NAZIS ANNOUNCE FALL OF CITY

Circle City, Sweep Ahead to South, Open Up New Offensive in Northwest

BY RUSSEL LANDSTROM
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, June 25 (AP)—The Russians have encircled the White Russian stronghold of Vitebsk and are fighting in the streets with the trapped garrison of perhaps 45,000 men, Moscow announced today, as fighting flamed along a 325-mile front and the Red Army shredded the vaunted "Fatherland Line" built to guard the shortest road to Berlin.

Even as a communique recorded this triumph and Premier Stalin was announcing sweeping Russian drives on the bastions of Mogilev and Bobruisk to the South, the Germans said the Red Army had opened yet another push in the Ostrov area, some 165 miles Northwest of Vitebsk.

The sweep westward, ranging up to 25 miles and timed as the Allies rained more blows from France and Italy, over-ran more than 740 populated places, the communique said.

The trap snapped on Vitebsk, last major German fortress in Russia, when troops pushing up from the South met those who had come around from the North and then knifed South to cut the last avenues of escape westward. The Russians estimated that five German infantry divisions were caught.

This major success was announced shortly after Stalin had twice stepped to the microphone to proclaim the new drives—the fourth and fifth reported since the Eastern front sprang to life.

In two successive orders of the day he announced a 50-mile break-through that carried the Red Army to within 16 miles of the Dnepr River fortress of Mogilev, and said his troops had launched an encircling drive from North and South on Bobruisk, at the Southern end of the front about 70 miles southwest of Mogilev.

The long-prepared German defences appeared to be folding in the South, just as they had around Vitebsk, where a Moscow broadcast tonight said the Red Army had forced the Dvina River, West of the big base, and surrounded the city.

IN GRAVE PLIGHT

Berlin broadcasts admitted the plight of the Germans in Vitebsk was grave and also acknowledged a break-through on the road from Smolensk to Orsha, which lies about midway between Vitebsk and Mogilev.

The Moscow radio also said the Russian offensive in Finland was growing hourly in momentum.

Stalin said the Red troops struck toward Bobruisk from an area Southwest of Zhlobin, and in two days broke through on a front of more than 50 miles and advanced about 19 miles. The Russians here last were reported at Chernin, about 30 miles southeast of Bobruisk.

One column lanced out and seized Chervony Brod (Krasny Brod) on the Bobruisk-Luninets railway only 19 miles southwest of Bobruisk, and Moshni, 25 miles southwest on the same railway.

At the same time the Russians opened a drive from the northeast, forcing the river Drut North of Rogachev, about 22 miles East of Bobruisk, and pushed forward seven or eight miles along a 19-mile front through strongly-fortified German lines.

Airman Killed in Coast Collision

St. John's Oil Warehouse Burns

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., June 25 (CP Cable)—Fire raged at the Imperial Oil waterfront warehouse here for 20 hours Saturday, a menace to the wooden city of St. John's, but the St. John's fire fighting brigade and service firemen and fireboats confined the blaze to Imperial Oil's section of the waterfront.

Germans Make New Threats Against Prisoners

LONDON, June 25 (CP)—Hitlers' Headquarters claimed tonight that German prisoners had been reported "murdered" in Normandy and threatened that, if the reports were true, "10 United States prisoners of war will be shot for every German."

The threat was transmitted by the Nazi D.N.B. Agency in an English language broadcast which asserted that reports had been received that members of the German Army taken prisoners in the Cherbourg area were shot although in uniform and "clearly recognizable" as combatants.

VILLENEUVE PROTESTS SENATE SPEECH

Unfair, Insulting for Province Tells Congress

ST. HYACINTHE, Que., June 25 (CP)—Cardinal Villeneuve, apparently referring to last Wednesday's senate speech of Senator T. D. Bouchard—to whom he only referred to by the words, "a public figure I need not name"— said here Saturday, "In my name and in the name of the country's Catholic hierarchy, in the name of the people we love and guide, I deny the truth of such unqualified delations."

Cardinal Villeneuve, speaking during a diocesan eucharistic congress in this town about 50 miles South of Montreal of which Senator Bouchard has been mayor for more than 25 years, added: "I solemnly say that none of those who live according to the Church's teachings and are loyal to the true French-Canadian traditions, is a menace for Canada nor an element of national disunity."

Cardinal Villeneuve added:

"I must publicly disapprove such an insult to all that the French-Canadians love: to all their legitimate religious, social and political aspirations; to the authority of their bishops who are directly responsible for public education and, finally, to the teachings of the Pope and his Holiness' representatives in our midst."

"Tonight, sharing the piety and the pride of the St. Hyacinthe diocese, I feel it is my duty, as one of the spiritual leaders of French Canada, to voice here a solemn protest. Events compel me to do it and you, yourselves, are asking for it.

"A public figure whom I need not name, recently in the senate uttered words as unfair and insulting for our province of Quebec as they were ill-advised and unadvisedly spoken.

"It is difficult to explain such utterances from a fair and equitable man whom as far as I am concerned, I have always shown good-will in trying to understand.

"I leave to others whatever answers are to be made to his political and racial accusations. I only denounce here his insinuations against the Church and the clergy.

". . . What causes the ire and especially humiliate the people in this Province, and with them all who across Canada share the same blood, the same faith and the same traditions of Canadian probity and loyalty, is that one of them made those unfortunate utterances. Public opinion will in a fitting way treat that challenge to national consciousness."

ALLIES SMASH WITHIN 38 MILES OF PISA

Hurl Back Artillery and Tank Units All Along West Coast

FOLLINCA TAKEN

By GEORGE TUCKER
Associated Press Staff Writer

ROME, June 25 (AP) — The Allied 5th Army storming up Italy's West coast has thrown back German tank and artillery units all along the line, occupied the coastal route city of Follinca and smashed to withing 38 miles of the Nazi anchor city of Pisa, headquarters announced today.

Field dispatches said there were indications the Germans were preparing to abandon bomb-devastated Livorno (Leghorn) about six miles South of Pisa and second largest port still in enemy hands in Italy.

The new Allied ground gains, which units of the 8th Army matched on the Adriatic side with general new advances, were made in the face of German Tiger tank and artillery assaults and bitter infantry resistance.

Today's communique said the coastal forces of the 5th Army turning inland from Follonica had also captured Monterotondo, 17 miles North of Follonica, and were fighting near Massa, highway stronghold between Follonica and Monterotondo.

Eighth Army forces, attacking East and West of Lake Trasimeno, in the central sector, have occupied Sarenteano and the villages of Pescia and Castelvieto. Strong resistance was still being encountered North of Perugia.

Air reconnaissance disclosed the Germans had blocked one of the two entrances to Livorno's harbors by sinking ships across the channel. Ships' berths, heavy cranes and other installations were being blown up and the once-great port appeared ghost-like.

Disclosure that the stiffening German resistance was ordered to gain time apparently to rush work on the Pisa-Rimini line fortifications came from captured parachute troops. Field dispatches said at least five new divisions have been thrown into the battle since the liberation of Rome, ordered to "hold at all costs."

Fierce fighting was reported still in progress at Chiusi, nine miles Southwest of Lake Trasimeno, which has changed hands at least twice in the last 72 hours.

BOMB PLOESTI

Extensive air operations Saturday included heavy bomber attacks against oil installaltions in the Ploesti area of Romania. Allied fliers shot down 26 enemy planes at the cost of 15 Allied craft.

Among the Allied gains Saturday was a thrust by French elements of the 5th Army through the mountains to the South bank of the Omborne River at a point about 115 miles Northwest of Rome.

B.C. Population Has Highest Increase in Canada

VANCOUVER, June 25 (CP) — B. C.'s population has increased over that of any other province in Canada, according to a comparison of 1941 census figures with latest available ration book distribution figures.

From June, 1941, when the last Dominion census was taken, till September, 1943, when ration book No. 3 was distributed, the population of this province increased by 39,114 persons.

Vancouver outstripped all other Canadian cities in population increase, with 36,196 new citizens in that two-year period.

British Columbia and Quebec are the only provinces to show a rise in population with the latter garnering 38,051 new residents.

Ontario and Saskatchewan have been hit hardest by this exodus to B. C. and Quebec.

Five Air Fleets Smash Europe

Two-Way Air Squeeze Hits Airfields, Bridges and Rocket Installations

BY AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, June 25 (AP)—Five Allied air fleets, numbering 3500 heavy bombers and fighters, pounded Nazi-held Europe tday in one of the war's greatest assaults, smashing German installations from the rocket implacements at Pas de Calais to the Southern coast of France.

SHAEF, announced Allied airforces flew around 6000 sorties Saturday.

United States Strategic Headquarters announced that the raid on Berlin last Wednesday, in which some bombers and 17 fighters completed the first shuttle trip from Britain to Russia, was the most devastating blow ever struck at the German capital.

Four of the great air armades roared our from Britain, the other from Italy. Total sorties probably approached Saturday's 6000, exclusive of 1000 by the 15th force operating from Italy into Southern France.

About 250 American heavies this evening with a like number of escorting fighters attacked several bridges Southeast of Paris and numerous airfields, including those at Bretigny, and Villacoublay.

Allied losses for the day were 43, including 20 heavy bombers, against 59 Germans shot out of the sky.

Two of the daylight thrusts—one American and one RAF—were aimed at Pas de Calais in one of the heaviest batterings against the launching grounds of Hitler's robot bombs. The third thrust to within 80 miles of the Spanish border, blasted a German fuel dump and nearby airdromes.

The other heavy fleet—more than 500 U. S. heavy Fortresses, flying from bases in Italy—attacked rails and bridges North and West of the French port of Marseille, and oil and other military installations in Southern France.

The German radio indicated the allies may be putting a two way air squeeze on Europe again tonight. Shortly before midnight a Nazi broadcaster said single enemy planes were over Western Germany A little later he added that planes were approaching Syria and the lower Danube.

Some 1000 U. S. heavies escorted by 500 fighters thundered out toward Spain from Britain, blasting the fuel depot and airdromes near Toulouse and other enemy plane nests in central France including those at Bourges, 125 miles South of Paris, and Avord, 12 miles East of Bourges.

Another fleet of some 1000 heavy bombers—this time RAF Lancasters and Halifaxes—hit Pas de Calais for the third time within 18 hours.

Hardly had they returned home when American bombers struck the same area, unloading tons of explosives on at least 12 electric power stations probably supplying power for launching the rocket bombs.

Other fleets of Amtrican medium and light bombers, American and RAF fighter-bombers and allied fighters kept up the steady support of allied ground forces by blasting fuel dumps and rail lines behind the lines in Normandy.

BATTER BERLIN

R.A.F. Mosquitoes ranged over Berlin, loosing 4000-pound bombs upon the battered Nazi capital.

By early evening, British based allied airmen had blasted at least 49 German planes from the air at a cost of 28 allied planes, including 13 American and two RAF heavies.

The Italy-based assault hit Sete, coastal city on the Marseille-Bordeaux rail line, and Avignon on the Marseille-Lyon rail line. Other blows in the raids on bridges, oil and other installations were struck at Balaruc, a few miles West of Sete, and Le Pontet, Northeast of Avignon. Three bridges over the Rhone River in the vicinity of Avignon also were bombed.

Flying bombers hurtled across the Channel into Southern England on Saturday night but were missing from the skies during most of the daylight hours Sunday as they were Saturday for the first time since June 15.

American fighter-bombers blasted the rail line between Paris and Orleans in a continuation of the campaign to isolate the Northwestern corner of France. They blocked that artery at seven points.

535 BELIEVED READY TO SUPPORT DEWEY

Further Backing Expected Today From West Delegates

By C. R. BLACKBURN

CHICAGO, June 25 (CP) — The drive to nominate Gov. Thomas Dewey of New York as Republican presidential candidate in next November's elections gained added weight tonight when Pennsylvania delegates decided to put their 70 convention votes behind him.

This brought to 535 the number of delegates believed ready to back Dewey when the national convention opens here tomorrow. Five hundred and twenty-nine votes are needed to win nomination. Dewey's only announced rival—Gov. John Bricker of Ohio—appeared assured of 72.

Further backing for Dewey may develop tomorrow when the California delegation of 50 meets to consider the advice of their advance agents, National Committeeman William Reichel, to act fast "if it wants to get on the bandwagon" for Dewey.

Impetus for the Dewey drive was given by the 59-vote Illinois delegation which last night decided to give 50 ballots to Dewey on the first roll call.

However, backers of Bricker are conceding nothing and the Minnesota delegation says that Lt.-Cmdr. Harold Stassen, former Governor of that State now on active service in the Pacific, is certain to be nominated.

Dewey still maintains publicly "I'm not a candidate" but the indications are he will be drafted on the first vote with a margin of at least 31 votes.

More Rocket Bombs Fired at Britain

LONDON, June 25 (Monday) (CP)—After a daylight lull, second in a row, the Germans sent more of their flying bombs, some incendiaries, toward England early today but many were destroyed before they got across the Channel.

ALLIES THRUST INTO JAP BASE; SEIZE RAILWAY

Two Other Burma Bases Attacked; Hengyang Tottering

KANDY, Ceylon, June 25 (AP)—British and Chinese troops have stormed into the Japanese North Burma base of Mogaung on three sides, seizing an important stretch of railway between the Mogaung station and the railway bridge over the river, headquarters announced tonight.

Elements of Gurkha and British regiments broke into the town from the East and captured the bridge and rail stretch, while Maj.-Gen. W. D. A. Lentaigne's Chindits assailed the base from the South and Chinese troops pierced the outer defences both North and South of the city, the communique said.

American troops continued their advance from the North toward the heart of the besieged North Burma Japanese bastion of Myitkyina, 35 miles East of Mogaung, still holding out against determined Allied attacks on all sides.

Of three important Japanese bases in North Burma two, Myitkyina and Mogaung, now are under attack from the inside, while the third, Kamaing, 20 miles North of Mogaung, has fallen.

In India, British troops thrust 20 to 30 miles North of Imphal and East of the Kohima road in pursuit of the fleeing Japanese, recently routed from the Kohima-Imphal Road.

CHUNGKING, June 25 (AP)—Japanese troops plunging down the Canton-Hankow railway have pierced the outer defences of Henyang, most important city yet attacked by the enemy since the fall of Canton and Hankow, in 1938, the Chinese High Command announced tonight.

Chinese military men were taking a gloomy view of the developing battle for the city, fall of which might upset Allied plans to use China as a base of attack on Japan.

Less than 200 miles of the railway remained in Chinese hands Southward from Hengyang to North of Canton, along with a few small gaps North of Hankow.

CHARGE GAS USED

The Chinese charged in a later communique that Japanese East of Henyang Saturday night used poison gas against the defenders, inflicting heavy casualties, and added the charge that on June 18 and 17 poison gas also was used at Ningsiang and at Changsha before the fall of the latter city. The communique said American liaison officers had taken photographs of the casualties.

Since early Spring the Japanese have taken more than 575 miles of the overland 1000-mile route from Peiping to Canton. If finally consolidated in Japanese hands the route would split China in two and would free the enemy to worry over southward sea supply lanes now gravely menaced by the American Pacific campaign which has reached to Saipan.

C.C.F. Nominating Convention Ends in Tie at Kamloops

KAMLOOPS, June 25 (CP) — Repeated ballots failed to break a tie and the nominating convention of the CCF for Kamloops central riding here adjourned without selecting a candidate.

Three names were before the convention—A. Parker, Revelstoke; M. Bedford, Salmon Arm, and G. Van, Vancouver, formerly of Kamloops. Parker was eliminated in the second ballot and subsequent ballots failed to break the deadlock between Bedford and Van. Another nominating convention will be held later.

Smash Into City on 20th Day

"Cloudbursts of Bombs" Too Much for Huns; Enemy Blows Up Harbor

LONDON, June 25 (CP)—German broadcast said tonight that Cherbourg, possible springboard for a Western Allied offensive toward Paris and Berlin, has fallen to American troops as the prize of a blistering 19-day battle in Normandy.

taking possession of the city of Cherbourg," said a broadcast by D.N.B., official German agency, at 7:40 p. m.

"It is to be assumed that the Americans have succeeded in Berlin's International Information Bureau followed a few minutes later with a similar report.

The admission came close upon German radio reports detailing the fury of the Nazis' "self-sacrificial combat which could not prevent American tanks from entering the town and which told of cloudbursts of bombs" bursting upon the defenders' heads.

The Germans said the resistance broke under a naval, air and artillery hammering which hit "every quarter of the town" and added:

"American infantrymen and tank formations attacked from the Southwest. Tanks penetrated into the town area. The Germans were seriously hampered by the lack of munitions.

"The Nazis put up fierce resistance, although their lines were considerably thinned out.

"Savage hand-to-hand fighting took place and German grenadiers destroyed a number of American tanks, but could not prevent them from entering the town area."

The international information bureau account added the face-saving assertion that Gen. Eisenhower's schedule called for capture of the big port June 9—three days after the invasion of France.

By JAMES M. LONG

Supreme Headquarters Allied Expeditionary Force, June 25 (AP) United States assault troops battered into smoke- shrouded Cherbourg late today from three sides, clamping a firm grasp on the city, and supreme headquarters announced at midnight that France's third largest port city was "almost in our possession."

An Associated Press dispatch from Cherbourg said veteran troops broke into the city on the 20th day of the invasion under a shell shocking artillery, sea and air bombardment that crumpled Nazi fight-to-the-death resistance.

The power drive swept on against Germans still holding out in the main portion of the city.

The American forces smashed into the city from the South, East and West, said AP correspondent Don Whitehead, who entered the city with the troops.

The Germans turned the harbor facilities into an inferno of destruction, he said.

A tremendous artillery barrage helped crush stubborn Nazi defences on the outskirts, and the Americans won the high ground defences overlooking the port city, headquarters said.

Whitehead said there remained tonight only "the slow job of cleaning out the main part of the city." The outpost defences were virtually all blotted out.

"At 8 p.m., there were only two strong points at Fort Due Roule and a few other scattered defence points holding out," Whitehead said.

OPEN OFFENSIVE TO EAST

Even as the battle for Cherbourg raged to its bloody climax, British forces exploded an offensive before dawn today along the Eastern Normandy flank, striking more than a mile South of captured Tilly Sur Seulles, 12 miles West of the stronghold of Caen.

This smash rolled more than a mile in four hours, engulfing a village and then under heavy artillery support drove up into the "strongly defended German positions," a dispatch from Roger Greene of the Associated Press said. The Germans withdrew in reinforcements but were reported losing men heavily.

Supreme headquarters said: "local attacks have improved our positions in the Eastern sector of the bridgehead after fierce fighting."

CBS correspondent Bill Downs said the British forces gained 2½ to three miles Southeast of Tilly Sur Seulles. Downs said the attack began after a barrage from enough artillery to place "one every eight yards. Berlin reported fighting "in full swing" in this sector.

A Berlin Transocean broadcast said allied troops and equipment had been landed from "about 250 transport and landing vessels" East of the Orne River, North of Caen, in the last two days. Another German broadcast speculated that "the allies intend to start major operations soon in this sector designed to capture Caen and push in a general Easterly direction" from the Peninsult into the French mainland toward Paris.

Speaking of the offensive in the Tilly sur Seulles area, the German Sunday communique said Nazi coastal batteries joined in the ground fighting despite Allied warship and artillery fire and aerial bombing, and claimed they scored "several hits on enemy cruisers and destroyers."

Coastal batteries set fire to a 5000-ton transport in the Seine River mouth, it asserted, an Allied destroyer was sunk nearby by a mine, and large-sized transport caught fire. German motor torpedo boats scored hits on Allied destroyers, and long-range batteries destroyed a 7000-ton freighter in the English Channel off Dover, the bulletin added.

Earlier today, Supreme Headquarters said the Germans were putting up a last-ditch fight for Maupertus airfield about five miles East of Cherbourg. Most of the German forces apparently had been pulled back into the city from Cape Barfleur on the Northeastern tip of Cherbourg Peninsula.

EXPECT 30,000 PRISONERS

A British officer at 21st Army Group Headquarters expressed belief the bag of prisoners when the port is taken would run to about 30,000 or less, rather than 50,000 as estimated earlier. He said the 709th Division, presumed to be the Germans' original garrison force there, still was at nearly full strength, but other parts of the trapped 77th, 91st and 243rd divisions had been badly mauled.

The 77th Division was chopped in two by the American punch a week ago that sealed of fthe top of the peninsula; the 91st suffered heavily in battles with American airborne forces dropped at the start of the invasion June 6, and the 243rd Division also had been cut in two.

German surprise at the rapidity of the American cross-peninsular thrust was illustrated by a captured German order, made public at 21st Army Group Headquarters. It ordered some of the German divisions no wat Cherbourg to withdraw to the South. But they were hit before they could escape the trap.

Cherbourg, emptied of all but 5000 of its civilians, shuddered and flamed to German-set demolitions as the American arc closed in earlier in the battle, and one bright fire flared from the arsenal near the Quai de France.

It seemed likely that destruction of the arsenal would be the last act of defiance by Maj.-Gen. Karl Wilhelm von Schleiban, Prussian veteran whom Field Marshal von Runstedt sent in to take command of Cherbourg less than a month ago.

Another German commander, infantry Maj.-Gen. Stegman, who led a division on the Russian Gomel front, has been killed in Normandy, headquarters announced, without giving the place or circumstances.

Headquarters also disclosed that Maj.-Generals Joseph Lawton Collins and Leonard T. Gerow were corps commanders of American forces in France. Brig.-Gen. Joseph Pierre Koenig, commander of French forces in Britain, has been placed in command of all resistance forces in the interior of France under General Eisenhower in a step to solidify patriot resistance with the invasion drive.

While the frontal assault drove in upon Cherbourg itself, American wings on both sides pressed the trapped Nazi back upon an ever-narrowing strip of coast to the East and West of the city.

At no place on the immediate flanks of Cherbourg was this German toehold more than three miles deep, and on the East the Americans were less than a mile from the sea at Cape Levy. The siege arc ran from there westward to bitterly-defended Bois du Mont Roc near Beaumont-Hague. The Germans apparently had withdrawn from all the northeastern tip of Cherbourg peninsula.

An American patrol entered the edge of Cherbourg as early as Saturday afternoon, meeting no resistance, Whitehead said.

Forwards observers said they could see the Germans working to blow up some of the naval guns, guardian fingers pointed toward the sea.

Link by link, the American forces smashed the network of pillboxes and fortifications protecting Cherbourg, taking hundreds of prisoners.

Japs Lose 747 Planes, 30 Ships In Battles

PEARL HARBOR, June 25 (AP) —Japan's defence of the Marianas and Bonins has cost the Japanese 747 planes destroyed, 30 ships sunk, 51 damaged and two probably sunk and 13 barges destroyed, it was announced tonight.

A communique from Pacific Fleet Headquarters revised losses inflicted on the enemy in the two weeks June 10 to 23.

It added 109 planes shot down, three ships damaged—a light carrier, a heavy cruiser and a light cruiser—and transferred a tanker previously reported sunk to the damaged side.

At the same time Headquarters said American plane losses from a carrier force which sank or damaged nearly a score of Japanese ships June 19 was increased to 95 but only 22 pilots and 27 air crewmen were lost.

ADVANCE ON SAIPAN

On Saipan Island troops advanced 500 to 800 yards yesterday on the Western flank and in an attack on entrenched Japanese on Mount Tapotchau, the communique said.

Strong enemy opposition continues. The bulk of the original 20,000 or more enemy defenders remain in the sector beginning around Mt. Tapotchau and extending Northward.

Say Evacuation of Berlin Has Been Ordered

LISBON, June 25 (AP) — Twenty Hungarian passengers who arrived here tonight on a German airliner said Nazi authorities had ordered the evacuation of Berlin.

Hitler's reichs chancellory was among "many important buildings" smashed or damaged "during the most devastating daylight air attack Berlin has ever had, made last Wednesday by American Liberators and Fortresses," the BBC reported Sunday.

"Pictures taken during the attack show more than 20 concentrations of bombs in the heart of Berlin," the BBC said.

"They damaged more than 35 separate industrial plants, four railway stations, five marshalling yards, and many important government buildings. These included the Reichs chancellory, the Gestape headquarters, the war office and propaganda head quarters."

I Know a Robin When I See One!

No. 11

By H. H. CURRIE

Canada's practically universal bird is the robin. All our lives we have all seen robins. All our lives we have heard them. Even our toddlers, just learning to talk, watch the "robin-birds" with keen interest, as they drag worms from lawn and garden and feed their babies in the mud-cup nest in tree or in Virginia creeper.

Sure, we know robins.

"I know a robin when I see one," is a statement any Canadian, or any Kootenaian, would subscribe to, and he would laugh heartily at the idea he could ever confuse any other bird with a robin provided he had a sight of it.

Nearly as many would be willing to take oath, "I know a robin when I hear one." And they would believe themselves to be stating a self-evident fact, almost too ridiculous to have put into words.

Well, I am from Missouri on both those confident assertions. In particular, I believe that 95 per cent of our population, while correct on the great majority of calls or songs they attribute to robins, more or less constantly err in a minority of cases. And I arrive at these beliefs because I have caught myself in these errors, errors in which I persisted for years, either until chance put me on the right track, or an increasing habit of observation brought facts new to me, to light. And of course there may be other discoveries of a similar nature still ahead of me.

Let us first take the matter of identifying a robin by its voice. A robin has a far greater variety of song phrases and calls than most of us give it credit for. The males will whistle away endlessly on roof, on tree top, or other vantage point, working the changes on two or three notes usually. But some robins seem to have distinctive songs. Then there is a kind of song like the song of a hen; I am now not referring to the cackle after laying an egg—"cut, cut, catawket, catawket"—but the shrill "ca, ca, ca, ca, ca" emitted when a hen is happy, on one note.

ROBIN THAT PECKED WOOD

It was probably 15 years ago that one Summer morning I was going home from The Daily News about dawn, and heard a robin shrilling away on this monotone, apparently on the roof of the I.O.O.F. Block. Then suddenly, from the same point, came the sharp rapping of a woodpecker. I turned back till I could see the author of the sound clearly, and there was a red-shafted flicker, our commonest woodpecker, rapping in the wooden saucer at the base of the flagpole. Then it reverted to the rapid "kuk, kuk, kuk, kuk," song, and I realized that all my life I had been attributing to the robin the flicker's song—the yellow-shafted flicker in the Maritimes and Manitoba, and the red-shafted flicker here. Actually the robin, when giving this roll, as it does occasionally, is more deliberate than the flicker, and a few notes lower.

Probably 10 years ago, the Bing cherry tree in my back yard being much smaller than at present, little larger than a good tall bush, I was starting out the back way, on my way to work, when I heard a robin giving its monotonous two-note or three-note song in the aforesaid tree, the commonest robin song. I stopped casually to look at the robin in passing, but failed to see it. Mystified that so conspicuous bird could be so completely concealed in this then small tree, I hung around for a couple of minutes, and then the song ceased, and a little green bird with a white eye-streak emerged and flew away to a neighbor's tree, and resumed its robin's song. It was a red-eyed vireo!

It took me some weeks to get where I could clearly distinguish between the robin's monotonous lay and the equally monotonous lay of the red-eyed vireo, and many a time I trailed the song back to the singer, before I could be accurate four times out of five. The robin's two or three note song seems an exact duplicate of the red-eyed vireo's, except for being generally more powerful. I am prepared to believe that 98 per cent of Canadians and Americans alike attribute the red-eyed vireo's song to the robin.

DECEIVING PREACHER

The red-eyed vireo showed up in Nelson this year toward the end of May. I was keeping an attentive ear toward Gyro Park daily, and once in the Park I thought I saw a red-eyed vireo there. About May 25, if I remember right, at the noon hour, I suddenly heard one in one of Judge Nisbet's trees, across Cedar Street from my place. To make sure, I took up a position in an easy chair on my front porch, and watched the tree with a glass. I knew that sooner or later the song would cease, then I would catch sight of a tiny bird looping through the air to another tree, where the song would be resumed. In due course the song finished, then a bird flew across as I expected, but it was a robin! There was still a possibility that the actual singer had not flown, but the robin was the one that resumed the supposed vireo's song! A couple of days after this I was departing by the lane for the Daily News, when I heard a similar song from my Bing tree. My attitude was that of the little fox in the hunting song:

"N'ya, n'ya, n'ya, said the little fox,
N'ya, n'ya, you can't catch me!
N'ya, n'ya, n'ya, said the little fox,
Laughing merrily."

I wasn't going to be misled again. I knew it was a robin, and I stayed a minute to watch. But the bird that flew from the tree to alight in the wild cherry on Cedar Street opposite the head of the lane, was a little green one, and it had a white eye-brow mark—and, yes, a red eye. And it plunged again into its song. These will probably be my only mistakes of the year on the red-eyed vireo, but that I made them shows the room for misidentification by the uninitiated.

Generally speaking, after one has given attention to this matter, he will know the red-eyed vireo's long-distance carolling. It will repeat the same phrases over and over endlessly, on about three notes, and has well earned the name of preacher bird, which it bears over a large part of the continent. Once I held my watch as one sang in my neighbor's tree, in plain sight. For 12 minutes it repeated its group of notes without a stop; then it missed one group—that is, half a dozen beats—then went on for eight more minutes before stopping and flying to another vantage post. It is usually heard from the tallest trees. And in the green foliage, even if close at hand, it is normally invisible. It is one of our commonest songsters, and any reader who wants to get a view of one has only to watch the tree from which a robin's song is issuing without a visible robin behind it. Sooner or later he will see the little fellow fly to a new perch, from which he will start over again.

BREAST OF GOLD

The robin does not always have just a simple monotonous one or two note song. Sometimes it will run through quite a number of phrases. I have checked on many robins during these elaborations. On one occasion I was at the upper end of Victoria Street, passing along toward Gyro Park, when I heard a robin so engaged. I was well satisfied it was a robin, but followed my rule of getting in sight of it to fully identify it. It was on top of a city light pole near the Charles Morris place—and it was a black-headed grosbeak, with rich golden breast.

It is only the black-headed grosbeak's song that sounds like a robin's. It's ordinary call is a dry wooden trill or wheeze as I found out when observing one feeding a young one in Gyro Park several years ago.

I have never heard a rose-breasted grosbeak sing—I have seen only one male—but the books give its song also as resembling closely a robin's.

A little over a week ago I was at Sirdar, winding up my holidays with two or three days devoted to seeing what ducks if any I could observe on Duck Lake—the big back-water from Kootenay River. At Sirdar itself I saw very few robins, but on one of my walks along the track in the direction of Wynndel I was impressed with the number of robins I heard in the trees as I went along. They all seemed to be singing a short song of four or five syllables, in a monotone—"chee, chee, chee, chee, chee."

HAD PINK HEAD

At last I began to wonder, for no robin had shown itself, and my mind went back to the Western tanager I had half thought I heard in Sirdar that morning. Nearly all birds have a number of songs or calls, I have found out by experience. In the Fall I have heard Western tanager males repeatedly calling, or singing, the expression, "Prickly-dick." In the Spring, however, it is less emphatic, and to me sounds like "Pritelet." But this five-syllable repetition, fairly loud, like a robin's whistling, began to jog my memory, and to associate itself with the Western tanager, so presently I took time off to get a sight of the bird currently calling or singing. Sure enough, instead of being a fat robin, it was a slim and much smaller bird, with a pink head and a yellow body—the male Western tanager.

And of course there may be other birds that sing or call or whistle like robins.

So when you are walking around the byways and hear a robin, it may quite possibly be some other bird, and in cases where the singer is not in sight, if you will look attentively for it you may be rewarded by making a new acquaintance.

Well, at any rate, you and I always know robins when we see them! Do we!

To start with, some of us are mystified by the thrush-like birds with spotted breasts that hop about lawns and gardens late in May. "They are exactly like the English song thrush," one inquirer assured me. He was mistaking young robins newly from the nest and not yet in adult plumage.

Incidentally, few persons, I imagine, know the call of a young robin. This green sounds anything but robin-like as heard from the center of a bush where the fledgling is safely hidden, waiting to be fed by parents.

Also very un-robin-like is the sigh emitted by an adult robin on a nest, when panting in the heat. In these two cases it is not a case of some other bird being taken for a robin, but of a robin not being recognized, from sounds it makes under seasonal or special conditions.

ROBIN WITH NECKLACE

I'll admit that, dealing with the adult birds only, all of us would be correct in 100 identifications out of 100. But once among thousands of robins—I am speaking of Nelson just now—there might be a varied thrush, which in shape and size is the exact counterpart of its close relative. Seen in flight, seen walking about on the ground, seen at a distance, in a tree, a male varied thrush appears to be a robin. But when viewed in detail, it is a different bird.

Once years ago I went up the Great Northern track South of Nelson hoping to see a varied thrush. In a round trip of some miles I neither saw nor heard one, but on getting back to South Nelson, I heard a varied thrush singing. Later on I saw a robin jump out of a ditch and fly to an apple tree. I had seen hundreds of robins that afternoon, and had put my glass on scores of them. I checked up on this one, and at last had a varied thrush—with rusty breast like a robin, but a black necklace like a lord mayor's chain and drops of gold on its wings and a couple of dold stripes across its head. I have also had the experience in Gyro Park, when sitting under a tree, and putting my glass on every robin in sight—presently one that was after worms turned out to be a male varied thrush. It is only the male that would be taken for a robin, the female is a brown bird, with a pattern of markings that would not suggest the robin—except when seen in flight.

One more robin I may mention seeing.

It was the second morning after the big Fuwell lumber yard fire in Nelson, which occurred on the night of May 14. Shortly after dawn I walked around the lumber shed, and then across the sawdust dump to the City Dump, wondering how many young birds died in the fire. They would certainly include violet-green swallows, and a brood or two of house sparrows and robins, and possibly killdeers, though killdeer young would have to be practically in the shell, for they leave the nest right after hatching.

On arriving on the City Dump, I watched some small birds, and identified them as savannah sparrows. Then as I moved o ntoward the incinerator, and came into sight of the lower shelf of the dump where it is customary to burn brush, a robin flew from that lower ground, over toward Josephine Slip. Thinking it might be collecting worms for its young and that it might unintentionally tip me off as to its nest site, I followed it with my glass, and it appeared to bring up on one of the East-West wires.

TAIL WAS FLOWING

Keeping my glass on it, so as to be able to follow its flight if it took off again, I gradually approached nearer, and gained an impression that its tail was somewhat longer than the ordinary robin's. It also struck me that a robin does not ordinarily perch on a wire, though there are exceptions to this rule. Studying it closely against Burns' garage, as I advanced, I checked on its shape to see whether it could be a pigeon, unlikely as that seemed. While I was probing that possibility, it looked around, and revealed to me a pigeon's head and neck. And then, with a nearer view, black spots appeared on its brown back, and I suddenly recognized it as a mourning dove—one of our wild pigeons. Before I could get nearer, it flew off toward the City Hall, showing the flowing, kite-shaped tail, with its white border.

I hope some of my readers have learned something from this installment, and in particular, will cultivate the habit of a second look, or of a critical ear toward bird songs and bird calls. When we have a really-well-founded confidence in our ability to separate our universal friend, the robin, from all other birds, I feel we have made some definite steps in an enjoyable study that will always be a refreshment.

Slocan Centres Prepare Receive Sandon Japanese

Arrangements are going ahead in the three communities, Slocan City Bay Farm and Popoff, to provide housing accommodation for an approximate 150 newcomers, expected to be transferred here during the Summer from the gradually dispersing project at Sandon, reports the New Canadian, "independent weekly for Canadians of Japanese origin."

The three communities, each represented by a committee, are working in close cooperation with the Security Commission officials to make available such accommodation at the earliest possible date.

This program of moving and shuffling has been undertaken by the committees, in spite of difficulties arising from the aggravating of already crowded housing conditions. Thus far, however, communities are cooperating fully in official attempts to secure the needed living quarters.

The community of Popoff is expected to take in the bulk of the new "relocees." The Commission is taking over the single men's quarters—those who are employed independently of the Commission—for the newcomers. These workers have been classed as permanent transferees from the interior housing settlements.

Necessary reservations, however, are being maintained for the large number of younger boys and girls of school age who have been leaving the settlements to take seasonal farm work, particularly in the Okanagan.

Progressive Conservative Association, said in his report to the Association on his return from an organizing trip through the province.

The party is making "feverish plans for an all-outbattle at the polls in the anticipated Federal election this Fall," he added. ". . . Plans are now in effect for a streamlined, fighting crusade for revival of the Progressive Conservative party."

70-Mile Gale Batters Normandy Beaches

AN ALLIED BEACH IN NORMANDY, June 25 (AP)—A 70-mile gale which continued from last Monday to Friday dealt the Allies' troop and supply timetables a serious setback. This beach is littered with bashed-in hulks of steel landing craft and some larger vessels. Some lives were lost.

Freight-handling C-47's brought in some critical supplies and these twin-engined planes evacuated more than 4000 wounded to Britain.

Supplies are now moving in orderly fashion.

"Must Hold on to Faith" Says Archbishop

"And this is the Victory that overcometh the world, even our faith." This was the text used by Most Rev. W. R. Adams, DD., Archbishop of Kootenay when he spoke to the congregation at the Church of the Redeemer Sunday evening. Rev. W. J. Silverwood conducted the service.

The Archbishop asked, "Is faith predominant today?" He said that faith was not mere emotion or wayward thinking, but the way of looking at things warmed by emotion and directed by will. In answer to his question, "What is the world trusting in today?" he said that some were trusting in world power, others in military efficiency, but what people should trust in was God. "God has shown us not only the way of Life, but has also given us the power of Life," said the speaker.

Archbishop Adams said many people were losing faith in themselves as well as in God, and that this was the reason that leaders could talk them into almost anything. "They do not thoroughly investigate plans before going ahead with them, in other words they do not think for themselves," said the speaker.

"Jesus left us the message that there was a divine purpose in history, an dalso for each individual Thus," said Archbishop Adams, "we must look at things through the eyes of God."

"Although Jesus died for us, he is still with us in Spirit, to reveal to us true fellowship. We must hold on to Faith through thick and thin," he concluded.

Asks Royal Inquiry Into B. C. Training Camps

QUEBEC, June 24 (CP) — Alderman Joseph Matte has decided to wait two weeks "before taking new steps to see that a Royal inquiry is instituted to investigate the situation" in B. C. training camps where he claims drafted men are being unfairly treated.

The alderman announced his decision to wait after city council had taken no action after he had read letter claimed discrimination against them a letter signed by 123 members B. C., camps, who refused to sign men at the Vernon and Courtenay, of Les Fusiliers u St. Laurent. The for overseas service.

Council had previously asked Defence Minister Ralston for an investigation and subsequently had adopted a resolution which "deplored" his reply. The reply said he could not order a royal inquiry "in times such as we are experiencing" but that he would "gladly check" on any specific case of discrimination brought to his attention.

"Political Bribe" Bracken Charges

OTTAWA, June 25 (CP) —John Bracken, National Progressive Conservative leader, said Saturday the government's proposal to introduce a family allowance scheme "has all the earmarks of a political bribe."

He said the plan, costing $200,000,000, would increase peace-time taxes by 50 per cent. As an alternative, he proposed removal of the ceiling on low wages and easing of income tax levies on low wage groups.

Mr. Bracken's statement:

I think the Canadian people ought to examine the government's proposal very carefully. Two hundred million dollars is a lot of money to put on the people in additional taxes. The plan has all the earmarks of a political bribe. At the eleventh hour of its existence, the government brings forward a proposal to give away $200,000,000 a year—a gift which will increase the peace-time taxes of everybody by 50 per cent, and then it says it will not bring the plan into effect until after the next election. It is time we asked ourselves when this legal bribery of electorate is going to be stopped.

The government's plans for this measure, like its plans for health insurance and its many other policies, have not been well bought out. If they have been and the measure is good, it should be brought into effect at once instead of a year from now. If the government does not intend to pay these allowances now, all this fanfare looks like an election bait to gain the support of the electors, or to fool them, or to do both.

We are in favor, and the Canadian people are in favor, of generous provision for all children in need, whether in large families or in small. We are in favor of the most generous provision for health, education and nutrition of all children, and for adequate clothing and housing provision where these are inadequate but frankly, we look with suspicion on a half-baked plan brought in at the eleventh hour by a government which has lost the confidence of the people. It has done nothing about this particular project for 18 years, and it even now proposed to do it only after it is likely to be out of power.

Let the government lift the ceiling on low wages and let these expand to the minimum of decency for mature experienced workers.

It is time also that the 900,000 low-income workers of this country were relieved of some of their income tax payments.

If the government feels it necessary to pay out two hundred millions, largely to these groups next year, surely it can let the same groups retain a part of the 60 millions now taken from them in taxes this year. The government should increase the exemptions on low-paid workers and let them keep some more of the money these proposals suggest they need.

This much-vaunted scheme may mean 20 to 22 cents per day for certain children. The government's plan smells too much of the dole of the 1930's, when that was the value set on maintaining a man's life in the relief camps. Let us have no more doles. If we add together the total of the proposed grants and the heavy cost of administration and wipe out the wide spread extravagance of the government, we will be able to get wages to a decent level in this country, where there would be less need for these wage tax imposts for social services.

Pensioners Aim at $50 a Month

VANCOUVER, June 25 (CP) — A nine point list of objectives of the Old Age Pensioners' organization was decided upon at the annual meeting of the general council of that group Friday.

Some 40 delegates from all parts of B. C. attended the meeting. The objectives of the organization are as follows:

1. $50 per month for all old age pensioners.

2. Pensions to start at 60 years of age for both men and women.

3. Accumulative total of 20 years' residence in Canada to become eligible for pensions, provided that 20 years are spent between the ages of 21 and 60.

4. No means test, as at present, and no taxation of pensions, with any other income received by a pensioner to be taxable.

5. Ninety days travel outside Canada without pensioners status being affected.

6. No charges to be made against the estate of a deceased pensioner on pensions granted under the Pensions Act.

7. In cases where documentary evidence of an applicant's age or length of residence in Canada is lacking the benefit of the doubt should go to the applicant, and the board should accept as sufficient proof the affidavit of a relative or friend.

8. An interchange of pension payments between Britain and the Dominions, the possibly other countries if the pensioner finds it necessary to move from one country to another.

9. All above clauses to be applicable to the blind, except age limitations, pensions for the blind beginning at the point at which they leave school.

Ont. Hopes for 25,000,000 Population

KENORA, Ont., June 25 (CP) — Premier George A. Drew said here Friday night that he believed Ontario could eventually support a population of 25,000,000 and that already Ontario House in London is taking applications from prospective immigrants.

Lt.-Col. Drew said that Ontario would assist immigrants as soon as it had made adequate plans for young Canadians returning from overseas.

Col. Drew said the world now is entering a new age—the air age,—which would be as significant as were the stone age, iron age and the age of steam before it.

He urged the Dominion to take leadership in the air commerce of the world and saw an opportunity for doing so if the nation had the vision to establish first of all air routes on the necessary scale at home.

"We will be hamstrung if we keep the control of flying under some amorphous government policy," he said, adding the Ontario government would take its own measures if red tape caused delays.

He urged the knitting together of the East and West sections of the province by means of air services and said plans should be made now so as to know how to absorb the men and women who will be returning from the air force to civilian life.

Bouchard Absent From Congress

ST. HYACINTHE, Que., June 25 (CP) — Senator T. D. Bouchard, the Mayor of St. Hyacinthe, advised officials here that he would be unable to attend a regional eucharistic congress which started Saturday.

The congress took place Saturday and Sunday with Cardinal Villeneuve among those taking part in the religious services.

Senator Bouchard created a sensation by his speech Wednesday in the Senate in which he charged that the French-Canadian organization —the Order of Jacques Cartier, founded "with the blessing of the Catholic and French clergy" was plotting to set up an independent and Catholic state in Canada.

Creston Graduates Receive Diplomas

CRESTON, B. C.—On a beautifully decorated stage, the motif being a replica of a shield, cleverly interwoven with school colors symbolizing the mountains, orchards and fields of Creston Valley, 27 Grade Twelve and six Grade Thirteen students received their graduation diplomas. Strikingly placed in the center of the stage was a large white open book with the names of the graduating students lettered on it. Gold and blue streamers gracefully draped around the walls of the auditorium made the occasion most impressive.

Preceding the evening program a banquet was held for the graduates and their teachers, with the guest speaker, Dr. F. W. Green, M.L.A., present.

James Cook, speaking for the village of Creston gave the civic welcome, in the absence of Reeve Mallandaine.

Following two selections by the school band under the supervision of T. Flatwatche, Chairman of the School Board, James Holder presented the scholarship to Miss Milliner on behalf of the Board and wished her success in future years. Two selections were rendered by the choir.

Dr. Green made the graduation address, and spoke sincerely and firmly of the future of graduates and the place they will play in the future life of Canada.

Following his stirring message, presentation of the diplomas to the graduates, Miss Dorothy Milliner, 1944 Valedictorian, addressed the audience on behalf of the students. Two more selections by the choir, brough the program to the presentation of athletic awards by Student Council President Guy Browell. Following two band selections, S. J. Graham spoke to the assembly and the choir concluded the ceremony with the singing of the Lord's Prayer.

Those on the stage were School Board officials, Dr. Green, James Cook, S. J. Graham and G. Browell, President of the Students Council. The evening concluded with a graduation dance.

Pte. J. N. Aurelio of Nelson Worked Under Fire to Attend Officer Wounded in Italy Battle

By DOUG HOW
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIAN CORPS IN ITALY, June 25 (CP) — Things have been happening in the advance since, but the day a Western motorized battalion remembers best is that May 24 when a bridgehead was established across the Melfa River to further the exploration of the Canadian victory in the Hitler line.

It was a company commanded by Maj. J. K. Mahoney, New Westminster, B. C., which firs forded the stream.

Lieut. R. R. Douglas of New Westminster led his platoon against a cluster of four houses in which German infantrymen were positioned.

It took them a considerable time but the fight yielded prisoners and dead. At least 25 prisoners were taken, and 10 to 15 German skilled during the day.

A third company under Maj. G. D. Johnston, New Westminster went over the Melfa on the right flank, penetrated to its objective 1200 yards inland, cleaned out a number of machine gun posts, encountered strong enemy patrols, then was ordered to withdraw about 1 a.m.

There are stories about numerous men on May 24. When the tanks were threatening the bridgehead, Cpl. West of Port Hammond, B. C., ran from place to place with a plat to deceive the Germans.

Pte. J. N. Aurelio, of Nelson, B.C., a stretcher bearer, worked under fire for two hours on a tank officer who was burned when his tank was set on fire. He was just one man of an RAP section under the medican officer, Capt. E. M. Wilder, Winnipeg, all of whom won the admiration of the unit.

To rescue wounded men, Sgt. W. H. Laine of Chilliwack crawled beneath a burning exploding tank to pull out a trooper; Pte. K. R. Williams, Haney, B. C., crawled out to a wounded man, tended him and stayed with him until he was taken back.

Men of Maj. Johnston's company went into Pofi five days later in the midst of an advance with Western tanks. When the unit took high ground near Pofi, Sgt. L. Bailey of Kelowna and L. Cpl. M. B. Brown, Vancouver, went two miles ahead on a recce, captured five Germans, shot two and gained valuable information.

'Going to Nelson!'; Cominco Boosts City

June issue of the C. M. & S. Co., publication Cominco contains an article on "Going to Nelson" and outlining some of the attractions in the immediate Nelson district which draw so many C. M. & S. people to the City for most or long vacations.

"Nelson—Queen City of the Kootenays—is extending her annual call to Trail weekend vacationers again this Summer. Hundreds of Smelter people will take advantage of the beauties of Lakeside Park on our sunny Sundays. Special trains will again be put into service by the C. P.R., to accommodate these Sunday travellers," says Cominco.

"To avoid that last minute rush and crowding, the C.P.R. office advises that tickets for Sunday travelling to Nelson will be available on Saturday and a purchase a day ahead may make the difference between a leisurely trip in comfort and a hurried, uncomfortable rush to obtain a seat.

"For those whose plans include a more strenuous outing than just a day on the beach at Lakeside there are trails to Pulpit Rock, the Athabaska or Silver King mines, fishing at Balfour, Grohman Creek Narrows, boating on any part of the West Arm, huckleberry picking at the Mountain Station or a trip out the road toward Ymir and Salmo. Any of these things can be accomplished in a day—between trains—and will repay all the effort expended a hundredfold.

"Should you find something novel and interesting to do during your Sunday at Nelson, pass it along to Cominco so that we may tell others."

Interpreting The War News

BY ELTON C. FAY
Associated Press War Analyst

Savage fighting at the Southeast corner of the Normandy front manned by British and Canadians has developed, essentially, from two basic factors.

That area represents the point of farthest advance into France and can become the springboard for a major offensive directed toward the Seine and Paris.

It is there that the Allies' left flank exists and flanks are the favored attacking point for the opposition.

How essential the Nazis consider this area is attested by the manner in which they have maintained their grip on the city of Caen.

Marshal von Rundstedt has thrown perhaps the greatest weight of his armor and infantry on the Normandy front into the region of the Orne, Caen and Tilly-Sur-Seulles.

Until the last 48 hours, there has been little evidence that either side had succeeded in building up effective superiority. But by early yesterday (Sunday) morning General Montgomery's staff apparently believed they were ready and a drive was opened which carried past Tilly-Sur-Seulles, West of Caen and set off fierce fighting to the Northeast.

Such terrifically fought contests for position emphasize the fact the Allied foothold on the European West coast still must be viewed as a beachhead in process of development.

The time when military men will speak of it as a true "invasion area," however, should be hastened by capture of Cherbourg, expediting the landing of still more soldiers and munitions, and by the British offensive.

New Denver Tree Now Called Royal Oak

NEW DENVER, B.C.—New Denver Women's Institute met June 14 with 20 members and one visitor present. An interesting enquiry was about the oak tree sent out by the Department of Agriculture in 1937. This tree was received by the late C. F. Nelson and was about 16 inches long and in very poor condition. Mr. Nelson planted it in a flower pot until the Spring of 1938, when it was planted at the side of the Cenotaph in front of the Government offices and overlooking lake. The tree is now 12 feet high and is called "The Royal Oak."

A donation of $20.43 was received from the 24th of May Committee for the Othea Scott fund for crippled children. The members voted the amount to be made up to $30.

There were five bees held during the month for Red Cross work. At the May 6 bee Mrs. Earl Tair spoke on the V-Bundles display in Nelson which she attended. A parcel sent to Slocan contained one quilt, one long-sleeved man's sweater, two men's shirts, three pairs service socks, one boy's shirt, one refugee sweater, six bed pan covers, two pairs ladies' knickers, three pairs booties, two baby sweaters, two baby bonnets, six pairs ladies' ankle socks, one ladies' dress, one amputation cover; two toques, four helmets, two ladies' grey sweaters, two men's khaki sweaters.

The past month $60 worth of war stamps were sold.

A display and discussion under the leadership of Miss H. Lawson, Mrs. W. Farlini and Mrs. W. T. Jeffery dealt with "Vitamins the Leaders."

Husbands think about it!

Make no mistake—husbands often think about coffee. They, too, remember the lesson that coffee rationing proved to be so true:

To make sure of full satisfaction in every cup, you must use really good coffee.

To be absolutely sure of really good coffee, give your husband Maxwell House. It's a truly wonderful blend—full of the fragrant flavor and fine body that men look for in coffee. And here's why:

1. Maxwell House is blended from rare, extra-flavor coffees—the finest the world produces.

2. This finer blend is roasted by a remarkable process that roasts every single bean evenly all through.

Flat Chested Girls Can Change

By IDA JEAN KAIN

If your weight is normal, exercise is all you need. But if your pounds are on the scanty side, your first aim must be to normalize your weight. You need more calories for curves and you need them in the form of better nutrition. You thin girls get the notion that since vegetables are low in calories, you will just take chocolate cake. But girls, when you eat too many rich foods and not enough leafy vegetables you do not get your minerals and vitamins. The minerals and vitamins are important in gaining because they play a role in the assimilation of foods, particularly those high in fat.

You need a quart of milk a day, fresh vegetables, fresh fruits and whole grain breads and cereals, plus meat or fish and eggs for the proteins that give you strength and furnish the materials for tissue building. In other words you get more out of enriched or whole grain bread and butter or a dessert with a milk and egg base than you do out of the chocolate cake.

Every flat chested girl needs exercise which acts directly on the under-developed chest muscles. Here are two of the best type.

1. Position: Cup the left fist in the right palm, hands in front chest level, elbows bent.

Movement: Push and resist, moving the hands over to extreme right against resistance of right hand; and then reversing and moving to extreme left. Repeat six times.

2. Position: Stand erect, feet parallel and apart, arms straight out in front of chest and crossed about at elbows.

Movement: Fling arms out at the sides about in line with shoulders. Recross and swing for six counts, later 12, and still later, 20.

Should Her Heart Rule Her Head?

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My fiance and I are very much in love with one another. He is 28 years old, in the service, and expects to go overseas in about six months. I am 25 years of age. He wants me to marry him on his next furlough, but I don't care for wartime marriages. Both our families approve.

If we marry I would have to live with some of his relatives who live near the college where he is in training. I love my fiance dearly, and know he loves me, but I'm afraid of leaving the securities I now have, to live with people I don't know, in a strange city, where I could see my husband only over the weekends. Even then he would be studying most of the time.

I'm all mixed up and undecided. Shall I listen to my heart or my head? Shall I give up my good position for an uncertainty? I don't know whether I could get a job in his city.

—B. J. G.

Your problem is one of those 50-50 cases, so difficult to solve. At 25 and 28 you're both old enough to know your own minds. You dislike the idea of a wartime marriage and live with people you don't know in a strange city where you could see your husband only over weekends.

Wisdom would seem to dictate that you should be swayed by your head rather than your heart. Your fiance does not expect to go overseas for six months. Perhaps by that time there will be some adjustment in war conditions that would give you a new slant on the picture. And in six months you can always change your mind, and let your heart rule your head.

Heart . . .

Many Causes for Palpitation

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

My correspondent wants to know—"What are the chances that my palpitation of the heart is something serious and what are the chances that it doesn't amount to anything? And what are those chances put down in cold statistical figures not based on guesswork?" And the answer to that is what I do not find in the medical textbooks and which I find very scarce in medical literature.

But the other day I found one such report on this very subject of palpitation of the heart. I wrote on the subject in answer to a query recently, but I was not satisfied with the answer and by instituting a search in the medical literature I ran across two reports that give us exact information on the relative frequency of the causes of palpitation.

The first impression these studies make on one is that palpitation is not due to heart trouble but to stomach trouble. Those with organic heart disease were remarkably free of any sensation or consciousness of the heart at all. And palpitation is nothing but consciousness of the heart.

But 43 per cent of all who suffered from palpitation had dyspepsia, some form of gas on the stomach or bowel, or other trouble with digestion.

Aside from this group, the largest group was of goiter or thyroid trouble. High blood pressure was found present in about 15 per cent of the patients who complained of palpitation (but over 99 per cent of patients with high blood pressure are not conscious of the heart's action at all).

The functional causes of palpitation were put down as—indigestion, overweight, debility in convalescence from some prolonged illness, the menopause, anxiety and fatigue.

Punishment Does Benefit Child

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Many thousands of children under five lose their lives in the home.

Most of these children might have been saved if they had had proper protection by adults responsible for them. Though many of these victims were almost never out of the sight of their devoted, conscientious mothers, it is safe to assume that few of them had learned well the meaning of No. It is safe to assume that the mothers of most of them believed they should not spank their tot, even to try to make him safe.

In the first place, no psychologist, or anybody else, has proved conclusively that selective, intelligent spanking of the tot will harm his personality. On the contrary, the want of such discipline has, undoubtedly, tied many a developing young personality all in knots.

Anway, speaking as a psychologist myself, it is my judgment that by far the weight of evidence presented by modern psychology is in favor of selective spanking of the child in his early years. The very want of effective spanking has, I do believe, cost the lives of hundreds of little children.

Of course, ever so many children who have been spanked have not learned to avoid known constant dangers. But they have not been spanked consistently, intelligently and by parents who are self-disciplined. As a parent myself, I know, and many of my readers know, that by means of pain thoughtfully administered, the tot can learn in a short while and at very little cost or pain to him, to avoid definite known hazards permanently. Isn't his life worth saving? Why be sentimental about so serious a matter?

CORN AND CABBAGE

1 box frozen sweet corn, 1 small head cabbage, 1 cup seasoned white sauce, 1 teaspoon minced onion.

Cook corn as directed on package (of course you can use fresh corn if you have it, or canned), reserving liquor for sauce. Cut cabbage into six sections and cook in large amount of water, boiling and salted, until just tender. Make white cause, using 1 tablespoon butter, 1 tablespoon flour, 1 cup milk or milk and corn liquor, ½ teaspoon salt and dash of pepper or paprika. Add corn and onion to sauce, heat thoroughly, and serve over hot cabbage. Serves 6.

SALLY LUNN

2 cups sifted flour, ½ cup sugar, ¾ cup chopped nuts, 3-3 cup milk, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 egg, well beaten, 3 tablespoons butter, melted.

Sift flour, sift again with sugar, baking powder and salt; add chopped fruit and nuts and mix well. Add milk to egg and add to flour mixture, blending well. Add melted butter and mix well. Bake in greased loaf pan in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 1 hour, or until golden brown and firm to touch. Overbaking will give a crisp crust which makes bread hard to cut thin.

Canada's commercial flying men, travelling the continent from end to end, meeting people of all types who live under widely varying conditions, can bear witness to the great and still growing popularity of Nabob Green Label Tea. There is no place in Canada, along the transcontinental air ways or in the remotest outposts, where this expert blend of choice teas is not used and enjoyed; for here, indeed, is "tea as it should be."

Premium Table-Ready Meats

Tasty, tempting, and so easy to prepare! Save time and work by serving Swift's Premium Table-Ready Meats frequently this summer.

Summer calls for planning meals that take little time and fuss in preparation. With work in your Victory Gardens, children soon coming home from school and all the ordinary wartime activities, meals should be streamlined a bit but, of course, still nutritious and satisfying. That's where Swift's Premium "Table-Ready" Meats come into their own! Here are some tips for making the most of these appetizing loaves and sausages:—when buying, select a variety for appetite appeal and to suit each member of the family. Get several slices of three or four different kinds; with contrast in flavour, texture, colour and shape.

Leftover slices are excellent in sandwiches for next day's lunch. See your family get their vitamins by serving a good green salad (see recipe for dressing) with the meats. And start the meal with a bowl of soup.

We Don't Want Government or Private Monopoly in Air Transport

The Howe bill to control commercial aviation in Canada seems to be based on the theory that a government monopoly is less detrimental to the development of aviation in this country than would be a private monopoly. Experience denies the truth of any such theory.

We want no monopoly in air transportation, governmental or private. We want all the development that is economically possible under both forms of operation. Only private competition can keep a government monopoly in order. Left alone in the field it would rapidly lose the energy which makes for progress; it would lose initiative; costs of service to the public would soar, and quality of service would steadily depreciate.

Why Penalize the Large Family?

There should be whole-hearted support in Parliament for the principle of family allowances, announced by Premier Mackenzie King, but why should large families be penalized?

The scale proposed is from $5 a month for children up to six years of age to $8 a month for children between 13 and 16 years old, but the scale is to be reduced by $1 for the fifth child, $2 for the sixth and seventh and $3 for the eighth and additional children.

The allowances apply to families whose breadwinner does not earn enough to receive the income tax allowance of $108 a year for each child. That works out at $9 a month for each child, no matter how many children may be in the family.

There may be reasons for making family allowances less than income tax exemptions, but what good reason can possibly be adduced for penalizing the large family? Do we not wish to encourage large families in Canada, or do we wish as a matter of national policy to discourage them? It would seem that we do, under the proposed family allowance scale. The scale provides that the families which are most in need, through having income so small that income tax exemptions do not operate, and which have the heaviest expense in child care, are to be penalized further.

Just an "Instrument" to Socialist Dictatorship?

Harold Winch, C.C.F. Leader in British Columbia, seems to have gone off the deep end on his return from the Saskatchewan election campaign.

He is reported in the Vancouver papers as having given "angry denial" to the statement that the election issue in Saskatchewan was not between capitalism and socialism, and as having declared that "every C.C.F. candidate put the issue up to the people straight—capitalism or socialism." No doubt, Mr. Winch would like to have it this way, but the statements of his own fellow leaders, Premier-elect Douglas in Saskatchewan and C. F. Coldwell in the Dominion are sufficient answer. Socialism was soft-pedalled during the Saskatchewan election, and is being soft-pedalled since.

But it was in the folowing statement, made at a public meeting in Vancouver on June 20, that Mr. Winch really went to town:

"The people of Saskatchewan voted to use the parliamentary system as an instrument for going through the transition period from capitalism to socialism," said Mr. Winch.

That was what was done by other dictatorship parties, other exponents of the "one-party" system of government. The Nazis did it in Germany. They went through the form of democratic elections. Once Hitler was in the saddle the dictatorship was complete. Democracy was killed. The parliamentary system was "used as an instrument" to forge the bonds of dictatorship on Germany by the National Socialist party.

Mussolini fooled the Italian people in the same way. His "instrument" for arriving at a dictatorship was also parliamentary. Deputies were elected, but it was only a few months before the imitation democracy of the "corporate state" was turned into the most complete dictatorship by Musolini and his gang.

Russia has its parliament of elected representatives who are the "instrument" of the Stalin dictatorship. It involves no denial of the betterment of conditions in Russia since the destruction of corrupt and criminal czarist bureaucracy, to say that Russia is a dictatorship. No one will deny that obvious fact.

But do we in Canada want our democratic parliamentary system to be used as "an instrument" for going through the transition period to a one-party socialistic or any other kind of dictatorship? Mr. Winch's words show clearly what he wants.

The more moderate leaders of the C.C.F. party, who are repeatedly declaring their adherence to Democracy, must find Mr. Winch the cause of many headaches.

No Censorship in Peacetime

Sir Keith Murdoch, Australian publisher, who has been visiting Canada and the United States, urges that we decide that after the war we shall have no further censorship of news, and Adolf A. Berle, Jr., United States Assistant Secretary of State, endorses Sir Keith's views. Free interchange of information among the nations is a "major necessity" in the successful operation of a world security organization after the war, states Mr. Berle.

There can be no successful disagreement with that view. Democracy cannot operate without knowing the facts, and, it cannot know the facts when government censorship, necessary as it is as a security measure in wartime, is used in peacetime to keep the people from knowing facts that a government thinks will place it in an unfavorable light.

Censorship in peace time is a denial of freedom of speech, which is as destructive of good international relations in world affairs as it is destructive of effective democratic government in a nation. The truth must be known if the public is to vote with intelligent appreciation of issues.

When Sir Keith urges that after the war we should have "no propagandists" he is on less safe ground. He should define "propagandists". There is good propaganda, and propaganda that has been designed by, for example, a Balkan government with no purpose other than to deceive. It is that type of propaganda, no doubt, that Sir Keith has in mind, and its best antidote is free and uncensored exchange of news, provided by experienced reporters. Lies don't live long when there is freedom to tell and transmit the truth.

Russian Orphans Cared For

The people of the entire Soviet country lend a hand in organization and equipment of the extensive network of nurseries, kindergartens and homes in which the children of Red Army men, guerrillas and civilians, who perished at the hands of the Germans are cared for.

In the Kharkov region, where eight special children's homes have been opened with accommodations for 2000 children, the local population contributed 900 cots, over 1000 tables and other furniture. The best buildings in the most picturesque spots are set aside for the little ones. In Sokolniki, below Kharkov, the children are housed in spacious summer cottages. In another district a large sanatorium has been turned over to them. Every home has been provided with a piano, a gift from the Kharkov Regional Soviet.

Recently a large package was received by the Archadin children's home in the Stalingrad region. It contained a rug made by a 70-year-old woman of the Mari Autonomous Region.

Why India Has a Famine

In peacetime India is self-sufficient in wheat, with an export margin, but she imported annually from one to two million tons of rice from Burma, Indo-China and Thailand. The loss of this foreign supply of rice is in large part responsible for the food difficulties in India today, but there are contributing factors. Of India's inhabitants, 280,000,000 are rural dwellers, and self-supporting in food, so the present difficulty is in attracting and transporting their surpluses into the cities, which include about 50,000,000 people.

Hoarding by peasants and "middlemen", and transportation on over-taxed railroads are two chief causes of the famine of Bengal and the Hindu government of Calcutta have contributed to the situation.

Railroad reports show that enormous quantities of grain have been imported into Bengal during the past few months; some of this has come from surpluses created by the cultivation of millet on 5,000,000 acres of ground formerly used for growing cotton. This "Grow More Food Campaign" should go far toward preventing a famine next year.

The University of Manitoba and the University of Toronto both have courses in architecture. Write to E. P. Fetherstonhaugh, Dean of Engineering and Architecture, University of Manitoba, Winnipeg; and, C. R. Young, Dean of Applied Science and Engineering, University of Toronto, Ont.

Reader, Rossland—Please print the formula for weatherproof whitewash.

Take fresh Rosendale cement, 3 parts, and clean, fine sand, 1 part; mix with fresh water thoroughly. This gives a gray or granite color, dark or light, according to the color of the cement. If brick color is desired, add enough Venetian red to the mixture to produce the color. If a very light color is desired, lime may be used with the cement and sand. Care must be taken to have all the ingredients well mixed together. In applying the wash, the wall must be wet with clean fresh water; then follow immediately with the cement wash. This prevents the bricks from absorbing the water from the wash too rapidly, and gives time for the cement to set. The wash must be well stirred during the application conveniently with a whitewash brush.

R. Qua Spent Life Prospecting, Hunting, Trapping in Kootenay Hills

By R. G. JOY

Bob Qua was born in the county of Federnagh, Ireland in the year 1873 on February 20th and was educated at the school's there.

He came to Canada when he was 16 years of age. He has one brother in Ireland, also a brother in Winnipeg, and a sister, Mrs. Waddell, also of Winnipeg.

He came to Nelson in 1897, he was employed at the Hall Mines Smelter, at the copper furnace for some time, then he left and was employed on the old open car of the Nelson Tramway Company under the management of T. Mason and Tom Duncan.

He soon got tired of the tramway and went prospecting which he followed for some time.

Soon after the last World War started, he made a trip to his property at the head of Five Mile Creek on snowshoes. On the return journey the weather got soft—he had a tough time getting into Nelson, and was ill for some time later.

He then for about six weeks stayed at the residence of George Hall, retired superintendent of the Nelson Tramway. For years this family were closely in touch with Mr. Qua. When Qua recovered a little, he went to Brandon, Man., where his brother carried on a business of tent making.

When Bob was fully recovered he came back to Nelson and followed prospecting, trapping and hunting.

He was a sure shot and many a grizzly, found on the slides of the divide, went down to Bob's rifle.

Many stories are told of his narrow escapes. One time on his way from his prospect to Nelson about sundown, Bob was travelling along comfortably, enjoying the cool of the evening. He was carrying his rifle, held in readiness if neded, when he heard the whirr of an eagle just flying about tree top height. About to shoot, he happened to look down, to his dismay a huge grizzly was directly in his path obstructing his right of way, he lost interest in the eagle and quickly aimed at the bear and soon dispatched it.

At another time there was a certain man that wanted to go with Bob bear-hunting in the Five Mile Basin District. At that time Bob used to travel with a little fox terrier dog, soon a bear was located and Bob placed the ambitious amateur so that he could shoot. The hunter got buck fever and could not shoot. The bear came for Qua rather quickly but the dog held the bear's attention till Bob shot the bear. He often remarked that the dog saved his life. The companion felt so bad about it that he left the district.

OFF TO COBALT

During the cobalt excitement in Ontario, Bob was grubstaked by the late William Waldie of Queen mine, now owned by the Sheep Creek Co. Bob met with no success in the cobalt.

He owned a trapline that went from the ridge of Evening Mountain to the head of Five Mile and then on to Clearwater.

He located several claims at the head of Five Mile in partnership with the late Charles Robertson, a pioneer of Edmonton.

Robertson and Qua did quite a bit of work on a five-foot ledge not far from the Humming Bird claim, which later Bob owned and caused considerable work to be done.

They found considerable zinc, lead, also some pyrrhotite on the big ledge. The Consolidated of Trail sent Mr. Davis to examine same but there was no deal. At one time the Chapleau people, an old country French company examined the property and would have done some work on the big ledges, but Bob could not make a satisfactory bargain. Then R. G. Joy received a half interest in the big ledge for doing a certain amount of work.

I sent out Ben Lawson and Bob Kennedy to do some work, in fact to deepen the shaft, fix up a windlass, etc., they went through the ore, I still think the ore was raking to the left of the shaft. Later I owned the claim outright and went to work on the upper ledge. Just before this Robertson and I were partners in same claim and when doing assessment work found six inches of ore on the hanging wall, the ore assayed twenty three ounces of silver and 45 per cent lead, no gold, which was a disappointment after doing more assessments we abandoned it.

Bob and I then got the government Bird property and two or three companies did work on it but without success. During the late years leasers did some work and sorted the ore. They shipped several tons to Trail and realized $40 per ton on the shipment of several tons.

Bob and I then go the government to put a trail up Clearwater Creek. Mr. Ramsay laid out the trail, later Max Baskin improved it, making part into a road to get out some timber. Bob often went up there in the wintertime and located his cabin only by the sight of the stove pipe being above the snow. He would then dig down to the entrance.

The company under the management of Mr. Harbour put up some new buildings and also had a compressor working on the Humming Bird.

The late John Désiraau also had claims in the vicinity. Dave Mowat and George Neelands staked claims there in 1892. Bob and I found the tools used by Mowat and John had climbed a tree and hung his outfit above the snow line.

J. J. Malone also sampled the Humming Bird claim. Godfrey Birtch did considerable work in the early days there.

Bob was very fond of animals and would make friends even with the mice. We would sit outside the cabin in nice weather using a powder box for a table and Bob would put his hand on the ground and when he brought it up two mice would be sitting there comfortably. He then would feed them. He had a pet rabbit there which my son Art, shot thinking it was good for the pot. It was too.

Bob made a friend of a porcupine and one day Bob thought he would imitate the porcupines grunt, so he went down on his hands and knees and grunted at the porky, but the porky thought Bob was issuing a challenge and showed fight.

The original trail to these properties was by way of Burns' Meadows then a trail was cut along the ridge of the mountains to the head of Five Mile.

Some of the prospectors that owned property on the Nine-Mile slope used to walk the ridge from Nine Mile to the summit of Five Mile. In the early days it was a favorite haunt of Indians. Bob and I met Ed Balinger on the summit. He died a week or two ago. From this summit there is a grand view on a clear day, looking toward Whitebeck Mountain, then their is a plateau summit up from Newsboy Creek which is higher than Mt. Atkinson, you can see Mt. Ymir in the distance Northeast, there is a ridge going towards Mt. Lasca.

When we were looking at this magnificent view it was on a summer's day. Bob said: "I smell Indian," and sure enough when we travelled another 30 yards we saw an elderly couple, natives of the Kootenay and real aldtimers belonging to the Kootenay tribe.

Bob was at his best on the trail, carrying his pack cheerfully and enjoying the present although dreaming of the future.

He made his home when in Nelson at a cabin on the banks of Cottonwood Creek. This cabin was built in 1894 by W. E. Coles and myself, under the eye of Charlie Etier, who help us to put up the frame. J. Dewar of Porto Rico lumber company and other enterprises, built a split cedar cabin next door.

George Orchard, who at the time was working at the Pilot Bay smelter, purchased the cabin. Later J. Moen bought it, and still later Bob Qua purchased it.

Some few years ago Bob was quite interested in the Christian Science organization. He quit hunting bear and refrained from shooting them.

Trail Takes Nelson 11-3 In Intermediate Boxla Here

Trail's fast-passing Young Smokies, a Juvenile-Junior squad of boxla players, took the first inter-city boxla game of the season 11-3 at the Civic Arena Friday night.

Trail's faster passing gave them a big lead of three to Nelson's none in the first; they increased it to seven before the locals came through for their first marker, near the three-quarter mark, only to have the visitors add another to make the count 8-1 at the half-way mark. In the third quarter Nelson held Trail to a lone Counter, and in the final session the scoring was equal, Nelson lads snaring two goals and the Smokies two.

Penalties were mostly for trips and high sticks, with Trail drawing eight to Nelson's three.

Cookson in the home net played a bang-up game, and only his hard work kept the score down as low as it was. Dingwall showed flashes of his old passing plays to give the fans some reminders of the old days.

The youthful Sammartino for the Young Smokies headed the scoring parade with seven counters. Turik, Broman, Koehle and Robertson were Trail's other scorers. For the homebrews, Choquette, Jarbeau and Dingwall scored. Turik and Price were off twice for the visitors, and Koehle, Mailey, Sammartino and McNab off once each. Townsend, Lindblad and Lyons served time for Nelson. A fair crowd was on hand to witness this first game of Intermediate boxla in three years.

Teams were:

Nelson—Cookson, Townsend, Lyon, Brown, Morrison, Dingwall, Lindblad, Peters, Parson, Jarbeau, Apostoliuk and Thompson.

Trail Young Smokies—Merlo, Turik, Whitmore, Mailey, Price, Sammartino, McNab, Allan, Robertson, Broman and Koehle.

Officials were: Referees, Slim Porter and Nick Turik. Timekeeper, Bert Blackwell; Penalty Timekeeper, Cece Maloney; Scorer, Jackie Morgan.

Rovers Win 15-6 Over Wanderers Pee Wee Boxla

Two local Pee Wee lacrosse teams battled it out in the curtain-raiser before the Intermediate Nelson-Trail game Friday evening at the Civic Arena, Rovers beating Wanderers 15-6.

The Rovers proved to have too much power, as they took a 6-1 lead in the first period, increased it to 7-3 at the half-way mark, 11-4 at three-quater time, and at the final session it stood 15-6.

Goggin and Nagle led the Rovers with seven markers each, Apostolik scoring the odd one. Ron Carmichael was the star for the Wonders, getting all of their six goals.

Thompson and Nick Apostoliuk were the Referees. Scorer and Timekeeper was Slim Porter.

Will Accept Game Commission Plan Against Deer

CRANBROOK, B.C.—Delegates to the annual Central Farmers' Institute from the six sections represented agreed that acceptance of a proposed solution by the Game Commission for cutting down the deer population, which is yearly increasing the thousands of dollars damage it does to farm products, appears the soundest move toward control of the situation.

The suggestion of J. G. Cunningham, Game Commissioner, has not yet been implemented into the 1944-45 Game Laws but it outlines a plan whereby the first fortnight in September is declared the open season on does with a two-animal bag per license. The buck season open September 15, following the close on does with a bag limit of one animal.

It was considered inadvisable to have the open seasons concurrently because of the tendency of hunters to shoot at anything moving in the woods which has resulted in the past in the loss of human life as well as killing of harmless woods animals.

Italian Anti-Fascists RoundUp Roman "Quislings"

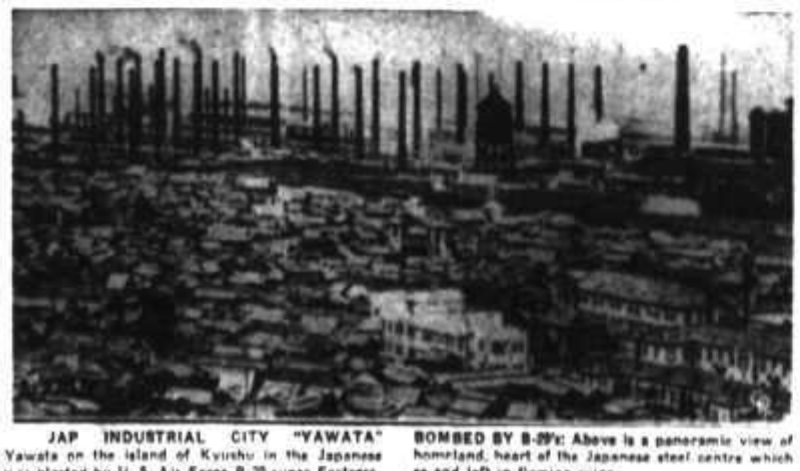
COUNT CARLO SFORZA: member of the new Italian cabinet who returned from exile with the fall of Mussolini and the surrender of Italy to the Allies.

In these dramatic pictures, Italian anti-Fascists in Rome who call themselves Partisans, are rounding up a trio suspected of being pro-Fascist. The Partisans bombed a tobacco shop and then pulled the three men out from under the blown out steel grill in the doorway. After questioning them, the anti-Fascists led their captives through the streets under arrest. These pictures give an excellent insight into the internal conflicts going on inside the liberated city of Rome.

KING DECORATES KELLER: Rushed across the Channel and radioed from London, this picture shows His Majesty King George investing Major General R. F. L. Keller, Commander-in-Chief of the Canadian Third Division, with the ribbon and cross of the C.B.E. The ceremony took place less than ten miles from the front line in France. Seven British officers and N.C.O.'s were also decorated in this unique investiture.

Premier Ivanoe Bonomi of the new Italian government. He wielded great power in Italy before the rise of Mussolini and is now back in the service of his country.

FINN MINISTER: Hjalmar P. Procope, Finnish minister to the United States, arriving at his home in Washington, D. C., after being handed his passport by the State Department.



JAP INDUSTRIAL CITY "YAWATA" BOMBED BY B-29's: Above is a panoramic view of Yawata on the island of Kyushu in the Japanese homeland, heart of the Japanese steel centre which was blasted by U. S. Air Force B-29 super Fortresses and left in flaming ruins.

Dodgers Win Two to Sweep Double

BROOKLYN, June 25 (AP)—Brooklyn Dodgers made a clean sweep of the four-game National League series with Philadelphia Phillies by taking both ends of a doubleheader today, 4-1 and 3-1. The Dodgers won the second game in the 10th inning when Ed Stanky doubled, and scored on a single by Frenchy Bordagaray.

The double triumph stretched the Dodgers' winning streak to five in a row, and moved them into fourth place and only one percentage point behind the Giants.

SPORTS

By Jimminy Whips Leaders

NEW YORK, June 25 (AP) — Racing's three-year-old division presented a scrambled picture today. All was topsy-turvy where Warren Wright's Kentucky Derby and Preakness winner, Pensive, apparently reigned supreme only a few weeks ago.

In the foreground of the confused situation was Alfred Parker's By Jimminy who romped to an easy five-length triumph in the $50,000 Dwyer at Aqueduct Saturday on top of a similar decisive victory in the Shevlin a week ago. Ted Atkinson, Toronto jockey, was in the saddle.

The son of Pharamond 2nd, purchased by Parker last Summer from E. R. Bradley for $15,000, thus stamped himself as a strong contender for the 1944 three-year-old crown.

In running the Dwyer mile and one-quarter in 20:3 2-5 over a fast track—better than Pensive's 2:04 1-5 in winning the Kentucky Derby on a good track—By Jimminy whipped Stir Up, Lucky Draw, Autocraft, Ariel Flight, Bounding Home, Shut Up, Style and Kaytee. Bounding Home, who snapped Pensive's bid for the triple crown by winning the Belmont, finished some 20 lengths in the rear of By Jimminy.

Favored at $3.90 straight in the mutuels, By Jimminy earned a purse of $39,250. He has won $75,730 so far in his career.

Emerald $8 Million Dollar Mine

At present prices, from $8 to $10 millions worth of ore is available at the Emerald mine near Salmo.

In a paper prepared for presentation at the Annual Western Meeting of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy in Vancouver last Fall, but withheld at that time at the request of Federal authorities and now officially released for publication, E. E. Mason, who assumed charge of the Emerald tungsten project in 1942, reviews that undertaking. He traces the early history of the property from the original staking of the Emerald claims in 1904, through its small but steady production of lead for 19 years.

A mill was erected in 1919, only to be destroyed by fire in 1934. In 1939 the owner of the property, Iron Mountain, Ltd., increased its holdings from 17 to 41 crown granted claims and fractions, its interest having been aroused chiefly by the sporadic molybdenite mineralization. In the Winter of 1941-42 scheelite was discovered through assays made by the B. C. Department of Mines. On May 20, 1942, a promising discovery of scheelite was made by Harold Lakes, following which work was immediately initiated. Dr. M. S. Hedley was sent by the Government to assist in development and the property was brought to the attention of the Metals Controller, on behalf of the Crown, funds to total $50,000 provided, and the work placed under the direction of Dr. Hedley and Dr. Hartley Sargent, both of the B. C. Department of Mines.

On Sept. 7, E. L. Longmore, general manager of Wartime Metals Corporation visited the property and a decision was reached to bring it into production forthwith. The projected scale of production hinged rather on the critical scarcity of tungsten than on the known potentialities of the deposit; the initial capacity was set at 200 tons daily. The author, Mr. Mason was placed in charge on Sept. 27.

By October construction had been commenced on camp buildings, the plant, new roads, 4½ miles, concentrator. On October 15, 35 men were employed; by Nov. 1, this had reached 95; and by Dec. 1, and Jan. 1, 175 and 189 respectively.

On Jan. 6, 1943, R. H. Stewart, of Vancouver, assumed responsibility for the direction of the Western properties of Wartime Metals Corporation, and in particular took the technical direction of the Emerald Tungsten project under his care.

As regards ore reserves, Mr. Mason states:

"Four major ore bodies have been developed and a fifth partially developed. In addition a number of minor orebodies exist, to which only cursory attention has been paid. Total estimate of ore assured for mining at date of closure amounted to roughly 250,000 tons of 1.25 per cent average grade in working width of from 20 to 40 feet. This figure should be further enhanced by the detailed development of the 62-ore body, and the inclusion of a number of minor orebodies not estimated. There is promise also of major ore additions in the three drill sections at the extreme South of the known Emerald ore zone.

"Three of these orebodies were being worked. The 79-orebody is prepared for glory-holing. The surface has been stripped of overburden, a raise broken through to surface, and benching commenced into the lip of the raise. A length of 500 feet of the 75-74 orebody has been prepared for box-hole shrinkage and is about 80 per cent silled out. The irregular mass of ore forming the Western segment of this orebody its was planned to remove as a separate operation retreating with inclined breasts and fill, and dropping through a raise to the 3950-foo' level, simultaneously with the extraction of the box-hole and drift pillars of the main orebody. A similar division of stoping was proposed for the 7 orebody in which 300 feet of boxholes had been connected and silling operations had just commenced. At the South or 68-section of this latter ore body, where the ore showed a limited height and irregular outline, silling was 70 per cent complete at drift level and much was being removed with loaders."

MILLING PLANT

A 300 ton mill was designed and constructed by the Emerald Construction Company, a subsidiary of the C. M. & S. Co. Initial work on the oxidized ore of the surface orebody was conducted by the B. C. Department of Mines and the War Metals Research Board. The mill was ready for operation on June 12, 1943. Although the mill was in operation for a very limited period and numerous difficulties were encountered, the author states: "Taking into consideration, however, the lack of knowledge of the overall character of the material to be treated, the urgency with which the plant was designed and constructed and the short period of opefation, the metallurgy performed was a credit to the organization responsible for same."

SUMMARY

Mr. Mason makes the following summary in conclusion:

"The Emerald Tungsten Project was initiated to meet the critical lack of supplies of an important war mineral. Large scale production was decided upon in the light of these circumstances, in hope and of necessity, at a stage no such assurances were obtainable. The immediate responsibility for the decision was with E. L. Longmore, General Manager of Wartime Metals Corporation. He carefully and expeditiously guided it through the vicissitudes and handicaps imposed by a wartime economy, and maintained a vigilant but generous control of both the mining and the milling development. Technical advice was also available from the staff of the corporation, the Metals Controllers' staff and of the sustained personal interest of R. H. Stewart, Western Director of the Corporation. The patriotism and generosity of the management of the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company provided the free use of their staff, and the use of their skilled labor at cost, at a loss at a difficult time to their own organization, for the design and construction of the metallurgical processes.

GOOD MINE DEVELOPED

"A very fine mine has been developed and brought into production, one of relative importance in the later history of British Columbia mining.

It has been done in 14 months from the date of initial discovery, and 10 months from commencement of preparations. Two years of ore are assured at the designated milling rate of 300 tons daily, with possibilities of immediate major additions. The grade and occurrences are such as to provide assurance of an economic operation at normal, peace time prices. Overall cost of production, including marketing, is estimated at from 30 cents to 35 cents per pound tungstic oxide. At present pegged prices, capital expenditures could have been repaid from production in from 7 to 8 months. The property is said to be one of six tungsten producers of sound economic basis developed on this continent in the preceding 18 months, of which it might rate second. Nor are the possibilities of developing further similar occurrences on the property exhausted. There is indication and promise of additional important mineralization separate from the Emerald zone. Due credit should be given Harold Lakes of Iron Mountain, Ltd., for the careful and painstaking work of some years that preceded the initial discovery, brought same into quick fruition in the development of the surface orebody, and led the way to the development of the underground deposits.

"The operation is now closed. It is unfortunate in terms of the war operation itself, but of happy significance in measurement of the war production program as a whole. The mine and plant are available for immediate production if necessary."

"Christian Science" Church Subject

"Christian Science" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday.

The Golden Text was: "O house of Jacob, come ye, and let us walk in the light of the Lord" (Isaiah 2: 5).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon on Sunday was the following from the Bible: "I will praise thee: for thou hast heard Me, and art become My salvation" (Psalms 118: 21).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scripture" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Christ, as the spiritual or true idea of God, comes now as of old, preaching the gospel to the poor, healing the sick, and casting out evils. Is it error which is restoring an essential element of Christianity—namely, apostolic, divine healing? No; it is the Science of Christianity which is restoring it, and is the light shining in darkness, which the darkness comprehends not."

Beekeepers Hear of Diseases; Start Demonstrator

Two well attended meetings of Nelson and district beekeepers were held during the weekend here. Provincial Apiary Inspector W. H. Turnbull of Vernon addressed the members of Kootenay Division, B. C. Honey Producers Association and their friends, attending from Trail, Fruitvale, Sheep Creek and South Slocan as well as Nelson.

His main topics were "The Bee Diseases" and "Poisoning of bees and their brood from arsenic sprays as used in the control of fruit tree pests." This latter was getting to be the most serious condition beekeepers were having to contend with, he said. Some real progress in the use of bee repellents, added to the sprays, was being found in test orchards in the Okanagan. It was hoped that soon the results would be made known to the fruit growers and beekeepers.

V. K. Soharev demonstrated his methods of examining colonies of bees and dividing supers. The beginners in beekeeping were especially interested in how the bees worked in the hive. The eggs, larvae and capped brood were shown and explained. Children present were especially pleased when handed young baby bees to play with.

A. E. Pittaway of Trail who was the first President of the Association some 25 years ago, spoke of some of his experiences in beekeeping and of the early days of the organization. He reported better weather conditions in the Trail district than enjoyed in the Nelson area so far this season.

Different systems of beekeeping were used he explained, but each must choose the best suited for his conditions.

Secretary A. S. Homersham reported on the start being made on what is hoped will be a central demonstration apiary for the Kootenays. He outlined the work done at the Central Executive meeting of the B. C. Honey Producers Association in Vernon last May. Those present expressed pleasure with the work of the Association.

Orders for bees were already placed for next year. Thanks were conveyed to Jack Morrison and R. J. Patterson for the use of their apiaries and homes, and to the principal speakers.

LONDON (CP) — Describing his recent trip to Canada the Archbishop of York, Dr. Cyril Garbett, wrote in his Diocesan magazine: "In Canada there is wholehearted loyalty to the British crown combined with a strong sense of national independence."
