OVER 1000 DIE IN RUMANIAN EARTHQUAKE

Death Ends Chamberlain's Long Struggle for Peace

By The Canadian Press

It fell to the lot of Neville Chamberlain, who once described himself as "a man of peace from the depths of my soul," to lead the British Empire to war against Germany.

On Sept. 3, 1939, in announcing to the House of Commons and nation the fact that Germany's invasion of Poland had brought into effect Britain's guarantee and that consequently Britain was at war, he said:

"I can not tell what part I may be allowed to play but I trust I may live to see the day when Hitlerism has been destroyed and a restored and liberated Europe has been reestablished."

That hope was denied him.

Once, when war seemed imminent over the acute crisis between Germany and Czecho-Slovakia, he staved it off at the 11th hour with the historic "Pact of Munich".

For this he was hailed in London and throughout most of the world. He brought back "peace in our time," he said. Hitler signed with him a declaration that the British and German people planned to fight each other no more. But it was was a scrap of paper. Six months later Hitler broke his word by entering Prague; in another six months he invaded Poland.

The day war began Mr. Chamberlain brought Winston Churchill into his Cabinet as First Lord of the Admiralty.

Mr. Chamberlain devoted himself as whole-heartedly for victory with arms as he had striven for peace. But Britain was not ready. There were staggering problems to be met against the fully-prepared Germans. Crisis arose in the Government.

Many members of his Conservative party voted against him after bitter debate. He was sustained on a vote of confidence by only a narrow margin. Last May 10 he resigned.

Winston Churchill succeeded him. The new Prime Minister, an admirer of Mr. Chamberlain's qualities of tenacity and sincerity, invited him into the Government as Lord President of the Council.

Then came a serious operation for an abdominal ailment during the Summer of 1940. He returned to his duties after a long rest, his health below par, and Oct. 3, he resigned, stating he had suffered a relapse and needed to seek rest.

Neville Chamberlain, the second successive British steel magnate to occupy the post of Prime Minister and the third of his immediate family to play a leading role in contemporary British history, was a hard-headed business man who was nearly 50 years old before he became a national figure.

Despite this, and despite too the overshadowing brilliance of his father, Joseph Chamberlain, and his half-brother, Sir J. Austen Chamberlain, he went higher than either of them. It fell to his lot, in fact, to carry through the project that was dearest to the heart of his father when, in 1932, as Chancellor of the Exchequer, he introduced an Empire-preference tariff schedule in his budget. This reversed the century-old British policy of free imports, a project for which his father had fought vainly from 1903 until his death in 1914. With Austen Chamberlain among his Parliamentary auditors, the son said:

"I believe he would have found consolation for the bitterness of his disappointment if he could have foreseen that these proposals, which are the direct and legitimate descendants of his own conception, would be laid before the House of Commons by the lips of one and in the presence of the other of the two immediate successors of his name and blood."

Speaking on July 8, 1936, the centenary of his father's birth, Neville said tariffs had brought prosperity to the country and that Joseph Chamberlain's prophecies had been fulfilled.

Chamberlain, as Prime Minister, was noted for his sound grip on foreign affairs, studied largely while he was Chancellor of the Exchequer under his predecessor, Stanley Baldwin. Early in his tenure he virtually took over the direction of the Foreign Office, gave his young Foreign Secretary, Anthony Eden, a vacation and tightened up the strings of British policy.

Chamberlain worked to smooth out difficulties with dictator countries. A personal note to Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy in August, 1937, on Italo-British friendship bore good fruit. But in February, 1938, when Chamberlain pursued his policy despite a German Nazi rapprochement in Austria, Eden resigned. To a tumultuous House of Commons, Chamberlain shouted he had to seek understandings with Rome and Berlin to avoid war and he denounced as "sham" the League of Nations idea of opposing aggression with force.

Chamberlain was born March 18, 1869, second son of Joseph Chamberlain. He was christened Arthur Neville but early dropped the first name. His education was gained at Rugby and at Mason College, Birmingham.

After a few years in the business of manufacturing screws and other steel products in Birmingham, he went to the West Indies in 1890 where his father had purchased a sisal plantation. Seven years of hard work there brought no material reward, for the venture proved a failure, costing the elder Chamberlain $250,000.

Back in England Neville Chamberlain interested himself in the affairs of his native city and in 1915 became Lord Mayor of Birmingham, an office which his father had held 40 years before. He entered national politics in 1918 when he was elected Member of Parliament for the Ladywood division of Birmingham.

He was Postmaster General in 1922, Paymaster General in 1923, Chancellor of the Exchequer 1923-24, Minister of Health 1924-29, and Chancellor of the Exchequer again 1931-37.

He became Prime Minister May 28, 1937, when Stanley Baldwin retired after engineering the abdication of Edward VIII and the coronation of George VI.

Mr. Chamberlain resigned as Prime Minister in May, 1940. He was succeeded by Winston Churchill, who persuaded him to enter the War Cabinet.

As Chancellor of the Exchequer Chamberlain brought his early business training and acumen into good use. He converted the great mass of World War loans into new issues with lower interest rates and so saved the taxpayers huge sums, although he later was called upon to get much of this back because of the enormous cost of the country's rearmament program.

He was in charge of the Treasury when Britain departed from the gold standard in 1931, when the United States followed suit in 1933 and when war debt payments were halted. He had a hand in the muchly criticized Ottawa Empire Conference and in the succeeding ill-starred 1933 World Economic Conference at London.

In 1911 he married Annie Vere Cole, daughter of any army officer. A son and a daughter were born to them.

Chamberlain had some unusual hobbies and, with characteristic thoroughness, made himself something of an authority on such subjects as birds and orchids.

Another pastime was fishing. Habitually he visited salmon streams a few days before his annual budget speeches as Chancellor of the Exchequer. He said the peace and quiet of the sport were a great relief after the weeks of hard work and anxiety which accompanied preparation of the Government's financial program.

He suffered much from gout. This was hereditary as his father frequently was attacked by the same complaint.

Chamberlain had an excellent film manner and news reel operatives were enthusiastic about him as a subject. His manner before the cameras was easy and natural, his voice recorded well and his "timing" made prepared remarks sound spontaneous.

Only occasionally did he reveal his innermost thoughts and feelings. One such occasion took place in Leeds when he officially opened a health clinic. He said:

"One must remember what happens to the family when the mother is taken away and young children are left who never can have the care and influence which a mother alone can exercise." Then, in softer tone, he added: "My own mother died in childbirth."

Hearers recalled that as Minister of Health he had worked assiduously on a campaign to reduce such deaths.

In the political arena he was an uncompromising foe but his opponents appreciated his sincerity and directness of speech. His public addresses, both on the hustings and in the House of Commons, were delivered in a level, hard voice were much to the point and based upon almost unimpeachable logic. He once was termed "as innocent of passion as an iceberg."

Friends said he was loyal to the core, to his native city, his party, its leaders and principles and to his friends.

He was leader of a powerful group of die-hard Tories. As Chancellor of the Exchequer he was said to have been chiefly responsible for vetoing the inclusion of David Lloyd George in the "national" Cabinet which Ramsay MacDonald headed after the financial debacle of the Labor Government in August, 1931. Later he killed all chances of that Government's adopting Lloyd George's "new deal" scheme of relieving unemployment through public works.

Chamberlain had a sense of humor which came out unexpectedly when he was introducing the 1934 budget. It was known that the Labor Opposition had prepared a fiery outburst based upon their belief that cuts in the dole were not to be restored. Chamberlain slowly expounded his financial program and toward the end relaxed into a rare smile as he gleefully announced a full restoration of the cuts in unemployment relief and, also, a reduction in the income tax. The whole program of the Labor party had to be revamped.

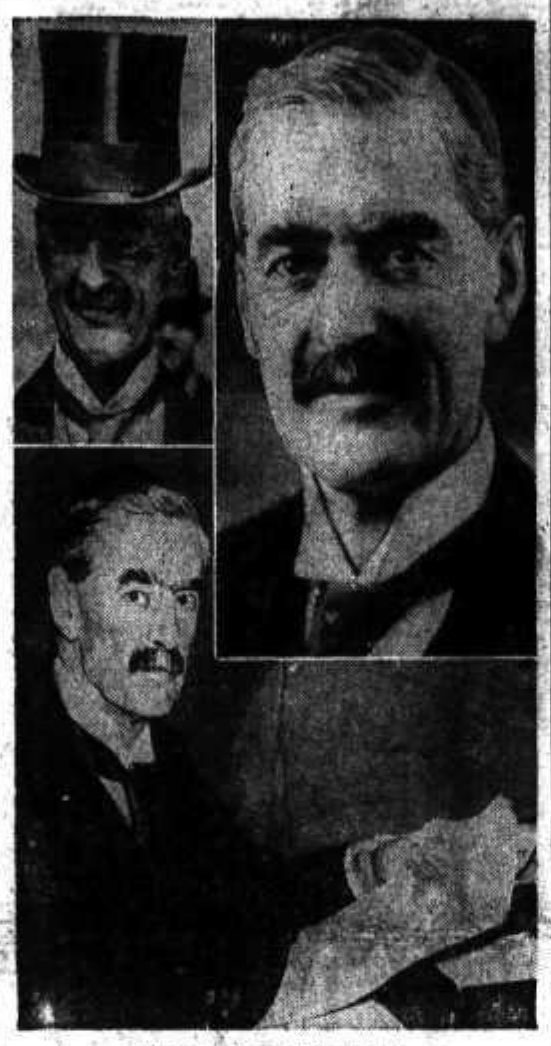
He was an indefatigable worker for peace. In and out of the House of Commons he voiced his desire for better international understandings and he appealed to both his own countrymen and to other nations to discard suspicions.

But he was far from being a pacifist. He could appeal to Mussolini, man to man, for friendship between England and Italy, could frown officially and publicly upon proposals for sanctions against Japan because of that country's 1937 campaign in China, and could push diplomatic efforts to bring about a workable understanding with Nazi Germany. But, also, he was a firm supporter of Britain's fabulous rearmament program, a plan which visioned expenditures totalling $7,500,000,000 and he could rely upon that program to show that he would not be bullied or bluffed.

Shortly after he became Prime Minister rumbles from across the Rhine heralded the hour when Adolf Hitler might demand the return of Germany's pre-war colonies. In October, 1938, Chamberlain, in his iciest manner, declared:

"I can imagine no more sobering thought to any ruler who might be contemplating aggression against his neighbor, than the knowledge that within a few hours his action might be followed by retaliation from a force of such terific striking power as our new air force possesses."

ODIHAM, England, Nov 10 (CP)—Former Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, who led Britain into war after vain years of struggle to save Europe's peace, died Saturday night at his countryside home here. It is understood his body will be taken to Westminster Abbey, burial place of Britain's great, tomorrow.



Three studies of Chamberlain.

He was 71 years old.

Weakened by months of illness, Mr. Chamberlain had fallen into a coma before death came at 5:30 p. m., Saturday.

Britain learned only today of his death. A small, saddened congregation at St. Michael's Church, adjacent to the Chamberlain estate, prayed for him at Vesper services tonight and heard Rev. H.R.P. Tringham say in eulogy:

"Blessed are the peacemakers for they shall be called the children of God and no one has worked harder for our peace. Although his work seemed a failure it was a grand failure.

For several days Mr. Chamberlain had lain gravely ill in Heckfield House, near this Hampshire town, and had been so deeply in coma before death came that he probably never knew that the King and the Queen spent an hour at his bedside during the week.

With him in his old farmhouse when he died were his wife and two sisters.

His rambling, two-storey home, standing behind a grove of tall birches in the heart of the Hampshire countryside, had been camouflaged to hide it from German airmen.

Recently, seven bombs dropped close to it, at least one only 40 yards away.

So secret was his death kept for the first hours that the congregation of St. Michael's prayed this morning for the recovery of "our neighbor."

It was understood that Mr. Chamberlain's body will be taken to London within the next day or two and there was talk of burial in Westminster Abbey, in whose crypts lie the remains of many of Britain's great.

Death came peacefully to the man who bargained with Hitler for "peace in our time" and who led Britain into the war when that bargain was shattered by Nazi greed and aggression.

The statesman retired to private life last Oct. 3 when he failed to recover from a severe operation.

His illness started in August when he was Lord President of the Council in the Churchill War Cabinet. Although he returned to his official duties for a short time, it was apparent his health was shattered.

As soon as Mr. Chamberlain's death became known in Birmingham where he was born the city went into mourning.

Crack Division of Italians Smashed

WAR SECRETARY TO SHAKE UP ITALIANS

ROME, Nov. 10 (AP).—Mussolini has dispatched his Under-Secretary of War, General Ubaldo Soddu, directly to Albania to shake up the offensive against Greece, the High Command reported today, and Italian cavalry has been sent into action there.

Prisoners, All Sorts of Equipment Taken

ATHENS, Nov. 11 - (Monday) - (AP)—Italy suffered "very heavy" casualties and fiercely fighting Greek soldiers captured a large number of prisoners and quantities of all sorts of war materials in the complete defeat of a crack Alpini Centaur Division in the Pindus Mountains, the Greek High Command announced today.

The story of the bitterly fought campaign which began when Italy invaded Greece and ended only Saturday in the rout of the entire division was told in the terse language of an official communique.

Another but lesser triumph over the Italians was reported in authoritative circles, which said the Greeks crushed an Italian attack and exterminated two Fascist battalions on the Kalamas River sector of Western Greece.

That, apparently, was the action to which the High Command devoted a paragraph in its communique saying that Greek artillery on the Epirus front shelled "enemy concentrations which suffered losses and were dispersed after leaving war material of all sort in our possession."

The trapped and defeated division of Alpini has been in Italian-conquered Albania for a year and was fully acquainted with conditions in the mountainous area the High Command said.

While the number of Italians killed or captured was not given here, reports received Saturday, soon after the fate of the division became virtually certain, said 2500 officers and men already had been taken prisoners.

An Italian air attack on the Canae section of the Island of Crete was driven off with one raiding plane shot down in flames.

Greek sources said their planes had displayed great activity at the front while British Royal Air Force planes were bombing Italian ports.

British aid continued to reach the Greeks in great force.

The Greeks were firmly entrenched in their reinforced positions, and the Italians appeared to have been stopped cold in the coastal area where last week they made some advances.

The Saturday night communique said an Italian attack "on the right front supported by artillery" has been repulsed, and 80 Italians had been captured in other local engagements.

Frozen Radiators and Pipes Follow 2-Day Cold Snap

Frozen car radiators, frozen water pipes, ice-covered puddles and the widespread use of Winter overcoats were among the results of a bitter cold snap over the weekend which on both Saturday and Sunday sent the mercury to new low temperatures for the season to date and on Sunday held it below the freezing point all day. In fact, the mercury did not rise above the 28-degree mark Sunday.

A number of reports of frozen water pipes were heard Sunday and many of the unwary had to bring out kettles to thaw out car radiators.

Saturday was brisk, but in the evening a chilling wind sprang up and few people were to be seen on the streets. Sunday the cold continued and except for the few hardy fishermen after a derby-winning "big one", Nelsonites stayed indoors or else went out warmly garbed.

Saturday's temperature extremes were 28 and 40 degrees, while Sunday's were 22 and 28, the lowest minimum temperatures of the season to date.

R.C.M.P. Captures Armed Convicts

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., Nov. 10 (CP). — Royal Canadian Mounted Police late Saturday recaptured two armed convicts who Friday night slugged an R. C. M. P. officer and escaped from jail here.

The convicts, Tom Starr, 23, and John Spade, alias Douglas Hoy, 23, were being taken to penitentiary after being sentenced to five-year terms for robbery with violence in Calgary.

When they made their escape, the men stole a .45 revolver and eight rounds of ammunition from the unconscious officer. Despite the fact they were armed, however, police said they made no attempt to resist arrest when surrounded in the bush eight miles South of Prince Albert.

The men were believed by police to have been heading for the main highway leading to Saskatoon when they were trapped by a Mountie posse aided by a trained police dog.

Blind Tobacconist Dies at Cranbrook

CRANBROOK, B. C., Nov. 9 (CP). —Lee Johnson, blind Swedish tobacconist, died here recently a few days before his 61st birthday. He came to the district in 1907 and to Cranbrook in 1913. Losing his sight seven years ago, he opened a tobacco shop.

Johnson was able to distinguish between a $2.00 and $10.00 bill by the feel, although both appear identical. He was a member of the Scandinavian brotherhood. There are no known relatives.

This was the sentiment behind the $5 gift forwarded by Mrs. A. A. Elwen of Renata for the Kootenay Bomber Fund.

"England forever," cheered Mrs. Elwen.

Two gifts were received over the weekend. They totalled $60.50 and boosted the fund to $5430.25.

Rich Oil Fields Are Raging Fires

Whole Villages Are Levelled to Ground; Tens of Millions of Dollars in Damage; 300 Die in 10-Story Apartment

By ROBERT ST. JOHN—Associated Press Staff Writer

BUCHAREST, Nov. 11 (Monday) (AP)—The most destructive earthquake in Rumanian history killed and injured thousands during the weekend, levelled whole villages, set raging fires in rich oil fields and caused millions to flee to open fields. New shocks overnight added to the terror early today.

Between 1000 and 2000 persons were believed killed outright when the most violent quake struck at 3:39 a.m.

Thousands wree injured and homeless. The majority of buildings in 5000 square miles of thickly populated areas were damaged.

Tens of millions of dollars in property damage resulted. Hardly a house in Bucharest was untouched.

Officials estimated 300 men, women and children were trapped in a 10-story apartment structure, Bucharest's newest and most modern, which was reduced to a pile of rubble amid screams of the dying.

More than 100 convicts were killed in a destroyed penitentiary at Doftana.

Campina, a thickly populated oil town about 100 miles Northwest of the capital was reported "in ruins," with refinery chimneys toppled and fierce fires started in plants, including those of Romano-Americana, a subsidiary of Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

Hospital trains moving over a dislocated railway system sought to reach Focsani and Galati, two of the hardest hit cities where death tolls were believed considerable.

A direct report to The Associated Press from Brasov, historic German Transylvanian city, said hundreds of roofs and large buildings collapsed killing some, injuring a great many.

Under the glare of powerful anti-aircraft searchlights pulled up by German army units, steel helmeted soldiers and other workers early today still were digging bodies from wrecked buildings and homes in Bucharest and many other cities.

Istanbul, Turkey, dispatches said Istanbul was awakened by three violent earthshocks at 3:45 a.m. today, but no damage was reported.

The German radio broadcast Sofia reports that Southeastern Europe's early morning earthquake cracked buildings in the Bulgarian capital. The radio said the people rushed terror-stricken from their homes amid the "deafening noise of walls cracking all about them."

Panic gripped citizens who dared not return to their homes tonight for fear of fresh shocks and collapsing of weakened buildings.

They wandered in the streets, blacked out as an air raid precaution since German troops moved into the country, or sought safety in the fields and woods.

Persons who were up at the time in Bucharest said the first sign of the disaster was a blinding flash of blue light, which still is unexplained.

Then three minutes of violent chocks followed, accompanied by the ripping, crashing noises of tumbling buildings.

Molotoff Goes to Berlin Talks

MOSCOW, Nov. 10 (AP).—Russia's Premier and Foreign Commissar Vyacheslaff Molotoff, left today on a special train for Berlin to hold conversations with German leaders.

Depature of the Russian official was marked by great ceremony.

Count Friedrich von der Schulenberg, German Ambassador to Russia, and Karl Schnurre, head of a German trade delegation which has been negotiating with Russia for a year, were on the train.

Other Soviet officials making the trip included the people commissar for ferrous metallurgy, Ivan Tevosyand, Deputy Commissar for Foreign Affairs V. G. Dekanozoff, and Deputy Commissar for Foreign Trade, M. Krutikoff.

The trip—Molotoff's first outside of Russia—was announced only Saturday night in a brief Government statement that the Premier was going to Berlin at the invitation of the Germans.

Announcement of the trip said it was "in response to last year's journey" of Von Ribbentrop and was being undertaken "in order to continue and broaden the constant exchange of opinions through new personal contact within the frame of the friendly relations between the two countries."

Nazi Submarine Bases Attacked by British Fliers

Munich Beer Cellar Set Ablaze in One Raid

LONDON, Nov. 10 (CP).—Britain's bombers took the offensive today against German submarine bases along the Channel from which U-boats have been preying on British shipping in the renewed bitter seaworfare.

Aircraft of the bomber and coastal commanders, operating in conjunction with the fleet air arm, attacked a German-occupied submarine base at Lorient, on the German-held French coast.

This was the first time the Air Ministry bulletin spoke of such a base as being located there.

Docks at Boulogne and Calais also were attacked, while still other forces struck at enemy airdromes across the Channel. At one field bombs fell across aircraft on the ground, setting six of them afire.

These attacks were made after a weekend of raiding that included an attack Friday night on the Munich Beer Hall where Hitler told his Nazi old guard that Germany is ready to meet all who would oppose her.

A whole series of explosives—"a stick"—was declared by the British Press Association to have started a big fire in the Munich cellar, where all the top command of the Nazi revolution had assembled with Hitler.

Despite official reserve, the Press and public exulted that the Royal Air Force had kept Hitler's speech of a scheduled broadcast; had carried its bombs 600 miles to the city that is the very home and birthplace of Nazism.

British pilots flew 1600 miles to assault an airplane factory in Turin, Italy, and a magneto works at Milan.

Traffic Victim Dies

CALGARY, Nov. 10 (CP)—Calgary's eighth traffic victim of 1940, John Cosgrove, 80, died today in General Hospital from severe shock and complications out of injuries suffered Thursday evening when he was knocked down by a street car.

Terrific Attack Is Opened on London

LONDON, Nov. 11 - (Monday) - (CP). — German raiders, roaring through a terrific anti-aircraft barrage at a "one-a-minute" clip, pounded London with high explosives for almost five hours last night in an Armistice eve raid, which was one of the heaviest of the air siege of Britain.

The unusually fierce attack slackened somewhat with the arrival of Armistice day in this blacked-out, bomb-scarred Empire capital but reports indicated a large number of oLndon districts had been hit by the Nazi missiles. A number of casualties were reported.

Four members of a stretcher party were killed when a high explosive bomb scored a direct hit on a maternity and a child welfare clinic used as an air raid precaution depot.

Other bombs caused casualties when they hit a hospital, a hotel, private houses and places of business, some of which were used as shelters.

The raiders also struck at towns in all sections of England, including the industrially-vital Midlands.

A large force of bombers raided a South coast town. Meeting a big barrage of anti-aircraft fire, they dropped a large number of high explosive and oil bombs on residential and business districts.

Today it was disclosed that 40 Conservative members of Parliament, lunching at the famous Carlton Club, escaped injury recently when a bomb wrecked that club and the Reform Club in the West End. The ceiling of the Carlton dining room fell down and glass was scattered throughout the building.

German raiders subjected the capital to a heavy attack early Saturday night and then gave Londoners a few hours of peace and uninterrupted sleep.

The customary nightly air raid tapered off around midnight to a period of extraordinary quiet and the "all clear" was given.

Senator Key Pittman, U.S. Foreign Relations Committee Head, Dies

RENO, Nev., Nov. 10 (AP).—Key Pittman, 68, Chairman of the United States Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, died in Hospital here early today. The veteran Legislator suffered a heart attack early Saturday.

Senator Pittman was not in vigorous health when he came home to campaign successfully for reelection

Monday night—election eve—he was taken to hospital and his physician disclosed he had been in bad health throughout the campaign.

Senator Pittman, first elected to the United States Senate in 1912 for an unexpired term of four years, defeated Samuel Platt, Republican, in last Tuesday's election—his sixth successive victory for that office.

The Senator's wife, Minosa Gates Pittman, was at his bedside when death came. His brother, Dall Pittman, Ely, Nev., newspaper publisher, was en route here.

Key Pittman, who never ran for any office except that of United States Senator, sought that office in 1906, the year Nevada decided to try the direct primary as an experiment. Prior to that time Nevada Senators had been appointed by the State Legislature.

Pittman made a gentleman's agreement with his opponent, George Nixon, Republican incumbent, that the man who received the majority of the popular vote, should have the Senate seat. Nixon polled 9729 votes; Pittman 8624.

But the Democrats elected a majority to the State. Legislature and that body appointed Pittman to the Senate. Pittman, however, asked the Legislature to rescind its action and appoint Nixon. The Legislature acceded to his request.

Pittman was born in Vicksburg, Miss., Sept. 19, 1872. He was educated at the Southwestern Presbyterian University and at George Washington University.

From 1897 to 1901 he was in the Northwest Territory and served on the committee which formulated the "consent" form of Government for Nome, Alaska. He was the first Prosecuting Attorney of that city.

In January, 1902, he went to Tonopah, Nevada, which was his home until his death.

In 1933 Pittman was elected temporary Chairman of the Senate and Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations.

He served, under appointment by President Roosevelt, as United States delegate to the Monetary and Economic Conference held in London in June, 1933.

Senator Key Pittman of Nevada, as Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, was an outspoken advocate of a firm American policy during a period of increasing tenseness in world affairs.

He minced no words in his condemnation of those he called "aggressor" nations. When sanction were proposed against Italy because of her moves against Ethiopia, Pittman endorsed the idea with the comment "why shoot man when you can starve him to death?"

Discussing Hitler in an address, he once said "he is a coward."

Laval Says No More Negotiation Until War Ends

VICHY, France, Nov. 10 (AP).—Vice-Premier Pierre Laval said in an official note today after returning from a conference with Goering that there would be no further peace negotiations with Germany until the war is ended.

The note, which followed a Cabinet meeting, said Laval had discussed with Goering a policy of complete collaboration between Germany and the Vichy Government.

It added a criticism of the actions and propaganda of Gen. Charles De Gaulle, leader of Free French forces which, it claimed, is creating a difficult atmosphere in France, contrary to the "new spirit" created by the meeting last month between Hitler and Chief of State Petain.

Laval, on his return from Paris, heard that the De Gaulle forces are fighting a "full fledged" war in Gabon, French Equatorial Africa, with Petain forces there.

The report on conditions in Gabon came from General Tenu, Commander in Chief of the French forces at Libreville, who assured the Government that "nothing will make the besieged capital of Gabon surrender."

A Government statement issued Saturday said the De Gaulle men landed near the port Libreville under the guns of British ships which for several days had been cruising along the Gabon coast. British planes bombed the port before the troops went ashore, the French said.

McDonald Again Hockey President

VERNON, B. C., Nov. 10 (CP).—The annual convention of the British Columbia Amateur Hockey Association today unanimously endorsed a proposal from George Dudley, President of the Canadian Association, to hold a "hockey night" throughout Canada with proceeds to be donated for patriotic services.

Arrangements for the games—to be held simultaneously in various cities throughout the Dominion—will be made by heads of the different leagues.

Delegates also voted their approval of the interprovincial series arrangement setup this season between teams of the West Kootenay League and the Alberta senior loop.

Arrangements were completed to finance the minor British Columbia League series, which includes the junior, juvenile and midgets, out of a $1000 grant from the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

Nelson Schools to Observe Education Week on the Air

The general theme for meetings and events of the annual Education Week being observed today through Friday in B. C. as in other Canadian Provinces and the United States will be "Education for Democracy in Peace and War".

P. C. Richards, of the Junior High School teaching staff who was in charge of arranging the schedule for the week in Nelson, stated Sunday that the Nelson pupils hoped that the general public, particularly the parents, would listen to the radio programs over CKLN and take advantage of the opportunity to see for themselves the regular activities in the schools.

On Tuesday night from 8 to 8:30 the Junior High will be on the air, and a talk on education in the home will be given by Mrs. F. M. Auld. The following night from 6:30 to 7, the Central School will be in charge of the program, and R. B. Morris, Chairman of the Nelson School Board, will speak on educational finance. Thursday night from 9 to 9:15 will be devoted to the Senior High, and Friday from 6:15 to 7 to the Hume and an address by Robert Smillie on "Training in Citizenship."

Visiting afternoons will be Wednesday at the Hume, Central and Senior High, and Friday at the Junior High. Nothing special will be prepared for the visitors, but the public will see what goes on during a regular afternoon.

Gardiner May Tell of Supply Talks Tuesday

By JACK BRAYLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

AN EASTERN CANADIAN PORT, Nov. 10 (CP). — First informative disclosure of food supply talks in London between Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Minister of Agriculture and National War Service, and British Government officials, may be given to the House of Commons on Tuesday it was indicated by the returning Minister in an interview when he paused here on his way to Ottawa nearly today.

He said he first would report the London talks to his Cabinet colleagues at a Council meeting during the holiday weekend. He intimated the reassembly of the Parliament Tuesday might furnish an appropriate occasion for an announcement.

He described as "satisfactory" the talks understood to have centred on facilitating the movement of increased Canadian food supplies in general and bacon, wheat and cheese in particular to the United Kingdom.

"We will place the results of these discussions before the Government in Ottawa, after which joint statements will be issued from Ottawa and London. Until then I have nothing more to say."

Those accompanying Mr. Gardiner included Georges Bouchard, Assistant Deputy Minister of Agriculture, and Hon. G. J. Taggart, Minister of Agriculture of Saskatchewan and Chairman of the Canadian Bacon Board.

Asked to say something about criticism from some Western quarters that his portfolios should be split and one given to another Minister, he said the two jobs did not give him "much spare time" but he was surrounded with "such an efficient staff" that his job was not as difficult as it might seem.

He had found Britons standing up to savage and indiscriminate bombing with "wonderful courage and fortitude."

Coast Engineer Predicted Quake

VANCOUVER, Nov. 10 (CP). — The Rumanian earthquakes held no surprise today for Edgar C. Thrupp, retired Vancouver civil engineer, who predicted them last June, and he came out with a new forecast that perhaps even worse shocks will be felt somewhere in the world between January 20 and February 5 of next year.

Thrupp made several predictions last year, among them one that severe shocks would occur between October 20 and November 10 of this year. He explained that his prediction system of measuring the gravitational effects of groups of planets on the earth does not enable him to forecast the scene of the quakes, but only the dates between which they will occur.

Thrupp, who claims to have been studying his prediction system for the past 40 years, said the Rumanian quakes will be followed by lighter, "settling" shocks between November 20 and 30 after which there will be a slackening until January 20 next year when a new cycle of earthquake danger will be entered.

"I cannot predict the places where shocks will occur because the turning of the earth brings various parts of the world under the gravitational effect of the planets every 24 hours," Thrupp said.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 10 (AP)—Japanese took over control of the head office of the Central Bank of China Saturday and cleared another formidable hurdle in the path to complete domination of Shanghai.

Remembrance Day—1940

O VALIANT HEARTS

O valiant hearts, who to your glory came
Through dust of conflict and through battle flame;
Tranquil you lie, your knightly virtue proved,
Your memory hallowed in the land you loved.

Proudly you gathered, rank on rank, to war,
As who had heard God's message from afar,
All you had hoped for, all you had, you gave
To save mankind—yourselves you scorned to save.

Splendid you passed, the great surrender made,
Into the light that nevermore shall fade;
Deep your contentment in that blest abode,
Who wait the last clear trumpet-call of God.

Long years ago, as earth lay dark and still,
Rose a loud cry upon a lonely hill,
While in frailty of our human clay,
Christ, our Redeemer, passed the self-same way.

Still stands His cross from that dread hour to this
Like some bright star above the dark abyss;
Still through the veil, the Victor's pitying eyes
Look down to bless our lesser Calvaries.

These were His servants, in His steps they trod,
Following through death the martyr'd Son of God;
Victor He rose, victorious too shall rise
They who have drunk His cup of sacrifice.

O risen Lord, O Shepherd of our dead,
Whose cross has bought them and whose staff has led
In glorious hope their proud and sorrowing land
Commits her children to Thy gracious hand.

French Scuttle Own Submarine

LONDON, Nov. 10 (CP)—The Admiralty announced Saturday the French submarine Poncelet had been scuttled after an engagement with British naval forces off French Equatorial Africa, where Gen. Charles de Gaulle's Free French Forces are reported to be storming Gabun.

At the same time the Admiralty said the submarine H-69 is overdue and considered lost.

The Admiralty denied flatly a Vichy claim a British naval squadron had shelled Libreville in Gabun or that light British ships aided the landing of Free French troops near there.

A statement issued by the Admiralty said the only naval engagement the British naval squadron had been concerned in was "resisting an attempt by the French submarine Poncelet to sink a British warship without warning."

The Poncelet, the Admiralty said, was forced to come to the surface as a result of "retaliatory action" and then was scuttled by its own crew. All members o fhe crew were saved.

Survivors of Margaree Land

AN EAST COAST CANADIAN PORT, Nov. 10 (CP)—Survivors of the sunken Canadian destroyer Margaree landed here tonight from Bermuda, happy to be back in Canada but still saddened by the loss of 143 fellow officers and men.

All 34 survivors, including six officers, were in the arriving group. They looked in good condition and showed no sign of any ill effects from the collision that resulted in loss of the destroyer in the North Atlantic Oct. 22.

An exclamation by one of the ratings expressed the attitude of the entire group, "Boy, are we glad to be back in Canada!"

The party was in charge of Lieut. Patrick F. X. Russell, Victoria. He said the total number of lives lost with the Margaree was 143, not 142 as previously reported.

Lieut. Russell also revealed the Margaree was the first Canadian destroyer to suffer damage, although it was slight, as a result of enemy action. This occurred in England while the vessel was being refitted. Several small holes were caused by bomb splinters.

The destroyer went into action against enemy bombers while in dock and dispersed one squadron.

Officer Herds Goat Bothering Women at Bus Depot

Even goat-herding, it seems, is all in a day's work for a police officer.

"Billy", a brown goat belonging to Thomas Powell, of Rosemont, wandered off to see the town Sunday. He wandered just as far as the Greyhound bus depot, and there he began to bother some waiting women by playfully butting at them, not to mention with his certain "gosty" smell.

Sergeant Robert Harshaw was called, and notwithstanding the goat's playfulness herded Billy off to be locked up in a garage to await his owner.

"I hope the day will never come when your services will be required in this capacity, but if such an occasion should arise, I know you will give a good account of yourselves," he stated.

Capt. A. H. Hugill, Commanding Officer, thanked members of the Guard for their efforts in making the evening a success, and also thanked those who had assisted in the construction of the barracks.

GOLDEN, B. A truck carrying tools, food and gasoline went to the rescue of the party after one of the stranded cars returned here on the last of the party's gasoline supply. The stranded motorists were advised by radio from Calgary that relief was on the way.

After a hearty meal, the stranded party followed the rescue truck back to Golden, leaving one of their cars which could not be started. They arrived here safely.

Churchill Says Roosevelt Reelection Message of Good Cheer From U.S.

LONDON, Nov. 10 (CP).—Prime Minister Churchill yesterday described the reelection of President Roosevelt as "a message from across the ocean of great encouragement and good cheer."

Speaking at a luncheon, Mr. Churchill said "We offer our heartfelt congratulations to President Roosevelt, who has received an unprecedented mark of American confidence in being chosen for the third time to lead his mighty people forward."

"We shall now receive the support of the products of the gigantic munitions productions and the matchless workshops, furnaces and foundries of the American Union," he said.

"Our successful resistance and final victory have been proclaimed by all parties in America.

"But no one over here has been left in any doubt that beyond this strong material help and foundation of common interest there flows a tide of comprehension, sentiment and fierce passionate sympathy for our cause.

"We are straining every nerve to accelerate our production and I do not doubt that we shall succeed."

"The enemy is doing his utmost to cut us off from the vital supplies overseas.

"Therefore the maintenance of our seapower is an absolute necessity to our victory. . .

"There is one small heroic country today to whom our thoughts go out in sympathy and admiration — Greece. To the valiant Greek people we send from the heart of London our promise to them that we will do our best to aid them in their struggle.

"We will never cease to strike at the aggressor in ever increasing strength from this time forth. . .

"It is now nine months since the King and Parliament confided to me and my colleagues the grave and heavy tasks to which we have devoted ourselves.

"It is lucky we did not make any extravagant or optimistic promises. Because a succession of melancholy disasters and terrible assaults and perils have befallen us. . .

"Between survival and victory there is a long road to tread. In spite of all the blows we have endured we have not abandoned one jot of any of our obligations and undertakings towards the captive or enslaved countries of Europe."

'Argentina Should Contest Chile Claim'

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 10 (Ar) — The newspaper La Nacion urged today that Argentina contest Chile's claim to Antarctic territory between 53 and 90 degrees West longitude.

(The Chilean Ministry of Foreign Affairs claimed the territory Nov. 6, pointing out that Chile planned to exploit any possible oil and coal deposits found there.)

"We must defend the rights of Argentine sovereignty over that part of Antarctica which is Argentine on the basis of precedents and geographical position," La Nacion said.

VIA BERLIN, Nov. 10 (AP) — An expert on the Antarctic foresaw difficulties ahead for Norwegian whalers as the result of possible sovereignty disputes arising out of Chile's claim to a wedge of Antarctic territory.

Prof. Adolf Hoel said such disputes might hamper Norwegian whalers operating in the vicinity of the British-owned Falkland Islands which are near the Chilean claim.

WINDSOR, Ont., Nov. 10 (CP).—Sub-Lt. Johnny Loaring of Windsor, Ont., outstanding Canadian athlete, was responsible for the reviving of two apparently lifeless children who had been passengers on a British liner torpedoed by a German submarine in Mid-Atlantic last September.

Loaring, explaining he had taken up life-saving, volunteered to help the liner's doctor. He was given five children, all apparently lifeless. He was successful in restoring three to consciousness. One later died of head injuries received in an explosion that preceded the sinking of the liner.

The attack also extended to harbors on the East Coast of England, where Great Yarmouth particularly received several heavy hits, as well as airports in Norfolk and Yorkshire. Here hangars and barracks were set afire.

(A British communique said attacks on British land objectives yesterday were on a small scale and that little damage resulted.)

"In the night industrial plants in Birmingham and Coventry as well as harbor facilities in Liverpool were bombed and numerous explosions were observed.

"Five merchantships received heavy hits which were followed by fires and explosions. Another cruiser of 10,000 tons and four merchantships were damaged.

"In the Atlantic West of Ireland, German planes sank two merchantships totalling 9,000 tons.

The damage caused was slight. In attacks on the residential sections, houses were damaged by roof fires and two persons were injured.

When Beauty Fads Become Epidemic

By DONNA GRACE

There are some beauty fads we believe should be classed as epidemics. For instance the platinum blonde craze certainly reached the epidemic state for a time.

There was no denying the beauty of the effect either. It was always as artificial as glass roses but just as arrestingly lovely either in contrast with street attire or soft pastels. The beauty was as fleeting as daylight, and then came disappointment and months of reconditioning.

The process of removing all the natural color from the hair of necessity had to be drastic. It meant keeping the new growth carefully touched up, or even bleaching with the strongest peroxide. The least streak of dark hair at the roots simply ruined the whole bit of camouflage.

The work would not be so bad if the hair could stand it but after the first few months there was a stiff harshness and lack-lustre quality about the whole thatch and each application made it worse.

Bleached hair becomes porous and dry, then it takes just one permanent to complete the destruction.

One experience was generally enough for any girl but there were still thousands who just had to try it until finally everyone was satisfied it was going too far and the epidemic, thanks be, was over.

Bleaching is quite another matter. We mean the natural golden blonde bleach. This, when well done, can go on for years without any serious injury to the hair. For hair that grows slowly and does not need frequent retouching, it not only keeps the hair brilliant but acts as an antiseptic.

All hairdressers will admit bleached heads have healthy scalps and many of them very strong hair. Good hairdressers know how to safely permanent wave this hair and when it harmonizes with the complexion and improves the looks, there is no reason why it should not be kept up.

Efficiency Lost by Time Killers

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD

Reader, are you a time-killer, a dawdler? If so, you aren't getting any fun out of life. You're sluggish, inefficient, and more and more incompetent as time goes on.

Excuses arise readily to your lips: So rushed you couldn't find time to do your duty; so harrassed you couldn't get your mind down to it; days too short to crowd in all the chores that cried to be attended to. Of course the people that keep their mental houses in order don't fall for that. But you speak the truth of which they cannot get an inkling. Nothing devastates time as dawdling does; nothing uses up mental and physical energy as procrastination. Lord have mercy on the time killer!

I know a woman who works eight hours a day at an exacting office job. In addition, she keeps an immaculate house, entertains her friends at meals which she markets for, prepares and serves. She does her own darning and mending, makes some simple garments for herself and her little girl; goes to night sports with her husband, gives small parties for her daughter and doesn't sleep late on Sunday mornings.

How does she do it? Well, she utilizes every minute of time in her day. She takes her darning and mending to the office. If the boss is late, she improves those shining seconds. She has an hour for lunch and if there is no shopping to be done again she plies the needle. Home in the afternoon, she cleans house, cooks dinner, tidies up and afterward is at the beck and call of her family.

Tell her she's a wonder and she looks at your as though you were crazy. Tell her she does the work of three women and she laughs in your face. She isn't hurried. She isn't harried. She's never behind on her hauling. She doesn't make excuses for what she's failed to do, nor refuse to take on another duty on the ground that she's worked to death.

She will someday, pay for it with nerves, ill health, or maybe a complete breakdown, you say. Oh no she won't! Every night she goes to bed with her physical and mental house in order. She has settled her problems as they have arisen: dispatched the jobs that were to be attended to. She goes to sleep and sleeps until the morning comes with its new duties.

It's the dawdlers, the timekillers who do the worrying and work up the lather. When they reach the end of their time tether (which is every day) and realize they have nothing to show for their pains, they are the ones who toss and turn on their pillows and dread the coming day.

Diet . . .

Meat Supplies Body Proteins

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

We were all startled a few years ago when the famous explorer Mr. Vilhjalmur Stefansson told the scientific world that he had lived in the Arctic for nine years on an exclusive diet of meat and that it the end of that time his health was unimpaired, his blood pressure not raised and that there was no evidence of injury to his kidneys. Certain New York professors of medicine refused to credit this, said it was due to the climatic conditions under which the experiment was carried out, so Mr. Stefansson then agreed to put himself in their hands and stay in New York on an exclusive meat diet, which he did for two years, and the professors were honest enough to report that his original contentions were perfectly true.

These and other experiments have made all doctors feel that meat is not the base villain it was proclaimed to be, and that it could not only be admitted to the diet safely but even contributed some benefits.

Meat has been found to be of importance in the diet of young and old because of its rich store of adequate proteins. While proteins are contained in many foods, not all proteins are alike, nor do they have the same nutritional value.

Proteins build and repair body tissue. Adequate proteins are required for the maintenance of muscular tissue in adults. Children, because of the added need of proteins for growth, require more in proportion to body weight than grown-ups.

EASILY ASSIMILATED

The proteins of meat supply liberal amounts of all amino acids needed. Thus they are completely adequate proteins. Meat is easily digested, and its amino acids are promptly used by the body for everyday wear and tear of tissue, and for the formation of important gland secretions.

These quite incontrovertible facts are the basis for the statement I made that meat even has some advantages in the diet. Vegetarians it is true get these adequate proteins from milk and eggs (if they are not total vegetarians), or from peas, beans and nuts, but not as economically from the standpoint of body nutrition or as certainly as from meat.

Turkish Women Adopt New Mode

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., (CP). — Mehmet Kutsi Bedges, Turkish post-graduate student at Indiana University, in a talk before the international relations club here thus reported progress in his native land. "The women have thrown away their veils, but we still can't see their faces because they immediately adopted the Western custom of the makeup."

SERIAL STORY . . . By RUPERT GRAYSON

Before the Blitzkrieg

CHAPTER THIRTY

He decided, if Sambo should be there and should wake, to look as sleepy as possible and ask for drinking water. That might pass muster, or it might not—could only try it.

He switched on his torch and sent the little beam of light searching around the kitchen. No one there.

With a faint sigh of relief Gun slipped, ghost-like, into the kitchen and closed the door behind him. A second door opposite him, leading to the entrance passage. He opened that with less caution, not anticipating that anyone would be on the other side.

Luckily his anticipation was correct.

Noiselessly Gun moved forward to the office door. It was locked—but the key was on the bunch he had borrowed. A Yale lock, and only two Yale keys in the collection. That was easy. Gun let himself into the office and let the door lock itself behind him.

The room was pitch dark, but he remembered with a grateful heart that the curtains over the single window were dark and thick. He could, therefore, put his torch on with safety—comparatively.

He sent the little circle of light flashing around the room, then crossed to the window and made sure that the window was properly covered, so that no gleam of light could be seen from outside. Satisfied of this, he still did not dare to put the eectric light on. Despite the thickness of the curtain stuff, that might show through. No, he must work with his torch.

He turned his attention to the desk, and the first thing his eyes lighted on was the cigarette box. This time the temptation was too strong.

He opened it. There were six cigarettes on the top layer, and Trent, he realized, might remember. He took one from the lower layer, and arranged them so that there were still six on top. Then he crouched down behind the desk and lit the cigarette with his gold lighter.

That was good. The smoke steadied his nerves.

He turned his attention to the desk. There were six drawers, two unlocked, four locked. A glance at those that were not locked showed, as he expected, that they contained nothing but note paper, pens, paper clips and other office necessities. They were very tidy. Gun looked for some sort of printed note heading, but found none. He hard hardly expected to.

Now he turned his attention to the locked drawers. The first one contained a lot of books and ledgers, with a Ready Reckoner on top. Gun lifted the ledgers onto the floor, and flicked the pages over, occasionally studying one with interest. They were illuminating. Apparently Trent, or the people he represented, dealt a good deal in explosives. There were itemized purchases of picric acid, nitro glycerine, dynamite, gelignite, T.N.T. Also percussion caps, time fuses and contact fuses, etc.

But the most puzzling thing was the quantities. They had been paying a heavy price for the stuff, but the quantities were comparatively small. Evidently there was no question of them making munitions on a large scale—all the same, they must have a fairly complete arsenal about, somewhere.

Another ledger dealt with all sorts of stores. Not so interesting. The interest revived in a third ledger in which were recorded purchases of small arms, machine and submachine guns and ammunition. Again not in large quantities.

More raw material. Gun knew enough about such matters to realize that they were manufacturing incendiary bombs—but again in astonishingly small quantities.

And then a particularly interesting item: "To 5 Cylinders G.13". Gun happened to know something about G.13. It was a recently invented gas which did not actually kill, but rendered all who breathed it unconscious for several hours. It was designed for throwing into dugouts when one wanted to take prisoners, for interrogation or other purposes. What the devil did these people want with that stuff—and, incidentally, how did they manage to get hold of it? It was supposed to be a rather tight War Office secret.

Gun glanced at his wrist watch. Time was going too fast.

No time to analyze these clues now—must think them out later.

Gun put the ledgers back, just as he had found them. Turned to the next one. This contained money, receipts and—postage stamps. A clue here, perhaps. Gun examined them eagerly. They were Greek.

"Then we're somewhere in the Grek Archipelago, for a fiver! I was right!" Gun said to himself.

The next drawer contained more books—cipher and code keys. Several of the official W. O. and A. F. codes and ciphers there, too. Also a number of German official ones. But the keys were not official—they were carefully prepared copies, both in the case of the British and the German ones. That was curious, because it not only meant that what Gun had half suspected—that this was some German or Fascist plot—was not correct, but it also looked as though whatever scheme these people had was aimed against Germany as well as Britain.

No time to analyze. Gun glanced at his watch again. All this had taken a lot of time. And he still had discovered nothing definite.

One more drawer left—but only a few minutes to devote to it. As he unlocked the last drawer and peered inside, Gun almost gave vent to a whoop of triumph. This was what he wanted—correspondence.

Damn it—it was all in code. No—some of the letters had the decoding attached on slips of paper.

Hastily Gun went through them. As he did so his dark eyes glowed with anger, and his lips unconsciously tightened. For here was as foul a plot—as ruthless a scheme for the mere acquisition of money—as ever brain could devise.

"NERVES" SHE CALLED IT

Losing interest—losing friends—she never went out any more—always too tired. "Nerves," she thought—but it was her kidneys, the filters of her blood, that needed attention. Delay meant danger. She took Dodd's Kidney Pills at once. The improved action of her kidneys helped to clear away blood impurities and excess acids. Fatigue, headache, backache, lack of energy, disappeared. 117

LEST WE FORGET

Again on this Remembrance Day
Our thoughts will turn once more
away,
Far abck to many years ago
When Britain fought a foreign foe.
At such a cost of precious life
Did end a war of murderous strife!

And so today we meet again
In time of trouble, grief and pain
To honor those who gave their all
Answering King and country's call,
Fought the fight that you and I
Might live in peace and liberty.

But though the years may pass away
Their memory shall forever stay
In the minds of those who loved them dear,
And oft shall fall the silent tear,
They stood by their guns whate'er
betide
To fall and die at Britain's side.
But though they lie across the foam
In foreign graves far from their home,
Their gallant deeds to right the wrong
Shall help us for to carry on,
And keep the British flag unfurled
Till peace shall reign throughout the world.

Watch Mercury Cross the Sun This Afternoon

TRANSIT OF MERCURY
By W. G. C. Lanskail

During this afternoon of Remembrance Day 1940 there will occur an astronomical event of some interest to watchers of the sky. The planet Mercury will pass directly between the sun and earth and will appear as a very small round black spot moving slowly across the sun's disk.

Mercury is the smallest of the planets, its diameter, about 3000 miles, being nearly half as much greater than the diameter of our moon. Its mean distance from the sun is about 36 million miles. The period of revolution around the sun is 88 days, but Mercury's orbit is inclined 7 degrees from the orbit of the earth. Consequently it is only on occasions some years apart, when the earth happens in the plane of Mercury's orbit at time of inferior conjunction, that a transit of Mercury across the sun's disk may be seen by us.

There will be only six more transits of Mercury during the present century; the next one will occur on Nov. 13, 1953.

Transits of the planet Venus are much less frequent. The last one occurred on Dec. 6, 1882, and the next will be on June 7, 2004. It is obvious that only those planets whose orbits lie between the earth and sun—Mercury and Venus—may ever transit that luminary.

Today at Nelson, Mercury will first make ingress on the Eastern edge of the sun's disk — the left hand side—about eleven minutes to 1 o'clock, p. m., and the sun will set three, or four hours later, before the transit is complete.

USE DARK FILM

To observe it, a good field glass or small telescope will be required, the eye pieces protected by a strip of dark or smoked glass. A piece of over-developed negative is suitable for the purpose.

If the early afternoon sky should be clear, a transit instrument or small telescope will be set up outdoors at 1515 Ward Street and anyone interested in seeing this unusual phenomenon is invited to come and do so.

Today's transit will be of particular interest to professional astronomers, as it will be used to more accurately determine the elements of Mercury's orbit and also as a chck on suspected irregularities of the earth's rotation on its axis. Until recently it was believed that this rotation was constant, without a variation of more than one-hundredth of a second in a century. More recent investigation appears to show occasional variations much greater for astronomers to solve.

ROSSLAND, B. C., Nov. 10 — An arch of deep-toned chrysanthemums and white wedding bells formed an attractive setting at the home of the bride's parents for the marriage of Alli Alice, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hermans of Rossland, to Albert James Malnarich, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Malnarich of Trail. Rev. W. M. Cameron was officiating clergyman. Soldier blue was the shade chosen by the bride for her afternoon frock, which was fashioned with cleverly gathered waistline, and full flared skirt. The small hat with veil and other accessories were en tone. Pink rosebuds formed her bridal bouquet. Miss Jean Buick, as bridesmaid, wore a wine afternoon dress featuring three-quarter length sleeves and flared skirt, which was complemented by accessories of a matching shade. The other attendant, Miss Freda Hermans, sister of the bride, chose a gored skirt model in old rose with accessories of blue. Both wore small brimmed hats and carried bouquets of red carnations and white chrysanthemums. Robert Smith acted as best man. Following the ceremony a luncheon was served to about 40 relatives and close friends. Fall flowers decorated the rooms for the occasion. Mrs. Hermans, mother of the bride, received the guests, wearing a black dress with trimming of lace in the same shade and accessories to match. She was assisted by the groom's mother, who had chosen a navy blue frock with black accessories. Similar corsages of pink rosebuds completed each ensemble. Acting as serviteurs were Miss Margaret Buick, Miss Lorraine Berg, Miss Katie Thompson and Miss Donna Berg.

Two interesting readings by Mrs. H. Ferguson were enjoyed by the Dorcas Circle of St. Andrew's United Church when it met Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. W. F. McNeill. Following the discussion of routine business tea was served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. H. Keffer. Members present were Mrs. H. Ferguson, Mrs. S. H. Hayden, Mrs. William Blackwell, Mrs. L. Corbett, Mrs. E. Seccombe, Mrs. G. Craig, Mrs. L. Grimard, Mrs. A. H. Keffer, Mrs. W. F. McNeill and a guest, Mrs. J. Porter.

Work was continued on the quilt to be donated to the Red Cross when the Union Avenue Circle met Thursday evening at the Columbia Avenue home of Mrs. Irvin Davis. Tea was served by the hostess at the conclusion. Those attending were Mrs. H. E. Knudsgaard, Mrs. H. Richards, Mrs. C. Olmstead, Mrs. G. Duckworth and Mrs. H. Evans.

A quiet wedding was solemnized Friday afternoon in the Anglican Church when Grace, youngest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Holmes of Nottingham, England, became the bride of Henry, son of Mrs. J. Matthews and the late J. Matthews of Rossland. Rev. D. S. Catchpole officiated. Two-toned rose triple sheer fashioned the afternoon dress chosen by the bride. With this were worn a small turban and accessories in a lighter rose shade. Her corsage was of pink and red rosebuds. The only attendant was Mrs. S. Mason, sister of the bride whose ensemble of navy blue printed sheer was completed by fawn accessories and a corsage of pastel shaded chrysanthemums. Irvin Matthews, the brother of the groom, was best man. A small reception for the immediate family only was held at the home of Mrs. Alec Pollock following the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Matthews will reside in Rosland.

War knitting was carried on at the meeting of the Red Shield Auxiliary of the Salvation Army Friday evening at the Officers' Quarters. It was decided that all meetings will be held there in the Winter. Tea was served by Capt. E. Robertson and Lieut. M. Hutchings. Those present were Lieut. M. Hutchings, Mrs. R. Bell, Mrs. G. Nixon, Sr., Mrs. A. Stevenson, Miss Irene Stevenson, Miss Reta Christenson, Mrs. H. Douglas, Mrs. H. Evans, Mrs. M. Peterson, Mrs. F. Bray, Mrs. W. F. Mahy, Lieut. M. Hutchings and Capt. E. HE GAVE US TIME TO SAVE OURSELVES

When Neville Chamberlain succeeded to the premiership of Great Britain, he carried with him the reputation he had won as a sound and safe Chancellor of the Exchequer. He constributed to no small degree to the financial strength with which Great Britain entered the war against Hitlerism.

It was inevitable that he should be blamed for his policy of appeasement, but history is likely to take a different view. Failure of appeasement was due to the failure of Hitler to keep his word, the failure of Hitler to carry out his pledges at Munich to be satisfied with the loot he had gained in the annexation of Austria and a part of Czechoslovakia.

All the world praised Chamberlain when he returned, apparently successful, from Munich. He had saved the world from immediate war. He had gained time during which Great Britain and France could strengthen their armament to resist aggression if Hitler later resumed his mad career of conquest, as many, and perhaps Chamberlain among them, feared he would.

Chamberlain was leader of the Government which immediately took steps to speed up rearmament. To him must go the credit not only for gaining time, the bitter necessity for which we now know too well, but for the inauguration of heavily increased expenditures on defense.

It was not Chamberlain who created the policy of appeasement. He fell heir to it. Appeasement was the ricketty child of the idealistic but almost impotent League of Nations. At Munich his choice was between a continuation of appeasement, with all the national and personal abnegation that it involved, and destruction of his country.

History will pay tribute not only to the sound common sense which was Chamberlain's outstanding characteristic but to his enormous moral courage.

REFUGEES ARE REPAYING BRITAIN

For centuries Great Britain has been a refuge for men, and women of free thought driven from their own countries to find sanctuary there. Britain has welcomed and succored them, not in the hope of future gain, but out of sympathy and compassion.

Yet, as a writer points out in News of the World, time again is proving that the scales have not been weighted entirely on one side. In the past many of these refugees revealed themselves as men of brilliant mind and thought. As opportunity occurred they began to share in the cultural and industrial development of the country and with the passing years their families became an integral part of the nation.

History is repeating itself today.

Driven from devastated and unhappy lands by Nazi tyranny, Czechs, Austrians, Dutchmen, Poles, Belgians, Frenchmen, and Norwegians have fled to England, and are now actively engaged in working for Great Britain and making their contribution to the supreme effort for final victory.

Some have arrived possessed of little more than the clothes they wore, but in scores of instances their most precious possessions were the plans of secret machinery and details of vital processes unknown outside their own countries. The amount of gold they brought was nil, but the store of knowledge almost incalculable.

Great numbers of these refugees are at work now, producing new varieties of goods which are helping to swell Britain's export trade, and incidentally helping to pay for imported munitions of war.

In a number of cases, markets which Germany formerly held have been wrested from her, and are not likely to be lost in the future.

The bulk of the industries which have been set up, particularly in the special areas, were unknown to Britain before the war.

Not only have these refugees solved their own unemployment problem, but the industries they have initiated have made jobs for large numbers of native Britishers who were unemployed.

This result, the creation of jobs, and increasing of employment among native citizens, has always been one of the results of the transplanting of crafts by refugees.

If any people pay their way, it is the refugees, who always add to the products of their adopted country; though economic benefits were the last thing in mind of the people that gave them asylum.

Chinese Patriot Urges Housewives to Avoid Jap Oranges

To The Editor,

Sir—As Christmas nears, I would be obliged if you will print this letter.

This letter is to remind our true Canadian friends that starvation and more suffering in China will be the outcome from buying Sweet Mandarins (Jap Oranges); by labelling them Vancouver, B. C., thus they might give an appearance of a Canadian product. Beware of this misrepresentation.

Think of the horrors that you will be buying in one Jap orange. Think of the poor mother with her dearest child dying in her kind and gentle arms. Think of the homeless that are starving in China today (approximately 12,000,000). Think of the true reason that is breaking innocent child's morale. Think before we buy!

I have heard that the Women's Association was urged to take action to boycott Japanese made toys and oranges. We are more than glad to hear that. And I sincerely wish they will take action to ask the wholesalers and the larger stores to refrain from shipping them in.

China is at the front line for the Western Hemisphere. She has been struggling for nearly four years; in which close to 20,000,000 people have been dead, due to this so-called Japan's Twentieth Century Murder Campaign. This will be carried on and on, until no human can stand the dreadful punishment We will be the back of this if we buy these cheap oranges. Watch out for Jap toys and Chinaware.

China will be victorious. And so will Great Britain. But we are the ones that have to use our heads to do it. Canadian-Chinese Youth have pledged themselves to fight for Canada. They are taking up their training when they are called.

This is your and our fight for liberty. It is your job to keep the fire burning on the home front. And not to let them down in no way whatsoever.

Canadians, Americans and British Subjects, your Cause is our Cause. We will fight on to victory; which is near.

There always will be an England.

There always will be a free China. Thank God.

Yours for a better world for tomorrow.

GEORGE KIWAY.

Nelson, B. C.

P. S.—China is engaged in a life-and-death struggle for Unity. A struggle which, because of China's peculiar international position, if won may be peace for the whole world; if lost, the annihilation of rejuvenation, fascinating culture, and important missionary work. But bravery, courage, ruthlessness, patriotism and the energy of organizing ability will save China and Britain. Don't stick your chin up by buying Jap oranges.

2. Is a dolphin a fish or an animal?

3. Does the Mason and Dixon line extend from coast to coast?

TODAY'S HOROSCOPE

Born on this date a child will be forceful, optimistic and enterprising, but somewhat liable to go to extremes. Also such a child will be inclined to extravagance and fondness for display.

ONE-MINUTE TEST ANSWERS

1. The Empire State Building in New York. The Eiffel Tower is 1000 feet high; the Empire State, 1250.

2. An animal. It does not have scales.

3. No. It merely forms the boundary between the states of Maryland and Pennsylvania.

CONTRACT . . . By Shepard Barclay

THE FOE HAS AN ENTRY

HOW OFTEN we have all established some winners in dummy which are useless to us because no entry is left to get at them! On rare occasions, when no other play for the contract is in sight, we can make the opponents help us out. Careful counting of the cards as they fall may show that one of the defenders will have to lead right into the winning card or cards in the dummy if we throw the lead into his hand.

North: ♠K Q J 9 7 6 2 ♥5 2 ♦6 3 ♣10 8

West: ♠10 8 4 ♥A Q J 6 ♦J 9 4 2 ♣Q J

East: ♠A 3 ♥7 4 3 ♦10 8 5 ♣9 7 5 4 2

South: ♠5 ♥K 10 9 8 ♦A K Q 7 ♣A K 6 3

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1♥	Pass	1♠	Pass
2♦	Pass	2♠	Pass
3♣	Pass	3♦	Pass
3 NT

As it developed, 4-Spades would have been easy to make on this deal, if North had tried that bid over the 3-No Trumps. At the latter contract South has work to do. West led the heart Q to the K, and South's case is pretty hopeless unless he can score a couple of spade tricks. So he won the opener with the heart K and led the spade 5 to the K. East let that Win, but had to take the J. on which South threw a club. West won the heart return with the J, cashed his A, then put South in with the 6 to the 8.

Seeking some kind of a break, South played his two top diamonds, then the club A. When the J fell on this, he saw a ray of hope. It grew brighter when the K dropped the Q. To confirm his idea, he played the diamond Q. With nothing left but the diamond 7 and club 6, he led the diamond, hoping the winner of that trick would also have a spade left for his last card. That is exactly what happened.

West won that twelfth trick with the diamond J, but had nothing left except the spade 10, which he had to lead to dummy's Q, giving declarer the game trick. The elements of this play are just two—the defender who wins a particular late trick must have nothing left in his hand except one or more cards of a suit in which the dummy or declarer has one or more winners which he could not reach otherwise.

Tomorrow's Problem

North: ♠Q 7 6 ♥Q 8 5 ♦8 5 4 ♣J 10 7 6

West: ♠J 8 2 ♥J 6 2 ♦Q J 7 6 ♣2 ♦9 2

East: ♠10 9 5 4 3 ♥K 4 3 ♦10 9 3 ♣K 4

South: ♠A K ♥A 10 9 7 ♦A K ♣A Q 8 6 3

(Dealer: East. North-South vulnerable.)

How can South make 6-No Trumps on this deal against a lead of the diamond Q?

Bomb Splinters

By DOUGLAS AMARON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer).

LONDON, Nov. 10 (CP), — Bomb splinters from the Battle of Britain.

Somewhere in London a school suffered heavily from enemy action. There is no roof, the windows are gone, the interior damaged by fire and the walls scarred by splinters. This notice, posted on two walls, remains unscathed:

"A reward of five shillings (about $1.00 will be paid to anybody giving information which will lead to the conviction of persons damaging these premises."

John Baldwin Beresford, 52, who resigned a year ago as director of the Intelligence Department of the Ministry of Information, was killed in a London air raid while on duty as a home guard.

Usually if a piece of shrapnel hits you near the heart you don't live to tell the tale but J. A. Smith of London escaped with only scratches and a bruise when it happened to him. The shrapnel struck his watch and was deflected from his body.

New evening party idea is not to speed your parting guest into the teeth of an air raid but to add "bed in the basement" to your invitation. In these times of all-night raids you take your tooth brush and pajamas with you when you go to a party.

King George and Queen Elizabeth visited the former Prime Minister recently and stayed about an hour.

Canada Remembers Cemeteries in France

BY KEN CLARK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Nov. 10 (CP)—Canada pauses on Monday, 22nd anniversary of the Armistice, to pay tribute to the memory of her 60,000 sons who died in the First Great War but as yet there is no official word as to the damage, if any, to Canadian graves or memorials in France and Belgium, occupied by the enemy.

"All the Canadian cemeteries in France and Belgium are in the hands of the enemy," said Col. H.C. Osborne, Secretary of the Canadian Battlefields Memorial Commission. "There is no communication and it is not possible to say what damage has been done."

Reported damage to the Canadian memorial at Vimy Ridge, first said by British Tommies to have been damaged by Nazi bombs, has not been confirmed.

Of the seven large memorials to Canadians, Vimy, where April 7, 1917, they took the Ridge in a bloody battle, is the only one reported damaged.

The others are at Passchendaele, scene of a terrible fray in November, 1917; Le Quesnel, where Canadians broke the Brocourt-Queslin section of the Hindenburg line; Courcelette and Bourlon Wood, Hill 62 (Mt. Sorrel) and St. Julien.

Gilmour Whipping 17 Maple Leafs Into Shape for Long Grind Ahead

Lineup Shows Great Improvement on Defence

SCARCITY RIGHT SHOTS A PROBLEM

Although the West Kootenay league opening night is still well over a fortnight away, Bob Gilmour is wasting no time in getting his Maple Leafs into readiness for a tight season. He has workouts scheduled for every night of the week, except Saturday as usual, and the Leafs have to step their best for him.

The Nelson Club had its third practice Sunday morning—a two-hour drill—and again a large throng of railbirds were on hand to expert the proceedings. At this stage, the team looks stronger than or at least as strong as last year in every position, particularly defence, where six men are trying out.

SHORT RIGHTHANDERS

But a new problem this season confronts the Lakesiders, and that is how to align the forward lines in the face of a famine of right-handed shots. Gilmour has narrowed down the hopefuls to nine forwards, and only two of them, the Smith brothers, shoot from the right side. And both played on defence last year, where they were shunted when the club was starved for capable rearguards. Now with two strong defence lines certain to be chosen form the six trying out, the Smiths apparently will be moved back up front again.

Currently Kilpatrick and Mann are being kept together at centre and on left wing respectively, with Bob Proulx, ex-Olds Elk, taking the departed Bill Sneider's place on the right flank. That combination is expected to exceed even last year's starry first line in efficiency, mainly through Proulx's decided edge in stamina over Sneider. Sneider, who has gone to North Sydney, was of a rather slight build, and as a result was bumped around quite a bit. Proulx, a powerful and square-built skater who can drive in like Joe Benoit, will undoubtedly improve the line, although he is left-handed too.

LAIRE MAKES GRADE

The second three that Gilmour has been working together are also all Southpaws. Bus Algar, who centred a line with Proulx at Olds two years ago, is back at the pivot position where he started with the Leafs last season before being moved over to left wing to make room for Buddy Hammond as a regular performer. Algar finished the season with Hammond and Red Carr in a blaze of glory in his new spot, but since Hammond has definitely written finis to a great amateur career, Bus will again take care of the faceoffs. Carr was moved over to right wing about the time the Hammond-Algar switch was made, and he made a real job of that flank. At least temporarily he will play on right wing, with Dave Haire, former Edmonton junior, on the other boards. This is Haire's first season in senior company, but his fine work and speed has assured him of a regular wing position.

At yesterday morning's workout Johnny Smith, who originally came to Nelson as a centreman, went back to his old patrol with brother Nick on his right side and Sid Sturk, who has lately chased pucks for the Coleman Canadians, doing duty on the other.

CAPABLE GOALIES

There's going to be a stiff duel for the goaltending berth between "Jesse" Seaby, with Nelson for his fourth year and Jack (or Stubby or Junior, whichever you prefer) Mason, of Regina Abbott-Generals junior club. Mason had the pads on for the first time of the season Sunday, and he won the fans with his spectacular style. A likeable little fellow, he is sure to be carried by the Leafs but Gilmour hasn't stated yet how he will use his goalies. Pat Aitken alternated Seaby with Dick Burgess last season until Burgess joined Gonzaga, leaving the Leafs to finish the schedule with only Seaby.

According to Seaby himself, that's the way he likes it—working alternate games. In that way both men are kept on edge at all times and have to keep dishing up their best.

EIGHT NEW FACES

Eyeing defence posts are Captain Len Bicknell and Leo Atwell, two real Leaf veterans; Jerry Pettigrew from Gonzaga, George Boothman from Turner Valley, Bob (Hoppy) Hoppus from Lacombe, Alta., intermediates, and Coach Gilmour himself. Nelson hopes to show eight new faces this year. By a special C.A.H.A. ruling, the Leafs, along with Kimberley, were permitted six imports, but hope to get away with Gilmour and Pettigrew in the bargain. Pettigrew played in the same league last Winter although outside the Province, and the Leafs contend he should not be classed as an import. Kimberley has a similar case in Curly Hunt, ex-Gonzaga left winger. Gilmour, should he be reinstated, would come under the reinstated pro class, not as an import. Gilmour and Pettigrew are expected to be ruled eligible before the season gets under way.

Winnipeg Sweeps Prairie Football

WINNIPEG, Nov. 10 (CP)—Three opportunist touchdowns swept Winnipeg Blue Bombers to a 23-2 victory over Calgary Bronks here Saturday afternoon and gave the 1939 Canadian rubgy champions their fourth consecutive Western Interprovincial Football Union pennant.

The win made it two straight for Bombers in the two of three Western Union playoffs with Calgary. The powerful Winnipeg team trimmed Bronks 7-0 last Saturday in the first game at Calgary.

Before 3000 shivering fans, Bombers took advantage of errors by Bronks and chalked up three touchdowns in the first half. Two converts from placement and a pair of field goals, all by Hardrock Greg Kabat, completed Bombers' point total. Bronks avoided a shut-out by scoring a safety touch in the third quarter.

Barons, Indians Keep Up Wins

HERSHEY, Pa., Nov. 10 (CP)—Wally Kilrea's two quick goals in the second period helped Hershey Bears defeat the Champion Providence Reds 4-1 in an American Hockey League game Saturday night.

Bobby Kirk and Gordie Bruce were other Hershey scorers and Windy Steele netted for Reds.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 10 (CP) — Cleveland Barons made it four straight victories without a defeat Saturday night when they shut out Buffalo Bisons 5-0 in he American Hockey League.

Earl Bartholome scored two goals and assisted in two others. Other scorers were Norm Locking, Les Cunningham and Jake Milford.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Nov. 10 (CP)—Springfield Indians, only undefeated team in the American Hockey League's Eastern division, kept their record spotless Saturday night by swamping Pittsburgh Hornets 6-2.

Fred Thurrier, Indians' centre, tallied three goals, Max Kaminsky two and Glenn Brydson one.

Larry Archambault, Art Lesieur and Mickey Blake scored Pittsburgh's points.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 10 (CP)—Philadelphia Ramblers scored twice in the second period to hand New Haven Eagles a 3-1 defeat Saturday night in the American Hockey League.

Trailing 1-0 on George Mantha's marker, Ramblers won when Lude Wareing and Stan Smith tallied.

Victoria Revellers Win Three-V Football

VICTORIA, Nov. 10 (CP)—Victoria Revellers trounced Vancouver Bulldogs 8-1 here yesterday in the final game of the Intercity Three-V Canadian Football League, and wrote a new chapter in British Columbia's football book.

It was the fourth straight victory for Victoria and the first time in history a Vancouver Island team had ridden roughshod over mainland linesmen without suffering a seasonal defeat.

Egan of Calgary Alberta Puck Head

EDMONTON, Nov. 10 (CP) — Peter D. (Pete) Egan of Calgary was elected President of the Alberta Amateur Hockey Association at the 27th annual meeting here on the weekend. He succeeds George Mackinnish of Edmonton, who was named Past President.

Other officers are: Vice-President, Jack Moss, Lethbridge; Secretary-Treasurer, J. T. North, Calgary; Executive—V. C. W. Stanley, High River; J. V. McDougall, Blairmore; D. P. McDonald, Calgary; R. M. McKenzie, Lacombe; Hugh Wilson, Wetaskiwin, D. W. G. Hardy, Edmonton.

Spicy Program Is on Tap for Annual Puck Ice Carnival

High-lighted by a colorful masquerade grand march, an attractive program has been lined up for the annual ice carnival of the Nelson Hockey Club Friday night. Over 40 prizes are being posted for winners in the fancy costume events and of skating races for all age classifications.

A juvenile hockey game between two squads of the Nelson City League has been scheduled to open the night's entertainment. This game will present most of last year's B. C. championship squad in action.

Bob Gilmour will divide his Maple Leafs up into two squads, the Blacks and the Whites, for a half an hour exhibition to give the fans a chance to see how their favorites will line up this Winter. Following the senior hockey fray, the ice will be turned over to the public for an hour's skating. Adding spice to the program will be music by the Nelson Brass Band under the baton of S. J. Newell.

Wilfrid Marquis is Chairman of the Hockey Club's Ice Carnival Committee, and active aid is being given by L. S. Bradley, G. A. Hoover, Ald. C. W. Tyler and D. G. Chamberlain.

Michigan Drops 7-6 to Minnesota

NEW YORK, Nov. 10 (AP)—Minnesota, Texas A. and M. and Stanford hurdled formidable opposition in their sweep toward sectional football championships Saturday but other unbeaten United States college teams, particularly in the East, suffered severe losses in prestige.

Minnesota, clashing with Michigan in a struggle of unbeaten, untied giants before a record crowd of 63,834 at Minneapolis, hammered out a 7-6 victory and virtually clinched the Western Conference championship. Texas A. and M. met its most dangerous Southwest Conference rival, Southern Methodist, and won 19-7.

Stanford defeated Washington 20-10 to gain an apparent strangle-hold on the Pacific Coast title and a berth in the Rose Bowl New Year's Day.

Michigan gained an early lead on Tommy Harmon's pass to Forest Evashevski, but Minnesota came back to tie on Bruce Smith's 80-yard touchdown run and won on Joe Mernik's placekick for the extra point. Harmon's try for point after Michigan's score had gone wide.

Outplayed Argos Take Montreal; Now Meet Riders

By The Canadian Press

Toronto Argonauts did it again Saturday.

They were outkicked, outplunged, outrun and outpassed and still this "destiny" team of Lew Hayman's beat out a fighting Montreal Club 15-11 in the final game of the Interprovincial Football Union schedule. They go next against Ottawa Rough Riders in the first game of a total point play-off next Saturday.

A fourth-quarter manoeuvre that went astray and led to a Rider touchdown robbed Hamilton's doughty Tigers of victory and a chance for their first three-game interprovincial football union winning streak since 1936. Tigers, fighting gamely lost 19-13.

In the Senior Ontario Union, the league-leading Toronto Balmy Beach came through with a hard-fought 9-3 decision over Alerts at Hamilton. The Balmies, runaway winners of the Union, ended the schedule with six successive wins.

In the other Ontario Union game two Army teams—Sarnia's 2-26th Battery and Camp Borden—met at London. Although minus three star players Sarnia came through with a 6-0 victory, all points coming on the accurate kicking of Jim Butler.

The figures show Montreal's superiority all down the line over Toronto—but they don't show the 53-yard run by little Bobby Coulter that led to the winning touchdown in the fourth quarter, nor a fumble by the gallant Gordie Noseworthy that gave them their other touch. These were the pay-off blows struck as fast as lightning.

Montreal did a little more of everything except score points. They threw 18 passes to Argos' 17 and completed nine to seven. They gained 194 yards passing—a 40-yard floater leading to their third-quarter touchdown by Burton—while Argos picked up 123 yards through the air. On the ground they got 123 yards to Argos' 110 and they fumbled only once against five by Hayman's team.

BRUINS BEAT OLYMPICS

BOSTON, Nov. 10 (CP)—Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League overwhelmed Boston Olympics, new entry in the Eastern United States Amateur League, 11-1 today in an exhibition game.

Hammond Retires

"BUDDY" HAMMOND

Announcing his retirement at a time when he was still on top in senior hockey, Buddy Hammond brings to an end one of the greatest careers in Western Canada hockey. Performing before Winnipeg and Saskatoon crowds before coming to Nelson, he played two seasons with the Maple Leafs. He finished third in the league scoring in 1938-39 and fifth last season.

His tricky stickhandling and dazzling pokechecking will be missed considerably by the Nelson fans this Winter, but he will be remembered when he was at his best. He didn't get very much action until well into the schedule last year, and then he finished up at the fastest scoring clip of any player in the loop.

His achievements in Kootenay sport did not stop at hockey, for he was a big cog in Nelson's winning the Interior lacrosse championship in 1938. He was voted the most valuable player in the league, but he retired at the end of the season—again at a time he rated high in the eyes of his followers.

Toronto Blanks Red Wings 3-0

TORONTO, Nov. 10 (CP)—Toronto Maple Leafs won their first National Hockey League victory of the season here Saturday night, a 3-0 shutout over Detroit Red Wings before 11,029 fans.

All the scoring drive was wrapped up in the revamped line of Syl Apps, Gordie Drillon and Nick Metz. In Metz, the newcomer, Apps and Drillon seemed to have found a pal who is as good as they are at potting goals.

An accident to Bob Davidson who has worked with Apps and Drillon for the past few seasons, brought Metz into the set-up. And the rugged- red-head from Wilcox, Sask., never showed to better advantage.

Detroit — Mowers; Stewart, Orlando, Grosso, Wares, Abel, subs — Goodfellow, Motter, K. Kilrea, Bruneteau, Howe, Giesebrecht, Wilder, Douglas, Carveth.

Toronto — Broda; Kampman, Stanowski, Apps, Drillon, N. Metz, Subs—Hamilton, Lagelle, Schriner, Marker, Church, Heron, Don Metz, Taylor, Goldup.

Stampeders Stop Saskatoon Quakers

CALGARY, Nov. 10 (CP) — A scoring splurge that netted three goals within one minute during the early part of the third period, featured Calgary Stampeders 4-1 victory over Saskatoon Quakers at the Arena Saturday night in the first of a two-game exhibition hockey series. Second game is scheduled for Monday night.

Dan Sprout with two, Tommy Dewar and Les Thirlwell, scored for Stampeders, while the veteran Curly Kerr, saved Quakers from a shutout.

Fishermen Brave Wind and Frost for Last Outing

Maloney's 19-Pounder Biggest; McLeod and Sharp Get Five

Freezing wind and whitecapped waves took a beating over the weekend, for even in the face of temperatures that threatened to freeze lines and waves that rocked small boats continuously, ardent anglers again made weekend sorties against the big trout in Kootenay Lake, their last weekend before the close of the season.

Most of the fishermen returned with fish, but only one with an entry for the Gyro, "salmon" derby. This was David Maloney's 19-pounder, caught about half a mile South of Irvine Creek Sunday on a Gibb Stewart No. 5. Mr. Maloney also landed an 11½-pounder which took the same lure.

Most successful boat of the weekend was that of Capt. Angus McLeod, who had as his guest Ald. Roy Sharp. Fishing off Irvine Creek Saturday afternoon they landed five fish weighing 42 pounds, the largest a 10½-pounder by McLeod. These fish were taken on Glendon Stewart lures. The day was cold and the main lake was rough, with the result that few boats were out.

Leslie Pickard, fishing with Fred Johnson Sunday, caught a five-pounder; while W. E. Marquis brought home an eight-pound trout. William Harrison of Trail and Eric Ramsden of Nelson caught a five-pounder.

While Sunday was bitterly cold, with wind and rough water a large part of the day, there were a fair number of boats out. Most of them were launches in which the anglers were protected from the wind, but there were also a few rowboats with outboards.

100 Out for First Skating Club Period

Approximately 100 were on hand Sunday afternoon for the initial ice session of the season for members of the Nelson Skating Club. The next period will be Wednesday, when the figure skating section will also get into action.

Tonight the first public skating period of the Winter is scheduled.

Brother Nelson Leaf Trying Out at Trail

Bob Proulx, new recruit from Olds for the Nelson Leafs, reports that his 18-year-old brother, Marcel, is currently trying out with the Trail Smoke Eaters, Marcel played juvenile hockey in Edmonton last season, and hopes to make the long jump up to top-flight senior hockey.

Regina Trounces Turner Valley 7-3

REGINA, Nov. 10 (CP)—Regina Rangers made their debut in senior hockey Saturday night by trouncing Turner Valley Oilers of the Alberta Senior League 7-3 in a bang-up exhibition game before 1500 fans.

The clubs set a terrific pace throughout and rangers were in command for all but a spell in the second period. Penalties kept the Oiler power in check and they drew 11 of the 15 trips to the cooler handed out in the rough exchanges.

Shaw Would Like Nazis to Destroy Some Monuments

LONDON, Nov. 10 (AP)—Bernard Shaw, octogenarian wit and playwright, joined in the "bomb Rome" chorus Saturday.

He told the Daily Mirror: "I should not weep if Rome were bombed. London with its monuments and works of art, good and bad, has been bombed. Why not Rome?"

"Of course this bombing of London or Berlin or Rome is just senseless," Shaw added. "If the idea the Germans have in mind is to exterminate Britain's population it will take 470 years to do so at the present rate. It will take us even longer to exterminate the Germans.

"But admitting that war is the only way we have at present of settling disputes between nations there is no reason why Rome shouldn't have it.

"If only people weren't being killed and we could select places to be bombed, I should welcome a German attack on London. They are knocking down a good many things we ought to have knocked down ourselves many years ago.

"I should hate them to bomb Westminster Abbey, but I should be happy for them to bomb some monuments in it."

Then Shaw added:

"The same applies to the House of Commons and its members."

British Landing In Crete Got Hot Italian Welcome

LONDON (CP)—A Reuters News Agency dispatch from its special correspondent with the British Expeditionary Force in Crete described the landing of the first troops on that strategic Greek island several days ago.

"Amid bursting bombs and exploding shells as Italian bombers, escorted by fighter planes, swept low over the harbor in the teeth of a fierce barrage put up by British warships," he said. The troops stepped ashore.

"No sooner had the British troops begun to disembark," the correspondent wrote than "flights of enemy aircraft appeared over the hills surrounding the harbor and attacked British cruisers which came alongside to land the British troops."

He said the bombs dropped harmlessly near the quayside and that only two soldiers were slightly wounded.

When the bombers had left, the correspondent added, the Cretan population emerged from their shelters and houses and cheered the British troops, shook hands with them and threw flowers as the steel-hatted men, loaded down with equipment, marched from the jetty in the highest spirits."

The correspondent said the raiders returned the following day but were driven off by gunfire from the warships.

Italians Engage in Air Battle

ROME, Nov. 6 (AP)—Saturday's Italian High Command communique:

"Our units in Epirus are reinforcing a bridgehead beyond the Kalamis River.

"During a reconnaissance flight in the central Mediterranean our planes engaged in a fight with enemy pursuit planes, shot down one enemy plane, and seriously damaged two others.

(A British communique said British aircraft on reconnaissance were attacked by four enemy fighters, one of which was seriously damaged, after warding off the attack, the British aircraft continued their reconnaissance.)

"In North Africa, enemy mechanized units were put to flight by our advance units.

"The enemy air force bombed Tobruk, injuring one person and causing slight damage, and the residential section of Derna, where nine were killed and 26 wounded and slight damage was caused.

Sidelights on Air Raids

By HAROLD FAIR
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

LONDON, Nov. 10 (CP)—Worst affected living thing in a bombed midlands town was a cat. It got drunk licking up beer spilled after a bomb hit a hotel bar. A reporter seeing the tabby cat wobbling about in a corner first thought the animal was injured but found no bones broken. Still those hind legs wouldn't track right.

At last—women's earrings that really are useful. Mayor S. W. Humphrey of Lowestoft figured women might lose the ear-plugs being distributed to deaden the noise of bomb explosions so had them made into earrings. When not in use as a noise-stopper, the plugs dangle at the end of a chain.

A North London housewife found a good way to take her baby to the air raid shelter. She wheeled the infant there on a tea-wagon and then used it as a bunk.

Mrs. Jean Wilson of Bothwell, Lanarkshire, has never seen an airplaine but she sent Lord Beaverbrook, Minister of Aircraft Production, $5000 ($22,230) to buy a Spitfire. It will be called Slammanan after her native town in Stirling.

Falling bombs, shattered glass, shrapnel—all this is in the night's work for London air raid wardens—but there's one thing that really bothers them, people who leave empty milk bottles on the pavement awaiting collection. One warden went so far as to write an afternoon paper urging the practice be stopped.

Florence Weston, 14, has been given a wrist watch for the first aid party at a Southeast England town "for conspicuous bravery." Trapped in a basement with two children she was looking after when a bomb demolished the house, she shielded the children from falling debris, burrowed through the wreckage to a basement window and pushed them to safety.

Removes Time Bomb From Under Bed of Officer—Fined $445

LONDON (CP) — A neighborly sort of fellow, Frederick Leighton-Morris, 30, safely removed a time bomb from a West End apartment —and was fined £100 (about $445) by a London court for doing so.

Leighton-Morris, who said the auxiliary fire service rejected him because of his 'groggy heart and 'wonky' lungs," found the bomb under the bed of a French officer who had moved into the next room and gone back to sleep without knowing the bomb was there.

The law says civilians must leave unexploded bombs to "suicide" units —the regular disposal squads.

Leighton-Morris said they'd turned him down, too, so he acted on his own.

Don't Expect Throne Speech Debate to Finish on Tuesday

VICTORIA, Nov. 9 (CP). — There appears small prospect of the Throne Speech debate winding up on Tuesday, as originally expected, Hon. K. C. MacDonald, Minister of Agriculture, adjourned Friday to speak Tuesday. Premier Pattullo plans to speak in the debate later. He will probably close it.

This will delay presentation of the budget until at least next Friday, it is expected.

In reply to questions Hon. G. M. Weir, Provincial Secretary, informed the House there were 877 admissions to Essondale Mental Hospital last year and 717 in the first 10 months of this year.

Hon. W. J. Asselstine, Minister of Trade and Industry, replied to a question that seven companies still owe the Government for advances under the Industries Act. The total amount involved is $193,500.

It was a unanimous award signed by Magistrate G. R. MacQueen, W. I. Crombie and John Stanton and grants the employees partial concessions in wages and working conditions.

Albania Is Likely to Slow Up Italy Drive on Greece

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Canadian Columnist

WASHINGTON—The Greek legation in Washington is considerably depressed by Italy's war move against us, they may make us a deal of trouble."

American military men take it for granted that the Axis will make short work of the little country, possibly with the exception of its coastal fringe, along which they think that Britain's Eastern Mediterranean fleet may help it formidably.

To be sure, the Greeks are rated as first rate fighters and the Italians as pretty weak-kneed warriors. However, the Greeks are away outclassed in numbers, and those they have lack much equipment, whereas the Italians are quite well supplied in the the latter respect. Furthermore, it's assumed that, even if Dictator Mussolini does need any assistance, Dictator Hitler will provide him with it.

ALBANIA A FACTOR

Albania may prove to be an anti-Axis factor in the equation.

It seems funny that that wee little country should signify in the situation. Yet it's across Albania that the Axis forces have been striving to get into Greece overland, dodging the British fleet's superiority on the water.

Now Italy recently grabbed the Albanian realm, kicking King Zog out into exile. According to Italian accounts the Albanians were glad of it, but other stories are to the effect that they were as mad as hornets, and that, today, they're in a state of anti-Italian insurrection—determined to resist the passage of Axis troops across their territory into Greece.

The rumors sound probable, though. The Albanians are a super liberty-loving people. Their methods of fighting also are decidedly primitive.

In the days before the last world war I was in Turkey, which then was fighting Albania.

The Turks, none too civilized themselves, complained that the Albanians were outright savages. They charged that the Albanian custom, when a Turkish prisoner was captured, was to cut his hands off.

The Albanian high command did not deny the accusation, but it deeply resented its implications.

Whether or not Italy has Albania completely licked and pacified and satisfied, I don't know, because of the censorship. But if it hasn't, it has a mean little stretch of country to fight its way through to put Greece on the spot.

REGINA, Nov. 10 (CP).—There is every indication that the coming session of the Saskatchewan Legislature which nominally might be expected to open about the middle of January, will have to be delayed, owing to the conference called at Ottawa to discuss the report of the Sirois Commission on Dominion-Provincial Relations, Government circles said today.

CANADA AIDS EMPIRE WITH HALF MILLION METAL OUTPUT

In the midst of the titanic struggle of a war which threatens to engulf the world, the Canadian mining industry will this year produce minerals with a value in excess of 500,000,000, a new record.

The value of this contribution to the Canadian and Empire war effort is undeniable; the details of the performance are reassuring in a period of stress. Canadian gold—truly a war munition—will reach a this year a record high value of approximately $205,000,000. These golden bullets are vital to the success of the Dominion's effort to maintain the level of the dollar and to purchase abroad essential machines and war supplies.

All of the base metals will make new records, and many of the non-metallics. The Canadian mining industry is keyed to a pitch never before approached.

To feed the vastly stimulated industrial activity of the Dominion in war time requires an increasing flow of metals and minerals. The mining industry was asked by the Government to bend its energies to that end and has responded to the limit of its capacity. Gold, copper, nickel, lead and zinc producers are now operating at rates never before achieved. Mine, mill and smelter labor is contributing its part to the final result.

The creation of half a billion dollars in new wealth annually by the mines has a natural and healthy reaction on the economy of Canada. There are more men employed in the industry than in any previous boom period. The exported metals and minerals are bringing into the Dominion much-needed exchange.

Gold production in 1918 was 700,000 ounces; it is now over 5,500,000 ounces. Canada occupies second place in the world in new gold output. It holds first place in nickel and platinum, third place in copper, zinc and cobalt and fourth place in lead. All of these metals are essential to the conduct of the war and it is notable that in the case of copper, lead and zinc the Canadian producers have contracted with the British War Supply Board to provide the bulk of output at prices ruling slightly lower than the world market at the outbreak of war. This patriotic gesture has helped to reduce the cost of war and has prevented the inflation of prices due to munitions demand.

In the non-metallics, such as asbestos, new records are also being created. Petroleum production has increased ten fold in the past few years and Canada has now achieved second place in the British Empire in the provision of this vital necessity. Coal output is climbing steadily.

In recent years the Dominion has added to the list of its metal production radium, selenium, cadmium, uranium, tellurium, iridium and rhodium. In 1940, for the first time in the history of the Dominion, a commercial production of mercury has been recorded. After a lapse of decades Canada is again producing iron and promises to increase importantly its supply of domestically mined ore within the next few years.

The outbreak of hostilities has brought many problems to the Dominion, including the necessity to control foreign exchange, to maintain the dollar quotation, to guard against inflation. It has been necessary to assume control of metals exports in order that they may not reach actual or potential enemies.

All these problems are interrelated with the production of the Canadian mines. All of them are discussed in the October 24th issue of The Northern Miner which presents, in its Annual Number, a complete review of production, policy and plans of the mines. Articles by recognized authorities on financial and fiscal subjects are introduced and the vital phases of Canada at war are discussed. Interspersed are articles of an historical nature and a review of the 25 years during which The Northern Miner has been in continuous publication. The Annual Number runs to 152 pages, an indication, if any were needed, of the vitality of the Canadian mining industry at this time.

Empress of Britain Bombed and Left Burning by Nazis

The ill-fated Empress of Britain, flagship of the Canadian Pacific line, is shown here being towed off the coast of Ireland after being transformed into a blazing hulk by German incendiary bombs. While being towed to port, the flames hit explosives aboard the Empress and an explosion sunk her. British warships, rushing to the scene, rescued 598 persons from the 643 that were aboard the liner when she was attacked by Nazi planes.

B.C. Fruit Grower Entitled Resent Washington Grower's Attitude Upon Fruit Sales to U.S. Declares Loyd

KELOWNA, B.C., Nov. 10 — "I think that the British Columbia fruit grower is entitled to feel considerable resentment at the dog-in-the-manger attitude of our friends to the South," declared A. K. Loyd in reply to public indignation which has been expressed in the fruit growing areas of Washington against the importation of Canadian apples into the United States this Fall.

"For many years the fruit grower of B.C. has experienced the difficulties attendant on the importation of supplies from our neighbors immediately prior to the opening of the season for many commodities in his home market. Time and again the result of these importations has been to delay the free movement of his soft fruit crop into his own particular field, unless at reduced prices, until the supplies mentioned above have been cleaned up.

"Although this has caused expense, great inconvenience and, in some cases, very considerable irritation, no attempt, to my knowledge, has been made to persuade Canadian authorities to embargo such fruit.

"Up to this time, we have not felt it to be necessary to make any particular protest against the campaign which is being waged in certain fruit circles in Wenatchee against the export of our fruit into the United States. However, since representatives from States to the South of us have gone to the length of requesting Washington to impose an embargo against the export of Canadian fruit, we feel that it is time that the position of British Columbia fruit growers in this regard was amplified."

Canada's Naval Personnel Chief, Canadian and Royal Navy Veteran

By KEN CLARK
Canadian Press Staff Writer
(Copyright, 1940, by The Canadian Press)

The Director of Naval Personnel of the Royal Canadian Navy, Capt. Harold Taylor Wood Grant, submits to interviews as a duty. He has the navy's distaste for getting its name in the paper, but not for the same reason.

Explaining his attitude on the first point (navy's distaste) he says with good Haligonian roundness (the R's are slightly Anglicized), "I don't think the general public realize how valuable information on the movement of ships is to the enemy."

"I saw an article the other day describing convoys and it actually gave the distance between ships moving in convoy," he added. "That would be interesting to a submarine commander firing his torpedoes."

On the second matter Capt. Grant has a kind of combination British-Canadian aversion to getting into the public prints.

The office where he works, arranging to take on more men, train them, figuring how many, when, where, and who goes where to do what, is a typical R.C.N. office operating with an informal efficiency not to be found in other services.

When Capt. Grant's telephone rings, somebody answers on the other side of a thin partition and then if it is the D.N.P. himself who is wanted the person on the other side gives a couple of lusty bangs on the shuddering partition. If the D.N.P. doesn't answer immediately the other side lets go with two or three more terrific wallops.

SERVED IN NORTH

This Capt. Grant is a slim, dark, wiry man. He was born in Halifax in March, 1899, the son of Hon. MacCallum Grant, former Lieutenant-Governor of Nova Scotia.

When the last war started he entered the Royal Canadian Naval College at Halifax. At 16 he was serving in the Leviathan, flag ship of the famous "Hookie" Browning on the North America and West Indies station. Six months he was there and then went to the North Sea where he served on various cruisers. He "saw action" convoying ships to Norway.

"Saw action," he explained, merely meant being fired on with torpedoes. There was some further action in destroyers and active fighting in the Baltic, later on against the Bolsheviki.

It was very cold on that station, he said. His shop was based at Borjka in what then was Finland. But the cold was really the thing. They got out just before the Gulf of Finland froze up.

In 1920 Capt. Grant was a sub-lieutenant on the Canadian cruiser Aurora. There was a kind of rebirth of the Canadian navy at that time.

Capt. Grant thinks they tried to go too fast. "It was no use putting the cart before the horse," he said. "I don't mind saying, and it's a pretty general opinion, that you can't commission a sea-going ship unless you have the personnel and the dockyards and the drydocks to dock her in.

"There's no sense in starting to build a colossal navy if you haven't got the shore facilities. You can put all sorts of ruddy things afloat but you must have trained personnel and the necessary training establishments."

WITH ROYAL NAVY

After a year in the Aurora, Capt. Grant spent two years in H.M.S. Ramillies, a battleship of the Royal Navy. He later specialized in navigation in H.M.S. Dryad at Portsmouth.

He was promoted lieutenant in 1922 and later sepnt a couple of years on the West Coast in destroyers. In 1927 he returned to battleships, the Queen Elizabeth and the Warspite, and was assistant master of the fleet under Admiral Sir Roger Keyes. Master of the fleet, he is careful to explain, merely means that you are a navigating officer.

In 1928 he was promoted to the rank of lieutenant commander and the next year served as staff officer at Halifax. In 1931 he was navigating officer in the Saguenay and after that spent a couple of years ashore at Halifax as first lieutenant at the barracks.

Then he moved to Ottawa as Assistant Director of Naval Intelligence and Plans. He was promoted Commander in 1935 and was named Director of Naval Reserves.

After spending the next year at the naval staff college at Greenwich, England, he was present at the final big naval review before the war.

In 1938 Capt. Grant commanded the Skeena. Last year his escort met the Empress of Australia carrying their Majesties, off Newfoundland, and escorted them to Quebec. In June the captain had the honor of embarking the King and Queen aboard his own ship and carrying them from Tormentine to Charlottetown and thence back to Pictou, N.S.

Capt. Grant thinks it is too bad the naval college at Halifax was closed after the First Great War. He says "it is not easy to build a college with a tradition like the Royal Military College for example, which is known both for learning and sports. The youngsters always look to their seniors. If you have to establish a new college starting from zero it's uphill work.

"Of course since we must always co-operate with the British navy it's essential that our men should have some time in the Royal Navy. Our men have to know the tactics of the battleship and the submarine—every branch of the service.

"A man commanding a destroyer has to know what the other men in the fleet are thinking."

Capt. Grant used to play rugger. He says that all Canadian navy men play football, hockey, tennis, golf, squash and everything except cricket. He is also fond of shooting and fishing. He is married and has three children, one separate and a pair of twins.

Capt. Grant says: "We are a continental people like the people in the United States and we don't realize the importance of the merchant marine. We don't understand the really tremendous part they are playing in the war."

That is a navy tribute!

Bond Prices Mixed on New York Market

NEW YORK, Nov. 10 (AP) — Gains mostly of fractions with a few minor losses were in evidence on the bond market today.

Some U.S. Governments were up 9-32 to 11-32 of a point.

Apple Sales Are Ahead of Same Time Last Year States A. K. Loyd

PENTICTON, B.C., Nov. 10—A distinct note of rising confidence was evident in the voice of A. K. Loyd, General Manager of B.C. Tree Fruits Limited.

"There has been an obvious brightening on the prairies," he reported, amplifying views he gave following his return from an Eastern inspection trip. "The movement of our Winter varieties is particularly good. Distribution, on the whole, shows a definite increase, and an examination of the records tells us that we are ahead of the volume of sales at this time last season. Saskatchewan, as one market, has been one lagging behind last year. But it has been picking up. The next survey of figures will quite likely show that it too is ahead of last season. We are also selling considerable fruit to the East, and are not affected by the zoning restrictions that held up such distribution a year ago."

As at the start of this month, over a million and a half boxes had been shipped to the domestic field, and over 175,000 to export channels.

"There are over three million boxes on hand. That is quite a figure to ponder. But we are not unduly worried."

The storage situation is under control, Mr. Loyd added. There is now no danger of freezing. Perhaps too much is in common storage but as much as possible is being steadily moved to cold storage. The fact that from two to three hundred cars have already gone to destination storage has eases the situation.

Cox Orange apples and Brussel sprouts were added to the multitude of Fall garden produce offered at the City Market Saturday. The apples sold at nine pounds for a quarter, while the Brussel sprouts were listed at 15 cents a pound or two pounds for 25 cents.

The market day saw no price changes listed and demand, especially for greens, was good. Crab apples and Flemish Beauty pears, scant last week, were off the stalls entirely.

Chicago Wheat Gains Sharply

CHICAGO, Nov. 10 (AP)—Rising about a cent at one time, wheat prices Saturday extended the sharp advance which has been under way since Thursday, establishing the highest quotations chalked on Board of Trade blackboards since last May.

Buying inspired by renewed strength of securities and reports of expanding milling and baking trade activity in some sections of the country accounted for most of the market's support. Offsetting this, however, were profit-taking sales, which caused quotations to dip sharply at one stage, and selling based on reports that increased sales of privately owned grain had been attracted by the higher prices.

Calgary Oils Close Stronger

CALGARY, Nov. 10 (CP)—Although trade continued in narrow channels, oil issues on Calgary Stock Exchange closed the week with a stronger undercurrent and gains registered by several stocks.

Extension was in good demand at 14½, same as previous close while McDougall-Segur, Highwood Sarcee, National Pete, Royal Canadian and Twin Butte sold fractionally higher. Transfers 11,450 shares.

Manitoba Social Credit Member Opposes Coalition

WINNIPEG, Nov. 10 (CP).—Miss Salome Halldorson, Social Credit Member in the Manitoba Legislature for St. George, Saturday announced her opposition to Premier John Bracken's coalition government.

Miss Halldorson, only woman member in the Legislature and President of the Manitoba Social Credit League, broke with other members of the Social Credit group in the Legislature on the coalition question.

Miss Halldorson declared the coalition government was centralization which is the negation of Social Credit." After declaring her support for the Social Credit League's stand against the move, she said she believed her best service to Manitoba would be to decline the invitation to join the Bracken union.

Her statement, handed to Premier Bracken, said she would thus remain "free to give expression in the Legislature to the principles of Social Credit on which I was elected."

Largest Parade of Recent Years to March Today in Nelson for Ceremony at Cenotaph and Service at Theatre

School Cadets Are to Make First Public Appearance

One of the largest parades in the recent history of Nelson will march today as this Kootenay city turns its thoughts from the most vicious war of all time to a war that was just as vicious in its day—the First World War.

For today is Remembrance Day. Twenty-two years ago today four years of strife ended. Today those tragic four years and that day of rejoicing will be remembered with renewed vision of the things that men fought for; and the men who died then will be remembered with a new poignancy sharpened by thoughts of the men who are prepared to die today.

"Proudly you gathered, rank on rank, to war,
As who had heard God's Message from afar,
All you had hoped for, all you had, you gave
To save mankind—yourselves you scorned to save".
—"O Valiant Hearts".

Today's service will pay the tribute vibrant in "O Valiant Hearts", and the extent of the parade will be an indication of the breadth and depth of remembrance.

CENOTAPH CEREMONY

The parade will fall in at the Canadian Legion Building at 10:40 and march to the Cenotph, Vernon Street, for the impressive two-minute silence, depositing of wreaths and flowers, and the singing of "God Save the King".

From the Cenotaph the units in the parade will march to the Civic Theatre for the Remembrance Day service. Leading the parade will be the Nelson Brass Band, and assisting it will be a pipe and drum unit.

Parade units will march in the following order: Nelson Brass Band; Nelson Platoon of the Veterans Guard of Canada; Canadian Legion members and unattached ex-service men; Provincial Police; High School Cadets; Junior High School Cadets; Boy Scouts; Girl Guides.

It will be the first public appearance of the school Cadets.

Nelson unit of the Canadian Women's Training Corps, recently organized, will not join in the parade but will attend as a group.

REMEMBRANCE SERVICE

At the Civic Theatre ceremony James Spencer, President of Nelson Branch of the Canadian Legion, will preside. On the platform will also be Lieut. M. K. Harrison, Officer Commanding Nelson Platoon of the Veterans' Guard; Rev. J. G. Holmes, Mayor N. C. Stibbs and Mrs. John Cartmel, Regent of Kokanee Chapter I.O.D.E. The Legion and I.O.D.E. standards will stand at either side of the stage.

Dr. H. H. MacKenzie is to be the Canadian Legion's speaker. Mr. Holmes will lead in prayer and pronounce the benediction. Mayor Stibbs will speak on behalf of citizens. Arthur Stringer, accompanied by C. C. Halleran, will sing.

Hymns, to be led by the Nelson Brass Band, will be: "Fight the Good Fight" and "Onward Christian Soldiers".

At the opening of the program a minute's silence will be observed, with the Piper's "Lament" following.

Trainees Have Heavy, Varied Army Instruction in Their Month's Camp

Since returning from their first taste of army life, the first trainees in the Dominion Government's national training scheme have been deluged with questions from young men in the next class to be called on what soldiering was like, and by veteran soldiers who wanted to know if the boys thought that the month's training was worthwhile.

One point which the boys wanted to make clear refuted the alleged uselessness of the camps at Vernon and Gordon Head, as editorially claimed in one of the Coast dailies. There it was stated that the 30 days would be one grand outing or another vacation for the trainees, and that the instructors were incompetent at Vernon at least. It was anything but, and the trainees could never become as surprisingly proficient in soldiery through solely their own efforts in so short a time, as was admitted by a number of "big shots" who reviewed the various battalions in Western Canada. They argued that the N.C.O.'s who had charge of the instruction proved their capabilities by their products.

HEAVY PROGRAM

Mr. Average Citizen would probably be dubious of what the boys claimed could be and was taught in one month by their instructors. Full eight-hour grinds each day except Saturday afternoon — devoted to sport, and Sunday were run off without a letup. Instructors claimed that so much was thrust at the boys (on orders from Ottawa) that they learned what the average recruit would have four or five months in which to consume what was on the curriculum.

Gas instruction—the nature of the gases, how to detect each kind, and what their effects were, first aid for each kind, and so forth—was given by officers who had taken special courses in England. Respirators arrived in time for the Vernon trainees to learn what it felt like to have them on, how to disinfect them after use, and the slung and two alert positions. The gas chamber is yet to be completed, so the boys did not have an opportunity of testing their respirators in actual necessity.

A full course was given the boys in field drill movements, which were done with rifles after the first few days of training. Ross rifles, used early in the last war, and now for drill purposes only, were issued to each soldier, who thus had to learn the care of arms. Bayonet fighting was also taught, as was trench-digging an dtrench operations, taking cover where it would seem almost impossible for a person to hide himself, and an insight into actual battle operations was given. Each soldier was on the range four times, to fire five rounds of ammunitions. The instructor in musketry was Lieut. Molecy, who twice won the King's Prize in Bisley shoots.

There were approximately 950 trainees, divided into four companies, which were in turn subdivided into five platoons each. The Interior boys were placed in the Rocky Mountain Rangers, and are now attached to the Second Battalion of R.M.R.'s. There were between 200 and 300 commissioned and non-commissioned officers at the camp, besides a number of privates for orderly duty. Lieut.-Col. A. C. Sutton, D.S.O., well known in the Kootenay, was Commanding Officer.

There was a number of trainees who showed such remarkable progress in their new life that they were promoted to lance-corporals. Among these were Alistair McKenzie, late of Trail and formerly of Vancouver and George Fillion and George O'Genski of Nelson. McKenzie was among those who volunteered for active service, close to 50 in the battalion offering themselves to the C. A. S. F.

FINE BOXLA TEAM

A variety of talent came to the fore at the camp. On one or two of the route marches, Alex Halcrow of Penticton, formerly of Nelson, who was also promoted to lance-corporal, led his platoon, No. 1, in which were many of the Kootenay boys, with stirring marches played on his bag pipes. Under the direction of Sergt. Fraser, a fine band was formed, capable of any variety of music required of it. And the Army lacrosse team—well, it was very nearly just as good a club you could gather in Canada. From the Adanacs there were such aces as Bob Lee, Teddy Bradbury, Jimmy Douglas and Bobby Phejan. From Richmond Farmers came Goalie Herbie DelMonico, Bo Ackley and one or two others. Joe Laface of Rossland and Sandy Zinio of Trail played for the squad, but Bill Townsend of Nelson was on the sick list at the time of two games with a representative Okanagan team. The Army won both games, 17-7 and 24-4. On the losers' lineup were Jock Walmsley and Foster Mills.

Although an epidemic of colds and flu swept through the camp, none of the boys were any the worse for the training. The food probably wasn't what they experienced at home, and could and undoubtedly will be improved upon as the camp is still quite a distance away from completion, but other than that there were few kicks.

Reveille was at 6, breakfast at 7 and the first parade at 8. Lunch was at 12:15, and the next parade at 1. Supper was at 5, and then every night the soldiers were free until 10 o'clock roll call. "Lights out" was at 10:15. No late leaves were granted, adding further emphasis to the fact that the training was anything but a picnic.

Trail Lady Struck by a Truck as She Steps Off Sidewalk

TRAIL, B. B., Nov. 10 — Miss Helen Smith was taken to the Trail-Tadanac Hospital, about 3:45 Saturday afternoon, suffering from injuries received when she stepped off the curb on Rossland Avenue, near Weir Street, and was hit by a Fourex Bakery truck.

It is not believed that her injuries were serious.

"Fallen Man" Theme in Scientist Church

"ADAM AND FALLEN MAN" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist Sunday.

The Golden Text was: "Unto thee will I cry, O Lord my rock. . . Save thy people, and bless thine inheritance: feed them also, and lift them up forever." (Psalms 28: 1, 9).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "And the serpent said unto the woman, Ye shall not surely die; for God doth know that in the day ye eat thereof, then your eyes shall be opened, and ye shall be as gods, knowing good and evil". (Genesis 3: 4, 5).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures", by Mary Baker Eddy: "This myth represents errors as always asserting its superiority over Truth, giving the lie to divine Science and say, through the material senses: 'I can open your eyes, I can do what God has not done for you. Bow down to me and have another god. . . Thus Spirit and flesh war.'"

Must Never Again Be Caught Napping Says Noted Author

NEW YORK, Nov. 10 (CP).—The democracies must never again allow themselves to be the victims of fact-blindness, Hendrik Willen van Loon, noted author and historian, said tonight.

"This time we were almost caught napping," he said after referring to many instances where Nazi plans for conquest became known but went unheeded.

Mr. Van Loon spoke from New York at the invitation of G. H. Lash, Director of Public Information at Ottawa, in the weekly series "Let's Face the Facts," broadcast by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

"We have got to train our younger generations the way we train our physicians and engineers — train them to judge every case on its own mrits, train them and never to take anything for granted," he said.
