R. A. F. SPREADS DESTRUCTION IN LIBYA

LOSS OF 34 SHIPS BY JAPANESE SETS BACK TIMETABLE

Sea and Air Battle Is Progressing in Full Fury

LOSS OF MEN IS ENORMOUS

By WITT HANCOCK
Associated Press Staff Writer

BATAVIA, N.E.I., Jan. 27 (AP).—The frightful cost in Japanese men and ships of the battle of Macassar Strait was declared authoritatively tonight to have set back Japan's invasion clock and to have put the enemy face to face with the question of revising his whole plan of South Pacific conquest.

Revised totals tonight, for the first three days of the five-day-old running battle off Borneo, set Japanese naval losses at a minimum of 11 warships and 17 heavily-laden transports sunk or badly smashed. Thirteen Japanese planes, at least, were destroyed. Reports of new losses make the ship toll 34.

(The BBC broadcast a Batavia report Tuesday night saying some 100 Japanese ships were believed originally to have been in the invasion fleet. This account said the running battle still was progressing in full fury).

Uncounted, but obviously enormous, was the number of Japanese troops who lost their lives in the waters of the strategic waterway to the heart of the Indies.

Outstanding was the sinking of a "very large warship, presumably a battleship," by Netherlands army bombers on the first day of the battle last Friday, and the torpedoing and probably sinking of a Japanese aircraft carrier by a U. S. submarine.

(The Batavia count was ony for the period from Jan. 23 through Jan. 25, and a Washington tabulation said Japanese losses ran to 34 ships—11 known sinkings, six probable sinkings, and the damaging of 17).

Despite all these successes the Japanese were believed through sheer weight of numbers to have fought their way into the Kendari region on the Southeast coast of Celebes which flanks the Macassar strait.

A communique said no news had been received from there since the Japanese landed Sunday, "and it is assumed at present that the attacked points have been occupied."

Fruitmen Hold Fire for Debate at Vernon Today

VERNON, B. C., Jan. 27 (CP). — Opening day of the 53rd annual British Columbia Fruit Growers Association convention here today produced little discussion and few fireworks as delegates apparently conserved their energies for Wednesday's feature debate on the proposed three-party contract.

Dr. H. R. McLarty, plant pathologist at the exsprimental station, spoke on diseases and pests in apples, pears, and soft fruits.

That apples from the Fraser Valley and Vancouver Island areas shipped to market should be subject to the same grading and packing regulations as Okanagan produce was the subject of a resolution passed during the afternoon.

Tariff proposals were pushed through during the morning with comparatively little debate.

A speaker who related that he was no longer greatly upset by present difficulties, was J. J. Campbell, Willow Point, introduced as the dean of the fruit growers in the Kootenays.

EDMONTON, Jan. 27 ((CP). — Mrs. Justice G. B. O'Connor tonight sentenced Chester Warren Johnston, 24-year-old Edmonton warehouse worker, to be hanged May 6 after a six-man Alberta Supreme Court jury convicted him of murder.

Johnston was charged with murder in connection with the fatal stabbing of Dorothy Maxine Hammond, 14, last Nov. 13.

HEAVY TOLL OF JAP SHIPS TAKEN OFF MALAY COAST

R.A.F. Hits Convoy as Reinforcements Land

PUSH INTO BURMA APPEARS CHECKED

By C. YATES McDANIEL
(Associated Press Staff Writer).

SINGAPORE, Jan. 27 (AP). — Britain's growing Air Force has struck with telling fury at a Japanese convoy landing reinforcements above the Eastern Malayan front, but tonight the invaders were fighting closer to this great naval base.

Despite determined air bombardment, the Japanese landed an unspecified number of troops and war machines at the Endau, 85 miles to the Northeast. While they were landing, the R. A. F. scored one direct bomb hit on a cruiser, 12 hits on transports and wrought havoc on a large dump of supplies on the coast.

Twelve Japanese planes plummeted to earth in flames, two others were destroyed and another two were damaged.

The Japanese radio attested to the fury of the combat when it claimed 20 British bombers and torpedo planes were destroyed over the water of Endau and the town itself. The British communique made no mention of losses.

Tonight British Empire land forces were contesting the fresh Japanese North of Jemaluang, about 80 miles from Singapore. Mersing, the Eastern anchor of the shortened Imperial defence line, appeared to be in Japanese hands, although the British communique did not specifically say so.

RANGOON, Burma, Jan. 27 (AP).—The Japanese-Thai push into Burma appeared to have been checked tonight after British planes bombed and machine-gunned the invaders' troop and supply trucks on the Kawkareik road East of strategic Moulmein.

The invaders last week were reported only 25 miles from Moulmein, and the fall of the city had seemed imminent a few days ago.

Moulmein itself, only 100 miles from Rangoon across the Gulf of Martaban, was placed under British military rule "in preparation for future operations." Air raid and communication posts were left in civilian hands.

A communique announced the abandonment of Mergui, 240 miles South of Moulmein in the Burma neck bordering Thailand on the long Kra Isthmus leading down to Malaya. A small British garrison had been maintained there even after other units had pulled out of Tenerassim to the South and Tavoy to the North.

HUN RESISTANCE STRONGER, BUT RUSS STILL GAIN

Nazi Air Force Comes Into Action to Aid Retreat

REDS, HOWEVER, GAIN ON ALL AREAS

By EDDY GILMORE
Associated Press Staff Writer

WITH THE RED ARMY ON THE CENTRAL FRONT, Jan. 27 (AP).—A Russian army big and strong enough to maintain its tactics of encirclement edged forward on the whole front tonight despite stiffening German resistance.

Now deep in Smolensk province on the centre, the Red army had cleared the last live German from the province of Moscow; on the upper Volga, 130 miles Northwest of Moscow, the Russians confidently expected to announce at any time the capture of encircled Rzhev; at the spearhead of their north central assault, 80 miles from the Latvian border, the Red armies menaced Velikie Luki. Likewise at Orel, 200 miles Southwest of Moscow, and at Belgorod, at the head of the Donets basin, German garrisons were heavily pressed.

North of here Russian forces were moving East of Nelidovo in flanking movements which liberated more mileage of the Rzhev-Velikie Luki railway.

Word from the Southwestern front said battles there were more intense, with German counter-attacks in some sector. However, the Russians announced the capture of staff officers of the 17th army corps, 626 infantry regiment and an artillery division.

The Nazi air force was suddenly more active; up here the planes are trying to protect columns which are endeavoring to withdraw the remnants of tank divisions to Germany. There Lt.-Gen. Leonie Govorov told us, the Germans hope to prepare fore a vast tank offensive in the spring.

In 30-below-zero cold, the Germans brought up several fresh battalions on the Southern sector of the central front, but they were scattered inexorably.

Most of the German prisoners captured within the last few days told the Russians they had been called urgently from occupied France. Only a few appeared to be professional soldiers.

Allied Supply Council Set Up in Australia

MELBOURNE, Jan. 27 (CP). — A new allied supply council was created here today and the government announced all commonwealth labor would be diverted to defence production in a broad program to strengthen the united nations' position in the Southwestern Pacific.

And when the allies are "on anything like equal terms" with Japan, cabinet members declared, the United States-Netherlands victory over an enemy invasion fleet in Macassar Strait will be repeated in every theatre of the Pacific conflict.

The Australian air force gave the Japanese a taste of what is to come with a successful raid last night on Rabaul Harbor, New Britain, where three enemy ships were damaged. Two were set ablaze.

13 Japs Killed by Australian Trio

MELBOURNE, Jan. 27 (AP).—An Australian company commander and two soldiers surprised a Japanese detachment in a railway station on the Malayan front, killing 13 and capturing another, it was disclosed today.

The three were visiting a deployment of their company when they saw the Japanese being conducted into a railway station by a native official.

They attacked with Tommygun-fire and other hand weapons. The commander set upon two Japanese in the waiting room, killing one with his gun and capturing the other after using his fists and steel helmet.

AFTER R.A.F. VISITED TRIPOLI

This photograph was found in the pocket of a German prisoner, captured in the Battle of Libya. He said it was a photo of part of the waterfront at Tripoli made after a raid by Royal Air Force. German soldier are looking over some of the damage on the quay.

TWO BIG TANKERS TORPEDOED OFF ATLANTIC COAST

Fate of 55 Seamen Is Still in Doubt

LEWES, Del., Jan. 27 (AP). — Two big American tankers have been torpedoed in a fresh foray by enemy submarines against shipping off the Atlantic coast, the navy disclosed tonight, with the fate of some 55 seamen in doubt.

An estimated 17 survivors from one stricken ship, the 7096-ton Francis E. Powell, were brought ashore at the coast guard station here at 8:3 0p.m. some of them injured. Shipping registers list her normal complement as 32.

The other tanker attacked was the Pan Maine of 7236 tons with a normal complement of 40. Naval authorities said they lacked any information as to the fate of her crew.

If these 40 men and 15 seamen unreported from the Powell are lost, the toll of death in the current wave of U-boat marauding off the coast would mount to 152 men.

The two ships were attacked last night. The navy announcement said they had been "torpedoed" but did not clarify whether they had been sunk or what section of the Atlantic coast the attacks occurred.

These torpedoings brought to 10 the number of ships reported attacked off the Atlantic coast by enemy submarines within the last two weeks. Ninety-seven persons lost their lives in the eight previous attacks.

KINGSTON, Ont., Jan. 27 (CP).—A Royal Canadian Air Force investigating board today praised four Kingston penitentiary prisoners and Guard David Reason who yesterday rushed to the scene of a plane crash and despite fierce flames extricated from the wreckage the body of one of two airmen killed. Record month lasty ear was June with 904 enlistments; and if the present rate is maintained, a total of over 1000 for January is expected, Col. Goodman said.

British Columbia still leads Canada in percentage of enlistments for the army in relation to population.

Liberals Object to Plebiscite on Conscription

OTTAWA, Jan. 27 (CP). — Two Liberal members, speaking from different points of view, criticized the government's plebiscite proposal in the House of Commons tonight.

Ross W. Gray (Lib. Lambton West), former chief whip of the party, objected to it on the ground he favored immediate imposition of compulsory service for overseas while Edouard Lacroix (Lib. Beauce), speaking in French, described it as "a terrible concession to the extremists" and argued there was no need to extend compulsion to include service overseas.

The plebiscite by which the government proposes to seek release from pledges against the imposition of compulsory overseas service was the chief talking point in a day's debate on the speech from the throne.

Hon. W. Earl Rowe (Con. Duffer-in-Simcoe) was against it and declared Prime Minister Mackenzie King should either assume full responsibility of necessary action and ask parliament to enact overseas conscription or surrender the seals of office to someone else who would.

Hon. Grote Stirling (Con. Yale) presented arguments against the plebiscite proposal and cited examples in great Britain and the United States where he said the Government, faced with new conditions, took action contrary to election pledges without consulting the people.

The former minister of national defence said he could not see how the government could adequately explain to the people the need of releasing it from its pledges and the action it proposed to take when it was released.

Brest Docks Bombed But No Raid on Berlin

LONDON, Jan. 27 (CP).—Strong forces of Royal Air Force bombers attacked Hannover and Emden objectives overnight, and other places in Northwest Germany also were bombed.

Another force bombed the docks at Brest. The Ministry said three British aircraft were missing.

The German capital was not among R. A. F. objectives last night, an informed source said in comment on a German assertion the British bombers penetrated to the capital's outskirts.

FLIERS, TORPEDO BOATS TAKE TOLL OF JAP BOMBERS

Philippine Fighting Almost at a Standstill

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27 (AP).—Daring exploits by planes and torpedo boats attached to the forces of Gen. Douglas MacArthur were recounted today by the United States War Department, while the Japanese invaders gave the defenders of Batan peninsula a 24 hour respite.

Quoting MacArthur, a department communique said that two army P-40 pursuit planes took to the air to combat three Japanese dive bombers. Two of the three bombers were shot down and the third disabled. Neither American plane was damaged.

The officers of two motor torpedo boats, sighting two formations of Japanese bombers approaching, placed themselves directly in the path of the second formation, let loose with their guns, and dispersed the planes.

Their accurate fire scored hits on three enemy planes. When last seen the bombers were smoking and rapidly losing altitude, MacArthur cited the officers and men of the small, speedy boats for gallantry.

The swarms of enemy troops pressing MacArthur into Batan Peninsula had evidently had enough fighting for a while, after the smashing blow which routed one end of their battle line at the end of the week. For 24 hours the department said, there had been practically no ground fighting on Batan.

Victoria House Speeds Debate

VICTORIA, Jan. 27 CP)— Rapid progress was made in the Legislature today, four speakers being heard in debate on the budget; three bills given third reading, two given second reading, one committed and one motion withdrawn.

Two Liberals, Mark Connelly Omineca, and Glen Braden (Peace River) and two C.C.F. Sam Guthrie (Cowichan-Newcastle) and Colin Cameron (Comox) contributed to the debate.

Bills given third reading included amendment to the so-called Moratorium Act, protecting servicemen from losing homes through judgment creditors, amendment to the Land Registry Act, giving public officials the right to search titles without paying a fee; and minor amendments to the Coal and Petroleum Act providing for a fee of $10 in connection with crown grants.

Second reading was given amendment to the Wills Act, permitting minors in the armed forces to make a will, and an amendment to the Notaries Act, prohibiting any barrister or solicitor from exercising the powers of a notary while disbarred disqualified or suspended.

Hundreds of Axis Machines Blasted, Many Men Killed

Attacks Launched as Axis Troops Pause to Bring Up Supplies; British Also Re-Concentrate Forces

By PESTON GROVER
Associated Press Staff Writer

CAIRO, Egypt, Jan. 27 (AP)—The Royal Air Force announced today vast destruction of German-Italian motor vehicles and manpower in what was generally described as its most destructive single day's work on Axis columns since the Libyan campaign begun.

Figures were not yet available, but the British bombers and fighters were known to have destroyed hundreds of Axis machines of all sorts and to have killed many of their crews with machine-gun fire as the men abandoned their vehicles to flee afoot in the desert.

The R.A.F.'s opportunity came as the counter-attacking Germans and Italians paused to catch their breath in the area South and Southeast of Bengasi. It was seized quickly, with first notable results achieved Monday.

Reports reaching Cairo indicated that after four days of an admittedly successful counter-advance, the troops of German General Erwin Rommel eased up in the area of Zouiet Msus—which they have captured. This was necessary for them to bring up supplies and reinforcements but it gave the British an even better opportunity to do the same thing.

Rommel's fully-exploited early successes temporarily disturbed British communications and supply lines, so that thus far all the fighting has been of a skirmish nature between small mobile columns over a wide area. While the fighting was of a severe character, the main forces had not yet come into the picture.

Rommel is believed to have captured some small supply dumps which will help him, but Axis reports of capturing large numbers of tanks and guns were treated here as exaggerations.

In the constant war in that sea, the Admiralty today acknowledged its first Mediterranean battleship loss—the 31,000-ton Barham, sunk Nov. 25. Of the crew of 1200, official sources said 300 were believed to have been saved.

Silence in both British and Axis communiques on exactly what was happening in the desert indicated that it was touch and go whether Britain's Imperial Army could continue to hold the Germans and Italians in their present positions.

The British Command said there had been little change in the last 24 hours, with the main battle area still North and Northeast of Zouiet Msus, about 60 miles Southeast of Bengasi and about 140 miles Northeast of El Agheila.

The Germans already have recaptured airfields from which the R.A.F. had been operating in this area.

Kootenay Members Object to Jap Move to Interior Points

VICTORIA, Jan. 27—Several up-country members of the British Columbia Legislature in interviews today said they were opposed to Japanese from coastal areas being employed on the land in the interior under any plans calling for their removal from coastal defence areas.

Those objecting included Frank Putnam (Lib. Nelson-Creston), C.S. Leary (Lib. Kaslo-Slocan) and T.A. Love (Cons. Grand Forks-Greenwood).

Most of them expressed alarm that if allowed to work on interior farms the Japanese might become permanent residents.

Japanese Bombs Kill 1102 in Rangoon

RANGOON, Burma, Jan. 27 (CP) —One thousand, one hundred and two persons have been killed by Japanese bombs in Rangoon since December 23.

Officials Deny Peru, Ecuador Dispute Ended

RIO DE JANEIRO, Jan. 27 AP) —Foreign Minister Oswaldo Aranha of Brazil said tonight the Century-old border dispute between Peru and Ecuador had been definitely settled but Julio Tobar Donoso, later indicated that his country did not agree.

Aranha said he expected the signing to take place tomorrow but Tobar Donoso, leaving a late conference with Aranha, said:

"It is not all settled. Tonight I cannot say anything. I really don't know if the signing will take place tomorrow."

Enrique Arroyo Delgado, Ecuadorian Minister to Rio de Janeiro, who was also in Aranha's office, said "we would not be here tonight if everything was settled."

Under an agreement with the two countries, Aranha said, the Peruvian nation is terminating relations with Germany, Japan and Italy.

Peru already has broken with the Axis, but Ecuador was held off pending disposition of her ancient differences over 2800 square miles of trackless jungles.

Blackmore Asks House-Cleaning

OTTAWA, Jan. 27 (CP)—House-cleaning among his advisers was urged on Prime Minister Mackenzie King today by New Democracy leader Blackmore in the House of Commons.

Mr. Blackmore said the Prime Minister had about him "antiquated egotists, bewildered theorists, pious faced self-seekers, often the agents of anti-social interests, masquerading behind the cloak of public servants and the mask of Canada's war effort."

The Prime Minister must set about an early "Spring cleaning with discernment, vigor and courage to rid Canada of harmful men and their harmful ideas."

50 High School Girls In Junior Red Cross Are Doing a Big Work; 100 Parcels Sent Alumni Serving

By SUE BERRY

Everyone, everywhere in our country today is doing his best to promote our war effort and the students and teachers of the Nelson High School are no exception. As soon as possible after war broke out out the usual routine of recreational Clubs every Wednesday afternoon was abandoned and Junior Red Cross and Cadet Activities adopted.

MANY BUSY GROUPS

The Junior Red Cross was divided into several groups, namely Knitting, Sewing, Choral and Handicraft, all of which have done very good work. The Knitting and Sewing Groups work regularly and steadily on various articles, which are periodically turned in to the local branch of the Red Cross. The Handicraft Group, introduced this year spent the Fall and early Winter months making all sorts of articles—toys, necklaces, brooches, etc. These were sold just before Christmas, clearing the sum of $10. The Choral Group is practicing for a program which it hopes to present in the Spring.

During the September-December term of 1941 the girls set themselves two big tasks and carried out both successfully.

CATERED FOR CONVENTION

The first was a colossal effort in itself. In order to raise much needed funds the girls decided to do the catering to the Annual Teachers' Convention banquet. Every one of the 150 girls in the Club did something—whether it was making favors or washing dishes—toward the preparation of the dinner, which was attended by 265 guests. Some of the girls prepared vegetables, some set and decorated tables, some served and some made cocktails. The Practical Arts students were chiefly responsible for the actual cooking of the food and preparation of the salads, and their efforts were highly complimented by the visiting teachers. When it was all over the teachers and girls were very pleased to find that a sum of $77 had been cleared.

CHRISTMAS PARCELS

Marge Fraser, President of the J. R. C., was responsible for the idea of the second big task. She suggested, and the girls and teachers readily agreed, that the High School attempt to contact all alumni in the Active Services in order to send them Christmas parcels. Files were made of the boys' addresses, and each girl in the Club wrote to a boy in the services asking him what he would like in his parcels. As soon as the Club members had an idea of what was preferred by the boys, over 100 parcels were sent out, and now a steam of acknowledgements is pouring in. Such words of appreciation from the boys as—"It reassures us that the gang back home is thinking of us" . . . "It was a thrill to get a remembrance from N.H.S." . . . "It is hard to find words to say how much I appreciated your gift." . . . "A parcel from home is a bright spot in an airman's life"—make the girls think that they have done a worthwhile job.

Much of the credit for last term's successful work goes to Miss M. E. Cottingham, Miss B. Lang and Miss G. Hudson, the teacher-supervisors, and to Marge Fraser, Miriam Hilliard, Mona Scott and Isabel Kay, executive of the J.R.C.

The girls of the Club have worked hard and done well, and like students in other schools all over the Dominion, hope to go on to bigger and better things in the future.

Will She Eat Icing Too? Cake Is Stake in Creston Wager

CRESTON, B.C.—Dares and bets are sometimes brought about in the most unusual ways. The Creston Review was the nucleous of such a dare last Monday, when Ted Staples who would pay for a pound white cake, dared Eleanor Spratt, social editor of the Review, she could not eat the one-pound cake at one sitting. The social editor took on the dare or bet, with the understanding that if she won, Mr. Staples would have to advertise the forthcoming basketball dance, on the main street of Creston next Saturday evening, during the busiest part of the night. If the social editor lost the bet, she would have to do the same. The cake eating contest takes place next Saturday afternoon. Either the social editor will be too sick to see the advantage of advertising, or Mr. Staples will be too amazed to do the advertising.

Oldtimers' Puck Battles Have Happy Ending; Trail Evens Honors, Win 16-8

Faced with dire threats from Doug Hank Laurients of heavy fines and no vitamin pills for a week unless they won, Trails hockey oldsters faced the Nelson old timers on the Civic Centre ice Tuesday night, ready to do their al. for good old Smelter City. They did—16-8.

HAPPY ENDING

Both sides were happy for it is many moons since the annual hockey classic, staged to give kid hockey a financial boost, has ended with honors even, and they marched off the ice to the banquet table—there to talk and live again old hockey wars. Nelson at Trail last week won 13-11.

It was a fun-filled, entertaining game. Nobody took it very seriously, and there were faux pas aplenty. In the best of spirits, in fact fairly oozing with hospitality, Nelsonite Ty Culley helped Trailite Curly Wheatley score a goal in the third. Not to be outdone, Wheatley within a few minutes came right back and scored one for Nelson. The two gentlemen then met in mid-ice to express mutual appreciation, and shake hands on a job well done.

FORMER GREATS

Trails was a star-studded cast of ex-hockey greats. There was "Speed" Moynes of Vancouver Millionaires in the days of Cyclone Taylor, et al; Deacon Waite, former New York American; Norman Cook from the old Moncton Hawks Allan Cup team; John Shepard, ex-New York American and Detroit Red Wing; P. R. McDonald, B. C. Hockey Association proxy of many years; and many others. What the Nelson lineup lacked in great names, they made up in color and glamor. They had the "Flying Fathers," Boyle and Redman; the Apex glamor boys, the O'Genski brothers; the Marquis brothers, and others to add to the color and the fun.

The score board showed Trail leading 4-2 in the first, 9-3 in the second, and 16-8 in the third. The summary can tell the story—.

Churchill Frankly Faces Bad News and Says Perhaps Worse to Come, But Sees Victory Coming Nearer as Might of United Nations Grows

Announces Imperial War Cabinet With Representation of Canada and Other Dominions — Libya Profitable Transaction With Enemy Losses Three Times Our Own — Asks Vote of Confidence to Kill Off "Silly Ideas" in Other Countries — U. S. Troops in Northern Ireland Vanguard of More to Come

LONDON, Jan. 27(CP)—Prime Minister Churchill presented Britain with a picture of growing nounced that the Dominions are Allied might and unity today, anbeing accorded representation in the War Cabinet and asked for a vote of confidence in his government.

At the same time he admitted "We have a great deal of bad news from the Far East and I think it highly probable we shall have a great deal more."

"I am the man that parliament and the nation have got to blame for the general way in which they were served," he said in a voice made husky by a heavy cold as he summed up Britain's war fortunes in his first review since his Christmas visit to the United States.

"And," he added, "I cannot serve them effectively unless in spite of all that has gone wrong and is going to go wrong, I have their trust and their faithful aid."

Against his frank admission that bad news has come from the Pacific Ocean battlefront, he told the House of Commons:

Considerable reinforcements have reached the Malayan front during the last week.

A Pacific Defence Council is being formed.

United States fighter squadrons will help defend Britain against air assault.

United States bombing squads will take the offensive with the Royal Air Force in bombing Germany.

MOVE U.S. TROOPS TO EUROPE

American troops in Northern Ireland are only the vanguard of more to come.

Axis losses in Libya have been three times those of the Imperial forces.

"We are beginning to see our way through," the Prime Minister declared.

"There is no question of regarding the Pacific war as a secondary consideration," he also said.

"We are taking many measures with the United States to increase the security of Australia and New Zealand, sending reinforcements, arms and equipment by the best routes."

"It is because I see the light gleaming behind the clouds and broadening upon our path," he said at the end of his candid report of the good and evil in Britain's war fortunes, "that I make so bold now as to demand a declaration of confidence of the House of Commons as an additional weapon in the armory of the united nations."

IMPERIAL WAR CABINET

Mr. Churchill had asked for accredited representation in the war cabinet in formulation and direction of policy.

"We have, of course, agreed," he said, adding: "The same facilities will be accorded to New Zealand, Canada and South Africa."

At the close of the war leader's speech, the House of Commons began debate on Britain's war direction which Mr. Churchill will wind up with a brief concluding speech this week.

The thunderous cheers that greeted his one hour and 24 minutes accounting left no doubt how the House of Commons will vote when it finally puts the question of confidence to a test.

"We shall presently regain naval command of the Pacific and begin to establish effective superiority in the air," the Prime Minister predicted.

He pledged that the Malay peninsula would be defended to the last inch and said he doubted invasion of Australia — "a very ambitious overseas operation and certainly limited time before the British and American navies, as must regain, ultimate command of the Pacific."

Although Mr. Churchill said he "must confess to feeling the weight of war upon me even more than in the tremendous Summer days of 1940," he spoke with obvious confidence and appeared to be in high good humor.

BROAD NEW WAR PLANS

The Prime Minister divulged broad new plans for unifying war direction, bringing in Britain's Dominions.

Mr. Churchill mentioned arrangements with President Roosevelt for a body in Washington to be called "The Combined Staff Committees" and declared that "we must also concert together in close collaboration with Stalin and Chiang Kai-Shek."

In Libya, he said, an imperial army outnumbered two-to-one by Lt.-Gen. Edwin Rommel's German-Italian forces has rewon Cirenaica.

It has lost 18,000 men killed, wounded or captured, he disclosed, but he declared more than three times that number—"a highly profitable transaction" — have been lost by the Axis. He totalled their casualties at 61,000.

Now, he added, Britain's job is to hold reconquered Cirenaica.

He called Britain's munitions output "gigantic" with tank production doubled in the last six months and small arms more than doubled.

Britain's volume of planes is steadily rising, he said, and they are larger and better.

Australia wants and New Zealand prefers Washington as the meeting pace, Mr. Churchill said, but no decision has been reached yet whether it will be there or London.

"It is because things have gone badly, and worse is to come, that I demand a vote of confidence," he said.

Referring to press criticisms of recent week about "our affairs at home and abroad," Mr. Chnurchill told the House the present occasion was one of those arising in the life of any government which "must be clarified."

"We have a great deal of bad news from the Far East and I think it highly probable we shall have a great deal more," Mr. Churchill said gravely.

"Wrapped up in this bad news will be many tales of blunders and shortcomings in foresight and action."

"SILLY IDEAS"

Bidding for a show of British unanimity, the Prime Minister told the house that when Rudolf Hess, No. 2 Deputy of Hitler, "flew over here some months ago he firmly believed he had only to gain access to certain circles in this country for what he described as the Chuchill clique to be thrown out of power and for a government to be set up with which Hitler could negotiate a magnanimous peace."

"That may seem silly to us but it is mischievous abroad I am sure the house would wish to make its position clear," the Prime Minister went on.

"Since I have been back in this country I have had inquiries from a dozen governments based on enemy propaganda turning upon the point as to whether the government is to be dismissed from power or not."

HIGHLY PROFITABLE TRANSACTION

Mr. Churchill disclosed that Britain had "never had more than 45,000 men against an enemy more than double that strength" during the battle of Libya.

Nevertheless, against 18,000 men of the Imperial Army killed, wounded or captured, "of which the greater part were British," he said Lt.-Gen. Erwin Rommell "has lost three times our land losses — a highly profitable transaction."

The Battle of Libya would have been lost Nov. 24, he said, had not Gen. Sir Claude J. E. Auchinleck, commander of the British Middle Eastern Forces, "intervened himself, changed command and ordered the ruthless pressure of attack to be risks or consequences."

"But for this robust decision we should now be back on the line from which we started," Mr. Churchill continued, "or perhaps further back. Tobruk would possibly have fallen and Rommel would be marching toward the Nile."

"Cirenaica has been regained—it still has to be held.

"We have in our possession 36,500 prisoners including many wounded, of which 10,500 are Germans.

"We have killed and wounded at least 11,500 Germans and 13,000 Italians.

"In all we have accounted for 61,000 men. There is also a mass of enemy wounded, some of which have been evacuated to the rear, to sea or to westward."

Furthermore, Mr. Churchill declared, the Axis has lost 852 aircraft and 386 tanks.

"HEADS ABOVE WATER"

He declined to predict the outcome of the Libyan battle but he declared that "after two and a half years of war we have only just managed to keep our heads above water . . . "We are beginning to see our way through and it looks more than ever before that we are going to win."

Mr. Churchill dwelt at length on the achievements of Soviet Russia and told the House that "we have sent Stalin exactly what he asked for."

Nevertheless, he acknowledged bad weather had caused "a small lag" and promised it would be made up "by the early days of February."

Never since we were deserted by the Bordeaux-Vichy Government and were set upon by Italy," said Mr. Churchill, has the situation in the Nile Valley, both west and east, been as favorable.

But, he said, only by the smallest margin have the British forces so far succeeded in beating Rommel in Cirenaica and only by the victories of the Russians on the Black Sea "have we been spared the overrunning of those vast lands from the Levant to the Caspian.

SURVIVE BY SMALL MARGIN

Telling the House every tank and every aircraft squadron was needed in Libya, Mr. Churchill declared it would "see by what a small margin and by what strokes of fortune we so far have survived."

Referring to the demands on him last summer and fall for a continental invasion, Mr. Churchill commented that "all the troubles in the Far East might have been sunk into insignificance compared with another and far worse Dunkerque" had he yielded.

Of other war theatres, Mr. Churchill said that because of a cabinet policy of avoiding embroilment with Japan, "we have lain for nearly two years under the threat of attack by Japan."

"Now that the blow has fallen," he added, "it does not fall upon us alone."

The Prime Minister called Britain's munitions output "gigantic" and said it was "rounding up in remarkable manner."

Praising Lord Beaverbrook, Minister of Supply, Mr. Churchill said, "we are producing twice as many and far more complicated guns every month as we did in the peak of 1917 and 1918."

"Tank production has doubled in the last six months," he disclosed. "Small arms production is more than twice what it was six months ago. In aircraft production, there is a steady increase not only in the numbers but in the size and quality of aircraft."

Because of preoccupations elsewhere, he asserted, Britain had it in her power "only to make moderate and partial provision in the Far East against the hypothetical danger of Japanese attack."

WHY BLAME SOLDIERS?

"Why then should I be called upon to pick out scapegoats and throw blame on generals and soldiers?" he demanded bluntly of those who have been urging Cabinet changes.

Mr. Churchill furthermore took personal responsibility for diplomatic policy toward Russia and the handling of Britain's resources, strategy and dispositions of forces in the Pacific.

"I am the man that Parliament and the nation has got to blame for the general way in which they were served," he told them.

The Prime Minister warned that Japanese naval supremacy would last "long enough for Japan to inflict many heavy and painful losses on all the united nations with establishments and possessions in the Far East. But if we persevere, the boot will be on the other leg."

Lyndon as missing in action, and Capt. Bush as wounded in action.

Brig. Lawson and Maj. Lyndon were listed in the army's December 31 list, which was the first list containing names of men from the Canadian contingent which fought a gallant two-week losing stand in defence of the Far East fortress against outnumbering Japanese forces. Capt. Bush was reported "wounded in action" in the army's January 14 list.

DUBLIN, Jan. 27 (CP).—Prime Minister Eamon de Valera issued a statement tonight protesting against the arrival of United States troops in Northern Ireland, across the border from Eire.

No Pledge to Quebec's Godbout on Conscription Policy or to Anyone Else, Says Prime Minister

OTTAWA, Jan. 27 (CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King told the House of Commons today he has no understanding with anyone as to what action he may take after the people vote on the plebiscite to release the Government from anti-conscription pledges, but repeated his statement of yesterday that he refused to make any fresh commitments.

He was answering a question from Conservative House Leader Hanson based on a reported statement by Premier Godbout of Quebec that Mr. King was an "anti-conscriptionist."

"There is no understanding, expressed or implied, with Mr. Godbout or any other person on earth with respect to the attitude I propose to take after the people have expressed their views on the plebiscite," said Mr. King.

So far as overseas service was concerned, that question was decided at the last election, and without consulting the people he would not propose compulsion for overseas service.

As to what he would do after consultation he did not propose to bind himself by fresh commitments while seeking release from past commitments.

Whatever your washing method . . .

● Though any soap—bar, powder or flake—will remove the general dirtiness from the clothes, your washing is never really complete unless you've used Sunlight Soap.

Even with hard rubbing you cannot be sure of a thorough cleansing for those extra-soiled parts of clothes where the dirt clings tightly—collarbands and cuffs, and the under-arm portions of personal garments. Moreover, hard rubbing is injurious. But with Sunlight Soap it is never necessary. Sunlight has an "extra soapiness" which makes it exactly suited for applying straight on to the specially dirty parts at once. A very light touch of Sunlight leaves a thin film of soap right in contact with the dirt. And the moment you start washing this soapy film acts instantly—speedily loosening the dirt—soaking away every trace of it. That's the Sunlight method of washing—and it's an amazingly effective and safe way of getting clothes spotlessly clean to the last stitch.

Whatever washing and cleaning jobs you do you'll find Sunlight's "extra soapiness" will assist you amazingly. Sunlight is absolutely pure—safe for fine fabrics and delicate surfaces—safe for your hands, too!

Navy Rounds Up Hundreds of Japanese Fishing Boats on Pacific Coast
Craft Will Be Manned By White Fishermen For The Duration of War

Ratings of the Canadian Navy, their service rifles slung over their shoulders, stand guard at the wheel of a Japanese fishing vessel seized by West Coast authorities immediately after Canada declared war upon the Nipponese Empire.

As Japanese fishing boats were rounded up by the Navy, owners were closely questioned. Most are Canadian citizens, have already volunteered for war work.

Japanese housewife explains to Canadian naval officer that her husband is at sea with his fishing boat. Scenes such as this were duplicated in all the Japanese settlements of the West Coast as the Navy started its thorough sweep.

Each boat was demobilized by the removal of some vital part of its motor. Now that the Government has decided to allow the owners to lease or sell their boats to white fishermen, these carefully tagged and stored parts will be replaced.

The Union Jack goes up on one of the Japanese fishing vessels immobilized by the Canadian Navy. Jap fishermen will not be allowed to operate during the war.

A naval patrol vessel tows in a batch of Jap fishing boats. Owned by Japanese who are Canadian citizens, the boats were seized as a purely precautionary measure. They will be purchased or leased by Canadian fishermen for the duration.

A few hours after Canada went to war with Japan the Canadian Navy was rounding up all Pacific Coast fishing craft operated by persons of Japanese origin. It has now been announced that these craft, shown tied up at Steveston, on Vancouver Island, will be leased or bought from their owners and operated by white fishermen. Japs will not be allowed to sail in Canadian waters during the war. They will be permitted to serve in a special war work organization if they desire. The seizure of boats was done on a friendly basis. Many Jap fishermen have already volunteered to serve Canada in any war capacity.

William Irvine Hurt Sunday as Falls From Car

William Irvine of Nelson suffered bruises and a possible skull fracture Sunday morning when the car in which he and D. L. Kerr of Nelson were coming from Spokane, hit a patch of ice, and turned completely around, throwing out Mr. Irvine.

Mr. Kerr and Mr. Irvine had started out from Spokane about 8:30 Sunday morning. At 9:45 when they had travelled about 44 miles, the right rear wheel of the car driven by Mr. Kerr hit a patch of ice and the car turned completely around. Mr. Irvine grasped the door handle of the door and hung on to it to save himself. The door opened and he was thrown forward so that when the car stopped he was about six or eight feet in front of it. A group of skiers arrived a few moments later and helped Mr. Kerr assist the injured man to the car.

Mr. Irvine did not lose consciousness. He was taken to the Newport Wash., Hospital.

He was reported Tuesday as progressing favorably and it is hoped he will be home soon. Mr. Kerr was uninjured and after spending the night at Newport he returned home Monday.

There was no damage to the car which did not leave the highway.

Garland Tells Gyros Why Nazis Failed In Russia

Giving an insight into the difference of structure of Nazi Germany Maurice Hindus' 'Hitler Cannot Conquer Russia', C. B. Garland revealed to the Nelson Gyro Club Monday night the strength of Russia, that would keep it forever from falling before the Nazis.

There was some political similarity in the two dictatorships, he said, but there were great economic and sociological differences. The Soviets were violently insulted by the Nazi claims of a superman race, for the masses had been taught that they were the equal of any man, and to call no one their masters.

WELL EQUIPPED TO FIGHT

The Russians had proven they are not the "starved degraded people" ready to be led into revolution and civil war that the Nazis believed. Instead they had merged their resources and entered a fight to the death. They were well equipped. Besides the inherent Russian love of his soil, they had the "will to fight, the organization to fight, weapons to match their enemies' and honest, capable generalship."

The Nazis could never conquer Russia, said Mr. Garland, quoting from Hindus. Even if the Soviet "formal front" was crushed it would only promote the greatest guerilla war in history. From youth the Soviets were trained in guerrilla tactics. Their "scorched earth" policy which seemed impossible to carry out to Anglo-Saxons, was built on the basis of "what we have built we can build again."

Stalin's teachings, the new mass production methods, and collectivism had prepared Russia for eventual invasion. Because of the new training, the economic structure erected, the social fabric created, the Nazis would never beat the Russians, he said.

R. D. Barnes, Program Chairman, thanked Mr. Garland for his address on behalf of the members.

Flt. Sergt. J. Newton of the R.A.F. School at Medicine Hat, and Lieut. J. B. Curran, former Nelsonite, were guests.

SERIAL STORY . . . By LORENA CARLETON

Castle of Contentment

CHAPTER FORTY-TWO

To Francie, it was a moment of agony, when the Cromwell family came in. With the exception of her eyes, her features were expressionless, yet there was such torture in them alone that Ylena turned away so as not to see. Even I, she thought with thanks, have never been that miserable over Tate Cromwell.

Various diners in the room now were watching the Cromwells make their way to a table near enough to Terrence Alkire's to assure reward for neck-gawking curiousity.

Tate saw them first. Ylena knew by the way he opened his eyes, then instantly snapped them shut, and the slight flare of his nostrils. He gave no other sign of recognition, as he trailed other members of his family. They sat down, looked about them, and then it happened.

Complexions changed colour, eyes widened, then immediately looked in the opposite direction; hands began to make nervous movements and conversation was very exhilerated and continuous or else there was a complete lull.

Suddenly Ylena got to her feet. The long skirt of her beige lace dress swirled above her garnet-toned velvet sandals, as she made her way to the Cromwell table. They received her exactly as she had expected, with sincere pleasure, yet managed to hide potent questions beneath welcoming greetings.

"Look here!" she answered in a low voice. "The whole town is talking about you already. They've been dashing into my shop with the most absurd requests to see whether Mrs. Taylor Cromwell, Jr., and I are tearing out hunks of hair from the other's head. Naturally, I have no love for Francis, but I do have pity, which I'd suggest for all of you." Still smiling in a sparkling manner for the benefit of those watching, she continued to tell them what she thought of the way they were mistreating Francis. "If you don't make some motion of friendliness toward her tonight, you'll be the laughing stock of La Madera after this night."

The men fiddled with the stems of their cocktail glasses.

Mrs. Cromwell and Diane, also were silent. Finally Sara Cromwell said, "Ask her to come over."

Ylena gave a disgusted click of her tongue. "The girl is so crushed and terrified, her legs would never get her here." She turned to Tate, and pleaded into his sullen face, "Go with me and bring her back here. For the sake of public appearance." Her eyes sought those of the senior Cromwell. "And for business!" she said with emphasis.

She felt Tate's touch upon her arm. "All right. I'll do it," he bargained, "if you'll dance over to the table with me."

"All right," the girl finally granted, "when the music starts we'll go."

"It will start right now," Tate volunteered. He caught the attention of the orchestra leader, made a circular gesture in the air, and wiggled two fingers. Immediately the dance began. The confident younger Cromwell lifted Ylena into his arms. "I didn't have it start because I'm anxious to get over to Francie—"

Ylena supplied coldly, "Your WIFE, you mean!"

"My wife, then. No—Ylena, my sweet, it was because I couldn't wait to get you in my arms." Suddenly he snatched her against him, put his cheek against hers and breathed into her ears, "Oh, my darling! My darling!"

She strained against him. "Don't hold me so tightly."

He did not release her. "Don't squirm, Ylena. You'll make a scene. This is one way I can hold you, Ylena, and there's nothing you can do about it."

The girl felt her heart pounding against his and was both furious and ashamed.

Tate mentioned it, "I can feel your heart."

"Take me to my table."

Instead, he danced right by it, without a glance, and started on another complete circle of the ballroom. "If you don't take me to my table I'll walk away and leave you."

"No, you won't sweet, because that would make a worse mess of Tate Cromwell's domestic relations than ever. And you wouldn't like that, Ylena—now, would you?" His manner changed to one of harshness. "Personally, I wouldn't care. If people want to talk, let them talk."

"You should think of your parents."

"I don't want to think of anyone but you. I don't think of anyone but you!" he said with passionate truth. "You've put me through weeks of such misery as I never knew existed." His voice was getting louder. "Ylena—confound it, I can't live without you. I don't intend to. I'll figure out something."

British Columbia's Strong Financial Position

Premier John Hart's budget speech shows the finances of British Columbia to be in a strong position.

Revenues of 36 millions in the 1940-1941 fiscal period resulted in a surplus of 4 millions after providing for 2½ millions in unemployment relief.

For the forthcoming fiscal period, Premier Hart estimates a revenue of 33 millions and a small surplus. But again this surplus is after providing for unemployment relief, about 2½ millions, out of revenue. In the past we have borrowed most of our unemployment funds, chiefly from the Dominion Government.

Net debt of British Columbia has been reduced by 6 millions.

Such a good financial showing will greatly assist the province in financing this year the retirement of 20 millions in P.G.E. bonds.

A Unification Hitler Didn't Intend

Hitler wanted to unify Europe. In one sense, he is succeeding. He is making friendships between peoples who once thought there could be nothing worse than each other, cites the Christian Science Monitor. He is making their traditional quarrels look petty indeed. He is deflating historical enmities. He is educating nations to the necessity of unity.

In London the Governments-in-exile of Greece and Yugoslavia have just signed an agreement looking to union between the two countries after the war. This news follows by more than a year the reports of a similar agreement between Czechs and Poles, which meanwhile has been developing.

Progress toward settlement of Balkan problems is always encouraging to the rest of a peace-seeking world because rivalry between Balkan States has sometimes brought interested Great Powers into conflict with each other, producing major wars, and because Balkan jealousies have provided opportunity for aggressive Powers—like Nazi Germany—to divide and conquer.

The Greco-Yugoslav agreement, though academic until Allied victory is achieved, is a useful document. It discloses marked preparation for solution of problems which, after World War One, remained to plague the peace conference in 1919; and which, in fact, were never really solved. It also proclaims that Hitler is not the only one busy with plans for unification of nations. While Allied armies and navies are preparing to take the offensive in the diplomatic and political fields is already under way.

While these plans cannot be credited to any constructive inspiration from Hitler, the chief Nazi has contributed to their ultimate success. If peoples are ever again tempted to recoil from the temporary self-denials required for building a better world they need only compare these with the sacrifices imposed on them to satisfy Hitler's ambition to build a Nazi world.

Russian Snow on British Boots

Fact follows fancy in the matter of the Russian army and its boots. In the last war the rumor flew around Britain and throughout the world that Russian soldiers had been seen travelling across Britain "with snow on their boots." This winter there is Russian snow on 3,000,000 pairs of British boots.

Part of the emergency aid-to-Russia programme, first deliveries of these boots were being shipped within a week of the Nazi invasion. Half-a-million pairs were sent immediately, and by the end of August 1,000,000 pairs had been shipped or loaded. Britain is fulfilling the whole Russian request for 3,000,000 pairs.

The boots are exactly the same as those worn by British soldiers, and, although taken immediately from the large stocks built up in Great Britain, their shipment created no immediate shortage of supplies. The capacity of the industry is sufficient to meet any further reasonable requirements; in the last war no fewer than 112,000,000 pairs of all types of services boots were made by United Kingdom manufacturers. Although full statistics of production in this war cannot be given, it is known that in one single week the industry produced 400,000 pairs.

The boots are amored with heel tips, toe tips and reverse solebills. The new last used gives exactly the correct joint and toe room. Fitting has been specially studied, and three fittings to each size are available. Sizes run from 5's to 12's.

Men Up to 65 Could Serve in Home Defence

To the editor:

Sir—In today's Nelson Daily News I see mentioned that the Federal Government is going to call for a plebiscite to see if Canada wants conscription. Mr. Mackenzie King wants to ask us that question after over two years of war when the heart cry of Canada has been for an all-out effort to get ahead with not only mobilization of manpower in the armed forces but in production of all arms in overwhelming abundance so we can conquer the deadliest enemies of our Commonwealth.

One question I wish to take up and I hope I am backed up in it by the returned men from World War I, and that is that even men up to 65 be admissible to the armed forces. They could hold trenches on the Coast and I am sure they would keep keen watch over roads, bridges and means of transport that need their watchful eyes.

I hope you print this in full for I am not ashamed to say I am British to the heart's core.

An ex.

The TCA Grows

The year-end reviews of the activities of Trans-Canada Air Lines keep telling of progress and success. The people of Canada will find in the review for the past calendar year reassurance that they chose wisely in making Trans-Canada their "chosen instrument" of air transport.

The progress reported in the last three years is again reported by Mr. H. J. Symington, the president of the system. For most of the year, demand on passenger accommodation put a strain on the space available. Other traffic increased. The air-mail load that now approaches 140,000 pounds a month practically doubles that of a year ago.

For two years the public records show that Trans-Canada Air Lines earned a surplus and the indications are that in the present operating year ending next March, another surplus will have been earned.

This surplus will have been earned although the rate paid by the Post Office for carrying the mail was cut last April from 60 to 45 cents a mile. At this rate, and the growing use of air mail, the Post Office, itself expects to achieve the remarkable stage of having its air-mail pay its way.

These definite marks of achievement in any airline system will be appreciated by the people of Canada as proving the success of their own system. It is a valuable asset that could have been a heavy liability, and as a going operation it is a means of transport Canadians will wish to see protected and expanded in the directions in which it was originally meant to be extended.

The going concern that Trans-Canada Air Lines is today will be immensely and profitably developed when its expectation to provide services to Newfoundland and Alaska is fulfilled. This will be as soon as aircraft can be obtained.

The war naturally interferes with the allotment of a sufficiency of equipment to all transcontinental airlines and makes no exception of Trans-Canada. But as equipment becomes available, the people of Canada will look forward to Trans-Canada Air Lines extending its operations, and being in the position when the war ends of a proved system which will bring to Canada her share of the vast growth in air travel which other existing airline services, including some in Britain and several in the United States, are already planing to control.

There is no reason why a surprising share of that world-wide air traffic wanting the shortest and safest route from Europe to Asia and Russia should not find Trans-Canada ready to fly it. The extensions mentioned by Mr. Symington will be expected by the public to be put into operation at that earliest opportunity which will ultimately make Trans-Canada Air Lines one of the world's main air transport systems.Winnipeg Free Press.

MUST SACRIFICE EASY LIVING

Canadians in many municipal elections cited the cutting down of expenditures as the main role of municipal governments in wartime. Too many of them coupled this excellent war-winning sentiment with the stipulation that the cutting down should not interfere with living standards.

This attitude is probably typical of the average Canadian. But it is not one which will carry this country forward to victory. We cannot hope to win the war and maintain our luxurious peacetime standards of living. We simply have not the capacity to turn out all the tanks, trucks, planes, guns and shells necessary to win the war and at the same time to supply Canadian civilians with the luxuries they have been accustomed to in the last decade or so. Even some of the items which might be regarded as necessities may have to go.

We are in a war against people who have stripped themselves of all such paraphernalia. The Germans, the Japs and our minor enemies have been forced to sacrifice everything but the barest standard of existence. Every one of their factories, almost all their productive capacity is geared to war production and has been for at least the last five years. What these people have been ordered to give up by their dictators we may have to forego voluntarily.

The kind of war we are engaged in cannot be won without sacrifice. There is no easy road to victory.—Financial Post.

POTENTIAL LEATHER

Stocks of raw cattle hides held by tanners, packers and dealers in Canada amounted to 387,455 at the end of July, 1941, compared with 591,911 on the corresponding date last year. Calf and kip skins on hand totalled 586,875 compared with 644,661, goat and kid skins 106,5888 compared with 4,190 and horse hides 14,122 compared with 15,842. There were also 54,124 dozen sheep and lamb skins in store compared with 45,170 dozen a year ago.

OUR OWN SCRAP

Certainly Canada played into Japan's hands for month and years by serenely shipping the newest enemy tons of scrap metal which is now being hurled at our warships in the Pacific and at our garrisons in Hong Kong and Malaya. That fact is incontrovertible. What was "good for business" then is bad for business now.—Brantford Expositor.

ANOTHER HERO

An American hero is Lieut. John D. Bulkeley of New York city. He commanded a navy torpedo boat which darted into Subic Bay, Luzon island, and torpedoed a 5000-ton Japanese ship. The fast mosquito boat was under constant fire from machine-guns and shore batteries while successfully carrying out its mission.

TWO PHASES IN HISTORIC MOSCOW DEFENCE

Here are two photographs of the historical defence of Moscow before the state of siege was lifted when the Russians hurled specially trained reinforcements against the Winter-weakened Nazis. The upper photo, shows members of the Moscow Young Communists' League digging anti-tank defences at the approaches to Moscow. The lower photo shows a Cossack cavalry detachment which has just left its mounts in a clump of trees, charging a German position near the approaches to Moscow.

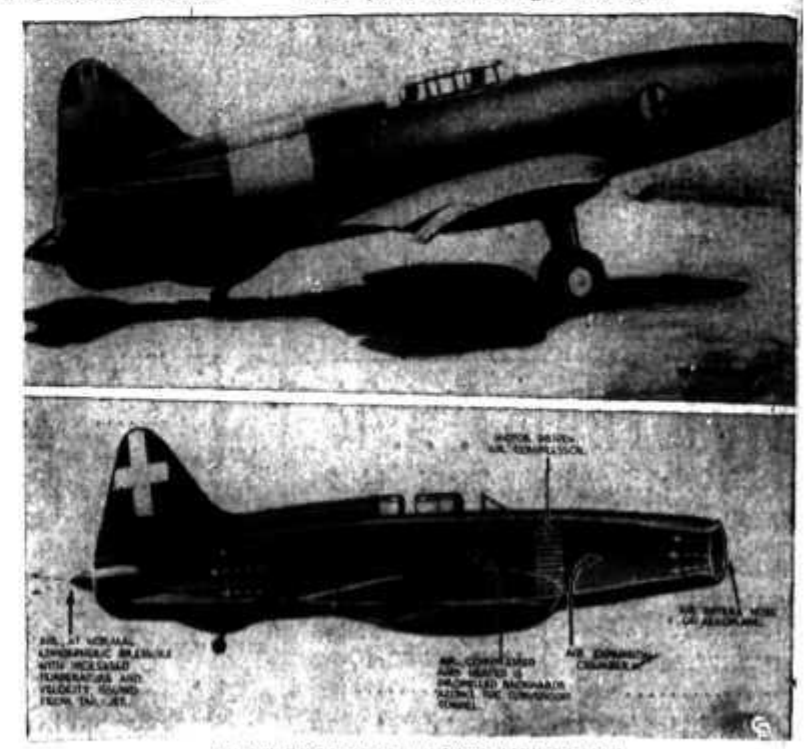
POLES TRAIN IN CANADA

Preparing to fight on for Poland, recruits from all over the continent are being trained at Owen Sound, Ontario. A sizeable unit has already been built up with men drawn mainly from the United States, where there are 5,000,000 people of Polish extraction. This group is studying the action of a Bren gun.

The three branches of the service being trained in Canada for the Polish forces are represented in this photo. From left to right is an airman, a soldier and a sailor. Over their heads hangs the defiant eagle of the Polish Republic. Sailors and airmen are given only initial training at Owen Sound, the soldiers remain for a longer period before being sent overseas.

PROMOTED, DECORATED

Lieutenant Leverette Kabler of the United States navy's seaplane tender U.S.S. Heron, is pictured here. His expert handling of his vessel under bombing attack of 15 huge Japanese bombers won him promotion and decoration. For seven hours the Heron dodged bombs as Jap bombers swooped overhead somewhere in the Far East. Forty-six hundred-pound bombs were dropped at her. One struck. Three landed nearby. Three torpedoes were launched at the hard-pressed Heron. In spite of all this Lieutenant Kabler brought the Heron back safely to port after having accounted for one four-motored Nipponese flying boat shot down, another, and possibly more, damaged.



ITALY PRODUCES A "HOT AIR" PLANE

Italy's new propellerless plane, dubbed the "flying cigar" and "hot air" plane is shown here in photograph and diagram. This craft was designed and built by Second Campini. It is propelled by a jet of air discharged behind the tail. The air enters through a circular duct in the flat nose, is expanded and passed into a motor-driven compressor. The compressed air is heated and forced back through a tunnel and ejected from the tail jet. The upper half of the above is a photo of the craft. The lower is a self-explanatory diagram.—Courtesy of "The Aeroplane," England.

Boston Ties Toronto 0-0 to Step Into First Place Tie With Rangers

BOSTON, Jan. 27 (CP). — The point gained from a bruising 0-0 overtime tie with Toronto Maple Leafs lifted Boston Bruins into a first place tie with the New York Rangers in the National Hockey League standings tonight. It was the first scoreless game of the season, played before a crowd of 14,500 at Boston Garden.

During the exciting 70 minutes of action, the Bruins' famous Krauts, who were playing possibly their last game for the duration of the war, gave sensational performances and each of them, Milt Schmidt, little Bobby Bauer and Woody Dumart, missed scores by fractions of inches.

Frankie Brimsek, who suffered a fractrued nose in Montreal Saturday returned to the Boston cage and turned in one of the best performances of his career. But Toronto's Turk Broda did equally well in the other end of the rink.

Toronto introduced Bob Goldham, an aggressive defenceman called up yesterday from the Hershey American league team, and he gave a splendid account of himself in this top-flight competition. With his first boardcheck he inflicted a two-stitch gash on Schmidt's cheek but escaped without a penalty.

It was the fifth clash of the season between these rabid rivals and the series continued unchanged for each has won twice on home ice.

Toronto: Broda; Kampman, Stanowski Apps; Drillon, D. Metz. Subs: Taylor, Schriner, Carr, McDonald, Church, Langelle, McCreedy, Goldup, Goldham.

Boston: Brimsek; Clapper, Hollett; Schmidt; Bauer, Dumart. Subs: A. Jackson, Conacher, Wiseman, Crawford, Smith, Mario, H. Jackson, Cain, Hiller.

Referee: Bill Chadwick; Linesmen: Herb Gallagher, Bill leary.

MONTREAL, Jan. 27 (CP). — Bryan Hextall of Rangers remained atop the National Hockey League scoring race during the last week, but it was still as tight a race as the league has staged in years, official figures showed today.

Pat Egan, rugged Americans' defenceman, remained as league's bad man with 72 minutes in the penalty box.

B. C. Bonspiel Is Postponed Indefinitely

ROSSLAND, B.C., Jan. 27. — The forty-seventh British Columbia bonspiel was tonight postponed indefinitely. When ice is available the bonspiel committee will decide when the 'spiel is to start and will give all clubs 48 hours notice of the starting date. J. A. Wright, Acting President of the B.C. Curling Association, called Rossland skips together tonight and said the 'spiel could be either postponed indefinitely, or else played in Trail where, he said, ice is available.

The meeting expressed appreciation of the offer of Trail ice but said it was still hoped to hold the 'spiel here. In the meantime the entry lists will remain open.

How Every Canadian Can Help to Win the War

In the mind of every Canadian today there is only one question that counts: "How can I help Canada win the war?" Of course, there are many ways you can help win the war. These ways have been and will continue to be pointed out to us by our Government. Most of us, for example, can do war work in our free time—war work of many, many kinds. Many of us can make available to some extent, great or small, the use of our personal talents or business facilities in behalf of our national Victory Program.

But there is another way that everyone can help win the war. It starts right at home. Every Canadian should begin now to live conservatively, without waste, yet normally.

What does this mean? It means, for one thing, to be economical by buying good merchandise. Our nation's productive capacity in war will be strained to the uttermost. When we buy furniture, for example, we should buy good furniture—good in quality and value, furniture that will last. For there must be fewer replacements as time goes on so that more and more of our productive effort can be devoted to the primary consideration of turning out war goods. The same holds true when we buy shoes, a rug, a set of dishes. They must be good.

It also means curtail waste! We should all see that our furnaces and heating plants, our kitchen ranges and motor cars are not using fuel wastefully. We must keep them in good repair. Even our plumbing fixtures must not leak; water wastefully pumped diverts electricity and fuel to non-essential uses and that helps the enemy.

Eat plenty—and eat the right things. None of us can afford to be undernourished with this big national task ahead of us. It is of major importance that we buy the right kind of food—food that contains all the essential vitamins, proteins, fats and minerals.

Be cheerful . . . and spread cheer to others—at work or play. It will help you keep your emotional balance and your sense of humor. And to keep cheerful, develop your inner spiritual resources—through church attendance, music, good books.

PATTERN 9970

You, especially, know how extra weight can add years to your looks. Clever focks like this, made from Pattern 9970, will trim you down, says Marian Martin! It has a neck-to-hem panelled effect that minimizes any extra width at the bust, the waist, or hips. You can see for yourself how the smartly curved bodice panels dovetail right into the slender skirt panels. The neckline, the short sleeves, and the yoke in back are curved to match, producing a pleasing, harmonious effect. Try it made all of one fabric with ric-rac edging, and back yoke of contrast. Long er make the front panels, sleeves and three-quarter sleeves are optional too.

Pattern 9970 may be ordered only in women's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards 36 inch fabric, 3½ yards ric-rac.

Send twenty cents for this Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your SIZE, name, address and style number.

Send your order to The Daily News, Pattern Department, Nelson, B.C. Pattern will be sent to your home within 10 days.

Where Is Hess! 'Where He Ought to Be'-Churchill

LONDON, Jan. 27 (CP) — The mission of Hitler's deputy, Rudolf Hess, in his flight to Scotland last spring was to establish contacts with groups who would overthrow the Churchill Government so Germany might negotiate a magnanimous peace, Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons today.

He was interrupted by Will Thorne, labor, who asked the present whereabout of Hess.

"He's where he ought to be," retorted Mr. Churchill.

"The only importance attaching to the opinions of Hess," he continued, "is the fact that he was fresh from the atmosphere of Hitler's table."

CONTRACT . . . By Shepard Barclay

PROTECT YOUR SIDE

IF YOU for any reason decide to make a bid which shows your hand weaker than it really it, your job is to employ every resource later to tell the rest of your story to your partner. This is especially true if you learn from subsequent bidding that an opponent has stuck in a psychic bid against you. Unless you show it up emphatically, your side may find itself dropped in a contract considerably below what your holdings justify.

North: ♠ 10 8 6 4 ♥ Q 9 6 2 ♦ A Q J ♣ J 9
West: ♠ Q 5 3 2 ♥ 10 7 3 ♦ 4 ♣ K Q 10 4 3
East: ♠ K 9 7 ♥ 5 ♦ 10 7 6 3 2 ♣ 7 6 5 2
South: ♠ A J ♥ A K J 8 4 ♦ K 9 8 6 ♣ A 8

(Dealer: East. Neither side vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
1 ♦	1 ♥	1 ♠	2 ♥
Pass	2 ♠	Pass	3 ♦
Pass	4 ♣	Pass	4 ♥
Pass	6 ♥

There sat South, a superfine player and bidder with a rock-crusher not very far removed from enough strength for an opening forcing bid. Stick another queen or so in it, and South would have had such a hand. So an original bid by anybody else would be bound to be viewed by him with suspicion.

To find out for sure, however, whether East had made a psychic or whether he held more than his share of the missing strength, he entered very conservatively into the bidding with a mere minimum overcall, after considering several other courses. He might have bid 2-Hearts, 2-No Trumps or doubled, but decided on the mere overcall, especially since he was in position to punish several possible contracts if the opponents got into trouble.

After South heard North make a free bid, however, especially of the fitting hearts, he had to yell aloud about his strength. Notice the bids he made then, which could not be dropped—first a cue-bid of the hostile spades, then the ace-shower in clubs. When these brought information about the diamond A, and the emphatic heart fit, he proceeded to a safe slam. After the club K lead, came three trumps, diamonds discarding dummy's losing club, the loss of a spade trick and then a cross-ruff.

"Slocan-Ainsworth Mines Are Not Injured by Lack of Market, but Merely Resting on Their Ores"

By SIDNEY NORMAN

The above heading is not a perpetration of the writer, but republication of a "quickie" editorial appearing in the issue of the Kootenaian, of Kaslo, on February 28, 1901, the old and faded copy having been loaned to the writer by that loyal old-timer, A. L. MacPhee, now president of the Kaslo Board of Trade. It is very obvious that the implications of that little editorial are just as applicable today as they were 41 years ago.

To one who knew the districts around Kootenay Lake in those old days, the four-sheet, seven-column Kootenaian is chockful of nostalgic interest and shows how history repeats itself where a good mining district is concerned—that there is nothing new even under the sun that shines upon West Kootenay.

The front page of the issue is largely taken up with two box-car headline stories about the imminent realization of the district's long-deferred hopes for, not only a smelter, but also for a refinery, right on its front doorstep.

A delegation was at the moment in Ottawa endeavoring to wangle a bonus of $6 a ton upon pig-lead refined in Canada from a largely unsympathetic Government. Lead smelting and refining in Canada! Who ever heard of such a thing? Simply preposterous!

Nevertheless, the bonus was finally granted for a period of three years, if the writer's memory is still in working order; and by the same token, that bonus did much to save the struggling Canadian Smelting Company's works at Trail from financial disaster, besides putting heart into the operators of the districts.

The Kootenaian carried the news that, in view of the sought concession, which had not yet been granted, an Eastern syndicate had made a proposition to the Government to erect a smelter. The identity of the Easterners was revealed as the Gooderham-Blackstock Syndicate, which had recently bought the War Eagle mine at Rossland from Patsy Clark of Spokane and associates for $750,000, and was looking around for other opportunities for profitable investment of the large amount of capital it commanded in those days.

T. G. Blackstock, the mainspring of the syndicate, in pointing out the position of the lead industry in British Columbia emphasized the fact that it was largely in the hands of American smelters and refiners, who enjoyed a $3.85 price advantage, in spite of nearness of markets and cheapness of coal at Crow's Nest.

To offset this inequality and permit possibility of a little profit until refining as an industry could be established in Canada, the bonus was sought. Once established, he said, the Canadian refiners would be able to look after themselves, but without assistance in the beginning, no one would dare to take a chance.

That was in the days of the formation of the American Smelting Trust, which was taken over by the Guggenheims, and shaped up into one of the most generous smelting philanthrophic infiltrations in the entire history of the mining history, here, there, or anywhere else.

Mr. Blackstock pointed out that the Trust was so close to American railroads that its absorption of all the refineries in United States would enable it to exact a prohibitory toll from Canadians. Already charges had been increased to such an extent that it was necessary to export bullion to Europe, or abandon the whole of the mining province to the Trust.

Refining at home, Mr. Blackstock continued, would help that class of mines most needing assistance—the low grade gold mines — since for every ton of lead concentrate treated, from four to five tons of dry ore would be needed. The miner of lead had a very limited market. With a tariff dam on the South, the long haul to Europe on the East and the necessity of accepting the lower price for lead in England, the limit of profitable operation was easily calculated.

If the product were smelted by the operator himself, or at Canadian smelters, the price must always be regulated by the profit that can be made in smelting operations. If it would not pay to smelt ores and concentrate in Canada, under the conditions then existing, the vicious circle was completed and the miner would suffer just as much as the smelter. If, on the other hand, a bounty enabled the refiner to obtain a foothold in Canada, the miner was in direct line to benefit from the market for refined lead.

Evidently the screws were then being applied to Canada by the Trust, since Mr. Blackstock pointed out that it was already refusing short-time contracts, even at the exhorbitant charges then exacted.

Finally, Mr. Blackstock hit a nail or two squarely on the head when he said that the greatest obstacle to be overcome was the ignorance regarding the Far West and its needs prevalent in the House of Commons. A bounty on a potato-bug exterminator would, he said, be received with much more interest than a bounty on pig-lead, unless the bucolic implication of word "pig" secured for it favorable consideration.

And so, he advocated a policy of education for the honorable gentlemen from the East, a task which, even in these days, seems a trifle monumental.

Kaslo, characterized at the Kootenaian's masthead as "The Only Town From Which Every Mining Camp in Kootenay Can Be Reached in One Day," was right on the job, seeking location of the suggested new smelter and refinery on the bay, or somewhere near town. Two bylaws on the subject were to be voted on by the ratepayers on March 11 and the result was looked upon as a foregone conclusion.

In the Kootenaian's exhortation to the voters it was pointed out that the Gooderham-Blackstock Syndicate was anxious "to get another smelter in addition to the one at Trail, which will shortly become their property" and that when the bonus is added to Kaslo's exceptionally good claims as to ore supply and transportation, "they cannot afford to build elsewhere."

Yes, Kaslo went after things with both hands and both feet in those good old days.

There was some mining news on the front page, too. Cork mine had found a new "schute" in No. 2 tunnel, but whether the shareholders slid down it then or later, is a matter for conjecture. Work was commenced upon the True Blue by the Canadian Gold Fields Syndicate, much to the delight of the late David Kane, another of the fine old-timers and postmaster for so many years later in Kaslo's history.

Kaslo had a good hockey team in those days; in fact, had all the trimmings of a civilized Canadian community. Some of the stick wielders were A. H. Brown, G. McIntosh, D. J. Young, E. V. Bloomfield, S. Hunter, H. Carney and R. M. McIntosh. W. Cliffe risked his life as referee and the equally brave umpires were D. Black and J. J. Godfrey.

And, by the bye, Godfrey later became a prominent figure in the upper world twenty years ago, with mines in Arizona. The writer knows because he handled over a million and a quarter dollars for him in development of the Kay mine, near Phoenix.

Among the advertisers in that issue were H. Giegerich, father provider of Kaslo; H. Byers & Co.; Stanley Henderson, the insurance man; the Kaslo Hotel, run by Cockle & Papworth; the Kaslo Brewery, owned by Band and Goodenough, specializing in German lager, which would not be so popular these days; Kaslo Dairy roducts and Provisions Co., managed by A. McQueen; P. Burns & Co., handling fresh and cured meats; A. T. Garland, boots and shoes; Bank of British North America, G. B. Gerrard, manager; Kootenay Lake Saw Mill, G. O. Buchanan, manager; E. F. Stephenson, prescription druggist; Prospectors' Exchange, conducted by Andrew F. Rosenberger; Central Hotel, Palmer & Allen, proprietors; and the Great Northern, Spokane Falls & Northern, Nelson & Fort Sheppard and Red Mountain railroads, all under the direction of H. A. Jackson, General Agent, of Spokane, who was a brother-in-law of the writer ad passed away may years ago.

Some of the Nelson advertisers in the issue were Jacob Dover, the jeweller; Theodore Madson, tents and awnings; D. McArthur & Co., "You furnish the girl, we'll furnish the house," and the Adams House, run by the Adams Brothers.

Alder Bishop represented the Canadian Pacific Railway and the Soo Line at Kaslo; Kootenay Coffee Company advertised the cup that cheers but does not inebriate; and that grand old-timer, Robert Irving, directed the affairs of the Kaslo & Slocan Railway, the International Navigating & Trading Co., Bedlington & Nelson Railway and Kootenai Valley Railway. Charles Moore was a mine surveyor, and a good one; W. J. H. Holmes, a provincial land surveyor; and Dr. G. Hartin looked after the health of Kaslolites. D. J. Young handled everything made of paper.

Long years ago, you say! Yes. Long years ago and things have changed! But let's get together and see what can be done to bring those good old times back again. It can't be done by grousing and pooh-poohing everything that's started with that object in sight. It may be done if every last man and woman within sight of these grand old Selkirks stand together and adopt the slogan "It can be done." Well, here's hoping.

VANCOUVER — Hesitant buying was again evident as trading continued light.

Bralorne Gold at 8.85 advanced 10.

WINNIPEG—Wheat futures prices closed ⅛ lower with May finishing at 80⅝ cents a bushel and July at 81⅛B.

Fair buying was noted in oats and barley in the coarse grain pit with May futures of both commodities going to within ⅛ cent of the ceiling price at one stage.

CHICAGO—All grain futures except oats shot up smartly at the opening on the passage of the price fixing bill by the House, but profit taking sales and operations of a hedging character in corn soon reversed the trend and extreme gains were reduced by half or more.

Dr. Walker Believes Gold Mining Companies Should Turn to Lead, Zinc, Copper

VICTORIA, Jan. 27 (CP).—Dr. J. F. Walker, Deputy Minister of Mines, told the Legislature Mining Committee today gold production in British Columbia is dropping off because of the difficulty in obtaining equipment and predicted serious shortages of copper and manganese in the near future.

"It looks as if gold mining is not going to be encouraged — base metals for munitions are wanted now," Dr. Walker said after telling the committee he would not be surprised to see gold mining decline as much as 50 per cent. As a result he expected the gold mining companies to turn their attention to examining the possibilities of other materials.

"Copper is more in demand for the war effort than anything else and a shortage is arising now that is going to be more serious than a possible shortage of zinc," Dr. Walker said. He described the lack of smelter capacity in Canada and the United States is serious—more serious than lack of minerals.

Not much manganese has been uncovered in Canada, Dr. Walker said and in the past the United States had imported much of this mineral from India, Russia, the Gold Coast and Cuba.

Shortage of manganese, Dr. Walker said, is one of Germany's weaknesses and was one of the reasons Germany went into Russia.

"The manganese situation on this continent might be very serious indeed, as it was in the last war," Dr. Walker said.

British Columbia has a real mercury belt, the finest in the British Empire, Dr. Walker reported, referring to the Pinchi Lake area.

He said he had recommended to Federal authorities that an exploration and prospecting company of the various gold companies be formed, with Federal Government backing, in order to save waste effort. The Dominion- however, has intimated it is not going into the mining business in any way.

In British Columbia, Dr. Walker can by looking—the next step must said, "We have done everything we be digging and drilling."

Dr. Walker told the committee that at the rate of depletion of big mines, such as the Sullivan, Britannia and Granby something must be done to fabricate metals and the need of an iron and steel industry was paramount.

A steel industry could be rolling steel in 5 months. It would take two years to produce pig iron.

British Keep Loss of Barham Secret for Two Months

LONDON, January 27 (CP)—Sinking of the battleship Barham, 31,000-ton veteran of the Royal Navy, in the Mediterranean last Nov. 25, was announced by the Admiralty today after it had kept the loss a secret for two months to cheat the enemy of any profit from knowledge of the blow.

Loss of the Barham cut Britain's capital ships to a minimum of 13.

The Admiralty said the Barham's commander, Capt. G. C. Cooke, was lost, but that Vice Admiral Sir Henry Pridham-Wippel, second in command of the Mediterranean Fleet, whose flag she was flying, was saved.

How many others of her crew of 1,100 to 1,200 were lost was not disclosed.

Explaining the Admiralty's secrecy for two months over the loss, the communique said:

"Next of kin of casualties were informed but loss of the ship was not announced since it was clear at that time that the enemy did not know she had been sunk and it was important that the enemy did not know she had been sunk and it was important to make certain dispositions before loss of this ship was made public."

The lodge service at the graveside was conducted by Chief J. R. Small and Acting Chaplain A. G. Ritchie.

Hymns sung at the church were "Unto the Hills Around," "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," and "When on My Day of Life."

Rush Sugar Buying Ends as Rationing Rules Explained

OTTAWA, Jan. 27 (CP).—Donald Gordon, Chairman of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, said today the rush of sugar buying which developed yesterday on the heels of a rationing order had disappeared, " and the Board's confidence in the Canadian people's patriotism has been fully justified."

Mr. Gordon said the enlarged buying reported yesterday was probably due to a misunderstanding on the part of some who felt they had to buy their two weeks' supply, allowed under the rationing order, immediately.

Board Officials, in giving guidance to merchants, said any retailer was entitled to refuse to sell and to limit sales when he believed someone was attempting to contravene the law and this would apply in the case of persons trying to accumulate sugar stocks in excess of permitted limits.

The Board suggested that until the public becomes more fully informed as to the regulations, retailers should limit sales to individual customers to five pounds.

The sugar ration is three-quarters of a pound a week per person and household stocks on hand are limited to two weeks' requirements. Purchases are limited to two weeks' supply.

"While we have full confidence that every loyal citizen will observe the law. No one should think that wilful evasion will escape punishment," Donald Gordon, Prices Board Chairman, said.

"There are teeth in the law and imprisonment up to two years and fines of as high as $5000 are provided for.

"In any case where deliberate evasion of the law comes to our attention and we find people unwilling to accept their responsibility in the war effort, by trying to get an advantage over those who do give loyal support, they will be prosecuted at once and held up to public opprobium as offenders against common decency."

Three Anglo-American Boards to Coordinate Vital War Industries

By J. F. SANDERSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer).

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27 (CP).—Formation of three Anglo-American boards to co-ordinate the shipping, raw material and munitions resources of Britain and the United States was announced today in a White House statement.

Members of the three boards will cover with representatives of Russia, China," and such other of the United Nations as are necessary to attain common purposes and provide for the most effective utilization of the joint resources of the United Nations," the statement said.

(The British Government announced the following heads of the war boards:

(Munitions Assignments Board — Washington, Harry L. Hopkins (Civilian Chairman); London, Lord Beaverbrook.

(Combined Shipping Adjustment Board: Washington, Admiral Emory Land; United Kingdom (in Washington), Sir Arthur Salter; London, Lord Leathers.

(Combined War Materials Board: Washington, William L. Batt; United Kingdom (in Washington) Sir Clive Baillieu; London, Lord Beaverbrook.)

Although Canada possesses vast quantities of raw materials and is the only United National other than Britain and the United States, with a sizeable export surplus of munitions of war, the Dominion was not given direct representation of any of the Boards.

Canada's relationship to the boards was not clear here but it was assumed that the close collaboration that has existed among Canada, the United States and Britain on the pooling of raw materials and and the division of war-time supplies would be continued through contacts in Washington and London.

Interpreting The War News

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press War Analyst

Despite his reiterated prediction of "blood, toil, sweat and tears," Prime Minister Churchill's challenging war report to Parliament struck a jubilant note.

It clearly foreshadowed prompt ratification not only of his leadership; but of the United Nations' one-for-all-and-all-for-one pact born of his conferences in Washington with President Roosevelt. And as he spoke that pact was being newly cemented by deed on many war fronts.

Mr. Churchill possibly deferred his accounting to Parliament until the actual arrival of United States troops in Northern Ireland. That gave added meaning to his revelation that American air power also is scheduled to share in the defence of Britain and in the sustained British counter bombing attack on Germany and Nazi-occupied regions.

It is grim news for any Germans who are permitted to know it, that neither the infamous intervention of Japan nor any other circumstance has served to divert American war effort from that offensive front.

Like the all-out American war program laid before Congress by President Roosevelt, Mr. Churchill's report emphasized the long-range nature of United Nations strategy. It looks to next year, 1943, as the moment when full offensive momentum can be attained.

There were significant glimpses from the more immediate future to be detected, however. Among them was an intimation that British objectives in Libya have changed.

Britain's present job in North Africa, Mr. Churchil said, is to "hold" re-won Eastern Cirenaica. Presumably British forces there are passing from the offensive to the defensive. That would account for their retirement to a line protecting that Libyan coastal hump and its air and naval base sites.

If that is the fact, it means British reinforcements of Pacific bastions on a scale still unindicated. Indeed, Mr. Churchill disclosed that reinforcements have already reached Malaya. He noted also many Anglo-American "measures" not yet divulged to safeguard security of Australia and New Zealand.

The Prime Minister expressed doubt that Japan can now undertake an Australian invasion is strikingly underscored by the known results to date in the battle of Macassar Strait. A battleship and a plane carrier now are listed as certainly damaged and probably sunk among the more than 30 craft blasted by bomb, gunfire and torpedo.

To renew that drive into the Java Sea or to execute a full scale invasion threat against Australia, the Japanese must shift heavy naval and air strength from other areas. War attribution is seeing into enemy resources.

The indication was the first group of women would go Overseas sometime during the Summer.
