SUICIDE PACT MAY BE MISTEP, DRINKING BOUT

Opinions Differ at Ottawa on Events Leading to Canal Scene

SIX ARRAIGNED FOR VAGRANCY

Inquest Into Death of Two Adjourned for Further Investigation

OTTAWA, Sept. 21 (CP). — A coroner's jury was called today to determine if two war veterans, drowned in the Rideau canal here last night, were victims of a suicide pact or of mischance during a drinking brawl.

Opinions differed tonight. Chief of Police Emile Joliat entertained the view the men, John J. Clark and Daniel O. McLean, had fallen to their death in the 35-foot canal during a drinking bout with six comp ons. Crown Attorney J. A. Ritchie, K.C., thought the circumstances so peculiar that he ordered the inquest. First reports were that the men leaped into the canal after agreeing to a mass suicide pact with their companions, all of whom were intoxicated.

The inquest was adjourned until Monday, September 26, to permit time for further police investigation.

The victims' companions, all ex-service men who had been unemployed for many months, were arraigned in court today on charges of vagrancy. A remand was granted until next week.

EIGHT POINTS IN ROOSEVELT UTILITY PLAN

MUNICIPAL AUDITORIUM, PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 21.—Franklin D. Roosevelt laid down tonight an eight-point program for controlling public utilities and said he favored giving the people the right to operate their own power business when essential to "protect them against inefficient service or exhorbitant charges."

Crowds wedged into the entrances so tightly that members of Roosevelt's party had considerable difficulty in fighting their way into the auditorium.

With regard to regulation of the companies engaged in the power business, the candidate proposed:

Publicity with regard to their securities and earnings.

Publicity on the stocks and bonds they and their officers own and upon inter-company contracts.

Regulation by the federal power commission of utility holding companies.

Cooperation of the power commission with state public utilities commissions to regulate and control such companies.

Holding the issuance of securities to the level of "prudent investment."

Establishing the "actual money prudent investment principle" to supplant the reproduction cost theory as a basis of rate-making.

Prohibiting the "publication of false or deceptive matter" on public utilities.

NEW SOUTH WALES TURNS CORNER OF FINANCE TROUBLE

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Sept. 21 (CP cable)—New South Wales finances are believed to have turned the corner after a difficult period following the election of B. S. B. Stevens as premier of the state last May in succession to J. T. Lang, dismissed from office after a long battle with the commonwealth government over non-payment of overseas debts.

The current year's expenditure of nearly 50,000,000 pounds represented a reduction of 7,000,000 pounds from last year.

SURE DEATH BALKED

Former Student Saved by Professor in Life Test of Cyanide Antidote

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., Sept. 21.—A "human guinea pig," saved from a suicide's grave through an experimental test, came back from death to write his own report of the scientific discovery of the only antidote for potassium cyanide.

His own story of the rescue from death, which was being prepared today as he lay in a hospital bed, will be written in an effort to repay his former college professor for his life.

For the past 10 years Dr. J. C. Geiger, director of public health here, has been working on an antidote for potassium cyanide, deadliest poison known to science. Methylene blue, he discovered eventually, would save guinea pigs.

But would it save a human? Dr. Geiger didn't know.

It was at this stage of the experimental work that Cuthbert Rieveley, 30, a former student of Dr. Geiger's who had been jobless for months, found life too much of a burden and took cyanide. Dr. Geiger was summoned.

When the doctor arrived, however, Rieveley was unconscious and on the verge of death. There was nothing known to medical science at large which could have saved him.

Without haste, Dr. Geiger injected methylene blue into the veins of the dying man. A short time later Rieveley, to his own astonishment, became conscious. Within a few hours he had been pronounced out of danger.

EAGLE IS KILLED BY TWO WOMEN AN COLLIE DOG

QUESNEL, B. C., Sept. 21.—An eagle which tackled a collie dog owned by Jim Donnelly of Dragon Lake, near Quesnel, is being stuffed by a taxidermist here. The great bird, which had a 98-inch wing spread, after being driven off by the combined efforts of the collie, Mrs. Donelly, armed with an axe, and Miss Alison Smith, Mrs. Donnelly's sister, who discharged a .22 calibre rifle, returned to attack the dog. It was finally shot by Miss Smith, but not before it had inflicted painful and severe injuries to the neck and shoulders of the collie.

YOUTH DEFIES JUSTICE, COURT

Refuses to Disclose Identity of Companion in Shooting Affray

VANCOUVER, Sept. 21—Nineteen-year-old Frank Stewart defied Mr. Justice W. A. MacDonald in assize court this afternoon to compel him to disclose the identity of a companion who assisted in a shooting affray during a hold-up of Olympic cafe, West Pender street on July 4.

After pleading guilty to a charge of shooting at E. B. Perry, the restaurant proprietor, with intent to do grievous bodily harm, Stewart took the witness stand in defence of Louie Dubos, who was charged with him.

Perry had identified Stewart as the bandit with the gun, and Dubos as his companion, who stood near the cash register to receive the money. The cafe proprietor refused to open the till, and, as he retreated from proximity to the gun man, the latter opened fire and shot him through the shoulder with a 45 calibre revolver bullet.

Stewart, auburn haired youth, who gave his occupation as assistant bookkeeper, which examination disclosed, had been acquired while an inmate of the penitentiary, swore that he had never seen Dubos until he met the latter in the city jail after his, Stewart's, arrest on July 7.

HAROLD HUXLEY IS FOUND DEAD; SUICIDE THOUGHT

LLOYDMINSTER, Alta., Sept. 21—(CP).—Harold Huxley, former mayor of Lloydminster and secretary of the Western Canada Fairs association, was found shot to death in his office today from what police believe was a self-inflicted wound.

NOTIFICATION ON RELIEF TO BE HELD, TIME

Executive of Municipal Union to Protest Move Against Transients

VICTORIA, Sept. 21—The provincial government has decided to withhold, for the time being, formal notification to municipalities that the official scale of relief to families will be reduced to $15 for couples and an additional $2.50 for each dependant. Hon. W. A. McKenzie, minister of labor, today stated that, following conversations with Reeve Crouch, vice-president of the Union of British Columbia Municipalities, and Mayor Leeming of Victoria, the proposed announcement had been delayed to enable the government to give the matter further consideration.

On Tuesday morning, the who'e executive of the Union of Municipalities will appear at the parlia-

U. S. SENATOR ADMONISHED

PARIS, Sept. 21 (AP).—France and England were understood in authoritative American circles tonight to have given Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania an impression of "caution and reserve" on the subjects of Manchuria and Japan.

This became known as the Pennsylvania senator left for the Riviera after conversations in London and Paris with Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald and Sir John Simon, secretary of state for foreign affairs of Great Britain, and Premier Edouard Herriot of France.

It was emphatically pointed out that while Senator Reed had no official mission or authority to conclude agreements, he did not receive first-hand knowledge in his capacity as a senator.

GOLD SALVAGE VESSEL GETS FOURTH CARGO

PLYMOUTH, England, Sept. 21 (AP).—The Italian salvage ship Artiglio II today deposited at this port a fourth cargo of gold retrieved from the sunken liner Egypt. The latest haul was the equivalent of $450,000, making the total salvaged $3,250,000 out of the $5,000,000 in bullion in the Egypt's strong room when she sank in 1922.

Transportation Highlights

OTTAWA, Sept. 21 (CP).—Highlights of the transportation commission report:

Three trustees to replace C.N.R. directorate of 17.

New C.N.R. trustee commission to confer regularly with three C.P.R. directors on cooperative measures and services.

All disagreements at such conferences to go before arbitral tribunal. This body to constitute chief of railway commission and one nominee from C.N.R and C.P.R.

In major disagreements, two additional members to be appointed to an arbitral tribunal, if president of exchequer court should decide it advisable.

Either C.N.R., C.P.R., Dominion, or any provincial government may invoke powers of arbitral tribunal.

Order or decision of arbitral tribunal to prevail in any dispute between tribunal and board of railway commissioners.

Aggressive competition should cease in regard to subsidiary services, such as hotels, telegraph systems and express services.

New C.N.R. trustee commission and C.P.R. board of directors to agree on schemes permitting harmonious working of these services now operating competitively.

DUPLICATION

Unwarranted duplication in services or facilities must be eliminated.

Cooperative measures must be adopted by two railways to remove unnecessary or wasteful services or practices.

Joint operation of properties which may be conveniently and without detriment to either party so operated is recommended.

Sums required to meet deficits of C.N.R. should be voted by parliament and not raised by issue of railway securities as formerly.

Continuous audit of C.N.R. accounts to be made by auditors appointed by parliament. These reports to be made to parliament.

Annual budget of C.N.R. to be under control of trustees; but first submitted to treasury board for approval and presentation to parliament by finance minister.

Responsibility for control of C.N.R. upon chairman and associate trustees—but provision urged for appointment of chief operating officers, with titular rank of president, under whose care will come details of working of railways.

TRUSTEES APPOINT

Appointment of chief operating officer or president to be made by trustees, to whom president will be responsible, and not directly to government or parliament.

Necessity of joint action by C.N.R. and C.P.R. with view to savings in wider sphere emphasized.

PRACTICAL SOLUTION

Main measures held by commission to be necessary to a practical solution of Canadian railway problem are:

1. Identity of the two railway systems should be maintained.
2. Management of the national railways should be emancipated from political interference and community pressure.
3. Machinery should be provided for cooperation between the two systems for elimination of duplicate services and facilities and avoidance of extravagance.
4. The attainment of a scale of economies which will bring C.N.R. burdens within reasonable dimensions and effectively check extravagant and costly operation.
5. Provide reasonable protection for privately owned undertakings against arbitrary action by the publicly owned undertaking which might affect unfairly interests of privately owned undertaking.

GAS COMPANY IS DEFUNCT

CALGARY, Sept. 21 (CP).—New Illinois-Alberta, Limited, Turner Valley gas company, is defunct, and shareholders will receive nothing for their holdings, it was announced today by the Canadian Credit Men's Association, liquidators for the firm.

BULLET FROM UNKNOWN KILLS COAST HUNTER

NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C., Sept. 21 (CP).—"John Alexander Renton came to his death as a result of a wound caused by a bullet fired by a person or persons unknown," was the verdict returned by the coroner's jury investigating the death of the 23-year-old hunter whose body was found Monday.

Renton left his home at Essondale early Saturday morning on a lone hunting trip. When he failed to return home Saturday evening a search party was organized. Monday his body was located at the bottom of a cliff in a canyon three miles from Essondale. His rifle, unfired, was found 6½ feet from the body. It was fully loaded, and the safety catch was on, Provincial Constable D. A. Hazelton testified.

Dr. O. Vanetter, who performed the autopsy, stated death was caused by a bullet piercing the left lung, causing internal hemorrhage. Renton's neck was not broken, as at first surmised.

Provincial police gave evidence to the effect that the bullet had been fired from above, probably from the other side of the canyon, a distance of some 40 to 60 feet.

McGeough Charges May Flash Again

VICTORIA, Sept. 21 (CP).—The McGeough charges, which have flashed across the political horizon of British Columbia occasionally during the present year, may display themselves again.

M. H. McGeough, former director of unemployment in the province for the Dominion, first charged extravagance in the expenditure of relief moneys, when he appeared before a special committee of the legislature last spring. Recently he wrote a letter to the lieutenant-governor asking his honor to take it upon himself to investigate the charges, one of which was that money to the extent of $1,000,000 had been diverted from those who should have received it as relief, and spent in some other way.

The government took the stand that the charges had been sufficiently dealt with by the special committee of the legislature last session, but recently it is reported that Hon. R. W. Bruhn, minister of public works, and Hon. J. W. Jones, minister of finance, insist upon a complete vindication of their work. It is understood, however, that the government does not wish to appoint a costly royal commission, and it is quite probable that any investigation would be left to a chartered accountant with power to hear all witnesses.

WINDSOR, N. S., Sept. 21 (CP)—Sydney A. Rafuse early tonight was found guilty on two charges of conspiring and attempting to rob the Royal bank branch at Shubenacadie.

On the third charge of attempting to wound a police officer by providing one of the bandits with a revolver, Rafuse was found not guilty.

CANADIAN TRADE SHOWS LARGE FAVORABLE BALANCE FOR YEAR

Exports Exceed Imports by $38,684,390; Marked Contrast to 1931

OTTAWA, Sept. 21 (CP).—During the 12 months ending August Canada's excess of exports over imports was $38,684,390, but in the year ending August, 1931, the excess of imports over exports was $45,132,042, and in the year ending August, 1930, the excess of imports was $103,506,231, says a report issued today by the Dominion bureau of statistics.

It is the trade with the United Kingdom which is responsible for this favorable balance. During the year ending August, 1932, the excess of exports to Great Britain over imports was $75,335,916, compared with $64,461,428 in the previous 12 months, the report adds.

Imports from the United States exceeded the exports to that country in the last 12 months by $8,632,709 and in the previous 12 months by $170,471,489.

GANDHI HOLDS TO DEATH FAS

POONA, Sept. 21 (AP)—Two day without food have left Mahatm Gandhi looking famished, a friend said after visiting him today, but otherwise his health does not appear to be impaired.

But if he should continue his hunger strike for as long as 10 days, it is feared his condition might be so weakened he would be unable to participate in political discussions and perhaps never could regain his strength.

Indian political leaders hastened their efforts to effect a compromise between the caste Hindus and depressed classes. The mahatma began this fast as his only means of protest against a plan to provide a separate electorate for the Indian untouchables. Such a system, he maintains, would serve to entrench the caste system more strongly. The hunger strike, he informed the British government, is his weapon in the "fight to the death" for a liberated India."

CAPONE TRIES GAIN FREEDOM

Lands Back in Prison a Scant Half Hour After His Move

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 21 (AP)—Al Capone, Chicago's one time gang chieftain, tried to gain his freedom from the Atlanta federal penitentiary via the habeas corpus route today but spent a scant half hour in the open before he was whisked back to prison by a squad of federal officers.

Federal Judge Marvin Underwood received the petition for a writ, filed without warning by Capone's attorneys, and signed the order returnable immediately. Forty minutes later Capone was in court for a brief five minutes before the judge. The hearing was set for October 17—and Capone's vacation was over.

He is serving a 10-year sentence for violations of the income tax laws in 1926, 1927 and 1928. The petition for a writ set forth the statute of limitations prevents his imprisonment.

William J. Hughes Jr. of Washington, attorney for Capone, said a Boston broker was charged with violation of income tax laws under similar conditions to Capone's case. The supreme court held the statute of limitations applied after a period of three years and that offences committed more than three years before cannot result in conviction.

GERMAN SOCIALISTS REMOVE THREAT

BERLIN, Sept. 21 (AP).—National Socialists in the Prussian diet removed the threat of a struggle with the National government today by presenting a resolution to the effect that so long as the present diet government of Prussia observes the constitution, the diet and other officials do likewise.

Prussia is still governed by a federal commission appointed some time ago by Chancellor von Papen, to replace the disunited Prussian cabinet.

On August 31 Communists in the Prussian diet, supported by National Socialists, passed a resolution demanding the president abolish the dictatorial government and Prussian officials be permitted to ignore the orders of the federal commissioner.

MEASURES BROUGHT DOWN TO BE UNDER THREE MAIN HEADS STATES PREMIER R. B. BENNETT

Would Ensure Complete Independence From Political Interference and Community Pressure: Irresponsibility Terminated

LEGISLATION WILL BE ON COMPREHENSIVE STUDY OF THE TRANSPORTATION PROBLEMS

Report Provides Commission of Three to Replace the Present 17; Duplication and Waste of Two Systems to Be Eliminated

OTTAWA, Sept. 21 (CP).—Parliament will be asked to pass legislation implementing recommendations of the royal commission on transportation at the coming session, Prime Minister R. B. Bennett announced this today in a statement made public when a summary of the commission's findings was issued. The report will be laid before parliament when it meets, October 6.

The legislation which parliament will be asked to approve, the prime minister said, will ensure:

(a) The physical integrity of the Canadian National railway system and its complete freedom rom political interference and community pressure.

(b) The termination of the era of financial responsibility on the part of the management of the Canadian National railways, which should make possible the inauguration of measures which will at once reduce, and, I believe, in time eliminate, the operating deficits of the National line, while preserving and increasing the effectiveness of their service to the country as a whole.

(c) The termination of the era of aggressive and unprofitable competition between the Canadian National railway and the Canadian Pacific railway by the provision of a plan of cooperation designed to avoid unnecessary and wasteful duplication of services.

to avoid unnecessary and wasteful duplication of services.

The prime minister expressed confidence that "the measures taken to preserve the integrity of the Canadian National railway system and to relieve Canada from the heavy drain upon its national exchequer, will receive the unqualified support of the Canadian people."

COMMISSION OF THREE TRUSTEES

OTTAWA, Sept. 21 (CP)—Appointment of a commission of three trustees in whom shall be vested all the powers of the present board of directors of the Canadian National railways is one of the outstanding recommendations of the commission on railways and transportation. A summary of the report was made public early this afternoon by Prime Minister R. B. Bennett.

The annual budget of the Canadian National system would be

BURGLAR WASTES TIME DESPITE A TIMELY WARNING

NORTH VANCOUVER, Sept. 21—"Mr. Burglar, if you know your business, you will not waste your time here," was the warning on a sign which greeted the eyes of a would-be safecracker in the office of Lonsdale theater last night.

Instead of packing up his tools and calling it a night, the burglar accepted the written challenge and set down to work. Hours passed and he labored on, drilling through the heavy steel plating on the same—but the door would not open. Finally he gave up the job.

William Harper, manager of the theater, had the sign printed after three attempts had been made on the safe.

Lloyd George Likens Liberal Members to the Cat in Cream Jug

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Sept. 21.—While the executive of the National Liberal federation today denounced the trade agreements reached at the Ottawa Imperial economic conference, David Lloyd George commented in characteristic fashion on the position of Liberal members of the National government, likening them to the cat in the cream jug.

"I am sorry for the Liberal ministers," he said. "They have their perplexities. It is what I have seen many times when a cat has pushed its head into the cream jug and has been unable to get it out without either breaking the jug or having someone pull it out by the tail. It is the latter process which is going on at the present time, and I hope it will succeed. I would love to see Liberals in this country once more united on a great platform of human brotherhood."

Although the resolution passed today by the executive of the National Liberal federation urged the government, parliament and all electors to "seriously consider the dangers and vicious principles inserted in the Ottawa agreements and oppose them by every means in their power," no call was made on Liberal ministers to resign from the government.

CASTLEGAR IS IN NEW SCHOOL CLASSIFICATION

VICTORIA, Sept. 21 (CP).—New classifications for several rural school areas announced at the legislative buildings today included Castlegar, sub-class A. The new standing will mean increased assistance for rural schools affected on account of special circumstances in each instance.

KINGSGATE VOTES BEER BY GLASS

VICTORIA, Sept. 21 (CP)—By a vote of 25 to 4 this week the Kingsgate polling division of Cranbrook electoral district decided in favor of sale of beer by the glass in licenced premises. A similar poll was being taken today in the Aldergrove division of the Delta electoral district, with results not yet reported.

MINER STARVATION DANGER IS HEALED FOR THE PRESENT

AMOS, Que., Sept. 21 (CP).—Danger of starvation is over for the present at Le Roy mines, and Arthur Melkman, mine manager, who for several days has been held prisoner by 30 unpaid miners, is free. Mr. Melkman reached Amos tonight from the property on the Burricanaw river, 80 miles away, to describe the acute situation that has prevailed since food ran short and there was no money to pay wages.

Galgary Diamond Is Claimed Again

CALGARY, Sept. 21 (CP)—Ownership of the diamond solitaire ring which has mystified police was established for the second time today.

Originally found by a man here August 16, the ring was turned over to police when it was learned it was worth $150. Yesterday a married woman claimed it but on close inspection later found it had a different mark than the one she lost.

Today a young man claimed it and his story established the original belief of police that it was a lost engagement ring. The loser informed police it had been given him by his mother and he in turn had given it to his fiance who had lost it.

The finder, the jeweler who appraised it when the finder thought it was worthless, the woman who is still without the ring she lost a year ago, the betrothed and city police are wearing smiles and its a draw between police and the betrothed as to who are the happiest.

DEATH RING STORY REVEALED

What is the fatal influence of the ancient Mizpah ring worn by Frederick Vusthoff, who shot himself to death recently at his home in Newcastle-on-Tyne, England. That is what Newcastle police are trying to fathom. Unlike other Mizpah rings, which are supposed to bring good luck, this one has brought tragedy. Before Vusthoff acquired it, it belonged to a Newcastle merchant who dropped dead on the street. Its previous owner committed suicide.

The acme of business economy was illustrated by an inquiry just received from a Riga firm by an advertising company in London—The envelope was made from a newspaper. The letter itself was on wrapping paper. There was no postage.

MORE ABOUT RAILWAYS

under the control of these trustees. Appointments should be made by the governor-in-council, and vacancies be filled from a panel of eight named by the remaining trustees.

Imposition of a statutory duty upon the board of directors of the Canadian Pacific railway and also upon the trustees of the Canadian National that they "adopt as soon as practicable such cooperative measures, plans and arrangements as shall, consistent with the proper handling of traffic be best adapted to the removal of unnecessary or wasteful services or practices" is also recommended.

ELIMINATE DUPLICATION

Unwarranted duplication in services or facilities must be eliminated. Joint operation of all such properties which may be conveniently and without undue detriment to either party be so operated is urged.

It is recommended that the board of trustees of the Canadian National and an equal number of directors of the Canadian Pacific shall meet at regular intervals for the purpose of discussing and agreeing upon cooperative measures and services.

In the event of failure to agree and for the purpose of settling disputes or details of any scheme, it is recommended that an arbitral tribunal should be set up for each occasion. This arbitral tribunal should be composed of the chief commissioner of the railway commission and of one representative from each of the two railways.

ADDITIONAL MEMBERS

As a further measure of protection, it is recommended that, at the request of either railway, and upon it being shown to the president of the exchequer court that the matter is of major importance, two additional members may be appointed by him to the arbitral tribunal.

The powers of the arbitral tribunal may be invoked by either railway or by the Dominion or any provincial government. In the event of conflict between the board of railway commissioners and the arbitral tribunal, it is recommended that the order or decision of the arbitral tribunal shall prevail.

The arbitral tribunal should have full jurisdiction as to measures relating to:

(a) Joint use of terminals.

(b) Running rights and joint use of tracks where there are actual or functional duplications or where such may be avoided.

(c) Control and prohibition in respect to the construction of new lines and provision of facilities and additional services where no essential need of the public is involved.

(d) The joint use of facilities where this would promote economy or permit the elimination of duplicating or unremunerative services or facilities.

(e) Abandonment of lines, services or facilities.

(f) Pooling of any part or parts of freight traffic or passenger traffic.

(g) Things necessarily incidental to the above enumerated matters.

AGGRESSIVE COMPETITION

In regard to subsidiary services, such as hotels, telegraph systems and express services, the commission is of the opinion aggressive competition should cease. The board of trustees of the Canadian National and the directors of the Canadian Pacific should agree on schemes which would permit of the working in harmony of these services which are now operating competitively.

"Since the debt of the Canadian National in the hands of the public is now very large and more than the railway can carry from its earnings even under improved conditions, sums which are required to meet deficits should be voted by parliament annually and not raised by the issue of railway securities as has been done in recent years," the report recommends.

A continuous audit of the accounts of the Canadian National should be made by auditors appointed by parliament from a list drawn up by the trustees. These auditors should report to parliament.

ENTIRE WORKING

While the responsibility for the direction and control of the Canadian National should be laid upon the chairman and his associate trustees, it is recommended that provision should be made for the post of chief operating officer with the titular rank of president. Under his care should be placed the entire working of the railway in detail. The president should be appointed by and responsible to the trustees and not directly to the government or parliament.

The report emphasizes that a principal weakness of the past 10 years has been the failure of the railways to act together in their own interests and in the interests of the public. There must be joint action with a view to savings in the wider sphere.

REPORT ANNUALLY

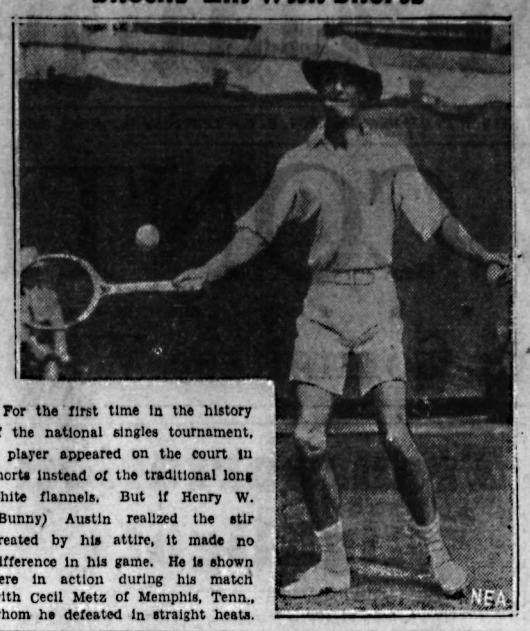
The board of trustees, it is recommended, should report to parliament annually. The annual budget of the railway should be under the control of the trustees. Amounts required from income deficits, including interest on railway obligations, for capital and for re-funding, should first be submitted to the treasury board for its approval and presentation to parliament by the minister of finance.

It is recommended all trustees should be paid adequately. The chairman, who is to give his whole time to the duties of his office, "should receive a salary commensurate with the high responsibility with which he is charged, and the special qualification he must be assumed to possess."

The summary concludes on a serious note of warning. The commissioners declared unless the country is prepared to adopt the plan proposed, or some other equally effective measures, the very stability of the nation's finances and the financial credit of the Canadian Pacific railway will be threatened with serious consequences to the people of Canada and to those who have invested their savings in the C.P.R.

The report is unanimous being signed by all seven commissioners.

Shocks 'Em With Shorts



For the first time in the history of the national singles tournament, a player appeared on the court in shorts instead of the traditional long white flannels. But if Henry W. (Bunny) Austin realized the stir created by his attire, it made no difference in his game. He is shown here in action during his match with Cecil Metz of Memphis, Tenn., whom he defeated in straight heats.

Unemployed Plight May Be Aided, Game

VICTORIA, Sept. 21 (CP)—Sympathetic consideration is being given by the government to the plight of unemployed men in mining, lumbering and other communities, where the volume of work has been curtailed seriously in the last three years and where game for food purposes is desired to eke out slender budgets.

Premier Tolmie took the matter up with his cabinet this week and expressed the wish that insofar as is found possible no unnecessary barriers be put in the way of permitting hunting and fishing for food purposes on behalf of such communities. Details of what policy will be followed were left to Attorney-general Pooley and the game branch to work out.

It is not likely the province can waive game licences, but the suggestion has been advanced that a small number of men in each community be permitted to go into the woods after game, to share with the unemployed, without paying the normal fee for hunting and fishing licences.

Will Name Enines After Famed Hunts

Fox to Surmount Brass Name Plates

LONDON, Sept. 21— Innovations recently announced by the London and North Eastern railway include construction begun on 15 express passenger engines, each locomotive to be named after a famous hunt, and a reduction in prices in the hairdressing parlor of the "Flying Scotsman," which has left King's Cross at 10 a. m. daily for more than 69 years.

The special "hunt" engines will carry brass nameplates surmounted by a fox. The names chosen are: Bramham Moore, Zetland, York & Ainsty, Badsworth, Bedale, Bilsdale, Braes of Derwent, Pytchley, Cleveland, Holderness, Hurwoth, Middleton, Percy, Sinnington and Staintondale. To the huntsman, whatever his country, these names are felt to be redolent of the finest classes in Great Britain.

OAK TREE 1000 YEARS OLD

Residents of Alonville, France, recently marked the 1000th anniversary of an oak tree. Simple, but impressive services were held. Nine men with extended arms can barely incircle the nine-foot trunk, in which are cut two chapels, one above the other, in which 40 children can stand. A stairway leads around the tree to the upper chapel.

GOLD FIND IN NEW ZEALAND

What is believed to be an exceptionally rich gold strike is reported from the Shotover River district, South Island, near Wellington, N. Z. Prospectors who found it expect it to yield 5000 ounces, valued at more than $100,000. The find is only a few hundred yards from the place where seven years ago a syndicate mined gold worth $125,000.

MAYOR IS DENTIST

BINGHAMTON, N. Y.—The fact that Mayor Miles M. Smith also is a dentist makes Miss Neva Smith's job as secretary exasperating at times. Such queries as, "Could I get my tooth pulled?" have been received by telephone on several occasions, Miss Smith said. Sweetly she informs her inquirers that the Mayor does not pull teeth in the city hall.

NAVAL BUILDING PROGRAM TO BE STARTED IN AUTUMN ALLOWS FOR 22 NEW SHIPS

Cost Is Placed Around £10,000,000; Dockyards, Private Firms to Share Work

Britain's 1931 naval construction program, delayed 18 months because of economy, will be well under way by autumn, according to the government's present plans. Twenty-two vessels will be built at a cost of approximately £10,000,000.

Construction is entirely in accordance with the terms of the London Treaty and its occurrence at this time will in no way prejudice Britain's disarmament policy.

It is explained that should the Geneva conference decide on further reduction of existing naval armaments, such scrapping obviously would not affect ships building or just built. The vessels in the 1931 program primarily are for replacement and would have to be built, in any case, sooner or later.

DEFENCE FACTOR

Apart from these considerations, there is the important factor of defence. The fleet, protector of the Empire's far-flung trade routes and the Mother Country's territorial integrity, must be kept up to adequate strength, even if further disarmament can be achieved. Such is the official attitude.

The government expects there will be criticism, especially from the pro-disarmament elements which are very numerous and outspoken. But it will, in addition to the contentions outlined above, also have that of unemployment relief put forward in defence of new naval construction.

Thousands or men will be recruited from unemployment to build the ships. Dockyards throughout the country will resound with activity and the shipbuilding industry, probably the hardest hit of all British industries, will enjoy a big increase in production.

TWENTY-TWO VESSELS

The Admiralty is expected to place orders for 22 vessels without further delay. Six vessels will be built in the Royal Dockyards, namely, two cruisers, two sloops, one submarine and one torpedo school tender.

The remainder consisting of one cruiser, one flotilla leader, eight destroyers, two sloops, two submarines, one gunboat for China, one bomb defence vessel, will be constructed by contract. It is understood that the allocations already have been decided and that the Clyde and Tyne will secure the greater share of the work.

ODD SURCHARGE ON DO-X STAMPS

Philatelists Row Over Origin of Error; Trading Brisk in Plane Issue

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld, Sept. 21 (CP)—Some of the most interesting postage stamps issued in recent years—from the collector's point of view—have come out of Newfoundland. Several issues have been marked by beauty, scarcity, and not a few oddities. The latest oddity occurred in the DO-X issue, offered for sale in May when the giant German flying boat made her last transatlantic flight.

Earl A. House of Carbonnear claims to have a block of four DO-X stamps with an inverse surcharge on them. Philatelists in this dominion, Canada and United States are aroused, and the trading has been brisk.

The ordinary unused varieties have changed hands at different prices, ranging from cents to dollars. Recently a New York dealer has been advertising in local papers, offering $5 for each unused copy.

One local collector, signing "C. A. E." wants to know how the inverse surcharge occurred, and he suggests a government investigation to find out.

"Well, after all," he wrote, "there were just two places where these stamps were hatched. Mr. —— at the general post office places the order at the trade printers, and perhaps Mr. —— or Mr. —— could tell the public how it came about. I secured what I needed, or rather what I could afford to buy, and I am sure Mr. —— did not let one of those errors pass out of his window—of the thousands that were printed in the honest-to-God's fair way. And how many were not? Will the commissions now working at the general post office look into this business?"

To which, Mr. House replied in part: "In justice to the post office officials, to the trade printers and to myself, let me assure 'C. A. E.' that I personally purchased this block at the stamp window of the general post office about 8:30 p.m. on May 19, and at the time I did not realize that I had purchased an error. I may add that I can prove to the satisfaction of any prospective purchaser that the stamps are bona fide errors, and that I have but one block" . . . "It is to be hoped that the above explanation will save the country the expense of the investigation by commission which 'C. A. E.' so particularly suggests."

OLD QUAKER SCHOOL TO CLOSE

After having been in existence continuously for 240 years, Stramongate School at Kendal England, a Quaker foundation, is to close. At the recent Speech Day, T. F. LOWER BAKER TO BE PAVED

Strips on Both Sides to Be Laid Making It Full Width

Immediate extension of the Baker street concrete pavement between Falls and Railway streets, to full width, by the construction of strips to fill the vacant spaces between the existing double-strip and the two curbs, was decided on by the public works committee Wednesday, after an inspection of the locality.

Property-owners on the north side of the street petitioned the city council Monday to pave the north side, which at one time this year was on the city's relief program, but after looking the situation over the committee decided that both sides ought to be paved, this section of Baker street being the city's "western gateway."

Alderman Ross Fleming, chairman of the public works committee, Mayor J. P. Morgan, Alderman J. B. Gray, with City Engineer Boyd C. Affleck, made the inspection, and having the assent of Alderman R. W. Dawson, who was up the lake at that time, took the step of authorizing the city engineer to proceed with this work at once.

This means that about three days will be required by Mr. Affleck to organize the work, with the actual work starting probably Monday.

It will be necessary to remove about six inches of dirt surface, before putting down the concrete.

FRENCH PREMIER MYSTERY FIGURE AT GENEVA MEET

GENEVA, Sept. 21 (AP).—Premier Edouard Herriot of France was revealed tonight in the role of mysterious observer in the deliberations of the disarmament conference's steering committee today.

The committee passed the question of German participation in the conference back to Berlin when it resumed its deliberations, and then went on with the regular program. Germany had no representative in accordance with her assertion that she would not participate until her demand for arms equality is recognized.

It was learned the French premier arrived on an early train and went to a hotel, while Joseph Paul-Boncour, the French delegate, went to the conference bureau meeting, where a discussion of the German demand was avoided. Premier Herriot remained at his hotel while the British, French, Russian and United States delegates discussed the bureau program with President Arthur Henderson.

HAS PLAN TO PUT 1000 MEN TO WORK FOR SIX MONTHS

TORONTO, Sept. 21 (CP)—Mayor William Stewart today told the board of control he had a plan to put 1000 men at work at once for six months under direction of the public welfare department.

The men would be paid about $15 a week, which will mean a total expenditure in wages of $300,000.

MORE ABOUT RELIEF

ment buildings to protest tightening of the rules regarding transients, hitherto the joint liability of the provincial and federal governments. Regulations issued on Monday refuse to recognize as transients persons whose homes are in municipalities but who have been absent for some time. This new ruling is expected to cost Vancouver city at least $250,000.

REDUCE CHARGES

The government has also taken a step toward reduction of its charges for technical transients since become property owners. This concerns urban municipalities such as Burnaby and Saanich. By a new regulation persons with families who own property and apply for relief will be regarded as responsibilities of the municipalities where such property is situated.

There are many instances where persons have arrived in municipalities since January 1, 1931, and have made a small payment on a house. Subsequent applications by such property owners for relief have hitherto been included in the transient list for which municipalities have not been required to contribute.

There are scores of cases where persons have made such payments on property and have paid little since. They cannot be dispossessed, municipalities have been unable to cut off their water supply for unpaid accounts but the matter has not been pressed because no portion of relief payments allowed newcomers since January 1, 1931, has fallen upon municipal resources.

ASSUME PORTION

Hereafter the cities and municipalities will have to assume a proportion of all such cases.

The official circular reads as follows:

"Please be advised that, in cases of individuals with dependents having resided within a municipality for four months prior to January 1, 1931, and in the event of such individuals leaving the municipality for a period of time but afterward returning to the same municipality; the status of such case is not changed and they are still a municipal responsibility. And further: Any property owner with dependents, applying for relief, will be a responsibility of such municipality wherein the property is situated, irrespective of the period of domicile."

"SMALL PART OF TALE THAT YET WILL HAVE TO BE TOLD," KNOWN, SAYS JUSTICE IN MACHRAY CASE

Second Firm Machray Connected With Passes Out of Existence

WINNIPEG, Sept. 21 (CP)—The second firm with which J. R. Machray, former bursar of the University of Manitoba, chancellor of Church of England and prominent Winnipeg lawyer, was associated has passed out of existence. The investment firm of Machray and Sharpe was declared bankrupt today and last Saturday the legal firm of Machray, Sharpe, Parker, Crawley and Richardson was dissolved.

The investment company was declared insolvent by Mr. Justice D. A. Macdonald on a petition by the University of Manitoba from which Machray is charged with stealing $901,176. He will appear in court tomorrow to answer this count and probably another charge of stealing $60,000 from Heber Archibald, a former law partner.

Evidence revealed during the past three days at the hearing of the bankruptcy petition is only a "small part of the tale that yet will have to be told," Mr. Justice Macdonald declared in granting the university's petition.

The hearing, which Mr. Justice Macdonald said had revealed "alarming disclosures," revealed that books of the company were kept in a "slipshod manner," that all monies handled by the firm were kept in a single bank account; that the company books were audited by an accountant from the Manitoba government comptroller general's office, also engaged by Machray and Sharpe; that the firm had cash assets of only $500; and that clients were notified periodically that all accounts were in order though some trust accounts had not even been totalled the last 16 or 17 years.

Scientists Perform Another Big Job— Measure Energy of an Elephant!

Here is the scene as Jap was tested for her oxygen requirements. Dr. Brody, in charge of the experiment, is shown (facing the camera) among his assistants

If you want to do something big, go measure the energy of an elephant.

That's exactly what scientists did at the Missouri college of agriculture, Columbia, when they tested four-ton Jap (a lady elephant, nevertheless) to find out how many miles she could go on a bale of hay, as part of their study of the energy requirements of various animals. The results will help in determining the proper feeding of farm stock.

As the above picture shows, Jap was tested with a special apparatus, fitted to her trunk, to determine her oxygen requirements. The thing made Jap look something like a vacuum cleaner, but Jap was so interested in contributing her bit to the advancement of science that she didn't care a bit.

At the conclusion of the experiment, Dr. Samuel Brody announced his findings. Dr. Brody stated that although the elephant weighed 8000 pounds, its energy needs were only twice those of a Percheron horse weighing 1600 pounds. It can be taken as a rule, Dr. Brody added, that "the larger the animal the smaller the energy needs in proportion to its size." But, he hastened to add, energy needs in this connection must be interpreted only as maintenance needs and not when energy is being expended, as in case of a horse at work.

Dr. Brody and his assistants have been measuring the energy requirements of various farm animals for several years. The experiment on the elephant was performed in a menagerie tent when a circus visited the city.

Jap, however, was not tested for peanut-eating capacity.

BENEFICIARIES ESTATE ORDERS FAR SCATTERED

Freya Stark of Baghdad Inherits Estate at Creston

REOPEN ENGLISH ESTATE OF 1922

L. J. Edwards' and Mrs. Lacey's Estates Admittedto Probate

Beneficiaries in Persia, Great Britain, the United States, and southern British Columbia will receive the proceeds of estates in respect to which probate or administration orders have just bee issued here by Judge W. A. Nisbet.

In the case of Robert Stark, Creston rancher, his daughter, Freya Stark, of Baghdad, in Iraq, is both beneficiary and executrix of an estate of about $16,000. Under a power of attorney from the executrix, C. B. Garland obtained an order for letters of administration with will annexed.

Acting under a power of attorney from Arthur Combs of Kellogg, Ida., who on July 23 was appointed by the probate court of Shoshone county, Idaho, to be administrator of the estate of William Dodd, late of that county, E. C. Wragge was granted letters of administration with will annexed. The beneficiaries of the estate, which consists of cash and bonds, are three brothers and three sisters in Shrewsberry, Shropshire, England.

RE-SEAL LETTERS PROBATE

Reopening of an estate dating back to 1922 is the result of an application made by C. H. Hamilton. John Lewis James Benhote of Park Hill House, Carshalton, Surrey, England, died in October, 1922, at Bournmouth, England, and in the following December the principal registry of the probate, divorce and admiralty division of the high court of justice of England issued letters probate to Frederic William Smalley of Stockwell, and Michael S Daws of London, the named executors. Mr. Hamilton obtained an order for re-sealing of the letters probate. Lands of an estimated value of $925 in the Kootenay district are included in the estate, whose gross value was $105,517.

In respect to the late Mrs. Margaret Lacey of Nelson, E. P. Dawson obtained an order for letters probate to issue to William Irvine and L. K. Larsen, the executors named in Mrs. Lacey's will. Robert and Aaron D. Lacey, her sons, residing in California, are the beneficiaries of her estate, whose figure is placed at $3352.

Under the will of the late Lewis Jones Edwards of Nakusp, his whole estate, consisting chiefly of real estate in Nakusp townsite and Crescent Bay, is left to his widow, Mrs. Harriet Edwards. E. C. Wragge obtained an order for letters probate to issue to Hannah Doris Waverley MacAfee of Victoria, Mr. Edwards' daughter, and Henry Leslie Miller of Nakusp, the executrix and executor named in the will.

These five applications were all made in supreme court chambers.

In county court chambers, J. F Meagher, acting on behalf of H. W. Galbraith, Vernon solicitor, applied for letters of administration in respect to the estate of James William Veness of Creston, to issue to the widow, Mrs. Marie Kneller of Glenema, near Vernon. The beneficiaries are the widow and five sons and daughters.

No Wheel on Latest Ship, Steering Done by Buttons

Salty old British sea-dogs, descended from many generations of adventurous mariners and with sea water, rather than blood, in their veins, are disgusted.

The object of their loathing is the Soviet ship Neva which arrived here recently with a consignment of Black Sea butter. It is not because the Neva is a foreign ship, nor that she brought foreign produce in spite of the "Buy British" campaign. But because of the way she has been built. Why, she has no wheel!

Steering is done by a series of electrical buttons. In order to port the helm, the helmsman merely presses the appropriate button and an indicator needle tells him if he has sufficient swing on the vessel. Should a sharper turn be necessary, other buttons may be pressed. There are similar buttons for putting the helm to starboard.

Oh, well, times change. And, in vessels of today, it is rare indeed a man has to be lashed to the wheel when "the stormy winds do blo-o-ow." Which is just as well for the crew of the Neva. Being lashed to a button seems rather infra dig. But what does a quartermaster say now— "It's my trick at the buttons?"

The Neva, which was built in one of the former Imperial Russian naval yards has a number of other devices, regarded by the old-time sailorman as positive nightmares.

A new light-weight, water-proof material with dull-surfaced softness of suede has been perfected.

Waterway Would Benefit Fishery of Newfoundland

Island Dominion Expects to Send Fish to Inland Cities of Canada and U.S.A.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Sept. 21—(CP)—Newfoundland likes the idea of developing the St. Lawrence river for ocean traffic.

"The deep waterway plan carried out, it means that at once the great inland cities of Canada and United States that are situated on the St. Lawrence system will be within easy reach of Newfoundland's fish products, conveyed directly by water," says the Evening Telegram. "The opening up of such a market would have a revolutionary effect upon coast fisheries particularly in the fresh fish business.

"If Newfoundland is to gain this great advantage, we must not take the view that the time is premature to undertake the initial operations essential to such development, but to proceed with them as soon and as vigorously as possible, before some more enterprising people snatch from us the opportunity that is within our reach."

By that the editor meant the development of the fresh fish business and establishment of Mortimer bay as a free port for a clearing house of fish gathered from the numerous bays and inlets along the coast of the island dominion.

The Mortimer bay project was outlined before the St. John's Rotary club by H. C. Thompson, who visions Newfoundland as a great exporting country mid-way between the greatest markets of the old and new world.

"The essentials for a successful fresh fish industry are a large and reliable supply of fish, suitable harbors near the fishing grounds, easily accessible markets, and rapid and economical means of transportation.

"All these requirements are found in Newfoundland. The supply of fish is immense and the fishing grounds are of such extent that they have hardly yet been touched. No country in the world has so many natural land-locked deep-water harbors, so close to the fishing grounds that they almost form part of them. The Newfoundland fishermen do not need to go far out to sea to get their fish, nor do large sums of money have to be spent in creating harbors as has been the case on the exposed northeast coast of Scotland."

For years Newfoundland fishermen have been urged to get together and organize their business. Their operations are scattered and more or less individual. Returns are uncertain, and some of the fishermen do not see money very often.

Under Mr. Thompson's plan the fish would be rushed to Mortimer bay by fast collection boats and shipped fresh to Canadian, United States and overseas markets. Supplies would be regulated according to the demand. Fresh fish would be available at all seasons of the year. It necessarily would be a national cooperative movement. And the fishermen would be paid in cash.

Mammoth Clock Almost Completed

Face Will Be Twenty-Five Feet Square

London's largest clock, which is shortly to appear on the tower of a new building which fronts on to both the Thames Embankment and the Strand, will be a model of horological simplicity

It is now almost completed. Although the face will be 25 feet square, the mechanism stands upon a small steel "table," and takes up less space than the average engine of a motor car. This has been accomplished by a method of construction which has never before been used in a clock of this size.

The hands are moved by a powerful train of gears operated by an electric motor, and controlled for timekeeping by the electric pendulum—three feet long—of a precision master clock synchronized from Greenwich. They run on ball bearings, and are balanced by three weights attached at intervals along steel spindles behind the wall of the building.

The chief difficulty has been the construction of the hands, which have been designed to be visible at long distances—five or six miles—and are far broader than is usual. In order that in high winds they shall not be blown against the face of the clock, and catch in the figures thereon they have been made inflexible, and in the teeth of the wildest gale will maintain their accuracy.

Great Britain is to have its first modern copper refinery.

Jean Harlow—a Second Love—a Greater Tragedy

—'THE FRIEND IN NEED'

Wins Friendship of Bern in 'Whispering' Fight

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 21.—When screenland's foremost blond, Jean Harlow, 21, became the bride of Paul Bern, 41, the movie citadel's most eligible bachelor, Hollywood gasped.

It was not that the cinema world was surprised that its platinum pride should wed again, or even that she should select for her second partner a man twice her age who, besides being an executive of the company which had just signed her to a starring contract, was one of the wealthiest, most influential and perhaps the best loved men in the picture making industry.

What caused the residents of the celluloid capital to breathe excitedly was that the silver-tressed ex-wife of Charles F. McGrew II, the millionaire Chicago sportsman, should be conducted on both her wedding marches by men who, broadly speaking, "could give her everything."

So, no one was much surprised when the word got around that Paul Bern's wedding present to his 21-year-old bride was a deed to the $60,000 home in Benedict Canyon, Beverly Hills, where he had lived as a bachelor.

Their marriage on July 2 climaxed a friendship begun almost three years ago, shortly after the premiere of "Hell's Angels," Miss Harlow's first starring vehicle, and her separation from her first husband. The meeting occurred at a party given by another studio executive, David Selznick.

It was a case of friendship at sight. They began going places together, not as sweethearts but congenial companions, almost platonic friends.

Though Paul Bern often was seen in the company of the blond star from Kansas City, the school girl celebrity just out of Ferry Hall, none of his friends thought much about it. For years "Little Paul," had been the devoted escort of a score of screen "first ladies."

Moreover, he had long been recognized as "the understanding friend" of the misunderstood women an men of Hollywood. Joan Crawford, during the first heart-breaking days following the smash-up of her romance with Michael Cudahy, Estelle Taylor after Jack Dempsey left her, Barbara La Marr when ill health had begun to extinguish the flame of her genius, Mabel Normand, Jetta Goudal, Rudolph Valentino, Ramon Novarro and John Gilbert—all had known the full meaning of his friendship.

And at that time Jean, the victim of a whispering campaign aimed to establish her as a vamp and home-wrecker off as well as on the screen, was in dire need of a friend.

A year and a half ago, about the time she was securing her divorce, a disagreement temporarily halted her friendship with filmland's most eligible bachelor. Then she went on a vaudeville tour of the country.

When she returned to Hollywood, it was noted that she once more occupied the seat of honor at the elaborate dinner parties given by Bern at his Benedict Canyon home.

Early last winter Jean departed on another show-herself expedition. Before she left, however, she is reported to have confided to a few close friends that Paul had mentioned matrimony to her.

She returned from the trip to make "Red-Headed Woman." Hardly had she gotten back, though, when Bern left on a holiday, his first in several years.

It was shortly after his return last June that they appeared together at the marriage license bureau and filed notice of their intention to wed.

Meanwhile, "Red-Headed Woman" had been finished and was packing the neighborhood houses. It firmly established the platinum-thatched Jean as a celluloid star.

That success is attributed by some of her friends for her sudden decision to remarry.

"Paul has asked me before to marry him," she told one of her friends a few days before their marriage. "But I never accepted until the other night. I wanted to make good first."

They were married July 2 in the Beverly Hills home built for Jean by her first husband and now occupied by her mother and stepfather. One of screenland's leading columnists, commenting on the wedding, wrote that it was a tragic commentary on the gratitude of the film colony to know that only 150 of the 500 persons invited to the nuptial festivities of Hollywood's "good Samaritan" managed to get there.

Those who attended the quiet ceremony, however, were quoted afterwards as saying they "had witnessed the culmination of a perfect Hollywood romance."

Yet that romance has already witnessed its own culmination. The kindly little man who announced his title of "Hollywood's most beloved bachelor" to become the husband of the screen's blondest charmer ended it with his own hand the other day in a small dressing room off the honeymoon chamber.

BABES ON BROADWAY

By Jane Dixon

Synopsis for preceding instalments: When Tony Brookes was 18 her parents were killed in a motor-car accident in Centerville, their home town, and she was forced to work in a dress shop in New York. Her frankness in telling women what they should not wear soon cost her her job, the same day that Leslie (Lee) Moran, a model, was discharged. Lee had no money and Tony shared Mrs. Higgins' third floor back room with her. Before Tony got a job in an art gallery, Lee became a taxi dancer at El Tango where she met Adam Leonard, whom she called Uncle Lenny. He was a kindly looking man between 50 and 60. Through Leonard Tony met Donald Kemp, an out-of-town lawyer, and as they were leaving a night club Mrs. Lenard saw them and made a scene. Leonard, unhappily married, had Kemp arrange a divorce. Lee astonished Tony by announcing she was going to pose as the correspondent and expected to receive $5000. Before Lee moved to an apartment, Tom Stewart, a young engineer who was in love with her, called at Mrs. Higgins'. Tony fell in love with him at once. The night before he was to be sent to New Mexico on a new job he waited for Tony outside the rooming house, took her in his arms, kissed her and was about to tell her of his love when the victim of a "ride" was tumbled out of a taxi at their feet. Fearing they would be involved as witnesses, Tom hurried Tony into the house and disappeared. Previously, M. Montieu, a client of Kemp's, had given Tony a chance at dress designing in his studio and she went to art school at night.

INSTALMENT THIRTEEN

"Give up that rabbit hutch, my dear, and stay with me," Lee pleaded. "We'll throw some parties and liven the place up. I'll have a few scouts I know and you can ask the ones you like from the dress factory—'scuse, the style studio. Just because Tom and Uncle Lenny have left me flat, and Don Kemp is out of circulation for you, is no reason why we should go into a dirge. What say I call in a big caviar and cake man from the hotel next door and we stage a cocktail party? I can wangle a swell Bacardi. We'll let them have all they can carry, but not on the hip."

"I wouldn't." Then quickly, for Tony saw Lee's face had fallen, "Of course, it would be loads of fun, but I've an idea that your place is being watched. If any of your guests got—out of control—it would be so easy to misinterpret the party. You ought to be very quiet, Lee, and circumspect, so they can't have anything against you."

The "they" meant Adam Leonard's wife and his lawyers.

"Oh, h——" Lee paced the room. "I might as well live in a convent. I'm getting plenty fed up, I can tell you. If Lenny don't settle this mess in a hurry I'm going haywire on him. I should worry about how much he has to pay that scarecrow of his letting him off."

"You could come back to Mrs. Higgins, with me," eagerly.

"I could but I won't. Uncle Lenny got me into this and he can get me out. With a neat little bank account. When I marry Tom Stewart I'll have my own money. I won't have to live on boiled beef and turnips, which was Sunday dinner in the family homestead in my youth."

"When you marry Tom. . ." Tony's exclamation was involuntary. It welled in her throat, slid across her lips, echoed from the corners of the room. She wanted to cry: But you're not going to marry Tom. Hasn't he told you? Tom belongs to me. I have his lips, his hands, the blue of his eyes deep in my heart, the warmth of his arms encircling my body and my soul. You may have Adam Leonard's money, but you can't have Tom. He's not a toy to be bought.

"I can't stay here with you Lee," was what Tony said. "I want to help, but staying here with you is—I can't."

Lee flared. "You think the place is tainted, don't you? You think because Adam Leonard pays for it, it ain't decent. It is decent. Why shouldn't he pay? He got me into that night club jam, didn't he? I never asked him to come to El Tango and make a fool of himself. He was sunk when he happened to pass the dance joint. It made him stop and figure there was still music in the world. He was old and cold and out. "He's turned to the right—maybe you think it's the left—and found there was youth and music and fun going on if you have the guts to grab them. He didn't tell me he had that hellon on his heels. Why should he! You saw Clara. You ought to know her stripe even if you do come from a potato patch. You're so hot on the truth that Clara ought to sink in 'on you."

Tony stayed on with Lee but did not give up her room with Mrs. Higgins. To keep it was an extravagance, yet she felt she must afford it. She wanted to know she could go there when she wished, that she was free at any time to pursue her own life in her own way. Independence, so difficult to win, so dear to her.

Twice a day on her way to the studio in the morning and on her return in the evening, she stopped by the drab stone house. Each day began in ardent faith and ended in chill despair. Tom Stewart chose to ignore that brief moment of surrender to the urge that drew them together. Perhaps he merely had been trying her out, testing her loyalty to Lee. Perhaps he had yielded to a monetary impulse. In either case he must despise her either as a hypocrite or a weakling. Yet Tony continued to measure her days by the morning when she swooped down on hte table in the Higgins hall with high hope, and by the evening when she approached it with dread for its emptiness.

At the end of the second week of silence, Tony became possessed with fear something had happened to Tom. He was ill. He was injured and she must go to him. His mind had suddenly gone blank and she must find him. Lee had not mentioned hearing from him. His name was more or less tabu between them since the day Tony confessed to Lee she cared for him. If she enquired about Tom, Lee would be angry. Tony would have to risk it.

"Donald Kemp will be in the city next week," Tony told Lee that evening. "I had a letter from him today."

"Lucky you." Lee poured. "I see you only odd Thursdays now. With Kemp in town I'll be cut out entirely."

'Nothing of the sort. You can come with us."

CARING FOR MOHOGANY

Mohogany is such a beautiful wood that it deserves special care to keep it lustrous. Piano cases should be dusted thoroughly with a soft cloth. Wipe a small portion at a time with a chamois, wrung out of cold water, to clean it; and rub dry with a piece of velveteen. Never use a dry chamois on polished woods. When the mahogany piano case is covered with finger marks, or with that bluish cloudy appearance known as "bloom" you should precede the final polishing by going over the surface with a piece of fine soft cheesecloth or velveteen slightly moistened with a good grade of furniture polish; or wring the cheesecloth out of warm water which contains one tablespoon each of turpentine and linseed oil to the quart.

Linseed oil is too gummy to use by itself on fine furniture, but the warm water and the turpentine together cut the heavy body of oil and make the linseed oil harmless to the mahogany.

However, the best plan is to prevent "bloom," as follows: Dust daily, as directed in the beginning of this article, and once a fortnight go over the piano case—or, indeed, any piece of mahogany furniture—with a dustless duster which contains just enough oily substance combined with brease-cutting liquid to keep the wood in excellent shape.

As an old-fashioned housekeeper once said, "The best grease for mahogany is elbow grease!" So do not be afraid to exercise those arm muscles, in caring for your mahogany.

Tomorrow—Good Desserts.

Ways of Keeping Your Hair Young

The color of hair has always been an interesting factor in the beauty problem. For a little while, in the days of the Revolution it didn't matter so much. All the women and all the men adorned their locks with powder and achieved certain glamor that went beautifully with candle-light and twilight songs.

Nobody looked old. So nobody acted old.

But today the sheen of silver that has a startling habit of appearing dark hair long before it is due has a frightening effect upon many people. If this is happening to you don't be scared. Do something about it.

First of all, see that you have a healthy scalp. One that isn't too oily or too dry. Dry hair has a tendency to lose its color, so you must guard against this factor. Hot oil treatment before your shampoo help. There are special tonics which are designed to aid either a too-oily or too-dry scalp condition. Such tonics are stimulating and helpful. Exercising the scalp and hair as you use these aids helps, too.

Most hair loses its color because of some hereditary condition, science seems to prove. Though research has gone on for a long, long time, no one has been able to tell exactly why this happens, except that the pigment disappears.

If your hair is well along the road to grayness and you have a horror of salt-and-pepper effect it is quite possible to hasten the time when you will make your eyes a little brighter, your skin a little fresher, your lips a little redder, if you manage in the right manner.

The tonics for whitening graying hair will not bleach it. They will nourish it and help it and will not destroy the color that is within the hair.

The Beauty Box

By Helen Follett

No need to go about with the face in a dead calm lest wrinkles come. Keep the corners of the lips lifted; use the eyes for expression. But don't, if you value your only portrait; get into the habit of frowning, squinting, lifting the eyebrows. Many wrinkles are of a woman's own making. She doesn't mind her facial manners; there's a heavy drain on the appropriation for beauty repairs. At the first sign of lines make it a daily habit to iron the complexion with ice, to tap in a tissue sustaining emollient that is heavy enough to keep the fingers from slipping and sliding.

Stiff joints are death to graceful movement. So is the rigid backbone that hasn't been carried tall so that its numerous little pads and cushions have remained flexible. When a woman finds that she has to unfold herself when she rises from a chair, it's high time for her to take up rhythmic dancing, join a gym class or force herself to take a three-mile walk each day. It was meant that the body should have muscle work, sufficient exercise to retain fiber resiliency and that nice steppiness of youth.

Why won't the little dollies learn that the thin, almost hairless, eyebrow is a beauty back number? No need of tolerating wild hairs that are on the outskirts of the eyebrow proper, but to weed the growth down to a line that resembles a shred of darning cotton gives the face a vacuous, vapid appearance, lacking in color contrast and expression.

When applying a liquid rouge, moisten a bit of cotton in water and use it as a medium of application. Many of these stay-tight blushes can only be removed with soap and water. Nice for lips. They aren't lapped off in spots and splotches during the luncheon or dinner party. Swimming mermaids made them popular in the silly summer season.

Agar which resembles gelatin, is produced from seaweed instead of bone.

PRIZE LISTS FOR CRESTON'S FAIR ARE SENT OUT

Annual Show Is Set for October 5, School Displays to Feature

CRESTON, B. C., Sept. 21—Prize lists for Creston's 14th annual fall fair were distributed last week and already Secretary E. W. Payne reports a healthy demand for entry blanks and general information regarding this year's exhibition, which is under somewhat new management. For 1932 general direction of the fair is vested in a manager, with the balance of the work taken care of by the secretary, thus giving the president ample time to generally supervise the whole exhibition effort.

The fruit class has been pretty well reduced to the commercial varieties, so far as box displays are concerned, and there has been a thinning out of the odd varieties even in the plates, and in this way it has been possible to offer still more attractive prizes.

This year a new and extensive effort is being made to have a worthwhile school district's display. A list showing the awards in this department, along with the needlework list, went out early in May, so as to give teachers ample time to discuss and instruct the scholars before the coming of the summer vacation. The school effort is counted on to be largely successful

Before the canning season started the list of awards in pickles, canned goods, etc., was also made public and is expected to greatly increase the show in that class, while a showing well up to the standard of other years is counted on in the cooking and needlework department.

Another pleasing feature will be the orchestra, which will play throughout the afternoon in the main building, as well as for the fair night dance. A baseball tournament, in which four teams will participate, will be among the outdoor features.

Wednesday, October 5, is the date of the fair, with the open exercises set for 10 a.m.

KIMBERLEY'S HALF-HOLIDAY MID-WEEK

CLEAR BRUSH AWAY AT CITY CEMETERY

At present clearing operations are going on in the City cemetery. The woods which formerly hedged off the Catholic plot from the rest of the lower section of the cemetary are being removed and City Engineer Boyd Affleck reports that some of the levelest ground in the cemetery has been found here. There are from eight to 10 men employed on this project which takes in nearly an acre of clearing.

CRESTON OWNER OF EXHIBITION PARK, BUILDING

CRESTON, B. C., Sept. 21—At the meeting of the village council on Monday evening the most important business transacted was the instruction to the village treasurer to issue a cheque for $535 to complete the final payment of principal and interest on Exhibition park, which the village purchased from the Agricultural association about four years ago at a price of $2500. The property embraces about eight acres and on it is the fall fair main building. Since acquiring the property the village has put a fine dance floor in the building, installed electric lighting and water, and the revenue coming in from dances, badminton and basketball, as well as the Athletic association is making the building a real asset to the town financially as well as in other respects. For junior athletics the building was given free of charge last winter.

Canada's Radio Plans

A report published in eastern newspapers that Major Gladstone Murray is to be "loaned" to Canada by the British Broadcasting corporation is the first intimation that federal authorities are about to take action in setting up Canada's new national radio system. Major Murray, it is said, will come here as an expert adviser on initial problems connected with the creation of the new system.

The selection of Major Murray is meeting with wide approval in the press. It is interesting to note that three Liberal newspapers have been the first to commend the Bennett government on its wise choice. These are the Ottawa Citizen, the Toronto Star and the Winnipeg Free Press. The Citizen declares that Major Murray is a man "who not only knows all there is to know about the technical side of nationally controlled raido. but is one who knows a great deal concerning its entertainment and educational sides." Important also is the fact that Major Murray is a Canadian. brought up in British Columbia and graduate of McGill. He was a Rhodes scholar, saw war service, and was for a time organizing secretary of the League or Nations Union in Great Britain. For some years now he has held the position of director of publicity for the B.B.C. "His conspicuous success in that office," says the Free Press, "implying as it does an understanding of the operation of the British system in all its phases suggests that Major Murray's experience and ability placed at Canada's disposal should promise the charting of a fairly clear course."

His firm grasp of radio affairs was revealed in his evidence before the parliamentary committee on radio last April. He presented a comprehensive memorandum on the B.B.C., method, and then submitted to many hours of questioning.

Throughout his public appearances at Ottawa he made it plain that there are few men in the empire with a deeper understanding and a clearer insight in such matters. His concluding remarks during his chief examination were as follows:

> I would sum up the policy of B.B.C. in this way to provide wholesome entertainment on the widest basis and in the greatest variety possible, with particular attention to music of all kinds, and without prejudicing in any way the priority of entertainment values, to make a continuous and cumulative contribution to good citizenship.

It is reasonable to assume that the federal authorities have in mind the establishment of such a system in Canada. The selection of Major Murray points to that conclusion. If national broadcasting in the Dominion is placed on that high plane and its inception is not unduly delayed, there will be general satisfaction among all listeners.

History Fools Us Today

The great debunker of them all is history.

Just when you've made up your mind that this is a new and glorious age, filled with wonder that nobody ever dreamed of before—along comes history with some pertinent and indubitable facts which will make you gasp.

For example:

The theory of the automobile was known to Solomon de Coste of Normandy in 1641. He wrote a book on the propulsion of carriages by steam power and, as a reward, was cast into a madhouse by his fellow savants of the day.

The theory of telegraphing by wire was illustrated practically in 1775 by Arthur Young, in England—long before Samuel F. B. Morse was born.

"Fulton's Folly," nickname for a boat, earned Robert Fulton the distinction of being the inventor of the steamboat, but alas, in 1543, Blasco de Guerere, a Spanish sea captain, propelled a ship driven by steam power before the astonished eyes of the King of Spain. The invention was too much de Guerere was banished and died in exile.

In 1679, Francesco Lana expounded a theory for the navigation of ships by air as well as by sea And we thought Jules Verne was original!

Marconi's wireless, too, was foreshadowed by a book of philosophy which mentioned. in 1619, that two persons, located at different points, had conversed with each other by means of a loadstone and a needle placed upon a metal dial.

The discovery of the circulation of the blood is accredited to Harvey in 1619, but from a passage in Longinus, published 2000 years before that date, we learn that this fact was common knowledge.

But perhaps it would be wise to stop here—or you'll be believing that the good old days were. after all. equal or superior to these modern times—a fallacy which it is too easy to believe.

Soviet Russia has presented Colonel Hugh L. Cooper, American engineer, with a flock of medals for directing the construction of Dnieprostroy. the world's largest power plant. Now we'll offer a medal to anyone who can pronounce it.

A minister advised his congregation "so live that all laws will be superfluous." We thought that's what Al Capone tried.

The girl who said she would marry only a man who knew life and its sorrows must have been talking about a widower.

Mexico has at least one advantage over the United States—when it eliminates a candidate, he stay eliminated.

"Between You and Me"

By "J.B.C."

What's the matter with the world today? That's a common question. Maybe this answers it:

Too much oats and too much wheat,
Too much corn and too much heat,
Too much cotton, too much oil,
Too many hours that we must toil.
Too many highways, too many cars,
Too many people behind the bars.
Too much poverty, too much wealth,
Too many people in poor health.
Too much politics, too much booze,
Too many wearing high-heeled shoes.
Too many loafing, too many bets,
Too many failing to pay their debts,
Too many spending their dough on gas,
Too much taking of other folks' sass.
Too many living beyond their means,
Too many buying canned corn and beans,
Too many sowing their crops of wild oats,
Too many candidates after our votes,
Too many hiring their washing done,
Too many playing bridge for fun,
Too many poets, too much prose,
Too many girls without underclothes,
Too much buying goods on time,
Too many people don't save a dime.
Too much hail, too much play,
Too many politicians on big pay.
Too many taxes, too much spent,
Too many folks without a cent.
Too much fun, too much ease,
Too many rips in B.V.D.'s.
Too much reform, too much law—
It's the darndest mess you ever saw.

"Is this you, Mistah Jones?"

"Yes."

"Is he givin' perfect satisfaction?"

"Yes, sah," came the reply. "If dat colored boy don't give perfect satisfaction, yo' call me at 504."

The colored boy turned and started out, and the druggist, who had overheard, remarked: "You didn't do any good, did you?"

"Yes, sah," came the reply. "I's da colored boy what's working down there. I's jest checking up to see how I stand."

Did you know that Michael M. Fry, pioneer Kootenay resident, was in town yesterday—I saw him talking to Gus Matthew—And later saw him window shopping— And he wasn't missing many windows—It was a real Scotchman's day for shopping anyway—The stores were all closed—Mr. Fry was born in 1845—So Slim Collins said—And he knows the K. P. lodge ritual like a book—So Jimmie McCandlish remarked—And I noticed Con Cummins running for his office—He had two husky sneezes on the way—Lucky Con hasn't got store teeth—And Hager Renwick was buying ice cream cones—And trying to line up a customer for a load of coal—Saw Harry Hughes washing windows—And Bud Stevens was looking over the hole where the Griffin block used to stand—In Bud's opinion the hole would make an ideal spot for a closed-in swimming pool—Noticed Arthur Perrier was window dressing— Harry Ferguson was checking over nickles and dimes and figuring he had beaten the bank for one dollar—And then he went back to make sure.

"ROBBING PETER TO PAY PAUL"

This often-quoted phrase had its origin in the rivalry between St. Peter's cathedral (now Westminster Abbey) and St. Paul's cathedral in London. In 1550, a sum of money was set aside from the funds of St. Peter's to make up a lack in the accounts of St. Paul's. This action met with much opposition, the people saying, "Why rob St. Peter to pay St. Paul?"

This saying was later revived at the time of the death of William Pitt in 1778. Each of these leading churches had laid claim to the honor of his burial. The city of London argued that so great a statesman as William Pitt should be buried in St. Paul's, while parliament said that the dust of so great a man should be buried near the dust of kings, and that not to bury Pitt in Westminster Abbey would again be "robbing Peter to pay Paul!"

The disagreement was finally settled in favor of Westminster Abbey, so St. Peter was not robbed a second time.

A woman who completed a 10-days' fast in a barrel collapsed from exhaustion when she was released. in Blackpool, England.

She is Mrs. Sarah Mahon, 27, of Haslingden.

She looked so sick that women spectators wept.

The prize of £200 in £1 notes was placed in her lap when she lay prostrate in an ambulance before being rushed to hospital for treatment.

While still in the barrel, Mrs. Mahon was taken to the Blackpool stadium on a motor lorry, where a big crowd of holiday makers saw her lifted on a stretcher into the ambulance.

Exhibition of well-known people in barrels is becoming quite an industry. Gandhi is the latest to receive an offer to appear. He has been invited by an English promoter to carry on his hunger strike in a barrel, at a seaside show, all food and clothing to be supplied by the management. They will also take care of the performer's laundry, free gratis.

Popularity of the barrel as a theatrical wardrobe is not hard to understand at this time of rigid economy. In fact, opportunity exists for use of the barrel even outside the show business. In days when ladies are busy with so many outside activities, clothing that any handy man can patch with hammer and nails has a peculiar attraction for the fastidious. And even the ladies themselves might find barrels of use for street wear, should the revival of old-time fashions ever call for re-introduction of hoop skirts.

Russian Princess Earned Bread in Paris Lady's Shop

The fact that former Grand Duchess Marie of Russia was a guest recently in eastern Canada reminds one that the royal Romanoff lady's second book is lately off the press. Entitled "A Princess in Exile," it chronicles her transformation from a member of the richest and most autocratic of all the ruling houses into a woman obliged to rub shoulders with the world and to support herself in business. The last book is, of couse, a sequel to "The Education of a Princess," which gave one interesting glimpses into the formality and the pomp and pageantry which invested the bringing up of the little girl whose early life was lived in the sheltered and glittering luxury of a palace. Had Barie, after her agonizing parting from her elderly father, the grand duke who was destined to face the firing squad for the sin of being a Romanoff, not managed to cross the frontier in disguise, had the Soviet officer at the barrier known that he was liberating one of the hated reigning house, one shivers to think of what would have been her fate in the red welter of massacre that followed in Russia.

HER RANK A BIG ASSET

While Marie Romanoff had no business training, her name was a very valuable commercial asset, and one can imagine that more than one woman felt highly flattered to think that she was buying clothes from a member of the Russian royal house or getting sartorial advice from a former imperial princess. It is quite certain that her title, combined with her good taste has had a high cash value in the democratic United States. Undoubtedly, too, her books and their serial rights have brought in a tidy sum of money. The editor of this column knows one hard-headed business man in Toronto to whom the popular novel or mystery story makes no appeal whatever, and who, nevertheless, confessed that he found Princess Marie's first book so enthralling that he could scarcely lay it down until he had fishished it.

STEPPING DOWN GRACEFULLY

For thrills the Romanoff lady's books outrival Hollywood and illustrate the old adage that truth is stranger than fiction. An American critic submits that the last book, for instance, "has in it the stuff of universal appeal, because the author is able to make her extraordinary predicament seem natural and realizable—she treats her readers as intimate friends to whom she is glad to talk." If Grand Duchess Maria, who still calls herself that, though for 15 years her rank has been in-operative, seems a little unaware of the ghastly injustices of the czarist regime, she is not so bitterly critical of the revolutionary leaders who murdered her father and extinguished her class as she might have been.

In exile, and living for a time with Queen Marie of Roumania, the Grand Duchess soon realized that what had happened in Russia was the end for her order. Regarding this, she says in her latest book: "We had been torn out of our brilliant setting; we had been driven off the stage still dressed in our fantastic costumes. We had to take them off now, make ourselves others, everyday clothes, and above all to learn how to wear them. The old pride proper in former days was at present ridiculous and out of place. A new pride had to be acquired, but chiefly a new point of view toward life, for without it a readjustment to the new conditions could not be possible . ."

EARNING A LIVELIHOOD

Going first to Paris and then to London, in 1919, Marie was reunited to her brother, former Grand Duke Dmitri, who, being in Persia when the Red terror broke out, had escaped the death which overtook a lot of his imperial kinsmen. This was the Dmitri who had been involved in the murder of the notorious monk, Rasputin, whose influence over the Czarina is thought by many to have been a prime factor in the revolution. Thinking that the turmoil in Russia would be succeeded by a more conservative regime, Marie, who had been able in her flight to carry away many jewels, lived on the proceeds of their sales. But the jewellers are said to have combined to keep down the price of her jewels and Marie was faced with the need of earning a livelihood. He husband, Prince Michael Putiatin, was little help in this direction, and the couple were eventually divorced.

BUSINESS EXPANDED

Meanwhile, Marie, who in former years had, one may suppose, looked upon dressmaking establishments as merely places where famous man modistes met her obsequiously at the doors, and where dozens of sales-women and mannequins were detailed to wait upon her, realized that she must reverse the old order and become one of those who served. The daughter of the Romanoffs, whose vast estates had poured a stream of gold into their coffers, the woman who had scarcely given serious consideration to the cost of the regal furs, the magnificent diamonds and the lovely dresses she had worn, had decided to go into trade herself. Having met the rising young dressmaker, Gabrielle Chanel, she conceived the idea of selling Russian embroideries. The rise and fall of the house of Kitmir is well known in Paris. Orders poured in and the business expanded, but alas, adaptable and hard-working as she was, Marie Romanoff did not eventually make a success of it. The Grand Duchess did not figure quite closely enough on markins of cost and profit. When embroidered goods went out of style the business failed and she went to the United States nearly penniless again, but richer for her experience, to make a fresh start in New York. Here her second story ends, though of course the American venture resulted in a book which ranked among the best sellers.

FATE NOT TOO UNKIND

The narrative in her second book contains many interesting incidents. She tells of the meeting with her son, the Swedish prince whose recent marriage to a young Swedish girl, not of noble rank, was lately a European sensation. Marie had divorced the young man's father some years ago. She tells of former King Alfonso's visit to her in London and of his kindness to her in exile. She tells us about the romance of her brother Dmitri, and his engagement to an American girl, Audrey Emery. She draws a graphic picture of the funeral of the Dowager Empress of Russia, mother of Czar Nicholas, in Copenhagen, and of the many noble Russians who, in tarnished decorations, came to do honor to the dead Russian sovereign who had been Queen Alexandra's sister and was a daughter of Denmark. For all the vicissitudes she has encounterd, one feels, when one thinks of the former Russian princes and princesses and all the once rich nobles who are doing odd jobs in various parts of the world, that fate has dealt rather kindly with Grand Duchess Marie, who spent a week-end in Muskoka and who is going to Hollywood.

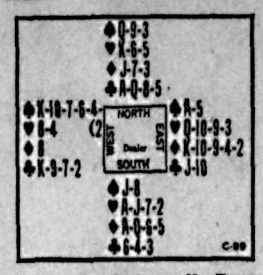
Auction and Contract Bridge

By the World's Leading Authority, MILTON C. WORK

A WELL PLAYED HAND

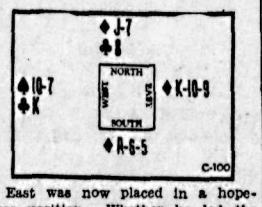
In the annual contract team-of-four event of the Ohio State Bridge Association, held in Cleveland last April, under the auspices of the Cleveland Whist club, the following hand attracted a great deal of attention.



It was played at one No Trump, two No Trumps, three Hearts, three No Trumps, and four Hearts; and only at the table where Mr. Paul Benhoff of Cleveland was the Declarer was game made. He negotiated his three No Trump contract in the following brilliant manner.

East's original lead was the Ace of his partner's Spade suit, followed by a low Spade which West won with the King. Then, although his hand contained no probable re-entry, West cleared the suit. He thought that doing so might hamper the Declarer who undoubtedly would use every expedient to keep West from obtaining the lead. North's Queen won the trick and led a Diamond to trick 4, South finessing the Queen—a risk that had to be taken.

At trick 5 a Club was led by South and the Queen finessed by North. Then came the third finesse necessary to success. North led a small Heart and South played the Jack. When this won a second Club was led and taken with dummy's Ace. As East had played the Jack and Ten of Clubs on the two rounds of the suit, he had no more unless he had been false-carding—which was not probable. To tricks 8 and 9 North led the King and Six of Hearts, the latter won by South's Ace, West discarding and East being marked with the winning Heart. Another Heart was led to trick 10 which was won by East's Queen, and at that time the three remaining cards in each hand were as follows:



East was now placed in a hopeless position. Whether he led the King of Diamonds or the Ten made no difference. If the former South would win the eleventh trick with the Ace and North's Jack would be good for the twelfth trick. If the latter North's Jack would take the eleventh trick and dummy's Ace the twelfth. Therefore, in that way Mr. Benhoff succeeded in making game via a route which no other player was able to discover.

EVENING WALKS

Now the wild strawberry has put forth its flower
On the warm bank, and now the sycamore
Lifts shuttlecocks and leaflits to the shower
That all day long has fallen so slow and sure,
And slow and sure up straws and sprigs and boles
The frair snails enjoy the watery hour
In glossy shells girt round with chestnut scrolls,
And coatless ones, with bare backs crinkled, scour
The sodden roadside with out-thrusting eyes
Or curl on ivy leaves in sleep's disguise;
The boy goes nesting on and heeds not them,
But takes the blackstriped hodner-dod, and cheeps,
Till out it comes amazed; dropt then, it creeps
Where the sheep's parsley tops a red-furred stem.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON

THE FLYING START IN INDIGESTION

When we were youngsters and one boy could run faster than another, it was customary in order to make a race more even to give the slower boy what was called "a flying start." This meant that the slower boy went about twenty yards and thus was at full speed when he reached the starting point, when the faster runner made his start. This meant that the slower runner got a considerable lead over the faster runner before the latter got into his stride.

I often think that if we all would try to get a flying start on digestion it would do away with a lot of distress, pain, lack of appetite, and constipation.

A flying start on digestion means being "hungry for your food." Being hungry for food means that the digestive juice in the mouth, the digestive juice in the stomach, and the digestive juice in the pancreatic gland, have all started to flow before you even start to get your meal.

What can give you this flying start in digestion? What can make you real hungry?

Any outdoor work or play that brings your muscles into use and yet does not tire you too much will give you an appetite for food; will give this flying start in digestion. Even the outdoors itself by burning up the wastes by means of the oxygen in the air makes you ready for your food.

What can prevent the flying start in digestion? What prevents healthy appetite?

Having your meals too close together and being overtired when you eat are the two most important factors in preventing you from getting this flying start in digestion.

When the meals are too close together, some of the food from the previous meal may be still in the stomach and the stomach naturally doesn't want any more until this food has passed from the stomach into the small intestine.

When you are overtired, none of the digestive juices flow out before you eat because the sight and smell of food do not interest you.

The first thought then in securing a flying start for digestion which will mean freedom from indigestion and constipation is to spread your meals well apart, and to lie down on your right side for fifteen minutes before each meal.

GOD'S PORTRAIT

God flung out His hope in a rainbow,
Each sunrise His splendor makes new;
But marvel past all understanding,
He implanted His likeness in you!

To the roses God gave of His fragrance,
His power rides the storms of the sea;
All His providence lies in a raindrop,
But He breathed of His spirit in me!

The firmament speaks of His handwork,
In the heavens His glories we trace;
But deep in the heart of a sinner
He wrought out the work of His grace!

God fastened the music of heaven
In the throat of a bird, high and sweet;
But He poured out His love in a garden,
On a cross made His passion complete!

God cradled Himself in a Presence
Whose voice transcended tumult and strife;
In a grave set the door of tomorrow,
From a tomb blazed the high trail of life!

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—The "Keystone Kids" of the great Yankee machine of 1926, Tony Lazzeri and Mark Koenig, are the comeback kids of 1932, warring in rival arrays and adding an extra touch of glamour and baseball romance to the infields of the New York Yankees and the Chicago Cubs.

Probably no two clubs in the history of world series play have gone into the classic better fortified in the infields, not only in the first line of defence but in replacements.

Burly Lou Gehrig will be on first base, Lazzeri at second, probably Frank Crosetti at shortstop, and Joe Sewell at third for the Yankees when the first Cub hitter steps to the plate in the Yankee stadium September 28.

Manager Charley Grimm at first, Bill Herman at second, Koenig at shortstop, and "Woody" English on third form the Cub infield.

CUBS HITTERS BETTER

Strangely enough, for all the vaunted clouting power in the Yankee bats, the Cubs infield as a group has out-hit the American league quartet .302 to .297 over the season up to today. The Cubs also have the edge in double plays, 139 to 121.

No man in the Cub infield can match Lou Gehrig's .346 nor the 32 home runs that have peeled from his bludgeon. His first base rival, Charley Grimm, is hitting .309. But Koenig's .337 pace through 81 games all but matches Gehrig's average and outclasses anything else the Yankees can show.

At second base, Herman has hit .310, as compared to Lazzeri's .298, although the Yankee mainstay, a "forgotten man," hits with fiendish effect and usually for distance in the pinches. Frank Crosetti, a shade ahead of Lyn Lary as the Yankees' starting shortstop, has hit only .247 in his first year, while Lary is down to .236.

GREAT SHORTSTOPS

Two great shortstops of the past bob up as the rival third basemen with Joe Sewell, the ancient Alabaman who started with Cleveland for a dozen years, boasting a clouting edge over English. Joe, who struck out the other day for only his third time this year, has hit .277 and has suddenly sprouted as a home run belter with 11. English is well below his usual hitting standard at .252.

Sewell played shortstop for Cleveland against Brooklyn in the 1920 world series, and English was at short for the Cubs in the disastrous 1929 conflict with the Athletics. Grimm, of course, also learned about world series from the A's, while Koenig, Lazzeri and Gehrig paraded with the Yanks in 1926, 1927 and 1928. In fact only Herman, of the Cub side, and Crosetti or Lary, of the two infields, lack world series experience.

The reserves are of high standard. Grimm can call upon B. Jurges, a .225 hitter, and Stanley Hack, if his regulars fail up front. Joe McCarthy has Eddie Farrell, a steady old-timer, sliding up and down the bench with Lary.

FOUR CANADIANS REMAIN IN GOLF

One Englishwoman and Three From U. S. Will Enter Quarter-Finals

MONTREAL, Sept. 21.—Four Canadians remained in the contest today at the end of the second round of match play in the Canadian women's open golf championship. With them, one Englishwoman and three United States players will enter the quarter-finals tomorrow at Kanawaki Golf club.

The Canadian contingent was generally impressive today. Margery Kirkham, Montreal, triumphed over a strong opponent in Margaret Lockart, Montreal, by a 4 and 2 margin. Doris Taylor, Kanawaki's promising young player, scored an international victory for Canada by defeating Mrs. Arthur Miller, Lakeville, L. I., 6 and 5.

Probably the most impressive Canadian win was that scored by Mrs. Charles S. Eddis of Toronto, who rallied to eliminate Bea Gottlieb, Great Neck, L. I., 1 up, after a tense battle. Lucille Rolland, diminutive Laval, Montreal, stylist, conquered her local rival, Molly Hankin, at the 21st hole in the longest battle of the tournament thus far.

Mrs. Alex Gold, the qualifying medallist from across the Atlantic, advanced to the quarter-finals by defeating Evelyn Mills, Ottawa, 5 and 4.

SEEDED ENTRANTS MEET DIFFICULTY IN TENNIS PLAY

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 21—Favorites of the Pacific southwest tennis championships marshalled their forces today and turned back the threatened invasion of a bunch of young stars to keep the top seeded ranks intact.

However, five of those who won their way to the quarter-finals did so only after being extended to three set matches.

Ellsworth Vines Jr., the defending champion, Frederick Perry, British Davis cup competitor, Jiro Satoh, great Japanese star, Georgio de Stefani, the ambidextrous Italian, and Keith Gledhill, national doubles champion, ran into difficulties.

John Olliff of Great Britain caused Vines no end of trouble in the first set of their match which the champion lost 9-11. The Pasadenan played a bit more cautiously thereafter and won the match with 6-1, 6-3 scores.

THORN IN PERRY'S SIDE

Lester Stoeffen, tall, blond Los Angeles star, was the thorn in Perry's side. He took the lead by winning the first set, 6-2, dropped the second set, 3-6, and then held his British opponent off with match point in the offing six times before Perry broke through and took the deciding set, 6-4.

De Stefani eliminated Elbert Lewis, University of California at Los Angeles player, 6-4, 5-7, 9-7, in what probably was the closest match of the eight.

Mrs. Elliott Wins the Collison Cup

Taking an early lead which she maintained through the match, Mrs. A. Elliott trimmed Mrs. A. T. Richards, 21-9, in the final of the Collinson ladies' singles cup competition at the Nelson Lawn Bowling club's greens Wednesday afternoon.

Boxers Used to Bet Their Own Money in Old Days

Modern boxing was born more than 200 years ago. And from its inception as a sporting idea it has gone through persecution and prosperity.

When James Figg, the first heavyweight boxing champion, hung out his shingle in 1719, announcing to all "the fancy" (the fans) of London that lessons in the manly art of fisticuffery could be practiced at his residence, he little realized that he was starting something more than an exercise.

Figg was a swordsman, wrestler and all-round athlete, and it was his idea to entertain the young bloods by a game in which points were scored with the bare knuckles.

Fist-fighting dated back to Theagenes of ancient Greece who battered in the skulls of more than 1400 opponents (no setups, either). Figg and his protege, Jack Broughton, however, visioned a finer and more sporting way of taking and inflicting punishment. They drafted a set of rules.

The law frowned on Figg's pastime. Agitation by those who opposed indiscriminate breaking of noses and scrambling of ears led to legislation. The sport became a hit-and-run proposition, hidden from the eyes of the police.

It met the same reception when James Burke, the English champion, brought the sport to America in 1835. Boxing in those days was a game to be indulged in only in sylvan retreats, barn lofts and barges.

But the manly art flourished. Glamorous figures sprung up to demonstrate their pugilistic abilities. Young men found it an adventurous career, and boxing became more widespread year by year.

The names of such gladiators as Paddy Ryan, John L. Sullivan, Jake Kilrain, Charley Mitchell, Jim Corbett, Joe Choynski, Tom Sharkey, Bob Fitzsimmons and a host of others became fireside topics.

From a business standpoint boxing then was a flop. It was necessary to hold the battles in secret, and only the men-about-town and others who held the coin were notified of the milling.

The reward that paid the fighters' bar bills and kept them strutting about in "bully boy" regalia was not gathered from admission fees, but through side bets and lavish tips that the wealthier sports furnished when their boys came through to victory.

Jim Corbett, who lifted the crown from the gnarled head of the great John L. at New Orleans, was pressed to raise the amount of his side bet. He begged and borrowed from friends in San Francisco and staked it all on his chances to turn back the Boston Strong Boy, a fighter believed to be unbeatable.

Can you imagine the pained expression that would come over the face of the present heavyweight incumbent, Jack Sharkey, if it were suggested he should don the mittens without first having the guarantee of a fat purse?

In the days of the Sullivan-Corbett bout, which was 40 years ago, aspiring boxers had to battle for nothing until they could find a following large enough to back them against a strong contender. The Sullivan-Corbett bout, by the way, was the first by which a championship was decided under the Marquis of Queensberry rules, which called for the contestants to wear gloves.

Many of the old "bully boys" scoffed at the gloves as effiminate.

Despite police surveillance, boxing managed to survive and even to do fairly well until a young gambler named Tex Rickard, who could sense a sucker with sugar a mile away, set up in business in the frenzied gold rush town of Goldfield, Nevada.

Tex saw possibilities. And from the day that he saw them Fistiana knelt on the accelerator.

HOOKS and SLIDES

by WILLIAM BRAUCHER

In the last few years it has become noticeable that the leading exponents of that ancient Scottish pastime of golf in America are not the Scotch. Some of the names of winners of important tournaments have given headline writers permanent headaches.

Looking over the results of a caddies' tournament at the old Belleclaire Golf Club at Bayside, L. I., the other day, this correspondent was smitten suddenly by one of the reasons why young men with foreign-sounding names are becoming the lords of the links.

AND WHO'S THAT DUTCHMAN?

The tournament was won by a 16-year-old boy named Frank Strafaci, with a score of 145. Next in line was Louis Bargaro, with 146. A glance down the list of 30 or more names of caddies in the tournament disclosed the following monickers:

Frampton, Matuzo, Guarieri, Marzolla, Garchio, Petrone, Bukovecz, Ciampaglio, Touchinadi, Riccio, Rogier, Calo, Conte, Krenza, Passela, Pentenero, Pezzella, Testa, Mazzullo, Cappiallo, Manzone and Van Houten.

Two young men in the tournament named McCarthy and Hennessy must have felt a bit lonely.

ANOTHER SARAZEN?

Such names as Matuzo, Guarieri, Riccio, Ciampaglio, suggest at once the name of Saracini, another young man who was a caddy in the metropolitan area some 15 years ago. The full name is Eugenio Saracini, who is, as you probably have guessed, Gene Sarazen.

Among these caddies may be the man who, in 15 years, will rule the game of golf. But by that time, "Strafaci" may have become "Strack" and young "Guarieri" may be known as Mr. "Guard."

Sarazen is the son of Italian immigrants who had been in America only a year before his birth, at Harrison, N. Y.

HOW HE CAME UP

Fifteen years ago, Sarazen's status was much the same as that of these youngsters. Gene's father, a contractor, had lost a great of money on contracts he had entered into before the war which sent prices of materials and wages for labor soaring.

The Saracini family moved to Bridgeport, where for more than a year, Sarazen worked in a munitions factory, nailing up boxes of bullets.

After his day's work, he would go to the Brooklawn golf course and practice until darkness forced him to stop.

At 15, Gene was stricken with pneumonia. After he had begun to recover, doctors advised him to find outdoor occupation. So he got a job as caddy at Brooklawn and his golfing career started.

As a golfer then, he was much like the young caddies who played at old Belleclair the other day. He broke 90 consistently, and the scores at Belleclair show that most of the youngsters were in the upper 80's.

Sarazen won the National Open championship five years after he had taken a regular job as caddy. Five years from now, one of these Belleclair boys may follow his example.

IT'S AMERICAN SPORT

It used to be a popular belief that British and Scottish peoples excelled at golf because of their physical characteristics. The game seemed particularly suited to sold and canny natures.

Yet, in this country, we find the warm and impulsive Spanish and Italian stock especially successful at the pastime.

Golf places a handicap upon hot temper, yet fiery Latins seem to master it wit out much trouble. Many of our leading professionals—the Dutras, Espinosas, Turnesas, Jurados, Maneros, etc.—seem to find their Latin temperament no hindrance.

CHICAGO 6
PITTSBURGH 9

CHICAGO, Sept. 21 (AP).—Pittsburgh all but clinched second place in the National league race today by defeating the champions 9-6. A four-run rally in the eighth inning against a patched-up Cub lineup accomplished the victory.

Manager Charlie Grimm of the Cubs did not play, but he sent most of his regulars in the game for a few innings at least.

Paul Waner laced out his 58th double of the season in the seventh inning, and he is only one short of the National league record.

COAST BASEBALL SERIES EVENED

VANCOUVER, Sept. 21 (CP)—Big Joe Dailey, star right hander, and Coley Hall, slugging first baseman of Bob Brown's recapped Vacs, combined tonight to whitewash Fraser Cafe 3-0 and even up the series for the provincial baseball title at 2-all.

Dailey was in rare form, whiffing 10 batters and allowing only four hits. Hall with a triple and single, drove in two runs and scored the other in Daily's single.

The Vacs got away to a flying start in the second frame. Cole walked. Hall tripled to score Cole and Dailey singled to bring in Hall. Purmal, however, hit into a double play and the next man grounded out to retire the side.

The game was scoreless from then until the sixth when McKissock, second sacker, doubled and came in on Hall's single to center.

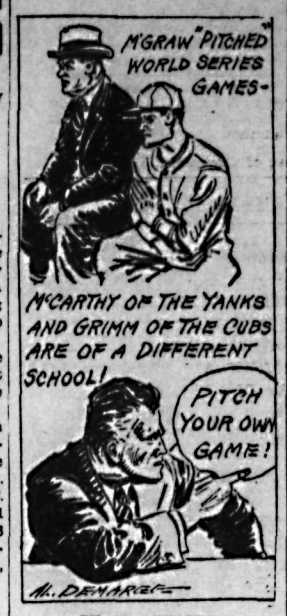
McGRAW BEST CURVE PITCHER ON TEAM



BY AL DEMAREE

Former Manager John J. McGraw of the New York Giants "pitched" every game his ball club played in every world series. In fact, many players on opposing clubs claimed that McGraw was the best curve ball pitcher on his club. He went so far as to sign almost every ball pitched by his pitchers. Some of them, notably Art Nehf refused to abide by his signs and arranged "private" signs with their catchers.

"As long as we were successful," said Art, "everything was O. K. But one day Mac as usual gave the curve ball sign and I flashed my private fast ball sign to my catcher. The batter hit it for a triple and cleaned the bases.

"Didn't you see my sign? asked McGraw.

"Sur, Mac," I answered, "but the ball slipped out of my hand."

"So I noticed," was McGraw's only comment.

Indoor Track Meet Entry Reaches 50

Track Is in Fine Shape; to Install Loud Speaker Equipment

That the coming indoor track meet to be held in Nelson this Friday will be a success and a milestone in the revival of track and field contests in the Kootenay has been amply indicated both by the number of entries and the enthusiasm displayed by local and district athletes.

On Wednesday the entry was boosted to the 50 mark. The new entries were from Nelson for the most part, although two entries were received from Trail.

FORREST ENTERS

Art Forrest, well known Trail jumping star, has entered in the high jump, pole vault and broad jump. Forrest is probably the strongest contender in these events, but he will have to vie with keen competition from Nelson and outside athletes.

G. N. Wilson of Trail is entered in the 100 and 220 yard events, as well as the broad jump.

The track committee, under Boyd Affleck, Jake Rothery and Neil Derby, have all but completed their task. The track is in fine condition and the whole layout will prove superior to other years. The track has been marked off into five lanes.

In order to accommodate the audience, loud speakers are at present being installed by members of the Nelson Amateur Radio society, and a phone will be put in from the timekeeper's box to the announcer. In this way, results will be sent straight to the announcer without having messengers running back and forward. One of the decisions made at a recent meeting was that trainers and athletes will be barred from the field unless taking part in an event. This will overcome a lot of difficulties confronted in past meets.

Foxx Gets 54th Homer; Babe Ruth Back; Senators Win Two

PHILADELPHIA 8;
NEW YORK 4

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 21 (AP).—Merritt "Sugar" Cain checked the bats of the New York Yankees, including Babe Ruth, today, and the Athletics pounded out an 8-4 victory over the American league champions.

The A's walloped three timely home runs, including Jimmie Foxx' 54th of the season and Al Simmons' 34th, in their 10 hits off Charley Ruffing, who is figured by many as a probable starting pitcher for the first game of the world series.

Simmons' circuit drive opened the scoring in the fourth inning. Foxx' blow started a three-run rally in the seventh, and a four-ply wallop by Eric McNair with two on base in the eighth finished off the rally that won the game in the eighth.

Ruth, returning to the Yanks' lineup after an absence of 15 games because of a threatened attack of appendicitis, went out his first three times, but got a single on a bad bounder the fourth time, and drove in the tying run. He was taken out for a pinch runner.

BOSTON, Sept. 21 (AP)—Washington Senators out-batted Boston Red Sox in both ends of a double-header today, winning 1-0 and 3-2. In the 10-inning opener the visitors tallied on singles by Bluege and Spencer and an infield out for a 1-0 victory.

They had to fill the bases in the ninth inning of the second game to push over the winning run.

Dale Alexander, pressing for the league's batting honors, got a single in the first game and two singles and a double out of four tries in the second.

DETROIT, Sept. 21 (AP).—With several recruits in the lineup, Chicago White Sox took both ends of a double-header from the Tigers today, 11-3 and 3-1.

Kress' bat was the most powerful of the White Sox, banging out a homer, two doubles and a single out of five times at bat in the opener, and two doubles and a single out of four appearances in the second game. English won the second game with a homer in the eighth inning that scored Swanson ahead of him.

Father Kelly's Baseballers Earn Way Into Pro Leagues

BOURBONNAIS, Ill.—Coaches come and go in the Little 19 conference of Illinois colleges, but Father E. M. Kelly, nearing his 50th birthday, stays on at St. Viator college and keeps sending his boys into professional baseball.

It has been nearly 30 years since Father Kelly himself starred on the diamond where he now coaches. In the 15 years since he has become athletic director and baseball coach, he has developed dozens of boys who took up the game as a business.

Eddie Stack went from St. Viator to the Cubs in 1909 before Father Kelly stepped in. He made good, retired once to go into business, and then returned to the game as an umpire.

Bernard Coss, one of Father Kelly's better southpaw pitchers, was with Brooklyn. Alex McCarthy hopped from the campus to Pittsburgh and later played several years in the American Association.

Bud Clancy, Babe Ruth of the Little 19 loop 10 years ago, held down first base several seasons for the White Sox, and is now cavorting at the initial corner for Brooklyn, following a turn in the American Association. Mike Delaney, Viator pitcher who graduated in 1929, is with Washington.

The Boston Braves own Lefty Laenhardt, first baseman of promise. He is at Binghampton, along with Gus Dundon, another Viator left-hander.

Jimmy Dalrymple, one of the best shortstops in Illinois collegiate circles, joined Reading after graduating. He is with Fort Worth this season. Pat Sweeney went into the American Association via the Three-Eye league, while Iggy Waters, another first baseman who left St. Viator during the winter, seems headed for stardom with Decatur.

BRITISH PLANES SWEEP CONTESTS IN SWITZERLAND

ZURICH., Switzerland, Sept. 21. (CP)—British aeroplanes scored the greatest triumph in international competition since the end of the Schneider Trophy contest series, when they won both single-seater and multi-seater events in races around the Alps.

Sixteen single-seater and 12 multi-seater aircraft took part, representing between then nine nations and the cream of modern aeronautical design and construction. France, Italy, Jugoslavia, Belgium, Denmark, Holland, Roumania, Poland and Switzerland all entered machines, though from the first the British fighting aeroplanes to be flown by the Jugoslavian and Belgian pilots were firm favorite, such is the reputation for speed and extreme flying efficiency possessed on the continent of Europe by English military aircraft.

The course was Zurich-Thun-Lausanne-Bellinzona-Zurich, a distance of 230 miles, and it was chosen to take the pilots up to heights well over 10,000 feet over sections of the circuit. Weather conditions were perfect and the race resolved itself into a straightforward speed and climb test of aeroplane against aeroplane, rather than a struggle with mist or storm.

In the upshot the first single-seater pilot across the finishing line at Duberdorf aerodrom, Zurch, was the Jugoslavian army flyer, Captain Sintic, who flew the entire course in 68 minutes 38 seconds. His Hawker "Gury" biplane averaging no less than 201.4 miles an hour. The British success was rounded off later when Captain Vanderlinded, of the Belgian army air service, crossed the line in a Fairey "Fox" two-seater biplane. Carrying a passenger in the observer's cockpit the Belgian pilot averaged 160.9 m. p. h., completing the circuit in 85 minutes 45 seconds.

These records are all the more impressive because every competing aeroplane was obliged to make two compulsory halts on the way, implying three take-offs and consequently an average speed lower than would be possible in a race without intermediate landings.

The winning "Fury" was one of a batch of three of these fast and formidable intercepter fighters which were acquired by the Jugoslavian government 12 months ago and all that time it has been flown regularly in the hands of military pilots. Powered like the "Fox" two-seater, with the Rolls-Royce 480 h. p. "Kestrel" liquid cooled motor, the "Fury" is now standard equipment of the intercepter squadrons of the British home defence force. Carrying full military load this craft attains speeds in the neighborhood of 215-220 miles an hour, and performance which is unapproached by any military aeroplane designed and constructed outside of Great Britain. It can climb to a height of 20,000 feet in less than 10 minutes while maintaining forward movement at the rate of 150 m. p. h.

The "Fox" two-seater flown by Captain Vanderlinden is one of a large number supplied recently by the Fairey company for the re-equipment of certain regiments of the Belgian military air service. Together with a big batch of Fairey-single-seater fighters, the two "Fox" orders constitute the largest contracts ever placed by a foreign government with a British aircraft company in time of peace

Experts Study N. S. Phenomena

HALIFAX, N. S., Sept. 21. (CP)—Zostera marina (eel grass to you) has disappeared from many districts along the coast of Nova Scotia, and experts are studying the cause.

Although swimmers rejoice at the absence of the growth which sometimes reaches 16 feet in the deep water, its disappearance may have a definite effect on wild life and on a growing industry. Eel-grass is used extensively in the manufacture of eel-grass insulation and quilts, and manufacturers are facing a problem this season.

Officials of the fisheries experimental station at Halifax state that recent letters reported the phenomena in Pictou, Antigonish, Tusket and Lockeport. Similar reports have come from Pubnico and Musquodoboit Harbor.

Wild geese and black duck both feed to a certain extent on eel-grass, and it is feared they will look for other feeding grounds.

On the other hand, one theory is that wind and tide affect the growth of the grass and although it may vanish in one place it will appear in another.

OLD COIN FOUND IN SCHOOL YARD

HALIFAX, N. S., Sept 14.—P. W. Crozier recently found a coin that had been in circulation for a quarter of a century before Halifax was anything but a series of uncut timbered hills. Tarnished by age, Crozier found it lying on the ground in the Joseph Howe school yard where it had been uncovered by recent rains. He cleaned it and found the coin to be a penny. On one side was harp and on the other the word "Hibernia" which was the ancient name given to Ireland by the Romans. The date was 1723.

CHAMPION OF THEM ALL

On the basis of first place points scored in the last three sets of Olympic games, Paavo Nurmi of Finland ranks as the greatest of the world's modern Olympic athletes. He won six running championships in the three games.

The white ant of tropical countries produces more than 86,000 eggs each day during hatching season.

VERAGE GAIN IGH AS BULLS ARE RAMPANT

tocks Soar 7-1 Points for Best Demonstration in Nearly Year

By JOHN L. COOLEY
ssociated Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Bullish thusiasm ran high in today's nancial markets.

Stocks put on their best demstration in nearly a year, mak- g an average gain of 7.1 points, hich considerably exceeded the st they have been able to do uring the summer rally, when e idea that business might be heduled for some improvement as beginning to take hold.

Wheat rose more than 2c a bushel, d cotton contributed advances of ound $3 a bale. Most bonds were ong.

On the stock exchange, many solled pivotal issues returned net vances of 4 to 8 points. To what ent these liberal gains reflected reat of a short interest which d wrongly interpreted the mar- 's recent dullness was impossible determine; but in many shares amount of stock available for ering purposes seemed scarce.

The more spectacular advances e gains of around 8 points for S. Steel common and American elephone, 7 or so for American n, Delaware & Hudson, and Union cific, about 10 for Steel prered and Case, and 4 or 5 for estinghouse, American Smelting, Pont, Western Union, Santa Fe d New York Central. Most leadwere up at least 2 points. Sales lled to 4,346,510 shares, against 51,040 yesterday.

GRAINS SCORE A SUBSTANTIAL GAIN, WINNIPEG

WINNIPEG, Sept. 21 (CP). — In sympathy with other advancing commodity and stock quotations, wheat prices on the Winnipeg grain exchange scored substantial improvement today. Lighter hedging pressure and a moderate export trade aided the rise, which amounted to 1¼c to 1⅜c.

October closed at 52⅛, December at 54⅛ to 54¼, and May at 59 to 59⅛.

A falling off in country receipts, strength at Liverpool and Chicago, and a moderate export trade in Canadian wheat were some of the factors in the advance. Foreign sales were estimated at between 500,000 and 1,000,000 bushels, with the Pacific coast credited with most of the business.

The weather map in western Canada was also a small factor, showing fairly general showers in all three prairie provinces on Tuesday, which will delay threshing operations to some extent.

Fractionally better spreads ruled for certain of the better grades of bread wheat and amber Durums, but the volume of cash wheat trade was not large. Lack of demand was reflected in the coarse grains section.

CANADIAN DOLLAR RECOVERS TRIFLE

NEW YORK, Sept. 21 (CP).—The Canadian dollar recovered earlier losses on local foreign exchanges today, closing 1-16c higher at 89¾c. The pound sterling rallied at the close from earlier easing, gaining almost all of its loss. Eterling ended the day ⅝c lower at $3.46⅛ for cable transfers.

The dollar opened at 89¾c, declining to 89 9-16 at noon, while sterling started the day at $3.46⅝, selling for $3.45¾ in mid-afternoon.

WHEAT RISE IS BUOYANT

Surges Up Three Points Higher Than Current Prices Last Week

By JOHN P. BOUGHAN
Associated Press Market Editor

CHICAGO, Sept. 21 (AP)—Sweeping buoyantly upward with stocks and cotton, wheat today rose to more than 3 cents a bushel higher than prices current late last week.

Topmost quotations of the day in wheat prevailed at the finish, despite heavy selling here to match simultaneous buying at Winnipeg. Liverpool messages said wheat offerings abroad were limited except from Canada, and that United States wheat was about in line with British importers' ideas.

Wheat closed strong 2⅜ to 2¾ above yesterday's finish, corn ⅜ to ¾ up, oats at ⅜ to ⅝ advance, and provisions unchanged to 15 cents higher.

Reports that domestic buying of flour was the most active yet this season helped further to advance wheat values. Special attention, too, was given to scantiness of United States winter wheat receipts and to advances in premiums for wheat export. Business today was estimated at 600,000 bushels.

TORONTO PRICES CLOSE WELL UP

TORONTO, Sept. 21.—New developments appeared on the Standard mining exchange today, with prices well above the low records made in the recent slump. Golds, however, showed but minor changes of a firm nature.

Sales volume showed improvement, with a turnover of 410,000 shares.

Nickel moved up 1.60 to $11.50; Noranda 1.35 to 21.35; Hudson Bay 60c to 4.25; Coast Copper 24c to $3.50, and Bwana 5½c to 84½c.

The Lindsley leaders closed well above the previous price, Falconbridge jumped 55c to 2.15; Sherritt-Gordon 13c to 64c, and Ventures up 11c to 65c.

Majority of golds held to a comparatively small trading circle. Lake Shore advanced 50c to $29; Dome, with rumors of new mine developments of interest, gained 35c to 13c; Teck-Hughes was the soft spot on the board, and under steady selling pressure broke 12 to $3.25.

PORT ALBERNI MILL TO START

PORT ALBERNI, B. C., Sept. 21—The large sawmill of the Alberni Pacific Lumber company, limited, which has been closed down since last June, will resume operation on Monday next, according to an announcement made by the officials. This mill has a cut of 500,000 feet a day, running two shifts, but for the present it is expected that only the day shift will be working. Its finished product is practically all exported.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Sept. 21—Butter and cheese markets were fractionally easier today.

Butter was quoted 21½ cents to 21¾ cents per pound for carlots or L.C.L. lots of No. 1, current make being at the higher level, with storage butter at the lower level. Receipts were 128 boxes, week ago same day, 1, same day last year 460.

The cheese market was quoted 10⅞ to 11 cents per pound on Ontarios, and 10½ to 10⅝ cents for Quebecs. Receipts 1666 boxes, week ago 2662, year ago 1748.

Eggs were unchanged. Receipts again were lighter. Eggs in carlots were quoted 26 to 27 cents for extras, 19 to 20 cents for firsts and 13 cents for seconds.

C. P. DOMINATES TORONTO TRADE

Stock Prices Are Materially Higher; Oil Issues Tend to Lag

TORONTO, Sept. 21.—Prices on the Toronto stock exchange today went materially higher under the influence of the spectacular rise in New York. Canadian Pacific dominated local trading with a price rise of $2 to 20¾.

Other utilities were conspicuously strong, with the Montreal Power group leading the way. Brazilian was up ½; B. C. Power and Bell gained fractions. Montreal Power was up 1¼.

In the steel section, Page-Hersey was higher by 1¼ at 56. Ford of Canada closed at 10½, showing a gain of 1¾.

International Nickel closed at 11½, a net gain of 1½. Smelters fluctuated between 81 and 86, and closed at the latter price with a net gain of 6½.

International Nickel tended to lag, moving narrowly on light turnover. B A. was up ⅛ Imperial gained ⅛, and Pete lost ⅛.

Consolidated Bakeries common, whose dividend was deferred, was off ⅜ following announcement of the news toward noon, closing at 4⅝. Dominion Stores at 18 was up 1.

Total sales for the day amounted to 23,417 shares.

Egg Quotations Register Gains

Lard Is Up a Cent Per Pound; Fresh Eggs Advance a Cent Per Dozen

Fresh eggs and lard were the only two commodities to record price changes during the week ended Wednesday on the Nelson wholesale market. Fresh eggs advanced a cent a dozen, both firsts and extras, while lard registered a one-cent advance on the pound. Turnover in all departments was only fair.

There was a fair demand for peaches, oranges, bananas, and lemons during the week, although none of these fruits were outstanding on the market. Local grown fruits and vegetables are tending to this market.

Car receipts for the week were two cars of timothy, a car of mixed mill feed, a mixed car of flour and feed, a mixed car of timothy and brome hay, and a car of mill feed.

CONSOLIDATED TO INCREASE STORAGE FERTILIZER PLANT

TRAIL, B. C., Sept. 21.—Storage capacity at the fertilizer plant of the Consolidated Mining & Smelting company at Warfield is to be increased immediately by 6000 tons. This will give the huge storage plant a total capacity of 66,000 tons.

Work was started yesterday on the extension to the storage building to add 45 feet to its length, giving the building an over-all length of approximately 515 feet. It is 105 feet wide.

KUSKANOOK MOORED TO WINTER BERTH

After being tied up at the city wharf for a day, the former steamer Kuskanook was moved to her winter berth between the wharf and the British Columbia Veneer Works Wednesday morning.

Moved down Monday night from Kokanee, where her owner, A. D Pochin, has had her in use for summer resort purposes, the old steamer will probably find a permanent home on foreshore near Lakeside park, for the lease of which the city has applied to the department of lands.

COURTENAY TO HAVE 1933 SCHOOL TRUSTEE ASSOCIATION CONVENTION

Interchange of Teachers After Three Years Is Subject of Resolution

KELOWNA, B. C., Sept. 21—School trustees this afternoon adopted a resolution submitted by Union Bay and Comox school boards seeking investigation of the deal between the government and E. & N. railway. An enormous land grant was made as a subsidy to the railway, and the resolution urged the government ascertain if the land could not be brought under taxation. It was said that if these lands were taxed there would be no necessity for school grants in the district.

Interchange of teachers was the subject of a resolution from Penticton. It was urged the system be encouraged, particularly after teachers have served three years in a district.

The convention decided to request the department of education to allow matriculation students, taking examinations partly at the end of the third year and partly the fourth year, to pay one fee of $5, and to pass with an average of 60 per cent, with no paper less than 40 per cent.

It was explained this would mean a saving of about $5 to the student.

A resolution from Burnaby seeking to have school board chairmen act as ex-officio members of the juvenile court was defeated.

COMMON SYSTEM

Establishment of a common system of education in all the provinces, including standardized textbooks, advocated by Prince Rupert, was supported by the convention.

Mid Island trustees submitted a resolution urging the privilege of passing students of all schools by recommendation the same as now is permitted for high schools.

The recommendation system was criticized by several delegates and an amendment was offered urging that high school students must write on one or more subjects. Both amendment and resolution were defeated. A shift system of classes to put school buildings to greater use was advocated in a resolution submitted by Richmond. The convention defeated a proposal for a committee to investigate the peasibility of offering the present curriculum under such a system.

INSURANCE MONEY

North Vancouver brought up the subject of insurance money received by school boards and won support for an amenment to the act to make certain the money should not enter other channels.

More courses including Spanish language were advocated by Richmond in a resolution which received unanimous support.

At the suggestion of Burnaby delegates, a vote of thanks was extended to Hon. Joshua Hinchliffe for curtailing the school holidays, which was at request of the B. C. School Trustees' association.

Courtenay was selected for the 1933 convention.

DEPUTY MINISTER HERE ON HOLIDAY

Patrick Philip, deputy minister of public works, arrived in Nelson Wednesday evening from the west, with Mrs. Philip, on a brief motor holiday, registering at the Hume.

The deputy minister was here a few weeks ago on an inspectional trip that extended from the Okanagan to Kimberley, looking into the relief camp operation, a result of his report to Hon. R. W. Bruhn, minister of public works, being the decision to resume the relief work at Kokanee and to open a new road camp near Sirdar.

While the deputy minister's present trip is stated to have nothing to do with public business, he was not long here before he and William Ramsay, district engineer, were in conference.

Sh-h-h, Lady! Mr. Man Is Annoyed by Loud Voices!

* * * * * * * * * * * *

Lower Tones and Well-spoken Words Spell Charm, Says This Woman

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Many women would rate higher if they could be seen and not heard.

That is the observation of Mrs. Marie Bren-Kaus of New York, well known instructor in the speaking voice, who helps women say the right thing in the right way when they open their mouths. Or men, too, for that matter.

But women need to know the charm secrets more than men do, she says.

"You don't say . . .!"

Marie Bren-Kaus . . . puts words in women's mouths.

"Men are more sensitive than women to speaking voices," Mrs. Bren-Kaus has observed. "Often men will tell me that they dislike certain women. At first they don't understand just why. In the majority of cases it is the woman's voice that has been offensive.

"Men grow tired during the work of the day. They need rest and relaxation when they come home at night. If a woman has a nagging whining voice, though she may talk about lovely things, her tones will grate on her husband's nerves. A shrill or strident voice denotes a complaining personality.

POOR MR. MAN!

"Living with a woman with a bad voice, or working with one whose voice is unpleasant, is hard on a man's nerves."

But it is quite possible to have a voice that everyone will want to hear. Mrs. Bren-Kaus tells you how.

First of all, learn to stand right and breathe right. Make your body a line. A nice, straight one. This gives you self-possession.

"I make people a present of them*selves," the instructor points out.* "So often they don't realize their own possibilities. If a voice has a quality that is false due to interference and lack of freedom, it doesn't express that person."

You may have a cheerful disposition but it won't do you any good if you have a whining twang when you talk, for nobody will believe that you mean it when you laugh.

Then, too, if your voice is the kind that makes you bore yourself, you will be quite likely to keep still when other people are around. Their voices will appear more musical. Consequently you will develop an inferiority complex.

SPEAK RIGHT

Watch your diction. Make your tones distinct. Pronounce every 'd' and every 't'. Don't slur. This helps a lot. That's professional advice.

"It is easier to use the voice correctly than incorrectly. Poise and ease follow perfect voices. Listeners relax when a beautiful voice is speaking. When the voice is irritating they are nervous. Socially, an unpleasant voice repels. Most people find that voice lingers in their memory long after a face has disappeared," she continues.

"What a charming tomato can!"

"If you want to make your voice more beautiful, lower it. Talk more distinctly."

And here is how to get the right effect, according to the woman who puts the right sort of words in women's mouths:

"Talk as though you were speak*ing to someone at the far end of a* room, and someone whom you didn't want to waken was asleep at your side.

"Don't use a big voice. A small voice will sound louder as you move away. Have someone demonstrate. You won't notice how small a voice was being used until the person crosses the room to you."

And when you say words the right way, anything you mention will take on enchantment—moonlight, a new type-writer ribbon, canned tomatoes, or anything else.

GIRL WHO FLEW THE ATLANTIC DISCOVERS FUN IN LITTLE WAYS

One Learns This at the Putnam Household at Rye, N. Y., Where There Are Tropical Fish Chasing One Another Around Guest-Room Ceiling

JANET MABIE
Staff Writer of The Christian Science Monitor

If I say that there is guest room in Amelia Earhart Putnam's home at Rye, N. Y., which gives the guest walking in it an absurd and humorously overwhelming feeling of having somehow stolen during the night into a large bowl inhabited by a great company of brightly painted and very youthful tropical fish, dashing about their cheery business among exquisite marine growths, I hope it will immediately fix the very noticeable quality of fun in small things that characterizes the household.

If I dared fly in the face of Mr. A. A. Milne's tribulations with the word "whimsical," I should apply it to the Putnam household, but as there seems to be something mightily forbidding about the word, especially to those of us who have seen Mr. Milne wriggle and groan over its application to him, I must let you supply your own, based upon what I can tell you of this slim capable girl at home, who picked up some maps and a flying suit off the hall chest one day not long ago, filled up the tanks of her plane and flew across the Atlantic in order to have an answer ready when next she inquired of herself whether she could do it or could not do it.

The house is long and low-studed, and has the air of a good comfortable shoe. It is in a clump of trees off a main highway and can easily be passed unseen; it is none too visible from the air; a plane going 150 miles an hour and moderately high, almost misses it.

From the great living room there is a door onto a terrace, and you scramble down a long flight of steps cut in the rock bank, 75 feet or so and come to a level place which is variously a croquet ground, a range for target practice with a pistol, and a lilly pond with an Indian kayak sitting stolidly if in slightly cramped proportion among the lilies.

THE RADIO CHEERS THEM ON

A man and his wife look after the household; the man is butler and chauffeur. His wife is cook and chambermaid. Their lives are spiced by a dawn-to-dusk accompaniment from a radio whose cabinet is perched somewhat picturesquely on a kitchen table.

The living room is a shambles of books and the odds and ends that explorers and adventurous ladies and gentlemen have dredged upin all corners of the world and brought back to the Putnams for souvenirs. I do not know whether the house is ever without guests. I should doubt it. The first time I went there the roll call included one stunt flier for the movies, a fashion writer and the 9-year-old son of Commander Fitzhugh Green, U. S. N. Young Fitz had bulsness with Mr. Putnam's 10-year-old son Junie and we were not permitted to share much in its gravity. They bent their heads in absorption over their cereal at breakfast, slighted their eggs, ate their slices of toast down to the size which could be conveniently carried from the table, and departed.

I took it that Mrs. Putnam knew that feeling of having something very urgent to do somewhere else, from the smile she exchanged secretly with them as they mumbled "Scuse" and retired, slipping with burts of laughter on the rugs that skidded over the floor.

I dare say Dr. William Beebe is behind the idea of having one of the guest rooms a goldfish bowl. I do not know who did the murals, but the effect has none of the soggy feeling of having got damp during the association.

DINNER PROVES A FORUM

Talk is good around the table. Meals seem to be practically the only time when all get together. The office is a jumbled mite of a room under the stairs; its walls covered with pictures and scraps of tacked-up memoranda. There is a stairway leading to master rooms on the second floor and Mr. and Mrs. Putnam do many miles daily between the second floor and the roof under the stair.

Mrs. Putnam Sr. is a character in a good play; witty, coordinated, commanding a figure rich in background full of a luxurious good humor, more of a power behind her son's publishing career, in critical ways, than she likes you to know.

You get to recognize an Earhart mannerism. A swift resent of the stairs and a quick squatting down on the heels before someone she wants to talk to. Then, from an even height as she sits in a low chair, she looks straight into their faces with level, calm eyes. A girl who wastes no words. Of abundant sympathies, and a strange grasp on an uncommonly wide range of subjects.

With Mr. Putnam everything is clatter and rush. His wife seems never to hurry. Her movements economize; no wheels show in the machinery. Everything goes forward, steadily, evenly.

I have heard it said of her, "She seem not to know what she has wanted to do in life," but the speaker has neglected to add that everything she has done had a definite beginning, and was definitely finished before she went on to do something else. That, in a world filled with people who strongly resemble traffic signals, is something to be said of a girl.

NELSON HAS FOUR DEGREES FROST

Four degrees of frost in Nelson Tuesday night gave warning of the coming of colder weather, as well as damaging garden plants in some sections of the city. Coal merchants have been kept busy all week as residents store in their winter fuel.

Temperature extremes during the 24-hour period ended at 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon were 28 and 64 degrees.

HOTEL VANCOUVER FATE IS CAUSE OF MUCH SPECULATION

VANCOUVER, Sept. 22—There is much speculation in the city regarding the fate of Hotel Vancouver and the $7,000,000 Canadian National hotel, now under construction, following release of the report of the royal commission on transportation.

The report urges that duplication in hotel services of the two railways be abolished. This brings the Vancouver railway hotel situation sharply to the front, especially in view of a statement made some months ago by Col. T. A. Hiam, at that time assistant to the president of Canadian National railways.

Plant a few seeds of your favorite annuals in the flower garden within the next two weeks and you may get some very early flowers next spring.

NELSON RUGGERS AWAIT ONSLAUGHT OF TRAIL, SUNDAY

Nelson Will Field Strongest Team in Nelson Rugby History

Sunday will see the debut of rugby in Nelson this season when the Nelson team tangles with the Trail ruggers in the first game of the Kootenay Canadian Rugby league at the Recreation park.

During the last month, practices in Nelson have found many new faces taking interest in the game as well as the largest turnouts recorded in the history of the Nelson club.

Although it is yet a little early to predict the starting lineups of the Nelson team, performances in practice games held on Tuesday and Wednesday seem to leave little doubt as to who will play

TRIPLE THREAT

Johnny McLeod, Nelson's triple threat star, is slated for center half and will be flanked by Monty Morley on the right and the veteran "Sandy" Martin on the left. These athletes need no introduction to Nelson sport enthusiasts.

Two candidates are in the running for the snap position. Ken Wray and Al Woods will both be seen in action at this post. Woods is favored to start.

Bill Vance, who starred in the backfield last year, will hold down the end position this year, combining with "Buck" Buchanan as his running mate. "Buck" was slated for quarterback, but due to lack of experience there, he will start the game at right wing. It is understood that "Buck" is slated to call signals part of the game.

Tony Banks will start at quarter. Stewart Smillie and Johnny Dolphin are likely candidates for the flying wing position while the starting middle wing positions will see Stewart Russell and Bill Jones with Bob Kirby, Al Byers, and Dave Proudfoot fighting it out to place.

Inside wing position will likely be picked from Bill Donaldson, Jack Meek, Don Lucas, and Jones.

SECOND STRING GOOD

In the scrimmages held during the past week, Nelson's second string backfield, consisting of Ronald Beattie, Ronald Sampson and Norman McLeod, has been playing spectacular rugby.

Although E. Smillie, Brooks and Bradley, of the junior team will turn out with the seniors Sunday they will not be used unless in an emergency.

A naturalist points out the need for a method of identifying fish, such as the fingerprinting of human beings; since growing fish may change confusingly in shape and color.
