Spanish Official Slams Britain and France for Not Giving Aid to Madrid

"HANDS OFF" IS AID TO REBELS PRIETO STATES

Accuses Germany and Italy of Helping Rebels

PLANE READY FOR ALFONSO

Ex-King Will Fly to the Civil War Scene?

By The Canadian Press

Spanish Loyalists and rebels were deadlocked Thursday in the San Sebastian-Irun sector after heavy fighting which lasted all day. Government forces seemed able to hold their own against all rebel attacks. Rebels served notice the defenders would be summarily treated, after the manner of Babajox, if they prolonged their resistance.

The government reported Loyalists had gained a foothold in Oviedo and that many white flags could be seen floating from buildings in the town. Rebels said relief columns were on their way.

Rebels claimed a three-mile advance on the front south of Madrid. They also announced capture of Rio Tinto and the village of Alto Mesa, which they said gave them control of the entire province of Huelva.

At Madrid, Indalecio Prieto, leader of the Socialist party in the Cortes and a power behind the popular front government, reproached Great Britain and France for their insistence on non-intervention and declared that by denying aid to the Madrid government they were making Spain the "Ethiopia of Europe."

BRIVIESCA, Spain, Aug. 28.—(Friday)—(AP).—Spanish government troops were making a surprise march on rebel-held Burgos today and General Emilio Mola, northern insurgent commander, moved his forces rapidly in an attempt to check the loyalist columns.

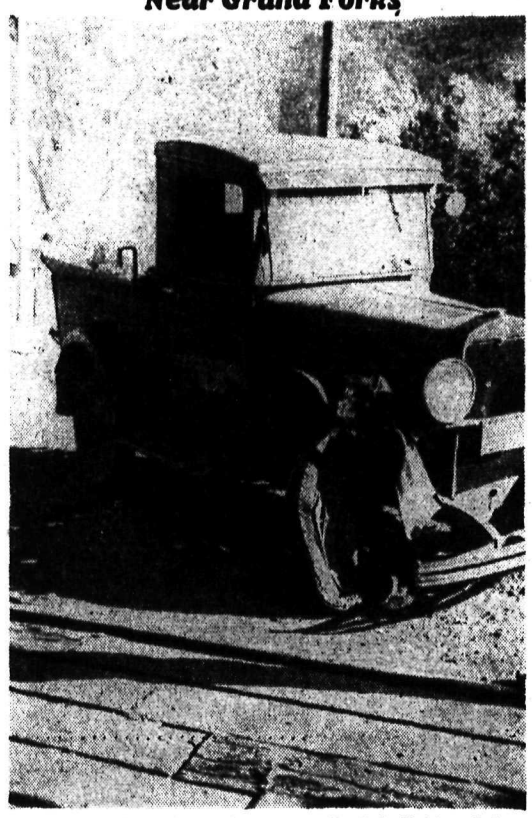
Health Insurance by New Year

VANCOUVER, Aug. 27 (CP)—A forecast that British Columbia's health insurance scheme would be in operation by Christmas or very soon afterwards, was left by Provincial Secretary Weir with the electorate of Vancouver-Burrard today.

Speaking in support of J. Howard Forester, Liberal candidate in the forthcoming Burrard by-election, Dr. Weir firmly defended the health legislation that he sponsored in the last legislature and said:

"I would rather go down to defeat on health insurance than win without it."

Narrow Escape at Railway Crossing Near Grand Forks



Here is the damaged auto truck driven by C. A. S. Atwood, farmer near Grand Forks, after it had collided with the Nelson-bound C. P. R. passenger train Wednesday afternoon on a level crossing. The auto, according to C. P. R. officials, struck the fast moving train, first at the mail car and again at the rear steps of the first class coach. Mr. Atwood was unhurt but the right front end of the auto was badly damaged and glass broken.—Staff Photo.

W. Gallacher, Communist Member, Refused Admission; Travelling in Canada

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27 (AP)—The United States government tonight raised an abrupt "keep out" sign against William Gallacher, a Communist member of the British parliament, who sought admission to this country.

Describing him as a member of the executive committee of the Communist International, whose headquarters are in Moscow, Secretary Hull ordered Gallacher excluded under the Immigration act because of what he called his "position in the international Communist revolutionary movement."

Gallacher, who now is travelling in Canada, originally applied at the American consulate at Fort William, Ont., for a temporary visa to enter the United States and was refused it on instructions from the department.

This government took similar action in 1925 when Secretary Kellogg ordered revocation of a visa granted to Shapurji Saklatvala, also a Communist member of the British parliament, who was to have come to the United States to attend a conference of the inter-parliamentary union.

TWO KILLED AT CROSSING

YORKTON, Sask., Aug. 27 (CP)—Mrs. Henry Halt and her three-month's-old son were injured fatally while the father and another child were injured when their automobile was struck by a Canadian National railways train at a level crossing near Ebenezer nine miles north of here.

HOUDE RESIGNS

MONTREAL, Aug. 27 (CP)—Camillien Houde, a colorful figure in Quebec political life for the last decade, resigned today as mayor of Montreal, without giving an explanation.

Resignation of the mayor was sent to city council members in caucus at noon. His secretary said it was unlikely Mr. Houde would reveal today his reason for leaving the office to which he was first elected in 1928.

PREMIER AGAIN TAKES TO AIR

VICTORIA, Aug. 27 (CP).—Scheduled to cover the length of Vancouver island and make eight stops before putting in for the night at Port Alice, Premier T. D. Pattullo left Esquimalt at 8 a.m. today on an airplane tour of island centers. Fog was reported off the west coast in the weather report from Port Renfrew.

The Waco plane was piloted by E. C. W. Dobbin of Vancouver.

Fire Situation Remains Quiet

With control established and the danger lessening, additional men were laid off at the Monroe lake forest fire in Cranbrook vicinity, according to reports received by forest branch officials at Nelson Thursday.

No report was received on the Fish creek fire in the Pend d'Oreille, which was brought under control Wednesday.

Elsewhere throughout the district the forest fire situation remained quiet.

WORRY LEAVES POPE PIUS XI SERIOUSLY ILL

Prelates Fear Will Soon Be Unable to Walk

THREE-HOUR TALK LEAVES HIM WEAK

Suffering From an Inflammation of the Heart

VATICAN CITY, Aug. 27 (AP)—Pope Pius XI was so distressingly weakened tonight from worry over Spanish bloodshed that prelates feared he soon might be unable to walk.

Illness of the holy father, who was 79 years old May 31, was disclosed after preparations were made for an expiatory service in St. Peter's for the death of priests and nuns and the destruction of churches in Spain.

It was planned for the pope to attend the services assisted by all the cardinals now resident in Rome.

POPE PIUS

Plans also were made for the pope to receive Spanish churchmen who fled to Italy for safety. At that time he was to protest against the sacrileges of civil war.

Prelates and physicians have sought to persuade him to conserve his strength, but yesterday a three-hour conversation with Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, papal sec-

DIDN'T PROMISE ALL DIVIDENDS

EDMONTON, Aug. 27 (CP).—The Social Credit party had never promised basic dividends to every bona fide citizen of Alberta, Premier Aberhart declared today in the legislature.

The premier made the statement in reply to a speech by G. H. Van Allen (Lib., Edmonton). The opposition member claimed the government in its election platform had promised to give not less than $25 a month to every bona fide Alberta citizen.

"He said that by implication it was clear that I had made a definite promise to every bona fide British citizen in Alberta," Mr. Aberhart declared.

His Social Credit manual, published in July, 1935, the premier continued, declared "if a person did not wish to join with the Social Credit idea . . . he would not receive any monthly dividends."

Seek Persons in Probe of Coast Arena Fire

VANCOUVER, Aug. 27 (CP)—With investigations still continuing into the $600,000 fire which swept Vancouver's west-end waterfront last week, destroying the ice-arena, and other buildings, police revealed tonight they were searching for the occupants of two automobiles seen to leave the scene shortly before the fire broke out.

The officers efused, however, to reveal what connection they believed the occupants of the cars to have with the disastrous fire.

Bill Providing for Whole Scheme Introduced; Allows Creation of Credit House

Gives Credit House Power to Issue Dividends

LOANS ALSO PROVIDED FOR

EDMONTON, Aug. 27 (CP).—Containing provisions for the whole Social Credit plan of the Alberta government, an act was introduced in the legislature tonight by Hon. E. C. Manning, minister of trade and industry. The bill, described as an act to provide the people of Alberta with additional credit, is called the Alberta Credit House act.

The new act comes as a sequel to the Social Credit Measures act which empowered the government to investigate and formulate proposals toward institution of Social Credit principles in the province. Under the act introduced today the government is given authority to inaugurate the steps planned as a result of that investigation.

It gives the state credit house power to provide every person entitled to Alberta credit with the amount of any Alberta credit to which he may become entitled in such a manner as may be prescribed by the lieutenant-governor in council.

Transfer of currency to credit is empowered under the new act. Credit houses will be able to redeem deposits of currency which can be withdrawn either in currency or credit or an amount equal to the cash deposit.

Legislature authority for issuing provincial credits in the form of basic dividends, production loans, compensating discounts and other features of the Social Credit plan is also provided for in the measure.

ADDIS ABABA IS ATTACKED

ROME, Aug. 28 (Friday) (AP).—An official announcement early today said 12,000 Ethiopians attacked Addis Ababa yesterday but were repulsed with losses on both sides.

The Ethiopian dead, the statement said, numbered 200, while 15 Italian native soldiers were killed and 40 wounded.

The Ethiopians—termed "bandits" in the report from the Addis Ababa Italian administration—were said to have advanced on the city to the south of the airfield.

Italian troops, both native and white, met them with the support of artillery and forced back the attackers, the announcement asserted.

EGYPT IS NOW FREE

LONDON, Aug. 27 (CP Cable)—After 50 years of strife, Great Britain wins in Egypt a new friend. That is the one dominant fact which runs through the Anglo-Egyptian treaty signed in the Locarno room of the Foreign Office yesterday. Text of the treaty will be made public tomorrow.

The British military occupation of Egypt ends. The period of that curious system of semi-independence in which Egypt apparently governed herself but Britain had the final word is closed.

Britain and Egypt now are in alliance. Each country will be represented in the capital of the other by an ambassador. At the Egyptian court the British ambassador will be senior to other foreign diplomatic representatives.

Egypt will apply for membership in the League of Nations.

AMERICA'S CUP RACE NEXT JULY

NEW YORK, Aug. 27 (AP).—The first race for the America's cup between T. O. M. Sopwith's British challenger, Endeavor II, and a United States defender will be held July 24, 1937. This was confirmed today by officials of the New York Yacht club, who are bound under the mutual consent clause to agree to the dates set by the challenger.

U.S. MOURNS ITS WAR SECRETARY

Army Guns to Boom Today for Geo. H. Dern

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27 (AP)—Army guns throughout the land and halfway around the world will boom in mourning tomorrow for George H. Dern, secretary of war.

The 64-year-old cabinet officer, who made a fortune in mining and twice was governor of Utah before President Roosevelt appointed him as the army's chief, died at 10:55 a.m. today in Walter Reed hospital. He had been taken there July 13 after falling ill while inspecting army engineering projects.

George Dern

Military funeral services will be conducted in Mount Pleasant congregational church here. Saturday. Accompanied by high officials and a guard of honor, the secretary's body will be taken then by special train to Salt Lake City, Utah, for burial.

President Roosevelt, who received word of the death at an unscheduled stop on his western drought tour, will attend the Masonic burial services Tuesday.

The cause of Dern's death was described in a war department announcement as cardiac and kidney complications, following a severe attack of influenza which weakened his entire physical condition.

Speaks to Canada

MALCOLM MacDONALD

Pressing a button in the British General post office at London, Malcolm MacDonald, secretary for the Dominions in the British cabinet, illuminated the British trade section at the Canadian National exhibition at Toronto yesterday, and then delivered by transatlantic telephone, an address to a distinguished group gathered in the building.

"HELLO CANADA" ACROSS ATLANTIC

Malcolm MacDonald Speaks by "Long Distance"

TORONTO, Aug. 27 (CP)—Recent trade talks between British and Canadian cabinet ministers "proved invaluable in creating an understanding of each other's position which must be the preliminary to sound, mutually advantageous agreements," Rt. Hon. Malcolm Macdonald, Dominions' secretary in the British cabinet, declared tonight in an address by trans-Atlantic telephone as he opened the British trade section at the Canadian national exhibition.

FERRYBOAT MEN REFUSE HANDLE HEARST PAPERS

STANDS ASKED NOT TO HANDLE

Is Result of Strike on the Seattle P. I.

SEATTLE, Aug. 27 (AP). — The strike blockade of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, morning newspaper, which failed to publish for the 14th consecutive day, prevented the transshipment here today of one shipment of Sunday editions of the San Francisco Examiner, also a Hearst publication.

About 1500 copies, ordered for Bremerton and delivered to a ferry dock here after being sent north by Tarin, lay untouched on a dock. Capt. James M. Fox, secretary of the Ferryboatmen's union, said he would not allow union members to handle it.

Copies of the same edition were distributed, or expected to arrive shortly in other Pacific northwest cities.

At Aberdeen, E. E. Welland, president of the Sawmill and Timber Workers' union there, said all stores and news stands which had handled the Post-Intelligencer would be asked not to handle the Examiner as long as the Post-Intelligencer remains suspended.

Harry Weibling, 29, a logger, who was arrested in the disturbance outside the Post-Intelligencer plant the night of August 14 in which Det.-Lieut. Arthur J. Hill was injured, was given a 10-day jail sentence today.

Acting Police Judge Jacob Kalina said he "wouldn't stand for strike violence." Lieutenant Hill was hit in the face by a missle.

U. S. PROTESTS TO MADRID

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27 (AP)—Interference with American diplomatic correspondence at Madrid today prompted United States authorities there to protest to the Spanish government, which apologized formally and gave assurance it would not happen again.

Reporting on the first instance of its kind since the Spanish revolt broke out, Eric C. Wendelin, American charge d'affaires at Madrid, advised the state department that an official letter addressed to the embassy had been opened and censored.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE DELEGATES HEAR ABOUT PRODUCE MARKETING

Hon. K. C. McDonald Explains Workings of Marketing Act; Monroe Urges Junior Women's Institutes in B. C.

VANCOUVER, Aug. 27 (CP). — Delegates to the convention of Women's Institutes in session here today turned, for a time, to discussion of British Columbia's fruit and vegetable marketing problems after hearing Agricultural Minister K. C. McDonald and other speakers on the subject.

One delegate wanted to know why many Vancouver housewives canned imported peaches before the Okanagan crop with its superior flavor was on the market. Another said cantaloupes were going to waste on the ground in the Oliver district while Vancouver fruit shops displayed imported cantaloupes which also were said to be inferior in flavor to the British Columbia fruit.

EXPLAINS BOARD

Dr. McDonald explained the marketing board set up under the Marketing act.

Its principal function was to see that farmers merchandized their produce at a reasonable profit, he said.

GROUND TO PARTICLES, SILICA IS POISON; MYSTERY IS "WHY IS IT?"

Causes New Lung Disease, Scientists Report

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Aug. 27 (AP)—(By Howard W. Blakeslee, Associated Press Science Editor)—Science has one mystery yet to solve in silicosis, the most dangerous of all dust diseases.

The mystery is why silica, the dust responsible, turns into a poison when ground to particles the size of bacteria. The surprising behavior of silica was explained today at the Harvard tercentenary by Dr. W. Irving Clark and Prof. Philip Drinker at the Harvard school of public health.

Beach sand is almost pure silica. Silica is part of the beauty of opals and occurs in quartz, flint, sandstone, jaspar and many other common substances in all of them it is harmless to human beings.

When ground fine enough to fly in the air particles of silica cause a distinct, new lung disease.

KOOTENAY HUCKLEBERRIES 'CATCH ON' ON PRAIRIES; REPEAT ORDERS

2000 Baskets Shipped $700 Is Share of Pickers

By the end of the week 2000 baskets—roughly 20,000 pounds—of Kootenay huckleberries will have been marketed by the Associated Growers sub-central at Nelson, representing a little better than $700 spread among pickers in the district.

Experimental shipping of Kootenay huckleberries to prairie points appears to have been a success. The movement of the berries on prairie markets was slow at first for two main reasons: Competition with eastern blueberries; and lack of familiarity of consumers with B.C.'s favorite wild berry.

REPEAT ORDERS

Latterly eastern blueberries have been off the market and the huckleberry, once introduced, has apparently found favor with consumers, for repeat orders hav been numerous, according to Nelson officials of the Associated Growers. It is believed that the introduction thus made this season will pave the way for a much wider market next year, and that the fruit will be as popular as blueberries in a short time.

Just how long shipment of huckleberries will continue depends mostly upon movement of domestic fruits and the activity they entail at the Kootenay Cooperative Cold Storage association warehouse, where these fruits are handled.

SLACK SEASON WORK

The huckleberry experiment was made not only as a commercial venture, but also to provide slack season employment for the staff at the warehouse, since they arriv- in volume between the time cherries and other early fruits are moving, and the time pears and apples start to go out.

By going to higher altitudes pickers can continue to gather huckleberries for some time yet, but picking of pears is scheduled to begin today and the larger tree fruits will be moving with increasing impetus from now on. It may be necessary, though no decision to this effect has been made yet, to close the huckleberry deal shortly, according to officials.

14 DONKEYS FOR SATURDAY GAME

Nelson Kinsmen and Gyros Will Give Unique Show

Chief Burro Tamers Ado Diebolt and Tommy Shorthouse and Managers Jack Morris and Bill McKay are grooming their organizations' members for the donkey baseball game which will be played here at the Recreation baseball grounds Saturday night under the auspices of the Gyro club.

Fourteen donkeys are being brought in on a large truck and trailer for the game, one of a troupe of four which is touring Canada.

The donkeys are from Colorado where they were trained to do the wrong thing at exactly the right time. The troupe is equipped with a complete set of poles and floodlights which will be set up in the Recreation grounds.

The game will start at 9:15, members of the Gyro club opposing a team composed of the Nelson Kinsmen club. The Gyros have intimated that the game will be a "pushover" and the Kinsmen maintain that if they can tell the animals from their rivals, they will win handily.

All players except the pitcher and catcher will be mounted on burros. The batter must hit the ball, and when he does, climbs aboard his mount and starts for first base, provided the donkey is willing. If he is thrown off twice before he reaches first base, he is out. A softball is used and if the batter cannot hit it with an ordinary bat in three strikes, he is given a slab with which he can't miss it.

On Saturday afternoon there will be a parade of the troupe of 14 burros along Baker street. These animals are guaranteed to do just what the rider does not want them to do and are specially trained in Fabian tactics.

Feather trimming for hats is said to be important for fall in London, especially, as King Edward has a fancy for ostrich. His sister-in-law, the Duchess of Kent, formerly Marina of Greece, appeared recently in a small toque composed of feathers sweeping backward and falling over the hair. Ostrich hats, ostrich bows for day-time frocks, ostrich bows for daytime frocks, ostrich capes and ostrich hems for evening gowns are being prepared for the coronation year. Big wings are an important feature of London's millionery trim.

MORE ABOUT "HELLO CANADA"

To a distinguished gathering in the governments' building in the exhibition grounds, the son of Ramsay Macdonald spoke of inter-imperial trade after he illuminated the building by depressing a cable key in the British General post office, London, on the eve of the exhibition opening.

Introduced by Sir Francis L. C. Floud, British high commissioner to Canada, Mr. Macdonald spoke "in the small hours of the morning", as he said, into a microphone that hurled his words across the Atlantic.

"Hello, Sir Francis, Hello Canada and the British section of the Canadian national exhibition," said the son of Britain's former prime minister after Sir Francis Floud's introductory remarks. When the high commissioner requested him to open the British section, Mr. Macdonald pressed the cable key and lights glowed in the darkened area.

Developments of mutual trade between the United Kingdom and Canada "is a matter of importance to both as a contribution towards securing employment and maintaining a good standard of life for the people in each land," Mr. Macdonald said.

The Dominions secretary praised Canada for her free political institutions which resulted in cooperation between the different races in the country and for her policy of peace which brought "an enduring friendship with your neighbor beyond your border."

LEAD AT STAKE IN SCOTTISH

GLASGOW, Aug. 27 (CP Cable)—Aberdeen and Rangers, two of the three teams that share leadership of the Scottish football league may pull out in front of Motherwell, their rival, as the result of games to be played Saturday.

While the Dons and the Scottish cup-holders play at home, Motherwell goes to St. Johnstone, a hard squad to beat on its own ground at Perth. Aberdeen takes on Falkirk, promoted from the second division, while the Glasgow Stars entertain Hibernians at Ibrox park. The three clubs each have seven points and are so far unbeaten.

Hamilton Academicals and Hearts with six points each also play at home. The Accies should experience little trouble in disposing of Arbroath but Hearts may have to work hard against St. Mirren, doughty Paisley outfit that returned to the second division with Falkirk after a year's absence.

The magnetic South Pole is in King George V. land.

MORE ABOUT W.I. DELEGATES

"You cannot expect people to live on the land, pay taxes, and develop and maintain a decent citizenship if they get no return from the work of production," he declared. "It is of primary importance to all the people of this province that farmers get a fair price for their products, otherwise the vegetable industry will pass into the hands of the Oriental which makes the wite man's competition impossible owing to his higher standard of living."

J. B. Munroe, deputy minister of agriculture, described manufacture of rayon and a substance used for transparent package coverings from spruce.

JUNIOR INSTITUTES

He exhibited the various stages used in the manufacturing and declared there was a tremendous opportunity for this industry in the province. He also urged formation of junior Women's Institutes.

Mrs. H. McGregor of Penticton outlined results achieved from national Women's Institute conventions which she had attended. As the result of a British Columbia exhibit at one many orders had come to the Vancouver Island weavers for hand-woven goods and to Summerland for pottery.

Mrs. George Murray of Lillooet described the work of the institute in the Cariboo and Peace River districts. In the former district a rest room is kept up at Prince George where school children are served with hot cocoa, dental and tonsil clinics are sponsored and maternity kits are provided.

The Peace River has 20 institutes with 300 members who arrange most of the community social events, run circulating libraries and sponsor dramatic and musical festivals, Mrs. Murray said.

Convention delegates later adjourned for tea at the Canada Pacific exhibition by the women's committee.

PHONE NINE TO MEET SAFEWAYS

This evening the B.C. Telephones and Safeway men's softball teams of the Nelson Softball league are scheduled to meet in a league fixture at the Junior High school grounds. Safeways are now only half a game behind the fourth-place Bugle Band squad whom they were scheduled to play last night at the junior high. Neither team appeared for the game so that it will have to be played at some future date. Wednesday evening's game between the Kootenay Valley Dairy and Trinity teams was not played either, because of the failure of the teams to appear.

Because of the shorter evenings lately, league officials request players to be on hand sharp at 6, so that the games can be run off. The schedule must be finished in order to clear the way for the league playoffs.

The magnetic North Pole is in Boothia, North Canada.

MAX BAER, HUGE AND POWERFUL BUT HUMAN AND A GENTLEMAN

Likes to Pull Boyish Pranks on Manager Hoffman, But Has a Kind Heart and Is Thoughtful of Others

By ART JOY

TRAIL, B. C., Aug. 27—They were sitting at a table having dinner when I entered their room. Max was wrestling with a steak while manager Ancil Hoffman was enjoying lamb chops.

"Have a seat," said the ex-heavyweight champion of the world as he picked up table and all and held it to allow me to get past to the bed, for there were no other chairs in the room.

One minute he called his manager: "Hoffman," next it was "Dad" and then ironically, "Mr. Hoffman."

"Have some tea Mr. Hoffman?" he asked after having squeezed the pot into his own cup. Then a grin, from ear to ear spread across his boyish face as he figured he had once more pulled his manager's leg.

He sat there in a white bathrobe with his broad shoulders spreading the width of the window at his back. The white cloth showed off to advantage the deep Californian tan.

He liked to talk about his boyhood days.

I asked when he moved from Omaha, Nebraska, where records show he was born, to Livermore, California, which he calls his home town.

"I moved there when I was about 12 or 14 years," replied Max. "I lived on a ranch until I was 20."

"How is it the papers never mention that you were a farm boy, for instance like they did Jefferies?"

"Ah this play-boy stuff is a lot of rot" said Max. "A fellow's got to have a little fun once in a while."

Then he squinted, and giving a quick side glance said:

"Doesn't he?"

"If I appear in a nightclub one night, I'm there all the time."

Manager Hoffman finished his first course first as he let Max do most of the talking. Mr. Hoffman reached over and placed one of the bowls before him.

"Say, which is the biggest one," spoke up the fighter as a serious glance changed again into a grin that captures you.

"Yes, sir," he went on, "I was 20 years old before I left the ranch.

After they finished eating, we adjourned to another room.

Baer asked more questions than anyone else that has visited Trail than I have had the pleasure to interview.

He asked many questions about the Tadanac plants.

"We left Buddy up there this morning," went on Max. He was going through the whole works. It sure must be hard work up there.

"What's the population of Trail?"

I told him it was about 10,000.

"Livermore is about 7000. Boy I sure wish they had something like this down there. There's a town I could be mayor of if I wanted."

"Yes, if you had time to run the office," interposed his manager.

Bill Ramsay, manager of the rink, came in and asked Max to autograph a book for a little girl that would be unable to see him.

"Is she sick?" he immediately queried.

"No; she just will not be able to see you," answered Mr. Ramsay.

After writing he handed the book to Mr. Ramsay.

"'Always your boy friend, Max.' How's that?"

The ex-champion and Mr. Hoffman asked Mr. Ramsay innumerable questions about the smelter. They are interested in mining in California.

"And they have their own insurance too, don't they?"

Mr. Ramsay gave them a brief outline of that.

Buddy sauntered into the room.

"Say if you don't take off those cowboy boots, I don't fight you tonight," said Max to Bud.

"Aw, I won't have to take them off to fight you," came the reply of a brother.

"I think we better give Buddy a job up at the smelter," said Max. "We could take one of those motors off the train and have him push it a while. He's as big as a horse, he's a mule, a jackass."

They asked about the Columbia river, about the new Couer d'Alene dam, told about their visit to Boulder dam and discussed many things of current interest.

In the ring Max might be a clown, a huge powerful man with a sense of humor, trying to amuse the public, to give them a laugh—but in his room he talked like any human being, and a perfect gentleman.

He had an air of seriousness about him all the while, looked as though he was in deep thought, probably thinking about some of the many great things of his career in the past or trying to figure for the future.

He said Hoffman had been his manager for seven years. He had promoted one of his first fights.

Buddy came in with a bunch of letters he had written and handed them to Hoffman for mailing.

"Who did you write to?" asked Max. "Did you write to mother?"

Max thinks a lot of his mother.

Max is a real showman knows all the ropes of showmanship. He earnestly does and says everything to put himself over.

When I felt it was time to leave he said:

"Oh don't go yet, stick around."

As I walked out of the room he came out in the hall, gave me a gentle slap on the back, and said:

"See you at the ring tonight."

Max and Buddy Baer Go Over Big Before Huge Trail Fight Crowd

Former Champ Easily Finishes Simpson in the First Round; Preliminaries Please

By A. R. JOY

TRAIL, B. C., Aug. 27—The colorful, clowning Max Baer, ex-heavyweight boxing champion of the world who dropped into Trail to show his prowess to fight fans of the Kootenays, certainly went over big when he appeared at the rink before a huge crowd Thursday night.

He took on Jack (Uncle Tom) Simpson, big 210-pound colored heavyweight from Portland, in a sheeduled three-round main go but registered a kayo before the end of the first.

Simpson entered the ring, hit Max a few good blows on the ribs, and getting him in a corner pounded the Livermore larruper in the body as the latter held his arms outstretched. Greatly surprised that his blows were ineffective, Simpson backed away. Taking a love tap on the head, Uncle Tom reclined on the canvas in the manner Romans used to eat until the count of nine. Max was disgusted. They came together again and Baer let go a terrific right to the head. Uncle Tom folded up. It was all over.

BUDDY IS POPULAR

Buddy Baer was as popular as his older brother when the two put on a three-round exhibition bout. Maxie clowned around, show*ed off his big chest, and occasionally* smacked Buddy on the face with the back of his glove just to let him know he was still the elder brother. Everyone was pleased with Max's show and Buddy's technique, and indicated that press reports about the younger Baer were the real McCoy.

Dr. D. W. McKay of Nelson introduced the heavyweights. When he said Max had beaten Schmeling and was going to do it again, the big Baer just grinned.

Referee Alex Stewart, chief constable of Nelson, was introduced as the only man of the interior of B. C. who had ever fought a heavyweight champion or an ex-champion, his opponent being the renowned Bob Fitzsimmons in Rossland during that city's heyday.

Fans were well pelased with the preliminaries. Billy Lancaster, 146-pound colored fighter of Spokane, in his second appearance here won a technical knockout over Freddie Gruden, 149, of Edmonton, Referee Murdo Morrison stopping the battle half way through the fifth of the scheduled eight-round bout. Gruden put up a game fight for four rounds but the darkie's terrific uppercuts proved too much for him. His left eye was closed when he started the fifth.

HOLM, INKSTER DRAW

Pete Holm, 146, Trail favorite, who lost a decision to Lancaster in a hard-fought bout on the last card here, kept up a terrific pace with Don Inkster, 144, of Vancouver, which ended in a draw. Both received and handed out considerable punishment during the scheduled four rounds.

Jimmie Schrump, 142, Rossland hockey player, won an easy decision over Bobby Leash, 140, in a three-round bout after knocking him down for the count of nine in the second. Leash was all in when the final round started and Jimmie played cat-and-mouse with his opponent until the end of the third.

Opening bout of the card was a hard-slugging battle between Gerald Simpson, 105, and Sammy Sapronoff, 103, who fought a three-round draw.

Judges were Chief of Police William Campbell of Tadanac and Joe Holland of Nelson. Charles Dodimead was timekeeper.

The Maple Leaf band was in attendance.

Mr. Ramsden suffered a broken arm while Eugene Roy and a fourth passenger escaped with bruises and scratches besides being shaken up.

Dogs Seek Missing Coast Man

VANCOUVER, Aug. 27 (CP)—British Columbia police today brought two keen-nosed trail dogs into the search for Bernard Hayes, 52-year-old accountant who has been missing from his home in the West Point Grey university area since last Friday.

A driver of a university bus identified Hayes' picture as that of a man who alighted from his bus shortly after 2 p.m. Wednesday in the university district. The driver said his attention was drawn by the man's unshaven and apparently dazed condition.

ARTHUR BERRY, RESIDENT CITY 20 YEARS, DIES

Four Years at Taghum Before Coming to Nelson

Arthur William Berry, aged 75, resident of Nelson since 1916, died at Kootenay Lake General hospital Thursday evening.

Mr. Berry was born in Ealing, London, and was engaged in the butcher business in London from his youth until emigrating to Canada in 1912 with his family and taking up residence at Taghum. Four years later, in 1916, the family came to Nelson. Mr. Berry was well known in the city as an employee of Mayor J. P. Morgan and later of "Big John" Linebaugh, now dead.

Predeceased by his wife, who died in the spring of 1934, Mr. Berry is survived by one daughter, Mrs. H. G. Morton of London; and five sons, Alex of Keno City, Yukon, Donald, now in the Cariboo, David of Ymir, Ralph of Rossland, and Gordon of Trail.

Gumbo Is Great Experience for Clifford Haydon

Sees Brother First Time for 28 Years

Returning from a 1500-mile trip into Alberta, Clifford Haydon finds it difficult to pick out the feature of his holiday—he's not sure whether it was prairie dirt roads after rain had prepared the gumbo for his special benefit; whether it was the 80-odd mile drive from Calgary to Banff over a road like a billiard table; or whether it was the reunion with his brother.

Mr. and Mrs. Haydon spent three days each way on the road, going by way of Macleod, Lethbridge and Calgary to Mr. Haydon's brother's farm in the Camrose area. It was the first time the brothers had met in 28 years. Mr. Haydon brought back with him a photo o fhis former home in the old country, occupied by his family since 1777, but which has been torn down in the last few years.

Crops in the country they passed through, except for a strip between Red Deer and Ponoka, and north, were burned out.

Rain fell several times during their visit, an intense prairie storm also being experienced.

The night before the Nelsonites started the return trip, heavy rain fell.

"We had to drive over a dirt road for a few miles to reach a highway," Mr. Haydon said, emphasizing that the "dirt roads" were just that, while the highways were surfaced with fine gravel. "It was the worst drive I ever made in my life, for the rain had turned the road to gumbo, and it was my first experience with gumbo. I thought we were stuck several times, and on one occasion the car travelled sideways for almost a block when we got into some ruts. If you ever drive on the prairies stay off 'dirt' roads after rain," he advised.

Coming back Mr. and Mrs. Haydon travelled to Calgary, thence to Banff and through the Windermere to the southern trans-provincial highway.

"That road from Calgary to Banff was a dream," the returned Nelsonite asserted. "Smooth as a billiard table all the way and beautiful driving."

Cliff is not likely to take up wheat farming in a hurry. He obtained a vivid picture of farmers harassed by low prices and drought during the past two or three years, burned out again this year, but still sure "it'll be different next year."

A yellow crepe collar and cuffs, brown suede gloves, bag and sandals, and a silk felt braided "gob" hat, complete the costume.

Attendance at Lakeside Jumps

Happy Days for the Bathers Return With Heat

"Happy days are here again" at Lakeside park, with the new moderate heat wave, and apparent end of the windy weather. After three days during which park attendance fell off greatly, with only 50 checks issued at the check-room Sunday, 15 Monday and 28 Tuesday, the number jumped to 230 Wednesday, while Thursday was a gala day, with the water, float, and beach animated in all directions.

Last week, in spite of the cool and windy weather, with rain on the Tuesday, 1393 checks were issued. The Tuesday, with 20, was the only light day, the other six ranging from 181 up to 283.

The water is now practically within a yard of the low water mark, and persons of average height can walk all around east of the float, and tall persons can stand on bottom for some distance out in the lake.

So shallow is the water that the end of the safety boom nearest the floating walk is now attached to the corner of the float, and the non-swimming children have a large area of shallow water in which to wade and raft.

CRANBROOK IS OUT TO RULE NELSON MEET

Four Champions of School Meet to Compete

ENTER 13 EVENTS FOR LABOR DAY

Wallach Hopes Trail and Other Teams Will Compete

Cranbrook athletes are going in for the Labor Day sports in Nelson in a big way, and "Major" A. Wallach was all pepped up Thursday when he received in the mail entries of four school cracks, champions in their respective classes at the late Kootenay-Boundary school meet at Fernie, who between them will compete in 13 track and field events.

FOUR TOP ATHLETES

Murray Wheaton, in addition to winning several titles in the inter-city meet referred to, was also champion of the meet, as he won the aggregate. Wheaton, Morris Haley, and Ed Wood will between them compete in all the men's races, while Wood will also do his stuff in three field events. The three will team up in the mile relay. Myrtle Gummer is entered in three women's events, including the quarter mile relay.

These relay entries suggest that there are other Cranbrook entries to come, which will round out the relay teams.

Wheaton, who goes in for distance work, is entered for the 880 yards, mile, and three mile races, and the mile relay.

Haley, who is a sprinter, is down for the 100 yards, 220 yards, and the mile relay.

Wood is entered for five events, broad jump, pole vault, hop, step and jump, and the 100 yards and the mile relay.

In the women's section Miss Gummer will carry Cranbrook's colors in the 100 yards, the high jump and the quarter mile relay.

A CHALLENGE TO ANSWER

Cranbrook's challenge will take some turning back, in view of the records of these athletes, and the other Kootenay-Boundary centers will no doubt be on their mettle.

There are still six days for making entries, and "Major" Wallach hopes that Trail, Rossland and Grand Forks will get in the swim with Nelson, to stand off the challenge of Cranbrook, which may yet be reinforced from Kimberley and Fernie.

Junior Boxla Battles Tonight

Junior boxla players will show their stuff at the box lacrosse rally at the Civic Centre arena this evening beginning at 7:15 o'clock. Three games will be played, one bantam, one midget, and one juvenile. In the first game, the Gyro Indians and the Panthers of the Nelson bantam league will tangle, while the second game will see the Iroquois play the Panthers, the teams being closely matched rivals in the Nelson Midget league. Savoy Hornets and Fairview, only two juvenile teams in the city will take the floor for the third game which begins at 9:15.

TRAIL, B.C., Aug. 27—At the wedding of two popular members of Trail's younger set, at St. Francis Xavier church, August 27, Rev. T. P. Freney united in marriage, Rena, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Baggio of Trail, with Oscar Cossarini of this city, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Cossarini of Italy. Three young ladies, Miss Vera Devito, Miss Inez Baggio and Miss Gena Vendramini attended the bride. Frank Brandolini, A. Salsiccioli and Victor Sciaretta were groomsmen. Clad in white satin, fashioned on modish lines, the bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was the central figure in a lovely wedding tableaux. Practically unornamented, the figure fitting gown fastened from neckline to waistline with self material buttons. Short puffed sleeves were featured. The softly draped skirt was graced by a short train, the wedding veil of embroidered net cascading in fulness to practically the same hemline. A coronet of orange blossoms held the folds snugly to the head. While accessories were worn, the only color of the complete ensemble being the bouquet of deeply tinted pink roses and maidenhair fern. In delicate and delightful contrast were the three frocks of pastel tints worn by the bridesmaids. Of apple green silk net, the frock of Miss Baggio boasted a ruffled cape, ruffles also trimming the hemline which touched the floor. A mohair hat of blending shade was worn and a bouquet of mauve and pink sweet peas was carried. Crepe de chine, in pastel blue, was selected by Miss Vendramini, frilling of net again being used to ornament the hemline of the skirt and for the smart cape. She carried a colonial bouquet of pink and white sweet peas and accessories, including a picture hat, were entonc. As maid of honor, Miss Devito was striking in a smart frock of striped organza of a delicate pink. Tailored simplicity was augmented by a fluffy jabot and puffed sleeves. The skirt was gracefully molded to flare softly to floor length. As the bridesmaids, Miss Devito wore a mohair hat in complementary tone and carried a bouquet of mauve and pink sweet peas. Retiring to the home of the bride's parents at the conclusion of the ceremony, congratulations were extended to the young couple by relatives and friends. Assisting in receiving, Mrs. Baggio wore a smart ensemble of navy crepe with white hat. Centering the bride's table was a three-tiered wedding cake, ornately decorated. Mr. and Mrs. Cossarini left on a wedding trip to the coast and will return to the city to take up residence in September.

"CHANGE CARS" NELSON TRAM PATRONS HEAR

Service Broken on Front Street as Rails Moved

TRACK IS SWUNG OUT TO CENTER

Fourth Down Town Corner-Cutting Corrected

"Change cars!"

This was the unusual behest heard by Nelson street car patrons Thursday from the conductors, and it was in vogue all the afternoon.

In connection with the re-grading and macadam paving operation on the two blocks of Front street between Hall and Cedar streets, opportunity was taken to re-lay the street car track which "cut the corner" opposite the Macdonald's Consolidated, and swing it out into the middle of the street so as to have the roadways on either side equal and standard in width.

This operation required the taking up of the rails Thursday afternoon, and until the rails were again in place about 5 p.m., the street car service was in two sections, one car running between Hall street and Lakeside park, and the other covering the rest of the system.

MOTORMEN CHANGE ENDS

The special service also involved switching the trolleys each time the cars left the junction point, and operating the cars from the opposite end, the Nelson street cars, like those anywhere else, being equipped with controllers at either end.

When the old Nelson Tramway company of the early days put down the track, it economized in steel by cutting corners. Soon after the war the corner-cutting on Vernon-Josephine was corrected. When Baker street was paved with concrete the same was done at the Wood Vallance corner. Laying of macadam on the lower end of Ward street a few years later was the occasion for correcting the turn opposite the city hall.

The present work corrects the last of these bad corners in the business section.

"DADDY AND ME AGREE—NOTHING TASTES AS GOOD AS BEST FOODS!"

AND that's mighty easy to understand. For no ordinary dressing can ever give you the same wonderful flavor as Best Foods! Or the same rich creaminess or full-bodied goodness.

Best Foods, you see, is made differently . . . combining only choice salad oil, freshly-broken eggs, special vinegar and imported spices. No starchy fillers. It's all mayonnaise. And it's double-whipped for extra creamy smoothness.

So, why not get a jar of Best Foods Real Mayonnaise —today? It is so good—yet costs but a trifle per salad.

Individual Salmon Pies
Sliced Tomatoes
Buttered Cabbage
Blueberry Cake Tea or Coffee

If you have some dough left over, make these salmon pies, or you can make dough especially, if you choose. This blueberry cake recipe is a favorite at our house. Blueberry muffins are also a delicacy.

TODAY'S RECIPES

Individual Salmon Pies—One cup flaked salmon, one-fourth cup liquid from salmon, three-fourths cup canned milk, one small onion, one-half green pepper, two tablespoone butter, one and one-half tablespoons flour. Chop onion and pepper together and simmer in butter until tender but not brown. Add flour, stir until blended, then add milk and salmon liquid, and salmon last when sauce has been cooked until smooth. Make individual pie shells, fill with hot salmon mixture, garnish with parsley or butter and serve.

Blueberry Cake—Two cups sifted flour, one-half teaspoon salt, two teaspoons baking powder, one-third cup butter, one egg, one cup of milk, one heaping cup berries. Mix flour, salt, baking powder and sift three times. Wash, pick over and dry berries and sprinkle with flour. Rub butter to cream, add sugar and beat again, add egg yolk and milk, stir into flour and beat thoroughly, fold in egg white and berries. Bake in shallow pans about half an hour in a moderate oven 375 degrees F.

PINE PANELED

Paneled walls in the country house seem to add a rustic air. Pine has long been associated with things early American, and batten doors add to the colonial atmosphere. With the aid of the federal housing administration a number of farm houses are being done over in this manner.

"NOTHING TO STOP US"

"There is nothing to stop us from taking control of the mines of this province and issuing currency, or scrip if you will, against a gold reserve," Dr. Lyle Telford, C.C.F. candidate, told the electors of Burrard Tuesday night, as reported by the Canadian Press in a Vancouver dispatch in Wednesday's Nelson Daily News. Presumably he was correctly reported, for the remark he is credited with making is in line with what he has been saying all along.

There is nothing t ostop a supposititious C.C.F. government in British Columbia from issuing money, except a little thing like the constitution. When British Columbia, with a population of 2000 or 3000, entered Confederation, it accepted the constitution. All that the province is, except in natural resources, it has become while a part of the Dominion. Within Confederation there is only one authority with power to issue money, and that is the national government. Possibly the constitution is no obstacle to Dr. Telford, but to most of us it would look as if seven or eight other provinces would have an interest and a say in whether there should be British Columbia money as separate and distinct from Canadian money, and a "confusion worse confounded" in Canadian Currency affairs.

But the constitutional question comes after the moral question, for Dr. Telford's proposition is based upon prior confiscation of the gold mines.

"There is nothing to stop us from taking control of the mines of this provinces," he says.

Nothing at all, one may concede, but the sanctions and restraints inherent in every human breast.

There was nothing at all to stop Germany from killing 29,000 Belgian hostages—nothing but moral considerations; so she did it.

There was nothing to stop the Spanish rebels from spraying hundreds of loyalist men, women and children with oil, and burning them to death—nothing but the moral law; so, if the cable is to be believed, there was this incredibly brutal holocaust a few days ago.

These are some of the extremes of conduct which have been reached by those who have argued there was nothing to stop them from infringeing the rights of others.

If owners of the mines may be dispossessed, so may any other owners.

If at will a governing authority may disregard the rights of one man, no man's rights are safe.

Does Dr. Telford think he is talking to a lawless mob when he addresses British Columbians?

There is nothing to stop Dr. Telford, and those who think with him, from carrying out any kind of confiscation. general or particular, that he may desire; nothing at all—except the ideals of justice and fair play by which the great majority of British Columbians guide their daily lives.

THE ART OF LIVING

The secret of long life has been sought for centuries by people of all races. Wise and learned men resorted to such science as was at their disposal seeking the hidden recipe for longevity. Yet despite occasional suggestions made by Ancients at the instance of reporters and interviewers, the secret remains still with the centenarians.

There are old, old men who "chawed 'baccy" all their lives, and there are other old worthies, just as hoary, who never drew a breath that wasn't as sweet as Granny's smile. There are venerable ones who, all their lives adhered to a policy of strict abstinence from strong and heady liquors, and others who grew to be every bit as venerable who were ardent worshippers at the altar of John Barleycorn.

Sometimes, reading these sober, authoritative statements, made on the occasions of birthdays and other anniversaries, one wonders whether the bearded relic of another time has not so far fallen from grace as to spoof the representative of a later generation.

"Never sleep more than six hours, my boy," remarks the honored guest on his 106th birthday, the "boy" being a well-worn journalist of 50 summers.

"Work hard and rise with the sun," says another. "Never worry," adds a third. Another object of veneration declares: "Take life easy. That's the secret. Man wasn't meant to work hard. Relax. That's the thing."

And so it goes. Some do and some don't. But all live on past the Biblical three-score years and 10, and then adding the fuel of pride of accomplishment to their already strong constitutions, prepare to write another 30 years to their book of life.

No. These little bits of advice, these hints and pearls of wisdom are not the secret of long life. The truth of the matter is that some people came into this world endowed with more sand in Life's hourglass than the rest of us, and they remained in the world of living souls whether they actually lived up to the Sunday school mottoes on their walls, or whether they were the black sheep of their families.

The secret of long life is to pick your ancestors with discretion. Hereditary tendencies are the main pillars in the temple of longevity. Pick your father and mother, your grandfather and your grandmother, possibly all four grandparents from long-lived, healthy, durable stock, and the chances are greatly in your favor, should you have ambitions to hand out gems of wisdom on the art of living to be 100, when some youngster of 60 comes to interview you.

Yes sir, back again at the old grind. Bill Clark, the motor mechanic, says he isn't a bit glad because he'll have to start reading the newspaper again, while William P. (Jo) Wray of Grand Forks will be all tickled up the back. However, getting into the old grind after a vacation is a somewhat tedious procedure. How different it is sitting here, picking over a typewriter, to sitting in the stern of a boat on Christina lake, being towed about by Allan E. Royce and hauling in, every now and then, a fine 15-inch Kokanee or land-locked salmon. Or the joy of getting one up to the boat to have it flop away to freedom. But all good things must come to and end, someone has written. I expected to land home with a great welcome. George Leno did say he would be glad to see the column again. The boys in the office just casually welcomed me—but at home my old black cat went into ecstasies. "Perkins the Second" is not as friendly with me as was our original Perkins—but when I landed on the back porch—and by the way Perkins is a she—well you could hear her purr for blocks. But to my dismay I find that the kiddies' kitten known as "Woossie" is missing. She is a playful little thing of blueish hue—looks as if she might be part Persian. But she isn't home.

A RUBBER SPEECH

And while I was away someone asked me if I had heard about the rubber speech put over by our premier at Ottawa. Said Premier Mackenzie King after concluding a half-column-long statement that he would not enter the Quebec election campaign: "This, in a word, is my position."

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By E. V. SHEPARD

TRAPPED

Everone present, except the victim and his partner, thoroughly enjoyed what happened to a prominent player on the hand shown. Why mention his name? It might have happened to any other player as well.

North: ♠ J 9 8 6 4 ♥ A 10 7 ♦ 4 ♣ A Q 7 6
West: ♠ A K 10 ♥ K Q 9 ♦ Q 7 6 2 ♣ K 5 2
East: ♠ 3 2 ♥ 8 6 5 4 3 ♦ 9 8 5 3 ♣ 8 3
South: ♠ Q 7 5 ♥ J 2 ♦ A K J 10 ♣ J 10 9 4

Neither side was vunerable when South dealt and passed. Bidding then went: West 1-No Trump; North Double; South, who might have passed and collected a big penalty (unless West employed the rescue redouble, causing East to bid his longest suit), bid 2-Diamonds; North 2-Spades; South 3-Spades, perhaps recklessly; North, 4-Spades, which certainly was pushing his luck; West, Double.

The opening lead was the 4 of hearts. Dummy played low. West split his equals, by playing the Q. North's Ace won. A low spade was lead. Dummy's Q forced the doubler's K, for the first defensive trick.

West took his second defensive trick with the good K of hearts, picking up dummy's J. Then the doubler began to carefully examine dummy. Certainly he did not like the idea of leading a diamond up to the spread hand. Nor did he enjoy the prospect of leading one of his three clubs, hoping that partner might have the missing Q. North's final bid was so bold that probably East held nothing. West acted as if the room suddenly had become too warm. Of all things he least wanted to lead a trump, thus giving up his advantage in having a tenace against the declarer. Finally West decided that leading his last heart was the safest play. He led his 9, which to West's momentary relief was covered with declarer's 10. To West's disgust dummy ruffed, then led its last spade. Putting West in with his Ace, for his third defensive trick.

As the diagram of the remaining holdings shows, West was trapped, at the end of the fifth trick.

North: ♠ J 9 8 ♥ 4 ♦ A Q 7 6 ♣ —
West: ♠ 10 ♥ Q 7 6 2 ♦ K 5 2 ♣ —
East: ♠ — ♥ 8 6 ♦ 9 8 5 3 ♣ 8 3
South: ♠ A K J 10 ♥ J 10 9 4 ♦ — ♣ —

Play to date had shown North held three spades, no mare hearts, nd five minor suit cards. In case North held five clubs, he could be defeated by putting him in with a trump, as then West would have to be given his K of clubs. North also could be defeated if East held the Q of clubs. There seemed nothing to be gained by any other lead than a spade, so West led his 1st trump, which North won, then proceeded to enter dummy with a diamond and come through West, to win four club tricks for game.

THE DOCTOR SAYS

LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

FEET NEED GOOD CARE IN SUMMER

Walking tours, a fashionable form of vacation not so very long ago, are too slow for this 60-mile-an-hour generation, but they would be a good thing for us on many counts. Unless our feet get some exercise they are liable to atrophy, and our descendents will have little flabby nubbins similar to sightless buds which constitute the eyes of fish in the Mammoth Cave.

So I hope that my readers will get some use of their feet this summer—golf, tennis, walking, running. In this strenuous summer exercise period of the year we should take especial care of the health of the foot.

The foot is a wonderful but also a very delicate and complex organ. Observe the motions it makes when a person performs even so simple an action as taking a book down from a high shelf. First the foot alone raises his height about six inches by standing on tiptoe. To do this the large tendon of the heel pulls the back of the foot up, by the mechanism of the lever. The tendon must run smoothly, and in order that it is surrounded by pliable sacks of tissue called "bursae", which contain an oily fluid to facilitate free movement.

Under the balls of his toes, which now are bearing the entire weight of the body, are other bursae, and between the toes still others to keep the bones from being crushed together.

FOOT ACCOMMODATES SELF

He eases himself back on his heels and leans over to get another book, and his foot accommodates itself to this movement by rolling the small bones over one another.

This complicated mechanism needs care. The two things which do it most harm are bruises and chronic pressure — acute and chronic trauma. The best way to prevent both of these is protection by well-fitting shoes. A shoe which presses or rubs at any one spot is bound sooner or later to irritate one or more of the little bursae, and when that happens you have turned a beautiful mechanical device into a painful, unresponsive wreck.

The feet should be prepared before we engage in the strenuous but splendid athletics of summer. The toenails should be properly trimmed so that they do not cut into the skin of the nailbed. Ingrown toenail is partly due to improper trimming, and partly due to badly fitting shoes.

Your great toe is one of the most important elements in your happiness, and as is is the most frequent site of ingrown toenails, it should be protected. Any irritation or inflammation along the nailbed should be corrected at once before it develops into the very painful ulcer of ingrown toenail. The little toe is also an important element in your happiness; it is almost a vertical structure, and like such, is subject to all sorts of troubles—mostly corns.

NATURE PRESENTS—

FOX (FENNEC)

The smallest member of the fox family, the fennec lives in a burrow among the roots of a shrub which he lines with feathers like a nest. His unusually large ears immediately warn him of the approach of an enemy and his color blends with the sandy desert where he makes his home. He is entirely nocturnal and vry timid. In captivity, where he lives fairly well if he has playmates of his own kind, the fennec will move but little during the day although he makes up for it with great activity at night.

HOME THOUGHTS FROM ABROAD

O, to be in England
Now that April's there,
And whoever wakes in England
Sees, some morning, unaware,
That the lowest boughs and the brushwood sheaf
Round the elm-tree bole are in tiny leaf,
While the chaffinch sings on the orchard bough
In England—now!

And after April, when May follows,
And the whitethroat builds, and all the swallows!
Hark, where my blossom'd pear-tree in the hedge
Leans to the field and scatters on the clover
Blossoms and dew-drops—at the bent spray's edge—
That's the wise thrush; he sings each song twice over,
Lest you should think he never could recapture
The first fine carless rapture!
And though the fields look rough with hoary dew,
All will be gay when noontide wakes anew
The buttercups, the little children's dower
Far brighter than this gaudy melon-flower!

Mums for thanksgiving

If you have chrysanthemums in your garden they can be lifted now, potted and brought indoors to bloom for you at Thanksgiving time. The plants should be lifted with large balls of earth, and planted in large-size pots or boxes.

When transplanting for indoor use, pinch back the tips, as shown in the above Garden-Graph. Afer potting do not bring the "mums" indoors immediately, but allow them to become used to the restricted space of the pots by placing them in a cool, shady place out of doors for a week or ten days.

WORLD SERIES FEVER GRIPS NEW YORK; EXCEPT GIANT-YANK CLASH

O'CONNOR SECOND

OSLO, Norway, Aug. 27 (CP).—Lawrence O'Connor, Olympic high-hurdler from Toronto, placed second today in his 110-metre specialty at a track and field meet here. O'Connor's time was 14.6 and left him far back in the ruck behind Forrest Towns, member of the United States Olympic team, who clipped 4-10 seconds from the record he set in the Berlin Olympiad, negotiating the hurdles in 13.7 seconds.

ENGLISH SOCCER ON TOMORROW

LONDON, Aug. 27 (CP Cable).—The long English football season that will not end until May 1, starts Saturday. During the summer months officials of the 88 clubs that make up the four divisions of the English league have been busy strengthening their teams and during the past month players have put the finishing touches to their training.

Opening games are likely to be played in summer weather under conditions more suitable for cricket than soccer. The usual optimism is uppermost in comments of team managers while directors anticipate a successful season in view of improved economic conditions throughout the United Kingdom.

Many clubs and grounds have undergone changes and the magnificent grandstand being erected on Arsenal's ground at Highbury is expected to be completed before the end of the year. The Gunners play Everton in the opening game and are relying chiefly on last year's players.

Sunderland, champion last season, goes to Sheffield where The Wednesday will provide tough opposition. For its initial tussle in first league football Charlton Athletic will visit Stoke but will find points harder to obtain than in second division play. Manchester United is at home to Wolverhampton Wanderers.

Yankees as Good as in and Giants on the Way

NEW YORK, Aug. 27 (AP) —(By Paul Mickelson, Associated Press sports writer)—Word series fever grips New York with the Yanks as good as in and the Giants on their way.

Park superintendents at Yankee stadium and the polo grounds are checking seating arrangements and glaring at each other from their vantage points across the Harlem river. Subway lines are getting fancy advertisements to tell customers about the horrors of automobile parking and the value of a nickel. Hot dog, pop-corn and peanut vendors are laying in big orders. Office boys are begging for new vacation dates.

In every Manhattan hotel lobby you can hear arguments as to the merits of the "Gernts" and Yanks, who actually aren't so pleased about the prospect of facing Carl Hubbell's slants.

Horace Stoneham, president of the Giants, and Charles McManus, Yankee stadium superintendent, have made a whisker wager on the series—if it comes true. If the Giants win, McManus must shave off his famous moustache; if the Yanks win, smooth shaven Stoneham must grow a moustachio and wear it for one year.

Bleacher fans will get their greatest break in world series history at enlarged Yankee stadium which will have 20,000 $1 seats. There are some 4000 of them at the polo grounds. Thus, a New York bleacherite will be able to see seven world series games for the grand sum of a $10 bill, which would include transportation, and 23 hot dog sandwiches.

BRIDGES 18th WIN

BOSTON, Aug. 27 (AP) — A "stretch-inning" two run rally gave the Detroit Tigers a 4 to 2 victory over the Red Sox today as Tommy Bridges baffled the Boston batters to chalk up his 18th win of the season.

Bridges let Tom Yawkee's skidding "millionaires" down with only four hits, but one of those was Jimmy Foxx's 35th home run. He belted the ball into the left field stands in the fifth with Almada on, accounting for both of the home team's scores.

GUMPERT WINS

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 27 (AP)—Randall Gumpert, 18-year-old right-hander and recent high school graduate of Birdsboro, Pa., held the Chicago White Sox to two hits in his second big league start today as he pitched the Athletics to a 5 to 2 victory.

Gumpert, a slender six footer, allowed only one hit, a single by Appling in the second inning, up to the ninth. Then a single by Radcliff, a pass to Rosenthal and a wild throw by Newsome gave the Sox two unearned runs.

Philadelphia	5	10	1

10-9 FOR CLEVELAND

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27 (AP)—Earl Averill's tenth inning single drove in the winning run here today as Cleveland beat Washington 10 to 9.

Ben Chapman and Averill hit homers. It was Averill's 22nd.

Both teams used four pitchers, Harden, Lee, Hildebrand and Allen pitching for Cleveland while Washington used Whitehill, Newsom, Weaver and Cohen.

McBRIDE CUP FINAL SUNDAY

Finals of the McBride cup tournament for senior men will be played at the Nelson Golf and Country club between R. E. Horton and W. T. Fotheringham Sunday morning. Neither player is a previous holder of the cup which was defended this year by J. G. Bunyan, who had held it for the last two years. Previous to that the cup was won by the late R. T. Thorburn, who won it in 1933, the first year it was offered for competition. This tourney is the last singles handicap competition of the season for local divoters.

CUBS TIED WITH CARDINALS

Win as Cards Lose to Boston Bees, 0-1

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 27 (AP)—Leroy (Tarzan) Parmelee, Cardinal hurler, was near fame today but after pitching seven hitless innings against the Bees, weakened and Boston won in the tenth, 1-0.

It was a pitchers' battle from the first inning, with the veteran, bespectacled Danny MacFayden of the Bees allowing only four safeties, no more than one in any inning, and Parmelee, last year with the Giants, only three.

The defeat—the fifth straight for the Cards and Boston's fourth victory in a row for a sweep of the series—placed the men of Frankie Frisch three games back of the idle first place Giants and in a second place tie with the Chicago Cubs, who won from the Phillies for their fifth consecutive victory.

Al Lopez singled in the eighth to break the spell the rugged Parmelee seemed to hold over the Bees. But it was Joe Coscarart's tenth inning triple, scoring Tony Cuccinello from second that provided the winning margin. Lopez never got farther than first base.

Boston	1	3	0
St. Louis	0	4	2

MacFayden and Lopez; Parmelee, Davis, Ogrodowski.

CUBS WIN FIFTH STRAIGHT

CHICAGO, Aug. 27 (AP)—Wee Roy Henshaw, called in from bull pen exile, pitched the Cubs to their fifth straight win today, limiting the Phillies to six hits for a 1 to 0 victory.

It was Henshaw's first pitching triumph since July 2, and pulled the Cubs to within three games of the National league pace set by the idle Giants.

The Cubs got to Syl Johnson for the game's only run in the fifth inning. Billy Herman led off with his 49th two-bagger of the year, was sacrificed to third by Frank Demaree, and came home on Stan Hack's long fly to center field.

Philadelphia	0	6	0
Chicago	1	11	0

Johnson, Kowalik and Atwood; Henshaw and Hartnett.

PIRATES WIN FINAL

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 27 (AP)—The Pirates came from behind with a three-run rally in the eighth inning today to pull out a 6 to 3 victory over the Dodgers—their only win of the three game series.

Brooklyn	3	13	4
Pittsburgh	6	10	1

Mungo, Phelps, Berres; Weaver, Blanton and Todd.

New York at Cincinnati postponed rain.

Love isn't Important

By LOUISE JERROLD

COPYRIGHT L. C. PAGE & CO., INC., RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

READ THIS FIRST:

Gay Elwell, check girl in a prominent Detroit club, meets a number of social elite when she fills in at a dinner party at the request of Dr. Wilson, a club member. One of them is Breck Carter. Gay has a date with him but leaves him in a huff when he becomes intoxicated and too attentive. Gay is attracted by Wayne Adams but he has shown little interest in her. She goes to the opening of a new night club with Christian Scott, elderly millionaire.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 13

Some girls were wise enough to select a rich father, Gay's thoughts ran on. She'd be clever enough to choose a rich husband. This party tonight, which she was attending with Christian Scott, was a step forward in her campaign.

The car's smooth stoppage roused Gay out of her musing and planing, and suddenly she realized it was Wayne Adams who was handing her out and up the steps of a large white stucco building, with "ROSE HEATH" in flashing, rose-colored lights across the front.

Wayne was silent as he walked beside her across the broad veranda, and so was Gay. But his hand on her wrist did something queer to her poise.

As they paused to wait for their companions, Gay drew a deep breath of exultation. She was so delightfully excited. This wonderful, fairy-like place. A perfect regiment of parked cars. Her lovely new dress—and Wayne there beside her! She stole a glance at him under lowered lashes.

He was looking at her with a smile that somehow nettled her. She was glad when Christian Scott and Mrs. Larrimore, who had mounted the steps more slowly, joined them. An instant later, the foursome was being ushered, with "Yes, Mr. Scott, we have your reservation." "Right this way, Mr. Scott!" "Yes, Mr. Scott, the very best table in the large dinning room," from the manager, and many bows and scrapes from two waiters, to a table close to the dance floor.

Gay's eyes shone with unjaded pleasure. It was all so new to her: so impressive. The large room with its decorative scheme, of black, rose and silver. Tables, a dozen deep, lining the floor edges. Myriads of soft, rose shaded lights. The palette of colors in the women's gowns. The flash of jewels. The gleam of bare throats and arms. Laughter. Countless blending odors of food, drink, perfumes. And over and above it all, the seductive, sensuous rhythm of a perfect orchestra.

"Rather attractive, all this; isn't it, Gay?" questioned Christian Scott, with a complacent smile. He closed her fingers about a silver guaze ribbon that depended from a low bowl of flowers in the center of their table. "Pull, Gay!"

Gay pulled.

A corsage of orchids and roses for herself. Gardenias for Mrs. Larrimore. And an exquisite platinum and blue enamel vanity for each!

"Oh, Mr. Scott! How too adorable!" Gay began ecstatically, but Christian, with a deprecatory gesture, waved her thanks aside. He rose, and standing, drank from the first round of cocktails.

"None for you, Gay? Very well, we will dance."

To that divine music, Gay, held suffocatingly close, her body gripped to Christian's with an awkwardness she could hardly believe possible, suffered the anguish of a fine dancer in the arms of an atrocious partner. Christian didn't really dance— he alternately walked, and swooped.

Her feet bruised from his misteps, but her face frozen into a sweet smile, Gay told herself she had already paid the price of the corsage and the vanity when, after what seemed to her a lifetime of agony, he reluctantly stopped applauding.

As he led her back to their table, he remarked, "I derive great pleasure from dancing, and never miss an opportunity to 'trip the light fantastic', so to speak. I met a Virginia lady in Cuba, excellent dancer—we got along famously together, and she showed me a most interesting variation of the cat's craddle trick. I regret not having brought some string with me tonight. But positively I shall show it to you the next time."

Wayne, who with Mrs. Larrimore had already returned to the table, poured Gay a drink. "You look—er—a trifle warm."

Again his air of concealed amusement annoyed Gay.

"Thanks. I don't drink, or smoke," she laughed, to cover her irritation. "And I sleep eight hours a night. I'm from the country."

"You may be from the country," Wayne said, when after the next course he moved out with her onto the dance floor, "but you seem to adapt yourself to city ways without much trouble."

Gay made no answer. They were dancing, and she was enjoying every second of it. Wayne wasn't an exceptional partner like Breck, perhaps, but he had a way of holding you, rather carelessly, that was a joy after the stifling grip of Mr. Scott.

She began to hum the dance melody, under her breath. "Love Is the Sun, the Moon and You."

He said, "Is it though?"

"Is what?"

"Is love like that?"

Gay answered demurely, "I've told you so many times I'm only a small-town girl. I've had very little experience."

"Me, too" Wayne declared. "I've been so busy with airplane motors, I've not had time for that sort of thing."

"That's what Breck told me about you. He said you loved gadgets, better than girls," Gay laughed.

"So Breck's been talking about me. What else did he say?"

"That your a man with a past," Gay teased. "A reformed heartbreaker."

It was Wayne's turn to laugh. Then he said, "Breck's goofy. Pay no attention to him. I suppose you've been seeing each other quite often?"

Gay parried the question. "Why do you ask? But of course—I forgot: you're his guardian!"

"I've been hoping to hand that job over to Peggy Pennell, but it looks bad, lately. She's getting fed up with the way Breck's acting. And it's all your fault. The affair was going strong, until you stepped into the picture."

Gay smiled in Wayne's eyes with tantalizing sweetness. She looked like a particularly angelic baby. "I'm so sorry," she said.

She wouldn't give Wayne the satisfaction of knowing that in spite of Breck's insistent telephone calls and notes, she was keeping that young man at arm's length; hadn't seen him since their one evening together.

In another dance, when Wayne had cut in on Christian and Gay, he said, lightly, "That white dress is very becoming. Makes you look like a Christmas tree Angel."

Gay shimmered at the compliment, but his next words took all the joy away. "Breck's present to an obliging little girl friend?"

Gay stopped dead in the middle of the dance floor. Her eyes and voice were ice, but rage ran in her like fire. "What right have you to ask me that? Please take me back—"

"Don't make a scene." His tone compelled her to resume dancing, but she held herself rigidly away from him. "I've been thinking things over, and decided to talk plainly. I have every right to resent your affair with Breck. His interests and mine are identical. If he breaks with Peggy, I'll lose the biggest chance I've ever had in my life."

Gay knew that Wayne Adams' desperate earnestness was genuine. But she was furiously angry at the ugly implication in his question concerning her new gown. She felt too disturbed, too proud to defend herself.

"You hate me, Gay, don't you?"

She shrugged, expressively. "I don't think of you enough to hate you."

"I've thought of you quite often. You've disappointed me. I liked you that first time I spoke to you, at the check counter . . . the night of the Wilson dinner, you remeber, I thought you were different from the hundreds of other attractive-looking girls around town. But I've found out you aren't. You're exactly like all the others."

He was guiding her by the elbow to her place at the table. "You go round with men only for what you can get out of them. A nice, quiet little racketeer—isn't that what they call them, in detroit?" He was so cynical, so sure of himself, she wanted to strike him.

But he shouldn't have the pleasure of knowing how he'd angered her: how deeply he'd cut into her armor of pride. She managed a brief uncertain laugh. "You do say the nicest things to a girl, Mr. Adams! How do you think of them all!" Then her temper flared. "I do hate you! Don't speak to me again—ever!"

The next hour passed miserably for Gay. She ate—sawdust. Laughed—tears. danced in bodily torture with Christian Scott. In grim silence with Wayne.

"You're a good little sport to dance with me, when you'd rather shoot me," Wayne remarked. "As a reward, while Chris and Grace are trying their luck at roulette, upstairs, I'm going to take you outside and show you the duck pond."

Gay had no intention of going. She was firmly resolveu to evade Wayne after that dance was over. But somehow she found herself walking beside him toward the small, rustic bridge and the duck pond at the for end of the grounds.

It was chilly, outdoors. She was glad Wayne had brought her coat, and wrapped it about her shoulders.

On the bridge he stopped, and together they looked at the moon that hung in the sky like a burnished silver ornament.

Beyond the dense blackness of trees, they could see the lake: a stretch of dark water with a broad, rocking band of platinum across its surface.

"Moonlight on water," Wayne said, quietly. "I like to watch it —don't you?" In his voice there was something so friendly, so intimate, that Gay nodded agreement in spite of herself. She had to struggle not to move nearer to him.

Instead, she gazed at his hands on the bridge-railing. Gay always noticed hands. Christian Scott's: cold, sinewy, capable of holding railroads, trust campanies and mines in his grasp. Doctor Wilson's: flexible, dextrous, the hands of a surgeon. Wayne's hands: well-formed, tense, determined.

"I'm sorry," he was saying, "if I've made you angry. I'm sorry you hate me so much. And I want you to know that I don't blame you for a minute."

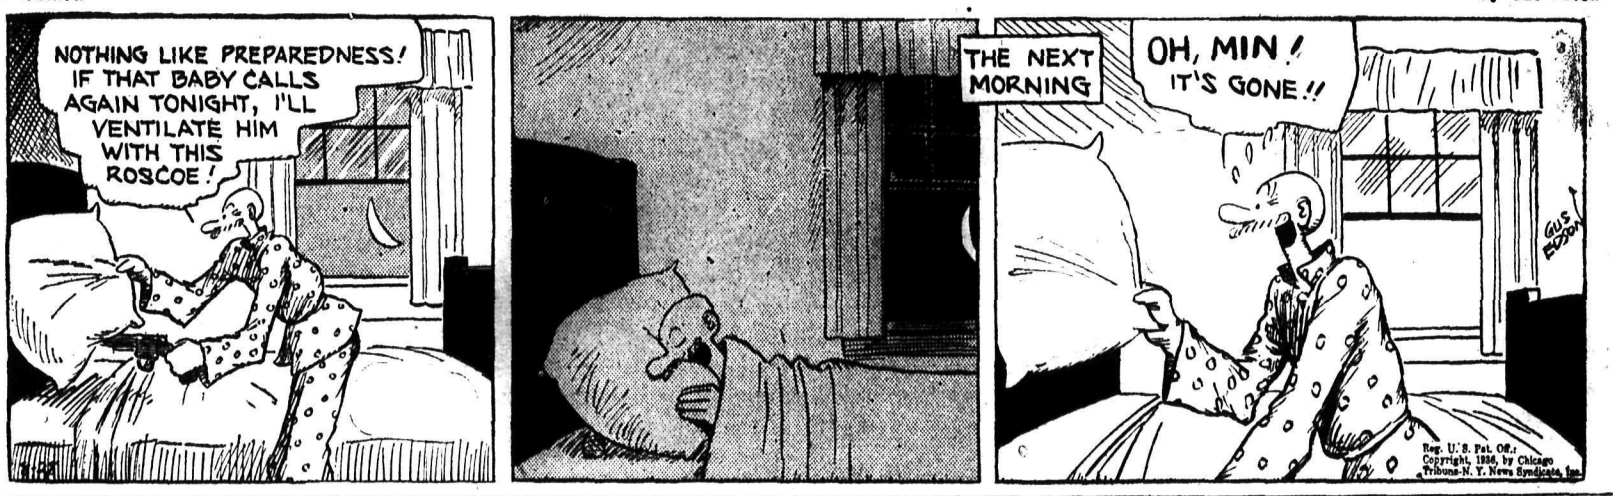
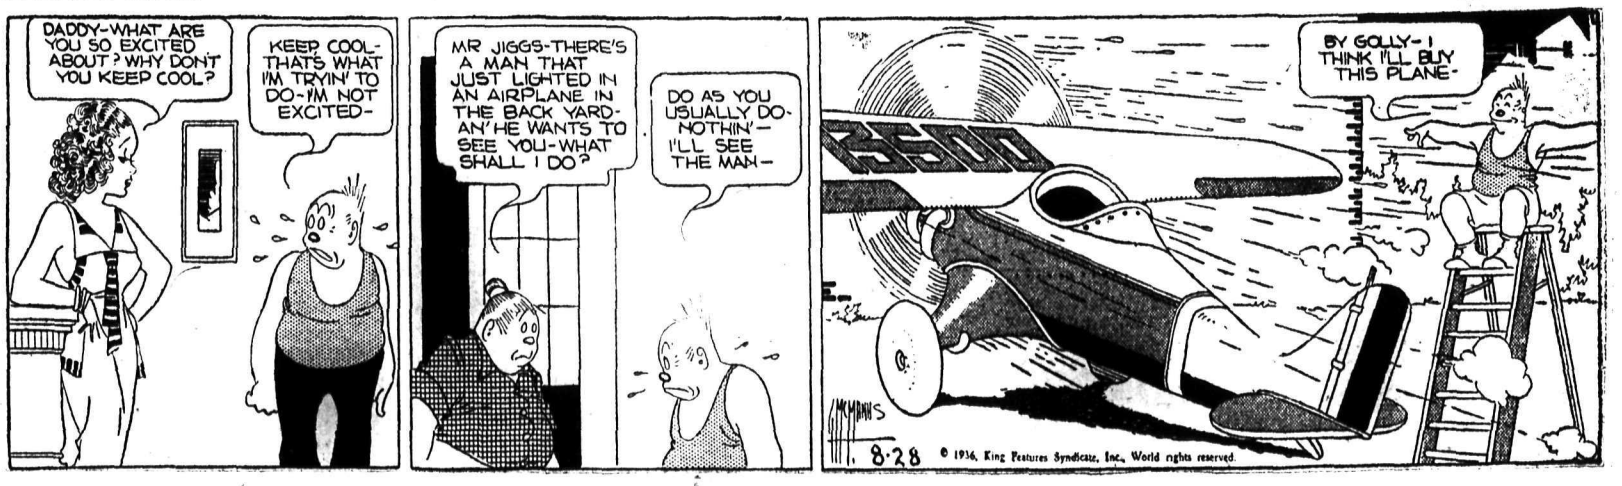
NELSON SHOPPING AND AMUSEMENT CENTER OF THE INTERIOR

THE GUMPS — By Gus Edson



BRINGING UP FATHER — By Geo. McManus



WHOLESALE PRICES GENERALLY SHOW FIRM TENDENCY; RETAIL DEALERS ORDER CANNED GOODS

Anticipate Increases; Sugar Demand Heavy

SYRUP MARKET IS STRONGER

Flour Down 20 Cents; Yakima Peaches Going Up

Wholesale prices generally tend to be firmer, dealers in Nelson report. There have been comparitively few upward price changes in the past week, but advances in many lines appear to be indicated.

Forewarned of reputedly short packs, retailers throughout the district are sending in orders for canned vegetables, hoping to obtain their stocks before price advances they anticipate.

Flour dropped back 20 cents a barrel in the past week, and rolled oats 10 cents per 80-pound unit. Shorts advanced but dropped back again.

New cut alfalfa and timothy hay from the southern interior and Okanagan districts is now on the market, one dealer reporting the receipt of two cars of alfalfa and one of timothy. One of the alfalfa cars was from the Okanagan, the other and the timothy being Kootenay-grown.

SYRUP HIGHER

Syrups are strengthening. Corn syrup is already up and the other types are expected to advance shortly. Dealers state all syrups are good buying at present prices.

Sugar continues in heavy demand, two cars having been received at Nelson in the past week. Other carlot arrivals included groceries, salt, meats, and fruits.

Preserving peaches from Yakima, Wash., are on the market and are moving in quantity. Shippers advise Nelson dealers that the market has advanced 2½ cents a box from the low point, and that there will be further advances during the next few days. Yakima has a large peach crop this year but is getting much wider distribution than usual owing to partial crop failures in some of the central states.

CANTALOUPE MOVING

Oliver cantaloupe are still moving in quantity, being cheap and of excellent quality this year.

Tomatoes are meeting a ready demand, and are coming to the Nelson market from the Okanagan as well as from local growers.

Oranges and lemons have been moving fairly steadily. Table grapes from California are in fair demand, and three varieties of melons—honeydew, casaba and watermelons—are in Rossland, Trail and Nelson stores.

Potatoes and most lines of vegetables are being supplied by local growers.

CHICAGO STRONG

CHICAGO, Aug. 27 (AP).—Brokerage reports Canada might raise the price guaranteed producers of her reduced 1936 wheat crop strengthened Chicago wheat sales today.

With the United States expected to continue importing Canadian wheat, reports indicating the guaranteed price, if reestablished, might be 7½ cents or even $1 a bushel received much attention in the wheat pit.

Wheat closed ¼—¾ cent higher Corn was independently weak. It closed ⅜—1⅜ cents lower. Oats finished ⅛ off to ⅛ up.

Montreal Silver Quotations

PEAR PACKING SCHEDULED TO START TODAY

Clapp's Favorites Are Moving; Season Earlier

Packing of pears at the Kootenay Cooperative Cold Storage association warehouse, Granite road, is scheduled to start today, according to Robert Foxall of the Associated Growers sub-central at Nelson. A few Clapp's Favorites have been received and are to be packed for immediate shipment. Bartletts, now beginning to move in the Arrow lakes district, will follow the Clapp's Favorite.

The Storage association's new warehouse is now nearly complete. A few windows and doors remain to be put in, and elevators have yet to be installed, but a short time will see the work completed.

So far the movement of apples has not been heavy, marketing of early apples for the most part being comparatively light. A few Gravensteins are now moving, however. Heavy movement of large-quantity varieties will probably be earlier than usual, since in some districts the heat and lack of rain is bringing fruit to maturity considerably ahead of the average season.

The peach plum deal appears to be about finished. Freestone peaches are now moving from Arrow lakes points.

MONTREAL GAINS

MONTREAL, Aug. 27 (CP).—Buyers came back to the stock market today and ran a number of issues as much as three points higher.

Nickel jumped more than a point to 54¼. Early odd-lots of Noranda were up to 65⅝, but later sales were off ¾ at 64½. Hollinger improved narrowly.

Jumps of one to three points were registered by Lake of Woods, Canadian Cottons, Steel of Canada Preferred and Hamilton Bridge Preferred.

New York Jumps

NEW YORK, Aug. 27 (AP). — Buoyed by pleasing business and industrial news, a rallying movement today swept market prices up fractions to 5 points generally and nearly 10 in a few instances.

From many directors came announcements of regular, increased or extra dividends, and optimistic earnings estimates drew attention to equities of numerous companies in the field of both light and heavy industry.

The Associated Press averages of 60 stocks advanced 1.5 points to 67.6, more than recovering the loss suffered in the recent break. The day's upturn in the average was the largest since May 14, last. Transfers totalled 1,336,010 shares compared with 907,170 yesterday.

Trading was listless most of the session and prices moved narrowly. Rumors the Canadian government would raise the minimum wheat price to farmers made traders cautious.

MORE ABOUT SPANISH

ANOTHER "ETHIOPIA"

MADRID, Aug. 27 (AP).—Indalecio Prieto, the "strong man" behind the Madrid Spanish government, today declared: "I am afraid our Spain has become the Ethiopia of Europe."

He asserted Great Britain and France had given Spain no help at all "in our direst hour," and that the proposed non-intervention agreement would damage the government cause.

At the same time he asserted that should the government emerge victorious in the civil war, large sections of the country "would have to be collectivized" although adding Spain was "not ready or well enough developed economically for pure Communism."

In the sandbag-protected ministry of marine, the former minister of public works whose "iron hand" has steered the Madrid government throughout the civil strife, said.

"What help has France and Great Britain given us in our direst hour? None at all, while Germany, Italy and Portugal are providing our rebel armies with all the material they want.

"The diplomats of Europe are very busy over their plans for a convention of neutrality and non-intervention. But such a convention will, in fact, damage our cause. Obviously France and Great Britain will sign it and keep their word, while Germany, Italy and Portugal will sign it and go on helping the rebels as before."—(Copyright, 1936, by the Associated Press).

ALFONSO'S PLANE READY

INNSBRUCK, Austria, Aug. 27 (AP).—An airplane stood ready tonight "awaiting the King's orders" while former King Alfonso of Spain read stacks of mail from his homeland and observers wondered whether he would make a dash for the civil war scene.

For two weeks the plane had been held at the airfield because the permit of its pilot, Lieut. O. Cathcart Jones, the English distance flier, had expired. Now, however, that technicality has been smoothed out.

The Marquis Di Vrana, adjutant to Alfonso, declined to discuss any part the former monarch might have in the Spanish rebellion.

DYNAMITE TRAP FAILS

WITH SPANISH GOVERNMENT FORCES, Irun, Spain, Aug. 27 (AP)—(By Elmer W. Peterson).—A carefully laid trap to blow up rebel troops failed tonight through treachery as 15,000 men locked in battle at the close of the second day of a concerted rebel drive along the Irun-San Sebastian sector.

Leaders of the government forces disclosed that before the rebels loosed their attack Wednesday morning, sticks of dynamite were planted under the route the attackers were expected to traverse.

Wires ran from the dynamite furrows back to positions behind the government lines where switches were ready to be thrown the second the rebel attackers stepped on the explosive ground.

From atop Mount Marciel government watchers saw the rebel foreign legion advance units swarm down the hill slopes and pour into the explosive-laden passes.

Quickly the detonating plungers were shoved down.

But nothing happened.

The wires had been cut by spies in their own ranks, loyalists said after the territory was recaptured by their forces today.

The failure of the rebels to capture Irun was hailed by government leaders as a great victory. Some 15,000 men, it was estimated, fought in the bloody attacks and counter attacks.

Across the French-Spanish frontier, French authorities at Hendaye were keeping vigilant patrol as several air bombs and artillery shells again fell on French soil. They issued warning to both Spanish belligerents against "errors in firing."—Copyright, 1936, by the Associated Press.

HUGE FIRE NEAR GIBRALTAR

TANGIER, International Zone, Aug. 27 (AP)—A great conflagration in the region of Tarifa, on the Spanish mainland 25 miles across the Straight of Gibraltar, could be seen here tonight. Tarifa is held by Spanish rebels.

MUNITIONS PLANT BOMBED

RABAT, French Morocco, Aug. 27 (AP)—A rebel broadcast tonight from Seville declared a squadron of airplanes had destroyed the government munitions factory at Toledo.

The broadcast said also that three government planes had been brought down over Guadarrama while three others had deserted to them from the service of the Madrid government.

40 Head of King Edward's Cattle to Be Auctioned

PEKISKO, Alta., Aug. 27 (CP).—Forty head of the 160 registered Scotch Shorthorn cattle on King Edward's ranch near here will be disposed of by auction October 20, Prof. W. E. Carlyle said today.

The sale will be held on T. A. Russell's Bonnie Brae farm, Downsview, Ont., outside Toronto, he said.

A shortage of feed on the royal ranch, as on other holdings in drought-stricken southern Alberta, was a factor in deciding to dispose of the cattle.

MORE ABOUT THE POPE

retary of state, at Castel Candolfo concerning the Spanish situation left his holiness little strength to continue other duties.

The pope's ailment was said by a high prelate to be endocarditis, an inflammation of the heart. A medical examination in June, it was said, reached "satisfactory conclusions" concerning his condition.

His holiness rested at his summer home, however, and sought to gather strength for the expiatory service, which will be similar to one about three years ago protesting against a Russian anti-religious wave.

It will be broadcast over the Vatican radio station, and Catholics of all the world have been asked to join the ceremony.

Pope Pius, famed for his economic, moral and political announcements of recent years, has been called the "pope of the conciliation" because he signed the Latern accord with Premier Benito Mussolini making the "prisoner of the Vatican" free for the first time since the Franco-Prussian war of 1870 when Italian troops entered Rome, considered the capital of Christianity, and proclaimed it the capital of Italy.
