RAIL EMPLOYEE HURT AT TRAIL

TRAIL, B.C., April 25—Still in a semi-conscious condition as a result of a serious head injury, Richard Dennis of Nelson, a railway employee, lies in Trail-Tadanac hospital. He was picked up lying with his head on a rail in Tadanac early Tuesday morning.

Nobody knows just how the man came to be injured, but the current theory is that he fell from the top of a freight car receiving a serious blow on the head when he landed. Just how his head came to be on the rail when he was found will probably not be solved.

One theory is advanced that somebody may have tried to help him up but became alarmed when they found he was unconscious and left him.

VANCOUVER, April 25 (CP)—Frederick Biggins, 61-year-old former Vancouver General hospital accountant, was acquitted today by Judge J. N. Ellis on a charge of theft in connection with defalcations from the hospital accounts which totalled $13,500.

RIOT INSURANCE PREMIUMS JUMP

Decision Reserved In Cases of 10 Strikers Hailed Into Vancouver Court

VANCOUVER, April 25 (CP)—Decision in the case of 10 of the 19 men arrested in connection with Tuesday's riot of striking relief camp workers was reserved until Friday in police court today by Magistrate H. S. Wood.

The accused included a 19-year-old, Harry W. Darville, alleged to have assaulted Inspector Fred Lester during a clash with police in the Hudson's Bay company store during the demonstrations.

The relief camp strike front was quiet today as unemployed remained under cover but fears of further rioting were seen in the action of representatives of 80 insurance companies, who announced premiums on riot insurance had been trebled in Vancouver.

The premiums were raised as a result of Tuesday's disturbance when 2000 strikers clashed with police in the Hudson's Bay company store with several thousand dollars in damage to fixtures.

Ottawa Considers Vancouver Relief Strike Situation

OTTAWA, April 25 (CP)—Cabinet council today considered the situation in Vancouver where homeless unemployed left relief camps provided for their shelter and invaded the city where disturbances centered about one of the large department stores. B.C. Government Hopes to Keep Corbin Mine Open

Adam Bell Sent in to Make Investigation; Province Is Interested Only in Making Work Possible and Not in Strike Trouble; Company Plans Shut-Down

VICTORIA, April 25 (CP).—The British Columbia government today prepared to take a hand in the strike troubles at Corbin, B.C., but only so far as to see what can be done to ensure the future working of the mine there.

Adam Bell, deputy minister of labor, left here for Corbin to make a personal investigation on behalf of Hon. George S. Pearson, the minister.

Mr. Pearson said the province was not intervening particularly in the dispute between the men strikers and the company as this comes within Dominion jurisdiction under the Industrial Disputes act.

The labor department is more interested in the future prospects for work when the strike is settled. Owing to lost contracts and fire below ground, the company is reported contemplating closing down operations completely.

Should this occur, it would probably result in the entire community being thrown on relief.

The government has been advised the company proposes to start work on an open seam which will give work to some men, although it means operating at a loss.

Police Orders Ignored by Corbin Mob Prior to Riot

DENY COMMUNISTS FOMENTED THE CORBIN RIOT

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., April 25 (CP)—Denial that the communists of Blairmore had fomented labor troubles in the mining district of Corbin, B. C., was made today by George Hull, district secretary of the Canadian Labor Defence league.

The miners at Corbin have been on strike for several months and in a riot there last week many police officers and strikers were injured. Police charged the riot had been incited by Blairmore communists.

Interviewed at Blairmore, Hull said:

"The strike was not fomented here nor organized from Blairmore. It was a Corbin matter and was not inspired by communists of Blairmore. It was supported by Blairmore workers as part of the 'common struggle.'"

"Poor People" Win Sales Tax Victory

Secretary of Corbin Employees Ass'n. Tells of Rumpus

C. R. Shaw, secretary of the Corbin Employees association, in information sent by mail to The Nelson Daily News seeks to correct wrong impressions of stories emanating from there a few days ago in regard to the riot at Corbin.

Mr. Shaw points out that the police did not attack the rioters on the morning of April 15 until they had stood a great deal of provocation and that the tractor figuring in the fracas that day was not deliberately driven over defenceless men and women. Unbiased witnesses, Mr. Shaw avers, know that the strikers were given a full five minutes to clear the highway by Inspector John Macdonald. The warning was deliberately ignored.

The strikers were drawn up in horseshoe formation with the women in the front line, he goes on. The women were hemmed in by men six feet deep, making it impossible for the women to escape. As the tractor approached after

B.C. IS HIT 2 WAYS BY RISE SILVER PRICE

Mines Stand to Get Some Benefit by U.S.A. Action

ORIENT TRADE TO BE HARD HIT

Lumber Will Suffer a Loss; Government Sizes Situation

VICTORIA, April 25 (CP)—B. C. will make a gain and a loss as a result of the sharp rise in silver prices through United States action on the metal, I twas explained at the B. C. department of mines today. Much, it is said, will depend upon the stability of silver values as a result of the move. B. C. mines stand to gain but lumber and other commodities exported to the Orient will suffer a loss, it is believed.

Silver production in the province last year was 8,907,000 ounces, worth $4,197,869 at an average value of 47.13 cents per ounce. Peak production in postwar times had been 11,000,000 ounces. Increase in the world price to some 71 cents an ounce, with proposed increase in United States purchasing price at the U. S. treasury have already found a reaction in advances in B. C. silver stocks, it was pointed out.

The largest single producer in the province is the Consolidated Mining & Smelting company, at Sullivan and Trail operations, which last year produced 7,216,231 ounces of silver alone. In addition there are many smaller silver properties in Slocan and West Kootenays and elsewhere, usually in association with other metals.

While rising silver prices, if stabilized, would mean a decided stimulus to B. C. mining, the higher the price on the world market, the less will be the volume of trade done with the Orient, particularly China. This may cut heavily into lumber exports this year, as well as reflecting sales of other goods from this continent, provincial officials are inclined to believe.

RELIEF PROBE IN OKANAGAN

SALMON ARM, B.C., April 25 (CP)—The royal commission investigating conditions in relief camps in British Columbia today entered the Okanagan district for sessions at camps there.

RISE FOLLOWS ANOTHER JUMP BY U.S.A. TREASURY OF OVER SIX CENTS—WILL RISE HIGHER

From Nevada to Hongkong Miners, Hoarders and Speculators Are Thrilled; Expect $1.29 Soon; Hour-to-Hour Basis

NEW YORK, April 25 (AP).—From Nevada to Hongkong, miners, speculators and hoarders of silver were thrilled today by one of the most striking advances in the price of the metal which world markets have witnessed in over a half a century.

The race between the United States treasury's price to domestic mines and the world price became swifter. Following announcement of an increase of 6.46 cents in the treasury price to 77.57 cents an ounce, the world price in the New York bullion market rose 5⅛ cents to 77 cents, and later isolated dealings were at 77¼.

At 77 cents, foreign bar silver for commercial use was at the highest level in New York since the end of the post war inflation, which carried it up to $1.37 in 1920.

DEALINGS RESTRICTED

Silver dealings in Wall Street have been restricted since the nationalization of speculative stocks last August at 50.01 cents an ounce, and the imposition of a tax of 50 per cent on speculative profits. But the free silver markets in London, Montreal and the far east boomed.

Feverish speculation in shares of silver mines developed in New York, Toronto, Salt Lake, San Francisco — in virtually every market where they were traded.

The prosecution contended that in a preliminary statement witnesses had said "for yourself."

Radio-Active Copper Produced in U.S. May Be Substitute for Radium

WASHINGTON, April 25 (AP).—Experimental production of a radio-active copper—opening the possibility of its use as a less costly substitute for radium—was described yesterday to the National Academy of Sciences.

The radio-active copper has been produced by Dr. Ernest O. Lawrence of the University of California and his colleagues E. M. McMillan and Dr. L. Thornton.

A few months ago Dr. Lawrence discovered that sodium, an ingredient of ordinary salt, could be made radio-active. This opened up the possibility of its use in medicine, for salt can be safely injected into almost any part of the body. Salt, or perhaps copper, would be useable in cases where radium would not, because substitutes made artificially radio-active lose their radio-activity after a short length of time. Thus they could remain harmlessly in the body after their mission was performed, whereas radium never ceases to be radio-active and becomes dangerous to health if left embedded in flesh.

Dr. Lawrence produced his radio-active copper by bombarding it with deuterons—tiny cores of atoms of heavy hydrogen.

PEACE AND PEMBINA RIVERS IN FLOOD AND BRIDGES GO OUT; TRAPPER LOST

Aviator Will Attempt Break Jams by Dropping Dynamite on Ice

EDMONTON, April 25 (CP).—Residents of Alberta's northwest tonight were battling the menace of floods along the Athabaska, Peace and Pembina rivers as ice jams raised the break-up torrents to unprecedented levels in many sections.

Four key bridges in the sketchy communication system in that part of the province had been swept away. At White Court, flood waters were creeping nearer to the town and pleas for dispatch from Edmonton of an airplane to bomb the ice jam were renewed.

Preliminary plans were laid late today. The plane was prepared, but it was found impossible to prepare adequate explosives on short notice. Late tonight it was declared likely the plane would start early tomorrow. Grant McConachie, chief pilot for United Air Transport, plans to undertake the flight and, while flying low, drop dynamite into the ice.

White Court is 80 miles northwest of Edmonton.

MORE ABOUT FLOODS IN NORTH

Bridges over the Pembrina at Dapp, 65 miles north on the Northern Alberta railway, and at Pibroch, next station to it, were swept away late today. Spans at Sangudo, 65 miles northwest on the Canadian National Railways line, and at Cherhill, 55 miles west, had collapsed previously.

At Jarvie, the ice was reported moving out gradually and safely, while at Barrhead the Saddle river was reported to be receding from the peak level it attained Wednesday. Flats were flooded but property damage was light and no bridges gave way.

LEVEES AT PEACE RIVER

At the town of Peace River, Mayor Lipsey ordered construction of levees of sandbags and planking to stem the rise at Pat's creek which runs through the town.

Safety of the Northern Alberta railway's steel bridge at Smith was in doubt for a time but is now believed safe.

Word late tonight from White Court said no trace had been found of D. Warwick, trapper, who lived on an island near the town. Men who braved the floes to search for him returned to the mainland with difficulty.

Water in the White Court area is backed up for miles, a survey there today showed, and the area inundated is estimated at five times that of 1926, previous record flood year. In places, only the roofs of houses showed above the turbulent tide. Water has covered the railway tracks at several points.

SPEAKERS PAY TRIBUTE AS SEVEN GRADUATE FROM CRANBROOK HOSPITAL

Margaret Sandberg, Mary Richmond, Wilma Gates, Winifred Fensom, Marjorie Cullinane, Ellen Peterson and Ellen Lake Finish Training

CRANBROOK, B.C., April 25—Graduating exercises of the nurses-in-training of St. Eugene hospital was held in the Cranbrook auditorium Wednesday. The hall was decorated with rose and yellow streamers, and the nurses, dressed in their school uniform, with black capes turned back over the left shoulder showing the red lining, carried bouquets of roses and lilies.

Members of the training school graduating were Miss Margaret Sandberg, Miss Mary Richmond, Miss Wilma Gates, Miss Winifred Fensom, Miss Marjorie Cullinane, Miss Ellen Peterson and Miss Ellen Lake.

The presentation of the diplomas was made by Dr. F. W. Green and the presentation of the medals made by Mrs. F. W. Green. J. F. Scott was chairman.

Rev. Father J. M. Patterson, O.M.I. gave a short address, congratulating the graduating nurses, and mentioning what a noble and worthy profession nursing was, and that he knew all these graduates would make a success of the career ahead of them.

Rev. R. W. Hardy gave an address congratulating the class, with best wishes for attaining the goal they have been working for and looking forward to for three years. Although they have had duties both pleasant and unpleasant, Mr. Hardy stated that he was sure they would remember the pleasant ones much longer. He stated that it should be called a commencement rather than a graduation, because it was starting them on their journey into the world where they need even more courage than during their three years, but their medals, the symbol of the Red Cross, should aid them in all tasks. Mr. Hardy also commented on what a worthy institution the hospital was and that he hoped all people in the district would do what they could to help it.

Mr. Scott, chairman, thanked Mr. Hardy for his remarks about the hospital and in order to make the people of Cranbrook more familiar with the hospital equipment and work he read a report from the hospital.

It is headed by Sister Clarissa, mother superior, who has been here five years. It has a fully equipped operating room, dressing room and x-ray department, also fully equipped laundry, refrigeration and dairy. There are 11 sisters, four graduate nurses and 28 students. During 1934 the number of patients treated was 1082 and there were 62 babies born. It has a high standard as a training school, and for 13 years no student has failed her registered nurse examinations.

Dr. Green, during his short address, said that he thought the community fortunate in having the Sisters of Charity. They have aided all who need help, and still are able to meet all financial obligations. The hospital is standardized, the head of the College of Surgeons visiting it several times. Cranbrook should also be grateful to the alumnae and to the hospital ladies aid, who have helped much with equipment for the hospital.

He spoke briefly about the cancer fund, hoping people of the district would support this worthy cause. Dr. Green congratulated all the nurses, hoping they would live up to the standard of the school, and to that set by their predecessors. And he hoped they would all reach their future ideal.

Mayor T. F. Roberts congratulated them and stated the large audience showed they had the best wishes of the people of Cranbrook He said 31 years ago he aided in securing funds for the hospital, and ever since then he had taken an interest in its work and progress, and he thought they had chosen well in choosing the St. Eugene hospital for their school.

provincial and Dominion officials in the office of Mayor G. G. McGeer today. They were offered their transportation back to the camps and the city offered to assist in financing a delegation of three strikers to go to Ottawa to place their claims before the federal government.

McGEER OFFERS SUPPORT

In addition, Mayor McGeer offered to personally support their claim. Each man "blacklisted" from the camps would have the opportunity of having his case heard and determined by the relief camp commission headed by Hon. W. A. MacDonald.

The delegation placed these proposals before the mass meeting and the men made it clear they do not intend to accept. The suggestions will be formally dealt with tomorrow, it was indicated.

REFUSE RETURN TO CAMPS

The men urged that the city be asked to provide relief while the strikers are in Vancouver and that the city finance the trip of a delegation of strikers to Ottawa without the men having to return to the camps.

Arthur Evans, Workers' Unity league official, stated at the meeting a sympathetic general strike is proposed in Vancouver for next Monday between three and four p.m. he declared this would be but the forerunner of a bigger strike demonstration later on.

Evans said the street railway employees, longshoremen and the Seafarers' union would consider the proposal for a general strike at meetings tomorrow night.

Constable Fred Nickerson testified today that he had worked for three weeks on the erection of a small building on Cameron's Port Haney ranch last year. He was not on holidays at the time, he said, and his pay as a police officer had gone on.

"I do not see that this has any connection with the conspiracy," Magistrate Matheson said.

Charged with Cameron are Joe Celona, Lou Barrack, Eugene Valenti, Joe Swarts and Wally Cole.

am a sailor and I stand absolutely behind the resolution of the convention which states we will support the oil tanker strikers. We shall stand behind them to the limit, and I believe in making it effectual now."

The convention resolution pledged support to the oil tankers strike even to the extent of calling a general strike vote should that seem necessary.

The federation unites eight Maritime unions including in their membership, longshoremen, engineers, sailors, firemen, oilers, watertenders, cooks, stewards, ferryboatmen, radiomen, masters mates and pilots.

MEDIATION FAILS

SAN FRANCISCO, April 25 (AP)—Mediation efforts by a government board in the coastwise tanker strike collapsed tonight on the heels of announced support of the walkout even to the extent of a general strike vote, by the Maritime federation of the Pacific, newly organized at Seattle.

Marine circles admitted the situation was delicate.

The tanker strike started with a demand by seamen for preferential hiring of union members, a request that later was dropped.

In its stead a demand for a 44-hour week instead of the present 56 hours, and reemployment of union strikers, became the critical issues.

Operators would not comment on today's breakdown in negotiations but a recent ultimatum was recalled in which they set tomorrow night as the deadline for the 12,000 striking seamen, masters, mates and pilots, engine room workers and radio operators to end the dispute.

Members of the joint tankers strike committee today blamed "the arrogant attitude of the Standard Oil Company for refusing to give an inch" for the deadlock.

MORE ABOUT SILVER PRICE

metal today and informed officials promptly foresaw new boosts toward the statutory goal of $1.29 an ounce.

A definite commitment that government price advances would keep a step ahead of world levels was read by even his own subordinates into Secretary Henry Morgenthau's statement to reporters that the treasury would continue to buy until silver's market price was $1.29 or government stocks equalled one-third the gold supply.

UNCHANGED FOR NIGHT

Actually, Morgenthau only quoted terms of the mandatory Silver Purchase act. But his remarks made observers so positive of a new treasury quotation when the New York price for foreign silver reached 77 cents late today, that the treasury summoned a special press conference to say that for tonight, at least, the mint price would continue unchanged at 77.57 cents an ounce.

Along with this statement went a definite understanding that the treasury was on an hour-to-hour basis in directing its silver policy. A price boost tomorrow was not impossible.

REACTION IS FELT

Last night's price advance drew world quotations upward but in some quarters reactions were disturbing. As the Shanghai Yuan dollar, despite an export tax on silver, moved up to 40.75 cents, Dr. Alfred Sze, the Chinese minister, expressed to Secretary of State Cordell Hull China's concern over the United States silver purchase policy. As the price of silver mounts Sze told reporters, China is plunged deeper into the deflationary condition in which the United States found itself in 1933 as the result of too great purchasing power of the dollar.

In Mexico banking circles were worried as world prices reached a level that made it profitable to melt down Mexican coins into commercial silver.

FREIGHT RIDER GIVEN 14 DAYS

Frank Smith pleaded guilty in provincial police court Thursday morning to an infraction of the Railway act and was sentenced by Stipendiary Magistrate John Cartmel to pay a fine of $5 or to spend 14 days in jail. He took the jail term. Smith was arrested Wednesday night riding a C.P.R. freight near the poleyards, by R.C.M.P. Officer G. H. Whiteman.

stopping, women swarmed around the tractor, attacking the driver, six of Contractor Garrison's men and four police hanging on to the tractor. As the tractor reached the men, police and tractor-men were met with a shower of rocks, clubs, sledge hammers, dead rails and so on. Throughout the entire fight the police behaved with great restraint.

ONLY ONE LEADER HURT

"It is significant," Mr. Shaw points out, "that union leaders stayed on side lines, only one being injured in the fight. Malicious propaganda being spread through newspapers by these men is merely distortion of facts to further their own interests and is on a par with their whole attitude of misrepresentation during the dispute."

The calling of the strike was a breach of their agreement with the company, said Mr. Shaw, also of their own constitution. In February when all points of the dispute were conceded by the company under arbitration by F. E. Harrison, these were deliberately turned down and entirely new demands were put forward. All the company asked was that the men live up to the agreement which expired March 31. Throughout the entire strike, action of strikers toward officials has been very insulting and the insults have been accompanied by threats. It is only the presence of the police in Corbin at the present time which prevents these threats from being carried out.

Mr. Shaw states it is the intention of the company to send out written reports and they hope the reports will be given as much prominence as the strikers' side of the story.

BRITISH COLUMBIA REMAINS THE BEST FISHING AND GAME COUNTRY ON THE CONTINENT

So States Game Commissioner; Reports Fur-Bearing Animals and Game Increase; Trap Line System Is Good

Contrary to frequent reports that fur-bearing animals and game are on the decrease in British Columbia, quite the reverse is the case, and both fur-bearing animals and game are either holding their own or are on the increase, according to the last report of the provincial game commissioner of British Columbia. The report gives facts up to the end of 1933.

The commissioner says in part: "On the whole, while many improvements which we had hoped for have not been possible, we can still claim that British Columbia is the finest game and fishing country on this continent." He praises the trap-line system that was established in the province about ten years ago, saying that it was not only meeting with general approval, but it was producing good results with practically every species of fur-bearing animal.

The trap line system allots an area to each trapper, upon which ground he may trap and upon which no other trapper may encroach to take animals. The line is registered in the trapper's name and as long as he lives up to the trapping ethics which he is expected and required to observe, he is permitted to have exclusive rights. Should he abuse his line it may be taken from him at any time.

SALVATION OF ANIMALS

This system does away with haphazard trapping, as the trapper will want to make a living off his line. In view of this his line becomes sort of farm and he will not overtrap it, thus depleting his future returns. The commissioner states that the trap line system has undoubtedly been the salvation of the fur-bearing animals in the province, notwithstanding the fact that the stock of certain classes fur-bearers, such as fox, fisher and lynx, depends to a great extent on their food-supply.

He also points out that although there may be a decrease in the number of pelts paid royalty upon in a given year, it does not mean, if the number is down, that the animals are decreasing. The value of the fur enters directly into the question and if the price is down the trapper will prefer to leave the animals until he can get a better price for them. It is good business for him to take the opportunity to increase the "stock on his farm."

BEAVERS INCREASING

During the past two or three years such a scheme has been followed by the trappers with regard to their beavers. Beaver pelts have been bringing in little or no remuneration, and so the trappers have been allowing them to remain, and increase. Many of the trappers in the province are reported to have beavers on their lines, and under present conditions there is no danger of the beaver being trapped out.

The 1933 report sent in by C. F. Kearns, game warden for this district is a favorable one, and although conditions will be slightly different this year, due to the somewhat long winter and heavy snowfall, the numbers of various species of game will not be affected materially, he stated. It would take more than one such adverse winter to diminish the game in anything like noteworthy numbers.

ARE INCREASING

The report of 1934 states that mule-deer are plentiful and white-tail are also numerous, with the exception of the Kettle Valley, Okanagan, Similkameen districts, where they are comparatively scarce. It is usually conceded that deer are more abundant in all sections than at any time within the memory of the oldest residents. This does not refer to specific localities like the Kettle Valley which has always been a favorable winter ground for these animals but to some sections where a score or more years ago deer were almost a rarity. Moose are increasing and extending their range and have definitely established themselves in sections where they were hitherto unknown. Elk are particularly plentiful in the Rocky Mountain section of the East Kootenay and continue to increase and extend their range.

Mountain goat and mountain sheep are numerous in the districts where they are found.

500 TRAP LINES

In the report on fur-bearing animals, mink, marten, lynx and weasel are the main animals caught. Beavers and muskrats are definitely on the increase and "with the present system of trap-line registration the danger of overstepping any particular locality has been limited to a great extent and there is no reason why the 500 trap lines in this division should not continue to produce a varying income for the individual trappers, according to the price of fur, for an indefinite period.

One of the duties of the game warden and their aides, is the destroying of vermin. Under this section of the report sent in for this district, the following vermin were killed, 94 hawks, 745 crows, 523 magpies, 71 owls, 18 eagles, 64 cats, 20 dogs, 54 coyotes and three cougars. These were destroyed by game wardens on patrol. Coyotes taken by trappers amounted to 286.

The royalties derived from the pelts taken in this province during and including the year 1921-1933 amount to $608,719.84. In the following table may be seen the number and kinds of pelts on which royalties have been collected during that time.

Kind of Pelt	Totals for 13 years.	Av. per Yr.
Bear	17,104	1,315
Beaver	239,667	18,451
Fisher	9,300	715
Silver Fox	6,122	470
Cross Fox	12,066	928
Red Fox	14,527	1,117
Blue Fox (farmed)	444	(2 yrs).
Lynx	43,234	3,479
Marten	133,891	10,298
Mink	198,563	15,251
Muskrats	1,114,486	85,729
Otter	10,613	816
Raccoon	61,905	4,761
Skunk	9,674	744
Weasel	514,273	39,559
Wolverine	3,968	305
Wildcat	579	44
Wolf	1,197	92

The royalty collection from the pelts listed above averaged $46,824 per year, the yearly collections being:

Year	Amount
1921	$34,595.80
1922	51,093.89
1923	60,504.18
1924	56,356.68
1925	48,737.78
1926	56,034.13
1927	61,629.06
1928	51,563.07
1929	40,789.89
1930	40,431.11
1931	41,056.06
1932	36,233.79
1933	39,592.48
Total collection	$608,719.84

Despite the strict vigilance of provincial authorities, some pelts do manage to get out of the province without royalty being paid on them, it was pointed out, and so the numbers, in view of this, would not be quite the actual figures of furs taken.

Scouting—Here There and Everywhere

The public generally take a keen interest in a clean fight, and perhaps that is the reason that so many take an interest in the doings of the 1st Nelson Wolf Cub pack, which is fighting to put Cubbing in Nelson on the map once more.

The pack now boasts four leaders or instructors, the last two to line up with the pack, being Norman Boss and David Rees, the addition of these two to the staff of instructors, shows that the pack is measuring up to what a pack should be (but a long way from being perfect yet). Norman was a member of the 1st Nelson pack for four years, then a Scout for two years, and now he has returned to the pack as instructor. David Rees hardly needs an introduction to the Scout or Cub world, for in addition to being First Aid instructor to the Scouts and Cubs some years ago, he was instrumental in training the First Aid team of the 1st Nelson Scouts, which carried off high honors, in the Wallace Nesbitt Junior First Aid competition for five years.

One year the team was first in British Columbia, three years it was second and one year third. For several years the Scouts have not entered a team, much to Mr. Rees' regret, but with the material he is now working with, he is looking forward to having Nelson boys at the head of all competitors again. —Only a pipe dream—perhaps, for it will be a long time till a Cub team can be entered in the competition, for the boys are on the young side yet, but when that happy day arrives, there will not be the slightest doubt of the result. The pack as yet may not be the smartest, but it is certainly the best.

The organization still continues to grow, 37 boys and four instructors, new patrols have been formed and promotions have been the order of the day.

Following are the names of the patrols and the senior Cubs:

As more boys are coming in every week, more promotions are in the offing.

The instructors have their hands full teaching and passing the boys in their Tender Pad tests. No sooner is one group passed than another is ready, and in a weeks time, it is expected that all will have passed. So the work goes on, and the Scout hall on Tuesday nights, is a hive of industry.

The pack took part in the Ypres Day parade, 17 boys turning out. Taking into account the disagreeable weather experienced on Sunday, the attendance was better than could be expected, and great credit is due those hardy chaps, who turned out to pay homage to the memory of those who did so much for them.

Rod McKenzie, Sixer of the White Wolves patrol, went with the Scout party to Calgary, to be present when the Chief Scout Lord Baden Powell visited that city. Lucky Rod, if we were not Cubs we would be green with envy.

Several of the boys have been on the sick list recently which has on occasions reduced our attendance, but they are recovering from their enforced spell of ill health.

Full Dress to Be Worn and More Units in the Procession

LONDON (CP)—London is to have a much more brilliant and imposing spectacle on Jubilee Day, May 6, than was originally intended.

It is not now proposed that the procession accompanying the King ... along the route to St. Paul's Cathedral should be limited to a relatively small escort of troops. It is to be a much longer procession and full-dress uniforms are to be worn.

Soldiers, sailors, airmen, and their bands will participate in much larger numbers than was originally planned.

VER 30,000 MILES IN FIVE MONTHS TRIP IN THE TROPICS

. and Mrs. Rose See Apes, Lizards, Snakes o Last a Lifetime; Beautiful Dutch East Indies; White Nations Doubt Japan

joying to the full a leisurely months rest holiday, on the c seas, and in 37 ports, with and there an incursion into the rior, Dr. and Mrs. W. O. Rose back in Nelson, with the recol- on of wondrous tropical scenery, the belief that they have seen gh apes, snakes, lizards, and keys to last them the rest of lives, and with a disturbed ression that the informed white tion throughout that quarter of world is apprehensive regarding Japanese.

rriving home in Nelson Wednes- afternoon, just five months to y from when they left on their day, they have behind them 00 travel miles, and many varied eriences, while the main object the trip, Dr. Rose's recuperation m his illness, was well served.

AIL FERTILIZER RRIED

n board the Silver Hazel, a Brit- freight liner, Dr. and Mrs. Rose the company of three fellow vellers while the ship's officers, n Capt. Morgan down, had all ved in the war. The captain was outh in Russia when the war ke out, but before long he was a 's officer, and crossed the Atlan- 19 times with cargoes of T.N.T. Kootenay was also represented the cargo holds of the freighter, ich carried 2000 tons of Trail lilized to the orient. Part of this lilizer was landed at Swetten- m, a point in the Strait Settle- nts, but the bulk went to Medan, capital of Sumatra, for the Dutch use, the ammonium phosphate ding up the soil which has been hausted of certain mineral ele- nts by long continued tobacco ture. Native stevedores carried the huge sacks on their heads, customary method of short dis- ce transport.

RILL AT MANILA

the outward bound trip was the ger in point of time, 22 ports be- touched at, compared with 15 the way home, and the travellers' troduction to life in the tropics me with the Philippines, where ir ports were visited. Chief in- est, however, centered in Manila, th its ancient Spanish achitec- re, some churches dating back to 81, and the travellers got a thrill m seeing the room in the ancient thedral where Admiral Dewey ned the convention with the panish, whose fleet he had wiped . The women tourists were espe- ally interested in the quaint cos- mes of the Filipino women, and the wonderful embroidery done pina cloth, made from the fiber of eapple leafs, the embroidery be- g chiefly the work of children in atholic orphanages. Most of the filipino men seemed to be carrying cks under their arms, for use in e national sport of cock fighting. Tiny ponies drawing two-wheeled rts were the common form of urist transport in the Philippines. small were these draft animals t when Dr. and Mrs. Rose and a llow lady traveller climbed into e of the pony carts, their weight ted the pony off its feet.

It was when the Philippines had en left behind, and the freighter rived at the Spice Islands or luccas, part of the Netherlands' uth Sea domain, that the trav- lers considered they were really the east. All told, the Dutch gov- rnment holds sway over an island pulation there of 15,000,000, in- ding Java, Sumatra, part of Bor- o, and lesser areas.

AVA LAND OF COLOR

All these tropic isles had a wealth scenery, color, and animal life, t the high spot of the entire five onths' tour was the seven-day riod spent in Java. Cannas, clean- rs, and the hibiscus lent beauty d color to the landscapes, while e beautiful tarvia roads were ned with trees whose scarlet foli- ge won for them the name of flame the forest, a native tree that was en everywhere in both a wild and cultivated state. The zoological rdens at Soerabaia, a city some- hat larger than Batavia, the capi- l, contained some of the world's ost celebrated animals and birds, cluding orangutans, snakes of all nds from pythons down, iguanas d other lizards, including a spe- men that grows to 10 or 12 feet in ngth and is supposed to represent e of the earth's early forms, croco- iles, Javanese squirrels and mon- eys, and birds of paradise. The deous prehistoric lizard, which is nfined to Java, was a special at- raction, as it has never yet sur- ived export from its tropical home.

In Sumatra the travellers drove nland 22 miles to Medan, the cen- er of the basket industry for the Dutch East Indies, and acquired ouvenir baskets of various types.

INGAPORE NAVAL BASE

Two days were spent at Singa- ore, the seat of government of the Strait Settlements, and the travel- rs drove to Johore to see the sul- n's palace and the famous mosque. The sultan is stated to have a Scot- sh wife. The great British naval ase under construction is 32 miles rom the city of Singapore, on the urther side of the island, and hough it is said to be five years head of the program, the Dutch are lways urging greater speed still. Among the sights on Singapore were the vast rubber plantations, native workers tapping the tall trees, some- what as rock maples are tapped in the eastern Canadian sugar bush. Tapping of 400 trees is said to be a standard day's work.

Next sailing diagonally across the Indian ocean, the Silver Hazel put in at Madras, where the travellers saw the beggars, fakirs, and the sights common to Indian cities. At the Victoria institute there they saw samples of all the native work of all India on display.

MALARIA IN CEYLON

At Colombo, the capital of Ceylon, they drove through the cinnamon gardens, and admired the Cingalese, who constitute an upper caste, do no coolie work, and are well dressed. Owing to the plague of malaria, they were debarred from visiting Kandi, the terrible epidemic, which there is spread by the same Anopheles mosquito that causes the malaria scourges in the western hemisphere, causing 54,-000 deaths in three months. This mosquito does not hum, and the first one knows of its presence is the puncture of its sucking tube. Throughout the tropical portions of the cruise, whenever the freighter was in port, the steward screened the sleeping porches with mosquito netting. At sea, however, all was well. Dr. Rose still has scars of mosquito bites he received on the trip.

SIGHTS OF BOMBAY

From Ceylon, the freighter went to Bombay, on the west coast of India, and was in port four days. The visitors drove up the famous Malabar Hill, admired the beautiful hanging gardens, and saw the vultures waiting on the Parsee towers for corpses to be exposed. They also saw the "wash of India," acres of native washermen and washer-women beating clothes on stones, and washing them in the stone sluices, which delivered both hot and cold water. They drove through the "Gate of India," the beautiful war memorial arch opened some years ago by the Prince of Wales, which looks over the Arabian gulf, and is surrounded by beautiful hotels and parks.

Owing to an epidemic of small pox at Bombay, they were requested to shun six specified quarters of the city, and played safe by keeping away from all the native bazaars. On one day of their visit there were 92 deaths from small pox.

Burning ghats, or funeral pyres, were seen throughout their Indian visit.

Every species of car served the travellers in their jaunts at their various stops on the tour, even a three-wheeled German car, the odd wheel being in front.

Sea sights were the familiar ones in the tropics, and included skimming flying fish, playing porpoises, and small sharks taking the hook. On one occasion a flying fish was found to have landed on deck during the night, and it was served on the table as a novelty.

JAPANESE SUSPECTED

In discussing eastern affairs with commercial and shipping agents of different nations, Dr. Rose found there was a general belief that the Japanese were a real menace, and aimed at picking up all the territory they could. Their spies were reputed to be everywhere through the orient, and they were said to have better charts than the British.

A good deal of disquiet was also evident as a result of the British move toward giving self-government to India, the impression being that it was premature. The situation was somewhat the same as in regard to the Philippines, which are to have their independence, and it was commonly stated that the Filipinos were hoping to have the protection of the British against the Japanese. Filipino officialdom was said to consist almost wholly of half-caste Filipinos, and to be seeking its own rather than the national interest, while the Filipino children of pure blood were farmed out to labor in the plantations and paddy fields.

RATEPAYERS OF TRAIL OPPOSED TO THE BUDGET

Reorganize and Name Sam Stewart as President

OBJECT TO A GARBAGE FEE

Want Budget Revised and Rate Raised if Necessary

TRAIL, B.C., April 25—That a letter be sent to the city council strongly objecting to the accepted recommendation of the finance committee that a fee be charged for garbage collection, requesting that the budget be revised and the mill rate raised if necessary, was a motion unanimously passed at the reorganization meeting of the Trail Ratepayers association in the city hall auditorium Thursday night.

All available seats were filled and many people took up standing room, there being approximately 180 present. Although the meeting lasted close to three hours, few spoke, Mayor E. L. Groutage and Alderman Hugh Bell gave reasons for voting in favor of the report's acceptance while Alderman J. R. Anderson, who had been opposed, gave his reasons for taking his stand against it.

OPPOSE RETURN OF CUTS

Sam Stewart, who had called the meeting, outlined the purpose for so doing, stating it to be to discuss the affairs of the city and the council action concerning the budget. Mr. Stewart, who was unanimously elected president, did not approve of the council's action in returning salary cuts to city employees before the budget had been brought down, and to the proposal to charge for garbage collection.

Chairman Hugh Palmer, of the school board, was called upon to give an outline of how the teachers' salaries were struck. Being unprepared he was only able to inform the meeting that the fluctuation of teachers' salaries was governed by the cost of living, but added that he would be glad to present facts and figures to a later meeting.

J. A. McKinnon, who had had considerable experience in previous ratepayers organizations of Trail presented many views on the purport of such a body. Other officers elected were R. Jafferies, vice-president; F. H. Sindel, secretary, and J. A. McKinnon, Frank Moran, Herb Jackson, J. A. Wadsworth, James Thompson and O. P. Westhaver and G. Varzeveld, were a committee appointed to draw up a constitution and recommend an executive.

After the decision to charge a fee of 50 cents per member, close to $90 was turned in.

THREE TEAMS IN GIRLS BALL LOOP

Star Team Has 15 Registered Players; Players Are Listed

The closing date for entries to the Nelson Ladies softball league found three teams entered for this year's league championship series: Red Sox, Toronto Stars, and Hume Aces, according to Kathleen McDougall, league secretary.

It was intended to start the league play on Sunday, but a hitch has occurred and the earliest possible date is next Wednesday.

Only one surprise occurred in the lists of registered players, that being the name of Sadie McCreight appearing on the Toronto star club. Sadie was formerly a Hackstaff first sacker. The Toronto club leads with the largest number of players registered, having 15.

Players registered by the various teams are as follows, with the names of coaches:

Red Sox: Kathleen McDougall, Rose Stewart (captain), Alvina Arft, Mary McDougall, Sybil McLean, Junie King, Rose Kapak, Dot Jarbeau, Agnes Stewart, Beth McKinney and Carmella Del Puppa; Roy Anderson, coach.

Stars — Gladys Jarrett (captain), Berna Kline, Elaine Boeston, Hazel Spiers, Jean Paterson, Barbara Kingsett, Jean Spiers, Alice Dunn, Jeanne Hopkins, Lena Limacher, Dorothy Waterer, Sadie McCreight, Bobby Cady, Eileen Fletcher and Hilda Talberg. Anthony Scanlan coach, Gilbert Bowling, manager.

Hume Aces—Aria Sears (captain), Clara Talberg, Elvera Matheson, Wilma Milne, Peggy Donaldson, Peggy Gibbon, Peggy McGovern, Babe McDonald, Edna McKenzie and Almeda Grayes, Nellie Brooks, coach; George Benwell, manager.

Some doubt is expressed as to Almeda Graves' eligibility according to league rules, as she is working at Ymir, although her family reside in Nelson. She will probably be protested as a test on league rules.

CALL INQUEST FOR SATURDAY

Reno Miners' Injuries Described by Dr. Morrison

In town for the day, Dr. Neil Edward Morrison of Salmo, gave evidence, at a special inquest sitting at the provincial police court Thursday afternoon, as to the nature of the deaths of Neil Anderson and Oscar Edstrom, who died Tuesday from injuries sustained in the Reno mine.

The special sitting was called while the doctor was in the city, in order that he would not be inconvenienced by being back again. Mine Inspector H. E. Miard of Fernie went out to the Reno mine Thursday and as soon as he and provincial police have had time to collect necessary information, the inquest will be continued at Nelson. This will probably be Saturday afternoon.

Dr. Morrison said that he had been called from the Reno mill about 11 a.m. and told that two men had been injured at the mine. He drove up to the mill and took the tram to the mine where he was met by Mr. Ferguson and taken to the dry house.

There he found Mr. Edstrom lying face down with a miner attempting to revive him by means of artificial respiration. The other man was wrapped up in a blanket and was moaning.

Attending to Mr. Anderson in a hurried examination he could find no chest injuries. He then went to Mr. Edstrom and turned him over only to find that both heart and respiration had ceased. He had a compound fractured of the right leg and his chest had been crushed in.

Once more the doctor turned his attentions to Mr. Anderson in an attempt to save the fast-ebbing life. The man had head wounds but there were no visible signs of serious hemorrhage. His respiration was shallow and labored and his pulse feeble and irregular.

With the help of the miners he wrapped up the injured man and made preparations for the trip down to the mill by the long tram line.

LASHED TO AERIAL RAFT

Mr. Anderson was lowered to the upper tram terminal on a tram car and his stretcher was placed on two timbers which had been lashed to two cable hooks. The work of rigging up the improvised conveyance had taken about 20 minutes and during that time the injured man showed signs of weakening.

Dr. Morrison climbed aboard the aerial raft with Mr. Anderson and the descent started at about 2:15 in the afternoon. Upon arriving at the mill the doctor found that his patient had died.

Asked as to the cause of death of the two men, Mr. Morrison said that Mr. Anderson had died from severe head injuries and shock, and that Mr. Edstrom had died from a crushed chest and severe internal injuries.

The miners and officials had done all in their power to save the lives of the two men, but their injuries had been too severe, the doctor told the court. The mine was also amply equipped for such an accident but even a skilled physician would have been able to do but little, the witness said when asked if the men might have had a chance to pull through. Coroner Dr. H. H. MacKenzie also told the jury that the men's injuries were such that they could not have lived long.

Following Dr. Morrison's testimony jury members chose F. J. Sheran foreman and the inquest was adjourned until Saturday afternoon.

Drowning Death at Trail Accidental

Jury Urges Fence Be Erected Along the Bank of the Creek

TRAIL, B.C., April 25—Accidental death was the verdict brought in by the coroner's jury at the inquest into the death of Antonio Truant, aged 22, whose body was found at the confluence of Trail creek and Columbia river Wednesday after a report was received by city police that a child had fallen into the creek at the head of the gulch. The jury recommended that a fence be erected along the bank of the creek above the entrance to the culvert where it is believd Truant fell in. According to evidence given at the inquest Truant had left the shack in which he lived to go to an out-building on the top of the river bank which was across the narrow street from his residence and had accidentally fallen into the water. The out-building is right at the edge of the 18-foot bank which has a 12-foot perpendicular drop. City Engineer S. S. McDiarmid said the out-building was on the street and that he had no idea such a building had been erected there. He contributed the information there was no screen across the mouth of the culvert, but that huge bars were fixed there. He pointed out the danger of a screen causing a blockade, which would mean flooding the gulch residential area.

Dr. E. E. Topliff of Rossland was officiating coroner and the jury was comprised of A. R. Joy, foreman, Fred Edmunds, Clifford Morgan, James McIntosh, John M. Doughty, Charles Constable.

LUTHERANS OF NELSON HEAR OF THE WORK

Delegates Speak at Congregational Social

THREE-DAY MEET IS CONCLUDED

Final Day Finishes Translations Discussion

A congregational dinner and social evening arranged by the Ladies aid of St. Johns Lutheran church, given at the Legion Thursday evening, was the concluding function in connection with the three-day British Columbia pastoral conference of the Lutheran church, Missouri synod, held in Nelson, which finished its labors Thursday afternoon.

At the evening function, Rev. C. Pfotenhauer of Vernon spoke on mission work in general, while Rev. R. F. Holtzen of Vancouver, who is to take charge of the new parish of Fraser Valley, spoke on the work among the deaf mutes in Vancouver and gave examples of the sign language used. Rev. A. H. Hauke of New Westminster described his work in the mental hospital at Essondale and in Oakalla prison.

A pleasing short play, "The Quack," was presented by the young people of the congregation.

In a discussion at the morning session of the conference, led by Rev. W. Zersen of Kelowna, the proper methods to be employed in sermonizing were pointed out, and it was particularly emphasized that the one purpose of the sermon should be to teach the word of God to the congregation.

BIBLE TRANSLATIONS

Rev. Mr. Holtzen completed his essay on "The History and Importance of Bible Translations," pointing out that while the original manuscripts of the Bible in Hebrew and Greek had been lost, no other book of ancient times had come down to today so thoroughly authenticated as the Holy Scriptures. "God's desire that fallen men should all come to the knowledge of the truth not only presupposes a divinely inspired revelation," he said, "but also that God would preserve His word unadulterated." In speaking of the extreme reverence with which the Bible was ever regarded, copied, recopied, and translations given, Mr. Holtzen asserted the perfect harmony of divine teachings was preserved, as any conscientious student might ascertain by a careful comparison of the many copies and translations available.

While admitting that the Bible contained obscure passages, Mr. Holtzen said the whole Christian doctrine was plainly taught in passages that were understood clearly by learned and unlearned alike, and that therefore the Christian's faith could and must be built upon those clearly understood passages. He warned against using interpretations and dark passages of the scriptures as a basis of belief.

Today's most important translation of the Bible were said by the essayist to be that of Martin Luther, of 1534, and the King James authorized version, of 1611, both being true translations from the most authentic manuscripts in the original languages. The earlier translation by William Tyndale, published after that of Martin Luther, was basic for the King James authorized version, he asserted, and showed extreme similarity to that of Martin Luther.

HOSPITALITY APPRECIATED

The conference, in concluding, expressed its deep appreciation of the hospitality experienced in Nelson.

This conference was the semi-annual one, and the annual elections will be held at the annual one, to be held six months hence in the Okanagan.

IF APRIL IS YOUR BIRTHDAY MONTH

The people of April are thinkers, and they
Are always determined to have their own way.
These folks should be leaders, they're then at their best—
For when under others they're never at rest.
They're often artistic, and musical, too.
Make very fine teachers. 'Tis certainly true
That those born in April are whimsical folk,
And those they dislike they oft try to provoke.
Now Tuesday is lucky, for these, and July
Is good for the things they have planned. All should try
To wed with those born at the end of the year.
The diamond's the stone for this month, that is clear.
The people of this month oft sacrifice health
For work—or it may be in striving for wealth.
So these must avoid over-working and they Should know that "Who dances, the fiddler must pay."

The popular interpretation of "figger" this year, has a sleek, poured-in look that can only be achieved by sleek, smooth-fitting undergarments. The new pantie and bloomer sets and slips at GODFREYS' LIMITED, are the the slickest I've seen, especially for fuller figures, since they will fit without that bunching about the waist that adds inches to the hip-line. Slim and flattering, lace-trimmed and dainty, these garments are stocked in sizes to fit the college gal or dowager. And while you're about it, look at the new "Clearophane" Orient hose. Transparent and gauzy as a cobweb! Try 'em and see!

Quilted jackets are the thing to wear for evening, generally with wide lapels of stitched or ruffled taffeta in white.

A musical treat in store for us is the GLEE CLUB CONCERT under the leadership of Mr. F. E. Wheeler, in St. Paul's Church on May 1st, when Miss Mary Jarvis, Mr. Archie Phillips and Miss Mae Macfarlane will entertain, assisted by our local club artists, Mr. W. Coleman, Mr. Norman Beattie and Mr. Nelson L. Ball and chorus. Only 35 cents.

With Spring knocking at our doors so persistently, these bright sunny days, the playground comes into its own. These are the days of sport when a good game of soft ball or tennis puts roses in cheeks too long pale from want of sunshine and outdoor games. The playground equipment at the WOOD-VALANCE HARDWARE COMPANY is having a grand rush from the younger generation, and bats and balls of all sorts are going fast. If you haven't seen the new Slazenger tennis rackets and the Wright and Ditson 1935 tennis balls all done up in sets of three, and the soft ball bats and balls all ready to be taken for an airing, you've missed the chance to give your gal the best time ever. Call in today.

And so, until next week, Adieu.

Our King and Queen on their Silver Jubilee

The King recuperates from serious illness in 1929.

On November 11, 1928, 10 years after the end of the great war, the King stood bareheaded before the Cenotaph in London in silent prayer for Britain's dead heroes.

A few days later he was ill with a slight cold. On November 22, a bulletin was issued from Buckingham palace that the King was indisposed and would be unable to attend any official functions.

It was only then that the British people knew that King George was seriously ill. From that day until well on in February of the following year, the health of the King was in a state of uncertainty.

Suffering from a congestion of the lung, which necessitated an operation, the poison had permeated through his system and rendered him almost too weak to fight off the ravages of the disease.

It was during this period of illness that the people of the Empire showed their love for their King. Every day thousands of people waited at the gates of Buckingham palace for bulletins; special prayer services were held to which literally millions of British subjects attended; the visitors' book at Buckingham palace was filled every few days with notables from foreign lands calling to express their sympathy.

For the first time during her reign, Queen Mary took over for a few days the official duties of her husband. Later a special council was appointed.

But a strong desire to live, plus a constitution that had been carefully looked after in early life, spared the King and by Easter of 1929, he was able to appear in public again. Our picture today shows him in Queen Victoria's bath chair at Craigwell House, Bognor, where he rested during the period of convalescence. The publication of this picture in 1929 was the first real knowledge the people had that the King was recovering.

Next: The King resumes his duties.

Negotiations May Pave Way for Huge New Arab Empire

Britain Would Hold Upper Hand if Ibn Saud and Abdullah Join

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN
Central Press Canadian Writer

AMMAN, Transjordania, April 25—An Arab king on Dedid's throne. Abullah, of the house of Hussein, who is now emir of Transjordania, and not satisfied with his job, is a candidate for the kingdom of Jerusalem. This is not a mere fantasy, a vague rumor to be discounted by Zionists, because they ardently wish it isn't so. It is a fact. As a Zionist, I fully realize the danger to the cause of the Jewish national home in Palestine of such a change in the near east. Unfortunately the supervision of the building of the Jewish national home in Palestine is not the sole nor the chief reason for Great Britain's presence in these parts.

Ibn Saoud is a mighty king now. He has virtually the whole of Southern and middle Arabia under his control. Britain has never opposed him. He is an ally and an ally who can be trusted. Ibn Saoud has begun to feel a whole lot of late years for that old plan of a federated Arabic empire with himself in the role of emperor. This plan is not of his own conception. It is the plan of the British colonial office. Such men as Colonel Lawrence, Ronald Storrs, General Bolls, Keith-Roach, St. John Philby are its partisans.

The plan miscarried, chiefly because the foreign office, for reasons of state, inserted the project of a Jewish national home in the plans for an after-war settlement of the Arabian question. But the original plan was never abandoned.

Now if Ibn Saoud and Abdullah, respectively king of the Hedjaz and emir of Transjordania, could come to an agreement a great and important step toward a materialization of an Arabic empire could be made. The mufti of Jerusalem, that is to say the head of the Mohammedan community, a gentleman with the finest silken red beard I ever saw and blue baby eyes, has been visiting both Ibn Saoud and Abdullah.

But Abdullah detests Ibn Saoud. He has good reason too. Ibn Saoud chased Abdullah's father, old Hussein, out of Mecca, where he had been sheriff (emir) all his life. Ibn Saoud fully reciprocates the sentiment for various other reasons, to long to enumerate here.

Yet the mufti of Jerusalem, a shrewd Oriental, has accomplished the seemingly impossible. He has acted as go-between and brought the two enemies at least a little closer together. They may meet some day. Such things don't go speedily in the east. They take their time about things here.

Before meeting his own and his father's arch enemy, Abdullah has visited London twice within the last few months. He is willing that his kingdom Transjordania shall be incorporated in an Arabic federal empire under presidency of Ibn Saoud. But on one condition; Palestine must be added to his own kingdom. Ibn Saoud would be king of Transjordania and Palestine. The relation would be something like that of the German kings of Bavaria, Wurttemberg and Saxony to the German emperor before the war. And the whole under the aegis and protection of Great Britain. Later Irak would be joined to the empire under a similar arrangement and — who knows? — maybe Syria too, with a king on the throne of Damascus.

The cononial office feels a good deal for this plan. It is their old plan in fact. Ibn Saoud is a mighty monarch, but Abdullah as king of both Palestine and Transjordania would also be a mighty prince. Their respective strength and influence would about be equal in the proposed empire. They would balance. The English are strong believers in what is known as the balance of power. They have pursued a policy of balance of power in Europe for centuries. Why should it not work in Arabia?

But now comes the difficulty. That difficulty is the Balfour declaration. The Balfour declaration is not the work of the colonial office. It was made by Lord Balfour as undersecretary of state for foreign affairs, a foreign office measure thus. It sets forth that his majesty's government looks with favor upon the establishment of a national home for the Jewish people in Palestine. Palestine is rapidly becoming such a home. And that puts the crimp in the Arabic federated empire.

The Arabs of Palestine are willing to come in. some of them at any rate, those who are followers of the Jerusalem mufti. But the Jews have no desire to share in the game. The Jews are still in the minority in Palestine. Some day they may overcome this disadvantage. But they could never overcome that disadvantage in an Arabic empire.

Moreover, it is difficult to see the Jews of Palestine serve in the army of an Arabic monarch, march against—well — against Ibn Saoud, for instance, if Abdullah and his liege lord should ever have a falling out, which is not an impossible eventuality.

But Abdullah is not satisfied with Transjordania as it is. If he goes into Ibn Saoud's empire he insists on bringing something more than Transjordania. He wants to be king of Palestine, with Jerusalem as capital. Jerusalem is a glorious city, growing mightily, full of prosperity. His own little capital of Amman, where these lines are written, is a dusty highways with gray Arabic homes and huts straggling alongside it, more huts than houses.

And then says Abdullah: Did not the Jews always say that Palestine and Transjordania are one and the same country, that these two lands belong together and never should have been separated? That's true, say the Jews, but we want the two parts joined in one Jewish state, not in a state under an Arabic king, with Arabs occupying the dominant position.

For the time being negotiations continue, but not in Jerusalem or Amman. Over in London.

TORONTO STARS ARE CONFIDENT

Pleased With Way Players Are Shaping Up in Practices

With the local ladies' softball league due to start within the next week, officials of the Toronto Star club state that they are well satisfied with the showing of the team in practice and make no denial of their reported assertions that they expect to cop the B.C. Plumbing company trophy this season.

It is expected that the club will start a daily practise period from now on as practise sessions are called for tonight, Friday evening and Sunday morning.

The Toronto Star club is really an all-star aggregation, as players from last year's Bluebirds, Greyhounds and Racketeers are among their ranks in addition to a former prairie player, Jean Hopkins. Berna Kline, ace player of a couple of years ago has returned to Nelson and has signed with the Toronto Star club.

The team appears to be well supplied with pitching strength, Jean Hopkins, Hazel Spiers and Lena Limacher being the standouts. Jean Spiers and Gladys Jarrett have also had considerable experience.

JEAN OR BERNA

Jean Paterson, one of the four Jeans on the team, has been considered the regular catcher and may start at that position, but should Berna Kline be able to play regularly, Jean will probably be moved to one of the outfield positions and Berna stationed behind the plate.

The present infield calls for Gladys Jarrett to play first base; Dorothy Waterer, second; Elaine Beeston, shortstop; and Barbara Kingzett, third. While this combination is a strong one, Gladys Jarrett has been bothered with injured fingers and may be moved to the outfield, where the work is not so hazardous. There is also the likelihood of Jean Paterson will go into the infield and because of her strong throwing arm she would probably be stationed at third base, with Barbara Kingzett pairing Dorothy Waterer at second and short, and Elaine Beeston moving over to the initial sack.

Alice Dunh, considered the flashiest fly-chaser in the district ladies' softball circles, is a fixture for center field with Jean Spiers, likewise a certainty for left field. Either one of the spare pitchers or Gladys Jarrett will be stationed in right field. As the club has previously announced it will carry only 12 players and 14 are reported signed. The choice for twelfth position will be between Mrs. "Bobby" Cady, Eileen Fletcher and Hilda Talberg. The other 11 players are considered certain to hold a place.

Contrary to the general comment the Toronto Star players and officials expect to have a harder time defeating the Red Sox than the other league entries. The Red Sox have a strong club spirit that has not been found among other clubs.

SASKATOON, April 24.—Peter Gregoryvitch Makaroff, K.C., Saskatoon, intermittent counsel to that unhappy turbulent mystic, Peter Verigin, "spiritual leader" of several thousand Doukhobors, was the first direct Doukhobor descendent to set foot inside a university since that peculiar sect disintegrated amidst a welter of state and religious persecution in southern Russia, 250 years ago.

In January of 1933, Peter Makaroff flew from Winnipeg to Halifax, where he succeeded in stopping at the last moment Verigin's deportation to Russia.

Verigin was serving a three-year term in Prince Albert penitentiary, Saskatchewan, after conviction for perjury. Prison sentence not yet completed, the Doukhobor leader heard a warden's key turn in the cell lock: "Here are your clothes; get ready, there's a journey ahead of you."

Back in May of 1930, when Verigin entered jail, he was wearing a straw hat. And that is how he came to be wearing a straw hat in the middle of January, 1933, when he was whisked from Prince Albert jail to a waiting railway coach.

Canadian government authorities fearing trouble from Doukhobor supporters along the line, shrouded in secrecy Verigin's rail journey through snow-covered Saskatchewan, to the ocean liner at Halifax. His train was pulling into Winnipeg, before Peter Makaroff, in Saskatoon, learned of this hasty transfer.

Picking up the telephone, Makaroff spoke with Hon. Wesley Gordon, minister of immigration, requesting that Verigin be held in Winnipeg, so that he (Makaroff) could consult with the Doukhobor leader. The minister of immigration refused, says Makaroff.

The lawyer boarded a train for Winnipeg, wiring ahead for an airplane to fly for Halifax.

While the pilot refueled at Boston, Makaroff got the prime minister out of bed to answer a telephone call: "Visibility is poor, I cannot arrive before the ship sails," Makaroff pleaded.

"That man Verigin is to leave on the Montcalm tomorrow morning, and no power on earth can stop him," Mr. Bennett ended the telephone conversation, according to Makaroff. He smiled as he recounted the incident.

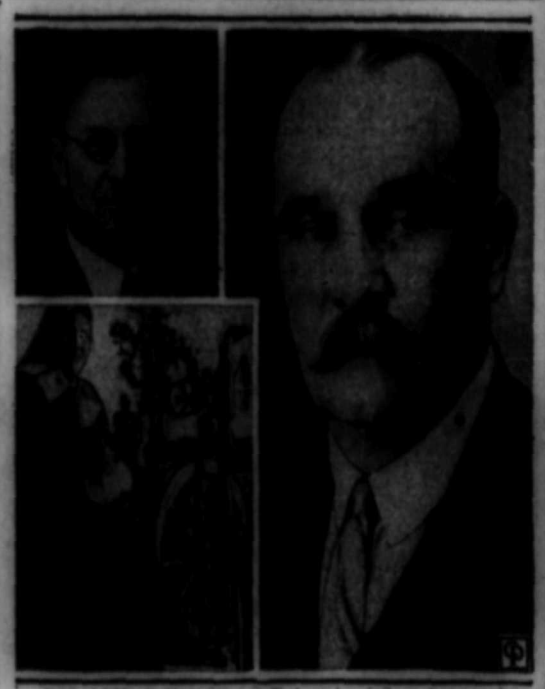
Flying low over Halifax harbor the following morning Makaroff scanned the dock for the S.S. Montcalm. Hurrying to the ship's side, he found Verigin surrounded by a cordon of Royal Canadian Mounted police. "You cannot deport this man," he told police authorities.

WON LEGAL TIFF

"Legally speaking, either Verigin has been pardoned, or he is still undergoing sentence.

"If pardoned, the crime and all its consequences have been wiped out, and Verigin should be at liberty.

"If he has not been pardoned, then Verigin should be in his proper place at Prince Albert jail in Saskatchewan—not at Halifax.



TOP, LEFT, is Peter Makaroff, legal counsel to Peter Verigin (RIGHT), Doukhobor leader, and the man who blocked the attempt to deport Verigin. LOWER, a Doukhobor woman in her native costume spinning in her home.

"In either case, you have no legal right to deport him."

Police and immigration officials found themselves restrained from proceeding with the deportation.

"Deport him," ordered the prime minister.

"Illegal," replied Makaroff.

Canadian law superseded imperious words. The prime minister pursed his lips; the Montcalm steamed out of harbor for Europe; Verigin customarily proceeded to gourmandize in a Halifax hotel suite—that day he had received by wire several thousand dollars from toiling Doukhobor fruit farmers of Brilliant, British Columbia. Makaroff returned to Saskatoon.

"Where is Verigin now?" I inquired of Peter Makaroff in his Saskatoon home.

"He must soon complete a jail sentence at Winnipeg, where he was convicted of assaulting his interpreter in a Winnipeg hotel room." Peter Makaroff answered as a sad and stolid look came into unusually humorous eyes.

"Perhaps you did not desire Verigin deported, because you look on him as a good citizen for Canada?" I queried.

VERIGIN A RASPUTIN

"Verigin is a tempestuous mystic—a strange man—a relatively inconsequential Rasputin. While he disgusts me, I feel sorry for him. Mad illusions which materialize only in intemperance and escapades.

"The Bolsheviks in U.S.S.R. would not make it pleasant for him if he returned. They have no use for him; he was there during the revolution of October, 1917.

A forbidding look of determination crossed Makaroff's face: "There is something of more immediate importance. Had Verigin been deported, the older Doukhobors—who now look upon him as divine—would see him as a martyr. And their blind, credulous faith would become yet more fanatical in protest to 'oppression' of their 'spiritual leader.' Perhaps to the tune of more nude marches, or burning of schools? Who knows?"

He shrugged, as he strode across the red carpet with an activity that recalled in student days he played rugby for the University of Saskatchewan.

"If Verigin stays in Canada, the older Doukhobors will have more opportunity to find him out for themselves. Consequently there will be less reaction by the older ones against the youth movement."

"Doukhobortski will cease to blindly attribute 'Divine Leadership' to an impossible human being. Each year, more Canadian Doukhobors are thinking for themselves."

DISSERTATION ON WORDS

The ardor displayed by the present-day Germany to be nothing but German occasionally manifests itself in curious forms. The chief burgomaster of Frankfurt is so alarmed over the number of "foreign-born" words that have been "naturalized," that he has issued an order requiring their abandonment and the use, in their place, of words of whose German parentage there can be no possible doubt, no possible doubt whatever. The list issued includes the following "intruders" and the officially-blessed substitutes: For "risiko," from English "risk," there is substituted "gefahrenwahrscheinlichkeit," to suggest the probability of danger; in place of "garage," which is of French extraction, is "kraftwagenhalle"; "omnibus," deriving from Latin, must give way to "grosskraftwagen"; "etat," used for "budget plan," is to be supplanted by "haushaltsplan" to describe planned expenditure and collection of revenue; a person in impaired health is no longer to be an "invalide", the Gallic word, but "arbeitsbeschrankter"; "archives" is to be dropped for "sammlung"; to provide means will cease to be described as "finanzierung" and will become "mittelbeschaffung" and "statistik" will give place to "zahlenvergleich."

The burgomaster of Frankfurt, it is safe to predict, has started a losing battle. The persistence of people in using words that are convenient or that have struck their fancy, is remarkable. Foreign words, once made at home in a language, simply refuse to go home. English is full of them, some of such long and honorable record that most people would be surprised if told they came from a foreign country originally. France is fond of adopting English words, using many of them with no change of spelling although the pronunciation often gives them a truly Gallic flavor.

The curious way in which words may acquire a special meaning is exemplified by the term "Scotland Yard." Ten centuries ago, Scots living in London congregated on the north bank of the Thames. From this came the name. Hundreds of years later the place name, still in existence, was used to designate a special division of of the London police. Now Scotland Yard, in most parts of the world, is synonymous with efficient, well-directed and persistent enforcement of the law. The history of the name has inspired the New York Sun to suggest that "some day it may be promoted to the classification of a common noun, stripped of its capitals, run together, and be printed as scotlandyard, meaning nationalheadquartersoftheconstabularyanditscomplementarypersonnelofhawkshaws." What the equivalent would be in pure German must be left to the inventive genius of the good burgomaster of Frankfurt.

WHAT DOES TOBACCO DO TO THE SMOKER?

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

Tobacco still is popularly called a "weed," and this is typical of the many popular inaccuracies which cluster around it. It may have been a "weed" when Sir Walter Raleigh found it in the new world, but it certainly is a sedulously cultivated and expensive plant today.

The people who decry tobacco steadily are getting in the minority. A physician who called up 1000 men in five towns, selected in sequence from the telephone directory, found that 82 per cent of them were smokers. He probably would have had almost the same figures if he had included women.

The objections which have been made to tobacco are several, which I will discuss under separate paragraphs following. In discussing them I will give the result of objective observation and experiment, the answers of science, and steer away from opinion as much as the facts permit.

SMOKING SHORTENS WIND?

One criticism of tobacco is that it shortens the wind of athletes. This question was examined very carefully by Doctors Turley and Harrison of Nashville, Tenn., who reported in the American Journal of Medical Science in 1932 that "smoking, even to excess, of 20 or more cigarets a day, produced no significant decrease in the respiratory efficiency in response to such exertion as is necessitated by the ordinary duties of life."

A group of medical students who had participated in college athletics a few years before, and had been smoking regularly since, showed quite as good "wind" as most members of the football squad.

Is tobacco bad for the heart? There is no question that tobacco will cause palpitation, consciousness of the heart's action and irregularity of the pulse. These are functional troubles which indicate no organic change in the heart, and pass away when the tobacco is discontinued.

NO DIFFERENCE IN BLOOD PRESSURE

Dr. Wingate Johnson, from his observations, failed to note any difference in the blood pressure of smokers and abstainers. The use of tobacco unquestionably induces attacks of angina pectoris, but it does not cause them. In other words, it is not responsible for the organic changes which cause angina. When those changes are present in the heart, the use of tobacco will bring on attacks more frequently. Smokers who begin to have angina usually give up tobacco. It also produces attacks of pain in the heart in young people which are probably due to spasm of the arteries of the heart. This is pseudo-angina.

Does tobacco cause any digestive disturbance? Is it an aid to digestion? There is some discussion about this. Dickson, in the Journal of the Canadian Medical association, says that smoking may cause increased acid in the stomach. Others believe that it may be a predisposing cause of ulcer of the stomach. There is much opposition to such a view, however. On the contrary, we cannot say that tobacco is any aid to digestion.

A Thought for Today

"Watch and pray, that, ye enter not into temptation: the spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak."
—St. Matthew, 26:41.

Between You and Me

By J. B. C.

Did you ever, in your travels, come across this chap?

MAX BASKIN

well known Kootenay lumber and pole operator, dressed ready for work and harboring that ever-present cigar. Better known among his pals as Max "MacBaskin," he has earned an enviable reputation as a singer at curling and other sporting banquets. His chief song is "There's a Wee Hoose Mang the Heather." Max speaks numerous languages fluently and can even tell a Chinese cook where to get off at. Next to curling at which game he is a real enthusiast Max likes horseshoe pitching. He probably built up this reputation in the woods, when, as a logging horse lost a shoe, he would madly hurl it deep into the forest. If it hit a rock and let out a musical note, he knew he had made a "ringer." Max follows all lines of sport and on trips east takes in big league ball games. A genial host, Max has hundreds of friends throughout British Columbia. If you don't know him, just watch for a chap of this stature, standing among a crowd of fellows. Note his stance and you can't miss him. This picture is truly characteristic.

KASLO FOLK VISIT NELSON

Thursday could not have been a very busy day in Kaslo for down town yesterday afternoon I ran into several Kaslo'ites and Russel Tinkess, one of the boys, remarked that he should have stayed at home and robbed a bank. Anyway two important personages from Kaslo, who were Nelson visitors, were Mayor W. Vidler Papworth and his first assistant Chief of Police Logan MacPhee. Both were intent upon interviewing Mayor J. P. Morgan when they passed me and both were so aborbed in their actions that they passed poor little me right up. However, if I can get by the chief in Kaslo as easily any time I am up there, well, I guess I should worry.

OPERA HOUSE HISTORY

Just had an interesting five minutes with J. E. Annable who is being besieged with letters these days concerning old days in the Nelson opera house, only recently destroyed by fire. Ted Mason, who did vaudeville turns in Nelson for many years in the pioneer days, has a handbill dated July 9, but he doesn't know what year. He mentions a program at which the prettiest girl in Nelson was shown. There was also a wonderful electrical display and moving pictures. Mr. Annable recalls bringing the first moving picture machine to Nelson and bringing a man from New York to run the show. At any rate he says this program dates back to July, 1901 or 1902. But do you think we could find a file of that date? It is missing—probably borrowed and not returned. Maybe some oldtimer can remember this show and give Mr. Annable a hand as well as Ted Mason, who oldtimers will recall, was a cricketer of repute, and who also staged numerous vaudeville turns, particularly ones taking off negro dialect.

JUST AROUND TOWN

Here and there—Dave Wade and Les Bealby discussing a recent animal picture at the local movie house—and both getting a kick out of the wonderful training that must have been necessary to make a cougar and a deer pals—Dave, by the way, was discussing the Vimy pilgrimage—and of how he would like to make the trip—He says there are a lot of old haunts he would like to look up in London and Paris—Jack Meek and W. M. Cameron were discussing lacrosse—and a plan to start school boys at the game—Al Gelinas gets a great kick out of watching the gasoline shovel work at the auditorium site—Dave Laughton takes delight in getting the perspective of the work from various angles—Alderman Tom Waters and Engineer Russel Potter—were busy men yesterday at the excavation—Everyone likes to watch the shovel—and if the operators could hear people talking—they would know a lot more about the shovel—candidly there are more people who know how to run that machine better than the operators than could be counted in a crate of eggs—In fact the crowd does more digging than is possible for one shovel—I wondered where all the old bottles come from—In an excavation at the grounds they are digging up bottles that contained gin, whisky, brandy, pop and I imagine pickles—All of which brings to mind the tremendous output of glass that must be made each year—Not to imagine the huge consumption of pickles.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By E. V. SHEPARD
"Teacher of Teachers"

AN ASTONISHING SCORE

There are several important facts to be learned from the following deal and subsequent happenings, as will become evident as bidding and play are detailed. The first thing is the dubious nature of South's opening bid of two no trumps, lacking the major tenace in spades, the ace of his diamond suit and the A K of clubs. While his cards do count seven probable tricks he misses three aces, also the Q of one aceless suit, and the K of another similar suit. Such a call may turn out well. If so, however, one no trump will as well answer his purpose.

North: ♠ 9 8 7 6 3 2 ♥ None ♦ J 3 ♣ 8 7 6 4 3

West: ♠ A Q 5 ♥ K J 9 8 7 6 3 ♦ 5 ♣ 10 2

East: ♠ 4 ♥ 5 4 3 2 ♦ A 9 8 7 6 4 ♣ A K 9

South: ♠ K J 10 ♥ A Q 10 ♦ K Q 10 2 ♣ Q J 5

West holds one of the four types of hands calling for a game bid over no trumps. His hearts must be worth many tricks at a suit call, but he may be unable to accomplish much played defensively, as no trumps may be run off in his very weak minor suits. West's overcall of four hearts was obligatory. North could not fail to over call with four spades, considering his six, five, two distribution, his partner's opening bid of two and his own voidness of hearts, of course North bid four spades. Three quick tricks, three of partner's suit and a single spade, more than justified East's five hearts. South felt compelled to bid five spades, forcing six hearts from West. North wisely passed, to permit South to double and exterminate such rash opponents. South doubled, but the extermination process failed.

Neither side was vulnerable. Had opponents been vulnerable a double, by East would have ruined the five spade bid. The best possible defence would have garnered two trump tricks, two club tricks and a single diamond trick, with a ruff by West. That would have hurt. East would have doubled six spades, had it been bid.

The opening lead was the six of spades. South's K fell before the ace. The K of clubs afforded easy entry to dummy. A trump was led through South. Declarer's J picked up South's 10. North showed out. Dummy ruffed a spade and led the last heart through South. He went up with his ace and led back his J of spades, only to lose to declarer's Q. Then West picked up the Q of hearts with his K. An established trump suit, no more spades, the aces of clubs and diamonds in dummy made the remainder of declarer's cards a spread for his small slam contract, an astonishing score against an opening bid of two no trumps. Had South dreamed of the result he never would have pushed opponents into a small slam contract.

SAFETY SAMMY SAYS — By E. Gen. Green

POSTSCRIPT TO RUSSIA

By William Henry Chamberlin
(In the Christian Science Monitor)

(Last of a Series of Three)

All forms of religion in Russia today are living through a major crisis. This crisis is no less severe and poignant because, as a result of the general conditions of life under the world's most sweeping and ruthless dictatorship, its details are largely hidden from the eyes of the outside world.

Russia is a land of many races and of many faiths; but the tragedy of its religious life affects equally the priests and ministers and devout adherents of all its various creeds. The Orthodox priest lives in great poverty and social obloquy. His children are excluded from the higher schools and from state employment (and almost all employment in the Soviet Union is state employment) unless they ostentatiously repudiate him and break off connection with him.

EVANGELICALS "DANGEROUS"

At any time his little church may be marked for demolition and he himself may be packed off in a freight car to forced labor in a bleak northern timber camp after a secret arrest and "trial" before a star-chamber tribunal on a vague and unspecified charge of "counter-revolution."

The Baptist, the Evangelical Christian minister who believes in a different form of faith from the Orthodox priest, who teaches his simple peasant or working class parishioners that faith in the Bible and right living are more important than ritualistic observances, is in no better plight. A spokesman for the Union of Militant Atheists, the chief Soviet antireligious organization, told me that "the sectarians are our most dangerous enemies, because they do not uphold obvious superstitions"; and Soviet legislation in some respects bears harder on sectarians than on the Orthodox church.

For instance, the Baptists and other evangelical groups had developed a far-flung network of charitable, educational, sport and recreation clubs and circles, and this had considerably strengthened their influence among the youth. The Soviet law on religious activity of 1929, which marked the transition from a policy of anti-religious propaganda and discrimination to one of definite persecution, made all these organizations illegal with one stroke of the pen.

JEWS SCATTERED

The seminary and general headquarters which the Baptists maintained in Moscow have been closed; they have no means of training ministers; and their present ministers, lay preachers and active members know very well that they are in constant danger of arbitrary arrest and banishment.

The Orthodox priest and the evangelical minister have their companion in the Jewish rabbi of the city of small town in Ukraina or Western Russia. Before the war the rabbi was the center of a close-knit Jewish community life, which held together with firmness and tenacity in the face of the systematic Tsarist policy of racial discrimination, punctuated by occasional pogroms.

Today the rabbi perhaps finds satisfaction in the fact that there is no discrimination against Jews on racial grounds. But he sees the religious life which he has cherished, the specifically Jewish community spirit breaking up and disintegrating; the younger Jews will go to the Communist youth club, not to the synagogue, which, like the church, may be closed at any time.

And the Mohammedan mulah, accustomed to sound the call to prayer from the minaret of his mosque in the mountains of the Caucasus or the oases of Central Asia, discovers that the doctrine of Lenin is more powerful than the armies of the Tsars, which once overran these Moslem lands, but did not break the faith of their inhabitants in Islam. In the Mohammedan parts of Russia also traditional religious institutions are crumbling.

RELIGIOUS BOOKS EXCLUDED

This crisis of religion is in part attributabe to the predicious impact of the new ideas which were ushered in by the revolution. But it is at least equally attributable to the ruthless persecution of religion which is an integral part of general Soviet policy. For the first time in history all the administrative and propaganda resources of an immensely powerful dictatorial state have been cast into the scale against all forms of religion.

While propaganda for atheism is lavishly encouraged, it is impossible to print or to import religious books or publications or to present the claims of religion in public addresses or debates. Teaching in the schools must be not only non-religious, but definitely atheistic. Profession of religious faith may mark a student for dismissal from the university, an employee for loss of his post and subsequent blacklisting in the state service. The constitutional right of every Soviet citizen "to profess any or no form of religion," like many other features of that document, is systematically violated in practice.

I know of a case when some young men who had been guilty of nothing but studying for the priesthood were banished to an extremely hot and unpleasant place in Central Asia.

MINISTRY IS SUSPECT

In travelling about the Russian country districts I repeatedly learned of instances when persons who had been selling candles or performing other minor offices in connection with the local church had been singled out for social victimization during the process that was euphemistically described as "the liquidation of the kulaks as a class." To be a priest or a minister is to be a member of the most dangerous profession in the Soviet Union today.

The circumstances of Russia's crisis of religion are very imperfectly known abroad. In this respect there is a noteworthy difference between the church controversy which has been proceeding in Germany for more than a year and the situation in Russia. There certainly has been, from time to time, state pressure against leaders of the German Church opposition; yet its leaders have succeeded in making their case pretty well known abroad through sermons, pamphlets and direct interviews granted to foreign correspondents.

The isolation which is imposed on Russian leaders of religious faith is infinitely greater. Any communication to the foreign press of concrete details of arrests, arbitrary closing of churches, conditions of priests and ministers in concentration camps would entail the sternest immediate reprisals not only against the individual who made it, but against anyone who was even remotely associated with him.

The course of the sole interview which the acting Patriarch of the Orthodox Church, Metropolitan Sergei, granted to foreign journalists confirmed very strongly instead of dispelling the impression of extreme repression. At a time when persecution of religion was especially intense, in the winter of 1929-1930, the Metropolitan was quoted in Izvestia (it was the first and last time within recent years that a Russian ecclesiastic was interviewed for the benefit of the Soviet official newspaper) to the effect that there was no persecution of religion in Russia.

METROPOLITAN SECRETIVE

Through the mediation of the Commissariat for Foreign Affairs, foreign newspapermen were permitted to put supplementary questions to him in writing and to meet him personally. However, this personal meeting was of extremely brief duration. The Metropolitan visibly took fright at the first concrete questions about the numbers of churches which had been closed and the numbers of priests who had been executed and banished, and rushed off with somewhat undignified haste, murmuring as he retreated from the room:

"Oh, I couldn't answer such questions. I must consult—the Holy Synod." The latter, according to the general surmise of the correspondents, was a euphemism for the Gay-Psy-Oo.

In the present atmosphere of extreme repression and persecution, and with a wall of secrecy erected between experiences of Russian religious bodies and the outside world, one can only hazard a conjecture as to the probable future course of developments. It seems probable that there will be a continued diminution in the number of openly self-confessed believers, partly because of the effect of the stream of antireligious propaganda, partly because of the likelihood of discrimination and persecution.

At the same time the faith of those groups which are prepared to stand by their convictions will become more intense. If religion is to survive at all in the unequal conditions of struggle which the Soviet regime has created for it, this result can only come about as a result of the exercise of exceptional faith and devotion.

C.C.F. PROTESTS SPENDING MONEY, JUBILEE MEDALS

The Editor,
Nelson Daily News.

Sir—Following please find a copy of a letter written to the Nelson school board and the mayor and aldermen of the city of Nelson in regard to medals being given to Nelson school in commemoration of the 25th anniversary of the accession of Their Majesties.

I was instructed to hand a copy of this letter to you.

E. H. EVANS,
Secretary, Nelson C.C.F. Club
Box 1016, Nelson, B.C.,
April 24, 1935.

THE LETTER

"Gentlemen—At the last regular meeting the C.C.F. club, held Wednesday evening last, April 17, a resolution was passed protesting against spending money by the school board and city council to purchase medals to present to the pupils in the Hume, Central and Sisters of St. Joseph schools, commemorating the 25th anniversary of the accession of Their Majesties.

"The Club secretary was instructed to write a letter of protest to the school board and to the city council and to send a copy to the editor of the Nelson Daily News.

"One of the objections to spending money for medals is that there are many children and adults in Nelson and district who are underfed and the I.O.D.E. members are, at the present time, asking for subscriptions to their fund to buy milk and other things for underfed children.

"Would it not be a far greater thing if it could be said of Nelson, that, in commemoration of the 25th anniversary, all children were being taken care of and had the necessary food, and not that medals had been given to certain school children?

According to the same news item, scholars of the junior high and high school voted that the money necessary to purchase medals for them, be used towards the money raised for cancer cure.

"The news item referred to appeared in the Nelson Daily News of April 16.

"Yours sincerely,
E. H. EVANS,
"Secretary, C.C.F. Club,
Nelson, B.C."

APRIL RAIN

It is not raining rain for me,
It's raining daffodils;
In every dimpled drop I see
Wild flowers on the hills.

The clouds of gray engulf the day
And overwhelm the town;
It is not raining rain to me,
It's raining roses down.

It is not raining rain to me,
But fields of clover bloom,
Where any buccaneering bee
Can find a bed and room.

A health unto the happy,
A fig for him who frets!
It is not raining rain to me,
It's raining violets.

THE BRITISH BANKS

The bankers, like the industrialists, have had a somewhat better year. Bank profits are up all round, though not by a great deal; and there is no difficulty in keeping dividends at last year's level and putting by somewhat increased sums for the future. On the face of the matter, it is remarkable that the big banks should be able to pay from 15 to 18 per cent on their capital at a time when interest rates are very low and opportunities scarce for the remunerative use of short-term funds in either loans or discounts.—New Statesman and Nation, London.

WEST BROM AND WEDNESDAY TO FIGHT FOR CUP

Final for English Cup Is on Tap on Saturday

149 SPECIALS TO CARRY CROWDS

Tussle Should Be an Even One; Strong Lineups

LONDON, April 25 (CP cable)—Strenuous training over, two of England's classiest teams, West Bromwich Albion and Sheffield Wednesday, are making final preparations for the world's greatest soccer event—the English cup final—to be played Saturday at Wembley stadium.

Everything is in readiness at the great sports bowl and 400 police and 450 officials of the English Football association will be delegated to the job of marshalling a crowd which it is expected will number nearly 100,000.

KING MAY ATTEND

If the weather is fine the King will witness the encounter from the royal box and invitations have also been issued to Lord Derby, Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas, secretary for the dominions, and members of the South African cricket team who will shortly open their English tour. Representatives of the dominions and the colonies will also attend.

All transportation facilities will be employed to bring the crowds to the game. Birmingham and Sheffield will send the largest quotas. The railways will run 149 special trains which are expected to carry more than 50,000 from provincial cities and from Scotland.

SHEFFIELD STRONG

The Sheffield team travelled to London today. With all members fit, Wednesday will field its strongest team composed of Brown, Nibloe, Catlin, Sharp, Millership, Burrows, Hooper, Surtees, Palethorpe, Starling and Rimmer. The latter is the only player who has previously played at Wembley.

The West Bromwich eleven will probably not be selected until the morning of the match.

Edwards and Sankey are both being considered for the left-half position. Midland enthusiasts are hoping Glidden and Carter will be in condition to turn out. The veteran forwards have played together in 300 league and cup matches for the Throstles.

The probable team: Pearson, Shaw, Trentham, Murphy, W. Richardson, Edwards or Sankey, Glidden, Carter, W. G. Richardson, Sandford and Boyes. In the event Glidden and Carter are unable to play, their places will be taken by Gale and Jones.

The Wembley pitch is in perfect condition and resembles a mammoth billiard table.

Judging by the season's play the tussle should be an even one. Both teams have won 17 games but the Albions have lost 14 against 11 defeats for the Wednesday.

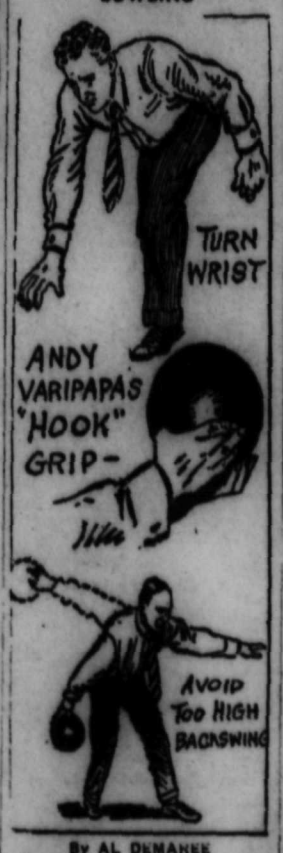
"BIG LEAGUE" BOWLING



By AL DEMAREE

Some people claim that a fast alley is one that has such a high polish that it is difficult to get your ball to hook, and that a slow alley is one on which your ball will hook very rapidly. In listening to a talk on the subject by speakers that were qualified by experience, at an A.B.C. tournament, I heard the statement that the majority of bowlers were inclined to call an alley fast when the ball hooked fast, and an alley slow when the ball hooked slow. However, if you ask somebody whether an alley is "slow" or "fast," be sure his understanding of fast and slow alleys is the same as yours. Otherwise you may roll on an alley opposite to what you believe it is, and find that your perfectly good ball has become, as we bowlers say, a "sour apple."

Trail Softball Loop Pleases Nelsonites

Locals Looking Forward to Games Between Different Teams There

Local softball officials and players have expressed keen pleasure at the action of Trail softball enthusiasts in the forming of a strong association which will provide a three-man league in the smelter city for the first time.

Not only will such a move create more interest in softball there, it is also expected to increase the interest manifested in the West Kootenay championship series for the Vancouver Province cup.

The Nelson teams hope to arrange for exhibition games with the three Trail aggregations and it is believed a series may be arranged between the league winners in the two cities.

Trustees for the Vancouver Province trophy are considering fixing a date for challenge to the present holders of the trophy, the local representative team that defeated the Trail-Rossland team in a seven-game series and then repulsed the Creston Valley all-star challenge.

Present plans call for challenges to be issued by June 1. Should only two teams challenge they would be called to play an elimination series with the winners playing Nelson for the cup. But should three or more teams challenge, a draw would be made which would include the present cup holders.

NEW YORK (CP)—As a good will preliminary to the 1936 Olympic games, a team of California basketball players, most of them former college stars, will make a tour of Japan this spring. Clarence Anderson, who played for Southern California in 1933, will be in charge of the team.

THREE MORE FIGHTS WOULD BE SATISFACTORY FOR MAX BAER

Wants Whack at Mr. Braddock, Louis and Schmeling

ST. PAUL, Minn., April 25 (AP)—Heavyweight champion Max Baer today peered with his one good eye at the simple life and solemnly announced he would quit this "too tough" fight racket after three more titular appearances. Max declared he would then abdicate the heavyweight crown in favor of his brother, Buddy.

With his left eye in mourning, Max came here to take on Bobo Hunt tomorrow night in another of those four round no decision shows. The crepe was hung on Max's eye by Eddie Simms at Cleveland in just such an exhibition.

"Three more fights at the most and I'll be able to say goodbye to the fight game," he beamed. "This racket is too tough."

First it will be Braddock. Then Joe Louis—if he beats Carnera—then maybe Schmeling in England. "Those fights will give me enough money."

King Max retired Braddock with a nod. Then he dismissed the Brown Bomber. "I saw Louis fight. Why all this smoke about him? If I fight him in September in Chicago I'll lick him a sure as I'm sitting here."

As a climax to Maxie's dream, the champion will polish off Schmeling and step out, with the plaudits of the throng ringing in his ears, and—more important—the rattle of cash in his jeans.

Teams Battle Over Week-end to Keep From Demotion

GLASGOW, April 25 (CP cable)—The long Scottish soccer season which started August 11 comes to a close Saturday. Once again the famous Glasgow Rangers emerge as champions and holders of the Scottish cup while Third Lanark and Arbroath won honors in the second division and next season will play with the top flight clubs.

While in other sections clubs will be engaged in merely playi g out the schedule tomorrow, five teams near the bottom of the premier division will fight desperately to avoid demotion. Falkirk cannot escape relegation. Others in a vulnerable position are St. Mirren, Albion Rovers, Ayr United, Dunfermline and Queen of South.

Canadian Cricket Tour Is Planned

OTTAWA, April 25 (CP)—Possibility of a Canadian cricket team touring the United Kingdom next year is seen in an unconfirmed report current here that Hon. R. C. Matthews, minister of national revenue, contemplates sponsoring such a tour.

Thirteen years ago Norman Seagram of Toronto took over a strong side that included Dyee W. Saunders, K.C., keen Toronto player who has since died, and C. R. (Sandy) Somerville of London, who before he became internationally known as a golfer was one of the Dominion's finest cricketers. The visit was considered a great success.

Intimate friends of Mr. Matthews say the tour may not materialize unless it is certain the team will be made up of players representative of the best young cricketers in the country. The cooperation of employers would be necessary to ensure leave of absence for the team.

Tottenham Is in Need of Miracle

LONDON, April 25 (CP cable)—With the English cup final the magnet for soccer enthusiasts throughout England and the championship crown again held by Arsenal, interest in Saturday's league battles lies largely in the doings of clubs seeking promotion and those in danger of relegation.

Only a miracle can save Tottenham Hotspurs from sinking to the second division. The White Hart Lane squad must win its two remaining games while Middlesborough and Leicester City lose and then it will be a question of goal average. The Spurs meet the highly placed Liverpool team in London tomorrow.

In the second division West Ham United visit Bolton. Both teams are fighting hard in an endeavor to accompany Brentford into senior company and a win for the Hammers would practically decide the honor in their favor. At the other end of the table Oldham Athletic and Notts County can hardly hope to escape playing in the third division next season.

Defeating Aldershot on Easter Monday Charlton Athletic made sure of promotion from the southern section of the third division.

Doncaster Rovers have a fine opportunity to win the championship of the northern section. With three games still to play they have a point margin over Chester.

AS WEALTH GOES

LONDON (CP).—Tottenham Hotspurs, a team near relegation in the English soccer league, first division, is the wealthiest club in England, says a sports writer. But in wealth of players he calls Arsenal first and Aston Villa second.

Teaching His Brother the Lethal Sock

Two McLarnins in the same corner here, as Sam, younger, but heavier brother of Jimmy McLarnin, the Vancouver holder of the world welterweight boxing title, waits for the gong in his comeback fight. Sammy weighs 150 pounds upon his return to the ring which he left after making a good showing as a 138 pounder. The hard-hitting Jimmy is possibly imparting some information as to how the youngster should park a left or right hook on his opponent's jaw.

TROSKY GETS HOMER

CLEVELAND, April 25 (CP)—Hal Trosky's first home run of the season enabled the Cleveland Indians to overhaul the St. Louis Browns today and win 7-6. The Cleveland first sacker got his homer off Ivy Andrews in the seventh inning, sending Earl Averill across the plate ahead of him.

St. Louis	6	12	0
Cleveland	7	16	2

Knott, Andrews, Coffman, Blaeholder and Hemsley; Pearsch, C. Brown and Myatt.

CHICAGO BEATS ROWE

CHICAGO, April 25 (AP)—The rampaging Chicago White Sox blasted Schoolboy Rowe out of action with a seven-run drive in the fourth inning and choked off a ninth inning Detroit rally today to win 9-8, and sweep the three game series with the American league champions.

Vernor (George) Washington, with two doubles and a single, led a 10-hit assault on Rowe, Joe Sullivan and Clyde Hatter which enabled the Sox to come from behind for the second straight day.

Detroit	8	9	0
Chicago	9	10	1

Rowe, Sullivan, Hatter and Cochrane; Kennedy, Vance and Sewell.

YANKS BEAT SOX

BOSTON, April 25 (AP)—The Yankees turned on some of their one-time pressure today in a seven-run fifth inning to take the series final from the Red Sox 12-4.

All the Yanks except Johnny Broaca, who was busy hurling his second winning game of the season, hit hard and they received the benefit of a lot of loose play by the Red Hose. Boston made four errors, three by Will Werber, tossed in a handful of walks and in general performed like anything but a first-place team. They had been charged with only one misplay in seven previous games.

New York	12	12	0
Boston	4	7	4

Broaca and Dickey; Rhodes, Pipgras, Walberg, Hockette, Benton, Wilson and R. Ferrell.

As WIN 10-0

PHILADELPHIA, April 25 (AP)—With Rookie Vernon Wilshire pitching no-hit ball for six innings and letting the opposition down finally with only a brace of singles, the Athletics found their collective batting eye today and hammered the Washington Senators into a 10-0 defeat.

It was the first win for the As in five starts.

Washington	0	2	3
Philadelphia	10	15	1

Stewart, Weaver, Coppola and Bolton, Hethrook; Wilshire and Foxx.

BIRTHDAY GREETINGS

By the Canadian Press

To Cecil Dillon of New York Rangers, born in Thornbury, Ont., 27 years ago today. One of the National Hockey league's leading marksmen for four years this high scoring center played for Meaford and Owen Sound amateurs before turning pro with Springfield of the Canadian-American league. Then he was drafted by Lester Patrick.

Gill-Sized Rookie

Only five feet five inches tall, Nick Tremark, recruit outfielder at the camp of the Brooklyn Dodgers in Orlando, is one of the smallest players in the game.

Golf Facts

NOT THEORIES!

BY ALEX J. MORRISON

Among doctors there is a saying, "veranda consultation." Lawyers term the same thing "curbstone advice." The equivalent in golf is "course tips."

Men who really know their business will tell you that the front porch, sidewalk and the golf course are the wrong places to seek remedies. Yet golfers insist on picking up their pointers as they go along—cafeteria style.

Even this is better than trying to ignore your faults. For example, if you find your shots curving to the left or hooking, make it a point to address the heel of the clubhead to the ball.

If you strike the ball in the center or with some point inside the center of the clubface, it is bound to fly straight or with a slight curve to the right. Remember, at the first sign of a hook, address the heel of the clubface to the ball.

Batting Leaders

By the Associated Press

A couple of good hitting jobs yesterday put all but one of the big six batters into the .400 class as two more new members moved up to replace previous leaders.

Bill Werber, who earned the comparatively low average of .362 by hitting twice in four attempts, and Joe Stripp, who hit four for four, were the newcomers, ousting Joe Kuhel and Mark Koenig.

Jimmy Foxx hit three times to take second place. Arky Vaughan and John Moore failed to connect but retained their places in the sextet.

GREAT STALLION IS DEAD

LONDON, April 25 (CP cable)—Pneumonia caused the sudden death today of one of the world's great stallions, Blandford, whose feats set an all-time record for winners on the English turf last season.

Up to the end of last season Blandford's stock won 201 races with a value of £202,000 (about $980,000).

Blandford sired the derby winners Trigo, 1929, Blenheim, 1930, and Windsor Lad, 1934. He also sired the great unbeaten Fra Diavolo, four-year-old Brantome, who won his campaign here this year.

Foaled in 1919, by Swynford out of Blanche, Blandford was owned by R. C. Dawson.

GYPSY GIRL

THE STORY OF AN IMPASSIONED ROMANCE

"PERCY" Mrs. [illegible]

Chapter 29

Indeed it seemed that Consuelo ight have drunk from a foun- n, for when she returned to the essing room from the finale, the avy mood had left her and she s buoyant. She danced into the om and whirled on her dainty toes f threw him a saucy kiss from the s of her fingers.

"Ah, how loud was their clapping! is better than the wine New York ves." She tore the scarf from her ir and stripped her wrist of the celets. "I must hurry. What dress all I wear, I wonder?"

"I like you in white best," Stew- volunteered.

She glanced at him and looked ay quickly.

"I've reserved a table for us at e night club you like best, the with the fathead waiter who ys so much attention to you and kes you laugh."

She was cold creaming her face w, hair pinned back.

"Now, that is too bad, but I am ing out with Mr. Dave Davis, who ves half a dozen boats and has omised me a sail. I have never led in a boat, nor have I been out the water, but he has named the at the Gypsy Girl, and surely it uld be a friendly craft to me th a name like that. He has told e the Gypsy Girl should belong to e gypsy girl, but I have not been ite sure about that. Now, whatr would I do with a boat?" she quired.

"Don't you care a thing about the t that I have reserved a table for ?"

She shrugged her shoulders.

"You did not ask me."

"I would like to think that you red enough for me after all I've ne for you to break another date."

She wiped the cold cream from r face and lightly ran a powder ff over it. Then she unpinned her g hair and began to brush it.

"You have told me that one must t break engagements—that only gaies do that. And besides, my end, you have cared nothing at about me. You have not seen me a week. When I came to New rk I was not even good enough you. I was just a dirty gypsy—"

"That is not true. I was busy."

She laughed.

"Busy with the lovely blonde wo- n, who is less than a dog! Ah, w, you have lied to me long ough." She faced him. "When you out with me again, white man, will not return to her!"

"So that is your price, is it?"

"No! Only half my price! When go out with me again I will be r of Goldberg's Follies! Now is my ce high enough to suit you? Now I a cheap gypsy? You have ght me this, white man, that for he received there must be value return—"

"This Davis and his yacht, is that price or your price?"

"You are a liar! You are the only n in New York that I have loved. at have you done for me? Noth- ! If you love me you would make star of the Follies. But no, you n't do that. You do nothing and pect everything. You do not see for days and then you come and "we are going out tonight"—like t! You think I should break a te to go out with you? Why? y? You are a conceited fool! For kiss, Marcu the gypsy would ve given me anything I asked. He a man, but you are only half an, your money is the other half. think that when you speak eryone will obey your word, eh? they are obeying your money, ney! Bah! You rest behind it a turtle hides under his shell. I on your money! When first I you I loved you for yourself, you have made me hate you said that I was free with my- , so now, white man, I have set price and you may take it or e it and I shall not care!" The ing anger went out of her. She her hands on his shoulders. y have you made me hate you this? Why do you treat me like g, my dear one? I have missed r arms about me. I have missed r lips kissing mine. I have been lonesome for you." She buried her face against his coat. "I have been lying to you," she murmured, so low he could scarcely hear. "Those words I spoke in anger and they were not true. Kiss me, Stewart, and forgive me."

"You're a charming little devil, gypsy girl," he said, after a moment. "No one else has ever had the courage to say the things you have said to me." He kissed her lips lightly. "So you think I'm an old turtle hiding under a shell of gold —" He kissed her lips again, not so lightly. "You twist me around your little finger and I like you for it." He kissed her lips again—and again, passionately. "I will not see Louise any more," he muttered.

She returned the kisses with equal passion.

"Ah, now your are my darling."

His arms were tangled in her long loose hair. Her body was warm and fragrant.

"And I shall be star of the Follies?" she asked.

"Yes."

"When?"

His answer was a kiss.

"When" She was insistent.

"Sometime."

She whirled away from him.

"I will dress quickly. My white dress, and I will wear the pearls you have given me and we will go and have a good time at the night club where you have reserved a table and I shall not care what that Davis thinks about me, for now I have you, my darling." She was stripping her costume from her.

"I don't care about going to the club. We'll go home."

She was already half in the white gown.

"Now we can't do that," she protested. "I want to go where there's music, and besides I am hungry."

"A little supper in the suite—"

"No, no. The fathead waiter would be so disappointed and I am wanting to dance with you again. We will go, eh? I promise not to flirt with anyone. I am mad in love with you, my darling."

He kissed her again.

"I'm an awful fool where you're concerned, my dear."

"Let's go!"

Let's go!

Let's go!

Stardom!

The next morning at 11 o'clock Ann opened the door for two gentlemen and ushered them into the drawing room of Consuelo's suite. There she left them. They were newspaper reporters.

The gypsy was touching her lips with rouge when Ann came to her.

"They're here, miss."

The girl did not answer. She turned before the mirror looking at herself, but so bright were her eyes that it is doubtful if she saw the reflection before her. She breathed deeply, almost chokingly, and went into the other room.

"Good morning, my friends." She walked toward them and it seemed to her that she was walking on air, so light were her feet.

"Good morning, Consuelo. You're looking more beautiful than ever. If you could tell us how you do it, it would be worth a million dollars for you."

"I am going to give you more than that."

"What!" they asked in the same breath.

"I have had one dream," she said slowly, "that dream was to be the greatest dancer in the world. I came to New York to fulfill that dream. Mr. Goldberg saw me dance and put me on in the Follies, that you know. You know, too, that because L'Ville had a starring contract they could do no more than feature me. In your papers you asked why L'Ville continued when I was the recognized dancer over her. Well, gentlemen, you need ask no longer. Louise L'Ville has withdrawn from the cast of the Follies and I am to take her place tonight!" She could hardly speak the words, so fast was her heart beating.

"God Lord, what a break!"

"You're going on tonight!"

"Yes, it is true!"

SILVER AT TOP AT MONTREAL

Trading at Standstill After Limit Is Reached

MONTREAL, April 25 (CP) — Prices of silver futures on the Canadian commodity exchange sold up to the limit set by the exchange in the first few minutes today and for the remainder of the session trading was at a standstill. A total of 17 lots changed hands.

The exchange had set a 300-point advance or decline as the limit for any single trading session except in spot silver. All futures rose 300 points in the first few minutes.

Spot silver, April, jumped 450 points following announcement the United States government had boosted to 77.57 cents an ounce the price to be paid for newly mined domestic silver.

April closed at 77.25 bid. May sold at 78.20, July at 75.80, September at 76.67 and November at 77.50.

WINNIPEG UP

WINNIPEG, April 25 (CP).—Canada's wheat again found favor with foreign importers today, enabling futures prices on the Winnipeg grain exchange to show independent strength against weakness in outside grain markets.

Values rallied from early-session ⅛-cent declines to close ⅝ cent higher to unchanged, May at 87⅞ and July 88¾ cents. Trading returned to normal as the Chicago board of trade reopened after yesterday's disturbing closure.

Foreign sales today totalled 400,000 bushels, and followed yesterday's 500,000-bushel exports. Purchases of moderate amounts of Canadian wheat were confirmed from Liverpool, a cargo of No. 1 northern wheat fetching $1 a bushel there.

COPPER, NICKEL OUTPUT IS UP

OTTAWA, April 25 (CP).—Substantial increases were shown in the production of copper and nickel in February as compared with the corresponding month last year, the Dominion bureau of statistics reported today.

Copper produced in February amounted to 33,467,044 pounds compared with 515,502 pounds in the same month last year, while the output of nickel amounted to 8,700,896 pounds against 7,268,537 pounds in February, 1934.

Bethlehem Steel Has March Loss

NEW YORK, April 25 (AP).—Bethlehem Steel Corp. directors at their meeting today took no action on dividends for the preferred stock. Since suspension of payments in the second quarter of 1932, only one distribution has been voted on the senior shares. This payment of $1.75 a share was made October 1, 1934.

The corporation reported net loss of $607,298 for the March quarter compared with net income $611,099 for the final quarter of 1934 and deficit of $902,044 for the first quarter last year.

World Production of Silver Higher

NEW YORK, April 25 (AP)—World production of silver in March totalled 15,940,000 fine ounces, compared with 14,969,000 in February, the American bureau of metal statistics reported today.

United States output for the month was 2,950,000 ounces against 3,411,000 in February, Canada produced 966,000 against 905,000.

STRANGE FISH IS SEEN OFF COAST

Was Ashen Gray With Head Like a Man Declare the Sailors

SEATTLE, April 25 (AP)—Another strange tale of a denizen of the sea off the north end of Vancouver Island, recalling the stories of Amy Cadborosaurus, the sportive sea serpent, had the Seattle waterfront agog today.

Capt. Fred Hovick, master of the fishing schooner Bolinda and his crew of six men, vowed they sighted the freak at 8 a.m. April 16 swimming about 50 feet off the starboard bow. Further, says the captain, who has fished in the Pacific for 30 years and the North sea 20 years, "We were all cold sober without a drop of liquor on the boat."

"It was of ashen gray with a round head like a man and very small eyes," related the skipper. "We looked at each other with inquiring glances as if to say: 'Do you see what I do?'

"The crew prepared a lasso made out of fishing lines with the thought of capturing the queer looking fellow but he disappeared beneath the waves before we could launch a boat.

"However, he reappeared three times astern, whipping the sea with his tail. I judge he was from 12 to 15 feet in length."

Material Dumped on Hall Street

Good progress was made Thursday on the excavation work at the auditorium site on Vernon street, just outside of the main entrance to the Recreation grounds where there is a considerable hollow.

The total exports for the fiscal year ended March totalled $659,374,994, an increase of $80,131,849 or 13.8 per cent over the previous fiscal year.

CONS. ISSUE IS UP 10 POINTS

Silver Stocks Lead the Forward Rush on Wall Street

By FRANK MacMILLEN

NEW YORK, April 25 (AP). — Stocks thrust vigorously upward today, led by soaring silver shares after the United States treasury again advanced its buying price for the white metal.

An outright scramble for the relatively limited number of silver stocks on the exchange spilled over into buying in the copper and lead group, with many of which companies silver is a by-product, and the gold mines were carried along in the wake of the upward rush. Advances of 10 points were registered by Consolidated Mining and New York & Honduras Rosario, while on the big board U.S. Smelting at 122 and Cerro de Pasco at 61¾ were each ahead around points.

A host of metal shares joined in the upswing with advances of major fractions to around 4 points including American Smelting at 43¼, Federal Mining at 60, Howe Sound at 55, Anaconda at 13½, Magma at 29¾, Silver King at 1, Kennecott at 18½, and Park Utah at 5½.

Noranda was the best of the Canadian Gold Mining group, finishing more than a point higher. Dome, Nickel, McIntyre-Porcupine, and Hollinger were fractionally higher. Transactions aggregated 1,693,000 shares.

The boom in silver shares was touched off by the action of the U.S. treasury in advancing its buying price for the metal to 77.57 cents an ounce. World prices for silver rapidly adjusted themselves to the new figure, and by noon a price of 77 cents, up 5¾ cents, was officially posted in New York for imported silver and unofficial quotations of 77¼ cents were heard later.

The lift in coppers was aided by the announcement of a $2 dividend declaration by Greene Cananea, 95 per cent controlled subsidiary of Anaconda.

Nelson Lad Applies Bell-ringing Prank to Hotel Elevator

But Calgary Japanese Elevator Operator Too Fast on Six-floor Chase

He had pushed six buttons and had descended six flights of stairs before the elevator boy caught up with him.

One of the Nelson visitors to the Boy Scout jamboree at Calgary did not take in everything passively and rest content with that but having hit on an idea of his own he actively pursued a blazing course of several wild moments. It dawned on the lad that there was another practical application of the rollicking pastime of doorbell ringing, so climbing to the top of the hotel he pushed the elevator button and ran down to the next floor. He shoved the button on that floor and scampered down to the next one, and so on.

He had reached his sixth floor on the downward flight before a somewhat mystified but thoroughly aroused Japanese elevator boy caught up with the phantom bell-ringer. The ired Japanese, when he saw the look of intense diligence on the lad who was doing his best to create a new chime effect, burst out laughing and declared it was the best joke he had ever had played on him.

FRENCH ANGLICAN PASTOR FINED $100 FOR BLASPHEMOUS LIBEL ON CATHOLICS

Rev. Victor Rahad, Found Guilty, Will Appeal Sentence

MONTREAL, April 25 (CP). — Finding the terms used by Rev. Victor Rahard, pastor of the French Anglican Church of the Redeemer here, in posters displayed in front of his church, were not within the bounds of "good faith and decent language," Chief Justice Gustave Perrault today found Mr. Rahard guilty of blasphemous libel. He ordered the minister to pay a fine of $100 or serve one month in jail. Notice of appeal was given by defence counsel following sentence.

Mr. Rahard's bad faith in placing the posters, which allegedly contained statements injurious to the Roman Catholic church, in front of his church was "most manifest," Judge Perrault ruled. The placard complained of was published in the East End of Montreal, frequented principally by French-Canadian Roman Catholics and was given added force and authority by being headed "Sermon by an Ex-Religious."

The claim of the defence that blasphemy could not be alleged except where Christ or Christianity as a whole was attacked under the English common law was dismissed by the court. His lordship quoted a textbook on libel and slander, to show that "it is the malicious intent to insult the religious feelings of others by profanely scoffing at all they hold sacred, which deserves and receives punishment." He also named a number of cases in the English courts as jurisprudence for his judgment.

"Is the language used calculated and intended to insult the feelings and the deepest religious convictions of the great majority of persons amongst whom we live?" he asked, quoting from a case in Canadian law.

"If so, they are not to be tolerated and we must not do things that are outrageous to the general feeling of propriety among the persons amongst whom we live."

Quoting from the published placard, Judge Perrault declared the language used was "offensive and injurious to Roman Catholics and of such a nature that they could lead to a break of the peace."

He said the English common law relative to blasphemous libel has greatly changed with the centuries and doctrine and jurisprudence have attached themselves rather to the intention of the author and to the terms used in the writing rather than to the actual subject treated.

"It may be well understood," he told the crowded courtroom, "there is no question here of religious doctrine but solely of a legal question, to wit: the application of article 198 of the criminal code."

To Buy Two Dozen Lacrosse Sticks

Plan to Outfit Young Boxla Players at Nelson

Through a plan proposed by the Canadian Amateur Lacrosse association, the Nelson Senior Lacrosse club is planning to outfit the younger players with sticks and nets. Some 24 sticks are being secured through the association and nets are being donated.

In a letter to R. J. Meek, local enthusiast, Dan K. McKenzie of New Westminster, president of the British Columbia section of the C. A. L. A., sets out the requirements for indoor lacrosse, the light necessary, ventilation and floor features.

Lighting was instanced as one of the most important features of indoor lacrosse and it is likely that this matter will be discussed with the auditorium committee. In the New Westminster arena 28 1000-watt lights are used.
