Royalty From All the World to Assemble at Garter Ceremony

The richest pageant of all the celebrations of the Royal Silver Jubilee will be the assembly to be held in Windsor castle on June 17 when 36 members of the Knights of the Garter will come together for the first time in 22 years. A service to be held in St. George's chapel will be the most colorful event of all the many colorful events to be witnessed in London for the next few months. The knights, many of them monarchs of foreign lands, will wear their picturesque robes of order, dark blue mantle, embroidered with the garter and black velvet hats and white ostrich plumes. The procession will be headed by the King and Queen in the march from the castle to the chapel. The King's stall will be canopied with purple velvet fringed with gold and above it will hang his banner as soverign of the order. The Queen, the only woman in the order, will sit on his right and will wear full robes of the order and the insignia set in diamonds presented to her by the Marys in the kingdom. Among those who are knights of the Garter are shown in the above layout, TOP, LEFT to RIGHT, King Victor Emmanuel of Italy; King Gustav of Sweden; King George, Queen Mary, Emperor Hirohito of Japan and King Haakon of Norway. LOWER ROW, LEFT to RIGHT, Earl of Athlone, brother of Queen Mary; ex-King Alfonso of Spain; King Christian of Denmark; H.R.H. the Prince of Wales; Rt. Hon. Sir Austen Chamberlain, the only commoner in the order, and the Duke of Connaught, probably the oldest member. All 36 members are expected to attend the brilliant ceremony of the most famous of chivalric orders.

CLIPPER SHIP WITH SIX MEN ABOARD ON WAY TO HONOLULU

Will Blaze a Trail From the U. S. to the Orient

REPORTED 416 MILES AT SEA

Carries the Latest in Equipment for Navigation

ALAMEDA, Cal., April 16 (AP)—The transpacific Clipper plane was 416 miles at sea en route to Honolulu when it reported at 6:50 p.m., to the Pan American radio station here, two hours and 40 minutes after the takeoff. The plane was flying at an altitude of 8100 feet in clear weather.

LEAVES ON SCHEDULE

ALAMEDA, Cal., April 16 (AP)—Exactly on schedule, the big Clipper flying boat and its six-man crew left here today on a 2400-mile flight to Honolulu to blaze the first leg of a commercial transpacific airline to the orient.

The Pan American plane took off at 3:50:30 p.m. P.S.T., rose slowly from the water and headed toward its distant goal.

Four powerful motors, developing 2900 horsepower, whirled the big propellers as several thousand spectators eagerly watched the start of the pioneering hop.

The six men of the Clipper's crew, captained by Edwin C. Musick, walked to the float and entered their craft. They were natty blue uniforms and white caps.

Then Chief Pilot R. O. D. Sullivan opened the throttles and the craft turned slowly and headed out into the bay.

Spray foamed from the black hull as the clipper gathered speed. It raced along the surface for a quarter of a mile, and after 30 seconds lifted into the air.

CAN "GO SLAP DAMN TO HELL"

—HUEY LONG

That Is His Retort to Ickes Over the Works Battle

WASHINGTON, April 15 (AP).—Declaring open warfare on Senator Huey P. Long of Louisiana, Harold Ickes, U.S. secretary of the interior, today threatened to cancel all public works projects in Louisiana and was told he could "go slap damn to hell."

The verbal slaps the two delivered at each other across the considerable distance between Washington and Baton Rouge appeared likely to develop into a political duel of some naitonal significance. Long has been warring against the administration. The return blows until today generally have been considered light.

MORE CARS ON ROADS OF B. C.

Licence Officials See an Indication of Prosperity Return

VICTORIA, April 16 (CP)—An increase of 6 per cent in the number of cars on British Columbia roads to the end of March this year, compared with 1934, was reported in a statement released today by the motor record office.

The report indicated there were 3629 more cars on the road now than at this time last year, an increase which corresponds with that of last year.

Increases were shown in both the number of passenger vehicles on the road and commercial cars. There were 1154 new registrations for passenger machines, compared with 788 last year. Renewals totalled 49,643 for this year and 47,488 for 1934, making totals of 59,797 renewals and new registrations of passenger machines for 1935; and 48,236 for 1934.

New registrations of commercial vehicles totalled 364, compared with 196 last year. There were 12,234 renewals and 11,554 last year. These totals are 12,598 for this year and 11,750 for 1934.

The total of new registrations and renewals for both passenger and commercial machines this year is 62,395, and for last year was 59,986.

Licence officials regarded the increase as a sign of returning prosperity, claiming the freer circulation of money results in placing more cars on the highways.

ENTIRELY NEW CONSTITUTION

Clerk of House Lays Down Plans for the B.N.A. Act Change

OTTAWA, April 16 (CP)—Amendment to the British North America act should take the form of an entirely new constitution for Canada, and it should be drafted by a constituent assembly representative of the whole people, Dr. Arthur Beauchesne, clerk of the house of commons, today told the parliamentary committee studying the proposals to amend the B.N.A. act here. The imperial parliament should, after Canada's new constitution was written, be requested to repeal the act.

Enlarging upon the suggestion Dr. Beauchesne declared the personnel of this constituent assembly should be representative of the senate, the house of commons and the provincial legislatures and should be one-fourth of the present number of each.

This constituent assembly would meet at Winnipeg, summoned by proclamation issued by all the legislative bodies involved. It would be clearly set forth that "minority rights," preserved under the present British North America act, would not be discussed. The representation would be drawn from all classes.

RADIO BODY IS HIT BY EULER

Public Control Failure Action After Easter

OTTAWA, April 16 (CP)—Public control of radio broadcasting under the present commission has failed, the house of commons was told by Hon. W. D. Euler (Lib. North Waterloo), one of parliament's champions of state ownership.

Mr. Euler claimed the number of private stations had increased in these years, politics had crept into the administration and programs were mediocre.

When the house passed a bill extending the life of the commission for two months, minister of marine Alfred Duranleau intimated that definite parliamentary action might be taken after the Easter recess.

Replying to opposition members who claimed many parts of Canada could not hear commission programs, he said there was a plan to build high-power station at Vancouver, in the Maritimes and elsewhere but it was delayed by lack of money. When parliament reassembled the question would be considered, either by a house committee or by government legislation.

B. C. WANTS MORE FROM DOMINION

Only Dominion Work to Be Done Is on Big Bend Highway

VICTORIA, April 16 (CP)—British Columbia's allotment out of the Dominion's government's $18,000,000 public works program was disappointing to the provincial government, Premier T. D. Pattullo intimated today.

The province had anticipated a much larger share, the premier said. Advices from Ottawa indicated the only work to be done in British Columbia will be on the Big Bend highway, where $1,500,000 will be expended.

"We will continue to press for a large expenditure on public works," said Mr. Pattullo. "Circumstances will force this issue."

SENATE BUSY

OTTAWA, April 16 (CP).—Swepping legislative decks for the Easter recess, the senate today gave second and third reading to bills to provide for rehabilitation of drought and soil drifting areas in the prairie provinces, supply of one-twelfth of the main estimates, and to permit the Bank of Canada to export gold under licence as in the case of chartered banks.

The elder statesmen then proceeded to give first reading to measures for a minimum wage, authorizing provision of moneys to meet expenditures and indebtedness of the Canadian National railways during 1935, changes in the Copyright act relating to performing rights in musical works and restoring the cut in civil servants' salaries.

UNIDENTIFIED BODY TAKEN FROM WATER

Sea Gulls Try to Teach the Crows How to Swim; Ducking Brings Battle

VICTORIA, April 16 (CP)—Another of the natural history stories that spring prompts is being told today about a number of crows and seagulls seen on a log off the Dallas road waterfront.

The nature lover who tells the story prefaced it by claiming the gulls frequently act as teachers to the crows. They first taught the crows, he said, how to fly with clams to a height so they would break when dropped onto the rocks. This, however, was not a great success because the crafty crows also learned how to wait on the rocks while the gulls flew into the air to drop the clams.

The incident he noted yesterday was of a number of gulls teaching some crows how to swim. The gulls would spring from the log into the water and back onto the log. Some of the crows after carrying on a raucous conversation among themselves tried it. They managed to sail on the water for a while but with very little grace but tried it repeatedly.

One crow hesitated. The gibing from the rest of the birds was almost human. Eventually the crow was goaded into trying. It made an ungainly jump but topped head first and went under the water. The crow's annoyance was registered in its harsh cries as soon as it came up to the surface. It made a straight line for one of the gulls it held to blame and started a battle royal.

MORE ABOUT BRITISH EXECUTION

knew the deceased might have fallen and broken his neck.

They wanted to ask witnesses attending the execution whether death actually occurred by hanging.

REFUSED TESTIMONY

The coroner said Sir Bernard Spilsbury, noted pathologist, had examined the body and would give evidence but the foreman said Sir Bernard had not attended the execution.

The prison governor said the scaffold could not be viewed without an order from the home office but if the jury insisted, he did not mind risking it. "I have never known a thing like this to happen," he added. "It is entirely unprecedented."

SEE SCAFFOLD

The coroner thought that in law the jury might insist on seeing the instrument causing death, whereupon the governor said it would be necessary to clear part of the prison and put the prisoners back in their cells. He left the room and returned shortly to say they could see the scaffold. The jury filed out and inspected it, and later announced they had seen all they wished, returning the usual verdict of judicial execution.

BALKS THE POLICE

Mrs. Vanderelst, in her big limousine, balked police guards who were trying to prevent passage at either end of the road leading to the prison and raced up to the prison gates. There she was halted and told she would be summoned for assault on a constable who had been flung off the running-board of her car as she dashed through the police cordon.

Her supporters were turned back at a distance from the jail and several airplane the wealthy widow had hired to help in the demonstration were kept grounded by inclement weather.

Mrs. Vanderelst had organized previous demonstrations and she claims that capital punishment will be abolished within the next six months.

them a quarter of a mile underground in the Acadia Coal company's Allen shaft.

No signal came from the darkness beyond a solid barrier of fallen coal and stone to indicate that the trapped seven still lived. And the fear was growing that none would be found alive when fellow workers finally broke through.

SLOW PROGRESS

Rescuers are making slow progress in the cramped passageway and tonight they were still between 600 and and 800 feet from the spot where the seven were believed working when the explosion roared out this morning.

The miners estimated they would not know until sometime tomorrow, at the earliest, whether the seven were alive. And it might take days for them to clear away a passage to the men.

If they survived the explosion it was held likely that deadly "after damp" which follows an explosion of "fire damp" in the coal mines, would have claimed their lives.

VENTILATION SHUT OFF

Ventilation was shut off by the fall of hundreds of tons of material, and suffocating fumes would have filled the 1500-foot south-east level where the blast occurred.

The explosion's source remained undetermined tonight. Spontaneous combustion of coal which ignited gas, or the "shooting" of an explosive charge to loosen coal, were held as possible causes. The presence of a shot-firer among the missing group was held as indicating the probability of the "shot" theory.

None of the other 189 men in the mine could throw light on the origin of the explosion.

As word of the explosion spread swiftly through Stellarton, a crowd estimated at 4000 was milling about the colliery yard, and every available Royal Canadian Mounted policeman and town officer was on hand to marshal the throng.

Wives and children stood by silently waiting for word of their husbands. Miners, gathered in little groups in the drizzling rain, talked of the chances of getting the men out alive, and of other tragedies that have struck Nova Scotia's mines.

PATTULLO IS NOT GOING EAST

VICTORIA, April 16 (CP).—Premier T. D. Pattullo said today he had declined the latest suggestion that he attend a conference of mayors and premiers in eastern Canada to discuss unemployment relief. The suggestion, the third inside a week, came from the Union of British Columbia Municipalities.

Assumption Wins Eastern Title in Basketball Play

Into Seclusion

Apparently having lots of money is the only requisite to happiness and here is seen Miss Barbara Hutton (Woolworth heiress) at Reno, Nevada, where she seeks a divorce from her husband, polo-playing Prince Alexis Mdivani. Miss Hutton's lawyers have decreed that she shall henceforth go into seclusion to be seen or spoken to by no one except after careful scrutiny. Miss Hutton declares she will drop the title of princess.

Adjutant Chapman Asks for Clothing

States That He Can Also Place Household Effects; Many Calls Daily

Adjutant H. Chapman, of the Salvation Army, reports that the Army is receiving many calls for clothing of nearly all kinds, also household effects.

He states that there are between half a dozen and a dozen calls daily by people wanting articles and that he is not able to supply the calls. Besides the numbers that appear personally, he states he knows of others in the city and vicinity who are also in need.

Children's wear of all kinds is requested by any having clothes to give away, also ladies wear. The demand for ladies' clothing is mostly for large-sized garments. Men's clothes are in constant demand too.

Any articles of furniture, dishes, bedding or kitchen utensils are appreciated and can be placed.

People having any of the above mentioned articles which they do not need and are still serviceable, are asked to get in touch with Adjutant Chapman.

Four-Team Softball Loop Is Suggested

Due to the men's senior hockey meeting being called for the same evening, the men's annual softball meeting Tuesday night was postponed until Thursday night at the same place. Present plans call for the operation of two divisions this season. The Hume Hotel softball club and the Fairview Athletic club appear to be sure entries for the A division.

Should it be found impossible to line up a third team in the A division an effort will be made to form an inter-city league, with the Hume and Fairview clubs of Nelson, and either two teams from Trail, or a team from Trail and Rossland team forming a four team West Kootenay loop.

If such a league could be formed each team would make two trips out of town, playing two games on each trip, morning and afternoon, making four away and four home games for each team.

Probable teams for the B division would be the Millinaires, Bugle Band, Kinsmen, Gyros, Hudson's Bay company, a second Hume team and a second Fairview A. C. team.

Predicts More Mines Activity in Western U. S.

WASHINGTON, April 16 (AP).—Increased activity of the bureau of mines in western mining states was predicted tonight by Senator Pope (Dem.-Idaho) after passage of the interior department appropriation bill containing provisions for $638,000 for the bureau.

RELIEFERS CRACK AT COMMISSION

Question Right of One Member Who Sells to Department Sitting

VANCOUVER, April 16 (CP). — Challenge of the right of one member of the royal commission to sit on a body charged with investigation of relief camps in British Columbia and cries of derision from a number of men who ostentatiously left the court room, marked today's session of the camp inquiry.

Holding in his hand a pair of "camp" trousers which he asserted were supplied to the government by Gault Bros., Ltd., Arthur H. Evans, representing the Workers' Unity league, challenged the propriety of C. T. McHattie sitting as a member of the commission. Mr. McHattie, he said, is general manager of Gault's.

enlarge the government's popularity, though a notable omission was the failure to include rural workers in the unemployment insurance scheme, as had been freely forecast.

PREMIER'S EYES BAD

Prime Minister MacDonald's eyes are still giving him trouble. It is predicted that in the reshuffle of the cabinet Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, will become the real driving force, while Sir John Simon will remain at his post of foreign secretary.

Much interest in speculation on the National government's future attaches to its negotiations with former Premier David Lloyd George, whose "new deal" plans have been under study by a special cabinet committee for some weeks. He will meet the committee on Thursday.

LLOYD GEORGE TO ENTER CABINET?

Well-informed politicians state there is no question of Mr. Lloyd George being given a seat in the cabinet, which he does not really desire, but say the government will seek to attach him to its banner by adopting practical features of his plan, thus intensifying the administration's national complexion and probably securing the support of many Liberals who at present do not accept leadership of either Sir John Simon or Sir Herbert Samuel.

Mr. Lloyd George has promised to make public details of his plan after the meeting with the cabinet. He says his program requires only three tests: "Will it benefit the country; can we afford it; and would it interfere with ordinary trade and industry?"

Bessboroughs Are Back at Ottawa

OTTAWA, April 16 (CP)— The governor-general, the Countess of Bessborough and Lady Moyra Ponsonby returned to Ottawa today after completing a farewell tour of western Canada. Their return was expected to bring new life to the capital's society which has been quiet almost ever since they left.

TRIBUTE PAID NELSON MISS

Miss Grace Wilkinson Is Laid to Rest

Relatives, teachers and a host of friends Tuesday afternoon paid a last tribute to Miss Grace Wilkinson, popular member of the Central school teaching staff who died early Sunday. The Central school was closed for a time in the afternoon and most of the teachers were in attendance at the service held at Somer's Funeral home. Floral tributes were many and beautiful. Rev. W. C. Mawhinney of Trinity United church officiated.

Pallbearers were A. C. Emory, H. N. McLean, G. D. Nagle, Jack Cavil, of Bonnington, Monty Morley of the Central school staff, and George Lambert.

Another Old Country door has opened to women. For the first time in 80 years they are to be allowed to take part in productions of the Cambridge University Amateur Dramatic club.

CRANBROOK WINS TWO HOOP GAMES

KIMBERLEY, B.C., April 16—In the final game of the playoffs for the second half, played at Cranbrook Friday, Kimberley won in the boys' division. The High School captured the second half of the league by defeating Cranbrook by 39 points in the first game here and by 15 points in Cranbrook, winning the game there 25-10. This team has played good ball the whole season, having won the first half also. They take the cup for this division.

The High School girls played a good game at Cranbrook and led all the way until the last quarter, losing the round by six points. The Cranbrook girls won the second half and have to play the Pirates for the championship, as the latter won the first half here without losing a game. The Pirates will play their first game in Cranbrook Wednesday with the return game here Saturday.

The senior men lost their round with Cranbrook by three points, tying with Cranbrook 31-31 in the second game. This gives the championship to Cranbrook, as they won the first half also.

This week will see the completion of basketball here for the season with the possible exception of one or two outside games which may be arranged later.

J. E. Cardinal met with a serious accident Friday evening when he fell down some stairs. He is in McDougall hospital, where his condition is critical.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Dicken arrived back in town at the week-end and will make their home on Wallinger avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Marleau accompanied by Mrs. Dorman and Jean have left for Vancouver.

Jackie Davis is home to spend the vacation with his parents.

SMALL HOMES ARE SCARCE IN NELSON

Influx of People to City Is Gradual Since Beginning of the Year

As the result of a steady influx of people into Nelson since the beginning of the present year, local real estate firms report that there is a scarcity of small homes of the better class. A number of inquiries for homes recently have had to be turned away.

The influx of people to Nelson has been so gradual that it has occasioned no surprise or comment, but real estate men state that it has been quite apparent since the first of the year. The prospects of building and mining, has no doubt, had considerable to do with the increase in population locally.

SAVES CLEANING BILL

The little suede brushes that are sold at notion counters for refreshening suede bags or shoes are very effective in removing certain kinds of spots from silk crepe dresses. Egg or any waxy substance which leaves a deposit on the surface of the material does not yield readily to water, cleaning fluids, scraping or the ordinary stiff brush. But a little vigorous brushing with the suede brush often does the trick. The fine, stiff wire "bristles" seem to penetrate the fabric itself and remove the spot completely, even after it has dried. And there is no danger of the dreaded "ring" left sometimes by liquid cleaning preparations.

Our King and Queen on their Silver Jubilee

The King and Armistice Day

The Great War took much out of the King. So hard did he work during those hectic and tragic years, that when it was over, he was near a nervous collapse. But he had to keep going.

He had to put up a brave front to his people, struggling as they were to rehabilitate themselves. So it meant that he must continue his hard work.

Always deeply religious, King George made it a special task to appear as often as possible, at every memorial service for those killed in the war. He stood humbly through rain and cold to pay homage to the dead. Indeed, it was on such an occasion, at the laying of wreath on the great cenotaph in London that the King contracted the illness that nearly robbed the empire of its King in 1929.

Our picture today shows His Majesty in the act of placing a wreath on the cenotaph in 1922. He visited every part of Great Britain, and even made visits to France and Belgium to pay his respects to those who gave their lives in defence of the empire.

Tomorrow: Royal Family Reunion.

MENUS, RECIPES and HINTS

Menu Hints

Stuffed Veal Hearts
Mashed Potatoes
Broccoli Dessert Salad
Salt Wafers Coffee

The menu suggested is unusual, but is easily prepared and colorful. I think such a salad served for dessert occasionally is interesting as well as delicious.

Today's Recipes

Stuffed Veal Hearts—Two veal hearts, two cups bread stuffing, two to three tablespoons fat, two cups consomme. Wash the hearts well and cut away the tough inner section to allow for stuffing. Prepare any well-seasoned bread stuffing and fill the hearts. Tie or skewer together. Place in roasting pan, sear in a hot oven, 500 degrees, then reduce heat, pour consomme over them and bake slowly in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, about two hours. The pan should be covered during the cooking period. Serve on a hot platter surrounded with slices of dill pickle.

Dessert Salad — One tablespoon gelatin, two tablespoons cold water, one cup drained, crushed pineapple, two packages cream cheese, one-fourth cup salad dressing, one-half teaspoon salt, dash paprika, one-half cup cream, whipped. Soak gelatin in cold water. Dissolve by holding cup over hot water or a low heat. Stir into pineapple well drained of its juice. Mash cream cheeses and blend in salad dressing. Add pineapple mixture, seasoning and fold in whipped cream. Turn into ice trays or into a mold and chill until firm. Remove to a platter, garnish with sprigs of watercress and fresh strawberries.

Beat the egg yolks with a pinch of salt, pour over the hot custard and return to cook five minutes. Cool. Pour into custard cups or into a baked pie shell, or on top of squares of sponge cake. Top with a meringue made of four egg whites and eight tablespoons sugar and place in a 300-degree oven to brown.

Likes Her Bed

Claudette Colbert
Complete relaxation and sound, undisturbed sleep, she avers, are necessary for the preservation of youthful health and beauty.

The lovely Claudette Colbert, who is one of the busiest and most energetic of our cinema sirens, insists that bed, to her, is a place of luxury, and that she'd not exchange it for all the thrones in the world.

The printed frock with lace accent is something new. One smart frock being shown is of printed crepe, a gray ground with yellow and white motifs. Delicate detail is introduced in rows and rows of yellow Valenciennes lace edging shallow ruffles on the sleeves, and trimming the bow that has a smart twist.

THE SONG OF MEMORY

By G. S. REES

Voyaging abroad many years ago, one evening found the writer after a day of sizzling sunshine cooling off on the broad verandah of the caravanserai famously known to all travellers between Occident and Orient as the "G.O.H." The hotel was crowded with tourists from liners coaling the harbor along whose outer breakwater, the towering breakers of the south-west monsoon were being lifted high in smoking spray against the flaring radiance of an Indian Ocean sunset. Tea and rubber planters from the surrounding terraced plantations (for this was Columbo in the jewel isle of Ceylon—'The Garden of the World') have flocked to the Grand Oriental Hotel to hear the renowned soprano soloist, Madame Clara Butt, (bound for Australia on a concert tour) sing at an impromptu musicale.

Against a background of softly swaying palms and to the soothing accompaniment of gentle waves caressing the golden sands, the world-famous singer held her listeners spellbound with favored selections from her repertoire, including the beloved "Abide with Me". The waiting ship sounded a warning recall blast as the last notes of the hymn-song floated out on air heavy with the perfume of exotic flowers. Stilling the rising applause with uplifted hand, she softly swung into the ever old, ever new 'Home Sweet Home'. To many of the audience, the song was as the writing of a high cord across the clammy dark—England! What fragrant memories came alive at that moment? The grey-haired expatriate sitting alone in rapt silence with countless nocturnal insects fluttering around the ceiling light over his head, looks like a 'drifter' who has seen better days. His faded blue eyes stare into space, and lean brown fingers drum on empty glass. Where were his thoughts? Was he remembering the London crowds at the rush hour, the changing of the Guard at St. James' Palace, or recalling the shires of his native England, the return from the hunt in the blue haze of dusk scented with the rain-warmed earth, or tramping over the rolling downs aflame with clumps of broom and gorse in the sweet o' the year? Perhaps his thoughts were of the England of the hill, the stone, the tree, the steaming wagon load. . . . bells in a swinging steeple.

The ruddy faced youth, leaning against the doorway and wiping the streaming perspiration from his face. Newly arrived from Scotland, likely enough. Was he thinking of the sunlit curve on Cheviot's steep, rising blue and friendly against the sky, or of the twinkling lights of Auld Reekie on a frosty evening of early winter?

The writer once met a man several thousand miles away from here to whom home meant a room in the Old Kent Road, and who spoke wistfully of Clapham Railway Junction, which spells nothing of romance and beauty, and yet another, a track walker in the Rockies, who sighed for a little shop off the Hammersmith Broadway-Jacob's ladder, so to speak, pitched 'twixt Heaven and Charing Cross!

REMEMBERED ENGLAND

At this season of the year, one appreciates more fully all that Browning ever wrote of the Homeland. Those of her children who have chosen to cast their lot in further lands, love their adopted country, but remain ever loyal to their island birthplace; its gossamer strands are woven very tightly around their hearts.

Other lands possess an equal measure of noble pleasances and magnificent scenery—including the Kootenays—but seek the world over, and one will not find anything to match the simple beauty of an English landscape. Like a great park, rich in all manner of trees, including the wide spreading oak, with fields divided irregularly by scented hedgerows, with verdant valleys and woodlands teeming with animal life, and purling streams meandering hither and yon on their seaward course. Varied as any scenery in the wide world, it is always accomodating, save in the vicinity of the industrial towns, to the homes of men.

The countryside of England is part of her very soul, the front of her imagination and the root of her character.

OFF THE BEATEN TRACK

Life is still taken calmly there and retains its ancient routine. It is a symbol of peace and quietness, of an inner sanctuary where one may go alone to meditate. While it has made a truce with time, it does not stand still; it has saved many of the things worth saving, humble scenes such as the stone quays of remote fishing villages, mill wheels and weirs, hop gardens and their quaint oast-houses, ancient bridges and stone-cobbled market places, thatched and half-timbered ivy-covered cottages, so native to the English scene, lying snugly on manorial estates of ancient lineage with their Tudor or Jacobean dwelling places of weathered brick or stone, all blended in a mellow harmony which delights the eye.

The ubiquitous motor brings all these beauties within easy distance of the traveler, but to see them really to the best advantage, one recommends the network of far-flung field paths and byways, rights of ways consecrated by time and usage out of mind to the public service. They run up and down the hills and valleys like the wake left in the path of a ship, and offer breath-taking views in the most unexpected places. Eventually, they lead, as all island ways must do, to where the short grass breaks at the crest of a slope and reveals a rippling line of white chalk which glistens like foam. Here one meets a clear clean windy brightness with salt in the air and gulls in curving flight, and recalls the poet's song—"Southward shining, the lands declining, subside in peace, that the sea's light crowns".

A RIOT OF COLOR

Very soon, the countryside of England will be at its very greenest, a lyrical glory, with trees bursting from bud to leaf almost overnight. There will be a bewitchment of lilac and pink and white May in a frail loveliness; the woods carpeted with primroses and bluebells. Hawthorn and dog roses a-bloom in the hedges, and the heaths aflame with the purple and gold of heather and gorse. . . .

The singing of "Abide with Me" over the radio at a Sunday Symphony Hour has stirred this errant memory of a happening long ago in a distant part of the Empire, and it in turn has renewed a deeply etched remembrance of the shires and counties of the little island under the North Star at this time of the year when the flag of Spring is at last fluttering bravely from the mast, the lighter winds from the west are flicking the clouds in lacy pennons across the sky, and the high hills, the hills o' home, are beginning to roll up their white vestments.

So I have taken my pen in hand, and given you this scattered scrap of Remembered England.

Cranbrook Worries About Summer When Snow Falls Again

Cranbrook, along with other cities of the interior, is wondering when summer is coming. Monday five inches of snow was reported to have fallen on the C.P.R. station platform and about a week previously the rail company had to send out a plow to clean up small drifts in the Crow.

Plan for a full season of radishes this year. They are one of the earliest crops, and if you choose your varieties carefully, are one of the latest as well. Spring, summer, fall and winter radishes may be grown.

MISS HEYWOOD DOING NICELY

Miss Annie Heywood of Crawford Bay, who was seriously injured by an auto truck May 20, was operated on recently and is doing nicely. A crushed bone in her leg just above the knee was supported with a silver plate.

Miss Heywood was hurt when she stepped out into the path of an oncoming truck after disembarking from a bus on the evening of May 20.

When Nelson's old flagship "Victory" was being repaired, a letter, discolored, but decipherable, dated March, 1827, written to a marine then on board was discovered between the planks.

Have more of these happy days. You and all your family. Guard health while you have it. Keep on the sunny side of life.

The greatest enemy of health is common constipation. It may cause loss of appetite and energy. Certainly it kills enthusiasm! Yet it can be banished by eating a delicious cereal.

Laboratory tests show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN supplies "bulk" and vitamin B to relieve common constipation. Also iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in leafy vegetables. How much pleasanter to eat this delicious ready-to-eat cereal than to take patent medicines. Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. Chronic cases, with each meal. If not relieved this way, see your doctor. Made by Kellogg in London, Ont.

KASLO PIONEER PASSES AWAY

Charles H. Goodwin Dies From Heart Attack

KASLO, B.C., April 16—Citizens of Kaslo were shocked Saturday when they learned of the death of Charles H. Goodwin, who had been a patient in Victorian hospital for about a week, suffering from a heart attack.

Mr. Goodwin, who was a native of Nova Scotia, was in his 89th year.

Mrs. Goodwin died last summer. They were pioneers in Kaslo having made their home here since 1893.

Mr. Goodwin is survived by two daughters and one son, Mrs. S. H. Green of this city, Mrs. Bert Passage of Mount Pleasant, N.Y., and Dr. Ray Goodwin of Vancouver. The latter was expected to arrive in the city Monday.

Funeral services were held from the family residence Tuesday afternoon.

G. Shorthouse of Nelson was a city visitor.

J. E. Miller, manager of the Silver Bear mine, was a visitor in town during the week and left Saturday for Carmi, his former home. Upon his return he will be accompanied by Mrs. Miller and they will make their home in Kaslo.

M. Dingle of Calgary was a visitor in town during the week-end.

Gilbert Presleanos of Princeton was a Friday visitor in the city.

Members of the Kaslo volunteer fire brigade held a meeting in city hall Thursday. There was a good attendance, Chief E. H. Latham presiding. Routine business was put through. B. F. Palmer and J. A. Riddell were appointed a committee to get data on a better alarm system for the city, to be presented at the next meeting.

To Again Collect Easter Eggs Here

Thursday the Nelson school children are being asked to bring donations of fresh eggs to their respective schools at the noon hour.

These eggs will be taken charge of and collected by the local branch of Toc H, which has sponsored this collection for some years. The eggs will be turned over to Adjutant Harold Chapman of the Salvation Army for distribution to those who are not assured of Easter eggs in the city.

The collection will be made by Toc H members at the doors of the Central and Hume schools at the noon hour and children are being advised through the teachers at both schools.

Mr. and Mrs. Craft and Mrs. Nesbitt left on the down boat Thursday.

W. D. Jowett returned from Deer Park Friday.

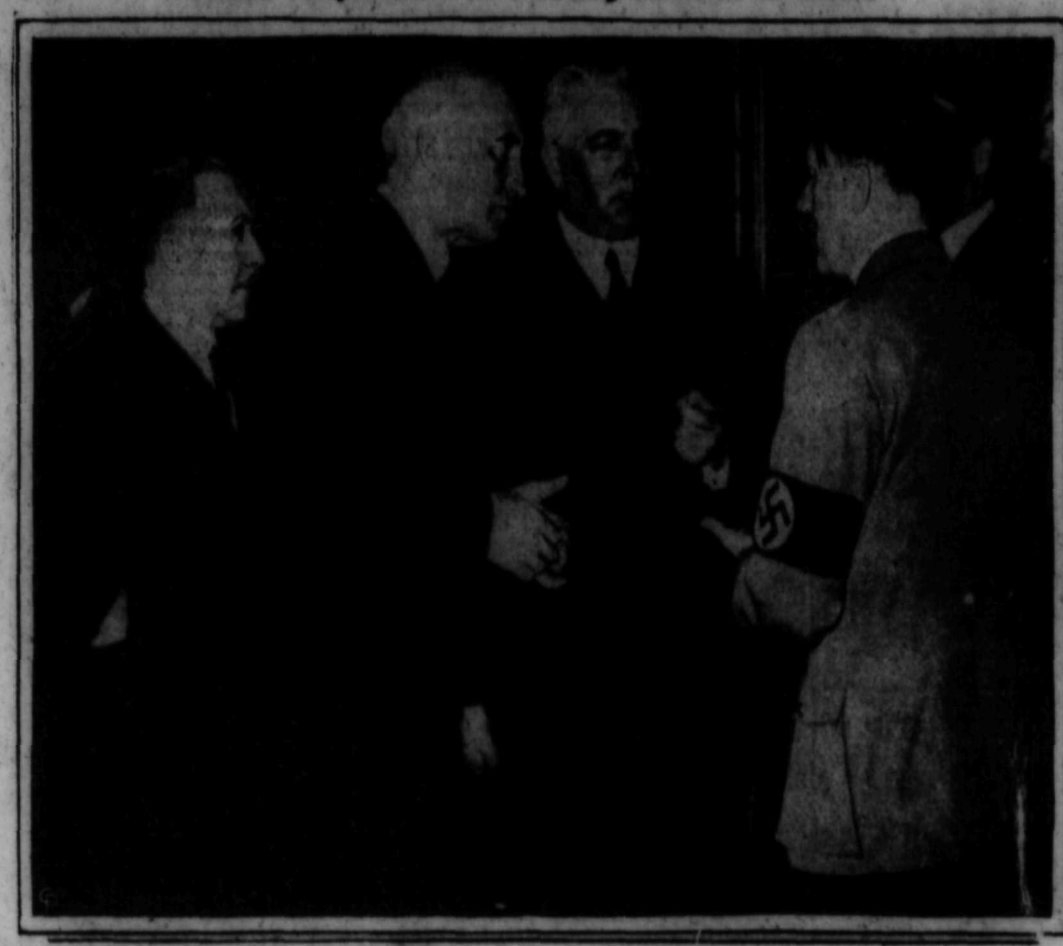
I don't know where I could find a SAFER PURER SOAP than PALMOLIVE!

1 My ideas are all changed about soap. I used to think one kind was just as good as another. I know better now . . . since my beauty expert advised Palmolive, because he knew its gentle, penetrating lather would keep my skin youthful and glowing.

2 I like Palmolive because it's pure and safe—being made from a scientific blend of natural vegetable oils—oils of olive and palm. I like its natural green colour—the colour of olive oil. And I like its soothing velvety lather.

3 And I like Palmolive because it keeps my skin so clear and youthful. Twice a day I rub its creamy lather into the skin of my face and throat. I use it for my bath, too. I want my whole body to have a Schoolgirl Complexion.

These Conferences Are Really Serious at Times



Apparently the situation is serious as Sir John Simon and Konstantin von Neurath attempt to convince Adolf Hitler of some point in their recent conference which came to an inconclusive termination. The group shows (LEFT TO RIGHT): Ambassador for Britain to Germany Phipps, Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary; Von Neurath, German foreign minister and Adolf Hitler, German chancellor. The photo was taken in the chancellory at Berlin. This was the conference that resulted from Germany's announcement to rearm and thus scrap the Versailles treaty.

Double French Army Term Pleading German Strength

Extend Period of Compulsory Service to Overcome Lack of Recruits

By CORALIE VAN PAASSEN
Central Press Canadian Correspondent

PARIS, April 16.—The is the first of the so-called "hollow years." This year there are less recruits available for the French armies because from 1914-1918 one million six hundred thousand possible fathers of sons died on the battlefields and in the hospitals. One million French children, who would have been born under normal circumstances, have never seen the light of day. Of this one million about half would have been available for military service today, seventeen, eighteen years after the war.

There are 325,000 boys in the barracks of France at present. Nearly all are raw recruits, who serve a period of one year's training and go home again. Across the border in Germany the Reichswehr, an army of professional military men, has just been increased from 100,000 to 400,000 men. In October this year the strength of the Reichswehr will be carried from 400,000 to 600,000 men, according to an official announcement from Berlin.

Since the governments of Europe have given up coming to an agreement on general disarmament, or have been prevented from disarming by the powerful internationale of the cannon merchants, the only hope left of preventing an immediate outbreak of war is to increase their respective armies. The armament race is therefore in full swing and the shareholders of the steel and munition trusts are rubbing their hands, while millions of mothers look on with fear and anxiety at their growing boys, who will soon be called upon to enter military service with the serious possibility that they will be the cannon-fodder in the next great war.

WILL EXTEND SERVICE TERM

The French government, on the advice of Marshall Petain, is proposing to extend the period of service in the army from one to two years. This is to fill the gap caused by the "hollow years." It is further proposed to proceed with an intensification of the mechanization of the army to replace antiquated material and to strengthen the fortifications on the eastern frontier by another line of steel and concrete.

The proposals, which are under discussion in parliament, where they will almost certainly be accepted, have thrown the city of Paris in an uproar. The walls are plastered with appeals to the people to support the demand of Marshal Petain on the ground that Germany is ten times better equipped and almost ready to invade France once more.

"Hitler is waiting for a civil war in France," says one of the posters, "to send his gigantic new army across our borders and to begin a bombardment of our cities with his powerful air fleet." The poster quotes the former Prime Minister Gaston Doumergue as having said this.

PACIFISTS RIDICULED

German newspapers arriving here, on the other hand, interpret agitation for increased armament in France and the lengthening of the term of military service as "evidence" that France is preparing for a war of invasion against Germany at any early date and they point to Hitler's pacifism and Germany's helplessness in the face of a threat from both sides, meaning that the Soviet Union is getting ready to join France.

Counter posters put up by the socialists and pacifist leagues in France against the proposals of Marshal Petain declare that answering the German armament drive with a French armament drive does not lessen the chance of war in the least, but heightens the nervous tendency in Europe and greatly increases the danger of war. For this opinion the opponents to the new military measures are roundly denounced, of course, and in the most violent terms as pro-Germans, traitors to the fatherland, Moscovite scum, henchmen of Hitler, paid agents of German armament trusts and other lovely things.

Street-battles around the posters are quite frequent, each group trying to prevent the others from tearing down what they consider offensive publications. The battle pro and con is raging with bitter violence in the newspapers, but it is a foregone conclusion that the marshal's proposals will pass, as only the one hundred and twenty Socialist members, the ten orthodox Communists, the twenty pupists (Parti d'Union Proletaire(one or two Trotskyists and perhaps some left-wing Liberals, who have recently formed a small group under leadership of M. Gaston Bergery, will vote against the measures.

TAKE ENGLAND AS EXAMPLE

The attitude of the Communists is subject to particular criticism and hectic debates in streets and halls, since Moscow seems to favor a strengthening of the French army against Germany, which is Moscow's most dangerous opponent in the world today, next to Japan.

The French government's position in pushing through the far-reaching military reforms has been immensely strengthened by the publication of the White Paper in England. One of the government's newspapers, l'Intransigeant, states: "If the English, who are always slow to move, see the danger of a chauvinist, warlike Germany, how much more ought we Frenchmen to be on the alert." A note of nervousness was raging from the one end of France injected into the debate which is to the other by the affixing of one red-hued placard on every hoarding throughout the length and breadth of the land by the national-republican party. This poster starts out with the words: "Vite, les Deux Ans!" (Quickly the two years' service.) The German armament is much more formidable than even the illustratious marshall thinks. We have secret information on Germany's plans which we dare not publish for fear of creating a world-wide panic . . . Silence the pacifists. Death to all traitors!"

The pacifists though, still talk, some in England, some here. But their words are lost in the thunderuos roar of steel-ovens which are pouring out cannons and tanks as never before in the last fifteen years. Business is picking up in that quarter. The merchants of death have won the first round.

Why Not Have an All-White Wedding?

Nothing Could Be Prettier or Smarter for Spring or Early Summer

Bride's dress is white moire trimmed with white violets; bridesmaid's frock fashioned of white mousseline de soie trimmed with white and willow green ribbons.

Why not have an all-white wedding this spring or early summer bride? Nothing could be smarter or prettier.

Consider the bridal gown sketched. It is of heavy white moire, with a low, fitted bodice and new square décolletage edged with rows of white violets. The same sweet flowers form the band over the forehead from which fall yards and yards of tulle.

The sleeve is long and tight, with a point falling over the hand. A prayer book may replace the flowers, if you prefer. If you carry flowers, choose a shower bouquet of white violets.

If the bride prefers the traditional white satin, the year's smartest gown was inspired by the Princess Marina, now Duchess of Kent. It has a high cowl neckline and bell-shaped sleeves.

Springlike, crisp and new is the bridesmaid's frock. It is white mousseline de soie edged at neckline and armholes with fine pleating. The neck frill stands pertly upright. The hat is bleached white toyo drooped back and front, the crown shallow, and the ribbon is white and willow green to match the ribbon bow and girdle of the dress.

The bouquet is a mass of white narcissi tied with green ribbon. White organza is charming for the maid of honor, with the same green ribbon trimming it.

Weddings are said to be more elaborate this season, with more bridesmaids, and the bride's train may be five yards long or more.

Pack Train Played Part Early Mining

George Fraser, shown above, just prior to setting out for the Venus-Juno mine on a summer day in 1899, was one of Nelson's early packers. He operated a train when there were no roads or rail transportation facilities, and but few trails.

History was in the making in Nelson and every prospect a sure bonanza, but only the Silver King and the Athabasca a reality, when George H. Fraser, who trekked north to the Yukon with four other Calgaryites in the mad rush of '98, came to Nelson to operate Bert Steeper's pack train and to later go into the packing business for himself. The picture shown on this page is a typical scene of the glamorous days of the '90s in Nelson.

Here you see Mr. Fraser and a 16-horse and mule team in front of the Miners Livery stable, which occupied the site on Stanley street where the St. Paul's United church now stands. Bert Steeper, Ben Burns and young Riley, and Mr. Fraser's dog Rover also occupy a place in the picture.

With four companions Mr. Fraser left Calgary early in 1898 for the Yukon with a vision of gold to lure him on. From Calgary they proceeded north to the Lesser Slave lake, west to Fort St. John on the Peace and northwest to Fort Nelson on the Nelson. The party did not actually get into the Yukon but from Fort Nelson headed south to Dease lake, south to the Stikine and finally to Telegraph creek. The trip took 18 months and was made under the most trying conditions.

DERELICT OUTFITS

Derelict outfits and abandoned equipment along the portages told a graphic picture of the hardships that were encountered in the mad rush north from the prairies, Mr. Fraser states. At each portage, after the going became hard, one could pick up anything from a portable bathtub to a rifle, but no "grub." There were enough whip-saws along the trail to shod Baker street and even small libraries marked the spot where some literary gold hunter found the going too hard.

The situation caused considerable ill feeling with the Hudson's Bay men who missed the trade of the Indians that year. Rifles and equipment were to be had for the taking.

As was the case at Vancouver and other points where men left for the north, Greenhorns were the dupes of sharpers. A spool-like conveyance that could go anywhere and which was used as a sleigh in winter with the addition of runners, was one of the articles which found ready sale among the Chechakos at Calgary. Robert Service's memorable ballad, "The phonograph of Fondula" was enacted along the trail on one occasion, and the Indians got down on their knees in wonder to trace the canned music.

BROTHER INJURED

At Telegraph Creek Mr. Fraser and his brother Guy secured a job on right-of-way clearing Glenora and Telegraph creek, where a four-mile railway was planned. During the operations Guy Fraser severed one of his feet with the blow from an axe. With his leg trussed up in two slabs of wood he was packed out to the Hudson's Bay post, Glenora, on the Stikine and down the Stikine to Fort Wrangle, a distance of over 100 miles. From Fort Wrangle they took a boat to Port Townsend on Puget Sound, and from Port Townsend to the Jubilee hospital at Victoria. It was at Fort Wrangle that Mr. Fraser saw a colored regiment for the first time.

Arriving at Vancouver decked out in overalls cut from a blue blanket, a buck-skin shirt and other articles of a prospector's garb he was "put-up" at one of the leading hotels without cost.

Mrs. Fraser, whom he married previous to leaving for the north, was visiting his mother at Victoria, and in August of 1899 they moved to Nelson.

Nelson, such as it was then, centered on Baker street where frame buildings were thrown up on either side of a long clearing. Unable to secure a house, the couple had to live for six weeks in a tent.

STARTS PACKING

Having spent some time on a ranch at Calgary, Mr. Fraser was used to handling horses, and when he arrived in the fast-growing mining town, he was employed by Bert Steeper as packer. Steeper and a Mr. Riley operated the Miners Livery stable and pack train station shown above. The buildings on Stanley street were later pulled down to make way for the St. Paul's church.

In the picture supplied by Robert Heddle, present and original owner of the Venus Juno mine, is shown Mr. Fraser with his dog Rover and a train of 16 horses and mules just before they left for the Venus mine. The train-driver's faithful four-footed companion later disputed the way with a porcupine and had to be shot. Mr. Fraser is wearing the same buck-skin jacket that he wore in the north and which he still possesses. Bert Steeper and Ben Burns are seen standing outside of the building and young Riley standing inside.

CAR LINE

The rail in the foreground is that of the first street car line which started from the C.P.R. station and ended at the old skating rink on the corner of Stanley and Houston streets. The line ran for three blocks on Kootenay street but was changed when the car left the track on a trial run at the corner of Kootenay and Hall Mines road.

Packing was a profitable business and several concerns imported mules from the United States. Mr. Fraser later bought one of these outfits from Bert Logan. The trains, as the picture shows, carried everything from cook-stoves and ore cars, to dynamite, groceries and flour. Roped on to the horse back of the one on which Mr. Fraser is riding are two cases of explosives.

From the sitting room window of his Robson street home, Mr. Fraser can point out the mines which trains catered to, including the Venus-Juno, where the pack train was bound, the Last Chance, Birds Eye and others.

Roads had yet to be built in those days and the only trails to the myriads of prospects between Give-out creek and Forty-Nine creek, were the mountain paths through the brush.

The old time picture, supplied by an old time mine operator, is one of the few links left between the modern Nelson and the mining camp Nelson of 35 years ago.

EDMONTON, April 16 (CP) — Higher salaries are struck a fresh blow by the Alberta government under the terms of a bill to amend the Income Tax act which was given second reading in the legislature Monday.

M'LARNIN TO TRAVEL SOON

Will Attempt to Keep Chin in When He Meets Ross

VANCOUVER, April 16 (CP)—Welterweight Champion Jimmy McLarnin said he would leave here Thursday for Los Angeles en route to New York where he will defend his title against Chicago's Barney Ross May 28. Jimmy received confirmation tonight that the bout had been arranged, from his manager, Pop Foster, now in New York.

The Vancouver Irishman has plenty of respect for the fighting ability of Ross to whom he lost his welter crown two years ago, then regained it in a return match a few months later. One thing he intends to do and that is keep his chin as much as possible out of the way of the Ross punches.

"You know," murmured Jimmy, "I always gave Barney credit for hitting hard and acted accordingly whenever I met him. After watching him pound out a decision over Henry Woods at Seattle recently I am more determined than ever that the McLarnin chin is not going to do any more catching than it has to."

"Why don't I try for a knockout in the first round?" Jimmy repeated a reporter's question. "That's an idea. It would save a lot of fooling around but takes two to make a knockout and I don't think Barney would cooperate."

Why Not a Few Steps?

Steps leading through the rock garden are desirable.

Stairs Not Necessary in Small Rock Garden, but They Add to Its Beauty

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Central Press Garden Expert

Rock gardens, once established, require less care than any other type of gardening. The weeds soon disappear after the plants start spreading over the rocks. It is a good idea to visit other rock gardens and decide what features you like and what you wish to avoid in your own rockery. Also note the plants which seem to have the most attractive foliage, for foliage plays an important part in the rock garden. Few rock plants bloom continuously, and a great deal of the time we see only the folage. It is also well to note which plants seem to do best in your section of the country.

While it is not necessary to have steps in the very small rock garden, if you can have a few steps either leading up to, or through, the rock garden, it is very desirable. If these steps can be made to appear as an incidental part of the garden, or to follow a sort of walk among the rocks, this all helps to make a beautiful effect. The main object is to keep the rock garden looking as natural a part of the landscape as possible, and not just a pile of rocks sticking out of the ground.

Limestone is the best kind of stone to use in rock gardens. For the upper, or topmost stones, use the most weathered looking stones you have, to give the garden a more natural appearance. Shale rock is not recommended.

When filling between the rocks with earth, do so very thoroughly so that no pockets of air will be left, for in freezing weather these pockets will permit the roots of the plants to freeze and die.

RIVER WALL IS ADVANCED

Taking Advantage of Low Water, Engineer Reports

TRAIL, B. C., April 16—Following is the report of City Engineer S. S. McDiarmid for the month of March, accepted at the Trail city council meeting Monday night.

"Weather conditions during the month of March have not been favorable in that most of the nights have been cold. This has interfered with grading operations, prevented a spring clean up of streets and to some extent held back the concrete work. It was possible, however, to put the grader onto over all unpaved streets. Practically no trouble has been experienced with drains but there is still much snow to get away.

"Advantage of low water conditions in the Columbia river has been taken to advance the esplanade wall. The foundations have been carried to a point 186 feet south of Spokane street and the top course carried 180 feet. The outer bank has been back filled and rip rapped to the end of the foundation course. A large quantity of rock was hauled for this purpose and for plyms in the wall. The tractor and fresno scraper have been employed, since the 16th, to move slag from the end of the company's flume on Victoria street. Most of the fill had been made but it will now be necessary to haul top soil for park purposes.

"Low water in the river showed that the main sewer outfall had been exposed by erosion. Men were employed for two days burying the pipe under rock.

"Considerable earth was hauled when trucks were available for fill at the esplanade. Trucks also hauled fertilizer for the park's board to the several places were it was needed. Four cars of cement have been unloaded.

"Garbage collection had been unsatisfactory due to truck break downs. One truck had four mishaps in 18 days. Complaints have been numerous but there seemed no help for it.

"A concrete buttress was built at the entrance to the Elks' park to hold the wall where a bad crack had developed.

"The city market was moved to the rink on the 29th."

PRELIMINARY HEARING OF TWO IN RATENBURY CASE STARTS

Former Kamloops Girl Appears on Murder Charge in England With Chauffeur

BOURNEMOUTH, England, April 16 (CP cable)—Preliminary hearing of murder charges against Mrs. Alan Rattenbury, 31, and her 19-year-old chauffeur, George Percy Stoner, continued today with public interest in the seaside triangle drama greater than ever.

They are accused of the murder of the woman's 67-year-old husband, Francis Mawson Rattenbury, who spent many years on Canada's Pacific coast and designed the provincial parliament buildings at Victoria, as well as a number of leading Canadian hotels. Mrs. Rattenbury herself, as a child, lived in Kamloops, B.C., later moving to Victoria. The couple were married seven years ago.

Stoner is said by police to have admitted attacking the aged architect in his home here with a heavy wooden mallet, causing injuries which led to his death four days later. The police have also introduced an alleged confession by the pretty young widow, later, according to police witnesses, repudiated.

Mrs. Rattenbury appeared slightly flushed as she was escorted to the dock today by a wardress. Slightly flurried, she gazed around the crowded court room. She wore a biege felt hat and a fur coat with a large pink carnation.

For a fleeting second, her eyes met those of the youthful chauffeur but there was no sign of recognition between the two.

Mrs. Elizabeth Stevens, grandmother of the accused chauffeur, was today's first witness. She said Stoner borrowed the mallet with the remark he was going to put up a tent.

A bank cashier testified that on March 18, before the attack on Rattenbury, the victim drew a check for the equivalent of $1250 on the Bank of Montreal in London in favor of his wife. On the same day his wife drew up a check for $250 from her account in favor of Stoner, and the latter cashed it.

Keith Jones, a solicitor and nephew of the elder Rattenbury, told the court the deceased had two children by a former marriage, and they were now in Canada. This marriage had been dissolved and his first wife had since died. Seven years ago, Rattenbury married again in Canada.

His second wife, the accused, had a son by a former marriage, now 13 years old, and also had a son, now 6, by her second marriage.

Mrs. Rattenbury nearly fainted while Jones was on the witness stand. The warderess revived her with a glass of water and smelling salts.

Further evidence was that Stoner had purchased a ring March 19, paying approximately $75 in large notes which he obtained when he cashed the check from Mrs. Rattenbury. The ring was sent to a hotel in Kensington, London, where both the accused were staying at the time, occupying separate rooms. Mrs. Rattenbury described Stoner to the hotel manager as her brother.

Employees of a London firm with whom Mrs. Rattenbury had an account, testified to visits by Mrs. Rattenbury and Stoner, during which they made purchases to a value of more than $200. These included everything for men's wear, including suits of pyjamas, and socks, and the articles were debited to Mrs. Rattenbury's deposit account.

It was also testified before the luncheon adjournment that in addition to the $250 check already mentioned, Mrs. Rattenbury had drawn several smaller checks in Stoner's benefit.

The court-room was again crowded as the afternoon session got under way.

Alfred Brooke, surgeon, described the head wounds which caused Rattenbury's death. He said the injuries were caused by three straight blows from behind with some blunt instrument such as the mallet produced by police. This had hairs and skin adhering to it.

When he arrived at the house on the night of the wounding, said the doctor, Mrs. Rattenbury was endeavoring to remove her husband's shirt and was calling for scissors with which to cut it clear. The witness said he could not persuade her to keep away from the bed on which he was treating her husband, and she continued to make what he considered to be incoherent remarks.

He decided, owing to the disturbance in the house, that the only thing to do was to remove Rattenbury to a nursing home as quickly as possible. Rattenbury died four days later from oedema of the brain.

JIMMY GORDON NAMED HEAD OF NELSON SENIOR HOCKEY

Executive Is Chosen Early Due to the Mounting Work

$128 IN BANK AT END OF SEASON

Coach Sponsored by a Big Pro Club, Is Proposed

J. M. (Jimmy) Gordon was elected president of the senior hockey club at a general meeting held in the city hall Tuesday night, and the remaining officers named, included: Joe Bradshaw, honorary president; Mayor J. P. Morgan and Alderman R. Sharp, honorary vice-presidents; R. D. Barnes, vice-president; J. Spurge Langill, secretary; N. J. Lowes, treasurer; C. D. Blackwood, T. R. Wilson and George Dill, executive.

The question was raised at the meeting whether the players who were brought in for Nelson last year, but were suspended by President E. A. Gilroy of the Canadian Amateur Hockey association, would be eligible to play this coming year. Answering this the secretary referred to a letter from President Gilroy dated Mach 12, to the effect that he, Mr. Gilroy, would recommend at the annual meeting of the C.A.H.A. in Halifax in April that these players, Danny Black, "Red" Carr, Rudy Pilous and "Stew" Patterson be eligible to play providing they had nothing else against them. The incoming officers will find out the ruling on these players in the near future.

SPONSOR ALL HOCKEY?

The question of a business manager for the senior club was discussed but was left over for the new executive to decide upon, both as to whether such a person should be needed, and also whom the person should be. The question of the senior executive fostering intermediate, junior and juvenile hockey was also raised, but it was pointed out such a meeting did not have the right to decide on such an issue until the organizations named expressed the willingness to be included under the senior jurisdiction.

In opening the meeting President H. E. Crerar, stated it had been called so that the hockey executive for the next year could deal with the applications which have been received from hockey players and coaches. Hockey would be starting some two months earlier here this year than in the past, and the executive to be in charge for the coming winter, should have hold of the reins well in advance.

Following is the report submitted by President Crerar:

CRERAR'S REPORT

"It was decided at a meeting of the West Kootenay Amateur Hockey association held in November, 1934, that players could be brought in and Nelson should enter a team in the West Kootenay Hockey league.

It was understood and agreed that we had permission to bring players in until the first of the season and that they would be allowed to play exhibition games. It was understood at that time that we could not enter our team in the inter-provincial play-offs, nor the Allan cup.

"I may say that I did not attend that meeting, and the position of president placed on me did not have my consent. However, I was prevailed upon (after I had turned in my resignation) to take the position and do the best I could with it.

"When we organized we did not have enough players to constitute two full lines, with any spare men. It was necessary to bring in some extra players. We were able to wire in code to a personal friend in Winnipeg who checked up on names which were submitted to me, and in this manner we were able to bring in spares who were recommended to us through him.

"It was difficult indeed to run a hockey club without any equipment and bring in players without any finances, and I want to pay high tribute at this time to the Booster club organization for their activities in raising finances to buy equipment and bring in players. Their untiring efforts have been appreciated. At one of the meetings held I stated that any monies turned in to us we would be responsible for, and would account for same. You have heard the treasurer's report in which he acknowledges receipt of $325 in cash from the Booster club. We have at the present time $128 balance in the bank, and we have spent a considerable amount in transportation of players and we have full equipment ready for next season. In other words, we are accounting back to the Booster club for $397 being a greater amount than we received from them, and I am sure that the voice of this meeting will approve of the stewardship of the money we received from the Booster club.

"We have all the players intact, and as promised in the agreement with them, we have procured jobs for them in Trail. Although the season was short and we disbanded before finishing the league schedule, were were able to place them in positions.

ENCOUNTERED TROUBLE

"No doubt everyone at this meeting is well aware of the difficulties we had last year in the president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey association overruling the minutes placed in the West Kootenay league meeting, which authorized us permission to play players who were brought in before the beginning of the season, and then being informed that Carr and Pilous were suspended; then after breaking up, we were notified as to Stack's and Patterson's suspension. We felt at that time it would be useless to continue with an inferior team, although we did try to keep together and play exhibition games, but we found that the exhibition games with Trail and with the Vancouver clubs, which we lost on both occasions in very close games, were very disheartening as to attendance. It was unanimously decided that it was advisable at that time to disband while our finances were in a good position.

"The Booster club organization, I understand, have a few outstanding collections, and as the pins and other activities were for the benefit of the Nelson Senior Hockey club, I feel that it would be well-advised to have them close out their books at this time in order that the new officials elected tonight may understand the situation for the coming year.

"The cooperation received from the Nelson Rink company, I may say, entered into controversies at times, due, I believe, to influence brought to bear by those outside of the hockey club organization itself.

MAKES SUGGESTION

"There are some suggestions which I would have made, but now that we are to have artificial ice, these suggestions which could have been made would not be appropos.

"The meeting tonight was called with the idea of attending to numerous correspondences which has accumulated, from players wishing to come in, others seeking position as coach next year, and players we have already on our list. It is the intention of the hockey officials in calling the annual meeting at this time, to deal with these matters fairly, and also that any agreements as to players, league, coach and the arrangement with the civic auditorium may be dealt with for the coming season by the officers which are now going to elect.

May I suggest at this time that the office of secretary-treasurer may be condensed, if so advisable? I do feel that the responsibility of the team's activities lies on two men, and two men only would be necessary. I feel that a first class coach should be obtained, and the players brought in or the players of the Nelson Senior Hockey club should be placed in his hands exclusively, and he would be in full control and full charge, and be responsible for the showing of the team. This, no doubt, will take the full time of any man to look after such hungry, aggressive hockey players that are needed to put over a first-class aggregation.

Then, the business angle, pertaining to expenses, and transportation, and other items brought up outside of the team, could be handled by one man, whom I would call a "business manager." These two men would be responsible to the organization as a whole for the running of the hockey club.

BUSINESS MANAGER

"As we have for the future the artificial rink with perfect quarters as to shower-baths and training rooms, we are looking forward to a great year, and no doubt the business manager, or the officers elected will do all in their power to arrange with the management of the civic auditorium the best percentage, so that a good financial year may be had.

"I would suggest, on the advice of players, that the ice be obtained for senior hockey practice one hour in the morning and one hour in the evening, with one game a week. In this way any players who come in and who need to be developed, will have the opportunity of a work-out in the morning, while the team practice would be still maintained in the evening. There have been some remarks made from outside the organization that there are very few of last year's team who are needed in Nelson. But at the meeting of the Canadian Amateur association in Halifax last week the resident rule clause was not changed, and it is, therefore, necessary for us to use as many players as possible from last year's team, as it is impossible to bring them in from other provinces this year and still be eligible for the inter-provincial playoffs or the Allan cup.

HAVE COACH PLACED HERE

"My previous references to a coach I may say, is an idea of my own, but I feel there is much food for thought in it. The manager of the New York Rangers (a friend to many in this city, being a former resident and hockey player of Nelson) Lester Patrick, made the statement a short time ago that he felt the Maple Leafs in Toronto and the Maroons of Montreal were corraling all the young hockey players in eastern Canada, and I feel that Mr. Patrick could be interested in placing a coach in Nelson at his expense, it being understood that any player developed here he would have first choice on, for this concession. In this way we would get a better team, better coaching and more players who wished to obtain first-class coaching from a coach whom they knew to be connected directly with a big league hockey team, and if they wished they would have every advantage in taking his correction or advice and stepping into a first class pro-league, or a farm league from one of the big teams. I feel this idea should be given to the incoming officers for their information, and if they deem it advisable they can take the suggestion, or leave it.

"In concluding my remarks, I may say that the coming year is a very responsible year as the public has suported the bond issue of building the civic auditorium, and I feel that the best men obtainable should be placed in offices for the coming year. Under no consideration would I permit my name to appear again as president. I am only making these suggestions as I feel it is my duty, from the past year's experience, to place on paper any ideas or improvements I see fit.

"Again thanking the officers of the Nelson Senior Hockey club, the officers of the Booster club, the Nelson Daily News and all others who did so much by their untiring efforts in putting over the civic auditorium by which we may have artificial ice. I am indeed grateful and hope that the next year will be one of the best, and that the civic auditorium, especially the artificial ice, will be a huge success, and one of the city's enterprises of which the citizens may be justly proud."

Mr. Crerar further suggested that the hockey executive and team could do much for the auditorium in the way of taking pride in the civic center and seeing that it received fair treatment. He also stated that in the matter of concessions, broadcasting of games, and many more things, the executive would find their consideration of benefit.

J. Lennie, retiring secretary, reported a balance of $128 in the bank. A total of $1412.83 was taken in by the club in various ways, and besides having the bank balance there was a large amount of equipment on hand for next year.

Mr. Crerar was given a vote of thanks by the meeting and President H. Pitts of the Nelson Hockey Booster club extended the thanks of that body to Mr. Crerar for his untiring efforts this past winter.

At the conclusion of the meeting the question was brought up of having two more members on the executive. A second meeting was held and J. D. "Scotty" Notman and Clifford McKinnon were named in this connection. It was believed Fairview should have a representative and "Scotty" Notman would then sit in that capacity.

MORE PRAISE FOR BOARD OF TRADE BOOK ON NELSON

The illustrated booklet advertising the city and the district, "Kootenay and the City of Nelson," is still meeting with praise and that praise is coming from further afield each time. On March 27 the Winnipeg Tribune published the following article regarding the board of trade booklet:

BISHOP W. R. ADAMS REVEALS HISTORY OF THE CARIBOO AT TRAIL ROTARY LUNCHEON

First Gold Discovery in B.C. Made at Waneta

TRAIL, B.C., April 16—Rev. W. R. Adams, M.A., D.D., bishop of Kootenay, rendered a most illuminating and educational talk on "Cariboo, Past and Present" when he was guest speaker at a luncheon-meeting of the Trail Rotary club Tuesday.

In order to arrive at how the Cariboo district became inhabited by the "paleface" Bishop Adams reviewed British Columbia history from its first becoming settled by the white race and a few interesting facts of the early day British Columbia gold rush which was the incentive for pioneers to proceed further inland and north to the Cariboo area.

British Columbia first became a community in 1849, the Hudson's Bay company governing. This company was granted an extension of its charter in 1821, it was renewed in 1842 and in 1849 a special charter gave the company control of Vancouver Island on the condition that it organize a colonization scheme. These facts had been obtained by Bishop Adams from the archives at Victoria.

DOUGLAS BIG NAME

Douglas was the big name in the early governing of British Columbia, the speaker said, but Blanchard was sent out as the first governor. His was a very thin time of affairs and after 18 months James Douglas took over the helm. In 1858, the bishop said, the mainland came under the crown government. Thus Douglas became governor of the island and of the mainland. So far the territory had had no name and the name "British Columbia" was accepted on the suggestion of Queen Victoria who was crown sovereign at that time, the bishop stated. The speaker read a copy of a letter of Queen Victoria to Douglas suggesting such names as "New Hanover," "New Georgia," "New Cornwall" and "Columbia." The name Columbia was accepted but as there was a Columbia in South Africa and in South America it was decided that the best name would be British Columbia.

COLONIES UNITED

As most of the population of British Columbia was on the mainland and the central control was by James Douglas at Victoria, the mainland objected, the speaker said, and in 1864 Frederick Seymour become governor of the mainland. In 1866 Seymour died and in 1871 the two colonies were united, the speaker said.

The gold rush in British Columbia originated in California, Bishop Adams said, gold being discovered in California in 1848. In 1858 there was a rush northward and the first gold discovered in British Columbia was found at Waneta, a few miles from Trail.

Angus MacDonald, stated the bishop, rescribed the location as at the mouth of the Pend d'Oreille where the waters jump 10 feet high as they enter the Columbia. Two hundred ounces were sent to Victoria from this point. The next points where gold was located in British Columbia were in the river at Spence's bridge, Lytton, Yale and Fort Hope.

GOLD RUSH 1858

In 1858 the gold rush into British Columbia began, stated the speaker. In 1858 about 15,000 persons arrived at Victoria from San Francisco and many thousands came into the country overland from Oregon, Utah, Washington and Minnesota. It is recorded, he said, that even fortune seekers from as far as Honolulu and South America flocked to the province. At Victoria only about 200 persons resided and on the mainland there were about 25,000, Bishop Adams said.

With such a tremendous sudden influx of people it was natural that there was much distress for a time, the speaker said. In June and July of that year 7300 ounces of gold had been exported.

INDIANS LITTLE TROUBLE

Little trouble was experienced with the Indians in those days, stated Bishop Adams, the Thompson Indians causing this.

But it was only spasmodic and soon overcome for these Indians had two intellectual chiefs who had the power of appreciating the superiority of the "paleface" and considered the best policy not to resist. They kept their tribes in check and gained the name of being great peacemakers.

Everyone was heading north for the interior, the speaker continued. Different main routes were taken. One route came through where Harrison Hot Springs now is, on to Lillooet lake and east to Anderson lake and over Mount Pavilion and on further north. The other route was via Hope and further on up the Fraser river canyon. Bishop Adams stated that the different "bars" on the Fraser river were named after men who had worked for gold at those points.

TRAIL TRAVEL

Settlers, governors and officials all had to travel as best they could over the very narrow trails into the Cariboo. In 1862 Douglas determined that a proper entry into the Cariboo must be made and a road was constructed into the territory. It was at this time, said the speaker, that from 200 to 300 engineers were imported from England and arrived under Colonel Moody. The capital of the province was intended to be at Langley but Moody did not like the marshy area and was determined that New Westminster would be the capital, he added.

In 1862 and 1863 the Cariboo road was built and Bishop Adams was sorry to see it gradually passing out of existence. He said the C.P.R. line built alongside the river had taken place of the road travel.

FIRST INTO CARIBOO

The first man to go into the Cariboo was MacDonald or MacDonnell, Bishop Adams said. He went up the Fraser and at Quesnel met others coming down. At Quesnel forks they settled.

The orgin of the name of this district was given by James Moore a pioneer of B.C. who recently died at Kamloops, the speaker said. Moore wrote out in longhand a number of historical points of the early days and his writings have been considered quite valuable.

According to Moore's writing, the Bishop said, it was customary for settlers of the Cariboo district to go to the coast for the winter but three men decided to remain in for a winter. One of them was out hunting and saw something in the bush which he shot at. The animal was a caribou and not knowing the proper spelling these men called the district "Cariboo". It was with amazing rapidity that this name stuck.

The story of the great rush in the Cariboo was told by Bishop Adams as there being three men pushing north with their packs, and, arriving at a certain point one was left behind to cook. The other two went out and made a startling discovery and decided not to tell the one left behind, whose name was Martin. Bowen went to the coast and Weaver and Martin remained but Martin had not yet learned of the discovery. An old character "Black Jack" supposed to be lying dead drunk in a cabin overheard Weaver tell of the discovery north. Black Jack bought up all the snow shoes in the settlement and Martin was naturally glad to take the party into the area of the discovery since his partners had not shared the find with him. It was this gang of men that started the rush to Antler creek.

In this area men recovered 200 ounces a day and some made $3000 a day. But this boom did not last and by 1873 the gold had petered out.

But even at the present time, stated Bishop Adams, men in Barkerville are hoping to discover the lead from which the abundant riches came.

The speaker believed that the P.G.E. is useful to that country and that when it is put through to Prince George its value will be trebbly or quadruply valuable. In his opinion he believed that the Bridge River district held wonderful hidden riches.

E. H. Bridgmen, deputy minister of municipalities for the provincial government, R. R. Burns, M.L.A. for Rossland-Trail riding, and Erney Taylor of Vancouver were guests at the luncheon.

CONSOLIDATED ASSURES FUEL BY BUYING INTO CROW MINES

President Warren Discloses This Action in Annual Report; Stock Is Bought in International and McGillivray

INTEREST CLOSED OUT IN ONTARIO REFINING

Record Base Metal Purchases by Britain at Lowest Prices; Company Spends $1,570,000 Capital Account

Disclosure that the Consolidated Mining & Smelting Company of Canada has bought large blocks of stock of the International Coal & Coke company and of the McGillivray Creek Coal Mining Company as a move toward assuring its position in respect to coal and coke, is made by President James J. Warren in the annual report laid before the shareholders Tuesday in Montreal. These neighbor colliery concerns of the Alberta section of the Crow's Nest Pass, a dispatch recently announced, are now associated under a single head, Lorne A. Campbell.

That the Consolidated's stock interest in the Ontario Refining company, which was formed a few years ago by a group of the big companies developing copper in the east, is now wiped out, is another disclosure.

Capital expenditure of the Consolidated for 1934 was over $1,570,000, of which over $300,000 went into plants, President Warren reports.

In reference to the record production of base metals by the company, he states that while "Empire producers" have supplied the British trade with the largest volume of lead and zinc in history, the prices were the lowest ever known for big volume.

In submitting the directors' report, and those of officers and others, President Warren writes:

"After providing for current development, adding $18,850.18 to employees' pension fund (besides taking care of the year's disbursements on this account) and paying taxes, $450,187.06, there was a surplus of $5,266,878.03.

"Deducting the write-offs for depletion and depreciation, $694,559.69 compared with $1,056,273.52 in 1933.

"Fire losses during the year were insignificant and were charged to current revenue. The fire insurance reserve remains as at the end of 1933—$786,104.75.

TWO DIVIDENDS PAID

"Dividends Nos. 56 and 59, aggregating $1,952,794 were declared and paid to shareholders during the year, the remainder, $258,765.89, being carried to earned surplus account, which stood at $1,757,001.04 at the end of the year.

"Stocks of all kinds are carried at a conservative valuation—below market.

"While base metal prices were disappointing, the appreciation in silver, plus the larger volume of production, brought about a substantial increase in net revenue.

METAL PRICES

"Extraordinary general conditions have affected prices peculiarly. Under the Ottawa agreements, Empire lead and zinc are admitted free to Great Britain, while foreign lead and zinc are subject to a 10 per cent ad valorem duty. However, there is a condition attached that the Empire producers in consideration of this preference must supply the British fabricators with their needs at world prices. The British demand has been quite good, but foreign production, being in excess of foreign demand, has precipitated distress selling by foreigners in the British market, with the result that under a strained interpretation of what are world prices, Empire producers have been supplying British fabricators with the largest quantities of lead and zinc in history, but at the lowest recorded prices of these metals in such quantities.

"This has been quite profitable for the British fabricators, but not so profitable for the Empire producers. An effort is now being made to have 'world prices' interpreted in the spirit of the Ottawa agreements, which was that the British fabricator would be in no worse position than his foreign competitor by reason of the preference. Your company can meet any fair competition in Great Britain, but expects reasonable cooperation from the British fabricators. During the war, Empire metal was more than welcome—during peace it should have some preference.

"Outside of Great Britain competition is very keen, complicated by quota regulations in France and occasional embargoes in Germany, as well as nationalistic paternalism in other countries. The United States duties on lead and zinc really constitute a complete embargo against their importation.

"Low prices carry their own cure, as they force a cessation of production by 'high cost' operators. Soon consumption exceeds production, forcing up prices until 'high cost' operators can resume profitable production. Fortunately your costs permit the continuance of operations and production with a margin of profit.

"Equipment, plant and buildings are in good condition, having been well maintained out of current revenue.

"Ore reserves are sufficient to supply any reasonable requirement for increased metal production.

PRODUCTION

The year's production was as follows:

	1934
Lead	315,346,312 lbs
Copper	1,567,078 lbs
Gold	35,328 ozs
Bismuth	246,092 lbs
Zinc	221,955,701 lbs
Cadmium	293,611 lbs
Silver	7,316,231 ozs

Comparative figures for 1933 are:

	1933
Lead	254,639,548 lbs
Copper	541,459 lbs
Gold	22,393 ozs
Bismuth	70,724 lbs
Zinc	137,619,895 lbs
Cadmium	246,041 lbs
Silver	5,551,349 ozs

GOLD PROSPECTS

"Mining and smelting operations are fully reviewed by the vice-president and general manager and the vice-president in charge of mines.

"In the mining department there are at least four gold 'prospects' which promise well, but sufficient development has not been done yet to warrant the definite pronouncement that all or some of them are mines.

"In the metallurgical department the further progress made in the treatment of sulphur dioxide is important. It indicates the probability of the early production of metallic sulphur on a commercial scale.

"Placer workings—The report of the vice-president in charge of mines points out that the placer properties have not yet reached the expected productive positions.

"Big Missouri—The year's development work has improved the outlook for this property, especially with the increased currency value of gold.

"Great Bear Lake —Development work here, too, has been favorable.

"The Sullivan mine—This property, the backbone of your company's operations, continues to develop favorably. It shows no sign of not realizing the great expectations of your engineering staff.

FERTILIZER DEVELOPMENT

"Fertilizer operations—There have been improvements in both plants and processes. The high grade of the products has been maintained and helps materially in their marketing.

"As prophesied in last year's statement, sales in the prairie provinces were substantially in excess of those of the previous year. Prairie sales for 1935 seeding are more than double those of 1934.

"The report of Dr. Neldig, director of agriculture, besides describing his praiseworthy activities, shows greater interest being taken by farmers in fertilizer, based on observation and experience of the favorable results from its use.

"Foreign sales have been quite good, as set out in the report of the vice-president in charge of sales.

"Sales generally—Your attention is directed to the very large quantities of metal sold under the careful supervision of W. S. Rugh, vice-president in charge of sales. The efforts of himself and his staff and those of Henry Gardner & Co., Ltd. (Japan and China) merit your commendation.

"Power—During the year, as usual the power plants operated smoothly and satisfactorily under the good management of L. A. Campbell, vice-president and general manager of the West Kootenay Power & Light company, Ltd. There were some extensions of lines, etc., which are set out in Mr. Campbell's report.

CAPITAL OUTLAY

"Capital expenditure amounted to $1,571,975.55, of which $1,367,003.22 was spent on property account and $204,972.33 on plant account.

"Finances—You will notice a further improvement in your financial position. The remainder of your shares in the Ontario Refining company, Ltd., were disposed of during the year.

"Practically all of your provincial bonds were sold and the proceeds applied to the purchase of federal bonds.

"Fuel—In order to make more secure your fuel supply, substantial holdings of the shares of the International Coal & Coke company, Ltd., and the McGillivray Creek Coal Mining company were acquired near the close of the year.

"Employees and staff—There was efficiency and close and friendly cooperation.

FULLER SUCCEEDS BINGAY

"After many years of faithful and competent service, T. W. Bingay, vice-president and comptroller, resigned on October 1, 1934. Your directors regret his resignation and wish him many years of well-deserved leisure. H. B. Fuller was appointed comptroller in his place.

"Your directors regret the passing of Blake Wilson, who had been a valued member for some years. The vacancy caused by his death was filled by the election of Sir Charles B. Gordon."

On to Death at Life's Beginning; Crime Does Not Pay

At the age when other youths are beginning their lives as citizens, these four boys are travelling the last miles to death. Enrico Angelino (left to right), 20; Ray Oriey, 21; Newman Raymond, 21 and Thomas Gilbride, 20, tried the easy road when they went to New York from small towns. In their twenty-second holdup, one of them shot a policeman; now all are to die in Sing Sing, where they are seen being taken. Their combined finances at the end of their criminal careers totalled $3.21.

Concert Benefits Kimberley Church

KIMBERLEY, April 16—The benefit concert for the United church in K. P. hall Wednesday was a big success. There was a 16-piece orchestra. A junior stringed orchestra, under Mr. Hobson, also gave several numbers. Part of the program was as follows:

Vocal solo by Mrs. Graham; piano duet by Elvira and May Clements; Marimba solo, H. Potter; recitation by Elaine Norton; vocal solo by Teddy Richardson; piano solo by Marjorie McLeod; banjo solo by J. Atchison; vocal solo by W. P. Mason; vocal solo by Alf Watson; vocal solo by Phyllis Dakin; quintette violins by pupils of G. Hobson. The Orpheus choir sang two selections and the Ladies Orpheus one number.

H. Potter gave two more selections on the Marimba, accompanied by his mother, Mrs. Potter.

The men were very pleased with the results of the concert. They cleared more than $50.

Lloyd Crowe was chairman.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. McLeod was the scene of a joll gathering Thursday, when Mrs. C. Crisford and Mrs. McLeod celebrated their birthdays. Two tables of bridge were in play during the evening with honors going to Mrs. Stanley Norton. The men engaged in a croquinole competition with Lloyd Crowe winning the special prize.

After the games the party sat down to an excellent turkey supper. At midnight Mrs. Crisford was presented with a bouquet of flowers. Dancing and singing brought the evening to a close.

WINTER HANGS ON AT MOYIE

Old-Timers Can Not Recall Frozen Lake So Late

MOYIE, B.C., April 16.—Winter still drags its gloomy length along here in the cradle of the hills. Not in the memory of the oldest of the old timers has the lake remained frozen without the sign of a break so late in the year. Saturday night and Sunday morning snow again fell to cover everything with its white mantel, but that might not be too bad of a sign for "If winter comes, then spring's not far away." Moyie is not sure, however, whether it is this spring or next.

Mrs. H. Fransen of Creston was spending a few days in the district, visiting Mr. and Mrs. Algot Johnson of Sunnyside ranch and Mrs. H. M. Pearson of Moyie. Mrs. Fransen was at one time a resident of Moyie for several years.

Mrs. W. E. Andrews visited friends in Creston for a couple of days.

The grader in charge of Fred Baynes passed through the village, being another of the signs that spring can't be far away. Mr. Rankine and Road Superintendent Jack Taylor were also visitors here on official business. The road crew is busy clearing up some of the worst of the bad pieces of road, which considering everything, isn't in too bad of a shape.

George Whitehead arrived home from Kimberley Thursday, the job at the new bridge into Chapman Camp having ben finished. George is going to drive the truck at the N. D. camp at Aldridge, starting this week.

Dr. Green of Cranbrook was in town Friday seeing young Heather Geroux, who was not so ill as at first feared, and who is now fairly well recovered.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Bateman were Cranbrook visitors Thursday.

No further additions have been made to the numbers at the N. D. camp at Aldridge, but it is understood that the camp is likely to remain there during the summer.

Bill Rudd was in from his ranch Thursday getting supplies. Bill is widening the road up to his place these days, until the snow goes enough to let him get started planting.

Mr. and Mrs. Algot Johnson of Sunnyside were in town Saturday.

Good reports continue to come from the Cariboo Goldfields property near Aldridge, and this week another load of ventilating pipe and several loads of lagging have been taken there.

Vic Sanders, Jr., is bemoaning the loss of his carefully cultivated young tomato plants owing to the frivolous disposition of the pup, Trixie, who thought it a good place to go rooting.

Mrs. V. H. Saunders was a Cranbrook visitor Friday, accompanying Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Fitch to town.

ELECTRIC POWER IN MANUFACTURING AND MINING INDUSTRIES

Each year during the ten years, 1923-1933, Canadian manufacturing industries have shown an increasing dependence upon central electric stations for power to operate their machinery and electricity is steadily displacing other forms of power.

In 1923 the capacity of all power equipment in manufacturing plants in operation was 2,146,903 horse power made up of 1,188,211 horse power of steam engines and internal combustion engines and 958,692 horse power of electric motors operated on central electric station power. The steam engines produced power for electric motors amounted to 1,315,828 horse power, or 61.3 per cent of the total machine capacity.

During the following ten years the total capacity increased to 4,147,831 horse power, or by 93 per cent, steam engines and internal combustion engines increased to 1,476,391 horse power, or by 55 per cent, electric motors operated on central electric station power increased to 2,671,440 horse power, or by 179 per cent electric motors operated on power produced by the steam equipment of the manufacturing industries increased to 502,706 horse ower, or by 41 per cent, and total electric motor capacity increased by 141 per cent. Although there was an increase in steam engines and internal combustion engines and also in electric motors operated by power produced by these engines the big increase has been in electric motors operated on power purchased from central electric stations, their capacity increasing more than three times as much as of other primary power machines in the industries.

TELEPHONES IN CANADA

The use of the telephone was noticeably affected by the world wide business recession but, nevertheless, Canada maintained a position in this regard among the leading countries of the world. Canada led all countries in 1933 in number of completed telephone conversations per capita and was second only to the United States in number of telephones in proportion to population. Gross telephone revenues decreased in the Dominion in 1933 as compared with the year previous, but owing to reductions of ependitures net revenues were higher.

The number of telephones per 100 of population in Canada, according to a report issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, stood at 11.16 in 1933. This is second only to the number installed in the United States. Three other countries, France, Germany and Great Britain and Northern Ireland, have a greater total number of telephones in use than has Canada: but on a per capita basis the density in each of these three countries is less than half of Canada's.

The total number of local and long distance conversations, estimated from counts made by the larger systems at different times during the year, showed a reduction from 2,346,573,000 in 1932 to 2,271,581,000 in 1933. The United States and Japan were the only countries to report a larger number of completed conversations in 1932. Japan's average per telephone was 3,558 against Canada's 1,905 in 1933, but on a per capita basis Canada led all countries with an average of 213 completed conversations as against 205 for the United States in 1932.

The number of telephones in use in Canada in 1933, totalled 1,192,330. This compared with 1,261,245 in 1932 and 1,402,861 in 1930. Rural telephones reached their peak in Canada in 1928 and showed a decrease in each succeeding year. Business telephones reached a peak in 1930, which was also the peak year for the total number of telephones in use. Rural telephones declined 25 per cent from 1928 to 1933; residence telephones 16.6 per cent from 1930 to 1933; but in business telephones the decline from 1930 to 1933 was only 8.7 per cent.

The gross income of telephone systems in Canada in 1933 was $55,661,000 as compared with $60,648,000 in 1932. As between these two years, however, expenditures declined from $55,344,000 to $50,021,000; with the result that net income increased from $5,340,000 to $5,639,000. Total capital invested in the telephone systems of the Dominion declined from $286,752,000 to $280,099,000. Capital stock rose slightly from $129,017,000 to $129,192,000; but funded debt decreased from $157,734,000 to $150,906,000, the decline taking place mainly in retirement of Bell Telephone bonds. Total cost of property and equipment in all systems is placed at $330,490,000 in 1933. Of this total $246,174,000 is credited to stock companies; $60,061,000 to provincial government systems; $18,107,000 to cooperative systems and $6,146,000 to municipal systems. Of the stock companies the Bell Telephone Company is credited with $191,250,000.

Between You and Me

A LETTER TO ALD. RITCHIE

Way back in 1927, the latter part of May to be exact, a prominent Kimberley man, later of Trail, one who had many friends and who delighted to curl, was injured in an auto crash near Peter Verigin's tomb at Brilliant. He was David Clark. With him at the time was a Mr. Allas. Mr. Clark, Nelsonites will recall, spent a great deal of time in the hospital with injuries.

Now Mr. Clark was a great friend of Alderman Alick Ritchie of Nelson. In fact they correspond regularly and at the city council meeting Monday night Alick handed me a letter he had received from Dave. He is now in Manitoba and I will reproduce the letter as it came, neatly typed by Mr. Clark, on a new typewriter, about which he apparently knew very little.

THE CONTENTS

It reads:

Sherridon. Post Office Man.

My dear Alick:—

Ye're gaun tae be highly honoured. atypewritten letter I've been practicing maist o' this week. and mind I'm telling Ye it needs some practice. FRANK MURPHY WRITES

And while on the subject of letters I will reproduce another from another Scotchman, I refer to Frank Murphy, late Nelson oil distributor who has been moved to New Westminster where he is fast becoming acquainted. Frank says:

* * *

Dear J.B.C.:

Many thanks for your letter of the 5th inst. and good wishes.

Well, we arrived in New Westminster on the 26th March none the worse of our trip on the Kettle Valley Flying Scotchman. Tell our old friend J. Gordon if it had not been for a snow storm en route I would have had time to return him a bunch of flowers, no hard feelings London to Aberdeen for me.

Now for New Westminster, this is a very nice place and for the roads they are wonderful, if you had anything half as good in the Nelson district it would be the finest place in Canada to live in, however 30 years from now and Frank Murphy from Scotland becomes premier of Canada, the roads in the Nelson district will be the finest in the country.

J.B., kindly tell J. B. Gray the Brechin Scotsman, that I was talking to one of the natives from his town, in Scotland who used to ken him in Brechin, he is anxious to know if J. B. Gray eats as much bannocks as ever. J.B.C., for your information Brechin is a one horse town in Scotland, the horse died of starvation about the time J. B. Gray left.

In conclusion kindly remember me to all that I knew in Nelson, wishing one and all good fortune, Yours very truly,

FRANK MURPHY

THE DEAD FAITH

She made a little shadow-hidden grave
The day Faith died;
Therein she laid it, heard the clod's sick fall,
And smiled aside—
"If less I ask," tear-blind, she mocked, "I may Be less denied."

She set a rose to blossom in her hair,
The day Faith died—
"Now glad," she said, "and free at last, I go,
And life is wide."
But through long nights she stared into the dark,
And knew she lied.

A Thought for Today

50 MILES FURTHER NORTH

At about the same time that yesterday's hand was played, today's hand appeared about 50 miles further north. This time the opponents, not the declarer suffered, and how!

The spirit of madness was rampant with two of the bidders. East dealt. He hoped to stave off a high adverse score by making an opening psychic of 1 no trump. Only South knew that the call was not honest, and he started to trap opponents. South wanted to stave off genuine strong bids, so he bid 2 spades, taking the call out of West's mouth, so the later made his own psychic bid of 3 hearts. North might have doubled that call, but he was so strong in hearts that he supported South by bidding 3 spades. East stuck his head out of the window just as the sash fell on it, by bidding 4 hearts, with neither side vulnerable. South doubled. If he had not done so his partner would have doubled. They had opponents just where they wanted them to be. Only South's early psychic spade call kept West from shifting into that make.

The opening led was the king of hearts. When North saw himself hold the trick, and South's co. :- on of the 8, a low heart was led. South's ace won, dropping declarer's 10, and showing plainly that West had been psychicing. South led back his last trump, that North might pick up the third trump showing in dummy.

North led a low spade. South's ace took off the trick, then that player ran off three tricks in clubs and three tricks in diamonds. At the end of these 10 tricks, North had left only two long trumps and the king of spades. No matter what South led his partner must win the last three tricks, giving North and South a grand slam.

Law 34 states that a slam bonus may be scored only by the side bidding and making the slam. The defenders could not claim the grand slam premium, but they scored aplenty for putting West down 10 tricks doubled.

The interpreters of the international laws of contract bridge do not contemplate any bidder going down more than seven tricks, as their tables of penalties do not go beyond that setback. Seven tricks down when doubled incur a penalty of 1780 points, when not vulnerable. The penalties for the eight, ninth and tenth tricks down are, however, 450, 500 and 550 points, respectively, giving us 1500 points to add to the 1780 for the first seven tricks down. Collecting 3280 points for defeating opponents was better than bidding and making their own grand slam.

MAKING A ROCK GARDEN.

By A. HORNBY
Head Gardener, Dominion Experimental Farm, Summerland, B.C.

When commencing to build a rockery, it is well to bear in mind that the rocks needed for the purpose are only the means to an end. They are not placed primarily for their own intrinsic beauty, but for the purpose of providing cool moist soil conditions so necessary for the well-being of rockery plants. It is not of vast importance what kind of rock is used, but it is well to avoid smoothly, round stones, as they give the rockery an altogether too formal appearance. The angular rocks found on the hillsides and canyons of the Okanagan valley are ideal material for the construction of rockeries. As to size, it is obvious that the larger the rock, so much holder is the effect. Use as large rocks as can be conveniently handled. In this phase of the work, energy and enthusiasm are two great helpmates and anyone having these is well on the road to success.

A good open gravel soil is the best medium for building up the base of the rockery and raising it above the ground level. If there is a natural bank which needs clothing, so much the better. Under semi-arid conditions, rockeries can be far more economically maintained on steep banks than can lawns. Prepare a compost consisting of two parts loam, one part leaf mold or peat, and one part sharp sand. Mix thoroughly and spread to the depth of 18 inches over the area to be occupied by the rockery.

Place your rocks so as to form pockets into which the plants may be set. Each rock should be sunk at least a third of its depths, firming the soil tightly about it so as to prevent air pockets. The rocks should be set as vertical as possible so as to avoid overhanging ledges. By using rocks of different shapes and sizes, various contours and aspects can be created. Fill up the pockets between the rocks with a good open compost that will give free drainage. Wash and thoroughly soak the whole area with water. Then allow the soil to settle for a few days when it will be in good condition to commence planting operations.

The ornamental grounds at the Summerland experimental station provide good examples of several types of rockery. During May and June these rockeries are especially gay with the bloom of many hundreds of alpine plants well adapted for use in beautifying Okanagan homes. If you are building a rockery it will be well worth your while to visit the Summerland station and ascertain the kinds of plants suited to your own particular soil and location.

ELECTRICITY WILL RELIEVE ARTHRITIS

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

Physical therapy comprises all those methods which have to do with external application of heat and cold or of manipulation. In other words, it comprises treatment with water, hot water bags, electric pads, electric heat, such as diathermy, glavanic electricity, faradic electricity, hyperpyrexia, massage and therapeutic exercise. It is a form of treatment that has been long neglected by the medical profession and is taking an increased spurt of late years. Hardly any hospital can be considered well equipped unless it has a good physiotherapy department.

Of the many forms of treatment for arthritis, the use of diathermy is, in my opinion, the most effective. It is painless in application. It does the most important thing which the arthritic patient wants—gets rid of the pain, therefore improves the morale and the mental outlook, increases the possibility of activity, and to that extent is actually curative. It has been said that diathermy does not actually cure a case of arthritis, but if it does all the things that I have listed, it goes very far in that direction.

WHAT DIATHERMY IS

Diathermy is a form of electrical current which is applied by th. contact of two electrodes on the skin. It generates a current which produces heat in the tissues through which the current passes. In this way it has a great advantage over the external application of heat in the form of water, hot water bags, electric pads, etc., because these simply warm up the superficial skin. It is true that they bring changes in the blood vessels so that there is a congestion of the part and a carrying away of poisons, but this, diathermy does also and, as I have just said, it has the tremendous advantage that it generates heat, not on the surface, but in the tissues through which it passes. If you have a pain in your toe, for instance, which is due to an inflammation of the joint, the application of an electrode to the sole and to the arch of your foot will cause heat to be produced in the bone and tendons which are actually inflamed. This is obviously better than surface heat.

ASSOCIATED TREATMENTS

To receive the full benefit from diathermy, there must be associated massage and orthopedic treatment. Massage is important because it develops the muscles around the joints and tends to break up adhesions. It also nips the possibility of stiffness or ankylosis of the joint in its early stages.

Diathermy, associated with massage and orthopedic treatment, actually will cause the disappearance of exudates in the early stage of arthritis. It may not be expected to cause the disappearance of bony overgrowths in the late stage, but even at this time it can be depended upon to relieve pain, at least temporarily, and generally for long periods of time.

SIXTY GUINEAS A SEAT FOR THE JUBILEE PROCESSION

If you have no blanks, crocards, farthings, suskins or even a dodkin or so, you may pay in good pounds sterling.

Do not, please, ask how much a blank, crocard, suskin or dodkin means, for the writer does not know. As a matter of fact, although he had heard of a crocard, the other coins—for coins they were in their own times—were mysteries to him until someone started digging down into history to find out what it once cost for seats from which to view Coronation processions.

The results of the researches follow:

In the times of William the Conqueror and William the Red. . .one blank.

For Henry I . . . one crocard.

For Stephen and Henry II . . .one pollard.

For Richard I. and John . . .one suskin.

For Henry III . . . a dodkin.

HALF A FARTHING IN DAYS OF EDWARD I

Here ends the list of mystery coins. Seats for the Coronation procession of Edward I. cost half a farthing each, which seems a ridiculously small sum until the different value of money in those days is considered. The price doubled to a farthing for Edward II, and redoubled to a halfpenny for Edward III.

Another double (no this is not a bridge game, although it is beginning to sound like one) brought the price to a penny under Henry IV. So it gradually mounted, until to see Henry VII go to his enthronement cost fourpence. And here we can insert a little personal knowledge, and recall that fourpence in those days was called a groat. Score one against the dead losses in general knowledge admitted before.

The Stuarts brought the price up to a shilling and then it jumped to a crown for George I. Some gave half a guinea to see George II wend his historic way to the Crown, and this was thought vastly extravagant. And yet the price was ten guineas when George III was crowned.

SIXTY GUINEAS IS JUBILEE PRICE

Now let us consider prices which will be paid for seats from which to view the Silver Jubilee procession of Their Majesties King George and Queen Mary. Sixty guineas, so rumor has it, is quite a common charge. Lesser sums are paid willingly—and it is felt that as the time draws closer and seats scarcer, latecomers will pay in the hundred guines realm for a seat. Which seems a whole lot of money, although the procession—altogether apart from the loyal and sentimental aspect—will be a sight never to be forgotten.

Work has begun on erecting the stands just in front of Buckingham Palace. The work will take five weeks, and use two million feet of tubular steel. The stands will flank both sides of the Mall from the Admiralty Arch to the Palace, and will seat 26,000. Of these seats, 20,000 are to be reserved for Governmental guests, under which heading come foreign notabilities, state officials and members of the services.

Other stands will be erected along the route, of course, but when the millions who will wish to see the procession are compared with the comparative lack of space, it will be seen that seats are at a premium.

FIRST TELEVISION STATION STARTS IN LONDON IN AUTUMN

The world's first national television broadcast service will begin to operate from London in the autumn.

Announcing details of the proposed service, Sir Kingsley Wood, Postmaster-General, declared that it would be "an historic event," and will be a crown of triumph for men who for years have been striving in secret to find the key to this scientific riddle.

Two years ago the Government made it a vital condition that companies competing for the privilege of initiating television transmission should refrain from all publicity. Only today is it possible to talk about the men who have worked in silence.

They have spent thousands of pounds in research. Now they are to have rich reward.

The Postmaster-General's announcement followed the report of a committee which for eight months has been investigating the television position. The experiments made in the United States and Germany have been examined, but it is evident from the report that they have not reached a stage of practical application to compare with the two British systems— the Baird and the E.M.I. (Marconi). These are to send out programs alternatively.

The first television station will cost about $200,000 to establish and maintain. It will be built in a high position near London, most probably to the north. Immediately the station is ready home television sets will be on the market.

At first they will cost between $50 and $80. Later, manufactured in bulk, the price may be halved. The first television set will look almost exactly the same as a modern sound-broadcasting set; the only difference will be that it will contain the present essential of television reception—the cathode ray tube.

Reception will be on six to seven meters for sight; probably ten metres for sound. Post office engineers are convinced that sight and sound reception on these two wave-lengths just sufficiently divided to avoid clashing, will be possible on one set and by one aerial.

Aerials will be the same, too. It is only in exceptional cases that any change, in size or placing, will be necessary.

The sets, however, will not be able to pick up the present B.B.C. broadcasts. Broadcasting as we know it today will continue and enlarge during the next two years. The B.B.C. will carry on as at present, and manufacturers will continue to sell sound-radio sets as they do now.

For the first year—that is, until the expiration of the B.B.C. charter in 1936—television will be l'nited to the London listener. The broadcasts will extend only to a radius of 25 miles.

It is proposed later to build ten more stations, which will be available to 50 per cent of the population toward the end of 1936.

SOME TRUTHS ABOUT RUSSIA
THE FIVE YEAR PLAN

By J. T. BEALBY

In 1927 there was a bitter struggle amongst the Kremlin leaders of the U.S.S.R., in which Stalin got the better of the rival faction—Zinovieff, Kameneff, Trotzky, Radek. This group wanted to throw all their efforts into fomenting revolutionary disorders in the capitalist countries of the world. Stalin desired to concentrate upon the conversion of Russia into a predominantly industrial state. Having routed the rival faction, Stalin proceeded to formulate the Pyatiletka or Five Years Plan, and twelve months later put it into execution amid a veritable tornado of propaganda trumpeted through all the world. Curiously enough, he resolved to proceed first with what he called the heavy industries—the extraction of coal, petroleum, iron, the manufacture of tractors and automobiles, the construction of a gigantic power plant on the Dnieper river in the southwest of Russia and similar undertakings. Before beginning he mapped out sharply defined volumes of accomplishment for the period of five years, and proclaimed all the world over that the Soviet would demonstrate how vastly superior their accomplishments would be to what capitalist countries were able to achieve.

Stalin derived the idea of the Five Year Plan from an exhaustive survey of the natural resources of the territories comprised within the U.S.S.R., a survey made at the instigation of the Soviet government itself, by a large number of scientific experts, and published by the government in four volumes under the title Pyatiletka. Stalin, however, for political reasons, disregarded much of the information contained in that report. These details I owe to a volume entitled Red Smoke and published in New York in 1932. It is written by one Isaac Don Levine, presumably from his name a Russian Jew, of whom I know nothing further. He criticizes Stalin's project severely and adversely. Russia's mineral resources are not only limited in amount (except oil) but are all of them inconveniently situated for industrial development on a big scale. Russia's principal asset is man-power (her peasantry); but at the time the Five Years Plan was begun the people lacked education, stood at a low standard of living, were rooted in century-old habits of agriculture, and were not long emancipated from serfdom. The country was not at that time sufficiently developed industrially to supply the population with anything like all they needed of the common necessaries of every-day existence. It is true there were the leased private (light) industries and several domestic industries which for generations had been carried on by the peasantry in a dozen provinces immediately surrounding the province of Moscow. The products of the latter were articles in wood, metals, skins (leather), furs, shoes, tools, cooking utensils, rude clothing, ecclesiastical vestments in wool, cotton and silk. These goods were sold to small rural traders (Tchastniki), who retailed them all over Russia. Before the war these household industries are stated to have given occupation to between seven and eight million people and to have produced goods to an annual average of $600,000,000 (Prince Kropotkin). Besides these industries, manufacturing production on a larger (capitalistic) scale had been making good progress under the Czars in supplying clothing, boots, and similar necessaries. But the war, and then Lenin's plans for the nationalization of all industry, had played havoc with both these classes of production. In 1928 the country was suffering from an acute shortage of all common everyday commodities. But to all this Stalin closed his eyes. The heavy industries must come first, despite the fact that skilled workers as well as expert managers were both woefully scarce.

Now Stalin's scheme called for the erection of huge industrial plants and for veritable new cities in which to harbour the thousands upon thousands of workers who would be employed in the new industries. The latter, the worker's new cities, were necessitated by the fact that the new plants were to be constructed near the scene of the iron supplies, though at a great distance from both coal and electric power. Most of them were in fact built in the country of the Ural Mts. between Europe and Asia, and at a distance from the chief centers of population. At that time too, owing to the U.S.S.R.'s repudiation of all international loans which Russia had incurred under the Czarist government, the Soviet rulers found they possessed no credit outside of their own country. But manifestly they could not build industrial plants and new cities without capital, nor equip them with the modern, labor-saving machinery that they desired to instal. With the view to overcoming this difficulty, the Soviet government had for some time been endeavoring to dump in the principal capitalistic countries wheat, requisitioned from the peasants at a fixed but very low price, as well as oil, timber, furs, eggs, butter, sugar, and so forth.

A CHANGE OF SPIRIT

For two years the Five Years Plan of production went pretty well, thanks to the continually fired enthusiasm of the Socialist workers. During that time of construction very creditable results were achieved. But then a change came over the spirit of the scene. The Soviet authorities were constrained to appeal again to the capitalistic countries, notwithstanding that they possessed everything that, according to Marxian doctrine, was necessary for industrial production, namely labor, raw materials, means of subsistence. They realized however, that these were not enough; far from it. They needed modern machinery; they needed experienced business managers and trained minds to tell them how to plan, how to organize, how to execute economically and to the best advantage—just those elements that capitalists contribute in modern industrial centers outside of socialism. Also they needed skilled mechanics to come and tell them how to run the machines they purposed buying. It was here that their real troubles began. What those troubles were, and the nature of them, I will now illustrate from the well-founded fault-findings of the official papers of Moscow and from speeches of the authorities.

BABE RUTH TOUCHES HUBBELL FOR HOMER IN OPENING GAME—ALSO FIGURES IN 4 TALLIES

Bambino Steals the Whole Show; Makes a Great Catch

BOSTON, April 16 (AP)—With all the characteristic flamboyance of the great man in a crisis, George Herman (Babe) Ruth, the ancient they waived out of the American league, started life all over again at 40 in the National league today.

He personally touched off the season for his new mates, the Braves, by slugging Carl Hubbell for a tremendous home run in the fifth inning of the season's opener with New York Giants, driving in or scoring all four of his team's runs, making one circus catch, and exhilirating 25,000 fans, five governors and a host of celebrities out of all thoughts of the bitter cold weather.

IT WAS NEARLY ALL RUTH

The Braves beat the Giants 4-2 as far as the ball game as a whole was concerned, but beyond that everything was Ruth.

The Babe killed two birds with two mighty swings of his bat. In the first inning, with Shortstop Bill Urbanski on base, he drove in the first Braves' run with a single that almost flattened Bill Terry on the first base lines. Then he scored the second run himself as singles by Wally Berger, Pinky Whitney, and Baxter Jordan followed.

SMITES MIGHTY BLOW

Then, after fanning with equal might in the second inning, he smote the blow that clinched things for the day. With Urbanski again on base, the count two and two, the Babe unwound himself at Hubbell's waist-high fast ball on the outside and sailed it far over the right field wall for his first National league home run, the 724th of his career.

To rub it in further to the critics who have bemoaned his fielding for the past couple of years, the Babe wound up his Hubbell vendetta with an astounding catch of a nasty drive the pitcher slammed over third base. His knees pumping up under his chin, his fat form woggling, Ruth thundered down the foul line and just did get there in time to rob Hubbell of a hit with a last second stab.

The big right-hander set the Phillies down with five hits, fanning six, and drove in five runs as he connected with three singles in five times at the plate. Linus Frey crashed through with a homer in the first inning to start the Brooklyn scoring.

DIZZY DEAN IS HIT BY BALL

Cardinals Drop the Opening Game to Chicago Cubs

CHICAGO, April 16 (AP)—A 4-3 defeat and near-tragedy to the great Dizzy Dean, the man who holds their pennant hopes in his right hand, rode with St. Louis Cardinals today as they opened their 1935 flag drive against Chicago Cubs before 15,000 shivering customers.

A hot drive off the bat of Freddie Lindstrom in the first inning caught the Cardinal pitching star above the left ankle, laid him low and he was carried off the field. An x-ray failed to reveal a bone break and it was the opinion of his attending physician and trainer that Diz will be back on the firing line within a week.

Dean, whose great pitching arm won 30 games, the National league pennant and the world series for the Cardinals last year, was in a jam when he was struck. Augie Galan, who started the Cub attack with a single and then raced to third on a sacrifice by Billy Herman and a wild throw by Pepper Martin, was poised for a dash home as Lindstrom swung at Dizzy's sweeping curves. Suddenly, he caught one of the slants and it went straight at Dizzy.

Gabby Hartnett, the old man of the Cub team, provided the punch that hauled down the Red Birds with a home run, double and a single.

Golf Facts

NOT THEORIES!

BY ALEX J. MORRISON

The fans who follow the play of Bobby Jones since his retirement from competition will have something to look forward to each year so long as the former king of the links continues to participate in the annual invitation tournament over his Augusta course. His success or otherwise is secondary to the fact that the man who once was the greatest of all golfers is again swinging his clubs in competition.

Whenever Jones has been beaten in the past he has returned strong. In the first invitation match he was defeated, and his showing in the second was not particularly bright, though he was undoubtedly the sentimental favorite of the players and gallery alike. However, being popular with the galleries does not win matches alone, and to outshoot opponents and win matches one must have the game to do it. Bobby is away from active golf a great deal more of course that he was during his active competitive career, and lack of practice beats many a golfer. It can do the same with Bobby.

It takes so many things to beat a good field these days. The winner must get the breaks at every stage of the game in addition to being able to take advantage of them by an ability to tighten down when necessary. The incomparable Georgian may or may not be able to do this from year to year, but he will still be the popular idol as long as he appears on the links.

Bowlers to Start Doubles Tourney

Thursday night Canadian Legion bowling artists embark on another tournament, a skips, thirds, seconds and leads doubles event. This will probably wind up the season's activities.

Thursday night games have been scheduled as follows:

7:00 p.m.—Nick Cassios and W. Wylie vs G. Dill and J. Hamson.
7:30—E. Langill and G. Lovejoy vs R. Riley and V. Graves.
8:30—W. Marr and D. Wade vs L. Pickard and A. T. Stephenson.
9:10—P. Sellinger and F. Denison vs E. Collinson and C. D. Pearson.
10:00—J. H. Allen and W. Fowles vs R. Dodds and F. Hartwig.

REMEMBER WHEN?

(By the Canadian Press)

Albert "French" Belanger, popular Toronto boxer, lost the flyweight championship of Canada in Montreal six years ago tonight when, despite a spirited defence, he was declared outpointed in a 10-round bout with Henry Hill, an English boxer, living in Montreal. It was one of Belanger's last major battles.

BRADDOCK TO BATTLE BAER

Date Set Is June 13; McLarnin-Ross Bout May 20

By EDWARD J. NEIL
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, April 16 (AP).—A great boxing revival loomed today for the coming outdoor season as Max Baer accepted Jimmy Braddock as his heavyweight title opponent on June 13, and dates were assigned for a battle between the sensational Joe Louis and Primo Carnera, as well as the third welterweight championship tussle of Jimmy McLarnin and Barney Ross.

Mike Jacobs, head of the new 20th Century Sporting club, took a lead of 2 to 1 in his promotional war with Madison Square Garden as he snared the McLarnin-Ross engagement for May 20 at the Polo grounds, and the Louis-Carnera embroglio for the Yankee stadium June 25.

The Garden, with Baer tied up, landed the heavyweight title match, but only by conceding the titleholder broadcasting rights to the affair as well as 42½ per cent of the net proceeds.

If Baer wins, the Garden has no holdover contract this time for another fight. Braddock agreed to defend the title for the Garden if he won.

To relieve the lack of a lightweight ruler, the commission decided to recognize the winner of a 15-round match May 10 in the Garden between Tony Canzoneri, former champion, and Lou Ambers, bounding youngster from Herkimer, N.Y.

Ross resigned from the 135-pound class, no longer able to make the weight.

"Big League" BASEBALL

In the above cartoon are the signs used by third base coaches in the major leagues to signal the base runner running out extra base hits.

In running out extra base hits, the base runner should be sure to touch the inside and not the outside of each base.

A diamond is four-cornered, but a great deal of the running on a diamond takes place as if there were a nearly circular track. This is true on a long hit. If he touches the inside point of each base he will run on a curve about 6 feet shorter than if he touched the outside edge of each base.

When running to first base, and when running out extra base hits, use your natural stride. Trying to step too far is as bad as to shorten your stride and mince your steps.

GYPSY GIRL

THE STORY OF AN IMPASSIONED ROMANCE

"Nelson Daily News" READER

CHAPTER 31

There was no answer from the white man and so Consuelo smiled to herself. "Now he knows what I want and he will help me." When she came out of the bedroom she flung her arms around him.

"I am so sorry to fight with you, my darling. I will take your dancing lessons and I will learn those gorgio songs and I will be the whole cheese of that fat Goldberg's show. Do you believe me?"

Stewart kissed her lips for the answer.

"And I love these gorgio clothes that Dougalas takes me to buy and says from you. You have been ashamed because I am a gypsy, but you need not be ashamed longer. If ever Girtza saw me dressed like this he would kill me. Is it not good to know that I am doing it for you? I would do anything for you, white man, if—" she did not finish the sentence. "Ah, I will get my hands on her again and tear out her hair!"

"L'Ville? Now, Consuelo, that's another one of your funny gypsy notions you've got to get rid of. They won't stand for that sort of thing backstage—one more fight and out you go. You just leave Louise alone and you'll get along much better."

"I hate her! She called me a dirty gypsy!"

"She can't do that any more—not with all of your pretty new clothes. Come along, it's nearly curtain time."

They had no sooner gotten to the theater and Consuelo gone to her dressing room, when Louise's maid informed Stewart that the blonde star wanted to see him immediately.

Louise was finishing her makeup when he entered. He kissed her on the back of the neck and sat down.

"Well, my dear, what's on your mind?"

She beaded an eyelash before she dared answer.

"Stewart, I'm so mad I could just cry! That horrid gypsy took the star off my door and put it on hers and now everybody's laughing about it. It was never so humiliated! I, the premiere danseuse of the Follies, and then a dirty low gypsy comes along and does a thing like this to me. Stewart, I don't like her at all. In fact, I can't stand the sight of her. She's so common and—and—well, you know what I mean. I wish, my dear, that you would tell Goldberg to let her go at the end of the week. You'll do just this little thing for me, won't you?

"Mustn't be jealous of the gypsy. The show needs a good peppy act." Inwardly he was quite amused.

"Stewart, darling," she slipped to his lap and rumpled his hair, "who's behind this gypsy?"

He smoothed down his hair.

"You know I don't like that." He shook himself free of her arms. Now he was annoyed. "You read the papers, Louise. Goldie saw her dance—"

His answer struck a wrong note. Like magic it served to drop the cloak of Louise's cultivated refinement. She sprang up and faced him angrily.

"Listen, big boy, I wasn't born yesterday. I want the low down. Who's behind this gypsy?"

"I haven't the slightest idea." He got to his feet to go. "You're forgetting yourself a bit, aren't you?"

She paid no attention to the last remark.

"Oh, Lord, but you can be doggone dumb when you want to be. All you have to do is to put that ritzy look on your face and start freezing. Well, I don't care. I want to know who's behind that girl and when I do they'll be plenty fireworks! And don't you go hanging around her as you were last night, either!"

Stewart opened the door. Instantly the woman went to him and drew him back into the room.

"I'm sorry, big boy, I didn't mean to be so coarse and rough. I know I promised and I won't again and I appreciate all you've done for me. I'm not myself tonight, that's all. I'm a bunch of nerves. Honey, you haven't been a bit nice to me since you came back from that last trip to the west. Won't you break that engagement you said you had for tonight and come home with me?" He shook his head. She clung to him. "I'm acting like a fool, I know, but I'm in an awful slump. It's the hardest thing in the world to listen to applause for someone else—and a dirty gypsy at that! Oh, I won't cry—" her voice broke. "I won't cry—I can't cry—I'll spoil my makeup! Kiss me, honey, and say you love me and help me get that gypsy out of this theater before I lose my mind. Please, honey, please! Stewart if you love me—"

The call boy came.

"Ready, Miss L'Ville."

"—make Goldberg tear up her contract!"

"L'Ville-L'Ville-" call from down stairs.

"Oh, damn!"

In the meantime, for Consuelo—there were no more lazy days of riding in the country with Doug. There were no more leisurely strolls on the avenue. No more shows at night. New York had reached out its arms and caught Consuelo in that maddened pace that was "hurry—hurry—hurry—"

There were rehearsals now every morning for the new act. They were working doubly hard to put it on before the first peck of her popularity had worn off. Under her guidance they made the setting for the gypsy camp as real as possible. Here was the van and the trees behind it and here was the campfire with an iron kettle over the glow and over in the corner was chained a little honey bear. And there were people, Spaniards mostly, who wore their gypsy clothes with good swagger and sang their songs loudly.

From the front the camp looked well, but to Consuelo it was a tawdry imitation. How beautiful it would have been if they had only gotten real gypsies; how good to hear sweet Romany again. But these make-believe gypsies knew no sweet Romany. These singers and dancers were not her own and she hated them and treated them like dogs under her feet.

Of the entire setting only the little bear seemed good to her. She made friends with him and he would sit up and beg when she came on the stage. She thought of Honey and Yoda and for the moment she was lonesome but she did not have time to be lonesome long.

When she was through with rehearsals she was taken to the studio for her dancing lessons. Her body was as supple as a green reed, but she chafed under the discipline of doing what another said. She hated the slowness with which the teacher worked and the constant repetition of an exercise. This learning of the technique—bah, what was the use of it anyway? How difficult it was for her to make her feet obey him and not go dancing off in her own fashion.

But even as through the years she had held to the ideal of dancing before the world, so now she set for herself this task of learning to dance the way L'Ville did. She went to it with grim vigor as if it were a thing to be accomplished in a week. She worked until her body ached and her muscles cried out at the injustice and the teacher was the one who had to say: "This is enough for now. Go home and rest."

Going back to the hotel she would fall asleep in the taxi, her head against Doug's shoulder.

All of this work and hurry did not seem like a gypsy, and indeed the girl had changed so in this short time that one of her own people would hardly have recognized her. She was like a wild flower that had been transplanted and the change of soil and surroundings had given it new life and it had blossomed into new rare beauty. But it was only the blossom that had changed and not the heart of the flower, for through it flowed the wild life that had been its own and would always be its own and it would deceive only the one who looked with his eyes and saw no deeper.

Market and Mining News

GOLDS STRONG AT TORONTO

Silvers and the Base Metals Lose Ground

TORONTO, April 16 (CP)—Golds were up and the silvers and base metals down in the mining market of the Toronto exchange. Lower metal prices in London and profit-taking worked for the decline. Volume was unchanged.

Silver stocks weakened, depressed by a drop of a cent in bar metal. Eldorado eased 9 cents, Nipissing 10, Castle and Bear 3 each, Peterson-Cobalt ⅝, Cobalt Contact ½ and White Eagle ¼.

Pend Oreille on a report the mine would reopen shortly advanced 8 cents net to 70. Base Metals corporation at 65 dropped 5 cents, Noranda 60 and Hudson Bay 55.

Bralorne alone of the big golds traded in normal volume, registering another narrow advance. Pioneer, Wright Hargreaves and Teck Hughes had small gains at the close and Dome weakened 50 cents. Soft spots in the secondary gold group were Little Long Lac, McWatters, God's Lake and Pickle Crow while closing prices were higher for Sylvanite, Bradian and Kirkland Lake.

WINNIPEG UP

WINNIPEG, April 16 (CP).—Winnipeg traders took their cue from Chicago today, and wheat prices on the grain exchange closed with net gains of ½ to ⅝ cent, May at 89¾ and July 90½ to 90⅝ cents.

The local advance was more subdued than in the American market, where values were 2⅝ cents higher. Exports totalled 250,000 bushels.

J. G. S. Broomhall, noted English grain statistician, commented today: "The preferential tariff in England and colonial grain is now being felt. With the small Argentine crop restricting offers, prices have advanced.  If France, Sweden and Black sea shipments continue to decrease, it may happen importers will be forced to pay the high price asked by Canada."

Cash and coarse grains continued uninteresting.

What price SPACE MR. ADVERTISER?

Space in a daily newspaper possesses a power that is lacking in the lineage of other advertising media.

It is not only more economical . . . which is a matter of easy computation . . . it is not only more flexible, it is not only more timely and rapid, but also it is the advertiser's unfailing point of contact with the mass market and every spot market of the Dominion of Canada.

The Daily Newspaper possesses a power by means of which an advertiser, who knows how to use it, can reach and move to action all or any part of the Canadian consuming public.

In this North American continent there was spent during 1934 in the columns of the daily newspapers more than $500,000,000. The strongest of all supplementary media was used to the extent of $114,000,000. Why?

Because for prompt action on sales plans . . . for quick consumer influence at minimum cost . . . for willing co-operation from the retail trade, the daily newspaper is today, as it always has been, the outstanding and most economical basic advertising medium.

picture of just what procedure would be followed here, French Foreign Minister Pierre Laval submitted a draft resolution on behalf of the governments of Great Britain, France and Italy, and on his own behalf backed it up with a strongly-worded denunciation of German rearmament and the abrupt repudiation of treaty obligations by her military decree of March 16.

Great Britain and Italy supported the French spokesman in no uncertain terms, but Foreign Minister Joseph Beck of Poland promptly challenged the draft's proposed strengthening of the league covenant, and with a scarcely-veiled reference to the Franco-Russian accord said Poland wondered whether certain suggested agreements were not calculated to prejudice, rather than foster, the peace of eastern Europe.

Czechoslovakia was warmly behind the united three-power stand, but Denmark wanted time to consult the home government. Salvador de Maciaga of Spain obtained from the chairman assurance that the draft might be amended after discussion, and thereupon the council adjourned until tomorrow to continue the debate.

The draft resolution was couched in such vigorous terms in its expressions that Germany had failed to keep her obligations, and in denouncing unilateral repudiation of treaties generally, as to bring immediately from Berlin semi-official word that if it is approved as it stands the league statesmen might as well abandon entirely efforts to get Germany back into the league.

the efforts of provincial, municipal and other public authorities and private agencies in relation thereto.

The commitee made a digest of evidence adduced before it and arrived at a number of conclusions. These indicated that housing was primarily a direct responsibility of the individual cooperating with the local municipality. A national emergency cooperating with the local municipality. A national emergency would soon develop unless the building of dwelling houses be greatly increased, it found.

There was no apparent prospect of the low rental housing need being met through unaided enterprise, building for profit. It was apparent to the committee that any program designed to eliminate entirely the Canadian housing porblem would require years of intensive effort. Initiation in such an effort was, however, necessary.

The evidence disclosed immediate building of not less than 25,000 houses was imperative.

MORE ABOUT HONOLULU HOP

Among the 4500 spectators was Sullivan's young son and Mrs. Harry R. Canaday, wife of the craft's junior flight officer.

"I think Daddy made the best takeoff I ever saw," young Sullivan exclaimed happily.

MAKE GOOD SPEED

Clipper nevertheless forced a dozen accompanying planes to race in keeping up with it as it passed over San Francisco and out the Golden Gate.

"The fliers will have very good weather for the next 24 to 36 hours," said Maj. Edward H. Bowie, United States weather forecaster at San Francisco.

With a cruising speed of between 150 and 160 miles an hour, the plane was expected to reach Honolulu in between 16 and 18 hours.

A new radio compass, developed after tests by Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, will guide the plane on its long flight.

Emergency rations also were carried, although the crew didn't figure on needing them. They included canned pork and beans, mock turtle and pea soup, veal, green peas and mashed potatoes, bread, tea, coffee and orange juice.

RADIO KEEPS CONTACT

Radio stations at Alameda and Keneohe Bay, Hawaii, began sending their directional signals to guide the pioneering plane.

Musick's crew includes R. O. D. Sullivan, second in command; Victor A. Wright, engineering officer; Fred J. Noonan, navigation officer; Harry R. Canaday, junior flight officer, and W. Turner Jarboe Jr., radio officer.

Musick, born at St. Louis, Mo., in 1894, has spent 22 years in commercial aviation and is America's first international air mail pilot. He has never had a serious accident despite the fact he has flown 10,000 hours. He has piloted aircraft more than 1,000,000 miles, equivalent to 40 times around the earth.
