REBEL PLANES BOMB MADRID'S PRISON

RAILWAYS' CASE FOR WAGE CUTS TO START TODAY

"100 Per Cent Jump in Payments of Interest"

"TOTAL WAGES CUT IN HALF

So Declares Witness for Employees at Hearing

MONTREAL, Nov. 24—(CP) — Living indices prepared by the Dominion government should not be taken into consideration by the railway concilation board in deciding on the plea of some 100,000 standard railroad workers for restoration of a 10 per cent wage cut, Howard B. Chase, labor representative told the board today.

Chase, in completing his three-day plea on behalf of railroad workers who took the wage reduction in 1931, held the indices "were merely estimates not founded on comprehensive budgetary studies." For this reason, he said, "they cannot be a reliable basis for wage adjustment."

The employees' witness told Justice A. K. MacLean, board chairman, he would submit a written summary of the 150-page brief which he read to the board. Tomorrow George Hodge, Canadian Pacific Railway representative, will argue the case for the companies.

UNFAIR AND UNJUST

The labor representative said employees considered it "unfair and unjust" that interest paid on funded and unfunded railway debts has increased 100 per cent from 1920 to 1935, while total wage compensation to employees dropped nearly 50 per cent over the 15-year period.

The travelling public received the highest type of service ever offered, Chase declared. "Train schedules are faster; trains are longer; freight shipments are quicker and more reliable than ever before. Loss and damage have been reduced to a point where they have all but been eliminated," he asserted.

Rapid improvement in Canadian railway service was admitted by the companies, Chase said, but he felt "the part played in this improvement by employees must also be sonsidered."

Increased production, accompanied by reduced employees' earnings and lowered purchasing power was "nothing more than economic suicide" in Chase's opinion.

"Wage earners of Canada constitute such an important part of our national purchasing power that there can be no sound economic balance between production and consumption unless the workers of Canada are given enough in wages and earnings to maintain this purchasing balance," he told the board.

He also revived the increase in traffic recorded on Canadian lines since 1920. Three train crews today did the same volume of work for which four were required in 1920, yet present workers received lower wages.

HINT ARAB HERO MAY RETURN

NABLUS, Palestine, Nov. 25 (AP) —The early return to Palestine of Fawzi Bey Din Kaukji, hero of Arab nationalists and "Public Enemy No. one" of British troops in the Holy Land, is predicted confidently by Recalcitrant Arabs in this stronghold of their movement.

"The great one soon will be here with 500 Iraqi warriors and 100 Druzes", they whisper. "Already he has made his plans to slip over the border with men and arms. And he will succeed. He is so clever a man, the great one, the British cannot catch him. He will make for us the independence."

STORM HINDERS SEARCH

Plane and Motorship Missing in North

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP).—One of the worst storms in southern Alaska in 12 years hindered the search for the missing tri-motored plane with 13 persons aboard and the long overdue motorship Kasilof, last reported en route from Seldovia to Seward.

Pilot Sheldon Simmons, who hopped off from here for Chicagof island during the day, arrived back to report he found no trace of the missing plane. He searched as far west as the Gulf of Alaska where he said fog made visibility very poor.

No word had been received from the Kasilof since November 21 when she left Seldovia for Seward.

A strong wind reaching gale and hurricane proportions swept over Cordova and Seward and parts of the Gulf of Alaska.

BLAMED FOR TRAGEDY

MONTREAL, Nov. 25 (CP).—Earlier calling of the sleeping captain might have prevented foundering of the S.S. Sand Merchant which sank in Lake Erie last October 17 with a loss of 19 lives, it was disclosed today in findings by a commission which investigated the worst tragedy of the Great Lakes' shipping season.

Responsibility for the loss of life in what Commissioner Mr. Justice Errol McDougall termed a "tragic and appalling disaster," was charged to First Officer Bernard Drinkwalter of Port Stanley, Ont., and Second Officer Wilfrid John Bourie of Victoria Harbor, Ont., who perished with Mrs. Drinkwalter and 16 crew members.

In the 22 cities the total number receiving direct relief last September was 434,238 against 463,995 in 1935 and 481,383 in 1934.

The 22 cities considered have accounted in the past for approximately 63 per cent of all direct relief other than farm relief.

RUSSIA SPARES GERMAN'S LIFE

Nazi Protests Prove Successful; Will Get 10 Years

MOSCOW, Nov. 25 (AP).—Russia tonight spared the life of the German engineer, Emil I. Stickling, who was sentenced to death for plotting against the Soviet regime and killing 14 miners in acts of sabotage.

The central executive committee in a terse announcement disclosed that Stickling's sentence had been commuted to 10 years' imprisonment after the German embassy had repeated violent protests in the case.

Stickling and eight Russians were sentenced to death November 22 after all admitted total or partial guilt in plotting to wreck the great Kamerova coal mines in western Siberia.

The sentences of two of the Russians also were commuted to 10 years.

The C.E.C. also disclosed that the other condemned men had been shot by firing squads.

"I Shot Her Last Night", He Says

MEAFORD, Ont., Nov. 25 (CP). —In an undertaking parlor, where gray-haired 58-year-old Irwin Pentland went to buy a casket, the story of a "mercy killing" became public today. Pentland mentioned he required the casket for his sister—"I shot her last night."

Unkempt, unexcited, he was taken to Owen Sound and charged with the murder of his sister Ola, 55, whose body police found on a bed in the Pentland summer cottage at Kiowana Beach, three and a half miles north of here on Georgian bay.

Authorities indicated Pentland would be examined mentally. A preliminary inquest was opened tonight by Coroner Dr. F. J. Eberhart and adjourned.

THREE BODIES FOUND

JUNEAU, Alaska, Nov. 25 (AP).—Mud and ruins of Sunday's great landslide surrendered two more bodies to rescue crews tonight, raising the known deaths to 10 and leaving six remaining on the missing list.

One other body was recovered earlier in the day.

Mrs. George Lee was found dead among the debris of the demolished Nickinovich apartments and Oscar Laito, Sitka, Alaska, in the wrecked rooming house operated by Mrs. Frew Matson who is still missing. Peter Battelo's body was the first one discovered today in the Nickinovich pile.

Would Teach Driving in the Schools

OTTAWA, Nov. 25 (CP)—Driving of automobiles should be a subject on the curricula of schools and colleges, Recorder Leonce Plante, of Montreal, declared today at the National safety conference.

In some schools he said, pupils were prohibited from having cars and in others they were allowed them only with their parents' consent. Thus the question whether they should have cars was not dependent on ability to drive, but on "parental indulgence."

4000 CHOPPED TO PIECES IN SHARP STREET FIGHTING

Two Strongholds of Mongolians Taken by Chinese

"ON TO CHARAR" IS BATTLE CRY

Wave of Patriotism Sweeps Country at News

KWEISUI, Suiyuan province, China, Nov. 26 (Thursday) (AP). —Suiyuan military officers declared today a number of Japanese army officers were seized in the capture of the strategic Mongolian stronghold of Pailingmiao.

KWEISUI, Suiyan province, China, Nov. 25 (AP).—General Fu Tso Yi officially announced tonight the capture of the strategic Mongolian strongholds of Pailingmiao and Wuchuan in bitter hand-to-hand fighting.

Capture of Pailingmiao by the loyal Chinese government troops of Suiyuan marked the end of the influence of the rebel Mongol Prince Teh Wang and his Japanese advisers in that part of Inner Mongolia.

A new battle-cry of "on to Chahar to recover China's lost provinces" resounded through the streets of Kweisui as Chinese military and political authorities discussed the possibility of a clean sweep of Manchoukuoan and Mongol invaders from Inner Mongolia.

Pailingmiao fell, Chinese said, after a bitter all night struggle in which 4000 Mongols and Manchoukuoan irregulars were chopped to pieces in hand-to-hand fighting through the streets.

The survivors were reported fleeing in disorder toward the northeast after suffering heavy casualties.

A similar clash, it was said, brought the fall of Wuchuan.

"TURNING POINT"

SHANGHAI, Nov. 25 (AP).—Reports of Chinese victories in Suiyan province in Inner Mongolia resulted today in a wave of patriotism in other parts of the nation.

Through the Yangtse river valley, cities, towns and villages heralded the capture of Pailingmiao from Mongol irregulars as the turning point of China's destinies in the northwest.

Sir Arthur Currie Lauded in Book

Lloyd George Pays a Tribute to Canuck General

By THOMAS T. CHAMPION
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

LONDON, Nov. 25 (CP Cable).—High tribute to General Sir Arthur Currie, commander-in-chief of the Canadian corps in the Great War, and Sir John Monash, the Australian general, is contained in the sixth and final volume of the war memoirs of David Llovd George, to be published tomorrow.

The volume asserts "seniority and society" were the dominant factors in army promotion. It assails several army leaders for avoiding the field of battle.

"In the Dominion forces, General Currie, the Canadian commander, and Sir John Monash, the Australian, were both in civil life when the war opened. The greatness of the abilities of Monash was not drawn to the attention of the cabinet in any dispatches," Lloyd George writes. "Professional soldiers could hardly be expected to advertise the fact that the greatest strategist in the army was a civilian when the war began."

Both Currie and Monash proved themselves brilliant military leaders and went right through to the top, he continues. They had a natural aptitude for soldiering and the fact of their being officers in unprofessional armies gave full play to their gifts. "Monash was, according to the testimony of those who knew him well, his genius for war and what he accomplished by it, the most resourceful general in the whole British army."

The volume shows Lloyd George viewing Earl Haig, the British commander-in-chief, and others in no kinder a light than in earlier books. His attitude is actually more harsh.

"Haig ordered many bloody battles and only took part in two. He never ever saw the ground of the greatest battles fought, either before or during the fight. Field-Marshal Sir William Robertson, Haig's chief adviser, never even saw a battle.

VANCOUVER, Nov. 25 (CP).—William G. Idler, 28, Loomis Armoured Car Service driver, was critically wounded here today when his revolver discharged, striking him in the chest.

Three Holdup Men Killed by Shot-Gun

ARE SHOT DOWN AS THEY JUMP OUT OF WINDOW

Attempted to Hold-up Gambling Place in Gary, Ind.

RESIDENT ACROSS STREET GOT HELP

Fourth Is Captured; 60 Patrons in Place

GARY, Ind., Nov. 25 (AP).—Three bandits were killed and a fourth captured tonight as police foiled a holdup of 60 patrons in a downtown gambling place.

The dead were identified tentatively as Herschel Stephens, Robert Irwin and Raymond Tucker, all of Gary.

Gus Kokenes, 25, of Chicago, who police said was an accomplice of the trio, was seized in a rear room.

The holdup men met death at the hands of Al Lichtenfeld, veteran detective, who returned their fire with a shot gun as they attempted to escape from a second floor window.

Police were summoned by a resident living on the opposite side of Washington street who saw the gunmen enter the establishment and line up the patrons.

When the police detail attempted to break down the front door, the bandits fled to the rear of the building. In desperation they leaped through the second floor window and tried to slide down telephone poles.

FIREMEN HELP HUNT FOR GIRL

VANCOUVER, Nov. 25 (CP)—Though a seven-hour search of the Lower Lynn valley wilderness proved unsuccessful, Vancouver volunteer firemen prepared tonight to make a second search in the upper valley tomorrow for 22-year-old Betty Charman, Burnaby hiker missing for five days in the North Shore woodlands.

Armed with ropes and axes, 30 Vancouver firemen, volunteering their services in their off-duty hours after a plea by the girl's father, C. E. Charman, scoured the district where the girl was reported last seen.

Operation Saves Siamese Twin

Surviving One Is Now a Complete Man

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

NEW YORK, Nov. 25 (AP)—Simplicio Godino, Siamese twin whose brother died last night after an illness of 10 days, was a complete man today for the first time in his life, made so by a rare feat of surgery which separated him from his "other half."

Lucio, the twin who died, possessed the complete body, and takes it with him to his grave. Plastic surgery gave the living brother the missing part, a rectum. This was the only organ in common between these 28-year-old twins.

Lucio was stricken while motoring here from North Carolina, where the brothers had made a theatrical appearance. At first it was believed Lucio had pneumonia, but today the fatal malady was announced as rheumatic fever.

Their nervous systems were separate. This made it possible to do the separation operation without an anesthetic. The separation line was made through the tissues of Lucio, after he died, and with no pain to the living brother.

After the separation the plastic surgery operation was done with all the usual technique.

Japanese and Germans Sign Anti-Communism Pact

Brings Japan Into European Bloc of Italy, Austria, Hungary and Germany

JAPAN WILL INSIST ON FISHING RIGHTS

Stalin Lashes Out at Fascism from Moscow; O.K.'s Military Industry Commissariat

BERLIN, Nov. 25 (AP).—Japan and Germany today signed a pact directed against communism throughout the world, and pointed specifically to the Communist Internationale.

Japan thus was brought into the European bloc of authoritarian powers lined up against the spread of Bolshevism. (Austria, Hungary and Italy also are supporting anti-communist campaigns.)

The Japanese-German agreement signed today charged directly that the activities of the Communist Internationale from Moscow "threatened world peace," and asserted future communist proselytizing would not be tolerated by either of the signatories.

Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels asserted tonight that the alliance was directed solely against the Moscow Internationale and not against any state.

JAPAN DEFIES RUSSIA

TOKYO, Nov. 25 (AP).—The Japanese foreign office tonight declared the Japanese-German agreement to combat Communism was "not directed against the Soviet Union or any other specific power."

Rather, the announcement asserted, Japan entered the pact solely to counter Komintern activities "in support of Chinese Communist armies in order to fight Japan."

At the same time, Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita was attacked in the privy council for his failure to conclude the fishing concession renewal with Russia before the anti-Communist agreement became known.

Arita said the signing had merely been postponed because of "Soviet internal procedures," and that in the event the concession was not renewed before its present expiration date, "Japan intended to continue operating as at present by all means at its command."

STALIN ATTACKS FASCISM

MOSCOW, Nov. 25 (AP).—The usually taciturn Joseph Stalin today approved a new and separate military industry commissariat, which led informed observers to believe he wished to accelerate Russian armament.

The idea was the only one accepted of the 100,000 suggestions offered for the new constitution which Stalin formally presented for ratification by the eighth all-Union congress of Soviets.

The major part of Stalin's speech, as secretary-general of the Communist party, was devoted to an attack on Fascism and assurance that the Communist party would continue to be the only party in Russia.

"This constitutional project," he said, "is an indictment against Fascism, for it says Socialism and democracy are invincible. The international meaning of this constitution cannot be exaggerated in view of the spread of Fascism throughout the world."

MORE WRITING EXPERTS HEARD

Two Testify Writing on "Confession" a Forgery

TORONTO, Nov. 25 (CP).—Mrs. Theresa Small could not have received absolution from the pope on her trip to Rome in 1922, as alleged in her purported "confession," because she did not have a private audience with his holiness, essential to comply with conditions of absolution, Arthur J. Holmes testified here today.

Two handwriting experts today gave evidence corroborating that presented yesterday by Oliver Staunton that the signature of a "confession" was not that of Theresa Small. Arthur Black Farmer and William H. Shaw testified the signature was a "skillful, second-rate forgery." Farmer declared the signature on the probated will of Ambrose J. Small to be genuine.

NEW YORK (AP).—Headed by a $5,000,000 disbursement on common stock by Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co., the year-end dividend parade continued under spur of the federal tax upon undistributed earnings.

Westinghouse directors authorized a dividend of $2 a share on the common and a similar amount on preferred stock, both payable December 21 to holders of record December 7. A bonus for employees amounting to $1 for each year of service plus $5 also was announced.

The payment sent total dividends declared since late October by more than 340 companies above $750,000,000 in a record-breaking November rush.

PRESTON, Lancashire, Nov. 25—(CP Caple)—The national government tonight won a byelection here when Captain E. C. Cobb, Conservative, was elected to the house of commons to fill the seat vacated by W. M. Kirkpatrick on receiving a government appointment in China.

ESCAPE BEFORE LOYAL PLANES CAN GET IN AIR

Many Hurt as Bomb Hits Two-Story House

RESERVOIR IS ALSO STRUCK

Find German Embassy to Be a Veritable Fortress

MADRID, Nov. 25 (AP).—Four insurgent bombing planes darted over Madrid today, spat machine-gun bullets on Socialist lines, bombed the model prison, and soared away before Madrid planes had time to give combat.

Bombs were dumped on the military hygiene and sanitation building.

Many were wounded when one of the aerial bombs wrecked a two-story house in Gusman el Bueno street.

Other explosive bombs hit the Lozoya water reservoir, between Bravo Murillo and Santa Engracia streets, and the north station. Another house on Francisco Rioci street was wrecked.

Madrid defenders threw every available ounce of man power into their struggle to clean the Fascists out of the University City area as the siege of Madrid continued after three weeks of inconclusive fighting.

"ABUSING RIGHTS"

Madrid officials noiced suspicions some embassies were "abusing the rights of asylum." Watches were established after semi-official allegations that the German embassy building, seized and sealed with the Italian embassy the day before, had been a "veritable fortress."

These officials said militia had seized in the German building 21 revolver, 12 shotguns, one anti-aircraft piece, seven rifles, one bomb thrower, three cases of hand grenades, one case of shell fuses and four cutlasses.

Subsequent investigation, it was said, showed the former embassy "sheltered refugees storing arms and ammunition."

The defence junta tonight was disturbed by the activities of a fleet of "ghost cars" which roam the city at night and snipe at militia cars.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

CHICAGO, (AP)—Motorman Van R. Grooms was held in technical custody while representatives of city, state and federal governments investigated the most disastrous wreck in the history of Chicago's elevated railroad. Grooms was at the controls of a North Shore flyer when it plunged into the rear end of a crowded Evanston express train—killing 10 persons and scattering 65 injured passengers along the right of way.

STRIKE EXPANDS

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Government authorities moved quickly to get relief ships under way to strike-bound Alaska, although a union technicality delayed the formalities and the far-flung maritime walkout expanded on several fronts. Coincidentally peace negotiations started again between coastwise shippers and one of the striking west coast unions. The union hitch developed shortly after Col. O. F. Ohlson, manager of the government-owned Alaska railroad, detailed plans to move fresh food, passengers and general cargo to the northern territory aboard ships chartered by the authority of President Roosevelt.

Suicide Shakes France

ROGER SALENGRO

Suicide of Roger Salengro, French Socialist minister of the interior, has shaken France's political structure to the foundation. Persecuted as an alleged "war deserter" in spite of repeated official exonerations, the 46-year-old minister ended his life in his home at Lille following a new attack on his war record. Premier Blum, himself, had vigorously defended his cabinet associate, asserting that an innocent man was being hounded to destruction because of his liberal political convictions. — Central Press Canadian Photo.

Radio Confab Asks a Government Survey Nelson Interference, New CJAT Channel, a Drive in Nelson

Every Angle of Reception Discussed Here at Conference of 25 Technicians and Amateur Enthusiasts; Trail Experts Assist

Twenty-five radio enthusiasts, embracing technicians, dealers, students of radio transmission, representatives of station CJAT in Trail, and others interested in overcoming poor reception in Nelson, attended the conference on radio interference in Nelson Wednesday called by the Nelson board of trade, and in a discussion of two hours duration, arrived at three recommendations:

1. That the department of marine should be asked to make a survey of radio interference in Nelson and use its powers to clear all trouble; and to keep a part-time inspector here;

2. That the department should be petitioned to grant a new channel for station CJAT that would not be used by any other station in western Canada;

3. That a campaign be organized by the Nelson board of trade, with the cooperation of the public, to eliminate every cause of interference in Nelson that could be remedied by radio owners themselves.

RECOMMENDED TO BOARD

These recommendations will be passed along to the board of trade by the tourist and publicity committee, which represented the board at the conference, and will be dealt with within the next fortnight. The campaign to eliminate minor home interference, however, is already being enthusiastically taken up, and its preliminaries will probably be organized and be ready to put into action by the time the board meets.

At the opening of the conference, H. A. Pearson, chairman of the Nelson tourist and publicity committee, who acted as chairman, pointed out it was called by the board of trade on behalf of the 3000 residents of the district who owned radio sets, to discuss the question of electrical interference with reception of programs, and announced that the board intended to formulate a report from the facts brought out and transmit it to Brig.-Gen. V. W. Odlum of Vancouver, one of the directors of the newly formed Canadian Broadcasting corporation.

For the first hour, electrical interference was the subject of discussion. Among points that developed were:

STREET CARS, POWER LINES

Radio engineers and technicians present concurred in finding the city's street cars guilty of causing major interference.

It was also established to the general satisfaction that major interference was also caused by power transmission lines. From Nelson west, this might be from either the West Kootenay Power & Light company's line, or by the city's lines, or by both. In the Salmo section the company's high tension line was accused.

Correction of interference from the power lines was stated to be a costly enterprise, and particularly so for a line of such high tension as that serving the mining districts south of Nelson.

On the other hand, no great investment would be required to complete the equipping of the street cars with eliminators.

HOME CORRECTIONS EASY

Beside these sources of major interference, it was stated that there were innumerable sources of small local interference, in connection with wiring, cracked insulators, operation of electrical appliances in the home. Cost of correcting these local causes, it was agreed, would be relatively negligible.

The city, it was stated, had cooperated in correcting various defects found on its lines. In this connection, City Engineer R. E. Potter gave credit to local dealers and to the inspector of the department of marine for assisting in locating many defects.

A suggestion that the city might incorporate in its electrical bylaw regulations setting standards for electrical appliances was found to be untenable, T. G. Robinson, manager of station CJAT, stating that the privy council had determined that the Dominion had the sole control over radio.

Radio dealers confirmed the report that there were some sections of Nelson where no reception could be obtained, and hence no radios sold.

URGE GOVERNMENT SURVEY

Discussion on Nelson electrical interference was concluded with adoption of a resolution sponsored by Vice-president E. A. Mann of the board of trade and H. W. Robertson, proposing that the department of marine be asked to hold a survey of electrical interfence in Nelson and to take measures to have it eliminated, and also be asked for a part-time inspector here.

Reception of CJAT programs was next taken up, it being a general experience in Nelson, in the sections that get these programs, that while daylight reception is still good, the night reception is now poor, owing to noise, this change dating some months back.

CHANNEL SHARED WITH WINNIPEG

Explanation of this change was given by Manager Robinson of CJAT, who stated that whereas CJAT not long ago had an exclusive channel so far as western Canada stations went, the department some time ago gave the powerful Winnipeg station, which had suffered interference from Mexico, the same channel, with the result that each interfered with the other. Instead of frequency 910, CJAT was now asking for 690, which was used by no other western Canada station of its class. He said, however, that the authorities paid little attention to such requests from commercial radio interests unless the listeners complained, and that therefore action by the Nelson board of trade would be of the greatest service. If action were taken, he suggested it be on the line of asking that CJAT be granted a new channel that would be free from interference. An investment of $20,000 in improvements had been neutralized, he said, when CKY, Winnipeg, was also given 910.

He said the chain of interference covered the whole district, including even Grand Forks.

On motion of W. J. E. Biker and W. K. Clark, the meeting asked the board to ask the department to grant CJAT a wave-length not subject to Canadian interference.

AREAS OF SILENCE

Discussion now reverted to conditions, and it was stated the city authorities wished to cooperate in every way.

In regard to the areas of silence, it was explained that Nelson was built on a northern exposure, and so was wrongly located to get full reception from Trail, the same principle applying to the country south of Nelson.

The technical men stated that while elimination of noise would not give reception in the silent areas, it would assist wherever there was weak reception at present.

DRIVE ON HOME NOISES

It was then proposed that the board could organize a drive among the city's radio owners, to eliminate minor troubles in their own homes. In many cases some very minor adjustment would clear up the trouble, and in others some inexpensive installation might overcome a home condition.

This suggestion was enthusiastically taken up, and on motion of A. Tyrrill and C. W. Tyler it was recommended that the board prepare and circulate a questionnaire, which would lead to the detection of innumerable minor and local sources of noise, and would also provide a great fund of information on the general subject of radio troubles in Nelson, which would be of assistance when the hoped for government survey should be made.

Thanks were extended to Mr. Pearson and the board of trade for calling the conference, to Mr. Potter for the city, for his help, and especially to T. G. Robinson and D. L. Hings and their Trail confreres, for their great contribution to the discussion.

After adjournment, work was started on drafting a questionnaire, in order to have the advice of the Trail visitors before they left.

On behalf of the board, Vice-president Mann expressed the belief that before many months a decided improvement would take place in Nelson reception as a result of the conference.

Those present were Chairman H. A. Pearson, Vice-president E. A. Mann; the Trail delegation, consisting of T. G. Robinson, D. L. Hings, E. C. Connor, C. R. Hickman, D. P. MacPhee, and H. D. Thain; and R. E. Potter, C. W. Tyler, H. W. Robertson, W. K. Clark, D. B. Crowther, B. Sutherland, Rex Jarvis, G. H. Ferguson, M. W. Brown, W. Thomson, A. Tyrrill, W. J. E. Biker, L. H. McKay, Ross Fleming, R. W. Dawson, John Batley and Secretary W. G. C. Lanskail.

Possibility of More Time for Hockey Looms

Commission Is Not Opposed; Hear Delegations

Representations made to the civic centre commission Tuesday evening by delegations representing the Nelson Amateur Hockey association and the Nelson Basketball association, at a three-hour session, received careful and sympathetic hearings, according to the sport executives concerned.

The proposal of the hockey delegation, consisting of President A. T. Horswill and Treasurer C. W. Tyler, for use of the skating rink up to midnight, with the city authorities providing the extra labor required, proved acceptable in principle, provided the city's willingness to furnish the labor should be confirmed and responsibility accepted.

A. T. Horswill, E. A. Mann, Bob Patterson and James Cherrington also reported satisfaction with their interview on the basketball requirements, which also will involve discussion with the city.

CONSTIPATED* 25 YEARS, ALL-BRAN BROUGHT RELIEF

Delicious Cereal Corrected His Condition

Here is Mr. Johnson's letter: "I got a package (of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN), and before the package was gone I was very much better.

"So I have been eating it for two or three weeks, and my constipation* has gone, and I was constipated* for 25 years or more. Hoping this may help some one to better health. I am a new friend to Kellogg's ALL-BRAN."—Mr. J. B. Johnson (address upon request).

Mr. Johnson's letter is one of many. Millions find Kellogg's ALL-BRAN corrects constipation* satisfactorily. It supplies the "bulk" missing in the average meal.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is mild and effective. It absorbs moisture, and gently exercises and cleanses the intestines. ALL-BRAN also supplies vitamin B and iron.

Isn't it more sensible to use this natural food instead of taking patent medicines? Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily. If not relieved, see your doctor.

Use as a cereal, with milk or cream, or cook into muffins, breads, etc. It is sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

Province Agreed Subsidize Doctor Living Edgewood

That the provincial secretary's department agreed in December 1935 to pay a subsidy to any resident physician establishing himself at Edgewood or vicinity, but that no request had been received for the services of a public health nurse, was stated by Hon. Dr. G. M. Weir, provincial secretary, in the legislature in reply to questions by Miss Dorothy Steeves, M.P.P. for North Vancouver.

Mrs. Steeves asked: "Has any request been received from Edgewood Kaslo-Slocan district, that the department of health endeavor to obtain the services of a doctor for that district, or have a public health nurse visit it regularly?"

Mashed Potatoes
Carrot and Raisin Salad
Pecan Pie Tea or Coffee

Mash the potatoes with plenty of butter and hot milk. Whip them up light and see how good they are. I'm not talking to you old experienced potato masher wielders, of course. You most probably do a job that would put mine to shame, but to the brides to whom mashed potatoes are just potatoes and not something to make a gourmet chortle.

TODAY'S RECIPES

PECAN PIE — Three eggs, one cup corn syrup, one-fourth pound pecan meats, three-fourths cup sugar, one tablespoon butter, two tablespoons flour. Beat first three ingredients together, and cream second three. After each has been beaten separately, combine the two mixtures and beat well. Have ready a pie tin lined with your favorite pastry crust, unbaked. Pour above mixture into it, set in hot oven. As soon as crust is set, reduce heat to moderate temperature until custard is done.

FACTS AND FANCIES

Maple Biscuits

Make standard baking powder biscuit recipe, roll out and cut. Brush over each biscuit with softened butter and sprinkle generously with maple sugar.

Crabapple Relish

Four quarts crabapples, three cups vinegar, four oranges, four pounds brown sugar, two pounds raisins, one teaspoon powdered cinnamon, one teaspoon cloves, one teaspoon allspice. Wash and core crabapples and cut into small pieces. Put them into preserving kettle, add vinegar, oranges (peeled and sliced), sugar, raisins and spices. Cook all slowly until crabapples are soft. Pour into sterilized jars or glasses, seal, cool and store.

Green Tomato Mincemeat

One peck green tomatoes, one tablespoon salt, one-half peck apples, chopped fine; two pounds raisins, four pounds brown sugar, one cup weak vinegar, one cup suet, chopped fine; two tablespoons cinnamon, two tablespoons cloves, one tablespoon nutmeg. Chop tomatoes fine, cover with cold water and salt and heat to boiling. Drain. Repeat. The third time, cook tomatoes until tender before draining. Add remaining ingredients and cook gently until apples are tender. Turn at once into sterile jars, filling them to overflowing. Seal at once. This makes 17 quarts.

VERY WICKED PEOPLE

Senator McKellar, of Tennessee, is shocked to the depths of his senatorial soul at the wickedness of the Literary Digest in forecasting through its straw vote the defeat of President Roosevelt. He demands the Congress investigate this "great wrong" to the American people, with a view to prohibiting straw votes in the future.

The indignant senator may not realize it, but in striking at the straw votes he is striking at the treasured privilege of every American citizen to forecast an election result for himself. For every American takes a straw vote on such occasions, though there may only be one voter. Of course, the senator may reply that he is only hitting at wrong straw votes. But that will not save him. For most election forecasts are wrong.

If poor guessing is a crime, then President Roosevelt himself should be included. He underestimated the number of electoral votes he would receive by 163. So should the chairman of the Republican national convention, who gave Governor Landon an "absolute minimum of 320 votes." Then there was Lemke, who was going to poll enough votes to upset the election. There was the all-wise William Randolph Hearst who staked his "reputation as a prophet" on Roosevelt's defeat. H. L. Mencken should be jailed for asserting that a Chinaman or "even a Republican" could defeat the NRA.

If it is wicked to misread the signs of the political heavens, then, as the Baltimore Sun, itself an offender, points out, Senator McKellar is pleading virtue's cause before a very wicked nation. To indict people for making bad guesses would be just as useless as indicting senators for being foolish.

CANADIAN RECOVERY

Credit to Canada for the "old-fashioned, undramatic method of self-reliance and local initiative" in achieving industrial recovery is given by Leonard P. Ayres in his November bulletin of Cleveland Trust Co.

"The volume of industrial production in Canada," says Col. Ayres, "is going to be about as large in 1936, as it was in 1929 at the peak of prosperity.

"We, in the United States," he says, "should be asking ourselves how it is that Canadian business has been able to accomplish an almost complete recovery and to do it in the main by old-fashioned, undramatic methods of self-reliance and local initiative.

Col. Ayres compares industrial production in the two countries and finds that from 1929 to 1925 the two indices run closely together, but that in the last four years of the prosperity period, Canadian production experienced an even greater boom than the United States.

In the depresion, Canadian production dropped 48 points while that of U.S.A. went down 55 points. In both countries the low year was 1932 and both have had four years of recovery. In that period, Canada has regained 97 per cent of the depression losses and the United States 70 per cent.

Democracy Must Recognize Its Own Limitations

To the Editor:

Sir: Your editorial "Taking Sides on Spain" appearing on the 4th instant is the clearest explanation of what is really going on in the Iberian peninsula that, so far, I have been privileged to read, and I have read much in many publications. You are to be congratulated on your masterly grasp and masterly handling of the whole subject.

On the editorial page of the same date appears a letter from Joseph Gray of Renata who, definitely and enthusistically takes the side of the loyalists and in a few, well chosen words presents what appears, on the surface, to be an unanswerable case for the loyalists. The salient points are: the present government of Spain was elected by the people of Spain in an overwhelming majority. This cannot be denied and Mr Gray might have added that could the strife be hushed and could the people of Spain be asked to decide, they would again declare for the government by an overwhelming majority. Why then is the voice of the people drowned in the roar of the cannon? Why does brute force supersede rule by consent of the governed?

There are conditions, enevitable conditions, of rule by the majority that we must keep steadily in mind, if democracy is not to go down in history as an idle dream, as a pitable failure. One of these is that the rights of the minority must be duly respected. If an ignorant and inferior majority seeks to rob and oppress an intelligent and superior minority that minority may rebel. Just such conditions prevailed in the southern states when Lincoln's proclamation set the slaves free and conferred on the blacks the same political rights as the whites. Those who have seen that famous picture "The Birth of a Nation" know what happened,—what always has and always will happen when an inferior majority attempts to lord it over a spirited and superior minority. I would advise Mr. Gray to study what happened to the negro after the American Civil War and being thoroughly informed of all that happened, study present conditions in Spain and, I think, he will find some parallel conditions.

There is a very primitive law that has ruled in the world long before rule by the majority was ever conceived. In fact, I should say two primitive laws that dominate the economic world with absolute sway and a supreme disregard for all fine-spun economic theories. (1) Nature gives nothing free. It has set its own price on all its bounties. Even wild fruit must be gathered and he who will not till, gather, hunt or fish may not eat. Nature destroys all creatures that refuse life on its terms. (2) Behind this lies a stern law of Nature. All creatures that enjoy Nature's bounties must defend what they have won on peril of life and limb. The honeybee must fight for its hoard, the lion defend its lair and the bear fight for its cubs. Deep down in every human breast is the disposition to defend what the hand has won on peril of one's life. Nature reserves its contempt for the poltroon who will not fight for his own.

This brings us to another limitation of democracy. To suppose a purely hypothetical case, suppose the idle, extravagant and thriftless should in any nation constitute a majority and suppose by virtue of numbers they should get control of the government. Suppose then that they use their power to rob and despoil the hard working, thrifty and more economical members of the community. If such a condition should ever occur there would be but one result, viz; civil war and the downfall of democracy.

I am not dogmatizing. I am merely suggesting some lines of thought to Mr. Gray. If Mr. Gray will inform himself about all the impossible, idealistic, socialistic and confiscatory schemes undertaken, or promised, by the government of Spain coupled with its inability to maintain law and order, he may understand why the more capable elements are putting and end,—as they always did,— and as they always well,— to democracy when it fails to recognize its own duties and limitations.

Captain James Fitzsimmons of Nakusp and Arrowhead was in Nelson Tuesday and Wednesday on one of his periodical visits. Captain Fitzsimmons has a host of friends wherever he goes in the Kootenays and the Slocan, and is always an interesting talker especially on old time matters. On Tuesday he was talking of the old days in Nelson in 1897 when John Houston was active hereabouts. Captain is looking for a copy of one of the pioneer newspapers of the districts printed in the Lardeau. I hope he is successful in locating one. Bill Fotheringham was reminiscing with the captain. Their conversation included mining, steam boating, pack trains and what have you. Captain Fitzsimmons reports much activity around Revelstoke despite the fact the film people had moved on. There are close to 400 men still working on the Big Bend road and Revelstoke still feels the benefits of this work. "Skip", as he is generally known, was discussing former days when he sat in the legislature and remarked that both sides of the B.C. house would miss Harry Pooley and his big pipe when he retires at the end of this term of parliament. I noticed the captain still reads the records of proceedings in the house. Bill Fotheringham was recalling early operations on the Bayonne mine years ago when a whole barge load of supplies was packed into the region in the fall and the men just holed up for the winter. Things were so good then the pack train man just turned his horses loose instead of returning to Nelson with them. The order for the barge load of goods was one of the largest ever to leave a Nelson store, he believed.

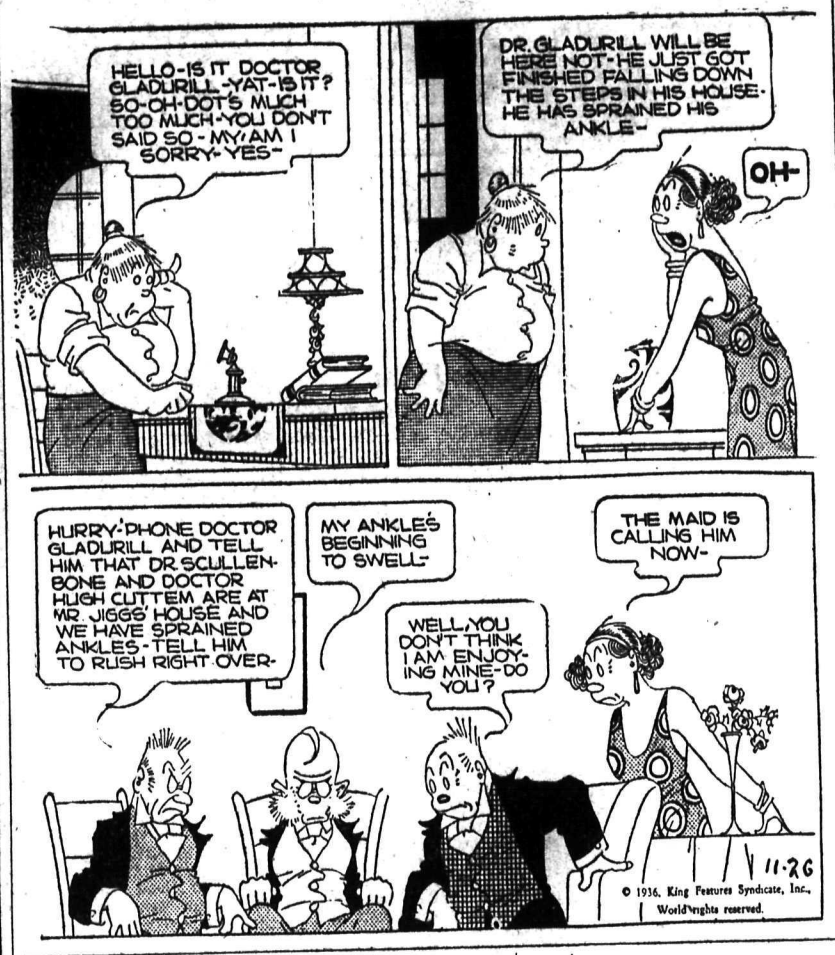
BRINGING UP FATHER — By Geo. McManus



THE DOCTOR SAYS

LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

FEAR WILL MAKE MAN THIRSTY

"So I am going to be shot like a dog." This was the realization of Dr. H. J. Howard when he fell into the hands of Chinese bandits. "My tongue began to swell and my mouth to get dry. This thirst rapidly became worse, until my tongue clove to the roof of my mouth and I could scarcely get my breath. The thirst was choking me—I was in a terrible state of fear."

Then his courage came back. He thought: "I will die like a man," and his fear vanished.

"Instantly my thirst began to disappear. In less than a minute it was entirely gone, and by the time we had reached the gate I was perfectly calm and unafraid."

This evidence, gathered by a trained observer, shows that thirst is not always due to lack of water in the cells and tissues of the body, but may be caused by emotion. Certainly it was an extraordinary way to learn it. The ruling passion strong in death—the physiologist about to be shot, timing the length of his thirst period and the rapidity of its disappearance.

But we all know something of the influence of emotion in thirst—the amateur speechmaker who finds his mouth dry just as he is called upon for his remarks. Fear causes constriction of the blood-vessels on the surface of the body, including the blood supply to the flow of saliva, and hence the dryness of the mouth.

WATER SUPPLY DEPLETED

Ordinary thirst, however, not that experienced in an emotional state, is due to depletion of the water supply to the tissues. The sensation of thirst, however, is located in the mouth, just as hunger is located in the stomach region.

Why should thirst—the need of the cells for water—be indicated by that feeling of dryness in the mouth? In a person who is thirsty, if water is introduced into the body elsewhere than by the mouth—under the skin, or in a vein, let us say—the dryness of the mouth disappears. And if the sensation of the dry, thirsty mouth is assuaged by having a person take a mouthful of water, rinse it around, and then spit it out, so that the body cells get no replenishment, the sensation of dryness of the mouth still remains.

The explanation given by Dr. Walter B. Cannon, who has worked on these subjects for many years, is that the mouth is a region which is especially likely to become desiccated when the bodily reserves of water are reduced.

Across the back of the mouth air currents are constantly moving, drying it off. If the water reserve of the body is high these tissues are kept moistened from within by the blood stream. Also by the salivary glands cease to secrete, and the palate is not moistened from within, so the sensation of thirst occurs.

It seems simple, and yet a French physiologist, Magendie about a hundred years ago said that thirst was a phenomenon so inexplicable that "it did not admit of any explanation."

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By E. V. SHEPARD

"Teacher of Teachers"

DANGER SIGNAL DISREGARDED

The majority of experts regard raising partner's call to game, neither showing another suit nor shifting to an unnecessarily high bid of no trumps, as a sign-off. This is to warn partner that the jump assist, with any previous call made, have streched values to the limit, and higher bidding must be made entirely at declarer's risk. We have today a quite common example of what may result of this danger signal, of "all values shown," is disregarded.

North: ♠ 4 2 ♥ 10 5 4 ♦ Q J 10 6 4 ♣ A 10 6

West: ♠ J 8 5 3 ♥ A Q ♦ K 8 ♣ K 5 4 3 2

East: ♠ A K Q 10 7 ♥ K J ♦ A 5 3 2 ♣ J 9

South: ♠ 9 6 ♥ 9 8 7 6 3 2 ♦ 9 7 ♣ Q 8 7

Bidding went: West, 1-Club; East, 2-Spades, to show "game expected, slam hoped"; West, 4-Spades, as a warning to stop bidding, unless East held considerably more than his first bid indicated. Having shown the full strength of his hand by his first call, East should have passed, instead he bid 6-Spades, which was not doubled.

The opening lead was the 6 of hearts. Dummy's Ace won. Declarer played the J. There seemed to be just even chances whether or not the contract could be fulfilled. Give South the Ace of clubs and all would be well. Put that high honor in the North hand and the contract must go down.

First declarer went for the drop, by taking two rounds of winning trumps. He was lucky enough to find spades evenly divided between defenders. Next declarer took two rounds of winning diamonds. Dummy then ruffed the lead of a third diamond. He regained his hand by leading the Q of hearts and winning with his K. That was the seventh trick. Declarer had one more low diamond to ruff with dummy's last trump. Of course he dared not make that play at once, as that would leave him stranded in dummy, and absolutely obliged to give up two defensive tricks, no matter which adversary held the Ace of clubs. The trial of clubs had to be made at once. That lead and that alone would settle the fate of the small slam contract.

It could do no good to lead the J of clubs. The 9 was led. Missing both Ace and 10, South played low. Dummy's K was played, and lost to the Ace. North's return lead was the 10 of clubs. Declarer's J lost to South's Q, putting down the contract a trick. South led the 8 of clubs. Declarer ruffed. Dummy ruffed declarer's last diamond. The remainder of the tricks went to East's good trumps. As the cards lay, declarer could not have fulfilled his contract, unless his opponents made mistakes.

SHAKESPEARE, THE MAN

SHAKESPEARE'S MANNER OF LIFE

Drinking was the most popular pastime of the age, not in England only, but all over Europe. Somewhat later King Gustavus Adolphus of Sweden had a courtier, one Col. Hepburn, a Scotsman, whose special business it was to entertain foreign ambassadors on their arrival at the Swedish court, and ply them with liquor until they were so far overcome that they forgot their diplomatic caution and babbled the secrets of their mission. Hepburn was able to carry an extraordinary amount of liquor with a cool head, and could thus drink all rivals under the table.

Shakespeare however must with tolerable certainty have led a more ordered and regular life than many of his associates. All contemporary accounts agree in praising the readiness of his wit, and his gentle and equable temper. "Sweet Will Shakespeare" is the description generally applied to him. But the most convincing testimony to the general sobriety and restraint of his conduct is supplied by the nature of the occupations he pursued. As the professional playwright for the Lord Chamberlain's and King's players, it was his business to adapt and revise nearly a score of plays, as well as write two original dramas, during the winter half-year. It is agreed, that Shakespeare's industry as playwright was beyond reproach. But he was actor as well as playwright, and to fulfil those duties he could not indulge to any excessive degree in riotous living. More than that, no man could lead a dissipated and irregular life and at the same time husband his pecuniary resources so carefully as Shakespeare did. The two things are quite incompatible. The strongest testimony of all to the relative temperance of his mode of life is to be discerned in the very high character of the original plays he wrote, especially those he wrote between 1592 and 1609, when, or about when, he retired from the theatrical life and went back to Stratford for good.

Soon after his first arrival in London, when he began to turn his prentice hand to revising plays for his company, he was regarded by the popular playwrights of the day with considerable jealousy and ill-will But it was not long before, through the sheer force of his commanding genius, aided no doubt by his placid temperament and pleasing manners, he became recognized as the ablest craftsman of them all. Ben Jonson, a university graduate, but a surly, rugged bulldog sort of fellow, who had trailed a pike in the Flanders wars, and killed his antagonist in single combat in the presence of the contending armies, admitted, after Shakespeare's death, that he "reverenced him, short of idolatry, more than he reverenced any man." In the light of these facts the question arises: Why then did Shakespeare not print and sell his plays? Other playwrights contrived to do so. Why did not he? Why was he so remiss, or careless, or indifferent about his literary reputation? Did he not know that his work was of superlative quality? To these questions no authentic answer is forthcoming. Shakespeare left no explicit statement as to his own opinion on this matter, nor any hint even that might serve as an answer. We can therefore only surmise. The plays themselves give us no help, not a scrap. There is hardly a single sentence, hardly a line or a phrase, in them that can safely be interpreted as an expression of Shakespeare's own personal feelings or opinions, or as echoing his own personal experiences. It is one of the principal features of Shakespeare's consummate, but instinctive artistry, that every character he portrays is individual, well rounded and complete for the role it fills, in fact a true personality. And every speech, whether long or short, that he puts into the mouths of his personages arises, naturally and inevitably, out of the character of the person and the circumstances by which his or her utterances are determined.

With the 154 sonnets that he wrote, the case is different; but even with them one must proceed with due circumspection and caution. There are passages which, whilst apparently conveying the impression that they reveal personal feelings or relate personal experiences are nevertheless nothing more than the conventional poetic stock-in-trade of sonneteers of the age, not in England only, but in every land where literature was cultivated. But if, I say if, we are warranted in reading sonnets CX and CXI as an expression of the author's private judgment, it follows that Shakespeare did not accept the contumely and disesteem that were levelled at his calling—that of actor and playwright — though the resentment was generally repressed. All the same he may still have held that to be a reputable citizen of Stratford was a social status of higher importance in the world than that of a writer of plays.

I for my part cannot help thinking, it was the superlative ease, the spontaneity, and exuberance, and consummate mastery of his craft, with which Shakespeare wrote that deceived him into putting a comparatively low value upon his dramatic productions. It was done naturally in the course of the customary day's work, and really, it was so very easy to do. Were not players disreputable folk, denounced and decried as people from whom one would expect nothing better than hackwork, good hackwork if you like, but still hackwork? Almost anybody could string together a play if only he knew the knack of it and had had a little practice.

Ben Jonson tells us, that so great was Shakespeare's skill as a dramatist, that "he never blotted a line." In other words, he wrote with flowing spontaneity and readiness, without effort as it were: idea and language leapt into his consciousness, and thence to his pen, with natural and unsought ease, clothed in apt and fitting dramatic language. The actor-editors of the First Folio (1623) declared, "that what he thought he uttered with that easiness that we have scarce received from him a blot in his papers."

THE CURBSTONE PHILOSOPHER

(By ERIC RAMSDEN)

THANKS A MILLION!

Your reporter is in receipt of compliments upon this column from such widely divergent points as Trail, the North Shore, and Cranbrook, and being naturally conceited has lapped them up with considerably more gusto than delicacy. Our especial thanks to F. J. S. of the Cranbrook Courier, whose column we have followed and admired for some eight years, for the kind words he tosses in our direction; to Tommy Cairns of Trail, who almost missed his street car stop as he parcelled out his good wishes; and Mrs. William Rutherford for her very gratifying comment.

Ninety-nine and nine-tenths per cent of work in a newspaper is just work, but once in a while someone hands along a pat on the back which, because it is so rare, is therefore the more deeply appreciated.

Since breaking into print with this effort, we have been repeatedly told how a number of the readers of this paper enjoy J.B.C.'s "Between You and Me." And readers who follow and talk about a column are after all the measure of its worth. (Incidentally, J.B.C., being my boss, is likely to feel inclined to dash the pencil through this paragraph, but if he does we'll remind him of some of the things said by some of the people whose names have appeared in his column.)

Enough of posies!

SCRAMBLINGS—

One of the most amusing incidents we have seen this week was the spectacle of a carpenter—or was he?—attacking a six-by-six timber with a plane just about big enough for him to get two hands on.

Another deep chuckle was developed in the course of scanning the Penticton Herald, wherein we learned the good ladies of that town sent a delegation to the school board to charge that evolution was taught in Penticton schools. Principal L. B. Boggs replied teachers had been warned that, in teaching evolution, they must teach it as a theory. The good ladies agreed this was the course that should be followed.

THE UNUSUAL OKANAGAN

The Okanagan must be a delightful place. For years we have been regaled with tales of the Ogopogo, with theories and assertions, with aspersion and denunciation. Latterly Ogopogo hasn't been hitting the headlines so regularly.

But the Okanagan is not to be robbed of the unusual. It now has a "ghost organ" in the hills back of Peachland. It was heard a year ago by Jack Vass of the Penticton post office staff while hunting in the Trepanier creek region, and it sounded to him, the Herald reports, like the organ of the Mormon temple at Salt Lake City. Laterly another Penticton man, Stewart Jackson, "who was in that same region, has heard the music, also hearing a choir as well." He ascertained it wasn't from an auto radio and persuaded his hunting partner to accompany him back up the trail, leaving their rifles behind. They didn't hear it.

HAINSWORTH, VETERAN GOALIE, IS RELEASED OUTRIGHT BY THE LEAFS

Broda Gets the Job in Nets; Second to Go in Two Days

NEW YORK, Nov. 25 (CP). — Conny Smythe, manager of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey league, announced tonight George Hainsworth, veteran goalie, has been released outright.

Hainsworth

Since the start of the season the Leafs have had two goalies, Turk Broda and Hainsworth.

"Broda has the job and it's his as long as he can keep it," said Smythe.

Asked why the sturdy little netman from Kitchener, Ont., was dropped, the Leafs' manager said Broda was just as good as Hainsworth and about 20 years younger.

Smythe also said Charlie Conacher, who has been handicapped by a wrist injury since the start of the season, would be given a 10-day rest. Gordon Drillon will be brought up from Syracuse Stars to play right wing in Conacher's absence.

Dropping of Hainsworth marked the disappearance of the second veteran player from the Leafs' active lineup in two days. Yesterday King Clancy, the great defenceman, announced he was hanging up his skates, although he is remaining on the team's roster.

ROSS ALL SET FOR JANNAZZO

NEW YORK, Nov. 25 (AP). — Champion Barney Ross and Izzy Jannazzo finished training today for their 15-round welterweight title fight in Madison Square Garden Friday night.

It will be Ross' first defence of the crown he regained from Jimmy McLarnin in May, 1935. The Chicagoan is a 3 to 1 favorite. Little or no Jannazzo money has shown up in the Broadway spots.

Mercury Varies But One Degree

Wednesday was dull and chilly. There was little variation in temperature, and during the 24 hours ending at 5 p.m. Wednesday the mercury never once dropped below the 30-degree line or rose above 31 degrees. The nights lately have been unusually clear, and trees on the surrounding mountains are seen covered with frost.

Junior High's Display Fine

Pyramids Feature; Musical Numbers and Tea

Over 150 people attended the tea, musical program and physical display presented by the pupils and teachers of the Nelson high school in the school gynasium Wednesday afternoon.

The entertainment was opened by songs, "Wert Thou in the Cauld Blast," "Bright the Moon Is Shining" and "Bells of Aberdovey" by the grades VII and VIII girls' chorus.

This was followed by a physical display of pyramid building and tumbling by a group of 17 boys under their instructor, D. Chamberlain. This display was the hit of the program, the feats of strength, the precision and accuracy with which the group carried out the commands of their instructor, were remarkable, and showed what could be done when students were given training and had the proper equipment. In some of the pyramiding the top boy was over 15 feet from the floor.

Highland dancing by Helen and James Stout, accompanied by Jack Stout on the pipes, and a comical conception of a squad of soldiers going through their company exercises, led by June Morgan, completed the program.

Tea was served before and after the program.

Miss B. Rogers was in charge of the kitchen, and Miss H. Douglas, Miss B. Mackenzie and P. Richards directed the serving and the usherettes. Among those who assisted in serving were Phyllis Paterson, Anna DelPuppo, Josephine Riley, Marjorie Teague, Susan Crossley, Mary Talbot, Gladys Worthington, Lillian Hickey, Deannie Wallace, Catherine McLeod, Myrtle Leet, Moira Mansfield, Annie Kosmo, Connie Noakes, Delma Robertson, Hazel Noakes, Cynthia Nicholls, Olive Lane, Helen Wigg, Lillian Fisher, Beulah Greer and Iris McKenzie.

Beda Moen, Edythe Smythe, Irma Arlt and Jenne Morrison were in charge of the tea table. Annie Busk and Neena McClement acted as cashiers, and Shirley Scatchard, Hazel Smith, Margaret Smillie, Rosemary Hornett, Della Whitfield, Genevieve Grizelle, Margaret Thain and Murrielle Whimster as usherettes.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25 (AP).—Bill Strang, in whose Brooklyn stable is quartered the winter-book favorite for next year's Hambletonian, laid plans for the 1938 renewal of the rich trotting horse stake when he paid the highest price of the sale for a yearling filly at the 42nd Old Glory auction.

SECOND HOCKEY DOUBLE-HEADER TRAIL THURSDAY

Winners and Losers of Monday Are Matched

TRAIL, B.C., Nov. 25.—On Thursday night local hockey railbirds will see the second doubleheader of the city pre-season loop, in which all four teams will be participating.

East Trail plays Canucks and Trail City plays Rossland.

Last Monday Trail City defeated East Trail 3-2 and Rossland beat Canucks 4-3.

Both these results indicate close competition and all teams were well matched with the exception of East Trail, which, in the minds of hockey officials, was a bit weak.

On the East Trail squad were mostly juniors and ex-juniors who were given some support by two seniors, Len Wade and Jim Haight. It was not considered wise, officials say, to interfere with the junior lines as these lads would be playing in strings for the B.C. junior title. However, it was stated that an effort would be made to bolster the team to give better competition with opposing squads.

OPPOSITION STIFF

But East Trail was playing Trail City, a team comprising six men who played with Smoke Eaters last season and two more with Rossland seniors. Furthermore they were competing with the Trail Smoke Eater line that grabbed most of its team's goals last winter.

Last Monday Rossland had things much their own way in the opening canto of the fixture but if Canucks are able to maintain the aggressiveness they revealed in the second two and especially the last period they will have no difficulty in handling the inexperienced juniors.

In the nightcap of Thursday's double bill, the victorious teams of last Monday night will meet.

Rossland displayed two "sweet" lines in Reinnika, Hanson and Walykochy; Petrosky, Wanless and Salmond. Devlin alternated with the centermen to continue a fast attack.

Salmond and Walykochy, who who made their debut last Monday showed up well on the Rossland team and will no doubt be given close scrutiny for the remainder of the league by West Kootenay league coaches.

Petrosky and Wanless, members of the Trail junior squad that won the Alberta-B.C. 1935-36 championship, were also big guns on the Rossland team and looked fine prospective material for West Kootenay league teams.

CROWDING THIS COLUMN

Sports ideas, thoughts and suggestions are piling in for this column from a dozen sources—evidence of a sports interest in this city and district which ought to mean a good deal for the promoters of the various activities. The public is sports-conscious as it hasn't been in years.

Nelson fans are constantly asking these days when the West Kootenay league is going to start. They want to see their team in action; they want to see the boys getting games under their belts and going places. The players themselves are anxious to get into battle. The Maple Leafs have got "something" this year and they want to get out and find out what it is.

We hear a lot of talk on the streets about this player and that, about this prospect and another. Fans want to know why this isn't done; or why something else can't be undertaken. The only answer to it all is that the team is in the making, that every effort is being extended toward building a team that will really go places, and that such a team can't be turned out in a week or two. That the Maple Leafs have a pile of ability and that organization of the boys into a team unit is taking time should be evident.

EX-PROS MAY BE ENLISTED

Restoration of the amateur status of "Deacon" Waite of Trail, 'Dutch' Singer of Rossland and Pat Aitken of Nelson makes it possible for the three teams to draw on their talent this season and we may see some interesting developments as a result. The basis for this belief is a game we saw in Rossland a while back—the annual Al Keating benefit—in which the Rossland Miners took on a team of Trail and Rossland Old Timers. Waite and Singer, along with Oliver Reinikka, former New York Amerk who has been part and parcel of the Miners for three years back, played together in that game with the Old Timers. Their brand of hockey was an education to the railbirds. Oliver was the only one of the three who had been playing regularly, but Waite was in good condition as a result of his active coaching of the Smokeaters. Singer was not in hockey condition.

But the three of them got out there and at times made young and faster players look foolish, not with trick plays but simply by using the old grey matter and making their own plays and opportunities.

There is one danger in pros returning to amateur ranks, and it is that amateur teams may fall victim to the glamor of their records and fail to bring along youngsters. When a man is finished with the pro game he may still have a lot of good hockey in him, but the boys who are coming up should not be sidetracked in his favor.

TRAIL RINK IS BRIGHTER

Our pal Art Joy in Trail informs us that the Trail rink is looking as nice as it ever has, and that a number of improvements have been made that should be appreciated not only by home fans but also by visiting teams.

The boards around the ice sheet have been repainted and the puck is much more easily followed. Space in the senior hockey room has been practically doubled and another shower and a new stove has been installed. A shower has also been installed in the visiting team's dressing room.

But the press box, which in Trail is also the timekeeper's box, is unchanged. It still does not provide sufficient room when timekeepers and reporters crowd into it.

We've had a lot of fun with our "press box campaigns" during the past few years. Rossland was the first to improve accomodation for the reporters but the first night it was used some "ape", not a reporter, chose to walk on the wide board provided for writing and smashed it. That particular spot in the rink was favored by a lot of fans and there were times the reporters had to do a lot of arguing and pushing and crowding to get into it. Trail rink had no press box for a long time but finally achieved accomodation by enlarging the players' boxes and instituting a timekeepers' box calculated also to suit the reporters. Nelson Civic Centre arena provided a press box from the start, but placed it too far away from the timekeepers.

It may not appear to be important, but the directors of every rink should make the press box one of their primary concerns. After all, they count on the newspaper laddies to boost along the sports using their rinks, and providing accomodation is not a favor to the writing lads as much as to themselves.

CROWD PLEASING TUNES

A new loudspeaker system has been installed in the Trail rink, and Mr. Joy informs us it's not at all bad. At the opening of the city league there Monday night several transcriptions were offered for the benefit of the fans, old timers such as "John Peel", "Old Black Joe", "Pack Up Your Troubles", "Casey Jones", "After the Ball" and "Roamin' in the Gloamin'". They were a strong reminder of the tunes the Rossland City band has played at intermissions in their home rink.

Those tunes, particularly "Three Blind Mice" and "Jingle Bells", were laughed at when we first heard them. But it wasn't long before we were asking for them and waiting for them and enjoying them. The crowd liked them, they produced a little sing-song among ourselves between periods. The songs put the fans in a happy frame of mind.

Therein is a bit of psychology that might be more widely applied by bands at sports events. It might be possible to get the fans into the swing of the songs as they wait for play to go on. And we can think of no reason why followers of the game should not sing and enjoy the intermissions which now are more or less dead.

In remote parts of Siberia natives still use intestines of the bear as glass for their houses.

McPHEE LOOKS FINE IN FIRST PUCK PRACTICE

Ex-Wesley Turns Out With the Nelson Maple Leafs

Jim McPhee, ex-Saskatoon Wesley who stopped off in Nelson on his way back to the prairies from a tryout with Portland pros, turned out to practice with the Nelson Maple Leafs Wednesday night—and if he slips away to Prince Albert Mintos, who want him, there will be a lot of disappointed officials of the club and a larger number of disappointed fans. McPhee had to be good to make the Wesleys last season; and he certainly looked good in his first workout here.

Twenty years old, 160 pounds and five feet 11 inches, he's all hockey. Jim got his juvenile training at Eston, Sask., stepping up to Wesleys from that club.

Charlie Emery, another former Saskatchewan player who came to Nelson from Penticton to try out with the Maple Leafs, again looked like a player who might develop, given coaching. But not having played organized hockey previously, he is somewhat at a loss at present. Whether it will be possible for him to stick around and get the benefit of working with the team is not known, but a good many fans are hoping it can be arranged.

Kimberley Bids Champions Adieu

KIMBERLEY, B. C. — When the Dynamiters, Allan cup puck champs, left on Sunday from Cranbrook on their playing tour across Canada before sailing from Halifax on Dec. 12 on the Duchess of York a number of citizens accompanied them to Cranbrook in their cars and wished them a happy and successful trip.

Those making the trip are Coach-Manager Johnny Achtzener, Eric Hornquist Ken Campbell, Paul Kozak, Tom Almack, Bill Burnett, captain, Harry Robertson, Hugo Mackie, George Goble, Ralph Redding, Fred Botterill, Gordon Wilson Puffy Kemp and Doug Keiver.

The last workout at the arena was on Saturday morning. The boys spent their last evening in town with their wives and friends.

The hockey executive feel they are fortunate in being able to arrange with the C.A.H.A. and the British association to take 13 players, as before no more than 10 have gone.

VANCOUVER, Nov. 25 (CP). — John Richardson, secretary of the British Columbia soccer commission, today announced his organization had rejected the terms offered by the California Soccer association for a four-game series in the south over Christmas and New Year holidays.

Simpson Sisters Are to Skate at Nelson Saturday

Banff Girls Starting Tour; Full Program to be Given

Nelson skating enthusiasts on Saturday will see two of the outstanding skaters in the northwest—the Simpson sisters of Banff—performing at the Civic Centre arena. Starting a tour of North America with a troupe of figure and fancy skaters, the Simpson sisters will make a stopover appearance here before joining the troupe.

These girls, among the best in their game, won Nelson when they were billed on the carnival opening of the arena a year ago, their work then setting a mark difficult of attainment again.

Appearing with them will be Miss Kay Gordon and Roy McKenzie, and the Tyson sisters of Trail. Comedy numbers are also slated.

In addition to the fancy skating a program of races has been billed for bantam, midget and juvenile hockey players. Two from each team will compete in the straightaway races, and four from each in the relays, with hockey sticks posted for the winners.

A broom ball game featuring the Nelson Gyro and Kinsmen clubs is also to be a feature.

PENNY ROYAL FAVORITE

LONDON, Nov. 25 (CP cable).—E. T. Thornton-Smith's Penny Royal was favorite at 15 to 2 in tonight's callover of odds for the Manchester November handicap, to be run Saturday.

LADY CURLERS AT IT AGAIN

Nelson's lady enthusiasts of the old roarin' game will meet at the Civic Centre curling rinks today to play the final games of their season-opening competition. Four of the eight rinks met Monday, when Mrs. L. Maddin's rink defeated Mrs. H. M. Whimster's rink and Mrs. A. Dingwall defeated Mrs. T. A. Wallace, and the other four will meet today. Losers of today's competition will join with the losers of Monday's games in providing a tea, at their expense, for the winners.

Draws for today are: Mrs. George Cady vs. Mrs. John Gansner, and Mrs. A. Kraft vs. Mrs. W. Kline.

"Open house" will be the order of the day for lady curlers Friday.

CHAPTER 36

The telephone rang and Mae Alexander picked up the receiver. "It's Bill," she said and handed it to Alix.

"Hello, Bill," Alix said in a very small voice as though she had done something very wrong.

"Hello, Allie," he said, "I'm the feller you promised to marry last night. Remember?"

Alix nodded her head. She thought she had said she did.

"I can't hear you," he said. "Are you there?"

"Oh, yes," she said and was quite sure that she wasn't. That was another girl. She couldn't feel. She couldn't make herself believe that she had promised to marry Bill. Surely a girl who had said that, who was planning to share her life with a man would have some feeling. She'd be happy or sad, or something. She'd have a sense of right or wrong even if she lacked a feeling of joy or sorrow.

"I'm coming around to get you in half an hour. I have a surprise

"Al right," she said obediently and checked the impulse to tell him she was busy, that she needed time to think.

Bill's surprise was her engagement ring. A clear white stone in a simple platinum setting that slid around on her finger because it was so heavy and her finger was so slender.

They told Bill's father about their engagement that night.

He wanted to give a party to announce it. Miss Lizzie said she didn't think that was right. Mae Alexander said they wouldn't have to give a party to announce anything in Bairdsvale. And she was right. It was all over town by the next night.

Nevertheless, the senior Boyd did give a Sunday night supper party and after that Alix gave up thinking. It seemed strange to her when she was away from Bill but when he was there it seemed all right. It was the only thing to do and apparently Bill know—or sensed how she felt—for there was no lover's talk between them. There was tenderness and affection and the tomorrows that they talked about.

Bill Boyd, Sr., wanted them to live with him but Bill held out against that. He had property on a hill 10 miles out from town. He had plans—all kinds of plans—for their home. He wanted Alix to select the ones she wanted and, curiously reluctant, she finally selected plans for a simple regency period house but she wouldn't let Bill start building. They had time, she said.

She wished in the weeks that followed that they had not been so hasty in announcing their engagement. She wanted to be able to think of herself as an entity—not as Bill's bride-to-be. She wished that people would talk to her as one person and not always as you-and-Bill.

She wanted to be left alone at her work mut she wasn't.

It was, "Alix, I've invited some friends of mine who live out near where you're going to live. Can't you get away by four? The party is really for you."

Or: "Honey, this is Bill. I thought we could go off somewhere alone tonight but the Spencers have invited us to dinner. Do you mind?"

No, Alix didn't mind. She didn't mind anything. Alix, putting on her pretty frocks, adding a last-minute smile, saying, "Oh, thank you so much. I'm sure we will be. Isn't Bill a darling?"

Alix lying numbly in the big four-poster saying, "No, no, no! I can't." And Alix falling off to sleep and waking to say, "I'm glad! I'm lucky! I'm going to marry a fine boy who loves me. Nothing is going to stop me."

When Betsy returned from her honeymoon, Alix went to see her and found her alone. "Cocktail or tea?" Betsy inquired.

Alix laughed, "What would be the most fun for you to show off?"

"Everything is such fun!" Betsy said breathlessly. "Isn't it? Aren't you thrilled to death? Oh, my dear, you just haven't been living until you have a home of your own and someone you love as much as you do Bill and I do my darling."

Alix felt cold. "Perhaps you'd better make it a cocktail," she said.

"I can't make up my mind whether I like my kitchen or my living room best," the young bride said, skipping about like a child with a cocktail shaker in its arms. She put it down and came to perch on the arm of Alix's chair, "Look. Don't tell anybody I told you. If course, there really isn't anything to tell but Harry and I were talkihg over what you told us about building gables on this house. Remember you said we could keep adding on and it wouldn't change the proportions?"

Alix nodded.

"Well, we've decided to have a large family. Three. Two boys and a girl—not right now—but next year we thought we'd build an ell. Where do you think it should be?"

After that conversation. Alix looked on her coming marriage with a different attitude which was sometimes fearful and sometimes desirable.

"If I have a baby," she thought, "I'll be alive again. I'll really love Bill. I care for him now but not enough. Then, everything will be right again. Whatever happens I'll be a good wife to him and a good mother."

"When are you and Bill going to be married?" they asked her.

"When are you going to leave me?" Mae Alexander asked sadly.

"When are you going to marry me?" Bill wanted to know.

To all of them she said, "Not for a little while."

"I can't leave Mae now, Bill," she said. "We are doing the new apartments out on Lindbergh road and we've got to have them ready for fall."

"But why can't I go ahead with the house?" Bill demanded.

"Next spring, Bill, will be time enough. We'll stay at your father's place this winter. New houses aren't very comfortable when you first go into them."

Play against time! Put off tomorrow! There's a lifetime ahead!

And meanwhile she was buying a trousseau, sending away for materials; satins and prints and bright woolens to be made up by a dressmaker; buying bits of lingerie out of her salary. And never, never touching the nest egg that had grown to be $500, all she had that was really hers.

"I'm sending back that maroon brocade to Hadley." she said to Mae "I sent him a sample and distinctly said I wanted mulberry. Maroon would clash with those hideous blues Mrs. Johnson insists on keeping in that south room. I suppose it will take another 10 days to get here and we can't possibly take Fleming off the job he's on to finish them and she wanted them for the fifteenth."

Mae Alexander shook her head perplexedly. "Alix, you're the strangest girl I've ever seen. You're getting married in a month and worrying your head about Mrs. Johnson's drapes. Most girls would be worrying about their own pillow cases and sheets and such things. You seem to be diverting all your bridal enthusiasm to our clients."

Alix picked up her samples and order blanks.

"I've plenty of time for that."

"Plenty of time for that and the wedding less than a month away?"

"It's going to be a very simple wedding and I'm no 18-year-old to be mooning over it," she answered practically.

Mae regarded her sorrowfully, "Alix, why don't you give a romantic old maid a break?"

"Meaning who?" Alix smiled.

"Meaning me."

"Aren't you going to be my bridesmaid?" Alix asked reasonably.

"That's the trouble. I am but I haven't got anything to get anticipatory over! I don't even know what I'm going to wear. Where is the wedding going to be?, Can't you make up your mind?"

Alix gazed at her for a long moment but she didn't say anything.

Mae continued:

"I've got a big house and a beautiful bay window which is just the place for a wedding altar. If you'd only wear white satin and come down the staircase, cross the hall and . . ."

"Mae," Alix said unexpectedly, "it's a whole month away and I . . . . oh, anything can happen before that. I don't mean that I'm not going to get married but you . . . . you never know . . ."

She got up abruptly and went to look out the window as though she were drawn there.

FLOUR, FEED UNCHANGED FIRST WEEK IN MONTHS; CHRISTMAS IN FULL SWING ON WHOLESALE ROW

Supplies Coming in and Moving Out Freely

FANCY FRUITS ARE IN DEMAND

Beef, Lamb, Cheese Up; Christmas Nuts Are Moving

For the first time in months flour, bran, shorts and middlings were reported on wholesale row Wednesday as not having changed in price. These commodities have been among the most active on the market, with prices changing two and three times a week, and the report that they have been steady for a week is almost in the same class as the famous definition of news—the man biting the dog.

Christmas activities command the attention of the wholesalers at this time as supplies arrive almost daily and go out almost as fast to retailers That the retailers also are getting these supplies into the hands of consumers speedily is evidenced by repeat orders. One firm has had to duplicate twice its original order for some of the standard Christmas lines.

DEMAND FANCY LINES

That women this year are "going in" for fancy cooking on a greater scale is shown by the lively demand for fancy peels, glace cherries and other glace fruits, and so on. These in particular are moving freely One manufacturer is offering peel in tins "with the freshness sealed in." Another indication of the extent of Christmas cooking is the report of a raisin packing concern that it has moved a whole train, 70 cars, of raisins from its plant.

Christmas nuts in the shell are now on wholesale row and are moving out into the hands of the retailers. Reports have been received of an acute shortage of peanuts, and of a one-third pack of pecans.

Japanese oranges have been delayed but are expected to reach the market within a few days, probably before the end of the week.

SMYRNA FIGS

Smyrna figs and Sicilian almonds are moving into the hands of retailers and consumers.

Oranges are meeting with a ready demand as the new crop Navels are offered by wholesalers. Grapefruit from the West Indies, brought to Canada under empire trade agreements, is said to be of excellent quality and in demand. Imported grapes of good quality are also being offered. Comparatively good quantities of coconuts are being sold.

Dealers report a number of new lines in Christmas supplies cedar chests containing chocolates or writing paper being emphasized. Novelty packs feature these lines.

Beef, lamb and cheese provided activity among the staples, beef going up one cent, lamb 1½ cents and cheese half a cent a pound. Butter and eggs were unchanged.

NEW YEAST LINE

Among new lines offered is dried yeast, packed in tins. Advance in the price of prunes, due to shortage, is indicated. Oilcloth, the shelf table and enameled types, is advancing.

Stocks of gallon cans of strawberries, popular with mining and lumbering camps, have been cleared from the floors of all brokers and factories, according to reports reaching this city. Canners are reluctant to part with stocks of canned tomatoes since they have not enough to carry through until the 1937 pack is available and are holding for higher prices. The situation is said to be such that they will get just about what they ask.

Carlot arrivals on the market, besides two cars of mixed groceries, one of Christmas groceries, two of sugar and two of meats, included oranges, Grand Forks alfalfa, flour, Christmas nuts, and fresh fruit and vegetables.

CHERRY DEAL IS DISCUSSED BY OFFICIALS

Harrop and District Growers Hear from Associated Men

HARROP, B.C. — Fruit growers from Queens Bay, Balfour, Longbeach, Procter, Sunshine Bay and Harrop gathered at the Harrop packing shed to hear officials from the Associated Growers, Ltd. J. J Campbell, Kootenay director, Willow Point; W. M. Vance, local manager, Nelson; D. McNair, general sales manager, Vernon, and Mr Duthie, American Produce Exchange of Great Britain, Portland, Ore. The speakers addressed the meeting in the order mentioned, Mr. Campbell in a short resume of the cherry deal of past season. Mr. Vance enlarged on this subject, quoting returns on several cars of cherries and reports on same. He also gave his reason for loading cars for the east. As usual, Mr. Vance answered several questions.

ADVISES PROCESSING

Mr. McNair dealt with the sales generally and pointed out forcibly the results were a reflection of supply and demand, distribution and condition of fruit on arrival. The speaker brought out many points regarding distribution, keeping all larger markets evenly supplied, being careful not to over-load, as this was essential for anything like fair returns on soft fruit. He took up the 1936 cherry deal and the tonnage from Okanagan, Kootenay and Creston; maintaining growers are producing more cherries than the market will consume as fresh fruit, and advised processing a larger percentage until purchasing power increases.

As head of the sales department of the Associated Growers he took full blame for any mistakes made in routing and explained all the preliminary trial shipments before shipping east of Winnipeg, which resulted unsatisfactory owing to condition of fruit on arrival.

Mr. Duthie, widely experienced in marketing and export trade, pointed out in particular the value of a brand of high standard in quality and uniformity. He highly praised the improved methods in handling fruit at seaboard.

Following the speakers there was a general discussion on the possible reason for the poor condition of cherries on arrival. The larger number of growers blamed the condition of the roads, claiming the fruit was bruised sufficiently before loading in cars to make arrival unsatisfactory. Several other reasons were mentioned and all will have the attention of the best man the Associated Growers have available next season.

A hearty vote of thanks was given the speakers.

RADIO REPORTS PLANE FLYING OVER ROCKIES

Lethbridge, Cranbrook Stations Keep in Steady Contact

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., Nov. 25—For the first time in the history of western Canada a three-way interview was carried on Sunday commencing at 12:45 between Pilot H Hollick-Kenyon and Lieutenant Eamon in the Lockheed Electra plane flying between Lethbridge and the Crow's Nest pass, the ground station in Lethbridge relayed through CJOC, and the Cranbrook signal station from which was given a demonstration of a weather report to a plane in transit.

The location of the plane was given as seven miles east of Macleod at the opening of the broadcast. The interview from CJOC with the airmen was heard clearly the Cranbrook reception being especially good. This is but one of the first steps to what is expected to be possible in communication between land and air. A telephone conversation from a home to the plane will be an interesting experiment in the near future.

During the interview many questions were asked, including the pilot's opinion of the scenic beauties of the Canadian Rockies route. Mr. Kenyon, who has flown all American routes as well as in South America, England and Australia, replied that the Canadian Rockies have the finest scenery of any from the air.

The broadcast, which lasted for 20 minutes, opened when the plane had reached an altitude of 8000 feet above sea level, making a speed of 150 miles an hour.

To aid in mapping the United States coast line, a camera has been made that can photograph 600 square miles from a height of 30,000 feet.

BOSTON (AP). — Less than 24 hours after he organized a new campaign against number pool operators and gangsters, Police Commissioner Eugene M. McSweeney lost his $9000 job. Gov. James M. Curley, who appointed McSweeney two years ago, removed him because he said "the police department is being administered for the protection of racketeers rather than for the protection of the general public." Some Poultry Parasites Are Easily Beaten

Red Mites and Body Lice Infection Prevalent

At this season red mites and body lice frequently cause serious loss in production, deaths may follow a bad infestation among both the young and the old stock, and considerable time and care may be required to bring the flock back into condition after the trouble has been located.

Carelessness or unsanitary conditions are usually responsible for the presence of these pests. They thrive on dirty hens and multiply in filth if it is allowed to accumulate in corners or cracks and crevices of the henhouse.

Lice live entirely on the body of the bird and irritate by crawling and biting. Their eggs are laid at the base of the feathers, usually around the vent or under the wing. Fortunately, they are easily controlled and by using ordinary precautions the flock may be kept free and clean. The usual practice on the experimental station at Harrow is to apply Blue ointment, which can be obtained at any drug store. A portion of Blue ointment about the size of a pea is smeared between the thumb and first and second fingers and rubbed in around the vent and at the base of the wing close to the body. One thorough application when the birds are being placed in their winter quarters is usually sufficient to keep them clean for the year. However, the birds should be examined at intervals because a re-infestation may occur during hot weather.

The red mites do not stay on the birds constantly. As a rule they spend the day in some crack or crevice or on the underside of the roosts, preying on the birds at night by piercing the skin and gorging themselves with blood. The control is comparatively simple. A solution of 1 to 3 crude carbolic and kerosene or one of the good coal tar preparations usually used as a disinfectant may be applied with a brush to the dropping boards, roosts, and nests after they have been thoroughly scraped and cleaned. In the case of a bad infestation, when the mites have migrated to all parts of the house, a thorough cleaning and spraying with one of these agents will be necessary and should be repeated after an interval of two or three days.

C.G.I.T. Takes Church Service

Kimberley Girls Are Leaders in Sunday Theme "the Quest"

KIMBERLEY, B. C.—The Sunday night service at the Kimberley United church was in charge of the C.G.I.T. It was by far the best service they have given. The theme was "The quest."

The girls marched up the aisle to the music of "Follow the Gleam" and filled the choir loft. Their fresh uniforms and bright young faces made a happy picture. Their leaders, Miss McBride and Mrs. Ogilvie were with them.

After repeating together "My Purpose" and singing "For the Beauty of the Earth," Leona Twells led in prayer. Frances Park sang "Jesus Lover of My Soul" to the setting by H. C. McDougall. Eleanor Lindsay and Eleanor Sortome led the scripture reading and Marjorie McLeod and Mildred Sortome the prayer.

Agnes Aikman and Irene Boardman sang a duet, "Thou Friend of Youth" Elaine Norton gave the prayer before the offering. The collection was taken by Mary Lindsay and Isabelle Bates, who also acted as ushers.

Rev. Galbraith spoke on "The Quest". What is it all the world is seeking? To see to know and to possess—Life. In Him was life. There was no indication that He was ever sick. He taught that there is only one way to live happily and successfully, "Love one another as I have loved you." None of the great men of all times have ever gone beyond that.

He did His Father's will in a world of trouble and enmity and taught that life abundant and eternal was a present possession and a future joy. By the story of the rich fool, He taught that life was not the possession of material things. By stories He taught that life was not found by fret and fuss over food and clothing. These were necessary but secondary. First things come first. Not, "What shall I eat" but "Am I worth feeding?" "Am I dressed well enough to go out socially?" but "Am I of any benefit to anyone when I go?"

"Seek ye first the Kingdom and all these things shall be added. The kingdom is the rule of God in my heart and life."
