This official was quoted as saying thet the appearance of these rumors in foreign newspapers was without the slightest foundation and was causing considerable annoyance.

CRANBROOK WILL TAKE UP OPTION HELD ON AIRPORT

Power Line Will Have to Be Diverted or Run Underground; Board Decides.

CRANBROOK, B.C., June 12.—At a meeting of the Cranbrook board of trade held Thursday evening, it was decided to take up the option held on the airport site, this having been pronounced a very favorable location by Squadron Leader J. H. Tudhope, on his recent visit of inspection. The Kootenay Power company will be approached to find out what can be done about the Kimberley power lines which at the present time cross the site. To make landing on the ground feasible, these will have to be moved or run underground while crossing the field.

This accomplished, the board will proceed to put the field in shape for the landing of planes. A committee will meet with the city council on Thursday evening at the regular meeting to ascertain what assistance may be expected from the city council in the matter of expenses.

Balfour Hotel and Sanitarium Will Be Demolished After Being Idle for Years; Was Built in 1910 by C.P.R.

Balfours spacious hotel idle for years since the war is to be demolished. This structure, built in the spring and summer of 1911 and opened as a tourist hotel known as the Kootenay Lake hotel by the C. P. R., closed for a period during the war and again reopened for a period of years as the Balfour sanitarium for the treatment of returned soldiers; closed again and unused since, will be demolished for the material contained in its structure.

This announcement comes from the hotels department of the Canadian Pacific Railway in Winnipeg. L. H. Rawlings, well known Kootenay contractor will likely dismantle this once popular resort.

A Winnipeg report is to the effect that Mr. Rawlings will likely raze the structure but that final arrangements had not been completed.

RAWLINGS NOT CERTAIN

Reached by long distance telephone in New Denver last night, Mr. Rawlings informed the Daily News that he had made a bid to the railway company when in Winnipeg. He had since heard nothing more and was not positive that he had been awarded the contract. "It is news to me," he stated last night, "but it is good news if correct."

A landmark that has dotted the outlet of Kootenay lake for the past 18 years will be greatly missed when the structure is dismantled. Balfour hotel standing on an elevation of about 180 feet above the West Arm of Kootenay lake, can be viewed for miles by boats approaching the outlet.

ANNOUNCED IN 1910

It was in the spring of 1910 that the Canadian Pacific announced the building of the tourist hotel. Tenders were called for its erection on June 22, 1910. W. W. Blair of Winnipeg was the architect and supervised construction.

The hotel was built at a point 20 miles from Nelson, across the river from Procter. Set in the middle of an orchard, it presented a beautiful picture. The hotel appropriation at first was $140,000 but on completion the structure was built at a cost of about $250,000.

SPACIOUS BUILDING

Balfour hotel or Sanitarium is 205 feet long, 125 feet wide and has a height of 45 feet above the first floor. It is a three-story structure. A commodious verandah surrounds the front portion and has a width of over 10 feet. On the left front of the building, constructed along the lines of a mountain lodge, is a large tower. The building has two main stairways. On the main floor at the time of construction was the vestibule with offices, barber shop, etc. The rotunda, a spacious room, measured 40 by 40 feet, off of which were the billiard rooms and up-to-date bar. The hotel's main dining room was 68 by 38 feet and next to this was a beautiful reading room and library measuring 19 by 46 feet.

Upstairs were the large sitting rooms and 60 guest rooms, modern in every respect, and beautifully furnished.

The kitchen with modern cooking utensils and furniture, was detached from the main building and set to the rear. Adjoining it were the refrigerator room, butcher shop, bakery and a vegetable storeroom.

In the main basement were the quarters for the help, with dining room, etc. The electrical plant was also housed in the basement, where two large generators were operated by power generated by a large steam plant.

Throughout, Balfour hotel was elegantly furnished. It was on September 8, 1911, that Balfour or Kootenay Lake hotel was officially opened. Thomas Kenna was the manager. A monster ball with two steamer excursions from Nelson marked the opening occasion. From then on the building was opened only during the tourist season.

OPENS AS SAN

Then came the war and the building was closed down. It was stated that the hotel did not pay. With the war came the large army of returned men sent home from overseas. Many of thes suffered with tuberculosis. Military hospitals arose throughout Canada. Balfour hotel was idle and was a suitable site for a tuberculosis hospital. It was on February 2, 1917, that the military authorities passed on the Balfour site as suitable for hospital purposes. Captain H. B. Olson of Frank, Alberta, became medical superintendent and the hotel with permission from the C. P. R. was renovated to receive the sick from the war. Accommodation was arranged for 150 patients. The spacious verandahs were closed in with glass, additional buildings were erected in the reas as annexes. Vocational schools for returned men were opened and the sanitarium was even busier than in its prime as a tourist hotel.

Then came the end of the war, returned men left the institution recuperated in health, the need for hospitals became less and Balfour sanitarium was closed, the remaining patients moved to Kamloops and elsewhere. Since then the building has been deserted but for a caretaker.

Hundreds of steps led to Balfour sanitarium from the wharf landing on Kootenay river. An easier access to the hotel and sanitarium was the cable railway. A beautiful orchard surrounded the building and a golf course was constructed.

Such is the brief history of a landmark that is about to disappear.

Balfour hotel and sanitarium, situated 20 miles from Nelson, which will be dismantled for material contained in its structure. It has been a landmark for past 18 years.

Diocesan Synod Takes Steps to Raise Salaries of Clergy; Regret Low Rate Lay Giving

Block Assessment in Good Standing Synod at Grand Forks

GRAND FORKS, B.C., June 12.—Action was taken by the diocesan synod of Kootenay this afternoon to remove the reproach against this diocese of having the poorest paid clergy of any diocese in the province. A motion offered by Rev. F. V. Harrison, rural dean of Cranbrook, and Rev. W. J. Crick of Kimberley, to add $300 to the minimum salary a missionary may receive, was by unanimous consent made applicable to the Kootenay generally, and it was ordered that "steps be taken to make $1500 a year the minimum stipend of clergy." Under existing canons, this means in addition to rectory or equivalent allowance for rent.

That the Anglican laity had a low standard of giving, in comparison with other denominations, was stated by several speakers, both clerical and lay. Rev. H. A. Solly, rural dean, of Summerland, said many an Anglican would stick his chest out over giving $12 a year, while his much poorer neighbor of the United or some other denomination gave four times as much. These speakers didn't like the idea of an Anglican clergyman being "worth three-quarters as much as a Baptist." Even the higher minimum, it was pointed out, the Anglican scale was lower than that of other protestant denominations.

DIFFERENCE IN GIVING

Rt. Rev. A. J. Doull, D.D., bishop of Kootenay, touched on this difference in "giving" viewpoint earlier, in his charge, when he said there was something wrong when the Anglican church in Canada could let the United church raise 10 times as much for missions as the Anglican had ever tried to raise and had not, as a matter of fact, raised. This allusion was to $3,000,000 raised by the United church, against $300,000 set as an objective by the Anglican and not attained.

With practically the unanimous vote of the 18 lay delegates present the synod decided that the monthly payment of $10 to keep an incumbent in good standing with the pension fund should in future be paid by the parish in accordance with the practice in several parts of Canada. Pensions, it was said were "deferred stipends" and and stipend was a parochial obligation.

BISHOPRIC FUND

Already $1000 was raised for the current year to add to the Bishopric Endowment fund, under the plan by which the British Columbia and Yukon Church aid society will match it with $500 was reported, this announcement being applauded.

The block assessment was reported in good condition, a large majority of the 32 parties having fully met their assessments.

Ven. Archdeacon Fred H. Graham of Nelson, made an analysis of the payments reported, to show that while the majority raised what was asked of them only 12 parishes contributed to the block assessment the amount per family that was standard. These parishes, he showed, represented all the different conditions in the diocese, thus proving that the block assessment was reasonable and fair for all.

Keremeos, Kaslo, Grand Forks, Nelson and Cranbrook were the top ones, in the order named. Grand Forks had previously claimed it could not meet its assessment. "I say to them, 'Applesauce'," commented Archdeacon Graham, evoking laughter and applause.

PENSIONS QUESTION

In connection with the pension fund, Rev. Mr. Solly, clerical secretary reported that, under the decision taken at Kelowna two years ago, all the Commander Trant's message gave the schooner's position as about 430 miles east northeast of New York. The Cutty Sark bound from Turk Island for Sydney, Cape Breton, with a cargo of salt had lost her rudder and was leaking badly, he said.

The Leyland line's managers notified the New Brunswick ship-building company, St. John, N.B., owners of the schooner. The Nevisan was en route from Savannah, Ga., to Rotterdam and Hamburg.

Fankhanel Pleads Guilty; Sentence This Afternoon

Has Served Time Before; Allegedly Passed Checks In Kimberley

Dr. O. B. George Fankhanel of Trail, charged with obtaining money under false pretences, pleaded guilty to the charge before Magistrate William Brown in city police court yesterday morning. He will receive sentence this afternoon.

Fankhanel passed a worthless check for $15 on the account of a fictitiously named Dr. D. Dorman of Trail in a local restaurant on May 31. He was arrested here by Sergeant A. Stewart of the city police force last Monday.

Evidence has been secured by Thomas H. Long, chief of police to the effect that Fankhanel has already served a two year sentence in Fort Saskatchewan penitentiary for the theft of an automobile. It is alleged that he is also guilty of passing several worthless checks in Kimberley. He was not convicted on the charge in that city, however.

E. G. Mathew was defending the accused, and C. B. Garland prosecuted for the crown. Six witnesses were called but it was not found necessary to use them.

A survey of the whole situation is to be made and a move made toward the establishment of an adequate dominion-wide system of religious education.

Smuts' South African Party Has 34 Seats and Government But Six

HERTZOG HAS LOST SEVEN RIDINGS

Minister of Labor Beaten; National Laborites Win Three Seats

CAPE TOWN, June 13.—(Thursday)—With 47 seats reported out of a total of 148 in South African general elections the standing at 4 a. m. was: South African party, (opposition), 34; Nationilists, (government), 6; Creswell Laborites, (government), 4; National Council Laborites, 3.

The South African party's gains at this point totalled 7 seats.

SMUTS LEADS

CAPE TOWN, June 13.—General Jan Christian Smuts, staunch imperialist and former premier, held a big advantage over Premier Minister Hertzog, when one third of the results in the South African general elections had been counted early today. The seats which had reported were largely urban and were expected to return opposition members, but out of them the South African party gained seven seats from the government. The issue will be decided when the returns roll in from the country districts later today.

Meanwhile 34 South African party supporters of General Smuts have been returned, along with three National Council Laborites, also opponents of the government; six national party supporters of the prime minister and four Creswell Laborites, also supporters of the government.

MINISTER LABOR BEATEN

The prime minister has lost his minister of labor, Hon. Thomas Boydell, who was defeated in Greyville by 335 votes.

The split in the Labor party is a new feature in South African politics and is bound to have some ill-effects for the government which was a coalition of the Nationalist and Labor parties. The second of the party under Col. Creswell, minister of defence, remains an ally of the government but that wing headed by the Labor National Council has developed into a strong opposing force to Premier Hertzog. Leaders of both the Labor factions were elected yesterday. Hon. W. B. Madeley, former cabinet minister whose resignation from Premier Hertzog's government followed a quarrel was also elected.

Leaders of opposite factions of the Labor party were both elected, Col. F. H. Creswell, minister of defence, and J. Christie, National Council of Labor leader, an opponent of the government.

The returns from the Cape peninsula showed a clean sweep for the South African party in that section.

Polling was exceptionally heavy in this election, fought on the native question and the German trade treaty.

One of the principal supporters of General Jan Smuts, opposition leader and a minister in the former Smuts government, Patrick Duncan was elected at Yeoville.

Murder Defense Is That Woman Fell to Death

WINNIPEG, June 12.—Giving evidence from the witness stand this afternoon before a crowded court room at his own murder trial, Cyril W. Agnew testified that Mrs. Elizabeth McLean, for whose death he is being tried, fell down the stairs from the sixth to the fifth floor in the Canada building in the early morning of last March 3. Both she and Agnew had been drinking in his office on the sixth floor, he admitted. When he found the body of Mrs. McLean at the bottom of the stairs, he brought her step by step back to his office. She was breathing when he brought her back to his office. Agnew told the court, and then he fell asleep and when he woke up, the woman was dead. The case continues.

PROVINCIAL SCHEME HEALTH BENEFITS IS NOT FAVORED

Consolidated Employees Benevolent Society Believes Own Plan the Best.

SO DECLARE WITNESSES BEFORE COMMISSION

Benevolent Fund Always Satisfactory, Speedy and in Trail.

TRAIL, B.C., June 11.—Fear that a general provincial scheme of health benefits would not be as efficient as that now practiced by the Consolidated Mining & Smelting Company of Canada and its employees, and fear that it would mean the end of the Consolidated Employees Benevolent society, or at least, of its more benevolent aspects, administration, was expressed quick action, and enthusiastic by officers and past officers of the society, at the hearing before the provincial royal commission on maternity benefits and health insurance here all day Monday.

These fears, first expressed by secretary H. E. R. Bedford, were later duplicated by two presidents, C. A. Newman and Fred T. Potter, by Vice President R. W. Savage, and by John Hand, a member of the executive. If a provincial scheme, however, were locally administered—in Trail's case, for instance, by the Benevolent society—with quick action possible and freedom to make liberal interpretation of rules, the objections of most of the witnesses to a new order faded away.

Praise of the benevolent and protective side of the activities of the Consolidated and its employees, unstintedly offered by the commissioners, was extended to cover the medical and hospital arrangements, which were minutely studied at the closing of the session.

FORMER PRESIDENT TALKS.

Former President Newman, who guided the society for six or seven years, declared the Benevolent fund had always been satisfactory to the men.

He said there had always been trouble with the workmen's compensation board. A man would put in a claim and sometimes he would be hanging around for six months waiting for a settlement, while the Benevolent society would keep him. The board practically never paid in those deferred cases. A man injured lifting would be told he had an occupational disease, by the compensation board, which sat at the Coast refusing claims, while the Benevolent society made good for it.

Commissioner G. S. Pearson—You understand, if the compensation board had not been very careful in its administration, there would have been a flood of claims that would have made such a burden on industry that the principle of compensation would have been broken down.

DIDN'T LIMIT CLAIMS.

The witness stated that the Benevolent society paid claims that neither the compensation board nor the insurance companies would admit. He claimed the society did not have the cooperation of the doctors.

He admitted that if the government operated a scheme on the principle used at Trail it should give complete satisfaction.

To a comment by Commissioner Pearson that the overhead of the workmen's compensation board in British Columbia was the cheapest in the world, T. W. Bingay, Consolidated comptroller, retorted that it was cheap because the government shoved everything on the companies. He admitted the board was about as efficient as it could be "under the limitation of being a government institution." If government operation had certain weaknesses, Commissioner Pearson said, they must be borne for the sake of democracy.

Many of the beneficiaries of the Benevolent society's benefits Mr. Newman pointed out, had no other possible means of protection, because some physical impairment prevented them getting insurance, or coming under the benefit provisions of a lodge.

SHOULD BE HIGHER.

Admitting that the $1.50 per day that the Benevolent society allowed a man for loss of time through illness was not in his opinion enough, Mr. Newman held that it yet "kept the wolf from the door." Commissioner Pearson, arguing that if the government under a general scheme paid only $1.50 a day "there would be a howl," got the witness to agree that the allowance ought to amount to $60 a month instead of $40.

Mr. Newman didn't think the men would object to paying the extra fees to provide the larger benefit.

So far as the insurance companies were concerned, they were looking for a chance to do a man out. If the Benevolent society chose to take advantage of loopholes, it would cost far less.

NOT PERCENTAGE.

Asked by Mr. Bingay if the commission contemplated having payments under a general scheme made a percentage on men's wages, Chairman W. F. Kennedy said discussion hadn't gone far enough yet for the commissioners to have definite views. It was a fact, however, that while some schemes made the benefits proportionate to the wages of the beneficiaries, the majority had a flat payment without regard to wages.

The idea of the company, Mr. Bingay said, was to provide maintenance during the time of a man's incapacity.

A suggestion forwarded by a resident of Quebec, for payments based on the number of a man's children was recalled by Commissioner Pearson.

There was the fullest desire on the part of the commission to get on record the opinions of employees, Chairman Kennedy pointed out.

POTTER AGAINST MORE COST.

Former President Potter declared the Benevolent society "one of the best things that could be." It was a benefit to all the Consolidated employees who were in it. It had paid many claims that any insurance company would have bucked on.

Mr. Potter said he took strong exception to the question asked by Commisioner Pearson as to whether the employees would be willing to stand another $1.50 per month, and expressed his conviction that such would be a bad move, because it would add to the workman's burden. "We are giving added protection," was no answer, he said, when the man was already carrying doctor, insurance, Benevolent society, hospital, and so forth.

If this $1.50 were added, the man would take up state insurance and drop the Benevolent society, thus killing something that for eight years had done a wonderful work, both for the men and for the company.

Chairman Kennedy explained that Commissioner Pearson was not suggesting adding $1.50 to the monthly dues, but increasing them from the present $1 to $1.50 so as to raise the benefit from, say, $40 to $60 per month.

"What do you say the workmen could stand, with maternity and family benefits included with the others?" the chairman asked.

Mr. Potter stood on the contention that he could not carry any more. While the higher paid man would not

ONE FUND ONLY.

Commissioner Pearson pointed out that there would be no idea of having two funds, but that, if state insurance should be adopted, there would be one scheme and one fund, amalgamating all the features the state at the time considered desirable, this not being in addition to the society but in the hands of the society to administer. As to it being a burden to the low paid man, the whole idea was to protect the low paid man.

Life insurance was not a part of any general scheme now operated in any country, and should not be considered as a part of this cost of sick, maternity and family benefits. A man could take all the life insurance he liked as protection for his family's future.

Declaring he would not countenance doing away with the society, Mr. Patter admitted he would have no objection to a general scheme if the society had the operating of it.

It would be necesary, however, Chairman Kennedy pointed out, for the funds received by the government to equal those paid out.

PEARSON FOR "BOARD."

An objection lodged against the British system, of working through societies, Commissioner Pearson said, was that while in theory the societies were controlled by their members, in practice relatively small interested groups had control, and took the liberty to speak for millions.

"Here in Trail," he said, "you have a happy society, in which you take a keen interest. To fit into a state scheme, you might have to sacrifice some of the independence—if there was centralized control—but not the benefits. If, on the other hand, the scheme is operated under approved societies, you would lose nothing at all."

While the British system worked entirely through societies, in British Columbia it might be better to work through the state. An out standing instance of successful state administration was the British Columbia workmen's compensation board, and he believed it could administer this service well.

"I don't agree with that," said the witness emphatically.

Commissioner L. E. Borden checked up on the various dues paid by Consolidated employees. These were $1 per month for Benevolent society and $1.80 per month for medical service and an average of 95.5 cents for the employees' plan of group insurance. Exclusive of the insurance, a man paid $2.80 a month.

SAVAGE FEARS CHANGE.

Vice President Savage told of efforts to provide an additional $1 a day, which failed because of lack of funds. While Trail was supposed to be a town with money, many were hard up. In the case of a man awaiting compensation, for the first two weeks he would have his back pay to rely on, then there would be two weeks with nothing coming in, and after the third two weeks he might count on his compensation.

Considering the fight some presidents had had to get members for the society, he figured it would dwindle away to nothing if operated as an "approved" society. Reminded that membership was said to be compulsory, he admitted that it was "sort of semi-compulsory."

Assured by Commissioner Pearson that under a government scheme every employee would have to be in the organization, Mr. Savage stated in that case the membership would gain the final 15 per cent it was now lacking.

He still figured, however, that the change would be disadvantageous. Officers would not work free as they did now. Reminded that the members of the royal commission were receiving no remuneration for their service, the witness said that he noticed people who did that "often got something back." He felt that the scheme would be weak also from the fact that the employees would want to be under their own society. The final result would be that there would be nothing left for the Consolidated to look after.

COMPANY ADMINISTRATION.

Commissioner Pearson didn't believe the government would let the company administer a government scheme.

"It might do a lot worse," was heard from Comptroller Bingay's direction.

Mr. Savage expressed an interest in employment insurance, but was informed that that was not in the scope of the inquiry.

Mr. Newman from the audience stated that the society considered raising the amount of the benefit payment, but felt that, while at the present figure there was little advantage taken, with the higher figure contemplated the company would need another 300 men to keep up its crew on account of the "home sickness."

Mr. Hand asserted the society was one of the best in the country.

Asked if the men were well satisfied with what they were paying and receiving, Mr. Hand asked what a general scheme could give them that they didn't already have and whether it could give them cheaper what they now had. While the $40 a month was insufficient, the majority of the men could not pay more than at present.

"Wouldn't they be checked up closer under the government?" asked Chairman Kennedy.

To Commissioner J. J. Gillis the witness said the wages at Trail were about the same as elsewhere, but the employees usually said they were hard up.

FAMILY BENEFITS.

Taking up the question of family benefits, Mr. Hand said it was impossible for the families of working men, the children in particular, to get proper attention for their teeth. If this service could be brought in, it would be worth while even though it increased the cost.

His view was that under a general scheme the small contributions would do away with the need for special payments, that it would "catch the case of the thriftless man," and that state health insurance on broadened lines "would give up better service for less money."

The medical agreement between the medical committee and the doctors was next studied by the commission. Comptrolled Bingay explained this committee was a subsidiary of the workmen's committee instituted by General Manager S. G. Blaylock for the purpose of keeping close contact with the men, each department electing a member.

John Dockstader, chairman of the committee, Wiliam Smith, its secretary, and Dr. J. B. Thom were all examined.

LIKE MEDICAL AGREEMENT.

When the members of the committee, two of whom, Commisioners Borden and Gillis, are doctors, and a third, Comissioner Pearson, a hospital director, were through examining the contract, they declared it one of the best in the province from the point of view of the men.

It was shown that the doctors received $1.28 per employee per month, which was deducted from the pay, and 30 cents per employee per month from the company.

Under this arrangement in 1928 the doctors comprising the Trail-Rosland clinic received $51,538.

In return for this, in addition to treating the company's employees, they treated the employees' dependents, furnished all drugs used, furnished dental work and dental X-rays, and paid half the cost of all specialist work for either employees or dependents.

Figures on the specialist work were not at hand, but it was stated to be very extensive.

COMPANY PAYS SHARE.

The company, in addition to its contribution of 30 cents per employee for the straight medical service for employees and their families, paid transportation for employees sent away for specialist treatment and half the cost of such specialist work.

Employees under the agreement in 1928 comprised 2343 at Trail and 288 at Rossland, or a total of 2631.

Average of dependents over a period of years was 4045 at Trail and 723 at Rossland, a total of 4768.

A matter in the contract, though not entering into the amount paid by the medical committee to the doctors, was that of maternity service, the doctors agreeing to charge $12.50 per case, chargeable to the family concerned. This charge, Mr. Dockstader stated, was arranged in the latest contract, made in the second half of 1928 the dostors preferring it to receiving 15 cents per employee per month on this

SOME SLOW PAY.

It was brought out that in a great many cases this charge was not paid. At one stage the doctors suggested that this charge might be put through as a deduction against the employee concerned, but this was turned down by the medical committee. Dr. Thom said that if he had not, after 30 years acquaintance with smeltermen at Trail, been confident they would remedy a wrong he would not have signed the agreement and made.

Another fact elicited from Dr. Thom was that in a great many cases the dependents' portion of specialists' fees were not paid. If a dependent were sent to Vancouver, and the specialist fee was $200, the doctor's portion, $100, was paid as soon as the bill was received, and if it was not received in the month, the specialist asked to render it. When this matter was checked up about the end of 1927 not over 10 per cent of the specialists fees chargeable to the dependents had been paid. He thought probably the position was better now.

The reason in many cases why there had not been payment was that the family simply could not pay. "Some men," he said, "are on our books for $1000." While there was the guarantee for the specialis's payment in the contract, there was no provision for getting it paid. These weaknesses had shown themselves in the 18 months operation of the present contract.

MIGHT BE SPECIAL FUND.

He thought prehaps a special fund might be set up so that these people who otherwise could not pay could meet the obligations for specialist and maternity work.

Aside from these weaknesses, while there were some ambiguities in the existing agreement of no interest to to the commission, he was otherwise well satisfied with the contract.

Mr. Dockstader, testifying from the employees' point of view, also f[illegible] the contract generally acceptable [illegible] in the interests of the empl[illegible] though in operation it was f[illegible] that in some minor points it [illegible] perhaps be improved.

Under a provincial scheme, Chai[illegible] Kennedy said he doubted if the [illegible] tors would agree to this fee for [illegible] ternity work if they were to [illegible] to collect.

WAGES NOT LOW.

In connection with various refer[illegible] to workmen being hard up, Com[illegible] sioner Bingay said it would sour[illegible] though the Consolidated was p[illegible] very low wages. This was not a[illegible] the case. Many persons came "b[illegible] from the prairies. The lowest [illegible] was $4.30 for eight hours work.

At the request of the commi[illegible] he agreed to later send figures s[illegible] ing the wages for every class of [illegible] He also consented to give the amo[illegible] paid by the company for spe[illegible] work in 1918.

Dr. Thom similarly agreed to co[illegible] statistics of the dependents' tr[illegible] in that year.

The latter had no fear of a g[illegible] scheme of health insurance. It [illegible] probably be better for a large nu[illegible] of people and possibly worse for [illegible] doctors.

Chairman Kennedy suggested [illegible] the specialist problem might be [illegible] by raising the monthly contributio[illegible] cents, thus spreading the costs [illegible] everybody.

In a general scheme, Mr. Dock[illegible] suggested, there should be assuren[illegible] best procurable medical attention [illegible] the best possible hospitals.

HOSPITAL CONTRACT.

The final division of the Consoli[illegible] welfare work examined was the [illegible] pital contract, which related to t[illegible] ment of the employees alone. In [illegible] case the staff was included. [illegible] deducted by the pay office were

CALGARY BOARD OF TRADE PAYS VISIT, FERNIE

On Good Will Tour; Mayor Gates of Fernie Welcomes Delegation.

SHOWN PRINCIPAL POINTS OF CITY

Mayor Osborne of Calgary Extolls Fernie's Beautiful Climate.

FERNIE, B. C., June 12.—The Fernie Board of Trade entertained 26 members of the Calgary Board of Trade today. The visitors, who were on a good will tour of towns in Crow's Nest pass, were met at the morning train with automobiles in which they were conveyed to all the principal places of interest in the vicinity, including the brewery. The party were guests of the Fernie board at a luncheon in the Northern, at which they were entertained by community singing including the famous Kootenai song, composed by W. R. Pepper. Two songs, "There's a Wee Bit Land," and "Keep On to the End of the Road," rendered by Chief Anderson, were also well received. The accompaniments were played by L. Shuttleworth.

Mayor Gates gave the address of welcome to the guests and told them of Fernie's principal industries, of which coal mining came first. There was all the coal here that could be mined for the next 100 years, said the mayor, and it was the finest steam coal in America. There was every indication of a fine future for Fernie, and prospects had never looked brighter.

In addition to the 750 miners employed here, with an equal number at the Michel camp, the Consolidated Mining & Smelting Co. had lately opened offices here for the purpose of developing the large phosphate claims they held here and at Crow's Nest. Of these the largest deposits were near Fernie. The Consolidated already had a crew of men working on both these locations, taking out phosphate ore, said the speaker. There was also a movement on foot to establish a pulp and paper plant here which if established would find plenty of suitable timber.

CALGARY FRIENDLY.

The mayor recalled that during Fernie's many catastrophes Calgary had been of assistance and had been one the first to to this stricken city after the fire of 1908. In the Home bank crash, Fernie citizens had privately lost $400,000. This city was now in splendid financial condition and owned a very valuable electric light plant. Fernie school was the finest in the interior of British Columbia. They also had a magnificent golf course on which Sherwood Herchmer had that morning been so inspired by the Calgary visitation that he had made hole No. 1 in one.

It was customary, said Mr. Gates, to give visitors the "key to the city," but as Fernie had no need for such an instrument, never being "locked up very tight," he would extend to the visitors the freedom of the corporation instead.

President Bennet of the local board then welcomed the delegation and rejoiced that it was so large. He told them there had been 1,000,000 tons of coal mined here in the last year, a considerable amount of which had gone to supply the Trail smelter with coke. Mr. Bennet told his hearers of the successful meet of the Pass boards of trade at Pincher and bespoke the good offices of Calgary in routing tourists through.

CALGARY MAYOR SPEAKS.

Mayor Osborne, Calgary, spoke in his usual felicitous and forceful manner, making a strong impression on his audience. He did not know if it were in the capacity of past president of the board of trade or as chief office boy of the city of Calgary he was speaking but thanked Fernie for its genial spirit of friendship. He complimented the city on the strong come-back they had been able to stage after all their disasters.

The oil city's mayor then spoke of railroad development on the prairies and rejoiced that the country was back in the stage of railway expansion once more. First the prairie had been devoted to cattle, then wheat, then mixed farming and now it was the plan to industrialize Alberta by the development of her natural resources.

Calgary oil, gas and water power had curtailed their demand for Fernie coal but these new railroads would be using the liquefaction and pulverization of coal would bring the industry back as Fernie coal lent itself admirably to this treatment.

CONGESTION.

A trip like the present, said the speaker, revealed how much Fernie was really tributary to Calgary and how much community interests exist between the two. He thought Alberta should profit by the example of eastern Canadian cities in the working out of their industrial future. It was terrible in the big American cities to see how much time was spent traveling between home and work owing to the congestion. In Toronto it was different. It was both an industrial and educational center and was therefore fit for residential purposes. In the small cities of western Ontario and the workman was still human being. He was known personally by the head of his firm who quite likely mingled with him in community life. They understood each others' problems and life was more livable for this reason.

The speaker believed in the decentralization of industrialism. That is, he would have the various manufacturing establishments spread out over the country rather than all crowded onto the one spot. Mayor Osborne could not understand the modern tendency toward massing of the population, and felt Calgary would be a much less livable place when it had doubled its present population. There must be a distribution of industrial work.

FERNIE FORTUNATE.

Fernie possessed one of the basic requirements of industry in its coal. Manufacturers generally came to the source of the raw material. The future of British Columbia would not be long deferred if Alberta became industrialized. Industry and population must go hand in hand but it was difficult to determine which came first as was the old problem of the hen and the egg. A keen consciousness on the part of the people of their responsibility in supporting the various industries when they did come was absolutely imperative.

After commenting on Fernie's beautiful climate and luxurious vegetation, which were well in advance of Calgary, the prairie mayor closed with a cordial invitation to Fernie citizens to visit his city either individually or en masse and particularly to attend the convention of the Canadian chambers of commerce with which Calgary and Edmonton were being honored this year. President Bennet assured the speaker that delegates from Fernie would be in attendance.

PAYS TRIBUTE.

D. E. Black, past president of Calgary board when they had visited of thanks to the hosts of the day and touched upon the personnel of the party. He gave a brief resume of former good will tours of the Calgary board when they had visited southern, northern and western Alberta. They proposed also to see the eastern portion of the province at a later date. The Alberta Development board last year had spent $100,000 in United States in advertising the country.

Fernie autos were then requisitioned to take the visitors as far as Blairmore, which city will then conduct them to Pincher.

Those comprising the party were: Mayor Osborne, Mr. Carlyle, William McDonnell, C. W. Dowd, D. E. Black, A. C. Fraser, P. J. Moore, J. A. McLeod, L. D. Benedict, J. B. Corbet, D. F. Whitney, M. SOCCER TEAMS BANQUETTED AT SMELTER CITY

Speakers Pay Tribute to Visiting Spokane Team; Forbes Presides

TRAIL, B. C., June 12.—Victors and vanquished in the Spokane-Trail International soccer game here this afternoon were guests, along with officials, at a sumptious banquet tonight at which tribute was paid by the speaker to the eastern Washington soccer representatives.

R. Forbes, president of the Trail Football association, was chairman and proposed the toast to the health of the Spokane team. The toast was responded to by the singing of "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows."

David Henderson, who was linesman for the Spokane team, proposed the toast to the Trail team's health.

EXTENDS WELCOME

Mayor Herbert Clark extended a welcome to the visitors. The only qualification for football was having a skull that one could bounce anything off, he said, adding that he was going to try to get in the game. He was glad that the weather had been cool and damp for the game this afternoon and expressed regret of T. W. Bingay at being unable to be present.

Vic Blumer, secretary of the Spokane team, expressed the hope that Spokane would give Trail a better game when Trail visited Spokane September 1. He stated that Spokane had been obligated to come to Trail in the middle of the week and that three or four of their stronger men were unable to make the trip.

J. A. McKinnon declared that he taught Jack Balfour, Robert Forrest, Kennedy, and Sandy Aitkens how to play football and he anticipated an oldtimers' game when the youngsters would be shown how the game should be played.

L. F. Tyson said that 90 per cent of those present were Canadians or Americans. He prevailed upon Mayor Clark to throw away the keys of the city during the visit to the Spokane team.

The program included selections by a Hawaiian sextette; songs by Jock Allen, William Ramsay, and Dick Stiles, all of Trail; a piano selection by Ed Boge, and harmonica solos by Harry Snape, one of the artists of a radio station at Spokane.

PLAYING NO FAVORITES

According to Winston Churchill's new book on the aftermath of the Great War, a Russian statistical investigation estimates that the soviet directors killed 23 bishops, 1219 priests, 6000 professors and teachers, 9000 doctors, 12,950 landowners, 54,000 officers, 70,000 policemen, 193,290 workmen, 260,0000 soldiers, 355,250 intellectuals and professional men and 815,000 peasants.

Evidently Bolshevism in its thirst for blood, plays no favorites.

A PIONEER PASSES

The death of E. E. Phair marks the passing of another old timer.

As "mine host" of the Strathcona hotel, "Pop" Phair was known from one end of Canada to the other.

Twenty years ago it was at the Strathcona that one would meet railroad executives such as Sir William White of the C.P.R., statesmen such as Sir. Richard McBride, giants of Commerce such as Pat Burns, legal lights such as E. P. Davis, K. C., famous judges such as Chief Justice Hunter.

All knew and liked Pop Phair and liked to sit in the rotunda, with Pop holding court, with his chair tilted against the fireplace and listen to the amusing stories that none could tell better.

What the Press Is Saying

ROAD PATRONAGE

The chief topic of conversation all over the district during the past week has been the resolution passed by 27 members of the Comox Conservative association asking for the removal of M. W. P. Beavan as assistant district engineer. By this time the 27 men who voted for the motion must have realized that they are hopelessly out of touch with the thought of the district.

What could have inspired such a motion? Certainly not the condition of the roads. If an assistant district engineer builds good roads he has done the duty for which he was appointed. Under the most trying circumstances, Mr. Beavan has built and maintained roads, which have commended him outstandingly to his chiefs at Victoria.

The fact is Mr. Beavan is an engineer first last and all the time. He is a road-builder and he is impatient to remove anything that interferes with the efficiency of the roads. He wants to build roads and he finds it impossible to give the public all they should get for the appropriations made as long as the maintenance of the roads are regarded as a political meal-ticket.

There was a time when it did not much matter how the money was expended on the roads; if the trail was cut along which a buggy could pass between the trees, that was good enough. But road-building today makes a tremendous difference in the prosperity of a community. Tourists won't come to a district where the wear and tear on their cars is too great; people will not stay where they can't get their children to school or move around over roads without breaking springs. Good roads are essential to a progressive community. And it is impossible—impossible—to make good roads when the first consideration is not the roads, but the finding of jobs for political exigencesi On the Island Highway is a crooked stretch of road, which was recently oiled and hard-surfaced. Going over this road, the motorist could never understand why it was chosen to be improved rather than the straighter and better alternative stretch of the highway. It now appears that the better road runs by the farm of a hated rival of the political boss of the district and that he said that if he could prevent it, the oiling should never be done on that road.

Human nature being what it is and our government what it is, the only feasible way that the public can get value for their money out of the roads is through a highway commission appointed for a term of years on the pattern of the workmens compensation board. Speed that day.—Comox Argus.

There are many white tribes, but just two main groups: Nordic and garlic.

Simile for today: As silly as a political issue seems a year after the campaign.

MEASURING THE HEART'S ABILITY

You may sometimes wonder why so many people die of heart ailments; in fact more than ever before in history.

You may also sometimes wonder why this is true with the medical profession so much betted equipped than ever before.

It is not the fault of the profession that there are so many cases, because all over the world there are organizations whose sole object is the study of the cause and treatment of heart ailments.

And they are putting the heart ailments into certain different classes so that physicians everywhere will be working from the same standpoints.

Your family doctor will tell you that in his days at college (that is if he has been practising a few years), all that was expected of him was to be able to tell which valve of the heart was effected. The treatment was always about the same.

Now these organizations which are studying the heart, look at it from four main standpoints.

First, what is actually causing the heart ailment. Is'nt it rheumatic fever, tonsilitis, thyroid condition, poison from organisms, or from mineral or vegetable matter?

Second, what has happened or is happening to the structure of the heart.

Is it enlarged, muscularly dilated; any obstruction in the vessels; any inflammation of the muscle walls; any inflammation of the lining; are the valves inflamed?

Third as to the regularity of the beat. Is it fast or slow all the time of just at times; does it skip beats; how are the valves doing their work?

Fourth, even if it has an acute or chronic infection, its structure affected and its beat slow, fast, or irregular, how is it doing its work?

Now you can see how sensible all this is, and I've only outlined it briefly.

It means that heart organizations and doctors everywhere are doing everything in their power to prevent the acute ailments that affect the heart; rheumatism, tonsilitis and other throat ailments, correction of thyroid conditions and avoidance of harmful organisms of all kinds.

Second, where the damage is already done they can estimate more correctly its possible outcome and be able to advise the patient as to the correct method of living this everyday life.

Cream puffs—In a saucepan put one cup of water and one-half cup of butter, then add one cup of flour all at once, and beat hard. When this mixture cleaves from pan, remove from fire and break in four eggs, one at a time, beating two minutes after adding each egg. Let cool and then drop by teaspoonfuls onto a buttered pan. Bake 30 minutes in a moderate oven, make a hole in each, and insert the following.

Filling for cream puffs—Stir three-quarters of a cup of sugar into one-half cup of flour and add two whole eggs. Onto this mixture pour one pint of hot milk. Cook in a double boiler till thickened, flavoring with one teaspoon of vanilla. Cool and use to fill puffs. Miss R.

Sour milk chocolate cake — Cream one cup of brown sugar with one-fourth cup of butter, then add one-fourth cup of sour milk in which you have dissolved one teaspoon of baking soda. Now stir in one egg, add one cup of ordinary bread flour and flavor with one teaspoon of vanilla. This will make a thin mixture, but that is right. Bake 20 minutes in greased layer pans, in a quick oven, or 40 minutes in a loaf pan. Use the following white frosting: Boil three tablespoons of water with one cup of granulated sugar till it will form a soft ball when a little is tested in cold water. Then turn this hot sirup over the stiffly beaten white of one egg, beat all together till stiff, and spread.

Mocha Cake—Stir one large teaspoon of melted butter into one cup of granulated sugar. Add two unbeaten eggs. Sift together one cup of flour, one teaspoon of cream of tartar and one-half teaspoon of baking soda and stir these into the first mixture then, last, add one-half cup of boiling hot sweet milk. Beat vigorously and turn into an oiled sheet pan to bake 20 minutes in a moderate oven. Over the top spread this frosting: Cream one small piece of butter (about one teaspoonful) into one cup of powered sugar. Add two tablespoons of made coffee and two teaspoons of cocoa powder, flavoring with a few drops of vanilla. (More sugar may be necessary.) Spread with a knife dipped into hot water. Miss R.

CUCUMBER BEETLE IS EARLY ENEMY TO GARDEN CROPS

Federal Department of Agriculture Advises Watch For Them

One of the earliest of garden crop enemies is the striped cucumber beetle, a small insect one quarter or an inch in length which feeds on such plants as cucumbers, squash pumpkins, melons, etc., according to the department of agriculture, Ottawa. It is a yellow in color, with a black head and three longitudinal black stripes down the back. The beetles attack the plants shortly after they break through the soil. They feed on the unfolding leaves which are often completely destroyed with the result that the tiny plants die quickly.

These insects have already been seen in Ottawa district and growers with large patches of any of these plants would be well advised to watch them closely for the first appearance of the cucumber beetle. If any appreciable damage is being done control measures should be taken at once.

EFFECTIVE TREATMENT

An effective treatment is the dusting of the plants with a mixture of calcium arsenate and gypsum (land plaster) using one part of the former to 20 parts (by weight) of the latter. The young plants should be thoroughly covered, both the upper and lower surfaces of the leaves as the insects feed on both situations. Hydrated lime can be substituted the plants and temporarily stunt their growth.

To be successful dusting should be commenced at the first appearance of the beetles as they work very fast and much damage is often done before the grower, who is not on the look out for them, is aware of their presence. Three of four applications a few days apart, depending on the severity of the attack, are usually sufficient to hold the beetles in check.

If further information is desired growers may apply to the publications branch department of agriculture, Ottawa, or to entomologist in charge of vegetable insect investigations, department of agriculture, Ottawa.

Visiting Committee of Hospital Board Makes Long Report

In a report of the visiting committee given by Alderman J. F. Coates at a meeting of the hospital boart Tuesday night he recommended that several matters be looked into at once.

In the first case he stated that the two heating boilers in the hospital were connected on a common return pipe with two check valves in it and that if one of these was removed that an equal pressure would be established between the two boilers.

Linoleum on the floor in the kitchen was badly in need of repair also, he stated.

Woodwork around the sinks in the kitchen were more or less chewed up by the action of ice picks used in chipping ice and at present presented an unsightly appearence.

Alderman Coates also pointed out that the blinds in the soldiers quarters were in need of immediate repair.

All recommendations were placed in the hands of the excutive.

J. T. CRONIN IS SUCCESSFUL AT NEW YORK CITY

Has Spent Two Years on Architectural Phases of Huge New Bridge There

In the Riverdale News of New York appeared a picture of the Hudson river bridge at New York which will join Fort Washington, New York, to Fort Lee, New Jersey, and which will be opened for traffic in 1932. The picture showing the bridge as it will appear from the south was from a drawing by John T. Cronin, son of James Cronin, well known in this district, whose death took place recently and who was buried in the Nelson cemetery.

Accompanying the picture was an article on the bridge, with a paragraph about Mr. Cronin. The articles was sent to The Daily News by Mrs. Thomas T. Wall of Le France.

Mr. Cronin was well known to those interested in mining, and many others having been one of the original locators and owners of the St. Eugene mine at Moyie.

OTHER UNDERTAKINGS

Among other undertakings in which John T. Cronin is at present engaged, according to Mrs. Wall, is the United States embassy to be erected at Ottawa.

The article in the New York paper says in part:

"The drawing shown . . . . is one of many studies by John T. Cronin of Cass Gilberts' office. Mr. Cronin is a resident of Spuyten Duyvil and has devoted most of the past two years to all phases of the architectural studies of this whole problem."

To better show the importance of the work being done by Mr. Cronin, it is mentioned that up to about the first of the year approximately $24,000,000 worth of contracts had been let on the project. Four cables to be used in the construction, alone represent an item of $12,000,000. Actual construction work started in June 1927, and the bridge will be opened in 1932.

Toronto Dolls Are Selling at Foreign Points

Cutting of Dolls Made in Germany; Brothers Started in 1921

TORONTO, Ont., June 12.—Dolls manufactured in Toronto have cut out German dolls in the South African, New Zealand and Australian markets, according to G. R. Stevens, Canadian trade commissioner to South Africa.

In a recent interview, Mr. Stevens said the greatest surprise he got during his several years' regime as Canadian trade commissioner to South Africa was that a Canadian firm was able to produce better and cheaper dolls than the Germans and undersell them in the South African market.

HISTORY OF ENTERPRISE.

The history of this enterprise is a most interesting one. In 1921 two Toronto brothers started to manufacture dolls. They started in one room at 591 Queen street W. Their present warehouse, which they have occupied for two years, comprises over 10,000 square feet of floor space. Last year their business increased 50 per cent.

Recently the buyer of a large Toronto firm ordered a sample doll. He took the sample to Germany and asked a firm to duplicate it in quality and price. They were unable to do so. Today the Toronto firm has 300 different types of dolls on the market and they are almost unable to keep up with the demand.

TAUGHT HIMSELF.

"How did you learn the doll making business?" one of the partners of the firm was asked. "I taught myself," he said. "It seems that we both had a natural bent for the business. We design all our own dolls and have instituted all kinds of new features that the Germans cannot duplicate."

In a visit to the factory boxes filled with legs, arms, heads, bodies, dresses, shoes and all the requisites of doll-making were seen. In the shipping department were cases full of dolls awaiting transportation to Capetown, Auckland and Sidney.

Grain Commission Will Carry on in Spite of Election

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., June 12.—The immediate program of the Saskatchewan royal grain commission will not be affected in any way by the political crisis in Saskatchewan, and even should the government of Premier James G. Gardiner, which appointed the commissioners resign within the next week or two, no anticipation of curtailment of the inquiry is felt. This was the belief made known today by Chief Justice Brown, commission chairman, while the body held sessions in Lethbridge.

Mining Chatter From the East

The Lindsley Group are known to have played pretty close to strong Wall Street interests, and between 200,000 and 300,000 shares of Sudbury Basin were sold there for cash only a few months ago to an investment house. Ventures also, in their recent treasury issue of 300,000 shares at $8 per share, had numerous applications from the U. S.

BARR HOLLINGER, with market strength, according to H. C. Crow, president, is having the most encouraging news of the past two years. Communication received from James Houston, mine superintendent, gives important information regarding depth developments.

BARRY on the 1500 foot level is into a vein and there is now at least 31-2 feet of ore, with gold well disseminated, across both walls. The whole vein is a series of quartz stringers, with the crosscut still in ore.

On the 1375 foot level of Barry ore is coming in strong again in the drift, and the present face is reported the best since hit in the crosscut. On the 1250 raise considerable gold is showing and the superintendent expressed hope that these important developments continue.

BARRY has a 3 compartment winze from the thousand foot to 1500 foot with it capable of going to depth of 2000 feet. On the 1500 it is planned to go right through the ore. The 1375 showed about 55 feet of good ore where opened up, without going all through the shear zone. The mill is handling 55 to 60 tons daily.

PATTERSON COPPER, next-door neighbor to Amity, and the two recognized as leaders of the Boston Creek-Round Lake copper camp, is down 525 feet with its three-compartment shaft. This has been accomplished in 11 months' work, with the expenditure officially said to have been $125,000.

TOWAGMAC is cross-cutting on the Boyle property at Alden at 100-foot level, with the shaft down 115 feet. An option is held by Towagmac on the operation, with cross-cuts excepted to reach the downward extension of surface showings very shortly.

TOP MINE AND TUNNEL DRAW

Snappy Soccer Game Ends in a 1-1 Deadlock at Lindsay Park, Kimberley

KIMBERLEY, B. C., June 12.—The Tunnel and Top Mine football teams staged another torrid battle on Sunday at Lindsay Park, when the largest crowd of the season gathered to watch these opponents of soccer in action. The final score was 1-1.

The game was brim full of action all through, although the defences on both sides held the sway of play and dominated the forwards. Top Mine were first to get into their stride and their forwards were making things interesting. After some 15 minutes of play, and with the Tunnel defence having quite a time keeping them at bay, Jackson seized his opportunity when he drove the ball into the net from a scrimmage in front of the goal. The exchanges were keenly contested and it looked on several occasions that the Tunnel must equalize but Orr in the Mines's goal, was treating the spectators to a fine display of goaltending. All shots came alike to him, and at half-time the Top Mine still had its one goal lead.

TUNNEL EQUALIZES

The second half both teams went in at top speed with one goal and the other being visited in rapid succession, and the Tunnel boys having more direct shots at the goal. Nearing the end of this half, the Bennet Shield holders, eager to retain their unbeaten record put on full pressure but Orr repelled shots from all directions. The equalizer eventually came when McKay, centre forward, dashed in to beat the goalie with a beautiful header. This proved to be all the scoring in the intensly interesting game, that was clean through out. Just before the finish, the Tunnel had the misfortune to loose their centre half Milligan, who slipped and strained a tendon in his leg and had to be carried off.

TRAIL DEFEATS SPOKANE SOCCER TEAM, SCORE 6-0

Visitors Disorganized and Play Unenthusiastic Game; Big Crowd

TRAIL, B.C., June 12.—Before what officials claimed to be the largest crowd ever in attendance at a football game, in Trail, the Trail rep team downed the visiting Spokane soccerites, representative of the Eastern Washington Soccer association, by a score of 6-0 at Butler park today. With Spokane almost completely disorganized, the game was not very interesting. Practically the only player outstanding on the visiting team was Bulmer in goal, who is a former Trail player, although Boge showed up fairly well on the forward line.

NOT ENTHUSIASTIC

Generally the Spokane team did not play enthusiastically and miskicked altogether too often. Trail played consistent combination. Dick Stiles scoring three times, Crulkshank twice and Thompson once.

James Buchanan, smelter superintendent kicked off at 5:30.

W. Kilgore refereed.

The teams were:

May Revive Old All-Star Ball Team, Cranbrook

CRANBROOK, B.C., June 12.—News of the revival of the one-time al-star baseball team of this city is being persistently circulated in the district. Realizing that a gold mine awaits the organization fortunate enough to sponsor such a game, there has been a rush for the opportunity, with the members of the Gyro club possibly a little in the lead. Further development will be awaited in the district with breathless interest.

DIOCESAN SYNOD CONSIDERS MANY CHURCH MATTERS

dioceses in Canada had been communicated with, and nearly all expressed willingness to have reciprocity in these funds. It was stated this was apparently now the view of the general synod, and that further action must await the general synod's action.

Reporting on the Anglican Theological college, point Grey, Principal W. H. Vance gave the late registration as 32, largest in the college history. A post graduate scholarship had been founded entitling the recipient to $1500 annually for three years at Oxford or Cambridge, the first recipient being already designated. A prize had been instituted in menory of the late H. J. Cambie. The bursary fund, which provided financial aid for students, had been increased by $2300. Two of the college's students were now in pastorates at Fernie and East Trail.

Principal Vance announced a refresher course of three days for clergy of the Okanagan rural deanery, to be held at the Vernon preparatory school

CANON MARRIAGE

Bishop Doull announced that he withheld consent from amendments made two years ago to the canon on marriage.

The amendment to Section 1, which forbids priests of the diocese to officiate at marriages of persons within prohibited degrees of relationship, struck out a reference to the scriptural authority for marriage, and amendment to Section 2, which has a similar prohibition against priests marrying a man or woman who has a divorced wife or husband still alive, struck out the preamble basing the instruction on scriptural authority.

"We ought to keep clearly before ourselves and the people," explained Bishop Doull, "the scriptural reasons why we refuse to recognize divorce or to marry divorced persons."

The amended marriage canon referred back to the synod by the bishop was in turn sent to the committee on canons.

This committee has not met since the last synod and it may be desided to give its duties to the executive committee.

At the request of His Grace, the canon on discipline was supplemented by rules and tariffs drafted by the chancellor, C. R. Hamilton, K. C., of Nelson, for guidance if occasion should arise for such a church court, as it may do during the year, His Grace intimated.

A resolution was adopted inviting the bishop to correspond with other bishops with a view to establishing a farm hostel for boys from the old country. The sponsors for the motion said a hostel did not teach farming, but was a place of accommodation for boys not working.

When the synod first convened, there were 17 lay delegates present, just one short of a quorum, and His Lordship announced he had no option but to adjourn synod until a full quorum was procured. The additional delegate needed just then appeared, and all was plain sailing.

Spokane Men Meet With Success in Fishing at Harrop

HARROP, B.C., June 12.—Dr. Kandler and sons, Francis and Richard, of Spokane, landed a fine nine and 12-pound salmon and char respectively while fishing on the main lake Sunday. During their week-end visit here, the doctor and his sons were guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. Harrop.

Silver should be washed in clean hot water, as soap dulls the polish.

A Man's Smoke

"Cigarettes have their place—so has a pipe—but there are occasions when only a cigar will do. After lunch, or dinner, for instance—in the evening when the radio is bringing in distance as clear as a bell—on such occasions a cigar seems to be the only suitable smoke."

Tucketts know there is no substitute for quality in cigars. Tucketts Marguerite has always been maintained on the original basis of quality—selected Havana Leaf—aged and ripened—skilfully blended and fashioned into good cigars by experienced and careful workmen."

Cheaper in boxes of 25 and 50. Also sold in handy pocket packs of 5 cigars.

'The Desperate Lover'

By E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

"Margharita, I am coming to you. Nay, do not be alarmed, I run no risk. I shall come disguised, and no one will know me, but I must see something of the end with my own eyes, or half its sweetness would be untasted. I would see her face and die I would trace day by day, the workings of the poison; and in the last moments of her agony I would reveal myself and would point to my withered frame and the hand of death upon my forehead, and cry out to her that Order of the White Hyacinth had kept its vow. I would have her eyes meet mine as the mists of death closed in upon her. I would have her know that the oath of a Marioni, in friendship or in hate, in protection or in vengeance, is one with his honor. This may not be, Margharita! I cannot even stand by her bedside for a moment and showe her my face, that she might know whose hand it is which has stricken her down. Yet, I must be near! Fear not but that I shall manage it safely! I would not bring danger or the shadow of danger upon you, my beloved.

"I leave Rome tonight, and I leave it with joy. You cannot imagine how inexpressibly said it has been for me ti find myself in the place where the greater part of my youth—my too ambitious youth was spent. All is changed and strange to me. There are new streets and many innovations which puzzle me; and although my friends are kind, 25 years have crushed our sympathies. To them I am like a sad figure from a bygone world, a Banquo at the feast, something to pity a little—no more. I am nothing to anybody beyond that. I am a wearisome old man, whose mind is a blank, and who only cumbers the way. Ah, well, it is not for long. The day of my desire is at hand, and God has given me you, Margharita, to accomplish it, and to close my eyes in peace. Bless you, my dear, dear child! You have sweetened the end of a marred and wretched life Yours has been an engel's task; and you will have an angel's reward.

"We shall meet before long, but of the manner of our meeting I cannot tell you yet. Till then adieu!—Yours in hope.

"LEONARDI DI ARONI."

"P. S.—I forgot to say that the whole of the poison, or even half a teaspoonful would produce sudden and abrupt death. Just a pinch, administered twice, perhaps, in order to be quite secure, would be sufficient."

"My Beloved Margharita,—Many a time have I reproached myself for my imprudence last night, and the effects which I fear it had upon you. It was thoughtless and rash of me to come near the house at all; but, indeed, I meant only to watch from a safe distance; only, as I crouched behind a shrub upon the lawn, I saw her face, and the sight drew me nearer against my better judgment. I met your eyes and I knew that were overcome with fright; but I feared to linger lest they might ask what it was that alarmed you, and seek for me. And although I fancy that I am altered past recognition, yet I would run no risks.

"I, too, had a great surprise, argharita. You will not wonder what I mean by that when I tell you that in the light which streamed from the uncurtained window everything in the room was distinctly visible to me. Was I dreaming, child, or were you indeed assenting to the embrace of the man whose arms were surely around you? Him, I could not see, for his back was turned to the window; but will you laugh at me, I wonder, if I tell you that I felt strangely jealous of him. I am a foolish old man Margharita, but all the love of my heart is yours, and I had begun almost to look upon you—in my thoughts—as my own child. I cannot bear the thought of giving you up to any one. You will not think me very, very, selfish, I have only a few more months to live, and I know that you will not grudge that much out of your future, that you will stay by me to the end. Afterwards, I have no wish save for your happiness; and although I must confess that I had hoped you might have married one of the sons of our own country, still it is you who must choose, and I owe you, or shall owe you soon, too great a debt to press upon you any desire of mine which is not at one with your wishes. But tell me this—Is he an Englishman? Alas! I fear so. Send me a word by the bearer, and tell me; tell me, too, of what family he is, and whether he is noble. But of that I feel already assured, if he be indeed the man to whom your love is given.

You must surely have sustained a shock at my sudden and rash appearance. Doubtless you wonder at seeing me here at all. I could not keep away. I must have news day by day, almost hour by hour. It is all that keeps me alive. I must be near to feel that I am breathing the same air as the woman on whom a long-delayed vengeance is about to fall.

For tourists entering Canada by motor car the bureau estimates the expenditure under 24 hour permits at $7.00 a car; sixty day permits $156.35 per tourist; and six months' permits $560 per tourist. In 1928 2500 tourists in the sixty day permit class were circularized in order to strike the average. Figures were also taken from steamships and railway companies in performing the calculation. A revision in method was made in 1924 and since then the officers of the bureau of statistics regard their figures as fairly accurate.

Hospital to Soon Install an Ether Saving Apparatus

Hospital board at a meeting held Tuesday night voted to purchase a St. Charles ether apparatus for the administration of anesthetic.

This new apparatus will reduce the consumption of ether at least 50 per cent and in this manner will pay for itself in the course of a year.

YAKIMA GROWERS FAVORING COLD STORAGE, REPORT

Twelve New Plants Built for Cold Storage and Pre-Cooling

LAND PRICES AND IRRIGATION FACTS

Committee of Direction Gives Out Information Concerning Fruit

According to information given out by the Interior Tree Fruit and Vegetable Committe of Direction, a report on cold storage by a sub-committee of a conference on horticulture at Yakima in January 1927, has apparently been heeded by the growers in that district. During 1928, 12 new cold storage plants were constructed and more will be constructed this year according to a report of the Yakima chamber of commerce, given out by the committee of direction.

Following is the report of the sub-committee and a comprehensive review of facts concerning the growers by the committee of direction.

"This committee believes that each local district should organize for its fruit growers, with a basis in mind of not less than 60 per cent storage as against 40 per cent common storage warehouse space. This plan should be adopted as rapidly as local conditions and finances will allow, to insure the proper protection to the fruit growers and the apple industry."

The suggestion outlined above has been heeded, as the Yakima chamber of commerce says:

"Some 12 new cold storage plants were constructed during 1928, representing 1769 cars additional carload capacity and making a total cold storage capacity of 9500 cars. The new year (1929) will see the figure well over 10,000 carloads.

In the Wenatchee district and North there is cold storage capacity for 6439 carloads.

BELIEVES IN PRE-LOADING

One large organization of the Yakima valley believes so thoroughly in pre-cooling and cold storage that it passes all the fruit it receives into cold chambers, though some of it may be for almost immediate shipment. For soft fruits pre-cooling is considered apart from it. This applies particularly, also, to Bartlett pears. From Yakima district cherries have been successfully shipped under refrigeration as far as Mexico City.

A witness before the Interstate Commerce commission stated:

"In the matter of cold storage, prior to 1918 a large part of the apples in the northwest moved into eastern cold storage, necessitating the paying of freight and high cold storage rates at the other end. It was found cheaper to build cold storage here and hence it was done and as a matter of economy. Moreover, this process is still going on, although on the whole cost of production has practically reached its minimum. Further savings of a minor nature only can be made."

LAND PRICES, IRRIGATION

On this subject the Yakima chamber of commerce reports as follows:

"General irrigated land prices are: unimproved land, $75 to $150 per acre; semi-improved lands, $100 to $350 per acre; improved open lands $125 to $400 per acre and full bearing orchard lands, $500 to $1500 per acre.

"The cost of constructing the Sunnyside irrigation division was $52 per acre and the Tieton $93. Tieton water users were given a 20 year period in which to repay the government for construction work. The annual water charge in the Tieton is about $8.50 per acre, this includes maintenance and construction, is estimated at $160 an acre. Water users on the Kittites will be permitted to repay the government on the basis of 5 per cent of their annual gross production. It is estimated such a repayment plan will extend over forty years."

In the Yakima district as visitor cannot but be impressed by the ample provision of water, which is taken from rivers with their sources amid the glaciers of the Cascades. The ditches are of ample proportions, in in some sections resembling canals.

ADVERTISING

When it was resognized in Washington that the 1928 crop of apples would be large and possibly difficult to market, it was decided to take drastic measures to get rid of the Jonathan variety, which is an early apple there. It was anticipated Jonathans would cause the major crop to "back up" unless market quickly. Accordingly an advertising campaign was started which proved to be very successful and the Johnathan crop cleared quickly although at a low price.

The experiment was so encouraging that it has been decided to carry out an active program of apple advertising in 1929 and later years. The basis of this is that the jobber will pay $2 and the broker 50 cents per carload; the grower ½c per box. This will create a fund of $100,000 to $125,000 for advertising purposes. All seem willing to cooperate as there is no question in the mind of anyone about the wisdom of the movement particularly when it is pointed out that the importations of bananas has increased 500 per cent in 30 years. Apples, per capita, are stated to have decreased 32 per cent. In 1927 all fruits used in the United States totalled 375,409 carloads. Thus imported bananas equalled 36 per cent of the total United States fruit movement and the apple growers feel that something should be done to offset the inroads of the banana business."

GROWER ORGANIZATION

There are, in course of formation, two organizations, known as Central Washington Growers' association and North Central Washington Growers association. Their aims, objects and agreements are identical.

Among the letters two are mentioned:

"To study, develop and lend support to some sound program for advertising and merchandising boxed apples and other fruits."

"Recognizing also that there are too many isolated growers each attempting to meet the problems of assembling, packing and conditioning fruit individually, therefore causing themselves and the industry waste and loss, it is the purpose of this association to encourage these growers to unite i meeting common local and general problems."

In the pamphlets, under the heading of "What do I get out of it" the grower is told: You will be kept posted on market conditions, ranges of prices, demand for certain varieties, grades, etc., you are engaged in growing fruit. You have left the marketing, rules for grading, the advertising, storage, and everything else to others. You are not going to do this any more. You are entitled to know more about your business than just when to spray and when to irrigate and when to pick and when to pay the bills."

One of the organizers, personally, said something must be done to better conditions of internal competition both among shippers and growers.

ECONOMIC CONDITIONS

As to economic conditions among the Washington growers, in the hearing before the Interstate Commerce commission and under date of 18th January 1929, there appears the following statement by professor Severance:

"The apple industry is very comparable to the greater part of the agricultural industry at the present time. They have been having a hard struggle and it cannot be said that the apple industry is strictly in a healthy condition. Evidence of difficulty encountered by the apple industry are mortgage indebtedness, some abandonment of orchards, which in some cases is a question of unfitness of the orchard area and in other cases is a question of difficulties of the grower. You can pick out quite a good many growers in the Yakima and Wenatchee orchards who have had to slough the care of their orchards largely on account of economic conditions and the bad financial conditions of the individuals."

DISCUSS MARKETING ACT

In view of the then pending bill for agricultural relief at Washington, D. C., the chairman of the interior committee of direction was asked to discuss the B. C. produce marketing act at the weekly luncheon of the Yakima Chamber of Commerce, at which there was a large attendance. The general opinion of those who discussed the matter was that, while conditions for the growers might be improved, it was doubtful if any similar legislation would pass the Washington state legislature, which meets only once in two years and is restricted to a session of sixty days. Many measures, therefore, are never reached and a proportion of those that are passed by the legislature are dissallowed by the governor of the state.

U. S. WEATHER BUREAU

A most interesting feature of service to growers is maintained in Yakima by the federal government. Several observers are employed there whose duty it is to keep close watch on weather conditions. Among these is that of anticipating possible damaging frosts in blossom time or when fruit is tender. When temperatures are low the information is broadcast that they might or might not threaten damage and advice is given whether or not to light fires in the smudge pots.

While it is generally known that California protects its orchards by the use of those it is not so well known that many in Washington are similarly protected. True, it is expensive but some large operators believe in its usefulness. Obviously, the weather equally serviceable in telling when and when not to use the smudge pots. Both crude oil and briquettes are burned in these. Occasionally old rubber tires are used.

MORE CONTROL, AUSTRALIA

The Commonwealth of Australia has passed an act known as the Wine Overseas Marketing act, 1929. Under this a wine overseas marketing board is constituted. Control is by licence and contracts for carriage by sea or land are illegal if made other than in conformity with conditions approved by the board, which has full power as to the sale and disposal of wine on such terms as it thinks fit. Mr. Baring, who called upon the interior committee of direction in 1928, has been nominated as representatives on the board of New South Wales and Queensland.

cents per "pay" or 54 cents per month, this including anesthetics.

It was explained that while the contract does not now include hospitalization for dependents, a scheme was going worked on based on deductions amounting to 70 cents a month.

Comptroller Bingay said the idea was to establish a fund. His own idea was that the 70 cents would be found to be far more than needed to give this service to the employees' dependents.

He said Trail-Tadanac hospital was a 50-bed hospital provided by the Consolidated at a cost of $100,000 and donated to the community. Its staff consisted entirely of graduate nurses and the company contributed the power, light and water used.

LOW RATES.

Public ward rates charged were an eye-opener to the commission being $1.90 per day, said to be the lowest in the province for a hospital of its class. Nanaimo charged $2, and Nelson $2.50. Commissioner Borden pointed out that out that St. Eugene hospital, Cranbrook, had an even lower charge, $1.25.

Mr. Docksteader, in answer to Commissioner Pearson, could not see any advantage in an amalgamation of the medical and hospital funds. He expressed satisfaction with the hospital contract.

Total cost of health service, made up of $1.28 from employee to doctor 30 cents from company doctor, and 52 cents from employee to hospital, was $2.10 per month, which, with 70 cents provision for dependents' hospitalization, could become $2.80.

Dr. Thom said compensation cases were an insignificant proportion of the total practice in Trail. If they were included in the medical contract, the doctors would suffer some.

This concluded the formal evidence.

COMMISION THINKS

Commissioner Pearson moved, and Commissioner Borden seconded a vote of thanks to the Consolidated and to its men for the courtesy shown, and the valuable information given.

Chairman Kennedy, in extending it, stated they had given the commission a clear picture of the social welfare activity by a big company. He congratulated the men on the way they had taken hold of these problems at Trail and suggested that the plans here seen in action would, if applied to the province generally, be of the greatest benefit to the working men.

A similar vote of thanks was extended to the city of Trail for placing the council chamber at the commissions' disposal.

STRAWBERRIES IN GOOD SHOWING IN KOOTENAY REGION

Expect Increased Tonnage in Rasps; Vegetable Conditions Look Excellent

Horticultural conditions throughout West Kootenay and Creston districts are excellent, the rains of the past few weeks working wonders for all crops according to the horticultural reports from district horticulturists.

NELSON DISTRICT

Weather Conditions—Weather conditions have been quite good for the growth of all crops. The rainfall has been light and some very warm days from May 16 to 23. Heavy rains on May 24 followed by showery weather and cloudy on the 25th and 27th. No frost injury so far to any crops and weather was very good during the blossom period of most varieties of fruit.

TREE FRUITS

Pears and plums and cherries appear to have set well, although it it is to early to make a definite statement as to conditions. The period when the heavy drop takes place has not arrived yet. Apples are just past the full gloom period and favorable for a good set. Trees, where reasonable care is given, are looking healthy and should produce a good crop. Some winter injury showing up in the sweet cherry trees. This is mostly in the form of bud or fruit spur injury.

SMALL FRUITS

Strawberries are just coming into full bloom and the showing is quite heavy in most fields. Plants are looking healthy and a fair yield is expected under favorable weather conditions. Season will be late, shipments should start around the 15th of June, with heavy shipments by the 20th of June.

Raspberry canes are showing excellent growth and most of the patches should produce a very good crop The blossom buds are just starting to show up. Less winter injury to the canes this year than last, and a slight increase in the tonnage is expected.

Currants and gooseberries are in bloom and prospects are for a good crop, although the acreage planted to this crop is small.

VEGETABLES

Early potatoes are well up and the planting of the late crop has just been completed. The acreage in most sections will be about the same as last year. Indications are for a slight increase in the acreage to the late cabbage and some of the other vegetables. This is to meet the increased local demand that is expected from a number of construction camps operating in the district.

All spring seeding has been completed and a lot of the crops are well up and making good growth. The alfalfa fields are looking good and with a little more rain the prospects are for a good hay crop.

District Horticulturist

EAST KOOTENAY DISTRICT

General Conditions — The season this year is now approximately two weeks behind last year, due chiefly to the cool weather, lack of moisture and the excessive winds which were experienced. The result was that the soils, especially on the higher lands, dried out very badly. Most crops throughout the district are now planted and showing up well but growth is somewhat retarded on account of the cool nights. There appears to be an ample supply of hay on most farms and the grass on the ranges is now looking well.

Calf and pig clubs have now been all lined up, there being two pig clubs in Cranbrook and one in Jaffray, as well as one calf club in each of the two districts. Most of the animals in these clubs are looking very good.

DAIRY PREMISES

A certain amount of time was taken with Dr. Sparrow, veterinary inspector, testing dairy cattle and inspecting dairy premises through the district from Newgate to Spallumicheen and Fernie districts. The majority of dairies are well up to the standard laid down by the provincial government. In a few cases that were not quite up to the requirements information was given by the owners of the intention to improve conditions and in some cases build new barns and milk houses. As there were no reactors this district may be considered free from tuberculosis.

The various fertilizer plots, both of the complete fertilizer and the Trail superphosphate experiments, have been all lined up.

WOULD STEM TIDE, RETAIN B. C. BRITISH

part of large numbers of those who bear his name," the bishop said.

"The revolt is moral rather than intellectual. If we are asked why people do not go to church, there is but one auswer—because they do not want to go. If we are asked why they do not want to go, we can only answer that it is because they love pleasure more than God.

"Christ's way of life is the way of the cross, his yoke is easy, his burden light, but the men and women of this generation will have no yoke, however light, nor carry any burden, however easy.

"They wish to follow their own will and inclination to do as they please.

"They will not remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy, because, being a holiday, they desire it as an occasion for the enjoyment of pleasure; they will not come to church because that would curtail their hours of pleasure.

"They will not be bound by the Christian law regarding the sanctity of marriage because that again places restraint upon them and they will brook no restraint.

MORE SELFISH

"They are in revolt against all restraint, bent only on having a so-called good time, and becoming daily more selfish, more forgetful of God and the responsibilities and duties of life.

"The spiritual side of their nature has been so neglected and starved that it can hardly be said to exist at all, the mental is sharing a similar fate, the physical has grown to abnormal disproportionate dimensions, controlling all and carrying all to destruction.

Diagnosing the weakness of the church, as due to its having been invaded by the spirit of the world, rendering it powerless at the very moment it required super-human strength, Bishop Doull expressed the view that: "Perhaps the Anglican church, more than any other, is suffering from a lack of spiritual life and power manifest in the lives of its members.

"The spiritual disadvantages of a state church extend themselves to the representatives of that church far and wide, while the benefits remain strictly confined to the mother land. Just because the church in England is established, she and her daughter churches have a larger percentage of nominal members than are to be found in other Christian communions which owe their

"The Anglican church in this diocese origin to the free churches of Britain, is not doing its work for Christ in the fullness of spiritual strength and power because our own spiritual life is at a low ebb."

GROWN SLACK

"We have all grown slack and because formal in our religious life, and the corporate life of the church does not possess the necessary strength and vigor to influence the community," he stated later. He also said the present age called for reality, the day for formal perfunctory religion having gone by, and he issued a stirring call to clergy and laity of Kootenay diocese to expound and live a religion that had the power to draw men and women to God and alter their lives.

In the rejection twice of the new prayer-book, under revision for 25 years, the bishop, while deploring the crisis brought about, said the British house of commons in that action had only reflected and given expression to the feeling of the country as a whole.

"England is in the old historical sense Protestant to the core," he asserted, "and the fear that the new prayer-book would encourage or make easy a closer approach to Rome in doctrine and practice accounts for the action of the house.

"The fear of Rome is deep-seated in the heart of the British race, not without cause and justification. As Canon Newbolt of St. Paul's cathedral remarked long years ago, 'Rome has caused everything Catholic to stink in the nostrils of Englishmen'."

Remarking that the ordinary Englishman was not well versed in the distinction between things truly Catholic and things distinctly Roman, and that the report of the Malines conversations were published at an unfortunate time, any endeavor for a better understanding between the two faiths being calculated to increase the fears and apprehensions of the nation, the bishop declared the extreme anglo-Catholics had "given the nation cause to ask whither the Church of England was drifting," for "though few in number they were loud in self-advertisement, and disloyal in their attitude toward the church to which their allegiance was due." He said a heavy responsibility rested on them and on the extremists of the opposite wing.

That the episcopal endowment fund of the diocese, which provides maintenance for the bishop's office, had gradually grown to $59,000 from the $50,000 of a few years ago, but mainly by his own efforts, was reported by his lordship.

URGES ACTION

If only the diocese would arouse itself to the need of placing this fund on a satisfactory basis, he suggested, it would not be so very long before it would achieve its objective of a sum which would produce an income of $4500 a year. He stated the British Columbia and Yukon Church aid society had made a generous offer, of £500 every year that the diocese furnish a certificate of having raised $1000 for the endowment, the certificate having to reach London by September 1.

"I trust that this synod will take the necessary steps to see that every effort be made to raise annually at least $1000 on or before the first day of August in each year," he said. "Neither the efforts of the laymen's order nor the efforts of the rural deans have so far proved successful, and only my own personal efforts have saved the situation for this year. This clearly cannot go on, for the number of fairly well to do persons in the diocese is limited, and with only a few of them have I any personal influence."

He declared this matter was one primarily for the laymen, whom he urged to accept the English society's challenge. He felt sure that more than the $1000 a year could be raised if the laymen went at the matter wholeheartedly.

In connection with the reduction of the world grants of the society for the propagation of the gospel, by £10,000 a year from 1931 on, his grace said while the loss of £500 to the mission work of this diocese annually would be felt, he was convinced the diocese could well surrender this grant and raise the money itself.

He intimated the decision as to whether or not the diocese would be represented by himself at the coming Lambeth conference was in the hands of the synod, which, in the event of his attending, would have to arrange for the funds, since few colonial bishops could personally meet the considerable expense involved.

THANKS GRAND FORKS

In thanking "beautiful Grand Forks" for its hospitality in receiving the synod, his lordship explained the sessions were held here because St. Saviour's parish, Nelson, was not yet ready with the cathedral, and the expense made it impossible to go to Cranbrook, central city of East Kootenay, the synod on the last occasion having met at Kelowna, in the Okanagan.

Among events of the past two years mentioned by the bishop is his review of matters of interest to the diocese, were the destruction by fire of St. Saviour's church, Nelson; honoring by Kelowna of Ven. Archdeacon Greene on his eightieth birthday after 39 years in the ministry; addition of another mission van through the generosity of Carlisle parish in Windermere, England, and splendid work by the women and girls operating the vans, 2600 scattered children now being enrolled; retirement of the primate of England, Lord Davidson; splendid work of the Anglican Theological college, Point Grey, under Principal W. H. Vance; coming opening of Christ Church cathedral, Victoria; visit of the Anglican national commission to the diocese the past winter; donation by Mrs. Wainman, on her removal to the old country, of her beautiful residence at Vernon for the purpose of the bishop's residence; progress made by both the Vernon preparatory school for boys and St. Michael's school for girls; and the reviving of the laymen's order.

Fred Irvine, Nelson, and Rev. N. D. B. Larmonth and F. W. Warren, Trail, were named a committee to consider the bishop's charge and report ways to carry out its recommendations.

Bronfman Case Caused the Defeat Saskatchewan Libs?

OTTAWA, June 12.—Failure of the government to prosecute Harry Bronfman of Regina was one of the causes contributing to the defeat of the Saskatchewan Liberals in the recent election, said Milton N. Campbell, Progressive, Mackenzie, in the House of commons this afternoon. Mr. Campbell's statement was made during consideration of the estimates of the Royal Canadian Mounted police. There was suspicion that because this man was wealthy, and was a friend of the Liberal party that he had immunity, proceeded Mr. Campbell. An impression was abroad that he had been unduly protected. Serious charges had been made by Saskatchewan candidates referring to contributions he had made to campaign funds. He asked Hon. Ernest Lapointe, minister of justice, to do everythnig in his power to allay that suspicion.

Mr. Lapointe declared that such statements applied to the government were unfair. The law officers of the crown had thoroughly investigated the details of this case and found that under the statute of limitations nothing could be done. It was cowardly and immoral for the government to proceed against a man when it knew that no conviction could be secured. The act alleged against Bronfman took place in 1920, and did not come to the notice of the government until 1927. Under the customs act prosecutions had to take place within three years of the alleged commission of the offence.
