DEATH LAYS LOW FAMOUS ALLIED GENERAL

Marshal Ferdinand Foch, fa- leader of the allied armies dur- World war, who died yester- after a long illness. Here (on rt) is the latest portrait of the marshal. Inset is a photograph some time ago before his health broke down, and on the right a striking full length portrait of the famous soldier in the uniform of a field marshal. Marshal Foch was ill for some months with heart trouble and he made a brave fight for life.

It was the skill of this gallant general which welded the forces of the allied armies on the western front and directed the hammer blows starting with the battle of Amiens which finally ended the great war successfully for the allied armies.

PARIS, March 20.—Marshal Ferdinand Foch, died this eve- almost in the twilight hours, the sun had not yet set and the hal lay on a lounge near an open window. He was con- s and silent while the nurse was making up his bed.

Doctor Daveniere said to the marshal, "Monsieur le Mare- we are going to put you back to bed."

The marshal replied: "Bien allons," which may be trans- "All right, let's go ahead."

Suddenly there was a change in his face, a twitching, he d his hand on his heart, lay down on the bed and spoke no

The world had known that the end of the great soldier not far off. Yet when he died, there came a throb of sorrow encompassed the hearts of all men. With his passing the military figure of the greatest of all wars disappeared.

A small man, a frail man, Marshal Foch in his last fight yed those qualities of grimness, of determination, of the o win that distinguished through all his years, from youth liant old age. He was in his seventy-eighth year.

From day to day over the more than two months of his s, the marshal had scoffed at his doctors, made light of his nts, denounced the minis- ns of his attendants and cheerily of his future Only within the last few did he show any sign that as engaged in his final and that the fight was against him.

Cabinet Has Power Deal With Census, Any Municipality

VICTORIA, B. C., March 20.—By reference to the Municipal act, it has been found that the minister of finance can prescribe a method of establishing the population of any municipality, and the cabinet has power to determine the question without securing the passage of a bill through the legislature, Attorney-General Pooley announced this morning following the defeat of the Vancouver census bill.

Canadians Extend Sympathies in Loss of Marshal Foch

OTTAWA, March 20.—"The people of Canada extend a most heartfelt sympathy to the people of France in their great national loss through the death of Marshal Ferdinand Foch," said Premier King this evening. "Canadians cannot but feel a deep sense of personal loss and bereavement."

Three Members of Byrd Expedition Located by Byrd

NEW YORK, N. Y., March 20.—Larry Gould, Bernt Balchen and Harold I. June, the three members of the Byrd expedition, missing since last Thursday in the Rockefeller mountains of Antarctica, have been found according to a radio dispatch from Little America, copyrighted by the New York Times and the St. Louis Post (Despatch).

Commander Byrd who flew to their rescue reported that their plane had been destroyed by severe winds while on the ground.

Rebel Leader Taken by Federals; Gunboat Shells Rebel Forces

NOGALES, Sonora, March 20.—Advices received here tonight from the south stated that the federal gunboat, Progresso, in Mazatlan harbor, was bombarding the rebel forces attacking the city of Mazatlan. Information of the attack was meager as telegraph wires were functioning spasmodically.

REBEL LEADER CAPTURED

MEXICO, CITY, March 20.—An official report was received at Chapultepe Castle tonight that General Jesus M. Aguirre, principal rebel leader in the state of Vera Cruz, was captured at 5:40 p. m. today at Aguacatillo, Vera Cruz.

Louis M. Auger, M.P., Is Guilty of Serious Offence Against Girl

OTTAWA, March 20.—Louis M. Auger, member of parliament, was found guilty of committing a grave attack against a 17 year old girl, by a supreme court grand jury here tonight. Sentence will be passed by his lordship, Mr. Justice Wright tomorrow morning.

EDMONTON, Alta., March 20.—Work on the land in Edmonton district got off to a start on Tuesday afternoon when a large disc swung into action on the provincial government farm at Oliver. This is said to be one of the earliest starts on the land in 10 years.

19 Dead, Score Hurt in C.N. Train Crash

TWO PASSENGER TRAINS CRASH IN THE NIGHT

Sleeping Passengers Hurled or Burned to Death in Wreckage

MANY OF DEAD NOT YET IDENTIFIED

Work of Rescue Continues; Overrunning of Orders Blamed for Wreck

PARRY SOUND, Ont., March 20.—Through an unexplained mistake in the interpretation of orders, two crack Canadian National railway transcontinental express trains loaded with sleeping passengers crashed head-on at Drocourt, a siding 46 miles north of here, early this morning. Members of train crews met death when the heavy engines and the baggage cars of the trains were telescoped and passengers in a colonist car on the west-bound train, were burned to death, some before the eyes of helpless trainmen and passengers. Some of the dead may never be identified owing to the fierceness with which the flames devoured all within the colonist car.

Railway officials estimate that 19 persons were killed though late tonight but six of these, all members of the train crews were listed among the identified dead. The passengers burned to death in the colonist car are believed to have been mostly immigrants bound for new homes in the west. Many of them were without relatives or friends in the Dominion.

The colonist car which caught fire was of wooden construction. This type of car is fitted with a stove which passengers are allowed to use for preparation of their meals during the long journey from the seaboard to the prairie provinces.

The interior of these cars is wooden. It is believed that the crash overturned the stove and the car took fire from the coals which were spilled out. The passengers, many of them asleep in their berths when the trains crashed, were caught without means of escape. Emergency trains were sent out from divisional points when news of the disaster was flashed out. The injured were placed aboard and rushed to hospital here. Some died enroute.

WORK BY FLARES

All day today and by the light of flares tonight, rescue workers toiled to remove the dead from the colonist car. Railway officials, however, admitted the hopelessness of the task confronting the identification of the remains. The official railway statement said that a man, his wife and two children were "believed" to have perished and noted that "parts of the trunks of four bodies" had been recovered from the colonist car.

Apart from the dreadful deaths that came suddenly to those in the foreparts of the trains, the passengers escaped miraculously, due to the steel construction of the cars in the trains. After checking up the railway was able to report that no passengers were killed or injured in the cars of the east-bound express. On the west-bound train, members of the train crew and the passengers in the colony car were the only ones listed as dead or seriously injured.

REPORTS INCOMPLETE

The isolated nature of the scene of the wreck prevented full reports of the wreck being available late tonight.

Drocourt is but a siding where double tracks are provided for the passage of trains.

The track curves just before Drocourt station is reached and the engineers of the trains could not have had time to make effective use of the air brakes. One of the trains should have been waiting at the siding. An offi-

Members Switch When Manitoba House Opens Sessions After Rest

WINNIPEG, March 20.—Many matters of provincial importance came before the Manitoba legislature when it resumed sessions today after an adjournment of three weeks.

First, Premier Bracken announced that the ordinary business of the legislature would be carried on, and that he had no thought of asking for further adjournment. J. W. Pratt, government member of Birtle, stated that he would cross the floor tomorrow and take a seat as an independent, while John Queen, labor leader, attempted to ascertain the government's stand on a proposed alliance with the Liberal party.

C. N. R. Wreck Worst in History, Canada; Disasters Recalled

TORONTO, Ont., March 20.—The train wreck at Dorcourt, Ont., with 19 dead was the worst in Canada since 1910. Previous Canadian railway disasters, with the number of victims were:

1857 — Desjardins Canal, train through bridge, 70 killed.

1864—St. Hilliar, Que., train derailed, 83 killed.

1872 — Belleville, Ont., engine left track, 30 killed.

1884—Humber, near Toronto, collision, 31 killed.

1887—St. Thomas, railway wreck, 14 killed.

1889—Hamilton, train derailed, 17 killed.

1895—Trenton, Ont., collision, 12 killed.

1902—Wanstead, Ont., collision, 28 killed.

1907—Chapleau, Ont., train wreck, 50 killed.

1910—Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., derailment, 63 killed.

1915—Queenston, Ont., railway car derailed, 16 killed.

1918 — Daval, Que., collision, seven killed.

1920—Corceil, Ont., collision, eight killed.

1927—Near Horne Payne, Ont., derailment, six killed.

1927—Dockrill, Ont., collision, seven killed.

Casualties in Ontario Wreck

The list of identified dead in the C.N.R. wreck near Perry Sound early tonight was as follows:

Ben Barstead, conductor, train No. 3, Toronto.

Ray Ferguson, brakeman, Toronto.

W. G. White, brakeman, Orillia, Ont.

George Miller, news agent, Toronto.

Horace Smith, fireman, Capreal, Ont.

Edwin Strutt, express messenger, New Dundee, Ont.

BELIEVED DEAD

An unidentified man, his wife and two children, said to have been travelling on train No. 3 for a point between Saskatoon and Regina.

MISSING

Robert Nelson, Washington, D. C., thought to have been travelling on No. 3 for Cardston, Alta.

Railway authorities reported that parts of the trunks of four bodies had been recovered from the burned colonists car. The remains were charred beyond recognition. No other bodies had so far been located but the search was being continued.

SERIOUSLY INJURED

Paul Gauvreau, engineer, both legs broken and face and body badly burned.

L. V. Savage, brakeman, Toronto, external and internal injuries.

Frank Frobe, express clerk, Toronto, possible fracture of skull.

INJURED

H. H. McRoberts, express clerk, Toronto, badly shaken up.

W. Bateman, a passenger, Brandon, Man., minor injuries.

E. V. Alexander, engineer train No 3, slight injuries.

A man named Mitchell, insurance agent, Brandon, Man., head injuries.

PEACE RIVER FARMER HAS SEEDED ALREADY

EDMONTON, Alta., March 20.—A special to the journal from Spirit River in the Peace River country says: The Blueberry settlement, 25 miles west of Spirit River has the rest of the country shaded for early seeding. Jack Burrows, a rancher of Blueberry, seeded 10 acres to Marquis wheat March 19. This is believed to be the earliest seeding on record in the north. Farmers in the vicinity of Spirit River will be on the land in less than a week if the present mild weather continues.

Major Segrave's Boat Does Over 64 to Beat Gar Wood's Speed Boat

MIAMI, Fla., March 20.—Major H. O. D. Segrave, British speed enthusiast, today defeated Gar Wood, veteran United States speed boat king, in a 12-mile sprint in the time of 11 minutes 9.35 seconds. His average speed was 64.537 miles an hour.

Gar Wood was forced out on the third lap of his first defending race in the Biscayne Bay regatta when Miss America's VII broke a steering quadrant. Wood was leading a half lap when he was eliminated.

P. G. E. SURVEY TO BE SPEEDED BY PREMIER TOLMIE

Will at Once Ascertain What C. N. R. and C. P. R. Propose to Do

TOLMIE'S HEALTH IS NONE TOO GOOD, NOW

May Seek Change of Climate When Session Ends; to Stay in B. C.

VICTORIA, B. C., March 20.—It is more than possible that little time will elapse before the survey connected with the P.G.E. will be inaugurated. The close of the session of the legislature will be followed by an anouncement with respect to the matter. Dr. Tolmie is anxious to have the matter taken up without delay, and he announces that he will at once seek to ascertain when the C.P.R. and the C. N. R., who are parties to the survey will be prepared to start upon the task in hand. The province will be represented upon the survey, so that all the information available to the railway companies will be at the disposal of the government of the province.

Premier Tolmie finds that he is still under the necessity of taking more than the usual care in order to avoid reocurrences of the trouble he has been suffering which takes the form of distressing broncial affections.

The premier has a number of matters that have to be dealt with and he accordingly wishes to spend a little time in the city disposing of the business in hand, before he takes a rest in the interests of his health. If he does not improve shortly, he may possibly seek a change of climate, but will not leave the province.

SURVIVORS SEE PASSENGERS IN HORRIBLE AGONY

Women and Children Scream as Flames Take Lives Following Train Collision

PARRY SOUND, Ont., March 20.—Tales of indescribable horrors, torture and death were recounted here today by survivors of the wreck of the crack Canadian National trains, numebr 3 and number 4, which collided early this morning near Darcourt station. The pivotal point of the tragedy was the colonist car on train number 3 west bound, which caught fire and was completely burned, proving the tomb of a number of passengers.

"I saw a woman inside the burning coach screaming in pain," said H. E. Harcourt, one of the passengers on train number 3, who escaped with a few bruises. "But the flames had enveloped her before any one could reach her. There were other things to be seen after the flames died down. I saw four or five charred bodies and skulls and human bones among the wreckage."

W. W. Wynn, of Toronto, said there were about 15 passengers men, women and children in the colonist car. The survivors generally agreed that about six or seven persons came out of the car alive.

Thomas Goodless also of Toronto, told of standing by with other passengers while women and children died, screaming in the burning coach.

"Altogether it was one of the most horrible sights you could imagine," he said. "There were screams coming from among the flames—terrible wails that died away slowly."

Another passenger, L. S. Michaud of Quebec, recounted the horrors of the burning coach. "There was a woman we could see beside a window of the car," he said, "a child sitting beside her and we could hear them screaming. We could not get them, though, and they were burned to death."

Mr. Michaud also told of a man who came into his coach with his arm almost torn off, crying "please help me." He was given all the help possible but bled to death.

Sydney M. Harvey of Philadelphia, said the colonist coach and the baggage coach were in flames within five minutes of the collision. "I reached them in time to see the flames consume what looked like the bodies of five women and one child," he said. "I saw the head of a little girl above a window of the burning coach. I could see her being consumed by the blaze."

TORONTO, March 20.—Ethel Catherwood, world's champion girl high-jumper, today confirmed a rumor that she was to leave for New York city in a "few days" where she will accept an offer to enter the "talkies."

TRAINS WILL BE RUNNING WITHIN TWO YEARS TIME

Such Is Announcement Made C. A. Cotterell, B. C. Superintendent for C. P. R.

WILL LINK CRANBROOK AND NELSON DIVISIONS

Passengers Will Arrive in Nelson Three Hours Ahead of Present Schedule

It is expected actual construction will commence on the railway line around Kootenay lake from Procter to Kootenay Landing, a distance of 35 miles, this summer," was the announcement made yesterday by C. A. Cotterell, general superintendent for the Canadian Pacific Railway for the British Columbia district.

This will complete the last link of the all-rail southern route of the Canadian Pacific from the Coast to the prairies, and in less than two years trains will be operated through, said Mr. Cotterell.

To many of the citizens of Nelson, the line will be something of a mixed blessing, as for years it has been a pleasant sight to watch the boat come into Nelson in the evening, and the water trip across the lake has always provided a comfortable and enjoyable means of travel, but with the expansion of the country and the development of traffic, this means of transportation of course, cannot be continued indefinitely, as at the best, it is rather slow.

BENEFIT TO NELSON

"The construction of the railway line will mean a great deal to Nelson," said Mr. Cotterell. "Of course, there will be the usual activity that goes along with any large undertaking of this kind where hundreds of men are employed, but the real benefits will come when the line is opened for traffic. As trains will run from Cranbrook to Nelson, there will naturally be considerable expansion in railroad activities, and any increase in the railroad payroll is reflected in the business of the city and one can hardly visualize what the through service will mean to the entire east and west Kootenays.

CUTS OFF THREE HOURS

The passenger train ariving at Kootenay Landing at 3:55 p.m., as at present will arive at Nelson about 5:15 p.m. beating the present boat service by over three hours, and the eastbound service will go straight through instead of remaining over all night for the boat connection as at present, and all railway traffic will be speeded up in comparison.

With a through southern line, it is quite reasonable to assume that the railway company will not hesitate to make use of this route in order to relieve the main line, in fact, it will give the Canadian Pacific two direct lines from the coast to the prairies, which will materially strengthen their position.

Chief Commissioner in Manitoba Probe Now at Vancouver

VICTORIA, B. C. March 20.—Hon. D. A. MacDonald, chief justice of the court of the King's Bench of Manitoba, and chief commissioner of the Manitoba royal commission, appointed to investigate the charges of Lieutenant-Colonel F. G. Taylor, K. C., reached Victoria this afternoon from California.

Chief Justice MacDonald expressed the view that a week or 10 days would elapse before the commission would terminate its investigations at Winnipeg.

"Did you secure all the evidence you set out to get?" he was asked.

"Yes, as far as the commission is concerned," he replied.

cial investigation will attempt to place the blame.

William and J. Forteny, of Mildway, Ont., were passengers on the colonist car. They were slightly injured and are in a hospital here which sent doctors and nurses on the relief train that left this point at noon. The Fortneys were asleep when the trains met, and found themselves tossed about as wreckage came falling down upon them. The lights went out and the car started to burn. According to their story, only half a dozen persons escaped from their car, although it was not crowded.

ARM TORN OFF

A passenger in front of them had his arm torn off. They dragged him from the wreckage as they made their escape, but he died shortly afterwards.

In an official statement tonight, A. E. Warren, general manager of the central region, Canadian National railways, pointed out that the engineers and conductors of both trains were men of long experience and clear records.

"Engineer Alexander of train No. 3 had been with the Canadian National railway 17 years as engineer," the statement added. "Prior to joining this railway he had seven years experience as engineer on other railways. Conductor Barstead of train No. 3 had been in the service of the company 24 years and was the senior conductor of his division."

PARRY SOUND Ont., March 20.—With an investigation under way by railroad officials, rescue workers and emergency crews continued their labors in the gathering dusk this evening at the lonely little station of Drocourt, Ont., 46 miles northwest of here, scene of an early morning wreck on the Canadian National railway that cost the lives of at least 19 persons and injuries to probably a score more.

GREATEST IN CANADA

The cause of the collision that marks the greatest railway tragedy in Canada since 1910, has not been definitely determined. Two crack passenger fliers, known as "The Nationals" No. 3 and 4 of the Canadian National lines, hurtling through the darkness at 3:58 o'clock this morning on their fast runs between Toronto and Winnipeg, crashed head on near mileage 44 on the Sudbury division.

The possibility that a "meet order" was overlooked is seen in an official statement issued by A. E. Warren general manager of the central region. The statement declared that "the trains had orders to meet at Drocourt and apparently train No. 3 overran the meeting point."

STILL UNCERTAIN

Reports of the disaster are still incomplete. As news trickled through from the little way station throughout the day, the magnitude of the tragedy increased. With the arrival here of emergency trains from the scene of the wreck, confusion as to details still reigns. Six of the injured are in the local hospital, while other survivors can relate only the horrible scenes that followed the crash.

Train No. 3 left Toronto at 9 o'clock last night for Winnipeg. No. 4 on its eastbound journey, was scarcely an hour's run from here when the two crashed.

Those who have returned here, tell graphic stories of heroic attempts to escape cremation and of the frantic efforts of the uninjured to help their fellow passengers. All passengers in the sleepers were ordered out as a precautionary measure, and they worked heroically in the snow among the dead and injured until they were put aboard relief trains.

BURNED TO DEATH

H. E. Marcourt, a passenger, telling of his harrowing experiences, said:

"When I got out of the car, I saw several skulls and human bones burning. One woman screamed until she was burned to death."

Paul Gauvreau, engineer on the eastbound train was brought to the hospital here and is expected to recover from his injuries.

Both legs are broken and his face and body are badly but. Gauvreau stated that his first intimation of the crash came when he saw the headlight of the oncoming No. 3. He attempted to jump but the trains came together before he could leap clear of his engine.

Express Messenger Strutt of Toronto is probably fatally injured from burns.

G. V. Alexander, engineer on No. 3, states that he leaped when he saw the collision was inevitable. He did not clear the locomotive and found himself beneath it when he regained consciousness.

Was Bothered With Severe Headaches Is Not Troubled Now

Mrs. James Rossiter, Riverside, N.B., writes:—"I was bothered with severe headaches, for years, and tried many different medicines, but to no effect. One day a friend told me about and after I had taken three bottles I found it had done me a world of good. Now I don't know what a headache is like. I certainly have great faith in Burdock Blood Bitters."

GOOD BASKETBALL DISPLAYED, SENIOR JUNIOR LEAGUES

High School, Old Timers and Pirates Winners in Hoop Games

In the senior B basketball last night high school defeated Fairview, 40 to 16 and the Old Timers trounced the McLearies 36 to 15.

Both games showed a decided improvement in the play noticably in the fact that the players were not inclined to bunch so much, therefore putting up a speedier brand of ball.

In the one junior game played the Pirates defeated the high school 18 to 12.

ROCK CREEK NOTES

ROCK CREEK, B.C., March 20.—Albert Blaine of Riverside, motored to Midway on Thursday.

Frank T. Thompson of Midway visited Captain and Mrs. Brew of Kettle Valley on Sunday.

E. Weed and Arthur Landers of Ingram Mountain, were visitors to the Jackson ranch at Midway on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Hamilton and sons of Greenwood, were visitors to the valley on Sunday.

George Weed of Ingram Mountain was a visitor to Arthur McArthur's near Midway on Thursday.

On St. Patrick's day, Ann Bubar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Bubar of Kettle Valley, celebrated her eighth birthday by having a party at her home. Besides her little brother and sisters the guests were Inez and Jean Richter, Charlie Johnson and Mr. H. Bruce. Ann had a beautiful birthday cake.

Captain Haynes of Kelowna arrived in town last week. He reported that there is at present a marked shortage of water in Kelowna reservoir, but hope that in a few weeks time it will be filled up to its usual capacity as soon as the snow begins to melt in the mountain region.

John Caldwell of Kettle Valley is visiting his two daughters in Vancouver. His son David, is also at the coast, where he has gone for medical treatment. It is expected that Mr. Caldwell will return by the end of this week.

The Rock Creek baseball boys gave a successful dance in Riverside hall on Monday evening. There was a good crowd of visitors from different parts of the district. A substantial sum of money was realized. A delightful supper was served.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Hatton of Bridesvilel road were in town on Saturday. Mr. Hatton reported having returned a few days ago from a pleasant visit to Asoyoos, Oliver and Penticton. While they were in Asoyoos, they visited one of the big cattle ranches there and saw some very fine beef cattle. Motoring to Penticton, they had a most enjoyable trip and reported the roads in fair condition.

WYNNDEL NOTES

WYNNDEL, B.C., March 20.—The W.A St. Patrick's fancy dress carnival was a huge success, over $43 being taken. The judging was one of the hardest tasks, as all the costumes were up to standard. Finally the judges decided the best costume in the hall was a "Crinolin" Miss D. Butterfield. Other winners were the prettiest lady, A Hawaiian girl, Mrs. C. Ogilvie; best gent, A. E. Towson, Indian Prince; comic lady, Miss E. Hagen, A Lady; gent's, Carl Carlson, Baby. Others in costume were: E. Towson, Springtime; M. Butterfield, Bunch of Roses; P. Foxall Old Time Maiden; E. Randell, Early Victorian; F. Murgatroyd, Colonial Lady; M. Ewing, Cabret Girl, G. Andestad, Queen of Hearts; B. Hulme, Gambling; Mrs. Hulme, Carnival; N. Backus Mexican; L. Vanhougnet, Charlie Chaplin; A Rudd, Baker; C. Payette, A Maid; Mrs. Packman, Gipsy. The hall was beautifully decorated with streamers, lanterns and baloons, and confetti and streamers were thrown all through the dances. The spot dance was won by Miss Ewing and J. Hanna. Mr. and Mrs. E. Andestad won the elimination waltz. The moonlight waltz was a splendid success, and all agree it was one of Wynndel's best dances for some time.

The Pennsylvania railroad has put into service Pullman cars for horses. Some of the names for these cars are Havre de Grace, Bowie, Pimlico, Churchill Downs, Jamaica, Saratoga Springs, Belmont Park and Jefferson Park. Every imaginable comfort is included.

FLORENCE GRANT WINS HEARTS OF AUDIENCE AT S. T.

With Her Husband, Miss Winnie Brown, She Stars in Novel Play

REV. MR. DREDGE IS ACTOR IN CONCERT

Large Audience Delighted With Excellent Show by Young People

"You know, I know shake," a one-act comedy, that act was real long, given by the members of the Skoocum Tillicum club of St Paul's United church last night in the church school room portrayed vividly the trouble of a newly wedded couple in this modern year, 1929. The play, the cast of which was made of the savory of the club's dramatic talent, was up to the minute in plot, acting and settings.

Two young people, just married a month, found that the narrow-mindedness of their uncle and aunt rose as an iceberg in the warm ocean of their love. Florence Grant who took the part of the wife, a niece of a wealthy aunt, at the time of the rising of the curtain, a resident of Southern California, was threatened with nearly all possible evils if she did not marry the man of her aunt's choice. Her aunt was an old maid. The petite leading lady of the stage showed fine taste in her every move. Roars of laughter was evidence that the audience was there.

MISS BROWN PLAYS THE MAN

Miss Winnie Brown, who to those who did not know her voice, was taken for a member of the stronger sex, mastered male characteristics and played the role of an adoring husband to perfection. He, or rather she, was an artist of budding fame who was in dread of being forgotten in his millionaire English uncle's will if he did not marry the girl of his choice. Incidentally, his uncle was a confirmed bachelor.

The uncle Eddie Boyes, and the aunt Miss Isabelle Fraser, met in the suit of the newlyweds. He used words men do not generally use when speaking to ladies and the good aunt used words seldom coming from the lips of ladies or women.

Finally, after much ado about nothing, the bridegroom of a month told his uncle of his secret marriage. Miss Brown approached the subject by selling the uncle on the idea of getting back on the aunt who had been none too polite to him.

She did this without consulting her bride. Confession of her wedding to her romeo wrung from Miss Grant's lips by her tender conscience, was received by her aunt with unsurpassed delight. She now thought that she was to get back at this uncle. The uncle thought along the same lines.

So the next time the two met on the stage, their ideals on marriage, were changed. They agreed that the younger generation were able to choose their husbands and wives as well as their clothes.

This play was preceeded by a well presented program. Rev. Mr. Dredge doned a "bowler" hat and wearing a "Charlie Chaplin" moustache read the part of a silent skit, which was intended to be a movie, "but as our movie machine was broken down at the last moment we must do as best we can" Rev. Mr. Dredge explained.

Those acting in the skit entitled "Wild Nellie" were, Miss Nancy Downes, Miss Paula Gansner; C. Blossett, Helen Wharton, Edna Fraser, and Verna Lidberg.

Other numbers on the program were, musical selections by W. Sharp, W. Coleman, P. Mills and E. Phillips. Miss Emma Kahle, Edna Fraser and E. Ried.

Recitations were rendered by Isabelle Fraser and Thomas Price. Comedy touched on by all actors on the bill reached a climax when Eddie Boyes walked a tight rope several times. He made a great hit. The tight rope was on the ground.

CARDINALS ARE WORKING HARD, TRAINING CAMP

National League Champions Hardly Pause for Luncheon at Diamond

TWO BATTING CAGES AND DIAMOND IN USE

Grover Alexander Still the First Pitcher; Have New Manager, Coaches

AVON PARK, Fla., March 20.—If it's true that uneasy lies the head that wears the crown of manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, Billy Southworth is managing to conceal it. In spite of the fact that he is the fourth manager of the Red Birds in four years, the little outfielder to all appearances is nonchalant, in the best manner recommended by the cigarette advertisements.

The former pennant winning Rochester pilot believes in hard work and more of it. No club in Florida is working such long hours and at such speed as the National league champions.

A training camp innovation has been made by the construction of two batting cages, in addition to the regular batting practice at the plate and three divisions take many cuts at the ball during practice. Southworth also has two pitchers alternating in pitching to the batters.

REPAST AT CLUBHOUSE

The only picnic about the champions' sessions is the luncheon. The athletes waive the formality of returning to their hotel for the midday meal, and are satisfied by a sketchy repast on the bench and in the club house.

The Cards are committed to one infield change and there may be more. Charley Gelbert, the sensational young shortstop from Rochester, will play short. Gelbert may face the handicap of too much boosting for every International league manager and player has predicted without qualifications that he will make good with a rush.

If Cary Selph, the Arkansas traveler from Houston, comes up to specifications he will go to second base with Frankie Frisch moving over to third. If a tour of bench duty is considered necessary for Selph's baseball welfare, Fred Haney, former Detroit player, and the versatile Andy High are available for third. Jim Bottomley gets renomination without opposition at first base.

There are only six outfielders on the roster, including manager Southworth who probably will fill a utility role. Walter Roettger, who was batting at a terrific clip when he broke his leg July 4, seems to have recovered and would seem to have first call on right field. Taylor Douthit and Chick Hafey will hold outfield posts. This arrangement will leave Ernest Orsatti, fleet Californian and Roscoe Holm, a baseball handy man, available as reserves with the manager, who was among the leading hitters of the International league on his brief vacation from the majors. Southworth's arm is none too good, however, and he may content himself with pinch hitting against right hand pitching.

Jimmy Wilson will do most of the catching with the veteran Earl Smith available as first assistant. The other catching assignment awaits a contest between Gus Manouso and Clarence Jonnard, a member of the pitching and catching firm of Jonnard Brothers.

ALEXANDER FIRST PITCHER

The pitching mainstays will know their way about from previous ordeals by fire. Grover Cleveland Alexander, at 42 and with 18 major league campaigns behind him, is the youngest player in the camp. He fields bunts by the hour and will be the first pitcher ready to take a turn. Willie Sherdel, Jesse Haines, Clarence Mitchell and Sylvester Johnson will complete the big five.

Herman Bell, back for another chance and Frankhouse and Haid, who were on the club last year, should stick and Texas leaguers, Bill Hallahan and Harold Elliott have a chance. Hallahan has been handicapped in his early efforts by injuries, as has Frankhouse.

The Cards, in addition to a new manager have two new coaches, both returning to the major leagues after a long absence. Earl "Greasy" Neale, former Cincinnati outfielder, has been coaching at the University of Virginia and Charles "Gabby" Street, once a great Washington catcher, has been managing in the minors. There is plenty of master minding for the trio, in addition to the Cardinals proper, there are numerous pieces of green timber in camp to be stored away for seasoning at one of the eight minor league farms in the St. Louis system.

HOUSE TALKS ON MARKETING OF WHEAT CROP

Three Resolutions Placed on Order Paper; Malcolm Urges Against Haste

OTTAWA, March 20.—The marketing of Canada's 1928 wheat crop came before parliament in no uncertain way today. Following reports from the west of dissatisfaction with the work of the board of grain commissioners and the way the crop was handled this year, three resolutions were placed on the order paper. One asked that in grading wheat, its protein content be taken into consideration. A second referred to the mixing grain and a third condemned the board of grain commissioners for issuing the so-termed "hybrid" ticket. It was on a recommendation of the committee on agriculture that it be empowered to investigate all these points at one time, that the discussion burst forth in the commons and forced the budget debate to give way.

MALCOLM URGES TIME

To the various and severe criticisms which have been levelled at the board of grain commissioners, Hon. James Malcolm, minister of trade and commerce, said "to discuss charges against the board of grain commissioners when the board has not had an opportunity to give evidence as to why they ruled or failed to rule in a certain way, I think is unfair. So far as I am concerned, I have found the board of grain commissioners at all times anxious to assist in the administration of the Grain act in the interests of the producer. Whether they have made mistakes of judgement or not will be brought out in the evidence before the committee."

He declined to comment as a minister of the crown on a public servant until the latter had been given the opportunity to defend himself. He accordingly urged the application of the committee that its scope be enlarged, be granted by the house. The members of the board would then come before the committee to give their side of the case.

DAUNTLESS, OF THE MOUNTED, PERFORMS

BOSTON, March 20.—Superintendent of police Michael J. Crowley received a visit a few days ago from Dauntless, an exceedingly clever German police dog, and Sergeant Scotty Wilson of the Canadian Mounted police. The dog is reputed to have played an imporant part in the investigation of the Hickman murder case in California, and is a member of the "Canadian Mounties."

Dauntless demonstrated to Superintendent Crowley how he trails criminals and "gets his man." He opened and closed doors, sprang at his master's neck upon command and in general showed what a bad actor he could be in emergency.

Cow Missing for Three Days Found Alive in Cellar

ROCK CREEK, B. C., March 20—Mysterious case of a missing milk cow, which had baffled Rock Creek's most efficient sleuths for three days was cleared up when Mr. Johns of the Riverside hotel, discovered the cow in his cellar, little the worse for her three-day imprisonment. Another mystry then presented itself in the question of how she got in the cellar. This has not yet been solved.

The cow, belonging to Albert Blaine of Riverside had vanished and a diligent search by the owner and several others had failed to reveal its whereabouts. The cow had subsisted on potatoes and other vegetables during its stay in the hotel cellar.

It Would Have Been Bad Business

The legislature was right when it voted down Hon. T. P. Pattullo's amendment to provide that no waterpower rights in excess of 40,000 horsepower could be granted without a vote of the legislature.

Such a provision would have led to one great difficulty, in that it would have meant that large power rights could only be granted during a session, and one very serious evil in that if such a matter had to be dealt with by the legislature it would create a lot of lobbying and unecessary expense.

The Oil Boom

When the public sees oil stocks multiplying in market value it is not of much use to issue warnings against the dangers of unwise speculation.

As long as the stocks continue to rise every speculator is happy, and nearly everyone who hasn't speculated wishes that he had done so.

The problem is to figure out real values, and that is very difficult, especially for the long distance speculator. If oil is found in good volume and the company is well managed and not too highly capitalized, it will pay good dividends. But by what rule are we to measure moderation in capitalization? How do we know how many barrels a day under ordinary conditions are required to pay a sound percentage on, say, $10,000,000.

This is not a wildcat oil boom, based chiefly on hopes, such as the first Calgary boom. Present day interest in Calgary oils is based upon the proved existence of valuable oil reservoirs in the Turner Valley field. We know that the oil is there; we know that wells have developed production of around 600 or 700 barrels a day and more, and we know that there is good geological authority, backed by successful practical tests, for the belief that the area of the field is much larger than was at first supposed.

The oil is there, and purchase of stock in an oil company which brings in producing wells of commercial value usually proves a very profitable investment. The main thing is to stop, look and listen before buying. Find out whether the directors are responsible men, whether the management is good, whether the area to be drilled has been approved by reputable geologists and whether the capitalization is within reason.

As in going into any other speculation, the main thing is to use ordinary horse sense, and if the facts necessary for arriving at a sensible decision are not available, let someone else take the risk.

That Body of Yours

A Machine Doctor

Just about the time that as people we are priding ourselves on our common sense managment of health and ill health, we come across something that gives us a real shock.

A British physican, who was formerly a druggist or pharmacist, has invented a machine that puts the matter of diagnosing and treating your ailment entirely in your own hands; you are your own doctor. He has invented a machine resembling a typewriter but at present it has but twenty keys. Each key has letter and each letter represents a symptom.

Each ordinary ailment of everyday life has three main symptoms the machine would deliver the goods.

Dr. Burnet, the inventer, gave a practical demonstration of the machine, which prescribed for several common ailments. The prescriptions were handed to the audience (pharmacists) and caused astonishment and amusement.

When you remember that a headache can have thirty or more causes, a pain in the back at least as many, a pain abdomen may be due to gall stones, kidney stones, appendicitis, gas pressure, intestinal stoppage, and many other conditions, chest pain may be pleurisy, a heart attack, or a simple cold in the outer musles of the chest, you can readily see how unwise the use of such a machine would be. In fact the biggest thing in medical pratice to-day is the personal contact of the patient and physician.

The very presence of a tired and trusted physician in the home gives that confidence and feeling of security that enables the patient to fight on when there is nothing left within him but the will to live.

Now while you and I will not take this machine seriously, it does seem strange just the same that a physician, in an endeaver perhaps to help save doctors' bills for sick folks, would advise such a dangerous proceeding.

The valuable time lost while a patient is doctoring himself may cost life itself.

HANDIWORK ARTICLES

For the sake of those among my women readers who make unusual handiwork articles to place on sale in woman's exchanges and little shops, I wish to describe the following easily made novelties:

Dinah Door Stop:—Use a bottle for the body such as a gingerale bottle, filled with sand. Draw a black stocking over this. For the head, use a wood darning "egg," with the long handle stuck into the neck of the bottle. Cover this head, too, with a piece of black lisle stocking, on which paint eyes, nose and mouth. Ravel out a little of the stocking for parted hair, which peeps out under a red bandanna handkerchief which should be wound around the head with knotted ends in front. Use more of the same red handkerchief for a waist. Put on a white waist apron. Cover rolls of cotton with more of the stocking for arms. Put on gold head earrings.

Black Moire Ribbon Glove Case:—Make these as long as you desire—fairly short for short gloves, longer if intended for gauntlet gloves. Use the moire silk ribbon about four inches wide to form the envelope like part into which the gloves are put when not being worn. Have a diagonal shaped, rather than the ordinary pointed, "flap" part of the envelope—also made of the moire ribbon. Paint some orginal design on flap. Use either a snap fastener or a loop and bead—although really none is necessary if the case is made of ample proportions.

Satin Party Bag:—This is made of satin ribbon about two inches wide gathered to form a wheel. Put lace around outer edge of this wheel. Place a ribbon flower in center, where gathers come together. Now make a second wheel just like the first, tack them together at the bottom of the lace, leaving an open space at the top, and put on a "handle" of baby ribbon. The bag is used for a handkerchief and compact, to carry at a party.

Cranbrook Ratepayers Association Approves of Fire Hall Bylaw

CRANBROOK, B. C., March 20.—The city council met the ratepayers association in the council chambers of the city hall Monday evening to discuss the by-law which will be presented to the ratepayers on March 26th., to raise $32,000 by the sale of debentures to erect a new firehall and purchase new equipment for the fire brigade.

Mayor Roberts was in the chair and the meeting was addressed briefly by Aldermen Flowers and Attridge and Fire Chief Adams. For the ratepayers, President Wilson, Morris Clark, W. Pritchard, A. Lebeau and Mrs. Prichard were the speakers. The feeling of the meeting appeared to be strongly in favor of the passage of the by-law. After ample discussion the meeting adjourned to view the premises of the present firehall and this visit, the first that many of the ratepayers had ever made, impressed upon them the advisability of the projected change.

The Snob

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

As the weeks passed Nancy gradually settled back into her normal state of mind. Richard was considerate. He did not press his suit, yet managed to give her the feeling of his constant, undivided interest. Her work, too, soothed and gratified her. She had by now a sincere liking for both girls and buyer in the jewelry department. She enjoyed the sensation of being an efficent unit in a mammoth, successful organization, as well as glorying in her modest wage-earning. If not blissfully happy, at least she was content. No longer torturing herself by dreams of what might have been.

Then Chloris drifted into the store and asked Nancy to meet her at the Temple Bar tearoom. Chloris had efficently reserved a table and as they consumed salad and delicious little sandwiches Nancy decided she really liked Richard's sister. She seemed less nervous today, with an unafected charm. But toward the end of their hour together she electrified Nancy by saying: "I certainly was surprised to know you were once engaged to Eric."

"Who told you?"

"Eric told me that he had been engaged before and as soon as I saw you together I gessed it was you. The poor dear was so embarrassed."

"It was a very brief engagement," Nancy said, quietly.

Chloris smiled.

"You're embarrassed, too, aren't you? And you probably think it's awfully crude of me to mention it. But why not? We both know it. The fact that we have loved and been loved by the same man should give us something in common. I think we ought to be unusually good friends. And perhaps you can help me." . . . .

"I help you?" stammered Nancy.

"Yes . Help me to understand this stranger I'm going to marry. Because there are times when the idea frightens me. He is so rigidly just. I imagine he could be really severe."

"He has very high standards," Nancy replied stiffly.

"That's what I mean. Why if I disappoint him or fail to come up to his expectations, he'll never forgive me."

Rather a keen analysis for a girl who was head over heels in love. But Nancy had no desire to prolong the conversation.

"I must go," she said. "Does Richard know, Chloris, about Eric and me?

"I haven't told him. I thought that was up to you. But I wanted you to understand that even if I did know I hoped it wouldn't make any difference."

"It won't to me. I shall be only too happy to be friends with you."

There were tears in the younger girl's eyes.

"Thanks! I may need you."

Now what in the world did she mean by that? Nancy pondered over it for days with no idea of the answer.

In October Richard planned a party at his hunting shack. "Auntie" was to chaperone the four of them, he said. They would drive up on Saturday after noon after the store closed and stay all day Sunday.

Nancy accepted, feeling fortified by now to meet Eric more naturally. After all, the fact that they had been engaged a year ago was no reason for avoiding each other. She liked Chloris and was increasingly fond of Richard. She reasoned sensibly that they might as well become accustomed to being together. . . .

So Saturday found a gay party speeding over beauty-swept roads. Nancy was delighted with the prospect of a day's outing. She drank the mellow air greedily and sat beside Richard wrapped in admiration of the rapidly approaching mountains.

It was dark when they arrived, but the house was in order; Richard admitted he had been up the day before. Everything was clean and tidy. Logs were ready to light in the fireplace. Dishes set out on the scoured unpainted table.

The girls and Auntie took off their wraps and put them in one of the two bedrooms. Chloris and Nancy were to sleep together. When they returned to the living room Eric was frying bacon.

There was a trick to it, he said, which no woman could acquire. He had learned it from a guide on a hunting trip in the north woods.

It was a hilarious meal. Chloris persuaded Eric to don one of her diminutive aprons. Richard wound the victrola and as soon as supper was over seized Nancy and began to dance. It was then Eric discovered he was out of tobacco and would have to go to the store.

"But Richard has some, haven't you, Richard?"

"Not for a pipe. Have a cigarette, Eric?"

"Too feminine," laughed Eric.

He seemed anxious to depart, so Richard insisted that they would all go with him.

"Not me," cried Auntie. "I'm the ideal chaperon and I'm going to bed."

The four of them set off down the hill. The night was dark but sweetly cool. Richard and Nancy walked ahead singing and laughing, with Chloris and Eric lagging in the rear. But on the way home Chloris seized her brother's arm and said: "Nancy, will you walk with Eric? I want to talk with Richard?"

So Nancy found herself alone with Eric Nelson. Of course, she stumbled on the unfamiliar trail and, of course, he came to the rescue.

"Better put your little hand in mine, Nancy."

The touch, the thrilling, disquieting touch of those firm fingers! Closing on hers as they tramped together! Was it up Sycamore Hill?

"But then it was raining," he said unexpectedly.

Nancy snatched her hand away.

"What are you talking about?"

In the darkness his hand fell on her shoulder. He drew her to him fiercely, and although she resisted she felt his lips warm on hers.

"Kiss me, Nancy, kiss me!"

She slipped like water into his embrace. Returning his kiss madly. Conscious only of his need and her sublime power of satisfying it. . . .

It was his voice which shocked her into scanity.

"My God, we mustn't do this!"

Her arms fell from about his neck.

"I didn't mean to do that," he repeated miserably. "Forgive me, Nancy. I didn't know what I was doing."

THE FABLE OF BOCK BEER!

DURING the mediaeval period two neighboring towns in the Old Country had long engaged in a rivalry as to which brewed the best beer. During a dispute one day in early spring, between two brew-masters, one from each of the towns in question, it was claimed by one that the Beer brewed by the other lacked strength. To settle the dispute, the following test was proposed: Each brew-master was to consume a gigantic tankard of the beer brewed by his opponent, after which he was to stand on one leg and thread a needle. The loser claimed that a goat that had butted in through the circle of men surrounding the opponents was responsible for his downfall. The winner laughingly replied: "It was the Bock (German word for goat) in the beer." From that time it became customary to brew a special dark beer called "BOCK BEER" and place it on sale in the Spring of each year.

BOCK BEER

may be obtained on Saturday, March 30th, 1929, and thereafter, until the limited supply is gone, from the Government Liquor Stores in bottles or on draught in any licensed place at the same price as regular beer. Bock Beer is the Brewers' Treat, an exceptional brew of high grade Beer and aged (lagered) for an unusually long period. It is a very wholesome and nutritious beverage, the highest achievement of the skilled Brew-master. Order early to make sure of a supply.

Bock Beer, brewed by the Vancouver Breweries Limited, Westminster Brewery Limited, Silver Spring Breweries Limited, and Victoria-Phoenix Brewing Co. Limited is guaranteed to be absolutely pure beer. Have a case delivered to your home for Easter.

FREIGHT TRAFFIC ON NELSON FERRY SHOWS INCREASE

More Trucks Use Ferry During February; Cars, Passengers Are Less

Although the number of automobiles rigs and passengers exclusive of drivers using the Nelson ferry during February showed a drop as compared with the same month last year, the number of trucks and the quantity of freight crossing on the ferry showed a substantial increase.

A total of 287 trucks and 161 tons of freight were carried. Of the total trucks 149 were light and 138 were heavy as compared with 84 light and 85 heavy last year. The quantity of freight carried during the month this year was 107 tons in excess of the quantity carried during the same month last year. Last year's figures were 54 tons.

DROP IN AUTOS

There was a drop of 132 in the number of autos, 863 having crossed during the month this year as compared with 995 last year. The number of passengers exclusive of drivers showed a corresponding decrease, dropping from 5047 to 3649, a drop of 1398.

This year 117 rigs used the ferry during February a drop of 56 when compared with 173 during the same month last year.

The decrease in automobiles and passengers was thought to have ben due to the fact that car owners did not bring their cars out as early this year as last. The increase in trucks and freight is thought to indicate increased shipping to points on the north shore.

The figures are:

	This Year	Last Year
Nelson Ferry
Autos	863	995
Light trucks	149	84
Heavy Trucks	138	85
Rigs	117	173
Passengers ex. of drivers	3649	5047
Freight, tons	161	54
Horses	0	4

February Figures Show Increase of 24 Over Last Year; Rowboat Used

Although the Harrop ferry service was maintained by a rowboat during February this year, the number of round trips and the passengers carried exceeded that of the same month last year by a good margin. The freight carried naturally showed a decrease, while no automobiles or trucks could be carried.

The rowboat made 211 round trips, of freight as compared with 187 of freight as compared with 187 round trips during the same month last year carrying 321 passengers and 6¾ tons of freight. This showed an increase of 24 in the number of passengers and a drop of 4½ tons in freight.

Markets and Mining

NEW YORK LIST IS UNSETTLED

Nervousness Develops Over Call Money Sensitiveness; Oils Up; Coppers Active

NEW YORK, March 20.—Extreme sensitiveness of the call money market thoroughly unsettled the stock market today, although industrial news in the main continued highly favorable, and pools were able to make substantial headway in some parts of the list, particularly the oils. Call money renewed at 9 per cent, and rose to 10.

In the oils which were stimulated by reports that the curtailment measure in the California legislature is expected to pass within 60 days, and expectations of progress in curtailment plans for both domestic and foreign fields, Standard of California mounted 5 points to a new peak, and Standard of New Jersey and Shell Union nearly duplicated their previous highs for the year. Indian Refining and Houston were run up 6 to 9 points.

In the coppers, unsettled by confusion in the red metal market, Anaconda sold up nearly 6, while Greene Cananea sold down about 4 points at one time and Kennecott 3, National Lead rose 6 points to a new peak, but St. Joseph encountered profit-taking. Advance Rumley common was again heavily bought, soaring 11 points, and selling above the preferred. Otis elevator and American Express rose 9 and 10 points. American Can was bid up 4 points to a new high at 127, and the move was attributed to a powerful pool.

Steels, motors and rails were inclined to heaviness. United States Goodyear, Lambert, Montgomery Ward, Steel sold off 2½ points but rallied somewhat. American Radiator, Crossley Radio, Chrysler, General Electric, National Supply, Victor and Woolworth were among issues losing from 2 to 5 points. Macey dropped 2 points to a new low at 159.

Total sales 5,190,570 shares.

MONTREAL LIST CONTINUES WEAK

Nickel Leads Activity, but Drops; Dominion Bridge Is Active; Price Advances

MONTREAL, March 20.—The weakness that has characterized trading on the Montreal Stock exchange of late was more pronounced than ever today.

International Nickel maintained its position as leader in activity and again moved downward in the face of further strength in the New York metal markets.

The stock opened at 59 and sold down to 57¾, closing at that figure, for a loss of 1¼ points. Consolidated Smelters also exhibited a sagging tendency, selling down 8 points to 480.

Brazilian Traction with sales totalling 8332 shares, followed the general trend. This issue closed at 62½, for a net loss of 1¾ points.

Dominion Bridge was the most prominent of the balance of the of 3285 shares, and closed at 99, for a net loss of 1½ points.

Price Brothers selling ex-dividend, was an outstanding exception to the general trend, advancing 2¼ points to 73¾.

Canadian Car common was the soft feature, closing at 127½ for a net loss of 10½ points.

LIVERPOOL EXCHANGES PLEASED WITH GRADING

OTTAWA, March 20.—The Liverpool corn exchange was well satisfied with the grading and quality of the 1928 crop of Canadian wheat. Before the agricultural committee of the house of commons today, Dr. L. H. Newman, Dominion cerealist, read a letter received from the exchange in which it was stated the grading was a great improvement over other years. The improvement was appreciated by the merchants and millers in the higher prices paid for lower grades.

AFTER THE SLIDE RESUME WORK IN SLOCAN RAMBLER

Renewal and Betterment of Main Audit Now in Hand; Start Driving Mid-April

With the annual Rambler snowslide two days past, Superintendent J. M. Robertson, of the Slocan Rambler property, took up a small crew a few days ago to reopen the operations which were discontinued in mid-winter when the water shortage, due to the severe weather, struck the Slocan.

This preliminary crew will devote itself to the main adit, which has been damaged somewhat by water, will renew the drainage, and will lay 3000 feet of new rails.

It is expected that development operations with a full sized crew will be resumed about April 15, in the south drift on the 1400 level, where ore was struck in a virgin portion of the Rambler-Cariboo sheer zone, and, with an average width of 30 inches, was opened for 100 feet, with the face still in ore, at the time of the shutdown.

BEARS ACTIVE ON TORONTO MARKET

Fifteen Issues Hit New Lows; Credit Situation on Wall Street Is Felt

TORONTO, March 20.—Stocks were caught in a landslide of bearish pressure on the Toronto stock exchange today and 15 issues were driven down to new lows for the year.

Behind the curtain of depression is the uncertainty of the credit situation in Wall street.

International Nickel slipped to $57 and closed at $57⅞, off seven-eights points. Noranda opened with an overnight loss of 50c at $57.50, and fell off to close at $57, a net loss of $1. Brazilian got down to $62 on the close, off $2 while Canada Dredging and Dominion Bridge moved off two and one-half points each.

Goodyear was contrary to the general trend. The common stock gained three points.

The oil group divided. Foothills, North Star and International Pete took the upward path while Imperial, Royalite, Southwestern Pete and Home did not choose to follow.

Imperial closed one-half off and Royalite 20c off at $180. Southwestern also lost 50c.

MINING RECORDS GO BY BOARDS

Most Widespread Declining of Year; Falcon Bridge and Ventures Sympathize

TORONTO, March 20.—Many records went by the board today when stocks on the Standard Mining exchange were caught in the most widespread declining movement witnessed this year.

Falcon Bridge broke sharpy to $10, a loss of $2. Ventures sold off in sympathy, touching $11 and ending 25c higher. Home Oil was quoted at $23.50 about mid-sessions, but sagged to $21.50, up 25c from the previous close. Losses in the group included Southwest Petroleum, $1.10 to $5.25; Mayland, 75c to $9.75; Associated Gas 10c to $4.50; Dalhousie 5c to $7.05, and Foothills, 5c to $9.25. A broken lot of Royalite came out at $175, a decline of $25.

Noranda receded from $58 to $56 and closed at $56.25, down $1.25.

International Nickel sagged to $57.50, but closed 50c above that mark for a net decline of $1. Treadwell fell back 75c to $14.75. Hudson Bay Mining was down 25c to $20, and Sherritt-Gordon down 30c to $9.10.

Pacific coast issues were also soft, Pend Oreille declining 50c to $10.

Rhodesian Selection changed hands at $19, a gain of $2.

SELLING PRESSURE STRONG AT COAST

Oils Subjected to Further Profit Taking; Mine Issues Again Are Quiet

VANCOUVER, March 20.—Selling pressure was again in evidence on the stock market today, the general oil list being subjected to further profit-taking and while the list was weak during the morning session, values firmed up somewhat in the late trading, but the net change showed further losses scattered throughout the list. Mine issues were again quiet but the trade in this division showed impovement.

Dalhousie Oil was offered freely from an opening at $7, an overnight loss of 75c, down to a low of $6.75 but came back to close at $6.90 for a net loss of 85c. Home Oil opening 50c lower at $20.50, sold up to $22, closing 50c stronger at $21.50. Sterling gained 20c at $3.20 and A. P. Consolidated, on a good turnover, hardened 5c to $3.35. Royalite was traded in between $160 and $175, closing at the latter figure, unchanged. Advance Oil lost 75c to $3.50; Calmont 45c to $3.80; Freehold 10c to $2.25; Devenish 15c to $1.95; Illinois Alberta 10c to $1.90; Mayland 50c to $9.50; McLeod $1 to $6; McDougall 50c to $3.50; Hargal 35c to $1.65; Spooner 75c to $3.25, while McDougall Segur Ex and United Oils were unchanged.

In the mines Golconda firmed up 6c to $1.15 with fractional gains scored in several other issues. Grandview lost 3c to 54c; Reeves McDonald 5c to $3.55 while Pend Oreille was steady at $11.00.

MILL TESTS OF FLORENCE ORE GREAT SUCCESS

High Recoveries by Flotation; Clean Separation of Lead and Zinc

"The most significant development of late in connection with the operation of the Kootenay Florence mine at Ainsworth," states the Western Mining Review, issued monthly at Vancouver by Stobie, Forlong & Co., "is the gratifying success which attends the milling tests made by the Southewestern Engineering company.

"The ore submitted to them was substantially mine run ore. Its metal contents averaged 3.5 ounces of silver, 12 per cent lead, and 10 per cent zinc. The lead concentrates obtained averaged 18 ounces of silver, 72 per cent lead, and only 3 per cent zinc. The zinc concentrates ran 50 per cent in zinc but contained only 2 ounces of silver and 1 per cent lead.

"As a consequence, it is obvious that Kootenay Florence ore is singularly well adapted to treatment by the flotation process, as hat process effects a high concentration of the metal contents and at the same time a clean separation of the lead and zinc."

Calgary Canadians Tie Elmwoods, First Game

CALGARY JUNIORS BATTLE HARD TO SCORE TYING TALLY IN FINAL OF FAST CONTEST ON WINNIPEG ICE

Little to Choose Between Two Teams Battling for Abbott Cup; Hutton Is Star; Elmwood Presses in First Period; Johnson and Kendall Scorers

WINNIPEG, Man., March 20.—Battling desperately through sixty minutes of the fastest junior hockey witnessed here this season, Winnipeg Elmwoods and Calgary-Canadian-Falcons finished the first half of their series for the Abbott Memorial cup, emblematic of the Junior championship of Western Canada, in a deadlock. The score was one to one and the teams meet again here Friday night.

Showing slight signs of weariness after their semi-final struggle with Regina Pats last night, the Calgary squad skated even faster than they did on the previous night and they were matched in every department by the flashy Elmwoods, Winnipeg's last hope for a national hockey title.

The Manitoba champions assumed the lead with only 15 seconds time left in the second period, after having attacked the far-westerners' goal conitnuously during the 20 minutes of the session. But a furious Falcon assult in the last stanza bore fruit, and the teams will take the ice Friday night on even terms.

Rival goal-tenders and defense bore up manfully under a terrific onslaught during the entire contest. The smaller Calgary front line, augmented by the spectacular rushes of Bill Hutton, lanky defense man, bore in time and time again to give Holmes many an anxious moment, while Cameron in the Falcons' net, thrilled the large crowd by his smartness in saving shots from Elmwoods' sharp shooters.

QUEBEC CHAMPS LEAD TORONTOS IN FIRST GAME

St. Francois Xavier Win 5-1 Over Toronto University Seniors

MONTREAL, Que., March 20. — St. Francois Xavier amateur hockey champions of Quebec defeated University of Toronto, Ontario's titleholders five to one in the first contest of their two game Allan cup semi-finals here tonight. The locals thus take a four goal lead into the second game which will be played at Toronto Friday.

The Saints were full value for their win, but did not really assert their superiority until the final session when they ran in four goals to break the existing one-goal tie. The students put up a plucky fight but after holding the Saints in check for two periods, collapsed under the pressure.

The locals had a wide margin in the first session but could get only one, Ahearn shifted to beat Snyder from close range.

In the second period the Students showed their best hockey but even then they were slightly out-played by the French club. Varsity got their goal when Hetherington, a junior drafted for this game, beat Gagnon when he batted in Whitehead's rebound.

In the third period, the local pressure finally told and the Saints rushed in four goals, Brunet getting two and Pedinal and Ahearn one a piece.

Shamrocks From Ottawa Advance in Junior Play

OTTAWA, Ont., March 20.—Ottawa Shamrock Juniors advanced to the eastern semi-finals round for the Memorial hockey trophy by holding Montreal Victorias to a scoreless draw in a close-checking game here tonight. The juniors won from the Victorias in Montreal Monday by a 2 to 1 score, giving them the round by the single goal margin and the right to meet Toronto Marlboroughs for the eastern title. Which ever team comes out victor in this latter series of two games will contest the western titleholders for supremacy among the Dominion amateur puck chasers.

Middle of April Sees Basketball Finals for B. C.

WINNIPEG, Man., March 20.—The official dates for the western Canadian basketball finals were announced today by president Aldritt of the Canadian Basketball association. The dates cancel all those previously announced, the president said.

The victors of the Thunder Bay league will face the Winnipeg Toilers, Manitoba champions on April 3 and 4, the winner journeying to Regina to meet the team coming out on top in the Saskatchewan competitions on April 8 and 9. The team victorious will play the Lethbridge Y.M.C.A. Aces, champions of Alberta on April 11 and 13 at Lethbridge. The British Columbia champions will meet the winners of the latter series in British Columbia April 17 and 19.

Canadian Football Association Is Not Dealing With Arsenal

WINNIPEG, Man., March 20.—There is no foundation to the report that the Canadian Association Football authorities are negotiating with the Arsenal Football club of London, England, for a tour of the Dominion by the latter team, sometime this summer, declared Sam Davidson, secretary of the Dominion Football association, today.

"No old country club would be granted permission to play in Canada this coming summer owing to a tour already being arranged with the Welsh Football association," Mr. Davidson said.

TRAIL TO SEND STRONG LINE-UP HERE SATURDAY

First Game of Blaylock Challenge Cup Hoop Series to Be Played Here

On Saturday night the Nelson representative basketball team goes into action against the Trail team in the first of a series of home and home games for the Blaylock cup.

Since the second round of senior B basketball started three weeks ago the men on the rep team have been playing on their own original teams and in addition have been practising in their positions on the city team.

The high school regular lineup was reserved practically intact while the several additional players added, adopted the tactics used by the school team thus a workable combination was whipped into shape in the shortest possible time.

When the Trail team takes the floor on Saturday night they will be forced to exert themselves to the utmost, for the Nelson boys are out to bring the new challenge cup to their home town.

The men who will make it tough going for the Trail team have several finishing off practices scheduled before Saturday and that night will work under Al Pagdin, coach, and Irv Cuthbert, manager.

PERCY WILLIAMS EQUALS RECORD OVER 60 YARDS

Vancouver Flash Is Close Pressed at Hamilton Meet: Several Surprises

HAMILTON, Ont., March 20.—Percy Williams, Vancouver sprinting ace, after several weeks of inactivity, returned to competition tonight to win the 60-yard dash at the athletic meet here tonight. His time, 6 1-5 seconds, equalled the world's indoor record for the distance.

Williams was pressed by Johnny Fitzpatrick, Hamilton Olympic club, who, with Williams, was a member of the Canadian Olympic team. Both got away to a good start and Fitzpatrick held a slight lead at the 40-yard mark.

Williams, however, finished with the burst of speed that has made him famous and passed Fitzpatrick at the tape. Not more than an inch separated the two. Leigh Miller, Hamilton, finished third.

Paavo Nurmi, Finnish runner, gave a beautiful exhibition in winning the two mile miss and out competition from a mediocre field. Nurmi glanced at his wrist watch at the end of each lap and stayed with the field for 400 yards. He opened then with a merciless pace and soon gained a lap on the other contestants. His time was 9:23 3-5, nine seconds above the record. H. Webster, Hamilton Olympic club, was second and W. McCherky, Monarch A. C., Toronto, third.

Phil. Dewars of New York university, won the 600-yard special run easily by six yards from Fred Veit, a fellow student. Edwards a Canadian Olympic runner, made the distance in 1:12 2-4.

The Canadian ladies' relay team of Toronto established a new Dominion record in winning the 440-yard relay. Their time was 53 1-5 seconds.

Johnny Fitzpatrick won the 300-yard open event in 33 1-5 seconds. Feldman of Buffalo, ran second and Jimmy Ball of Winnipeg, third.

The surprise of the evening came when Chet Bowman and R. W. Meldman of Buffalo, held the Canadian flashes, Williams and Fitzpatrick, even on the first two legs of the one-mile international relay.

Bowman had a slight lead on (Fitz) when he handed the batton to Feldman, and Williams, two-time olympic winner, was hard put to catch up with the Buffalo boy. The Canadians forged to the front, when Ball took the stick and Edwards had an easy time keeping ahead of Veit. The time was 3:42.

ONE-ALL SCORE

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., March 20.—Boston and Philadelphia battled to a 1-to-1 overtime tie in a Canadian-American league hockey game here tonight. A victory would have clinched first place for Boston.

Canton, Ohio, council fights proposed 10-cent fare for street car and busses.

Foil-wrapped and protected

Here's a little drama my friend Carruthers recited the other day. "I used to buy 3 or 4 cigars at a time. I'd smoke one right off—one after lunch. By five o'clock I'd want another, so I'd go into my pocket, and perhaps find one cracked, the other, totally wrecked. I said to myself, 'Bill, that's wrong!' So when I saw Tucketts were putting up Pocket Packs of 5 Marguerites, foil wrapped and protected, I was converted to a '5-at-a-timer.'"

To Summer Grease

PRACTICALLY all drivers use a different grade of oil in Winter from what they use in summer. And all drivers should take the same precaution with their grease. There is a special grade of "WHIZ" GEAR GREASE for every season, and the driver who has his grease changed according to the calendar is going to get longer life, more satisfaction and greater pleasure from his car. Thin greases, for example, will not give you good lubrication during the hot summer months. But "WHIZ" GEAR GREASE has the necessary rich body and character to insure thorough lubrication—to withstand the effect of Summer heat.

Here it is about the end of March—drop in tomorrow and let your dealer clean out that old Winter grease from your transmission and differential. Don't wait until you have to turn the car in for repairs. Your dealer sells and recommends "WHIZ" GEAR GREASE.

"One pound of fresh grease added to four pounds of worn grease means five pounds of old grease."

CONFIDENCE

REAL driving comfort is not measured alone by depth of upholstery... Rather it is found in the peace of mind you have when you can trust your tires. ....Then indeed are all roads good roads to the journey's end. SILVERTOWNS are built to give that feeling...Very sturdy very strong & always absolutely dependable. Yet they cost no more.

DE VEBER HONORED BY LAUNCH CLUB; PERRIER IS HEAD

L. F. Gilbert Is Captain; Regatta to Be Held August; Expect Speed

L. B. DeVeber, for several years commodore of the Kootenay Launch club, who recently retired as manager of the Bank of Montreal here and who has left on an extensive trip, was elected honorary commodore of the launch club at its annual meeting. Mr. DeVeber was an active launch club worker here over 20 years ago, besides engaging in other sports.

Alderman A. A. Perrier was elected commodore to succeed Mr. DeVeber and L. F. Gilbert, whose Lady Bird lost out to Joe Pedicord's Peddy Boy of Spokane for the Kootenay lake motor boat championship at the regatta here last year, was elected captain. George Horstead was reelected for about his sixth term as secretary-treasurer.

G. W. Steele, W. R. Jarvis and H. W. Armshaw were elected governors.

REGATTA IN AUGUST

It was decided to hold the annual regatta and the 20-mile motor boat race for the championship, of the Kootenay lake and possession of the Patenaude shield sometime in August, the date to be fixed later. Joe Pedicord, present holder of the shield, wrote stating that he would like to bring his boat up about the middle of July, following the Cour d' Alene regatta. It was pointed out at the meeting, however, that at that time of the year there would be considerable driftwood, making it dangerous for a boat travelling at the speed necessary to win the shield.

Indications were that L. F. Gilbert's Lady Bird, which entered the championship race last year with engine trouble, would be in better shape than ever to bring the shield back to Nelson. The Lady Bird won the shield in 1924, 1925, 1926 and 1927. Club members state that outside boats will have to travel this year if they expect to be in the running for the championship.

Pedicord's boat carried off the championship last year over the 20-mile course in 28 minutes and 58 seconds.

M. L. BRUCE MAY BUILD CURLING RINK, SANDPOINT

Says Enjoyed Games Here; Writes Asking for Specifications, Data

M. L. Bruce, of Sandpoint, Ida., well known in this district in the lumber business is considering the establishment of a curling rink at Sandpoint, as the result of having participated in games at the rink of the Nelson Curling club in Rosemont during the past season, according to a letter received by the Curling club.

The letter said that he had enjoyed the game at Nelson and that he would certainly see if something couldn't be done to locate a rink at Sandpoint. He asked the Nelson club to send him data and building specifications and also information concerning the rocks and other equipment needed.

GOLFERS SOON TO OPEN NEW SEASON AT C. P. R. FLATS

Flats Fast Coming to the condition to Permit First Golf of the Year

Another undisputable sign of spring is the murmuring among the golfers of the city. Many of the more enthusiastic members of this group have been watching with impatience the rate at which the C.P.R. flats are drying up.

According to the latest report this minature golf course will be in a fit condition for a few preliminary shots on Sunday.

Though there is still a small amount of snow on the club course the recent warm weather has been taking care of this in a very efficient manner and it is expected that the course will be in shape for the first round by the first week in April.

LaJoie Victim of Nick's Hit and Run Game

By AL DEMAREE
(Former Pitcher New York Giants)

Larry LaJoie, the old Cleveland second baseman and one of the greatest sluggers of baseball history, is the latest old-timer to fall a victim to the wiles of golf.

The big Frenchman, who was one of the most graceful of tall players both on the field and at bat, has developed his game so that he is shooting in the low 80's.

One by one the old timers are falling for the Scotch pastime. I hear that Sam Crawford, the old Detroit swatsmith, is shooting a very creditable southpaw game out on the Pacific Coast. Fred Merkle, Nick Altrock, Clark Griffith, Wilbert Robinson, John McGraw, Dutch Leonard and scores of other old hitters are clouting the little white ball along the fairways and in the rough.

I expect to hear every day that Honus Wagner, Dan Brouthers, Jesse Burkett or Gabby Cravath have won some kind of a cup or championship in what Nick Altrock calls the "hit and run game."

SOO GREYHOUNDS ELIMINATED BY MARLBOROUGHS

Lose Round 7-2 in Junior Semi-Finals of East; Losers Fighting Club

TORONTO, Ont., March 20. — The Greyhounds from Sault Ste Marie, junior champions of the Northern Ontario Hockey association, again went down to defeat before Toronto Marlboroughs, junior title holders of the O.H.A. here tonight, in the second game of the eastern semi-finals of the Memorial cup playdowns, by a score of 3 to 1. The northerners were eliminated from the play off picture by a 7 to 2 count on the round. The Toronto team was never seriously threatened. The Greyhounds fell before a speedier and better balanced team. The work of Tiny Sandi Delabbio in the Soo nets was one of the outstanding features of tonight's game—and indeed of the series—for the youngsters.

A game, fighting club marked the passing of the Greyhounds. Battling against heavy odds, they never gave up, and at the end of tonight's struggle had rallied a five-man attacking force that fought back courageously but without results.

BROWNS TO USE ANOTHER ROOKIE IN THE INFIELD

Manager Dan Howley Met Success Last Year With Two and May Gamble Again

ST. LOUIS EXPECTS TO DO BETTER THIS YEAR

Outfielders in Plenty Already; Some Good Catchers Are Lined Up

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., March 20. —Manager Dan Howley of the St. Louis Browns believes that what has been done in baseball can be done again. Last season he tossed two untried youngsters into the very heart of his infield and they made good, one brilliantly. Now he is seriously considering repeating the experiment with still another lad who has never heard the roar of big league guns at close range. If he decides to gamble again with willing but inexperienced talent one of the young stars of 1928 will have to retire to the bench for a time.

Eddie Grimes, is the boy who may be given the acid test on his first trial. He is a third baseman and batted .334 for Tulsa in the western league last year. If he gets the assignment for the Browns, Frank O'Rourke, one of baseball's energetic performers, will move to the second base, temporarily forcing Otis Brannon to the bench. Grimes has shown that he can field. If he can hit he is in.

LU BLUE, KRESS COMPLETE

The infield will be completed by Lu-Blue at first base and Ralph Kress at shortstop. Kress was good last season and will be better this year, says Howley. Kress and his colleague, Brannon, after getting away to great starts lost some of the ground but were still going strong when the last curtain fell.

The Browns, who finished third in the last campaign, to the surprise of the baseball world, are confident that they can do better, even in the face of the strong American League opposition they face. They base optimistic predictions on increased reserve strength, likely additions to the pitching staff and a never-say-die spirit.

At this time last year the Browns had only two outfielders for Harry Nanush who was later to fall only one point shy of the league batting leadership, was injured. Now Nanush, Schulte and Moneely are all ready with Frank McGowan who finished in sensational style with the club, threatening to make a regular place for himself., Morris Badgro, former University of Southern California star, up from Tulsa probably will get his major league experience at first hand. Another recruit, Leonard Dondero, has a chance to qualify as an infield substitute.

SOME GOOD CATCHERS

Wally Schang, still a great catcher in spite of the approach of the baseball goblin "fat and forty" and Clyde Manion, who hit a home run as a pinch hitter although his batting average was insignificant, will tutor young Dick Ferrell as the freshman member of the catching staff. Ferrell, who does not look the 170 pounds with which he is credited, has much to learn but is willing.

The outstanding pitching recruit is Warren "Rip" Collins, a 32-year-old vetran with numerous major league service stripes. The big Texan, who had a great year in the International league last season, seems certain to succeed in his comeback effort.

COFFMAN, STRELECKI TO WORK

Manager Howley expects two of his youngsters who did little active pitching last year to be ready to take their turns in 1929. Dick Coffman and Ed Strelecki worked less than a dozen games between them in 1928 but every indication points to more activity to come. Strelecki did not win a game but he lost only two.

Alvin Crowder and Sam Gray, who won 41 games between them in the Browns' wild dash to third place, may not do so well in the new season but manager Howley hopes he will not have to look to his two aces for averages of .808 and .625 respectively.

Walter Stewart, a prominent left hander for two years with the Browns, was sick a part of last season and has never reached the heights his boosters claim await him. He has put on much needed weight and may justify the expectations of his friends at any time.

The only other left hander in the Browns camp is Oscar Estrada of Havana, who pitched for Shreveport.

The Browns cannot be classed as a great team but few aggregations can out-hustle them and they might be right in their claim that a team that will not be beaten cannot be beaten. In manager Hawley and his two coaches, Bill Killefer and Austin the club has a trio of great coaxers to extra effort.

PRESIDENT OF HUDSON MOTORS DIES, FRANCE

DETROIT, March 20.—The Detroit News says that information was received here today that Roscoe B. Jackson, president and general manager of the Hudson Motor Car company, died Tuesday night in Nentone, France, after a two-days' illness from influenza. He was 50 years old.

Cardigans of finely knitted wool are being given facings and triangular scarf collars of loosely woven tweed.

NATIONAL LEAGUE TAIL ENDERS ARE A HOPEFUL CREW

Philadelphia Club Thinks Any Change Must Be for Better This Year

HAVE STRONG INFIELD: PITCHERS ARE DOUBTFUL

Cy Williams Will Be in Reserve for Outfield; to Look for Reserves

WINTER HAVEN, Fla., March 20.—Supporters of the Philadelphia Nationals hope and believe that they have lost the jewel of consistency since the last season ended. The Phillies have consistently finished last in the National league race of late and any change must be for the better.

Early signs at the training camp indicate that Burt Shotton, now a sophomore manager, at least has a chance to push his team out of the cellar.

A large question mark remains after the pitchers' names but the rest of the line-up has been so improved that even if the pitching is no better than it was in 1928, it will show more results.

Manager Shotton is able to offer a good infield, fair outfield and two excellent catchers. He finds his stock on the shelves for emergency call low but may be able to do something in the way of replacements.

DEVELOP INFIELD

The most encouraging development for Phillie fans is in the infield. Tommy Thevenow seems certain to play great ball at shortstop. The star of the 1926, world series, when he wore a St. Louis Cardinal uniform, has recovered from a broken leg, suffered in 1927 and runs without the slightest suggestion of a limp.

Fresco Thompson at second base is an established star and Arthur Whitney, third, and Don Hurst, first, are well on the road that leads to baseball glory even with a tail end team. The 1928 season marked the first year in fast company for Whitney and Hurst and their manager believes that the experience gained under fire will show dividends this year. Whitney hit .300 in his first chance and Thompson and Hurst were not far away.

Homer Peel, who came from St. Louis by way of Houston, Texas, apparently could not be denied a place in the outfield. Chuck Klein, who was promoted from Fort Wayne last season, finished so sensationally that he will be given a chance to repeat. Lefty O'Doul, former Giant and Dennis Southern may divide outfield assignments. The veteran Cy Williams will be held in reserve.

Virgil Davis and Walter Lerian at 24 and 26 years of age, take rank with the great young catchers of the game and will share the receiving burden. A pair of Georges, Susce and Sheflott, seek the other catching places.

NEW PITCHERS

In addition to the new pitchers brought over from the 1928 season, three new ones appear to have won places on the staff. Jack Milligan, back from Syracuse, is a left hander of promise. Two right handers from the Southern association may win starting positions for themselves. Luther Roy, late of Birmingham and with previous major league trials, and Phil Collins, up from New Orleans, where he pitched in 49 games, will be given extended observation. Holdovers include Ed Baecht, Ray Benge, Alex Ferguson, Bob McGraw, Lester "Sugar" Sweetland and Claude Willoughby.

Sweetland, another Florida product, has more stuff than most southpaws but can deliver it only on occasions through lack of control. He was the only Phillie pitcher able to display any success against the champion St. Louis Cardinals last year. June Green has seemed to be a better hitter than pitcher and he may join the fast growing colony of pitchers who have been converted to more regular work elsewhere.

A lack of infield reserves may prompt Manager Shotton to go scouting for another player or two. He has only the hitting Barny Friberg and two youngsters who need experience to toss in should the shock troops falter under the attack. He may get relief through alert scanning of requests for waivers by other clubs.

Royalite 16 Made Ready for Its Test

CALGARY, Alta., March 20. — Royalite No. 16 well in the Turner Valley, is being cleaned out for a production test, and the separators will be hitched up Thursday or Friday, as soon as the hole has been blown free of loose formation it is stated officially.

The well is taking its gas flow from a depth of approximately 5000 feet or 350 feet in the limestone.

Measurement of the gas flow is not possible while the hole is being cleaned out under back pressure which is periodically released.

No change in the gas flow has been reported from Royalite No. 14, now about 240 feet in the limestone formation.

WHEAT SCORES GAINS IN THE CHICAGO PIT

CHICAGO, March 20.—Wheat scored advances in prices today at the last, notwithstanding that earlier the market had undergone a sharp setback. Indications were that the larger holdings of wheat had not been dislodged by the breaks in values, crop news early was bearish, but subsequently more two-sided.

Closing quotations on wheat were nervous at a shade to ⅜ to ½c net gain. Corn finished ½ to ¾c down, oats unchanged to ⅜c off and provisions unchanged to 12c decline.

CANADIAN CORPS WAS CHERISHED WEAPON OF ALLIES' GENERALISSIMO ROSE FROM RANKS OF FRENCH ARMY

Received Numerous Honors From Many Countries After the War; Counter-Attack on the Marne of July, 1918, Under Direction of Foch, Was Great Strategy

It is probable the verdict of history will be that two great military leaders emerged from the World war, Ludendorff, who after crushing Russia on the East front, saved the German army from defeat in 1917 and in the spring of 1918 came within an ace of final victory, and Foch, created generalissimo of the allied armies in April, 1918, who finally broke the enemy's military machine in the great series of victories which opened at Amiens on Agust 8 and terminated only with the armstice on November 11. Other commanders, including Haig, great in his steadfastness of soul, will rank high in history, but none of them attained to the military genius of these two men that sets them on a plane with the great commanders of all time.

The Canadian corps was the cherished weapon of Marshal Foch, preserved by him throughout the disasters of March, April, May and June in 1918, to become from August 8 the spearhead of the allied offensive on the West front. A Canadian war correspondent wrote at that time as follows: "Foch was asked to use the Canadian corps to stem the tide of invasion. 'No,' came the reply—so the story goes—'I cannot afford to do that. By their valor the Canadian troops won back Vimy, the most valuable of our remaining coal fields. These are the nerve centers of France. We cannot afford to entrust their defence other than in the hands of my Canadians.'"

Ludendorff has described August 8, 1918, as the "black day of the German army." The Amiens offensive was put on as a trial balloon, and proved so successwul that Foch directed attacks all up and down the line, finally crushing the enemy. In that battle Foch showed his confidence in Haig but putting the French First army under the latter's orders for the operation, and it thus came about that on August 8, 1918, the French were on the immediate right of the Canadian corps, on whose left again was the Australian corps.

IN AUGUST, 1914

August, 1914, found Foch in command of the Twentieth corps before Nancy, but he was speedily placed at the head of the newly formed Ninth army to fill the gap in the line caused by the diverging directions of retreat of the Fourth and Fifth armies. This army he commanded in the battle of the Marne, being opposed to the German Third army and part of the Second. After several crisies he finally repulsed the attack and initiated a counter stroke which proved the pivot of the French victory. It was from this battle that there arose the story of his message to Marshal Joffre: "My right is crushed. My left is in retreat. I am attacking with my center."

In 1916 Foch's group of armies supplied the French element in the battle of the Somme. Toward the close of that battle, his reputation underwent a temporary eclipse, motived no doubt largely by the disappointment felt in both England and in France as to the results; but also and perhaps moreby somewhat obscure domestic intrigues within the French staff. At that time the movement for Joffre's supresession had come to a head and, it is said, his adherents within the headquarters sought to maintain him in power by suggesting that Foch, the most likely candidate for the place, was broken down in health. Though this did not prevent the removal of Joffre it excluded Foch from the succession. General Nivelle was appointed commander-in-chief and a certain control by him over the British forces was agreed to by Mr. Lloyd George's government, then newly in office. Foch was relieved of his command and sent first to the Swiss frontier to report on the possibilities of attack and defence in that quarter and then to Italy to negotiate with the comando supremo as to aid from France in case of a disaster of Cadorna's forces. But on March 15, 1917, after the tragic failure of Nivelle's offensive and the supersession of that general by Petain called Foch to Paris as chief of the general staff of the French army.

ADVANCES RAPIDLY

But in this capacity his influence became really effective only after the accession to power of the Clemenceau ministry in November. From that point to the events of March, 1918, the evolution of Foch's authority was rapid. He was first, as adviser to Clemenceau and as a soldier whose counsels carried more weight than those of any other, a powerful indirect influence in the inter-allied discussions as to the plan of campaign for 1918. Then as French member of the "executive committee," a sort of board of inter-allied command founded in January, 1918, he took his place almost as de jure president of that body. Lastly, the storm of the German offensive broke on the British Fifth army on March 21, and although Haig and Petain managed by cordial co-operation to reconstruct the broken line and check the German advance, the situation was so critical that the last step was taken. On March 27 by general consent Foch was nominated to coordinate the operations of the British and French in France. On April 14 the title and authority of commander-in-chief was granted to him by the two governments concerned, and on April 15, 17 and May 1, respectively, by the Belgian, American and Italian governments.

On August 6, 1918 Foch was made marshal of France. In the interval the Germans had renewed their offensives four times, and more than once there had been a crisis as grave as that of March when Haig and Petain had had to face, notable on May 27. But these crisises had been surmounted and toward the end of June, with his resources greatly augmented through the emergency measures taken by the American government, the British sea transport authorities and General Pershing in France, he could begin preparations for his counter-offensive. From September 26 to the armistice, the whole front from the sea to Verdun was one continuous battlefield, controlled by one commander-in-chief. An extension of this battlefield into Lorraine, where the final blow was to be delivered on November 14, was only prevented by the capitulation of the enemy.

HIGHEST HONORS

After the war Marshal Foch received the highest honors from his own country and from the allies. In one of his frequent visits to London he was created a field marshal in the British army, and he was also awarded the Order of Merit. He became a member of the Academie Francaise in 1919. He visited Montreal in December 11, 1921, and received a warm welcome. Amid the clamor of church bells, whistles and shouts of thousands of persons who turned out to greet him the marshal and his party were driven from Windsor station to the civic library in open carriages. Rising repeatedly from his seat, the generalissimo, who wore no overcoat despite the crispness of the weather, saluted and smiled happily. At the library an official committee received the French war hero in the first of a series of ceremonies which took up the seven hours he remained in the city. At this period also he had a great reception in the United States.

Ferdinand Foch was born at Tarbes October 2, 1851, his father being a civil official and his mother's father an officer of Napoleon's army. Educated at Tarbes, Rodez and finally the Jesuit colleges of St. Michel (Loire) and St. Clement (Metz), he was preparing for the entrance examination for the Ecole Polytechnique in November 1871. On being commissioned in 1873 he was posted to the artillery, in which army the whole of his regimental service was spent. As a captain he became a student of the staff college (Ecole de Guerre) in 1885 and left, with fourth place, in 1887.

From this time until 1901, save for a period in which as major he commanded a group of horse artillery batteries, his work lay in the general staff of the army, the staff of formations and the Ecole de Guerre. It was in the Ecole de Guerre that he developed his doctrines and his influence on the education of the army. From 1895 he was assistant-professor, and from 1898, as lieutenant-colonel, professor of military history and strategy in that institution, first under General Langlois and then under General Eonnal, the two leaders of military thought, whose work with his own to complete it, established the new French doctrines of war, based on re-study and application to modern conditions of Napoleon's practice. This is the key idea to Foch's classical treatises, Principes de Guerre and La Direction de la Guerre.

SEIZED HOUR OF VICTORY

Nominated to the supreme command in the hour of direst peril, Foch, unshaken, calm and steadfast, applied to that situation the doctrines he had preached at the French staff college and it was these same qualities that enabled him to seize the hour of victory when it offered four months later. In his book Foch quotes with approval the saying of Joseph Maistre: "A battle lost is a battle which the army believes to be lost, for a battle cannot be lost materially." Conversely, he writes: "A battle gained is a battle in which the army refuses to admit itself beaten." Foch goes on to say: "No victory can be won without a vigorous command, greedy of responsibilities and ready for bold enterprises, possessing and inspiring in all the energy and resolution to go to the very end."

Haigh and Foch had the common quality of tranquility of soul, that faced the blackest hour without despair. Poles apart as they were in temperament, they must have yet well understood the one the other.

DUE TO FOCH'S GENIUS

It becomes more and more clear that the Allied victory of 1918 was above all due to the genius of Foch. As Napoleon said, "With a great general no action is executed which is the fruit of chance or fortune; everything is the result of combination and talent."

Major-General Sir Neil Malcolm has written thus: "How strange, too, that of the great names which will go down to history in connection with the campaign of 1918 two at least are those men who had seen little or nothing of war before 1914—Foch and Ludendorff. For more than 40 years Foch had no experience of anything but peace soldiering; Ludendorff heard an enemy's rifle and saw his own men drop for the first time in his life near Vise on August 9, 1914. Both had mastered every detail of their art, not in the open field but in the solitude of study. Each in his own way was an artist, but of the two it was Foch who had the inspiration, 'the fire in his belly,' which is the sign of the true master."

Speaking of Foch's counter-attack on the Marne of July 1918, Sir Neil writes: "The surprise was complete and by nightfall the German flank was crushed and Von Boehn's principal line of communications was in Mangin's hands. But more than this had happened. For at one blow Foch had passed from the defensive to the offensive, and had seized the initiative, on a more comprehensive scale but in the form made classic by the great commanders of history. The initiative, once chosen, was never relinquished but was followed by a series of rapid and vigorous blows, beginning with a brilliant attack by the British IV army south of the Somme on August 8. From that moment until 11 a.m. on November 11 the German army knew no rest, but was pushed from one position to another by the victorious forces of many nationalities, into all of which Foch had been able to instill something of his own personality and surprising vigor.

TIME TRULY CHOSEN

"The time as well as the direction of the counter-stroke had been truly chosen, for, after acting on the offensive through four strenuous months the German infantry had exhausted its strength and moral defection and despondency had spread from the homeland to the armies in the field. It is Foch's eternal glory that he had the moral daring to wait until this moment had come. So the great counter-stroke of 1918 had in it all the elements which had gone to make the success of exactly similar, if smaller, efforts in former campaigns. It was carefully prepared as an integral part of the general plan of campaign; it was directed against an adequate strategic objective; it came as a surprise; and it was correctly timed. Perfect in conception and execution, it met with its reward, but the curious thing is that it contained nothing new. What the world really saw on that July morning of 1918 was the touch of the artist who knew how to express old ideas in modern terms of war—for Foch was bigger than the tools he handled."

All of Foch's moves in the war were directed toward the same end—to tear down the enemy strength. Hindenburg fought with a bludgeon, a broadsword. Foch wielded a rapier with lightning-like thrusts at vital spots.

The quintuple conflict, the greatest in all history, in which the Allies recaptured in three weeks ground that had cost the Germans four months of hardship and superhuman struggle as well as 1,000,000 men to attain, was at its height on November 2.

STATUS AT TIME

Its status was somewhat as follows: The American army, with Sedan as its objective, was attacking on both sides of the Meuse. One French army was battling in conjunction with the Americans, left of the Aisne for Mezierea. Another French and British army was pressing forward between the River Oise and the city of Valenciennes, with Maubeuge and Mons as their goal. The British and Belgians were driving ahead in Flanders for Tournai and Chent, south of the Oise, between that river and the Aisne, another French army battered its way toward the important railway junctions at Vervia and Hirson. Roughly, this constituted Foch's "vise" in which the enemy was being squeezed.

The Germans held on desperately but, even "as the stars in their course fought against Sisers," were forced to yield. And then came that eventful day when the enemy, practically routed by the superior strategy of Foch, sent its embassy praying for an armistice. It was the according to a correspondent for the Paris Matin, that Mathias Erzberger, one of the German plenipotentiaries, extending his hand to Foch, declared:

"Marshal, we are at your mercy. Our reserves of men and ammunition are exhausted and we can no longer continue the war."

The famous "Hindenburg line," supposed by many military experts to be impregnable and which not a few believed, eventually, would bring about a stalemate, had been pierced by Foch's legions. The Germans' dike was broken. The enemy, moreover, had suffered tremendous loss and the Allies' casualties were comparatively light. Foch's speed and decision, his scientific calculation, were too much for the Germans despite their boasted prowess as warriors.

SACRIFICE THE ENEMY

An American correspondent, referred to the wanton slaughter permitted by the German commander, to which Foch laughingly replied:

"Did not your own General Grant believe that battles could not be won without sacrificing men?"

"That is true," admitted the American. "If you win you are obliged to sacrifice men."

"Do not misunderstand me," quickly replied the generalissimo, a twinkle in his eye. "It's the Germans that I sacrifice. I never throw away my own soldiers.

No wonder the poilus and the officers under this wonderful military genius obeyed him. Although tactiturn and impetuous he always seemed to act with "clear thinking impulsiveness" following by the dash and headlong attack that assured victory.

Speaking to a group of officers one night Foch is reported to have said:

"First find out your enemy's weak point and concentrate your blows there. That is a commonplace of tactics which is self-evident."

"But General," broke in an officer of artillery, "suppose your enemy has no weak points? That sometimes happens?"

"Certainly," replied Foch. "And in that case you make a weak point."

Again and again he would quote Joseph de Maitre's aphorism, "a battle lost is a battle which one believes to have lost, for battles are not lost materially," and he would add: "Battles therefore are lost morally, and it is morally, therefore, that they are won."

Thus the premier soldier gave the keynote to his successful career as a fighter and leader of men. Given a good cause he believed his armies and himself to be invincible. For years before the strugle with the Central Powers began, Foch had been preaching "preparedness" to France.

BATTLE OF MARNE

In the first battle of the Marne, Foch's army of 120,000 men held the line from La Pere Champenoise to Mondement. They were opposed by 209,000 Germans, including the Prussian Guard, the "flower" of the German army. At times the pressure was so great it seemed the thin French line must break. Aides came up to Foch with reports that the right and left wings had been compelled to give ground.

"In that case there is nothing to do but smash in the center," calmly responded Foch, adding: "Order up the Moors!"

General Dubois with the Moroccan riflemen struck so hard in the center that the Prussian Guard was thrown back into the St. Gond marches. Retiring south of Chalons, Foch discovered an airplane reconnaisance that two German armies had failed to make a junction and left a gap in their line near Vitry-Is-Francaie. Immediately the French commander thrust a huge wedge of infantry supported by heavy artillery into this gap and had them well established before the Germans awoke to their oversight. The result was a German panic and retreat in which the invaders suffered heavily.

Later Foch aided the British in preventing the enemy from getting through to Calais in their first blow at Ypres. In 1915 he directed the offensive at Artois which was a partial French success in spite of inferior strength, and in 1916 he was partly responsible for the advance in the battle of the Somme.

Retired from active service in April, 1917 at the age of 66 years, it was thought the fighting days of Foch were over. He then became one of the most important advisors of the French government and was the French military member of the supreme council at Versailles when made commander-in-chief.

The complete subordination of the British, French, Italian and American commanders—Haig, Petain, Pershing and Diaz—to the leadership of Ferdinand Foch, was one of the remarkable achievements of the war. He said "It touched me deeply."

This feeling was expressed by Marshal Foch when, after the signing of the armistice, General Pershing presented to him the American Distinguished Service medal, "as a token of the gratitude of the American people for your achievement and for the great services you have rendered to our army."

After his victory in the first battle of the Marne, Foch was promoted to be grand marshal in the Legion of Honor. King George of England conferred upon him the Order of the Bath. He was made marshal of France in August, 1918.

Fossil Bones of Primitive Man Found in Africa

PRETORIA, South Africa, March 20.—Fossil bones indicating the early existance of a powerful type of large-sized man closely related to the negroid race in Transvaal have been found in the Springbok flats in the northern part of the state. Although it has not yet been ascertained to which group of primitive man the remains belong they are said to be of the heavy Cromagnon type and may be more primitive.

The bones were found with the remains of an extinct gigantic buffalo and the broken condition of the skull and other bones suggest that the hunter and the hunted died together. The lower jaw is powerful but small chinned. The teeth are similar to those of the Rhodesian man.

LEGION MEMBERS STAND SILENT IN TRIBUTE TO FOCH

Announcement of Passing of Great Soldier Brings Hush to Banquet-Smoker

LENGTHY PROGRAM IS MUCH ENJOYED

Boxing Bout One of Many Interesting Numbers; Many Local Artists Appear

Announcement that death had come to Marshal Foch, France's grand old soldier, head of the French war college, then in command of the central French army at the battle of the Marne, then advisor to the supreme war council, and lastly in supreme command in the allied forces on the western front when the German drive was turned back and the war was finally won, brought a hush to the big gathering of active and honorary members of the Nelson branch of the Canadian Legion last night at their banquet and smoker in the Legion gymnasium.

The announcement was made by President Fred Hartwig, and at his suggestion festivities were halted, while the assemblage arose, and stood with bowed heads for the duration of a minute in silent tribute to the memory of the great soldier who had lead the allied armies to victory.

Over three hours was consumed with the banquet, and the program that followed, the banquet being opened with two minutes' silence for the fallen, the singing of "O Canada," and a skirl of the pipe sand roll of the drum by Piper Hugh Middleton of Willow Point and Drummer Claude Miller. At its conclusion President Hartwig welcomed the company and asked the cooperation of active and honorary members for the object of the Legion.

VARIED PROGRAM

E. M. Gillott was chairman for the smoker, the program opening with banjo selections by T. Crannage, "Sweet Memories" and a medley of southern airs. Jim Beaty gave two recitations, "Hunting the Skunk" and "My Mate." These were followed by one of the events of the evening, a "talkalogue" by G. S. Rees on his trips to the old battlefields of France and Belgium. Two baritone solos by J. P. Pitner, "One Alone" from "The Desert Song" and "West of the Great Divide," H. Barwood being accompanist, brought this section of the program to a close.

Madden in Italian and Swedish dialect

Humorous monologues by Tommy and selections by the orchestra were "Ebony Kid," and Don Ackert, future rounds of boxing by Tim Paris, the an introduction to a dashing three failway magnate, Joe Holland acting as Paris' second, while Dave Wade was towel Wielder for Arcket. The "Kid" did most of the leading, but Ackert with the advantage in weight and reach, had the mastery of the ring, particularly toward the end, and when Referee Dean Pearce raised the arms of both boxers in token of a draw the decision was highly popular.

BRAKE STRESSES LEGION'S WORK

E. Y. Brake, one of the oldest of the honorary members, gave a brief address on the work of the Legion, and stressed the opportunity the honorary members had to assist in it.

Claude Knowles, magicion extraordinary, gave a very interesting exhibition of the black art, making billiard balls appear and disappear under hats, and coins and hankerchiefs vanish in a variety of ways, restoring Joe Holland's watch unharmed to his pocket after smashing it, and extricating himself from a stout mail sack after Gene Poulin tied him in it.

J. Toulson's piano numbers were undoubtedly the hit of the program, and when the last encore had been given he had given four of them, "Hungarian Rhapsody" by Kawalsky, "Etude" by Chopin, "Prelude in C Sharp Minor" by Rachmaninoff, and "Turkish March" by Beethoven.

A hearty vote of thanks was extended to the artists for their services.

ENDS IN SING-SONG

The last part of the program was free and easy, Piper Middleton and Drummer Miller rendering "Cock o' the North" by request, a vocal quartet composed of Len Webb, J. W. Mulholland, Ben Bowles and Sid Ball singing "Sweet Adeline," Jib Beaty giving more recitations and Ben Bowles a song, Gene Poulin leading in the singing of "Allouette" with the assembly singing "I Love You, Canada," and "Pack Up Your Troubles in Your Old Kit Bag." It was after 10 when the national anthem brought the affair to a successful conclusion.

MRS. J. ARMSTRONG GIVES A READING

Paper on "Drums in the Darkness" Heard by W. M. S.; Several Others

Papers of outstanding interest were read at a meeting of the Women's missionary society Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. R. Armstrong presiding.

Mrs. R. Smillie read a short paper on Christian stewardship showing the meaning of the term steward when applied to Christian life.

The study book for the Women's Missionary society this year, "Drums in the Darkness" gives an account of the founding of Christian church in Angola, eastern Africa.

Mrs. D. Maloney gave a description of Angola, its situation, climate, government and habits of natives.

Mrs. J. Armstrong gave a paper on "Drums in the Darkness."

Dr. Anna Smith was appointed press secretary for the ensuing year.

MRS. ARMSTRONG'S PAPER

The first chapter of "Drums in the Darkness" gave a general description of Africa, "the largest single continent in the world," and introduced the province of Portuguese Angola. This part was opened to missions through Livingstone's journeys and later by the American Congregational church, pioneers in missionary effort. The United church has joined with them now.

The second chapter gave a description of every-day life of the Angolan native and concluded with the words "The work of Christianizing this people will be slow and tedious but one worth all the labor."

MILLION DOLLAR BEQUEST

A $1,000,000 bequest which opened up the way for the Congregational church in Angola was told of in the third chapter. The care used in choosing the best possible men for the task was emphasized. These were the men who made the first alphabet and taught the natives to read and it was their wives who gave the native women their first ideas about heaven in their home life.

The fourth chapter dealt with the mission field; the war and bloodshed that preceded the visit of Walter Currie and his bride, to Angola; the ultimate reward of Mr. Currie, who although his bride died shortly after his arrival in Angola, carried on and lived to see the natives turn to the new faith, with the 35 years of devoted service of Miss Amy Johnson, who during their work married Mr. Currie and who died recently. It told of the native gardens of today, which are considered the best in Africa and of the 20,000 who go each year to the doctor at Chisauiba.

The fifth chapter told of Kanjundo, a prince who was stern, very severe in discipline and a great follower of ancient customs and home heathen practices. This prince went to listen to Mr. Currie to scoff and sneer but later embraced the new faith and helped amazingly to establish the religion.
