IN THE EAST THAT MINING DEPRESSED

Large Operators Going on as Usual Says "Surprise" Smith

AMPLE CAPITAL FOR RIGHT PROPERTIES

Recovery of Base Metals Not So Far Away Thinks Mr. Smith

"In eastern Canada, so far as the large operators are concerned, one would not know there was supposed to be a mining depression in Canada," remarked Alex Smith of Toronto, at the Hume Sunday evening. Mr. Smith was for many years known to fame as "Surprise" Smith, through his operation of the Surprise mine in the Slocan.

"The Noranda, even though copper is down at present, is doing well, on account of its gold values, and has also found new ore.

"Its refinery at East Montreal will be completed in the spring, and in conjunction with the refinery is being built a plant that will work up its refined copper into finished product, such as rods and copper wire.

"The Hollinger, McIntyre and Dome of the Porcupine camp are all active and all doing well.

"No mining proposition of tested soundness is having any difficulty in finding all the mining capital it needs," Mr. Smith remarked, adding however, that this capital was not available for propositions of a doubtful character.

Mr. Smith expressed the opinion that it would not be as long a time as many thought before the base metals would be once more in demand, as this must occur as soon as present stocks of goods using these metals were exhausted.

CANADA MIGHT FIND A LARGE MARKET, ITALY

Foreign Correspondent Sees Great Opportunity for Dominion, Abroad

VANCOUVER, B. C., Jan. 19,—"Italy expects to buy more and more wheat all the time from Canada, and I believe you could ship many times the quantity of salmon to our country that you are selling now," said Carlo De L'Ongara, personal representative of his excellency Senator Corradini, minister of state in the Italian government, who arrived in Vancouver today on the new Libera liner California.

Signor De L'Ongara is one of the most distinguished of the foreign correspondents of Giornale D'Italia. His mission aboard the California is to write special articles for the Giornale D'Italia on business conditions and prospects along the Pacific coast of North America.

"Canada's trade opportunities are boundless at the present time.

ARE OVERLOOKING MARKET

"I believe your exporters are overlooking wonderful markets.

"Four months ago I returned to Italy from South and West Africa. In West Africa, to give you just one case in point, the United States is selling tractors and agricultural machinery on an incredible scale.

"Why should not Canadian manufacturers make room for themselves in such a rich market?"

He added that British Columbia salmon, which is very expensive and is considered a luxury food in Italy, could be sold in much greater quantities if it were popularized and could be supplied to the consumers at lower prices.

He suggested that paper manufacturers of the Pacific coast might find markets in Italy for their product, and said he thought furs might be exported from Northern Canada to Europe through Vancouver as well as through Montreal.

NEW YORK STOCK SALES ABOUT HIT NEW LOW RECORD

NEW YORK, Jan. 19—(AP)—Somewhat at the expense of quotations, the stock market gave itself over to the luxury of idleness today.

The lack of leadership, increasingly evident in the later sessions last week, became even more apparent and had there not been a flurry of activity in the final hour the turnover would have set a new low record for more than three years. As it was, sales aggregated 1,114,800 shares, the smallest volume since December 1.

Although fluctuations in so dull a market do little but emphasize the feebleness of the speculative pulse, the trend was noticeably lower throughout the day.

WINNIPEG WHEAT SLIGHTLY HIGHER

Reduction of Wheat Supply in United States Adds Strength

WINNIPEG, Jan. 19—(CP)—Wheat prices struggled fractionally higher today despite a dull and featureless market. Weakness at the opening at Chicago and reduction in the visible wheat supply in United States injected strength here and closing figures were ⅜ cent to ½ cent higher than Saturday.

Very little activity was displayed in cash wheat and quotations were generally unchanged. Good demand oats featured coarse grain trading and small advances occurred in this section.

Closing quotations on the wheat futures were: May 56⅞ cents; July 57⅞ cents bid, and October 59 cents per bushel.

MONTREAL BOARD HAS IRREGULAR TREND IN PRICES

MONTREAL, Jan. 19—Price trends were irregular on the stock exchange today with sales volume light and the greater part of the day's movements being fractional. Due to the unsteadiness of New York the local list was unable to give a better display. In the larger center the weakness was quite definite in the last half hour, but the effect here was only a broadening of the fractional easiness.

Softness in McColl Frontenac, which eased another point to 19½, was a feature of the list.

VANCOUVER LIST HAS FEW CHANGES

Most Issues Away Within a Narrow Margin; Big Missouri Leader

VANCOUVER, Jan. 19—In the absence of aggressive trading stocks on the Vancouver market swayed within narrow range today. Although losses predominated among the oil shares, the important issues generally ended the day unchanged. The mines and industrials were featureless.

Home traded at 1.55 and closed unchanged at that price, while C. and E., registered a fractional loss at 62½ cents. Mayland dropped 2 cents to 70 cents, and the Southwest Pete sagged 5 cents to 15 cent.

Big Missouri led the mines list and sold down to close 1½ cents lower at 39 cents bid. Premier Gold and Pioneer closed firm.

TORONTO MINES HOLD FIRM EDGE

Hollinger Leads Precious Metals Group; Gains Five Points

TORONTO, Jan. 19—While sales volume was fairly good and the price movement held an edge of firmness, transactions on the Standard Stock and Mining exchange today failed to develop anything of an outstanding nature. CHICAGO GRAINS IN SHORT RALLY

Unexpected Shrinkage in Visible Stocks of Wheat Has Uplift Effect

CHICAGO, Ills., Jan. 19—Responsive to an unexpected shrinkage of the United States wheat visible supply and to only meagre enlargement of stocks of corn, grains rallied late today. Adverse weather for corn crop movement added to the upward momentum of corn. Traders ignored French import control plans that included $2 a bushel as a minimum price for wheat grown in France. Similar measures are already enforced by other European countries and German official prices for home grown wheat exceeded $2.

Wheat closed irregular, ¼c off to ⅝ up; corn ⅝ to 1 cent advanced; oats unchanged to ½ higher and provisions varying from two cents setback to an equal gain.

Boundary District Fertilizer Experiments in 1930

(By G. L. Landon, District Agriculturist, Grand Forks, B. C.)

During 1930 a series of fertilizer experiments were conducted at Grand Forks, Midway and Rock Creek by the provincial department of agriculture, using triple superphosphate, ammonium phosphate and potash sulphate; the fertilizers being supplied by the C. M. & S. company from its Trail plant. The crops used in the tests were Danvers Yellow Globe onions, Netted Gem potatoes, Kelway's Crimson King mangels and spring wheat. In Grand Forks district the crops were irrigated and very good results obtained, but in the Midway and Rock Creek districts the results were poor due to the extremely hot, dry weather in July and August.

Practically all the plots were on sandy loam soil with sand subsoil and the soil analysis of each plot showed lack of phosphoric acid in all plots, with some low in nitrogen and potash. Some of the plots needed lime also due to the acid content. The results obtained are shown in the following tables:

Experiment No. A (Onions) Grand Forks

Fertilizer Used	Rate Per Acre	Yield Per Acre	Inc. Over Check Plot
Triple Superphosphate	400 lbs.	22,800 lbs.	x10,000 lbs.
Triple Superphosphate	300	24,000	x11,200

2.	Triple Superphosphate	300	21,688	x 2424
3.	Triple Superphosphate	200	19,376	x 112
4.	Ammonium Phosphate	400	26,208	x 6944
5.	Ammonium Phosphate	300	20,832	x 1568
6	Ammonium Phosphate	200	17,992	-1272
7.	Ammonium Phosphate	300
	Potash Sulphate	100	23,072	x 3808
8.	Check Plot		19,264

The results on the average were highly satisfactory under irrigated conditions which prevail at Grand Forks. The results in some of the plots were affected by flooding of irrigation water with subsequent baking of the soil. Fertilizer experiments are influenced by seasonal climatic conditions, types of soils, soil conditions, crop rotation methods, etc ,and have to be considered in an analysis of the results secured.

Ammonium phosphate contains approximately 13 per cent nitrogen and 51 per cent phosphoric acid, both being in an immediately available condition, which makes it a high grade fertilizer. Triple superphosphate contains approximately 45 to 48 per cent phosphoric acid which is treble the amount of available phosphoric acid found in ordinary superphosphate. Potash sulphate contains approximtely 50 per cent potash. The increased yield from the fertilized plots, particularly the plots with the complete fertilizer of ammonium phosphate and sulphate of potash, resulted in a considerable net profit over the cost of the fertilizer.

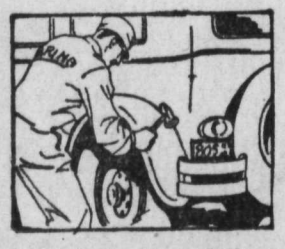
"Where Fender and Body Work Is an Art"



HOW IS YOUR CAR TOP ?

This is the time of the year when it is necessary to have your car top cover water-tight. If not the dampness will create mildew in the interior frame work which is very costly. No matter how old your car is have a good look at the top cover. Perhaps it may only need dressing or again it might need recovering. In either case we urge you to have it made water-tight.

Our upholstering department is complete and can do and guarantee any job, no matter how large or how small at a reasonable cost.

Body work— fenders repaired— Duco spray painting.

ASKS THAT ALL TARIFF LAWS BE RESCINDED SOON

Liberal Member in Saskatchewan House Supports Free Trade

REGINA, Sask., Jan. 19. (CP)—Joint action by the governments of Saskatchewan Alberta and Manitoba to prevail upon Ottawa to rescind all tariff regulations affecting Great Britain and institute, instead, free trade relations, was advocated in the legislature this afternoon by C. M. Dunn, Liberal member for Pheasant Hills.

Mr. Dunn was speaking on the debate on the reply to the speech from the throne, to which, by the end of the day's sitting, 24 members of both sides of the house had contributed.

Fiscal policies occupied the attention of practically every speaker who addressed the assembly today. George Cockburn, Liberal, Reddery, who, while disclaiming identity with the movement, expressed sympathy for men who in their extremity were crying for secession.

The policy of free trade with Britain was strongly urged by the several Liberal speakers, while both Mr. Dunn and Mr. Cockburn believed that prices should be stabilized at a higher level than that at which agricultural products now rested.

DOGS TURN WILD IN CITY THE PAS

THE PAS, Man., Jan. 19—Police of The Pas today started open warfare on all ownerless dogs that heretofore have run wild in this northern city. Five children were attacked in the last few days by husky dogs as the animals reverted to the instincts of the wolf. It is believed the dogs were starved. None of the children was seriously injured.

Seven year old Ella Marten, returning home from Sunday school yesterday, was attacked by a pack of dogs. She climbed a fence but the big animals pulled her down and only the appearance of several adults, who drove them off with sticks, saved the little girl's life.

KASLO, B. C., Jan. 19.—Word has reached the city of a serious motor accident, which occurred January 5, near Montpelier, Indiana, in which Mr. and Mrs. Scott Thornburg of this city were enjured and Mrs. J. Newhouse, a sister of Mr. Thornburg, was so seriously injured that she passed away a few hours after the accident. Mr. Newhouse who also was badly injured, was driving when he was blinded by the glare of the headlights of another car approaching over the crest of a hill. Mr. Newhouse swerved into a ditch and crashed into a telegraph pole. He received severe cuts about face and hands and had one elbow crushed by the weight of the car resting upon it, as well as being badly bruised over the entire body.

Mr. Thornburg lost four teeth, was badly bruised all over, and has nasty cuts on the face and right leg.

Mrs. Thornburg was the least injured, but also suffered from body bruises and cuts on the face, hands and limbs. Mr. Thornburg, who has been in poor health for some time, left a few weeks ago, with Mrs. Thornburg, to consult a specialist in the east, after which he decided to visit his old home and relatives on his way home.

Mr. and Mrs. Thornburg were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Newhouse at the time of the accident, which occurred when the party was returning from a visit to relatives in a nearby town. This was Mr. Thornburg's first visit to his sister, and the place of his birth, in 44 years. Mrs. Newhouse was 64 years of age. Latest reports are to the effect that the survivors of the accident are well on the road to recovery.

EVAN'S REPORT IS BOMBSHELL IN OKANAGAN

of the population has been supporting the central selling schemes as recommended by F. M. Black, while the other has been fighting it.

Coming at a psychological moment, two days before the B.C.F.G.A. convention, where central selling is likely to be one of the main issues, it has brought disappointment to the central selling advocates, and gratification to its opponents, generally referred to as the independent shippers.

WHAT WILL THE CONVENTION DO?

What the developments at the convention may be is still a matter of doubt. It was stated by one of the convention officials that greater weight was being placed on the extent to which the general petition for central selling had been signed than by any resolution from the convention.

It is claimed that the petiton in favor of central selling has already been signed by 85 to 90 per cent of the growers available, and that the request for central selling legislation, and the right to vote for or against the bill when it has passed the house will be brought to the attention of the government by presentation to it of the petition.

The main question among all sections of the growers interviewed here is in regard to the possible action that may be taken by the government in view of the Evans report, which is so strongly condemnatory of any government legislation of the sort.

Will the government, they ask, give heed to the petition of the growers asking for a referendum on a bill, which, if passed by the legislature and approved by a vote of from 65 to 70 per cent of the growers, would automatically become law, or will it follow the advice of its commissioner and wash its hands of the whole fruit legislation business?

FINDS NO LAW BY WHICH TO GOVERN CASE

SEATTLE, Jan. 19. (AP)—Assistant U. S. District Attorney Cameron Sherwood ordered the small gas boat Cascade and her crew of five released here tonight. The Cascade was brought in late today by a coast guard patrol boat after 69 bottles of beer were found in her hold.

Sherwood said the four Canadians and their American master had "a permit for the beer and that there appeared to be no law covering the unique case."

The crew said they were plying between Canadian points from the coast of Vancouver island to White Rock, B. C., and that they had to traverse American waters for a short distance to make the trip. It was in American waters, near Point Roberts, that the boat was seized.

The crew consisted of William E. Harkleroad, Blaine, Wash., master and part owner of the boat; Edward V. Lewenden, New Westminster, B. C.; William Stewart, Crescent, B. C.; William James Haddon, White Rock, and his brother, Dougal Haddon, New Westminster.

BOMBARD POLICE WITH ICE AND SNOWBALLS, EAST

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 19. (CP)—Police broke up a meeting in the Labor temple this afternoon, arresting five men who were charged with making inflammatory speeches against the police department, and five others, when a mob gathered to obstruct the police when they left the building with their prisoners.

It was estimated that 20 men and women suffered minor injuries when the officers used their clubs under a barrage of ice and snow-balls from the crowd outside the building.

A squad of 100 officers took part in the raid on the hall.

SWINDLE VICTIMS WANT MONEY BACK

HAMILTON, Ont., Jan. 19—(CP) News of the arrest of Jacob Miller alias George Wesley, has brought a flood of mail to the police chief of this city requesting the return of money to victims of the swindling scheme he is alleged to have promoted.

Miller was arrested by police as the result of a series of advertisements purporting to furnish materials and patterns to women for a deposit of $6. The women were to complete the work and the finished article sold for them at a profit. Police investigation disclosed there was no material in Miller's possession.

Unemployed in Vancouver Stage Another Parade

VANCOUVER, B. C., Jan. 19.—Vancouver's upnemployed paraded again today. Attempts by leaders to interview the city council were thwarted when the city fathers ruled that they would receive any representations that the jobless have to present, at the next meeting of the civic finance committee.

The men gathered at Powell street grounds and later marched to Cambie street grounds where addresses were delivered by leaders. Strong police detachments patrolled the streets from Powell to Cambie streets.

NEW VICTORY STRAWBERRY

During the last few years one might hear from many sources such statements as these. The Magoon strawberry is not what it used to be; the Magoon is all gone to Monkey Faces; the Magoon does not carry well. Though the Magoon has had a wonderful past; though it has excellent qualities in large measure, there has been an increasing desire on the part of many to find a better variety. With the hope of finding such a berry, possessing such qualities as were demanded by the Saanich Growers works was undertaken by the experimental station, Sidney, B. C., in 1925. Four hundred seedlings arising from seed taken from some of the standard sorts were grown during the year, carried in the cold frame during the winter, and taken to the field in March, 1926 These plants bore fruit in 1927 Many of these seedlings had no value, but from the Mariana five were retained, Burrill five, Greenville eight, Bisel eight, Glen Mary twelve. Wide variation was shown in the character of the seedlings retained in date of ripening, storage tests, size, flavor, yield.

In addition to the work outlined, considerable hybridizing has been done, using several of the more prominent varieties. Eight hundred of these hybrids have fruited making a total of twelve hundred plants. Each plant of the twelve hundred has been examined, described and accepted or rejected as the merits or demerits of the plant became known. The crosses made were as follows: Magoon crossed with Royal Sovereign, Royal Sovereign with Magoon, Paxton with Magoon, Greenville with Mariana, Greenville with Magoon, Paxton with Mariana. The mother has been mentioned first in each instance. The way of the plant breeder is hard, for of the hundreds of crosses, only 28 had sufficient value to be retained for further work. One of these, a cross between the Royal Sovereign and Magoon, is the berry named "The New Victoria". The notes concerning the New Victoria are as follows: Plant large and vigorous foliage; flowers perfect; date first ripe fruit, June 10; color, bright red; seeds prominent, fruit solid; stands up well in storage; prolific; large to very large.

In the opinion of the writer this berry is very promising It possesses the vigor of the old Magoon, and the aroma of the Royal Sovereign. It carries with it many of the characteristics demanded by the Saanich fruit men. A variety to suit the Saanich growers must be made to order. It must resist drought; it must yield well; the fruit must be firm and stand up well in storage; the fruit must be bright, of good flavor, and devoid of Monkey Faces; the foliage must be strong and free from disease. These characters are to be found in great measure in the New Victoria.

DAIRY INDUSTRY INCREASES QUALITY

HALIFAX, N. S., Jan. 19—An increase in quality during 1930 in practically all branches of the dairy industry in Nova Scotia, with a slight decrease in value, are reported by Hon. O. P. Goucher, minister of agriculture. Butter production increased over 10 per cent to 4,724,118 pounds; and ice cream gained 17 per cent to 2,071,982 quarts. The value of the industry decreased about $4000 to $2,983,934.
