KINGSTON PEN IS TO BE CLEANED UP

Behan Paddled Before Death; Smith Will Ask Buck Release

OTTAWA, June 25 (CP).—Hon. Hugh Guthrie, minister of justice, bared one of the highlights of the Kingston penitentiary riot of October, 1932, in the house of commons tonight when he said guards and soldiers fired 11 shots into the cell of Tim Buck, former Communist party leader.

The soldiers had been rushed to the big prison beside Lake Ontario soon after rioting broke out. The shots were fired into Buck's cell, Mr. Guthrie said, "to frighten him and dissuade him from inciting the inmates to further rioting."

Early this year A. E. Smith of Toronto, national secretary of the Canadian Labor Defence league, was charged with sedition for al-

STRIKE BLOCKAGE NOT SO SERIOUS

Ships Moving in San Francisco and Seattle; Little Headway Made

SAN FRANCISCO, June 25 (AP)—Assistant Secretary of Labor Edward F. McGrady, sent from Washington as the government's mediator in the Pacific coast Maritime strike, scurried from conference to conference today with different factions, but admitted tonight he had only "more worries" for all his troubles.

While the conferences were continuing with more planned for tomorrow, employers declared there was a lessening of the strict blockade that has prevailed for weeks. Twenty-eight ships, the largest number of any one day for weeks, were being worked in San Francisco Bay today, they declared. Seattle reported a slow movement of cargo at the dock where the Emma Alexander was being unloaded, the fourth ship to move since the strike started May 9. The deadlock continued at Portland.

Prince Has Hope Flying Atlantic—Pilots Planes Solo and Likes the Air

His Own Super-Plane Is Comfortably Equipped; Has Been Forced Down; Flew Over Dangerous African Jungles; Prince Had Ear Pulled

By the HON. MRS. FRANCIS LASCELLES

INSTALLMENT THREE

In spite of strenuous propaganda, travelling by air is not yet a British national habit, and the number of people in the British Isles who have never flown in an airplane runs into millions. The great mass of the public are not yet fully convinced that flying is safe. Consequently there is unbounded admiration mingled with a little concern for the heir to the throne who makes an airplane his favorite means of transport.

The Prince of Wales' enthusiasm for flying is genuine, and there are few private owners of airplanes in Europe who know more about the technical side of aviation or who fly as frequently as His Royal Highness.

It was during the war that he made his first flight although the fact was never realized at the time. The truth was that the Prince went up in the air by stealth. He paid an "incog" visit to an airdrome near London, and when strolling around observed a young officer about to take-off with his machine. "What about taking me up" said the Prince jocularly.

"Rightho, old bean; jump in", replied the other youth, "I ought to have another chap with me, anyway".

Totally unaware that his passenger was the Prince of Wales, the pilot made a graceful ascent, and was in the air for over 20 minutes. When they finally landed the Prince thanked him and stood chatting for a few minutes.

WAS REPRIMANDED

Suddenly a scared staff officer approached. The young pilot collapsed when he heard his late companion being addressed as "Your Royal Highness". He was severely reprimanded later by his superiors, but he was consoled by a pair of cuff links which the Prince sent him.

Another very good story of the Prince comes to us from the war. The great "Ace" Colonel Barker, V. C., after being involved in a flight with 60 planes was shot down with his left arm gone, and both legs and nose broken. The Prince visited him in hospital in England and the subject of whether Barker would lose his nerve, cropped up. "I don't know whether I shall fly again," said Barker. "Of course you will", replied the Prince, "and I'll be your first passenger". He kept his word and Colonel Barker got his nerve back. He flew for many years until he had an accident in Canada in 1930. The Prince was very grieved by the death of this great pilot and great fighter.

BRAVED AFRICAN JUNGLES

After the war, the Prince never lost his interest in aviation, and during his tours in Africa and South

DEVELOP CLUE IN PODERJAY CASE

NEW YORK, June 25 (AP). — Identification of a photograph of the talented attorney, Agnes Colonia Tufverson, strangely missing for more than six months, by Mrs. Ruth F. Hull of Boston as a woman who appeared in a cleaning establishment there May 15 and early in June, supplied the major development today in the police search for the vanished barrister.

This new turn in the international hunt for the blonde bride of Ivan Ivanovitch Poderjay, handsome adventurer now a prisoner in Vienna, came as the police were preparing to make an exhaustive scientific examination of the cabin on the liner Olympic in which the Yugoslavian voyaged to Enland alone. The liner arrives tomorrow night.

NAVAL TALKS AT A STANDSTILL

LONDON, June 25 (CP cable)—The preliminary naval talks between Great Britain and the United States remained at a standstill today while hints of rearmament, of French demands for parity with Italy and Germany combined, of possible United States acquiescence in temporary supremacy for Great Britain filled the air.

TERM PREMIER A TURN COAT

Independent Labor Members Denounce British Premier

LONDON, June 25, (CP-Havas)—A formal letter from the Independent Labor party headquarters to Premier Ramsay MacDonald today represented Great Britain's premier as a turn coat and scathingly denounced his policies.

"You were once a member of our party," the letter read. "You advocated Socialism. You opposed war. You held that soldiers were entitled to political rights.

"Now you are the head of a government which seeks to maintain the Capitalist system you once opposed. That system can now be maintained only by the methods used by Hitler and Dollfuss. You, as head of the government, are personally responsible for preparing the way to Fascism and its sequel, war.

"We would remind you again that in 1918 you issued an appeal f the formation of Workers' and Soldiers' counsils on the Russian model. We warn you in advance that we shall intensify our propaganda and our work for Socialism and peace in order that the weapon your government has forged may recoil upon your own heads."

Story of Intimate Relations With the Alberta Premier at His Home, in the House and on the Highways Related

MANY TIMES HE CONFESSED HIS LOVE FOR HER STATES THE GIRL ON STAND

Mysterious Car Following Brownlee Car on Drives With Miss Enters the Case; Brownlee Home Open to Her

By GEORGE FINLAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer).

EDMONTON, June 25 (CP).—In a quiet and even voice, showing little traces of nervousness, Miss Vivian MacMillan, 22-year-old stenographer, for nearly three hours today told of her relations with Premier J. E. Brownlee, of Alberta.

Before Mr. Justice W. C. Ives, in the supreme court, the girl who came from the small town of Edson to take a business college course and then a position in a government office, under the guidance of Alberta's 50-year-old premier, is the chief plaintiff in a civil action against the premier for unstated damages. In her statement of claim filed nine months ago, she alleged seduction.

In his examination of discovery, held here several months ago, Premier J. E. Brownlee denied a demand had been made to him personally for $25,000 by John Caldwell, medical student, friend of Vivian MacMillan, young stenographer, who has brought suit against Premier Brownlee of Alberta, alleging seduction.

DENIES ANY THREATS

Premier Brownlee also denied Miss MacMillan had made a personal demand for money on threats of starting a seduction suit in default of payment.

His solicitors had information which he would not disclose, but no demands had been made to him personally.

Under direct examination of Neil MacLean, chief of counsel, the 22-year-old girl, tall and slim and looking several years younger, told her story of intimate relations with the premier in his home, at his office in the legislative buildings, and in the large government car which he parked on rural roads, away from the main highways.

She told of efforts made to break-away from her "unhappy relations" with the head of Alberta's government, but always he pleaded

On May 23 Indian Constable F. H. Gisbourne, and Provincial Policeman Percy Carr, went to the reserve with intent to arrest Eneas George. Gisbourne's body was subsequently found in the Nicola river, badly mutilated, while no trace has since been found of Carr's body.

Little knots of Indians are seen today on every corner discussing the fate of their tribesmen in hushed tones. From the most remote corners of the Okanagan country have come the chiefs and tyees of the Nicola, Whikely, Quilchena, Shulus and many other tribes. This morning's train brought eminent counsel who will participate in the hearings.

One dollar of the cast fortune the eccentric widow was supposed to posses was left to her sister, Mrs. Margaret Fitzpatrick, and $1 was left to her husband, George Francis Scollard, whom she divorced and later sued for money she said he was withholding from her.

HITLER'S RULE IN GERMANY NEARS END; MILITARY DICTATOR LIKELY

NEW YORK, June 25 (AP).—The New York Post, in the first of three copyrighted articles by Johannes Steel, says today Adolf Hitler's rule of Germany has come to an end and the Nazi dictatorship will be succeeded by a military dictatorship.

"1. Tool of forces stronger than himself, Hitler will be stripped of power, possibly within two weeks.

"2. Hjalmar Schacht, real ruler of Germany for the past six months, will remain dictator of economic and commercial policies.

"3. The aged Von Hindenburg will retire.

"4. The former crown prince, or one of the kaiser's grandsons, or Hitler himself, will be made regent or president.

"5. Franz von Papen or Hermann Wilhelm Goering will become chancellor.

"6. If Hitler is made president, executive power will be vested in the chancellor; if a Hohenzollern becomes regent executive power will be theoretically his.

"7. Fritz Thyssen, steel and power baron, will hold his grip as czar of the Ruhr and Rhine basins."

Steel (the name is a nom de plume) was for several years economic adviser abroad for the German ministry of economics. He later became private secretary to the president of the reichsbank, Jhalmar Schacht. On the day Hitler was appointed chancellor, Steel was arrested and sent to a concentration camp. He escaped and made his way to the United States.

CUBAN CABINET HAS RESIGNED

HAVANA, June 25 (AP)—Cosme de la Torriente, secretary of state, announced tonight that all members of the Cuban cabinet had handed resignations to President Carlos Mendieta.

The easiest way out of the crisis at present confronting the government is for all cabinet members to withdraw and permit the president to exercise a free hand in reorganizing the cabinet, De la torriente said.

De la Torriente said he expects the present difficulties will be solved soon.

Political observers expressed the opinion President Mendieta will accept new cabinet members without regard to party affiliations.

Hepburn Plans to Starve-Out Ontario Governor-General and His Mansion

"I think he will resign," he said, referring to Lieutenant-Governor Bruce, "and the work will be turned over the chief justice."

"There is nothing personal in this, you know," said the Liberal leader.

KING GEORGE WAS IN PYJAMAS WHEN HE TRIED TO WARD OFF WAR THREAT

By THOMAS T. CHAMPION
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, June 25 (CP cable)—King George was in his pyjamas at 1:30 a.m., on Aug. 1, 1914, when Premier Asquith with William Tyrell of the foreign office secured his majesty's signature to a telegram to the Czar, endeavoring to ward off the outbreak of war.

This revelation appeared today in the second volume of the "letters" of Lord Asquith to his friend, Mrs. Harrison of Boar's Hill.

Lord Oxford, as the Liberal Premier eventually became, was dining with her dayship at the palace in 1922, he writes. "The k ng was in his usual form and very friendly I reminded him how on the night of August 1, 1914, I invaded the palace with Tyrrell at 1:30 a.m. and he appeared with sleepy eyes, in his pyjamas and dressing gown, and signed a telegram we had drawn up to Nikky of Russia."

In view of Prime Minister Ramsay Macdonald's present breakdown it is interesting to note that exactly 10 years ago Lord Oxford wrote: "Poor Ramsay looks every day more like a ghost. He is suffering from neuritis."

Mr. Macdonald at that time was prime minister and foreign secretary.

Lord Asquith contributed a vivid vignette of the funeral of Andrew Bonar Law, the Canadian who was premier for a brief time. "To me the most interesting thing was the assembling of the pall bearers," he wrote.

"We were a very incongrous lot—the Prince of Wales, Carson, myself, Balfour and Baldwin, plus the only one who I suppose in his inmost depths was profoundly moved, Beaverbrook."

TELLS HISTORY OF FESTIVAL

Alderman Fleming Is Speaker; Rotary Pays Respects

A resume of the Kootenay Musical Festival association's activities since it was formed, was given by Alderman Ross Fleming at the Nelson Rotary luncheon at the Hume hotel silver room Monday. Alderman Fleming, besides being the first president of the association, was the originator of the idea, and the festival association was sponsored by the Nelson Rotary club.

A minute's silence was observed by the club in respect to W. J. Meagher, a member of the club for a number of years and a former president, who passed away at his home here early Friday morning. He will be missed by the club, stated President A. B. Gilker, for deep down he was a real Rotarian.

Condolences will be sent to the family by the club.

A letter of thanks was received from the Whimster family expressing the appreciation felt in the sympathy extended in the death of Mrs. Whimster.

An invitation to the club to attend the special united Dominion day services at the Capitol theater this coming Sunday evening, was extended through Rev. H. W. Guscott, secretary of the Nelson Ministerial association.

The attendance of the club is again rising, declared President Gilker, and last month the percentage was 81.1.

SPONSORED BY ROTARY

In introducing Alderman Fleming, E. P. Dawson, chairman for the day's entertainment, stated that six or seven years ago Alderman Fleming had met with the Rotary club to discuss the idea of a music festival and ask the Rotary club to sponsor it, which they had done. Great credit was due to Alderman Fleming, he stated, for not only had the festival now become an annual event, but it had become one of great importance.

In rising to speak, Alderman Fleming stated he also shared with the Rotary club a loss in the passing of W. J. Meagher, and also expressed sympathy of the festival committee.

The success of the festival did not depend on one man, declared Mr. Fleming in commencing his address, but required the work of the entire festival committee.

The Kootenay Musical Festival had got off to an auspicious start in 1930 when a large entry had been made. Since then, despite adverse years the festival had continued to be given support from every angle and a favorable balance had been enjoyed at the end of each season. Even this year when some festivals had gone behind, a profit of $50 had been realized.

AIMED FOR EXCELLENCE

The true aim of the festival was to produce excellence in musical fields and to advance students in the music world. Its aim was not mere entry of numbers but to raise the standard of each entrant's ability. It sought to minimize competition but rather sought to bring competitors together for the sake of instruction.

It sought to bring school choirs before the public and also to encourage every child in the study of singing. In the past some of the students had been neglected but the festival committee were trying to seek a solution for this. Rural schools chorus were also encouraged, ladies, men's and service clubs.

The vital necessity of the festival was teachers, declared Alderman Fleming, and if it were not for them, the festival would not hold its present important place. Teachers should also be encouraged.

As the festival was so vital a part of education it was necessary to have adjudication. The festival association was attempting to get adjudicators as cheaply as possible, but it realized too, that the standard of adjudication could not be lowered. At present a scheme was proposed by which examiners of the London schools of music might be induced to adjudicate at the festivals previous to their duties in connection with the examinations.

Nelson was in an ideal position for a festival. The classes were sufficiently large to retain interest and were not too large as to become monotonous.

The association, concluded Alderman Fleming, intended to start a membership drive in the near future.

In closing, he again expressed the gratitude felt for the help the Rotary had given.

The next meeting will be held on Tuesday.

MORE ABOUT THE PRINCE

America especially, he missed no opportunity of seeing the country from above. His fearlessness and total unconcern on those air trips amazed everybody. Once in Africa when he proposed to fly "up country" a high government official warned him that if the machine crashed on the journey there would be no hope of rescue as the territory on the route was all jungles or swamps.

"Our bones would be found sometime, surely", replied the Prince with a laugh, and the trip was duly made.

An experience which the Prince remembers with a thrill to this day was his first flight over the majestic and snow-capped Andes in South America. It was not, however, till about 1928 that the Prince began to consider giving serious study to flying. About this time his public engagements made a formidable daily list, and he found that the frequent train journeys wasted a great deal of time—and also energy.

The inevitable little ceremonies on railway stations on his departure and arrival at various places had begun to bore the Prince extremely. He is at heart a man of restless temperament. Movement is essential to the ease of the Prince, and he likes above all to "get on with it".

The coming years may bring him more repose and tranquillity than his nature possesses today, but the secret of his passion for flying lies mainly in its superior speed and privacy to the trains. The Prince finds that flying invigorates and recuperates him. His own staff have been astonished many times by seeing the Prince enter his airplane looking rather fatigued and an hour and or so later emerge at his destination glowing with vitality.

Thoroughness in everything that interests him is one of the Prince's great characteristics. Queen Alexandra once said that is was the Danish strain in the Prince that was the cause of this—a natural remark for a proud grandmother to make! When, therefore, the Prince decided to take flying seriously and become a private "air" owner, he went about the task in no half-hearted way. He made almost daily journeys to Hendon, near London, and his flying tutor was Squadron-Leader Don, who afterwards became the first exclusive air pilot to the Prince. The Prince, besides taking practical lessons, devoured all the aviation next-books that were available, and although they were heavy going at first, (the Prince has no love for mathematics and kindred subjects) he mastered all the most important points before many months had passed.

In mid-October, 1929, a lone R.A.F. plane gracefully rose one morning and was soon lost from view in the heavy clouds. Its pilot was the Prince of Wales and it was a very jubilant aviator who returned to earth 20 minutes later, safe and sound. His first trial as a pilot had been an unqualified success and from that day to this the love of the Prince for flying has never waned, but has increased with the years.

"With ardour to the skies" is the English rendering of the Latin motto of the R.A.F. and no one lives up to it more than the Prince of Wales. He now holds the rank of an Air Marshal in the R.A.F.—a distinction which he privately considers to be superior to his other army and navy honors! The Prince has been in the air on every type of machine, and as soon as he hears of a new design he hurries to inspect it.

PILOTED HUGE GERMAN BOAT

When the mammoth German flying boat the Dornier "D.O.X." visited the Solent, the Prince flew down to see it, and was the first Englishman to pilot this modern wonder, which he did with consummate skill for over 20 minutes at top speed. Captain Mertz, the commander, is no "gusher", and when he warmly congratulated the Prince on his feat, the modest Royal airman flushed with genuine pleasure.

It would be idle to deny that the Prince's fondness for air flights is looked upon with apprehension in certain high political and social circles. Queen Mary, it is known, would prefer the Prince to travel "on the ground", although she is not now so nervous on the matter as she was once. King George, so far as is known, has never flown in the air, but beyond a certain parental anxiety, he has no objection to his son's flights, although he insists that every precaution for safety must be taken.

A year or two ago the Prince owned as many as six airplanes, and he used to use them all in rotation. Today however, he mainly utilizes two special types. The latest machine which was delivered to him is a most luxurious craft which cost nearly £15,000 to construct. It is a Vickers "Viastra" with a radius of 2,000 miles, and it is a marvel of engineering skill and invention. The greatest brains in the aviation world were called upon for help and advice in the making of the super 'plane, and the result is a "masterpiece" of the air. Every gadget and contrivance has been fitted into it, and the problem of "noise" has been solved.

In his panelled cabin on this air liner with its thick carpets, velvet upholstered arm-chairs, and electric heater, the Prince can converse in perfect ease and comfort, or write or revise his speeches, without hearing anything but a low pleasant burr from the powerful engines. Yet the cabin walls are thin and light!

ALL SAFETY DEVICES

It was Captain C. W. Clover who designed this "silence chamber" by means of four-ply panelling, insulated windows, and the ingenious use of rubber, wool, and other sound-deadening materials. The 'plane can seat about a dozen, can carry ample luggage, and has a speed of over 150 miles an hour. It is an all-metal machine, to obviate the dangers of fire, and every conceivable safety device is included in its fittings. Parachutes for every passenger, windows which in the event of a crash can be pushed out to facilitate escape, and a duplicate wireless apparatus have all been provided.

The "Viastra" was bought by the Prince chiefly for "long" flying trips, and for ordinary home use he prefers a De Havilland "Dragon". This, of course, is a smaller and less pretentous machine, but in its red-and-fawn furnished cabin the Prince has spent many happy hours, flying from one engagement to another. Sitting in his armchair while the plane is speeding through the clouds, the Prince smokes his pipe and listens to his favorite records on a portable gramophone, or types some notes on his portable typewriter. He can also tune into the wireless. There is a luxurious, if rather small bathroom, and altogether the Prince is fast coming to regard the cabin of his "Dragon" as a real home from home.

ALWAYS IS ACCOMPANIED

His personal valet, his special detectives from Scotland Yard, and one or two intimate friends, always accompany the Prince in the air. His equerry, the Mon. Liers Legh, is perhaps his most frequent flying companion among his friends. The color-scheme of the plane is red-and-blue, the colors of the Household Brigade of Guards. Although the Prince is an expert pilot, he never takes the "helm" of his own machines. On these air journeys it is rest and relaxation that he needs, and he leaves the guidance of the airplane to the professional pilot.

The Prince's three air equerries are Flight-Lieut. J. D. Armour, Flight-Lieut. E. H. Fielden, and Flight-Lieut. Mellor. Flight-Lieut. Fielden at present is the Prince's regular pilot, and he is one of the most brilliant and safest airmen in Europe—and also one of the most uncommunicative. This dark, good-looking young office with the "Hitler moustache" who has flown the Prince thousands of miles in the aggregate, is the despair of all the press men, and curious people, for he never answers questions about his job, and he has many stories to tell if he cared.

Once when flying north, the Prince's 'plane was forced to make a landing on account of dense fog, on a lonely Yorkshire moor. The Prince's party was six all told, and they proceeded to make their way in the direction of a light which could be dimly perceived in the distance. A mile's trudge brought them to an old inn and "mine host" was at first greatly nervous and confused when the distinguished visitors entered his premises. The Prince made everyone at ease by ordering drinks for all present in the bar. After a hurried "snack" he then watched four locals having a game of dominoes, and although by this time a motor car was waiting outside for him the Prince remained to see the finish of the game.

TRUDGES THROUGH MUD

The Prince's reputation for punctuality is well known, so there was considerable surprise and anxiety one day at Weymouth not so long ago, when His Royal Highness kept a distinguished gathering waiting for two hours. He was to open a new pier and harbor works, and he left his Windsor home in plenty of time for his engagement. But the "Dragon" was forced down owing to bad weather, and it landed near a brickfield in very muddy and marshy soil. The Royal party had to splash through it all and a group of brick-workers was astonished to meet the Prince of Wales and his companions covered with mud and bathed in perspiration.

A motor car was hastily summoned and the driver took the Royal party as fast as he dared. At last, two hours late, the Prince arrived at Weymouth smiling and composed, as usual, although his shoes lacked their customary polish!

The Prince is fond of saying that he never enjoys a cup of tea so much as when he is flying, and he often puts on the electric kettle and makes himself a cup when high above the clouds.

The Prince has his own private airdrome as Smith's Lawn, Windsor Great Park, but as yet there are no hangars there and he prefers to "house" his machine at Hendon. He still owns a De Haviland Fox Moth and two Gipsy Moths but he has not flown in them for some time. The Prince attaches great importance to weather and direction reports when flying, and by means of his radio set keeps in constant touch with airdromes.

At a dinner recently at which Sir John Reith, the British Broadcasting corporation chief, was present, the Prince caused great amusement by declaring that it takes him half an hour to shut off the "B.B.C. stuff" and get "what I want to hear most", by which the Prince meant the weather and direction bulletins. It is not generally known that the Prince is extremely keen on meeting aviators of all nationalities, and to his private dinner-parties all the flying "aces" of the world have at one time or another been invited.

There was a certain distinguished foreign airman who was delighted beyond measures when the Prince promised to be one of his passengers on a proposed flight the following day. The airman in question, however was so nervous and flustered when the hour came to start, that he set off for the clouds and left his royal guest behind. The Prince promptly followed in another airplane and the discomfiture of the airman made the Prince laugh heartily, when they reached their destination. With his customary courtesy the Prince made another appointment with him, which went off this time without a hitch.

PULLS PRINCE'S EAR

The character of H.R.H. is more complex than is generally thought, and his interest in aviation has caused him to develop a natural mechanical talent. He inspects air engines with the keenest possible attention, and he has been observed lying prone on the ground in overalls examining mechanism at close range. The story is told that once in this position a suspicious aircraftman pulled the Prince's ear, and asked him what he was doing "nosing about there." The petrified man was soon put at ease by the laughing and apologetic Prince!

Airmen are generally quiet undemonstrative men and this is what appeals most to the Prince about them. All his life he has been subjected to flattery, "gush" and ceremony, but in an airplane or in the company of flying men all this is absent. He is treated like any ordinary air officer who is genuinely keen on aviation, and when he sets *off from Hendon or any other air*drome, beyond a wave of the hand from the mechanics, there is no fuss. Similarly when he lands.

To the ordinary spectator there is something indescribably thrilling in seeing an airplane gracefully descend, and to see the heir to the world's greatest throne step on to the ground smiling and debonair as if stepping from an ordinary carriage. How vividly it contrasts with the days when the Prince of Wales in glittering armour, mounted on an elaborately-decorated steed and accompanied by scores of knights and servants, was wont to visit the various houses and parts of the reign. But no mediaeval Prince of Wales had ever around him the glamour of the "Flying Prince" of today, who will go down in history as the first Prince of Wales who ever flew in the air.

PRINCE IS FATALIST

At 40 he is as enthusiastic in aviation as any boy of 18, and it is known that every young man of today who is fit, should know something at least about flying. The Prince has been the means of popularizing air-travel among society people and he never misses an opportunity to "boom" it. "Why don't you get an airplane?" he will say to any man who tells him he has too much to do. The Prince cannot understand the lingering fears some people have of flying. Like most air-minded men, he is a fatalist, but he is not careless or slack.

It is generally believed by his friends that His Royal Highness carries and cherishes a special mascot of his own, but no one seems to know what form it takes. At the end of one air-trip a year or so ago, the Prince did not emerge from his cabin with his usual alacrity, and he was discovered rather agitatedly searching for something in the apartment. He waved his staff away and five minutes later he appeared with his usual cheery smile. The rumor soon spread that the Prince had lost his mysterious mascot, but had found it again.

Now and again, especially on air journeys to France, an official "escort" accompanies him much against his private will, but he defers to the authorities in this matter. He takes a boyish delight, however, in "losing" the escort among the clouds, and when he succeeds in this it adds greatly to his enjoyment! Ambitious plans for the future are being made by the Prince and his air-friends and advisers. Some time ago the Prince was heard to say that he would like to fly the Atlantic, and this caused great consternation in exalted quarters. The Prince was forced to shelve this daring project for the time being, but he has not yet abondoned it. He would like to visit the United States and Canada again, and an Atlantic air journey intrigues him vastly. So energetic is the Prince, and so impatient is he of "time wasting" that a week's stay on an ocean liner now seems to his airmind unnecessary and irksome!

MAY FLY ATLANTIC

It is, therefore, by no means an inprobability that he will fly the Atlantic some time or other in the near future, and New York or Montreal may yet see the unique spectacle of the Prince of Wales descending from the skies into their midst.

Intrepid and absolutely fearless, the Prince never has the slightest qualms on entering his plane. Even bad weather he is loath to abandon a flight, but his pilot's decision is final and is never questioned or contradicted. Naturally, the Prince flies more in summer than in winter, but he does not care for "night" flying.

With his cine camera the Prince has taken hundreds of fascinating photographs, and reels while flying, and he is greatly interested in air-photography in general. It would be most interesting to have accurate statistics as to the number of hours which the Prince has spent in the air this last five or six years, and the total would undoubtedly be a surprisingly large one—and would most certainly exceed that of any other civilian flyer in Great Britain. It is understood that the Prince keeps a cereful "air diary" and of course, the pilot has his log-book in which to enter details.

Even Queen Victoria once wrote and published "Leaves from a Highland Diary", and perhaps the Prince will one day follow suit with his "Air Diary". It would be assured of a great welcome, and it would prove to the world, if any proof is needed, that aviation has no greater or more knowledgeable supporter today than the Prince of Wales—the modern royal "Prince of the Air".

CLAIMS MINE WAS IN BAD CONDITION

Run "Within the Law," Is testimony of Engineer

DRUMMELLER, June 25 (CP)—Nacmine mine of the Thomas Coal Company is "in a deplorable condition," Griff Jones, consulting engineer testified today at the inquest into death of three miners in an explosion June 18. Witness' son, Ivor, was one of the victims.

The mine was "just run within the law," Jones continued. Asked if the state of the mine had anything to do with the explosion he said he "didn't say it had."

The theory a spark had flown from a dry oil switch was discontinued by Jack Whitehead, mine electrician, who said he had inspected the switch three days before the disaster and had filled the case with oil. The hearing is continuing.

500,000 HAVE NO COUNTRY

Koreans in Manchuria Can Not Own or Rent Land

MUKDEN, Manchuria, June 25 (CP).—Nearly one-half of the 1,000,000 Koreans who live in Manchuria now find themselves in difficulty as "men without a country," and consequently not allowed to lease or to own lands. This creates a serious situation for the nearly 500,000 Koreans so situated, for almost without exception, they are peasants, and know nothing except how to till the soil.

The difficulty has arisen because these people left Korea, which is annexed to the Japanese empire, without official permits to emigrate. They smuggled themselves across the border into Manchuria when that was still Chinese territory and have no passports nor official papers of any kind.

The Manchoukuo government has now passed a law to the effect that people "without any nationality," that is, people without passports and without official consular registration, may not lease nor own lands within the new empire.

TRAIL CRICKETERS SEEKING MATCHES

TRAIL, B.C., June 25.—At a meeting of the executive of the Trail Cricket club in the Memorial hall Monday night, the secretary was instructed to arrange for a return match with Nelson, and games with Spokane and Grand Forks. A letter from the Grand Forks club stated they would not be able to meet Trail until some time in August as up until that time they had arranged matches with Spokane and Nelson. Two pickup teams of the club will play a match June 30 at Butler park, starting at four o'clock. A committee was appointed to attend the next meeting of the T.A.A.A. to find out what nights they could have the use of a portion of the park for practice. The next general meeting will be held on July 3.

QUEBEC KILLER DIES OF WOUND

ISLE VERT, Que., June 25 (CP)—Charles Drapeau, believed by police to be the killer of his brother, Wilfrid Drapeau, and the latter's wife, died early today of bullet wounds when he allegedly turned the gun on himself after the murders.

Drapeau was rushed to hospital Sunday when he was found mortally wounded besides the bodies of his brother and sister-in-law but efforts of doctors proved futile and he died early today.

MAULERS NOSE OUT FAIRVIEW

Third Successive Game Won on One Run Margin

For the third successive game this season only a single run separated the Maulers and Fairview intermediate ball teams Monday evening when the Maulers took the decision 8-7.

The Maulers held a slight edge with the exception of the second, but had to fight off a last inning batting rally by the Fairview team. The Maulers scored three runs in the first inning against two for the Fairview squad. "Duffy" Stewart poled one over the fence for a homer with two on bases.

Fairview took a 4-3 edge in the second by scoring two runs and blanking the Maulers. In the first of the fifth and final inning, Chapman, on the mound for Fairview, retired the side, fanning Stewart and Brennan. With one down Ed Langill poled one into deep centre field that appeared good for three bases, but the ball's flight was stopped by the cricket net and Langill was called out at third. Fawcett, pinch hitting, singled but the next man up was retired, for the final out.

Lorne "Duff" Stewart and Roy Anderson, who played for the seniors on the week-end, both back with their teams despite contrary rumors. Stewart made three fine catches in right field and poled out a homer. DelPuppo also made two nice catches in the left field territory, in addition to hitting a triple.

Bill Freno called the balls and strikes and Gillett officiated at the bases.

Teams were:

Maulers—W. Gillett, F. Kraft, A. Brennan, L. Stewart, G. Stewart, W. Kirby, S. DelPuppo, P. Duffy and Tony Arcure.

Fairview—C. Scribner, H. Chapman, Bud Cooper, E. Waterer, A. Langill, B. St. Denis, G. Roynon, R. Anderson, E. Langill and H. Renwick.

Licencing of Mail House May Be Talked

May Be Discussed at Meeting of Municipalities at Rossland

TRAIL, B.C., June 25.—Union of Kootenay Municipalities may discuss, at its meeting in Rossland July 11, the question of cities licencing, or obtaining revenue from mail order houses. While no definite move in this direction has been made, the subject is not a new one to municipal conventions and at the moent, following the disclosures of the Stevens mass buying probe at Ottawa, is causing considerable comment in municipal circles throughout the west.

The contention of municipal officers and officials is that mail order houses are competing directly with local business houses in each city. The local houses are licenced by the city in which they are located, but mail order houses have no such charges to meet. Local houses are therefore handicapped to that extent, it is argued.

If the subject is brought to the Kootenay municipalities' convention these arguments will all probably be aired. It is considered likely, if the subject is dealt with at all, that the federal and provincial governments might be asked to take these points into consideration in any legislation that might be brought down.

R. W. Diamond Starts Move to Help Needy

TRAIL, B. C., June 25—The Trail Educational Foundation created by R. W. Diamond and Trail branch No. 30 of the Canadian Legion, was accepted at the Legion meeting of that branch in the Memorial hall Monday night. It provides a fund for which loans at interest may be made to persons in need of financial assistance in order to advance the education of their charges. The move towards this was originally started about three months ago by Mr. Diamond, who contributed a sum towards the Legion for some such service. The Legion added the same amount and decided that such a foundation would be beneficial.

The education institution to be attended by the student may be any school, college or university in the Dominion of Canada, and for education in nursing, business, music, any of the fine arts, trades, theology and so on provided by schools, colleges or universities. The student must be a British subject and of either sex. Application for loans must be made before August 1 for the fall term. The board of trustees will be comprised of Mr. Diamond and three members of the Legion whose names will be decided at a meeting of the executive and the trustees of the special service fund. H. A. McLean, W. F. Truswell, and G. W. Guillaume. Any donner of $100 or more is entitled to representation on the board.

CITY COUNCIL BRIEFS

Arrears of licence fees amounting to 550, involving some 15 or so Nelson firms, were turned over to Chief of Police Alex. Stewart, to collect, or make the basis of prosecution. Alderman Ross Fleming favored giving 15 days for paying up, but the other aldermen favored direct action, and five "ayes" supported Alderman Scanlan's motion.

The council refused permission to J. Boileau to build a small dwelling on a site where it could not have sewer service.

In the case of a recent relief worker who has obtained employment with the Consolidated Mining & Smelting Company of Canada, the council agreed to go in with other creditors with its light bill, and thus facilitate the man's rehabilitation, which is being handled by one of the company's officials. The council will thank the Consolidated for its broad course of action in this case.

At Monday night's council session, a request of the Canadian Legion Bugle band for finahcial assistance toward the children's sports on Dominion Day was met by a grant of $50.

A recommendation of the gas committee, for a lower rate on gas for heating purposes, and other inducements to gas consumers to increase their consumption, was unanimously adopted.

The parks committee was authorized to construct a giant checkerboard at Lakeside park, and to purchase hose and lumber required for Lakeside and Gyro parks.

Use of Gyro park for sunrise and sunset services on Sunday, July 1, was granted to the young people's societies of the churches, the evening function to be combined with a picnic.

Mrs. Florence Long, Hendryx street, wrote asking for abatement of the smoke nuisance from the Kootenay Steam Laundry, and the fire wardens were instructed to go into the question and make a report.

Request of Capt. Harold Chapman of the Salvation Army, for refund of $36.50 he had expended on relief of transients in the last five months was granted, but he will be advised that in future the council will only pay such bills if it has authorized their incurring. A request from him for a grant of $10 or $15 a month toward operating his car in collecting clothing for the clothing depot was turned down.

As a result of a request from Mrs. H. O. Thiel for an exclusive soft drink and ice cream privilege at the Recreation grounds for the balance of the year, the parks committee was instructed to call for tenders for this concession, and close the matter. In any case no interference will be permitted with the rights of the Bugle band on Dominion Day.

Sentiment of the council was flatly against permitting advertising signs on the Recreation grounds fence, a matter brought up by Alderman T. W. Slader, who said an advertising man had been asking him about it.

"This is boiled," remarked Alderman W. B. Bamford, as he smacked his lips after a generous libation of Adam's ale.

The council decided to put a concrete capping on the retaining wall built around the hospital frontage on Park and Front streets, "if and when funds are available." This improvement was promised verbally by last year's council. How soon the work will be done will depend on whether the government relief grants to the city are continued.

Requests of the board respecting policing on the day of the Trail picnic were referred to the parks committee, with instructions to cooperate as fully as possible.

A petition from B. Aylmer and other Queens Bay residents, for power connection with the transmission line to the main lake, was turned down, a report from City Electrical Engineer W. D. Fleet showing the expense would be over $800, for which there would be no substantial return.

The reason a bad egg floats in water is that gases have formed inside, owing to decomposition. These make it lighter than a good egg, which contains white and yolk only.

START SOON ON 200-TON MILL AND OTHER IMPROVEMENTS, CALIFORNIA

Tacoma Company Gives Out Contract for the Operation

A contract calling for the construction of a 200-ton mill within six months, has been let by the N. B. C. Mining Company of Tacoma, Wash., in handing over the operation of the California mine, which it recently acquired, to the Associated Mines and Mills. The operating company has named Joseph Houston, recently of Tacoma, as its managing director and a start will be made immediately upon the construction of a camp and other details prior to the actual mill work.

It is estimated that there are about 135,000 tons of ore in sight running on an average of $15 to the ton. In the past the mine has been operated on a small basis and the results have not been altogether satisfactory. But with the output on a large basis the new owners are confident of developing a real paying proposition in the mine.

The California was taken over by one of the present directors of the N.B.C. Mining company a month ago and when the Tacoma men returned from their trip into the district the company was formed. J. G. Anderson is president and Charles Udall secretary-treasurer. All are Tacoma men.

The Associated Mines and Mills was organized in Nelson following the arrival of the Washington interests two days ago and was localized with plans for offices in Nelson. G. R. Eastman is president, Joseph Bell, vice-president and Mr. Houston, manager W. J. Turner, who has operated the mine during the past few months, will in all probability act as mine foreman.

Immediate plans call for the installation of a pilot mill to carry operations on until such time as the construction of the big mill is completed. Camp accommodations for a crew of 15 men or more will be built and roads repaired. Electric power will also be installed. Under the associated plan, which calls for an organization of 20 men or more, more groups of operators may be included and the camps enlarged.

The mill will be on the gravity system and the building of simple construction.

Social Events of Trail City

TRAIL, June 25.—At a beautiful morning wedding at St. Francis Xavier church at 10 o'clock today Margaret Mary, daughter of James Donaughy of Trail, was united in marriage by Rev. Leo Hobson to Charles Randal Bradbury, son of Mrs. Joseph Kelly of Trail. Miss Muriel Lennon of Vancouver, Wash., and Miss Kathleen Harris of Trail were bridesmaids. Michael Donaughy and William Ward were groomsmen.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was beautiful in her smart gown of white point d'esprit. Fashioned on long lines, the gown featured full flares to the floor and dainty sleeves in cape style. The lovely veil was draped to the head and held in place with clusters of of lily of the valley. White accessories were worn. She carried a bouquet of sweetheart roses and pastel tinted sweet peas.

A delicate shade of blue georgette was chosen by Miss Lennon for her bridesmaid's dress. A pink hat trimmed with blue and pink shoes, hosiery and gloves were dainty accessories. Her bouquet was of pink and white carnations.

Miss Harris selected yellow organdy for her dainty frock, white accessories being worn. Her bouquet corresponded to that carried by Miss Lennon.

The church, decorated with summer flowers, formed a pretty setting for the wedding. During the signing of the register Mrs. George Bergeron sang "Star of the Sea."

At a reception which followed, at the home of Mrs. George Digby, toasts were proposed to the bride and groom by Father Hobson and to the bridesmaids by Mr. Ward. Short speeches were given by the groom and by James Leckie.

Pink and white decorated the rooms and the bride's table, the latter being centered by a three-tiered wedding cake. Assisting in serving were Mrs. John Shaw, Mrs. Thomas Weir, Miss Helen Verzuh and Miss Camille Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Bradbury left in the afternoon by car for Portland and Seattle and on their return will make their home in Trail. For travelling the bride wore a swagger suit of rose wool tweed with accessories in white.

Gifts the bridesmaids were dinner rings and to the groomsmen wallets.

To Ask For Free Mining Licenses

TRAIL, June 25—Under the present law government agents have no power to issue free of charge a miner's licence to a relief prospector, but the matter is to be taken up by G. S. Pearson, minister of mines, with the executive council, in the near futur according to a communication from Victoria received by R. R. Burns, M.L.A.

As placer miners have been finding it difficult to dispose of their "dust" at full value without sending it to the mint, it is also proposed that a government agent or some other person buy the gold and give the miner 50 per cent of its value on sight and the balance after it has been sent to the mint for assaying. This matter will also be discussed by the executive.

BAND LEAVES ON TOUR OF ENGLAND

Vancouver Boys to Tour Over Two-Months Period; Cricket Star With Them

VANCOUVER, June 25 (CP)—Canada's champion junior band, the Kitsilano boys band of Vancouver, left here tonight en route for a two-months tour of England before returning home. At least one of the 45 youthful musicians plans to remain in the Old Country if his hopes are realized.

Norman Pearson, tall, fair-haired 18-year-old trombonist who, besides winning many awards for his music, has established himself as one of the Dominion's foremost cricketers, will attempt to realize his ambition when he reaches England, to play in first class county cricket there.

Pearson, despite his youth, has compiled a record in two months of play this season that is believed unequalled in Dominion record books. During that time he has knocked up five centurries, passed the two-century mark once, and scored a total of 1023 runs. His high score was 221 runs. And to make his record more remarkable, three scheduled games were rained out.

Trail

From Day To Day

BY A. R. J.

It has been said that school teachers have an easy job in as much as they work shorter hours and fewer days than persons of other vocations.

It might be so when actual hours before a class only are considered. But the amount of time a teacher puts in outside the class room in helping the children, particularly toward sports' interest, totals up to what may well insult the "minimum hours of work act."

Trail schools have almost every sport organized under the teachers' supervision.

Of course there is no sport as on the track and field where athletes' prowess can be so easily guaged. In games the best team or player defeats others in the municipality; and that's that. They are the best. They may visit another district and defeat or be vanquished by a champion there and so on, but there is no figure or statement to classify them as on the track. Records of the champions in sprints, broad jump and high jump are known. From a local boy's remark, a comparison is easily made.

Trail schools have developed a number of good athletes and although there are others who help, the teacher has his or her share to do, a large part of which is voluntary.

A team of five school boys has qualified for the junior Olympics in Vancouver on July 5 and 6.

Another has qualified but he is not attending school.

Since May 1, R. Lowe of the high school teaching staff has been out regularly with these five boys, coaching them along to better their marks. On May 26 they each took prizes and some broke records in the Kootenay-Boundary track meet at Cranbrook. From that day on they have been hard at it and Friday every one of them were below the qualifying marks for Olympic entries.

The boys themselves have worked hard and consistently. But it's the old story: "A good leader means success."

THE MILK BYLAW APPROVED

Nelson's milk bylaw has been approved at Victoria and the city is now in a position to go ahead and put into effect the provisions of the B. C. Milk act which permits the sale of raw milk from class A dairies only. Any milk from class B dairies must first be pasteurized before being sold to the consumer. Class A milk may also, of course, be pasteurized if so desired.

Putting into effect of the B. C. Milk act in Nelson is first of all important from the standpoint of public health. Secondly it is a measure of justice toward the dairymen who have expended large sums in order to provide a high standard of milk. It will give them and the public protection against the unfair and dangerous competition, from the standpoint of public health, of uninspected and unlicenced dairies.

RADIO BAD MANNERS

The summer season of radio bad manners has hit London with unusual force this year, says a British news item. Proud owners of powerful sets who insist on inflicting them upon their neighbors are more fond than ever this year of putting them close to open windows or even taking them out into the gardens.

The B.B.C., we read, has already broadcast an appeal for mercy, to which it added this conciliatory remark: "No listener, presumably, who carries his loudspeaker into the garden imagines that he is impressing his neighbors with a demonstration of its capabilities or its lack thereof."

Such nuisance is not, unfortunately, confined to London suburbs. We have it in Nelson during any warm night, when doors and windows are thrown matter. Listeners should have a little consideration for others. No listener should insist upon his neighbors listening to bits of programs picked up here and there because he himself is in the humor of "knob-twiddling."

Between You and Me

By J. B. C.

It was plenty hot yesterday and while the majority of Nelson citizens were wiping their brows or seeking cool dri's, beer, ginger ale, malteds, buttermilk, etc., for everyone has quit drinking water, so they say, there were several young men who were complaining of the cold. In my wanderings I dropped in to see how "Big Jim" McDonald was coming along with the strawberry crop. Sure enough there he was in overalls supervising the processing of strawberries for reshipment elsewhere. After tasting some of the luscious fruit I was led into the cooling department. There in a temperature about eight degrees above zero, and dressed in heavy clothing were several Nelson lads. They were packing strawberries into barrels and covering them with sugar. Jack McDonald, son of the jam maker, was bossing the job and was cautioned on the handling of the fine white sugar. Sandy Martin, well bundled up, was nailing on tops. Stanley Genest and Johnny McLeod were also mixed up in the process of processing berries.

And there I was in summer clothing shivering, while but a few moments before I had been complaining of the heat. In fact "Sandy" Martin ordered me out for fear I should contract pneumonia.

While the boys were freezing in the ice box down stairs, the girls were roasting over preserving kettles upstairs. Since morning, and it was then about 3 o'clock the jam factory had used up 800 pounds of sugar. Quite a little sum. Just last week a sum of $8000 was paid out in sugar bills by the McDonald firm.

Berry shipments are coming in heavily from all over the district. They are packed in pails, hulled and cleaned. Mr. McDonald estimates he loses at least 500 pails a season through carelessness of farmers and berry pickers. They leave the pails in the orchards and berry patches. Four cars of berries are being processed for reshipment and the largest shipment the factory has received at once this season was 1400 pounds after midnight on Saturday. Well that's that for the jam factory, a fine industry which means a lot, not only to Nelson, but to the district farmer and fruit grower. I sometimes wonder if Nelson people really appreciate this industry.

Across the railroad tracks the W. W. Powell match block firm is loading blocks. Fine pine blocks of No. 1 grade were being dumped into box cars for shipment. And the boys were working hard—and there was no cold-storage department where one could cool off.

Down the C.P.R. yards a way, I watched the yard engine building up freight trains and tearing others apart. Wilfred Marquis and Syd Desireau were hopping cars and throws switches and they even admitted it was hot.

Nelson's old stock-yard enclosure, which has handled thousands of head of cattle in the past seems to have fallen into disuse. But someone has cut the hay and the place is more presentable.

Down the track I chatted for a time with "Scotty" Ross, the C.P.R. blacksmith, who has a day off. "Scotty" has a nice garden with a fine variety of vegetables. He says the ground is overworked and he plans some more fertilizer and lime for next fall. "Scotty" had just come in from a row around the arm. He didn't get any fish but has been lucky in the past few days. Landed a four and half pound rainbow on Sunday, I believe.

Beyond the Ross home, which is located where the old Burns slaughter house used to stand, two boys were enjoying a bathe while awaiting the departure of a freight train. A large number of men were also employed in that vicinity in relaying steel. They are putting down 85 pound rails and according to the marks on them they were manufactured as far back as 1912.

Here and there—I noticed Vic Owens thumbing through some books known as "Telephone Talk", which is a B.C. Telephone Company publication—Ralph Humble was also interested as were some of the young ladies employed at the office — "Larry" McPhail was doing a little extra work at the land registry office—Allan McLean was busy getting an "outfit car" in shape before going out with a crew—Sammy Jackson was doing some bookkeeping in the yard office—Harry McLean appeared quite hot as he plugged away in his office—and I went down stairs and had a cooler—a fine buttermilk—And then I got to work—And you can see I have made a start.

CHAPTER XXIII

He went on telling her how he had worked his way through his freshman and sophomore years at college, waiting on the table in his fraternity house and working in a book store afternoons and evenings; and providing for his mother who had spent the last three years of her life in a sanitarium on the desert.

"I've always been able to make money," he said, not boastfully but in the level voice in which people usually make flat truthful statements. "And I know I'll be able to take good care of you, Susan, as soon as I've passed the doggone bar examinations."

"Well, then, everything's settled and there's nothing for us to argue about any more," Susan answered eagerly. "You look after your career for a few months and I'll manage Wallace and the family—and let's not have any more misunderstandings."

They stopped, moving by a common impulse, in the shadow of a tree that stood between the sidewalk and the road and kissed each other. It seemed to Susan, as their lips met, that everything was clear as crystal between them once more and she walked into the house a half hour later humming "The Waters of Minnetonka" under her breath and feeling that, when the time came to make the break with Wallace and tell the family about it, she would be ready for it.

Early Sunday afternoon Herbst, in a derby hat and a long black overcoat that made him look like a stranger, came driving into the Broderick's yard and stopped his milk truck at the foot of the back steps.

On the porch stood the two small yellow trunks that Anna had brought with her to the Broderick house years before. On the top of one of them was a round hard cloth-covered ball as large as a young watermellon. It was covered with dangling wooden bobbins, and fastened to it with steel pins was a short length of shell-patterened lace. Anna called it her "lace pillow," and she had told Susan that she had made it out of scraps of cloth when she was a little girl in the "old country." Her cheap cotton umbrella stood against the trunk, and two large framed photographs were propped up against it, a large colored portrait of Herbst and a photograph of his sister's wedding party, taken a year before. Anna was in the picture, smiling broadly and happily, one large hand on Herbst's shoulder and the other one holding a perfectly round bouquet of flowers.

All of these things Herbst and John, who came out to help him, carried down the steps and put into the back of the milk truck while Susan stood on the porch, holding Anna's two pots of Boston ferns, carefully wrapped in newspaper, that Anna was taking with her to Herbst's house where she intended to stay until she found another place as housemaid.

"Maybe we get marry," she had said to Susan that morning as she washed the last breakfast dishes she would ever wash in the Broderick's kitchen. "Herbst say we sure do if I cannot find a job."

She had seemed to be very cheerful all day and had made a pan of cabbage leaf rolls, for which she would never give anyone the recipe, and a devil's food cake for John who was extremely fond of it, and Susan had heard her whistling to herself in the kitchen as she peeled the potatoes for Sunday dinner.

But Anna was very pink and there were traces of tears on her face when she came down to the kitchen in her best clothes, a suit of bright blue cloth, trimmed with dabs of dyed brown fur. However, her smile was as wide as usual as she kissed Susan and John goodby.

"I was going to say goodbye to Mrs. Broderick and Miss Lutie, but they are asleep like always on Sunday afternoon," she said to Susan, climbing into the truck beside Herbst. "Goodby. I come soon and bring you some coffee kuchen."

Then, just as the truck was starting away making a noise like a threshing machine, she leaned out from the seat and called loudly to John above the noise:

"John! Mister John! I leave your goose grease by your room for you!" Every year she filled a jar with a mixture of turpentine and grease from the New Year's roast goose and put it carefully away for John to rub on his chest if he should have a recurrence of the bronchitis that he had had every winter when he was growing up.

"Goodby!" she called again and waved her cotton umbrella at them in farewell until the truck vanished beyond the shoe fixery on the corner, and Susan and John went back into the kitchen which she had left swept and shining as usual. It had always been the most cheerful room in the house, with Anna's crochet work on the shelf beside the clock and her potato vine growing in a pot on the window sill above the sink. There had always been the sound of her voice humming as she worked, and there had been her love afair with Herbst to talk over. The room seemed very empty now without her, and the ticking of the clock and the sudden click of sleet against the windows had a melancholy sound.

New Way to "Tune Out"

A patent has just been issued to Floyd G. Caskey, Washington inventor, for a device which automatically tunes out any part, or the whole, of a radio program.

If the listener wishes to turn off his radio for one-minute intervals every 15 minutes it is only necessary to push a button in an attachment on the radio set and the instrument goes "dead" for the desired interval and then turns itself back on. The new radio appliance is not necessarily attached directly to the set, but can be operated by remote control while the listener sits across the room in an easy chair.

Numerous devices for eliminating undesired parts of radio programs have been invented before.

In the new device the radio listener looks at the radio program before it starts and pushes one or more buttons to block out the program at intervals when silence is desired. Pressing down each button switches off the radio receiver and at the same time starts a small electric motor of the synchronous type used in electric clocks. This motor, turning at constant speed, operates a train of gears which restores the switch key to its "on" position after the desired interruption in the program.

A series of buttons, numbered in minutes on their faces, are available for tuning out the radio set in intervals ranging from a minute or two up to a period of half an hour.

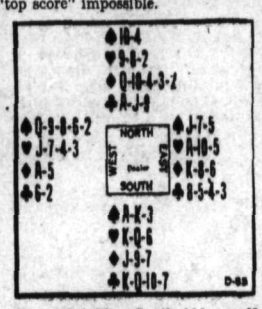
PLAY OF THE DECLARER

It is remarkable with what frequency a player of better than average ability is called upon to play a hand, the development of which seems to afford no opportunity for brilliant play; and nevertheless there proves to be some seemingly unimportant play which, if neglected, will make a "top score" impossible.



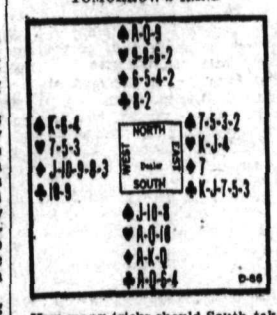
At most tables, South bid one No Trump, North either two No Trumps or two Diamonds, and South three No Trumps.

West led a small Spade, Declarer played the Ten from dummy, hoping that the lead had been from Queen-Jack, but when the Jack fell from the East hand, the Declarer knew that he was limited to two tricks in Spades. Therefore, it became necessary to establish at least one of dummy's Diamonds in order to make game, and in most instances Declarer, seeing no other play, led a Diamond to trick 2 from closed hand. East won with the King and returned his partner's suit. Declarer held up until the third round and then led a second Diamond. West's Ace took the trick, he cashed his two remaining Spades and led a Heart; so the adversaries took three Spades, the two red Aces, and the King of Diamonds.

The Declarers who played the hand in that way were surprised when they heard that at two or three tables, game had been made. It was accomplished as follows: When South won the first Spade trick, the Declarers realized that probably the Ace and King of Diamonds were divided and if East held one of them and the Ace of Hearts, game could be made if the Diamond honor held by West was dis-lodged before the Spades were established. This was more apt to happen if the Diamond lead came from North; so to trick 2 the Club was led and won in dummy. Then a small Diamond from North and when East played small, South played the Jack and West was obliged to play the Ace either on that or the succeeding round. This took out his only entry for the Spade suit and, consequently, these Declarers made game.

Of course, they could have been defeated if on the first Diamond lead East had played the King, but that would have been a "double dummy" play and advantageous only with the distribution of this hand.

TOMORROW'S HAND



How many tricks should South take playing a contract of three No Trumps?

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

EAT ACCORDING TO THE WORK YOU DO

Did you ever think of all the work that is going on inside that body of yours while you are sitting, lying down, or even fast asleep?

And the body is doing this work so that you can be kept alive.

A recent editorial in the Journal of the American Medical Association says: the heart, for example, never pauses in its task of keeping a good volume of blood under pressure in all the bloodvessels of the body. The lungs are constantly supplying the ozygen that is needed and removing the useless and harmful products manufactured by the body processes. The heating and cooling system by which the temperature of the body is regulated and held at the proper point, is always working. The white corpuscles of the blood, "scavenger cells", so called, are forever wandering about and with the power of moving themselves which they possess, search for infected tissues and clear away the harmful organisms.

Then when one is asleep or awake, glands are manufacturing their products, the muscles of the stomach and intestine are contracting and expanding as they push food and food wastes onward and downward, and the nervous system, the master tissue that controls all functions of the body is being kept in tone.

Is it any wonder then that of all the food eaten by the average person who does not do hard work, about 80 percent is needed to carry on the above work?

And it is the amount of muscular work—play or work—that must be thought of in trying to estimate the amount of food that should be eaten.

Dr. F. G. Benedict, one of the pioneers in the study of metabolism—building up and tearing down processes in the body—gives some observations on the work done daily by women.

When women are standing their body processes do 9 percent more work than when they are lying at rest; simple sewing increases heart production (work) by 13 percent, dusting 134 percent, sweeping 150 percent.

WIDE TRIBUTE PAID TO LATE "JOE" MEAGHER

Business Is Suspended for Period of Funeral

MANY PRESENT FROM DISTRICT

Requiem High Mass Sung; Church Overflows

A community-wide, almost district-wide tribute was paid Monday morning to the memory of W. J. Meagher, Nelson merchant for a third of a century, when the business houses of the city closed for an hour during his funeral, and the Church of Mary Immaculate was filled to overflowing. It was the largest funeral held from the Catholic church since that of the beloved priest, Rev. John Althoff, V.G.

Besides practically the whole business community, inclusive of delegations from the board of trade and other organizations, representatives were seen from many district points. Two or three cars were required to hold the flowers, and it was understood there were spiritual offerings in proportion. Honorary pallbearers were Dr. L. E. Borden, E. E. L. Dewdney, F. F. Payne, R. L. McBride and A. Andrew of Nelson, and R. W. Diamond of Trail, and active pallbearers were T. J. Scanlan, R. E. Horton, C. Blackwood and M. J. Varseveld of Nelson, and R. C. Crowe and E. W. Hazelwood of Trail.

FATHER McKENZIE CELEBRANT

Very Rev. J. C. McKenzie, parish priest, met the funeral party at the door of the packed church, with the initial words of the absolution, and then the requiem high mass, in the Latin tongue, to music hundreds of years old, was sung by priest and choir. In this part of the funeral service, which had many stages, Father McKenzie, as celebrant, was assisted by Bernard Kelly as master of ceremonies, Armando Maglio as censer bearer, Cyril Edgington as cross bearer, and Albert LePage and Leo McKinnon as acolytes. The choir was directed by L. H. Choquette acting as choir leader, with Mrs. Frank Murphy singing soprano solo parts.

Following the mass, Father McKenzie and the altar boys retired, and five members of the choir, Mrs. M. J. Vigneux, Mrs. Frank Murphy, Mrs. A. E. Bennett, W. J. Sturgeon and L. Choquette, rendered "Nearer My God to Thee." The priest and his attendants then returned, and the service continued in English, Father McKenzie concluding it with the second part of the absolution.

Burial was in the Catholic plot of the City cemetery, Father McKenzie pronouncing the final words of the absolution at the graveside.

Preceding the funeral, there was a short private service at the Somers Funeral Home Sunday evening.

CRAWFORD BAY TORIES, C.C.F. AND LIBS JOIN IN REQUEST FOR ROAD

Meeting Asks That Gray Creek-Kootenay Bay Link Be Completed

CRAWFORD BAY, June 25—An exceptionally well attended meeting was held in the public hall, called jointly by the presidents of the local Conservative, C.C.F., and Liberal associations for the purpose of determining a premanent plan of public works with no political bias to present to the authorities.

Captain Hincks was elected to the chair with W. Fraser acting as secretary.

It was unanimously agreed that the completion of that section of the Southern provincial highway lying between Gray Creek and Kootenay Bay was of greatest importance to the community and that this should be urged upon the Dominion and provincial authorities. Since the withdrawal of the C.P.R. steamer service, Crawford Bay farmers have been forced to ship their produce by truck for several miles over one of the worst roads in the riding.

With over 3000 young cherry trees coming into bearing transportation will be one of the farmers' major problems. Further anxiety was expressed about local farmers being forced to obtain work in road camps east of Creston while projects of prime importance were neglected in this part of the riding.

The meeting also decided to urge upon the authorities need for reconstructing the Honghlin bridge which has been condemned for several years and recently closed to traffic. Other matters suggested were reduction of ferry rates to local residents and permanent improvement to control Crawford creek when in flood.

Capt. Hincks, Oscar Burden, W. Fraser, A. R. McGregor and D. Broster were elected as a committee to represent the community in these matters. The same committee was impowered to act in conjunction with the relief investigation in this district.

To get a hydro-electric generating station to a mining camp in the wilds of New Guinea, the equipment will be carried 40 miles by plane.

Out of respect for our late President, Mr. W. J. Blake Wilson, whose funeral takes place in Vancouver today, this market will be closed from 2 to 3 p.m. this afternoon.

RASPBERRIES DUE TO START IN DISTRICT

Bing and Royal Anne Cherries Ready Next Week

HEAVY CROP OF BOTH IN SIGHT

Fruits and Vegetables Are Early in Boundary

VERNON, June 25—Weather conditions for the past week have been quite warm and good growth has taken place in all crops in the Kootenay and Arrow Lakes district, says the news letter of the horticultural branch, provincial department of agriculture, issued from the Vernon office.

The weather has turned decidedly cooler and rain is forecast for this district. Moisture conditions on the whole are good and irrigation is quite general throughout the district. Season is still about two weeks ahead of last year.

HEAVY STRAWBERRY CROP

Strawberries are now being harvested in considerable volume with most of the tonnage moving to jam factories at Nelson and Brilliant. There appears to be a very heavy crop in most of the fields, although some patches are showing considerable damage by weevil. The British Sovereign variety is about a week later than the Magoon in this district, and 10 days later than Van Sant and Parson's Beauty. Raspberries are developing fast and an excellent crop is in sight, with first shipments around June 25.

Bing and Royal Anne cherries are putting on color and shipments will start from the Lower Arrow lakes the last week in June, with heavy shipments from all sections of the district by July 10. There appears to be an excellent crop throughout the district.

Apples are sizing well and the drop has been quite heavy. This will result in a saving in the expense of thinning. The estimate at this time is around 10,000 boxes less than last year. Apple scab is well under control in the sprayed orchards, and with favorable weather the disease should not cause a great deal of trouble from now on.

VEGETABLES GOOD

All vegetables are coming on in good shape, and are reaching the market much earlier than usual. New cabbage is being cut and potatoes will be ready by the 25th.

Haying has been quite general this past week and the first cutting of alfalfa has been harvested. The hay crop is very good throughout the district.

GRAND FORKS

Growing conditions continue good with the weather fine and warm in Grand Forks district. Early local vegetables are now making their appearance on the market and all crops are well advanced for this time of the year. Owing to the good growing weather the crop of weeds has been heavy this season and considerable labor has been necessary in weeding all hoe crops. The tree fruit crop will be very light and of the total crop about 10,000 boxes will be hail damaged owing to severe hail storms toward the end of May. Hail damage to some onion fields has also been severe and will reduce the onion crop to some extent.

The first crop of alfalfa is almost all cut and some tonnage has already been baled and shipped. The yield was generally good and in some cases there was considerable lodging of the hay before cutting started.

The hot weather is beginning to dry up the grain crops west of Grand Forks especially spring wheat and further rains will soon be needed. The fall wheat crop generally is excellent and good yields are expected.

CRESTON

The weather still continues hot for this time of year, with the skies cloudy at intervals, strong variable winds, mostly from the south, and the precipitation light in the Creston area. Early fruits and vegetables are well in advance of former years.

The strawberry season is about at its peak. This week will see some of the patches that started early, fall out. On non-irrigated fields the berries are betting smaller and falling off in yield. Carload shipments have been going out steadily for a week and will continue until nearly the end of the month.

Raspberries have just started and in another week will be in full volume. Due to our recent increase in cold storage facilities, the valley shippers will be able to assemble, precool and ship in carlots to greater advantage this season.

Cherries are beginning to ripen as growers are now picking Governor Woods and Early Tartarians. Bings should be ready in another week. There is a plentiful crop in sight of excellent size and quality.

CURRANTS ABOUT READY

Gooseberries are over, and Black and Red currants are about ready to pick. There will be enough to spare for the present market demand.

Plums and prunes are sizing rapidly. Judging by the quantity set the trees would benefit greatly if thinned early. Pears and apples are coming along fast and are a good size for this time of the year. Thinning operations are in progress, with not very much scab showing up where spraying has been done carefully. Young trees are carrying a good load this season. The pear crop will be lighter than last year's total, but the apple crop may, if anything, be a little larger.

The home market is well supplied with early vegetables locally grown. In another week new potatoes and green peas will be coming in in more liberal quantities. Tomatoes, peppers, etc., are making more rapid growth. Many complaints have been heard of the damaging effects of insects, especially in the onion beds.

The first cutting of alfalfa is pretty well under cover, as hay making has been general since the beginning of the month. Owing to frost injury to the alfalfa in the low places grass was more prevalent than is usually the case, but the quality should be good as weather conditions were excellent for curing and saving the crop.

WINNIPEG PIT TAKES TUMBLE

WINNIPEG, June 25 (CP)—Rains in central Europe and easiness in outside markets made for lower wheat prices on the Winnipeg grain exchange today. Net losses were ¾ to ⅞ cents.

Pit trade was light. Bulk of the selling appeared to come from local traders.

July wheat ended at 76⅞, October at 78⅞ with December at 80 cents.

Broomhall reported week-end rains in England, Germany and France, sufficient apparently to afford some relief to crops.

Chicago wheat lost two cents at one time and Liverpool ended ⅜d lower.

World shipments of wheat and flour last week totalled about 10,500,000 bushels with North America furnishing about 4,500,000 bushels.

Cash grains were steady but coarse grains sagged.

Industrials Are Down at Toronto

TORONTO, June 25 (CP)—Industrials sagged under light offerings today on the Toronto stock exchange. There was no bullish news. Volume was at a minimum.

Nickel slipped 25 cents to $25. Ford A was off ½ to 20½. Distillery issues lost early gains before the close. Industrial Alcohol closed at 9½, a 1934 low, and Walkers and Distillers Seagrams were unchanged.

International Pete, Imperial Oil and Supertest were off. Imperial Bank got up 2, Royal and Nova Scotia lost 4 each.

EGGS ADVANCE

MONTREAL, June 25 (CP). — Eggs and cheese advanced on the Montreal produce market today, while butter eased.

Eggs, graded shipments, were 21 cents a dozen for A-large; A-medium 20; B. 19½; C. 18½. Receipts 1119 cases.

Butter, fresh No. 1, 20 cents a pound. Arrivals two boxes.

Cheese, Ontario colored 10⅞ cents a pound; Quebecs 10⅝. Arrivals 531 boxes.

Potatoes: N.B. Mountains 85 cents; Quebec white 75; P.E.I. Mountains 1.05.

ENGLAND IN A BRILLIANT CRICKET WIN

Beats Aussies by an Innings and 38 Runs

VISITORS HELD TO 118 IN 2ND

Verity Equals the Test Record of 15 Wickets

LONDON, June 25 (CP cable)—The fortunes of cricket today gave England a stunning victory in the second test match of the season against Australia, making up for the Australian victory in the first of the series of five.

Australia, starting today with a promising score of 192 for only two wickets, promptly met disaster. Hedley Verity, the slow left-arm trundler, was bowling at the peak of his form on a wicket made to order for him by heavy rain during the night.

The Aussies were dismissed for 284 runs and forced to follow on, being retired to 118 in their second innings. England had compiled 440 runs on Saturday, so the English won by an innings and 38 runs, with a day to spare.

The Australian collapse was complete. Verity took 14 wickets during the day at an average cost of less than six runs. In their second innings, the Aussies lost five wickets in a row for one run.

Capt. R. E. S. Wyatt, his first match as the English captain a glorious success, and Verity were given a jubilant reception by the thousands at Lord's. It was the first victory for England on that celebrated pitch since 1896.

The third Australian wicket fell at 203 and six were down for 218 a short time later. Young E. A. Chipperfield helped valiently with 37 not out, and Oldfield contributed 23 when a stand was needed, but the Australians found themselves 156 runs behind on the first innings.

BOND NO BETTER

Their second innings, when the wicket was drying out, was no better. S. M. Woodfull made a desperate opening stand that carried him to 41 runs, but three wickets had been lost at 57. With Woodfull's dismissal at a total of 94, the crowd went into hysterics as Aussie wickets crashed. The fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth went before 96 had been put on the board.

W. A. Brown was thankful he had reached his century on Saturday. He finished the Aussie innings with 103 not out, and was dismissed at 105. Leonard Darling was out for a duck. McCabe was the fifth victim, Hammond catching him off Verity. Verity disposed of Bromley in short order, the latter getting 10 runs.

Chipperfield and Oldfield brought the score to 258 runs before the seventh wicket fell, Oldfield, after scoring 23, sending a tempting offering from Verity into Sutcliffe's hands.

Grimmett played on to his wicket from Bowes and eight were down for 273. Verity spread-eagled O'Reilly's wicket shortly after lunch, and Wall was caught leg-before-wicket. Chipperfield had 37 not out in the total of 284.

Don Bradman was next to go, the celebrated batsman being limited to 13 runs. Darling and Woodfull carried the score to 94 when the collapse came. Woodfull was caught by Hammond, off Verity. Hammond knocked Darling's stumps flying, Bromley was caught by Verity off his own bowling. A twisty shooter had Oldfield out, leg-before-wicket. Clarry Grimmett was caught splendidly by Hammond and eight were down for 95 runs.

Chipperfield came in with amazing coolness, and O'Reilly joined him. Chipperfield, however, was out at 112, after scoring 14. Verity put an end to the match and a magnificent bowling performance when Hendren caught Wall, off Verity's bowling, 40 minutes before closing time on the third day out of four.

With a wicket he gained on Saturday, Verity equalled the test record of 15 wickets in a match. The match record was set by Wilfred Rhodes of England, at Melmourne 30 years ago, 15 wickets for 124 runs. Verity's total was at a cost of 104 runs. Verity was one under the record for an innings, nine, set by A. A. Mailey of Australia in 1921.

"Big League" BASEBALL

By AL DEMAREE

"There is as much in the weight of a bat as there is in the strength of the player who swings it." This was the remark Babe Ruth made to me one day when we were talking about bats and their relation to hitting.

"Many batters, and this applies to young players particularly," continued the Babe, "who cannot swing a heavy bat, try to hit against a good fast ball pitcher with lots of stuff, and then wonder why it is that the ball always seems to have passed them before they could get their bat across the plate.

"In selecting a bat, get one that fits. There is such a thing as having a bat that seems to 'fit'—a bat in which weight, length and shape seems to have been moulded as if it were a part of the two hands that grip it and the arms that swing it—bat that can be lifted and swung around and around, which scarcely seems to be felt in one's hands. When you find one, take care of it for if it is broken it is a real tragedy."

Al Demaree has prepared an illustrated leaflet called "The Art of Pitching" which he will send to any reader requesting it. Address Al Demaree in care of this paper and be sure to enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope.

Baseball's Big Six

Lou Gehrig, with a home run—his 19th—a triple, a double and a single against Chicago White Sox pitching yesterday batted himself right back into the "big six" as Heinie Manush, of Washington, bettered his average by one point and remained at the head of the list with .411.

Gehrig's big day raised his slugging average to .366 to tie him with Manager Bill Terry of the Giants and make the big six a big seven for one day at least.

Arky Vaughan held his .371 average as Cecil Travis of Washington dropped three points and moved up to fourth place right behind Ducky Wucky Medwick of the Cardinals who moved into third place with .373 behind Manush and Charley Gehringer.

DODGING SOFTBALLS

Anyone inclined to doubt that softball has taken a stranglehold on this neck of the woods should put in a few days on this desk. He, or she, would, by the end of the second day at the latest, be praying to the heavens for deliverence from the flood, no foolin'!

We've something over 100 news correspondents at strategic points through the two Kootenays and the Boundary district and it seems that all of them are jumping at the chance to fatten their checks by pouring in on us accounts of softball games.

Every mail from every train from every direction every day brings softball stories and at the week-end—wow!—enough comes in to put out a good-sized paper devoted exclusively to district softball.

THERE'S A LIMIT

There isn't anything we'd like to do much better than just that, either. But as it is, with so many other types of readers to provide news of interest to them, we simply have to draw the line somewhere.

So far we have managed to publish who beat who and by what score and, where the information was given, the team line-ups. If we published the play-by-play accounts or even the summaries that have come flocking in on every little sand-lot game, witnessed by, probably no more than the reserve players of each team, we'd have no room for even ads and then we'd all be out of jobs, the district correspondents included.

KEEP 'EM COMING

But it isn't to apologize to correspondents or to the district softball teams nor to suggest that we do not want reports of the games that we comment. We do want them, of every game, for the more copy that comes in, the less chance there is of the managing editor, in the interest of economy, deciding he could get along without us.

We speak of this matter simply to impress upon you the fact that, while softball games are reported from every corner of the district regularly, it is only rarely that a report of a baseball or a soccer game reaches this department. When one does it is always a game of major importance, an inter-city league game for some trophy instead of an impromtu affair like the softball games.

In other words, only those who have been playing baseball and soccer for years and are dyed-in-the-wool fanatics, are still keeping the games in the newspapers. Pick-up games or inter-city games simply with the idea of inter-city fraternizing, are not being played in baseball or soccer. Softball has supplanted them.

MORE ABOUT BROWNLEE CASE

with her or got into a terrific rage which left her speechless.

CONFESSED LOVE FOR HER

Many times he confessed his love for her, she told the court. He had described his home life as unhappy. His wife was a semi-invalid and they had not shared the same room for many years.

"If his wife became pregnant again, Mr. Brownlee told me," said the witness, "it would mean her death."

"Unless I would give in to him he told me he could not go on as premier of the province," she added.

"I seemed to be under his spell," Miss MacMillan continued. "He seemed to be playing with me like a cat plays with a mouse. I couldn't stop going out with him; his influence was too strong."

MRS. BROWNLEE NICE

During various occasions she had atempted to break their relations. The premier, she said, threatened she would lose her position in the office of the attorney-general. He had pushed her out of the car once after bringing her home from a country drive when she had sought freedom from his "spell." Mrs. Brownlee she described as always "very, very nice to me."

"Mr. Brownlee told me I would be showing my gratitude for them," she said. This was during her first motor ride into the country with the premier on the first Monday in October, 1930.

"I told him if I did such a thing it would be a sin," she said. "He told me if a daughter of his would do the thing he had asked, to save a family and home, he would be proud of her."

Premier Brownlee, whose wife sat beside him in court today, is the father of two sons, There are no daughters.

In January, 1933, John Caldwell, a young medical student and son of an Edmonton minister, asked her to marry him. She had met him some months earlier and was very much in love with him, she told Mr. Maclean.

TOLD MOTHER "EVERYTHING"

"I broke down," she related, "and told him I could not marry him. After I told him about Mr. Brownlee, he said he would help me find myself again." Later she sought the advice of young Caldwell and on May, 1933, went to see Mr. Maclean and told him her story.

Finally in the middle of July, 1933, she returned home to Edson and confided in her mother "everything." Mrs. MacMillan immediately told the father, Allan MacMillan, former mayor of Edson.

Miss MacMillan and her father came to Edmonton and Mr. Maclean was consulted again. Decision was then made to start action against the premier.

NEVER THREATENED PREMIER

Mr. Brownlee, in a counter claim for $10,000 damages, has charged conspiracy on the part of Miss MacMillan and Caldwell. During examination this afternoon, Mr. Maclean asked:

"Have you ever made demands on the premier for money, Miss MacMillan?"

"No," was the quick reply.

"Did you make demands on behalf of Mr. Caldwell?" he asked.

"No."

The witness said she had never threatened the premier.

Shortly after she came to Edmonton she had visited the Brownlee home and after having tea there the premier drove her home.

KNEW AS MUCH AS ANY OTHER GIRL

"When I got in the car he took hold of my hand," she said. "He asked me what I knew about life. I replied I thought I knew as much as any other girl. He said he would tell me about it."

The next night, the first Monday in October, the premier picked her up in his car and they went for a drive on the Jasper highway and later parked on a side road. There he told her of his family, his love for her and how she could show her gratitude.

"He had his arm around me and was kissing me," she told the court. "He asked me to think about it, and I gave him no definite answer."

The following Monday found them on the same side road. They moved from the front to the back seat of the premier's car.

"He had his arms around me, forcing me down on the back seat," she told the court.

"Did he succeed?" asked Mr. Maclean.

"Not completely," was the reply.

The premier, she said, left her in the back seat of the car.

"HE WAS IN A RAGE"

"He was in a rage," Miss MacMillan declared. "We drove to the government garage where the premier changed to a smaller car. He told me I was not fit to drive with and ordered me into the back seat. I told him I would walk home."

Miss MacMillan said she started to walk home, but the premier drove up, apologized saying he had "lost his head completely." He then drove her home.

Late in October, 1930, she again went driving with Mr. Brownlee, he had telephoned and said he had "something very important to talk about."

"He asked me if I ever had intercourse with another man. I told him no. He said he would give anything if I would give in. It was the only way I could help him. We got in the back seat and he said what he asked wasn't really very much. All this time he had his arms around me.

"I fought against him, but he was too determined. Holding me, . We had complete intercourse."

After they had reached home, Mr. Bownlee had phoned to say he was sorry he had accused her of having relations with another man.

"He told me," Miss MacMillan said, "he was so glad he was the first man, and how madly in love he was with me."

"He told me I had saved Mrs. Brownlee's life," the witness testified.

STAYED AT BROWNLEE HOME

In September, 1931, Mrs. Brownlee, accompanied by Mrs. MacMillan, went to Vancouver for a visit and while they were away Vivian stayed at the Brownlee home. Miss MacMillan had the maid's room, next to Mrs. Brownlee's and the premier had taken his wife's room, putting the boys in a front bedroom, which he usually occupied. In answer to a question from counsel, Miss MacMillan admitted having sexual intercourse with the premier on that occasion.

Again in 1932, during the spring, she stayed at the premier's residence. Mrs. Brownlee had asked her over when the maid had to return to her farm house. She again had

DR. ASPRAY IS GOLF LEADER

Cops Medal Honors in Spokane by a Score of 142

SPOKANE, Wash., June 25 (AP).—Undaunted by the fact that he was up against former Walker cup players, ex-champions and heavy favorites, Dr. Mel Aspray, young Spokane X-ray expert, blazed through a field of 106 contestants in the 36-hole qualifying round of the Pacific northwest amateur golf tournament today to cop medal honors with a par-busting 142.

And while Aspray was molding together two 71s over the par 72 Spokane course, Dr. O. F. Willing, Portland, twice a former northwest champion and Walker cup star, slipped badly, just getting under the wire, and Don Moe, ex-western amateur titlist and Walker cup ace, had his troubles but finished among the first half of the 32 qualifiers.

Willing wound up with 159 just ahead of R. T. Ingels and Phil Baird, both of Spokane, who tied at 160 for the last qualifying position, necessitating a playoff tomorrow morning.

Moe was riding near the front with a chance for the medal crown until he ran up against a 40 on the finishing nine, and had to be content with 147. He was one under par on the morning 18 with a 71.

Johnny Robbins, Portland, Oregon state amateur champion, Forest Watson, Seattle, former northwest winner; Laddie Martin, young Roseburg, Ore., sharpshooter, and Howard Trustin, Spokane, tied for second place honors with 143, just one stroke behind Aspray. Bud Ward, Olympia, followed with a par-equalling 144.

Although finishing in semi-darkness and just ahead of a thunder-lightning-rain storm that caught several players, Ken Storey, diminutive Spokane swinger, posted the lowest 18 hole card of the day when he toured the afternoon round in 68, four under par. This was his 77 on the first lap gave him 145. Martin had the best next one-round score of 69.

NO UPSETS IN TENNIS PLAY

Americans Run Into Stiff Opposition; Perry Victor

WIMBLEDON, Eng., June 25 (CP-AP).—The favorites, native and foreign alike, progressed through the first round of the all-England tennis championships but a few of them ran up against stubborn opposition.

England's masterful Fred Perry disposed of C. R. Tucker, British army champion, 6-2, 6-2, 5-7, 6-0. The defending champion, Jack Crawford of Australia, was somewhat extended by Ignacy Tolczynski, Polish star, before triumphing by 6-2, 7-5, 8-6.

Henry (Bunny) Austin of the British Davis cup forces was in fine back-court style and dropped Mohammed Sleem of India, 6-3, 6-2, 6-2.

The United States contingent survived by far the stiffest portion of the day's battle, featuring the triumph of Sidney B. Wood Jr., blond New York stylist, over the exponent of the two-fisted backhand, Vivian McGrath of Australia, 10-8, 6-4, 6-4. Wood trailed 1-4 in the first set on games and 1-3 in the third, but displayed stroking resources to meet each emergency, out-maneouvring the Australian.

Frank Shields of New York, No. 1 in the American ranking, overpowered Dr. Daniel Prenn, former German Davis cup star, 6-3, 6-3, 6-4, while George M. Lott Jr. of Chicago, and Lester Stoeffen of Los Angeles, the U.S. doubles titleholders, each weathered strong opposition.

Lott defeated the English southpaw, R. O. Williams, 6-3, 6-1, 6-8, 7-5, and Stoeffen turned back the big Egyptian, P. Grandguillot, 6-2, 7-5, 11-9.

The Davis cup captain, R. N. (Dick) Williams of Philadelphia, had no trouble eliminating an Indian potentate, the Prince of Kutch, 6-1, 6-3, 6-3.

PROSPECTS POOR FOR SOCCER GAME

The second game for the Butorac cup will probably be not played for some time, stated A. Wallach Monday. With the boys leaving for their holidays soon it makes it practically impossible for a team to be got together.

The first game was played in Nelson when the Trail football team won 1-0. Total goals count in this series.

CANADIAN NET STARS ADVANCE

PHILADELPHIA, June 25 (AP)—Led by a seeded contingent of eight American and two Canadian stars, the field in the national intercollegiate tennis championships whittled itself down to 32 players from its original 100 in an all day session of net action today.

The ranking list, headed by champion Jack Tidball, of the University of California, at Los Angeles, had little difficulty in pacing the field into the third round of the 50th anniversary tournament at Merion Cricket club, in suburban Haverford.

The Canadian Davis cup player, Laird Watt, of McGill, second in the foreign ratings, drew a first round bye, but had to show plenty of net ability to down Leo Brady, Texas star, 7-5, 3-6, 6-1.

Bob Murray, college mate of Watt at McGill, advanced by a default of Rickey Willis, of North Carolina, and then trounced Carl Herckner, West Chester, Pa., Treachers college 6-2, 6-1.

An applause-meter has been devised and used experimentaly to gauge the popularity of actors in amateur theatrical contests.

LONDOS TAKES RASSLE TITLE

Crotch Hold and a Body Slam Beat Big Browning

By EDWARD J. NEIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

RINGSIDE, MADISON SQUARE GARDEN BOWL, New York, June 25 (AP)—Jimmy Londos, idol of the Greeks, came back to the heavyweight wrestling throne amid some of the finest groaning, gurgling and cackling in years as he downed burly Jim Browning, generally recognized as world champion, in one hour, 10 minutes and 10 seconds tonight.

The world series of wrestling, a match that has been in the making four years, wasn't the financial success expected as it lured but $40,000 into Jack Curley's treasury, but it was an artistic success from start to finish.

Just before the finish, Browning, 238½ pounds of brawny farmer boy from Verona, Mo., was submitting the handsome Greek veteran to all the mayhem that even the wrestling ring will stand. He caught Londos, in a tortuous leg split, then a body scissors and finally trapped him in the hold that won the title here from Strangler Ed Lewis two years ago—the celebrated airplane whirl.

Londos, looking as though he'd just slipped the shackles of an old fashioned Spanish inquisition rack, finally rolled under the ropes and got away.

He walked about the ring to get the circulation back in his legs, braced himself, threw back his head and gulped in great draughts of air.

Like a living lightning flash, Londos hurled himself across the ring, picked Browning up in a crotch hold and smashed him head first to the canvas covered scaffold. Browning lay there dazed, groaning and Londos took on fresh courage and new vigor. He picked Browning up again, slammed him down, and then kept that until it looked as though he would wear himself completely out.

Then, with the crowd howling frantically, he picked Browning up for the last time and hurled him down again with a crotch hold and body slam and flattened his numb shoulders with a double arm hold.

MORE ABOUT BROWNLEE CASE

the maid's room next to Mrs. Brownlee's bedroom.

In the front bed room, which one of the boys occupied with Mr. Brownlee, there were twin beds, with a night table between.

"Mr. Brownlee asked me to come in at night," she said. "I refused, but he said Jack (his son) wouldn't wake up.

"After the household was sleeping, Mr. Brownlee walked to the bath room, and started the water running," she said.

She described how the premier had taken her into his bedroom, the noise of the water deadening their footsteps. Young Jack Brownlee was asleep.

Asked why the premier did not go into the maid's room, she replied: "The floor in the maid's room squeaked."

PREMIER WAS ILL

The witness described another occasion when she went to see Mr. Brownlee when he was ill in bed with a cold. She had helped attend him, and admitted on one occasion at that time she had intercourse with him. This was on October 31, 1932, when Mrs. Brownlee was in Toronto.

She told the court she had often gone to the premier's office in the legislative buildings, on Saturday nights or Sunday mornings. On January 2, 1933, she said the premier had driven her to his office where they had intercourse and then went for a short drive. Her mother was in town at the time and she could not stay away from her long.

Mr. Brownlee's attorney, A. L. Smith, who objected when Mr. Maclean attempted to have the girl tell of various conversations, declared: "I have not charged witness recently fabricated her story. She has fabricated the story for three years."

A MYSTERY CAR FOLLOWS

On two occasions, Miss MacMillan said a car had followed the premier while they were on the Stony Plain road, west of the city and off the Jasper highway. This was on July 3 and 5, 1933.

"What was Mr. Brownlee's attitude?" asked Mr. Maclean.

"At first he was very curious," she replied. "Then he became a little afraid. He asked me who it could be. I thought it was his imagination, but later knew there was a car following."

No additional explanation was given in court of the trailing car.

Miss MacMillan told her counsel her relations with Mr. Brownlee had resulted in "a shock to my whole system. I was afraid of becoming pregnant. I was always taking pills."

It had affected her health, and she had lost weight.

"What is the state of your health now?" Mr. Maclean asked.

"I certainly don't feel very well," Miss MacMillan replied.

RESUMES TUESDAY

Court adjourned at 4:15 with direct examination of Miss MacMillan finished and tomorrow morning, starting at 10 a.m. Mr. Smith will start his cross examination.

Throughout the day, Premier Brownlee sat at the long counsel table, making lengthy notes, talking to his wife, or conferring with counsel.

Dressed in white summer coat and hat, Miss MacMillan, told of her early life in Edson, and of her meeting with Alberta's premier at the home of her parents when she was 16 years old in 1928.

Two years later, in the summer of 1930, Mr. Brownlee returned to Edson, attending a picnic with the MacMillan family, and in the evening attended a dance. On the way to the picnic, in the MacMillan car, Mr. Brownlee had suggested to her parents she be allowed to come to Edmonton, take a business college course and seek a position in the capital where opportunities would be greater than in the small railway town of Edson, where her father was shop foreman for the Canadian National railways.

ACT AS HER GUARDIAN

The premier would act as her guardian, and his family would offer her their hospitality.

At the dance, Mr. Brownlee had danced with her, and, she testified, had told her she would grow to be "a very beautiful woman."

The offer to come to Edmonton was accepted, and in October, 1930, she came to the capital, accompanied by her mother, and lived at the Y.W.C.A. Shortly after she arrived, Mr. and Mrs. Brownlee came to the Y.M.C.A., welcomed her to Edmonton, and took her to their home for tea.

APPRECIATED OPPORTUNITY

When she was leaving Mrs. Brownlee had told her she was free to come any time to the premier's home. She had appreciated the opportunity of visiting the Brownlee home.

Miss MacMillan told of her meeting the premier when he visited Edson in 1928, at her parents' home, and later of coming to Edmonton to take a business college course, and finally obtaining a government position. The premier had suggested she come to Edmonton, and he and Mrs. Brownlee had made her welcome, taking her into their home.

Carl Snell, now a school teacher at Halifax, who is returning here to testify at the trial, proposed marriage to the Edson girl when she was 19. He had been her Latin teacher in the Edson high school and associated with her in the church and Sunday school work there.

HER FIRST ADMIRER

Snell, she said, whom she loved as "an older brother," was "really my first admirer." Christmas day, 1929, he had proposed marriage.

"I told him," said Miss MacMillan, "I was too young."

Seated beside the premier at the counsel table today was Mrs. Brownlee, a tall, grey-haired woman, smartly dressed and wearing a silver fox fur. Beside Miss MacMillan sat her mother, taking a keen interest in the court proceedings.

His hand in a plaster cast, A. L. Smith, K.C., of Calgary, injured in an automobile accident recently, received permission of the court to appear without his solicitor's gown.

NO CROWD AT HEARING

Warned the public would not be admitted, no crowd gathered in front of the court house as the principals in the case arrived for the opening session. Only the jury panel of 55 men, court attaches and the press were admitted.

A few minutes before court opened, Premier J. E. Brownlee, accompanied by Mrs. Brownlee, entered the court and sat at the counsel table with A. L. Smith, K.C., chief defence counsel, and M. M. Porter, K.C.

Vivian MacMillan, a tall, slim girl, arrived promptly at 10 o'clock with her father and mother.

Half an hour after court opened, a jury of six men had been chosen to hear the case. After several men had been challenged, one a former civil servant, the jury selected was named as follows:

John Patterson, John McLeod, L. B. Higgins, W. H. Heffernan, J. Loney, J. Kulak.

EVIDENCE IN EXAMINATION

Following the selection of a jury of six men, which took but half an hour, R. H. C. Harrison of Leduc, Associate counsel for the plaintiffs, informed the jury of evidence taken in the examination for discovery.

It was brought out at the examination, he revealed, that Premier Brownlee had never been approached personally by Miss MacMillan nor John Caldwell, young Edmonton medical student, admirer of the girl, with demands for $25,000, or the alternative of having seduction charges laid against the premier. His solicitors, he said, had information, but, on privileges, he did not reveal it at the examination for discovery.

The evidence will show, Mr. MacLean told the jury, that Alberta's 50-year-old premier had taken the young girl, a stranger in the city, on motor drives, had confessed his love for her, told her his wife was wife in name only, and Miss MacMillan had submitted to his desires.

For two and a half years, the premier had had intimate relations with the young girl, at his home, at his office and during their motor drives, Mr. MacLean said the evidence would show.

CHANGED ROOMS

For many years, Mrs. Brownlee and the premier had occupied separate rooms, he said. The premier's wife had suffered a nervous collapse following the birth of a son, and later had had a long illness. With the son growing up, the sleeping arrangement was changed and both Mr. and Mrs. Brownlee had occupied the same room since last winter.

On discovery for examination, Mr. Brownlee admitted he had kissed Miss MacMillan, but it had been at his home when he was leaving on a trip and was bidding good bye to other members of his family.

"Did you ever kiss her when alone?" he had been asked.

"I can't be sure," the premier had replied.

At his home, when other visitors had been present, Mr. Brownlee had written "little notes" to Vivian, but he did not remember each circumstance. He might have wanted her to leave early. Nearly always, he had driven her home. He had no notes or letters from Miss MacMillan, he said.

NO CONTACT WITH DETECTIVES

The premier, Mr. MacLean also informed the jury, had paid to the attorney-general's department a sum of $1400 on August 2, 1933, for disbursements made in investigations. Funds that had been paid to investigators, pending the filing of the suit and the counter claim of the premier in which he charges conspiracy on the part of the girl and Caldwell, had been from the attorney-general's office, he said. He had not had contact with the detectives.

Once, when Mrs. Brownlee was absent from home, Miss MacMillan had stayed there for three nights. On two of these nights, the premier was home, Mr. MacLean informed the jury. At another time Mrs. Brownlee was absent in Toronto, when the premier was taken ill.

Miss MacMillan had assisted in nursing the premier, and, with the attendance of a maid, had rubbed his back and applied mustard plasters, according to examination for discovery evidence.

TRIED TO BREAK AWAY

On the stand, Miss MacMillan, nervous, speaking in a low voice, told of John Caldwell proposing marriage to her in January, 1933. She had, she said, confessed her relations with the premier. She had tried to break away from the premier, but he had refused to discontinue their friendship.

She had then gone to her father and mother and confessed, and later the suit was launched.

MORE ABOUT City Water

monds had taken a sample from the city intake Monday, and that the results of the test would be available Tuesday;

4—Instruction of City Engineer Boyd C. Affleck to recommend a plan for protection of the reservoir.

The outstanding feature of the medical officer's report on the water was his finding that the reservoir was in a very unsatisfactory condition, as far as possible surface drainage, and access to trespassers were concerned, and this feature gave rise to a short discussion.

Various suggestions were advanced from proposed fencing of the whole block owned by the city, to roofing the reservoir over.

Alderman T. J. Scanlan remarked that probably within 24 hours the Five-Mile intake would be given a clean sheet, and the council would have to concentrate on the reservoir.

Alderman Ross Fleming said he would like to have the city engineer's recommendations as to suitably protecting the reservoir. This found favor, and a resolution was passed, calling for that official to report on this matter.

The porton of Dr. Simonds' report relating to the water was as follows:

"Our main source for anxiety at the present time is in connection with the city's water supply. A brief outline of our finding to date will acquaint you with the situation as far as we know it at present.

FIRST HOSPITAL TEST JUNE 12

"On June 12 last two samples of water were taken at Kootenay Lake General hospital for bacteriological examination; as to the results were far from satisfactory on that occasion, two further samples were taken on June 18, also at the hospital. In other words, four samples of water have been bacteriologically examined during the period June 12 to 18; all samples were obtained with the usual stringent precautions against extraneous contamination.

"As the finding were identical on each occasion, one report will serve for all, and is as follows:

"Typical bacillus coli present in 25 cubic centimeters of water; present in 10 cubic centimeters of water; absent from 5 cubic centimeters of water; absent from 1 cubic centimeter of water; absent from one-tenth cubic centimeter of water.

"The presence of B. coli in a city water supply is a potential source of danger to the public health, as it shows vulnerable spot in the water system, and serves as a warning that more dangerous and disease-producing germs may just as easily gain entrance if such diseases as typhoid, dysentery, etc., happen to be present in the district. It is considered that a water supply which contains typical B. coli in 10 cubic centimeters is unsafe for drinking purposes.

"Up to this time (June 19) only the water supply at the hospital had been examined, and we had no information then as to whether the contamination was merely local—such as might be caused by a cross-connection due to leakage, or whether the trouble was general all over the city.

"Consequently, as a precaution, it was advised that all water used at the hospital for drinking purposes should be previously boiled. Our subsequent investigations have made it advisable that this safeguard should be applied to the city generally, until such time as the city water supply can be pronounced as being free from contamination.

"Our next step in the investigation was to examine the condition of the city's water reservoir, which Dr. Auld and I visited on June 20.

RESERVOIR SURROUNDINGS BAD

"The condition we found was far from satisfactory. On two sides of the reservoir is higher ground on which buildings and dwelling houses, unconnected with the city sewers, are situated; there is also refuse, notably old cans and chicken feathers, on higher ground, not many yards from the reservoir itself. It is quite conceivable that under certain conditions, such as a sudden heavy rainfall after a period of dry weather, surface waters might find their way into the reservoir.

"The reservoir is enclosed by a wire fence some six or seven feet high and protected at the top by barbed wire. At one spot, outside this enclosure, the grass is trampled down and small branches torn from the trees, rather suggestive of a bed in the open. Just opposite the barbed wire has been torn for several yards from the top of the fence, and there is evidence from the state of the wire of the fence that someone has been 'over the top.' In such a lonely situation, there is nothing to prevent anyone from sleeping in the open, followed by a morning drink or even morning ablutions in the reservoir.

"Further, there is no warning notice against trespassing or polluting the water in the reservoir.

"So much for possible causes of contamination. We now have to direct evidence that the water of the reservoir is actually contaminated.

RESERVOIR WATER WORSE

"On June 20 I obtained two samples of water from the reservoir, with the ususal precautions against extraneous contamination. These samples were taken direct to the laboratory and examined immediately. My findings were as follows:

"Typical B. coli present in 25 cc of water; present in 10 cc of water; present in 5 cc of water; absent from 1 cc of water.

"It will thus be seen that the reservoir water shows a more unfavorable result than the water taken from the hospital supply in the previous tests.

"Our next step will be to visit the intake, higher up; we propose to visit this on Monday next and take water samples from that source.

"As already stated, B. coli contamination is a potential source of danger, but there is no need for panic. Careful investigation will, I think, soon locate the source of contamination and suggest the remedy."

Apart from the matter of water, Dr. Simonds' report read:

"The general health of the city is satisfactory, except for the continuance of the epidemic of mumps, which has been with us for some months past. There were 18 cases reported during May, and 12 cases reported during June to date. Two cases of tuberculosis of the lungs have been reported since the beginning of May last.

"A tour of inspection of the restaurants and cafes in the city has been commenced, since June 7. Seven of these have been visited, but nothing as yet encountered which can be considered a menace to the public health. Anything of an unsatisfactory nature that may be found in the course of future inspections will be reported to the city council immediately."

A "good luck" bracelet carried by a ship's fireman did not do him any good. It was stolen property and helped to get him three years' penal servitude.

CAR CHARGE IS FAMILY MIX-UP

Octave McDougall, Young Indian, Sentenced to Time Served

Octave McDougall's removal of David McDougall's car from Kelowna, where he had the old man's permission to use it, to Nelson, showed up in provincial police court Monday as a mix-up within the family, and when Octave, who is a young Indian, pleaded guilty to the charge of taking a car without the consent of its owner, Stipendiary Magistrate John Cartmel sentenced him to the time he has already spent in the Nelson jail, something over a week. He is accordingly free.

David McDougall, the elderly relative, testified he gave Octave permission to drive the car around Kelowna only.

The situation was complicated by the fact that Octave obtained from the elderly halfbreed, who does not read and write, a transfer of the car to himself in the name of "David McDougall Jr.," who is admitted to have no existence. He has now transferred it back to the old man, however, and all seem to be happy.

legedly stating that Prime Minister R. B. Bennett ordered Buck was to be shot in his cell during the riots. Smith was acquitted.

NOT DIRECTED AT BUCK

Mr. Guthrie's statement was the first official announcement that shots were fired into the cell of the Communist. The justice minister said, however, that the shots were not directed at Buck. The ceiling of the cell was punctured.

"The situation was serious and Buck was one who had been encouraging the disorder," Mr. Guthrie said in describing the incident. Troops had been called and guards were armed. "He was in his cell making speeches to the prisoners and encouraging the disorders.

"I suppose it was to frighten or cow him; guards fired into the ceiling of his cell. There can be no doubt of this; if anyone had wanted to shoot Tim Buck it could have been done. The fact that 11 shots were fired and he was not hit shows they were not trying to kill him."

For the past 18 months, "I am sorry to say quiet has not been restored in Kingston penitentiary."

Warden W. B. Megloughlin, appointed following the 1932 riots, resigned 10 days ago after being warned changes in the prison management were contemplated.

The fire of last May 15 in the prison was traced to incendiarism although the blame could not be fixed. It caused damage of $35,000.

Convict Sam Behan, who died six weeks ago in a punishment cell and whose death was attributed to heart trouble, had been "paddled" a few days before his death.

During Warden Megloughlin's rule "there was no time in which he could say he was not in danger of his life."

Warden Megloughlin "did his best, he was fearless—to run the penitentiary as it should be."

There were at least 100 dangerous insurrectionists in the prison and many others who were afraid not to join them.

CATHOLIC WOMEN RAP 'BAD' FILMS

League Meeting at Victoria Hears Address on "Gangster" Movies

VICTORIA, June 25 (CP).—Distribution of immoral and gangster films was characterized as a soul-destroying peril to children by Mrs. J. C. Keenan of Toronto, president of the Catholic Women's League of Canada, in her address read at the 14th annual convention of the league here tonight.

Mrs. Keenan declared indecency and obscenity in moving pictures would be eliminated if women stood unitedly on the issue. Catholic women must rouse themselves to combat the menace of "its wicked shadow on our doorstep" the presidential address said.

The president was unable to attend the convention on account of illness. Her address was read by Mrs. J. Coffey of Montreal, the vice-president.

BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

A resolution had been passed at the last annual convention at Quebec recommending the affiliation of all Catholic Women's organizations with the league for the strengthening of Catholic action and making audible the Catholic voice when speaking on moral issues involving the doctrine of the church, said Mrs. Keenan. Considerable had been accomplished in this direction all over Canada. "Women's part in the reconstruction program of the world is to make it a cleaner, better place in which to live and each one of us has a definite place in that program," the president said.

Apropos of citizenship Mrs. Keenan appealed to all delegates to carry home as a message from the convention the importance, where women are enfranchised, of seeing that their names are on the voters' lists.

"We are not in politics," she said, "but we are all citizens and, as such, have full responsibility in the matter of good or bad bovernment. By our lack of interest or indifference to the franchise we must assume our blame for social injustice, economic burdens, or public morals and laws that menace the sanctity of the home or the rights of individuals."

ASK FOR RIGHTS

An achievement of which the league might be justily proud, said Mrs. Keenan, was that of the Ontario Catholic tax-payers of the province to secure an adjustment of their taxes for the support of the separate schools. Through the actions of this committee resolution bearing 40,000 signatures were sent to Premier Georges S. Henry of Ontario, to emphasize that "Catholic people were in earnest in asking for their rights."

Despite difficult conditions for organization Mrs. Keenan reported 45 new branches of the league throughout Canada, an increase of 10 over the preceding year. The league was organized in 30 Canadian dioceses. Records showed $170,000 raised during the year. Ninety-five per cent was disbursed locally by the branches and five per cent used in national work sponsored by the league. The latter included $3500 contributed to Sisters of Service for their missionary work in the west, and $2000 for the National C. W. L. scholarship awarded each year.
