FRENCH TO CLOSE SPAIN BORDER

May Call for International Action Against Franco

By JOSEPH E. DYNAN

PARIS, Feb. 26 (AP) — The French Government, declaring that the present situation in Spain constitutes a "danger for international security," today ordered the French-Spanish border closed, effective March 1.

The Government was reliably reported planning to follow up this "moral gesture" by calling upon Great Britain and the United States to join France in an international crackdown on the regime of Francisco Franco.

The closing of the border, ordered amid increasing popular demand for action against Franco, amounts to a rupture of economic relations between France and Spain.

French officials, however, admitted that their step alone would be of little practical effect unless accompanied by action in Washington and London.

Should Washington and London refuse to join in the French action, a Government spokesman said, France "probably" will ask the United Nations Security Council to take action against the Franco regime as a "threat to international security."

There was no official comment either in Washington or London on the French move. In London, however, qualified diplomatic sources said the British Government, under increasing pressure from its own Labor party, might be forced to reverse its previous refusal to act against Spain.

One informant said the United States last December was reported ready for some kind of diplomatic action against Franco, but that Foreign Secretary Bevin of Britain had objected.

INVESTIGATE EXECUTIONS

A short time before today's French Cabinet action, the British Foreign Office disclosed that it had instructed Sir Victor Mallet, British Ambassador in Madrid, to "make a full report" on the execution of a Spanish anti-Fascist leader, Christino Garcia.

A spokesman said, however, there was "no reason to suppose" Britain would break relations with Spain.

Sir Victor also was asked to investigate the execution of nine other Spanish Republicans and the trial of 37 persons charged with the reorganization of the Socialist Party in Spain.

The Foreign Office spokesman said Sir Victor probably would "informally notify" the Franco Government that such actions were having a "deplorable effect on public opinion" in Britain.

Labor Lobby Assured Study of Proposals

Meet Premier, Maitland, Other Ministers; Win Support of Uphill and C.C.F. Members

VICTORIA, Feb. 26 (CP)—The 360-strong Labor Lobby buttonholing members of the British Columbia Legislature will probably continue for two or three more days although its leaders today had an hour-long meeting with Premier John Hart.

"We met Mr. Hart and he has told us that our representations are receiving serious consideration," said R. K. Gervin, Vancouver Alderman, representative of the Vancouver, New Westminster and District Trades and Labor Council, who is chairman of the lobby.

Union officers had said that if any satisfaction were received from the Premier the lobby would have been called off.

Premier Hart following the meeting with the lobby executive announced that the Government would consider the lobby's representations.

FEEL LEGISLATION PLANNED

Some members of the executive who met the Premier were of the opinion that the Government was planning some labor legislation although no intimation of what this would be was given by the Premier.

Beside the Premier the lobby met Attorney-General R. L. Maitland, K.C. Other Cabinet Ministers were also reported buttonholed.

Members of the lobby have won full support of the C.C.F. members of the Legislature and of Tom Uphill, veteran Labor M.L.A. for Fernie. Some of the Coalition members told the lobby that they were favorable to certain points of the union's demands.

Unionists expressed the opinion that barring further action by the Government the lobby would continue until Premier Hart makes his address to the Legislature. This will probably be Thursday afternoon.

PLUGS FOR INDUSTRIES IN INTERIOR

Webster Says Road Program Expected for "Terra Incognito"

PRAISES C. M. & S.

VICTORIA, Feb. 26 (CP)—Too many people on the Coast seem to regard the Eastern boundary of British Columbia as an imaginary line running North and South of Hope and that any place East of Hope is terra incognita, James L. Webster, (CLN—Rossland-Trail) declared in the House today during the throne speech debate.

He agreed with Herbert J. Welch (CLN—Comox) that members of the Government should visit various constituencies and learn more about the problems of the Province as a whole. They should, for instance, be made aware "of the magnificent part the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company played in the war effort."

Consolidated's production of "heavy water" so vital to the atom bomb development, no longer was a secret, yet its value was inestimable. Production of antimony from bluedust—critically needed at one stage of the war in munitions work—was solved by Trail engineers and a plant quickly put into operation when imports from China were cut off.

Mr. Webster said that many people in the interior were not enthusiastic over present concentration of industry and population in large Coast areas. It was considered to be top heavy in relation to the rest of the Province and he urged a continued effort be made to develop industry in the interior so as to adjust the economic balance.

URGES ROAD EXTENSION

The tourist business, he said, offered a great opportunity, did not involve a wasting asset and was not beset with labor disputes. It will bring in a great amount of money and will be a powerful force in building international goodwill.

In connection with the tourist trade, Mr. Webster said the Arrow Lakes - Columbia River - Kootenay River Highway should be extended to open up the entire Arrow Lakes country. Its extension also would encourage ranching activities in that area.

The people of the interior, he added, are expecting an extensive program of road construction from the Government and do not wish to be disappointed.

Churchill Urges Vets to Seek Higher Education

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 26 (AP) — Winston Churchill, making his first public speech since he arrived in the United States last January, told a crowd of 18,000 persons in the Orange Bowl today that he was anxious to return to England because of "the accounts I read of the severity of life" there.

Garbed in the scarlet robe and cap of Oxford University, Churchill received an honorary Doctor of Laws degree from Dr. Bowman F. Ashe, President of the University of Miami.

In his 15-minute talk, the famed British war leader strongly urged war veterans despite their age to seek a college education. He did not elaborate on conditions in England.

Commenting on the age at which knowledge and learning "may be most fruitfully acquired," Churchill said:

"I am going to put in a plea for the late starters. Not only is the saying true, it is never too late to mend, but the university education may be even better appreciated by those in the early twenties than by thos in the late teens."

REVEAL SPYING ENDANGERED OTHER POWERS

To Submit Resolution Protesting Inquiry Procedure

WIFE OBJECTS

By GEORGE KITCHEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Feb. 26 (CP) — The government today linked the safety and interests of "friendly powers" with that of Canada in the Dominion's far-reaching spy ring investigation.

Inching back the curtain shrouding the inquiry, Justice Minister St. Laurent made public an order-in-council disclosing "agents of a foreign power"—acknowledged in Moscow last week to be Russians—obtained secret and confidential information from Canadian public officials "to the prejudice of the public safety or interests of Canada and of friendly powers."

There was immediate speculation in unofficial quarters whether those "friendly powers," unidentified in the order, might be Britain and the United States, co-partners with Canada in the holding of the key processes involved in the production of atomic power, concerning which Moscow said her agents had been "given" information.

The order said the information had been communicated to the foreign agents "directly or indirectly" by certain persons. These latter persons presumably are among the 13 former and present employees of government departments, now held at R.C.M.P. barracks at nearby Rockcliffe.

The order-in-council, passed last Oct. 6 when the inquiry was launched, shed this new light on the affair:

1. The foreign agents had been engaged in a "concerted effort" to obtain secret information from "public officials and other persons in positions of trust."

2. The inquiry was opened because it was "deemed necessary for the security, defence, peace, order and welfare of Canada."

3. Wide powers were granted under the War Measures Act for the detention of suspected persons "in such places and under such conditions" as the Prime Minister or justice minister "may from time to time determine."

TO PROTEST PROCEDURE

The only other development of the day in the inquiry, now in its second week, was the statement from a woman who said her husband, one of those detained, had written her that "you seem to know more about this than I do."

The statement, released by her lawyer, A. W. Beament of Ottawa, said she had protested in a letter to the Prime Minister against refusal to let her or her lawyer see her husband. She received no acknowledgement.

She said her husband wrote that he had been interrogated "several times by the R.C.M.P." and that "one is guilty here of whatever you're accused of and if one doesn't agree to that, why, back to the guard room."

Meanwhile, Redmond Quain, K.C., another Ottawa lawyer, said he would submit to a meeting of the Carleton County Bar Association Friday a resolution protesting the procedure followed by the authorities in the inquiry.

Claim Russians Settling Families in Manchuria

CHINHSIEN, Manchuria, Feb. 21 (Delayed) (AP)—Reports that additional thousands of Soviet troops have landed at Dairen and Port Arthur in Manchuria were publicized today by high Chinese military circles but were unconfirmed by other sources here.

The troops were reported shipped from Vladivostok. The Chinese sources said this was further indication the Russians intended to stay in Manchuria.

As correspondents' reports of complete Soviet domination of Mukden filtered here, Chinese and foreign observers said they find nothing to indicate any semblance of Soviet withdrawal from Manchuria. They declare that the Russians are buying Japanese houses and property and sending for their families.

Some observers here comment that the Russians are biding their time, awaiting a chance to obtain economic concessions from the Chinese.

Militia Called to Tennessee Town; 70 Are Arrested

SEIZE WEAPONS

COLUMBIA, Tenn., Feb. 26 (AP)—An estimated 300 weapons were confiscated by state patrolmen and National Guardsmen in house-to-house searches here today after 10 persons had been wounded and 70 arrested in an outbreak brought on by racial friction.

To prevent a recurrence of the disorders Mayor Eldridge Denham imposed a 9 p.m. to 6 a.m. curfew.

As tension mounted, state patrolmen poured into this prosperous town of 12,000 on orders of Gov. Jim McCord. Riot guns were set up around the square to maintain order during the night.

Mayor Denham said order had been restored after Columbia spent a tense previous night punctuated by sporadic gunfire.

In New York, Walter White, Secretary of the National Association for the advancement of colored people, said he had sent a telegram to Gov. McCord urging him to "exercise every possible means of seeing that mob violence is stopped and the guilty punished."

Of the 70 persons arrested 68 were Negroes who were held on charges ranging from disorderly conduct to assault with attempt to commit murder.

Sheriff J. J. Underwood attributed the disturbance to high feeling engendered by an altercation yesterday involving a Negro woman, her son and a white radio repairman and the subsequent wounding of four policemen who went into the Negro-populated section known as "Mink Slide."

The Sheriff called upon the Governor for the Militia and patrolmen last night after four of the city's eight policemen were wounded, one critically.

Revelstoke Member Charges Delays by Having Land Registry Office Here

Want Own Office; Tells of Move to Rename Pensions Act; Sees Solution to Disputes

VICTORIA, Feb. 26 (CP)—Labor disputes and demands in British Columbia can be ironed out if labor and employers get together, W. J. Johnson, Coalition Member for Revelstoke, declared in his maiden speech in the Legislature today.

Engineer of one of the Canadian Pacific Railway transcontinental passenger trains and a union member of 40 years' standing, Mr. Johnson said he was satisfied that "we can work out something that will result in employers paying a fair day's pay for a fair day's work."

"But," he added, "labor must be prepared to give a fair day's work for a fair day's pay."

The Revelstoke member saw the proper rehabilitation of men and women of the Armed Forces as the Legislature's most important task.

FINDS DISSATISFACTION

As Chairman of the Revelstoke Rehabilitation Committee, Mr. Johnson said he found much dissatisfaction among returned veterans over what appeared to them as unnecessary delays in granting their requests for benefits or assistance.

The whole labor system, he declared, would require much careful consideration with respect to wages, hours of work and conditions for labor.

Mr. Johnson said rural electrification was one of the pressing needs in a country "blessed with so much water power," and enumerated areas in his own constituency that could be developed if served by electric power. Among areas, he said is the farming district between Taft and Sicamous which could be served from the Okanagan power line, now serving Sicamous.

WANTS $10 MILLIONS FOR ROADS

Dealing with mineral and forest areas that only awaited roading for development, Mr. Johnson maintained that $3,000,000 for new highway construction this year was not enough, and urged the Government to budget for at least $10,000,000 a year for the next 10 years.

Good roads and accommodation were required to attract tourists, the Revelstoke member claimed.

He said the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, of which he is a member, had presented a resolution to change the name of the Old Age Pension Act to the Retired Senior Citizens' Act, with a pension of $50 a month at age 65 and abolition of the "obnoxious" means test. Personally, he was inclined to favor the means test as a way of providing a higher pension to those most in need, rather than a pension to everyone on reaching the age of eligibility.

Concluding, Mr. Johnson urged the Government to establish a land registry office at Revelstoke. Delays up to three months are caused by having land registry office at Nelson, he charged.

To Train Navy to Work With British or States Forces

Demobilization of All Canadian Wartime Services to Be Complete by November

OTTAWA, Feb. 26 (CP) — A Cabinet Minister today spoke of preparations for integration of a third Canadian service with peacetime British and United States military effort and declared the defence of Canada and the United States was closely related.

It was Defence Minister Abbott detailing new information on the Navy in a speech before the Canadian Club and he disclosed that the service would be trained to work in cooperation with either the British or the United States Navy.

He also announced demobilization and discharge of all Canadian wartime forces would be completed by October or November and all service dependents would be in Canada by December.

"We hope," he added, "that by November or December all the aspects of the winding up of our wartime forces will have been completed."

High officials of both the British High Commissioners Office and the United States Embassy together with military liaison officers of both countries were at the head table when Mr. Abbott spoke. Prime Minister Mackenzie King was another guest.

On previous occasions Mr. Abbott and Air Minister Gibson had spoken of a peacetime program for exchange of instructional staffs and officer observers between the Army and Air Forces of the three countries.

These statements have provoked some discussion that Commonwealth and United States military planners have definitely decided to continue the close military liaison that worked so successfully during the war.

It is doubtful, however, if there would be any immediate revival of a program of integration that in wartime saw creation of a Special Service Force composed of Canadians and Americans, and Navy and Air Force units serving directly under or with British and American commands.

However, integration might conceivably become closer especially between Canada and the United States.

Mr. Abbott said Canada's peacetime military program could not be final in every detail because the Dominion still did not know what military obligations she would assume as part of her responsibility as U.N.O. members.

The Minister hoped Canadians would take lessons from the past and be cautious about reducing too greatly the size of the Armed Forces.

Speaking of the establishment of an All-Service Research and Development Department, Mr. Abbott said it would ensure in peace that the best scientists in the country would be available to study research problems on defence and that a coordinated research body would be available to make the greatest uses of the Dominion's resources.

The best defence against atomic warfare was the ability to attack—an ability that must be developed in the laboratory as well as on the training field.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 26 (CP) — Research into the nature and cause of cancer had fallen far behind the techniques developed to treat the disease, the annual report of the Manitoba Cancer Relief and Research Institute tabled today in the legislature said.

Grain Supplies, Livestock Decline

OTTAWA, Feb. 26 (CP)—The Dominion Bureau of Statistics in a quarterly review of the coarse grain situation in Canada today said estimated supplies of feed grains available for the crop year have had to undergo further downward revision from the September estimate, and a downward trend in numbers of livestock is continuing.

In December there were 23.5 per cent fewer hogs than the previous year, while the indicated number of sows bred to farrow "suggest that the Spring pig crop of 1946 will be approximately nine per cent smaller than in 1945," the bureau said.

Smokies Trip Leafs Back Into Cellar 5-3, Former Regina Cap Doubles; Scodellaro Stars

TRAIL, B. C., Feb. 26—Trail Smoke Eaters completed their home schedule in the West Kootenay Senior Hockey League tonight with a 5-3 victory over Nelson Maple Leafs. The Smokies, who have a bye into the league finals, play at Nelson Saturday night in the last league game.

The defeat dropped Nelson back into third place, half a game behind Kimberley Dynamiters, and the Leafs have to win Saturday night in order to avoid finishing in the cellar.

Ron Gardner, filling in for the injured Ab Cronie at centre played his second game for Trail since being released by Regina Capitals, and tallied the winners' first two goals.

Smelterites witnessed a grand game which never had a dull moment.

Both goalies' performances stood out and this was the deciding factor in Trail's win. Scodellaro almost always came up on top of the puck in scrambles. The three stars were Duke Scodellaro, Bill Vickers and Mike Buckna. Harold Lauriente made the selections.

HOT START

Play opened at a terrific pace with both teams staging dangerous rushes. The mix-up ended with Gardner scoring Trail's first marker. Menzies passed to Gardner who outdrew Seaby and then shoved the puck in. After Marshall was sent to the box for tripping Barefoot, the Nelsonites really made it hot for Scodellaro. Fargher's shot rolled a few inches at an empty corner for a close call. Just as Marshall returned Menzies was waved off. Krizan after this had some marvellous opportunities and drove the puck into Trail zone. Fargher picked it up and passed to Kilpatrick, Killy outguessed Scodellaro for a goal. Krizan received a penalty for a slashing.

PLAY RUGGED

The second canto featured rough playing with Menzies and Smith taking turns cooling off for tripping. Luke and Kilpatrick were given the gate for roughing in the corner. The teams held their own until the 14:07 mark when Buckna scored an unearned goal. Crowder crossed the blue line before the puck but the play was close with Buckna scooting in from behind.

Twenty-eight seconds ticked off and Nelson was licked in a fight again as Cook converted Jenkins' pass. Kwasnie took a long shot from in front of the centre line, which bounced off Seaby's pad into the net.

In the third period Krizan really let Gardner fly with a terrific bodycheck for which he received a major penalty. Marshall tripped Tatchell and his absence evened the teams. Vickers scored an unexpected goal from the boards on which Scodellaro had little chance. Menzies scored unassisted and Seaby had difficulty in handling the puck. Fargher was penalized for elbowing.

SUMMARY:

First period: 1. Trail, Gardner 3:08; 2. Gardner (Menzies) 7:41; 3. Nelson, Kilpatrick (Fargher) 19:03; penalties: Marshall, Menzies, Krizan.

Charges Glory Grabbing

REGINA, Feb. 26 (CP)—Saskatchewan's C.C.F. government came under criticism in the legislature today by Arthur Procter (Lib-Moosomin) for its policy of "importing experts" and for "holding up as new" and taking credit for the agriculture policies of former governments it condemned.

In an hour-long throne-speech debate address the veteran Liberal and former highways minister charged farm foreclosures were taking place in the province today despite the promise of Premier T. C. Douglas the government would resign if there were any such action under its administration.

The Premier interjected there was not a single foreclosure without consent but Mr. Procter said there was and added: "The ministers had better get busy and hand in their resignations."

Mr. Procter criticized all but one—that of inaugurating an air ambulance service—of 24 steps the government claimed to have taken to aid agriculture. He said they were "half truths, misrepresentations and innuendos."

"There is disgust and gloom among the farmers of this province for what this government has failed to do," he added amid laughter from government benches. But he ended by praising the Premier's stand at the Dominion-Provincial Conference.

The legislature gave first reading to a bill to incorporate the Saskatchewan Institute of Agrologists and provide that all technical and scientific agriculturists with certain exceptions be brought into the body.

Legislative approval also was given to resolutions urging Dominion grants to the provinces to maintain "certain standards of education across Canada;" that the Dominion provide a minimum bounty of $25 on timber wolves and that the assembly express its support of the food and agriculture organization recently set up at Quebec.

The latter resolution also asked consideration be given to inviting Sir John Boyd Orr, director-general of F.A.O. to Saskatchewan to "suggest to the government and people the steps they might take to further the constitutional aims of F.A.O."

TOAST and TEA

One horse trader bought a horse from another but no sooner had he got it into the stable than the animal died. The former owner hearing of this left the county and was not seen for years. One day he ran into the man on whom he had unloaded the horse. To his surprise the latter seemed glad to see him and shook hands. "No hard feelings?" said the gypsy. "What? About that horse? I should say not," replied the last owner of the horse, warmly. "Why that horse earned me a thousand dollars." "How come?" "Well, I held a raffle on the horse and sold a thousand tickets at a dollar a head." "But how about the fellow who won the dead horse?" "Oh, well, he did kick a little, so I gave him his dollar back."

Hun Photographs Show Dogs, Pigs Eating Victims

NUERNBERG, Feb. 26 (AP) — Photographs of German soldiers laughing while one of them swung an axe to behead helpless Yugoslavs and of ferocious dogs and starving hogs devouring other victims were shown today in motion pictures to the International Military Tribunal.

The film, prepared by the Yugoslav government and flown to Nuernberg for its first showing at the trial, was made up entirely from the Nazis' own snapshots. Most of the pictures were taken from captured soldiers.

Several of the 21 defendants shuddered and turned away as the projector showed grinning Germans posing for a photographer with two large shepherd dogs and then its sequel—the same dogs ripping a Yugoslav victim to shreds.

New Volcanic Isle Rises From Sea

TOKYO, Feb. 26 (AP)—A new volcanic isle has risen from the sea 200 miles South of the Yokosuka naval base, reaching a height of 50 feet and a diameter of 200 yards in two weeks, United States naval officers said today. Huge rocks occasionally tumble down its growing peak, and black smoke puffs forth.

The isle first was reported by a British ship.

Prof. Takesha Nagata of Tokyo Imperial University said a similar islet appeared near Iow Jima in the early 1900s, but later receded into the sea.

Most Criminals Between 30-40

VICTORIA, Feb. 26 (CP)—In a report tabled in the Legislature today, T. W. S. Parsons, Provincial Police Commissioner, said a record of 94 per cent convictions was registered of all persons taken to court.

The force covered 3,250,000 miles in 1945, and of this horses were used in travelling 6600 miles, chiefly in the Northern part of the Province. Nearly 46,000 miles was traversed in motor launches along the Coast.

Alberta to Ask $50 Pension

EDMONTON, Feb. 26 (CP)—The Alberta Legislature today passed unanimously a motion urging the Federal government to introduce legislation at the forthcoming session of parliament providing for payment of old age pensions of $50 a month at age 65, on a non-contributory basis and "free from the degradation" of any means test.

The motion, proposed by N. B. James (SC-Edmonton) and seconded by D. A. Ure (SC-Red Deer) urged also that the pensionable age be reduced to 60 years "as soon as possible" and that the Federal government be urged to make full use of Canada's credit "so that such old age pensions can be financed without recourse to further tax or debt burdens on the nation."

Federal proposals submitted to the recent Dominion-Provincial reconstruction conference, "while conceding to some extent that persons of 65 years of age upwards are practically unemployable and in any event have earned the right to retirement," deny the principle of old age pensions "by imposing a degrading means test in regard to such pensions between 65 and 70."

WILL HAVE EFFECT

Speaking to the motion Mr. James said many members of the House would look on it as a "hardy perennial."

"It has, either in its present form or similar forms, been presented here and forwarded to Ottawa on many occasions, and so far has made no dent in the Eastern concrete.

"Just as constant dropping will wear away a stone, so the constant pressure of an insistent people will eventually have its effect even on the authorities in Ottawa."

The Federal government now is paying pensions of $25 a month at age 70, and now is suggesting that if it can be made contributory Federal authorities are willing to go as high as $30 a month.

Former Fernie Girl to Sing With Opera Company

TRAIL, B. C., Feb. 26—A former Fernie girl, Miss Teresa Perri, whose brother Charles Perri lives in Trail, signed a contract with the San Carlo Opera Company in Vancouver this week, in almost dream-like circumstances.

Miss Perri was a stenographer at Shaughnessy Hospital when she applied for audition with the opera company. After the audition she was immediately signed to a contract.

Her father, Joseph Perri still lives in Fernie, and Miss Perri herself, is known in Trail where she sang on several occasions while visiting the city. She studied singing in Vancouver for two years.

Miss Perri's ambition is to sing with the Metropolitan Opera. She will leave her job in Vancouver early in the Summer and make her first appearance with the San Carlo Company in New York.

FINED ON WAGE CHARGES

NEW WESTMINSTER, B. C., Feb. 26 (CP) — Keystone Shingles and Lumber, Limited, was convicted in Police Court today on two of seven charges of paying wages in contravention of a National War Labor Board directive. The other five charges were withdrawn. Another similar charge was dismissed earlier and the company was found guilty on a ninth charge, Feb. 7.

The minimum fine of $100 and costs was imposed on each charge.

Sees Great Benefits From P.G.E. Extension

VICTORIA, Feb. 26 (CP) — Extension of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway into the Peace River Block, involving construction of 425 miles of new road, would not only turn the railway into a profit-making concern, but would also go far towards a lasting solution of the present economic situation in the Province, J. H. Corsbie (C.C.F.—Peace River) said in the Throne speech debate today.

He claimed that freight on coal and wheat alone would meet the cost of construction, leaving returns from all other freight as clear profit.

The C.C.F., Mr. Corsbie said, maintained that the road should be built by the Canadian National system, but failing that, the Province should take the initiative and seek assistance from Ottawa for the project.

He said that while "there was no indication that the Government was going to show much action this year," he hoped that for once it would do something really worth while for the Province by extending the P.G.E.

"The resources of the Peace River mean nothing to British Columbia at present because the trouble with the P.G.E. is that it starts nowhere and gets there," he said. "If the railway were to be expected to pay for itself, it must be extended into a territory that would give it something to haul."

COULD FILL COAL NEEDS

Decline in British Columbia's coal production last year, he continued, was due in part to exhaustion of existing mines. It would be easier to develop Peace River's vast coal resources than to sink new shafts in present mining areas. Referring to the Province's present coal imports, Mr. Corsbie predicted that exploitation of Peace River coal would fill all B.C.'s needs and possibly open up an export field in the United States.

Opening up of the Peace River, he claimed, would provide the materials for sorely-needed secondary industries in the Province.

He expressed a hope, also, that the Dominion Government would soon permit tourist traffic on the Alaska Highway, which would provide considerable work in the provision of hotels, restaurants and the like all along the route.

Coupled with his suggestion of a maritime commission was the appointment of a special parliamentary committee on shipping at the forthcoming session to review the Canada Shipping Act.

Three Settled, One to Start

U.S. Boosts Meat Ceilings to Meet Okayed Wage Hop

NEW YORK, Feb. 26 (AP)—The United States strike picture brightened today when a threatened city-wide walkout of New York transit workers was called off and strikes of city workers in Houston, Tex., and bakery employees in Detroit were settled.

At the same time, a new strike of Texas and Louisiana trainmen on the Southern Pacific Lines was set for Saturday.

A reverberation of last month's country-wide meat strike came with Government authorization of a 16-cent-an-hour pay boost for the packinghouse workers and an increase in meat ceiling prices which a Government spokesman said would average about 1 per cent at the retail level.

Major developments:

1. Mayor William O'Dwyer of New York announced a threatened strike among the city's 34,000 transit workers, scheduled for after midnight, had been averted when the Transportation Workers Union (C.I.O.) withdrew its demand for recognition as exclusive bargaining agent.

2. A six-day old strike of 700 city workers in Houston, Tex., was settled after several thousand A.F.L. sympathizers declared a "holiday," staged a demonstration march to the City Hall and forced a shutdown of some of the city's normal functions. The Civil Service Commission was directed to compare city wage scales with those in private industry with the view of making adjustments if inequalities are shown.

3. A two-day bakery drivers strike ended in Detroit when members of the Bakery Drivers Union (A.F.L.) accepted a compromise wage offer for a $2.50 increase in the basic weekly wage and a $5.00 hike in the guaranteed minimum. A six-day milk strike which shut off deliveries to 750,000 Detroiters continued, however.

4. William E. B. Chase, spokesman for the Railroad Brotherhoods, said at Houston, Tex., that 3500 engineers and trainmen on the Southern Pacific Lines in Texas and Louisiana would strike Saturday as the result of a long-standing dispute over grievances and awards.

5. The United Auto Workers (C.I.O.) continued negotiations in Detroit with representatives of the General Motors Corporation without any major progress reported in efforts to end the 98-day-old strike of 175,000 production workers.

6. In an effort to head off a coast-to-coast strike of telephone workers set for March 7, Labor Secretary Schwellenbach arranged a conference in Washington with Joseph A. Beirne, President of the National Federation of Telephone Workers.

Unchanged Industry Attitude May Mean Depression—Swailes

WINNIPEG, Feb. 26 (CP)—Unless industry adopted a "more reasonable" attitude, there was "trouble ahead" and likely another long period of depression, Don Swailes (CCF-Winnipeg) said today in the Manitoba Legislature as debate continued on his party's non-confidence amendment to the throne speech.

There was a prevalent attitude in industry to regard itself as a sovereign power within its own sphere, he said. It resented inquiries into its profits. There now were 13,000 unemployed in Winnipeg alone excluding ex-servicemen taking courses andthose not yet discharged.

He urged industrial workers be granted higher wages. They had a just complaint because wages had been more strictly controlled during the war than prices. Poor quality goods had sold at the maximum ceiling price and this had reduced real values.

Nelson Midgets Cop Title With 8-3 Win Over Trail Reps; to Meet Kimberley in Kootenay Series

The Nelson Midgets trounced Trail's Reps 8-3 Tuesday night to win the West Kootenay championship. The final series score between the two teams was 13-4 giving the Nelson team a berth against the Kimberley entries for the Kootenay title.

The game was fast from beginning to end, starting with two goals in succession for Nelson. They were scored by Hood and Bachynski. Six minutes after the second goal Ford came from behind the net to score for Trail, then Hallbauer shot from the blue-line to make the third goal for Nelson. Hopkins of Nelson got the only penalty in the first period, for tripping.

TIE COUNT

At the beginning of the second a neat goal was made by Gryschuk unassisted, immediately followed by another by Hackett from Bisaro to tie the score. But when Jones was put off for tripping, Duffy assisted by Hood scored for Nelson, and Hyssop followed him up for another goal for the home team. Just before the period ended Duffy came down the open ice to score unassisted.

In the middle of the third period Nelson's last two goals were scored by Hopkins and Hyssop with assists from Brett in the first and Hopkins and Brett in the second.

Both teams played a fine game. Stedile in the Nelson goal stopped puck after puck with many close calls.

Nelson Juveniles Whip Trail 7-4 to Advance In Kootenay Playdowns; Win Two Games by 11-4

Nelson Juveniles captured the West Kootenay Juvenile crown when they cracked out a 7-4 victory over Trail Juveniles at the Civic Arena Tuesday night. The two-game total-goal series went to Nelson by a total of 11-4, the victors having blanked Trail 4-0 at Trail Saturday night. Nelson now meets Kimberley for the Kootenay title and the right to meet the Okanagan winners.

The home team took a 2-1 lead in the opener, made it 4-2 in the middle session and rammed in three goals to Trail's two in the final period.

Macintyre and Maglio scored two goals apiece for Nelson, and Macintyre also picked up three assists; Duffy scored a goal and three assists, F. Koehle scored a goal and an assist, and Clark scored one. Trail marksmen were Milne, Mailey, Dougan and Davis who also got an assist.

ANYBODY'S GAME

During the first period, it was anybody's game. Nelson opened the scoring at the half way mark when Duffy fed a pass to Macintyre who made no mistake. Trail evened matters 35 seconds later with Milne and Haas combining. The home team again took the lead when Maglio and Macintyre combined in a nice rush play.

Nelson fired in two goals before Trail replied in the second stanza. Early in the period, Maglio took Duffy's pass to beat Shields in the Trail net. Then Clark and Koehle sped in to easily beat Shields. Trail's goal followed a faceoff just after one of their players was hurt, Mailey and Anselmo combining to beat Silverwood.

Play was faster in the final session with Macintyre and Duffy clicking nicely. Macintyre picked off the first one at 7:15 after taking Duffy's pass. Then Dougan scored on a clean Trail breakaway with Davis and Petrie getting credit for assists. Seconds later, with Nelson putting on pressure, Koehle fired in one on a solo play. With seven minutes to go he slammed in another, but no one spotted the goal. Two or three minutes later spectators behind the goal caught the referees' attention, but the goal was not counted. There was no goal judge behind the net.

Nelson's final goal was scored during a spectacular rush by Duffy and Macintyre, and Trail scored the final game of the night with less than two minutes to go.

OTTAWA, Feb. 26 (CP)—The National War Services Department said today in a statement that "government red tape" had not held up a shipment of 15,000 cans of food collected by the Vancouver East Lions Club.

"The sponsors were immediately requested to furnish details and were promised all possible assistance in obtaining the necessary authority to export."

No reply was received, and two weeks later, on Feb. 19, a further request was made. The details arrived the next day and approval for shipment was immediately obtained, the statement added.

Muskox Men Battle Cold, 50-M.P.H. Wind

CHURCHILL, Man., Feb. 26 (CP)—Bucking a 50-mile-an-hour wind and 20 below zero temperatures, the Muskox expedition reported itself 110 miles short of Baker Lake today after being forced to halt and make camp yesterday during a dense blizzard.

The combined Army-R.C.A.F. expedition camped between Lakes Kaminak and Kaminuriak, 150 miles South of Baker Lake, and after moving on another 40 miles reported they were "beginning to encounter mechanical trouble with the vehicles."

An Army statement said such difficulties were expected "at this stage" and one of the reasons for the trip was "to see what can be done to overcome them."

"The suspension for one side of a snowmobile has been flown out to be dumped for replacement on the spot. This means a slow uncomfortable repair job that will tax ingenuity and determination of mechanics to the limit."

The expedition has taken a detour to the West of a route covered last month by a Baker Lake supply party which encountered rough, boulder-strewn country South of Lake Kaminuriak.

Urges Wide Social Security

CALGARY, Feb. 26 (CP)—A social security scheme should not be limited to taking care of old age pensioners, Angus McInnis, Vancouver M.P. told a meeting of the Social Security Council this afternoon.

He said as well as taking care of old age pensioners, a social security scheme, should make provisions for invalids, indigent persons, orphaned children, and all those whose income is not adequate to provide a decent standard of living.

He said old age pensions should be increased considerably and that a social security scheme which would help all persons in need should be inaugurated by the government.

The speaker believed the day is coming when "everyone shall give according to his ability and everyone shall receive according to his need."

He urged "we should get away from thinking that when we apply for old age pensions, we are applying for charity."

Pleads Innocent to Nine Charges

By WILLIAM BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 26 (CP Cable)—The court martial of Capt. D. W. Thomson of Toronto opened here today before a Canadian Military Tribunal with Capt. Thomson pleading innocent to nine charges arising from his activities as an Amenities Control Officer in Holland.

Yesterday Capt. Stanley Landell, also of Toronto, was convicted of four of seven charges of a similar nature. Lt.-Col. Philip Tedman of Toronto, former chairman of the Amenities Control Organization, will be tried later in the same connection.

Capt. Thomson is specifically charged with:

1. Stealing a Cadillac sedan;
2. Improperly attempting to export the Cadillac which allegedly was obtained from a Canadian Army dump of enemy property in Amsterdam;
3. Stealing a Ford Cabriolet;
4. Attempting improperly to dispose of the Ford Cabriolet to a Dutch civilian;
5. Stealing 17 Persian rugs;
6. Stealing 100 wrist watches, the property of a Dutch civilian named Harry Berkelauw;
7. Obtaining the watches from Berkelauw with intent to defraud;
8. Trafficking in 4100 bottles of gin and cognac;
9. Improperly using Canadian War Department property to transport of liquors for private purposes.

The early evidence today duplicated that given at Landell's trial. S. Sgt. Alvin P. Fenton of Claresholm, Alta., who was in charge of the Eclipse Work Shop (the name given to all enemy equipment dumps under Canadian army control) in Amsterdam after VE-Day, identified both automobiles as Eclipse vehicles. He also related how he and Tr. Edward Busby of Toronto followed a three-car convoy driven by Landell, Capt. Thomson and Col. Tedman to Rotterdam where he said he saw the licence plates removed.

Fenton also said he saw the officers visit port authorities and then leave the cars in a warehouse with the gasoline drained and the batteries disconnected.

Cornelis Dager, Dutch civilian driver and interpreter for Landell and Capt. Thomson, testified that he saw the Cadillac in a harbor lighter when he went with Capt. Thomson to fill the tank with anti-freeze.

Dager said he had an understanding with the officers that he was to receive the Ford when Capt. Thomson left Amsterdam. Just before Capt. Thomson and Landell started home for Canada in December, Dager said he was told he would have to pay 2000 guilders ($800) for the automobile. He said the officers told him he could dispose of the car elsewhere but they were giving him first chance to buy it.

Dager said he paid the money and got possession of the car Dec. 6 after a meeting where Capt. Thomson told Landell: "You can give him the papers and keys to the car now. He paid me the money."

Start Rebuilding of Chamber

By JAMES McCOOK

LONDON, Feb. 26 (CP Cable)—The rattle of pneumatic drills in the austere courts of the Houses of Parliament marks the opening of the reconstruction of the House of *Commons chamber, reduced to rub*ble by a German bomb May 10, 1941.

This is the beginning of a long job. A frequent estimate is that it will take five years to restore the Commons building and six months to complete the present work of clearing the rubble.

The authorities are uncertain whether one high explosive bomb or several bombs striking together caused such devastation. Much of the broken stonework has been taken away for incorporation in working-class homes being built in London and the smaller pieces are being made into souvenirs which find a ready sale.

The old structure was of solid stone with walls more than two feet thick at the base. It was completed in 1852. The Commons was only part of the great Palce of Westminster and from the street the walls appear to stand firm.

Only when one is inside can the extent be realized of the holes gouged by the bombs in 775,000 cubic feet of stone in the palace.

Turn Frozen Muskeg Into Farms

Written for the Canadian Press
By VICTOR BELIKOV

MOSCOW, Feb. 26 (CP)—The frozen muskeg of Soviet Transbaikal is being used to make trappers of the sub-Arctic area self-sufficient. More and more collect*ive and state farms are being* developed.

Typical is a collective farm at Zeiskouchursu in the Chita region, formed three years before the war by several hunters and their families. Their curiosity was first aroused by a visit to the Chitka Experimental Station, where scientists were studying the potentialities of the frozen soil.

TRAPPERS START THEIR OWN

The trappers decided to start their own. The first year they had 15 acres in production from which they produced three tons of wheat and 20 tons of vegetables. But by 1943 they were self-sufficient in wheat and were able to deliver 125 tons of wheat and oats to the state.

During the war the farm, called Novaya Zhizn (New Life), doubled its sown area and produced potatoes, cucumbers, tomatoes, cabbage and melons in addition to grain.

The farm also is experimenting with stockbreeding and has three farms for cattle, hogs and sheep.

Australian Gov't Proceeds With Nationalized Air Service Plan

By WILLIAM STEWART
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CANBERRA, Australia, Feb. 26 (CP)—The Australian Government is going ahead with its plan for a nationalized air service despite an adverse high court judgment on its National Airlines Act and probable challenge of the year-old law before the Privy Council.

As enacted at the parliamentary session of 1945, the airways plan would have permitted the Common*wealth to withhold licences from* existing commercial lines of operating between the six Australian states and absorb them.

Three commercial services immediately went to the High Court to block the Nationalization Law and Commonwealth authorities countered with a demurrer.

The Government's counter-action was rejected by the court which condemned the National Airlines Act with a ruling that any restriction of inter-state air services would run afoul section 92 of the constitution stipulating absolute freedom of inter-state trade and commerce.

Since the judgment a few weeks ago, there has been speculation whether the Government could still freeze out the commercial airlines by operating in competition and taking away their mail contracts and national airport facilities, or imposing prohibitive charges for use of the fields and equipment.

Another report has been that the Government might take from the commercial lines planes obtained through the United States Government and operated commercially under lease from the Commonwealth.

The Commonwealth Government, in the meantime, has indicated its intention of carrying on with its plan by setting up a five-man airlines commission house whose job it will be to start the Government service. No date for a start is fixed yet.

Col. Peck Speaks Out for Kilts

VICTORIA, Feb. 26 (CP)—Brig. Churchill Mann, Commanding Officer of Military District No. 2, may do away with pomp and ceremony in his own bailiwick but so far as Col. C. Peck, V.C., and Brig. F. N. Cabeldu, D.S.O. and bar, E.D., are concerned "Mann speaks for himself and is in a minority."

Col. Peck, who commanded a battalion of the original Canadian Scottish, characterized the announcement from Toronto today as "the craziest thing ever done. Jealousy must be at the bottom of it. The wonderful records of kilted rgiments speak for themselves. Scottish regiments always should keep the kilts. Any officer who has ever led a line of charging kilties knows the most terrifying spectacle they are to the enemy, with their swinging kilts and flashing bayonets."

Brig. Cabeldu was colonel of the 1st Battalion Canadian Scottish in the field prior to his promotion as Commander of the 4th Canadian Infantry Brigade.

Hollanders to Care for Canadian Graves

By WILLIAM BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 26 (CP) — The grave of every Allied soldier who fell in Holland—among them an estimated 37,000 Canadians—is to be adopted by a Dutch family and cared for as though it were that of a brother or son.

Supervision of this new form of "adoption" is by the Netherlands War Graves Committee, headed by Herman Gotzen, a banker of Amsterdam and Hilversum. The Committee is ready to provide care for all the 80,000 troops who died in the Netherlands, or whose bodies were brought from Germany for burial in Dutch soil.

Eighteen thousand graves in the American cemetery at Margate are expected to be allocated to families shortly. Other cemeteries affected are at Bergen-Op-Zoom, Nijmegen and Groeningen.

Efforts are made to find out as much as possible about the fallen soldier. His grave then is cared for by a family with a background similar to his.

Dutch families accept the responsibility of visiting the graves regularly, seeing that fresh flowers are kept on them and cooperating in mass ceremonies of commemoration.

Photographs of each grave, the cemetery and important communities nearby are to be sent to the bereaved families.

Plans also are being made for the reception of relatives from Britain and North America when they come to visit the cemeteries.

No Snap Election for Point Grey

VANCOUVER, Feb. 26 (CP) — Possibility of a "snap" by-election in Vancouver Point Grey to fill the Provincial seat made vacant by the death of J. A. Paton was discounted today in political circles.

This job, Mr. Phillips said, will probably take up to two months to complete. On those who were not on the October list, he said that *the Government might hold a com*plete enumeration or simply give them an opportunity to register at the court house.

General opinion in political circles is that the Government will either hold the election early in June or in the Fall. There may be a Fall session, these sources suggest, to implement whatever agree*ment the Province may make with* the Dominion on Federal-Provincial relations.

It is a Progressive Conservative seat and a safe one, and it is likely *that competition for the nomina*tion will be keen.

Goering Is Central Figure In Trial; Cheerful for One Who Is Sitting at Death's Front Door

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

NUERNBERG, Feb. 26 (AP)—Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering, Hitler's crown prince, seems remarkably cheerful for one who is sitting on death's front doorstep.

He has lost little if any of the self-confidence and ego he possessed at Munich in 1938, and later in Berlin, as he and his chief were putting the finishing touches on their conspiracy against mankind.

It is not surprising to see Goering battling for life with a grin and a fair exhibition of nonchalance. Hermann has never been accused of lacking physical courage.

He won his spurs in the First Great War with his spectacular showmanship and daring.

After the famous Baron Richthoffen, leader of the "Flying Circus" and Germany's greatest ace, was shot down in his crimson plane, another leader came over in a crimson plane—and that was young Goering.

MAKES A FIGHT OF IT IN COURT

Today, the First Great War ace and Nazi Germany's No. 2 man is making a fight of it in court. He knows well that his chances of escaping death are almost nil. But it pleases his vanity to atract attention in a courtroom crowded with the naionals of many countries.

He's the central figure in the trial —and how well he realizes it, as he scribbles notes for his lawyer, nods approval of arguments by the defence or shakes his head in disapproval of some point by the prosecution. Goering's penchant for theatricals has given many the idea that he's just a buffoon, but that is a mistaken notion. He's smart and his organizing ability and driving force had much to do with putting the Reich on such a powerful war footing that Hitler almost conquered Europe.

But despite all the evil which Goering has done, he is not the one to be most feared among the Nazi chieftains on trial. That distinction falls to Franz von Papen, the crafty worker behind the scenes who built Hitler up with the idea of doublecrossing him and becoming Fuehrer himself. Von Papen's scheme failed, but he remains one of the world's most dangerous men. He, too, is fighting vigorously for his life.

So is Joachim von Ribbentrop, onetime Foreign Minister, who also *is tricky but no match for von Pap*en. Then there's Julius Streicher, the Jew baiter whose evil mind registers on his repulsive face.

The theme song of the defence is this paradoxical chant: These defendents are not guilty, but if they are guilty, still the people of the Reich were not partners in crime. The signs are that Goering and at least some of the other defendents are coupling the fight for their own lives with this whitewashing of the nation at the expense, if necessary, of Hitler and others who are dead.

However, there is no disposition to hang the blame on Hitler unless all other defence fails. The German lawyers have been building up their case on the allegation that Hitler was forced to go to war to defend the Reich against aggression which they charge was being planned by Britain on the West and Russia in the East.

POLICE UNCOVER PROFITABLE RE-RENT RACKET

VANCOUVER, Feb. 26 (CP) — Vancouver police have uncovered a profitable rooming-house racket.

They have discovered that a man is going from one rooming-house and cheap hotel to another, renting any available room. He registers, pays the required 75 cents a night, pockets the key and leaves. Then he re-rents the room to visiting American sailors at as high as $2 a room.

About 20 rooms a night are being re-rented in this way, police reported.

Police discovered the racket to*day when they found a sailor's* name did not appear on the book of a rooming house. They investigated and found out what had happened.

Farris to Conduct Gov't Case to Test Taxation Right

VICTORIA, Feb. 26 (CP) — The B.C. Government's legal fight to test its right to impose a severance tax on alienated E. and N. Railway lands on Vancouver Island will be conducted by Senator J. W. Farris, it was learned today.

Chief Justice Gordon Sloan in his report on the forest resources of British Columbia recommended that appropriate steps be taken by the Crown to have the question settled by the courts. In the address from the throne the Government had indicated that it would take steps to test the right in the courts.

In his report Chief Justice Sloan said there were remaining in the Crown grant unalienated lands timber stands valued at between $10,000,000 and $12,000,000.

C. D. Orchard, Deputy Minister of Forests, estimated at the Commission's hearings that if the timber cut on the alienated E. and N. lands had been taxed at the prevailing royalty rates the Crown would have received during the last 10 years a revenue of between $750,000 and $800,000 a year.

The company, the report said, between 1898 and 1944 disposed of 763,565 acres of timber land containing over 7,000,000,000 feet of timber and realized $14,814,792.

Demands Inquiry Into Grievances, Military Action

Cut Bombay Curfew; Police Fire on Mob Stoning Train

BOMBAY, Feb. 26 (Reuters) — Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, former Congress President, at a mass meeting tonight demanded an open inquiry into grievances of Royal Indian seamen who went on strike last week and into what he called police and military repression in Bombay.

He said India's Armed Forces should "fall in line with the fighters for the freedom of India" but declared violence to win freedom for India was needless.

"If I feel violence is necessary for achieving our goal, I shall be the first to give the call," he said.

In this city, where the situation has been quiet for two days, the curfew was shortened by one hour to the period from 9 p.m. to 6 a.m. A certain number of British troops have been withdrawn and it was officially stated "everything in the city is normal."

The striking seamen demanded pay and treatment equal to that in the Royal Navy.

MUST NOT BE MISLED

Addressing the same meeting as Nehru, Sardar Vallabhai Patel, Bombay Congress leader, called for "heart searching" into the cause of last week's riots and warned people must not "be misled by those who attempt to exploit anti-imperialist feelings and the political awakening of the masses."

Patel said: "After three days of complete anarchy in the city, which was followed by the military shooting innocent people, it is time for all concerned to do a bit of heart searching.'

"Those who committed ghastly crimes during the disturbances will not go unpunished.

"Why should people think of an uprising against the Government when Congress has not given the call for revolt? If you think the Congress lead is wrong, it is up to you to replace it."

Patel said the Communist party was giving "the wrong lead and trying to exploit people's patriotism."

GANDHI APPEALS

Earlier a call to "play the game" was made to Indians by Nationalist leader Mohandas K. Gandhi at Poona as trouble broke out again in the Madras area where crowds stoned the Ceylon Express and police opened fire.

Referring to the striking Royal Indian Navy ratings in Bombay, Gandhi said "in resorting to mutiny they were badly advised."

He appealed for patience to those who expressed distrust in British promises. "It betrays want of foresight to dispelieve the British delegation" (the three-man Cabinet mission), Gandhi said. "Is the official deputation coming to deceive a great nation? It is neither manly nor womanly to think so."

Maulana Abul Kalam Azad, President of the Indian National Congress, said at New Delhi "the question of discipline should not be viewed in a narrow spirit."

STONE TRAIN

A crowd in the Caidapet area, 10 miles from Madras, today threw stones at passing trains. Demonstrators stopped the incoming Indo-Ceylon Express by placing cement blocks across the track. When the train pulled up it was met with a shower of stones. Passengers left the train for safety.

A party of police arriving on the scene, was also stoned. When the police opened fire, the crowd dispersed. Three persons were reported wounded.

Tells What Traffic Officers Describe as Horrible Death Picture

VICTORIA, Feb. 26 (CP)—What *traffic officers describe as a horr*ible picture of death and destruction on British Columbia's highways was told today in accident statistics released by the Motor Vehicle Office of the Attorney-General's department.

The statistics showed that during 1945 the number of accidents throughout the province increased by 1862 to 7067. This represents an increase of 35.7 per cent.

Total number of persons injured in the 7067 accidents was 3108 in 1945, and increase of 812 over the 1944 total of 2296. This increase represents 35.3 per cent.

During 1945 116 persons were killed in traffic accidents. This is one more than in 1944.

Property damage during 1945 increased by 53.2 per cent or $333,892 to $960,367.

The picture is all the more alarm*ing because the number of vehicles* licenced to operate on the province's highways during 1945 was down 0.7 per cent from 1944.

FOOD SHIPMENT HELD BACK FROM KIDDIES WILL BE MOVED SOON

VANCOUVER, Feb. 26 (CP) — Red-tape bottleneck impeding the shipment of 15,000 cans of food from Vancouver to Europe's starving children is being broken, and the Red Cross probably will get the flow moving within a week, it was announced today by Charles A. Haslam, chairman of a joint committee representing the six Lions Clubs which collected the food from children who attended movie-theatre "food matinees."

"Ottawa has given approval for the shipment, the Red Cross has been notified, and the stuff will start moving as quickly as shipping arrangements can be made," Mr. Haslam said, reporting a telegram today from P. L. Brown, director of the Voluntary War Relief Depart*ment of the National War Services* Department, Ottawa.

"I hope it won't take more than a week, at the outside," said Mr. Haslam, who had focused a publicity spotlight on the campaign by announcing last Friday that the shipment already had been delayed three weeks by Dominion government "red tape."

NATIONAL FILM BOARD, CANADIAN INFORMATION SERVICE IS DESCRIBED AS PROPAGANDA MILL

RICHMOND, Que., Feb. 26 (CP)—John Bassett, Jr., vice-president and editor of the Sherbrooke (Que.) Daily Record, in an address here last night described the CBC, the National Film Board and the Canadian Information Service as "a giant *radio, film and news service-propa*ganda mill" running in competition with privately-owned radio stations, newspapers and film companies.

Mr. Bassett said the growth of these government agencies, which were not directly responsible to parliament, constitutes a dangerous tendency in Canada. If a socialist government ever came into power it would find, ready-made, a complete propaganda service in films, radio and written news.

"These agencies are neither responsible to shareholders, parliament or the people, but report to their own chiefs who are responsible direct to a cabinet minister," he added. "The chain of responsibility is too loose and the government should start now to cut down these inessential services, save the taxpayers' money and abandon the business of trying to influence unduly the voting public."

Mr. Bassett said the National Film Board is flooding newspaper offices throughout the country with pictures slanted to show government *activities in the most favorable pos*sible light.

He contended that D. P. Heeney and A. D. Dunton, respective heads of the C.I.S. and CBC, had no special qualifications for their posts.

The C.I.S. was a "costly and useless" agency duplicating the work of representatives of all well-known news services and newspaper correspondents.

"Why," he asked, "is it necessary to superimpose on all this an information service which sends out copy that is thrown into the waste paper basket in most editors' offices?"

The CBC had made itself a dictator of the country's radio policy and the sole judge of what Canadians may or may not listen to, Mr. Bassett said.

Says if U.S. Turns Down Loan Britain Will Go Own Way

LONDON, Feb. 26 (Tuesday)—(Reuters)—The Daily Herald, Labor Party organ, in an editorial today entitled "To our American cousins" indicated that if the United States *turns down the British loan agree*ment, Britain will regretfully go her own way.

"Should you finally decide that America and Britain must take separate paths, each seeking for separate and competing economic allegiances, we shall take our path with courage and determination, but with infinite regret, for much that should have been won in the Second Great War will be squandered by that decision," the paper said.

"Frankly, American cousins, we are not appealing for help because we feel we bore for a time the brunt of troubles that menaces the whole family. We are looking beyond the Anglo-Saxon family to the wide world, which cannot continue at peace unless the tremendous economic dislocations of the war and the pre-war year are mended."

Her Heart Tells Her One Thing, Parents Another

By PERSONAL ADVISER

When your heart tells you to do a thing, and your parents tell you not to do it, it's no wonder a teen-age girl gets mixed up. Plenty of people much older than 18, the age of the girl who writes the following letter, find themselves uncertain as to what decision to make in somewhat similar circumstances.

"Dear Adviser:

"I'm 18 years and four months old, and I'm in love with a fellow who is 18. I've known him for a year, and we have been going steady ever since I met him.

"Six months ago he joined the armed forces. We still are very much in love. He wants to give me an engagement ring, but he doesn't want to settle down and marry for four years. He is now going through college, preparing to become a pilot. He has his heart set on being an air pilot.

"My parents like him very much, but they don't care for long engagements. Of course I don't want to get married for a few years anyway, but I don't want to lose him. I'm so mixed up about this problem. I love him very much. Do you think we should become engaged this year, or is it better to wait?

"I'm pretty much a home girl. I'd rather stay home than go out with someone I don't love. While he's been away, neither of us have gone out with anyone else. I love this fellow and nothing can change my mind about him. If we ever break up, I couldn't go on.

"Miss Puzzled."

Sometimes, "Miss Puzzled," when one has a problem to which there seem to be only two choices, one for and one against the course one wants to follow, there actually is a third possible choice that's a practical compromise between the two others.

You feel that you've either got to follow your parents' advice and refuse to enter into a four-year engagement—which you are afraid may lose you this young man—or oppose them, agree to a formal engagement and wear his ring.

But why not consider the middle ground that lies between these two extremes? Why not tell your young man that, since he does not feel ready to marry for all of four years, you, on your side, feel that it would be wiser to give yourselves one more year before announcing any formal engagement? During that year you can have as definite an understanding between the two of you as you like. But don't publicize it; keep it just between yourselves. Then if, at the end of the year, you both still feel the same as you do now, you might accept and wear his ring.

It is a very good indication of the firmness of this boy's convictions that he had made his decision to finish his training. His ability to know what he wants, to choose it, and then to stick with it should help give you confidence in the stability of his feelings. Too, since he is this type of person, he will undoubtedly see the reasonableness of your suggestion to wait one more year.

When you have settled this matter between yourselves, then go to your parents and tell them what you have decided to do. I feel sure they will agree to such a reasonable proposition.

But don't try to settle your whole future now. Be content to make a plan for a year ahead. You are both very young and can afford a little patience. A lot of things might happen in the course of the year to change the whole picture and make you more certain of what to do.

Size Up Situation and Take Action

By IDA JEAN KAIN

Slipping from a Size 16 to an 18, or from an 18 to a 20, or from a 20—but, whoa! That's enough!—is about the worst thing that can happen, so your letters proclaim. It's bad enough to have to let out a seam here and a tuck there. But graduating to a whole size larger dress seems to be almost more than a woman can bear.

And no wonder! There is a two-inch difference between dress sizes. If you could slip smoothly into a Size 16 and now find yourself bursting out of an 18, your weight is very likely up 10 pounds or so and your measurements may have spread a good two inches. That's about the size of it.

Of course, things may not be that bad. Perhaps you can still manage to get into your usual size, but it has to be eased through the hips and let out at the waistband. Well, don't blame that on the material restriction. The sizes are still big enough. And don't fancy that what you need is a better girdle—that simply shifts the bulges! What you need is to take your figure in.

If your weight is only up a trifling five or six pounds, certainly that doesn't call for a diet. You won't have to do much about your eating habits except to make sure that you are getting the right nutrition with enough protein and not too much starch, but no between-meal calories.

But if your weight is up 10 or 12 pounds, along with your larger size, that's a situation that does call for changing your food habits. Perhaps the extra slice of bread with the meals or those two rolls you much before the waiter brings dinner are the cause of your trouble. It could be that bedtime snack. And maybe you have been a little careless with the desserts. Just ask yourself whether you'd rather have that chocolate puff or no puff around your waist? As I have indicated, five or even 10 pounds are nothing to get exercised about. But five can get you 25 on the same food habits. And at that rate you won't be able to squeeze into a Size 20.

Regardless of weight, straining at the seams calls for a spot of exercise. Figures can change from one-half to a whole size larger without the addition of any weight. First you get soft, then you get the spread. Usually this is around the waist and across the hips. Here are two toner-uppers for those two spots:

Sit on floor with legs stretched wide apart, hands on hips. Pull up strongly through midriff. Use waist as a pivot and circle sharply to one side, down, around and up. Reverse and circle slowly in opposite direction. Continue six counts in all.

Lie face downward on floor, stretched to full extension with legs and arms straight on floor. Raise right arm from shoulder and left leg from hip as you move head and shoulder up and back. Stretch! Repeat with left arm, right leg. Continue six counts.

The Teen-Age Boy Who Owns a Car

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

About the strongest urge the boy has to quit school and go to work is to earn enough to buy a car. This temptation would be removed if the boy knew beforehand that his parents would not sign the necessary papers for him to buy a car. Thousands of soft-hearted parents are literally inducing their boys under 18, to own a car when they have no more need of it, as a rule, than of a powder puff.

Since those at this age are the most dangerous drivers, the accidental injuries and property damages involved may throw a heavy burden on the parents, in addition to the added perils to the public, and hazards to the boy physically and morally.

Though the youngster buys the car and even pays for the liability insurance, he may soon run into debt for repairs. But what really happens is that he can't wait even for his first pay check. He must have the car right away. His parents make the down payment, and ten chances to one, the next and last.

Instead of saving a good portion of his earnings, the lad will use it up on repairs and gas for running this car. Besides, when money gets short, he will get it out of his parents in some way. Or, together with other youngsters with jalopies, he may be tempted to steal parts and tires, or practice in the art of syphoning gas from other people's cars.

Any county judge can cite you scores of cases in which youths, many from so-called fine homes, have yielded to such temptations.

Apropos of some of the foregoing is the following from a widow who for 13 years has been left alone to bring up three children now 17, 15, 14. She writes: "My eldest son has never once helped me financially. I have helped him to make a payment, the first, on a car as he did not have enough to make it in order to buy this car. That was $130. Now the car has been sold for repairs and it still has not been all paid for from the original owner."

Why in the world would any parent make a payment on a car for a child of such age under such conditions? How could a parent who would do so expect any financial aid from her son?

You and I, of course, can easily guess why that mother acted so unwisely. We can be sure it was against her better judgment. She let that boy wheedle it out of her, probably making herself believe she was being kind to him.

But we hardly should blame this boy for his selfishness. He no doubt was growing that way for years. His parents probably always denied themselves in order to gratify his wishes, and his wishes, even his demands on them, just naturally grew.

This is in keeping with the accepted ideal and practice: "Children first in all things." When we swing back to more sensible ways, it will be, "Children first, where their health and morals are concerned", in other respects, "Parents first." Certainly it should be "Parents first" with the family car, and this for the child's own moral good.

Rozsa Says the Movies Talk Too Much; Eythe Gets New Contract, Pay Doubled

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 26 (AP) — Talk, talk, talk, moans Miklos Rozsa, the movies talk too much.

Rozsa by rights should be three times as Oscar-jittery as Gregory Peck, Ray Milland, Cornel Wilde, Gene Kelly and Bing Crosby. The short, gray-haired Budapest native, who looks like a musician should look, holds the record of being nominated thrice for an academy award—for his scores of "The Lost Week-End," "Spellbound" and his Chopin adaptation in "A Song to Remember."

But instead of praising the industry, as most Oscar nominees are doing this week, he is lashing at the screen for shooting off its mouth too much.

"Pictures are too talky," he said. "Music can say more than dialogue in a great many films." He cited "Lost Wee-End" as an example of how music conveys more meaning than words.

"We wanted people to know what was going on in Milland's mind as a drunk," he said. "He couldn't keep saying 'I'm drunk. I'm drunk. I'm drunk.' If he talked, people would laugh, because drunks have always been comic characters on the screen. The music told what dialogue could never hope to achieve."

Music was most effective in psychological films, but even Westerns could be made more effective with good scores.

With a courage belying his usual film roles, Edward Everett Horton took a reflective glance over his lengthy screen career, now that he is playing in his 99th picture, "The Ghost Goes Wild." Since his debut in 1918, he worked for every film company, including three in England. He has appeared with nearly every leading actress, and without regard as to the consequences, he names his three superlatives:

Most beautiful: Olivia De Havilland.

Best dramatic acress: Katharine Hepburn.

Best comedienne: Joan Blondell.

William Eythe gets a new contract from 20th-Century Fox which doubles his salary. . . . Kennan Wynn returned from the big town with two shiners, said to have been caused by his sassing some New York mobster in a night club. . . . The poor Maria Montez-Pierre Aumont baby will hear Spanish from Maria, French from Jean and English from everyone else. She probably won't be able to get a word in anyway.

British Surgeons Re-Root Faulty Teeth

LONDON — Faulty teeth have been extracted and replaced to root again by British surgeons of St. Mary's, famous London hospital and birthplace of penicillin.

This revolutionary treatment in dentistry has been successfully applied to abscesses and root infection. In one case, the tooth was extracted, the infected ends of the roots were cut off, the pulp canals filled, and the tooth replaced in the sockets which had been treated with penicillin to receive them.

Five months after the tooth had been replaced, bone had reformed round the roots. The tooth was so firm that it was made to carry a missing neighboring tooth on a bridge.

Petticoat Lane Sunday Bazaar Has Color of Summer Fair

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Feb. 27 (CP)—"Keep your 'ands in your pockets," smilingly warned a grey-haired woman vendor at the entry to Petticoat Lane, London's "Sunday bazaar," as her sharp eyes spotted greenhorns.

At first glance this badly-blitzed street in London's East End looks like the crowded midway of a Canadian fair on a pre-war Labor Day. The games and rides are missing but Petticoat Lane has its own sideshows.

Pushcarts, piled high with practically anything from accordions to wrist watches and presided over by salesmen who may be British 8th Army veterans still in uniform, or old men and women, line the street handle to handle.

Londoners, in search of bargains, push and shove their way between them, some licking ice cream cones, others munching sandwiches, and many just staring.

Petticoat Lane is open for business Sundays only from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Each week it echoes with the sound of feet thudding on the bricked road and the hoarse pleas of the salesmen.

A broad-shouldered, big-chested giant in a turtle-necked sweater tells a throng about the evils of weight-lifting and oher forms of strenuous exercise.

"Ten years ago I predicted so-and-so would die. Well, he died, didn't he?" he demands.

More Controls for British Farmers

Two months ago the National Farmers Union issued a report containing its recommendations for Britain's postwar agriculture, and the Minister of Agriculture, Tom Williams, outlined the Government's agricultural policy in the House of Commons. The substantial agreement between the two statements is significant because the N.F.U. is the largest and most important association of Britain's farmers.

The proposals of both the N.F.U. and the Government show the influence of wartime developments, and both recognize the importance of the recommendations of the Hot Springs Conference and the part Britain can play in alleviating the present world food shortage.

The objective of the Government's policy is to promote a healthy and efficient agriculture capable of producing the required food at the lowest price consistent with (a) adequate remuneration and decent living conditions for farmers and workers, and (b) a reasonable return on capital invested. The N.F.U. agrees, holding that permanent policy should aim at attaining the country's full agricultural potential. Both agree on the need for assured markets and guaranteed prices, and the Government lays down a comprehensive plan to achieve them by annual price reviews for both crops and livestock and by price-fixing well in advance of harvests.

The Union recognizes its responsibility to promote better marketing methods to eliminate unnecessary costs between producer and consumer, and recommends that the postwar market should be dealt with in separate commodities, a suggestion contained in the Government proposals.

Both the N.F.U. and the Government are agreed that legislation is required for wage-fixing machinery in the light of wartime experience, and both are convinced of the need to raise the agricultural laborer's standard of living. They also favor the continuance of such wartime controls as would be useful now, and the abandonment of the rest.

The N.F.U. recommends security of tenure for all tenant farmers, and advocates short-term credits and relief from death duties if the relief is applied to the maintenance and development of agricultural estates. It suggests a Government survey to see that all farms are properly equipped with buildings and cottages, and maintains that landlords should provide good roads and enough pure water.

The Government envisages much stricter control to promote efficient farming. It will dispossess both farmers and landowners who, after a period of supervision are unable to or will not improve their production; it will seek powers to acquire land by voluntary negotiation or compulsory means where public ownership is the only way to secure full production. This, of course, does not mean confiscation or the wholesale nationalization of the land; it does mean that the Government may acquire a certain amount of land, paying the owner a fair price. This is in line with the wartime policy adopted in 1941, but it adds the safeguard for the farmer of appeal to an independent tribunal, instead of only to the Minister of Agriculture.

The National Farmers Union and other interested bodies will have the opportunity of expressing their opinions on the Government's policy, since the Minister expressed his intention of working out the details "in full consultation with the organizations representative of the landowners, farmers and workers."

The Peace Treaty With Siam

The first peace agreement of World War II to be concluded was that between the United Kingdom and Siam. India was associated with the agreement, and Australia is making a similar one. The United States was not a party because she was not at war with Siam, but the U.S. State Department was consulted.

The provisions are generous, considering Siam's position as an enemy of Britain since January, 1942. They do not involve any encroachment on the political and economic independence of Siam. However, some measures of control were deemed necessary to ensure the thorough extirpation of Japanese interests from the Siamese economy, with which they had become intricately connected during the war. These controls will be used not to bind the Siamese but to oust the Japanese.

Britain also demands "most favored nation" treatment, which is in no sense exclusive, and a return to agreements such as the Commercial Treaty of 1937 and the Civil Aviation agreement, which were freely negotiated at the time. All security agreements will come under the U.N.O.

According to the terms, Siam undertakes to make available as soon as possible up to one and one-half million tons of rice free, out of the surplus now available in Siam, and to export at a fair price all other surplus Siamese rice up to, at the latest, September 1st, 1947. The rice is to be allocated by an Allied Board, the Combined Food Board, on which the United States is represented. The free gift may prove to be hard on the Siamese economy, but will not affect the Siamese diet. As a result of Siam's participation in the war, other countries of South East Asia have suffered far worse privation and dislocation.

Press Comment

MAYBE HE SHOULD PATENT IT

It's amazing in how many different forms a bright idea can turn up. Perhaps it may be almost unrecognizable in its new guise, but basically it remains the same. Take the one suggested the other day by Mrs. Roosevelt for stretching flour stocks.

Eleanor proposes that loaves of bread be made smaller. Then there would be less of it to go stale and be thrown away.

British Columbians will spot that one instantaneously. It's the one the Liquor Control Board put into practice long ago. When liquor stocks go short, somebody invented the 25-ounce quart. Sure enough, there was no wastage at all. Not at those prices.

Which brings us to suggest that Mr. Kennedy could solve this butter shortage in the twinkling of an eye, without a lot of fuss about coupons and due dates. If he was commissioner of that commodity, he'd decree that a pound of butter should be 12 ounces or 10. Then he might stretch the supply a bit farther by adding a little water and putting a false bottom in the carton.

Everybody would get a "pound" of "butter" as per ration date. The price, of course, would remain the same—if it didn't go higher. —Vancouver Sun.

LITTLE MAN'S COUNTRY

It is very easy for those who consistently attack private enterprise to label it all as "big business." That is a catch-phrase that is consistently used in "reform" propaganda, and which has a convincing sound until one examines the true facts. Some such examination has been made by Mr. Louis L. Lang, President of the Mutual Life of Canada, in his annual address to the policy-holders.

Actually, as Mr. Lang points out, this is a country of little firms. Of 14,240 of them employing more than five employees, 76 per cent have less than 50 people working for them. The percentage of those employing less than 100 is 87.

It is interesting to note the stress that has been laid on this situation by the President of a great insurance company. Such companies are "big money", in that they handle, invest and distribute huge sums. Their basic concern, however, is not for mastodonic finance. They represent the little man and the little firm, with whom the bulk of their business is done. Mr. Lang speaks of insurance as the bulwark of free enterprise, but it is the free enterprise of the ordinary citizen, to whom the preservation of our sound system is vital.—Windsor Star.

ANTI-SEMITISM STILL FLOURISHES

Eight months after the end of the war against National Socialism, anti-Semitism still flourishes in Europe and especially in Poland, where the insecurity of their life is forcing Jews to emigrate, even into Germany where they may hope to find better conditions.

It is a fantastic fact that the Poles, who of all people should have learned the evils of racial persecution, should now persecute the Jews; but there appears to be a spontaneous and violent outbreak of anti-Semitism among certain sections of the Polish population which the Polish Government is powerless to prevent.—London Spectator.

Stage New "Quit Manchuria Parade"

By SPENCER MOOSA

CHUNGKING, Feb. 26 (AP)—Thousands of Chinese students, among them contingents of Boy Scouts and Girl Guides, marched through Chungking today in a fresh "quit Manchuria" demonstration against Russia.

Similar demonstrations were reported from several other Chinese cities—latest in several days of such parades. At Chengtu, all students joined in a one-day protest strike.

The People's Daily meantime reported "severe fighting" between Government and Communist troops at Changwu, about 60 miles Northwest of Mukden, and at Faku, about 30 miles North of Mukden.

However, it was expected that arrangements for cessation of this and other localized fighting in Manchuria would be made at a scheduled meeting of Gen. Chang Chih-Chung and Gen. Chou En Lai, representing the Government and Communists, respectively.

The Chinese Ambassador to Moscow, P. S. Foo, arrived in Chungking unheralded Sunday to report on his Manchuria discussions with Soviet authorities.

Despite President Chiang Kai-Shek's call to the nation not to be too much concerned for the Manchurian situation, it was obvious there was no abatement in agitation for the withdrawal of Soviet forces.

Arrangements were completed for Gen. Marshall, United States envoy, and generals Chang and Chou to make a tour of inspection. With Peiping as the first stop, the party is expected to leave tomorrow or Thursday.

Kootenay-Columbia Basin Snowfall Not Abnormal but Snow Cover Had Highest Water Content of 7 Years

While residents of the Kootenay-Columbia Basin, even oldtimers, have imagined this territory has had an abnormal snowfall this Winter, and have talked about "a real old-fashioned Winter," data from the Dominion Meteorological Service and from the B.C. Water Rights Branch do not entirely bear out this wide-spread impression.

Snowfall for the three months ending Jan. 31, plus rainfall for the last two of those months—as any November rainfall is presumed to have run off—while 157 per cent of the precipitation for the corresponding period last Winter, was only 4 per cent in excess of normal.

The meteorological readings from which this result was calculated were from the seven stations of Fernie, Kimberley, Nelson, Deer Park, Revelstoke, Glacier, and Field—all of which have snow courses of the Water Rights Branch adjacent, Kimberley having two.

PRECIPITATION

In terms of water, the three months snowfall and two Winter months rainfall reported for these stations and two others in the Kootenay-Columbia Basin gave the following figures:

	Inches of Water	Percentage of average
Fernie	13.57	111
Kimberley	2.87	121
Kaslo	7.35	91
Nelson	6.30	77
Deer Park	3.84	97
Revelstoke	19.47	155
Cranberry Lake	3.11	78
Glacier	26.53	122
Field	5.42	85

WATER CONTENT OF COVER

Correlated figures for the eight snow courses in the Basin, on measurements by the Water Rights Branch, show the inches of water contained in each snow course as of Feb. 1, as follows:

	Feb. 1, 1946	Year ago
Fernie	7.6	3.7
Kimberley (20)	6.4	—
Kimberley (20A)	9.7	—
Nelson	11.8	7.4
Farron	12.2	7.4
Revelstoke	10.2	7.6
Glacier	18.9	10.6
Field	6.0	3.0

Thus the snow cover on the snow courses in the Kootenay-Columbia Basin is pretty nearly double of what it was a year ago, as to water content.

In these tables, Deer Park meteorological station, which is on lake level, and Farron snow course, which is on the divide on the Gold Range, are associated. The association between the meteological stations and the snow courses in their areas is evidently only geographical, and has no relation to elevation. Thus, in the case of Nelson, the associated snow course has several inches more of water than the combined three months snowfall and two months rainfall in the city of Nelson. An instance of opposite character is the case of Revelstoke, where the precipitation as thus calculated was nearly double of the water content of the snow course in that general area.

The snow courses average, however, a water content much exceeding the presipitation, as here recorded.

CONTENT HIGH

Says the Water Rights Branch: "The eight snow courses shown in this table give an average water content of 10.3 inches. Six of these courses, not including those at Kimberley, give an average of 11.1 inches which is 171 per cent of a six-year normal, 168 per cent of 1945, and 115 per cent of that of the high year, 1943. The greatest depth on the ground was at Glacier, being 5 feet 10 inches, at elevation 4100. Observation at all courses except one showed that there was no frost in the ground beneath the snow cover."

Temperature readings at six representative stations adjacent to the snow courses showed an average of one degree above normal for November to January inclusive.

From the figures of water content given by the Water Rights Branch, indications are good for a much larger run-off than last year, provided the remaining Winter months and the Spring have average precipitation.

First of Three Nazi Prisoners of War Goes on Trial for Murder

MEDICINE HAT, Alta., Feb. 26 (CP)—Canada's first murder trial of a prisoner-of-war moved into its second day today with the Crown prepared to call more witnesses against Sgt. Werner Schwalb, 30.

Two other former members of the German Afrika Korps, L.-Cpl. Johannes Wittinger, 30, and Pte. Adolf Kratz, 24, also are charged with murder in the death of 42-year-old August Plaszek, a fellow-prisoner in the Medicine Hat prisoner-of-war camp, on July 22, 1943. Trial of each man will be held separately following a ruling on this point yesterday by Chief Justice W. R. Howson of the Alberta Supreme Court, in charge of the case being heard by a six-man jury.

Plaszek's body was found hanging from an improvised scaffold in a camp recreation hall after an afternoon of what witnesses described as rioting during the lengthy preliminary hearing last October.

H. J. Wilson, K.C., of Edmonton, Deputy Alberta Attorney-General who is conducting the prosecution, told the court yesterday he would show that Schwalb had taken an active part in the rioting and the hanging.

In granting application of Defence Counsel L. S. Turcotte of Lethbridge for separate trials Chief Justice Howson said the accused would receive "the fairest trial that anybody can get."

Wittinger and Kratz were excluded from the courtroom as trial of Schwalb opened with the prisoner listening intently to a commentary provided by Capt. C. J. Ryan, official court interpreter.

Only witness heard yesterday were Lieut. D. J. Storey and Lieut. J. L. Reid, engineer works officer and camp engineer respectively, who described the layout of the camp and particularly the buildings in which Plaszek lived and was killed. Photographs taken by Con. J. M. Campbell of the R.C.M.P. were entered as exhibits.

Schwalb's trial is expected to last about a week.

HOMAGE IS PAID TO BUFFALO BILL

DENVER, Feb. 26 (AP)—Hundreds of Westerners gathered on the towering summit of Lookout Mountain today and paid homage to one of the old West's most fabulous figures—Col. William F. (Buffalo Bill) Cody.

Mounted cowboys and a colorful party of Sioux Indians stood in silence, as Boy Scouts placed a wreath on Buffalo Bill's grave.

The ceremony commemorated the 100th birthday anniversary of the famous hunter, scout and showman.

Among the Indians who took part in the anniversary observance was Sioux Chief Black Horse II, son of the original Chief Black Horse, who, for more than three decades, toured the United States and Europe with Cody's wild West show.

BRITAIN'S 10,000 "CLIPPIES" STEPPING DOWN FOR MEN

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Feb. 26 (CP)—Britain's clippies, whose sometimes impatient "Come along please!" with as much feminine emphasis on the "please" as possible, sent battle-trained Canadian servicemen and millions of others scampering on and off the country's buses during wartime, are stepping down.

Recruited in July, 1940, to help out over-burdened transportation services when men switched from the conductors' blue uniform to battle-dress, they have played a major part in the home-front fight while their husbands and, in some cases, sons, shouldered arms.

The Clippies, now making way for returned men, stuck to their positions during the Battle of Britain, their only shelter from bombs during working hours the thin roofs of buses in which they worked. Their 48-hour week was divided into early, middle and late shifts and absenteeism due to enemy action was minor.

Salary ranged from £3 18s 4d ($18) for country buses to £5 8s 6d. for city buses.

Ten thousand women and girls helped "man" the buses. They came from every quarter of the British Isles and included mannequins, nurses, factory girls, shop assistants and clerks.

Oldtime Miners Feel Diamond Drilling Would Resurrect Rossland Mines; Scoff at Doubters

By SIDNEY NORMAN

TORONTO—Every now and then, out of the West comes a whisper that Consolidated Smelters is contemplating reopening of the once-great, copper-gold mines of old Rossland, perched high on Red Mountain, seven miles uphill from Trail smelter on the mighty Columbia, where, 56 years ago, the foundations were laid for the present nationwide mining movement in Dominion. The subject cropped up again in a letter received a few days ago.

The excitement which followed development of the Le Roi, War Eagle, Iron Mask, Centre Star, Nickle Plate, Jumbo, White Bear and a dozen other properties in that most cosmopolitan of camps, was worldwide, though now but a page of ancient history to those who lead the present activity from coast-to-coast. It was almost concident with equally important developments in the Boundary Creek district, where Granby Copper, and the Grand Forks smelter and B.C. Copper and its smelter at Greenwood were born. A little further east, in the Selkirk Mountains, the Slocan district and its rich silver-lead orebodies were making history and the foundations were laid by F. Augustus Heinze, the Montana copper magnate, for the greatest smelting works in the British Empire at Trail.

Those were revolutionary days in the history of the Northwest. The City of Spokane received its first big push toward metropolitanism; a famous citizen of Spokane was sent to adorn the United States Senate with a fortune won from the Le Roi; railroads were built through the Crow's Nest Pass by the Canadian Pacific and the Great Northern system built from Spokane north across the line, another feeder to the southern end of Kootenay Lake and the Kaslo-Slocan narrow-guage to get in on the great passenger and freight business created.

$1 MILLION A MILE

Looking over the musty records of those days, we find that it was in the fall of 1923, more than 22 years ago, that this writer made his last of several visits to the underground workings of the Le Roi, War Eagle, Centre Star, Josie and White Bear mines, which had by that time been connected by drifts and raises under consolidated ownership of Smelters. The first trip was made in 1897, 48 years ago, in company of Harold Kingsmill, then a neophyte miner, later general manager of Gerro de Pasco Copper Co., in Peru, a native son of Ontario who "made good" in a big way and returned to his last resting place in his native town of Walkerton about a year ago. The writer well remembers that first trip; the "hump" at the 300-foot level of the Le Roi and the sensation experienced when the wildly revolving bucket tipped over on its wooden skids and dropped almost perpendicularly. At the time of the last visit, the Rossland miners mentioned in this paragraph had produced $85 million or $1 million for each of the 85 miles of workings Incidently that is just about the total sum produced by the sensationally rich gold camp at Goldfield, Nevada, which caused one of the famous stampedes of United States in the first decade of this century.

DEEPEST LEVEL AT 1650

Piloted by Fred S. Peters, last manager of the mines, the 1923 party went down the Centre Star shaft to the 800 level, which corresponded with the Le Roi 1200; thence west to Le Roi shaft and down it to the lowest level at 1650 feet and then on further west, over a mile from the Centre Star shaft, to vicinity of White Bear shaft, with which connection had been made by raise. In a stope Northwest of the White Bear fault, we saw a body of ore, 400 feet long, proved for 240 feet upward and 260 feet downward, with width of 20 feet, still showing in east and west faces. We were told that copper values ran from 4 to 5 per cent, with fair values in gold. In other parts of the workings, copper values were lower, Peters said, but gold values higher, sometimes reaching sensational figures.

Soon after that visit, operations were suspended, the mines allowed to flood and the massive machinery at surface, most powerful and expensive in Canada at the time, given over to rust and decay. Ten or 12 years ago, old employees of the smelting company were granted leases in areas above the Black Bear adit and took out many hundreds of thousands of dollars from pillars and other easily-accessible sections above water level. Those leases were cancelled a year or so later and the copper furnace at Trail dismantled. Rossland is now practically a suburb of Trail, 2000 or 3000 feet lower on the West bank of the Columbia, connected by switchback railway and fine highway.

There has been talk of a drainage tunnel from the smelting site, but nothing has so far come of it. Old-timers scoff at the idea that the mines have been bottomed at less than 2000 feet and point to depths of close to 7000 feet reached at Kirkland Lake. Systematic diamond drilling, but little resorted to in the early days, and complete re-survey of possibilities would, many believe, mean resurrection of the old camp, though it would cost money to unwater and rehabilitate 85 miles of connected workings.

Urge Farmers to Order Help

OTTAWA—"Place your order for farm help now" is the advice being given by the Dominion Department of Labor to farmers all over Canada.

The message is going out to farmers individually by means of a letter signed by Humphrey Mitchell, Minister of Labour, and Arthur MacNamara, Deputy Minister of Labour. The letter refers to the shortage of farm labour during the war years and predicts that with the probable expansion of peacetime activities in other industries it will still be difficult to secure experienced help this season.

"Because of this possibility we would urge you to employ labour that may be available now," the letter states. "Not only will increased winter work help reduce your labour requirements during the busy spring and summer months, but you will be more likely to have efficient and steady help familiar with your operations at those times when you need it most." With the letter an order form is provided which farmers are urged to complete and take or send to the nearest local office of the National Employment Service or the nearest Agricultural Service indicating particulars of their labour requirements.

Commenting on the farm labour situation for 1946, Mr. MacNamara said: "We are prepared to do everything possible through the Dominion-Provincial Farm Labour Program and the National Employment Service to see that labour is available where and when it is needed for the 1946 crop. Between 350,000 and 400,000 agricultural workers were taken off farms during the war years, and no doubt a good many of these workers will be going back. Farm wages are much higher now than they were before the war, and some workers have been figuring out after their experience as city dwellers that, given a reasonable standard of farm wages they would be better off on the farm from a monetary point of view than at work now available to them in industrial centres. What appeals to this group of people is of course year round farm activity with good accomodation and we are appealing to farmers to let us know where these opportunities exist."

Fan Interest Keen in Revival of Indianapolis Grind

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 26 (AP) — The Indianapolis Motor Speedway, used only for a few test runs since 1941, is having its face lifted in a $250,000 renovation and improvement program.

President Wilbur Shaw and his staff haven't reported on ticket sales for the 500-mile race May 30 except to say their clerks are swamped with mail from fans eager to pay $3 to $12 for pasteboards.

The track proper was reconditioned last November for tire tests and won't need much attention except replacement of some "apron" material on turns, so the speedway crew can concentrate on preparations for the paying customers.

Only five cars have been entered formally for 1946 but speedway veteran Cliff Bergere, who plans a school for new drivers, predicts at least 50 cars will compete.

One of the novelties being groomed for the grind is a projected two-engine entry of L. J. (Lou) Gageol of Kent, O. A four-cylinder engine will drive the front set of wheels and another will power the rear set. The driver will sit between the motors.

38-Year-Old Luke Confident of Good Ball Year

CHICAGO, Feb. 26 (AP) — Shortstop Lucius Benjamin Appling of Chicago White Sox is ready to try for his third American League batting title in 10 years, confident at 38 he won't find post-war pitching too tough.

Luke, enroute from his Dunwoodie, Ga., home to the Sox training camp at Pasadena, Calif., said here today he is primed for his first full season since he entered the Army in 1943.

Winner of League hitting laurels in 1943 with .328 and 1936 with .388, Appling was discharged from service last season in time to play 18 games and bat a lively .362.

"Yeah, I know that Bob Feller and the rest of those good young throwers will be bearing down again," drawled the easy-going Georgian, "but don't forget they got old as fast as I did in service. I'll get along, although I reckon I'll hit a little better than I'll field."

PRINCETON, B. C., Feb. 26 (CP) —Tom Mobraaten of Vancouver, Canadian and Olympic ski jumping star, and two other experienced skiers left Princeton today on the first ski trip ever attempted from Princeton to Hope, 100 miles away.

SPORTS FALLACIES by MARGERY MILLER

"Babe is not Mildred Didrikson's nickname.

For several weeks after the star athelete was born, her mother could not decide what to name her. While trying to make up her mind, she called her daughter simply "Babe."

Finally, Mrs. Didrikson decided to name the latest addition to the family Mildred. But she couldn't get used to calling her that. Neither could the rest of the family.

Mrs. Didrikson thought of a way to get out of her dilemma. She gave Mildred a middle name—Babe.

So the full name is Mildred Babe Didrikson.

LIKES YANKS' STIRNWEISS

WEST PLAM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 26 (AP)—Connie Mack, a gentleman who doesn't usually go in for high finance, said today he's willing to "go pretty strong" for New York Yankees' George Stirnweiss.

But, added the 83-year-old manager of Philadelphia Athletics, "not if they want $1,000,000."

Since Joe Gordon returned to the Yankees, the rumor mart has been buzzing that Manager Joe McCarthy of the Yanks is planning to sell or trade Stirnweiss.

The former University of North Carolina football star would be just the man to fit into the Athletics' post-war infield plans, Mack said, adding, however, that the Yanks "shouldn't let a fellow like that go even if Gordon turns out to be just as good as he ever was."

Mack, who about this time of year usually talks optimistically about chances for his team, is on the pessimistic side. But in 1931, the last time the A's won the American League flag, Mack reported in Spring training that he didn't think the Athletics would do too well.

His major problem at this stage is second base. Benny McCoy, the high-priced free agent back from the navy, hasn't impressed during the early Spring workouts, and Irv Hall of last year's eighth-place club is not regarded as a standout at the keystone sack.

TORONTO, Feb. 26 (CP) — A crowd of 12,622 in Maple Leaf Gardens tonight saw Toronto St. Michael's College wallop the Galt Red Wings 8-3 in the first of their best-of-seven playoff series in the O.H.A. Junior "A" Division. The second game will be at Galt on Thursday night.

Nelson Rink Scored 12 Wins, Four Losses at Lethbridge; Find Keen Interest in July 'Spiel and Civic

H. A. D. Greenwood's Nelson rink was one of three out of 71 entered in the Lethbridge Shirtsleeve Bonspiel to capture two prizes, winning second prize in the Eaton event and fourth in the Ellison.

The Greenwood entry chalked up 12 wins and four losses in the 'spiel, while Jack Young's rink scored four wins and four losses.

The Nelson curlers were enthusiastic about their reception at Lethbridge, and said they were deluged with enquiries about the Summer Bonspiel and the Civic Centre. The Bonspiel officials went out of their way to look after the Nelson entries and interest in their progress was general.

All eight curlers were invited to Rotary and Kinsmen Club meetings, where they underwent a heavy barrage of questions about Nelson's July event and the Civic. Alderman T. S. Shorthouse was the guest speaker at the Rotary meeting, outlining activities and operation of the Civic Centre. At the Kinsmen meeting they met all the National Kinsmen officers.

Following Ald. Shorthouse's speech, a Lethbridge Herald editor, H. Long, stated that he would be visiting Nelson with the purpose of inspecting the Civic. Lethbridge is planning to build a similar building.

BEATEN BY ONLY 2 RINKS

The Greenwood rink was beaten only by two rinks, both from Calgary. The Blow rink of Calgary defeated Greenwood three times, twice on the last rock. After a slow start, the Nelson rink hoisted its record from two wins and two losses at one stage, to 10 wins and two losses when they clicked in eight straight games, to go into two semi-finals.

Saturday morning they lost their first semi-final game to Blow of Calgary and won another semi from a Lethbridge rink, then were knocked out by Jack Hutton of Calgary. They had beaten Hutton the night before in the quarter finals of the Ellison trophy.

They ran into a busy program Friday when they curled five games, winning all. The 'spiel was run 21 hours a day, rinks winding up games about 3:30 a.m. One of the rinks Greenwood took was the Kennedy entry from Staveley, former British Consol champion.

On the Greenwood rink were J. C. Muir, lead, C. J. Hughes, second, T. H. Bourque, third, and H. A. D. Greenwood, skip, while on the Young rink were Jim Madden, lead, Ald. Shorthouse, second, Walter Buckworth, third and Jack Young, skip.

CANADA VEHICLE OUTPUT 8495, MONTH

OTTAWA, Feb. 26 (CP) — Production of motor vehicles in Canada in January was 8,495 units, compared with 5,997 in December and 13,745 units in January, 1945, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today. The January output included 1,391 passenger models and 7,104 commercial vehicles.

Market Trends . . .

NEW YORK, Feb. 26 (AP)—A nervous stock market rallied and retreated at intervals with volume relatively heavy on the downside and lighter during comeback periods.

WINNIPEG—Rye futures ranged from five cents lower to five cents higher at the close of trading in the coarse grains futures on the grain exchange. May closed at $2.47 asked and July $2.39½ asked.

October showed a firmer trend than other months on buying attributed to shippers which sound offerings light and closed at $1.83⅞-1.84⅛.

Export business was limited to 500,000 bushels of wheat for shipment to the United Kingdom.

CHICAGO—May rye rallied near the close in somewhat indifferent trading.

At the opening commission houses absorbed local trader's offerings and a gain of about a cent was marked up. Later the five-cent daily limit break in May and July rye at Winnipeg caused a local reaction, but the strength of deferred contracts at Winnipeg brought on mild buying here.

Oats held about steady in light trade. Wheat, corn and barley held at ceilings, with the trading pits deserted most of the day.

Wheat, corn and oats closed at their respective ceilings, $1.80½, $1.18½ and $1.22½, oats were unchanged to ⅛ lower, rye was unchanged to 2; higher.

VANCOUVER — Mines slipped badly on the stock exchange while oils and industrials were off slightly. Sales were 86,000 shares.

MONTREAL—Declines were in the majority in adjustments in prices on the stock exchange and curb market up to the fifth hour with some strong spots in the plus minority.

TORONTO—Weakness persisted in the exchange market and all four index groups closed down. Trading was lighter than usual and the aggregate turnover was down to about 1,700,000 shares.

MONTREAL (CP) — Trading w... along steady to higher levels g... erally.

A number of the Dominion Government issues, Victory Loans and Provincials were in demand at b... ter prices. B.C. Power 4's were improved.

There was an attendance of Salmo and city people at funeral services for John Charles Lindquist, Nelson and district resident since 1910, in Thompson Funeral Home Tuesday afternoon. There was also a large representation of his fellow workers from Rotter's Lumber Camp, Salmo.

Rev. D. N. Ericson of the Evangelical Mission Covenant Church officiated. Hymns chosen were "Rock of Ages", "Lead Kindly Light" and "Jesus Keep Me Near the Cross". Mrs. J. A. Fraser was organist.

Three of the pallbearers, W. Gretchin, James Fraser and Claud Onson are Salmo men and J. Swanson, Ole Olson and P. Norberg of Nelson.

Mr. Lindquist died in Vancouver Wednesday.

Tells Organization of Peacetime Army

VANCOUVER, Feb. 26 (CP) — The organization of the stream-lined peacetime Canadian Army was outlined by Brig. E. C. Plow at a luncheon given in his honor yesterday by the Vancouver branch of the Royal Military College Club of Canada.

To meet new conditions the order of battle will be changed and the new army will consist of six divisions. The army will be divided into three sections: active, reserve, and supplementary reserve. The reserve will correspond with the pre-war militia while the supplementary reserve will consist mainly of specialists such as communications and catering personnel.

Brig. Plow asked the support of employers in allowing members of the reserve army sufficient time off from their work to enable them to take their training.

Laird Advocates Provincial Action if Dominion Fails in Vets' Problems

VICTORIA, Feb. 26 (CP) —"The provincial government should "force" the Dominion authorities to some decision in respect to the Cawston bench lands, urgently needed by returned men for small holdings, Dr. R. R. Laird, (CLN-Similkameen) said today during debate on the throne speech in the British Columbia Legislature.

"The Ottawa government should come to some decision on the following questions:

"1. Are portions of the Indian land going to be made available for settlement by servicemen?

"2. When will the question be settled as to whether water is to be made available from the Similkameen River to irrigate the Cawston bench lands?

"3. If international complications are withholding water needed for the above irrigation projects, is there any other water available?

"If the lands prove to be useless for the settlement of veterans or anyone else—if veterans do not wish to utilize them—let us make the information public, and soon."

SCENERY AMAZED WAR PRISONER

Dr. Laird, who lost a leg at Dieppe and was taken prisoner by the Germans, praised W. A. McAdam, agent-general in London, England, for favors received while a prisoner of war. Together with the parcels, he said, were many pamphlets on British Columbia and other prisoners of war reading this literature and viewing the scenes therein, "could not bring themselves to believe that such a wonderful country existed."

While the veterans' problems were mainly a Federal responsibility, the legislature should take the lead if Ottawa does not act, he continued.

The Similkameen member criticised the provincial government's treatment of Penticton's application to borrow $185,000.

"Penticton was given permission to borrow only $100,000. That amount alone was needed for roads in a city that increased in population from 4400 in 1930 to 9000 now. Their borrowing capacity is $860,000 over their surplus and I contend that authority to curb their borrowing should be vested in the minister, not in any civil servant," he said.

Dr. Laird also urged that a provincial government building be erected at Penticton "instead of having provincial offices scattered all over the city."

HIS ROADS WORST

Dealing with roads, Dr. Laird challenged the assertion yesterday of Randolph Harding (CCF-Kaslo-Slocan) that roads in the latter riding were the worst in British Columbia.

"I have driven my car 11,000 miles," he said. "Of this total 5000 miles were driven between Hedley and Princeton and my car isn't worth a tenth of its cost today. We fly over roads in my riding, not drive, owing to the bumps and holes. While I am in support of the minister's policy of improving arterial roads, something must be done in the Similkameen, especially on the side roads.

"Some of the farmers lose 50 per cent of their tomato crops in transit over these roads and from 10 to 15 per cent of their fruit crops. The condition should be remedied before the next fruit harvest is garnered."

Trail School Estimates Increase $18,389

TRAIL, B.C., Feb. 26 — School Board estimates for Trail schools in 1946, passed by the City Council last night, totalled $196,818.63, an increase of $18,389 over the previous year. There has been a total increase of school costs of over $45,000 in the past four years.

Major increases were in teachers' salaries, teaching supplies, repairs and alterations. Due to the new salary schedule, and an increase in the number of teachers, salaries were up almost $11,000. Teachers' supplies were increased by $4000 while the item for repairs and alterations increased by $2500.

Because of the uncertainty about the Cameron Report the estimates were passed without items of revenue being included. The municipality had no information as to the sources of revenue under a new education tax act so that no estimate of revenues could be included. It was necessary to conform to the law that the estimates be passed immediately, so the Council decided to pass only on expenditure and await word from the Provincial Government on a question of revenue.

Actual cost of operations for the schools in 1945 was given by the board as $179,884.05, compared with an estimated expenditure of $178,429.27.

4th Anniversary of Kimberley Rotary Club Is Celebrated

KIMBERLEY, B.C. — Rotarians, wives and friends celebrated the 4th anniversary of the Kimberley Rotary Club with a banquet and dance in the K.P. Hall. President R. B. MacLeod welcomed the guests. Short addresses were given by President Brown of Cranbrook Rotary and P. McIntyre of the Trail Club. Guest speaker of the evening was British Vice Consul G. J. Ridland of Spokane.

The toast program included "The King" by President R. B. MacLeod, "Rotary International" Garnet Blaine, "The Visitors" E. D. Taylor, "The Ladies" M. A. Thomas, "Response" Mrs. A. D. Corker.

Mr. Ridland in his address spoke of the changing world, distances being travelled in hours which previously required days. Rotary International organization will be instrumental in helping to create a better understanding among the nations of the world. Rotary is active in 70 countries, with a membership of 260,000 which comprises 560 clubs.

The British Commonwealth of Nations alone resisted the might of Germany and Italy for over a year, 1940-41. A small margin separated the world from disaster following Dunkirk. Winston Churchill rallied the peoples of the Empire and gave hope to invaded countries.

The people of Britain responded to the emergency by working long hours in mine, mill and factory, to provide equipment to carry on the fight. He spoke of British post war problems dealing with export trade. Due to sale of investments in other countries, losses of shipping, etc., export trade must be increased 75 per cent over 1939.

The musical program included Bill Haines, Miss Frances Park, Mrs. C. Swan and the Rotary Sextette, R. B. MacLeod, E. D. Taylor, M. A. Thomas, W. Raynor, A. Jones, and C. Wilson.

Doenitz Files Picture Fate of U-Boats

By DANIEL DE LUCE

NUERNBERG, Feb. 26 (AP) — Secret files of Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz showed tonight that losses suffered by his "wolf packs" at the height of German submarine warfare in 1942 rose 300 per cent over the monthly average since the start of the war.

In crucial 1942, the U-boat fleet went all-out in a campaign that threatened—but failed to achieve—four objectives:

To starve the British Isles, block the North Cape supply route to the Soviet Union, cut off British operations in Africa and paralyze coastal shipping along the United States' Eastern seaboard.

Anglo-American naval and air forces struck back.

In November, 1942, 15 of a total of 63 U-boats on raiding missions were destroyed, a loss of 23 per cent, Doenitz's staff notes showed. October losses of 13 were approximately 20 per cent.

Doenitz's statistics gave this authentic picture of German submarine strength:

At the end of 1942, the German Navy possessed 210 "front" submarines available for combat operations. In addition, there were 53 U-boats for instruction purposes at naval schools. One hundred nineteen U-boats were being built or tested.

The Allied North African landings in November, 1942, obviously caught Doenitz napping. Some 40 U-boats were in the North Atlantic hundreds of miles from possible intervention. Fifteen West of Gibraltar were hastily ordered, however, to seek out Allied convoys which thus far had been completely overlooked.

At the end of 1942, Doenitz's U-boat achievements were substantial enough to persuade Hitler to promote him to the supreme command of the navy in January, 1943, replacing the "big-ship" advocate, Grand Admiral Erich Raeder. But Doenitz faced bleak prospects.

Although U-boat construction had top priority over all other forms of naval construction, even Doenitz, "the great desroyer," could not get all the materials he needed from the Reich government.
