BUILDS BRIDGES—This hulking piece of machinery, being tested in Longview, Tex., is called an electric bridge builder. It's scheduled to build a six-mile concrete bridge across Lake Maracaibo in Venezuela. It will be towed the 2,000 miles to the site. The platform raises and lowers itself, leading the way step-by-step as the bridge is built.

Kaiser Negotiates Separate Contract With Steel Union

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Kaiser Steel Corporation Monday abandoned the industry's entrenched bargaining position in the 104-day steel strike and negotiated a separate agreement with the United Steel Workers Union. (See also story page 4.)

It was the first break in the heretofore solid industry front. Kaiser is the ninth largest U.S. steel producer.

The agreement was reached in Washington during meetings of Kaiser steel officials and USW leaders.

David J. McDonald, union president, said the settlement was on the basis of a 20-month contract providing improved wages and insurance and pension benefits.

The contract, in effect until June 30, 1961, provides an additional 10 cents an hour in fringe benefits the first year.

INCLUDES RAISE

For the remainder of the contract, the workers will get another 12½-cent package that includes a seven-cents-an-hour wage increase.

Work rules—one of the big obstacles to an industry-wide settlement—will be worked out by a committee.

The agreement also sets up a company-union committee to study means to "ensure a proper share of the fruits of the company's progress." Spokesmen for both Kaiser and the union said this could not be called a profit-sharing plan.

McDonald praised the firm's board chairman, Edgar F. Kaiser, as demonstrating "real enlightened leadership."

BIG 12 GROUP

The California-based company had been among a group of the 12 largest steel producers carrying the negotiations ball for all 96 firms made idle by the strike.

Top-level peace talks between the union and the industry's regular four-man bargaining team had been scheduled here Monday, but they were called off after McDonald went to Washington to confer with Kaiser.

R. Conrad Cooper, chief industry negotiator and vice-president of U.S. Steel, said no further meetings are scheduled.

Meanwhile, the U.S. third Circuit Court of Appeals in Philadelphia said it will rule this afternoon whether the 500,000 striking steel workers must return to their jobs for 80 days under a Taft-Hartley injunction.

WORKERS CALLED BACK

Kaiser officials ordered between 500 and 600 maintenance workers to report for the midnight shift on Monday night and called back 1200 for the 8 a.m. shift today.

"We'll call them back as fast as we can get operations under way," a company spokesman said. "But it will be three weeks to a month before we can begin full production." He said the plant at Fontana will be producing steel in about five days.

One hitch: Four of the plant's open-hearth furnaces were damaged extensively by inactivity. The brick linings collapsed.

Party Pamphlets Made Fine Splint

VICTORIA (CP) — Progressive Conservative party pamphlets provided the "stiffener" for a makeshift splint when Mrs. Alex Reed of Victoria slipped and broke her left wrist while attending the party convention at Harrison Hot Springs Saturday.

Her husband, unable to get a doctor, called on his first aid experience and fashioned a splint from hotel towels and folded party pamphlets and tied it all up with his shoe laces.

When a doctor finally saw the job he admired it, said he wouldn't touch it and sent the couple on to Victoria where Mrs. Reed got a proper cast fitted.

Albertans To Get Tax Rebates

OTTAWA (CP) — Albertans are to receive income tax rebates for the years 1957 and 1958, it was announced Monday by Revenue Minister Nowlan.

He said that he concurs with a recent decision of the Income Tax Appeal Board which held that payments made under the Oil and Gas Royalties Dividend Act of Alberta are not subject to income tax.

Therefore, Mr. Nowlan said, the decision won't be appealed to the Exchequer Court of Canada.

He obtained permission Monday by order in council to waive the requirement that taxpayers must make application in writing to obtain the refund of taxes overpaid in this instance.

Work would begin immediately on processing refunds and the cheques would be sent from Ottawa in the next 10 weeks or so.

Subject to certain conditions the oil and gas royalties dividend was paid to residents of Alberta at the rate of $20 per person in 1957 and $17.50 per person in 1958.

The taxation division of the national revenue department will have to review 835,000 income tax returns filed in district offices at Calgary and Edmonton in 1957 and 1958.

Refunds go to those persons who paid tax on the dividends.

Czech Professor Nobel Winner

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Czechoslovakia got its first Nobel Prize Monday. The U. S., which has won or shared in more than 50 prizes, got another.

The 1959 chemistry prize worth the equivalent of $42,606, was given to a Prague professor who gave the world's industries a lift by inventing a new method of analyzing complicated substances.

The 1959 physics prize, as forecast by unofficial sources during the weekend, went to two American atomic scientists—Italian-born Dr. Emilio Segre, 54, and Dr. Owen Chamberlain, 39, who are attached to the University of California at Berkeley.

Moon's Back Not So Interesting as Face, Scientists Observe

By PRESTON GROVER

MOSCOW (AP) — The hidden side of the moon is largely drab plains with far fewer landmarks than we see on its face, Russian scientists said Monday night.

They presented this analysis of photographs ascribed to picture-taking apparatus aboard Lunik III—used Oct. 7 as the Soviet rocket station passed beyond the moon.

Russian names are being given six of seven landmarks. The other landmark is named after a French scientist.

As presented Monday night on Moscow TV, the pictures meant little to ordinary observers. A helpful announcer pointed to certain areas and said "that is a sea . . . this is a crater."

But Prof. Alexander Mikhailov, in a broadcast, reported these findings:

"The unseen part of the moon is considerably more monotonous than the side turned toward the earth. It contains fewer seas and fewer contrasts."

He said the general monotony of the landscape is "beyond doubt associated with the question of the origin of the configuration of the moon."

About 30 per cent of Lunik's exposures showed the already charted face of the moon.

"The dark patches of the so-called seas are clearly visible," Mikhailov said. "Some of them extend to the other side of the moon."

LONG DISTANCES

The Russians say the pictures were transmitted to earth over distances up to 290,000 miles—just when was not announced.

Among the eight features named is the Sea of Moscow.

Tass said this sea is a 180-mile-wide depression north of the lunar equator.

It was described as situated "between the 20th and 30th parallels and the 140th and 160th meridans."

A bay in the southern part of this sea has been called the Bay of Astronauts.

The name Tsiolkovsky was given to a crater "more than 60 miles in diameter with a central elevation clearly discernable in the southern hemisphere." Constantin Tsiolkovsky was a Russian authority on rockets and space travel in the early 1900s. He died in 1936.

TWO CRATERS

Two big craters were reported situated north of the lunar equator "almost on the dividing line of the visible and invisible parts of the moon."

They were named Lomonosov and Joliot-Curie.

The late Mikhail Lomonosov, a Russian, is credited here with developing the first working model of a helicopter.

Frederic Joliot-Curie, a French nuclear scientist who was a member of the French Communist Party's central committee, died at 58 last year.

A mountain range stretching south from these craters toward the equatorial area was named Soviet.

"A sea called the 'Mechta' (Dream) sprawls out in the southern hemisphere of the very edge of the moon's invisible side," Tass said.

OVERLAPPING SEA

The seventh feature is a continuation of the southern sea from the earth - viewed side of the moon.

A team of Soviet scientists chose the names. The so-called seas, mountains and craters on the moon's side facing the earth have been named by scientists of many lands.

An official announcement by Tass news agency said photographic apparatus aboard the Lunik was switched on at 6:30 a.m. Moscow time Oct. 7 and took pictures for 40 minutes.

At the time, the 614-pound, instrument - packed satellite was from 60,000 to 70,000 kilometres (37,284 to 43,498 miles) from the moon, Tass said.

The Soviet announcement described the Lunik as taking actual photographs, a great technological feat. It is understood the United States in its planned moon shot will use an electronic scanning device to send back signals from which a picture can be reconstructed.

"A considerable number of moon photos were obtained," Tass said. "The processing of the films, developing and fixing was done automatically on board."

"The taking of the photos," Tass continued, "was timed so that the station on its orbit should be between the moon and the sun, which lit about 70 per cent of the unseen side of the moon."

Tass said the orientation—or control — system on the Lunik was switched on by a special signal and turned the satellite so that the camera lenses were directed toward the moon's far side. The orientation system then "issued the instructions to operate the photo equipment."

CASTRO URGES CLAMP DOWN

Raps U. S.; Wants Return to Firing Squad Justice

HAVANA (AP) — Prime Minister Fidel Castro struck at enemies at home and abroad Monday night. Before several hundred thousand cheering Cubans rallied for a show of loyalty to him, the revolutionary chief:

1. Accused the United States of permitting bombings of Cuba by planes from Florida bases manned by dissident Cubans.

2. Called for reinstatement of military trials and firing squads to deal with enemies rising in Cuba against his regime.

3. Reported a bomb was hurled Monday night at the pro-government newspaper Revolucion and some persons were wounded.

During the bitterest attack he has yet made on the U. S., the rebel leader put the question of restoring military tribunals before the huge crowd. The response was a throbbing roar of approval.

Castro said he will put the matter to his cabinet for approval and decree.

Gov't Seeks Remedy In Mail Advertising

By DON HANRIGHT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—The post office department is seeking a cure for one of its biggest and most persistent headaches—mail advertising.

A departmental study has been launched into the whole operation of the so-called "household mailing" service, under which advertisers can place all sorts of unaddressed material in the mail at special low postal rates.

Officials said Monday that with advertisers making more and more use of the service—especially in the metropolitan area—the post office is getting complaints from all sides.

Letter carriers, burdened as often as four times a week with big loads of everything from catalogues to merchandise coupons, are beefing about the extra weight and the frustrating job of trying to cram bulky material into mailboxes.

HOUSEHOLDERS COMPLAIN

Meanwhile, householders are complaining about the spate of advertising mixed with their regular mail.

The big-city postmasters themselves, confronted with the task of handling all shapes and sizes of advertising material, relayed these gripes to a top-level post office management conference here last week.

By deciding to make the full-scale study of the situation, a spokesman said, the post office headquarters here is recognizing that a big problem does indeed exist.

Under the "householder mailing" service, advertisers can contract with the post office for distribution of unaddressed material by the letter-carriers.

With the material unaddressed and not bearing postage, the post office doesn't have to do any sorting. The result is that the charge for the first ounce is reduced by a half-cent to 1½ cents.

The United States once had a similar postal service, but it was scrapped several years ago—partly as a result of complaints such as those now being received here.

It is unlikely that the current Ottawa study will mean the end of the Canadian service, a spokesman said. It now earns the post office close to $5,000,000 a year.

Armed Satellite Seen As Only Defence

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Scientific opinion among defence officials here is that only an armed earth satellite will provide any kind of effective defence against the intercontinental rocket.

They don't believe the projected ground-based Nike-Zeus counter-missile system being developed by the United States army will be feasible because of the difficulty of picking out the actual warhead from among decoys, booster rockets and other space debris.

Neither do they believe that an airborne counter-missile system such as the American Bold Orion will do the trick because of the necessity of keeping manned planes constantly in the air with their interceptor missiles.

However, the defence scientists say they feel the Nike-Zeus project should go ahead through the development stage even if it never becomes an operational system.

Only through such development could more information be obtained about long-range detection and the phenomena of hypersonic flight of objects through space.

This information could lead to development of armed satellites which would be on constant space patrol ready to launch missiles at intercontinental rockets fired at North America.

Council Votes for Open-Store Hours

TORONTO (CP) — City Council Monday night voted 14 to 7 in favor of around-the-clock retail store competition—with restrictions on some establishments — despite the warnings that a "dog eat dog" business society would develop.

The decision will not take effect, however, until council meets in two weeks time to pass a bill repealing all opening and closing hour bylaws in the city.

The exceptions are hours governing shoe shops, Jewish butcher shops, hardware and jewelry stores, gas stations and dry cleaning shops.

Plans Known Soon

VICTORIA (CP) — Federal civil servants will learn Thursday what steps their national joint action committee plans in the fight with the federal government for salary increases.

J. C. Best, national president of the Civil Servants' Association of Canada, will speak to the salary question here Thursday. He will outline the government's attitude, the committee's planned course of action and how the individual members of the CSAC can help.

A picturesque sight at the corner of Front Street and Josephine, where the ancient Chinese grocery and drug store is now standing deserted and boarded up, an equally ancient Chinese stood with glasses slightly askew, jumbo sweater protecting him against the wind, and cane to lean on, surveying the digging efforts going on in that district. He and the store looked equally forlorn and part of a fading picture.

Two Crash Victims Still In Hospital

CLARESHOLM, Alta. (CP) — All but two of 16 persons injured in a collision between a passenger train and a gasoline truck at a level crossing, Saturday, had been released from Claresholm Hospital by Monday afternoon.

One of the released, Mrs. Margaret Bilton, 43, mother of a 15-year-old girl killed in the crash, was transferred to hospital in Lethbridge. Hospital officials said she still was suffering but was well enough to travel.

The remaining patients, including Mrs. Fong Young, 47, of Vancouver, were in good condition, suffering chiefly from shock and cuts.

The collision, between a CPR Lethbridge to Calgary dayliner and a gasoline truck, took the lives of five train passengers and the truck driver. It occurred near Parkland, Alta., 65 miles south of Calgary.

RCMP said Monday an inquest will be held in either Lethbridge or Claresholm but not until the victims had been buried and the hospital patients were well enough to testify.

Mortgage Loan Interest Climbs

TORONTO (CP) — Interest rates charged by life insurance companies on conventional first mortgage loans have been moving as high as 7½ per cent in recent months, it was reported Monday.

At least two companies said they have been staying at seven per cent on mortgages for apartments, stores, warehouses and similar kinds of building.

Some other companies are understood to be charging 7½ per cent "across the board."

"Document" Gives Protege Third of Flynn Estate

NEW YORK (AP) — Handwritten documents — labelled for information only — Monday bequeathed one-third of actor Errol Flynn's Jamaica property to his teen-aged protege, Beverly Aadland.

The document, filed in Surrogate's Court, was neither signed nor witnessed. It purportedly was drawn up in Cuba 10 months ago and provided for the possibility that Miss Aadland might have a child by Flynn, although they were not married.

A spokesman for Flynn's lawyer said the documents were "appropriate."

The new will read in part:

"To Beverley Aadland I bequeath one-third of my estate in Jamaica after taxes. The reason for this being that she has been a true, loyal associate and greatly held in my esteem.

"Beverley Aadland is hereby one-third owner of the Errol Flynn estates. The other two parties being my daughters, Deidre and Rory (children by Flynn's second wife, Nora Eddington Flynn.)

"If there is an issue between myself and Beverly Aadland, that is, if the issue is male, that he should be sent to Trinity College, Dublin, for his education. The decision should be left to the mother. At all events the mother should be trustee of the money."

When the first Flynn will was made public last week Miss Aadland's lawyer indicated it would be contested. Nora Eddington also said she would consult lawyers. She said she was sure there was a later will.

In Inglewood, Calif., Miss Aadland commented: "That's ridiculous about the document not being signed. I saw Errol sign it. Errol dictated that document on the day before he left to join Castro's forces."

POLIO DEATH

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — A four - month - old boy from the Trinity Bay area died of polio here Saturday, raising the province's toll this year to 11. Chief Medical Health Officer Dr. John Davies said Saturday the epidemic is over, but new cases can be expected until mid-November.

LONDON (AP)—The British Railway System reported Sunday it lost $50 to an American tourist. The tourist paid for a rail ticket at a Scottish depot with a $50 bill and received change.

"But," said a railway spokesman, "the bill was out of date. It was issued by the Confederate States of America in 1864."

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Richard S. Tibbetts, 21, told police who booked him on a burglary charge for the theft and looting of a safe he had received expert instruction.

Tibbetts told officers Sunday he used a phony press pass to get into a police bureau meeting where veteran locksmiths were detailing the fine points of opening safes and locked doors.

"I'll say one thing," he said. "Those boys sure know their stuff and explain it well."

PASCO, Wash. (AP)—Pity the plight of poor Bennie the Beaver —water, water everywhere but not a tree to eat.

As for dams, somebody got there first and therein lies Bennie's difficulty.

Bennie was washed over the top of Ice Harbor Dam about a month ago. He survived the long fall and churning water and was washed into a back eddy in the tailrace of the dam. Now he's caught in a space 40 feet long and 200 feet wide and surrounded by concrete.

Dam workers say Bennie could escape if he'd dive 60 feet, but game men say beavers can't dive that deep.

So Bennie paddles back and forth nibbling on scraps thrown him by workers at the dam or on bits of edible material which have gone over the dam and landed in his prison.

Big Attendance Greets Rotarian s Governor

The progress of the Rotary organization was traced by John Loader of Trail, district governor, at the Nelson club's luncheon meeting Monday.

The guest speaker said that since its inception in 1905 Rotary has grown to more than 10,000 clubs with 148,000 members. Since the beginning of 1959, a total of 59 new clubs have been organized, he said.

Mr. Loader said Rotary clubs contribute millions of dollars to charity every year in addition to building international bridges of friendship.

He called upon members to continue to display tolerance with their fellow man and to avoid prejudiced thinking.

"Too many people think it almost criminal to change their minds. The wise man keeps his mind open," he said.

The district governor charged that employers sometimes fail to regard their employees as human beings but rather as a group with a label. He urged those concerned to avoid this type of thinking.

President E. T. Bodard thanked the membership for their fine turnout to an assembly Sunday night and pointed out that the Nelson club had the fourth largest attendance among the 20 clubs visited so far by the district governor.

Mr. Loader told the gathering that the Rotary district convention date has been tentatively set for early in May and that it will be in Trail.

Visiting Rotarians on Monday were H. D. Dawson of Victoria and J. R. Piper of Kamloops.

MAY WIN $150,000. The big happy smile on the face of Donald H. Rosling of Nelson springs from the telegram announcing he has won $950 in the Irish Sweepstake race and has a possible chance at the grand prize of $150,000. He will know the answer after the Cambridgeshire horse race tomorrow.

Nelson Man Draws Horse In Irish Sweepstake Race

"I nearly fell through the floor."

That was the reaction of Donald H. Rosling of Nelson after receiving a telegram advising that he had drawn a horse in the Irish Sweepstake race.

The 23-year-old insurance man said Monday he was fixing his wife's washing machine when the telegram was delivered.

"I couldn't believe my eyes. I nearly fell through the floor," he said.

By having drawn a horse the lucky ticket holder is entitled to £361 ($950) and a chance to win nearly $150,000.

Mr. Rosling used the nom de plume "Leila" after the name of his nine-month-old daughter and got the winning ticket by luck.

He said James B. Brown, one of his salesmen, purchased two tickets and at the same time asked if he wanted one. Mr. Brown selected Mr. Rosling's ticket from the book between the two he had bought. Mr. Rosling subsequently drew the horse "Clarendon Pete" for the Cambridgeshire race tomorrow.

If he wins the big money, Mr. Rosling plans to take an extended journey "anywhere my wife wants to go" and then open a business in Nelson upon his return.

This is the eighth year the young man has flirted with Lady Luck and perhaps tomorrow she will favor him with a $150,000 smile.

Boxer Dies

GUADALAJARA, Mexico (AP)—Walt Ingram, 24, a bantamweight fighter from West Virginia, died Monday of injuries suffered in a non-title bout Saturday with world champion Jose Becerra of Mexico.

An attending physician attributed the death to a heart attack following respiratory interruption.

He had undergone a 2½-hour operation Saturday night after two hospitals reportedly refused to admit him because they lacked proper facilities.

Ingram died without regaining consciousness after collapsing in the ring following the technical knockout by Becerra. He took considerable punishment in the bout.

Estimates Range Up to $182,092 On Conversion of Old Hospital

Transforming the old Nelson hospital into a city hall could cost $182,092.

This estimate was contained in a report to city council by Nelson architect David P. Fairbank presented to the city fathers Monday night.

Mr. Fairbank estimated this cost for "a high standard of renovation," but said it would take only $110,000 "to make the building habitable". "Moderate renovation," he said, would cost $132,622.

Council took no action on the report, but agreed to study it in detail.

In assessing the cost, the architect took into consideration removal of the fourth floor, construction of concrete walls, renovation of the basement, ground and second floors and preparation for the future third floor.

Bulk of the expense would be to provide an engineering department at a cost of $11,275, while the police department would require another $10,899.

The mayor's suite would involve an expense of $5957 while the committee and boiler rooms would cost more than $5000. The balance of the cost would go to provide electrical services, plumbing, heating, air conditioning, exterior and interior repairs, and new construction.

"Removal of the fourth floor and construction of concrete walls are considered essential to the fire safety of the building as is the fire separation of the boiler room and gaol facilities from the remainder of the building," the report stated.

While taking no action on the report, council approved the sending of a telegram to the provincial attorney-general expressing interest in securing the old provincial gaol for city police accommodation.

A letter from the city solicitor advising council they are not obligated to pay Mr. Fairbank in excess of his bill, which has already been settled, was received and filed.

Ald. A. K. McAdams said $2806 has been paid in architects' fees and several members of council expressed the view that they were now free to approach other architects.

"I can approach another architect, but perhaps it would be wise to wait until we get a reply from the attorney-general," (with regard to the old provincial jail), Ald. Boyd Affleck said.

"I think we can consider ourselves clear and entitled to consult another architect," he maintained.

Commenting on the renovation proposals for the old hospital, Ald. Edith Van Maarion said she felt the city police quarters should be more centrally located.

Mr. Fairbank agreed that this should be the case, but felt the hospital location would be satisfactory for city offices.

MRS. LITTLEWOOD RITES HELD HERE

Funeral services for Mrs. Freda Florence Littlewood, wife of Walter Littlewood of Ladner, B.C., were held at Thompson Funeral Home chapel Monday mornnig. Mrs. Littlewood died in Nelson last week while visiting her son, D. T. Littlewood.

Rev. F. Monaghan officiated and interment took place in Nelson Memorial Park. Mrs. Hector Mackenzie sang "Abide With Me," accompanied on the organ by Miss Cecilia Buckley. Many floral tributes were received.

Pallbearers were Dr. W. Murphy, D. F. Porteous, R. Stack and R. M. Edwards.

Salmo Clerk In Good Condition

Frank Flood, Salmo village Clerk injured in a highway accident last Thursday night, is reported by hospital officials to be in "good condition."

"He's up and walking about," the hospital reported.

Mr. Flood escaped death when his car hurtled down a 200-foot embankment at Hall Siding. He suffered from shock and lacerations.

Planning Consultants Give City First Report

A team of highly skilled experts took a look at the city with a jaundiced eye Monday night.

R. J. Cave, Dr. H. P. Oberlander and H. C. Redman of Community Planning Consultants unrolled a multitude of maps, graphs and statistics to reveal some staggering facts about the Queen City of the Kootenays.

While the information about Nelson uncovered by the team during an extensive survey might well jar the majority of citizens it is a hush-hush topic and for the time being cloaked in mystery.

Sleuthing down the facts about what makes Nelson tick, the consultants, retained by the city, have found out such things as the percentage of young and elderly people in the city, the number of retail and wholesale businesses and the area they served, the most sold products and the average pay of Mr. Nelsonite.

After embarking upon some underground work the team has a pretty clear picture of the city's sewer system, land use and industrial life of the community.

Only a favored 27 people who were on the inside of closed council chamber doors last night know of Nelson's vital statistics. For some time to come Mr. Taxpayer will be kept in the dark.

"This is just a preliminary report and it is not for the press," Dr. Oberlander explained before releasing an avalanche of information.

The men represent Community Planning Consultants Ltd. retained by the city to make a wide scale survey of Nelson with a view to future planning.

Council Jottings

A letter from the freight and transportation committee of the Chamber of Commerce informed City Council Monday night that a protest has been sent to the Board of Transport Commissioners.

The committee is protesting the "continued adjournment" of the hearing into the rail service between Nelson and Vancouver. A copy of the letter to the board, read to city council, points out that "existing rail schedules are of no value" and asked that the area not be forced again to go through the winter season without adequate transportation facilities.

City clerk Reeve Harper was authorized to attend a meeting of the Association of Kootenay Municipalities in Creston on Nov. 28.

Murder Trial Set Over to Spring Assizes; McGee Dismisses Counsel

Expected and unexpected developments came in the opening day of the fall assizes at Nelson.

A murder charge against Richard Alexander Huculak was traversed to the spring assizes on the request of Leo S. Gansner, Crown counsel.

Mr. Gansner told Mr. Justice Thomas W. Brown, who is presiding, that Huculak is in Essondale, provincial mental hospital, and is unable to stand trial at this time. Huculak has been charged with the beating murder of eight-year-old Linda Townsend of Park Siding, near Fruitvale. She was found dead with her mother.

The unexpected development came when John Franklin McGee of Rossland, charged with the attempted murder of his common-law wife, dismissed his counsel, Richard D'Andrea of Trail, and stated that he would conduct his own defence.

Immediately after the announcement, court adjourned for about 15 minutes. After the court resumed, McGee attempted to enter a plea of not guilty by reason of temporary insanity, but the plea could not be taken as it is not recognized in Canada.

Mr. Justice Brown informed the accused man that he could, in evidence and cross-examination of Crown witnesses, attempt to show this temporary insanity, so McGee left his original plea as one of not guilty. He is charged with attempting to murder Beatrice Elsie McGee (Harvey).

In his opening address to the jury, Mr. Gansner said that he would prove through testimony and exhibits that McGee went into the Golden City Cafe and Bowladrome, which Mrs. McGee operated, at noon June 29, that he shot Mrs. McGee twice, once in the head and once in the side; and that he was disarmed by his son Dennis.

SAYS KNIFE USED

Mr. Gansner said that he would also prove that McGee, after the gun was taken from him, slashed Mrs. McGee several times with a knife, and was about to cut her throat when he was again disarmed by Dennis. The youth was shot three times during the fray.

A person in the cafe at the time when McGee first entered, Dennis J. Smith, a clerk from a store nearby, described to the court McGee's entrance to the cafe, and what happened before McGee forced him to leave at gun-point.

He said that he, Mrs. McGee and Wesley Mack were sitting at the counter when the accused man came in. He walked behind Mrs. McGee, reached into his pocket and pulled out a gun.

"I got up and went behind him and grabbed his right arm. He pulled loose and pointed the gun at me. I ran out."

Smith told the court that he heard three shots and returned to see what had happened. Mrs. McGee was lying on the floor; she had been shot in the head and side, and McGee was standing against a wall.

He said that Richard Issel, Jack Ling, Dennis McGee and Ella O'Sullivan, a waitress at the cafe, were standing around her. Dennis McGee had also been shot.

Under cross-examination by McGee, Smith said that as McGee entered the cafe, Mrs. McGee had asked him "What do you want? You're not supposed to be here."

MANY WOUNDS

Dr. L. H. Nixon described the wounds to Mrs. McGee and Dennis McGee, saying that one of Mrs. McGee's kidneys, shattered by the bullet wound and bleeding profusely, had to be removed or death would have resulted. He noted that Mrs. McGee was shot in the abdomen and the head, as well as having various knife wounds on her body and neck.

Only the abdomen wound was serious, he noted. During the kidney removal operation, a small bullet was removed. The head wound indicated that a bullet had gone through the scalp without harming the brain.

The injuries to Dennis McGee consisted of gunshot wounds to each hand and to one knee. All failed to cause serious injury.

He revealed under cross-examination that he and Dr. H. A. Unruh had treated McGee for an overdose of drugs last winter, and that he could have died without treatment.

The day's two other witnesses, Constable R. K. Somerville, constable in charge of the Nelson identification section, and Const. S. J. Kirby of the firearms identification branch of the RCMP crime detection laboratory in Regina, identified and introduced a hand gun allegedly used in the shooting, several bullets, and a map and pictures of the scene of the shooting.

The case will continue today.

Industrial Disputes Too Often Ignore Public, CCF Meeting Told

NANAIMO (CP) — The public too often is ignored in industrial disputes, more than 160 delegates attending the annual convention of the Vancouver Island CCF Association were told here.

Lawyer Louis L. Lindhoom of Victoria, on a panel of four speakers who discussed the current Trade Unions Act, said the statute reduced the powers of trade unions by exposing them to penalties.

"It is because of this that it will contribute to industrial peace," he said.

Secretary Pat O'Neal of the British Columbia Federation of Labor said the bill is "class legislation emanating from the board of trade, chamber of commerce and the heavy construction industry."

He said it will "cost trade unions many dollars in wages and loss of conditions."

George Wheaton, a Burnaby contractor, said B.C.'s record of labor disputes is the worst in the country.

He said the legislation will eliminate what he called "secondary boycotts."

Gordon Dowding, CCF MLA for Burnaby, said it is "an act against trade unions" and has caused delays in the settlement of disputes.

The number of injunctions and court orders issued since its enactment equal the total granted in labor disputes during the past nine years, he said.

He said bill should be repealed and labor and management should get together to "atlk it over."

AVRO Aircraft To Stay in Business

TORONTO (CP)—Avro Aircraft Ltd. has on hand five or six proposals from various companies which could lead to increased activity at Avro's plant, Sir Roy Dobson said Monday at the annual meeting of A. V. Roe Canada Ltd. parent company of Avro.

Sir Roy—who is chairman of Roe—made the statement in reply to a shareholder who asked if there are any plans for the manufacture of new products which could make use of the facilities made largely idle through cancellation in February of the government's contracts for Arrow interceptor aircraft.

At least some of the proposals are from American companies, he indicated.

In reply to another question, Sir Roy stated:

"We are going to stay in the aircraft business unless some one deliberately pushes us out and that could only be through your government saying it won't give us any more business."

Sir Roy, in his prepared address to shareholders, reported on a "difficult" year, but outlined various prospects for improvement in the company's widespread interests.

SEES DELAY

He said of steel:

"I had hoped to be able to report the signing of a valuable contract for steel, but although we are fairly confident of our ultimate success, I am afraid it will be delayed for a month or so."

Of the aeronautical field, he stated:

"At Avro Aircraft, considerable progress has been made with the Avrocar, a unique form of aircraft capable of rising vertically from the ground, and we hope to be able to clear one or two outstanding technical problems and then demonstrate it in free flight.

"This could well be a complete break-through in the advancement of aeronautical science, and if it is as successful as we hope, we may have a more encouraging report next year.

EXCITING ERA

"We have entered a most exciting new era in probing the mysteries of space travel—the era of supersonic transport aircraft and transport which skims the ground instead of rolling on it. It may sound crazy to the more staid people, but it is here or just around the corner.

Earnings for the year ending next July 31 will probably be lower than for the year ending last July 31, Sir Roy said, reflecting the full impact of the federal government's cancellation in February of contracts for the company's Arrow interceptor aircraft and the Orenda engine.

In a brief reference to company executive changes following the Arrow-Orenda cancellations, Sir Roy said:

"I do not intend to delve too deeply into the subject of resignations. Let it be sufficient to say they were necessary and leave it at that."

Mrs. W. Vay Of Castlegar Hurt in Crash

CASTLEGAR — A Castlegar woman, Mrs. Wanda Vay, was rushed to hospital after her car careened off the road and down a 140-foot embankment Sunday.

Alone in the car, she lost control of the vehicle near Brilliant and her life is thought to have been saved by a wire fence which kept the hurtling car from crashing onto the railway tracks.

Mrs. Vay was taken to the Castlegar District Hospital suffering from undetermined injuries. Her condition was reported satisfactory Monday night.

NO ON HURT IN CRASHES NEAR CASTLEGAR

CASTLEGAR — Two separate highway accidents near here Saturday were investigated by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

A two-car crash on highway No. 3 at the Blueberry Creek-Paulson Road intersection resulted in extensive damage to a half-ton truck and a passenger car.

Police said the car driven by Alan Selbie of Kinnaird was in collision with the truck driven by Nicholas Horcoff of Castlegar. Neither man was injured.

A half-ton pickup truck sustained $300 damage after running off the road near Brilliant dam. The driver, Peter Posnikoff of Glade, was uninjured. The accident occurred at 9:10 p.m.

Science Now Shrinks Piles Without Pain or Discomfort

Finds Substance That Relieves Pain And Itching As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain and itching. Thousands have been relieved with this inexpensive substance right in the privacy of their own home without any discomfort or inconvenience.

In case after case, while gently relieving pain actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

Most amazing of all—results were so thorough that sufferers made statements like "Piles have ceased to be a problem!"

The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—discovery of a famous scientific institute.

Now this new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H. Ask for it at all drug stores—money back guarantee.

B.C. Accident Toll Counts Eight Deaths

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Eight persons died as the result of accidents in British Columbia during the weekend. Six were attributable to specific weekend circumstances.

Four were killed on the highways, a boy was drowned, a hunter died from shotgun wounds, a logger was killed by a snag and an elderly man fell down a stairwell.

Edgar Douglas Smith, 50, and Ernest George Gibson, 19, both of Victoria, were killed early Sunday in a two-car collision 25 miles north of Victoria. Three others were injured in the same accident.

Herbert Arthur Travis, 83, of Burnaby, became lost when he went to a store two blocks from his home and was struck by a car in Port Coquitlam late Saturday.

HIT-RUN

Police in the Northern Interior set up roadblocks Saturday after Mrs. Elsie Napolian, 35, was killed by a car which fled from the scene near Moberly Lake, 150 miles north of Prince George on the Hart Highway.

Her husband was taken to hospital at Dawson Creek and was reported in fair condition.

Police in Vancouver late Sunday searched for the body of three-year-old John Bradley Scott after he fell overboard from a boat in Coal Harbor.

More than 15 boats converged on the waters where the boy went missing but they called off the hunt at dusk Sunday.

HUNTER SHOT

Roy Penn, 22, died in Chilliwack hospital Sunday, 20 hours after he had been injured by a blast from a shotgun. Police said the bullet which struck him in the back was fired accidentally by a hunting companion.

A snag which flew off a tree Saturday killed Maxwell Godkin, 25, of Cortez Island. He was working at the Vimy Exploration camp north of Campbell River on Vancouver Island.

Eugene Ross, 66, fell to his death in Vancouver Sunday when he lost his balance and tumbled 50 feet down a stairwell opening from the fourth floor of the building.

Gov't Urged To Work Out Aviation Policy

MONTREAL (CP)—J. A. Morley, president of the Air Industries and Transport Association, Monday urged that the government and aircraft indusrries get together to work out a definite aviation policy so that the industry can know where it stands and where it is going.

He said cancellation of the Avro Arrow project and certain reversals by the transport department of Air Transport Board policies had hurt both the aircraft manufacturing and the air carrier industries.

"The past year, for both the aircraft industry and the operators, has been fraught with disappointment, uncertainty and major change in outlook," Mr. Morley, of Canadair, Ltd., said in his annual report to the AITA convention opening here.

"The absence of a comprehensive Canadian aviation policy . . . has had its toll."

WHOLE INDUSTRY HURT

He said the government's decision to abandon the development of complete weapon systems affected the entire industry.

Canada's aircraft makers, "aided and abetted by present and past government pressure," had concentrated on producing for the military market, a customer "whose pulse is nearly impossible to feel." This led to the industry's being caught by changes in military requirements which could not always be foreseen.

Opening of the North could assure the industry a sound future providing the government had sufficient foresight to formulate a realistic aviation policy.

"We cannot continue to buy foreign-made or designed equipment and retain our identity as an industry," Mr. Morley said.

He praised the government's efforts to get Canadian industry a share of U.S. defence contracts and urged the department of defence production to bargain with more "muscle." Canada had many strong points to bargain with, notably its ownership of the North over which any attack on the North American continent would come.

POLICY SWITCH

Mr. Morley said AITA was perturbed over changes in ATB policies. In the summer of 1958, he said, the transport minister ordered the ATB to issue licences freely to charter commercial operations and small helicopter services.

Many established air carriers had lost money because of the economic recession and "indiscriminate licensing of a multitude of new air carriers further aggravated their problems."

Another change came when the transport minister over-ruled an ATB decision on the operation of large helicopters. Mr. Morley said he was concerned not with the decision, but with the implication that policy had been changed by the transport department.

The ATB had always been committed to consider public interest in issuing licences.

"Unless the Air Transport Board is in a position to exercise judgment in the requirement for new air services . . . it would follow that the orderly filing of air carriers' tarriffs will become a travesty," he said. ". . . Canadian air carriers are entitled to an immediate clarification of government intention."

Mr. Morley suggested the government form a defence policy that would enable the Canadian aircraft makers to concentrate their efforts on one field and make Canada world - recognized as an expert in that field.

For example, the RCAF and RCN would undertake the entire anti-submarine defence of the North American continent.

Green Presides Over Canadian Envoys' Meet

PARIS (Reuters) — External Affairs Minister Howard Green of Canada Monday presided over a conference of Canadian ambassadors from Europe, the Middle East and the United States.

The ambassadors, most of whom are meeting Green for the first time since he became external affairs minister, are giving top attention to East-West problems in a general discussion on international affairs. The talks continue Tuesday.

Later this week Green is to meet the French government and NATO officials. He will meet President de Gaulle Friday.

Embassy officials said his talks are to "establish contact" with French and NATO leaders.

He then travels to London for more informal talks.

Canada's Oil Market Expanding Steadily

MONTREAL (CP)—The Canadian oil industry is almost uniquely fortunate in that for years it has operated in a steadily expanding market, W. M. V. Ash, president of Shell Oil Company of Canada Ltd., said today in an address to the Montreal Canadian Club.

"All estimates show this situation continuing into the future," Mr. Ash added. "This is not always understood even by ourselves."

Estimates in the Borden commission's report, he commented, are that natural expansion of existing markets will permit crude production of some 625,000 barrels a day by 1961, and of nearly 1,000,000 barrels a day by 1967, as compared with actual production last year of 456,000, and present production of about 500,000.

"While these figures are encouraging," Mr. Ash said, "they do of course still leave a percentage of productive capacity unused and so might displease that investor who is looking for the fastest possible return from the ground. . . .

ENVY OF OTHERS

"Nevertheless, the figures seem to me distinctly encouraging and probably the envy of many another industry."

Mr. Ash thought the Borden commission's suggested target of 700,000 barrels a day by the end of 1960—through voluntary action by the "international" companies in seeking wider markets—might be difficult to achieve.

He estimated normal domestic demand by the end of 1960 at 443,000 barrels a day and normal export demand at 118,000 barrels. Allowing another 59,000 barrels for reduction in Ontario foreign crude runs, this would leave new exports required at 80,000 barrels a day.

In spite of the difficulties, Mr. Ash felt the commission was wise in making the recommendations it did. He added:

"The alternative—a pipeline to Montreal—might well jeopardize the present exemption of Canadian crudes from U.S. import control. To Montrealers it would constitute a built-in higher - cost element in their oil and gas bill."

Castlegar High School Stages UN Day Programs

CASTLEGAR — United Nations Day was observed at the Stanley Humphries High School Friday.

At the junior assembly, Miss Noreen Fletcher outlined the club program for the year, activities including sponsorship of the milk program at the school with proceeds going to the United Nations Children's Fund.

There was to be joint sponsorship with the Brownies of the Hallowe'en Shellout for UNICEF in this district. Miss Fletcher also told of her recent trip to Vancouver, where she attended the Rotary-sponsored UN study seminar. A film, "The Children of the World," completed the program.

In the senior assembly Miss Colleen Gilker, Kaslo High School student, spoke on her trip to UN headquarters in New York. She was a member of an IOOF-sponsored tour. She also reported on her visits to Ottawa, Quebec, Washington and Philadelphia.

Miss Gilker said she was impressed with the enormous amount of work accomplished by such organizations as ILO, FAO and UNESCO, which help the countries of the world in their fight against misery, poverty, ignorance, injustice and oppression.

UN probably achieved more success along these lines than in settling quarrels of nations, she thought.

Warn Hunters Against Army Ammunition

VANCOUVER (CP)—A warning to hunters not to use army ammunition was issued Monday by provincial game director Frank Butler.

Mr. Butler said it is illegal to use unaltered army ammunition and the use of altered army ammunition is dangerous.

"For many years some hunters have made a practice of filing the metal tips from military .303 and .3006 ammunition and using the shells for big game hunting," he said.

"Although the use of altered ammunition is legal, there is a real danger connected with the use of these altered shells.

"If too much of the tip is filed off, the soft lead core may leave the barrel, while the jacket of the bullet may be left sticking in the bore of the rifle. When another shot is fired, the bullet will strike the obstruction. This could cause the barrel to split and might result in serious injury to the shooter."

S. Ackerman Passes at 72

ARROW PARK—Funeral service was held at East Arrow Park for Simon Ackerman, 72, Carroll's Landing pioneer who died at his home Oct. 19 after a brief illness. Interment was in East Arrow Park Maple Cemetery.

Mr. Ackerman was born in Sernius, Gr., Switzerland, in 1887. He came to Canada in 1912, homesteading in Glenbush, Sask. He returned to Switzerland where he married Bertha Metier in 1925. The couple then came to Canada and settled near Battleford, Sask., for 10 years, then with their four children moved to Carroll's Landing.

Besides his wife, Mr. Ackerman is survived by two sons, Jack of Nelson and Simon of Ontario; two daughters, Mrs. W. (Barbara) Nesbitt and Mrs. K. (Heddy) Marquardt, both of Nakusp; two brothers, Peter of Hillsboro, Oregon, and Chris in Saskatchewan; and one sister, Manga, in Switzerland.

A Good Leader and Good Followers

It has surprised a great many people that the Labor party in England failed so signally to carry the country with it in the recent election. They are inclined to see in the election results the decline of the party and the re-emergence of the Liberal party as a force in politics.

This may be true, for the bitterness of the class distinction between Labor and the other parties is dying. Every election sees a new body of young voters casting their ballots, and these, in England, have not experienced anything but good or prosperous times. The success of the welfare state and the fact that there is no unemployment makes for a contented people who are disinclined to further experiments in state socialism.

But whether Labor loses its place to Liberalism as the strongest opposition force in Britain is a matter for future history to decide. The fact that the Conservatives can win three elections in a row is significant.

This may be due to the leadership of Mr. Macmillan, and though there are evils in the cult of leadership, the fact remains that even in democratic countries leadership is important. In our own country we have seen the long years when the destinies of Canada were in the hands of Mr. Mackenzie King, and looking back on that period now, it is a matter of speculation if he really led the country or merely interpreted its feelings.

Certainly Mr. Macmillan has much to show that he is a leader in every sense of the word. He cleaned up the Suez muddle and re-established good relations with the U.S. He stabilized the economy of Britain and paved the way for the summit talks with Russia, all this without fuss or bother, and at the same time re-invigorated the Conservative party.

All this is much to his credit, but a good leader is not without good followers, and the British people are the most politically mature people in the world. Undoubtedly Mr. Macmillan correctly interpreted their wishes. This was strongly evidenced by his visit to Russia, which was strongly supported in the country, while the other things he did received their tacit approval. They were with him because they saw in him a man who was genuinely anxious to do his best for his country.

There always have been in Britain people who have put their country first and before their own private advantage. Macmillan is one of these. His sincerity radiates from him and his inspiration is not one of words, but of personality. He may not be an orator, but when he speaks the country listens.

Oh, Wicked Chivalry!

Well, well, well . . . so chivalry is just a wicked, male trick to dominate poor, trusting, unsuspecting women.

The truth's out, the game's up, you cad. Remember it when you next move to doff a hat, to offer a seat in a crowded streetcar, to hold open a heavyweight door while m'lady sweeps through.

According to two Cleveland psychologists, you're just trying to show that man is superior, woman inferior.

They made their survey among college students, asking two questions: first, if women are inferior and should be dominated; second, about chivalry, if a man should allow a lady to pay her own check, etc.

The outcome was that men who agree that women are inferior are more prone to gestures of chivalry, like doffing a hat to a lady in an elevator. So now you know.

This is disastrous for men. If they let women do all the things they used to do for them, a royal battle of the sexes is in the offing in the homes of this continent.

And if they try to behave as if nothing has changed, women are going to see through the little game anyway.

And if the men know—and the women don't—about the psychologists' findings, the martyrdom will show through. Everyone knows that only a wife can behave like a martyr.

Preserving Parkland

Etobicoke Council is struggling to prevent the 131-acre Elms Golf Club, now zoned as greenbelt, from being built over with houses, apartments and stores. Encouraged by ratepayers who are dismayed at the prospect of losing a green spot, the Council has appealed to Metro to find the $1,250,000 needed to buy the land from the would-be developer.

Metro Parks Commissioner Thompson has advised against the purchase. He feels that such a large expenditure on one project would cripple park development elsewhere in Metro. Mr. Thompson is right. It is now too late to talk of expropriation unless the residents of Etobicoke succeed in their efforts to raise the money themselves.

The time to buy the land would have been when the owners of the golf club became willing to sell it. The developers are said to have bought it around the end of last year for $880,000 — a more reasonable sum than $1,250,000, and one that Metro might have been able to afford. Township officials say, however, that they did not know the land had become available until after the developer bought it.

It may be too late to save the Elms Golf Club as open space. But we can learn a valuable lesson on how to prevent such unhappy events in the future. There should be legislation requiring a seller of greenbelt property to give first refusal to the municipality.

Columbus on a Troika Ride

Columbus didn't so much discover America as invent it. This is the conclusion of a Soviet historian who has been looking into Columbus' diaries. The famous navigator rewrote these, according to the Soviet scholar, in order to falsify the record of his westward journey.

Columbus already knew America was there (just as Mr. Khrushchev does now), and he did not go there only to press on to the Orient (as Mr. Khrushchev has just done). Columbus, having something of the Madison Avenue flair about him, set out for America on an advertising junket—a sort of real estate racket—in order to write attractive "copy" about a place that was not proving attractive enough to folk whom Isabella hoped would colonize the place.

(Thus we see, comrades, how even the appearance of America on the map was due only to a dirty capitalist trick. And we shall yet prove that the jewelry Isabella palmed off on a poor pawnbroker was . . . well, it wasn't from Cartier's. And that the egg that Columbus stood on its end, having been laid by an uncollectivized hen, could not have proved anything.)

Only one question will remain, when this chapter of capitalist history has been dialectically debunked: How does it happen that Columbus invented America? What were the Russians doing—you know, the ones who invented Marconi et al?

Accident Worries Senior Citizens

To the Editor:

Sir—On Friday evening, the Senior Citizens met in the WI room in the Civic Centre. A member, Mrs. Leonard, was hit by a car. The driver stopped and stepped out to see if she had been hurt. Mrs. Leonard was on her feet and appeared to be all right and the driver left. But when Mrs. Leonard took off her coat in the WI room, she was surprised to find her arm soaked in blood. A doctor was called to dress her wound and she was not able to play whist with the club members. I later learned there is a proper crossing for pedestrians at that point on Vernon Street. We are anxious to avoid similar accidents to senior citizens and wondered if an account in your paper would help.

F. B. Pearce. . . . . Writes

One trustee, speaking at the convention at Victoria, expressed the opinion that school trustees should have the right to fire teachers who do not constantly seek to improve their certification. In other words who did not go to summer school each year.

What this particular trustee does not realize is that there is a great deal of difference between practise and theory. All the summer schools in the world may make a man a great scholar but they may not necessarily make him a good teacher.

The great teachers are born, not made, though practice will make good ones if the desire to be a good teacher is there. The born teachers are those with an uncanny ability to get on with and be one with everyone from the Grade 1 children to those adults they meet out of school hours. Obviously they could be just as successful as bishops or business men. There are, unfortunately, far too few of them in the schools. On the other hand there are a great many more excellent teachers in schools today and this I think arises out of their pride in their profession. They want to be good teachers. They prepare their lessons daily and spend time in considering their methods of presentation so that the children understand and enjoy learning.

It would be a fine thing if all teachers had high certifications, but to insist that they go to summer school is, in my opinion, an interference with the liberty of the subject. No one should be told what he must do with his holidays and trustees are not alone in this. A Vancouver Island principal took up all his teachers' Easter holidays in tasks he set them.

It is not just a matter of the freedom of the individual but the commonsense matter of giving the teacher needed rest. If anyone wishes to take issue with me that the teachers do not need rest after taking a large class for a whole day, I invite him to offer to take a class in his church Sunday school for a few months. Probably one Sunday would be enough to convince him of the strain teaching imposes.

We entirely ignore the necessity for rest, though for the teacher it is much more important than anything else. Indeed, if teachers were wise, they would have a code of fringe benefits in the matter.

Junior and senior high school teachers start work at eight—that is not in the regulations but they were made before buses came into use. Pupils come early and stay late and teachers are lucky if they can get away from school three quarters of an hour after schools close.

The tired business man takes a rabid coffee break which often lasts half an hour both morning and afternoon. The teachers in high and junior high schools get no breaks at all and even their noon recess is often taken up with supervision, for the plain fact is that no one dares leave boys and girls of that age unsupervised.

This is not a matter of asking for sympathy, but merely of understanding that a tired teacher is a poor teacher. That if he puts in hours which may not be long but are certainly arduous, then he is entitled to his holidays. If he likes to be lazy, that is his business.

Diefenbaker Drops Hints On Appointments

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker announced Monday that $60,000 worth of Canadian canned pork is being sent to Japan as aid for victims of typhoon Vera.

The shipment of 100,000 pounds of pork will be sent as soon as possible, Mr. Diefenbaker said after a cabinet meeting.

The pork is a separate donation from $20,000 in cash voted earlier from the Canadian International Relief Fund. This is being handled by the Canadian Red Cross.

Typhoon Vera took 4,000 lives and damaged about 5,000 homes. Another 1,000 persons are believed missing.

SEES FATHER'S DEATH

LESAGE, Que. (CP) — Calixte Bouchard, 70, father of former Montreal Canadiens' hockey star Emile (Butch) Bouchard, was killed in a traffic accident near here Saturday. His son, following in another car, saw his father's car leave the road and hit a pole.

The first recorder of the corporation of London, England, was appointed in 1298.

Kaiser Steel To Bargain Separately With Strikers

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Kaiser Steel Corporation Monday broke away from industry-wide negotiations in the 104-day steel strike and announced it will bargain separately with the United Steelworkers Union.

Edgar F. Kaiser, board chairman, made the announcement in Washington only hours after the industry had announced that Kaiser had reached a separate agreement with the union.

Meanwhile, the United Steelworkers was scheduled to meet separately with 95 other strike-bound steel firms.

The announcement that Kaiser, the 12th largest steel producer in the United States, had reached agreement with the union was signed by the 11 other major steel firms. It did not say, however, that the agreement had been signed. Kaiser had been a member of the 12 steel firms bargaining as a unit.

EXPLAINED DECISION

By itself, Kaiser's statement did not deny that Kaiser Steel had reached agreement, but instead explained why he had decided to bargain separately.

Later, Norman Nicholoson, assistant to Kaiser, agreed to clarify the situation further. He denied that any agreement had been reached and added that negotiations began in Washington Monday morning.

Others of the industry's 12 major producers said Kaiser's bolt from the ranks would not alter their position to resist a wage increase.

Kaiser, which employs 10,615 of the 500,000 striking steelworkers, produces nearly 1,500,000 ingot tons of steel a year—two per cent of the U.S. output.

MOUNTING EMERGENCY

In his statement, Kaiser said: "We believe the decision to bargain separately with the union is the only responsible step we can take in the face of mounting national emergency caused by this 104-day strike."

Canada's Baby Steel Strike Shows Effects

By BOB EXELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canada's only direct involvement in the United States steel strike has been a 250-man drop in a 300,000 - man bucket—in the little village of Marmora, Ont., 250 employees of the Marmoraton Mining Company have also been out on strike.

During its first 3½ months, the strike has had little direct impact on Canada. But its effects are beginning to be felt now and they have put this country on edge.

Diminishing steel supplies threaten major layoffs, construction delays, automobile shortages and other repercussions. Industrial Canada is admittedly gloomy—particularly about the strike's long-term effects.

Should the walkout end this week, Canada would still suffer. It is felt steel will not begin flowing north until two to five weeks after the walkout is settled.

LAY OFF 7,000

General Motors of Canada last week put workers in its Oshawa plant on five - hour shifts, and about 7,000 hourly rated employees will be laid off by GM Nov. 4—whether the strike is still on or not.

Layoffs by GM affiliates and companies that depend upon it will raise the total to a minimum of 8200 workers temporarily out of jobs.

Chrysler Corporation and Ford of Canada in Windsor have announced the obvious—they're getting short of steel. There is little doubt that heavy layoffs will result if the strike continues much longer.

Studebaker - Packard of Canada's Hamilton operations don't compare with those of the giants of the auto industry, but already Studebaker has announced a curtailment in production.

ASK WAGE EQUALITY

The 250 Marmoraton workers walked out because the company is a subsidiary of Bethlehem Steel Corporation in the U.S. Wage equality with steelworkers there is one of their demands, but primarily they are striking for a better pension plan.

Heavy users of steel in Canada have been going to the United Kingdom and Europe to bolster diminishing supplies, and steel imports are three times greater than last year. But they would be much greater if so much wasn't being diverted to U.S. markets.

There was ample notice that the strike was pending. One result was the Canadian companies began hoarding steel. Many thought a 90-day stockpile would be sufficient.

Dominion Bridge Company Limited reinforced its supplies amply but the length of the strike—it now exceeds 100 days—has left it short of steel too, and the working force has had to be reduced. The firm says no major contracts have been delayed to date.

Other steel and construction companies have reported some longterm projects are beginning to be affected.

DELIVERIES HELD UP

A spokesman for a hardware firm in Vancouver said the biggest headache at present is the extended delivery period caused by U.S. buyers going to Europe, Canada, Japan—"anywhere they can get steel"—and overloading mills in these countries.

A shortage in specific types sizes of steel means that some products have to be made up from sizes not normally used, thus increasing costs slightly.

Auto dealers in Winnipeg reported a slight shortage of new cars. They believed it would become more acute even if the strike ended this week.

A spokesman for the federal department of public works in Ottawa said the strike is "undoubtedly having some effect" on its building program, but no large single projects had been delayed.

SHEEP PLANS

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Premier Smallwood said Saturday he is convinced Newfoundland can become Canada's leading sheep-raising province. The premier was commenting on the introduction last week of 200 head of white-faced sheep from Alberta on a community pasture at Bay Roberts.

Unemployment Leads Macmillan's Agenda

By ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Unemployment is the advertised first order of business when Prime Minister Macmillan's list of proposed legislation is presented to Britain's new parliament Tuesday.

The manifesto on which Macmillan's Conservative party won its new five-year term at the general election Oct. made it clear that Britain's "black areas" of local unemployment would be dealt with as a matter of urgency as soon as the House of Commons reassembles.

The urgency was underlined by the election results, which saw the stricken areas of Scotland, Lancashire and Wales turn sharply against the trend of increased government majorities. Unemployment was a factor in all five seats lost by Conservatives to Labor candidates.

Following the usual custom, the government's plans will be outlined in the speech from the throne, read in the House of Lords before a packed audience of peers in crimson and ermine ceremonial dress, with the black-clad members of the Commons assembled below the bar.

QUEEN ABSENT

Beccause of the Queen's pregnancy, the address will be delivered on her behalf by the lord chancellor, Lord Kilmuir. It will be the first time since she ascended the throne in 1952 that she has not read it herself.

The Conservative manifesto made no other specific pledges of immediate legislation but a number of other proposals in the party's election platform are expected to be included.

Among them are increases in the earnings allowance of pensioners, reform of the betting and gaming laws, revision of the licensing regulations for public houses and clubs, increases in road-building and slum clearance and assistance for the horticultural industry.

Envoy To Burma Admires Asian Country's Policy

By RUSSELL ELMAN

RANGOON (CP) — Canada, through the establishment last spring of diplomatic relations with Burma, is exhibiting a growing awareness of the strategic importance of this Southeast Asia country and former Commonwealth member.

"Burma today occupies a strategic geographical position between India and China," said Ambassador Arthur Menzies in an interview. "We hope it will maintain vigorously its independent policy in international affairs and an internal policy consistent with our own ideas of government."

No mission has yet been opened in Rangoon, but Menzies, Canada's high commissioner to Malaya, already has made several tours of Burma from Kuala Lumpur. Similar visits are made regularly by Trade Commissioner Mel Carson, stationed in Singapore.

Most Canadian-Burmese business, however, is still looked after by the British Embassy in Rangoon. A Canadian assists in routine administration, including Colombo plan work.

PLAN BIGGEST STAKE

As in other countries of South Asia, the Colombo plan has become the largest Canadian interest in Burma. A large measure of technical assistance and a small amount of capital aid has been allocated in the last few years to assist Burma's rehabilitation from both insurgency and the Second World War.

Biggest project to date is a $500,000 wheat gift, of which first shipments now are beginning to arrive.

Canada also has contributed $200,000 for design of a new highway bridge at Rangoon; a cobalt beam therapy unit for Rangoon General Hospital; $85,000 for equipment for Burma's first technical high school; $40,000 in photographic equipment for the survey department, and machinery for a farm mechanization program.

Under the technical co-operation program more than 60 Burmese have undergone training in Canada.

Twenty-two Canadian Colombo plan experts have been sent to Burma. These include a nine-man team that made a comprehensive highway survey last year. Vernon Everett of Digby, N.S., advised on mechanized farming, and Dr. R.S. Clarke of Vancouver is professor of pathology at Rangoon Medical College.

FARM WORKSHOP

Outside the Colombo plan, Leo Sanchez of Bonyn, Que., trained diamond drill operator for the mineral resources development board, and R.L. Buck of Brantford, Ont., working for the UN Food and Agriculture Organization, organized Burma's first central mechanical workshop for farm equipment.

Since Burma's farm mechanization program got under way, Cockshutt Farm Equipment Limited of Brantford has been given a $300,000 order for tractors by the Burmese government. De Havilland aircraft recently sold three Otters to the Burmese Air Force.

However, while Canadian aid to Burma is gradually being increased, the Burmese note that their country receives far less assistance than neighboring India, Pakistan, Ceylon — Commonwealth members. Burma quit the Commonwealth after gaining independence from Britain in 1948.

A Burmese government official, who helps administer Colombo plain aid, expressed disappointment that harbor equipment, diesel railway engines and a trawler tentatively promised by the former Canadian Liberal government did not receive cabinet approval when the Conservatives assumed office. He added, however, that he fully recognized that the new Canadian government was only exercising a fundamental right under a democratic constitution.

Aircraft Industry Advised To Make Commercial Planes

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian aircraft manufacturers, hard hit by cancellation of military contracts, should switch their talents to developing commercial planes, the Air Industries and Transport Association was told Monday.

R. J. Moffett of Ottawa, the AITA's first president, told delegates at the group's annual convention "continuity of military contracts in this age of technology is impossible unless the world is determined on its own destruction."

"This is not to say that military contracts should be avoided but that they should be the sweet or savoury rather than the whole meal."

Referring to the government's dropping of the Avro Arrow last year in favor of an American-designed plane, Mr. Moffett said:

OTHER FIELDS EASIER

"A team which can design the CF-100 and the Arrow certainly can design the comparatively more simple commercial transport."

Following the Second World War, during which aircraft manufacturers vastly expanded their production facilities, there was no action to ensure a supply of Canadian - built equipment for the expanding Canadian commercial field, Mr. Moffett said. The bulk of the production was military aircraft.

Now on all the national and international routes Canadian companies operate there are only a handful of Canadian-built aircraft.

WMS, WA Plan Annual Meeting In Kimberley

Joint meetings are working out well, it was agreed at a combined Woman's Auxiliary and Women's Missionary Society meeting held in the Board Room of Fairview United Church.

In the second such gathering held since inception of the joint meeting idea last year, Mrs. F. H. Lowe, WMS president, and Mrs. P. O. Huse, WA president, were chairmen.

The annual joint meeting to be held in Kimberley in February was a focal point of discussion, with delegates from Creston, Rossland, Trail, Fruitvale, Castlegar and Robson participating.

Mrs. P. M. Karpoff of Genelle led the devotional period. WMS members and WA members met separately first, then combined. The entire group adjourned to a coffee party held at St. Paul's-Trinity United Church during the recess.

WMS and WA's of the Kootenays made history in 1958 when they held their first combined annual meeting. This has eliminated overlapping of personnel, which was troublesome in the past.

Sheldon Atwell Heads Teen-Age Club

At the first meeting of the season, junior and senior Teen Age Club members of the North Shore elected Sheldon Atwell president.

Others on the temporary slate of officers, which will be active until the annual meeting in January, are: Shirley McRory, secretary; Frankie Stone, treasurer; Keith Frederiksen, Janet Fairbank and David Robinson, membership committee.

Modern, square and ballroom dancing will be taught TAC members by Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Cake, who have volunteered to teach the young people in two-hour weekly sessions for the next seven months.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Robinson and another couple will sponsor the senior group, and Mr. and Mrs. G. V. Frederiksen will continue with the junior group.

Membership fees will be used to build a record library for community use. Floor space at the United Church hall is ample for eight squares, and members are hoping for ten squares. Volley ball and badminton are also included in the teenagers' program.

Owing to numerous requests, membership this year is open to Fairview young people also. Last year's membership was 43.

SAY CHEESE. Jan Wik of the North Shore had no trouble saying "cheese" for the photographer after winning 40 pounds of it. The youngster claimed the award at the Friday night Guys and Dolls skating party at the Civic Centre. A "mystery prize" is given each week.

First Family Reunion for Many Years Held on Wedding Occasion

A family reunion was held for the first time in many years on the occasion of the marriage of Carolynne Fae, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. I. Cutler of the North Shore, to Kenneth Roger Jensen, son of Mr. and Mrs. K. W. Jensen, 821 Gordon Road.

Fairview United Church was the scene of the wedding, with Rev. H. R. Whitmore officiating at the service.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in a bouffant-skirted gown of white lace over satin. She carried red roses and white carnations, and her chapel veil was caught up with a coronet of seed pearls.

Gowns of attendants Miss Lynne Leeming, as bridesmaid, and Miss Duane Cutler, sister of the bride, as junior bridesmaid, were identically styled to that of the bride, in blue velvet.

They wore headdresses en tone, and carried colonial bouquets of bronze and yellow chrysanthemums.

The bridegroom was supported by his brother, Mr. George Jensen of Vancouver, and ushers were Mr. John McLeod of Kinnaird, his brother-in-law, and Mr. Noel Cutler, brother of the bride.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where a three-tiered wedding cake, made by the bride's mother, centred the table.

For travelling, the bride changed into a green tartan suit with black accessories. The newlyweds will make their home in Portage la Prairie, where the bridegroom is stationed with the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Family members coming to Nelson for the occasion were Mr. and Mrs. Art Cutler, Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Cutler, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Grycan, Mr. and Mrs. Campbell Cutler, grandparents of the bride, and Mr. Ray Cutler, all of Penticton; also Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Ehmke of Victoria, the bride's uncle and aunt.

Brothers, Sisters, Wed in Double Ceremony at Arrow Park

A pretty double wedding was solemnized in St. John's Anglican Church at Arrow Park when Rev. E. G. White heard marriage vows exchanged by two sisters, Beryl Marian, and Beverly Dawne, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Mole, and brothers, Wilfred Gustav and Lloyd Julius, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Gus Detta.

The charming brides, each in turn given in marriage by her father, were identically gowned in white nylon lace over taffeta. The bouffant skirts were of waltz length and their bolero jackets had lily point sleeves. Chapel veils were held in place by wreaths of apple blossoms. Their bouquets were of white chrysanthemums.

The brides' matrons of honor wore identically styled dresses. Mrs. Anna Yakulashek, the groom's sister, was attendant for Beryl, and chose mint green for her frock of flocked organdie. Mrs. Adell Williams as her sister Beverley's attendant chose apricot flocked organdie. Both attendants wore bandeaux of white roses and white accessories, and carried bouquets of chrysanthemums.

The little flower girl was the brides' youngest sister, Katherine Mole was dressed in an apricot frock of flocked nylon over net and carried a basket of fall flowers.

The groom's uncle, Mr. Gordon Boettger, supported his nephew — Wilfred Gustave—in the double-ring ceremony in which Beryl Marion and Wilfred Gustave were united. This was immediately followed by the exchanging of vows by Beverley Dawne and Lloyd Julius. Mr. Ed Williams, the bride's brother-in-law, was best man for Lloyd.

Mrs. E. G. White played the wedding music for the ceremonies.

Breakfast for the immediate family followed at the home of the brides' parents. Identical 3-tiered wedding cakes, beautifully decorated in the color theme of the wedding, by Mrs. Charles Wanstall of Nakusp, featured flower arches, miniature bride and groom, doves' and wedding bands. Tall tapers graced the bride's table.

Rev. White proposed the toast to the brides.

The mother of the brides chose an aqua colored afternoon dress with dusty rose and black accessories.

The grooms' mother wore a tailored suit in grey with red accessories.

Telegrams of congratulation were received by both couples from the brides' brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Doug Mole of Rostatt, Germany. A telegram from two former nurses at Nakusp, who were on the Hospital staff of the Arrow Lakes Hospital with Beryl, was read.

Out of town guests included Mrs. Alice Detta, Miss Frances Detta of Vernon, Mrs. Anna Yakulashek of Chilliwack, Miss Shirley Boettger of Nakusp and Mr. R. Boettger of Needles.

A wedding dance was held in the evening in the Burton Hall. A large number of friends attended.

For the honeymoon spent in Saskatchewan, Beryl chose charcoal grey suit with blue and white accessories. Beverly donned a biege suit with white accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Detta will reside in Nakusp where the bride is a member of the Arrow Lakes Hospital staff and the groom is employed with Celgar at Arrow Park.

Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Detta will reside in Burton. The groom is employed at Arrow Park by Celgar.

Film On Child Behaviour Shown At PTA Meeting

"The Terrfible Two's and the Trusting Three's" was title of a film on normal behaviour of two and three-year-olds shown to more than 90 people attending a meeting of the Hume School Parent Teacher Association.

The film is one of a series illustrating child behaviour patterns at a specific age, of which the PTA hopes to present more at future meetings.

A report was heard on the skate exchange and sale which netted $43.75, Mrs. Gordon Fleming of the Ways and Means committee told the meeting.

A budget for the coming year, prepared by Mrs. Paul Berekoff, was read and approved.

A report was also given on Nelson Figure Skating Club activities.

Purchase of a piano-organ for the school as this year's PTA project was discussed during the meeting.

Principal J. M. Morley told those attending that Hume School pupils are raising funds at the school for UNICEF, rather than collecting money for this purpose from door to door on Hallowe'en.

Miss Clark's grade one class won the attendance award.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. C. H. Jones and Mrs. Robert Irving.

Anniversary Couple Receive Surprise Visit From Friends

ROBSON—Mr. (Cap) and Mrs. G. O. Sutherland, 40th wedding anniversary celebrants who were guests at the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. O. Andersen, were surprised when some of their friends called to extend good wishes.

Mr. Sutherland was presented with a boutonniere and Mrs. Sutherland with a corsage by their youngest daughter, Miss Ann Sutherland. They also received a gift bowl of deep red roses with white carnations and white 'mums.

Mr. and Mrs. Sutherland have spent most of their married life in this district. Friends calling were from Deer Park, Syringa Creek, Trail, Kinnaird, Castlegar and Robson.

Refreshments were served by Miss Sutherland and Karin Andersen. A two-tiered wedding cake was placed in front of the guests of honor. A. Balfour of Trail addressed the celebrants, who later opened many gifts presented to them.

Tye Leads Club Rally Championship

[illegible]e Tye broke into the lead of [illegible] Kokanee Sports Car Club rally [illegible]mpionship Sunday with his win [illegible]he Border Rally, held Sunday [illegible] Trail.

The win gave him 37 points in the club championship, well up on the second place driver, Bill McGillivray. Dr. R. H. Brisco is in third place with 30 points total.

Driving a Jaguar XK 140 coupe navigated by his wife, Mr. Tye ended with a total of 12 points against him. Of the five checkpoints spaced over the 125 mile route, three were hit right on time.

Total error on the four hour run was an amazing three minutes.

Second place went to the Porsche coupe carried team of Dick Malloy and Denys Webb. They were penalized 15 points on three checkpoints, having hit two without error. This was the first time either has placed in the top three.

Bill McGillivray, driving an Austin Healey 100-6 navigated by Gordon Hine, won third spot with 16 points against them. Their greatest error on any checkpoint was two minutes.

The reliable team of Alan Mawsley and his Volvo came in fourth, navigated by Bob Hanson, while fifth went to the car with the most navigators, John Roberts, driver, wife Stella, navigator, and three children, navigators, backseat drivers, and land-mark watchers.

Just to top off the list, ninth place went to Nelsonites Peter Shayler driving an Austin Healey Sprite navigated by Gerry Stevens. This team expressed confidence before the rally due to their win of the rally two weeks before, but getting lost twice on one leg of the contest ruined their chances for [illegible]ionship points.

[illegible] route, planned by Ted and [illegible]y Hinchcliffe and Dr. and [illegible]bb Brisco, wound from Trail [illegible] Rossland to Northport, [illegible]ious back roads, through Singer's junction, and back via Colville, Northport and Rossland.

High average speeds were set throughout the run, with nearly impossible 38.8-mile-per-hour average set over an under-construction road. In one section of the road, mud nearly a foot deep was encountered, much to the dismay of the third place winner, Bill McGillivray. His Austin Healey has a ground clearance of less than four inches!

The only casualty of the rally occurred on the same leg of the run. Just before the infamous "mud-trap", Mac Ross driving an MG TD hit a stone the wrong way, and ended with a hole in the car's oil pan.

A truck was sent out from the nearest town to rescue the driver and his navigator, Jim Duckworth.

Rumors Scotched Douglas Rehired

CALGARY (CP) — Otis Douglas was rehired Monday as head coach of the Calgary Stampeders of the Western Interprovincial Football Union.

The announcement by club general manager Jim Finks killed rumors and unconfirmed reports that the club executive had decided several weeks ago not to offer Douglas another contract.

Finks said the contract was for one year but was not on a produce-or-else basis. Douglas was offered the contract earlier Monday and accepted.

Stampeders finished the season with eight wins in 16 games and lost out to British Columbia Lions for the third and last playoff spot.

Douglas, a 48-year-old pheasant farmer from Readville, Va., came to the club midway through the 1956 season. Only once since then, in 1957, has the club made the playoffs, but this year's record of eight victories was the best since 1954 when they also had an even number of wins and losses.

PARKER TOP WIFU SCORER

WINNIPEG (CP) — Jackie Parker, spindly-legged quarterback-halfback with Edmonton Eskimos, has captured his first Western Interprovincial Football Union scoring title since joining Esks from Mississippi State in 1954.

Although he missed four games of the 16-game schedule due to injuries, the 27-year-old back chalked up a total of 109 points on seven touchdowns 31 converts and 12 field goals.

Statistics compiled by The Canadian Press show that Parker finished with a 13-point margin over end Ernie Pitts of Winnipeg Blue Bombers, who had 96 points on 16 touchdowns on passes — a WIFU record.

Parker's 109 points were 36 short of the WIFU scoring record of 145 set last year by half-back Jack Hill of Saskatchewan Roughriders, who also held the previous record of 14 touchdown passes caught in one season.

Filion Leading WHL Scoring

SEATTLE (AP) — Seattle veteran Rudy Filion has taken over first place in the individual scoring race of the WHL. He has four goals and 10 assists for 14 points in games through last week.

Teammate Marc Boileau held second place, with 13 points on five goals and eight assists, league headquarters announced Monday. Bill MacFarland of Seattle and Rookie Norm Waslawski, Winnipeg, were tied for the most goals with seven apiece.

Three players were tied for the most game-winning goals at two each—Waslawski, Ralph Keller of Vancouver and Art Jones of Victoria.

Hank Bassen of Vancouver led goalkeepers with an average of only 1.44 goals scored on him a game in nine games. Marcel Pelletier, Victoria, had an average of 1.85.

Riders Take Bombers 37-30 in Last WIFU Tilt

WINNIPEG (CP)—Fullback Ferd Burket scored five touchdowns Monday night to lead Saskatchewan Roughriders to a 37-30 victory over Winnipeg Blue Bombers in the final game of the 1959 Western Interprovincial Football Union season—but the triumph showed only on the scoreboard. Commissioner G. Sydney Halter forfeited the game to Bombers because Riders used coach Frank Tripucka who is ineligible to play.

Burket, a graduate of East Oklahoma State, was one short of the WIFU record of six touchdowns in one game held by former Bombers' Lorne Benson and Bob McNamara.

First player to turn professional from his small college, Burket was a tower of strength for Riders, who prior to Monday night had won only one of their 15 league games. The game meant little to Bombers, who finished in first place and gained a bye into the Western final.

Guard Reg Whitehouse converted four of the Burket touchdowns and kicked a nine - yard field goal to wind up the scoring.

SET RECORD

End Ernie Pitts set a WIFU record for touchdown passes as he scored his 15th and 16th six-pointers by aerials, to pass the former record of 14 set last year by Riders' Jack Hill. Fullback Charlie Shepard and Carver Shannon scored the other Winnipeg touchdowns. Gerry James converted three and booted an 11-yard field goal.

Tripucka, who also played Saturday when Riders lost 20-19 to Edmonton in Regina, had the Saskatchewan club moving well whenever he took over at quarter from Canadian Ron Adam.

The former Ottawa and Saskatchewan player was good on 17 of 26 passes for 207 yards, one going for a nine-yard touchdown to Burket. Riders had a 26-21 edge in first downs but were outrushed 222 yards to 199.

Bombers, with Kenny Ploen operating at quarterback for injured regular Jim Van Pelt, were good on 11 of 21 passes for 153 yards. Ploen hit on seven of 15 for 127 yards, while halfback Leo Lewis connected on three of six for 26 yards as Bombers played most of the last quarter from a single - wing, direct - snap formation.

Ploen passed to Pitts and Shannon for touchdowns, while Lewis threw a touchdown pass to Pitts.

BURKET BIG GUN

Burket was the big gun along the ground for Riders, picking up 108 yards on 27 carries, while rookie Doug McKenzie, formerly of the University of Western Ontario, plunged for 33 on six carries.

Lewis and Shepard carried the mail for Bombers.

Stamps Edge Warriors 2-1

CALGARY (CP) — A two-goal outburst in the third period gave Calgary Stampeders a 2-1 victory over Winnipeg Warriors Monday night in a Western Hockey League game before 2,619 fans here.

The result boosted Stamps to second place, one point ahead of Victoria Cougars and Seattle Totems, and left Warriors in sixth place.

Gerry Brisson gave Warriors a 1-0 lead in the second period after a scoreless first period and Sid Finney and Ron Leopold counted for Stampeders in the third for the narrow win.

Goalies Al Rollins of Warriors and Claude Pronovost of Stampeders robbed opposing forwards of sure goals time and again.

Rollins was at his best in the first period as he stopped 16 Calgary drives. He handled 40 shots in the game compared to 22 for Pronovost.

NEW DEFENCEMAN

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Rangers Monday acquired a new defenceman in a three-for-one National Hockey League trade with Toronto Maple Leafs.

Noel Price, 23, comes to New York in exchange for centre Hank Ciesla, 25, who did not sign with the Rangers this season.

Musial, Williams Retain Bat Lead

By SHELDON SAKOWITZ

NEW YORK (AP) — Ted Williams and Stan Musial, despite dismal seasons in 1959, maintained their major league lifetime batting lead among active players.

Williams' lifetime average dropped three points to .346, but still is tops in the American League. The Boston Red Sox outfielder, sidelined part of the year with injuries and illness, hit only .254 in 1959.

Figures compiled by The Associated Press also reveal that Musial's career average suffered a three-point decline to .337, highest average in the National League. The St. Louis Cards' star batted .253 this past season.

Batting champions Hank Aaron of Milwaukee Braves and Harvey Kuenn of Detroit Tigers moved into second place in their respective leagues. Aaron hit .355 and boosted his career average seven points to .323. Kuenn raised his lifetime mark six points to .314 after batting .353.

Joe Cunningham of the Cards showed the biggest gain in both leagues. His lifetime average jumped 14 points to .317, tying him for third in the National League list. He batted .345 this past year.

Sixteen players, eight in each league, boast .300 or better lifetime marks. The leaders are based on a minimum of 300 games.

Williams, who began his big league career in 1939, has won six batting titles. The 41 - year-old "splendid splinter" missed five seasons due to military service.

Ted ranks fifth among the all-time modern batting leaders. The only players, with at least 10 seasons in the majors, to compile higher lifetime averages were Ty Cobb (.367), Rogers Hornsby (.358), Joe Jackson (.356) and Lefty O'Doul (.349).

Gilchrist Big Four Scoring Champion

TORONTO (CP) — Cookie Gilchrist has just about wrapped up the Big Four scoring title.

Statistics compiled by The Canadian Press show the 24-year-old native of Tarentum, Pa., with 72 points, 18 more than Ron Howell of Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Dave Thelen of Ottawa Rough Riders, with one game remaining in the 14-game league schedule.

Howell and Thelan each has 54 points, two more than Ticats Gerry McDougall. Bobby Simpson of Ottawa holds down fifth place with 48 points on eight touchdowns.

Gilchrist's points have been scored on five touchdowns, 14 converts, nine field goals and one single. Howell and Thelen each has scored nine touchdowns.

John Wydareny of the University of Western Ontario Mustangs moved into first place in the inter-collegiate scoring race with 18 points, one more than team-mate Bill Mitchell. Wydareny scored a touchdown as the Mustangs downed McGill Redmen 12-6 while Mitchell, last week's leader, was held scoreless.

Bobby Dann of the University of Toronto Blues and Mike Wichlum of Queen's Golden Gaels are tied for third place with 12 points each.

Yankees Going Back To National League?

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—The American League's expansion program calls for an inter-league deal that would put New York back in the National League in exchange for one of the National League's present franchises, The Associated Press learned Monday from an authoritative source.

The American League would expand to 10 teams, possibly next year. Two new franchises, Minneapolis and New York, would be added. The new franchise in New York, already American League territory, then would be offered to the National League in exchange for either Pittsburgh or Philadelphia.

The big problem would be to get the status quo - minded National League to accept this proposition.

PLANS CONFIRMED

The American League's expansion plans were confirmed by league President Joe Cronin. After meeting with Commissioner Ford Frick and National League President Warren Giles, Cronin issued the following announcement:

"The fact finding committee of the American League met with Commissioner Frick and Warren Giles today at the commissioner's office and informed them that the American League planned expansion in the future."

Cronin did not mention when the league expected to expand, how many teams would be involved or what cities might have new franchises.

SIX VOTES NEEDED

Only six affirmative votes are needed in the American for expansion. It would take a unanimous vote for expansion in the National. Giles said there was absolutely no sentiment for expansion in the National at its last meeting in May.

Only four American League clubs currently favor the inter-league exchange idea — Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland and Washington, the informant said.

Should this proposition become a fact, the American League would permit the Washington Senators to move to Minneapolis but would retain the Washington franchise and put another team in the nation's capital.

GETS GIANT-SIZED JOB AGAIN—Rehired on a one-year basis, Bill Rigney (right) manager of the Giants, reportedly will be on the spot to produce a winner in 1960 or else. He is seen with Horace Stoneham, president of the Giants, after his signing in San Francisco.

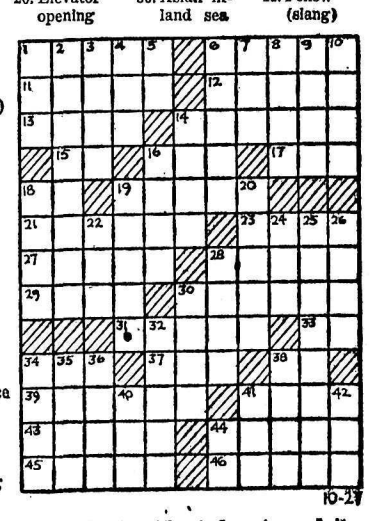
Yesterday's Answer



DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

M EALRT-ILUA XE LSBUR M GMR BPMB PMR WUSB KLGUBPXRT HR-ILRU—MHAUWXHM.

Yesterday's Cryptoquote: MY MIND IS GAY BUT MY SOUL IS MELANCHOLY—LANG.

F.D.R.'s Canadian Home Not For Sale

NEW YORK (CP)—The house at Campobello, N.B., where the late president Franklin D. Roosevelt spent many summers, was offered for sale in a Montreal newspaper Saturday, but one of the owners later described it all as an "hilarious mistake."

The co-owner, Victor Hammer, head of the Hammer Galleries of New York, made the comment when told that an advertisement was placed in the Montreal Gazette, asking $60,000 for the property, including all the furnishings that were there when the president used the home plus several paintings by him and furniture brought to Campobello from the Roosevelt estate at Hyde Park, N.Y.

SHOULD BE SHRINE

"We feel it should be kept as a shrine," Hammer said. "we would be very partial to what purpose it would be used if we sold it."

He gave this explanation for the mixup: Some time ago he had asked a New York real estate concern, Previews Incorporated, to find a buyer for the estate. But their contract with the concern expired "in May or June and we dropped the whole thing."

Apparently the firm forgot to notify its correspondent in Montreal and the advertisement was placed by the Van Horne Corporation Limited.

Hammer said the house had been repaired at a cost of $60,000 since its purchase from the Roosevelt family in 1951 "and that's where the figure (in the advertisement) comes from."

NOT NOTIFIED

(J. C. Van Horne, Progressive Conservative Commons member for Restigouche - Madawaska and president of the Van Horne Corporation, said in a telephone interview from Campbellton, N.B., that his firm had not been notified of any decision to withdraw the sale offer.)

The FDR summer home is located on Campobello Island, a quiet retreat in the Bay of Fundy, only one mile from the coast of Maine.

The late president was stricken with poliomyelitis on the island in 1921, the year after he was an unsuccessful candidate for vice-president. The incident is depicted in Dore Schary's Broadway play Sunrise at Campobello.

Latin Most Popular Language for Study

By G. K. HODENFIELD

NEW YORK (AP)—For a language that is dead and supposedly buried, Latin is indeed a lively corpse.

The last time anyone took a good look, Latin was still the second most popular foreign language taught in United States public high schools.

That was back in 1955, in a national survey by the U.S. office of education. It showed that 20.6 per cent of all public high school students were studying a foreign language: 7.3 per cent Spanish, 6.9 per cent Latin, 5.6 per cent French and .8 per cent German.

Another such survey now is under way. No change in the standings is expected when the final results are in a few months hence, alfo ugh Russian—a late starter — may move ahead of German.

REQUIRED STUDY

These figures do not include the 2,458 Roman Catholic high schools in the country, with their 810,000 students. In virtually all the Catholic schools at least two years of Latin is required. Some require four years of Latin for graduation.

Dr. John Francis Latimer, professor of classic at George Washington University, is one of the many who think the study of Latin in public high schools is reviving by leaps and bounds.

"Every Latin teacher I've talked to," he says, "reports an increase in the number of Latin students. If we had the teachers available, I'm sure the number of high school students studying Latin would double in the next three to four years."

GREEK IN DECLINE

There seems to be little hope for that other great classical language—Greek.

"Greek has fallen on evil days," says Dr. Latimer.

To about 1850, Latin and Greek were the languages to study, with Latin by far the more popular. Between 1850 and 1890, both languages went into a decline. Greek never recovered, but Latin made a strong comeback.

What is the case for Latin and Greek?

Dr. Latimer, admitting to "a bit of prejudice," puts it this way:

"The two greatest literatures in the world are those of Greece and Rome. A knowledge of Latin and Greek is not essential to a happy or successful life, but it is extremely valuable intellectually and inspirationally."

U.K. Liberals Have Hard Row To Hoe

Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Britain's Liberal party still has a long way to go in its bid to supplant Labor as the country's alternative to the Conservatives.

The Liberals, in eclipse since the First World War, won nearly 1,000,000 new supporters in the general election Oct. 8, more than doubling their poll of 1955, after fighting a campaign that assailed both major parties with equal vigor.

It brought them no electoral reward. They sent six members to the House of Commons, the same number they had in the previous Parliament, although their six per cent of the popular vote contrasted with their one-per-cent representation in the 630 - seat House.

Since Liberals contested only one-third of the seats at stake, their supporters could justly argue that they were supported by nearly one voter in every five with the opportunity to cast his ballot in their favor. The party has vainly pressed for electoral reform to give them a more equitable voice in Parliament.

FAINT HOPES

A detailed examination of the results shows the Liberals have faint hopes of an appreciable increase under the present system.

The average vote polled by their 215 candidates was 7,500, an increase of 1,000 over the showing of the 110 Liberals who fought in 1955, but far short of the 19,500 average of Labor's candidates in the current campaign.

Of their six winners, two were elected in straight fights against Labor candidates under local agreements with the Conservatives, who stayed out of the constituency in exchange for Liberal abstention in a neighboring seat.

Nineteen Liberals finished in second place, displacing a Conservative or Labor opponent. But some of them finished a long way behind the winner.

UPHILL FIGHT

Of the 209 defeated Liberals, only six appeared to have a good chance of reversing the verdict in a subsequent poll. These were defeated by margins of under 5,000 votes. Of all the seats changing hands in the election, none had previously been held by a margin of more than 5,000.

Twelve others lost by fewer than 10,000 votes and might be considered to have an outside chance next time. Of the remainder, more than two - thirds finished more than 15,000 votes behind the winner.

Liberal Leader Jo Grimond is an attractive, dynamic personality with a youthful and enthusiastic following. But in Britain's traditional two-party alignment, his party faces a long, uphill fight.

RE-AFFIRM SUPPORT

DUNCAN (CP) — Ratepayers in Cowichan school district voted 1,408 to 542 in favor of a $135,292 referendum for work on two junior high schools, three elementary schools and six additions. A vote last July of 1,020 to 555 in favor was disallowed by the provincial government.

Commonwealth Needs More Planes — Philip

LONDON (AP)—Prince Philip declared Monday that airplane makers of the Commonwealth should pool their resources to meet increasingly stiff American competition.

Philip, royal patron of the Air League of the British Empire, expressed this view in a speech in the league's annual luncheon.

He said the league applauds recent efforts by British airlines to bring about fare reductions.

"The league believes that lower fares will stimulate more traffic, which in turn will produce demand for more aircraft, which will be just what the British aircraft industry would like.

He said the lack of orders is due mainly to the fact that "the American aircraft industry is providing increasingly rugged competition not just to the British industry but to the aircraft industries of all countries outside the United States, particularly in Europe."

MARKET TRENDS

NEW YORK (AP) — Inspired by signs of a break in the steel deadlock, the stock market rallied vigorously Monday on the heaviest turnover since Aug. 10—3,580,000 shares.

In the early stages of the rally, steels, motors and rails moved forward solidly but faltered on later profit taking.

Coppers, oils, chemicals, rubbers and a wide variety of selected issues were well ahead by the close while aircrafts, drugs, tobaccos and airlines were irregular.

The Dow Jones industrial average advanced 4.54 to 637.61. The Associated Press 60 - stock average rose $1.40 to $222.70.

Studebaker - Packard was most active issue, rising 2 to 23 on 157,200 shares.

Canadian gainers included Walker - Gooderham, Distillers-Seagrams, Hudson Bay Mining, International Nickel and McIntyre Porcupine. Aluminium Ltd. lost ¾. Canadian Pacific and Granby Mining were also lower.

The American Stock Exchange was mostly higher on a turnover of 1,120,000 shares. Brazilian Traction and Shawinigan were lower among Canadian stocks.

MONTREAL (CP) — An early afternoon surge of buying trailed off at closing on the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges Monday but the market held generally strong.

But banks fell in a late selling flurry. Montreal managed to keep ahead ½ at 55¼, but losses of the same amount went to Provincial at 38½ and Commerce at 59¼.

Paper stayed strong but for Power Corp, down 1 at 55. Big gainers were Consolidated, 1⅛ at 37, and Great Lakes, 1 at 39¾. Abitibi and Powell River were up fractionally.

Steels all were up, led by Steel of Canada, which held firm at 80¼, a gain of 1¼.

Aluminum was the only loser in the base metals section at 30¾ down ½.

Calgary Power made 8 at 99 to lead the mixed utilities group. Fractional gainers were Brazilian and B. C. Power, and among lowers were Bell and International Utilities.

Volumes were 90,600 industrials and 257,100 mines and oils.

Closing averages showed banks off .12 at 60.16, utilities unchanged at 142.0, industrials up 1.1 at 296.4, combined up .7 at 244.9, papers up 3.2 at 421.0 and golds up 0.11 at 84.31.

TORONTO (CP)—Stock market prices, despite being buffetted by some light profit-taking towards the end of the session, Monday recorded a moderate advance amid the heaviest trading in a week.

The advance, termed a technical readjustment following last week's loss, was led by mines. Several individual industrials featured that section while western oils appeared to be the heaviest-hit by the late selling.

Calgary Power, following announcement by the company's directors that they had recommended a 5-for-1 split, jumped to 99⅝ before settling to a close of 98, up 2½ points.

Industrial gains ranged to a point and they outnumbered losses about 2-to-1 at the close, although several of the declines were recorded by lightly-traded issues, one of which was Dominion Oilcloth with a 4¾-point loss to 37½.

Senior base metals moved up in a one-point range while several lower - prices mines, including many coppers, gained in a 20-cent range. Western oils had a long list of moderate gains and few losses.

Index gains: Industrials 17 to 597.60; golds .12 to 8.81; base metals 1.79 to 166.93; western oils .91 to 100.73.

Moscow To Publish Moon Pictures Today

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union announced Monday the first photographs of the far side of the moon will be published in Moscow newspapers Tuesday.

Tass said Lunik televised the photos back to earth on Oct. 7.

"The taking of the photos," it added, "was timed so that the station on its orbit should be between the moon and the sun, which lighted about 70 per cent of the unseen side of the moon.

"At the time the station was a distance of 60,000 to 70,000 kilometres (37,000 to 43,000 miles) from the moon's surface.

"An orientation system switched on by a special signal turned the station in such a way that the camera lenses should be directed toward the far side of the moon and issued the instructions to operate the photo equipment."

The agency said the U.S.S.R. academy of sciences "has set up a commission for naming the craters, mountain ranges and other features of the unseen part of the moon."

Gas Industry Hopes Authority Will Permit Canadian Imports

WASHINGTON (AP)—Gas industry people are hopeful that the Federal Power Commission will give its approval before the week ends to applications by two firms for authority to pipe natural gas from Canada into Minnesota, Wisconsin, North Dakota and Michigan.

Such a decision, if agreed to by the Canadian government, would open the door to eventual importation of large volumes of gas from Alberta fields.

The FPC heard final arguments in the case last week and indicated it would rule before Nov. 1 on the applications of Midwestern Gas Transmission Company of Houston and Michigan Wisconsin Pipe Line Company of Detroit.

WISCONSIN LINE

Midwestern proposes to build a $52,297,000 pipeline system from the U.S. - Canadian border near Emerson, Man., to Marshfield, Wis.

Midwestern has a contract to buy 204,000,000 cubic feet of gas daily from Trans - Canada Pipe Lines, Ltd., and resell 158,000,000 cubic feet to Michigan Wisconsin. The rest would be resold to other firms and some communities.

Michigan Wisconsin proposes to build a $24,177,000 system including 97 miles of main line from Marshfield to Appleton, Wis., 65 miles of loop line along its existing system in Illinois, Indiana and Michigan, and 311 miles of other lines.

AWAIT OTTAWA MOVE

Industry representatives say they expect the power commission to grant Midwestern a conditional permit, subject to action by the Canadian government permitting export of the gas.

They also say that the commission may put in another condition—that the gas be sold to Midwestern at no higher figure than now provided in the contract with Trans - Canada, about 28½ cents a thousand cubic feet.

The power commission several times has stated flatly that importation of Canadian gas would be desirable. Such imports would help conserve present U.S. reserves and also provide gas for communities in the northern tier of states which otherwise do not stand to get natural gas.

The Canadian government has given no indication it will grant an export licence to Trans-Canada. Lack of this assurance a year ago was one of the major reasons why the commission turned down nine firms seeking to supply Midwest with large quantities of gas.

CANADIAN SALES LOW

At that time it appeared that Trans-Canada would put its main emphasis on supplying Canadian firms. However, one expert reports that Canadian consumption has not gone up as expected. As a result, he said, it would be helpful to have the U.S. market to help pay for the newly completed 2,200 mile line built by Trans-Canada from Alberta to Montreal.

The Canadian government already permits export of about 200,000,000 cubic feet of gas daily to the Pacific Northwest and another 50,000,000 into Montana. A favorable ruling by Ottawa in the present case might open the door to sharp expansion of exports in the future.

Pacific Gas and Electric Company currently is seeking permission to build a huge new pipeline to tap Alberta gas reserves for about 400,000,000 cubic feet daily for use in California.

Your Individual Horoscope

By Frances Drake

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars,

For Wednesday, October 28, 1959

MARCH 21 to APRIL 20 (Aries) —A good planetary set-up. Start the day with the will and the ambition to do well, and you will. In dealing with others, don't be overly aggressive, however.

APRIL 21 to MAY 21 (Taurus)—This day should encourage you to double efforts if possible and necessary to get the fullest benefit from generous influences. Be cooperative with associates.

MAY 22 to JUNE 21 (Gemini)—Fine Mercury influences should now stimulate clever thinking, new ideas. With smart direction, you can make this a highly profitable day.

JUNE 22 to JULY 23 (Cancer)—Your Moon, in fine position now, encourages many lines of endeavor. The artistic and scientific fields are especially favored. How much you accomplish is really up to you.

JULY 24 to AUGUST 23 (Leo)—Your Sun's influences can be used to great advantage — depending upon how promptly you start your schedule, how conscientiously you follow through. Aim high, and you can reach worthwhile objectives.

AUGUST 24 to SEPTEMBER 23 (Virgo) — The planet Mercury in your Sign suggests two things now: Know facts before you begin new ventures and give wholehearted support to worthwhile causes. You can achieve.

SEPTEMBER 24 to OCTOBER 23 (Libra) — Don't seek to do more than is reasonable, and do not waste valuable time or assets on unworthy people or affairs. Remember the high aims of your true nature; seek top goals.

OCTOBER 24 to NOVEMBER 22 (Scorpio) — Many people may offer suggestions. It doesn't hurt to listen, Up To a Certain Point. One can become unduly confused, too. Reach your conclusions through unbiased reasoning.

NOVEMBER 23 to DECEMBER 21 (Sagittarius) — Avoid a tendency toward irritation. Look the other way, with nothing to say. And don't forget your sense of humor! Your fine talents and abilities are in great demand now.

DECEMBER 22 to JANUARY 20 (Capricorn) — You may find competitors, associates on edge; be yourself, smile and don't let them get you down. Use your innate practicality; it will carry you over hurdles.

JANUARY 21 to FEBRUARY 19 (Aquarius) — It is better to take your time and do things right than to be hasty and feel fatigued as a result. Don't let anyone drive you against your better judgment. Be calm within.

FEBRUARY 20 to MARCH 20 (Pisces) — You may be able to accomplish even more than you yourself anticipate, but to do well at all, you must put misgivings and doubt aside.

YOU BORN TODAY: "Your" planet Mars indicates strong, success-making potentialities — inventiveness, ambition to achieve the worthwhile, and the know-how to cut red tape and accomplish quickly. Mars, however, also warns against overambition, which so often is a characteristic of the determined, energetic, bright individual. You require plenty of fresh air, rest, sleep and abstinence from worry. Management, investigation, organizational work suit your talents. Birthdate: Capt. James Cook, English navigator and explorer.

Tass Cancels Cairo Report On Algiers

LONDON (Reuters) — The Soviet news agency Tass Monday cancelled a Cairo report saying the Algerian provisional government had issued an official statement offering to halt its Algerian rebel activity if France stopped military operations in Algeria.

Asking its subscribers to cancel the report, the Soviet agency said the story should be dropped "because of an error in the text."

The error may have resulted from a Cairo Radio news item quoting a rebel government statement in Rabat, Morocco, as saying France should agree to hold negotiations with the insurgents if it desired an Algerian ceasefire.

Odds . . . and Ends

. . . by M. D. B.

How often have you heard it said, "Baker Street is the hottest place in summer and the coldest place in winter." For this reason during the heat of summer people avoid Baker street as much as possible. The heat beating down on all the expanse of cement is suffocating, and in winter people nip down to the corner stores rather than brave the icy winds that sweep the length of Baker street unhindered.

* * *

Now that Baker Street is to be remodelled, perhaps some thought should be given to remedying this situation. Perhaps the mall type of shopping district should be considered. Where it has been tried in the States there have been glowing reports of its success, with a 25 per cent increase in business. Now, even staid Victoria is considering such an answer to mid-town congestion. Certainly if you give people a pleasant place to shop they will be more inclined to linger and part with their money, which, after all is the objective of every business establishment.

* * *

True, it would take a good deal of thought and planning and above all imagination and daring, the latter a word that seemed to die off with the first generation of settlers. Cities that have grown old and ugly are now searching for means to make themselves more beautiful and inviting, but why must they wait until they are old and ugly before doing something to preserve their natural beauty? Perhaps cities are like people and you can't put old heads on young shoulders. Perhaps we will have to do like all youth, rather than profting by our elders' mistakes we must make them all over again for ourselves before we will wake up and realize that the old folks knew what they were talking about.

* * *

It is the beauty spots, and the novel that draw tourists and Nelson is going to have to depend more and more on its tourist industry. In which case it wouldn't hurt to look at ourselves as though we were tourists and consider what we would like to find on coming into a city. Surely there is some other answer to Baker Street than a vast oven of cement and asphalt, and now is our chance while remodelling is being done.

P.S. Someone can now take away the soap box. I've finished my little speech.

Tot's Vocabulary Shatters Listeners

HAVERFORDWEST, Wales (AP) — Kevin Poole is only three years old but his command of language — bad language—has shocked the town.

The tot's vocabulary might have gone unnoticed had his mother not brought him to quiet, respectable Haverfordwest on vacation.

Kevin lost his temper with a couple of neighborhood kids and let loose with a blistering tirade.

The enemy was put to flight. But their parents, who overheard the oration, were frozen to the spot.

Kevin was staying with friends in a house owned by the town council. So the neighbors sent in a complaint.

Housing inspector George Davies went round to investigate.

But Kevin's blood was up and he gave him the works.

Reported Davies: "The boy's language is extensive."

Kevin was ordered to cut out the cursing. And as a punishment his mother is cutting short his vacation and taking him home today to the nearby fishing port of Milford Haven.

The local trawlermen there have been known to use some of Kevin's phrases themselves and his language consequently attracted less attention.

Nevertheless Mom is determined to find a cure.

"I shall send him to Sunday school, she said.

ALTERNATE PROPOSED. As work on the Trans-Canada Highway passes $500,000,000 in value, a western group continues to seek support for an alternate route which would run through the Prairie provinces farther to the north. The Trans-Canada Highway System Association (Yellowhead Route) has been stumping for 15 years for a route which would branch north from the present federally-assisted road at Portage la Prairie, Man. It would rejoin the Trans-Canada Highway at Kamloops, B.C. Advocates of the alternate route contend the present Trans-Canada Highway serves only part of the west because it passes through southern regions of the Prairie provinces. This map shows that much of the route for which the western group seeks recognition already is in existence. The big gap is a 275-mile stretch between Jasper and Kamloops which is only a trail. The Yellowhead group is also seeking a branch highway from Jasper to Prince Rupert, B.C. A paved highway exists between Prince George and Prince Rupert but the Jasper-Prince George stretch of more than 200 miles is little more than a path.

WARNING TO MOTORISTS

Today's cars need extra drive-wheel traction in the tough winter driving ahead to take advantage of extra horsepower.

Goodyear's new Suburbanite was designed especially for modern cars. It gives dynamic traction, the engineer's term for traction under power.

This extra grip under power makes the Goodyear Suburbanite the "go-anywhere" tire. Steep driveways and hills—unploughed parking lots—slick surfaces—mud—Suburbanite beats them all. And Goodyear Suburbanite rolls quietly on bare pavement. Gives you extra seasons of wear, too.

Don't wait for winter. See your Goodyear dealer now for new Suburbanites. Only Goodyear makes the Suburbanite.
