Crews at Work at Air Disaster Crash

Unknown How Many of 128 Bodies Will Be Found; Investigations Under Way

By FRANK WETZEL

GRAND CANYON, Ariz. (AP)—Recovery operations and investigations began Monday at the grim scene of history's worst commercial air disaster — the death of all 128 persons aboard two airliners which presumably collided in flight.

There were indications that increased demands would be made for a quick, complete revamping of air traffic control procedures.

A TWA Superconstallation and a United Air Lines DC-7 smashed into jagged buttes less than a mile apart in the southeastern tip of the Grand Canyon.

Remains of some of the Constellation's victims were brought out in five large sacks.

It was uncertain how many bodies could be recovered. The only way of reaching the mangled wreckage is by helicopter, and 30-knot winds developed in the canyon, making the air treacherously turbulent for light planes.

Leaders of recovery operations said Monday the dangerous conditions may make it necessary for their crews and investigators to remain at the crash scene overnight.

WRECKAGE "A MESS"

The first recovery crews to make the perilous flight to the site of the scattered wreckage described it as "a mess" and said "There isn't much left."

The job of removing bodies, even from the more accessible peak into which the TWA plane crashed, is complicated by probably the most rugged terrain in the United States.

A National Park service official said it would be impossible for mountain climbers to reach the United wreckage.

Investigators for the Civil Aeronautics Board, both airlines and the Airline Pilots Association sought evidence which might show the cause of the tragedy.

BLAME AIR DRAFT

Virtually all observers at the crash scene agreed the planes must have collided at about 21,000 feet while both were flying from Los Angeles to the East. The Constellation was bound for Kansas City; the DC-7 for New York.

R. P. Parshall of the C. A. B. bureau of safety investigation, Washington, said the possibility is being considered that the crafts were bounced together by terrific updrafts and downdrafts of thunderstorm clouds which hovered over the Canyon Saturday.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The wrecking of two airliners in flight over Arizona with loss of 128 lives centred greater attention Monday on the problem of traffic control over United States airways.

A special government advisory group said early this year the airways are becoming so crowded and so inadequately regulated that airliners have brushes with death an average of four times daily.

The government has embarked on a five-year program for improving air navigation aids and traffic control facilities.

Overall cost of the program is estimated at $246,000,000.

Former Nelsonite Dies Aged 92

REVELTSOKE, B.C. (CP) — Mrs. Sarah Elizabeth English, a resident of Revelstoke for 45 years, died during the weekend at the age of 92.

A native of Quebec, she lived in Nelson before moving here.

Parliament Monday

Speaker Rene Beaudoin submitted his resignation, to take effect "at the pleasure of the ouse;" he hoped it would be "as soon as possible."

John Diefenbaker (PC-Prince Albert) asked appointment of a royal commission to study the lot of Canada's 155,000 Indians.

Citizenship Minister Pickersgill introduced amendments giving Indians more liberal liquor rights provided their provinces and bands agree.

The government announced plans to develop a system of licencing for operators of Canada's growing fleet of pleasure power boats.

Opposition leader Drew led demands for upward adjustment to pensions of retired civil servants and armed forces and RCMP personnel.

12 B.C. Fatalities On Holiday Weekend

At least 12 persons met violent deaths in British Columbia during the Dominion Day holiday weekend. Seven died in traffic accidents, two were drowned and a woman was run over by a train.

Mrs. Martha Kelly, 40, was struck by an oncoming train when she wandered on to the Canadian Pacific Railway track at Laidlaw, 86 miles east of Vancouver.

At Prince Rupert, Dennis Lipscombe, 46, died in hospital after his car struck the end of a bridge and somersaulted 15 feet into a creek.

In the Kootenay Lawrence E. Young of Edmonton died when his sports car plunged into the Elk River near Fernie and at Ainsworth hotsprings George Popoff of Appledale died suddenly, presumably of a heart attack.

On Vancover Island, 70-year-old Mrs. Ina Ludvigson was struck by a car on Campbell River road.

Harvey Haines Hanley, 36, was killed when his car crashed into a steel power pole in Vancouver.

A Vancouver motorcyclist, George Truett, died when he was involved in a collision with a car two miles east of Kelowna.

Seventeen-year-old Trevor Proteau of Youbou died from injuries he received when a car full of teenagers rolled over twice near Nanaimo.

Police withheld the name of a 49-year-old man who died in a two-car collision at Prince George until they can locate relatives.

George Dediluke, 75, of Aldergrove was struck by a car while riding his bicycle about 36 miles east of Vancouver.

James McDonald Willis, 23, of Vancouver, was drowned while skin-diving in Cultus Lake, about 65 miles east of Vancouver.

Raymond Dubeau, also 23, of Maillardville, was drowned when the boat in which he was crossing Trout Lake, 70 miles east of Vancouver, capsized.

Across Canada 82 were killed in accidents.

Forty-nine persons died in traffic mishaps, 28 were drowned and five died in miscellaneous accidents.

One Life Claimed in District Accidents; Two Hospitalized

Holiday weekend motor accidents in the Kootenay took one life at Fernie Sunday while two were hospitalized in five accidents near Nelson.

Tragedy marred the Calgary Sports Car Club' rally through East Kootenay Sunday.

Lawrence E. Young of Edmonton, driving a 1955 sports car, one of 30 cars taking part in the tour, was drowned when his car plunged into the Elk River four miles west of Fernie.

On the circle tour from Calgary, through the Crow's Nest Pass and up the Banff-Windermere Highway and back, Young was trapped behind the wheel and drowned.

A passenger, Harold Charlie L'Hoir of Edmonton, escaped from the crumpled vehicle and climbed out of the water.

RCMP said the accident occurred when the Young car passed a vehicle and a wheel hit a soft shoulder.

H. M. Anderson of Nelson was treated at Kootenay Lake General Hospital over the weekend for minor cuts and abrasions which he suffered in an auto accident near Gray Creek early Saturday morning. The car, which he was driving alone, received extensive damage.

CHEST INJURIES

Another accident early Saturday morning at Willow Point sent Gerald H. McCarthy of Creston to Kootenay Lake General Hospital with chest injuries and facial lacerations.

Three of five weekend accidents occurred on Granite Road near Nelson.

A car driven by a 17-year-old Nelson juvenile was completely demolished when it caught the shoulder of the road while turning a corner and overturned one mile from Nelson.

RCMP spent several hours searching for the driver and two other juvenile passengers, who left the scene of the accident. The accident occurred at 4 a.m. Saturday morning. RCMP are continuing investigation.

An accident four miles south of Nelson on Granite Road at 9:15 Sunday night resulted in over $100 damage to a car driven by Simund Tobiasson of Trail. No injuries were suffered when the car struck a cow on the road.

A charge of impaired driving has been laid against Mike Strelaff of Shoreacres, who was driving a one-half ton truck which collided with a car driven by Harry F. Neighbor of Nelson on Granite Road at 3 a.m. Sunday.

Both the truck and the car received extensive damage, but no injuries were reported. Strelaff's truck has been impounded by RCMP.

Wants to Keep Wife in Shape

ALMONDBURY, Eng. (AP) —Harry Jubb, 72, said Monday he was taking his 70-year-old wife Nellie on a 300-mile bicycle tour to help keep her in condition.

"When a woman reached 70," he explained, "she begins to feel a bit out of condition. This will be the best holiday we've ever had, and if it doesn't keep Nellie fit, nothing will."

Harry, a cycling enthusiast since 1911, said he and his wife would start their trip on a tandem bicycle, riding through the counties of Yorkshire and Derbyshire.

Victoria Jaycees Erect Totem Pole At Winnipeg

WINNIPEG (CP) — Victoria delegates to the annual Junior Chamber of Commerce of Canada convention here erected Monday what they claim "is the second highest totem pole in Canada" in front of a main Winnipeg hotel.

About 12 delegates, men and women dressed and painted in Indian costumes, whooped and danced around a thin colored pole decorated with streamers. They said the totem was 55 feet high.

James S. Kelly, 34, of Moncton, N.B., Monday withdrew his nomination for president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce of Canada leaving only one candidate in the running for the post.

His withdrawal leaves G. L. (Flip) Filippelli, 32-year-old research engineer from Trail, B.C., as the only nominee. Final nominations, however, do not close until 3:15 p.m. today.

A quiet-spoken 29-year-old Jaycee of Hamilton edged two other contestants Monday to win the Junior Chamber of Commerce of Canada national oratorical award.

The presentation to Bill Harrris, at the Junior Chamber's annual convention here, broke a firm grip Quebec entries have held on the trophy for the last four years.

ESCAPE TO WEST

BERLIN (Reuters)—A total of 11,500 East Germans fled to West Berlin this month, refugee officials said. During the first six months of 1956, 85,000 refugees were registered in West Berlin.

British Auto Workers Sign For Jobless Aid

BIRMINGHAM, Eng. (Reuters—This Midland industrial city Monday witnessed a sight Britain has been spared for two decades—the mass registration for government aid of unemployed men.

Some 6000 automobile workers dismissed Friday by the British Motor Corporation crowded Birmingham district employment exchanges to sign on for government help until they can get new jobs.

The biggest rush was a suburban exchange near the Austin motor works—part of the BMC group—where 3000 men were laid off because of falling domestic and overseas sales.

Police controlled the lineups and special staff and emergency centres helped cope with the rush of jobless men.

Special accommodation was arranged during the weekend to deal with this small "army" of unemployed who have been among Britain's best-paid workers since the Second World War.

STRIKE CALLS HEARD

A wave of calls for strike action among BMC's remaining 50,000 employees to protest the dismissals are under study. One group of 3000 who walked off their jobs at the same time as last Friday's mass dismissals voted to return to work today pending discussions with management "with a view to improving the present situation."

Shop stewards declared they were "profoundly shocked by the diabolical action" of BMC in firing the men without consulting the unions first.

Despite demands for strike action, the 15 unions involved are considering a fresh approach to management in an effort to avert a walkout that would sweep the entire BMC organization.

Seek To Revive Steel Talks

By JOHN MOODY

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The federal government has arranged separate meetings Thursday with the U. S. steel industry and union leaders in an effort to revive contract negotiations in the two-day old steel strike.

The move came Monday as railroads and other carriers largely dependent on steel industry business posted layoff notices affecting thousands of employees. They will be idle along with 650,000 United Steelworkers members for the duration of the walkout.

Joseph Finnegan, federal mediation service director, said he will meet in Pittsburgh with representatives of each side in the deadlock.

The government action indicated plainly there is no hope for the negotiators to resume contract talks before the July 4 holiday, Wednesday.

SOME VCs RETURN HOME, OTHERS GO SIGHT-SEEING

LONDON (CP)—A number of Canadian Victoria Cross winners, wives and relatives left Monday night by air for Montreal, after week-long celebrations marking the 100th anniversary of the Commonwealth's highest award for valor.

But many remained, some to visit friends in Britain and Ireland, others to do sightseeing on the Continent.

Sgt. Ernest (Smoky) Smith of New Westminster, B.C., and his wife, Esther, considered their most treasured souvenir to be autographs of Earl Attlee and Prime Minister Eden.

Charles W. Train of Vancouver is looking forward to Sept. 15 when his old First World War outfit, the London Scottish, will hold a reunion dinner for its members who sailed on that night in 1914 for France.

2½-Hour Riot Sees Nine Arrested

ASBURY PARK, N.J. (AP) — Nine youths were under arrest Monday and three were in hospital in the wake of a riot which swiled around Convention all on the Boardwalk for 2½ hours during a Saturday night dance.

Police assigned to the huge amusement pier tried to quell the row after it started from an unknown cause. But it spilled over into the warm outdoors with fisticuffs on the beach, the Boardwalk and Ocean Avenue, a six-lane street along the oceanfront, jammed with weekend traffic.

About 200 persons took part in the scrap but another 75,000 spectators milled about the area during the melee and the Monmouth county police radio broadcast a riot alarm.

DOLLAR LOWER

NEW YORK (AP)—The Canadian dollar was 1-32 lower at a premium of 1 29-32 per cent in terms of U.S. funds. The pound sterling was ⅛ lower at $2.79 23-32.

Beaudoin Resigns as Speaker of Commons

Expected to Reply to Harsh Criticism Hurled at Him During Pipeline Debate

OTTAWA (CP) — Speaker Rene Beaudoin, under opposition fire for more than a month, submitted his resignation Monday from the Commons chair "to gain my full freedom of speech."

The resignation likely will be acted on next Monday when Prime Minister St. Laurent returns from London.

"I place now my resignation before the House to take effect at the pleasure of the House." Mr. Beaudoin is the 23rd to hold that high office since confederation.

"I would wish that it be accepted as soon as possible."

His announcement, made in a calm, steady voice, hit the Commons like a bombshell. But there was no reply from opposition ranks which a month ago tried unsuccessfully to censure him for his actions during the stormy pipeline debate.

"Never was I motivated by any partisan feelings and my conscience is perfectly clear," he said.

That was his reply to repeated Progressive Conservative and CCF charges that he allowed the government to break Commons rules to get its controversial gas pipeline legislation passed by a June 7 deadline.

The resignation request was unprecedented. Only five times since Confederation has the speaker's chair—normally filled by one man for the life of a parliament — been vacated in mid-term. Those occasions were due to death or ill health.

It is understood Mr. Beaudoin will continue to sit as a private member and seek reelection at the next election in the Quebec constituency of Vaudruil - Soulanges which he has represented since 1945.

The Commons, which unanimously chose Mr. Beaudoin as speaker on Nov. 12, 1953, will have to decide whether to accept the resignation. The government's stand will not be determined until Mr. St. Laurent returns next weekend from the Commonwealth Prime Minister's conference.

But Speaker Beaudoin's expressed desire to step down doubtless will have a major bearing on the decision.

Rene Jutras, 42-year-old Liberal member for Provencher in Mahitoba, is being mentioned as a possible successor to maintain the tradition that the speakership alternates between French and English speaking members each parliament.

It was learned Speaker Beaudoin made his decision during the weekend and told the government Monday morning. Trade Minister Howe, acting prime minister, informed Mr. St. Laurent by telephone.

RENE BEAUDOIN
Speaker Of The House

Mr. Beaudoin read from a hand written text in delivering his 15-minute statement.

The only reply came from Mr. Howe, who thanked Mr. Beaudoin for "your forbearance in not pressing the matter you have raised in the absence of the prime minister.

". . . when he arrived on Monday, he, as leader of the House of Commons, will deal with the situation that the speaker has raised at this time."

Speaker Beaudoin's reference to regaining "my full freedom of speech" through resignation raises the possibility he may take the first opportunity in the Commons to reply to repeated accusations made against him by opposition members.

During the pipeline debate he weathered bitter opposition criticism, including one day when shouting, fist-shaking Conservative and CCF members revolted against his authority with cries of "Puppet," "Dictator," and "Garroting of Parliament."

Out of that day stemmed a censure motion by Opposition leader Drew charging the Speaker with "subordinating the rights of the House to the will of the government."

BLAST ROCKS A-LABORATORY

Nine Employees Injured; 300 Examined

NEW YORK (AP) — A double explosion shattered a secret atomic laboratory Monday. Three hundred employees and rescue workers faced examinations in a routine check against radioactive contamination.

The blast of thorium metal scrap injured nine employees—one of them a woman. It also set off a chain reaction of frantic queries from nuclear-conscious New Yorkers.

Experts said the explosion posed no radioactive threat outside the plant itself. The Atomic Energy Commission went further. It said in a statement:

"There is no possibility that anyone could have taken in a measurable amount of thorium unless he was in the room where the blast occurred or entered it a few minutes after the explosion.

"Clean-up operations are being carried out without danger to plant personnel or the community."

Wealthy British Woman Slain

NEWMARKET, England (Reuters) — One of the wealthiest women in Britian, Miss Rachel Mary Parsons, 71, was found battered to death Monday at her home in thus centre of British horseracing.

Miss Parsons, who lived alone, was known as the "grand old lady of British racing" and had a string of about 20 horses worth some £50,000.

She inherited a fortune worth £800,000 from her father, the late Sir Charles Parsons, inventor of the marine steam turbine.

Steel Strike May Hit Industries

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian steel-using industries will be seriously affected by the United States steel strike, Murray Cotterill, United Steelworkers of America CLC spokesman, said Sunday.

He predicted that some industries may have to halt production altogether, while others could be forced to slow down. Canada produces two-thirds of the steel it uses and imports the balance from the U.S.

VICE LAWS TOO EASY, HOUSE TOLD

LONDON (Reuters) — A running campaign against central London's flagrant prostitution industry by outraged London newspapers moved into the House of Commons Monday.

Opposition members pegged a vice cleanup demand to a debate on the home office, the department responsible for police and the maintenance of law.

Home Secretary Gwlym Lloyd-George complained that police are powerless to act against prostitutes and their agents. "The law as it stands is too easy to get round," he conceded.

LONDON (Reuters) — Telephone calls between London and Montreal or Toronto as clear as local ones came a step nearer Monday when the British cable ship Monarch sailed from London to lay 1,300 miles of a second trans-Atlantic telephone cable.

Two Killed in Crossing Mishap

QUALICUM BEACH, B.C. (CP) — Two women were killed in a train-car crash at Bowser Crossing five miles north of Qualicum Beach, Monday afternoon.

A man was seriously injured and is in Comox Hospital. Names of the victims were withheld pending notification of kin.

Lenin's Will Read; Urged Stalin Ouster

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Russia's Communist leadership Monday released a decree on "elimination of the personality cult" denying that Stalinism arose from anything basically undemocratic in Soviet society.

But it said the Soviet people had accepted "certain limitations of democracy" as "temporary sacrifices."

The full extent of Stalin's crimes was not known until after the arrest of Lavrenti Beria in 1953, according to the central committee decree, published in Pravda, Communist party newspaper.

Stalin's "violations" grew out of the "intrigues of foreign capitalist encirclement" and the "struggle against spies and diversionists." Then in his latter years Stalin came to believe in his own infallibility, and circumstances made it impossible to remove him.

The decree, which ran more than 7,000 words, quoted Lenin's will—published here Saturday after being suppressed in Russia for 33 years—urging Stalin's replacement by somebody "more loyal and less capricious."

Western observers saw the decree as an attempt to allay doubts at home and abroad and justify the present leaders' failure to denounce Stalin during his lifetime.

Terrified Poles Try to Escape Purge; 1000 Killed in Revolt

By SEYMOUR TOPPING

BERLIN (AP) — Poland slammed down an iron curtain on the eastern German frontier Monday to block rebel workers seeking to flee the terror of a Communist purge in Poznan.

Western travellers arriving from Poznan reported young Polish workers trying desperately to get through the Red security ring around the city in a westward break for freedom.

In Vienna, a compilation of eyewitnesses estimates received by Western diplomatic sources put the dead from last week's three-day riot at "close to 1000." This was far greater than the 200 to 600 estimate of Western businessmen arriving here and the figure announced by the Polish government of 48 killed and 270 wounded.

The Warsaw government ordered thousands of troops and police to hunt refugees from Poznan in automobiles and trains rolling westward.

Tank-led army units patrolled the Oder river along the frontier of Red-ruled East Germany athwart the road to West Berlin. Poznan lies 155 miles east of isolated Berlin.

THOUSANDS JAILED

One Western traveller said police in Poznan have jailed thousands of workers who took part in the "bread and freedom" insurrection. He added: "The purge seems to be of gigantic size."

The principal source of news from Poznan continued to be travellers arriving in Berlin. They refused to be identified by name because of Eastern connections.

One such arrival described Poznan as a "frightened and terrorized city." He said police "just get anybody looking suspicious and are searching everywhere for the revolt leaders.

"The population is terrorized because secret police are haunting the streets. Informers are everywhere. Nobody trusts even his close neighbor."

A hint that the Poznan purge may be hitting the Communist hierarchy itself came from ADN, official East German news agency. It said:

"Officials of the Polish United Workers' Communist party are meeting to investigate carefully why the Poznan party organization displayed such a lack of vigilance and was not prepared to counteract the planned provocation in time."

MONTREAL (CP)—Six-year-old Patricia Ann Sheldon knew what she wanted to give her teacher when she graduated from Grade I. She wasn't sure, however, how she could work it.

But she told the flower shop proprietor when she placed her order for flowers that while she didn't have any money now, she'd be a working girl some day. Would that do?

It would.

A delievry man brought round a wrapped, fresh orchid "with the compliments of the house to gladden the heart of a little girl."

Patricia Ann presented the orchid to Kay Murphy, her teacher, at commencement exercises at St. Brandon's School.

"My first orchid," said Miss Murphy, "I'll have to find a date for myself tonight for sure."

NOTTINGHAM, Eng. (AP)—A lion attacked his trainer on the stage of the crowded Empire Theatre Saturday night while two nude showgirls posed inside the cage.

The trainer, 51-year-old Nicholas Trifodis, was clawed on the hand before he drove the lion off.

The girls moved not a muscle until the curtain rang down. Nudes are legal on the British stage only so long as they keep still.

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP)—Is a slug of whisky really an antidote for snakebite?

The National Science Foundation has given Arizona State College at Tempe $2000 to seek the answer. So far the research has been promising.

Dr. Herbert L. Stahnke, director of the college's poisonous animals research laboratory, injected a double dose of scorpion venom into a rat. Then he gave the rat a fat dose of scotch. The rat recovered.

Similar experiments are planned with the venom of gila monsters, rattlesnakes and black widow spiders.

Barbara Reid Reigns Queen of Salmo Day

SALMO — Miss Barbara Reid, sponsored by the Salmo Rotary Club, reigned as queen over Salmo's Dominion Day celebrations Monday.

Crowned by retiring queen, Miss Elaine Larsen, her princesses were Misses Barbara Rotter and Jean Black.

Trail softball nine ended on top of the softball tournament which continued throughout the day, by downing the Thrums Indians 5-3 in the final game. They reached the finals by defeating Salmo 9-8 and Montrose 9-8 while Thrums downed Fruitvale 5-0. Salmo won third place in the tournament by edging Fruitvale 8-6.

A parade led by the Trail Pipe Band under pipe major Bill Burns preceded children's races and adult contests which occupied the morning program.

The Salmo fire truck took first prize in the decorated truck competition while decorated bicycle prizes went to Harry Peterson and Lee Hearn, Donna Rotter, Jimmy Wiewort and David Papau, respectively.

Bingo games and concessions were carried on in the afternoon highlighted by the Rotary Club gold rush contest.

The day's events closed with a dance in the hall Monday night

St. Peter's Day Celebrated

Doukhobors from points as far distant as Creston gathered Sunday at Taghum to celebrate St. Peter's Day. The day commemorates the burning of arms by Doukhobors in Russia 61 years ago.

Approximately 350 Doukhobors comprised of groups from Salmo, Brilliant, Shoreacres, Creston, the Slocan Valley and other district settlements were represented.

The celebration began with prayers and a religious service in the morning, after which each group presented its own program of speaking and singing religious and folk songs. Usually Russian games are played, as well as softball and other Canadian games, but this year the various programs were of a length which necessarily curtailed the games.

This was the first year the observance was held at Taghum.

MISSION CITY, B.C. (CP) — Norman Morrison, 14-year-old student at Chemainus Junior High School, Monday won the Western Canada soap box derby championship and a trip to Akron, Ohio.

He will represent Western Canada at the International Soap Box Derby in Akron later this year.

Agostini Beats 48-Year-Old Mark

VANCOUVER (CP)—Trinidad's Mike Agostini clipped two-tenths of a second off a 48-year-old Canadian record in winning the 220-yard open event at the Vancouver police sports meet Monday in 21.2 seconds.

Bobby Kerr set the old record of 21.4 seconds.

Agostini easily defeated Rafael Duke of Victoria and Larry Yakomavitch of Vernon, B.C.

The Vancouver police sports are recognized by the Canadian Amateur Athletic Association.

Bannister Talks To Tracksters

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ST. LAMBERT, Que. (CP) — The fourth annual St. Lambert track and field meet, something of a miniature Olympic show all its own, wound up its two-day stand Saturday with another flock of records and a speech by Dr. Roger Bannister.

Visiting competitors walked off with the outstanding-performance awards.

A special awards committee singled out blonde Jackie Macdonald in the senior women's class and Jack Parrington in the senior men's division. Both are from the Toronto East York club.

Bob Sparks, from Toronto secondary schools, was named the outstanding performer outside of senior competition. Competing in the juvenile division, for boys under 18, Sparks scored a triple in the meet.

Jackie Macdonald broke Canadian records in two field events Saturday. She won the senior women's shot put with a heave of 45 feet, one inch, bettering the old mark of 42 feet, 7¼ inches, and tossed the discus 135 feet, 10½ inches, erasing the old mark of 131 feet, 7 inches.

Parrington was given special recognition for winning both sprints under adverse conditions —head winds and a soft track. He captured the 100-yard dash Friday in 10.1 seconds and the 220 Saturday in 22.5.

WINS THREE EVENTS

Sparks clipped a full second off the juvenile Canadian open and native record of 51.4 in winning the 440-yard run Friday, and completed his outstanding performance Saturday by winning the juvenile mile and half-mile runs.

For the two-day meet, 15 standing records were broken in various events—nine on Saturday—and in addition about a dozen other records became established where none existed officially before.

Dr. Bannister, who first broke the four-minute mile, has been on a visit to Canada and appeared at the meet just before the Saturday afternoon events began.

"There is nothing lacking in my enthusiasm for your cause and I wish you every success in the future," said the famous British miler in expressing appreciation of the work done by the St. Lambert branch of the Canadian Legion and the St. Lambert Community Sports Association.

Both organizations jointly sponsor the annual meet.

"The more you know about track and the people and the performances, the more satisfaction you get from watching it," said Bannister. "I hope that the standard of competition in this and other meets in Canada will steadily rise as every boy gets a chance."

The Bannister Trophy, named in his honor, was presented by Bannister to Jim Irons of the Toronto Olympic Club who won the junior mile Friday night.

Construction Delays . . .

Crowd Roads, Camps On Holiday Weekend

CRANBROOK — Tourist traffic through here on the Southern trans-provincial and international Kingsgate-Radium highways, slightly below normal in June, surged forward over the Dominion Day holiday weekend as Kootenay trippers joined the holiday parade.

Motels and hotels throughout the Kootenays, as elsewhere in B.C., did a roaring business, and streams of cars along routes and long ferry lineups testified to the holiday movement.

At some points delays were caused by highway construction.

Delay is being experienced in three daily closures week days along the Moyie Lake section which is being reconstructed with rock-blasting requirements. This section is part of both East Kootenay main routes. The closures are from 4 to 8 a.m., 9 to 11 a.m., and 11:15 to 1 p.m., and traffic piles up at both ends but travellers are showing patience in the face of these delays, and local travellers have adjusted well to them.

West of the Yahk junction of the Southern Transprovincial highway re-construction is under way from Curzon to Goatfell, and most of the road from Yahk to Kingsgate on the international route is also under construction but there is no closure on either.

Northward between Radium and Golden a section of highway in Edgewater vicinity is being rebuilt. There is no construction under way between Cranbrook and Crowsnest, with existing excellent surfaced highway, and no work is being done from Cranbrook to Radium. No start is so far indicated on the planned reconstruction of the link road between the Southern Transprovincial highway at Elko and Roosville on the Montana boundary and normal traffic is using this road.

Charge Nursing Schools Using Students for Labor Should Close

WINNIPEG — A nursing authority from the U. S. delivered a blunt appraisal of educational progress while the Canadian Nurses' Association considered plans to evaluate schools of nursing in Canada.

Miss Mildred Schwier, director of the diploma and associate degree for the National League for Nursing at New York told the biennial meeting of the association that there are barriers to improvement in both Canada and the United States.

She questioned whether hospital boards, advisory committees, doctors and nurses are prepared to accept fundamental changes in nursing education. Among the changes was the need to accept the student nurse as a learner rather than a worker.

Earlier, a Canadian hospital administrator charged that "many Canadian schools of nursing should be closed."

CLOSE SOME SCHOOLS

Sidney Liswood of the New Mount Sinai Hospital in Toronto told more than 900 delegates at the convention that the association's proposed program of evaluation and possible national accreditation "would hopefully close schools which use student nurses as a source of cheap labor."

The quality of nursing education is jeopardizing the professional status of nurses, he said during a panel discussion.

Miss Schwier said the quality of education for nurses today controls the kind of care patients receive tomorrow. She asked whether future students will be "bored automatons or creative nurses."

Miss Schwier said that in progressive nursing education programs today there is less lecturing, more conferences, greater effort to relate theory and practice and more emphasis for the student nurse on creative problem-solving.

TOO MUCH WORK

"How can the student nurse assigned to six or seven patients to be washed, fed, dressed, medicated, ambulated and recreated, find time to be a student?" she asked.

"If the school of nursing is really a professional school then it assumes the great responsibility of giving its students time and opportunity not only to recognize but also to understand and accept the obligations to society which are incumbent on the profession.

"Some hospital schools have shown a tendency to become fixed in a pattern without regard for their original purpose which governed this pattern. The same subject matter is repeated in the same way year after year. Students nurse diseases and conditions . . . not patients, each one of whom is different with different needs."

Students are assigned to duty in the first year because it is supposed to be maturing, Miss Schwier said. But, she asked, "is that really our reason or is it because this is the easiest way of solving a nursing service problem?"

The junior room had a picnic and the intermediate hiked to the lighthouse, but the senior room kept on for another two miles to the Lime Quarry. Swimming, games, nonsense and eating filled the lovely day and too soon it was time to return to Procter and catch the bus for home.

To Use Baghdad As Site for Atomic Centre

TEHRAN, Iran (Reuters)—Scientists from four Middle East countries are to be trained in the practical application of atomic energy for peaceful purposes under a plan sponsored by Britain.

Britain's offer was made originally to her four Middle Eastern allies in the Baghdad pact—Turkey, Iraq, Pakistan and Iran—at the pact's inaugural meeting in Baghdad last November. The offer was translated into practical details during the second council meeting of the pact, which took place here in April.

FIRST OF ITS KIND

It then was decided to use Baghdad, capital of Iraq, as a site for the atomic training centre. It was agreed the centre should begin its work in January, 1957.

This is perhaps the most imaginative offer of technical co-operation yet made by any west European country to these less advanced countries where millions live poorly and simply as nomads or in desert communities. It will be the first centre of its kind in the Middle East and it will put Baghdad pact states ahead of other Middle Eastern countries in applying atomic energy to industry medicine and agriculture.

Plan Control of Cemetery Prices

VICTORIA (CP) — Prices of cemetery lots and services in British Columbia will come under the public utilities commission following government approval of regulations prepared by the commission.

These provide that every cemetery or crematorium operation must file a schedule of rates with the commission for approval. It must have the commission's permission for any subsequent rate change.

Flat rates are not set out, but every cemetery must make known that approved rates schedule to plot purchasers, and set aside a definite percentage, not less than 35 per cent, for care and maintenance.

Get Plastered For Good Skin

TORONTO (CP)—Getting plastered is cheap, entertaining and good for the complexion, says Louis Du Chemin, a young jack-of-all trades, who arrived from England a couple of weeks ago.

For the last three years he has been thinking the idea may catch on in Canada. "The models like it and it is good for them," he says. "The plaster is invigorating, like a mudpack."

He started his unusual hobby after examining Egyptian death masks while a member of the Archaeological Society in Nottingham, England.

BREATHE THROUGH STRAWS

Mr. Du Chemin says the necessary equipment to make two masks costs about $2. All that is necessary is gauze bandage, plaster of paris and dental plaster, an ointment and two drinking straws.

When a subject turns up his face is smeared with the ointment. The gauze is soaked in hot water and moulded around the face, with only the nostrils protruding. The straws are used to allow the model to breathe while the dental plaster is put on, to a depth of ¼ inch.

When the plaster is dry, in about two minutes, it is peeled off, greased inside with hot ointment and used as a mould for the plaster of paris.

The finished product may be painted or covered with bronze powder.

When he is not making masks, Mr. Du Chemin is working as a bricklayer or a railway dining-car waiter. He hopes his letters of reference will find him a better job so his wife and five children can join him in Canada.

RECEIVES BIBLE

HARROP — At the monthly meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary to Harrop Church Mrs. R. Laidlaw, president, presented Mrs. D. P. Fairbank with a Bible with gratitude from the members for her loyal support during the past six years.

SCHOOL PICNIC

LARDEAU — The annual school closing picnic was held on the beach at Lardeau. A pot luck supper was served and a weiner roast was enjoyed by the children. The teacher, Mrs. P. Bildstein, was presented with a gift.

SOUTH SLOCAN — J. Wallach is a patient in Kootenay Lake General Hospital where he has undergone surgery.

Mrs. Oliver has returned from New Denver where she had been a patient in the hospital.

To Chart Pacific Tides on Model

NANAIMO, B.C. (CP) — The Pacific Biological Station here plans to chart the tides of a 200-mile-long body of water with the use of a cinder-block model 105 by 65 feet.

Officials estimate it would take 200 ships two years or an airplane flying at great height with a color movie camera to plot the tides of Hecate Strait, a body of water separating Queen Charlotte Island from the mainland.

Under direction of technician Terry Terhune and Dr. Nicholas Foffinoff, the model will enable scientists to plot the tides of a 24-hour period within 1½ minutes.

A 110-foot tree spar will be planted in the centre of the model, and a cameraman will film the project while hanging from the pole.

Four feet of water will move through the model, and electronically-controlled iron gates will act on the water to produce actual tidal movements.

Dean Scarfe Who Came to Canada For Elbow Room Moves to Coast

WINNIPEG (CP) — Dean Neville Scarfe, the man who stirred up the educational pot in Manitoba for five years, has left his post as head of the University of Manitoba's teacher-training faculty to join the University of British Columbia.

Dean Scarfe came to Manitoba from the University of London because he wanted more intellectual elbow room. He came with an open mind and applied a keen sense of criticism to the problems that confronted him

Continual prodding at all levels of education helped the dean raise the Manitoban's and Canadian's interest in geography, his favorite subject, audio-visual education, special classes for bright students and increased freedom and responsibility for teachers.

A prolific speechmaker, he made more than 250 talks and public appearances in his five-year-stay here. He was liked by reporters because he injected color into an often dull subject.

FOUND WIDE AUDIENCE

He enjoyed public interest in his activities and found a much wider audience in Canada than he had had in the old country.

Dean Scarfe finds Canada's combination of North American freedom tempered by the "solid worth" of Europe stimulating. He says "people are always saying things I want to argue with."

Some of his arguing points were sloppy, lazy students, slack parental discipline, the present grade system and the parsimonious attitude of school boards.

He also made many iconoclastic suggestions. These included: solving the teacher shortage by having parent-supervised television classes at home; separation of boys and girls in classrooms; throwing most of the text books out of the window; an end to the spending of money on "prison-like monuments" so the saving could be put into the real needs of education.

When Dean Scarfe left Winnipeg he not only took the best wishes of his many friends; he took many of them with him as all of the members of his staff have also gone to the University of British Columbia.

Strawberry Patches should Be Cleaned Up Immediately After Crop Is Harvested

CRESTON — While strawberry picking is in progress throughout the Kootenays at the present time, it will not be long before the crop is off and growers will be cleaning up their patches, J. E. Swales, district horticulturist, has pointed out. Care given to the strawberry patch after the crop has been harvested has an important bearing on the following year's crop. In many instances after the strawberry crop is off the grower is only too anxious to forget his patch for a week or so. However, to bring the plants through the season in the best possible condition it is essential that the Fall clean-up be carried out immediately after the crop is off. The Fall clean-up includes such operations as, mowing the tops, cultivating, applying fertilizer, spraying or dusting for insect and mite control, removal of virus infectel plants and irrigation.

Boy Throws Stone, Ends Up in Hospital

CASTLEGAR — Eight-year-old Walter Konkin is in Trail-Tadanac Hospital because he threw stones at an unidentified object on the railway track here.

The object, thought to have been a railway torpedo, fuses or blasting cap, exploded causing a superficial burns about the lad's face and hands.

Hospital authorities said Friday the boy's condition is satisfactory with no serious injury.

The lad, who was home with his older brothers and sister while his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Konkin were in Vancouver, was walking along the track when he noticed the small object and threw a stone at it. He did not know what the object was. Railway officials and police are investigating.

Nation's Soul in Character of People

It is easy in these days, when the sun of prosperity is shining so brightly over Canada, to look at our widespread wheat fields, our natural resources and our growing industry and believe that these things and riches are the mark of a great nation. All these things are good, and even necessary, and fortune has given them in abundance, but of themselves they do not make a nation, for the soul of a nation is the character of its people.

History, as the Governor-General pointed out in his Dominion Day address, has much to do with the formation of a national character. It is not always a matter of sounding trumpets or inspiring speeches; it is often a day by day change where one happening merges imperceptibly into another and gradually new patterns of life and thought are created. It was so with Canada's history. Once the great battle between the two races was fought to a conclusion on the Plains of Abraham they settled down to make the Canada of today, not with a set design but by carrying on the traditions of their separate races. Both have great traditions and together they have made new traditions. As the Hon. Vincent Massey says we need to remember the quiet efforts of those who loved Canada long ago and did so much for her. We need to remember as he says, that the Crown stands for traditions which belong to all of us; power with justice, splendour with charity, loyalty to laws of nations as well as to the laws of the nation.

And when in his last paragraph the Governor-General said that in Canada, as in the Commonwealth, we often seem to have different and opposing views and interests and that on Dominion Day we should give thanks for the land and the laws which unite in the good and great traditions which have made us one—he is reminding us that despite the illusions of prosperity our fundamental happiness depends on these so-often-forgotten things.

Church Today in Forefront For Peace, Justice – Leadbeater

To The Editor,

Sir: Please allow me to make a few comments on the letter contributed to your editorial column by Mr. F. Martin of Castlegar.

If Mr. Martin thinks that the 10 Commandments are obsolete I would suggest that he break any or all of the 6th, 7th, 8th or 9th and he will soon find out just how obsolete they are. Both the conscience of our people and the law of our land are moulded by these Ten Commandments, even though they may not be as familiar to this generation as they were to previous generations.

The claim that Jesus Christ was the first conscientious objector is rather a sweeping statement. Examples can be found even in more ancient days than those of our Blessed Lord. But the question is, Was Jesus a conscientious objector in the sense that we use these words? He was never called into military service (that is, as far as the Gospel records are concerned) so we have no record of what he would have said under such circumstances. I am sure that Jesus would have had lots to say to those who condemned conscientious objectors, as well as to those who call themselves such. It is also interesting to remember the comment of Jesus respecting the faith of the centurion who came to Him when in need. We must examine the life of Jesus in the light of all that he said and did, not overlooking such words as, Render unto Ceasar the things which are Ceasar's . . . (not a mere reference to the tribute money), and the incident in the temple when Jesus drove out those who polluted the House of God. There is much to be said on both sides.

That the Very Rev. J. O. Anderson of Ottawa spoke in favor of consricption, with or without a conscience clause (I do not know), does not mean that he is speaking for the Church. He certainly was not representing the Church when attending the annual meetings of the Canadian Legion. At that time he was speaking as a private citizen and as a member of the Legion. The Anglican Church of Canada has made no statement in recent years on this matter, although both in World War 1 and 2 the Church was most sympathetic towards conscientious objectors and did all in her power to preserve that right of conscience, at the same time forwarding the wider causes of peace and justice.

It is a very easy thing to accuse the Church of delinquency in this or that, but it is nothing short of blasphemy to refer to her as "the finest blood lust creator which we have." It would be interesting to know something of the person who wrote this nonsense — Mr. Martin quoted it, he did not originate it, although he uses it to make his point or points (I do not know which). Whatever mistakes the Church made in the past, let us not keep harping upon them—it is doubtful if we would have acted otherwise. Today the Church is certainly in the fore-front for peace and justice, and what is more the Church is being listened to and giving leadership. Mr. Martin cannot be aware of what Church leaders are saying (and by this I mean leaders of every denomination). As examples I would like to refer him (and others) to what the Archbishop of Canterbury has said about the Cyprus situation, also what Father Huddleston has said and done in South Africa, as well as what the Church is doing in East Germany. No doubt, Mr. Martin's grandchildren (if he has any) will read about these exploits when studying modern history, but it will be too late to convert grandfather unless he takes note of them now.

Versatile Farmers Duty to Public

(Owen Sound Sun-Times)

The farmer must be a mechanic, a scientist, insofar as fertilizers and disease controls are concerned at least, a veterinarian, a laborer (for there's still plenty of good work involved) and a business man. He must keep accounts, take inventory, study markets, and take on the role of prophet.

Farming has many attractions. There are many who could follow no other life, even though they may protest the advantages of city life. But it is a big job, and one involving very heavy overhead in this day.

A. M., Rossland — Will you please tell me how many calories are in Pepsi-Cola, bottle; ginger ale, bottle; Seven-up, bottle; rye, one ounce; beer, one glass; rum, one ounce?

Ginger ale, one cup, 85 calories; Pepsi-Cola and Seven-up would possibly be about the same; rye, one and half ounces, 150 calories; gin, one-and-half ounces, 120 calories; rum, one-and-half ounces, 150 calories; beer, eight ounces, 120 calories.

C. S., Trail — Has the contract for Salmo-Creston cut-off been awarded? If so, to whom?

The six miles from Creston to summit have been let to P. F. Law, contractors, Cascade, B. C.

J. B., Trail — Could you give me the name of some nurseries that sell evergreen trees? I have tried Eddie's in Vancouver and Sardis. Perhaps there are some around Victoria?

We believe your best plan would be to get in touch with Grizzelle's Greenhouses, 509 Hoover Street; Coventry's Flower Shop, and Greenhouses, 495 Baker Street; Mac's Flower Shop, 345 Baker Street, all of Nelson, who will order any evergreen trees you wish to have. Or try W. A. Knapp, Nursery Stock, 921 Foul Bay, Victoria, B. C.

R.E.B., Edgewood — Would you be able to tell me what the price of strawberries is this year?

The price of strawberries, we have been told, should be around $6.74 a case.

Housewife, Nelson—Is there an easy way to keep scissors reasonably sharp?

Cut up piece of sandpaper every now and again. It works wonders.

Health Plan

The Canadian Medical Association has now placed its weight behind the national government's minimum health insurance scheme.

Enough provincial governments, including Ontario's, now support the plan in principle to indicate that a majority of Canadian public opinion is behind it. Public opinion is no longer the issue. The issue is now the more practical one of an equitable distribution of costs as between the federal and provincial governments, and whether the plan goes far enough.

The demand for hospital and medical services under a national health insurance scheme cannot be accurately known until the plan is actually tried. Certainly, this was the experience in Britain where demand fell off surprisingly after reaching a peak after the introduction of health insurance. Once the facts are known, adjustments as between the federal and provincial governments can be made.

Divorce Reform

The bill which would have removed the granting of divorce from Parliament in the case of Quebec and Newfoundland and transferred the responsibility to the Exchequer Court has again been killed. Senator Walter Aseltine from Saskatchewan, who fathered the bill, does not intend to accept defeat, and will again introduce such a measure.

Annually, Parliament, or rather the Divorce Committee of the Senate, receives and processes through at least 400 divorce bills. The applicants reside in Quebec or Newfoundland, and the number indicates that dissolution of marriages is needed.

The bill this year dealt only with the change with respect to handling divorce, and did not include a broadening of the grounds for divorce, amendments along which line are long overdue.—Moose Jaw Times-Herald.

Archdeacon Recalls Helpfulness, Co-operation of WA During Ministry

The following memoir on the Anglican Woman's Auxiliary in the Kootenay was written by Ven. Archdeacon Fred H. Graham to be read at the 50th anniversary meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Anglican Church in Kelowna in May.

Archdeacon Graham was for 40 years rector of St. Saviour's Church in Nelson and now makes his home in Trail. He wrote the first constitution of the Diocesan Branch of the WA and was of invaluable assistance to the officers and members.

Your president, Mrs. A. T. Horswill, has asked me to address you about the early days of your organization in Kootenay, with special reference to the Diocesan Branch.

It would have been much easier for me to have spoken what I have to say than to write it, but circumstances leave me no option. If I am to say anything at all I must write it and someone else must read it. The disadvantages are many and obvious.

I arrived in Nelson from Montreal on the 10th of January, 1902; and there was one striking difference between then and now; there were no roads. There were some narrow dirt-roads to mines and lumber-camps, but nothing that would be considered a highway today.

All communications were by train or boat, and these were operated almost entirely by the larger corporations. There was little private ownership of means of transportation beyond rowboats or canoes on the water and buggies and express-wagons on the land. The internal combustion engine was just beginning to be used for launches, and the automobile was unknown.

And all this meant that the parishes of the two-year-old Diocese of Kootenay were very much isolated, by today's standards, and there was, of necessity, little diocesan organization beyond the Diocesan Synod, which met, with faithful regularity, every year; largely, no doubt, on this account.

There were no archdeacons or archdeaconries; no rural deans or rural deaneries; and, so far as I know, there was no WA. Certainly there was no Diocesan WA, and so there was no opportunity for the women of our church in the diocese to meet together for united action.

MISSED WA HELP

I came to Nelson and the Diocese of Kootenay from a city parish in Montreal. It was a great change in scene and surroundings; a great change in circumstances and conditions. I had been occupied, for nearly six years in trying to hold together the small congregation of a very large church; I found myself in the centre of an area of about three thousand square miles (much of it I admit, mountain tops), where people of every sort, and from every direction, were settling and forming small but growing communities. And the work that faced me was that of welcoming, gathering, providing and building up. Very much I missed the efficient help of the Woman's Auxiliary (to give it for once its full title) whose services had been of such value in my Montreal pastorate

So when Mrs. Graham joined me later — in the spring of 1902—we made it something devoutly to be wished, and quickly to be attained, that there should be a parochial branch of the WA in Nelson.

The WA was already fairly well established in Eastern Canada, especially in the larger centres; having had its birth in the diocese of Ontario (the Diocese of Ottawa was not formed until 1896 — the same year in which I was inducted as Rector of Trinity Church, later Trinity Memorial Church, Montreal); and owing its life and its fine Christian character to its never-to-be-forgotten foundress, Mrs. Roberta Tilton. You will remember what I said about the isolation of the parishes, especially in regard to women's work. Our beginnings in Kootenay, at any rate in the parish of St. Saviour's and in the formation of the Diocesan Branch, were much affected by this.

I believe there was a Diocesan Branch, at this time, in our parent Diocese of New Westminster. But I am sure that we knew nothing about them, nor they about us; and I am also sure there was no communication between us. Whether this was also true of the Okanagan part of the Diocese I cannot tell you; I simply do not know.

UNDER FAMILIAR WING

So when Mrs. Graham and I, after consultation with some of the more eager of the women of the parish, decided to pull a parochial branch out of the blue (as it were), we naturally turned our faces to the Montreal Diocesan Branch — of which she was already a life member — and felt quite at home under its familiar wing.

We carried on with the same missionary interests which had engaged our work and prayer in upon my memory except for certain salient features of our work; but I know that Bishop Reeve figures largely in the picture, and also the Hay River Mission. Canon Vale, of the latter mission, and many years afterwards, visited us in Nelson (with Mrs. Vale) and it was delightful to hear, at first hand, the story of the institution we had been helping for so many years and to which we had sent large bales, both from Montreal in the East and from Nelson in the West. We continued our association with the Montreal Diocesan Branch in Kootenay.

Of course, as you know, who are gathered at this forty-eighth annual meeting, and are commemorating the jubilee year of your diocesan existence, the Branch—which has meant so much to the life and progress of our church in this corner of the Lord's vineyard—had its beginning in the year 1906.

It is a wonderful record. Fifty years of faithful and diligent service, as a vital and integral part of the great Missionary Enterprise of our Anglican Church of Canada. As I look back to those first days of the Branch's life and ministry, and view in memory the way that God has led us and the blessings he has poured upon us, I feel closely joined with you in devotion and gratitude to Him, who has done all things well; and I join with you also in the prayer that as in the past so in the future His presence and guidance may be always with you and His blessing and wisdom your joy and your reward.

The story of the W.A. in the Diocese of Kootenay, both of the parochial and the Diocesan branches, is largely the story of individual women of the Church. This is true of the Church's Life through all its span, from its pentecostal beginnings. But it was a country of characters. The women, particularly, shared in the isolation of their small communties; mainly they were young, married women, with children clustering around their feet, entirely unaccustomed, many of them, to the conditions of life into which they had been tossed; busy from dawn until long after dusk at tasks for which they had not been trained —tasks which held little attraction, but which were part of their job, and therefore to be faced and learned and mastered. And yet, all honor to them, they made homes, they gave a sound upbringing to their young, and in the doing of all this they (and their husbands) "used hospitality without grudging", preserved the social amenities, and labored earnestly and willingly for their Church. And all this entailed a constant sacrifice of self which made them the strong, hearty, delightful characters that they were.

Of such were the women of* the first branches of the W.A. in Kootenay. When they were good, they were very, very good; and as I review them in a most nostalgic memory, I take off my hat to them, in profound and affectionate regard. Our Lord's words eminently apply to them, "Ye are the salt of the earth."

And so we came to the place where it was not only opportune but essential that we have a Diocesan Branch. And this brings individuals into the picture. A few individuals were outstanding; but there were many others—almost all of them, if memory serves, from East and West Kootenay — who were ardent in interest and active in help. And as I would do hurt to no one's feelings nor omit any from the bede-roll of my treasured fellow-workers in the W.A., and in the formation of the Diocesan Branch, I will content myself with mentioning those only who have some special significance.

Probably the woman in whom the candle of missionary enthusiasm burned most constantly was Mrs. Harry Bird. She was always active, but would take little official part.

SUGGESTED MOTTO

The woman who suggested your Diocesan Motto—"Blessed are ye that sow beside all waters", was Mrs. Colin Cummins (who later lived in Victoria and was organist at St. Matthias Church). I remember well how annoyed she was with me when I asked her whether she desired the word in the motto spelt "sow" or "sew". She merits this remembrance, for it is a fine motto.

Then there was Mrs. Willoughby J. Astley, a very bright spirit who was secretary or treasurer, I think. She was organist in St. Saviour's for many years; and her little Scotch Terrier had a disturbing habit of plopping down on the pedals without warning.

But there was one woman who was outstanding—first in the parochial branch, and afterward in the diocesan — Mrs. Fred Starkey (Matilda). In a sense, a very true sense, she made these branches; and whatever they have of virtue and effective power is largely owing to her initial impetus and vitality.

Following her, as President of your Diocesan Branch, was her companion in the service, Mrs. E. H. H. Applewhaite (Evelyn), a fine example of the pioneer woman to which I have referred.

From its inception in 1906, these two guided the destinies of your Branch and they did a wonderful job and a great service to the Church. May God grant them peace and light and something to accomplish.

I can see them yet; they made *such fine chairmen; their meet*ings were so well conducted; their work so well organized; the Diocese so well served.

And there are others, who came to us later, but have been of notable value. Let me mention three —Mrs. Solly, your late President, who kept in such close touch with the parochial branches and made such very interesting reports.

Mrs. F. V. Harrison, who in her quiet, self-effacing way has given such long and such very faithful service. Mrs. Solly, I hear, cannot be with you at your meeting: this, I know, will be a grievous disappointment to her—as it will be to all of you. But I expect Mrs. Harrison will be present and may I be forgiven by her for suggesting that you give her a grateful round of hearty applause — in which I would wish to be a vociferous sharer. And third, going to the parish of Kaslo, there is my good old friend, Mrs. Henry Beer, with whom, for years and years I had a lnog and heated argument as to whose parish had the first branch, which furnished us (and all our friends) with much harmless amusement. No conclusion was reached, nor ever will be.

All my best wishes. I shall be thinking of you at your Jubilee, and memories—running through fifty years will flood my soul, and probably bedim my eyes.

Elm Flattens Car Kills Seven People

KESWICK, Ont. (CP) — Seven persons, two of them children, died Sunday night when a giant elm tree was blown over by stong winds and crushed their car to within a foot of the ground.

The car was flattened on a side road near this Lake Simcoe town about 40 miles north of Toronto. There were no survivors.

The car was found by Jack eaton, a district motel owner, who said he stopped at the scene just to look "at the big tree".

CRUSHED TO GROUND

"I couldn't see anything under the tree at first," Mr. Heaton said. "Then I saw the car. It was crushed to within a foot of the ground."

As soon as Mr. Heaton saw one of the victim's arms, he hurried to Sutton, about three miles north of here, to get police. It awsn't until he returned to the crash scene an hour later that he learned there were seven persons in the vehicle.

Police said nothing could be done for the victims. They apparently were dead when Mr. Heaton happened on the scene.

The members under the convenership of Mrs. F. Castle will take charge of Tuesday night entertainment until the end of August.

The president thanked Mrs. H. H. Currie and her committee for their work in the Community Chest canvass.

Legion LA Hears Talk On Commandments

Members of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Canadian Legion heard an interesting talk on the Ten Commandments at their June meeting. Guest speaker was Rev. F. D. Wyatt, Anglican clergyman at Cranbrook and padre to the Canadian Legion there.

His text was St. Matthew 22:37 to 40 "Jesus said unto him Thou Shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul and with all thy mind. This is the great and first commandment. And a second like unto it is this Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. On these two commandments hangeth the whole law and the prophets."

Mr. Wyatt went on to say that this was our Lord's answer to the trick question posed by the lawyer "Which is the great commandment in law?" In St. Luke 10 the same incident is reported but in this case it is the lawyer who answers his own question of What shall I do to inherit eternal life? We can ask the same question and we get the same answer, Love.

"The Jews of old were bound by the Ten Commandments and as interpreted by the scribes and Pharisees they were just as hard and as cold as the stone upon which they were written. When we come to the new dispensation in Christ what we have is a living person. We do not worship a Book, but a person and the Bible is only important as it bears witness to God, His revalation to man, and man's response. What we Christians have then is a living and vital spirit which puts life into our Christian obligations and cause the Commandments to come to life.

Therefore in our text we have the supreme command of Love as that which fulfills the teaching of the Mosaic law and the prophets. We must notice that God comes first. So often He is left out and it is true to say that today, people as a whole, do try to fulfill their duty to their neighbor. But as Christians we have a duty to God, and what are we doing about it? We are told to love Him with all our heart, that is with all our feeling when get to know and realize ho wonderful He is. But we must also love Him with our mind, that is with our understanding anl our intelligence. We should be able to give a reason for our faith, why we are a Christian, and even why we belong to a certain Church. Some vague idea about a When we love a person we show belief in God is not good enough. It, it makes us do things for him or her. So likewise we must show our love for God by doing things for Him and seeking to obey His will. That love must be deep. It must be with our soul.

It is the kind that trusts even when we do not or cannot understand. It is similar to that which develops between friends of long standing.

"Actually the command to love is threefold: Love God, love your neighbour (as you) love yourself. The Legion Auxiliary expresses the command to love our neighbour in a very special and definite way. It is connected with our country and for those who died in her service and with those who still need help and assistance because of the sacrifice. As ladies of honor, you have pledged yourselves to preserve all civil liberties of our country and of the world; to inculcate a sense of loyalty to the Crown and nation, to the government and community; you are pledged to make right the master of might; to work for peace and goodwill throughout the world; to safeguard and hand on principles of freedom, justice and democracy; to consecrate and sanctify your fellowship by working together for the good of others; you are pledged to keep alive the memory of the fallen so that their sacrifice and the things for which they died might not be forgotten; to get people to see that the welfare of the children of those who died is a national duty, and to support anything that will help in their training and education; and also help those, the disabled and widows and others who are still in need of help and assistance.

"Let us beware of looking at other people rather than at the principles and ideals to which we are dedicated. So many people make the mistake of comparing themselves with others, and as we take time from each other so we lose the correct time. Therefore, each one must strive her utmost to fulfill the ideals and principles of the Auxiliary, keeping them ever before her and not to fix her attention on someone else and thus attain a false sense of well-being and success. Remember then you pledge as ladies of honor, and keep ever bright those aims and ideals to which you are dedicated as an Auxiliary member and as a Christian.

Former Nurse Enjoys Uranium Prospecting

At 63, Mrs. A. R. Johnston believes that travel and prospecting are the life!

Recently returned from a trip to the Northland with four women friends from her nursing days, Mrs. Johnston is ready now to start out again with "the girls," this time probing the Kootenays for radioactive orebodies.

On July 15 last year the quintette left Calgary and travelled to Edmonton, Dawson Creek and Fairbanks, flying into Whitehorse. They were in Norman Wells after Christmas when the temperature dropped to 65 degrees below zero, and in Aklavik when the thermometers read 45 below.

A nurse in the Aklavik hospital in 1934, Mrs. Johnston found the North had "changed a lot" since the time she was there.

At Yellowknife they picked up a car, and spent considerable time exploring ground with three geiger counters and staking a few claims.

Now Mrs. Johnston is looking forward to summer days in the Kootenay valleys. She loves the outdoors as much as the thrills of prospecting, and says philosophically that "one has to keep active to stay young."

Widowed a year and a half ago, she is staying at present with her niece, Mrs. Ivan Lewis, McQuarrie Avenue.

Much travelled and a remarkable linquist, she served in the First World War as assistant matron with the rank of captain in the Canadian Medical Corps, and in the Second World War as a wing officer in Bomber Ferry Command. She was in South Africa doing intelligence work for the Imperial Government after the First World War, and later travelled to China as an Anglican nursing missionary. She holds her international pilot's licence but has not flown for some time. On her retirement as an employee of the directorate of censorship, Department of National War Services, she was awarded a certificate of service. When on furlough in 1941, she organized the Vancouver Canadian Auxiliary Territorial Service. Her scrapbook contains many clippings of newspaper stories and letters of appreciation of her work.

Howard-Norton Vows Exchanged At Kimberley

KIMBERLEY — Rhea May Norton, daughter of Mrs. Stanley Norton of Wasa Lake, and Arthur Alan Howard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Howard, were principals in a double-ring wedding ceremony performed in Kimberley United Church by Rev. Ray Woollam of Cranbrook United Church. The church was decorated with lilacs and red and white roses, baskets of snowballs and red roses banking the chancel rails.

The bride, who entered on the arm of Mr. G. Olsen, was charming in a strapless gown of nylon tulle with appliqued roses of French lace over satin. The overjacket of French lace was styled with lily point sleeves and a Queen Anne collar. Completing her ensemble were a Queen Anne headdress, a shoulder veil of French lace, a bouquet of gardenias and lily of the valley, and a pearl necklace, a gift from the groom.

Pleasing contrast was provided in the gowns of the attendants, Miss Caroline Whitehead and Miss Ethel Treminer, who wore yellow and lime green gowns respectively, similar in style to the bridal gown. They also wore Queen Anne headdresses, and carried matching bouquets.

Mr. Gordon Howard was his brother's best man, and the ushering duties were carried out by Mr. Carl Howard and Mr. Barry Bennett.

Mrs. J. Jacobson sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "O Promise Me", and organist for the ceremony was Mrs. E. Suart.

Streamers, bells and bouquets of iris, roses and lilies decked the Chapman Camp hall where the reception took place. A four-tiered cake centred the bride's table, and pourers were Mrs. C. Morrison, Mrs. C. Crisford, Mrs. T. Aikman, Mrs. H. Twells, Mrs. B. Redisky, Mrs. W. B. Miller and Mrs. S. James.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Norton chose a teal blue nylon crepe dress, inset with French lace, with soft pink accessories and a corsage of pink carnations. The groom's mother wore a navy blue tailored silk dress with white accessories and a corsage of red carnations.

Mr. D. Manuel of Innisfail, Alta., proposed the toast to the bride. For the guests' entertainment, Mrs. Jacobson sang several songs, and piano selections were played by Mr. F. Alwood, Mr. E. Strike and Mr. G. Howard.

The couple, who will reside in Cranbrook, left on a honeymoon trip to Waterton Lakes. The bride wore a sheath dress of flowered silg, white accessories, and a turquoise nylon tweed coat.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Manuel and Mr. and Mrs. A. Chapman from Merritt.

Busy Season Draws To Close For Junior Hospital Auxiliary

Since the beginning of this year the Junior Hospital Auxiliary has had a busy season. Starting with the fashion show in April, the group held a bake sale in May and two rummage sales in June. The bake sale brought $31 and the two rummage sales raised $71.50. Mrs P. H. Dutton was in charge, helped by Mrs. Erla Shoepffer, Mrs. Marie Goldberg, Miss Gertie Wirsig and Miss Doris Talbot.

At the final meeting of the season in the nurses' home Mrs. V. Hallgren, trophy winner for hairdressing, and Mrs. D. Haigh demonstrated hair styling. Refreshments were served by the Junior Hospital Auxiliary members. Members from the Senior Auxiliary were guests.

All proceeds will be used for furnishings for the old and new hospital.

The Auxiliary regrets that owing to the shortage and expense of strawberries, it will not be able to sponsor the strawberry social at Lakeside Park during the Midsummer Bonspiel as has been the custom for the last two years.

Cranbrook To Inquire About New Hospital

CRANBROOK — Reporting to the Cranbrook hospital board of management for which she was delegate at the recent B.C. Hospital Association meeting, the Sister Superior of the St. Eugene Hospital urged the board to continue its efforts toward official accrediting of its hospital here. This entails maintenance at the hospital of considerably more detailed records than are kept at present, and the board will solicit advice from the medical staff as to most efficient method of adding this service. The Sister Superior reported that official rating of hospitals across the dominion will be an important factor for their financing and operation under the federal health insurance plan.

The board discussed building needs and decided to ask Hon. Eric Martin, provincial minister of health, to send a qualified member of his department here to confer with the board on the procedure and possibility of replacing the present hospital building.

Based on the 1955 budget on which it is still officially operating, the financial statement of St. Eugene Hospital for the past month showed a deficit of $4485.20.

This was the final regular meeting of the board before summer recess, though special meetings may be called by the chairman, C. T. Spence. Present at the June meeting were board members the Sister Superior, Rev. Sister Frances, Rev. Sister Bernadette, new member, Rev. Sister Julienne of Rome, James Gordon, and board member and secretary Mrs. Harold Lyons.

PRINCESS MARGARET HAS LOST FASHION SENSE, WRITER SAYS

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP) — Pretty Princess Margaret, voted among the best dressed women in the world six months ago, was accused Sunday of losing her sense of fashion.

Writing in Reynolds News, style expert Winnifred Munday said:

"Six months ago, after every public appearance, the fashion writers of the world enthused, admired and quoted her as a shining example of immeculate fashion sense.

"Today we see her in head scarves, shapeless mackintoshes (rain coats) cardigan sweaters knotted carelessly over her shoulders, wintry coats a size too big for her.

"What has happened to that famous fashion sense?"

Last January, Princess Margaret and the Duchess of Windsor tied in the New York Dress Institute's list of tfhe world's best dressed women after Grace Kelly and Mrs. William Paley of New York, who shared first-place honors.

KEPT LIST OF SINS

The fashion writer said she has kept a dossier of dress errors committed by Princess Margaret and had checked her memory by examining thousands of recent photographs of the young sister of the Queen.

"Errors stick out in almost every one," she said, "glaring errors."

During the month of June she said Princess Margaret committed the following unforgiveable sins of fashion by wearing:

A flower pot hat covered with flowers — "too fussy."

A silk coat "so tight that it creased at the waist line."

A large silk square scarf, handbag, gloves and fur cape "all clutched in one hand in an untidy jumble."

A wintry top coat "unsuited for a formal silk suit. Here she should have rightly worn her fur cape."

High heeled shoes showing all her toes — "a bad style for anyone but a woman with perfect feet."

Miss Munday said Princess Margaret was too much in the limelight to make fashion errors because "Margaret's fashion is business — our national business."

Shirley Thomas Becomes Bride

AYLMER, Que. (CP) — Shirley Thomas, youthful Canadian horsewoman of international fame, became a bride here Saturday in a ceremony and reception which set this estate-lined community 10 miles northwest of Ottawa agog.

The 20-year-old daughter of Christopher T. Thomas, who has amassed a fortune in cosmetics, married Kenneth Ernest Nelson, 21, son of Capt. Cecil E. Nelson, a master mariner of Vancouver, in Christ Anglican Church here.

The traditional wedding ceremony in the white-decked 114-year-old greystone church was followed by a reception for nearly 600 guests at twin gates, the 52-acre Thomas estate.

Some 225 guests packed the church when the trim, blonde equestrian, wearing an original gown of white silk over taffeta with a cathedral train, repeated vows with her dark-haired groom before Rev. James G. Bovington.

ORIGINAL GOWNS

The wedding party included seven bride's attendants dressed in crisp bouffant floor-length gowns, a groom's man and five ushers in formal morning clothes.

Original gowns were worn by the mothers of the bride and groom.

Following the ceremony guests from Canada, the United States and Australia moved to the reception at the estate to sip champagne at a buffet dinner.

Thousands of potted flowers lined the lawn and huge flower-decked tents guarded against the threat of rain which fell earlier in the day.

In a paddock close to the lawns, three horses, including Princess Midas, a palomino mare that shared international jumping honors with Shirley, edged close to the fence for a look at the gay reception.

GIFTS TOOK TWO ROOMS

Shirley's extensive wedding gifts were displayed in two rooms adjoining her trophy hall, a room lined with more than 1000 ribbons, medals, plates and trophies she won during her riding career.

She began riding at the age of four. In 1954, she competed in Europe with the Canadian Olympic team against some of the world's outstanding jumpers.

South Slocan Homes Get First 'Phones

SOUTH SLOCAN—Many South Slocan and district homes are acquiring new wall fixtures these days as B.C. Telephone Company crews install telephones for the automatic exchange system due to begin operating in early Fall.

The workmen have discovered that some country homes have one thing in common with their city cousins — construction features which are most frustrating to the men wiring for telephone service. It would be so much simpler and a tremendous time saver to have homes wired for phones in early construction stages as in other electrical work. The installation man's nightmare is the big beautiful modern home on a cement slab with flat roof.

And then there is the prospective 'phone subscriber who has been dreaming about having a 'phone but when the installation crew arrives hasn't the vaguest notion where to put the gadget, and can't decide until the breadwinner returns from work.

So until the final work is completed on the exchange being installed at the local hotel, the little black box is just another dust catcher — one that most housewives will polish quite lovingly in anticipation of the time and steps to be saved in the future.

Fathers of Confederation Left Great, But Demanding, Legacy

OTTAWA (CP) — Governor-General Massey said Sunday Canadians should know more about their country's history, traditions and geography.

In a Dominion Day television and radio broadcast over CBC networks he said that "no man of good will dare neglect" the task of knowing Canada.

"Let us pay tribute on this day to those victorian statesmen whom we call the Fathers of Confederation," he said. "They have left us a great, but also a demanding, legacy. Their memory calls us to no trifling task."

"They left us institutions, customs, historic names, which as our Canadian inheritance, it is our sacred duty to proserve.

"Let me speak frankly. I am afraid that we in Canada have become careless and, indeed, are insufficiently aware of our traditions—the traditions which give us our own unique character and quality."

TWO GREAT RACES

Mr. Massey said Canada is built on the greatness of two races joined as one.

"Eighty-nine years ago in 1867, Canadians—French and English—came together to form the new dominion. They acted not easily, not carelessly, but believing that out of conflicts and confusions they were to find a common destiny.

"They came together in faith and courage, to build in this vast and difficult north of North America one nation; a nation to be the heir and guardian of high traditions and cherished by the small and scattered communities which gave it birth . . .

"We won our nationhood by negotiation, not by war, but it is easy for others to misinterpret the process. During the critical years when we achieved self-government, there was wise statesmanship on both sides of the Atlantic—a happy combination of tolerance and understanding in England, and vigor and enterprise in the colonies.

UNIQUE COLLABORATION

"Such collaboration was unique. Before, had a colonial people ever received its freedom from a willing mother country? I think not. This is one of our proud traditions: a moral victory which leaves no scars.

"It is Canada's strength that she is the only nation where Latin and Anglo-Celtic peoples live in equal partnership, and where also millions of men and women from other countries have received the privileges and accepted the duties of a citizen.

"We have two national languages, two national cultures, and this enriches our life as we learn to use each other's speech.

"But this is not enough. Canada has two languages, she has two minds and two hearts. We must know each other; we must feel with each other. This track to which we are called is not easy. No man of good will will dare neglect it."

SYMBOL OF UNITY

Mr. Massey said the crown is a symbol of unity for all Canada.

"The crown is cherished by Canadians for associations which carry us back 1000 years before the time of the British victory in 1759, even before the French victory in 1066.

"Not all of us live on historical sentiment—but we all, I believe, can join in respect and affection for this great and unique symbol of our common life."

Mr. Massey also paid tribute to immigrants.

"They have increased our prosperity and added much to our life," he said.

The SHORT CIRCUIT

By JOHN SHORT
Sports Editor

Somebody goofed!

I don't know who, I don't know why and I don't much care. But when only three of the eight senior teams in British Columbia are represented at a meeting touted as one of the most important in many moons, it makes you stop and think.

At least it made me stop and think. Saturday is usually a little late in the week for mental exercise, but I couldn't help myself.

Nelson Maple Leafs were represented by Norman Stibbs, Spokane Flyers were represented by Roy McBride and Bill Nicholson carried the banner for Penticton V's.

Of course, the meeting in question was held last Saturday in Penticton. It was called to attempt to set up a salary limit and thus increase the possibility of every club in either of the Western International and Okanagan Senior Hockey Leagues remaining financially solvent.

The meeting unanimously approved a maximum salary of $350 per unemployed player per month. Indications were that a minimum of $150 per employed player per month would be asked, as well, but it was not. I am glad it was not.

It only legislated against a man who had enough gumption to get out and take a job on the side. It was geared, not unintentionally, to the development of the hockey bum.

And Lord only knows there are too many of those around now!

• • •

I cannot honestly say the meeting was a failure. Those present learned much about the difficulties in other areas. But to me the finest suggestion was put forth by Roy McBride, Major domo of Spokane Flyers.

Uncle Roy said he believed restrictions should be placed on the number of ex-pros playing on each team. He said he thought four should be the maximum, but I believe four is one too many.

Further, Roy said he thought (gee, he was thinking plenty on Saturday) that each team should be forced to carry a certain number of rookies. Realizing as they did that Roy was thinking of his fine success last year with the not-inconsiderable aid of one Art (The Dart) Jones, his listeners agreed.

But something has to be done—and soon—to ensure against the players ruining the league. They have started. They run the league now, in many cases.

To sign ex-professionals for $3500 for five months—it was done, too—when they did not qualify to remain in the Western Hockey League where an average salary was only $2700 for six months—is to me the height of idiocy.

It has to stop if hockey is to survive.

SET THREE MARKS, TIE TWO OTHERS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Three world records were shattered and two more equalled in the two-day tryouts for the U. S. Olympic track and field team which ended here Saturday night.

The army's Lou Jones sped 400 metres in 45.2 seconds Saturday to smash the world record he established last year.

Friday, Charley Dumas set a seven-foot ½-inch mark for the high jump and Ohio State's Glen Davis bettered the world record for the 400-metre hurdle race. He rounded the course in 49.5 seconds.

Abilene Christian's spring king, Bobby Morrow, was the only double winner Saturday as he sped the 200-metres in 20.6 seconds, equalling the best time ever around a curve. Morrow won the 100 on the opening night after equalling the world mark of 10.2 seconds in a trial heat.

Tom Courtney, former Fordham speedster, now in the army, outran Pittsburgh's Arnie Sowell in a thrilling 800-metre run. The time, 1:46.4, is an American record, bettering the 1:46.8 he established last year.

Ernie Moisey Throws No-Hit Game Saturday

Ernie Moisey of the Kiwanis pitched the second no-hit game Saturday in the Nelson Little League since the league began in 1951.

Moisey pitched his Kiwanis team into second place by downing the leading Gyros 5-0. He was assisted in his pitching chores by Danny Sjoberg while on the mound for the Gyros were Jim Brown and Harry James.

The first no-hitter in the league was pitched last year by Tommy Ramsay of the Lions.

Big hitters for the Kiwanis were Dave Douglas who pounded out a double and a triple, and Keith Acres who walloped a double. Kiwanis scored one run in the first and third and drove in three big runs in the fifth.

Moisey gave up four walks and struck out five while Brown gave up three walks and struck out 12.

Outlaws Cop Four of Five Weekend Baseball Contests

NEW DENVER-SILVERTON — Nelson Outlaws travelled to this area Monday afternoon with a makeshift squad and returned home Sunday night with a 7-6 victory after 13 scintillating innings, not to mention an additional $65 in the bank-balance.

The victory was by far Outlaws' most profitable of the weekend, which saw them win, altogether, four games, while losing only one.

In chronological order, Outlaws bowed, 8-5, to Chewelah in the opener of a Wash.-B.C. League baseball doubleheader at Civic Recreation Grounds Sunday afternoon, then romped back in the nightcap to triumph, 8-2, behind the fine, four-hit hurling of lanky Walt Avis.

Monday afternoon at Civic Recreation Grounds, the other half of the Outlaw squad, bolstered by the addition of Lorne and Len Bay and Les Hufty from Nelson Maple Leafs, downed Colville Air Force Base in both ends of an exhibition doubleheader, 3-1 and 8-4.

But as far as exciting baseball was concerned, it was almost the exclusive property of the contest here, in which Outlaws came from behind twice, including once in the bottom of the ninth, to satisfy a capacity crowd at the field here.

The capacity crowd was attracted by the annual New Denver-Silverton Sports Day.

ONE FROM BEHIND

Proving to the satisfaction of all concerned that they can rally from adversity, Outlaws scored two runs in the fourth on a single by Earl Lobb and a long homer by Charlie Burdette to overcome an early 2-0 deficit.

After Outlaws had scored two runs to take a 4-2 lead, the district squad came back with four runs in the top half of the ninth inning on a single by Morrison, a triple by hurler Ken Gordon, then three consecutive base hits by losing pitcher Bill Hargus, Erickson and Harding.

But Outlaws came back again, off Gordon, who started, when Tom Marshall walked and stole second, advanced to third as Bernie Monteleone grounded out and scored on Barry McDowell's second double. Playing-Manager Ron Nash slashed a two-out double to score McDowell and send the game into extra innings.

Each team threatened several times in varying degrees until Al MacDonald and Don Holmes walked in succession and Win Storgaard singled to fill the bases.

SQUEEZE BUNT

Then, with a three-ball-and-two-strike count on Marshall, the little speedster dropped a bunt to score MacDonald and win the game.

Nash was especially pleased with the fine performance of Stan Grill, the starter, who struck out nine and walked two in his eight-inning tour of duty. Storgaard, whose single had much to do with him winning his own game, took over in the ninth. He struck out nine and walked two, having little if any difficulty with his control.

For New Denver-Silverton, Gordon fanned nine and walked three during his 10 innings on the hill, while Hargus fanned three and walked two. The walks to MacDonald and Holmes were his only two of the game.

Outlaws had a truly makeshift lineup. Tommy Marshall, usually a third-baseman, played second, allowing Burdette to handle third. Monteleone played short and Lobb first. From left to right, Holmes, McDowell and MacDonald patrolled the outfield, with Nash anchoring the squad from behind the plate.

LESS FORTUNATE

Storgaard was not so fortunate Sunday in Nelson. He absorbed quite a thumping in the early innings of the first game before yielding to Gus Adams with one out and the bases loaded. For exactly one pitch, Nelson led, 2-1. But Adams fed a triple which unloaded the bases much more quickly than Chewelah loaded them.

After tying the game in the bottom of the eighth with three runs to knot the score, 5-5, Outlaws kicked away three runs to allow Chewelah to cop the league fixture.

But Walt Avis, curve-tossing cricket-baller, surrendered only four hits as Outlaws won the nightcap, 8-2. Outlaws had difficulty throughout the doubleheader with their batting eyes, as they collected only 13 hits in the two games.

Monday, Outlaws were better with the bats, as they won easily, especially in the second game. In the first game, Les Hufty scattered five hits as his mates collected seven off control-sharp Gary Shore in a 3-1 triumph.

ALL UNEARNED

Each of Outlaws' three runs was unearned. The Bay boys, Len and Lorne, were virtually silent at bat, but both sparkled afield. With Lorne patrolling third base beside Gus Adams at shortstop, the left side of the infield was nothing short of great.

Young lefty Blair Olson bore down hard in the clutches in the second game as his mates supported him well at the dish. He was in warm water in nearly every inning exclusive of the third, but more often than not he pulled himself out.

Blair gave up two runs in the first and one in the second before settling down. Pitching to Lorne Bay, who moved behind the plate for the contest, Blair showed sharp control and fine breaking stuff. Bay was confident that when Olson develops a fast-ball, he will be "quite a chucker."

2-1 Win Sends Reds Back Into Top Spot

By The Canadian Press

Cincinnati Redlegs rode back into first place in the National League standings Monday night for the third time this season on the strength of a tight eight-hit pitching performance by Johnny Klippstein which produced a 2-1 victory over the Milwaukee Braves.

A standing-room-only crowd of 28,635 at Cincinnati saw the Reds oust Milwaukee from the top spot.

It was a close pitching duel all the way between Klippstein and southpaw Warren Spahn, an old Redleg nemesis.

Two other contests were played in the National League.

In a night game at Broklyn, Willie Mays and Bill Sarni banged back-to-back home runs in the third inning to trigger a 5-2 victory by New York Giants over the third-place Dodgers.

Chicago Cubs dug out of the cellar by defeating St. Louis 6-3 as Warren Hacker ducked in and out of trouble while allowing 11 hits.

At Washington, in the American League, Ike Delock held the Senators to one tainted hit in four innings of relief work as Boston Red Sox won 3-2. Helping Delock post his fifth win was Ted Williams who collected two doubles and two singles in five chances and boosted his season's average to .374.

Detroit Tigers committed four errors to let in seven unearned runs in a 9-3 loss to Chicago White Sox. The Tigers have not won a game in their hometown Briggs Stadium since June 15.

High Scores Mark British Open Play

HOYLAKE, Eng. (AP) — South African Gary Player carved a course record of 68 out of tough Hoylake Monday in qualifying play for the British Open golf championship.

The 20-year-old player — a shooter of great promise — provided the only genuine sensation in a day of high winds and even higher scores. His three-under-par round included a magnificent 32 on the homeward nine.

Player's 68 broke the course record by one stroke.

England's Charlie Ward, who was regarded as a fading player, bagged a 69 on the easier Wallasey course where half the record field of 330 played for qualifying scores.

Stan Leonard, of Vancouver and Lachute, Que., went round Hoylake in 74.

PRESTON, Eng. (AP' — Bob Kenyon defeated U. S. senior champion Pete Burke of Cold Spring Harbor, N. Y., 4 and 3, Saturday to win the unofficial world senior golf championship.

Flyers and Leafs Only Teams Represented

PENTICTON — Although every individual present at a meeting here Saturday morning expressed interest and approval in the proposals laid down, nothing official was done by the group—which included representatives of Spokane Flyers and Nelson Maple Leafs of the Western International Hockey League and Penticton Vs of the Okanagan Senior Hockey League.

The meeting was called some 10 days ago, and according to information received from Jack Morgan, president of the British Columbia Arena Association, every team in the two leagues was informed of the date and the site.

Arena managers and parks board officials from Trail, Kamloops, Vernon and Trail were present.

But Kamloops Elks, Kelowna Packers, Vernon Canadians, Trail Smoke Eaters and the recently-formed Rossland team failed to send representatives. Kelowna had not even an arena representative on hand.

The reduced attendance did much to take the lustre of completion away from the gathering. Much was said and discussions raged on nearly every topic related to senior hockey in B.C.

As was expected, salary limits caused much of the debate. Those on hand expressed the belief that a salary limit of $350 per player per month would be in line with the population of the centres involved.

Trail Parks Board chairman Elmer Piper drew up, with full approval, the following recommendation: "That all Senior hockey clubs in the Okanagan League adopt a realistic budget for next year. By 'realistic budget' we mean that they be in order with those adopted by the WIHL."

Crannie Cranston, the Kamloops representative, was delegated to attend the Okanagan Senior Hockey League meeting Saturday in Kamloops and present the thoughts of the meeting.

Cranston was one of the most definite in his support of the proposed program. He at one time acted on the Kamloops hockey executive, a point which further qualified him, it was thought, to present the meeting's opinions logically.

Brooks, Yanks Round Out All-Star Squads

NEW YORK (AP) — Brooklyn's Walt Alston and Casey Stengel of New York Yankees, managers of the National and American League all star teams, each picked four of their own men Monday in rounding out their squads for the annual tussle at Washington on July 11.

Along with Mickey Mantle and Yogi Berra, Stengel picked his two mound aces, southpaw Whitey Ford and righthander Johnny Kucks, together with his double-play combination, second baseman Billy Martin and shortstop Gil McDougald.

Stengel's remaining pitchers are Billy Pierce and Jim Wilson of Chicago White Sox, Ray Narleski and Early Wynn of Cleveland Indians and Tom Brewer and Frank Sullivan of Boston Red Sox. All but Pierce and Ford are righthanders.

Chicago's Sherman Lollar was chosen by Stengel to back up Berra behind the plate.

BOLSTERS INFIELD

As infield reinforcements Stengel picked first basemen Roy Sievers of Washington and Vic Power of Kansas City and Detroit third baseman Ray Boone, as well as Martin and McDougald.

Boston's Mickey Vernon at first, Chicago's Nellie Fox at second, Detroit's Harvey Kuenn at short and Baltimore's George Kell at third are the starting infield. Behind his starting outfield of Mantle, Ted Williams of Boston and Al Kaline of Detroit Stengel will have Charlie Maxwell of the Tigers, Harry Simpson of the Athletics and Jim Piersall of the Red Sox.

MORE REDS

With five of the slugging Cincinnati Redlegs picked for the starting lineup, Alston added three more, as well as four members of his world champion Dodgers, whom the fans overlooked entirely.

Alston's pitching lineup will consist of unbeaten Brooks Lawrence and southpaw Joe Nuxhall of the Redlegs; his own ace relief man, Clem Labine; lefthander Johnny Antonelli of New York Giants; veteran lefty Warren Spahn of Milwaukee Braves; Robin Roberts, the ace of Philadelphia Phillies' mound staff and Pittsburgh righthander Bob Friend.

Alston chose two more catchers behind Cincinnati rookie Ed Bailey, the Dolgers' Roy Campanella and Milwaukee's Del Crandall.

To a starting infield consisting of Dale Long of Pittsburgh, John Temple and Roy McMillan of Cincinnati and Ken Boyer of St. Louis Cardinals, Alston added Ted Kluszewski, the slugging Redleg first baseman; Brooklyn second baseman Junior Gilliam, Chicago shortstop Ernie Banks and Milwaukee third baseman Eddie Mathews.

The National League skipper picked four extra outfielders—his own Duke Snider, Hank Aaron of the Braves, Rip Repulski of the Cards and Willie Mays of the Giants. His starters are rookie Frank Robinson and Gus Bell of Cincinnati and Stan Musial of St. Louis, the dean of the all-stars with 12 previous appearances.

Top Net Stars Reach Semis

WIMBLEDON, England (CP) — Australia's Lew Hoad and Ken Rosewall and two Americans — Ham Richardson and Vic Seixas —advanced Monday to the semi-final of the men's singles in the all-England tennis championships.

Hoad struggled home over fellow Australian Mal Anderson 4-6, 6-1, 6-1, 13-11. Rosewall, Australia's No. 2, was the only semi-finalist with an easy passage. He won with supreme ease over Sweden's young star, Ulf Schmidt, 6-1, 6-3, 6-2.

Seixas weathered out an hour-and-20-minute first set against Allen Morris of Atlanta, Ga., to win 13-11. Morris pulled up lame in the second set and Seixas took the match 13-11, 6-0, 6-3.

Richardson appeared to be on the way to a beating when he rallied in the third set to defeat Australia's power-hitting lefthander, Neale Fraser, 6-3, 9-11, 7-5, 6-4.

Then entry of the potential U.S. Davis Cup team into the semi-finals of the 70th Wimbledon championship was matched by the potential Australian Davis Cup team.

Wednesday's semi-finals between Hoad and Richardson in the top of the draw and between Rosewall and Seixas in the bottom is practically a certainty to be staged once again in Australia Dec. 26-27-28 when Australia defends the Davis Cup.

SHERWOOD WINS CLUB TITLE TO HIGHLIGHT BUSY SESSION

Arnold Sherwood made the experts just that Sunday afternoon at Nelson Golf and Country Club as he trounced Walt Apostoliuk 4 and 2 to win the Nelson Golf and Country Club match-play championship.

His long-predicted victory came against a man expected by some to bow out before the semi-finals so much as started. But Apostoliuk stopped Charlie Hayles in the semi-finals during the week while Sherwood was downing Bernie Clarkson.

Ed McGregor, winner over Dunc Jamieson in one second-flight semi-final, carried on to down Mickey Maglio, victor over Bill Clark, 4 and 3 in the final.

G. W. Cameron stopped Ivan Laughton, 4 and 2, in the finals of third flight competition. The expected first-flight battle between Carl Locatelli and Jim Allan did not come off. Allan was called out of town unexpectedly. The match will be played at a future time.

Terry Panton registered a medal 120 for three nine-hole rounds over the same course Monday to win the CIL Cup, with a net 96. His eight-handicap helped considerably as many shot lower rounds than did he.

Cornwell Badge, Highest Honor To Scouts, Awarded Handicapped Boy

OTTAWA (CP) — Scout Gordon Eugene Foster, 15-year-old symbol of determination and fortitude to the 30th Regina Troop, Sunday was awarded the Cornwell Scout Badge, highest award given by the Canadian Boy Scouts' Association.

Governor - General Massey, chief scout for Canada, also announced that 40 other Canadians and a Scottish county commissioner have been rewarded for deeds of bravery and outstanding service to scouting.

Scout Foster, confined to a wheelchair with rheumatoid arthritis since he was 5, has shown great courage in attending scout meetings, many times under difficulties and suffering great pain.

STAUNCH YOUNGSTER

A number of times it was expected he would not recover from arthritis attacks which left him with anchylosis of the knees and elbows, but each time he fought back to recover. At times his fingers and wrists were swollen and deformed to the point where they were of little use.

Son of a Carrot River, Sask., laborer, young Foster weighed only 31½ pounds at age 7. But in 1951 he started taking treatments which seemed to control the arthritis and help him put on weight.

The Cornwell Badge is named for ship's boy Jack Cornwell who, though mortally wounded in the 1916 battle of Jutland, remained at his position after the remainder of a 10-man gun crew was killed or wounded. Cornwell, a scout won the Victoria Cross, which was presented posthumously.

The Silver Fox Medal, given to non - Canadians for exceptional character in scouting, was awarded to Sir Ian Bolton, scout commissioner in Stirlingshire County, Scotland.

iSr Ian joined the scout movement in 1912 and since has been one of its outstanding leaders in the United Kingdom. He has been a member of the council and committee of the Boy Scouts Association since 1945.

AWARDS TO B.C. MEMBERS

Silver Wolf Medal, for services of exceptional character, Dr. H. T. James, Vancouver, Silver Acorn for distinguished service, Andrew Blyth White, Victoria, Silver Cross for gallantry with considerable risk, Cub Stewart Symmes, aged 9, 2nd Port Moody Pack, Port Moody, Certificate of Merit for good services to scouting, Mrs. William A. Gillon, Southlands Group Committee, Vancouver, Medal of Merit for good services, Cecil B. Bean, area cubmaster, West Vancouver; John enry Dixon, district scoutmaster, Vancouver; Robert David McMurray, assistant district commissioner, Burnaby; Richard E. Warner, assistant district commissioner for Rovers, Victoria; and Norman W. West, district commissioner, West Vancouver. Bar to Medal of Merit for additional good services to scouting, Maj. New Keyboard For Typists Not Accepted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government has turned down a proposal to rearrange the keys on its 800,000 typewriters.

The General Services Administration reported that four months of tests with a proposed "simplified" keyboard failed to support claims it would increase the average typist's output by 35 per cent.

LESS ACCURATE

On the contrary, GSA said, the study showed that typists using the simplified keyboard showed less improvement in speed, and were less accurate, than operators of standard keyboard machines.

Developed by August Dvorak of the University of Washington, the simplified keyboard was designed to aid right-handed typists by shifting the main work load from the left hand to the right.

To do this, the typewriter's familiar "home row," beginning "a-s-d-f," starts out a-c-e-u." And the row of figures at the top goes "7-5-3-1-9-;-2-4-6-8" instead of starting at 1 or 2 and going straight up.

Hemlock Prejudice Said Trade Menace

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia lumber officials said here that a prejudice against hemlock is one of the bigbest single menaces to the B.C. lumber industry.

Spokesmen for the B.C. Lumber Manufacturers' Association said that as the industry will be cutting as much hemlock as Douglas fir on the coast by 1959 or 1960, fewer markets and sales for B.C. lumber will result unless the 'hemlock prejudice" is overcome.

"Many people are simply money down the drain by insisting on fir in house construction and the like when hemlock, which costs less, would do just as well," one spokesman said.

Views from the News Front

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) The state department published Saturday night 18 Soviet documents most of them still secret in the Soviet Union, showing that V. I. Lenin, once scathingly denounced the "rascality" of Russian Communists in dealing with non-Russian peoples embraced in the Soviet system.

His criticism hit Stalin, among others, for mishandling the problem of bringing the territory of Georgia under full Moscow control in the early days of Red consolidation of power.

The views of Lenin, the first leader of Soviet communism on the nationality issue were described by officials here as having potentially great significance today because of their possible impact on the policies of the present Soviet regime.

In denouncing Stalin, the present Red party boss, Nikita Khrushchev, has gone back to Lenin for historical authority to justify his course. Therefore anything which Lenin wrote on an issue still current may give a lead as criticism when such policies fail to follow Lenin's teachings

But other documents have not been published in Moscow even though they were circulated by Khrushchev at the secret session of the Communist party congress last February. At that session Khrushchev denounced Stalin's long reign of terror and called for "collective leadership" as opposed to one-man dictatorship.

Many of the documents in the group of 18 were no more than letters of transmittal or authentication. One large section dealt with technical questions of shaping the organization to run the Soviet economy.

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

U.K. Increases Trade in India

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—British firms have put through recently some of the biggest business deals ever concluded between Britain and India.

In hot competition with countries from the Communist bloc and with the resurgent economies of Germany and Japan, British firms have secured mutli-million sterling contracts for the supply of steel plant equipment, rolling stock, electric generators, machinery and aircraft to India, and have been appointed consultants for the setting up of a heavy electrical plant and for a heavy water plant.

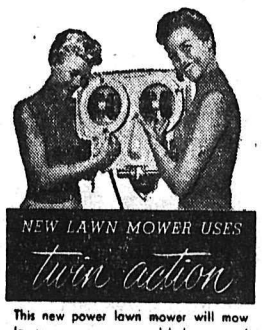
At the same time, Indian imports from Britain have jumped by 10 per cent over the last year.

Britain's Colonial Development Corporation reported a profit in 1955, first since its establishment in 1947.

OTTAWA (CP) — Transport Minister Marler said Monday he has no intention of varying or rescinding an interim increase of seven per cent in railway freight rates.

The Board of Transport Commissioners authorized the interim increase, effective today, pending further hearings in September on the railways' main demand for 15-per-cent increase.

CLASSIFIED DISPLAY



This new power lawn mower will mow lawns, sweep up or mulch leaves and clippings, trim and edge, and cut grass or weeds of any height.

Secret of its remarkable performance is an entirely new design, using high-speed, twin cutters and four tiny safety blades. Inside each cutter are wide support wheels on which the mower rides.

This new type of mower won't scalp a lawn, no matter how bumpy or hilly. It cuts over edges and along walls or fences just as easily as on a wide lawn. It cuts a broad, 20-inch swath in any kind of grass, and through weeds of any height.

Odds . . . and Ends

. . . by M. D. B.

Noticed only a few flags out in honor of Dominion Day. They have have gradually diminished in numbers in the last 25 years. Time was when flags flying on Victoria Day and the First of July were a common sight and some people even had tall flag poles in their yards on which to fly the standard on these occasions. I remember the flags used to give a sort of festive feeling to the town. Baker Street sidewalks still have holes for flagstaffs.

* * *

Along the highways and byways yellow buttercups are clouds of bloom among the tall grass and here and there daisies nod and curtsy to passersby. Peeping out from bracken and thimble berry bushes, the gawdy tiger lily catches the odd shaft of sunlight and those tall purple wild flowers that resemble lupins, growing to a tall point as they do, blend with the green of the open places. A drive in the country would be infinitely poorer without these hardy "Topsy" plants that "just growed."

* * *

There is a bank of broom at Wragges' corner about two miles up the lake that is really something to see. We passed a little too quickly to really see what all was blooming there, but there seemed to be mauve and pink blooms in among the yellow. It was enough to catch your breath.

* * *

The Owens' rockery is really taking shape and given a little while longer to get established will make a colorful corner there. At MacKinnons' home at Procter they boast some twenty or thirty swallow's nests under their eaves. The sky around is dark with swooping wings. Crossing the Harrop ferry we were amused at two swallows trying to dart into the hole in one of the ferry stanchions where they have their nest. These are well-travelled birds. Unfortunately when it was time for the young to try their wings they just fell into the lake. There was no friendly ground for them to land on and try again.

* * *

There were comings and goings at Ainsworth hotsprings all day Sunday and I imagine it would be the same Monday with the lake water a little too cold yet for serious swimming.

Right of Self Government Told

Man's God-given right of self-government was brought out at Christian Science services Sunday on the lesson-sermon entitled, "God."

Gideon's answer to the men of Israel who asked him to rule over them was included in the readings from the King James version of the Bible (Judges 8:23): "And Gideon said unto them, I will not rule over you: the Lord shall rule over you."

The basis of proper self-government was emphasized in readings from "Science and Health With Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, including the following: "God has endowed man with inalienable rights, among which are self-government, reason and conscience. Man is properly self-governed only when he is guided rightly and governed by his maker, divine truth and love."

Michel Buffs Blank Fernie

MICHEL—Michel Buffaloes, the cinderella team with the youth movement injected into this year's lineup, kept their home record intact at three games as they scored a well earned shutout over highly touted Fernie United, last year's league winners, 2-0 in a Crowsnest Pass Football League game Sunday.

The win enabled the Michel 11 to continue as league leaders with eight points for at least another week, when they make a two-league game jaunt to Kimberley and Cranbrook which could well decide the CNP football league schedule

Buffaloes have lost one game this season, against Fernie United at Fernie a few weeks ago. In the five games played they have scored three shutouts while allowing the opposition to score only three goals.

The teams battled to a first-half scoreless tie although the Buffaloes missed many golden opportunities to score.

In the second half Michel was awarded a penalty shot late in the second half in which centre half Frankie Mitchell made no mistake to put the Buffaloes one goal ahead. Shortly afterward, right wing Bob Glasgow made his way through the Fernie defence and scored the clincher as he booted a hard low shot inside the 18-yard line. The Fernie goalie made a diving stop but was unable to hold the ball as it rolled over the goal line.

The game between these two rivals was kept well under control by referee Fred Venzie of Michel. Fernie United and Kimberley United had been tied for second place in the league.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market took the impact of the steel strike in its stride, giving a little ground in slow trading.

Apart from nickel, Canadian gainers included Canadian Pacific and Hudson Bay Mining, both up about half a point. Dome Mines dropped a small fraction.

In the past ten years, Rotary Fellowships have been awarded to 834 young men and women from 61 countries. Grants average $2500 and total more than $2,000,000.

NURSES' HOME FIRE ESCAPE TO COST $2100

A $2100 project to install a fire escape on the nurses' home of Kootenay Lake General Hospital is under way. The work is being carried out under the necessity of a fire marshal's order.

Exhaustive studies were made of alternatives to the standard fire escapes in the hope of attaining economies. However, none was considered suitable or would meet the approval of the fire marshal, and the board has decided to proceed with the project.

Louis Maglio, contractor, was the successful tenderer.

A government grant of about $725 will assist the board in the project.

Sees Bell Island As Tourist Centre

BELL ISLAND, Nfld. (CP)—Bell Islanders, used to thinking of their home as a work-a-day place where iron ore is mined, have been told it could become a tourist attraction with a bit of effort.

Bruce Woodland, tourist information officer for Newfoundland, says if some responsible group were to investigate tourist possibilities here an dstart and advertising campaign to sell Bell Island the results would be worthwhile.

He said the history of Bell island and Conception Bay could be tied in with tourist promotion ideas—for instance playing up the fact that pirates used the bay for a rendezvous.
