O'BRIAN SETS FLIGHT RECORD FOR DOMINION

Does Toronto to Edmonton in 19 Hours 25 Minutes Flying Time

ONLY STOP AT REGINA, REFUEL

Strong Tail Wind Aids in Latter Part of Dash; in Puss Moth

EDMONTON, May 29 (CP).—Establishing a record for a flight from Toronto to Edmonton, Major Geoffrey O'Brian, noted Canadian pilot, arrived here at noon today after a hop from Minot, N. D., with a refueling stop at Regina, Sask.

Major O'Brian, flying a Puss Moth, completed the 2120-mile journey from the queen city of Ontario to the Alberta capital in 19 hours and 25 minutes flying time.

A strong tail wind on the flight from Minot to Edmonton aided O'Brian's plane on the last dash to set the new flying mark in the Dominion.

DELIVER PLANE

O'Brian, test pilot for the De Havilland Canadian company, is spending tonight here, and plans to take off from the local airport tomorrow and fly via Calgary to Milk River, Alta., to deliver the plane to George W. Ross, famed flying rancher of the southern Alberta foothills. It is expected he will fly direct from Edmonton to Milk River without stopping at Calgary. The flight will be around 325 miles.

Sweeping from the Toronto airport Saturday, O'Brian swung into the United States, travelled via Detroit, Mich., Chicago, Ill., St. Paul, Minn., Fargo and Minot, in North Dakota, and then crossed into Canadian territory to Regina, and on to Edmonton. A non-stop flight was impossible ber use of having to clear customs when making the Canadian-United States border crossing.

AMPHIBIAN PLANE CROSSES ROCKIES FROM LETHBRIDGE

Pilot and Passengers Are Guests in Short Stay at Grand Forks

VANCOUVER, May 29 (CP)—The first amphibian plane to fly over the Rockies from Lethbridge to Vancouver, the Canadian Airways amphibian biplane piloted by N. G. Forester arrived here at 4:40 p.m., yesterday. Leaving Lethbridge at 8:15 a.m., the plane stopped at Grand Forks for refueling and lunch and took off from there for the coast at 1:25 p.m. The run across the coast range was uneventful with the exception of some bumpy spots encountered crossing the Coquihalla.

Two passengers accompanied the pilot, Mrs. Forester and John White of Winnipeg.

GUESTS AT GRAND FORKS

GRAND FORKS, B. C., May 29—The Canadian Airways amphibian plane flying from Lethbridge to Vancouver and piloted by N. G. Forester, arrived here Saturday morning at 10:15 and before leaving at 1:30 took on 60 gallons of gas. While here the pilot and passengers were guests of Mayor T. A. Love and the board of trade at luncheon.

To the many onlookers, a good idea of how long a runway is needed to accommodate the large transcontinental planes was demonstrated when the plane took practically the entire length of the airport field to take off.

OVER HUNDRED MORE NUDISTS TAKEN TO JAIL

117 Men, Women and Children Arrested for Nude Demonstrations

On Saturday night the Nelson provincial jail, which had been crowded with arrested or convicted Doukhobors, became somewhat vacated after 197 men and women left the city in three special coaches, bound for the coast. But the jail was not nearly empty for long, for Sunday afternoon four truckloads of members of the Sons of Freedom sect arrived at the jail yard. When signed for and counted upon entrance, there were 117 new jail inmates. They will come up for trial probably on Thursday, and the charge will be for "appearing in the nude in the public gaze."

This new batch of lawbreakers came from Thrums, where the nudists started defying the law early Sunday morning. Provincial police were on the scene at 10 o'clock, and late in the afternoon truckloads were brought to the city. Of the 117 Doukhobors admitted, 40 are men, 31 women, and the balance, 46, children.

As in previous Sunday demonstrations at Thrums, there was no trouble experienced by police officers. The Doukhobors pulled off their clothing as the police arrived, and then, taking their clothing, piled aboard the trucks and dressed.

Among the Sunday arrests were a large number of young girls who have been frequenting the vicinity of the jail for a number of days. The woman known as "Bottle-nose," a ringleader of the feminist fanatics, was among those jailed. Provincial police took all who stripped, and would have taken more had they presented themselves.

Whether today's wholesale arrests will clean up the fanatical situation is a problem that has not been solved. Including arrest made on Sunday, there have been 862 taken to the Nelson provincial jail since the nudists started their weekly demonstrations.

SEVEN DROWN IN ACCIDENTS OVER WEEKEND

Squall on Lac St. Anne Overturns Boat, Taking Three Victims

TWO ARE LOST IN WEEKS' LAKE

Overturned Dory Leads to Finding of Double Fatality in Nova Scotia

EDMONTON, May 29 (CP).—Victims of a boating accident during a squall on Lac St. Anne, three men lost their lives at Alberta Beach, 50 miles west of here, at noon today. Another was rescued as his grip on the upturned boat was slipping.

The dead:

Sidney Fowler, 23, student at the University of Alberta, Edmonton.

George Latham, school board engineer, Edmonton.

Oscar Meurin, storekeeper, Alberta Beach.

The rescued:

Russell Tyrrell, Alberta Beach.

Daring the wind-swept waters of icy Lac St. Anne, the four men started from Alberta Beach at 11 o'clock this morning for a jaunt in a sailboat. Caught in the squall, the boat overturned.

SEE WRECKED BOAT

Two hours later Alex Mays, foreman in the employ of the Canadian National railways at Alberta Beach, his son and a companion saw the wrecked boat two miles off shore and could see someone clinging to it. Putting out in a small craft, they reached the upturned boat just in time to rescue Tyrrell, who was numbed by the cold and almost unconscious.

Search parties were organized, and grappling, under the direction of Royal Canadian Mounted police, was started, to locate the bodies of Latham, Meurin and Fowler. A search party scouring the beach found Fowler on Rocky island, half a mile from the wreck. A doctor was rushed to the island, but Fowler succumbed within an hour after being found.

The bodies of Latham and Meurin are still missing, but, certain that they drowned in the cold water, police are continuing grappling at the scene of the accident.

TWO DROWN IN WEEKS' LAKE

VICTORIA, B. C., May 29.—Alfred Haynes, Saanich, and John a Fearkins, Victoria, were drowned this morning while fishing in Weeks' lake, six miles from Duncan, north of here. The bodies were recovered in the afternoon.

Police had but meagre details of the double tragedy up to a late hour tonight, but it was known that three men were in a boat, fishing. The third man, whose name was unknown, either swam ashore or was rescued.

Circus Wire-Slider Falls Fifty Feet to Ground Below

PHILADELPHIA, May 29—Horrified circus-goers saw Julio Olvera, 26-year-old New York performer, whose speciality is sliding on his head down a 100-foot wire stretched at an angle of 45 degrees, pitch half the distance to the sawdust last night.

Climbing to the platform high above the rings, he waved gaily to the gaping throngs and started on his bullet-like descent.

About half the way down, something happened and he slipped off the wire, hurtled through the air and landed on the back of his neck.

At a hospital, physicians said his condition was serious.

HOOVER GIVES HEARING TO THREE KIDDIES

Promised Carefull Consideration; Father Released on Bond

WASHINGTON, May 29—A plea from three children for their father's freedom was so appealing that President Hoover promised to consider carefully the case of an obscure prisoner in a Detroit jail.

Busy with many things, President Hoover laid them aside yesterday to listen as blue-eyed Bernice Feagan, 13, told him with convincing fervor that her father, Charles R. Feagan is innocent and should be released.

From Detroit, meanwhile, came word that upon instructions from the department of justice, Gregory H. Frederick, district attorney, had obtained the release of Feagan on his personal bond.

Frederick explained that Attorney-General Mitchell's office would make a further investigation of the charges which placed the man in jail.

Feagan is charged with unlawfully transporting an automobile from St. Joseph, Mo., to Detroit.

IS RELEASED

DETROIT, Mich., May 29—Shortly after three of seven children had made a personal appeal to President Hoover in his behalf, Charles R. Feagan, held in the county jail here, was released on his personal bond pending further investigation of a charge of unlawfully driving an automobile from Missouri to Michigan.

Feagan's release was granted by J. Stanley Hurd, United States commissioner, upon the request of Gregory H. Frederick, district attorney, on telegraphed instructions from the attorney-general at Washington.

Three Special Coaches Carry Party of Men, Women and Children

Saturday night saw a further party of 199 Doukhobor prisoners, the adults of whom will serve three years for nudity, shipped to the provincial jail at Oakalla, under the charge of guards and matrons as usual.

There were three special coaches, one containing 133 men, another, 50 women, and the third, 16 children. The usual number of Doukhobor sympathizers were at the station to see their friends and relatives depart, and as usual the inmates of the cars sang hymns in the Russian language.

No special incident marked the departure.

Those in charge of the party of prisoners were Constable M. Locke, Special Constables J. Lindemere and James Dee, along with Mrs. James Hawkins.

World Trade Meet to Displace Lausanne Is Thought of MacDonald

LONDON, May 30 (AP).—A plea for converting the Lausanne reparations conference next month into a conference on world trade was made today by Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald in an interview with the political specialist of the Daily Mail, who visited him at Lossiemouth, Scotland.

If the suggestion gains support, it may, the newspaper said, completely alter the complexion of the conference and cause the United States to be more than an observer.

70 LONG-TERM PRISONERS ESCAPE FROM FORT OMOA

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, May 29 (AP).—More than 70 long term prisoners escaped from the old colonial prison at Fort Omoa after a mutiny in which they battled the authorities for several hours today.

Death of King Carol Hinted by Mystery Parable Writer

Threatened?

KING CAROL OF ROUMANIA

Veiled Warnings Include Exiled Companion, Magda Lupescu

VIENNA, May 29 (AP).—A mysterious parable writer who signs himself "" and is believed by many to be General Alexander Averescue, leader of the Roumanian People's party, caused excitement in Bucharest today with veiled warnings of death for King Carol of Roumania and his friend, Mme. Magda Lupescu.

Months ago he hinted strongly at dethronement of the Roumanian king, but recently his writings have taken a more sombre turn. A week ago he alluded to the death of the French king, Henry II., in terms leaving no doubt that he was worning King Carol.

The cafes buzzed today over his latest "history parable" in the People's party organ, "Indreptarea," which again plays with the death theme in what some readers interpret as an attack on Mme. Lupescu, red-haired companion of Carol's Paris exile before he became king.

MADAME DU BARRY THEME

In this sensational parable, the text of which has appeared in Vienna, "" took as his theme Madame Du Barry and her influence over Louis XV.

It was out of the corruption of Louis' court that grew the French revolution, the mysterious writer said, "and only slaves and lackeys could glorify kings like Louis XV. today."

The death note was particularly pronounced in view of a story persistently circulated in Bucharest to the effect that a soothsayer years ago foretold that an attempt would be made to assassinate King Carol not long after fire destroyed one of his residences. The royal chateau recently burned down at Sinaia. Many are inclined to doubt that such a prediction was ever made, believing the story is just another attempt to warn or intimidate King Carol.

FLYING BLADES HYDROPLANE KILL TWO

"I'll take a chance," Says Victim; Contraption Lurches Forward

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., May 29—A home-made hydroplane killed two this afternoon as crowds lined the shores of Bright lake, 12 miles south of Shellbrook, to watch the queer, flat-bottomed contraption perform. Walter Middleton, 50, Shellbrook builder, were hurled through the propeller blades of the plane, when the machine lurched forward during a spin over the lake. They received head injuries which brought instant death.

Oswald Tweed, also of Shellbrook, builder of the craft, was the other passenger. He was thrown clear of the whirling blades and fell into the lake. He swam ashore uninjured. It is not believed an inquest will be held.

The machine had only been completed Saturday and had made one successful trip this morning. Prosser had taken his wife and 10-year-old boy to the lake for an outing and was in his bathing suit when Tweed shouted for volunteers from the crowd of merry-makers. Prosser strode forward to his death exclaiming, "I'll take a chance."

SOVIET TROOPS SALUTE ROYAL VISITOR, MOSCOW

MOSCOW, May 29.—The troops of Soviet Russia drew up to rigid salute to a royal visitor today, the second such personage to pay a state visit to the stronghold of Communism since the czar was overthrown 14 years ago.

The visitor was the Emir Feisal, viceroy of Hedjaz, and son of the all-powerful Ibn Sajud of Arabia.

Wearing native costume, a flowing gold-braided tan robe, the prince and his party were greeted by two vice-commissars of foreign affairs, L. M. Karakhan and N. N. Krestinsky. As the prince passed the saluting troops, nearby bands struck up the Hedjaz national anthem, and played it and the Internationale alternately.

COINCIDES WITH STORY ARGUED BY PROPHET

LAST THREE OF NINE, REMANDED TRIAL, BLAIRMORE

Charges With Assault; Strike Continue at Blairmore and Bellevue

BLAIRMORE, Alta., May 29 (CP).—Last of nine persons to be charged as a result of disturbances arising out of strikes of coal miners in the Crowsnest pass, three men were remanded for trial here yesterday. They were Pete Popenuik, Jack Nakoff and Carl Belik, charged with assault.

Charges against the trio were made following a fight in the Coleman Opera house which broke up a meeting of miners when a separate union was formed and a bolt made from the ranks of the Mine Workers' Union of Canada, 10 days ago.

The six others, all charged with unlawful assembly after fights between strikers, police and strike-breakers at the West Canadian Collieries Limited property at Bellevue May 4 and 5, are Harvey Murphy, Alex Redzko, Nick Ukiervich, Gaston Bazille, Mrs. Polski and Mrs. Stelamovitch. Along with the three remanded for trial yesterday, they are awaiting jury sittings at Macleod, although they may elect speedy trial before a district court judge.

With the strike as it affects miners at Coleman concluded, work there continued peacefully yesterday, although 600 miners are still on strike at Blairmore and Bellevue in protest against working conditions and distribution of work.

Sea Accident Could Have Been Avoided Declares Captain

BOSTON, May 29—Captain H. E. Callis of the steamer Grecian, which sank Friday off Block island with the loss of four lives after colliding with the steamship City of Chattanooga, said today if the Chattanooga captain had turned his wheel to port the accident might have been avoided.

Officers of the Grecian testified at a hearing before the United States inspectors of steam vessels. The Chattanooga sailed last night and her officers will testify on return to this port in 10 days.

WILL REFUEL IN AIR AND MAKE A SECOND ATTEMPT

Narrowly Escapes Death in Take-Off; Had to Drop Fuel to Gain Altitude; Brace Wires Broken on Tree Tops

SEATTLE, May 29.—Nathan C. Browne, New York flier, was forced back on an attempted non-stop flight from Seattle to Tokyo today by the rupture of an oil line in his monoplane the Lone Star.

Narrowly escaping death in the take-off from Boeing field, blinded temporarily by hot oil and forced to drop some of his precious fuel supply to gain altitude, Browne returned to the field after several hours in the air and immediately made plans for another flight attempt tomorrow.

While half a dozen mechanics tore into his plane to determine what caused the oil line to break and to repair a stabilizer brace wire, Browne sought attention for his oil-scalded eyes.

TREE TOPS BREAK WIRE

The brace wire was broken when Browne's plane skimmed through tree tops after his breath-taking dash down the runway.

Browne expressed the belief the rudder would have fallen off before he reached Tokyo, but he pushed gamely on until the oil line broke. He was gone about seven hours and a half and had reached the north tip of Vancouver island.

Browne plans to refuel in mid-air over the field here tomorrow. A parachute jumper, William Brooks, offered to handle the refueling hose and then drop off when Browne has enough gasoline for the Tokyo flight.

WILL DROP LANDING GEAR

The detachable landing gear on the plane was intact when Browne returned from his ill-fated hop today, but he plans to drop it tomorrow before his mid-air refueling attempt in order to lighten his plane. An auxiliary landing gear inside the fuselage would be used by Browne for Landing in Tokyo or en route.

Browne said he would have to be on his way by 5 a. m. (Pacific standard time) tomorrow if he is to have a chance to win the $30,000 prize fund offered by Seattle business men, which returns to its donors if unclaimed before midnight of June 1.

DROPPED 20 GALLONS

The flyer said he dropped more than 20 gallons of gasoline as he left to enable the plane to clear brush, trees and wires.

When the oil line broke and sprayed the hot lubricant over him, he said he almost cracked up, as he was flying low. He said he climbed blindly as he wiped his goggles, but was not able to see very well, as some of the oil had sprayed into his eyes.

To make speed back to Seattle, he emptied the main fuel tank of about 500 gallons of gasoline.

DOUKHOBORS ASK RELEASE OF PRISONERS

Forward Resolution to Bennett From Kamsack

KAMSACK, Sask., May 29.—On a farm near here today, on which the green fields and the vari-colored shawls of the women contrasted sharply with the bright scarlet of Mounted policemen, hundreds of Doukhobors, mostly Independents, and none apparently members of the Sons of Freedom, drafted a resolution demanding immediate release of all Doukhobors imprisoned at present in British Columbia. The wire was dispatched to Premier R. B. Bennett at Ottawa.

Threats of a demonstration if the demand is not met were heard on all sides, but the nature of it was closely guarded. There had been rumors of a nude parade today at Verigin, where this meeting was originally scheduled to be held, but this did not materialize.

It is believed the Doukhobors will take no action until the hearing of the appeal against the three years imposed upon Peter Verigin, Doukhobor leader, has been heard in Regina on June 4.

Doukhobors gathered here from all directions, coming by truck, wagon and autos, numbers making the journey from Benito, Man.

No trouble occurred this afternoon as police kept close watch of all proceedings.

"MYSTERY FLYER" AND BROMLEY ARE READY FOR HOPS

Ships Poised at Bennett Field; Former Replaces Artificial "Horizon"

NEW YORK, May 29—Two flyers, their eyes cast toward destinations nearly 7000 miles distant, tuned up their monoplanes today in preparation for flights which will take one east across the Atlantic and other west to Los Angeles.

Stanislaux Felix Hausner, 32, dubbed the "Mystery Flyer" because of his reticence to discuss his plans, placed an order for an artificial "horizon" to replace the one that ceased functioning when he was 300 miles on his way toward "London or Paris and Warsaw" last night.

Harold Bromley, also 32, the Dallas, Texas, flyer who once got well on the way from Samushiro beach, Japan, on a non-stop flight attempt only to be similarly forced back, set 4 a.m. tomorrow morning as the "zero hour" for his contemplated non-stop flight to Los Angeles.

Both had their ships poised at Floyd Bennett field.

Bromley said he would end his flight to the coast at Burbank.

Hausner, meanwhile, said he expected to install his new horizon and complete the minor necessary repairs in time to take off Tuesday.

Meanwhile, at the field, Wiley Post, around-the-world flier, confirmed reports the and Clyde Pangborn, who flew non-stop from Tokyo to Wenatchee, Wash., were planning a flight together. "There's nothing definite as yet," he said, "but we'll dope out something between us."

Police Headquarters Moved From Lindbergh Estate to Wilburtha

HOPEWELL, N. J., May 25—The rough-hewn tables, the hastily placed cots, the bulky files and the emergency communication system—police headquarters for 90 days—were borne from the Lindbergh estate today and the widefling search for the murderers of the flier's baby given a new base of operations.

The destination of much of the equipment was the state police training school at Wilburtha, not far from Trenton.

Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh escaped the moving scene for they now are staying at the Dwight Marrow estate in Englewood.

Flapper Flyer" Is First Woman to Cross Australian Continent

MELBOURNE, Australia, May 29 (AP).—Irene Dean-Williams, "flapper flyer," has reached here from Perth (western Australia), thus becoming the first woman to pilot an airplane across the Australian continent.

Part of the flight was across the Central Australian desert, the "graveyard" of many flyers, where the air is often so hot and devoid of moisture that it blisters the mouth and nostrils.

NELSON BEATS FORKS, 14-7, IN HOME BALL TILT

Huge Crowd of Fans Witness Baseball Event

MAYOR MORGAN DOES THE HONORS

Young Bloods for Boundary Capital Put Up Wonderful Game

With almost ideal baseball weather, perhaps the largest gathering of baseball fans who have witnessed any game at Nelson for some years were on hand at the Recreation grounds Sunday afternoon when Nelson whipped the Grand Forks Ball club, 14-7 in the first Nelson home game of the Kootenay Baseball league. Taking the lead in the first of the fourth inning, the Forks boys threatened Nelson with defeat, the score standing 6-3, until the Nelson squad buckled down to hold the team from the Boundary capital scoreless in the first of the fifth and then netted three to even the score to six-all. From the end of the fifth inning until the end of the game, Grand Forks only got one run while the Nelson squad crossed the plate eight times in their last three times to bat.

MAYOR THROWS FIRST BALL

With Mayor J. P. Morgan in the pitchers box and Alderman R. W. Dawson on the receiving end, the game got away to a flying start. Mayor Morgan twirled a hot one across the plate and Alderman Dawson scooped it out of the air and steamed it back to the mayor who declined the invitation to get behind the throw.

Nelson's battery composed of Allison and Richardson worked well together turning in a wonderful game although for a while in the fourth Allison looked like he was going to blow up—when lack of support seemed to worry him a lot. He finally pulled out of the slump with the rest of the team and got nine trikeouts altogether.

The Boundary capitals combination "Corky" O'Keefe twirling and Walter Ronald on the home sack, gave a brilliant exhibition of teamwork until O'Keefe's arm failed him in the sixth and he was forced to retire in favor of Savage, Forks right fielder. O'Keefe took the right field position. Savage was pulled in the eighth and was replaced by N. Cooper.

REV. W. J. CRICK SAYS FAREWELL TO REDEEMER CHURCH

Vicar Also Refers to Canadian Legion and to Toc H Group

LEGION AND BAND PARADE TO SERVICE

In Parting Counsel He Urges Church to Be of Good Cheer, Go Forward

Attendance of a large contingent from Nelson branch of the Canadian Legion Bugle band, which formally paraded to the church, featured the farewell service of Rev. W. J. Crick as vicar of the Church of the Redeemer, Fairview, Sunday evening, the church being filled with the congregation, the Legion party, and friends from other churches. Taxed with the number of functions he had recently attended, the vicar had a husky voice and spoke with difficulty, confining his audible part in the service to his sermon.

Stating he was honored by the attendance of the Legion, of which he was chaplain, Mr. Crick noted he had come to his last Sunday with his congregation and his last sermon in the Church of the Redeemer—last so far as present knowledge went. Life, he said, was like a vast ocean, on which ships met and passed, the kindly twinkle of their lights being soon only memories. The greatest thing in life was the friendships one made, and he was happy to recall the many fine friendships he had won here.

THREE YEARS OF COOPERATION

For over three years of the life of the Church of the Redeemer, he and the congregation had wrought together. It had not always been easy going, but out of the stress and struggle strong friendships had been formed. While skippers were to be changed, the ideals under which they had worked together would persevere, and the work of the church would go on. All good work lived, and he hoped that some of the things he had accomplished or attempted would have that quality of durability. The Church of the Redeemer would go forward with more vigor, and his friends would best show their friendship for him by faithfully applying themselves to the work of the church .The departing vicar said he liked to think that something concrete would be left in the church as the result of the bonds of friendship formed during the three years of his service.

Expressing fear that his farewell sermon would not amount to much, Mr. Crick pointed out that one did best the things he liked best to do, and there was nothing he liked less than making this farewell discourse. "It may be that I will be gone only for a season—God alone knows," he remarked. He had been seven years in Canada, and though he did not take so kindly to Canada at first, he was soon absolutely in love with it, and might find himself later drawn back to this wonderful Dominion.

SAYS FAREWELLS

"And so to my church I say farewell, and most especially the younger members whom I hate so to leave," he said.

"Farewell also to the Canadian Legion, of which I am chaplain and will be to the hour of my departure. From the time of my membership in the similar organization at Johannesburg, I have always been associated, wherever I have been, with the work of the exservicemen. Goodbye, boys.

"And farewell also to Toc H, which has done much quiet but valuable service in Nelson. You still have a great work to do.

"Farewell, good luck, and God bless you all."

PAUL'S FAREWELL

At this point the vicar turned to his sermon, taking as his text Paul's parting counsel to the Corinthians. "Finally, my farewell. Be perfect, be of good comfort, be of one mind, live in peace, and the God of love and peace shall be with you."

While Paul's admonition to "be perfect" was a counsel of perfection, and those who thought they had attained perfection were usually the least perfect, the vicar pointed out that nevertheless the follower of Christ must aim at Christ's perfection, for that aiming was the very essence of life.

On the point regarding being of good comfort, or of good cheer, he said this was clearly applicable today, when there was a terrible uncertainty in the things of life, and world conditions as they existed were wholly unnecessary, since there was enough of every commodity if properly distributed. The position of the world he said went to a deeper cause than stock market fluctuations and changes in the monetary basis—to the fact that the things of Christ and the golden rule had been forgotten, which brought about the impasse in world affairs. In this crisis the followers of Christ could remember that there was no real reason to fear, that there was a mighty power that could be invoked for the world's setting at right. When these disruptions came about, Christians could lift up their heads, for the world's redemption was nigh.

BY CHRIST'S POWER

Grouping together the other admonitions of the apostle, he pointed out that all that "this little church" had achieved had been by work and sacrifice, and urged his hearers to "love her," adding that people valued most what they worked for. This principle could be followed all through, he said. The life of Christ was the greatest unifying force in the world today, and when all the world tried to live that life, there would be no more world crises. All things could be done through Christ. This little church, he declared, could radiate its influence to every corner of the community, and every member could lead his brother on to the city of God.

"The God of Peace be with you," was his concluding remark.

PRESENTATION IS MADE TO REV. MR. CRICK, SO. SLOCAN

Woman's Auxiliary Bonnington, South Slocan, Hostesses

SOUTH SLOCAN, B. C., May 29—The Woman's auxiliary of Bonnington and South Slocan were hostesses at a delightfully arranged reception in the hall on Wednesday evening in honor of the Rev. W. J. Crick prior to his departure for England.

The hall was artistically decorated for the occasion with quantities of spring blossoms, the stage being arranged as a drawing room, with Japanese lanterns giving a pretty lighting effect to the whole.

In the first place the guests enjoyed several sets of bridge. A most entertaining program of music, recitations and song followed, to which the Junior W. A. contributed with Miss Thelma Bird playing a pianoforte selection for the opening number and a chorus by the whole class was given in splendid style. Mrs. Ernest Marsden gave two charming numbers, "Fairing" and "Coming Home" and responded to encores with "May Morning" and "Here in the Quiet Hills." Mrs. Turner Lee, who recited Kipling's "The Glory of the Garden" prefaced it with the remark "that as Mr. Crick was going to England she had chosen this." G. Noel Brown rendered two delightful pianoforte selections. Prelue in C Minor by Pachulski and Mrs. Ashby, who played the accompaniments, recited a most humorous piece, "With the Photographer," by Stephen Leacock and for an encore gave a parody called "The Charge of the Mad Brigade."

Major Turner Lee, who was chairman for the evening, contributed the song "Cross the Cabril River" and responded to an encore with "The Trumpeter." A very interesting feature followed when Mrs. John Murray, president of the South Slocan W. A., made a presentation to Mr. Crick of a purse from the residents of the parish. Little Miss Barbara Bird for the junior W. A. presented a set of cuff links and Miss Rita Jones on behalf of the St. Matthew's church Sunday school a fountain pen.

The guests rose spontaneously singing "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow" with three cheers and a tiger.

Mr. Crick responded in a very appreciative manner, thanking all for the very pleasant evening and the various organizations for their help, the senior and junior Woman's auxiliaries, the church committee and the Sunday school, especially mentioning the latter as being the most important work of the church, thanking Miss Bradshaw the superintendent, and her helpers and trusting that it would be carried on without a break, teaching the faith of our forefathers, and emphasized the need of religion for our boys and girls.

Mr. Crick thanked the chairman and expressed his enjoyment of the program speaking of his leaving the district he profoundly regretted his break with Canada but as duty called him home and as he had never settled in the old country since the war he felt that he must try and get accustomed to it but was sure that sometime he would return to Canada.

Refreshments were served and a social time of chat enjoyed the guest autographing a souvenir book for Mr. Crick.

Among those attending were Rev. W. J. Crick, Mr. and Mrs. Collingwood Gray, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. McCabe, Mr. and Mrs. G. N. Brown, Mrs D M. Baddeley, Mrs D. J. Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Turner Lee, Mrs. W. J. Tindale, Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Hardin, Colonel and Mrs John Murray, Mrs. O. W. Humphry, Miss Myra Humphry, Mr and Mrs. T. A. Whelidon, Mrs. F. H. Russel, Mrs. W. C. Motley, Mrs. C. G. JAMES BRODIE IS NEW PRESIDENT

Young Vice-President and Horstead Secretary; Ladies Ready

At the largely attended annual meeting of the Nelson Conservative association held Friday night in the Canadian Legion hall, it was decided to write to the Creston Riding Conservative association, respecting formulation of plans for the formation of a general association for the combined ridings, which at the next provincial election will have but one member at Victoria.

NEW OFFICERS

President G. H. Ferguson refused a third term of office, and was succeeded by Vice-president James Brodie, who was elected president. Other officers elected were J. A. Young, vice-president, and George Horstead, secretary-treasurer. Premier Bennett was reelected honorary president, and Premier Tolmie, W. K. Esling, M.P., and Dr. L. E. Borden, M.P.P., were reelected honorary vice-presidents. The office of honorary secretary-treasurer was created, and W. Douche, for many years the association's secretary-treasurer, was elected to it. All the elections were unanimous.

Choice of the executive was delegated to a committee, composed of J. E. Annable, J. A. Irving, and C. B. Garland, appointed by President Brodie.

DR. BORDEN SPEAKS

Dr. L. E. Borden, M.P.P., in a short address reviewed the recent session of the house, dealing with financial matters, the Kidd conference, unemployment relief, and redistribution.

A suggestion was made that Premier Tolmie, now at Ottawa, should be invited to return by way of Nelson and deliver a political address here, and Dr. Borden was asked to get in touch with the premier on this matter.

Mrs. C. I. Archibald, president of the Nelson Women's Conservative association, reported that the association was ready for active duty at any time, and that it had nominated its quota for the general executive.

Letters of condolence respecting the death of E. G. Matthew were ordered to be sent to Mrs. G. B. Matthew, his mother, and Mrs. E. G. Matthew, his wife.

A vote of thanks was extended to the retiring officers.

EXECUTIVE CHOSEN

After the general meeting the special committee met, and selected the men to serve on the executive. Those chosen were Walter Davies, W. A. Jones, Larry Houston, J. E. Annable, C. F. McHardy, Alderman J. B. Gray, W. M. Myers, H. W. Robertson, T. W. Ledingham, L. K. Larsen, J. R. Fleming, I. G. Nelson, A. T. Horswill, G. H. Ferguson, J. A. Irving, George Ferguson, J. A. MASONS OF NELSON SEE CORNER-STONE LAYING AT BORDER

Approximately 40 Nelson Masons drove out to Nelway on the Nelson-Spokane highway, Saturday to attend the ceremony of laying the corner-stone of the new $60,000 United States customs and immigration building, on the American side of the line which took place at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

The ceremony was conducted by R. C. McCroskey of Spokane, past grand master for the state of Washington, assisted by Arthur W. Davis, Roy Atkinson, and V. H. Brighton, as grand senior and junior wardens and grand deacon. Fred L. Irwin of Nelson, past master of the Nelson lodge, and Arthur J. Barker of Spokane made the addresses.

Preceding the ceremony, the grand lodge of Washington convened at Newport, later reaching Metaline Falls by motor car van, lunch being served at the Washington hotel before the party came on to the boundary. Masons were present from numerous adjacent points in Washington, and on this sid Trail was represented as well as Nelson.

When the new building comes into use and immigration inspection will take place there instead of at Metaline Falls.

Doukhobors Sought Refuge in Canada From Persecution

OTTAWA, May 29 (CP)—The exemption clauses in Canada's Military Service act influenced the Doukhobors in choosing this country, other than the Island of Cyprus as a suitable refuge from further persecution in their native Russia. This morsel of history was related to the Royal society here Saturday in a paper prepared by Rev. Edmund H. Oliver, moderator of the United Church in Canada. The Doukhobors, who sometimes spring into headlines by staging nude parades, decided they would be able to adhere more rigidly to their pacific beliefs in case of war, in Canada than in Cyprus.

The first company of Doukhobors, 2100 strong, landed in Halifax, N. S. in January 23, 1899.

Every boy and girl in Nelson is a potential asset to us all. Right development of this asset implies better schools, wholesome amusement, promising industrial and professional opportunity—environment that recognizes the developing power of youth—and gives it a real chance.

Patronizing out-of-town business houses means sending your money away from home, with the result that your boys and girls are given much less opportunity for success in Nelson when the time comes for them to begin their vocations.

Let's do our part in making Nelson a better place to live and thrive. New Bathing Outfits Take a Short Cut to the Chic

BRIEF VIEW OF BEACH SUITS REVEALS FANCY FABRICS, INDIVIDUAL NECKLINES AND VOGUE FOR WHITE

Roughish Wool of burnt orange tint fashions this swim suit, a Schiaparelli creation.

Here's a bathing costume of a "different" stripe. There's a Parisian inspiration in this Schiaparelli-designed "costume de bain" with its diagonal-cut weave and form-molding cut. Its feature is an inner brassiere of silk which crosses its low shoulder straps in back and emerges as a belt in front. Of white and yellow, it is especially effective in contrast with sun-bronzed skins.

A lady must mind her knitting on the beaches this summer. Chic illustration of the growing vogue for all-white bathing suits is this Schiaparelli hand-knit model, designed especially for wear at American watering places. The suit is trimly tailored and belted and a floppy white sun-hat complements it.

NEW YORK, May 30.—Brevity is the soul of chic—when it comes to what is being worn this year by girls who go down to the sea in ship-shape.

Aside from being very, very short, new bathing suits have flattering streamline cut, sport new necklines front and back, do nice things to a lady's curves, and are made of all kinds of new fabrics and fancy weaves.

The white bathing suit has a place in the sun. Nothing looks nicer with a bronzed skin. Schiaparelli and others have made grand knitted white suits that are tailored and trim and flare a bit in the legs so no skirt is needed to make you feel like a lady.

Most suits have belts. Some have inner brassieres to which bands are fastened that girdle the figure, come through slits at the side and make a belt in front. They are snug, workman-like, fit for real mermaids.

Basket-weave Is Chic

All kinds of new weaves add interest to the bathing suit and make the old-fashioned kind of suit look like underwear alongside the new. Basket-weave knitted weaves are tremendously effective and chic in gay colors such as barbaric reds, continental blues, browns of the Indies and flaming flamingo. They need no contrast, have none, not even fancy belt buckles. Wool terry is a new roughish, ribbed effect weave, fine for tailored versions of nautical attire. There are novelty hand-knit effects with stripes and lacy weaves that are stunning and very, very modern when the stripes are used to advantage in the design of the costume.

Most bathing suits are as near backless as you can get and still keep them on. There is the kerchief front, with just a strap around the neck and a single back strap, a narrow one, anchoring the front to the back waistline so it won't float away during a high dive. There are square necklines, with no back after the collar-line ends. But the preferred back is the one that lets you get all tanned up from the nape of your neck to the waistline so you can wear a low-backed evening gown with assurance that you are all-of-a-color.

And Above All—

That's the low-down on the high-tide bathing suits. What's worn over them when you crawl out of the water to sun on dry sand is something else again.

Slacks are appreciated and approved by many young women. They come now in abbreviated "pirate pants" length, of woven or knitted wool with perled waistline so they fit and cling. In fireman's red or striking marine blue, they look grand over a white bathing suit.

Skirts are among the newest bathing accessories. Made of this new wool terry cloth, they wrap around a wet figure and look swell. They can be thrown over your shoulder for capes, if you don't mind getting your legs tanned.

For Informal Wear

For all-day wear on the beach or about the country where no one sees you in your informal attire, there are cute play suits of cotton, shorts and shorts. Striped, polka dotted, or made of two-toned material, they are easy to wear, easy to look at and comfortable. Berets come to go with them and you can wear sox and sport shoes.

Illustrating the vogue for white bathing suits is one with a hand-knitted effect to its weaves. It is tailored, skirtless and heavy enough to look fine in white. It has a becoming U neckline in front, a backless back, its short legs are flaring slightly and it has a self-belt, with a plain, silver buckle. With it a floppy white beach coat and white strapped beach sandals complete the feeling of a real June day.

Striking in its ruddy, burnt orange coloring is a roughish mesh wool suit—Schiaparelli's caplet swim suit. It has tailored short trunks, a brassiere top in front and two straps to anchor it crossing the shoulder reaching to waistline. It is belted with its own cox-comb material.

Effective on a sun-tanned skin is a light yellow and orange striped suit, made with the stripes emphasizing its sleek cut. It has a brassiere inside its front and from each end of this straps of the material extend to the center, where they come through a slit to girdle the figure for a belt.

The Beauty Box
By Helen Follett

Trying season for feet, this. Traveling over hot pavements, hoisted up on spiked heels, life must seem bitter to them. Comfort the little dogs by bathing at bedtime in water to which baking soda has been added, one tablespoonful to a quart of water. Rinse, dry and massage with lanolin.

Smart coiffures show the devived swirl, the hair at the right side skipping over to the left at the rear of the head, undulations streaking up and down instead of crosswise. Nice, neat and not gaudy.

Be suspicious of old man Sun. His warm rays put you on our toes, but they'll skin your nose and neck and arms, if you don't watch out! The medical profession warns against sunburn and the beauty specialist knows how tough a job it is to remove red-brown stains due to over exposure to Mr. Sun's ardent caresses. Hold him at distance. Take your sunnings in small portions. Anoint the skin surface with a good cream before going out of doors and directly after coming in. The reckoning comes in the red-and-yellow autumn time when mottled skin is reason for tears and lamentations.

When the cuticle around the finger nails clings persistently to the nail base, get some powdered pumice stone and a small bottle of peroxide. Dip the orange wood stick into the peroxide, then into the pumice, forming a scouring agent that will gently lift the cuticle away from its moorings without causing shreds or abrasions. Don't overlook the good results of a nail cream applied at night. Cold cream will do, or olive oil or lanoline.

Do you know that by eating carrots every day for a week you can put a creamy surface on a pale, wan skin? This isn't beauty surmising, but the report of a medical man. One must not overdo the carrot consuming treatment or the complexion will become yellow. Strange indeed are the ways of nature, and wise are the ways of the docs.

Verbena perfume is sweet and refreshing. A simple one can be compounded by mixing together thirty drops of oil of orange, 10 fluid ounces of spirit of lemon, six fluid ounces of spirit of lemon grass. Not a drop of verbena in it, but that means nothing. The effect is that of the fragrance of the little garden bloom.

Secret Places

SYNOPSIS

Feodor Staire, attache of the British embassy in Paris, had been sentenced to be hanged for the murder of the wealthy Comte Henri D'Arblaye, but the sentence was commuted to life imprisonment. Ronald Halkett was Feodor's best friend and Ronald's wife Greta had been suspected. Feodor was engaged to Toni Wareham, Greta's younger sister and daughter of Lady Alice Wareham. Ronald's newspaper work demanded long hours and Greta was much in D'Arblaye's company. Toni asked Feodor to escort Greta home from a ball but she left with D'Arblaye. Staire followed and was outside D'Arblaye's apartment house when Greta came running out, saying she had shot D'Arblaye when he snatched her up and started to carry her into another room. She had left her handbag behind. Feodor sent her home in a taxi, went back, wiped all finger-prints from the pistol, got the bag, but was hailed by the concierge as he was leaving. Staire gave his name. Before his arrest he coached Greta by phone to say she had not entered D'Arblaye's apartment. When the heartbroken Toni returned to Paris from London after Feodor's trial, she consented to pose for a portrait by Paul Ravel, famous artist, to please her worried mother. Gigi, Ravel's model for several noted paintings, almost convinced Ravel of her belief that Greta was the murderer. At a party in his studio, to which Ravel invited Toni and Greta, Gigi presented a play she herself wrote.

INSTALMENT XXVII.

The Italian violinist felt his lovely companion start so suddenly that he realized she had not been listening to one word he was saying, and preparing to be aggrieved, spoke reproachfully; then Greta turned on him with sudden fierceness.

"Be quiet—I am not interested—I wish to listen—"

He was so amazed he was speechless, and the moment the words had passed her lips, Greta knew what a slip she had made; almost incoherently she turned to a man near her.

"Have you a cigarette? Ah, thank you—" and began smoking so rapidly that the paper charred all down one side.

The man, flattered that the beauty of the evening had spoken to him, leaned toward her.

"Our little Gigi seems to have had some plot in her head," he said. "It grows quite exciting—a quarrel—she will go where she chooses—quite modern—but what have the friend and sister to do with the story?"

Feverishly anxious to hide her growing anxiety, Greta answered almost at random.

"I suppose we shall soon hear—but why Hamlet? What had Hamlet to do with the story?"

Cool and level, Ravel's answer sounded unexpectedly on her other side.

"Hamlet used the players to unmask his father's murderer," he said. "It can hardly be possible that Gigi is following so illustrious an example. However, we shall soon know. She has been full of mystery."

Once again Greta realized that some perversity born of panic had driven her to ask the one question that should never have passed her lips, and at Ravel's words a damp coldness began to creep down the back of her neck. With dry lips she tried to speak and failed, and suddenly Ravel leaned near to her.

"It can hardly be possible," he began again "What motive could there be for so strange an idea?"

"Need there be a motive in any idea for a play?" she wondered whether her voice sounded as strange to him as it did to herself. Her fingers were clenched till the pointed nails were driven into the skin, her breath came in quick but silent gasps, yet she had wit enough to continue to watch the ridiculous players.

The friend and the young sister had played a love scene to the accompaniment of many encouraging remarks from the audience, following upon a quarrel between the husband, wife, and third man; the scene was a ballroom, and suddenly the sister began imploring her lover to see that the elder woman came to no harm.

Toni, watching the scene with dilated eyes, realized that it was almost word for word the scene between herself and Feodor at the Opera; and Greta, unconscious of what she did, leaned forward, her figure tense, trying not to listen, yet unable to withdraw her attention, desperately aware that Ravel was watching her—and why?

Why should he take such heed to her? It was not flattering attention such as Nazzara bestowed. It was a different look, keen, watchful. Did he, could he suspect the truth?

A Tale of Two Sisters

ABOUT twenty-three years ago, two sisters each bought an Endowment Policy in the Confederation Life Association . . . one for eight, the other for ten thousand dollars.

The policies matured within six months of each other in 1928. The sister with the eight thousand dollar policy decided to take the proceeds in cash with dividends. The other sister decided to let the policy remain with the Confederation Life and draw the proceeds of it in the form of a monthly income for life, which the Confederation Life is paying to her at this time.

The sister with the eight thousand dollars put part of it into property which she still has: but she herself told us that she speculated, not only with the balance, but with some other savings. The result has been a loss of about fifty-five hundred dollars. This tale of two sisters might be told of hundreds of beneficiaries of life insurance.

The modern method of purchasing life insurance is not only to provide money for dependants, but to provide, as well, a dependable income, so that, no matter what happens, this income cannot be dissipated, or in any other way be endangered.

We strongly recommend all those experienced, as well as inexperienced, in the management of investments to buy Confederation Life Monthly Income Insurance or Pension Bonds.

Write for the interesting particulars of these types of policies. You will be astonished to learn how much protection you can buy for so modest a premium.

Scones (English recipe): This delicious hot bread (often served split and toasted) has been contributed by a reader, who has given the ingredients in pounds rather than in cups — English fashion. Sift one pound of flour with ½ teaspoon each of salt and baking soda. Into this rub two tablespoons each of lard and butter. Next, add one dessert-spoon of sugar, and stir in ¾ of a cup of milk (this milk may be sweet or sour, or it may be buttermilk). If desired, stir in a few raisins or currants, but these are not necessary to deliciousness. Beat one egg, divide it, and stir only half of it into the batter. Last, add three teaspoons of baking powder (although this is unusual, the reader's letter specifies that baking powder must go in last). Toss one-third of the mass out on to a floured board, roll to ¼ inch thickness, and in as nearly a perfect circle as possible—as if you were making a pie crust. Cut into four wedges like slices of pie. Place on buttered pans, and then rub the other half-egg (left over) over the tops of these triangles of dough. Bake 25 minutes in a fairly hot oven. This recipe should make one dozen scones (to be called for in the Friday luncheon menu).

Fresh tomato bisque—Blanch six large ripe tomatoes by dipping them quickly into very hot water, then into cold water. Rub off skins, and slice the vegetable into a saucepan containing three large peeled and sliced onions, one slice of raw bacon, and 1½ quarts of cold water; let the mixture simmer till onions are tender, then stand on back of range till cold. Now press through a sieve and to the strained part add ½ cup of either sweet rich cream or milk, with one tablespoon of sugar, anad bring to a boil, allowing it to simmer 15 minutes. Just at serving time add a large piece of butter and enough salt to suit individual taste, and a dash of cayenne pepper. If you wish to thicken it, do so with a little flour-water paste—but most cooks like it fairly thin.

Tomorrow—Answers to inquiries.

An Unhappy Situation

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

The man I am in love with and who is in love with me broke our engagement because, as he said, we would be unable to marry for so many years to come that it would be unfair to me. I have a good job and wanted to keep it so we could marry, but he will not listen to this arrangement. And yet he will not let me alone. Weeks and weeks pass and I hear nothing of him, then he comes to see me and is so utterly miserable that it breaks my heart all over again. What course would you advise in my case? VIRGINIA.

The man should realize that it is very unkind for him to continually reopen this question and make you so unhappy. If he is unable to marry and refuses to allow an arrangement whereby you could contribute to the support of the home, I think that the best thing to do would be to break off definitely with him and make an end to it.

Hospital Visits to a Boy Friend

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

My boy friend seems to treat all girls alike. Now he has been hurt and is in a serious condition at the hospital, and no one can see him. When he is better should I go to see him, and how long should I stay? Should I take him anything? Should I show him that I do love him? I really don't know whether he like me or not, but he treats me very well indeed. He is always joking and full of life when he is well. He never seems to take life as seriously as I do. I do care so much; and it hurts to love a boy when you don't know if your love is returned or not.

CONSTANT READER.

You have very likely made the usual 'phone inquiries about the young man. When his doctor or nurse says he may receive friends will be the proper time to call. It would be better, it seems, if you would take another of his friends with you. The length of time for a hospital visit will depend on the doctor's instructions. Send him some flowers when he is well enough to enjoy them, and if it won't interfere with diet regulations, later on you might send fruit. Don't believe I'd tell how much you care. It works out better when they find that out for themselves.

Going to Marry One, But Loves Another

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been going with a certain girl for two years and think a lot of her. In fact, I love her. She does not live in this same town with me but works here and goes home in the summer. She also has another boy friend from her home town whom she agreed to marry this summer. In the meantime, she and I have fallen in love. I am in no position to marry her as I haven't any money, nor a good job. She says she has promised the other man but will always love me, although she is going to keep her promise. Please tell me what stand to take and whether or not she should take the stand she does.

WORRIED AND PUZZLED.

The idea of promising to marry one man, while being in love with another, is saddening. Such a girl is not keeping faith with either man or herself. Some girls, to soften the blow and get out of a difficult situation, say they will "always love" a certain man when they intend to marry someone else. If a girl is in love with one man, why does she marry someone else? Either her feelings are not very stable, or she isn't quite truthful. Take a brace. The world is just full of charming girls, who will treat you better than that.

William Brown Gets 22 1-2 Pound Salmon About Pilot Bay

A 22½-pound salmon was the trophy brought back from a day's fishing at Procter by William Brown of Third street, Fairview, Saturday. It was a rough day on the lake on the whole, and at one time the few boats out all came in. In the afternoon conditions were better, and Mr. Brown, his son William, and George Percival of Nakusp, who were in a launch, returned to the lake, and in very rough water off Pilot Bay Mr. Brown hooked the big fellow, which took half an hour to gaff. It was 36 inches long, and 10½ deep. It is the biggest fish reported so far this season.

Sam Brown, Mr. Brown's eldest son, was out in a separate launch with his wife, and obtained two salmon, seven and three and one-half pounds respectively.

Empire Sentiment Draped, Financial Position of B.C.

VICTORIA, May 29—The British Columbia government has placed itself in the predicament where it is out of control of its financial position and is trying to brighten the picture by draping it with empire sentiment, T. D. Pattullo, leader of the Liberal party in British Columbia, said Saturday in commenting upon the new loan floated in Britain.

Mr. Pattullo criticized what he described as the lack of information on government borrowings and declared the government admittedly did know what the new loan would cost.

"Ancient, Modern Necromancy," Subject in Nelson Church

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon in First Church of Christ, Scientist, Nelson on Sunday, was "Ancient and Modern Necromancy, Alias Mesmerism and Hypnotism, Denounced."

One of the bible texts was, "The evil bow before the good; and the wicked at the gates of the righteous" (Proverbs 14: 19.)

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passage from "Science and Health with Key to Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: 'Nothing but the power of Truth can prevent the fear of error, and prove man's dominion over error" (page 380.)

NEW SCHOOL TO BE OPENED AT ARROW CREEK

Creston High School Has Third Room Opened in Last September

CRESTON, B. C., May 29.—There seems to be no let up in the demand for increased educational facilities in Creston valley. At the opening of the term in September, 1931, it was necessary to provide a third room at Creston high school. A couple of months later the department found it advisable to reopen the second room of Kitchener public school for use as a junior high school division with Miss M. Sproule in charge and teaching the full two-year course to an enrollment of 15 students.

Now comes word that a new public school is to be opened at Arrow Creek at the term opening in September. Public school inspector V. Z. Manning visited that section about a week ago, approved of a two-acre site, and early this week interested parents had an old-time bee at which a full day's labor was put in by quite a good turnout and when they decided to quit and call it a day an acre of ground had been cleared and the site for the schoolhouse had been levelled and made ready for any necessary excavation. The school is designed to accomodate 30 pupils and has a good location at the northeast corner of the O. Arrowsmith farm. There has been quite an influx of land seekers into Arrow Creek and already there are 18 pupils of school age ready to start. Up to the present Arrow Creek school taxes have been paid into the Erickson district, but as no bus service was provided only those children whose parents happened to own a car and had the time to drive them to and from school were enjoying public school advantages.

Jailing the Sons of Freedom

Those who criticize Hon. R. H. Pooley for taking forceful action to clean up the Sons of Freedom situation do so chiefly on three grounds.

They say that the Sons of Freedom are poor, inoffensive people, who should be reasoned with rather than punished, and they say secondly that the punishment of imprisonment in compounds will not cause them to respect the law in the future, and thirdly they say that the whole plan is too costly.

It has even been said as an additional argument that under the agreement between the Dominion government and the Doukhobors when they first came to Canada, an agreement covered by an Order in Council passed in 1898, these people were given special privileges, and that by now interfering with them we are violating this agreement.

There is nothing whatever in this argument. When the Doukhobors came to Canada they were given no special privileges whatever excepting that they were promised immunity from military service. There is not a shadow of a suggestion in the agreement that the Doukhobors should be allowed to break our laws. Even the immunity from military service was not actually a special privilege. Conscientious objectors to military service, such as the Quakers, have always in Canada been immune from being called upon to take part in warfare.

The Sons of Freedom for 20 years have been definitely flouting Canadian laws. They have refused to pay taxes. They have refused to register births, marriages and deaths, and following such refusals, we have had at intervals numerous outrages. Schools have been blown up. Private residences have been blown up. Attempts have been made to wreck passenger trains, and schools and other buildings have been destroyed by fire.

For 20 years the Government has been reasoning with these people. It has exercised a degree of patience that is without parallel in history in dealing with law-breakers—law-breakers, it must be remembered, who not only break the law, but openly declare they will continue to do so, and that they believe in no Canadian law, or Canadian justice. Was this condition to be permitted to continue for ever, with the nature of the offences which were being committed becoming aggravated?

As long as no action was being taken, the Sons of Freedom naturally had no respect for the law. They had found that for 20 years authority was weak in dealing with them. They had come to the conclusion that they might do as they pleased, and that law enforcement would never go beyond talk and occasionally threats. They regarded the patience of the authorities as weakness. They had even made the statement that there were so many of them that the authorities could not effectively take action against them. They are now being taught as a result of the action ordered by Mr. Pooley that Canadian law and Canadian authority cannot indefinitely be flouted. No matter what sympathizers may say the Sons of Freedom are being taught a lesson which they and their children will remember for a long time.

The objection that it is unkind to separate the men from the women, and the men and the women from their children, is a curious one. If sympathizers with the Sons of Freedom put up a nude parade, they would find that they woud very promptly be separated from their wives and children. Why should the Sons of Freedom be treated differently to anyone else? No one likes to make people suffer, but when offences are committed there must be punishment or a complete breakdown of administration of justice and maintenance of law and order.

As far as the children are concerned, they will be much better off in the homes in which they are being placed, and they will be given the education that their parents refuse them.

At one time it was suggested and apparently approved by many of those who now sympathize with the Sons of Freedom, that they should be placed on land somewhere in this district, and in that way kept under control. In principle that is exactly what is going to happen as a result of the present procedure, except that the children will be properly taken care of, and properly educated, and the men and women, by being separated, will be sufficiently punished to be taught that they cannot with immunity defy Canadian laws.

The men will be placed not in a penitentiary, but on an island, or some other suitable place, which for legal purposes will be declared a penitentiary, and there will be put to work raising the food stuffs which they will need for their own consumption. The women will be at some other location, and they too will carry on work of a nature for which they are fitted.

The result of handling the difficult problem in this way will be that the cost to the Government will be very much less than would be the cost of handling in a pentitentiary a number of Canadian citizens who are sent to jail for any offences against the public decency, similar to those committed by the Sons of Freedom.

Cost is not in any event a primary consideration when maintenance of law and order is the issue, but once this situation has been cleaned up, the Provincial Government will be relived of the excessive police costs which have been necessary in this district for the past 20 years as a result of law-breaking by the Sons of Freedom and others of the same sect who have from time to time given trouble.

Every other enterprise has gone forward in this automobile age, but the horse-and-buggy era still clings to many of our rural schools. —Dr. James M. Rule, state superintendent of education, Pennsylvania.

The trouble with most businesses today is not that they don't make enough money, for they do, even in these difficult times. The real trouble is they don't keep what they make. They proceed to give it away by doing all kinds of unprofitable things.—Dr. Frank M. Surface, U. S. Department of Commerce.

"Between You and Me"

By "J.B.C."

Derby day is coming. G. K. Ashby declared early the other morning that we would just love to be there. He was telling me about some of the Derby days he has attended. One thing in particular that he talked about was the betting. I do not know if Mr. Ashby ever won a prize but he mentioned about a purveyor of crabs who had a concession at the derby. The hawker placed a small bet and won out, the horse being 100 to 1. The fellow went wild when the horse won and he just dumped the cart and crabs and departed. Mr. Ashby says he is sure Josh Marsden will get a winner this derby. Josh is working on a hunch. But that isn't news. Everyone who bets on the derby works on a hunch.

I am greatly disappointed, folks. My pet cat Perkins has taken to drink. I should not say that because I did not see him orinking but I did catch him in a beer parlor the other night. Imagine my embarrassment when Perkins strutted in, lapped up a little beer, and purred for more. The shock was too great for me so I bundled Perkins up and rushed him home. Besides everything he was under age and I was taking a big chance. Some wit said the cat was out looking for me.

There were several trucks on the roads on Sunday and several of them brought in a load of Doukhobors. But the most odd of all sights was to see a huge truck being manipulated by Dr. J. P. Gussin. The doctor must have been on a fishing expedition but at that there was plenty of room for a few Doukhobors. However, he was too early for the parade.

Was highly elated on Saturday night. In fact these days people just do not pass compliments or even admit trustworthiness in a fellow. But imagine my big moment when Joe Holland asked me to watch his store for a minute. I had visions of selling a few tennis rackets, some shoes and a leather bag or two but Joe came back before the first customer arrived.

Mayor J. P. Morgan is nursing a sore arm today. He threw the first ball in Sunday's ball game. Alderman Reg Dawson also took part in the opening services. They were warming the bench after the battle. First thing we know we will be hearing about the city council baseball team challenging the world. But it would be tough on the opposing team. Most likely they would have Chief of Police Long handy to stop the opposing players from stealing bases.

Noticed Nels Winlaw and Collie McDougal commenting on the baseball game. Dick Drew also discussing the battle. Dick used to hurl the ball a bit himself. It would not be a ball game without E. C. Hunt and R. E. Kirby present. The Grand Forks players were visited by a lot of former Grand Forkers who were rooting hard for the visitors.

Scout Movement

By GERALD S. REES

Seemingly some time or another, the writer offered a humble tribute to the Boy Scouts, but when Harold, the new chieftain of the Nelson Boy Scout association assigned to him the honorable privilege of setting forth some further boservations, what could a fellow do but cheerfully obey. Every boy craves action; action he will and should have, and whoever saw a boy sitting still unless engrossed in the current issue of "The Boy Ranger" Scouting aims to furnish this action along healthful and character building lines, with the objective of a right minded citizenship. The Boy Scout in his trim uniform, is as familiar a sight in the hinterland of British Columbia as in the most obscure village of the motherland, as well known in Sydney, Australia, as is Cape Town, South Africa. It was in South Africa, by the way that Lieutenant General Sir Robert Stephenson Smyth Baden-Powell conceived the scout idea, and in Mafeking where he first gave it a trial; his wide experiences in India and among the Zulu tribes enabled him to realize the value of some system that would teach boys to be self reliant quick to help and firm in discipline; he was very much impressed he relates with the manner in which the Zulus inculcated these qualities in their rising youth. He saw that the day was past for saying "Don'ts" to the boy it was better to say "Do" and show him what to do and how to do and how to do it by example, by friendly rivalry and a brotherly encouragement. With the supreme ability of a great organizer, he developed the Scout movement into a world wide organization from the first orginal troop which came into being at a camp on Brown's Island in Dorset in the summer of 1907. Such a beginning deserves a place in historic records.

Many have only a vague notion of what the Scout movement is all about, and know little of its manifold activities, associating the Scouts only with recurring anniversary parades where they trail behind "the mighty ones". To make the organization more familiar to the community, and to extend its usefulness, the Executive at this time, as you will see in press reports are striving to provide an appropriate building as headquarters, easy of access, fittingly constructed and suitably equipped. To be not only the headquarters of the boy scouts, but also of its kindred organization the girl guides, and their junior auxiliaries, the Cubs (dear little fellows) and the Brownies (sweet little maids). A home from home, so to speak, a place to call their own, "our" headquarters, wherein may be established an atmosphere that will undeniably reflect the splendid ideals underlying the work of the movement.

Scout movement aims to take the boy, no longer a child, but a man in the making, who at this time of adolescence is a sensitive and critical being, shy and yet often bold in his resentments- and to his elders, very often a mass of contradictions, but with the creative impulse strong within him, and by its purposeful program mould his desires rightly and put him in touch with worthy ideals and principles bigger than himself. It does not usurp the duties and privileges of home, church or school in regard to the training of the boys, but implements them along certain definite lines. Briefly, its purpose is that of obtaining the expression of all the best in every boy, and what a lot of the best there is and suppressing the undesirable elements by substituting in their place new desires and purposes, at the same time opening up opportunities lying close at hand, but hitherto unobserved by the boy.

The executive and its helpers are taking old man depression for a "ride" and have already practically completed the foundational work for the new hall. Everyone is to be asked to contribute towards its construction, so "Be Prepared".

The scout movement, which is non-sectarian, open to all creeds, and self governing, knows no social distinctions, and is permeated with the spirit of a true democracy; the very fact that it is not purely a local organization adds greatly to its usefulness and breadth of purpose, for it is good for a boy or a girl to belong to a national organization, an international association, for it assists towards the development of the ideal of world peace.

Forstered by an inspired and unselfed leadership, the elements of a true knighthood latent in every boy are stirred to activity and domination.

The boy takes a solemn pledge to respond, and the measure of his response is the measure of a larger and fuller view of himself as a thinking and acting being.

The motto "Be Prepared" implies a readiness for every emergency that may occur, and beyond this lies the preparation for the big duty of living. Those who had the opportunity of seeing something of the manifold activities of the Boy Scouts during the world war when they mobilized for duty at the clarion call of the bugle were thrilled by the manner in which they "played the game." "Keep the Home Fires Burning," sang the soldier man. Well, the Boy Scouts made a big bonfire of their part of the job. It was a revelation to witness the keenness, the efficiency and the manifold delight in which they performed all their special tasks. Even the little fellows, whose staves topped them by inches, seemed to take on an added stature by reason of their honorary service. Dodging hither and yon, they walked the polished corridors of the War office and the admiralty with more assurance that many of the office meekly following their wake as they were guided into the sanctums of the gilded ones behind their mahogany desks.

"Ubique"—Everywhere, that should have been the scouts' motto in the war days, for everywhere they were.

Tenderfoot, second class, first class scout, thus they graduate, acquiring enroute innumberable badges of efficiency and merit. I always look at a scout whose blouse and arm are adorned with so many badges with a certain amount of respect, for he knows so very much more than I do about certain things. The knots I tie are just knots, and what signalling I ever knew I have forgotten. As a swimmer, I am a good carpenter, for any cupboard I ever made, the door either will not shut, or when closed will not re-open. Some of our Boy Scouts are walking wonders. I doff my bonnet to them all. And the one must not forget the summer camps, the high-spot of the scout year . . the smell of wood smoke at twilight . . . the crackling of birch logs . . . the voices of the night . . . camp fire songs . . . sudden silences with some serious reflections, for grown-ups are not the only folk that reflect . . . Retreat . . . Lights Out. Happy memories. Good camping days to all when the times comes.

And what one herein hastily writes in support of the scout movement, applies equally well to the Girl Guides, the Cubs and the Brownies. They all want a home from home, a place of their own, "our" headquarters. Nelson, one feels sure is going to do well by its boys and girls, and the Nelson Boy Scout association is going to have its scout hall complete, and if I was not otherwise engaged, I would like to be the care-taker! Boy Scout, Girl Guide, Master Cub and Maiden Brownie, we cheerfully salute you, here and now. "Happy Landing" to you all.

HER OWN FAULT

The young suitor had summoned all his courage and popped the all-important question.

"No", said the girl's father, a millionare, "I haven't the slightest objection to you asking for my daughter's hand in marriage."

"Er—er—thank you, sir!" stammered the suitor.

"Now you go along and ask her," said the millionare, "I won't interfere. I've given her a good education and taught her to read the newspapers, and if she doesn't know enough to say 'No,' why she doesn't deserve any better luck."

With this hand at Contract, South with a No Trump count of 20 and at least one stopper in every suit had more than enough for his bid of two No Trumps. As the hand contained a six-card suit it was a grave question whether it should be opened with a No Trump bid. After West's pass North called three No Trumps: his Ace and two Tens constituted the rock-bottom strength for raising two No Trumps to three. If this hand were being played at Auction Bridge, South's bid of one No Trump would secure an uncontested contract.

West led the Five of Spades and East's King won the trick. South uselessly held up the Ace and was forced to win with it when East returned the Four. Declarer, realizing that his only chance for game was the establishment of Clubs, led the Queen of Clubs to trick 3. West correctly covered with the King, and the trick was won by dummy's Ace. Dummy's Eight of Clubs was led to trick 4, East played the Six, and South played the Jack. He decided that, with West holding an established Spade suit, the finesse should not be risked. When the Ten did not fall, South led a third round of Clubs which East won and led a Spade. East and West took, in all, four Spades and a Club—setting the contract one trick. Was Declarer the victim of bad luck or bad logic?

THE CORRECT PLAY

Since West covered South's Queen of Clubs with only the Ace-8 showing in dummy, West must have held two Clubs or less as he would not have sacrificed a twice-guarded King. West's play of the Spade Deuce on the second trick showed that the Trey was still held by East. (A player who has led his fourth best and subsequently "plays down" the lower cards of that suit, retains the lowest on the second round if he opened a six-card suit.) It West's King of Clubs was singleton, game was impossible. If, as was more probable, West held two Clubs, South had a problem in simple arithmetic. After the first round West held one Club, East two. The chances were two to one, therefore, that the Ten was held by East; so South should finesse the Nine of Clubs on the second round. Playing in this way Declarer would take six Clubs, one Spade, one Heart, and two Diamonds—ten tricks in all.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON

THE LAZY LOWER BOWEL

You have read often that most of our modern foods are not rough enough, that they are too concentrated. The foods usually spoken of as in this class are: butter, meat, eggs, fats prepared breakfast foods, and white bread.

If you take no exercise it is possible that too much of this kind of food will cause a 'slowing up' almost a stasis or stoppage of the waste passing through the large intestine, and out of the bady.

Fortunately, in the majority of cases, adding a little 'rough food' to the above foods in the diet is all that is necessary to stimulate action of the muscles of the large intestine; fruits, vegetables and whole wheat bread being quite effective.

Sometimes however the lower bowel large intestine has become so tender and inflamed due to waste matter remaining too long in it, or to harsh purgative medicines, that rough vegetables, fruit, and whole wheat bread only aggravate this inflamed condition. In such cases a liquid or soft diet should be used, and enemas of warm water, or, warm paraffin oil should be use until the condition improves sufficiently so that the ordinary diet and then the rough diet may be used.

What happens when a stasis or stoppage occurs in the lower bowel?

Some of the waste matter flows back through the opening in the small intestine, and this waste is actually absorbed into the blood. It is not to be wondered at therefore that many of these patients complain of headaches, dizziness tiredness, a coated tongue and bad breath'.

The first thought then is to prevent any 'stasis' or spastic condition in the lower bowel by including in our diet one or more of the following foods every day; apples oranges bananas, grapefruit, dried fruits such as raisins, prunes and figs; vegetables such at tomatoes, lettuce, asparagus, beets, onions, cauliflower and carrots all of which contain huge fibrous husks and coverings or rough seeds.

As some proteid food must be eaten to renew worn tissue, eggs or meat at least once a day should be eaten. Milk is excellent but is constipating to some people.

Butter or fat meat it likewise necessary as a 'protective' food.

As the above list of rough foods gives ample selection, there should be no difficulty in using one or more of them daily.

Rescue Call Had Only Two Minutes to Spare

If the wireless S. O. S. signal broadcasting the first warning that the liner Titanic struck an iceberg and was sinking with more than 2000 persons on board had been sent out two minutes later, the Carpathia, which saved 706 of the survivors, would not have had the call, and would have been unable to go to the rescue, Sir Arthur H. Rostron writes in his autobiographical volume "Home From the Sea." Sir Arthur, now retired commodore of the Cunard Line, was master of the Carpathia.

Recalling his adventures at sea over a period of 46 eventful years, he writes that the sinking of the Titanic marked "the most memorable night of my career." Th Carpathia had just insalled an amateurish wireless set with a limited range. It carried only one operator, who was off duty after midnight. He had been at his dials until 12:30 o'clock and had just decided that it was time to turn in. He had stooped down to unlace his boots with the ear phones still on his head, preparatory to retiring, when the dread call came in saying: "S. O. S. Titanic calling. We have struck ice and require immediate assistance."

Sir Arthur says that "if that officer had not been keen on the job many of the 700-odd lives we were able to save that night might have been added to the appalling list of dead that marks the Titanic disaster as the greatest in maritime history."

Sir Arthur explains that the Carpathia arrived at the scene of the disaster at 4 o'clock in the morning. The Titanic had disappeared into the sea at 2:30, an hour and a half earlier. If the Carpathia had been about 25 miles nearer to the Titanic, Sir Arthur points out, there might have been no loss of life.

Two good results have followed the sinking of the Titanic, Sir Arthur explains. Now regulation calls for enough life boats on each vessel with accommodation for every member of the crew and passenger list. The organization of a constant ice patrol, supported by Both Britain and America, is cited as another advantage.

These Yankees were up to their old tricks again the other day, the persecution of Robert Moses Grove, who happens to be Connie Mack's very finest pitcher. Replying to a sports writer's taunt, Mr. Mack introduced the Lonsanconing left-hander to Ruth, Ruppert & Co., and Moses was hustled right out of the game in the sixth inning, with his ears well pasted back.

But the astute tutor of the Athletics could not get his pitcher out of there before Babe Ruth had played his favorite prank, consisting of bombing the greatest pitcher in baseball for one home run.

• • •

THE SESSION OF 1928

Perhaps Connie Mack got his cue in 1928, when the Yankees beat Grove six games and he could defeat them only once. Grove beat Pipgras at New York in April of that year, and didn't win another game from Ruth & Co., all year. Henry Johnson beat him at New York in June, 4 to 0, and in September, 4 to 3.

Grove lost four games in his own ball park to the Yankees that year. Johnson beat him in April, 8 to 3. Shealey beat him in May, 9 to 7. Johnson beat him again in May, 11 to 4. Johnson beat him finally in June, 7 to 4.

Back in 1927, Grove won three and lost one to the Yankees. In 1929, he won two and lost one. The lesson from these figures seems to be that Mack saved Grove from losing to the Yankees by not starting him.

Thus, in 1930, we find Grove winning just one game from the Yankees, a 6 to 2 victory over George Pipgras in April at Philadelphia. Grove didn't lose to the Yankees that year. The percentage, of course was 1000, but you cannot say that Mack put Lefty very prominently on display against the bats of Ruth, Gehrig and the other hard-swinging Yankee boys.

• • •

MEAN OLD YANKS

Life would not be very pleasant for Moses if he had only the Yankees to pitch to. In the last five years he has been able to win only 10 games from Ruppert's Riflemen, and he has lost the same number, though he was able to lick other American league teams during that time 113 games, while losing 27.

Off the figures, the fact that Grove lost, up to the other day, nine games to the Yankees, while the other seven teams were able to beat him only 27 games speaks loudly for the presence of Grove on the bench when those Yankees are in town.

TOOK 13 TO 1 LACING

Last year Grove was able to win three games from the Yankees, losing one. His victories were scored at Philadelphia, and the one defeat came toward the close of the season in New York, where Rhodes had all the best of a 13 to 1 score.

Grove has won approximately 8 out of 10 of his games in the last five years with other teams in the American league. But he was only able to break even with the Yankees Therefore, when he starts against the Yankees, it is an even bet that he will lose.

Pshaw! Maybe this Grove is not such a hot pitcher after all!

Hundred Take Part in Track and Field Day for High Pupils

Meet Promoted by Senior and Junior High Teachers to Foster Interest Among Non-Star Seniors, and Junior Athletes

WALLACH BREAKS KOOTENAY-BOUNDARY SCHOOL RECORD, EXHIBITION MILE RUN

Wallach's Old Record Bettered by 4-5 Second in New Mark of 4 Minutes and 55 Seconds; Alan McLean Makes Brilliant Comeback

With a turnout of over 100 athletes and nearly twice as many spectators, Nelson Junior and Senior High school track and field day at the Recreation grounds, Saturday afternoon, was a decided success. With teachers from the teaching staffs of both schools taking various official parts and Ed Neff, a well known Nelson sport follower, holding the gun at the starting line in the track events, this year's field day prooved to be a greater success than any home meet for some years.

TO FOSTER INTEREST

This meet was promoted by the teaching staffs of the Junior and Senior High schools revive interest among athletes who were unable to make the track teams in the Kootenay Boundary meet and juniors of which there was no representative delegation sent to the Kimberley meet and therefore barred athletes who journeyed to the Kimberley meet on May 21.

McLEAN MAKES COMEBACK

One of the outstanding features of Saturday's meet was the brilliant comeback made by one of the High School's foremost athletes of "yesterday", Alan McLean. Despite the fact that he lacked practice, having taken little interest in sports this year, Alan waded into his probably more fit opponents, getting five individual first places and taking a big part in bringing his relay team over the starting line first. In the six competitions he took part in, he netted himself five and a half points.

WALLACH BREAKS RECORD

Joe Wallach, although not eligible to run as a contestant in the meet, shattered his former mile record for the Kootenay school district, while acting as a pacer for the mile sprinters. His time was four minutes and 55 seconds, four-fifths of a second faster than his former record. Joe was closely followed by his older brother, Geordie.

The Babe Expects to Play at Least Two Years Longer

WASHINGTON, May 30— Babe Ruth said today that he had discussed with friends the possibility of his becoming interested in the Boston Red Sox but that nothing had been done about the matter and that he expects to remain a player for at least two more years before taking any other interest in baseball.

"I don't consider that my playing days are over by a long ways. I've often said that some day I want to become major league manager. Maybe I'll even buy into a club. Right now, though, I haven't the dough to put into any kind of team."

STOCKS EKE OUT IN AVERAGE NET GAIN, NEW YORK

Early Decline Deposits Many Leaders in New Low Ground

NEW YORK, May 29 (By John L. Cooley, Associated Press financial writer).—Stocks squeezed an average net gain out of yesterday's fairly active short session after an early decline had deposited many leaders into new low ground.

It seemed fairer to assume that short covering, based partly on prelidiay curtailment of commitments and partly on hopes that the revenue bill would be much further along by next Tuesday, contributed substantially to the buying that eventually absorbed offerings. In any event the rebound by some issues was substantial, although trading was much brisker on the early setback than when prices began to climb.

Offerings brought numerous losses of 1 to 2 points during the first half hour, with tobaccos, merchandising and utility issues showing most weakness. There was, however, fairly good support for U. S. Steel, American Can, General Motors, and a few other stalwarts, which may have had something to do with the gradual easening of pressure. Both Steel and Can closed with fractional gains; so did Allied Chemical, Dupont, National Biscuit, Case, North American, Santa Fe and Westinghouse. American Telephone, after touching 90¾, regained all but ¼ of its 1¼-point drop, while American Tobacco, Liggett & Myers, Woolworth, Consolidated Gas and Penney recovered appreciably. Transactions totalled 672,000 shares.

LAND SALES ARE REPORTED CLOSED, CRESTON DISTRICT

CRESTON, B. C., May 29.—During the week a number of unimproved land sales are reported closed, and of them are in the Erickson-Creston district. B. Sherwood of Green Persons, Alberta, has acquired acres in what is known as the Lamont-Peters subdivision, and is expected to arrive early in June to commence clearing operations and the erection of a small home. Reg. Hutson, Frank Botterill and Leslie Simons have each acquired a five-acre tract from J. G. Connell, who is the owner of a considerable tract of semi-improved acreage on the Upper Creston-Erickson highway. The former of the trio is already at work on clearing operations, and will shortly erect a small residence on his holding and move from town to the ranch to reside. The other two have also commenced clearing operations. James Eddy of Burmis, Alberta, has been in the district looking for a highly improved place and is just returned to bring Mrs. Eddy here before definitely deciding where she will purchase.

Currencies Stronger

NEW YORK, May 29 (CP).—The week ended yesterday with British currencies displaying strength on all foreign exchanges. The Canadian dollar closed 3-16c higher at 1-16c. and the pound sterling ended the day 7½c higher at $3.72 cable transfers.

C. P. R. Earnings Working Expenses Are Down, April

MONTREAL, May 29 (CP).—Substantial decreases in both gross earnings and working expenses are shown in the financial statement of the Canadian Pacific railway for the month of April, made public here today. Gross earnings were $9,511,106, a reduction of $2,742,974 from April last year. In the same comparison, working expenses at $8,592,623 were down $2,314,417. Net earnings decreased $428,556 to $918,443.

STRENGTH IS INDICATED IN BANK REPORT

MONTREAL, May 29—The semi-annual statement of the Bank of Montreal, as of April 30, makes a very strong exhibit. The outstanding features are represented by an increase in the holdings of gilt-edged securities, a gain in liquid assets to an amount equal to 57.34 per cent of liabilities to the public—evidence that the bank is in a position to meet any increase in the requirements of its many customers.

The statement, in easily understandable form, appears elsewhere in this issue and affords an opportunity of obtaining a comprehensive view of the bank's strong position.

Total assets are reported at $748,612,481, compared with $786,897,706 a year ago. Of this amount quickly available, or liquid, assets are $385,483,225. Included among these liquid assets is cash in vaults and in $78,491,119, equal to 11.67 per cent of public liabilities.

INCREASE IN BOND HOLDINGS

The most important change in liquid assets is represented by an increase in government and other bonds and debentures to a total of $228,907,146. These are recognized as gilt-edged securities, the greated portion of which mature at early dates. EGG MARKET IS STEADY; STOCKS HEAVY, NELSON

Wholesale Receipts Fall Off Some; No Reductions Expected

The egg market in the interior of British Columbia continues steady, reports S. R. Bowell, Dominion egg inspector. There are local price fluctuations, but these are in a very narrow range. Local accumulations have to a large extent been avoided through shipping to the wholesalers. This has resulted in rather heavy stocks at Nelson, but as the wholesale houses here have good short holding facilities, this condition is not dangerous.

Wholesalers report a slight falling off in receipts, and some increase in demand during the week.

Production continues good, and still seems heavier than consumptive demand, though the peak is now past for the season.

RISE EXPECTED

Prices are at rock bottom, and except for the local fluctuations referred to, there will not be any further reductions. Next month should see the cleaning up of all surplus, after which a steady rise in prices may be looked for.

Nelson prices are, wholesalers to producers, extras 9 to 10 cents firsts 8 to 9 cents, pullet extras 7 to 8 cents. Retailer to producer, extras 15 cents, firsts 14 cents, pullet extras 12 cents. Retail, specials 25 cents, extras 20 cents, firsts 17 cents, pullet extras 15 cents. Some cutting of these retail prices is evident in weekend specials.

Early broilers are coming on the market at about 25 to 20 cents live weight to the producer. They retail at about 35 cents. Leghorn fowl are coming steadily to retail at 18 cents.

PREFERENCE FOR QUALITY

One of the items of outstanding interest in the Live Stock and Meat Trade Review for 1931, issued by the Dominion Live Stock Branch at Ottawa this week is that which comments on the evidence of consumer preference for quality in live stock products. Bacon and pork quality have never ference for good beef and a brandable port states and with cheap prices the domestic consumption of these products was extremely heavy. At the same time, the report continues, the Beef Grading Scheme clearly indicates a consumer preference for good beef, and a willingness on the part of the consumer to pay a reasonable premium for beef of brandable quality.

TEST WARBLE-FLY POWDER

Barrie Island in the Manitoulin District is the centre of interest for live stock and dairy men at the moment because of the fact that it has been selected for the purpose of testing out a new type of powder for the control and elimination of the warble fly. Dr. Ionel Stevenson, Zoologist for the Province of Ontario, is in charge of the "clean-up," and all cattle on the island have been treated. Warble-fly losses annually are enormous; not only does the fly spoil the hide, but infested cattle can not put on flesh or produce milk as they should. The new powder, applied as a solution, promises to be both economical, practical and effective. Results of these tests may spell the dawn of a new day in the cattle industry in Canada.

Losses Outnumber Gains at Vancouver

VANCOUVER, B. C., May 29 (CP).—Changing prices in active issues displayed mixed trend trading on the Vancouver stock exchange yesterday, with gains outnumbering losses two to one. On the whole the market showed a firmer tone than has been evinced during the week, and sagging prices firmed fractionally to one or more points. Sales volume for the short session totalled 20,975 shares.

National Silver, the most active issue during th session, sold up ¼ at 1½c, Premier Gold, opening at 40c, up 1½c, maintained that price to the close. Lorne Gold eased ½ to 10c.

WINNIPEG WHEAT MARKET HIGHER ON NARROW DAY

Weakened Stock and Securities Markets to South Prove Stumblers

WINNIPEG, May 29. — Weakened stock and securities markets to the south proved a stumbling block to any material upturns in the grain pit here Saturday. Despite firmer cables and a fair export worked during the session, the market failed to respond, and in narrow trade closed ⅛ to ¼ higher.

May closed at 63½; July at 63⅞; and October at 66.

Foreign news, which included confirmation of an increased French wheat import quota and widened import needs of other European countries, was quite bullish. It was estimated 750,000 bushels had been worked for export.

BETTER SITUATION CHANGES

Ottawa, Canada, has developed in the past year into an important butter exporting country after supplying its domestic requirements amounting to around 217,000,000 lbs., instead of having to import butter for its own requirements as in former years. Canada in 1931 is estimated to have produced 224,661,940 lbs., of butter, of which she exported 10,680,500 lbs. Her imports were comparatively negligible to that of other years, amounting to only 2,821,317 lbs. In 1930 the estimated domestic consumption of butter was around 223,000,000 lbs., with domestic production amounting to 185,751,061 lbs., and exports to only 1,180,400 lbs. In that year Canada imported 38,606,055 lbs.

TRADE WITH GREAT BRITAIN

Under united efforts of producers, exporters, and the federal Department of Agriculture and Trade and Commerce, exports of cattle to Great Britain (1931) showed a strong revival and totalled 27,143 head, as compared with 5,400 in 1930. The total value of the movement, according to returns of the Department of National Revenue, was $2,218,383, as compared with $545,765 in 1930. The movement owed a great deal to the successful efforts of the government in bringing about an increase in the number of cattle carrying boats to Great Britain. The export rate was $15 per head, less 10 per cent in cattle 1,000 lbs. and under.—Live Stock and Meat Trade Review, 1931.

SAVING CANADA'S ANTELOPE

The history of Nemiskam National Park, Alberta, Canada, is an interesting chapter in the story of wild life conservation. Overcoming what appeared to be insurmountable difficulties, forty-two antelope were enclosed in a fenced-in area in southeastern Alberta in 1915, and, in contrast to previous experiments, continued to thrive in captivity. Their welfare and propagation, which at first was a matter of speculation, now seem to be definitely assured, as officials of the National Parks of Canada, Department of the Interior, report that the herd now totals 425.

CHICAGO WHEAT RECOVERS FROM EARLY DOWNTURN

Aided by Better Export Demand; Closes Fractionally Higher

CHICAGO, May 29 (By John P. Boughan, Associated Press market editor).—Helped by a better export demand, wheat prices rallied late yesterday from early downturns that were associated with unsettlement of securities.

Export purchases of North American wheat totalled 1,000,000 bushels, including some United States hard winter. On the other hand, weather indications for the next week were construed as bearish, pointing to more moisture and seasonable temperatures auspicious for crops.

Wheat closed irregular, ⅛ down to ⅜ up, compared with Friday's finish; corn unchanged to ⅜ lower; oats at a shade to ¼ advance; and provisions unchanged to a decline of 2c.

JOHN DE FOREST TAKES BRITISH AMATEUR GOLF

Last Year's Finalist Plays Steady Golf to Down Fiddian

MUIRHEAD, Scotland, May 29—(C P cable)—John De Forest, 23-year-old Londoner, tonight stood crowned British amateur golf champion, after a stirring 36-hole final match yesterday against Eric Fiddian, 22, his Stourbridge rival.

De Forest, who reached the finals last year, played steady golf through rain, mist and heavy going to take the match and championship three and one after Fiddian had, at the 33rd hole, cut his lead to one.

GIVEN PLACE ON WALKER CUP TEAM

Both men, by virtue of having reached the finals, were allotted the two remaining places on the British Walker cup team.

Fiddian did not win a hole until he reached the 12th, which he took by one stroke. He halved the next two, took the 15th, 16th and 18th to make the turn four down. He had been seven down at the 10th.

In the afternoon play Fiddian strove gallantly to cup down De Forest's lead. At the 27th he had cut it one and was still three down. Excitement grew as Fiddian won the next hole. At the 33rd he cut his opponent's advantage to one. Then he cracked. He lost the 34th where he was trapped and dropped the match at the 35th where he was bunkered off a spoon shot.

Breaks in Sport; But They're Bones

Athletes in different sports are the victims of some strange pranks of Fate.

Horton Smith, the great young golfer, met with a peculiar accident last fall, that put him out of all winter competition. Various stories said it was caused by cranking a car, but this is the real story.

Young Smith had a "post hitting" complex. He could not resist giving a fence or a tree, a little slap with his hand or golf club, just "for luck."

One day sitting in an automobile that was slowly backed into a driveway, he noticed a telephone post just beside the window. The old temptation stirred within him to give it a gentle tap for luck. And somehow the tap broke his wrist.

Many pitchers have broken bones in their arms from pitching a fast curve ball.

The late Ross Youngs, outfielder of the Giants, broke another player's leg with his head in making a diving catch.

I once saw an umpire in a game between Columbus and Milwakee, break his leg, running to make a decision at first base.

DRAMATIC CLUB AT CRANBROOK PRESENTS PLAYS

High School Body Heard on Two Evenings at Auditorium

PERFORMANCES OF FINISHED NATURE

Scenery Complete in Every Detail; Actors Are Accomplished

CRANBROOK, B. C., May 29.—The first public performance of the high school Dramatic club was held in the high school auditorium on the evenings of Thursday and Friday, May 26 and 27, when two one-act plays were presented by casts drawn from the senior students under the direction of Miss Marion MacKinnon and W. L. Bride of the staff.

Both plays were of rather an ambitious nature for young performers but were handled with ease by all taking part. The younger parts were particularly realistic and well suited. The older parts were also well acted and lacked only maturity of voice to make the illusion perfect.

There was nothing left to the imagination in the matter of scenery and appointment as is sometimes the case in high school presentations. The stage setting for each play could not have been improved on and seemed to have been evolved for the particular play being acted. In his opening address, Principal Barclay stated that in their attempt at presenting drama they had had to start at the bottom both in the matter of histronic talent and the stage and scenery. As to the latter he said that they now had an equipment equal to that in any of the largest high schools and surpassing most.

"The Trysting Place," Booth Tarkington's humorous handling of situations developing on a summer hotel porch, revealed considerable talent in six young actors. Joseph Genest as the young man trying to overcome the fault of youth and place himself on a footing with a sophisticated widow, presented a finished and amusing performance. Jessie Briggs, his disgusted sister, was played by Barbara Bartman and Mrs. Briggs, his dignified and equally disgusted mother, played by Eleanor Green. Both parts were well handled, their efforts to extricate Lancelot from his youthful folly being convincing. James Halcrow's portrayal of Jessie's suitor was perhaps the high light of the piece and Katherine Staples, as the widow, achieved considerable sophistication and aplomb for one of her years. Vincent Downey, as an early admirer of Mrs. Briggs, played well the returning suitor who added to the complications in the overcrowded trysting place.

MURDER MYSTERY UNRAVELLED

In the second play a murder mystery was unravelled in a diverting manner, when the conversation between Inspector Lavery, played by Norman Hall and Mr. Chance Crichon, played by Myles Beale, develop the plot. The boys overcame their youth and stepped into the characters convincingly. Marshall MacPherson as the butler upheld the time honored dignity of butlers, refused to be flustered by the questions of the inspector and contributed to the unravelling of the mystery. The personality of the dead body which was being carried out by constables played by Gordon Speers and Sherman Evans as the scene opened, as left to the conjecture of the audience as was also that of the fine gramophone voice which took the place of a record, the device used by the murderer to establish an alibi. "A Voice Said Goodnight" by Roland Partwee has been considered a good vehicle by actors of international note and its choice and successful presentation by the high school pupils is a matter for congratulation.

The presence of the high school orchestra, under the leadership of Miss Velma Black added considerably to the enjoyment of the audiences. Their selections were played with a finish that showed nothing of the amateurish and all were thoroughly enjoyed. Members of the orchestra are Barbara Fink, Olga Rosen, Norman Hall, Harry Christian, Cyril Robertson, Edward Flowers and Stephen LaFleur. Beside the orchestra numbers there were solos by Miss Sybil Norgrove and Miss Irma Taylor and two diverting dancing numbers, a Spanish dance by Miss Helen Van Braum, who made a charming senorita and a well-done tap dance by Susanne Staples and Dorothy Barber, costumed in top hats and odd bits of black and white.

With examinations imminent it is probable that there will be no further attempts at public presentations during the term but it is hoped that the present successes will be repeated at a later date.

Level of Water in West Arm Drops .35 Feet in One Night

Water in the West Arm of Kootenay lake dropped .35 feet, in the 24 hours from noon Saturday to noon Sunday, to the 13.6 foot level. This sudden change, from the consistent rise lately to the reverse, is probably due to the cooler weather of the past few weeks.

Fred Speirs shot a large black bear Wednesday, which has been annoying residents on the hill for some time, being particularly active about the premises of Major J. H. Stubbs, where it was eventually shot.

Kenneth MacPherson, who spent the week-end in town with relatives, has returned to Johnson's Landing where he attends school.

S. H. Carson and W. A. Hobson, who spent the past few days in town making an inspection of the Bank of Montreal, left for their Vancouver homes Thursday.
