ROSSLAND LAD LOSES LIFE ON HUNTING TRIP

Arthur Cozzetto Dies Instantly, Bullet in Back

PARTNER'S RIFLE CAUGHT IN TREE

Coroner's Jury Finds Death Accidental; No Blame

ROSSLAND, B.C., Oct. 2.—Arthur Cozzetto, aged 18, was almost instantly killed this morning when a rifle carried by his companion, Allan Dixon, caught in the limb of a tree and discharged, the bullet entering young Cozzetto's back between the shoulders.

The accident occurred north of the Rossland reservoir. Cozzetto, Robert Dixon and Allan Dixon were on a hunting trip. The three were travelling a wooded path, Robert Dixon leading, followed by Cozzetto and Allan Dixon in the rear, when the rifle caught in the tree.

Martin Johnson, who lives in the vicinity, rode to town on horseback and summoned Dr. E. E. Topliffe, who found life to be extinct.

Coroner Dr. J. S. Daly impanelled a jury consisting of James F. Cooper, forman; Lawrence Hamilton, Irving J. Trembath, King Commesotti, W. Earl Mellett and William C. Stephens.

The jury brought in the following verdict:

"We, the members of the jury, after duly considering the evidence given in the case of the death of Arthur Cozzetto, have come to the unanimous decision that he died by the wound of a bullet accidentally discharged from a 38.55 rifle carried by Allan Dixon, and from the evidence given we can find nothing that indicated negligence on the part of the said Dixon."

Allan Dixon is prostrated at his home and under doctor's care.

Arthur Cozzetto was born in Rossland and had lived here all his life. He was employed at the Tadanac plant of the Consolidated Mining & Smelting company. Surviving are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Cozzetto, two brothers, Frank and John; three sisters, Mrs. R. Steffani and Mrs. G. Marzocco, both of Trail, and Miss Amelia at home.

LYMAN SUING POP FOSTER

NEW YORK, Oct. 2 (AP).—Abe Lyman, orchestra leader, today filed a $50,000 damage suit against Charles "Pop" Foster, manager of Jimmy McLarnin, welterweight boxer, charging "embracery and fraud."

Foster was accused of making untrue statements before the state boxing commission regarding a $10,000 wager allegedly made by Lyman on the outcome of the McLarnin-Barney Ross fight on May 28, 1935.

A few days after the match, Lyman's complaint said, Foster told the boxing commission that Lyman had a cash bet of $10,000 on Ross to win and that Jack Dempsey, who refereed the bout, was "Lyman's best friend."

He quoted Foster as saying:

"When Dempsey went into the ring and raised Ross' hand he made $10,000 for at least one of his pals."

12 RECORDS SET OR EQUALLED AS YANKEES THRASHED GIANTS, 18-4

NEW YORK, Oct. 2 (AP)—Excluding the "goofiness" record for ball games for all time, the Yankees today spattered a dozen marks in the log of world series history as they drove Bill Terry and his Giants to the verge of distraction.

Into the book went:

1. Tony Lazzeri equalling Elmer Smith's feat for Cleveland against Brooklyn in 1920 by hitting a home run with the bases loaded.
2. Lazzeri driving in four runs in one inning, also equalling Smith's record.
3. Lazzeri and Bill Dickey each setting a new record for driving in runs in one game, five each, beating the mark previously held by nine players, among them Lazzeri and Babe Ruth, twice.
4. Frank Crosetti equalling the record of Babe Ruth and Earl Combs of scoring four runs in one game.
5. Joe DiMaggio tying the mark Ernie Orsatti and Mel Ott held jointly making all three putouts in one inning, the ninth.
6. Greatest number of runs ever scored by one team in one game, 18, beating the previous total of 13 three clubs shared.
7. Total of 22 runs for both teams beat the 19 the Yanks and Cubs piled up exactly four years ago.
8. Six runs in the ninth was the biggest 9th inning rally in series history. The Cubs scored five in 1908.
9. It was the longest game in series history, 2 hours, 49 minutes.
10. In or out of the book, it was a team record for runs driven in, for all 18 were belted across.
11. Every Yank got a hit and scored a run.
12. The Yankees' 14-run margin of victory was the biggest of them all, wiping out the previous margin of 13-2 gained by the Athletics over the Giants in 1911.

UNITED CHURCH ENDORSES VOLUNTARY PARENTHOOD

COUNCIL REFUSES TO GIVE SUPPORT TO STERILIZATION

Endorses Government Refusal Legalize Sweepstakes

ASK CHURCH FOLK SPURN ALCOHOL

In Favor of Collective Bargaining in the Industries

By GUY E. RHOADES

(Canadian Press Staff Writer).

OTTAWA, Oct. 2 (CP). — The United church general council today approved the principle of "voluntary parenthood" but declined to act on a report recommending approval of voluntary sterilization of the mentally and physically unfit, filing it without endorsation as a matter of information only.

The recommendation of the sterilization report was that the "general council record a favorable attitude to the legalizing of the minimum operation . . . yielding sterilization and to statutory provision for regulation and control of every stage of the process."

MANY DIFFICULTIES

Numerous commissioners expressed belief the council should take no action because of difficulties in the way of complete study of the proposal and incomplete knowledge of consequences practice of sterilization might bring.

Dr. Hugh Dobson of Vancouver expressed the conviction it would lead to an increase in prostitution and consequent spread of venereal disease. He urged no action be taken, holding facilities might be provided to women that would enable them to avoid with certainty having children, facilitating and encouraging the entry of some into prostitution.

Adoption of the principle of "voluntary parenthood" was expected and had been forecast for several days. The council adopted recommendations of a special commission established under authority of the 1934 council approving establishment of voluntary parenthood clinics under public control and supervised according to provincial health standards.

The report was returned to the council by a sessional committee on evangelism and social service which re-affirmed the church's antagonism to liquor traffic and recommended total abstinence on the part of church members; asked that codeine be added to the list of forbidden narcotics and approved the Dominion governmental refusal to legalize sweepstakes.

The council adopted the principle of collective bargaining in industry, asserted the "moral obligation" of the community to further plans already devised for housing schemes and slum clearance and recommended to the church conferences establishment of standing committee on industrial relations for the study of "type industries within their bounds," dissemination of labor-law knowledge and promotion of better understanding between employers and employees.

Did Someone Say They Would Like to Have the Urals?

A business-like machine-gun crew of the red army is pictured in action during autumn manoeuvres of troops of the Kiev military district in the Odesso region of the U.S.S.R. Crews like this have been dropped by parachute from aeroplanes in red army tests. Their mobility and efficiency is interesting in view of the recently-broadcast sigh of Chancellor Hitler of Germany—"If I had the Urals.—"

NELSON WHIPS ROSSLAND 9-5

Record Paid Crowd of 2153 Sees Boxla Go Extra Game

Before the second largest crowd ever packed into Nelson's Civic Center arena—2153 paid attendance, which with passes made well over 2200 fans—Nelson stayed in the West Kootenay box lacrosse finals by grabbing off a 9-5 victory last night, in what was probably the hardest fought and closest match of the season. Only the Prince Albert-Kimberley hockey game drew a larger crowd over 2200, and that was with the aid of a special train from Kimberley.

The series is now tied at two games each and the fifth and deciding game will probably be played on Trail's neutral floor.

At half time the score was 3-2. At the end of the third period Rossland led 5-4, being held scoreless in the final stanza, while Nelson ran in five.

Sino-Japanese Situation Is Critical

Two Chinese Sentenced to Death for Killing of Japanese; Chinese in a Panic

By MORRIS J. HARRIS

SHANGHAI, Oct. 2 (AP)—Stormy protests of milling crowds of Chinese, incensed over the death sentence meted to two of their fellow-countrymen for the slaying of a Japanese naval officer, hightened the Sino-Japanese friction to critical proportions today.

Through the narrow passageways of Hongkew, Shanghai's "Little Tokyo," where Japanese bayonets have enforced martial law since before the trial began, hostile crowds of Chinese and Japanese jostled each other in dangerous contiguity. Authorities were gravely concerned.

Hundreds of Chinese, in shrill-voiced panic, hastened their evacuation of the densely-populated Chapei district.

In Peiping, the Japanese army was reported to have launched large scale manoeuvres throughout the Tientsin-Peiping area, extending from the sea westward to the Kinhan railroad.

The verdict of the Chinese district court, in handing down the death penalty to Yang Wen-Tao, a shipping clerk, and Yih Hai'sen, a dancing instructor, for the killing of Hideo Nakayama, Japanese naval warrant officer, last November 10, drew a prolonged uproar from excited crowds of Chinese.

Bewildering the Terriers in the opening quarter with lightning speed and perfect combination, the Squamish reserves braves, only all Indian team ever to advance to the Canadian finals, showed a 6-1 lead after the first 15-minute period.

Terriers showed their championship form in the second frame however, to blast home six goals while holding the western champions scoreless for a 7-6 lead at half time.

Many of the delegates will leave for Vancouver, intending to attend a British Columbia mining convention which starts next week.

Defraud Attempt Puts Men in Jail

Two Are Sentenced to Hard Labor by Trail Court

TRAIL, B. C., Oct. 2.—John Kholodilin, alias John Turch, John Zakar; and Joe Chernoff, alias Joe Contin and Joe Martini, each were sentenced to two months in the Nelson jail with hard labor by Acting Police Magistrate Donald MacDonald in city police court, Friday. They were found guilty of attempting to defraud, although they pleaded not guilty to the charges.

Kholodilin and Chernoff were arrested in Vancouver by Constable Irvine of the Trail police force after they had been picked up by Detective McNiel of the Vancouver force.

The former Trail pair had purchased watches valued at $44.75 and $37.50. From a Trail jeweler by making a down payment and signing a lien contract. They had sold the watches in Vancouver for $10 each.

EXCAVATION IS STARTED $8000 CAFE BUILDING

Green Company Gets Contract From Tom Johnstone

SITE OF EARLY DAY RESTAURANT

Williams Is Designer; Modern Trend Is Planned

Excavation was started Friday for a new restaurant building in the 600 block, Baker street, by the A. H. Green Co. Ltd., on a contract obtained from Thomas Johnstone. The building permit covering the new structure is for $8000. W. F. Williams, of Nelson, well known for his preeminence in recent Canadian architectural competitions, is the designer.

Of particular interest to old timers is the fact that the new restaurant, which will embody up-to-date furnishings and which will be featured exteriorly by the modern trend in architecture, is on the site of Nelson's leading restaurant of some 30-odd years ago, the old "Star" at which many old-timers obtained their board.

A. H. Green company put a new truck-mounted gasoline shovel to work on the excavation Friday, making speedy progress as trucks hauled the material away, and attracting a large number of onlookers.

The building, 100 feet long, and 30 feet wide, will be of reinforced concrete. It is expected to be one of the most attractively designed in this section.

Arrangements have been made for a Chinese company to take over the restaurant when construction is complete.

Contributory Pensions to Replace C.P.R.'s Old System After Jan. 1

MONTREAL, Oct. 2 (CP).—Contributory pensions for Canadian Pacific railway employees will replace the railway's 33-year-old non-contributory system January 1, 1937.

Increasing cost of the present scheme brought about the change, Sir Edward Beatty, president and chairman of the board, declared in announcing the move. His statement appeared today in the "Canadian Pacific Staff Bulletin," house organ of the railway here.

Since the non-contributory plan's inception in 1903, the railway has paid out $18,201,640 in pensions. Continuance on the same basis, Sir Edward declared, would "eventually impose upon the company financial burdens which it would be unable to bear."

Under the new plan, officers and employees will contribute 3 per cent of earnings. Rates of pension will be practically unchanged, and the pensioning age will be the same as now.

"It is hoped that all those eligible will become contributors," Sir Edward declared in his statement. In an adjoining column of the "Bulletin," and explanatory article says that after December 31 all new employees who may become eligible for pensions will be required to become contributors.

GIRL SOFTBALL PLAYERS HAVE SOME EXCELLENT AVERAGES IN THE PLAY FOR WHOLE SEASON

The Toronto Star club holds the two top positions in the batting averages of the Nelson Girls' Softball league which finished its regular schedule on Sunday afternoon, and another Star is tied for second place with six of the first eight batters being Toronto Star club players, members of the Standard Cafe Aces holding the other two positions among the top eight. Hazel Spiers, considered by many as the outstanding player in Nelson, leads the batting averages with a mark of .563, holding a 26-point lead over his sister, Jean, who is in second place with a .537 average. Deannie Wallace, who is about the youngest player in the league is tied for third place with Isabel Donovan of the Aces, with a .516 average.

Deannie Wallace leads in total bases with 66, one more than Dot Postlethwaite and Hazel Spiers, two of her teammates who have 65 total bases.

Rosa Stewart, who has pitched all of the Gelinas Red Sox games, is fourth in total bases with 58. Although away down in the batting averages, Agnes Stewart is credited with 40 total bases. Pauline Stangherlin, although missing two or three of her team's league games, is the home run queen of the league with nine circuit clouts, Deannie Wallace, Pauline's teammate, being second with eight homers. Agnes Stewart, Hazel Spiers and Alice Gillett have each hit six home runs.

Dot Postlethwaite, who hit nine of her teams 18 three-baggers, had a big lead in this department, Helen Marapodi being second with three. Incidentally, Dot Postlethwaite's nine triples exceeds the total for any of the other four teams in the league. Deannie Wallace, Peggy Donaldson, and Hazel Spiers were tied for two-base hits with six each. Alvina Arlt was next with five doubles.

Hazel Spiers has a big edge on runs scored by individual players with 40 runs, Rosa Stewart, Deannie Wallace and Isabel Donovan are tied for second place with 33 runs each.

An unusual feature of the batting averages is the fact that Hazel Spiers, Rosa Stewart and Gertie Whitehead, all pitchers, are the leading batters of their respective teams, and Rita Weatherhead, chucker of the Trinity team, is second in batting for her club.

Several newcomers to the league are well up in the batting averages, replacing some of the older players.

Legend for both tables, listed below, is: W—won; L—lost; RF—runs for; RA—runs against; H—hits; 2B—two-base hits; 3B—three-base hits; HR—home runs; TB—total bases; TS—Toronto Stars; SA—Standard Aces; RS—Red Sox; P—Pirates; TYP—Trinity Young People.

Kaslo Softball Girls Due Later

Arrangements to bring the Kaslo girls' softball team to Nelson to play the local Toronto Star clubs on on Friday when final arrangements Sunday afternoon were cancelled were completed for the second game of the local girls final between the Toronto Star club and Gelinas Red Sox.

It was the original intention to have Hazel Spiers and a local catcher do the battery duty for Kaslo.

The Kaslo team will probably appear in Nelson at a later date.

Sees Air Force as War Deterrent

MARGATE, Kent, Oct. 2 (CP Cable).—Regional pacts within the League of Nations covenant would materially strengthen prospects for peace, Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, said tonight in a "keynote" speech to the Conservative conference here.

He declared the government's main purpose and desire was the preservation of peace and considered the Royal Air Force was the most formidable deterrent to war that could be devised.

"The board of trade deeply regrets to record the loss by death during the past month, of John A. Irving, who passed away on September 24, 1936. Mr. Irving was a member of the board for many years, and rendered valuable services, having held many positions, including that of president. His death is to be greatly deplored."

COAST BODIES SUGGEST STEPS ALREADY TAKEN

Mining Bureau Asks Board to Invite Crerar Here

ACTION TAKEN A MONTH BACK

Mining Paper Asks Board's Help on Securities

Two different coast institutions have in the last few days proposed to the Nelson board of trade courses of action on which it embarked long before these counsels came to hand. From the mining bureau of the Vancouver board of trade comes the suggestion that the board invite Hon. T. A. Crerar, Dominion minister of mines to visit Nelson when in British Columbia in October for the mining institutes while the Western Canada Mining News wishes the board to support the movement for a revision of the Securities act.

Writing from Vancouver Saturday, H. N. Fynn intimated the mining bureau's executive would like to learn of the possibility that "you may see fit to extend to Hon. T. A. Crerar an invitation to visit your district, either en route, or following his trip to the coast," pointed out that it was an unusual opportunity to have the minister become personally acquainted with the situation in the west, and suggested if the minister accepted, several of the bureau's members "might be interested to the extent of being present."

INITIATED EARLY AUGUST

Actually the board anticipated this suggestion by more than a month, the council deciding in mid-August to invite him here to be the board's guest and to make up the matter of accepting Kokanee Glacier park from the province as a national park. Secretary W. G. C. Lanskail wrote the minister on August 17, received the reply of his secretary, C. W. Jackson, near the end of August, and wrote again to the minister September 15, the letter following Mr. Crerar to Banff. The last communication Mr. Crerar answered from Banff September 24 as follows:

"Your letter 15th instant forwarded to me here. Appreciate very much your invitation to address your board of trade, but regret that owing to hurried trip and necessity of returning east after my meeting in Vancouver 19th it will not be possible for me to accept your invitation."

VETERAN IN SECURITIES FIGHT

The suggestion from the Western Canada Mining News that the board make representations regarding the Securities act, comes to the body that has led the fight on this matter ever since the act was first put on the statute-book, its latest representations having been made last spring just as the house was rising, and having to do with the inadequacy of the act as revised to effect its avowed objects of protecting the public and with the many obstacles it put in the way of new properties becoming financed.

A popular expression of opinion at the coming convention of the institute, the coast journal suggested, might exert great influence upon the action of the government, it being understood that the act was to be revised under the direction of Attorney General Sloan at the fall session of the house.

The council referred this letter to the committee on mining and natural resources.

FERNIE MUTUAL CHEER FUND IS THING OF PAST

Organization Active Since Depression

FERNIE, B.C.—A chapter in the Fernie program for meeting the emergency caused by the general economic depression closed Wednesday night with the dissolution of the Mutual Cheer and Relief committee. Back in 1931 when the onset of unemployment disrupted the incomes of many families and left them facing the winter with no means of meeting its rigors or even securing the ordinary comforts of life, a Christmas cheer committee was formed with the purpose of distributing hampers during the Christmas season. The response to the appeal for funds was so generous that a permanent organization was created to use the unexpended balance in assisting needy persons in the face of emergencies for which no government provision had been made This committee continued in existence until this week. From time to time the funds were replenished and many cases of distress, mostly cases of sickness, were alleviated. The committee followed a definite policy of not supplementing government relief as to have done so would have quickly exhausted the funds available and would have served to undermine the efforts of the government to establish a definite relief program.

While it cannot be said that conditions have noticeably improved the panic of four or five years ago has passed and it was felt that a seperate organization was no longer necessary. A public meeting was called for last Wednesday at which the small amount remaining was placed in the hands of Acting- Commissioner Connick as an emergency fund as long as it lasts, and the committee was disolved. During its existence it expended a total of $5749.38. If conditions during the coming winter should require special attention, a fresh movement will have to be launched.

BELLE McGAULEY GAINS RICH EXPERIENCE YEAR IN EUROPE; NEWSPAPERS VIVID FOR HER

Nelson Teacher Feels Bombing of Alcazar Is Utter Loss; Impressed With Feeling War Is Inevitable

By ERIC RAMSDEN

Her daily newspaper is a living, vibrant entity—when government troops explode tons of explosives beneath historic Alcazar fortress she sees the towers crumbling—when Britain's war apprehension is described, she feels the fear of the inevitable war that every days is evident among th British people—when news sweeps across the pages of the Irish sweepstakes, she sees the Emerald of Ireland and recalls the Irish pride in and love of horses—whether the story be of Germany, Italy,

MISS BELLE McGAULEY

Spain, France, Switzerland, Austria or Great Britain, it produces a mind picture for Miss Belle McGauley, who has returned to her duties on the teaching staff of the Nelson junior high school after a year in Scotland as an exchange teacher. She has had a rich experience.

As far as teaching was concerned, Miss McGauley felt that she had gained little in new ideas and methods for Scotland was not experimenting educationally as was this country. She did feel, however, that there was a great deal of value in the school excursions being undertaken by old country schools. The plan was for a teacher to go in advance of the school party, arranging accommodation and rates, and then for groups of pupils to be organized and travel to various points on the continent. This travelling was valuable educative experience for the pupils and materially helped them.

YOUTH HOSTEL MOVEMENT

Miss McGauley also found a good deal to impress her in the Youth Hostel movement. Throughout Britain and continental Europe hostels—places for night stopovers by travelling parties—were available to the youth of the land, providing inexpensive lodging. Somtimes huge houses formerly occupied by aristocrats were used as hostels, sometimes buildings were erected, but chiefly notable was the fact that they were numerous and that they provided accommodation within easy reach of everyone.

To learn more of the movement Miss McGauley obtained a membership ticket and travelled a Youth Hostel route from Scotland south into England. In the hostels she met young men and women from all over the world. Most of them were from European countries, but others came from countries east and west, north and south. Their evening discussions embraced an almost unlimited range of subjects. The number of young people travelling in this manner, hiking, cycling or by car, was continuously suprising to the Nelson teacher.

WAR INEVITABLE

Probably chief among her impressions—though impressions succeeded each other so that it was extremely difficult to select any one as a feature—was the feeling in Britain that war as inevitable and near.

"It was not a case of 'will there be war?' nor of 'when?' but rather 'has war broken out today?' War clouds seemed to be hanging over all, giving rise to a very real dread and a feeling of an inevitable outbreak," Miss McGauley declared.

This feeling of dread and of inevitable war was intensified not only in Britain but during her travels on the continent by increasing taxes for munitions and armaments and by the activity of industries furnishing the implements of war.

In Germany and Italy children were being trained for war, carrying rifles and equipment. In Germany there was a general feeling of suspicion as far as Great Britain was concerned, a feeling that Britain would first and foremost look after her own interests. In Spain there were armed guards on the trains—a foretaste of the revolution now flaming. In France the people were suspicious of their own government and apprehensive."

ON QUEEN MARY

The trip to Scotland, and teaching there, travel on the continent during the Christmas vacation, meeting Haile Selassie, short trips at every opportunity, and finally the return home on the Queen Mary on her record crossing of the Atlantic provided Miss McGauley with a succession of experiences as rich as they were numerous and impressing.

"The beauty of the countryside with its rolling green hills was probably my first impression on the 'other side'," said Miss McGauley when she was asked to describe some of the features of her year, "and rain, rain and more rain during almost all the time I was in England and Scotland. At least that's the way it seemed to me. London's low buildings and smoke, making it difficult to keep clean, provided a striking contrast with the wide, open streets of Paris and the smart shops.

"The English experiment with self-discipline in the schools was interesting but did not appear to be entirely successful as yet. They had grand travel facilities, however. We saw slums, and wondered how people could live in such filth and in such animal-like surroundings."

LIVING, WAGES LOWER

Taxes were higher than in this country, Miss McGauley said, but the cost of living was lower. Wages were much lower also.

"Incidentally, we met Haile Selassie, and that was quite a thrill," she added.

One of her chief impressions in Spain was the size of the meals—"never less than about eight courses, and at Christmas 16. We spent Christmas in Spain.

"Even then armed guards were patrolling the trains and the feeling of unrest which has since become open rebellion against the government made one apprehensive," she declared.

But this apprehension could not spoil her enjoyment of the "beautiful rolling miles of olive, orange and lemon groves," nor her appreciation of the splendid old Moorish palaces—the Alhambra at Granada and the Alcazar at Seville with their priceless plaster and wood work.

DESOLATION AND LOSS

"The story you had the other day," she told a Nelson Daily News reporter, "of the mining of Alcazar fortress by government troops, and the explosion of the mines in their attempt to drive out the rebels, made me feel that there had been a great loss, a desolation of something that was very fine and very precious."

Spain had many modern buildings, theatres, shops, coffee houses, open air cafes and so on, and the streets were crowded, especially in Madrid.

In Morrocco Miss McGauley heard the muezzins call "the faithful" to prayer, and contrasted the open and airy white quarters with the grimy native housing.

GERMANY HAPPY

"Germany gives an impression of happy prosperity, and both it and Italy were filled with tourists. The German people appear to think Hitler is sincere. They are grateful for what he has done and look to him for a hopeful future. They are carried away by his eloquence, and they share his attitude toward the Jews, feeling that the Jews were corrupting the morals of the country and that it is necessary to keep the race pure, to build up a pure, powerful German people. They look to Hitler to show them the way," averred Miss McGauley.

Switzerland and Austria were notable chiefly for their scenic beauty and the grandeur of the Alps, and for their "pleasant, cultural people."

Italians, it was evident, felt that "Mussolini has given them back their self-respect, and the feeling is so new to them that they err on the 'cocky' side. They were jubilant over the success of the Ethiopia campaign, and throughout the country returning soldiers were being acclaimed," she stated.

EXCAVATING POMPEII

Excavations at Pompeii were still going on, and Vesuvius, famed volcano, was sending its smoke into the air. Mussolini has done a great deal toward awakening his people to appreciation of their priceless works of art by making them attractive to tourists, Miss McGauley added. In Rome the colisseum and fora have been cleaned up and flood lights have been installed.

"Mussolini is highly respected, feared and loved," she declared. "He has inspired a national pride in ancient Rome and in the works of the old masters, and has built new monuments. He has given the people confidence, courage and energy in the building up of the army, navy and air force, and has developed splendid transportation by railway and highway. He has made harbors, he has drained marshes and built cities on them, and he has given them an overseas dominion. He has a 10-year plan for systematic, orderly and gradual development of Ethiopia."

CRYPTIC DESCRIPTION

Asked to describe the more famous cities in southern Europe, Miss McGauley was cryptic:

"Venice was unique but shopworn; too many tourists.

"Naples was very native.

"Florence has magnificent art treasures; and the people are indifferent to them, sleeping at the base of priceless statues while pigeons circle overhead.

"The Vatican is priceless.

"And as in Germany pictures of Hitler appeared everywhere, so Italy was plastered with pictures of Mussolini."

The beauty of the Riviera was among the chief impressions Miss McGauley obtained in France. Another was high prices, "more like ours," and another was the unsettled condition of the people, their suspicion of the government, the feeling that there had been "corruption in high places," and general dissatisfaction and unrest.

CAREFUL MONEY DEALS

"In Italy we had to be very careful with our money deals, such as getting change and so on. The people rang every coin on the pavement to see if it was good, and they had no compunction about handing us worthless money or cheating us in any way they could.

"The money question did not give us much trouble except in Britain, for the other countries used money similar to our—units of 100.

"Something else we noticed," Miss McGauley added, "was the facility, with languages of the educated people in Europe. On one occasion six of us, of different nationalities, were talking with a gentleman who spoke the language of each of us in turn as necessary, switching from one tongue to another without difficulty.

"We found a friendly feeling everywhere," she concluded.

RECIPES MENUS and HINTS

Good Housekeeping

By Mrs. Mary Morton

MENU HINT

Veal Steak Creamed Cabbage
Corn and Lima Beans
Lettuce, Green Pepper, Celery Salad
Baked Pears With Pineapple
Tea or Coffee

Veal steak may be breaded and either broiled or baked. Mother used to fry it in bacon fat, after she had fried bacon, and serve the two together. This is a very tasty way to cook veal, although I don't generally recommend fried meat. Use the seasonable fruits as much as possible in your menus. Time enough to use canned when winter comes and fresh fruits are scarce.

TODAY'S RECIPES

BAKED PEARS WITH PINEAPPLE—Peel and halve pears. Arrange in a flat baking dish. Sprinkle lightly with sugar and pour grated pineapple over all. Dot over with a bit of butter and bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees Fahrenheit, until pears are tender and pineapple is cooked down. Chill and serve topped with whipped cream in which has been folded macaroon crumbs.

The season's program, under the presidential leadership of Mrs. Lloyd Tegart, opened with a bridge party, held at the residence of Mrs. J. C. Pitts, who very kindly lent her home for the occasion. The affair proved enjoyably, and financially, successful.

This well-known and respected member of Vancouver's medical proffession had lived in Vancouver for over 30 years, coming from Kingston, Ont., in 1903. He was born in Kingston, and graduated from Queen's university there. Dr. Coy senior, gave valuable service in the Canadian Army Medical Corps during the war, at one time being attached to Lady Astor's hospital.

ANGLO-SAXON BIRTH RATE SHOWS ALARMING DECLINE

Addressing the British Association for the Advancement of Science at Blackpool recently, Commissioner David Lamb of the Salvation Army warned that the declining birth rate of British peoples threatens the future of the Empire. The commissioner's fears may have been stirred as much by the encouragement of a higher birth rate in nations which are potential enemies of Britain as by the decrease of births in the United Kingdom and the dominions. He no doubt noted that while Mussolini and Hitler are shaking their fists under their neighbors' noses they are also ordering, exhorting and bonusing large families at home. Of course it may seem paradoxical that in one breath they should be seeking larger populations while in the next they raise the cry for room in which to expand, but dictators are a law unto themselves and consistency is not one of their virtues.

However successful they may be in their crusade for larger populations, Commissioner Lamb had statistical warrant for his warning that the British birth rate has fallen alarmingly in the past half century. In England and Wales in the decade 1870-80 the per annum birth rate was 35.4 per 1000 of population. Since then it has fallen steadily until in 1933 it stood at only 14.4. In the same year Italy's birth rate stood at 23.7, Japan's at 31.6 and Russia's at 38.6. Germany's rate is approximately that of England's and actually .9 per thousand less than that of France. In the U.S. the rate is 16.6 per 1000 of population.

From these figures it will be seen that the peoples of European and Asiatic countries, Germany excepted, are multiplying much faster than Anglo-Saxons. Students of ethnology will probably agree with Commissioner Lamb that if continued long enough the present trend bodes ill for supremacy of the English-speaking races.

There is room for wide debate upon the causes of the decline in the birth rate in Britain and America. The war undoubtedly was a major cause in the United Kingdom. Economic pressure will be blamed, though this has only made itself felt in recent years where the rate was declining in prosperous times. War and the depression may explain fewer marriages but they do not give the reason for the decrease in the size of the family of today compared with the families of even a quarter of a century ago.

An explanation may be found in "the higher standard of living"—an inclusive phrase which involves not only the demand for more material comforts but also reflects the changed outlook on life which distinguishes today's generations from those of yesterday.

When Commissioner Lamb referred to the declining birth rate in the English-speaking races he touched upon a subject of the profoundest importance not only to the future of the Empire but of the world. The Anglo-Saxon peoples are practicing birth control in its fundamental sense on a wide scale while "lesser breeds without the law" are doing the very opposite.

WATER RUNS UP HILL

Rev. A. W. Douglas, Netheravon, Wilts, writing in the London Times, says:

The so-called "Electric Brae" lies on the coastal road from Maybole to Ayr. A car with its gears disengaged, stopped halfway down the hill, will, of its own accord, slowly move backward uphill. A little stream of water along the roadside is also apparently flowing uphill.

Imports of automobiles into Canada in August were valued at $337,000 compared with $193,000 a year ago. Imports from the United States were valued at $248,000 as against $173,000 and from the United Kingdom $52,000 as against $16,000. Automobile parts decreased distinctly from $934,000 a year ago to $819,000. There was an increase however in the parts from Great Britain. In all there were 365 cars from the United States and 82 from the United Kingdom and among these were four motor buses from the United States and one from the United Kingdom. There were 55 motorcycles from the United States and 38 from the United Kingdom.

DRUG STORE TREATMENT

They are telling a new story on George Fleury, local druggist. George went for a shave, it was rumored, for druggists need a shave now and then, and left the store in charge of a youthful assistant. No names mentioned.

This young man, being of a highly ingenious turn of mind, it was not without some inward trepidation that the chemist learned upon his return that the assistant had been confronted in the interval with the case of a man who had failed to get the better of an argument with a steam roller.

"What on earth did you do?" gasped the chemist.

"Gave him some nerve tonic," was the reply.

"Nerve tonic? Why that, in the name of goodness?"

"Run down and depressed," was the reply.

At last, darling.

You really must look at that sunset.

If you brake carefully, worn tires don't matter a bit.

. . . every inch of this road.

Look, here's the thousand just coming up.

Thanks, I can light my own—this car steers itself.

Quick, that's our corner.

I've ridden bikes for years and never had a light.

I love the early morning — the roads are so empty.

Anyway, the hand-brake's all right, I think.

FOND RECOLLECTIONS

Scenes of over a year ago were recalled yesterday when A. H. Green started a gasoline shovel on an excavation job on Baker street where a new restaurant building will rise. The burr of the shovel motor recalled excavation days at the Civic Centre about a year and a half ago. About this time last year the skating rink was being completed and interested Nelsonites were wondering what would be in store for the season. That is history now, but the roar of a gas shovel brings back happy memories.

ROUND ABOUT

And at the scene of the excavating many were gathered—Jim McKenzie remarked the machine was a peach—A. H. Green was superintending operations while Thomas Johnstone looked on—Numerous exclamations were heard—as always will be heard when a machine is at work—One chap remarked at the number of men who would be working were the machine not available—But so goes the world—And the other day I noticed T. Jerome out for a stroll—and Bill Waters was buying some cigarettes—Les Pickard took time to adjust the tobacco in his big crooked-stem pipe—Wilfrid Allan was having his new car checked over and was loading up with gasoline—J. B. Gray was absent in Trail—But was tickled at the showing made by his daughter in her R.N. exams—James O'Shea, K.C., was carrying a rather large satchel—Herb Harrop took in the lacrosse game at Rossland and Bill McKay was with him—they made a fast passage home—Phil Rahal and Jack Vivian were out for a stroll together—and I see Max DesBrisay is around again—he was doing his bit yesterday by leading a blind man down the street.

PARTNER GOT IT

At his best a real card player will read almost any situation, but be careful who partner is when you spring novel calls. If he has any confidence in your judgement any leading expert, unless he has a day off, will read correctly the original double which I first tried out on S. S. Lenz, many years ago. Next I used it with R. R. Richards of Detroit. Both these men correctly interpreted the situation. Of course the holdings justifying so odd a double rarely occur, perhaps once a year. The last man on whom I tried the call was Julian Goldman, in a recent duplicate game. The deal is given below.

North: ♠ Q ♥ A Q 10 7 3 ♦ 10 9 8 7 2 ♣ 8 5

West: ♠ A K 9 6 4 3 ♥ None ♦ A 5 ♣ 9 7 6 4 2

East: ♠ 5 ♥ J 8 5 4 ♦ K Q J 6 ♣ A K Q J

South: ♠ J 10 8 7 2 ♥ K 9 6 2 ♦ 4 3 ♣ 10 3

Bidding went: Goldman, sitting West, 1-Spade, second hand; North 2 Hearts; I, sitting East, double; South, pass. There was necessarily a considerable pause, while West thought it all over, as the call was one which might be taken in either of two ways.

North was not a man to make an overcall which could be murdered by a double, unless he had an out in another suit. I would not be fool enough to double a low bid which I could defeat badly unless also prepared to double and defeat a shift by the player doubled, or unless ready to support partner, provided he showed real strength by rebidding. The fact that I had doubled, instead of going no trumps, seemed as if I held few stops to hearts. The chances were that I had great strength in short minor suits, hoping that my partner could shift to one of them, or that North would shift and be doubled for something worth while.

Having thought the situation all over, and having taken into consideration the character of both the bidder who was doubled and the doubler, West bid 3 Clubs, as I had hoped he might do. I jumped the call to 5 Clubs. Then West went 6 Clubs. I dared bid no higher. There were many holdings worth a small slam that could not stand a grand slam.

The opening lead was the Ace of hearts. Declarer ruffed. Two rounds of trumps followed, picking up all adversely held clubs. Then came four rounds of diamonds. On the last two rounds declarer let go two spades from his hand.

That left declarer with two low spades and two trumps. Dummy held two hearts and two trumps. A straight cross-ruff alone was needed to yield a grand slam which neither of us would have been justified in bidding. Three trumps held by one defender might have proven awkward to handle properly, perhaps preventing the free run of four diamond tricks.

ADVANCE WEATHER BULLETIN

For western and central Canada, embracing British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Ontario.

Monday, Oct. 5, 1936—A disturbance, with some rain or snow, moves to southeast, leaving most of central and northwest clear. Temperatures slightly decling in west.

Tuesday, Oct. 6—Excepting some cloudy conditions and light precipitation in regions near great lakes of Manitoba, most of country clear and colder.

Wednesday, Oct. 7—Disturbance, carrying heavy clouds, some rain, snow flurries, blows up from west and southwest as temperatures decline in most sections.

Thursday, Oct. 8—A cold storm sweeps through from the west carrying rather heavy rains or snows to southeastern sections, but some clearing about the far northwest.

Friday, Oct. 9—Storm condition now reaches great lakes of Manitoba, becomes less intense and with less precipitation; clearing and colder in northwest.

Saturday, Oct. 10—Disturbed condition dwells in astern parts of central provinces and Manitoba, with decreasing rainfall and variable temperatures.

Sunday, Oct. 11—Cloudy conditions break up and precipitation becomes lighter as disturbed conditions drift on to southeast; cold in west, milder east.

Week October 5 to 11, 1936, in central provinces begins with a mild disturbance probably carrying some slight r. is or snows, but this soon tends to clear up as temperatures slowly decline. About mid week a rather heavy storm drifts in from southwest and this carries cold winds, rains and in some sections probably a few snow flurries. This continues to end of week but slowly becomes less intense and with less precipitation. In general this is indicated as cold, stormy week and in most sections more than normal precipitation.

Up to the middle of October the weather may be expected to be fairly mild for this time of year, but it is now about time for some of the cold storms of winter to set in and it seems about October 8 the first of them may come this season. When these disturbances set in at this time of year they usually take on the form of a very wide spread disturbance of slow movement, that is, they are no longer short spells or showers as in summer but more like a great blanket disturbance covering all the country, though perhaps unevenly on account of varying winds and general trend of storm movement. In many sections there may be some permanent or all winter snowfall.

THE DOCTOR SAYS

LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

PREVENTION OF DECAY IN TEETH

We discoursed yes.erday on mouth cleanliness and the use of the tooth brush. Such cautions may seem superfluous to some, but not when we ponder the announcement not long ago by a secretary of interior that four out of every five persons in our enlightened land do not brush their teeth.

Of course it must be admitted the most up-to-date views of the prevention of tooth decay emphasize the nutrition of the teeth rather than the tooth brush. That view is seen on the walls of most dentists' waiting rooms today, in the form of placards with the advice to eat plenty of milk, butter, eggs, green vegetables and fruits for the sake of teeth.

The experiments upon which this doctrine is based were done by an English woman, May Mellanby. They were begun in 1917 and still are being carried on. She worked on dogs, rabbits, rats and man, and concluded that "the problem of dental caries and periodontal disease (pyorrhea) is fundamentally a problem of nutrition," and that a lack of Vitamin D is an important causative factor. Howe reported that by feeding guinea pigs diets deficient in the fat-soluble vitamins and the anti-scurvy vitamin, changes in the teeth similar to dental caries in man was produced. Lack of phosphorus and calcium have also been reported to create a tendency to dental caries.

BEST CONTROLLED STUDY

There is evidently no one factor in diet responsible for the production of caries, either in experimental animals or man. Hanke has conducted probably the best controlled study in man: based on the impressions he had gained in private practice, he made extensive and carefully checked observations on the children at Moosehart, Illinois, the City of Childhood of the Loyal Order of Moose. He concluded that the most important dietary preventive to caries was orange juice and the juice of one lemon a day. This led to the disappearance of most of the gum inflammation and 50 per cent of the dental decay.

We need not follow any one school if we remember that good wholesome food, wwith plenty of milk, butter, eggs, fruits, tomatoes and green vegetables in childhood, is the diet not only for tooth health, but for general bodily health.

It would be unfortunate if we allowed these experiments in nutrition to let us neglect the tooth brush and mouth hygiene. It would seem to be a commonsence proposition that good teeth depend upon three things: (1) Adequate nutrition, (2) mouth cleanliness and (3) the aid of the dentist.

The dentist can do his part by making the teeth as regular as possible and leveling down the crags or bags which might catch food particles and breed germs. But in spite of all preventive measures, small areas of dental decay will occur, and these should be treated early.

Once more let me make a plea for the first permanent tooth. It is a molar and comes in at the back of the temporary teeth. It is liable to be mistaken by parents for one of the first set, and if it becomes decayed, neglected. More poor mouths are the result of this neglect than any other one thing.

YOM KIPPUR

The plaintive music of Kol Nidre ushered in Yom Kippur or the Day of Atonement, at sundown Friday, September 25. This holiday, the most solemn occasion in the Jewish year, is known as "The Great White Fast." Devout Jews abstain from all food and drink during these 24 hours and spend the day in the synagogue in prayer, meditation, and supplication for forgiveness.

From biblical days, when this holiday was the occasion for special sacrifices and prayers in the temple, Yom Kippur has carried with it an irresistible appeal for all Jews. It brings to a close the 10 days of penitence which began on the Jewish new year and its conclusion marks God's forgiveness for past sins and His blessing for the coming year.

This holy day is not founded upon an historical incident. Rather its appeal is direct and is made to the human heart and conscience. On this day each person must stand before his Maker seeking to repent for his wrongdoing and promising to walk the way of righteousness hereafter. Its emphasis is upon the necessity for personal communion with God so that human life may be made as nearly like the divine as possible. Its message is one of hope, for God's blessing is assured to those who show a genuine desire to return to the good life.

During the Atonement Day a special memorial service is held for those who have passed on, which adds much to the dignity and solemnity of the day.

STAMP CORNER

By JAMES MONTAGNES

Shown ABOVE are Canadian pictorial stamps featuring the Ottawa parliament buildings on the 1927 Diamond Jubilee stamp; pony express, dog team, railway, steamer and air methods of mail transportation on the special delivery of 1927 and the Fathers of Confederation on the 1927 commemorative. In the bottom row are United Empire Loyalists on a 1934 stamp, and a western harvesting scene with a train speeding by on the 1928 20 cent value.

Canada has issued a large number of pictorial stamps in the past ten years, stamps which have illustrated points of interest in the Dominion as well as historical events. Prior to 1927 the number of pictorial stamps were few, but with the Diamond Jubilee of Confederation issue the picture stamps started.

Among points of interest shown on stamps of the past ten years is the parliament buildings at Ottawa, on the 3-cent Diamond Jubilee stamp of 1927 and the $1 stamp of the 1928 issue; Mount Hurd in the Canadian Rockies on the 10-cent value and Quebec bridge on the 12-cent stamp of 1928. The citadel of Quebec where President Roosevelt visited recently is shown on the 12-cent 1930 stamp; the parliamentary library at Ottawa on the 10-cent 1930; the church at Grand Pre, Nova Scotia, and Mount Edith Cavell in the Rockies on the 50-cent and $1 in of the 1930 issues respectively.

Parliament Hill at Ottawa is shown to advantage on the postal congress 5-cent stamp of 1933. On the current stamps Niagara Falls is shown on the 20-cent value, the parliament buildings at Victoria, B. C. on the 50 cent, and Champlain Monument with Quebec harbor on the $1 value.

Historically the picture stamps since 1927 have shown the Fathers of Confederation on the 2-cent Diamond Jubilee stamp of 1927. This picture first appeared on the Golden Jubilee of Confederation in 1917 on a single 3-cent stamp. A map of Canada in its various stages of political development is included in the 1927 set. The Bluenose, fishing schooner of racing fame, is on the 50-cent 1928 issue. The S. S. Royal William, the first ship to cross the Atlantic under steam the entire way, was built in Canada. It appeared on a stamp in 1933, the centenary of its crossing. Jacques Cartier was remembered on a 1934 3-cent stamp showing him sighting what is now Quebec. The United Empire Loyalists came to Canada in 1784, and 150 years later a reproduction of a Hamilton, Ont., monument to these pioneers was shown on a 10-cent stamp. New Brunswick in 1934 celebrated 150 years as a colony and a stamp showing the province's seal was issued. Currently the 13-cent stamp shows the meeting in Charlottetown in 1864 when Confederation plans were started.

From an industrial standpoint Canada's main industry, agriculture, is shown on two stamps with harvesting scenes, the 20-cent values of the 1928 and 1930 issues. In addition to all these pictorials there have appeared stamps portraying Canadian statesmen, members of the Royal family, a pictorial allegory of the British Empire on the 13-cent Imperial conference stamp, the yacht Britannia, Windsor Castle, and five stages of transportation on the 1927 Confederation Commemorative Special Delivery. Canada has had its share of pictorial stamps, to which nearly all governments have now turned.

WHAT THE PRESS IS SAYING

MADE EVERYBODY'S MOUTH WATER

The main speech at the annual meeting of the National Trust was that of Mr. Vincent Massey, the Canadian high commissioner, who made everybody's mouth water with his account of Canada's 12,000 square miles of national parks. Three conditions are required of Canada's national parks.

Their scenery must be noble and beautiful, and this condition is not difficult to fulfil in a country which, as Mr. Massey put it, has not much history but a great deal of geography. They must afford public recreation, and last year 100,000 people visited one Manitoba park alone. They must assist the preservation of fauna and flora, and the buffalo, to take one instance, has been saved from extinction by being preserved in a park in Alberta.

A. H. GREEN COMPANY'S OFFICES AMONG MOST STRIKING IN CITY; MODERNISTIC DESIGN IS FEATURE

Color Combination Is Effective; Ship Suggestion

BEAUTY OF WOOD IS EMPHASIZED

Emphasizing modernistic design, the new office building of the A. H. Green Co. Ltd., Front street, is among the most striking of newer buildings in Nelson. W. F. Williams, architect, has given the building a distinctive appearance suggestive in some respects of the bridge of an ocean-going liner, and has achieved a result that commands attention. The color combination is gray with black striping at the sidewalk level with the main body of the building in white, red tile being used to break it and add distinction to the general appearance.

The interior of the Green company's offices contains some of the most beautiful natural wood work in the interior, veneer panels being employed in three of the offices. In the suite of rooms on the second storey veneer and insulation board has also been used effectively. The beauty of the wood has in each case been brought out and emphasized by using grained material and by bringing out the veining without artificially coloring the wood.

BIRCH VENEER MADE IN NELSON

Birch veneer, made by the B.C. Veneer Works at Nelson, has been used in the general office in panels, with a hard plaster ceiling, giving a bright and airy appearance. The use of Venetian blinds on the windows and of wood furniture in natural colors is effective. Entrance to the offices, sheltered by a marquee, has been given a red tile floor. The counter is made of natural birch, with birch and fumed oak inlays.

A. H. Green's office has been finished in Philipine mahogany veneer panels, also in natural color, and furnishings to match. The tiled fireplace is attractive.

Cottonwood veneer has been used in the blueprint room, and insulation board in the drafting room and bookkeeping room. Ceilings, except

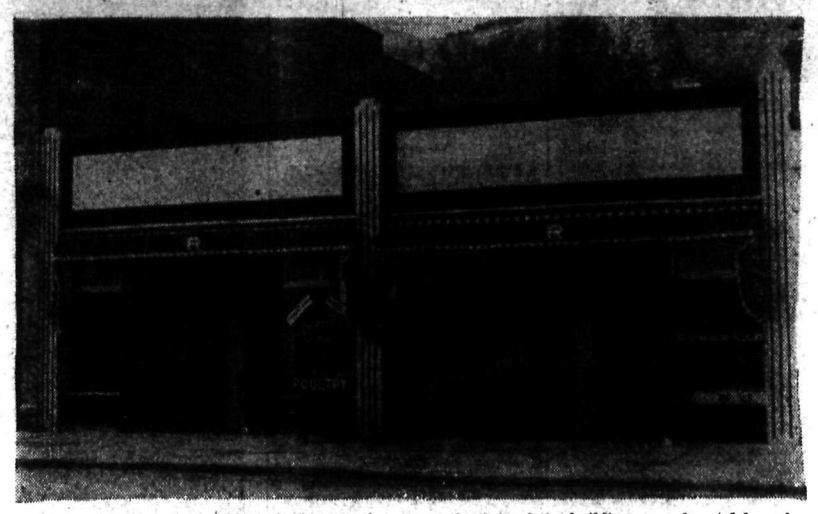
Home of Four Nelson Business Firms is Modern Structure



Accommodating four Nelson business enterprises, the Rutledge block, Baker street, built by Palmer Rutledge of Trail on designs by Lawrence Simpson of Nelson, incorporates a number of building features new in Nelson, including vitrolite on the face of the building, monel metal bars for show windows instead of copper, steel frame and hollow tile walls, painted concrete and so on. The block has been given an attractive appearance with the judicious use of color.

SEVERAL BUILDING FEATURES NEW TO NELSON INCORPORATED IN RUTLEDGE BUSINESS BLOCK

Steel Frame, Hollow Tile Make Strong, Light Structure

USE OF COLOR IS ATTRACTIVE

Incorporating several building features not previously used in Nelson, the Rutledge building, Baker street, is one of the new, modern and attractive business buildings of the city. It provides accommodation for four firms—Gardner-Denver company, mining machinery; Interior Fish & Poultry Market; H. H. Sutherland, jeweller; and the Robertson Realty company. There are living quarters at the rear of each, though not all of the tenants are using them. A large and well-lighted basement with doors which will open to provide an entrance 23 feet wide is another feature.

Use of color emphasizes the attractive appearance of the building. Vitrolite, new to Nelson, is the black glass-like material lending distinction to the block. Smooth finish concrete has been painted with cream waterproof paint, and monel metal has been used in place of copper in the show windows. The concrete rear of the building has been painted also, using the new paint, and gives an attractive rear usually lacking in business structures.

STEEL AND HOLLOW TILE FOR WALLS

Probably the feature of the building is the use of steel frame and hollow clay tile walls, giving the needed strength and at the same time providing a light structure with added heat and cold insulation. Another advantage of this type of structure was the speed with which the block was erected, the building being completed in a few days over a month. Erection of the steel frame enabled carpenters and other tradesmen to carry out their work

Nelson Takes Last Period 9-5 Win From Rossland as 2153 Fans Raise the Roof

DeVoin, Bailey Given Game Penalties as Sticks Swing

SCORE TIED REPEATEDLY

Nelson Dragging Until Late in the Third Canto

Coming from behind late in the third period, after dropping behind following a second period tie, Nelson evened the count at 3-3, twice saw Rossland go one goal up and twice tied it, then stepped out and drove on to a final 9-5 victory to the cheering of 2153 fans who jammed the civic centre arena. It was a new record for boxla, and the largest house on record for the arena except for the Kimberley-Prince Albert series last winter when the cash customers reached 2300 aided by a special train from Kimberley.

It was a bruising game, with Rossland emphasizing vicious swings on the Nelsonites but making most of them legal. At least, they were not penalized except when the swings were too high. Nelson men also got away with a number of high cross checks, but were hardly as free with them as the visitors.

The grand melee in the third period, out of which DeVoin of Nelson and Bailey of Rossland, as chief gladiators, drew game penalties, cautioned the boys at a time when they appeared likely to break out into open warfare, and penalties were fewer from that point on.

The Nelson victory tied up the series at two wins each, making a fifth game necessary.

MOURNING FOR BATHIE

The Rossland boys came on the floor wearing black mourning bands on their arms, a tribute to Harry A. Bathie, club executive member who died Thursday, and at the opening of the game the two teams lined up in mid-floor to pay a moment's silent tribute to him.

Rossland went out for goals and Gibbons had to save from Davies. Bonneville was chased before Nelson broke away. Walmsley rushed and as Egan clouted him over the head went through to score. At the other end Walmsley did the same to Horswill and was penalized, but Rossland went down, Davies passing to Ezart for Rossland's second counter. Bailey followed Walmsley in.

Clark hit Davies over the head and was sent off, Bonneville returning. Walmsley's swing around Atwell's head escaped notice. Marshall was chased for taking Ezart's pass in the creche. Rossland was pressing. Bailey checked Bonneville across the face and got away with it. He tired to pull a penalty for holding against Paterson but got only the fans' boos, and then shot the length of the rink into the bandstand.

Gedinski saved from Paterson in on the net, the Nelson man going down but getting up ready to scrap.

CARR COUNTERS

Carr got a pass and rushed to the Rossland net but failed to tally. He went up again, took Bailey's elbow on the chin, stumbled and cut across the net for a long shot that found the hemp.

There was no lack of speed but defences on both sides were tight. Bailey swung on Paterson, resenting Stewie's check across the arm, and both were sent off, Bailey for five and Paterson for two. They were no sooner in the box than they started going again, the police separating them.

Clark and Ogden were chased for getting too familiar during a Nelson attack. Paterson got back into it. Bailey being still off. Gibbons came out to block Forrest. Gedinski made a great save from Horswill Atwell, who poked Simms in the head as the latter ducked, was chased. Bailey came back to take a long pass and go down. Dalves was chased for roughing Carr.

With the count 2-1, the second quarter opened with Simcock drawing two minutes for slashing at DeVoin. Moving in on the short Rossland team, Nelson steadied down and out of it came a Paterson-Clark-DeVoin pass attack with Johnny tieing the game. Nelson was making plays but losing on passes at the Rossland end. DeVoin was chased, the refs missing Egan's cross check on Bailey.

ROSSLAND LEADS AGAIN

Simcock led a Rossland attack, passing to Forrest at the creche as the Nelson defence opened up, and Rossland went into the lead again. Bailey drew two for jab-checking Carr. Rossland was playing a lot to Ezart at the Nelson ends, but he was closely watched.

Davies got away with a clout at Carr. Shortly after he went down on his head as he tried to hurdle Vickers and had to go off. Rossland was given the ball Walmsley shot up to Couture, who was knocked galley west by Carr. Carr got two minutes and Couture a penalty shot that he missed. Simcock was sent off for spilling DeVoin with a cross check across the back.

Rossland pressed in and Gibbons had plenty to do.

Gibbons passed way up to Paterson and with only Bailey to beat he elected to go in alone, missing the net with DeVoin waiting at the creche. Couture, checked by Carr as the latter came out of the box, upended and spread-eagled, his game K.O. average.

Max DesBrisay, just a day out of hospital, slipped into the game and was given a great hand. He led an attack on his first play.

GEDINSKI STONEWALLS

Simms was chased for combing Cooper's hair and Nelson went in fast, piling up in front of the net in a great scramble. The boys went down again and Gedinski covered himself with glory. Davies came back and the Rossland defence tightened. Bishop was chased for getting affectionate with Bailey and Rossland moved up. Davies and DeVoin were chased when Davies checked Johnny at the Rossland end and Johnny didn't like it. Gibbons made a great save from Simms close in. Ogden boarded Atwell and was chased.

Walmsley started to argue about it and Atwell passed to Bonneville, who gave it to Paterson for a counter that meant the tieing score. Walmsley and Bailey started to argue again, Bailey motioning the team in. They were deep in the argument when half time sent both teams off.

Referee Thompson disallowed the score, since his whistle for the resumption of play had not been sounded. Rossland was warned it would have to play a man short for two minutes at the resumption for having had an extra man on the floor.

EGAN TIES UP GAME

Gedinski came out of his goal and half way up the floor, losing the ball. Egan picked it up, advanced and took a long one that Simcock, in the net for Gedinski, missed. Egan had tied the game. Egan was chased for charging Delich. Gibbons came out and Forrest wrapped his legs around him, holding him. Referee Thompson halted the play till Gibbons got back.

Intercepting Carr's pass to Vickers, Walmsley broke fast and passed to Davies who gave the Miners the lead again, 3-2. Davies clouted Vickers and was sent off, Egan returning. Horswill tied the game up with a solo and fake that fooled Forrest and made the score 3-3.

Gedinski made a fine save from Paterson on Horswill's pass close in. Bailey was marking the Nelson men closely and staying on defence, but he missed Stewie when Cooper robbed Walmsley and went up, passing to Paterson for the latter to count. Nelson had the lead for the first time, 5-4. Nelson drove down in a combination play with Cooper on the end of it. Cooper made his shot but was kayoed and had to go off, DesBrisay going on for him. It was pretty much up and down.

Clark was sent off for high-checking Bailey. Davies took vicious swings at Atwell but they were legal.

GRAND MELEE

Nelson's defence was wide open but Rossland failed to take advantage. DeVoin slashed at Gedinski as the latter came out for the ball, Bailey protesting, and then thumbing his nose at Johnny. DeVoin joined Egan in checking Bailey and the Rosslander took a wild swing at him. Johnny turned around, ready to exchange compliments, but the refs held them. DeVoin went to the box, Bailey refusing to leave the floor. Then as the argument warmed up, Bailey went for DeVoin from the floor with his stick, hitting Constable Ralph Robinson over the head. DeVoin was held as he tried to retaliate. Bailey took a punch at Sergeant Robert Harshaw, and hit Judge of Play "Curly" Wheatley, but was finally quieted and left. Walmsley scored during the early stages of it, but it was not allowed.

Bailey and DeVoin each went off for the rest of the game.

Davies was given a penalty for cutting down Atwell.

DesBrisay and Marshall were in the box for 10 minutes on the Bailey-DeVoin game penalties at the opening of the final stanza. Davies served a few seconds of his last third period penalty at the start.

ROSSLAND TIES IT

Couture broke through but Gibbons robbed him. Gedinski robbed Vickers at the other end. Davies went right through to tally, making the count five all. Simcock was sent off for scraping Egan's ear on a check. Gedinski took Egan's shot on the head to clear.

Davies made a long pass to Ezart, but Gibbons blocked it. Gedinski came out, charging Bishop and saving. Clark was sent off during a Rossland attack for high sticking.

With Ezart's stick across his neck, Bishop broke away as Ref Thompson penalized the Rosslander, and scored, Nelson going into the lead 6-5. Simcock charged Horswill in the back, spilling him, but stayed on. Nelson was playing up, with Gibbons calling for aid.

Nelson laid down a hot attack and Simcock went off for tangling with Bonneville. Davies swung on Egan's helmet and the refs broke it up as Pat looked for fisticuffs, Davies going off. In the tangle Clark took DesBrisay's pass from the corner and tallied. Marshall was chased for going into the Nelson creche and DesBrisay for going into the Rossland creche. Carr drew two.

THE FINAL TALLIES

Vickers broke ahead of Bishop and took his pass to counter, making it 8-5. Gibbons came out to take Walmsley's pass off the end of Couture's stick. The play was from one end to another with hardly a break.

As the game quietened Clark laid down a long one to Egan, loafing at the Rossland net, and Pat made it 9-5. Rossland was finding it tough to protect Gedinski as Nelson pressed at the close.

Kress to Be With Mack's Team

Washington Shortstop Will Play With All-Stars

Ralph Kress of Washington, considered the best utility player in the American league, will be with the visiting team when Earl Mack brings his all-star team to Nelson next week to meet the Kootenay All-Stars, managed by Hank Lauriente of Trail.

Kress, staging a great comeback, has been playing shortstop for the fast stepping Washington Senators. He is one of the best-liked men in baseball, always affable, willing to help where he is needed, a dangerous hitter and a fine influence on any club. This year was his tenth in the major leagues.

BRING IN 500 BY EXCURSIONS IN SEPTEMBER

Tourist Committee Recommends All Season 1937

ALSO CONTINUING THE BROADCASTS

Over 300 Pictures Are Submitted in Contest

That the Canadian Pacific bargain excursions from the prairie to this district fron. September 3 to 23 brought 400 passengers into West Kootenay, and the same company's cent-a-mile excursion from the coast brought the total up to approximately 500, was reported to the board of trade council Thursday by the tourist and publicity committee. The report, presented by Chairman H. A. Pearson, stated agents of both excursions, and that the committee recommended that the board ask both the companies to run similar excursions next year in blossom time, and during the months of July, August and September.

The council, by adopting the report, concurred in this recommendation to the board.

Respecting broadcasts by the board over radio station CJAT at Trail, the report showed three more dates arranged for this year: October 13, Rev. C. Reed of Rossland, introduced by C. W. Tyler, giving "Impressions of England in 1936"; November 10, Old-Timers Night, to be arranged by Eric Ramsden; and December 15, Ven. Archdeacon Fred H. Graham giving a message of Good Will. The committee recommended continuation of the same plan in 1937, which the courtesy of CJAT had made possible, and suggested suitable recognition of that station's good offices.

Appointment of Archdeacon Graham to be a third judge in the picture contest, in which over 300 pictures had been submitted for possible use in the next edition of "Nelson and the Kootenays," was reported.

Cost of the new book, the committee estimated at $1800, with $300 on hand in the special publicity fund, leaving $1500 to be financed, and it reported it had left this matter in the hands of the original special committee for further action.

The committee reported writing the Union Oil company and expressing appreciation of its action in taking a series of moving pictures of this district which would be widely shown, a fact brought to its attention by W. K. Clark.

It also commented on the increase in traffic for August on the Nelson, Castlegar and main lake ferries, over a year ago, as reported in The Nelson Daily News.

Referring to all the varied means of publicity for the district—book, broadcasts, films, excursions, advertising and others—Chairman Pearson said that no one of them alone was sufficient for the purpose, but all together they had a substantial and gratifying result.

Boxla Series to Wind Up Trail

Fifth game of the West Kootenay boxla series will be played at Trail Monday night, Rossland and Nelson thus both playing on a neutral floor, an inovation in Kootenay championship final series.

Nelson Hockey club is arranging a special train for the game, and it is understood a large block of seats has been reserved.

Efforts are being made to arrange for a coast referee to take charge of the fifth and final game. The proposal has been advanced in an effort to find a solution to the refereeing problem that will put an end to outcries on the parts of players and fans alike.

Trail Midgets Down Panthers

Better Finish Gives Visitors a 4-1 Victory

Backed up by a smart display of goaltending by Russell Deans, the Trail midget boxla squad showed more finish around the net, to defeat the Nelson Panthers 4-1, in a close and hard checking exhibition game played as a preliminary to the Nelson-Rossland senior playoff game at the Civic Centre arena Friday evening.

Bobby Kendall scored all four of the visitors' goals, with Tognotti and Murdock getting assists. Albert Arnott scored the Panthers' lone score in the opening session.

Twenty-five minutes in penalties were handed out, with the Panthers spending 18 minutes with the penalty timekeeper.

PANTHERS MORE CHANCES

The Panthers had more scoring chances than the Trail team, but lacked finish and in addition were repeatedly robbed by Deans. Bolano and Murdock showed up well on defence for the winners, but Murdock twice lost his head by high slashing that might have resulted in serious injury.

Victor DelPuppo, Howie Breeze, Allan Emmott and Art Guscott were the pick of the losers.

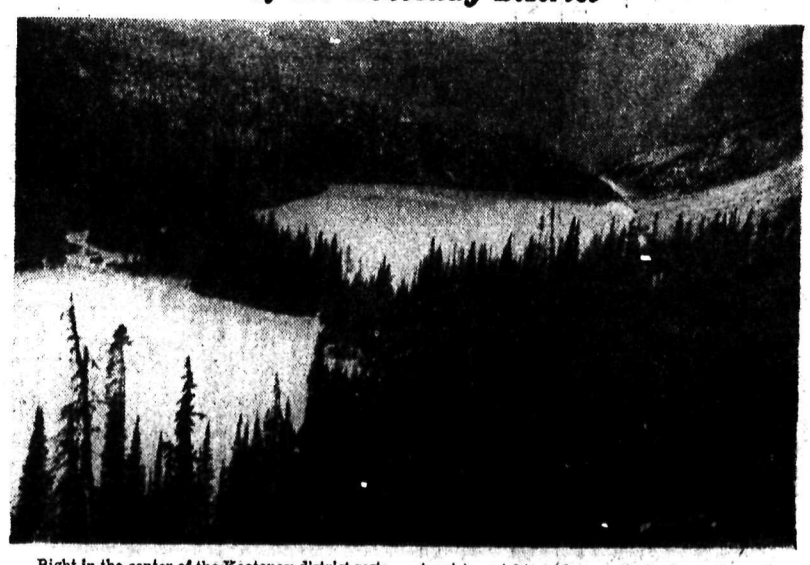
Creston is all organized for the coming basketball season, officers of the league having been chosen and steps taken toward getting teams lined up.

Officers for the coming season are: E. Marriott, president, reelected; F. Staples, vice-president; F. Hurford, secretary; Dorothy Olivier, treasurer and W. Marchbank, executive member.

Players of all teams are to be registered by October 10. In the event that Canyon and Wynndel have teams, intertown senior and intermediate series in the men's division will be arranged.

Ben Crawford heads the referee's board.

In the Heart of a Beauty Spot in the Heart of the Kootenay District



Right in the center of the Kootenay district rests one of the most beautiful park lands in the province of British Columbia. It is Kokanee Glacier park. Above are two pearls resting in a beautiful natural setting. This is Joker lake. At present Kokanee park can be approached from Kaslo or from Molly Gibson landing and efforts are being made to develop this wonderful parkland so that tourists might make a circle tour through it. Development of Kokanee with its glaciers, its ragged peaks, its picturesque lakes, its many trails and other features would be a great asset to the district as far as tourists are concerned visitors to the area have stated this summer.—Photo by Harry Stevens.

KEEP HAND OFF ALBERTA BOARD ADVISES EAST

Is Against Chamber Entering Debt Argument

COUNCIL BOOSTS PRINCETON ROAD

Learmonth Reviews Bus Service in Kootenay

Advice of the Nelson board of trade council Thursday to the executive of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, of which the Nelson board is a member, is to stay completely out of the Alberta situation.

The Chamber issued a circular letter to all the members throughout Canada asking whether it should not issue a statement on the dangerous tendencies of the Alberta provincial legislation on debts, which clearly prejudiced the credit both of the Dominion and of all the provinces.

In its circular letter the executive recognized "that the Chamber should hold itself aloof from matters of purely provincial concern," but expressed the opinion that the wide ramifications of the debt legislations gave it a national character.

C. F. McHardy was the only member of the council to favor the Chamber issuing its proposed statement, his opinion being that the matter was of great importance and called for action by the Dominion body.

ALIBI FOR ABERHART

General opinion of the members, however, was that the Aberhart government was headed toward the rocks; that however much the other provinces might feel interested they should maintain a policy of "hands off"; that any interference, even in a matter that affected the credit of the whole country, would only provide the political party in control of Alberta with a welcome alibi; and that all the Alberta government needed was plenty of rope to hang itself. J. A. McDonald in this connection stated that he spent three days in Calgary last week, and of all the men whom he came in contact with, only one figured Aberhart was right.

Another letter from M. McL. Clark, secretary of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, in reference to fire prevention week, was referred to Fire Chief M. H. Maloney, who always arranges an active program of observance in Nelson.

A resolution from the Penticton board of trade, asking the provincial minister of public works to put the Hope-Princeton link on his program for completion in 1937, was recommended to the board for endorsement.

CEMETERY ROAD

Mr. McHardy raised the matter of the bad condition of Cemetery road outside the city limits, and was decided to draw this to the attention of Engineer O. C. Gallaher, of the department of public works.

John Learmonth, manager of the Central Canadian Greyhound lines here, gave the council the various factors in the Nakusp-Nelson bus service, outlined some of his plans for next year, and generally dealt with through bus schedules.

He was formally thanked for his comprehensive statement, and assured of the board's help in regard to ferry service if he should call for it.

President W. B. Bamford was in the chair.

Suspended Gripich at Trail, Nelsonite Points Out

Action of "Ace" Bailey, Rossland defenceman, in striking Referee "Curly" Wheatly of Trail during the melee at Friday night's boxla game at the Civic arena will be pressed by Jack Aldridge, commissioner for Nelson. It is understood that no report was made to the league executive, of which Frank Coates of Rossland is president, immediately following the game, and whether a report would be presented by either Referee-in-Chief Brian Thompson, also of Trail, or by Wheatley, was not known. Coach Murray Clark of Nelson asked for action by the league.

"I am going to ask for a meeting before the final game Monday night," Commissioner Aldridge stated late Friday night, "and I am going to demand action from President Coates just as I demanded it in the rink at the time of the fracas.

"Acting as a timekeeper, President Coates was almost in the midst of the melee and must have seen what happened himself. He gave Alex Gripich of Trail a game suspension for striking a referee, and I intend to ask him flatly what he intends to do in this case. Bailey's attitude toward the policeman also warrants action.

"At the coast the cases of persistent offenders against the rules automatically come before the commission, whether a report is made or not. If we as commissioners are to retain any authorities and respect not only from players but also from fans, we must act and at once."

Yanks Lambaste Five Giant Pitchers, Smash Records, to Score Hectic 18-4 Victory

Lazzeri Sets New Record by Batting in Five Runs But Dickey Equals It; Sand-Lot Game Evens Series at One Each

TOTAL OF 22 RUNS RECORD FOR A SINGLE WORLD SERIES BATTLE

NEW YORK, Oct. 2 (AP). — World series skies cleared today in New York's baseball civil war but there was another deluge just the same at the polo grounds.

Instead of the rainfall it took the form of a Yankee windfall. On the diamond that was swept by showers for two previous days, the American league champions turned on a downpour of base-hits that swamped the Giants by the record-smashing score of 18 to 4.

President Roosevelt, interrupting his campaign, to see his first world series game since 1933, was among the 43,543 fans who saw the Yankees emerge with a resounding roar from their hitting slump, batter five opposing pitchers, and coast to victory behind the erratic flinging of Vernon (Lefty) Gomez.

SCHUMACHER OUT IN THIRD

Clubbing their way back to even terms at one-all in the subway scramble for baseball's biggest money honors, the Yankees knocked Hal Schumacher from the box in the midst of a seven-run outburst in the third inning and continued a desultory attack that was climaxed in the ninth by a six-run drive off Harry Gumbert, the luckless fifth flinger for the home team.

This concluding blast in a game that dragged through two hours and 49 minutes, the longest in world series history, crowned one of the greatest record-breaking sprees ever witnessed in championship competition. With an attack reminiscent of the palmiest days of Babe Ruth and company, the stream-lined 1936 Yankees broke or tied a flock of world series marks.

HOMER, BASES FULL

Gallant Anthony Michael Lazzeri, the veteran second sacker who was supposed to be near the end of the playing trail, contributed the biggest wallop to the record books by belting a home run with the bases full in the third inning, off the relief flinging of right-handed Dick Coffman.

Besides duplicating an achievement recorded only once before in series annals—by Elmer Smith of Cleveland against Brooklyn in 1920—Lazzeri drove home a fifth run with a long fly in the seventh inning, thereby wiping out a mark for runs-batted-in that he had shared with Babe Ruth and six other world series batsmen.

Not even this record stood alone for long, however. Catcher Bill Dickey came through with a ninth inning homer, with two men on, that tied him with Lazzeri for the new record of five-runs-batted-in during a single series game.

GREATEST IN HISTORY

Dickey's smash ended the greatest ninth inning scoring outburst in series history and helped put the Yankees far out in front of any previous run-making records since the big leagues began to wage their world series warfare 33 years ago.

The current National league champions, by tallying four times with the aid of Gomez's wildness, helped set a new total of 22 runs for a single series game.

By and large, it was a sandlot ball game that needed nothing so much as a keg of beer near each base to make it look like the tussle between the married men and the single men at their annual frolic.

The upshot of all the firing made it clear the Giants still have one great pitcher, Carl Hubbell, who may have to do double duty if the National league champions hope to check the flood-tide of Yankee base-hits.

PRESIDENT TOSSES BALL

President Roosevelt arrived about 15 minutes before the game started, waved to the crowd as he was driven to his box, near the Giant's dugout, and tossed out a ball for the benefit of the cameraman. The president and his party remained to the finish of the record-breaking melee, but thousands of other fans departed before the windup.

Pam Barton and Mrs. Crews Go Into Golf Final

SUMMIT, N.J., Oct. 2 (AP). — Shades of Dorothy Campbell and Gladys Ravenscroft fell ominously over the Canoe Brook Country club's spongey links today as plump Pamela Barton, reigning British titleholder, and Maureen Orcutt Crews of Englewood, N.J., advanced to the 36-hole final of the United States women's golf championship, to be played tomorrow.

The pair comprises the first international final since 1913 when Miss Ravenscroft came over from England and beat Marion Hollins in the final. Previously, the present Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd left Scotland's moors to win the title in 1909 and 1910.

Miss Barton eliminated 22-year-old Marion Miley of Lexington, Ky., 3 and 1.

Mrs. Crews advanced to her second final in 11 years of trying at the expense of Kathryn Hamphill, the surprise package from Columbia, S.C. Mrs. Crews won 4 and 2.

EDMONTON GIRL AT SERIES GETS FREE PUBLICITY

Journeys Farthest to Boo Those "Damn Yankees"

NEW YORK, Oct. 2 (CP).—Her bid for fame, as the fanette journeying the longest distance to attend the world series, today was made practically unanimous for Miss Gwen Clarke of Edmonton, by this baseball-mad town's populace.

Miss Clarke came 3000 miles to root for the Giants. She is the daughter and secretary of Joseph A. Clarke, mayor of Edmonton.

Miss Clarke knows more about big league baseball than most persons. She studies the box scores and can reel off batting averages and things like that even though she never saw a big league game until Wednesday, when her Giants beat the Yanks.

"Dad was in the east five or six years ago," said Miss Clarke. "He was here for 15 days and he saw 13 baseball games. He likes it almost as well as I do. By the way, in the first game, I think those damn Yankees made four errors instead of two that time when we scored twice."

Miss Clarke wasn't talking for publication after those "damn Yankees" shelled the Giants for an 18-4 triumph today.

in the general office, also are of insulation board.

In addition to the suite of rooms on the second storey, considerable space is also available for lumber storage. The suite consists of three rooms.

LARGE SPACE FOR STORAGE OF SUPPLIES

The offices were built at the front of the company's storage building and sash and door factory, the entire plant forming an L-shaped structure. Immediately at the rear of the offices is the storage section, the width of the offices and extending to the Canadian Pacific railway track at the rear. It provides space for storing lumber, brick, plaster, cement, veneer, glass and other building supplies.

East of the offices is the factory, where 20 or more machines provide the means of manufacturing "almost anything" in the line of woodwork. This machinery includes: Four-side planer and matcher, wood turning lathe, a large bandsaw and a scroll bandsaw, rip saw, surfacing planer, jointer, drill press, combination saw, chain mortiser, chisel mortiser, two tenoning machines, sash moulder, cutting up saw, shaper, belt sander, mitreing machine, knife grinders, a sash and door clamp, and so on. A large fan and a system of galvanized pipes keeps the factory clear of chips and shavings from the various operations.

Open space at the rear is used for storing heavy machinery, trucks and so on.

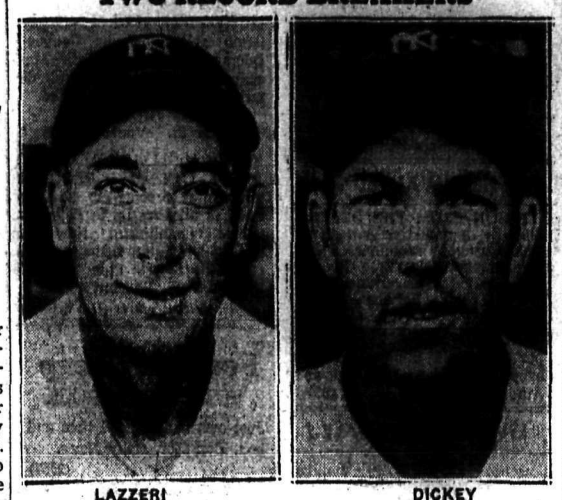
TWO RECORD BREAKERS



LAZZERI — DICKEY

While every Yank got a hit and scored at least once, thereby setting a world series record as the Yankees romped to a record-breaking 18-4 victory over the Giants in the second game of the 1936 series yesterday, Tony Lazzeri, above left and Bill Dickey, right, shared an individual record by driving in five runs in one game. Lazzeri, by driving four runs in one inning, equalled a record, also.

Roof of the building, built up of alternate layers of asphalt and felt, is guaranteed for 15 years.

The big basement, 50 by 60 by 10 feet, is broken only by a few steel columns and is well lighted, the wall and doors facing on the lane being almost all glass. The concrete floor and steel and tile walls make it fireproof.

A. H. Green Co. Ltd had the contract for the building, Palmer Rutledge of Trail being the owner. Designs were by Lawrence Simpson.

Stan Leonard, another star of Vancouver's amateur golfers and a Willingdon cup player, finished in second place with a total of 278. He shot a 69 in the morning round and a 66 in the afternoon, adding 135 to his 143 score of yesterday.

Two Vancouver professionals, Don Sutherland and Ben Colk, were tied for third place with 281 each.

WHEBELL WINS BLAYLOCK BOWL

KIMBERLEY, B.C.—The Blaylock bowl, in the first year of competition, was won by Ralph Whebell of McDougall club. The game that decided was a tough fight straight through between Whebell's rink and Harry Pearson's of the Camp. The score was 14-9. The two rinks were: McDougall—R. Whebell, G. Graham, K. Davies and H. Thomason. Camp—H. Pearson, McLellan, Eccleston and Carter. The game was played on Saturday evening at Camp.

On Sunday afternoon the Chapman Camp club made another try for the Brewery shield at the McDougall lawns but the McDougall rinks, skipped by R. Whebell and J. McNicholas won over the Camp rinks, skipped by J. Pearson and Bill Leaman by four points.

PATRICK SCHOOL STARTS MONDAY

WINNIPEG, Oct. 2 (CP).—Even in the thick of the scramble for prospective professionals from the top of Canada's amateur hockey pool, Lester Patrick, dean of New York Rangers, today announced 38 players will arrive here this week-end to attend his third annual hockey training school, opening Monday.

Although many western Canadians have gone overseas to play in European amateur circuits and possibly others are booked for tryouts with the seven remaining National Hockey league teams, the school's register is top-heavy with westerners, Patrick stated.

Lester Patrick's Hockey School Produces Money-ranking Players

First Class in 1934 Had 20 Students; 10 Went Pro, Two Went to England and Three Joined Patrick's Amateurs

(Following is the second of a series of three stories dealing with New York Rangers' training camp activities, organization and development of the training school).

By MARSHALL BATEMAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

WINNIPEG, Sept. 27 (CP).—The term "Old Men of Manhattan" is a misnomer where the management of New York Rangers of the National hockey league is concerned. For Lester Patrick, silver-haired maestro of that metropolitan club, has a steady flow of talent, bordering on professional hockey calibre, passing through his training school each year.

Believed the first established advanced hockey school, New York Rangers Professional club inaugurated classes here in 1934 with 20 students. Patrick selects the pupils from among hundreds of junior and senior amateur players with a view to developing them for one of the three teams under his supervision.

From an enrollment of 20 at the start, 10 become money-ranking players, two sought careers in England and three moved into the United States to play with Patrick's newest team, New York Rovers in the United States Eastern Amateur league.

EIGHT JOIN RANGER GROUP

Eight of the 10 professionals signed with New York Rangers or their farm team, Philadelphia Ramblers, in the Canadian-American circuit. Lynn Patrick, Lester's eldest son, and Bert Connolly, former Moncton Hawk luminary, have completed two seasons in the N. H. L. "Mac" and Neil Colville of Edmonton, "Babe" Pratt, Alec Shibicki and Joe Cooper of Winnipeg, and Bert Gardiner of Saskatoon wore Rambler uniforms part time and Ranger suits in a merry shuffle between the two teams last season.

Ray Getliffe, Stratford, Ont., winger, played with Boston Cubs and Bruins in 1935-36. Jack Church, a Reginan, has signed with Toronto Maple Leafs while Don Metz of Wilcox, Sask., remains on that team's negotation list. Earl Nicholson, ex-Saskatoon star, played with Harringay club in England and Joe Brown of Edmonton has joined Percy Nicklin's Earl Court Rangers, another entrant in the British circuit.

In the off-season period the master strategist has travelled thousands of miles, "sizing-up" the flock of budding hopefuls from which he selects his pupils. The training, he states, fits the prospective professional with a knowledge of hockey in the upper strata that otherwise would be gained only after a long struggle in minor ranks.

Students are taught to increase their repertoire of plays and to correct wrong methods of executing plays. The system, Patrick claims, protects the student by not signing him before he is "ripe" for professional company.

A grounding in fundamentals includes instruction on changing pace, when to make a pass, elevation of shots, how to lay a pass, how to make heads work feet rather than the opposite, blind stick handling, stamina tests and forward line drills.

Patrick will have two assistants to help him when the third school assembles. Herb Gardiner, Ramblers' manager, and Bill Cook, veteran Ranger play-maker, will be the vice-professors.

(The last of this series appears tomorrow.)

Love isn't Important

By LOUISE JERROLD

COPYRIGHT L. C. PAGE & CO., INC.; RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER 44

Unconsciously, Gay shivered in spite of the furnace-like heat of the flat, as she re-read Christian Scott's proposal:

"My Dear Gay:

After long and earnest deliberation on my part for the welfare and happiness of both of us, I have decided to ask you to do me the honor of becoming my wife.

I realize the disparity in our ages, but trust that other considerations will ofset that disadvantage. Besides, a man is only as old as he feels, so the saying goes, and I am in prime mental and physical condition.

During some delightful evenings in your company, I have satisfied myself that we have many tastes in common—books, friends, travel.

Busines and family duties have given me little leisure before, but as you already know, with Elizabeth's marriage, I now have time for the trip around the world the world that I have always planned for a well-earned vacation. I can think of no more enjoyable companion for that journey and above all, the journey together through life, than yourself, my dear Gay.

As you may have discovered, sentimental in some respects. If you accept my humble self, will you wear a corsage of my favorite white roses and forget-me-nots, at Mark Vances Exhibition?

I am iformed that the yacht will return us in time for that interesting event.

CHRISTIAN SCOTT."

When Gay slid into her seat in the coupe, Mark started away instantly. His eyes on the congestion of traffic ahead, he asked lightly, "Inherit a fortune or get a proposal?"

Gay shot him a startled glance. "Whatever made you ask that?"

He laughed. "We artists are psyhic, if you know what I mean. We have a sixth-sense!"

He said no more, and Gay was glad of the friendly silence that fell between them. It lasted, for the most part, during the simple but excellent dinner in a small Italian restaurant tucked away, two flights up, in what had once been a dignified residence on East Grand boulevard.

In the swift drive across the Belle Isle bridge, Mark broke the silence only to exclaim his appreciation of the beauty of the lights and shadows on the river. When he had parked the car at the head of the island for the necesary interval before their swim, and Gay, dreamy-eyed, was watching a huge freighter move placidly down the river, Mark broke into speech with startling unexpectedness.

He spoke of Charlotte. How he, on the very bottom rung of the ladder of art, had met her at an ultra-exclusive Long Island house party, given by a college friend. She was an heiress; popular debutante. He was an outsider, asked at the last moment, to fill in.

A case of love at first sight with the artist and the society girl, just like a romance from the 'Metropolis" magazine. Mark made the quick, queer twist of his mouth that always made Gay smile, and rambled on. A whirlwind courtship, with plenty of family opposition, and a crazy boy-and-girl elopement. But had either of them ever regretted it, even for an instant? No, by the Lord!

Mark expelled a deep lungful of air. He'd tell the cock-eyed world it was one swell marriage. And why? The answer was as plain as the nose on your face.

Because Charlotte played the game like the wonderful sport she was! She had married a struggling artist, as she had made herself over, from a rich man's daughter, and a society girl, into a struggling artist's wife. They'd practically starved, in Paris, the first two years. But never a whimper. Never any belly-aching. She had faith in him—believed he was, well, a genius. He wasn't quite ass enough to think that, himself. But it was up to him not to disappoint her altogether and by the good Lord Harry, suddenly he realized she'd been giving excellent advice all along, pointing a way he'd had been too dumb to follow.

He had one great big chance, right here in Detroit, with its many powerful, self-made men and their ambitious wives. New York was overrun with portrait painters. He was going to do his stuff right here and now. Make Charlotte proud of him and all that.

"Don't you see, Gay," his eyes were shining with earnestness, "this marriage business is a fifty-fifty proposition. You can't go into it, expecting to take, and not give."

Gay drew a sharp breath, and gave him a side-long glance. Could he with that boasted sixth-sense of his, know that Christian's letter of proposal was tucked inside her blouse? Then she smiled at herself. How could Mark even dream that she was seriously considering marrying the Scott millions.

"There's only one way to be happy though married." Mark banged his fist on the steering wheel. "That's to give your best to each other," his loud laughter startled a bird in a nearby tree into a ball of sleepy protest. "I'm so glad Charlotte'll be home soon I can hardly see straight. And oh boy, won't she get a welcome!"

Gay, too, welcomed Charlotte's return with pleasure and relief. She was genuinely glad to see Mrs. Vance again, and relieved to turn over to her both the responsibilty of Mark—who in his frenzy of work presisted in ignoring food and sleep—and the task of beautifying the studio for the all-important afternoon.

Mark had asked Gay to wear the blue satin gown he had painted in the portrait, and on the afternoon of the exhibition when she dashed into her flat, she found that Jean before her own hurried exit, had spread out on the bed the blue dress, accessories, and an exquisite corsage of orchids from Charlotte and Mark Vance.

"An embarrassment of riches!" Gay smiled to herself, with a glance at an open florist's box on the dresser, wherein reposed Christian's offering; the white roses and forget-me-nots.

Which to wear? She held Christian's flowers against her dress, shut her eyes with a shiver, and replaced them in their silver-striped box.

"At any rate, I'll take them with me," she thought, and pinning on the corsage of orchids, with the silver-striped box under her arm, ran down to the Vance's Cadillac, which had been sent for her.

A feeling of shyness overcame Gay, when she stood on the threshold of the studio. Already it was crowded—she saw faces she knew, and many she had never seen before. A fashionable, discreetly chattering throng.

Though she had toiled with the Vances every free moment during the past week, to convert the bare working-studio into the stage-and-film presentment of such a place, she felt a tingle of pleased astonishment at its impressiveness. This was the way a studio should look!

Most of the furnishings had been brought from the Vance apartment: chairs, couches, tables, Persian tapestries hung carelessly about, precious objects that Charlotte had gathered in her pre-marriage trips to the orient.

Curtains of gold gauze, and Italian green velvet shut out the afternoon sunlight, and the studio was illuminated only by tall candles in wrought iron candlesticks. And everywhere in great quantities were exquisite flowers.

Everywhere, too, on the walls, on easles, standards, even on chairs and tables, were examples of Mark Vance's work. Etchings of Detroit scenes and buildings; charcoal drawings; magazine illustrations and covers; portrait studies of well-known New York and Detroit men and women. A few heads of Charlotte; not many, for Charlotte was a poor "sitter."

But the hight-light of the whole exhibit, the spot which drew magnetically, irresistibly, that chattering, tea-drinking crowd of notables and art critics, was the portrait of Gay.

FRANC LOSES AT NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Oct. 2 (AP).—Confusion incident to establishment of a market for the devalued franc in Paris was reflected in wide and irregular fluctuations in European currencies in the New York foreign exchange market today.

Adjusting its position to the Paris rate, the first quoted since last Friday, the franc in New York dealings dipped .09½ of a cent below the previous day's closing.

The United States dollar closed in Paris at 4.662 cents to the franc compared with the overnight New York rate of 4.760 cents.

New York transactions in the pound sterling left the closing rate up ⅜ cent. In London the United States dollar gained ⅝, closing at 4.93⅛ to the pound as compared with the American overnight rate of $4.93.

Bondholders Refuse Alberta Cut

EDMONTON, Oct. 2 (CP).—Alberta is economically and fiscally solvent and able to meet interest obligations in full, a committee of bondholders headed by J. M. MacDonnell of Toronto advised Premier William Aberhart today.

N. Y. RALLIES

NEW YORK, Oct. 2 (AP).—Led by old-line stalwarts among the motors, steels and rails, the stock market today whipped up one of its best rallies of the past several months.

Continuing cheerful industrial news and less apprehensions over the gold bloc currency devaluation move bolstered sentiment. Favored issues jumped ahead 1 to 3 points to new six-year tops. There were a few much wider recoveries.

It was the fastest session since July 29, transfers totalling 1,927,980 shares against 1,107,170 yesterday. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up 1.1 points at 68.8.

CRESTON SHIPS 140 CARS FRUIT

District Macs Said Be Finest Quality to Date

Total of 140 cars of fruit had been moved from Creston district this season up to October 1, 89 having been shipped from Creston and Wynndel and 51 from Erickson. The movement is about 10 days ahead of the average season. Sixteen packers are working a 10-hour shift daily at Creston to keep apples moving, and the rotary grader is turning out about 2000 packed boxes daily.

The McIntosh apples in that district are said to be about the highest in quality the Creston valley has known. There is no scab, color is admirable, and sizes are "just right" to meet requirements. Demand is steady, the Creston Review reports, and at least a car a day is going overseas on f.o.b. Creston prices.

Winter varieties of apples are expected to be light.

Unmarried girls among the Maori natives of New Zealand wore their hair short, whereas married women wore it in braids around their heads.
