1 Dead, Six Are Injured as Waves Batter Ore. Coast

ASTORIA, Ore., Jan. 5 (AP)—High waves, described on one portion of the Oregon coast as a "tidal wave", followed in the wake of a four-day gale today, killing one person, injuring six others, nearly wrecking one ship and continuing widespread property damage.

Roy Saubert, 48, one of the owners of the Sea Lion caves north of Florence, was drowned when a huge wave swept him into the ocean as he repaired a stairway damaged by the storm. Gilbert Houghton, another owner, also was washed into the sea, but saved himself by clinging to rocks.

Saubert's body was not recovered.

At Seaside, one woman was seriously injured and five others hurt slightly less when a gigantic wave swept a four-foot log over a party of sightseers.

Three Men Still Missing in North

PRINCE RUPERT, B. C., Jan. 5 (CP). — A man feared drowned in the ice-bound Ecstall river was reported safe by British Columbia police tonight, but the frozen hinterland east of here and the stormy north coast still held secret the fate of three others missing since mid-December.

Provincial police said fears of a tragedy with the finding of a flat-bottomed skiff in the Ecstall river were dispelled today when a man claimed the boat.

A police launch patrolled the waters in the vicinity of Cape Calvert, north of Queen Charlotte Sound, for traces of Hugh Grexton and his son, Jimmy.

A land party hunted between northerly Stewart, B. C., and Bitter creek, a tributary of the Bear river 15 miles north of here, for traces of Jack Harkley, veteran northern prospector.

Silver Thaw Hits Fraser Valley Lines

HANEY, B. C., Jan. 5 (CP). — A silver thaw struck this Fraser valley district early today and caused breakdown of electric power and telegraph lines and extensive damage to fruit trees.

Power service failed in the southern section of the town, which lies along the north bank of the Fraser river, 25 miles east of Vancouver.

Several industrial plants were forced to close until late afternoon when repair gangs restored service. More than half a dozen telegraph poles were broken down by the weight of ice on the wires.

AGED WOMAN DIES

Over $1,000,000,000 Asked for National Defence

PUBLIC DEBT WILL REACH NEW HIGH

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5 (AP)—President Roosevelt today proposed another year of large United States government spending which he estimated would lift the gross public debt to an all-time high of $44,458,000,000.

This indebtedness, which he predicted would be reached unless "moderate" tax increases were imposed to pay for the enlarged armament program and farm subsidies which congress authorized last year, would be within about $500,000,000 of the limit allowed by present law. It was expected Mr. Roosevelt would ask congress later to raise this limitation, on grounds the government should be free to meet any unforseen emergency.

The $8,995,000,000 budget the president submitted to the legislators for the next fiscal year contained much that was pleasing to advocates of increased armament and to the "spending-for-recovery" school of economic thought.

Its forecast the government would go $3,326,000,000 farther into the red during the year was anathema, however, to most Republicans and Conservative Democrats who, like Senator Byrd, (Dem.-Virginia), contend New Deal fiscal policies are leading toward chaos. Senator Taft (Rep-Ohio) said the budget was shot through with the "false idea of pump-priming", and Senator Bailey (Dem-North Carolina) declared continued heavy spending meant more taxes.

LARGEST DEFENCE SUM

Mr. Roosevelt asked by far the largest sum for national defence in the country's peace-time history —$1,009,556,000, of which he said $1,319,558,000 actually would be spent during the year—to build war planes, continue the naval construction program, increase naval personel and finance the army and navy generally.

"Because of the conditions of modern warfare," he said, "we must perform in advance tasks that formerly could be postponed until war had become imminent."

At the same time he urged "assurance" to the country's business men, farmers and workers that the big works program undertaken last summer in the midst of the business slump would not be curtailed "arbitarily or violently".

Mr. Roosevelt sided with those who argued drastic curtailment of government expenditure at this time would reverse the business recovery trend, reduce tax collections and push a balanaced budget farther away than ever.

INCREASE TAX REVENUE

The goal he announced yesterday in another message to the country—a national income of $80,000,000,000 or more—was such a countrywide income the government's revenue from existing taxes would be $8,000,000,000 instead of the $5,669,000,000 predicted for the next fiscal year.

Mr. Roosevelt recommended reenactment of so-called nuisance taxes, including levies on gasoline, automobiles and tires, electrical energy and lubricating oils, which expire in June and July this year.

Mr. Roosevelt also sent to congress a request for a supplemental appropriation of $875,000,000 to carry on work relief through next June, to supplement $1,604,000,000 previously available for work relief (works progress administration and similar agencies) during the year ending June 30.

GERMAN PRESS ATTACKS TO BE FOLLOWED BY A GENEROUS OFFER

Watch Technique of Hitler, Editor Urges

VIOLENT WORDS PRECEDE ACTION

By LOUIS LOCHNER
Associated Press Foreign Staff

BERLIN, Jan. 5 (AP). — A usually well-informed German editor considers press broadsides against the United States administration, as represented today in reaction to President Roosevelt's message to congress, as the possible prelude to a "generous offer of appeasement" by Chancellor Hitler.

"It pays to watch our fuehrer's technique when great events are in the offing," he said. "Few people, for instance, could understand why Hitler in his Saarbrucken speech of Oct. 9 made no generous gesture of appeasement toward France but on the contrary spoke of increasing western fortifications.

SPANISH GOV'T. TROOP SURPRISE ATTACK SUCCESS

HENDAYE, France (At the Spanish Frontier), Jan. 5 (AP).—Success in a surprise offensive in southwestern Spain was reported by government troops tonight after the two-week-old insurgent campaign in the northeast rolled through Borjas Blancas, the second important insurgent goal to fall in two days.

Dispatches from Valencia and Madrid said Insurgent forces were in full retreat in the Valsequillo sector of Estremadura and had lost thousands of dead and prisoners in a battle that began shortly after dawn, at almost the same time that the Insurgents were conquering Borjas Blancas, the southern key to the government defense lines in Catalonia.

The Madrid and Valencia reports said that the entire Noria chain of mountains had been captured and that the railroad line from Cabeza del Buey, 140 miles southwest of Madrid, to Belmar had been cut. Insurgent resistance in the Noria mountains had collapsed, the government reported, when militiamen captured strategic Papuido after six-hours of hand-to-hand fighting.

TRAIN SMASHES THROUGH 200 FEET OF ROCKS BEFORE GOING OFF RAILS BRAKEMAN LARSON TELLS INQUEST

Alberta Transient Unsung Hero as Carries McDonald to Safety; Inquest Is Postponed to Saturday

To secure proper track measurements from the divisional engineer, Dr. H. H. MacKenzie, district coroner, conducting an inquest Thursday afternoon into the deaths of Arthur Bolt and C. R. McDonald, engineer and fireman of a freight train wrecked near Drewry, Wednesday, who died as a result of the wreck adjourned the inquest until Satuday morning at 10 a.m.

The train, a westbound freight from Cranbrook, was derailed by a rock slide on a sharp curve in a rock cut a mile east of Drewry, at 4:35 Wednesday afternoon. About 250 feet of tracks and ties were ripped up by the engine and seven cars. The engine plowed through the rocks for about 175 or 200 feet, according to witnesses, and went about 60 feet down the bank, nearly into the lake.

Mr. Bolt, the engineer, died apparently instantly and Mr. McDonuald died of burns and scalds at 4 a.m. Thursday in Kootenay Lake General hospital.

CORONER DISSATISFIED

"I'm not prepared to turn this inquest over to the jury when I'm not entirely satisfied," said Dr. H. H. MacKenzie, after 2½ hours of hearing witnesses. "Here's one man who says the train could be stopped within 200 feet, when the emergency brakes were applied, and another man says it couldn't be stopped within the whole length of the train, nearly 1000 feet. And another point—here's a man who says one big rock on the track could not be seen for more than 100 feet, and another man says it could not be seen for 150 feet.

"I'm not satisfied with the evidence. Here we are inquiring into the death of two men, so I want something definite to go on—some definite measurements," the coroner said.

Steve Zwolski, railway patrolman stationed at Drewry—the first witness, testified he had passed over the tracks on his velocipede shortly before the accident, and the tracks were in good condition at that time. He had helped with the injured man. After the wreck, ties and tracks were torn up and twisted for approximately 200 feet, he said.

SAYS ENGINEER ACTED INSTANTLY

Charles Larson, head brakeman, who suffered scalds, stated he was riding with Fireman McDonald on the left side of the cab, when they saw "a lot of small rocks" on the track about 100 feet ahead. They both yelled to the engineer to "plug it", and Engineer Bolt instantly applied the emergency brakes, and simultaneously shut off the steam.

Larson said the next thing he knew, the engine was rolling over on its side, and he was hanging to a hand rail at the top of the cab window. He had turned a complete somersault. His neck was scalded and there was a gash near his left ankle. Steam made it dark everywhere, in the cab, and his calls brought no response from either McDonald or Bolt. Larson let go his hold on the hand rail and dropped down on to the rocks in the cab. He climbed up the bank, and went to the rear of the train for help and to dress his own injuries.

The train crew had inspected the train at McConnell, he said, and all the cars were examined for broken wheels and so on, but the engine was not inspected. At Tye, eight miles from Drewry, the train had waited for an "extra east" freight, bound for Cranbrook. The "extra east" passed the westbound about 4:15 p.m.

SEVEN CARS ALSO DERAILED

After leaving Tye, the train was going about 23 or 24 miles an hour, and as it rounded a curve inside a rock cut, about a mile east of Drewry, Larson and McDonald saw the rocks on the track. After the emergency brake was applied, the train hit the rocks and plowed through for 175 or 200 feet before leaving the road bed and going down the bank about 60 feet or more. Seven cars also went off the track, two of them going down the bank with the engine and tender, and five of them remaining upright on the roadbed. The tender was at an angle to the engine. Larson said the total train weight was about 1500 tons. He estimated the train could not be stopped within its length, after the emergency brake was applied. He did not think it strange, when questioned by Dr. MacKenzie, that the engine could hit the rocks, plow through them for 175 or 200 feet, dragging seven derailed cars after it, and then go down the bank.

Trainman P. C. Hartnell, who was riding in the caboose at the time of the wreck, testified he felt the emergency brake clutch the wheels, and felt the train stop, but did not know why it had stopped. He did not go to investigate because it was his duty as rear brakeman to go back and guard the rear of his train from any other approaching traffic, whenever his train stopped on the main line.

He put torpedoes on the track, and train No. 3233 coming behind, hit them and stopped. Hartnell boarded the engine and told the crew his train had stopped but he did not know why. No. 3233 went ahead to the scene of the wreck, and the crew helped with the injured McDonald, and Bolt, who had been found dead in the engine cab.

DOCTOR DESCRIBES INJURIES

Dr. R. B. Shaw, who had been called to the scene, testified that when he arrived, McDonald was being given first aid in a shack near the track. Dr. Shaw ordered him moved to the caboose of the auxiliary train, where nurses had made a bed. McDonald was horribly burned and scalded. His entire head and face was scalded, both eyes affected, his tongue had a "cooked" appearance, his mouth was burned, he was coughing up bloody mucous from the back of his thoat, and his arms, back, chest, abdomen, and calves of both legs were burned all over except for a few small patches of clear skin. There was about one-fifth, or at the most, one-quarter of the whole body surface that was not burned.

Dr. Shaw also ascertained that Bolt was dead, and ordered removal of his body.

Neil A. McCrimmon, conductor of the train, testified that when the train stopped, he went to the head and met Trainman Charles Larson, who was dishevelled. Larson told him what had happened, and McCrimmon went to the nearest phone, about three-quarters of a mile away, and phoned the dispatcher's office at Nelson. He later helped with McDonald and Bolt.

He said one of the rocks on the track was about seven or eight feet long, about three feet high and four feet wide. There were other smaller rocks in the slide. He estimated the train could be stopped within 200 feet with the emergency.

CHILLIWACK INDIAN FACES MURDER AND ATTEMPTED MURDER CHARGES

VANCOUVER, Jan. 5 (CP)—Preliminary hearing of George Wallace, Chilliwack Indian charged with murdering Mrs. Marie Sam and attempting to murder three other persons Dec. 1, was adjourned today until Wednesday.

Adjournment was made at the request of Norman Levin, defence counsel who said he had been notified by the department of Indian affairs that he was to defend Wallace only 10 minutes before the hearing.

In addition to the murder charge ,Wallace is alleged to have attempted to murder Dorothy Sam, 15-year-old daughter of the slain woman, Mrs. Emma Killeen, a neighbor, and Dan Huywam, owner of the cabin in which Mrs. Sam was killed. He is also accused of having assaulted Mrs. C. Shepherd and her daughter Betty in a city park and of breaking and entering the home of Victor N. Pattullo. All alleged crimes occurred Dec. 1.

The crown charges Wallace killed Mrs. Sam and knocked Huywam unconscious with an iron bar during a drinking party in Huywan's cabin. He is alleged to have gone to another hut after that and attacked Dorothy Sam and Mrs. Killeen. The other crimes were said to have occurred after the attacks.

Huywan told his story to the public for the first time during today's hearing. He said Wallace had come to his cabin with Mrs. Sam about 1 o'clock on the afternoon the woman was killed. He testified he, himself, became drunk and could remember no other incidents until he regained consciousness in the evening.

Then he saw the woman's body on a bed and went to a neighbor for assistance. He said a pair of trousers, an overcoat, a key, a hatchet and a double-bitted axe had been taken from his cabin between the time the party began and the time he returned from hospital.

Twelve of 23 witnesses scheduled to appear were heard before the adjournment.

The charge against MacKenzie was laid after Percy Russell, elderly manager of the F. P. Cook estate store here was attacked Nov. 24. The accused will appear in county court here Friday.

Mrs. MacKenzie was committed for manslaughter trial last week a few days after she told police there her child had dropped to its death from a railing of Burrard street bridge while she stood nearby contemplating suicide.

TELFORD WISHED INDEPENDENCY, C. C. F. AGREED, STATEMENT SAYS

VANCOUVER, Jan. 5 (CP).—A statement explaining the decision of Mayor Lyle Telford of Vancouver to resign from the Cooperative Commonwealth Federation party was issued late today by the party's provincial council.

"It is the doctor's wish and the considered opinion of his colleagues that as mayor of Vancouver, he should be independent of party affiliations and free to express himself as he considers best," the statement said.

"The C. C. F. appreciate the valuable service Dr. Telford has given the movement in the past and wish him well as mayor of the city of Vancouver, knowing that he will bring to that office regard for human values and the capacity for untiring effort which he has demonstrated during his years of membership in the Socialist movement.

"It is understood that the doctor will continue to support C. C. F. policies and work in close cooperation with the C. C. F. organization in all fields.

"It is further understood that the resignation is conditional upon the wishes of the Vancouver East C. C. F. district council."

It was not learned tonight whether the district council had approved Dr. Telford's action.

LEAFS PRACTICE HARD FOR KIMBERLEY INVASION, WEEK

Nelson Maple Leafs are taking advantage of their 12-day layoff by going through numerous gruelling practices at Civic arena in preparation for the invasion of Kimberley Dynamiters Saturday night, January 14. Last night the regulars spent a major part of the hour's workout by working on their power play.

Coach Ty Culley moved the two goals and placed one on each blue line, leaving a length of about 60 feet in which to play. Jess Seaby filled one net, while John (Pro) Dingwall, last year goalie of New Grand Tiger juniors, performed in the other and the youngster acquitted himself very well. Culley kept urging the member of the attacking team in possession of the puck to stand still and let the defenders come to him so that the opposition would be drawn out of position and leave a man in the clear. At times during past games, the Leafs while putting on the pressure, have become over-anxious and become bunched and so lost the puck. Last night the local players looked much improved over past appearances.

SEVERAL MORE COMING UP

All the players came off the ice at the conclusion in good shape and appeared to be in their best condition of the season. Before their next game, they may work in a practice game with the Nelson juniors but nothing is definite as yet. The seniors practice again tonight, Sunday morning, and Monday, Tuesday and Thursday nights of next week. They will thus have a day's rest before the game Saturday.

Prior to their appearance in Nelson, the Dynamiters play the previous night in Trail, but from past performances this should not hurt the former Allan Cup champions. Nelson's only worry before the game is that they themselves do not go stale with the layoff. But according to Coach Culley last night "They sure tore through tonight's practice".

MORE ABOUT INQUEST

was riding in the coal tender, was an unsung hero of the wreck. He testified he could not see the rocks, but that suddenly the engine and tender went down the bank. He was stunned, and when he regained his senses, he was on his back with a rock on his leg. He removed the rock and managed to get hold of McDonald and pack him up the bank for a distance. He went back after Bolt, but could not get near him for steam and flames. He took off his coat and made a pillow for McDonald on the tracks, and later covered the injured man with more of his clothes.

Constable Robert Carney, C. P. R. policeman, testified he had gone with the auxiliary train to investigate the wreck, and had assisted Dr. Shaw.

OFFICER ON MEASUREMENTS

Constable C. W. House of the provincial police, testified he paced off 150 feet from a big rock on the track to a point east on the track, where he could see the rock in the semi-dusk. From the rock to the point westward where the engine went over the bank, he paced off 175 feet. He estimated the rock cut in all was about 225 feet long.

Larson had previously estimated the cut to be about 400 feet long.

Guy S. Mayo, C. P. R. investigator, testified he had gone to help investigate the wreck.

Sergeant J. W. Hooker of the provincial police questioned the witnesses, and Constable Malcolm Martin called them to the stand.

The coroner's jury consisted of William Kline, foreman; David Valentine, Edwin C. Vassar, Robert McInnis, Verne Irwin and Victor E. Crawford.

Invite Head of Spokane Chamber to Address Board

C. F. McHardy was authorized by the board of trade council Thursday, to contact the Spokane Chamber of Commerce president, and invite him to speak at the Nelson board's annual meeting next Thursday.

A letter from S. G. Blaylock, vice-president and managing director of the C. M. & S. company, regretted Mr. Blaylock would be unable to address the meeting.

The annual meeting will be in the form of an informal dinner at the Hume hotel Silver room at 6:30, with a short program following.

The council made a declaration the board was agreeable that certain statutory holidays should fall on Monday, instead of the days on which they now fall. The Canadian Chamber of Commerce recently suggested that such holidays as the King's birthday, Dominion Day and so on, should be changed so as to fall on Mondays and give holiday-makers a longer week-end. On a motion by E. A. Mann, the board decided to notify the chamber it was agreeable to the changes with the exception of July 1.

A letter from H. A. Powell, secretary of the Creston board of trade, thanking the Nelson board for its hospitality when the Creston board visited here in the fall, was received and filed.

Train Service Resumed Early: Track Torn Up

Roadbed and tracks of the C. P. R. line near Drewry, where a westbound freight was derailed by a rockslide Wednesday afternoon, were all clear and ready for traffic about 5:30 Thursday morning, and trains were back on schedule, D. G. Beatty, assistant superintendent, said Thursday night.

Busy crews of two auxiliary trains, one from Cranbrook and the other from Nelson worked all night clearing the tangle of ties and tracks that were ripped up for about 250 feet. A crane, jacks, cables and other equipment was sent on each train, and Dr. R. B. Shaw and two nurses accompanied the Nelson auxiliary train. G. B. Alexander, divisional engineer, Mr. Beatty, Guy S. Mayo, C. P. R. investigator, and Harold Emery, car foreman, also went to the wreck scene.

The through eastbound passenger which usually leaves Nelson at 1:30 a.m., pulled out at 3 o'clock Thursday morning. Mr. Beatty said there seemed to be no danger of further slides at the fatal point.

Protests Against Royal Itinerary Reported Useless

OTTAWA, Jan. 5 (CP)—The itinerary arranged for the visit to Canada next spring of King George and Queen Elizabeth is final and irrevocable and protests from districts not included will be useless, it was learned today.

Already a number of protests have been received from Ontario districts urging a change be made so they may be included in the Royal tour.

All the government can do is to acknowledge these protests and explain the impossibility of more places being visited than those in the approved itinerary.

The itinerary was prepared by the inter-departmental committee appointed to handle details of the visit, and the dominion cabinet, then submitted to the King and Queen for approval. It could not now be changed without the royal approval and Prime Minister King has stated definitely it must be regarded as final.

Originally the royal visit was planned for Ottawa alone but the King expressed a desire to see as much of Canada as possible in the time at his disposal.

4 Burn to Death In New York Fire

NEW YORK, Jan. 5 (AP)—Flames sweeping through a five-storey tenement house in upper Manhattan early today burned four persons to death and drove between 150 and 200 survivors into the pre-dawn streets and a series of spectacular rescues.

Two cripples in the burning structure, including a 50-year-old man paralyzed from the hips down, waved frantically until they attracted the attention of firemen. They were reached by scaling ladders.

Authorities were investigating a report the blaze started in a Christmas tree outside the door of two of the victims.

The dead, trapped on upper floors of the building, were listed as:

Mrs. Georgette Daugnault, 65, who lived alone.

Mrs. Anna Le Clare, 52, whose husband, William, his hair and face burned, escaped.

Harry Argess, 20, and his wife, Beckie, 18.

"VIVE DALADIER" IS CRY AT SFAX

SFAX, Tunisia, Jan. 5 (CP) — Premier Edouard Daladier today turned the spotlight on Tunisia's strong coastal fortifications against an attack by sea with a call at Sfax, a seaport on the edge of the Tunisian desert.

The Caid of Sfax, representing the Bey of Tunis, presented the French Premier with an olive branch as a symbol of Tunisia's "desire for union and peace."

Daladier replied "union with Tunisia" is a main part of French defence plans. Cries of "vive Daladier!" from thousands of natives almost drowned out his words.

"You have been able to judge the loyalty of all the people to France," the Premier said to newspapermen. "It is a stimulating impression. I counted upon it, but I did not expect so much enthusiasm."

Sfax is one of the best examples of French colonization in North Africa. It has been converted into one of the busiest ports in eastern Tunisia and its desert soil has been changed into a tropical garden extending 40 miles inland.

Freighter Cargo Moved to Get at Leak; Causes List

NEW WESTMINSTER, Jan. 5 (CP)—Stevedores today began removing 150,000 feet of timber from decks of the British freighter Evagoras in an attempt to reach a leak in her No. 5 hold which caused a 14-degree list and prevented her sailing yesterday.

Agents believed removal of the deck-load would allow the ship to rise enough to bring the leak above the waterline and remove the necessity of putting her in drydock for repairs. They said it would require two or three days to remove the lumber.

A little white cat aboard the Evagoras was regarded with suspicion by superstitious sailormen as they recalled the vessel's bad luck since they befriended the feline at Port Alberni recently.

Crisis and Pact Top News Stories

By The Canadian Press

Threat of war and measures to stem its tide dominated front pages in 1938, Telegraph editors of newspapers across Canada unaimously placed at the top "the September crisis," or one of its many fast-breaking developments, in the Canadian Press annual quest for opinion on the year's 10 greatest stories of world interest.

TRADE TREATY TOPS

They found a quieter note nearer home, choosing as the best of five Canadian stories the new trade treaty between the Dominion and United States. Yet even in "domestic" news the threat echoed. President Roosevelt's declaration at Kingston—"the United States will not stand idly by if domination of Canadian soil is threatened"—was placed second in the Canadian list.

The selections:

World news: 1 and 2. The crisis and the Munich pact; 3. Annexation of Austria; 4. Corrigan flight; 5. Persecution of Jews; 6. Hughes round-the-world flight; 7. U. K. U. S. trade pact; 8. Eden resignation; 9. New England hurricanes; 10. Troubles in Palestine.

Canadian news: 1. Canada-United States trade pact; 2. Roosevelt's Kingston speech; 3. King-Hepburn feud; 4. Bren gun inquiry; 5. Their Majesties' impending visit.

Many editors chose the whole crisis, a fast-developing day-to-day story, as their top; while others voted for the single occasion of the Munich pact. For that reason these were bracketed together. Not far behind in news value was the march into Austria.

Colorful Career of Coast Newspaper Man Ended by Death

SEATTLE, Jan. 5 (CP).—A colorful life as sailor, soldier, shipwreck hero and vetern Canadian journalist ended last night with the sudden death in hospital here of Edward Cowper, 55-year-old member of the news desk staff of the Vancouver Sun.

Cowper, who once worked on the Seattle Post Intelligencer staff, and was a former Vancouver Sun news editor, was stricken while visiting here over the New Year's holiday.

Before serving in India with the British army, he shipped to sea before the mast in his early life.

During the world war he was en route to Europe aboard the Lusitania to act as war correspondent for a Canadian syndicate when the ship was torpedoed. For three hours he held a six-year-old girl above the water before they were picked up. For his heroism he was cited in Buckingham palace.

His widow and daughter were at his bedside when he died.

Three brothers live in England and a fourth, J. S. Cowper, lives in Vancouver.

TORONTO MINISTER IS SUSPENDED FROM BROADCASTING AFTER TALK

OTTAWA, Jan. 5 (CP). — Rev. Charles Lanphier of Toronto has been indefinitely suspended from broadcasting, Gladstone Murray, general manager of the Canadian Broadcasting corporation, announced today.

The suspension follows the priest's Sunday broadcast in which he is said to have attacked Communism and intervened in the Toronto municipal election campaign, contrary to the provisions of the law.

Mr. Murray issued the following statement:

In January, 1938, after a period of suspension from the air, Father Lanphier was restored in the religious series sponsored by the Radio League of Saint Michael. Experience of the discord and complaints occasioned by broadcasts in which religion and politics had been mixed induced the board of governors of the Canadian Broadcasting corporation to decide that in future religious periods should be devotional in character.

An understanding was reached with Archbishop McGuigan and Father Lanphier that his broadcasting could be resumed on condition that he confined himself to items of a purely ecclesiastical nature, avoiding politics, national and international and controversial theories in economics.

Last Sunday, Jan. 1, Father Lanphier intervened actively in the municipal campaign in Toronto, thereby infringing section 22, subsection 5, of the Canadian Broadcasting act, 1936, which reads as follows: "Political broadcasts on any Dominion, provincial or municipal election day and on the two days immediately preceding any such election day are prohibited."

The election took place on the next day, Monday, Jan. 3.

In view of the breach of the understanding and the violation of the Broadcasting act, Father Lanphier has been indefinitely suspended from broadcasting. It has been made clear that tis action is taken, not because of the nature of Father Lanphier's political partisanship, but because of the violation of the Broadcasting act and of the flagrant breach of the conditions under which his broadcasting was resumed last year.

Paralysis Victim Fails in Attempt Mountain Climbing

NORTH VANCOUVER, B.C., Jan. 5 (CP)—A belated police report revealed today how an old love of mountain climbing almost brought death to George Styne before he was found by a search party early Tuesday morning, semi-conscious in the snow half a mile from Grouse Mountain chalet.

The former Bavarian mountain climber, now apparently recovered from exposure he suffered, revealed today he had attempted the ascent to test his legs after an operation for paralysis last June.

A search was launched for Styne Monday night when he failed to return from his attempted climb up the steep, snow-capped peak rising from the North Shore of Vancouver harbor. Hours later he was found, exhausted, and assisted to the chalet where he rested a few hours before returning to his home.

"I over-estimated my strength," he said ruefully today, describing how his weight had dropped from 154 to 138 pounds since the days when he was an active climber in Europe, and the Canadian Rockies.

"I had no skiis or snow shoes because I hoped to reach the hard snow higher up," he went on. "About half way up I began to get fatigued, but I struggled on and the chalet was well within view when I discovered I could go no further."

Fisheries Board Discusses Industry

OTTAWA, Jan. 5 (CP). — The Dominion fisheries research board, a cientific council representative of the fisheries department, biological research departments of the universities and of the fishing industry, met here today under the chairmanship of Dr. A. T. Cameron of the University of Manitoba.

The board, at a closed meeting, discussed technical aspects of the fishing industry and research with directors of the various Dominion government fisheries experimental stations and studied their reports.

PRESS SEES WORK ON REPULSE FOR MAJESTIES' VISIT

PORTSMOUTH, England, Jan. 5 (CP)—The broad decks of H. M. S. Repulse, huge battle cruiser, resounded today to the unfamiliar tread of Fleet street landlubbers for the first time since the ship was nominated for the honor of taking King George and his consort to Canada next May.

The admiralty relaxed its stringent regulations temporarily to give newspapermen a glimpse of what is being done to make the ship fit for its voyage to the senior dominion of the sovereign's great empire.

The newspapermen saw the ship in the raw. Decks were sprinkled with materials and equipment with which 900 men—the shipment's complement of 500 augmented by 400 dockers—swarmed over her decks. The ship, in fact, is not shipshape. The din of rivetting machines and the clang of hammers denoted the speed of the work of alterations which are in their early stages.

It is expected the work will be completed about mid-March with a trial voyage to the Mediterranean, the ship returning a month later to take the party to Canada, accompanied by the cruisers Southampton and Glasgow.

Starting from the peak of the forecastle, these cabins are planned for the royal party: The King's Day Cabin, the King's Dining Cabin, the King's Sleeping Cabin the Kings Bathroom, the Queen's Sleeping Cabin, the Queen's Bathroom, the Queen's Day Cabin; cabins and bathrooms for the ladies in waiting.

A New Chemical Prevents Burns From Mustard Gas

GENEVA, N. Y., Jan. 5 (AP)—A new chemical compound for virtually complete protection of soldiers and civilians against one of war's worst horrors, the burns of mustard gas, was announced today by officials of Hobart College.

The new chemical, sprayed on clothing, is announced as protection for months against the burns.

The discoverer is Dr. Ralph Bullard, professor of chemistry, member of the American Chemical society and several honorary science organizations, formerly an industrial chemist. The formula of the chemical was not made public.

Because of its ability to cause contact burns, mustard gas has been used to saturate the ground to render areas of military importance temporarily untenable, although little has been said about this, the newer mustard gases are expected to make this burning threat last for days and for weeks if there is no rain.

"Until today," the Hobart announcement states, "the only protection against mustard gas has included gas masks and rubberized clothing. Masks afford no protection against one of the most dangerous properties, ability to cause severe burns and blisters on parts not covered by the mask.

"The new anti-mustard preparation, sprayed on clothing, will remain effective for several months, neither water nor ordinary temperatures have any effect on the compound and clothing may be cleansed without destroying its effectiveness.

"Mustard gas coming in contact with treated clothing immediately is neutralized and becomes harmless as the air itself."

Groceries Reward for Rum-Running

HALIFAX, Jan. 5 (CP)—A grocery order worth about $11 was his reward for taking part in liquor-landing operations on the shore of Cobequid Bay, Alfred Earl McDoneld testified today at the continued preliminary hearing of John Tanner, Halifax, on a charge of conspiracy.

He had never paid for the groceries himself, he said, and as far as he knew the bill had been footed by B. O. Ben Johnson, named with Tanner and 22 others as co-conspirators in an attempt to defraud the federal government of $4,000,000 through importation and transportation of liquor.

He named Johnson as the one who asked him to take a truck, registered in his (McDonald's) name, but owned actually by Johnson, to Truro the night of the landing. At Truro, Johnson met him and placed two men aboard the truck as guides.

The landing was made from a boat called the Annette S. near Glenholme, Colchester county, and McDonald assisted in transporting it to what apparently was a nearby farm house.

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Newsworld's "newsiest" figure is Adolf Hitler, Canadian newspaper telegraph editors believe. In a survey by the Canadian Press they chose the German Fuehrer as chief news-maker of 1938 over Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain. And those were the only two they named.

Selecting the newsiest Canadian of the year was not so easy. The editors finally settled on Premier Hepburn of Ontario. Also in the running were Hon. R. J. Manion, national conservative leader, his predecessor, Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett; Prime Minister Mackenzie King; Premier Aberhart of Alberta; Dr. A. R. Dafoe, and his charges the quints "or any one of them."

DEATHS

SEATTLE—A complication of diseases claimed life of Carl F. Gould, 65, nationally-known architect. He designed or assisted in the designing of many Northwest United States public buildings, and of state capitols in Wisconsin, Oregon, and Washington. He also helped lay out the plan for San Francisco.

F.D.R. Nominates 100 for U.S. Posts

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5 (AP). — President Roosevelt today nominated more than 100 persons for important federal posts in the United States including former Senator James P. Pope of Idaho as a member of the Tennessee Valley authority, succeeding Arthur E. Morgan.

Most of the nominations sent to the senate for approval were appointments made during the adjournment of congress but which must be confirmed by that branch of congress.

Among the new appointments was that of Charles E. Clark of Connecticut to be judge of the U.S. circuit court of appeals for the second circuit covering Vermont, Connecticut and New York.

Topping the recess appointments were those of Frank Murphy of Michigan to be attorney-general and Harry L. Hopkins of New York to be secretary of commerce.

REPAIR OF GALE DAMAGE ON U.S. COAST STARTED

SEATTLE, Jan. 5 (AP)—Damage caused by high winds this week, was being repaired today as the Pacific Northwest United States looked for a return to normal January weather.

Along the Washington and Oregon coast last night winds reached gale and gale proportions but were expected to subside somewhat today.

A heavy rain fell in Seattle overnight.

Editorial Silence Greets Move Against Chamberlain Policy

LONDON, Jan. 5 (CP Cable).—Demands of the political "young Turks" for a national government with more ginger in its foreign policy were greeted with widespread editorial silence today.

Only one of the major British papers commented on the "secret" meetng attended by 300 youthful politicians. The Daily Herald (Labor) recalled this is the second movement launched by Winston Churchill's son-in-law, Duncan Sandys. The first one was designed "to combat socialism, defeatism and apathy."

The newspaper recalled that later, when Mr. Sandys won the Norwood by-election in 935, he said "a vote for socialism is a vote for financial panic, unemployment and wage cuts."

"Salute the leader of the 'new broad, democratic' forces, was his comrades' exclamation," said the Herald.

The policy of the movement enunciated at last night's meeting included a call for the speediest rearmament, national unity, and non-surrender to force or threat of force.

The group aims to enlist 100,000 adherents with the object of banding together as many citizens as possible against Prime Minister Chamberlain and as many nations as possible against the totalitarian rulers.

It does not aim to overthrow the national government, however, but to strengthen both its foreign and domestic policies.

GROUNDED SHIP RETURNS TO PORT WITHOUT HELP

ASTORIA, Ore., Jan. 5 (AP)—The Gulf Pacific line steamer Point Bonita proceeded toward Seattle under its own power today after repairing a broken rudder chain that left it drifting helplessly toward dangerous Peacock Spit, at the mouth of the Columbia river, for nearly an hour.

The Bonita, owned by Swaene & Hoyt, Ltd., of Portland, was partially disabled after running aground early today near the North jetty at the mouth of the river. The steamer sent an SOS at 8:40 a. m., (PST) but radioed at 9:30 repairs had been made and the ship was out of danger.

I.W.A. Declares Taylor Betrayed Labor Confidence

VANCOUVER, Jan. 5 (CP)—The provincial council of the international woodworkers of America adopted a resolution yesterday declaring J. S. Taylor, member of parliament for Nanaimo, had "betrayed the confidence of organized labor."

Mr. Taylor was expelled by the C. C. F. party in 1937 but has continued to sit in parliament as an independent.

The convention of the congress of industrial organizations affiliate also decided that it "will not necessarily support any candidate merely because of his affiliation with a progressive party," but will support any candidate "who has proven himself a friend of labor" in the next federal election.

The resoluution said the Nanaimo member had supported continuation of fish trap permits on Vancouver Island in opposition to the stand taken at Ottawa by a delegation from the fisherman's union. It also contended he had been elected with the support of "the large bulk of organized labor, particularly the loggers, miners and fishermen," and had "betrayed" their confidence.

GLAMOR AND STUPIDITY GREATEST ENEMIES OF THEATRE

Is Opinion of George Skilan Drama Festival Adjudicator

By GUS RHOADES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Jan. 5 (CP)—When George Skillan goes to Canada as adjudicator of the regional drama festivals he will take with him a conviction that the amateur theatre is the best possible thing for the stage in the dominion.

He is going light-heartedly into a job he knows will be heavy and may give him some trouble. He is glad to escape from London's winter climate and the memory of 1938's biggest theatrical crash, from the wreckage of which he saved a book.

The Dominion drama festival's 1939 regional adjudicator did a vast amount of research and other work on the great production of Shakespeare's Henry V when the Czechoslovakian crisis sent everyone looking for cover instead of entertainment. The play lasted 18 performances. Mr. Skillan turned his research into an actor's and producer's book of the play.

Out of his knowledge of Shakespeare and Elizabethan English he has gained an advance acquaintance with the Canadian accent, although he has never been to the Dominion. And he won't let anyone apologize to him for possessing a Canadian accent.

"We mustn't have apologies," he said. "That's the Canadian language and people mustn't try to interfere with it."

He fears he may have some difficulty with Canadian performances in French, partly because of limited familiarity with the language and partly because of the different accent in Canada. However, he isn't worrying unduly because, he says, "if the acting is right the play will get across anyway."

He regards stupidity and glamor as the theatre's greatest enemies and he expects the amateur stage in Canada to avoid both and develop more fully than a professional theatre would. He says there aren't enough sane people in the professional theatre; that it lacks system and logic.

Glamor, he says, is risky because a glamorous male or female lead can distract the attention of the backer from the fact he has a poor show.

The adjudicator is eager to see Canada. He has done a little adjudicating but for some time has been on the board of examiners of the Royal Schools of Music, elocution side.

He is a big fiftyish man with a powerful voice.

Late President's Letters to Sons

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

I wish every father would read "Roosevelt's Letters to His Children", most of which were written from the White House by the then President Theodore Roosevelt to his older children in school. Edited by Joseph B. Bishop, they were published in 1919.

Here is a sample:

"White House, Oct. 19, 1903
"Dear Kermit:

"When we got home Mother went upstairs first and was met by Archie and Quentin, each loaded with pillows and whispering not to let me know that they were in ambush; then as I marched up to the top they assailed me with shrieks and chuckles of delight and then the pillow fight raged up and down the hall. After my bath I read to them from Uncle Remus. Usually Mother reads them, but now and then, when I think she must have a holiday from it, I read them myself."

Just picture the president of the United States carrying on a pillow fight in the White House with his boys! It was such human interest in the father that endeared him to his children and his country.

Here's another:

"White House, Nov. 16, 1903.
"Dear Kermit:

"Mother has gone off for nine days, and as usual I am acting as vice-mother. Archie and Quentin are really too cunning for anything. Each night I spend about three quarters of an hour reading to them. I first of all read some books like Algonquin Indian Tales, or the poetry of Scott or McCauley. Once I read them John Bludsoe, which perfectly enthralled them and made Quentin ask me at least a hundred questions, including one as to whether the colored boy did not find sitting on the safety valve hot. I have been reading them each evening from the Bible. It has been the story of Saul, David and Jonathan. They have been so interested that several times I have had to read to them more than one chapter. Then each says his prayers and repeats the hymn he is learning, Quentin usually jigging solemnly up and down while he repeats it. Each finally got one hymn perfect whereupon in accordance with previous instruction from mother, I presented each of them with a five-cent piece."

If the president's children found a nickel attractive, they could not have been spoiled by getting too much money.

Lights . . .

Eye Brilliancy Depends On Care And Rest Given

By DONNA GRACE

There is not much said these days about the klieg lights and their dazzling effect on the players. You remember some years ago we frequently heard of stars who had to give up work before the camera because of eye weakness from the exposure to these powerful lights. All this has been corrected so there is seldom any bad effects, but along with the improvement in lights, the players have learned how to care for and protect their eyes so they will not show fatigue and retain their brilliancy for the exacting work.

Miss Gale Page has a method of her own which begins by bathing the eyes with a slightly warmed lotion. The heat is always comforting and soothing to tired muscles and it may be used by filling the eye cup with the warm lotion, giving one minute for each eye. After that there is rest of five minutes or more in a darkened room and a moist eye pad covering the eyes.

This is followed by a gentle massage beginning at the corner of the eye with the tips of the fingers, then circle under and over the eyelid. This is repeated a number of times, then stroked out towards the temples. A bit of tissue cream will lubricate the skin and discourage lines.

There are any number of good eye washes, and if you would like to make your own, the following is the favorite of one of the famous New York eye specialists:

Take a teaspoonful each of borax, bicarbonate of soda, and table salt. Dissolve in a quart of boiled water and then add a tablespoonful of glycerine.

For general use, use cold, but it may be heated for the soothing eye-bath when you want to rest. Keep this on hand but when it is prepared be sure to boil the water and have a sterilized bottle or jar. You may boil bottles or jars and many persons use pure alcohol to rinse them, a sterilizing method.

Make a daily practice of exercising the eyes, the best time being when they have been heated with hot pads, a lotion, or from sitting close to a penetrating lamp for a few moments.

The rotating exercise is done by looking upward, then to the left, down and to the right. Do this for one moment, then direct the eyes on one object which you will move about in your hand. A pencil will do, but move it up and down, then close, and out at arms length.

Follow all exercises with a gentle massage and a few moments' rest in the dark.

Girl Should Give Up Listless Lover as Swiftly as Possible

"What is a girl to think," asks a young business woman of twenty-five, "when she's been engaged to a man who professed to adore her, when she believes he feels as she does: blissfully happy, hardly able to wait for the wedding day, and then all of a sudden he's a different person, silent, morose, not interested in anything she has to say, unwilling to discuss the future, plainly worried and distracted? What is she to do: let things rocks along or call for a showdown?"

If she thinks at all she must realize that the man has lost his taste for her, that he's balking at the prospect of marriage to her and that the one thought racing around and around in his head is how to get out of the trap. She should realize, too, that the mere fact he doesn't confide in her about his worries is the proof positive that he doesn't care for her, since one of the first impulses of a lover is to pour out his heart to his loved one, troubles and all. When that impulse is dead his love is dead or dying.

Yet it's practically impossible for a woman to think when she's head over heels in love; practically impossible for her to use her knowledge of human nature when her heart is involved. She has the same attitude toward her fiance as Job had toward God. If the fiance behaves queerly or does her dirt she repeats her motto: "Though he slay me yet will I trust him." She can't force her head to work in an opposite direction from her emotions. She can't believe the man she adores can lose his taste for her. And if he's gone so far as to discuss marriage and make plans for the future it's as hard to separate her from her hopes as it is to separate a 'possum dog from the 'possum he's treed and caught.

What is a girl to do when her fiance stalls? Why let him go with a smile since she can't hold him with tears and talk. The longer she yields to the temptation to let things rock along, the more she will suffer: for final separation from him is inevitable. Self-preservation being the first law of life for man and brute, the air-cooled lover is going anyhow and good sportsmanship says she should make the parting as swift and painless as possible for her sake and his.

Surely she must endure heartache and humiliation for a time but joy cometh in the morning when she wakes up to the realization that she has escaped the hell on earth that marriage is to the wife who looks into the eye of a husband who doesn't love her and wishes she were dead and out of his sight.

Is Tooth Decay Diet Controlled?

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

We observe in the editorial columns of a New York paper that the editor has taken notice of the work of the brothers Belding on dental caries (a $2 word for a hole in the tooth).

It appears that the brothers Belding have found a special streptococcus which causes dental caries; that this streptococcus feeds only upon certain foods, and that when those foods are eliminated from the diet, the streptococcus will not have anything to work on and the tooth decay will cease. It seems, further, that the brothers got on to this because tooth decay is entirely absent from people who subsist on a meat diet and on fruits and tubers.

The editor of the paper announces that he is not going to try this diet because he is a veteran of food fads and has avoided red meats to keep blood pressure down, and kept away from sweet foods to get roughage, and kept away from roughage to avoid stomach ulcers, and he is going to wait and see. In fact, he says, he is going out to lunch.

APPLUADS REACTION

If it will comfort the editor to have our professional opinion, we would like to go on record as applauding his reaction very heartily. We are, indeed, sorry he ever annoyed himself by abstaining from red meats to avoid high blood pressure, and merely suggest that if he had acquainted himself with the more cultured literature on the subject (such as "The Care and Feeding of Adults," by Logan Clendening—adv.), he need never have been under the necessity of stinting himself. Further, one of the best-known cathartics is a sweet named "molasses" which is not roughage, and still furthermore, roughage does not cause stomach ulcers.

PEOPLE INACCESSIBLE

As to the inhabitants of that far country who subsist on meat and fruit and tubers and have such wonderful teeth, that argument has been coming up quite regularly ever since we have been in the business of taking cognizance of such matters. The trouble is that the people on whom the argument depends are so inaccessible. They are always the inhabitants of Tibet or the plains of Bulgaria. Usually when some actual traveler returns from such a country and you ask him how are the teeth of those people, he says, "Awful".

I wish that instead of saying "Look at the teeth of the Kurds of Kaldustan", some dentist with a thesis would say "Look at the teeth of the people of Wisconsin", where you could actually go and look.

I repeat that I applaud the resolution of the editor and I applaud his writing. The only thing I deplore is his reading.

BUS BEATS STORK

TORONTO, Jan. 5 (CP).—A bus of the Toronto Transportation commission left its route today in a race with the stork and just made it.

When Driver A. Hatton's sole passenger at 6 a.m. was taken suddenly ill, he realized at once what was wrong. Hatton, married, has three children.

He rushed her to the office of Dr. H. B. Coleman. Then he rushed both of them to the hospital. A few minutes later, the woman, Mrs. Doris Abbott, 25, gave birth to a girl, weight seven pounds three ounces. Both are doing well.

Passengers on Hatton's route missed out on one round-trip.

Creston C.G.I.T. Annual 'At Home'

CRESTON, B.C. — The Merry Makers C.G.I.T. group of Trinity United church staged their annual at home Thursday evening at the church hall. The affair is one where the girls are hostesses to their mothers and friends, and has been a feature of the group's effort ever since organization.

The hall was attractively decorated with Christmas green and the table was centred with holly and red candles, Josephine Hurry and Marguerite Grant received the guests.

Various contests were featured under the direction of Ethel Morrow and Ethel MacLaren, with the highlight of the evening the quiz contest in which the mothers were pitted against their daughters. Mrs. W. S. Weir and Miss Anna Dickinson were the winners.

At the close a lunch was served with the girls as serviteurs.

When you give 'em hash give 'em Heinz Ketchup

● That hot, fragrant plate of hash needs just one addition to make it perfect — a generous dash or two of Heinz Tomato Ketchup. This rich, red, thick sauce imparts a wealth of appetizing flavour to scores of different dishes.

Heinz chefs use big, red, right-off-the-vine, pedigreed tomatoes — picked, cooked and bottled the same day. They're simmered down with Heinz' own aged-in-wood vinegars, granulated sugar, racy Oriental spices — bottled hot and fresh from the kettle. Only this famous formula can create the mouth-watering "zing" that makes so many different dishes taste so much better. Treat the family. Serve Heinz Tomato Ketchup with your next meal.

"It outsells all others"

Heinz Chili Sauce, Heinz Cream of Tomato Soup and Heinz Tomato Juice all give you the same matchless flavour of Heinz pedigreed tomatoes. Your dealer has them all.

Nakusp Institute Raises $433, Year

Mrs. Rushton Declines to Carry on as President

NAKUSP, B. C. — The annual report of the year's work accomplished by the Nakusp Women's Institute, given by the secretary, Mrs. E. C. Johnson, at the January meeting showed there were 55 members, 11 regular meetings and five special meetings. The institute ward at the hospital was redecorated, improvements were made to the bathing beach, built the previous year, and considerable work was done in beautifying the cemetery. Financial aid was given to the Othea Scott fund, the Iron Lung fund, the Arrow Lakes hospital, and to the Community Christmas tree. Resolutions supporting a cancer unit in the district, a road to the Nakusp Hot springs and a creamery for the Nakusp district were endorsed.

Considerable work was done in connection with the Youth Training plan, which it is hoped will bear fruit early in the new year. Interest had also been shown in the school consolidation project.

A successful concert was sponsored April 1, 1938, at which time $100 was cleared. A whist drive in aid of institute funds was held at the home of Mrs. A. E. Fowler. A play given by the New Denver Dramatic society put on under the auspices of the institute. Exhibits were sent to both the Edgewood and Nelson fall fairs.

Interesting program features included a lecture on forestry by Col. Allen of Nelson, a lecture on indoor photography by A. E. Jones, an account of early Nakusp history by Mrs. R. Islip, an address on cancer by Dr. H. D. Tyerman, a talk on education by Miss M. Kirk and a discussion on child welfare led by Mrs. G. Keys.

A three day sewing school, given under the auspices and at the instigation of the institute. Delegates attended both he provincial and district conferences.

An entertainment was given at which all institutes on the Arrow Lakes and from New Denver were present. The Nakusp members attended similar gatherings at Burton and Arrow Park.

The financial report given by the treasurer, Mrs. A. Cowan, showed that the sum of $433 had been raised during the year and there was a balance on hand of $65.

Mrs. F. Rushton reported that $59 was made on a bedroom set.

Mrs. A. E. Fowler moved a special vote of thanks to the retiring president, Mrs. F. Rushton, for the untiring work that had been put into the institute efforts of the past two years. She expressed the wish of the meeting in inviting Mrs. Rushton to again take the chair. In reply Mrs. Rushton said she felt she had to decline the office but thanked the members for their cooperation during her term of office. She stated that she had enjoyed the work very much and regretted not being able to carry on as president. She would, however, continue her support of the institute in the future, as in the past.

Tea hostesses for the afternoon were Mrs. G. Elder, Mrs. O. Harper and Mrs. C. S. Leary.

Germany Scorns and Democracies Praise President's Speech

LONDON, Jan. 5 (AP).—The German press scorned President Roosevelt's defence address today, charging it preached "hatred." The democracies praised the address.

European officials studied the speech as one of the most important declarations coming from Washington since the Great War.

The democracies hoped it was a prelude to major changes in American foreign policy, giving particular attention to the possibility of revision of neutrality legislation.

DESERT POLICY

Both the German and Italian press accused the president of playing domestic politics and of deserting the isolation policy of George Washington.

Some Soviet Russian newspapers, in brief summaries, emphasized points of preparedness against aggression and the neutrality law but omitted passages about the democracies and religion. There was no editorial comment.

The Liberal Manchester Guardian contrasted Mr. Roosevelt's declaration against "dictatorships" with Prime Minister Chamberlain's "timid exercises in the same field."

"Most English men and women, when they listened to President Roosevit, must have wished sadly that it was the head of their own government who was saying these things," the Guardian said.

It continued that the British people who heard Mr. Roosevelt praise the democratic system "must have recalled with shame" Prime Minister Chamberlain's "naive confession" that, although Fascism may or may not do for Great Britain, he "could not get up 'much excitement over different systems of government'."

British foreign officials clearly approved the address but indicated official enthusiasm might be "inconvenient" later in dealing with the dictatorships.

Four Scholarships Offered by Council

LONDON, Jan. 5 (CP)—The British Council, whose funds are derived from government subsidy and private subscription today announced it is offering annually four £300 ($1400) one-year post-graduate scholarships in the United Kingdom to selected graduates from Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa.

Effective in October, the scholarships will be open to those conducting research in subjects of social, economic or political value, which may be regarded of Dominion, intra-imperial or international importance.

The national conference of Canadian universities will recommend students from that dominion annually in April. The Canadian names then will be pooled with those of the other dominions for the British Council to make final selections in May.

It was pointed out the selectors will not necessarily pick a student from each dominion. "It would be possible for Canada to win all four scholarships—or none," an official said.

German Treason Trial Progresses

BERLIN, Jan. 5 (AP)—Testimony was reported under way today in the secret trial of Ernst Niekisch, resolute opponent of Nazilism, and two others on charges of "preparations to commit high treason.

Well-informed sources indicated the trial which started Tuesday before the people's court would last for several days.

Niekisch's co-defendants were named by these sources as Joseph Drexel and Karl Troger. No further identification was given.

After the testimony will come the reading of notes in which Niekisch is charged with having "expressed himself in a most vulgar way over leading personalities of the German Reich."

The penalty in extreme cases of treason is death.

LONDON (CP)—Gilbert Frankau the novelist, was surprised to get back one of a batch of Kipling letters, thrown away by mistake. "The letters form a personal correspondence when I was able to give Kipling details of how his son John, was killed in the Great War," he said.

NO TRESPASSING

While the German press loudly pronounces the Lima conference a failure, the American press, practically without exception, sees it as a great success, and particularly as an answer to Germany's aggressions.

History will certainly rank high the ninth Pan-American conference, so-called. Though Canada does not take a part in Pan-American affairs, any joint action by the many republics of the Americas can hardly fail to affect Canada, either directly or remotely.

This conference will be mainly remembered for the "Lima Declaration."

It was the first of these American conferences to express the principle of continental solidarity in terms of a common attitude toward non-American powers.

The declaration itself was in no sense provocative, even though it hung out a stern "No Trespassing" sign over the western hemisphere. Both the phraseology and the underlying meaning were such that no foreign powers could resent it, except those whose resentment would confess that the warning was justified and needed.

The meaning was to be found less in the wording of the declaration than in the reaction reported from various South American capitals as the conference deliberations progressed. No room was left for doubt that the desire to see the western hemisphere remain an oasis of peace, as remote as might be from involvement in the world's quarrels, was a common attitude of the American peoples involved as well as of their governments.

The objections of the Argentine delegation, though they furnished the conference's sole note of discord, only served to corroborate this. The Argentine position in fact went farther than that of the United States in its expressions against European or other interference in the hemisphere. That reflected the attitude of the Argentine people, beyond a question. The accompanying insistence on seeing the United States itself as a possible aggressor and the consequent unwillingness to be bound by formal treaties expressed more the shrewd maneuvering of the Argentine government.

Eventually, however, Argentina fell in line, after making its point, and the various republics of the western hemisphere practically allied themselves against aggressive powers of the eastern hemisphere.

Whatever remote chance there might be of Hitler's Germany undertaking to dictate to some American republic, small or large, there is no question of its intentions to make trade penetrations.

The practical effect of the Lima conference will probably be a joint stand against trade domination by Germany. And this will certainly be enough, from Germany's standpoint.

My friends, there is one spot on earth where the fear of death, of sin, and of judgment need never trouble us, the only safe spot on earth where the sinner can stand—Calvary.—D. L. Moody.

An Immortal Song of Christmas

This song—the immortal Silent Night, Holy Night—has become as indispensable to the spirit of Christmas throughout the world as holly or the silver-trimmed Christmas tree. Wherever Christmas is celebrated, there the spirit of the holiday is heightened and intensified with the singing of the hymn.

Silent Night, however, is not a folk song. It is the composition of a school-teacher-organist in Austria who created it a little more than a hundred years ago and who, after his death, passed into complete obscurity and neglect. He was Franz Xaver Gruber, the son of a linen-weaver, born in 1796 in a poverty-stricken hut in Unterweizberg, a hamlet near the Hochberg of Upper Austria. Franz Gruber showed signs of musical talent from early childhood. To father Gruber, however, the possibility of a musical career for his son was not to be considered, not even the possibility of a musical education. Father Gruber was a linen-weaver, his ancestors had been linen-weavers; it was, therefore, destined that the son, too, should consecrate his life to that respectable profession. —David Ewen in Coronet.

Contract Bridge

Shepard Barclay Tells How to Bid and Play

YOU HAVE A PARTNER

IT WILL PAY you to remember that the lady, or gentleman, sitting opposite you is your partner. We are all prone to have too much confidence in our own ability, and not enough in that of our associates, but there are times when we should pass the buck to them. One of these is when defending against a No trump contract. If our own hand is worthless we should play in such a way as to help our mate to make the best possible use of his or her resources.

North: ♠ K 7 6 2 ♥ J 8 ♦ A 8 2 ♣ 8 7 6 3
West: ♠ 9 8 4 3 ♥ 10 6 ♦ 10 7 6 5 3 ♣ 4 2
East: ♠ J 10 ♥ K Q 9 7 3 ♦ 9 4 ♣ A J 10 5
South: ♠ A Q 5 ♥ A 5 4 2 ♦ K Q J ♣ K Q 9

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

After South bid 2-No trump on his tremendous holding here, his partner took him to 3-No trump. West made the old-fashioned conventional lead of the fourth-best of his longest and strongest suit, the diamond 5. As soon as he did, the safety of the contract was assured for the declarer.

South could count three tricks in spades, one in hearts, three in diamonds and a possible two in clubs, which he went for. He won the first trick in dummy, led a club, covered by the J and Q, reached dummy again with the spade K and led another club to East's A. His contract was now sure.

Had West realized that the defense depended on his partner's hand, he should have led his heart 10, as that was most likely to be his partner's suit, rather than clubs, because holders of majors usually like to bid them and the enemy had not. Had he done this, declarer's lone stopper would have been knocked out pronto. South could have taken only seven tricks before trying clubs. When he finally did, East could have run enough hearts to set the contract.

After 1-Diamond by North and 1-Heart by South, why is North's correct rebid 2-Clubs instead of 1- or 2-No trump?

CHAPTER 41

Sara Sue Davis told herself that never in all her 23 years had she attended any social function as lovely as this. Not even when Larry had been courting her. For that matter, not many dances of this magnitude had ever been given in Houston.

"I am so happy, T. J.!" she told him, squeezing his arm a little as they danced.

And he, poor fellow, misunderstood.

When she said that, a grand something welled within him. T. J. Saunders was inherently a gentleman, for all his noisy talk and banter at times. He was not noisy now. His rather pretty eyes were misty as he gazed down at his girl.

"Sara Sue!" he murmured. "Sara Sue."

It was all he could say, then. He held her a little closer and danced on. What he really wanted to say shouldn't be shouted, and he would have almost to shout to make her hear above the music and gaiety around them. "You're so sweet!" he whispered in her ear. She made no response. She was content just to dance on, happy in the companionship of youth.

She noted many of her own cottage customers present; boys and girls whom she had introduced and big-sistered along this fall. She knew that four or five fine romances had bloomed among them. Some of them had required spiritual nursing, but Sara Sue felt that she had brought happiness to most of them.

Bob Towne cut in then, and promptly announced, "I've got something important to tell you, when we get a minute, Sara Sue."

She just smiled. Bob was always full of "important" ideas. Good old Bob. She treasured his friendship. She wished he wouldn't make love to her. She had noticed how all the other girls seemed thrilled when Bob daneed with them. Bob Towne, hero of the day. He who had grabbed a fast pass in the second quarter and fought his way for the game's only touchdown. "The bes' end man in the United States, law me!" Calculus Jones had declared exuberantly, and perhaps without exaggeration. People were saying Bob would surely make All-American.

The football team had ridden in cars to the big pep parade downtown, then had (under Coach Britt's orders) sprawled on their beds for an hour of rest, so that they could enjoy the dance. They had been individually introduced (as if they needed introduction!) when they came into the ballroom, the master of ceremonies making just the right little speech about each man. Similar courtesy was shown the Mexican players, who really had earned everybody's respect. Nobody could feel badly about losing a game, 6-0, against a team of Rice's caliber. The captain, Don Romero Celiedor, had congratulated the winners, smilingly paid high tribute to their sportsmanship, invited them to Mexico City another year. The applause had been prolonged.

"They are such courteous boys, the Mexicans, aren't they, T. J.?" Sara Sue was saying. "They bow and speak like knights or something, when they ask for a dance."

Early she had noted Thornton Holgate dancing, and apparently enjoying himself. "High jinks, Thorny?" she called, in passing him. He smiled his happiness. She hadn't seen him lately, though. Sara Sue wondered where Peaches disappeared after the first long intermission. "I hope she doesn't manage to spoil Thorny's evening," Sara Sue mused.

She saw Marcia Gurley beaming like somebody's little sister, in the arms of a Mexican fullback twice her size. The big fellow had to bend away over to hold the dainty Rice girl. It was almost comical. "Twist him around your finger, Marcia, honey!" Sara Sue called. Marcia winked back. The music was fast now, and two couples could not stay near each other for long.

Sara Sue hadn't seen Worthington Gurley since he checked in her coat— she had teased him good naturedly for being a slime—until this moment on the dance floor.

By chance now she saw him dart out of a hallway, pause a moment, then run toward the door. She thought that his expression was peculiary strained. Oh, well, probably just the sophomores up to more devilment.

But for once it wasn't the sophomores, of course.

That was the moment when Worthington had just seen Peaches Pomeroy slip the bracelet in the lining of Sara Sue's coat.

He had watched Peaches in utter astonishment. And he had concluded, rightly, that this was no hazing stunt, no devilment, but deviltry. He knew Peaches hated Sara Sue. He didn't know exactly what her plan was, but he knew that Peaches was secretly working some diabolical scheme to discredit Sara Sue. When he discovered that, and when he had seen Peaches leave the checking room, young Worthington had hastened out in a sort of daze.

He really didn't give any thought to where he was going. Wrapped in a sense of great alarm, he just started running, kid like. In emergency a child runs almost anywhere, just runs.

He knew that he must do something; find somebody. He surveyed the dancers for a brief moment, then plunged on toward the stairway, not even waiting for the elevator. The University club is only one floor up from the street, anyway. In a few seconds he was on the sidewalk, but was confused. He had some vague idea of going for police. Police. Everybody thinks automatically of police, in moments of danger.

"Ahnn-n-h!" he suddenly groaned, though.

He had remembered his uniform! His monkey suit. His "buttons"—the bell hop suit in which sophomores had dressed him quite involuntarily he let embarrassment at that control him, so that he blushingly darted back up the stairs to the clubroom again. Some recess of his mind had reminded him that he was now a married man, who could not be seen on the street in bell hop uniform! His mind, and his body seemed to be whirling around in circles, not very logically. But Mister Worthington Gurley, married man, still was very young.

A swarm of dancers engulfed him then, so that he was swept dazedly into the gaiety. He elbowed his way through to a window on the opposite side. Peering down, he still saw no policeman, anyway. In fact, he didn't know what he wanted. His legs were impatient. He started running again. Somewhere. Anywhere. A scared kid, with a tremendous secret. Very confused.

"Button, slime!" some upperclassman called, but he paid no attention.

His wife Marcia saw him as she danced by. "Worthington — darling!" she called out. She sensed that he was in trouble. But he couldn't talk to Marcia now! He couldn't spoil her evening. He waved hastily to her, and darted away, pushing through the dancers again rather than going around. Several couples bumped into him, but he didn't notice. He could think of nothing but a diamond bracelet in Sara Sue's coat, and of the terrible look in Peaches' face.

Unconsciously, now, he pushed himself toward the men's lounge.

This traditional sanctum of privacy was around an L in the larger hall. An electric sign announced it. First there was a large luxurious smoking-loafing room. Then two or three smaller and semi-private rooms, where a man could snatch a 10-minute rest if need be, sprawled on a divan. Beyond this was the larger white-tiled washroom, with several rather large private compartments inside. The University club was indeed an elaborately outfitted place.

Worthington noted that even the front lounge was empty—hilarity had been too great outside for men to miss any of the fun by loafing—but he moved on past the smaller lounges into the tiled room. There —for want of something, anything to calm his nerves—he paused at a fountain and swigged a long drink of ice water. This big room seemed deserted, too.

He leaned back against the white wall to think.

Should he telephone police? Or should he first go accost Peaches and tell her what he had discovered, threatening to expose her if she ever tried anything else sneaking on Sara Sue? Or should he go to Sara Sue and tell her? Or maybe to Bob Towne. Or T. J. Saunders, Sara Sue's escort. Gosh!

He drank some more ice water. He noted then that his heart was pounding.

During the few seconds he had stood there, a clicking noise had been coming from somewhere. An irregular click and slide, faint but noticeable. Except for the music now muted by doors and distance, this was the only sound in the big washroom.

Click.

Click - click - click, slide. Like rocks ticking together.

In a moment he knew it came from one of the smaller private rooms.

Unthinking, still confused and agitated by his other discovery, he moved ot the private room door and opened it. He gazed down at a man.

The man, dressed in tuxedo, was kneeling on the white tile floor alone. Alone, too, he was shaking dice, and throwing them, as if in click, slide. Click. And— a quart of whiskey, unmistakable in color and odor, stood on the floor nearby, open but apparently still full. The cork was near. A lone man, throwing dice, preparing to get drunk.

His emotions stopped the second after Worthington opened the door, and he looked up, quizzically, owl-eyed, his expression strained. Worthington's jaw dropped.

"Why, D-D-Dr. Holgate!" the lad exclaimed. "You — you — gos-s-sh!"

The HUMAN SIDE OF THE NEWS
BY EDWIN C. HILL

They Can Change the Name of Old Ireland, but They Can't Change the Nature of the Irish People

They have changed the name of old Ireland to "Eire", the ancient Gaelic, but they can't change the nature of the Irish people — their romantic love for old legends and old beliefs. The Irish Press of Dublin, a newspaper of consequence, says that "the little people"—the elfs and gnomes, the good fairies and the strange leprechauns — are coming back and have revealed themselves in the green fields and along the hedges of the countryside of western Ireland.

Maybe it's because the rest of the world is in such a mess over war, all snarling and quarrelling, that the little people, as they have been called for time out of mind, are returning to their old haunts and holding hands with the children. Anyway, many eye-witnesses have said so, good God-fearing people they are represented to be.

The Irish Press says that crowds of people gather in the fields and crossroads in the vicinity of Knockfierna, a hill rooted in every ancient tradition, hoping for a glimpse of the strange little people from another world, some good, some impish. Serious as you please, the Irish Press says this:

"John Keeley, a schoolboy, was walking alongside a road the other day when he saw a leprechaun, a little lone leprechaun. Johnny Keeley ran in haste and told his friends about it, and they advised him to go back and question the little man about whence he came and why. Johnny did so, but the leprechaun seemed to take offence and reminded the boy that it was none of his business. 'It's all equal to you,' says he, 'what my business is,' which certainly wasn't any too polite even for a little lone leprechaun."

When Johnny tried to catch the rascal he took to his heels and ran like a rabbit over hedges and through dirty ditches yet never scratching himself or soiling himself in the least. The very next day, Johnny and the two Mulqueen boys saw two more of the little people skipping rope, jumping near the height of a man.

The leprechauns were dressed all in red, according to what eye-witnesses told the Irish Press. One wore a white cape. All wore knee breeches and dancing pumps instead of shoes. They had hard hairy faces, like men, short fingers and no ears that one could make out. They were about two feet tall and clean and neat all the time.

So crowds gather these evenings at the Ballingarry crossroads in the hope of a glimpse of the little people and the dancing leprechauns. And there is talk of little else, not even of war. The old people shake their heads and talk of bad omens but the children are gay about it all. Many persons are actually afraid to go out of the house after dark. And I ask you plain, from where else could such a tale come, where else save old Ireland, or Eire as they call her now?

Strictly speaking, the Romans are the people of Rome, while Italians are the inhabitants of the Italian peninsula. The Romans of history were the people of Italy who were under the rule of Rome.

K. O., Kimberley—Why does snow crunch when walked upon on a very cold day?

On a very cold day the snow particles are hard, frozen and dry, and you hear a crunching sound in walking over it because the particles are rubbed together and broken. On the other hand, when the temperature is above freezing the particles of snow are soft and packed together, and you hear no crunching sound.

Sandy McNab felt good, and set out to celebrate,
In no time at all Sandy got in quite a state;
And later on was thrust out into

For dear old Sandy really was uncommonly tight.

He sat upon the sidewalk feeling very gay,
And scattered dollar bills around,
upon the right of way.
A friendly Jew passed by, and seized

Picked up all the bills and gave

The end of this sad story is very hard to tell,
For a "minion of the law" came by,
and pinched the Jew as well.

COLOSSAL NEWS—DIZ DEAN IS 28

By ALAN RANDAL

NEW YORK, Jan. 5 (CP).—Ol' Diz Dean is tired of having people say he doesn't know how old he is. . . So during the off season he got his Aunt Meade Nelson to look up the family Bible. . . It showed he'll be 28 Jan. 16. . . Incidentally, golf lost one of its most colorful players when the Doc told Diz his arm would be okay if spring. . . When Dean told the Doc he liked to "hit that ball a mile" it was decided he'd better leave the clubs alone. . .

REALLY IRISH

Billy Conn, the Pittsburgh middleweight who battles Fred Apostoli tomorrow night, has the answer to "did your mother come from Ireland?". . . "Yep," says Conn, "and the same goes for the old man." . . . A strange thing indeed in the boxing business these days to find a so-called "Irish" fighter whose parents both come from the Old Sod. . .Conn started fighting because he didn't want to work. . . After all, his "old man" worked all his life and just got old at it. . .

New York Americans are battered but not broken on the wheel of misfortune—injuries if you want to put it that way—but Red Dutton's old slogan "keep punching!" still goes... It is written in fresh chalk before every game on the dressing room blackboard... Before each game it's not uncommon to see Dutton excuse himself from a conversation with the words "I gotta go now, fellas—must get in and give the boys that "umph". . .

NO $40,000 FOR FOXX

Jimmy Foxx likely will do well in a contract way with Boston Red Sox next season but if he's really serious about demanding $40,000, old " double X" might as well leave on his holdout fishing trip right now. . . That's the kind of boodle, Joe DiMaggio wanted from the Yanks last year.. And remember how Joe learned his lesson.

War Admiral will race a couple of times before the $50,000 Widener handicap at Hialeah Park, March 4.. At 131 pounds, the Admiral will be packing one more pound than he did in winning the race last year. . . Ching Johnson, who admits to 42 years, says he will play hockey until he beats Moose Johnson's record . . . The Moose stayed in hockey until he was 46 and Ching, now with Minneapolis Millers, looks as agile as he did a year ago.

Sutcliffe Is Head Creston Gun Club

CRESTON, B. C.—Three hundred thousand cutthroat and Kamloops trout fry were planted in waters in Creston district during 1938, according to the report of President Charles Sutcliffe, at the annual meeting of Creston Valley Rod and Gun Club. The 1938 crow kill was in the neighborhood of 500. 80 pheasants were liberated in the Creston area, and a doven in the vicinity of Boswell.

President Sutcliffe presided at the gathering and there was a representative turnout of the 35 members the club boasts. Officers for 1939 saw the reelection of most of those who had charge in 1938, as follows:

President — Charles Sutcliffe; vice-president — Ronald Stewart; secretary—Harry Smith; treasurer—Victor Mawson; directors—Creston, John E. Hayden; West Creston, H. Adams; Wynndel, K. Hubbard; Camp Lister, Herbert Gobbett; Erickson, John Jackson; Sirdar, Walter V. Jackson; Kitchener, Ronald Stewart; Canyon, Lionel Moore; auditor—Robert Crosby; press secretary—Jack Payne.

For the crow kill a bounty of 10 cents a bird is paid by a group of Spokane sportsmen, who hunt in this section. A series of shoots was held by the club. The high gun for the year was Charles Sutcliffe, Victor Mawson and K. Huubbard next highest.

The distribution of the fish fry was as follows: Cuthroat—100,000 Goat river, 40,000 Arrow creek, 60,000 Baker lake and Lockhart creek, Kamloops — 20,000 Nursery creek, 50,000 Tam o' Shanter lake, 20,000 Bayonne lake.

In an effort to broaden the scope of club activities meetings were planned to be held at Wynndel, but the turnout for the first one was so slim that the idea was abandoned.

DIZZY DEAN

. . . the old popoff who made a hero of himself in his great performance for the Chicago Cubs in the last game of the world series. Here's what's new about him now:

20 GAMES THIS SEASON

CHICAGO, Jan. 5 (AP). — Dizzy Dean, never known as a master of understatement, told a breathless baseball world today his expensive right arm, lame most of last season, was okay again, and he would win 20 games for Chicago Cubs this season.

He didn't even wait for the report of Doctor Sumner Koch, noted surgeon who X-rayed the wing for which the Cubs paid $185,000 in 1938.

"I know my arm is okay again," Dean said, "because I took a peek at those X-ray things yesterday before they were dry and Ol' Diz has been X-rayed so often he's an expert."

Cub officials, a little less confident, hoped the star pitcher was right, but anxiously awaited what the X-ray shots revealed to Dr. Koch.

"If I feel as good when the bell rings as I do right now," Dean added, "I'll be surprised if I don't win 20 or 25 games. I feel swell. I have been leading a real simple life and it sure agrees with me."

OH, OF COURSE

Dean also set his listeners right on Brother Paul.

"His arm is so good he's playing golf again," Dizzy said. "Told him he'd win 20 games for St. Louis Cards and lose only four next season. He'll lose those four pitching against me, which is how many times I intend to beat those Cards."

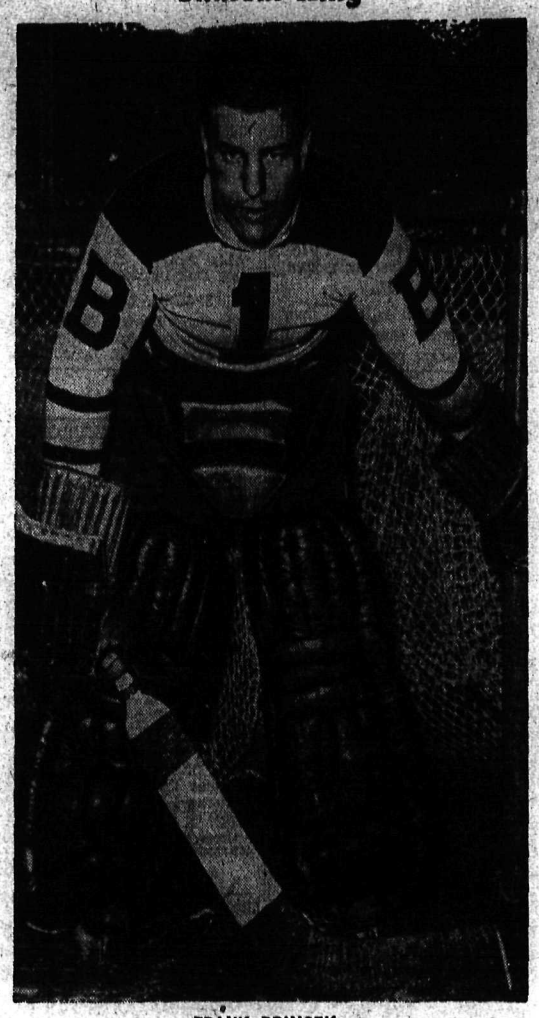
Shutout King



FRANK BRIMSEK

. . . . sensational rookie guardian of the Boston Bruins' net who has been gathering rather a lot of headlines of late. Not so many just now for his shutout streak has ended, but in six games, three of them in a row, the newcomer blanked opposing N.H.L. squads.

Other than Brimsek, Turk Broda of the Toronto Maple Leafs, is the only goalie with an average of less than two goals per game counted against him.

Leos Go to School

VANCOUVER, Jan. 5 (CP). — The Vancouver Lions went to school —in their Forum dressing room— today as Manager Guy Patrick opened a campaign to revitalize his ailing Pacific Coast Hockey league team.

Captain Jimmy Arnott was given the role of teacher. On a dressing room blackboard, Arnott showed the Leos new plays worked out by Manager Patrick.

There were attack and defence formations and a formula for clearing the puck out of Lion territory when the going gets heavy—a present Vancouver weakness.

The Leos will test the first result of their lessons against the league-leading Buckaroos here Monday night.

Skylark Skier

Even a non-skier can become enthusiastic about the up-and-down hill sport on occasion. You may have heard this pretty miss singing on the radio at some time or other. She's Jean Dickenson, and in addition to her vocal talent, which, incidentally, she is exercising here, she does a pretty fair turn on the wooden runners.

APOSTOLI, CONN BATTLE TONIGHT

NEW YORK, Jan. 5 (AP).—Freddy Apostoli, middleweight champion in this state and California and generally considered the world's top man at his weight, squares off against Billy Conn, a sassy Irishman from Pittsburgh, in a ten-round over the weight match at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night.

Apostoli has moved fast and far in the last year. Just a year ago Friday night he stopped Freddy Steele, the then questioned ruler of the weight in a bloody, non-title bout at the Garden. Since then he has lost and won over Young Corbett III., beaten Glen Lee, the durable Nebraskan twice and become champion in two states.

The former San Francisco bell hop is an odds-on favorite to win at a price of 1 to 3.

Conn comes into New York with a string of recent victories, the most notable over Solly Krieger, the somewhat battered Brooklynite, whom the National Boxing association recognizes as champ. The best guess is a crowd of 10,000 will be on hand.

The fight will be broadcast over NBC.

REMEMBER WHEN?

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Remember When—Black-haired Fred Perry, three-times winner of the All-England tennis championship and backbone of the all-conquering British Davis cup team the previous four years, made his professional debut at New York two years ago today. He whipped Ellsworth Vines, regarded as the best professional in the world, in four sets.

Schedule Changes Affect Site for the Hockey Meetings

Venue of the two games affected were changed as well as the date when two Kootenay Hockey league schedule revisions were made by hockey association officials here.

The January 16 game newly scheduled for Tuesday, January 17, will be Trail Blazers at Nelson; and the January 21 game changed to Friday, January 20, will be Nelson at Trail.

F. A. C. Juveniles Beat Scouts 5-3; Tie Leadership

F. A. C. Juveniles 5, Scouts 3.

Playing the only game of the day on the Nelson Amateur Hockey Association League schedule, the Fairview Athletic club's juvenile team handed the league leading Scouts a 5-3 beating. The F.A.C.'s are now tied for first place.

Little hockey was played between these teams with the exception of the Prestley brothers, who combined very nice for the first two Scout goals. The first time it was Mickey from Barney, and the second was Barney from Mickey. Ernie Defeo scored the last goal with a nice long shot from just inside the blueline.

Maloney scored the first counter for the Fairview boys. George Milne sniped three more for the F.A.C.'s, one being on a pass from Maloney, with just a minute to go and with the Scouts short handed, Jack Argyle scored on a breakaway.

Penalties were numerous as Referee Art Bradshaw and Linesman Bud Emery kept a close tab on the personal stuff. Matheson of the Scouts was given a major for deliberately slashing a Fairview player. Fairview received seven penalties and the Scouts eight. Those sent off from the F.A.C. were Dawson, Newell, Maloney, D. George, G. Milne and Jack Argyle, twice. From the Scouts were M. Prestley, B. Ramsden, McKinnon, Tarling, G. Price twice and Matheson twice. The officials were Art Bradshaw and Bud Emery on the ice, and Reid Sahara and Ron Newell, timekeeper and scorer.

20 WINS OR DIZ WILL PLAY FOR NAUGHT IN '40

CHICAGO, Jan. 5 (AP).—Dizzy Dean's famed right arm breezed over two fast ones today.

Within less time than it once took him to win a nine-inning mound duel, the loquacious pitcher of Chicago Cubs signed his 1939 contract and then passed, with flying colors, an examination of the right shoulder muscles which troubled him last season after the Cubs bought him for $185,000 and three players.

GONNA BE ALL RIGHT

"Boy, was this a red-letter day for me," he grinned as he handed his contract to Charles A. Weber, Cubs' vice-president and treasurer. "That ol' flipper is gonna be all right and the Cubs show me they're sure of it. What a club to work for. Why, if I don't win 20 games next season I'll sign for nothin' in 1940."

The statement like others he made in rapid-fire order, sounded like the Dean of old—cockily confident he would deliver. The Cubs think he will next year. They didn't reveal salary terms but Dean, it was reliably reported, will receive $20,000, the same salary he had last year when he appeared in only 13 contests, winning seven and losing one.

Vines Wins First Match

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 5 (AP)—Don Budge lost the first match of his professional tennis tour tonight in the city where he led the American Davis cup team to victory only a few months ago. He was beaten in straight sets, 6-3, 6-3 6-4, by Ellsworth Vines.

It was the first time Vines had won a set since their tour started in New York two nights ago.

A crowd of 7000 in Convention hall cheered Vines as he duplicated the beatings that Budge had handed him in New York Tuesday and again in Boston last night.

Vines found the baselines tonight and his judgment was keen. In contrast to his performance in Boston last night, he was zipping them over the net with perfect control and dropping them just inside the boundaries.

In several of the games Budge didn't score a point and he was weakening at the end of the match. Vines' last point was a sizzling service ace.

64 Elevens Battle in English Cup Third Round; Two Matches Stand Out

LONDON, Jan. 5 (CP.-Cable)—Sixty-four teams battle in the third round of the English cup Saturday. The round marks the entry in the famous soccer tournament of the 44 first and second division clubs, the remaining contests being made up of 17 third division and three minor league survivors of earlier rounds.

COUNTY vs. EVERTON

Two matches stand out in the list of cup-ties. Derby County, league leader, meets Everton, its closest rival, for the third time this season, and Arsenal and Chelsea, famous London clubs will oppose each other at Stamford Bridge.

The County took three out of four points from Everton during the Christmas series. Based on previous performances the Pensioners may turn out to be better than Arsenal and it is likely Chelsea's 82,905 attendance record will be passed. The Gunners are recalling their high-priced inside-forward, Bryn Jones for the all-London clash.

THE DRAW

The revised third-round draw:

Sheffield Wednesday vs. Yeovil and Peters.
West Bromwich Albion vs. Manchester United.
Portsmouth vs. Lincoln City.
Brentford vs. Newcastle United.
Southport vs. Raith Rovers.
Liverpool vs. Luton Town.
Barnsley vs. Stockport County.
Chester vs. Coventry City.
York City vs. Millwall.
Derby County vs. Everton.
Blackburn Rovers vs. Swansea Town.
Chelsea vs. Arsenal.
Sunderland vs. Plymouth Argyle.
Aston Villa vs. Ipswich Town.
Leeds United vs. Bournemouth.
Newport County vs. Walsall.
Queen's Park Rangers vs. West Ham United.
Leicester City vs. Stoke City.
Runcorn vs. Preston North End.
Tottenham Hotspurs vs. Watford.
Chelmsford City vs. Southampton.
Cardiff City vs. Charlton Athletic.
Norwich City vs. Manchester City.
Birmingham vs. Halifax Town.
Chesterfield vs. Southend United.

KOWCINAK STARS IN SMOKIES WIN

MUNICH, Germany, Jan. 5 (CP)—Trail Smoke Eaters overpowered the Riesser See hockey team here tonight 8-0.

Six thousand spectators at Prince Regent stadium saw the Canadian champions sweep aside their opponents with spectacular ease.

The score by periods was 2-0, 3-0 and 3-0. Left Wing Dick Kowcinak starred for the Canadians with three goals. Right Wing Joe Benoit and Centre Ben Hayes scored two each, while Wingman Ab Cronie got the other.

Last night the same Munich team held the Canadians to a 4-2 score. Tonight's game was the ninth for the British Columbia players on the current tour. They have won them all.

IT'LL TAKE A MIRACLE TO STOP THE RANGERS 'TIS SAID; UPSETS EXPECTED

GLASGOW, Jan. 5 (CP.-Cable) —Only a miracle can stop Glasgow Rangers from winning the Scottish Football league championship for the 24th time in 47 years of competition. Thirteen league matches remain to be played in the current campaign, but no team appears likely to overtake the fast-travelling Light Blues.

The famous Glasgow squad established clear superiority by winning the three-game holiday series and stretched its lead to nine points over Hearts who ousted Celtic from second place. Rangers now have 40 points, Hearts 31 and the Celts 30.

There are likely to be several upsets when the tired teams resume league activities at the weekend. Although Arbroath has shown distinct improvement in the past month the Gayfield Park outfit can hardly be expected to gain a point against the Rangers in Glasgow.

CELTS OVER ROVERS

Although Hearts gleaned only two points from the New Year's contests the Scottish capital team is hoping to gain maximum points against Ayr United at Tynecastle park while the Celts appear to have an easy task against the last-place Raith Rovers.

Three straight victories have allowed Falkirk to draw up into a tie for third place with Aberdeen, the teams having 29 points each. Falkirk may fall at Hamilton but the Dons are called to win from Hibernians at Pittodrie park.

Among the major circuit's remaining matches, the Queen of the South-Partick Thistle tussle at Dumfries should produce fine football and Queen's Park, highly enthused by a 1-0 victory over Celtic, oppose Motherwell at Hampden park.

Cowdenbeath, leader in the second division, goes to Montrose but the 17th place home team is not expected to win from the pace-setting squad, beaten only once this season.

Life of Goal-Tender Akin to That of Jitterbug at Times

What does your favorite minder of the twine look like in action? During the course of a game a goal-tended assumes all kinds of positions and goes through a good many contortions that would bring applause from a gymnastic squad or a vaudeville troupe. He dives to one side, falls to the ice, shouts directions to his teammates, shoots the puck down the ice or into the corner, and last, and with the least pleasure, looks around, at times, to see the little black disc denting the strings behind him. Here are presented some scenes from the heat of various National league battles, showing each of the league's seven goalies caught in poses vigorous, ludicrous, active, passive and miscellaneous. Starting at the top left and reading from left to right, we have Earl Robertson, Americans; Walter (Turk) Broda, Maple Leafs; Mike Karakas, Black Hawks; Claude Bourque (or is it Burke?), rookie with Canadiens; Frank Brimsek, Tiny Thompson's replacement in Boston; Dave Kerr, Rangers; and the veteran, and possibly the best of the lot, Tiny Thompson, Detroit Red Wings.

Farewell Tea Given Mrs. F. M. Brady By New Denver United Ladies Aid

NEW DENVER, B.C.—The United Ladies aid and friends of Mrs. F. M. Brady tendered her a delightful farewell tea Thursday at the home of Mrs. J. Taylor.

The beautifully appointed tea table was covered with a lovely lace cloth, centred with a cut glass vase of bronze and yellow mums, with yellow tapers on either side in cut glass sconces.

Presiding at the tea urns were Mrs. A. Francis and Mrs. J. Taylor, while servitieurs were, Mrs. A. Ham, Mrs. A. L. Harris, Mrs. J. Dewar and Miss Nellie Alywin.

The invited guests were Mrs. F. M. Brady, Mrs. A. Ham, Mrs. J. Tier, Mrs. A. L. Harris, Mrs. J. C. Harris, Mrs. J. A. Greer, Mrs E. Butchart, Mrs. F. Browne, Miss Nellie Alywin, Mrs. J. Dewar, Mrs. A. Francis, Miss Gladys Reynolds R.N., Miss L. Boyd, R.N., Mrs. E. Nelson, Mrs. E. Kirkwood, Mrs. E. Angrignon, Mrs. A. Carter, Mrs. L. R. Campbell, Mrs. M. J. Nesmith, Mrs. J. Burkitt, Mrs. G. Burkitt, Miss M. Butlin, Mrs. A. D. Trickett, Mrs. O. V. White, Mrs. C. Hanson of Zeballos, Mrs. W. J. George, Mrs. E. Tier, Mrs. T. Wilson, Mrs. J. Draper, Mrs. H. G. Gunn, Miss Hope Taylor, R.N., Mrs. W. Jeffrey, Miss Othelia Olsen of Nelson, Mrs. A. C. Bowness of Cranbrook, Mrs. C. McKay and Mrs. Taylor.

Mrs. J. Dewar presented Mrs. Brady with two lovely colored pictures of the Slocan district.

The gift was accompanied by a card containing the names of all the guests.

In making the presentation Mrs. Dewar said:

"At this occasion where the old year is passing and the new year is dawning we begin to look for surprises. But we certainly were not prepared for the surprise when we heard that Mr. and Mrs. Brady were leaving us at the beginning of the New Year.

"We all felt we could not let Mrs. Brady leave us without giving her some small token of our esteem. In making this presentation of two lovely pictures, let me say that we made no attempt to find something very valuable or useful but rather that which would remind her of her stay in New Denver.

"The word lovely is not a strong enough word to express the Slocan. It is as someone has said the 'Lucerne of B.C.' We trust that as her eyes at times rests upon the views of the silvery Slocan she will remember the many friends and well wishers which she found here.

"Needless to say we are going to miss Mr. and Mrs. Brady in both church and market, and we wish them every success in their new environment.

"Mrs. Brady, in asking you to accept these pictures, as I have already said, we give them to you as reminders of your many friends and well wishers of the Slocan Valley".

Mrs. Brady in a few well-chosen words thanked them for the presentation.

Trial of Validity of Fuel Act Held Over for a Week

VICTORIA, Jan. 5 (CP). — The British Columbia government has agreed to a week's postponement in the trial to determine validity of the Provincial Coal and Petroleum Products Control Board act under which an effort has been made to reduce the retail gasoline price.

The hearing, which was set for next Monday, will open the following Monday, Jan. 16.

Attorney-General Gordon Wismer said the start of the trial was postponed at the request of counsel for major oil companies which are contesting the right of the Provincial Coal and Petroleum Products Control board to reduce the price.

Both sides are making examinations for discovery in Vancouver this week.

J. Pitcairn Hogg, legislative counsel who is associated with the attorney-general in conducting the government's case, is doing this work for the crown.

The trial, which will be in Vancouver, is expected to last about a week.

The project would provide large power resources that might be utilized for development of industries on the shores of Dean channel.

Foot, Mouth Disease Epidemic Would Be End of Canada Trade

OTTAWA, Jan. 5 (CP). — Foot and mouth disease, a sword of Damocles hanging over the world's livestock industry has never touched Canada due to the eagle eye of Dominion department of agriculture inspectors, who today presented a rough picture of just what such an epidemic would mean.

If in some manner the foot and mouth disease virus, so small it cannot be seen by the most powerful microscope, managed to elude the border guards and infect Canadian farm animals, it would mean sudden catastrophe to agricultural and associated industries.

Within a few hours even, practically all export outlets for Canadian cattle, sheep and swine, also meat and meat products, might be shut down and a trade that has required years to acquire might be wholly lost, for it would take a long time to restore world confidence in Canadian livestock.

Creameries and dairy factories, packing plants and stockyards might have to close. Markets and expositions would be prohibited. Even cats and dogs, pigeons and poultry would have to be confined and examined.

The United States is so keenly alive to the foot and mouth disease that a special train, fully equipped to combat an outbreak, is kept waiting on a siding at Chicago in instant readiness to dash to any part of the country when the call comes. Last U. S. outbreak was in 1932.

Canada keeps a rigid lookout abroad as well as at her own borders. Any country suffering from the disease finds Canada's doors resolutely locked against her animal products.

Bonds Still Climb

NEW YORK, Jan. 5 (AP).—Bonds generally continued their upward surge today in brisk trading.

A notable exception to the rule was the trend on U. S. treasury issues which slipped slightly while the market awaited details of the 1939-40 federal budget.

TRADERS FIND FAULT WITH NEW ZEALAND'S IMPORT RESTRICTIONS

WELLINGTON, New Zealand Jan. 5 (CP-Rueters)—Considerable dissatisfaction was expressed today as traders surveyed the first applications of the government's new import restriction policy which appeared virtually to bar Japanese goods and to reduce drastically imports from other countries, including Canada.

Importers complained early results showed lack of system in application of the government's powers. The experience of Auckland firms indicated a complete stoppage of imports from Japan and various reductions in United States and Empire goods.

One Christ Church importer analysed thus the results of application of the system to his imports of metal goods other than hardware and tools: U.S. goods cut 79 per cent, German 74 per cent, Australian 70 per cent, Canadian 58 per cent and United Kingdom goods 23 per cent.

Manufacturers importing machinery and raw materials, particularly those importing from the United Kingdom, appeared satisfied but others said the present application of the policy made it impossible to plan buying programs.

One thousand tons of Manitoba wheat and 500 tons of Canadian amber durum are now on their way to Palestine for a miller in Tel-Aviv. In 1937 Canada exported 442 tons of wheat to Palestine.

To Discuss Wheat Price Cut, London

LONDON, Jan. 5 (AP).—What to do about drastic cuts in the price of wheat, caused by successive bumper crops for a number of years, will be discussed by representatives of the world's principal wheat nations at the international wheat conference opening here next Tuesday.

The conference was called at the request of the United States, Great Britain, France and Australia. Twenty-one nations, including Canada, will be represented.

(A dispatch from Buenos Aires said Argentina, grower of one-tenth of the world wheat crop, would attend the conference despite past reluctance to enter agreements fixing minimum prices or establishing export quotas).

SASK. MERCHANTS ASK FOR RETAIL SALES ACT

REGINA, Jan. 5 (CP).—Legislation which would give to the retail merchants an instrument by which price levels could be maintained at a fair level is asked of the government by the Saskatchewan Retail Merchants association.

Legislation asked was similar to the act in operation in other parts of Canada known as the Commodities Retail Sales act.

REVISION OF CUSTOMS ACT TO BE A BIG JOB FOR PARLIAMENT MEET

OTTAWA, Jan. 5 (CP)—One of parliament's big jobs this session will likely be the consolidation and revision of the customs and tariff acts. Work on this has occupied a committee of revenue department officials for the past two years.

Amended many times since confederation, the customs act has accumulated innumerable clauses, which people whose business it is to deal with it, regard as contradictory.

It is probable the government will introduce the revision early in the session and appoint a special committee of the commons to hear representations.

So extensive is the task even if the bill is introduced this year it may have to lie over for another session before being finally completed.

O'Brien Declares First Dividend

OTTAWA, Jan. 5 (CP).—Directors of O'Brien Mines, Ltd., today declared an interim dividend of 10 cents a share. This will be the company's first dividend.

Hudson Bay Mining added ⅝ to go ¼ cent beyond its 1938 high at 35¼. Smelters gained ¼ but Nickel eased ½.

St. Lawrence Corporation Paper firmed ⅛. International Petroleum gained ⅛ and Imperial Oil was a shade lower.

PRICE CHANGES NARROW, COAST

VANCOUVER, Jan. 5 (CP). — Price changes were held within narrow range on the Vancouver stock exchange today. Oil trading slackened a little while golds were more active. Transactions totalled 237,260 shares.

Home oil declined 10 cents at 3.35, Okalta was off 5 at 1.55 and Calgary & Edmonton lost 4 at 2.56. Anglo Canadian was up 1 at 1.49 and Royal Canadian firmed 1½ at 21½.

Pioneer gold added 5 at 2.55, and Island Mountain was up 2 at 1.35. Privateer gained a cent at 1.26. Big Missouri slipped 3 at 27 and remaining golds held steady.

Customs, Excise and Income Tax Totals

OTTAWA, Jan. 5 (CP).—The national revenue department collected a net total of $353,320,804 for the nine months ending last Dec. 31, through its three divisions of customs, excise and income tax, Hon. J. L. Ilsley, minister of revenue, said today.

This compares with $359,319,269 collected during the corresponding period for the previous year and is a net decrease of $5,998,965.

Collections in detail were: Income tax $129,197,426, increase $21,806,594; customs duties $61,273,765, decrease $11,956,976; excise taxes $121,493,786, decrease $14,849,895; excise duties $40,812,515, decrease $936,652; sundry collections $542,812, decrease $62,037.

Steels, Aircraft Lose at New York

NEW YORK, Jan. 5 (AP).—Steels and aircrafts bogged down fractions to more than two points in today's stock market and more other issues slipped.

Wall Street, with eyes centred on Washington, found two major pieces of news to digest.

Foremost was the president's budget message recommending continuation of huge deficit spending, airesaged in his opening address to congress, with the public debt in the next fiscal year reaching a new record peak. Secondly was Mr. Roosevelt's appointment of Harvard's Professor Frankfurter to the U S. supreme court.

Some financial quarters saw "inflationary" prospects in the latest budget, but stock buyers appeared timid because of doubts regarding just how far the lawmakers would go in the spending plans. Neither the budget nor the Frankfurter appointment was believed to have been a surprise to boardrooms.

Transfers approximated 1,500,000 shares.

Feeble rallying efforts were displayed by the Canadian group with McIntyre and Lake Shore up minor fractions. Dome, however, dipped as much. Canada 4s ran into moderate selling.

On the losing side were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, United Aircraft, Glenn Martin, Sperry, Douglas Aircraft, Boeing, Santa Fe, Great Northern, Goodyear, Union Carbide, Montgomery Ward and International Harvester.

Resistant were Consolidated Edison, Electric Power & Light, Public Service of N. J., Cerro de Pasco, Loft and Cluett Peabody.

VANCOUVER, Jan. 5 (CP).—H. N. Lister, who pleaded guilty to six charges of breaking and entering was sentenced to two years less one day by Magistrate H. S. Wood in police court today.

Lister in court yesterday claimed he had been under the influence of liquor at the time of the robberies.

Funeral Service Late Kootenaian at Westminster

TRAIL, B. C., Jan. 5 — In New Westminster today funeral services were held for Alfred Clay Smith, 70, former Trail, Slocan City and Cranbrook business man, who died in Vancouver General hospital on New Year's day. Burial took place in Ocean View Burial park.

Mr. Smith was well known in the Kootenays, going into business in Slocan City in 1898. After a few years he moved to Cranbrook where he was employed in a wholesale tobacco business until 1923. In that year he came to Trail and in partnership with H. S. Gamble bought out the wholesale tobacco business of S. J. Mighton. In 1926 he sold out his interest to Elliott Crowe. Mr. Smith was known as a hard worker and a prosperous business man.

Born at Amherst, N. S., Mr. Smith came to British Columbia 50 years ago.

He is survived by five brothers: Frank of Vancouver; Ernest and Arthur in Nova Scotia; Burton and Ross of Windsor, Ont., and a sister, Mrs. Pearl Furlong, in Nova Scotia.

CHAMBERLAIN

"In these islands, where there is so clear a realization that only through freedom and peace can we hope to maintain and develop for ourselves and those that come after us the benefits for which we have labored for generations, the sentiments expressed by the president will be welcomed as yet another indication of the vital role of the American Democracy in world affairs and its devotion to the ideal of ordered human progress."

GRAND SPEECH

Mr. Lloyd George on his farm in Wales said of Mr. Roosevelt's address: "It was a grand speech. I listened to every word of it with growing satisfaction and delight. If it is followed by action not only in home but in foreign affairs, it will be the opening of a new era for human freedom."

Clement Attlee, leader of the opposition in the house of commons, said: "I welcome the president's message as showing a realization that the Fascist menace to civilization and democracy concerns America as well as Europe and that Liberty must be fortified by economic reconstruction to solve the problem of povery in the midst of plenty."

Alfred Duff Cooper, former first lord of the admiralty, said: "It was a fine, epoch-making speech which put fresh heart into free people all over the world."

Sir Percy Harris, chief Liberal whip in the house of commons, said: "While our prime minister has been hobnobbing with dictators, president Roosevelt is telling them that aggression must be terminated . . . It is now up to the premier to make this clear to Signor Mussolini when he visits Rome."

High Tribute Is Paid F. A. Wardle

TRAIL, B. C., Jan. 5—High tribute was paid to Frank Albert Wardle at his funeral service at Knox United church yesterday by Rev. M. W. Lees.

There was a large attendance at the services, and many floral tributes. Hymns sung were "Abide With Me" and "Lead Kindly Light." Mrs. G. Small gave a lovely rendition of "For All the Saints Who From Their Labors Rest."

Interment was in Mountain View cemetery, pallbearers being W. C. Mackenzie, G. A. V. Sandercombe, C. Selby, H. O'Dell, O. Neidermann and R. Leonard.

BREN GUN PROBE

Mr. Justice Davis was appointed a commission of one to examine the contract after its negotiation and terms had been criticized in an article written by Lieut.-Col. George Drew, now Ontario Conservative leader, and published last September in Maclean's magazine.

The contract is for 7000 Bren machine guns to be manufactured by John Inglis Company Limited, Toronto, on a 10 per cent cost-plus basis. The same firm has a companion order from the British war office for 5000 guns, negotiated at the same time.

Relations between Major J. E. Hahn, head of the Inglis company, and Defence Minister Ian MacKenzie and his departmental officials leading up to the contract and failure of the department to ask for public tenders for the guns were the main subjects inquired into during hearings which last about two months.

"We who understand him felt that his uncompromising language was but the forerunner to a most generous action. That action became manifest when on Dec. 1 von Ribbentrop (German foreign minister) signed the French-German accord in Paris where all claims to Alsace-Lorraine are renounced for all time.

JUST BE PATIENT

"Just be patient—you will see something wonderful emerge after these weeks of violent language."

The German editor's suggestion seemed borne out somewhat by the fact a European news agency quoted a propaganda ministry official as saying "we are most anxious for good relations with the United States the violence of newspaper comment notwithstanding."

Rather significantly, Politisch-Diplomatische Korrespondenz, a publication which speaks semi-officially for the foreign office, was far milder in its comment on President Roosevelt's message of yesterday than was the Daily Press. Politisch-Diplomatische Korrespondenz expressed belief Mr. Roosevelt's strictures were prompted by considerations of domestic politics and a desire to justify his huge rearmament program.

It observed "perhaps it may be said in Roosevelt's favor that he does not know the new Germany and that obviously he also cannot understand what national unity and liberation from a foreign yoke mean to a people."

KELOWNA COLLECTIONS REACH NEW HIGH IN '38

KELOWNA, B. C., Jan. 5 (CP)—British Columbia government collections through this Okanagan city reached a record high in 1938, it was revealed today by sub-agent C. W. Dickson. The 1938 total amounted to $89,248, compared with $82,995 in 1937.

Motor car licenses issued in the last 10 months of 1938 were higher than the number for the entire year 1937. A total of 2070 car licenses were issued last year, as against 2067 the year before.

Building permits issued in the city, though below 1937 in value, showed a bigger proportion for construction of new homes than ever before. The total for the year was $140,665 without any major construction. In 1937 the total was $158,805 including a new past office.

Customs collections dropped from the 1937 figures. Total collections for 1939 were $38,857 as against $44,421 in 1937.

Registrations at the vital statistics office increased last year. In 1938 there were 280 births, 88 deaths and 96 marriages registered compared with 221 births, 79 deaths and 83 mariages in the previous year.

BURST WATER MAIN CAUSES DAMAGE

CALGARY, Jan. 5 (CP).—Bursting of a water main pipe in the downtown business section of the city early today sent thousands of gallons of water hurtling down Eight avenue and flooded many basements of stores and other business blocks.

Considerable damage was done to pavement, especially on Eighth and Ninth avenues. Damage to basements and good therein may run into thousands of dollars.

NEWSBOY'S DREAM TO HEAR OPERA COMES TRUE

NEW YORK, Jan. 5 (CP)—Smiling broadly from under a dented derby hat and so choked with anticipation that talking came difficult, George Malaiko, crippled, opera-loving Toronto newsboy, arrived in New York this morning to hear the Metropolitan company do his favorite opera, "Don Giovanni."

Officials of the Metropolitan Opera company, having heard of the 54-year-old newsboy's ambition, sent him railroad fare to New York and a pair of tickets for tonight's performance of "Don Giovanni". George was so fond of that opera, he once pawned his watch to hear it in Berlin.

But the reporters who swarmed around at George's arrival were a little let down when instead of a ragged, wide-eyed newspaper peddler they met a middle-aged man who smoked a cigar just like a big capitalist. The reporters were downcast when George explained this was his 18th trip to New York to attend the opera.

George suavely recounted the reason his finances were so bad was that his stock market investments had been faring unhappily. George said he sold papers outside the Toronto stock exchange on Bay street part of the time and some of the brokers gave him advice on what to buy.

LONDON (CP). — Patients in the Great Ormond Street hospital for Sick Children were delighted to see a pigeon which flew in through a window after lights were out, had a meal of biscuits and departed in the morning.
