Less Sticklish Business Facing Legislature Today

Trading Stamps, Workmen's Compensation, Education Laws Expected To Be on Agenda

VICTORIA (CP)—The British Columbia legislature opens its 1962 session today with prospects for a little less noise and much less contentious business than a year ago.

Nobody expects, however, that its six-to-eight-week duration will pass without some explosive outbursts — over past legislation if not over that introduced at this session.

Lieutenant - Governor George Pearks will open the third session of the 26th legislative assembly at 3 p.m. with the reading of the speech from the throne.

Few surprises are expected in the speech, which observers here say is almost certain to forecast appointment of a royal commission on workmen's compensation; changes in the education laws and new legislation to ban gift-stamp merchandising by B.C. retailers.

A government report on the wide disparity of gasoline prices throughout B.C. is expected to be tabled early following a year-long study announced by the government last session.

But none of these things is likely to generate the same heated argument from opposition benches that reference to past legislation will incur.

MAY HIT LABOR LAWS

Labor laws, which prompted several all-night sessions as the opposition CCF party argued against it last spring, no doubt will be attacked again.

The legislation under which the Social Credit government took over the B.C. Electric Company during a special session last August will come under discussion in spite of an impending court case.

And along with this will come argument on Premier W. A. C. Bennett's stand on Columbia and Peace River hydro-electric development.

The opposition is likely to raise the mental health issue again, too, since some members still are miffed over the government's refusal to table last spring a report on the services in the province.

Mr. Speaker Hugh Shantz has said that he will not permit debate on points before the courts in the B.C. Electric case, but opposition and government spokesmen have said this will not prevent discussion of the merits of the government's action.

ATTACK PURCHASE

The government's later move to purchase Black Ball Ferries, which operated between Nanaimo and Horseshoe Bay, near Vancouver, also is expected to bring argument. Liberal Leader Ray Perrault has claimed that the $6,700,000 price paid by the government was too high.

The government enters the second full session of the house since the 1960 general election with 32 of the 52 seats. The CCF which since the past session has changed its name to New Democratic Party, has 16 seats and the Liberals have four.

Raps Liberal Indifference To U.K. Trade

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Fleming accused the Liberal party of indifference to Canadian trade interests in Britain.

The Liberals in the past had shown indifference to the Commonwealth as an institution and opposition to the system of Commonwealth tariff preferences, he said Wednesday during the Commons throne speech debate.

Mr. Fleming said that if Britain entered the European Common Market without protection for Commonwealth trade interests "our industry and trade could suffer enormous losses and distortions."

Canada welcomed Britain's assurances it would seek such protection in its current negotiations for membership in the six-nation market.

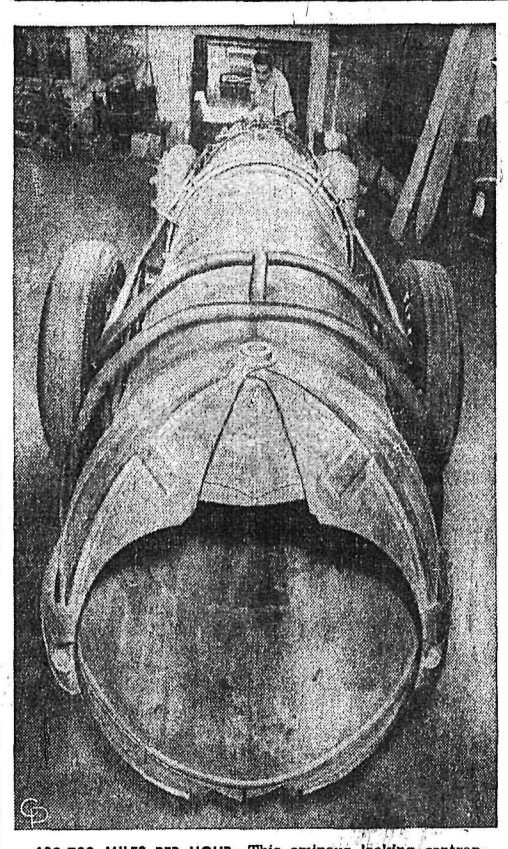
But the Liberal party had been "trying to push Britain into the Common Market,"

The finance Minister described as "untruths and distortions" charges by the Liberal party that relations between Canada and Briain had been strained.

Two-Price Wheat System Asked

BANFF, Alta. (CP) — The Canadian Federation of Agriculture asked Wednesday that a two-price system be established for Canadian wheat.

Cuba Suspension From OAS Seen



450-700 MILES PER HOUR—This ominous looking contraption Romeo Palamides (rear) has in his Oakland, Calif., garage is the 25-foot, 10,000-hp jet engine of an F-86-D jet plane mounted on a four-wheel "sled." Palamides and driver Archie Leiaderbrand say it will do somewhere between 450 and 700 miles per hour on the Bonneville flats. You're looking into the afterburner, or rear.

Trout Lake City Sends Out SOS

TROUT LAKE CITY (CP) — Residents in this tiny community on Trout Lake, isolated by snow and ice, have made a plea for help.

Through their only outside communication, radio telephone, the community of 80 persons reported food supplies low and all roads impassable because of snow and ice.

About 10 families live in Trout Lake City, 40 miles southeast of Revelstoke, a ghost town coming back to life as a fishing resort.

The plea for help was made to George Hobbs, CCF member of the legislature for Revelstoke.

Mr. Hobbs said in Victoria the area is in a snow belt and was hard hit this winter. He said he has notified Highways Minister Gaglardi who said he would look into the situation.

Mexico Claims Sanctions Not Warranted; Bolivia Abstains

By ALFONSO MAURI

PUNTA DEL ESTE (Reuters)—Suspension of pro-Communist Cuba from the Organization of American States appeared assured Wednesday as OAS foreign ministers held a belated first working session of their conference here.

But all signs cast serious doubt on whether any political or economic sanctions, originally sought by the United States, would be voted by the 21-nation group.

Working sessions, delayed since Monday because of an intro-OAS split over sanctions, got under way with none of the many speakers defending Cubas OAS membership.

Only Bolivia abstained from giving an opinion toward membership of Cuba in the inter-American body.

The 12 Colombian - led so-called "interventionists" demanded a collective break in diplomatic relations and an economic blockade, but Mexico, while outspokenly anti-Communist, claimed no sanctions were warranted under the OAS charter.

Mexico, speaking for the eight member so - called "neutralist bloc," said Cuba had forfeited its OAS membership.

OPPOSES SANCTIONS

Chilean Foreign Minister Carlos Martinez Sotomayor opposed political sanctions as unjustified and economic sanctions as potentially ineffective because Cuba trades mainly with the Sino-Soviet bloc.

Stressing that communism thrives on destitution, he urged quick implementation of the $20,000,000,000 U.S. - sponsored Alliance-for-Progress aid program for Latin America, which American congressmen here have said might dry up unless immediate strong collective action is taken against Cuba.

Mexican Foreign Minister Manuel Tello, speaking for the anti-sanction bloc, told the first working session that despite Cuba's forfeiture of membership, a policy of strict non-intervention must be pursued.

The Inter-American defence system authorizes positive action to curb aggressive acts but, strictly speaking, no such acts have taken place, he said.

UPSETS EQUILIBRIUM

Colombian Foreign Minister Jose Joaquin Caicedo said Cuba's military buildup and its capacity to acquire unlimited arms through the Communist bloc endangered the hemisphere's equilibrium of power.

Guatemalan Foreign Minister Jesus Unda Murillo told the conference that the severest possible sanctions should be collectively imposed on Castro.

Unda Murillo suggested that "decisions taken here are officially made known to friendly countries outside the inter-American system, such as Canada, requesting from them their utmost co-operation."

Slide Blocks Trans-Canada Highway

REVELSTOKE (CP) — A slide has temporarily closed the Trans-Canada Highway west of here, the Department of Highways said Wednesday.

The department said equipment was at the scene, seven miles west of this Rocky Mountain city, and the road was expected to be open around 8 p.m.

No vehicles were involved when the slide came down at 4 p.m.

Nelson Group To Protest Method of BCE Takeover

A Nelson branch of the Fair Expropriations Committee, formed in Vancouver to protest the method by which the British Columbia government took over the B.C. Electric, was organized in Nelson Wednesday night.

An executive of Ronald Greyson, R. B. Allan and Dr. Harold Smythe was elected after the meeting in the Chamber of Commerce rooms had heard members of the provincial group speak. Eighteen persons attended.

Herbert L. Matthews, Victoria solicitor and chairman of the Victoria Fair Expropriations Committee, and Richard A. Bibbs, B.C. power executive member, addressed the meeting.

The Nelson Fairex group decided to individually and as a group protest the takeover method. It will ask Hon. Wesley D. Black, provincial secretary and MLA for Nelson-Creston, why B.C. Power was not given a statutory right to have the courts set the amount of compensation. This "basic right" was denied to B.C. Power and its 20,000 shareholders, it was stated.

BASIC RIGHT AT STAKE

Mr. Bibbs outlined the history of the conifscatory legislation and its effect on the corporation. He said the corporation's attempts to have a petition of right heard was refused by the government, which would not issue a fiat. More than money is at stake, he said; "Basic human right to have the court settle disputes is at stake." If the government could take over from 20,000 shareholders by arbitrarily setting the price, then "they can take from anyone."

Mr. Matthews said the right to a hearing in court had existed since the Magna Carta of 1215. Clause 40 of that document, read, "To none will we sell, to none will we deny, or delay right or justice."

He declared it was the right of a judge and jury to settle the amount of compensation. The Power Development Act under which the B.C. Electric was taken over, destroyed this right to appeal to courts.

The Act had also prevented the B.C. Electric unions from picketing if they strike because they are now government servants. It had also stopped municipalities from collecting taxes of some $5,000,000 a year from B.C. Electric property.

NO STUDY TIME

Not one member of the legislature, other than the premier and the attorney-general, had had time to study the Act and many voted for it without full and proper study of one of the largest expropriations in Canada.

Mr. Matthews urged the members to write, phone or wire their MLA asking that the Act be amended forthwith to permit negotiations and appeal to the courts to set the compensation; to do "as they had promised" to use the Power Act that permitted negotiation, arbitration and appeal to a judge to set the compensation.

Criminals have a statutory right to a fair hearing in court, but B.C. Power was denied a hearing, he continued. Its 20,000 shareholders were "being treated as something less than criminals because they had the courage to invest in B.C."

He said the province's credit rating is falling rapidly because of "this arbitrary act" and stated it "is our duty to insist that it be amended to save this rating."

Six Killed in Head - On Crash

QUINCY, Wash. (AP)—A shattering head-on collision on a straight stretch of State Highway 7 south of here killed six persons Wednesday.

The collision left a twisted mass of steel blocking the highway for more than an hour. Four men in one car were killed and a man and woman in the other vehicle died. It took about an hour for several of the bodies to be freed from the wreckage.

The accident occurred about a mile from the Grant County community of George, 11 miles south of here.

The State Patrol identified the dead as: Keith Graham, 36; Walter Rand, 46; James Dyke, 58; Jessie Bingham, 32; James H. Artrip, 42; and Mayme Artrip, 52, all of Moses Lake, Wash.

The patrol said Graham was driving the vehicle in which Rand, Dyke and Bingham were riding. Mayme Artrip was driver of the other car, the patrol said.

Graham's car crossed over the white line about five feet and struck the Artrip car head-on, the patrol said.

FREE AREA MOVE VOTED DOWN AT BCFGA MEET

VERNON (CP) — A Move by Keremeos - Cawston delegates to have British Columbia declared a free area for the sale of fruit was promply squelched by delegates to the annual convention of the B.C. Fruit Growers Association Wednesday.

An overwhelming majority of delegates voted down the move which, said one, "threatens the very foundation of our industry."

The motion would have allowed free sale of fruit throughout the province by permitting fruit sales outside the jurisdiction of the industry's selling agency, B.C. Tree Fruits Limited.

Gaglardi Appeal Delayed

KAMLOOPS (CP) — A delay has been granted in the appeal of Highways Minister Gaglardi against his conviction on a charge of driving without due care and attention.

The appeal, due to be heard Wednesday in county court here, was postponed because the minister is in Victoria for the opening of a news session of the legislature.

A new date for the appeal will be set today.

The minister was fined $75 and had his driver's licence suspended for three months effective Jan. 2 after police court magistrate found him guilty Dec. 28 of careless driving near Savona last Sept. 29.

French Cuisine Gets Rakeover by Minister

By LEONARD KIRSCHEN

LONDON (AP)—Transport Minister Ernest Marples did nothing Wednesday to improve British-French relations. He said the famous French cooking is unhygienic — and claimed he knows this from experience.

Opening a hotel and caterers exhibition, Marples disclosed that he worked last year in the kitchen and waited tables at a plush Riviera hotel.

Marples said he and his wife were spending a holiday last year cycling on the Riviera. As they are interested in good food, they hatched the idea of working in a French restaurant to see what cooked.

Marples peeled potatoes, cooked them and dashed them off to the waiting clients. Said Marples:

"When the chef was out the staff stopped working. And they were tasting with their fingers every second.

This is the advice Marples was able to give British caterers after his French experience:

"The chefs should write their menus in French and English. Managers should send promising staff members for training."

And the customers?

"You should refuse lousy food."

Liberal Meetings To Start Party Rolling Electionwise

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberals of all ages will begin assembling in Ottawa for a five-day series of conferences designed to put the opposition party in high gear for the next federal general election.

The Canadian University Liberal Federation expects 200 delegates at its annual convention on Friday, Saturday and Sunday. The National Council of the Liberal Party will draw 400 to a policy and organization meeting Monday and Tuesday.

Concurrently, the national campaign committee will meet in closed session Sunday afternoon, and the executive of the Liberal Women of Canada will meet Sunday night. The annual meeting of the women's branch of the party will be held in Quebec City May 21-23.

Liberal Leader Pearson will address the closing banquet Tuesday night, and then speak Thursday at one of 23 banquets being held across Canada that day to open a membership drive for the Young Liberals.

PLAN STRATEGY

The council will deal with policy questions left over from the National Liberal rally here last January, and concentrate on campaign strategy and organization.

The university Liberal program includes meetings with senior party executives on publicity and public relations, campaign organization, and party policy. An annual oratorical contest will be held, with an awards banquet scheduled for Saturday night.

The national executive of the party's senior organization, meeting Monday and Tuesday, will be asked to ratify policy statements drafted by a committee which has been working on the left-overs from the national rally.

These include the social security platform, calling for a contributory old age pension supplement.

Other policy subjects to be dealt with include stimulation of the economy, Atlantic provinces problems, national cultural institutions, urban redevelopment, national resources development, the problems of small business, and the special problems of the civil service.

DOLLAR DOWN

NEW YORK (CP) — Canadian dollar 1-32 lower at 95 11-16 in terms of U.S. funds. Week ago 95 53-64.

Gas Price Cut In Some Centres

VANCOUVER (CP) — Reductions ranging from two-tenths of a cent to two cents a gallon on the price of gasoline and heating and diesel fuels in northeastern B.C. and the Kamloops - Kelowna area were announced Wednesday by the Imperial Oil Ltd.

The company said the reductions were made to improve Imperial's competative position in areas served by competing local refineries and in recognition of lower laid-down cost of crude oil from B.C. fields now available at those refineries.

Communities affected are: Ashcroft, Clinton, Giscome, Kamloops, Kelowna, Lumby, Merritt, Prince George, Quesnel, Revelstoke, Salmon Arm, Vanderhoof, Vernon, Williams Lake, Burns Lake, Dawson Creek, Fort St. John and Fort Nelson.

PERRAULT HAS JOB PROPOSALS

VANCOUVER (CP) — Liberal leader Ray Perrault says he will make specific job-making proposals during the throne speech debate in the legislature which opens Thursday.

"Unemployment is the most important problem facing the legislature," he said. "There are 40,000 jobless in the province now and our industry must have stimulation.

Another Hungry Year Seen for Red China

HONG KONG (AP)—Communist China's millions face another year of hunger, a report compiled by a research group of U.S. government agricultural experts here said Wednesday.

The report indicated the food crisis, now entering its fourth year, could affect the economic stability of the Peking regime.

It predicted the "dangerously low level" of food supplies on the China mainland, following three successive years of poor harvests, could take an enormous toll in health and ability to work.

The report was based on several years' study of economic information filtering out of the China mainland. Reports of hunger, malnutrition, apathy and disease have been brought out by refugees from Communist China.

The report said a study of grain production and food availabilities indicated the average daily diet in China would be 1,950 calories until at least the summer harvest.

BELOW MINIMUM

This is 350 caolories below the daily minimum requirement set for the area by the United Nations wfood and Agricultural Organization, and 200 calories below the daily average estimated in China for 1931-1937.

China has released no figures on grain production the last two years but Western economists here estimate 1960 production at 160,000,000 metric tons and 1961 production at 167,000,000.

This compared with a 163,000,000-ton average for the five-year period 1953-1957. The population has risen 50,000,000 in the interim.

Parliament

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Prime Minister Diefenbaker said the Canadian government is willing to listen to U.S. protests but will make no fundamental change in its proposed magazines legislation.

The government tabled supplementary estimates of $82,390,000, including $42,000,000 acreage payments for prairie farmers and $40,000,000 for winter works.

Finance Minister Fleming accused the Liberal party of indifference to Canadian trade interests in Britain.

Chesley W. Carter (L—Burin-Burgeo) said Canada may be selling its freedom along with its wheat sales to Communist China.

Harold Winch (CCF — Vancouver East), speaking on the nuclear question, said the government has made Canada a laughing shock among other nations.

Senator Leon Methot (PC — Quebec) expressed confidence that the forecast measure affecting the Senate will reestablish the importance of the upper chamber.

HONOR PICKET LINE

TORONTO (CP) — Comedians Johnny Wayne and Frank Shuster announced Wednesday night they will not cross picket lines at the Royal York Hotel to act as masters of ceremonies for the sports celebrities dinner Feb. 1.

"It's a terrible position Frank and I are in," Wayne said. "But a picket line must be honored."

More Than 3 R's Needed — Scarfe

VANCOUVER (CP) — Children must learn that they cannot depend on adults or other authorities to do their thinking for them, Dean Neville Scarfe, head of the College of Education at University of British Columbia, said Wednesday.

"They can't sit in class and just listen," he told a meeting sponsored by the Association for Childhood Education.

"Unless they try to do their own thinking the world is a lost cause for them."

Dean Scarfe said society influences toward conformity. School must provide a counter-influence toward diversity and independent thinking. Unless youngsters become independent thinkers they will be unable to face the new difficulties of the future.

Need for new skills and new outlook demand a new look at education, he said. Acquisition of the "three R" skills will no longer be sufficient in a fast changing world.

"They must learn the skills of argument, analysis, of logical deduction, of critical appraisal," Dean Scarfe said. "They must learn how to sift, select and assess evidence,"

Seven Bombs Shake Paris

ALGIERS (AP)—In a defiant show of strength, the rightist Secret Army Organization paralyzed Algiers with a general strike Wednesday and its supporters rocked Paris with seven bombings.

Secret army orders were sent out for a strike on this anniversary of the ill-fated European settlers revolt of 1960. That bloody episode in the Europeans' struggle to keep Algeria French took 21 lives.

Unlike that day, there was no bloodshed in Algiers Wednesday Nor were there any casualties in the bombings in Paris aimed at foes of the secret army.

But the one-hour, 15-minute general strike in this Algerian capital showed the hold the secret army has on most of the European rasidents of Algeria.

Shortly before the strike began at 5 p.m., thousands of European settlers took to the street in the heart of the city, shouting "algeria is French!" A French Marine infantry regiment sealed off the centre of Algiers, but did not interfere with the movement of the crowd.

At 6 p.m. the streets became deserted, the lights went out to comply with secret army orders of a 15-minute period of "silence and memory" for Europeans who fell under bullets of French gendarmes two years ago.

Army helicopters whirred overhead and troops kept watch on the streets as dusk fell on the city.

Minutes after the strike ended hundreds of men and women emerged from doorways and headed for the centre of the city.

Chants of "Algiera is French" and "Salan to Power" were heard in the vicinity of the central post office. Former Gen. Raoul Salan, a fugitive condemned to death, is the head of the right-wing underground.

In Paris, right-wing extremists observed the anniversary with seven bombings in various parts of the capital.

The explosives were touched off at the residences of several leaders of French journalism and others known for their liberal views or hostility to the secret army. The blasts caused considerable property damage but police said there were no casualties.

And in This Corner . . .

TORONTO (CP)—An endurance test billed as "Canada's first twistathon" ended Wednesday after 62 hours and the winners didn't even know each other.

Both Florence Gardner, 18, and Jimmy Livingstone, 20, lost their partners early when they were unable to keep up.

They joined forces and won a $350 prize, a watch each and — for Jimmy — a suit and six months of free haircuts.

SWANSEA, Wales (Reuters)—The 60-year-old starting match between the Devil and St. Mary's Church ended here Wednesday when the building on which the Devil's statue stood was pulled down.

The contest began in 1899 when an architect, having failed to get the job of designing the church, erected a building nearby with the Devil's effigy on top.

The architect said the "Devil" would see the destruction of St. Mary's. During the Second World War the church was hit by a bomb, while "old Nick" escaped unscathed.

But Wednesday the four-foot statue was sent to an antique dealer.

North Shore Children To Enjoy "Rec" Sessions

"Activity" will be the key word when children meet each Saturday morning (9:30 - 11:30) in the North Shore Community Hall for a two-hour session of fun, games and handicraft projects.

The program has been organized by the North Shore Recreation Commission, and is under the direction of Mrs. B. Clarkson and Miss Beverlee Ward.

Mrs. Clarkson was formerly a member of the physical education staff at the Junior High School and will be mainly handling the physical activities in the Saturday morning program.

Miss Ward is a student at L. V. Rogers and plans on a teaching career. She has been a member of the Nelson playground staff for the past two years and due to her ability was named City Supervisor of playgrounds last summer.

The North Shore Recreation Commission feels fortunate in obtaining the services of these two experienced, trained leaders.

The program got underway last Saturday when children were registered and took part in a discussion on the proposed program. Last Saturday's activities also included a games session and a hat making contest with each child producing an Easter bonnet from newspaper, tissue paper, crepe paper and pins.

Registration is not complete and children between the ages of 6 - 12 years have been invited to take part in the program. A charge of ten cents per session will be made to help cover the cost of the materials.

Included in the activities will be art and handicraft projects, gymnastics, minor games, singing, dancing and speical event programs. The leaders also plan to produce a puppet show with the children.

As a special feature to finalize the winter activities the leaders hope to stage a "Rec Revue" to include an arts and handicraft display and a program demonstration in conjunction with an indoor "Penny Carnival." At that time parents and other interested people in the community will be invited to see what the children have accomplished during the Saturday morning sessions.

Sleighing Hills Not Yet Decided

A request for the setting aside of certain city streets for sleighing purposes received speedy approval by city council Monday, but the implementation may take a little longer.

Ald. F. A. Beresford suggested the same streets as last year be designated this year. The matter was referred to the city superintendent of works.

Wednesday it appeared that it is again going to be referred to city council.

The city police are not in complete agreement with the picked streets and the times alotted for sleighing.

It appears that the matter will have to be settled by council at its next meeting, until then sleighing on the streets is prohibited.

Canine Hepatitis Not Transmittable To Human Beings

There is absolutely no possibility of infectious canine hepatitis of distemper being transmitted to human beings, said Dr. C. C. Cunningham, Provincial Veterinarian Inspector.

He said both diseases have a high infection rate among dogs, but that there is no danger to humans. Both canine hepatitis and the human variety are similiar in symptoms and treatment.

Several inquiries have been made regarding cross infection said Dr. Cunningham, including one from a local doctor. In view of public ignorance of the matter, he felt it should be brought to attention.

About the only canine disease that can be transmitted to humans is dog tape worn and only then through a flea entering the mouth. Very young children crawling on the floor may put a flea in their mouths he said.

Mothers' March Objective $2500

Mothers will march in Nelson Feb. 3 from 6 to 8 p.m. it was announced Tuesday at the regular Kinsmen meeting.

Nelson and district objective for the March is $2500 and committee chairman Ron J. Corbett said campaign posters and window displays have been arranged throughout the city.

Funds will be used to assist the Poliomyelitis and Rehabilitation Foundation of British Columbia to help the disabled to walk and work again through its medical and rehabilitation services.

A sign has been erected on the site of the $45,000 Kinsmen Health Centre to be built soon. The sign reads: "Site of the proposed new Health Centre for the benefit and use of citizens of Nelson. Project sponsored by Kinsmen Club of Nelson. Land donated by the Corporation of the City of Nelson."

The Health Centre will be built on the old city hall site on the corner of Front and Ward Streets.

R. E. Sawyer reported that eight contractors have expressed interest in the project. Firms from Vernon, Trail, Castlegar and Nelson have replied to an advertisement placed last week. Mr. Sawyer explained that this is encouraging because it is expected coast firms and other firms from points throughout B.C. have yet to be heard from.

The building committee of the club will meet Feb. 7 for the purpose of opening tenders.

SOD TURNING

A sod turning ceremony for the centre is planned for Feb. 17 at 10:30 a.m.

After voting last week to drop the annual Fish Derby, it was decided Tuesday the club was hasty in its decision. After some discussion the club will again hold the derby, but at a later date, possibly Labor Day weekend.

In support of the derby, Mr. Sawyer pointed out that although last year's effort was unsuccessful financially, that is only secondary consideration. He said Kinsmen is a service club and the derby is popular. He also said if "we don't hold the derby some other club will. People are fishing anyway and we may as well cash in on it.

"The project brings good publicity to the district and if held at a later date, we wouldn't have the high water and weather against us."

It was further suggested that a lesser membership fee and a smaller prize might be the answer to a successful derby.

Mr. Sawyer was appointed chairman of the derby.

Paul Haines was elected to the directorship of the club to replace Elmer Mercier who resigned because of other commitments.

QUEEN CANDIDATE

Miss Pat Townsend was introduced to the club as its choice of candidate in the annual Snow Queen contest to be held in conjunction with the Silver King Ski Club's tournament Feb. 17-18.

The 19-year-old City Hall cashier is an active member of the ski club and in 1959 accompanied WIHL Hockey Queen, Miss Louise Sjoberg to Hawaii. Miss Townsend won the honor by selling $1,000 in tickets.

Speaking briefly to the club, Carl Louis du Bellier outlined a possible plant to help the aged and invalided with home industry.

He told how, shortly after the war in Regen, in the Bavarian Forest in Germany, he and two companions began a small industry in the ravaged country.

Using just the barest of essentials the men made small booklets of children's stories and sold them first to occupation troops and families. In just three months, he explained, almost 300 persons were employed in the project.

He suggested a service club or group might inaugurate a similar plan here to aid old age pensioners and invalids. He felt it could possibly lead to the first home industry project in the Kootenays with the aid of the Kinsmen Club.

OLD MIRRORS

The manufacture of mirrors was introduced into England in the 17th century.

Sales Tactics Protested

With the federal government taking legislative action in the magazine field, several Nelsonites are hoping they also look into the matter of the business practices of door-to-door salesmen.

This week salesmen were busy in Nelson with various tales of woe.

One teenager utilized the public speaking course approach, "I am taking a public speaking course could I speak to you . . ." then promptly led into the $1000 college scholarship for the salesman making the most sales, then closed by saying the neighbors had bought several magazines. They hadn't it was found.

Another Nelsonite was approached with the same line, but included an "orphan" pitch.

Mocking Laughter Heard in Court As Orthodox Douhkobor Testifies

As Orthodox Doukhobors continue as crown witnesses against accused Sons of Freedom terrorists the Freedomite gallery in the back of the courtroom continues to ridicule them.

Wednesday, Sons of Freedom spectators once again broke into derisive laughter as an elderly Doukhobor testified in the trial of Tim S. Jmaeff and Fred N. Davidoff, who are charged with placing a bomb under CPR tracks at Thrums and illegal possession of explosives.

On the stand was 75-year-old Peter Abrossimoff of Thrums, who heard the track blast shortly after 3 a.m. last August 25. The elderly Doukhobor and his wife live nearby and a windowpane in their home was shattered by the explosion.

Hard of hearing, Mr. Abrossimoff had difficulty in understanding crown prosecutor G. B. Arnesen's question of whether the windowpane was broken when he and his wife retired for the night August 24.

Laughter reached its peak when he was unable to understand Mr. Arnesen's question.

Earlier in the day two Freedomites were convicted of arson in connection with the burning of an Ootischenia village last August and an attempt to burn a schoolhouse in Ootischenia the same night.

In the Davidoff-Jmaeff trial CPR investigator Malcolm Graham told of his investigations at the bombing scene where two sections of track 14 inches long were torn out.

BOMB AT JUNCTION

The bomb had been placed at a junction of the mainline and passing tracks.

A train was held up for three hours while repairs were made to allow rail movement, Mr. Graham told court.

Staff Sergeant W. G. Lambert of the Nelson RCMP sub-division told of finding several pieces of a watch, presumably parts of the timing device used in the bomb.

He said the parts were found in a radius of 150 feet. He also presented a detailed plan of the area.

The court went into a trial within a trial shortly after Const. Ed. Malinowski said he and Const. J. F. Woods interviewed Jmaeff on Nov. 13 last year. Mr. Justice Norman Whittaker told the jury he had to inquire into the admissibility of certain evidence.

BURNED OUT TWICE

After court Mr. Abrossimoff told of being burned out by terrorists twice during his lifetime. In 1931, he said, a store he owned and operated at Thrums was destroyed by fire and in 1952 his barn fell victim to arsonists.

The trial of John P. Ostrikoff and Peter W. Postnikoff concluded early Wednesday afternoon when the 12-man jury returned after one hour and 17 minutes' deliberation with a guilty verdict.

Mr. Justice Whittaker reserved sentence until later in the special assizes.

There were no demonstrations.

Ostrikoff and Postnikoff are the sixth and seventh Freedomites to be convicted so far in the assize.

How long the assize will last cannot be determined but in all likelihood will last for several more weeks. At first, when 16 trials were docketed, it was felt the assize would last a month. Now it is nearing the end of its third week and only four trials have been completed.

During the preliminary hearings the Freedomites were not represented by legal counsel and a lawyer did not come into the picture until the day before the assize began earlier this month.

Originally docketed for this assize were 41 persons charged in 16 different trails. However, preliminary hearings continue in magistrates' courts and several others have been committed to trial.

It is rumored that another group of jurors will be empaneled for the assize. Wednesday, Sheriff Tom Fox had no confirmation on it.

Fame's Little Day

How quickly the mighty are forgotten!

Two weeks ago at the inaugural council meeting of the year, the new chamber overflowed with onlookers.

Monday council's audience consisted of two reporters, five citizens, and a visitor from out of town.

Of them other than the reporters, the only person to sit throughout the whole meeting was the visitor.

Most of the citizens were late in arriving.

Council Fights Shy of Camera

Modesty and vanity were prominent at city council Monday.

Both were implied when the question was asked concerning who has been doing what with four tenders to photograph city council. The tenders were submitted in July, 1961.

"How come they were referred to incoming council?" a stunned Mayor T. S. Shorthouse asked.

The reason was, council was told, because the startegic problems surrounding the photos had stumped both the finance committee and council for the better part of the summer. Who was to take the photos? What size photos? Profile or face-on? Should aldermen be allowed to produce their own photos, ones from an earlier period? Should aldermen be allowed to instruct the touch-up artist?

These weighty problems were just too much for the finance committee who referred it back to council. They, also were stymied and referred it back to the finance committee. By the time October arrived, they referred it to the incoming council for decision.

"This delay has not aided the city elders," instructed the mayor. "We are all getting older and we don't look so good," regretted the mayor.

Someone suggested it be referred to the finance committee for report.

"I do not think we should refer it back to the finance committee," said Ald. B. C. Affleck, tongue in cheek and recalling that committee's handling of the problem before, "we should refer it to the recreation committee."

After a brief discussion, the tenders were right back where they started from, getting the "old run-around."

It was referred to the mayor with power to act and he promptly indicated that the tenders would start their traditional wandering soon. He said he was going to pass them on to the committee he would appoint in the near future.

Runaway Truck Caused Man's Death, Jury Decides

A runaway truck caused the death of Walter Sookerukoff on the morning of January 16, a coroner's jury decided Wednesday.

The 29-year-old log-hauler died in Kootenay Lake General Hospital at 4:10 p.m. that day, about 14 hours after his three-ton flatbox truck wrapped itself around an 18-inch thick maple tree at the corner of Ward and Carbonate streets.

Mechanical evidence was unavailable to substantiate the "out of control" belief, but police constable F. J. Vecchio testified that the lowest speed the 1953 vehicle could have been travelling was 60 miles per hour down the steep grade.

The jury, under foreman Ivan Buerge, ruled that Sookerukoff died from severe head injuries, mainly damage to brain stem.

Testimony of Dr. John Carpenter revealed that the left side of Sookerukoff absorbed the most of the impact which saw the ten inch frame bent around the tree.

The victim had received three fractures to his left leg, severe brain concussions, a broken jaw, and deep lacerations.

The victim was pinned between the bull board and the door and was still breathing. The doctor reported the victim's breath smelled strongly of alcohol.

A blood sample was taken but he had not conducted a test for alcohol as he had not been instructed to do so.

J. J. McEwen testified that the vehicle was in such a wreck he was unable to determine if any mechanical failures had prompted the wreck.

"It was broken up so badly and smashed that the only thing I could inspect was the rear axle in which I found nothing wrong," said the service manager.

The 1953 vehicle had summer tires and was built for dual tires.

TIME NOT CERTAIN

Actual time of the accident could not be pinpointed as Richard Parker, testified to discovering the vehicle around 2 a.m. but said he did not hear the crash.

He spotted the vehicle, walked over under the impression that the accident had been reported. He first noticed the woman bleeding, and then saw the driver, "pinned between the back structure and the door. He was more out than in."

His call to police brought the police and fire department as well as an ambulance and doctor to the scene. With hydraulic jacks, the fire department tried to free the man and finally did after pulling the truck from the tree.

Passenger in the vehicle, Mrs. Verna Faminoff could not recall any of the ride down the snow-packed hill, but did say that Sookerukoff had admitted that he was having trouble with his gear shift.

SOCIAL EVENING

The woman said that the previous evening had been spent drinking and socializing in a city hotel. About midnight they left the hotel for a Chinese cafe then returned to a hotel room with a friend of the deceased. There Soukerukoff had two drinks of whiskey before departing at 1:30 a.m. for Mrs. Faminoff's Gore Street home.

They had proceeded up Park Street, then Morgan Street, gaining access to Gyro Park road. They planned to proceed up Park Street to oGre Street, but the vehicle failed t oclimb up Park Street and Sookerukoff backed Street.

Then, she said, "I got scared." And she couldn't remember any details.

Constable Vecchio stated that there was 14½ feet width of clearance between two vehicles parked on Carbonate street, more than enough room for the eight-foot-wide truck to navigate through. Instead, it had struck a 1958 vehicle on the right side of the road knocking the car over the curb, through a small snowbank and into a tree.

The truck then proceeded 89 feet before hitting the stout Maple tree. The impact demolished the cab, bent the 10 inch frame, knocked the left front wheel off and sent the spare wheel flying.

Dr. John Carpenter commended the crews involved in the accident, police and firemen for their prompt effective action.

Three Fined

A 17-year-old youth was fined $5 and costs by Magistrate William Evans in Juvenile Court Wednesday, for driving while his side vision was obstructed.

He was driving a vehicle with a passenger on each running board.

In police court, Magistrate R. S. Nelson, fined Albin J. Larson of Nelson $10 and costs for speeding on Front Street.

Henry A. Grinsaud of Vancouver was also fined $10 and costs in police court. He was speeding in the Hume School zone, Wednesday.

Council Jottings

Council received seven applications for the position of city civil defence officer Monday night.

A. J. Cleeton had previously announced that he is resigning the position Feb. 1 after serving 3½ years as CD officer.

The applications were referred to the CD committee for report.

Ald. Albert Maida heartily endorsed Nelson Safety Council's request for a $100 city grant.

"In my opinion it is one of the best organizations in Nelson because it has some of the best men of the community on the organization's activities.

He was so enthusiastic he suggested the city make a grant of $200. "If the city could not make this contribution, the members of council themselves should each contribute $10," he urged.

Mayor T. S. Shorthouse said "There has been a long-felt need for an organization like this."

The report was received and filed.

Council approved refunding of contractor Louis Maglio's certified cheque as only a few minor things are left to be finished at the city hall. One of these is posting the buildings, signs, a matter of a few hundred dollars, said city clerk C. W. R. Harper.

* * *

Also approved was payment of $1,650 to architects Smith and McCulloch of Trail, whose total fee to date is $6,229.

* * *

Approved also was payment number four to Louis Maglio on his $56,888 contract.

* * *

Approved was the provisional budget.

Nelson Figure Skating Club's request that it be allowed to advertise its February 24 ice carnical on the outside of city buses was granted.

* * *

Requests for grants from the Nelson and District Cerebral Palsy, Nelson Safety Council and Salvation Army were referred to the finance commitee.

"We want to review our donations," said Ald. J. S. M. Harts. "Last year we went far over our budget."

* * *

A federal government program of labor management cooperation service was referred to Ald. Maida for report.

The plan is joint consultation between union and management at regular periods on details other than those contained in the collective agreement.

Frank Tough of 1023 Eighth St. asked council to clarify the land title on Government Street where it joins Eighth and Seventh Streets. Mr. Tough said that prior to amalgamation, Kootenay Forest Products Ltd. had the power to close off this section of the road at its discretion, and did, cutting off access to his driveway. He wondered if amalgamation has lifted this priority.

The matter was referred to the city superintendent of works.

* * *

Council accepted the offer of the provincial government to purchase $80,000 worth of bonds under the $420,000 waterworks bylaw No. 1315 of boundary extension plans at 5½ per cent interest.

* * *

Letter of thanks was received from F. N. Emmott of McQuarrie Avenue for the recent installation of street lights on Munro Street in Rosemont and from Mrs. E. T. Bodard for the bouquet of flowers from the city following the official opening of city hall building.

Annual report of A. J. Cleeton civil defence officer was received and filed.

* * *

A plea from R. T. Cassan for construction of a retaining wall along Cottonwood Creek behind his auto court fell on legally deaf ears.

Ald. B. C. Affleck declared that under a recent amendment to the lands act that all water beds are now crown property. City superintendent of works, Dragutin Likar believed the crown would be very reluctant to allow any construction of any kind because it might have repercussions on stream flow.

"It all rises out of the famed Rotter - Mineral Mines cases," "philosophized Ald. E. T. Bodard.

"Amendments are made by lawyers, not council members," stated Ald. Affleck.

Council also took note of Mr. Cassan's inference that it had promised to build the wall at his meeting with them last fall. Council said it had discussed the possibilities of the project, but had not committed itself to the project.

* * *

Nelson School District No. 7's request for cement sidewalks was referred to the public works committee for report.

"In my opinion Mr. Mayor, I think the students are safer on the road," said Ald. Affleck.

"I think they are more accustomed to it," echoed the mayor.

* * *

Referred to the electrical committee for report were two requests for better power service.

Six residents of Horlick's Point summer homes are requesting city power while K. S. Edgell of Harrop is seeking improved power service to meet the $5,000 improvements in his dairy farm.

Regarding Mr. Edgell's request city electrical engineer J. W. D. Cramb said that it will receive priority this year. It had been included in the electrical program but had been dropped because of a lack of funds.

As for the condition of the line he said, "the existing line is in extremely poor shape. It's more like the line holding up the poles."

* * *

Council had no objection to the department of highways utilizing a small section of the city's watershed reserve area near Apex for improvement of the old Humming Bird mine road.

The repartment plans to make the road a public one.

The Humming Bird mine, near the headwates of Wildhorse and Five Mile Creeks, is reported to be in operation once again. This led Ald. Affleck to urge that health authorities check the mining situation to make sure there is no possible contamination of city waters.

* * *

Three readings were given to bylaw no. 1325 authorizing the city to borrow $300,000 to meet current expenditures.

* * *

Only two readings were given to bydaw no. 1326 amending fire bylaw no. 1280 as Ald. Bodard sought a more explicit definition of the amendment terms.

The amendment makes it illegal to sell, place or put any inflammable liquid in quantity of less than five gallons in a container other than a metal one. The amendment is aimed primarily at the practice of Americans who place the liquid in plastic containers.

City council will open negotiations for a 1962 collective agreement with the city firefighters' union Friday.

The city hall renovation committee under chairmanship of Ald. Affleck, was reactivated to clean up odds and ends of details of the recent renovation.

Boat Club Whiles Away Winter Nights

CASTLEGAR — While the wind whistled and the temperature hovered at zero outside, 70 members of the Arrow Boat Club, their families and friends, forgot the weather and re-lived the sunny summer days on the Arrow Lakes watching some scenic slides taken by Dr. C. S. "Pat" Fowler, looking forward eagerly to the happy day when it's "anchors aweigh and a wind to leeward."

The occasion was a pot-luck supper and social evening at the Twin Rivers hall, first of a series of get-togethers sponsored by the club with the objective of furthering the fraternity of boating enthusiasts and interests friends and also of learning something about the "rules of the sea," boating etiquette and other forms of yachtmanship.

The guests were welcomed by Commodore "Jim" Macbeth who introduced the speaker for the evening, Gordon McLachlan. Mr. McLachlan is a qualified member of the Power Squadron of B.C. and he gave a short talk on the elemental rules and courtesies for sea going vessels and those that sail them. This was followed by a quiz on nautical terms which every would-be sailer should know and resulted in a tie between two young seamen, Jim Waldie of Robson and Peter Dewdney Jr., a guest from Trail. A further quizzing of the two boys ended in the prize going to Mr. Dewdney who appeared quite pleased with the pipe.

Bonner Predicts Ottawa Rescind Columbia Policy

VICTORIA (CP) — Attorney-General Robert Bonner of British Columbia said Tuesday he thinks the federal government will soon give in on its policy toward development of the Columbia River.

Justice Minister Fulton said in Ottawa earlier he hoped "sense will prevail" in a dispute between the federal and provincial governments over the $450,000,000 project.

He said the federal government hoped to promote a change in B.C.'s attitude and if a compromise was reached the project would go ahead on any just basis.

"I'm sure the federal government will compromise any moment now," said Mr. Bonner.

Trail CMHA Urges Action On Clinic

TRAIL — Continued efforts to secure the establishment of a mental health clinic in the Trail area were urged at the annual meeting of the local branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association Monday night.

Up to now the B.C. government has only promised such a clinic but has failed to state when it will be built.

According to the association's president, J. E. Barrett, public interest is the only thing that will stir the provincial government into action.

Reports on highlights of the 1961 year indicated that there are now 630 members in the area.

Officers for the 1962 term were named at the meeting. They are: president, J. E. Barrett; first vice-presirent, R. J. Grey; second vice-president, D. F. Griffiths; treasurer, W. D. Crowder, and secretary, Miss Betti Hall.

LOSES CAT

MONTREAL (CP)—Vancouver artist Michael Dean lost a black cat on a Montreal street Wednesday. The cat has travelled with him the world over.

Mr. Dean is anxious to find Butty, his black cat with the white face and white paws, before he leaves for London Saturday.

He was walking both Butty and his dog when the cat scooted away.

At Natal . . .
$10,462 Paid Toward New Fire Truck Purchase

NATAL — Natal village council approved payment of accounts amounting to $13,394 at its regular meeting in the village hall. Included in the accounts was the sum of $10,462 for Saskatoon Fire Engine Company as part payment on the village's new fire truck, which underwent an acceptance test by the Canadian Underwriters Association in Natal.

Acting on the recommendation of the finance committee, council voted to rescind a motion passed at a previous meeting setting commissioners' indemnity at 86 per cent of allowable maximum and voted instead to pay commissioners a lump sum of $175 per year.

Other recommendations of the finance committee, which will come up during the budget meeting of council later this month, include provision of $2000 for the purchase of an air horn type fire warning system, an added payment this year of $1500 toward fire truck payments to bring the village indebtedness within provisions of its per capita borrowing power; allowance of $3500 for sidewalk construction; $2000 for construction of a new fire hall, and $1800 for street lights in the village.

WATERWORKS STALEMATE

A letter was received from the Public Utilities Commission inquiring about the council's intention regarding the waterworks system. Village clerk Lorretta Montemurro was instructed to inform the commission that negotiations had reached a stalemate. Council will also protest to the Public Utilities Commission regarding alleged refusal by the owner of the waterworks to allow members of the Natal Fire Department access to the pump house. Council felt that firemen should be able to enter the pump house in order to increase water pressure in case of fire.

A get-tough attitude regarding persons carrying on business without licence was approved by council and the village clerk was authorized to lay charges against any person found doing so.

Applications of three businesses for transfer of licences to new premises were approved by the council. The Michel-Natal Band was given a grant of $25, with the stipulation that the money be used for the purchase of band music.

A protest by some council members that council business was often delayed and sometimes postponed when unannounced delegations were heard by council, resulted in a ruling that in future persons wishing to be heard by council be required to contact the village clerk to set the time for such hearings.

Unimpressed With Sons' Plan For Migration

VICTORIA (CP) — Attorney-General Robert Bonner said Tuesday he does not treat seriously reports that members of the Sons of Freedom Doukhobor sect plan immigrating to Brazil.

In any case, he said, the British Columbia government would not make a request for federal assistance toward the migration unless it has an assurance from Brazil that the sect would be accepted.

He was commenting on a statement by Justice Minister Fulton that B.C. had not sought financial assistance on the question.

Leaders of the radical sect which lives in the Kootenays have said there is land available for them in Brazil and they are going there to escape what they say is persecution in Canada.

"We wouldn't make any approach to Ottawa short of formal acceptance by any foreign power that the Sons are acceptable as immigrants," said Mr. Bonner.

New Denver Women Hear of Sister's Death in Ontario

NEW DENVER — Funeral service was held for the sister of two New Denver women, Mrs. B. Y. McBride of Bracebridge, Ont., well known in the district through her visits here.

Miss L. C. Meinardus and Miss Erna Meinardus of New Denver are sisters, also Mrs. C. L. Wemp of Ferndale Wash., and Mrs. G. Hill of Bracebridge, Ont.

Mrs. McBride is survived also by one son, John, and one daughter, Mrs. Campbell, and grandchildren.

Funeral services were held under auspices of the Order of the Eastern Star.

Apple Growers May Hit U.K. Market Harder

VERNON (CP) — British Columbia apple growers may hit United Kingdom consumers with more force in the future.

The general sales manager of B.C. Tree Fruits Limited, selling agent for the industry, dropped the hint at Tuesday's session of the B.C. Fruit Growers' Association convention here.

J. B. Lander said the provincial government may assist with an expanded advertising and promotional campaign in Great Britain, to be tried in possibly with a home show sponsored by a London newspaper.

In the same session R. P. Walrod, general manager of Tree Fruits said that if Britain joined the European Common Market "the worst possible situation" would be a 14 per cent tariff against B.C. apples.

He believed B.C.'s main competitor in the European trade alliance would be Italy.

Mr. Lander said this province would still hold a trump in its McIntosh, Delicious, Newtons and possibly Winesap apples in the U.K. because the ECM countries did not compete in these varieties.

We Can't Let the Exhibition Die

For several years, Nelson's oldest community feature, the annual West Kootenay Agricultural and Industrial Exhibition, formerly the Fall Fair, has been leading a precarious existence with a fluctuating attendance and receipts which barely equalled expenses. Now, with an operating deficit for 1961 of $1400 and an attendance lower than ever, the committee has resigned in a body.

This is its protest against the apathy of the general public.

Under the circumstances, the committee felt it could not carry on and perhaps that new blood and new objectives were needed. It may be right in this, but nothing but praise should be given to those who, year after year, struggled to make the Exhibition a success.

It is idle to hold a post mortem on the cause of the Exhibition's death. We must start again and look to the future. What is needed today is the formation of a new committee with the courage and energy to take this moribund exhibition and restore it to life and vigor.

It can be done. Nelson saw a surprising resurgence of vigor in the number of candidates for civic offices in the last election. Some of these failed to be elected but here is another opportunity to be of service to the community.

They, and others, should offer to form a committee to succeed the one which has resigned. They should be prepared to lead people to appreciate the fact that Nelson cannot afford to lose its exhibition, they should bring new ideas to the work and seek the advice of others, and they must be activated by faith in their ability to produce a good exhibition.

The city and its people must live up to the corporation motto, Forge Ahead. It must neglect nothing which serves the community. There is no particular hardship in sitting on a committee but there is an immense amount of satisfaction to be earned by those who put their hearts and souls into community work.

Subsidy For Industrial Research

In a technological age such as the present one the need for industrial research is vital.

For that reason the government's proposal to subsidize such research by private firms is commendable.

It should be viewed as a preliminary step, for obviously the amount of $1,000,000 annually will not go far in such a field. If it serves to assist projects of private firms which would not otherwise be undertaken, and encourages more attention to industrial research, it will have served a purpose.

The money is to be concentrated in research in the manufacturing industry. The use of government agencies to conduct such research mightn't appear to be justified. Still, government research will be continued in many fields, but individual manufacturers undoubtedly have the closest knowledge of needs and methods in their own field and, with this knowledge, can direct research more easily than an independent body which would have to approach the problem from an inexperienced beginning. It is likely that the assistance will be given to projects already under way into which private companies have already put time, effort and expense.

The initial amount of $1,000,000 is small, undoubtedly, because it will take some time to find the best methods of allocating funds. The National Research Council will be given the responsibility of determining this. In industry the problem is one of developing new products, in the view of Hon. George Hees, minister of trade and commerce. Mr. Hees has done a great deal to urge Canadian manufacturers to seek out new markets and to become more competitive in them in a highly competitive world. Certainly only modern design and efficient production can help Canada keep up in the race for markets.

The NRC is felt to be above political favoritism and the new subsidy could produce some highly valuable results in a field which is more and more important to the Canadian economy if the Canadian economy, indeed, is to grow as it should.

Deeds, Not Words

A new movement is afoot to draft a world constitution to which all nations would be invited to subscribe, seemingly in the hope this would bring about universal law and order. All such aims are laudable but there is an air of unreality about the proposal.

It is not the signing of a charter of behavior that counts; but instead the living up to its provisions. One would like to believe that a new piece of paper would reorient the international scene, but reality raises the doubt.

It is said that if and when this constitution were adopted by all nations a transfer of power would be made from the United Nations to the new authority. This implies the substitution of the UN by a new world body.

Unfortunately there is nothing to suggest that were the present members of the UN to disband and form themselves into a fresh organization this would bring about a change in their ways. It is not their lexicon that is at fault but their disregard of the premises to which they have already affixed their signatures.

The Charter of the United Nations contains all that is needful to establish peace in the world — a regard for the rights and freedoms of mankind, belief in justice for all, the promotion of human betterment, the proscription of force of arms, respect and friendship all round.

No new constitution could better these aims.

If the UN has failed of its original high hopes this is simply because the member states have not lived up to their bond, but have given lip service only to the document they signed. It would be naive to think that the signing of another charter, no matter how framed, would of itself make any difference.

Interpreting The News

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

Prime Minister Diefenbaker's statement against "free riders" in the United Nations has called attention anew to the staggering financial problem of the world body.

With total operating expenses running around $17,000,000 a month, the UN was some $94,000,000 in the red at the end of 1961. The deficit may hit $170,000,000 by mid-1962.

The UN has comparatively little trouble collecting from most of its 104 members for the normal operating budget of about $65,000,000 annually, but it's a far different matter where peace-keeping efforts are concerned. And these peace-keeping jobs are expensive.

Total arrears for the normal budget for the three years 1959 through 1961 stood at about $13,000,000 at the end of December —a small sum when compared with the over-all deficit.

The UN's grief arises from the special assessments for the Congo operation undertaken in 1960 and the UN Emergency Force set up in the 1956 Middle East crisis. Since Canada has been in both operations, it is doubly interested in the financial upkeep.

The Soviet bloc, France, Belgium and South Africa are the principal countries refusing to pay anything for the Congo, whose 1961 assessment was $100,000,000 and 1960 cost $48,500,000.

The Soviet bloc and most Arab countries refuse to pay for UNEF, whose total cost so far has been about $94,000,000 with about $26,500,000 still outstanding.

Along with the countries not paying assessments because of slated disapproval in principle of the operations, other nations —including many Latin American countries — are delinquent because they say they cannot afford to pay.

The Canadian prime minister —in his parliamentary speech Monday—referred to the UN charter which provides that a country behind two years in its payments should lose its vote. He wants the charter provision made more effective.

The charter, after making its two - year stipulation, adds: "The General Assembly may, nevertheless, permit such a member to vote if it is satisfied that the failure to pay is due to conditions beyond the control of the member."

The Soviet Union and other defaulting countries have refused to concede that the special assessments can be regarded in the same light as the regular assessment, especially when a great power disapproves in principle with the procedure and purpose of an action.

The United States has been taking up most of the slack in UN finances in recent years, causing discontent among U.S. congressmen and others who sometimes do not agree with UN policies in The Congo.

As an emergency measure, the General Assembly in December approved a $200,000,000 bond issue, to be underwritten by governments, to relieve at least temporarily the financial crisis. The U.S. and Canada have agreed in principle to buy.

The Soviet Union leads all others in arrears for the Congo operation, its default being $23,000,000. France is almost $9,500,000 behind and Nationalist China nearly $4,000,000.

Prince Philip Chooses Own School For Prince Charles

By ROD CURRIE

LONDON (CP) — "My heart bleeds for Charles."

Thus spoke Lord Rudolph Russell, 17 - year - old son of the Duke of Bedford who twice ran away from Gordonstoun, the school near the rugged coast of northeast Scotland that has been selected for Prince Charles.

The Queen announced her decision Tuesday.

Many of Gordonstoun's "old boys" would not agree with the young lord's sentiments. Prince Philip, the school's most famous graduate, is known to have been eager — probably insistent— that his son go to the school where an active schedule seeks to demonstrate its motto— "There Is More in You."

It's a place where the bare feet are expected to hit the cold plank floors the instant the "call boy" comes slamming through the dormitory at 7:05 a.m. The emphasis is on self - discipline and leadership in an atmosphere of cold showers, bare wooden tables, short pants, open - neck shirts and lots of outdoor activity.

HAS FINE RECORD

But despite its reputation, it has a good academic score and a fine record in dealing with even delicate boys. In extra-curricular activities the emphasis is not entirely aimed at strenuous pursuits.

The school, in a wooded area within a mile of the sea, maintains a mountain rescue service, a fire station and a navigation classroom.

Lord Russell, who finally went to another school, said his "only recollections are of complete horror." But, he admitted, "it will make the poor devil a man, if he can stick it."

Another former Gordonstoun boy disagrees. Max Cordet, 18, son of a night club owner and god son of Prince Philip, said he thoroughly enjoyed his stay.

"I went there at 13," he said. "Gordonstoun caters not only for the strong but for the weak. I found none of the bullying I expected."

FEE $1,526

The fee is £519 ($1,526) a year. At Eton, the famous school near Windsor which the Queen is thought to have originally preferred for Prince Charles, charges £508.

The Queen has visited Gordonstoun several times and Prince Charles visited there last August.

Headmaster Robert Chew said Tuesday night that "we are all delighted that the Prince of Wales will be following his father's footsteps and coming to us."

He said there is a ban against smoking and the "munching of sweets is curtailed." Students must have permission to visit the nearby town of Elgin and the movie there is out of bounds.

There is no "fagging" — the practice in most such British schools under which junior students do chores and run errands for senior students.

SCHOOL CLASSLESS

Also, Gordonstoun is fundamentally classless and Prince Charles — he was 13 last November — will mix with the sons of peers and dockers, rich men and fishermen. The workers' sons are scholarship boys who get financial help from shipping companies and civic councils.

Headmaster Chew—who took over in 1959 from the founder, Dr. Kurt Hahn, a German who set up the school after fleeing the Nazis in the early 1930s— said Prince Charles will be treated "the same as the other boys."

Prince Charles, now in his last term at Cheam, a small preparatory school, will have to write the Ordinary Entrance Examination but "I don't anticipate him failing that one."

GOT THE DOPE ON HIM—Pasquale Fuca, 60, looks a bit out of sorts as he sits handcuffed in his Brooklyn, N. Y., basement room, a small arsenal and pure heroin worth about $3.5 million behind him. He was caught in a series of raids.

F. B. Pearce ...Writes

It was one of those wandering missionaries of whom we have had many lately who had a pamphlet of evolution, as if I did not know all the theory of evolution and the Bible story of creation too. Evolution is taught in schools, though it is probable that not half the students know much about it other than human beings are descended from monkeys. The boys may believe this, for to their minds it seems reasonable, but the girls, who are given to simple beliefs, like the Bible story better.

The theory of evolution is indeed a reasonable one. It says that everything in nature started from small beginnings and has gradually evolved into all the present forms of life — including man. The inference is that as time goes on we may evolve into higher forms. This may be so but just at present it seems as if man is evoluting many of them off the earth. The passenger pigeon and the great auk have gone, there are only a few buffalo left, Africa is steadily eliminating the elephant and the rhinocerous, and we are getting rid of the cougars.

The theory of evolution is just a theory and has never been proved. There is some supporting evidence for what it is worth but the Darwinian theory was not helped by the discovery of the coelanthus fish. The scientists had found this in fossil form and believed, since none had been found, that it had either evolved or died out twenty million years ago. It had not done either.

I am quite prepared to believe the Darwinian theory and I admit that it sounds reasonable, but what I want to know is whether our reasoning powers evolved and what did they start from. Scientists have always dodged this. They can tell you how your body evolved but they can tell you nothing about your soul. They wouldn't dare to. People would say they were crazy.

But religion does. The Christian Bible gives its version of evolution as a process undertaken by God. The Genesis story of creation is one of evolution and has these steps.

1. The earth is shapeless and empty. 2. Light comes. 3. The earth solidifies into land covered by water. 4. The division of the land from the sea. 5. Grass and trees begin to grow. 6. The lifting of the clouds, i.e. the waters which are above the firmanment, when the heavenly bodies become visible. 6. Fish and birds appear on the earth. 7. Mammals arrive on earth and 8. The last step of all, man is created.

A great deal of fuss is made about the Bible statement that the world was created in seven days. If anyone believes that it means our present 24-hour day they must be very simple. When the Bible was written there was no word to describe an immense period of time, there is none in English today and we use a Greek one, eon, and the days of Genesis were eons.

It can be said of the evolutionists that they go so far and then stop. They stop with the material evolution of man. The Bible goes further. It says, "The Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life and man became a living soul.

It must not be understood by that that God sat down with a lump of clay and fashioned a man, and then magicked it into life, but rather that at some time in his development He gave him the intelligence which he has today. It is that greater intelligence which sets him apart from and above the animals.

Would you like to suggest that that was mere chance?

Unlucky Time For Vacation

TORONTO (CP) — Milorad Cop, a Canadian sentenced to seven years in a Czechoslovakian prison, said Tuesday night he picked an "unlucky time" to take his holidays.

Cop, here from Montreal to appear on a CBC television program, was released recently by Czech authorities after completing less than two years in his sentence.

"It was just an unlucky time to visit Czechoslovakia," he said. "The (Francis Gary) Powers fuss was on. The Iron Curtain countries wanted to find some 'spies' to stage trials for propaganda reasons."

He was picked up by police in Prague while visiting a 12-year-old son by his first marriage.

The only evidence presented at his trial, he said, was that he had been in contact with an underground movement in West Germany which had halped him to escape from Czechoslovakia in 1951.

He said he was not tortured at any time, but found life tedious on a regular diet of dumplings, potatoes and gravy.

More Promise Than Threat In Britain Joining Common Market

By JIM WHELLY

BANFF, Alta. (CP)—Britain's entry into the European Common Market was described Tuesday as more a promise than a threat to Canada in two major addresses to the annual convention of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture.

Dr. Arthur J. R. Smith of Montreal, director of the private Planning Association of Canada, and H. H. Hannam of Ottawa, CFA president, saw the ECM as a challenge to Canadian agriculture to improve its position in the international market.

Dr. Smith said that, paradoxically, "Canada's best hope for maintaining and developing agricultural exports may lie in Britain's entry into the ECM."

But he said that even under favorable conditions, Canada should expect moderate rather than dynamic growth in agricultural exports to Europe.

MUST BE 'AGGRESSIVE'

"We therefore need to work aggressively," he said, "both to achieve further major gains in agricultural productivity, and to develop new opportunities for agricultural export in other directions."

He said Canada can achieve a bright economic and trading future only if "we are prepared to be active participants in the change now developing in the international scene rather than stout defenders of an eroding status quo.

"If we hope for a defensive response to changes in the world around us "we are very likely to have a soggy Canadian economy that will find itself being dragged complaining and whimpering through the rapidly changing world economy of the 1960's."

He said Canada "should take positive action in concert with the new initiative of the United States" for a major move toward freer trade.

Mr. Hannam said the interest of Canadian farmers could be gravely injured by Britain's entry into the ECM but "we should not overlook the fact that drastic changes are unlikely to be made quickly, more likely over a period of some years.

COULD EXPAND MARKET

"During those years the dynamics of a huge, thriving and prosperous community could so expand our market opportunities that what we have to gain would more than make up for what we have to lose."

He said the CFA always has looked upon the development of the ECM as being, in principle, a policy of wisdom. But it recognized that as the agricultural policies of the six nations took a protectionist turn, Canadian markets in some commodities could be jeopardized.

He said the government should take every opportunity "to inform organizations like ours of the difficulties and problems we may have to face" because of ECM developments "and of the alternatives that may seem open to us for meeting them.

"I believe it would be a wise course to place a competent representative of our own appointment near the headquarters of the Common Market authority in Brussels for a few years," he said. "Such a move could return to Canadian farmers benefits many thousandfold the cost of administering such a project."

Sask. Doctors Take Gloomy View of Medical Plan

By JACK BEST

REGINA (CP) — Spokesmen for the Saskatchewan medical profession said Tuesday a compulsory, state medical care plan would breed government control of doctors and destroy the intimate relationship between patient and physician.

It was the profession's turn to face the probing questions of the royal commission on health services, which earlier in the day gave provincial government officials the same treatment.

The medical profession—represented by the Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons and the Saskatchewan division of the Canadian Medical Association — is at loggerheads with the CCF government over the province's medical insurance plan.

It is supposed to go into effect April 1 but the doctors vow they will not co-operate in the plan.

Commissioner O. J. Firestone asked Dr. H. D. Dalgleish, one of a battery of medical witnesses, why they did not favor extension of principles embodied in the federal-provincial hospital insurance program to the medical field.

Dr. Dalgleish, president of the college, had stated in reply to a previous question that "in general" the profession supports the hospital plan—"we believe it has raised the quality of care for our patients."

EXPLAINS HIS STAND

The hospital plan is compulsory in Saskatchewan — as in most other provinces — in the sense that self-supporting citizens are compelled to pay premiums.

"The relationship between a doctor and his patient cannot be compared to buildings, furniture and other such things that go to make up a hospital program," Dr. Dalgleish explained to Commissioner Firestone.

"One is a person and one a person- to -person relationship," added Dr. E. W. Barootes.

A compulsory plan, he continued, also "infers government control." The medical profession was against compulsion except in cases of national or communal emergency.

Commissioner Firestone pursued a similar line of questioning with respect to the community program at Swift Current, Sask.—which was compulsory, tax - supported, comprehensive and had proven acceptable to both doctors and the public. Why shouldn't this type of plan be extended to the rest of the province?

'WOULD NOT ADJUST'

Dr. Dalgleish said that such a "single mechanism," if adopted, probably would prove incapable of adjusting to the changes in treatment patters that were bound to take place in the next 10 to 15 years.

Dr. Barrotes said a plan that ran well locally might not function properly if adopted on a province wide scale. There would be difficulties "both administrative and otherwise" if 13 or 14 regional plans were established, all co - ordinated from Regina.

Dr. Firestone asked whether the Saskatchewan medical profession would favor a scheme subsidized by Ottawa with the individual provinces deciding whether it should be compulsory for them. At first Dr. Dalgleish said the answer "probably" was yes — he and his colleagues would give their considered view at a later date. A few minutes later he reversed himself and said the answer probably would be no.

Earlier in the day Commissioner M. W. McCutcheon and the commission chairman, Chief Justice Emmett Hall of Saskatchewan, clashed with Health Minister W. G. Davies over the province's proposed medical plan. Both the chairman and Mr. McCutcheon maintained that the government would exercise close control over the doctors through the seven-member commission established to admister the plan.

Mr. Davies denied the allegations and said the commission would be largely independent.

Parliament Opens In Westminster

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP) — Parliament is back at work after the Christmas recess, and the Labor opposition has indicated readiness to battle on the proposed merger of Imperial Chemical Industries and Courtaulds.

In reply to persistent demands for a debate, a government spokesman told the Commons Tuesday that he hopes to make a statement on the subject Thursday or early next week.

Douglas Jay, the opposition's main speaker on trade matters, asked for a public inquiry into the effects of the proposed merger.

Other topics discussed as the MPs resumed work included the cost of repair work at the Kensington Palace home of Princess Margaret and the Earl of Snowdon: a plan for fixed-rate financing to aid exports: labor trouble on the railways: and British policy in the United Nations.

The criticism of repair costs for Kensington Palace, future home of Princess Margaret and her husband, was launched by W. W. Hamilton, labor member for Fife West in Scotland, who asked whether this was part of the works ministry's contribution to Britain's economic recovery.

CALLED DEPLORABLE

"Does he (the minister, Lord John Hope) not think that it is a deplorable priority that at this time, when there are thousands of homeless in London, that this kind of money should be spent on this apartment?"

The ministry announced Monday that repair work would cost about £85,000, ($250,000) some £15,000 more than the original estimate last March.

Lord John said he does not think he would be making any contribution to the national interest if he allowed the building to deteriorate. It had been deteriorating for more than 20 years and "it is high time something was done."

Transport Minister Ernest Marples faced a Labor party barrage of questions on pay claims by railwaymen.

The railway industry is one of several sectors on the British industrial front where demands for pay increases are coming into conflict with the government's pay-pause policy, expected to last until April.

Prime Minister Macmillan replied affirmatively when asked whether a speech by Lord Home Dec. 28 represented government policy on the United Nations.

Labor MPs said the speech had called in question Britain's continued support of the United Nations, and had been quoted with glee by enemies of the UN.

In the speech, Lord Home spoke of a "crisis of confidence" in the world organization and said Britain had been placed in an "appalling dilemma" because of what he described as a falling away from the principles of the UN charter.

Rare Event-Stewardess Retiring

MONTREAL (CP) — Reit Kremer, 50, believes she is the first air stewardess ever to retire on pension.

Miss Kremer's flight to her native Holland marked the end of a 22-year career with KLM.

"There are only about 30 KLM stewardesses left who are eligible to retire and go on pension," she said. "Now the company only contracts stewardesses for a period of five years.

"I'm the first of an almost extinct breed."

Most of the airlines who hire stewardesses as regular employees try to steer them into ground jobs before they reach 40.

Miss Kremer, a still-attractive blonde, admits her age without hesitation.

"Why shouldn't I. Fifty is not old. I don't feel like playing tennis for hours straight any longer, but I still feel young."

She plans to visit various parts of Europe and South Africa and then hopes to work for another five years or so, probably in a travel bureau in New York.

Great Need For Physiotherapists at Mission . . .

Well Known in Crawford Bay, Physio Writes of Life in India

CRAWFORD BAY—A frequent visitor to the Crawford Bay-Gray Creek area, Miss Moyna Gordon, physiotherapist at Bellore, South India, recently wrote to friends in the Kootenay Lake communities concerning her activities in India, where she is staff member of a Mission College and Hospital.

Miss Gordon told of a comfortable flight by jet plane from Edmonton to Bombay, where she stayed at the Anglican Church Mission House. The temperature was a humid 90 degrees for the first three weeks after her arrival. She visited the rehabilitation centre in Bombay, and the school of physiotherapy.

In Vellore, her destination, the physiotherapy building now under construction will have two floors, the lower floor for a splint workshop and leprosy treatment unit, physio school lecture room and office for Miss Gordon. On the main floor there will be offices and consulting rooms, 14 treatment cubicles, a gym area and a pool area, also a room with eight cubicles to double as a treatment area and practical classroom.

The staff at present is working in a temporary thatched building with open lattice work walls and a blue flowering creeper growing up the walting room walls.

HEED SHORT-TERM PHYSIOS

There are two foreign-trained physiotherapists; two Indian-trained physios and four untrained technicians on the staff. They badly need two more trained physios from other countries on a two to four year basis until their own graduates are established, she wrote in her letter.

Miss Gordon lives in a flat with a Canadian woman who has been in the country for 25 years and they travel from the college campus to the hospital, in the centre of Vellore, by bus. "The whole campus is a mass of trees — palms, tall flowering trees, bougainvillias, flowering creepers and shrubs," says the physiotherapist.

She rises early, participates in college chapel prayers for 15 minutes, breakfast at seven o'clock; arrive at the hospital by eight o'clock and takes part in prayers for the patients. Work stops mid-day for two hours, when Miss Gordon has lunch and studies Tamil, one of the native languages. Back at the college, they have tea at 5:30 p.m. and after a cold shower, supper at 7:00. Bedtime is at nine o'clock.

They attend Bible study once a week and she finds life at the Mission College and Hospital busy and full, but happy and rewarding in all its aspects.

Miss Gordon taught physiotherapy at University of Alberta in Edmonton before going to India. Her home is in England.

Dreaded Canso Causeway Proves Popular

By IRA DRYSDALE

PORT HAWKESBURY, N.S. (CP)—Townsfolk on both sides of the Canso Strait used to dread the thought of a highway link ending the ferrying business between the Nova Scotia mainland and Cape Breton Island.

Now they figure the Canso Causeway, completed six years ago at a cost of $6,000,000, is the greatest thing that ever happened here.

The causeway did put an end to the ferrying, chief industry in both towns for as long as anyone can remember. But in return it set off a development that has rapidly grown into the biggest industrial boom in Nova Scotia.

Nova Scotia Pulp Limited is completing a $40,000,000 pulp processing mill at Point Tupper, two miles southeast of here. British American Oil Company has completed storage and shipping facilities at Point Tupper. Bestwell Gypsum Company is developing facilities for shipping gypsum from a deposit at River Denys i ncentral Cape Breton.

FINE NEW HARBOR

By blocking off the winter and spring run of ice, the causeway has created a harbor that matches any on the Atlantic coast.

The twin towns each had a population of about 1,000 before the causeway was built. This has more than doubled. About 350 men from the two towns were engaged in ferrying, but new industries have taken more than this number.

With the end of service by the two car ferries and two railway ferries came an expansion of the former A. and R. Loggie fish plant here that absorbed 300 workers. New jobs were added by the pulp, oil and gypsum facilities.

Mulgrave, on the mainland side, is shaping into a healthy shipping town. Acadia Fisheries Limited, a subsidiary of England's Boston Deep Sea Trawler Company, works a five-trawler fleet out of Mulgrave all year. When unusually heavy ice last winter shut off the CNR's Nova Scotia terminal for Newfoundland passenger and freight runs at North Sydney, Mulgrave port facilities were used.

POPULATION JUMP

Port Hawkesbury, on the island end of the causeway, has seen its population jump to 2,500 in the last two years. Mulgrave has also experienced the growth.

Mulgrave Mayor Willoughby Digdon, 41 - year - old head of a construction company, said: "Think of it—14 miles of harbor, a mile to two miles wide, with not a shoal or ledge. You can jump right off into 30 feet of water."

One of those who predicted long ago that a causeway would help the area to prosper, Mayor Digdon now declares that he is living "in one of the brightest spots in the Maritimes—if not the brightest."

London Times Favors Kennedy

LONDON (Reuters) — The times praises the Kennedy administration for its efforts to keep the political scene clear of military influence.

The independent newspaper publishes a hard-hitting editorial on the public hearings into the "muzzling of the military" which were started Tuesday in Washington.

These hearings are of "vital concern" to the rest of the world, The Times says, because of the extension of the military "into every corner of the national life."

"Whole areas of the U.S. are dependent on the defence budget.

"The result is that concentrations of political, economic and military power develop an interest in maintaining the tensions which keep it large and in opposing social and welfare expenditures which compete with it.

"All this feeds, and feeds upon the superficial view of communism as total evil which must be totally defeated, not only externally but in the form known as 'creeping socialism' at home."

The public statements of senior U.S. military—men have "sometimes caused dangerous confusion about the aims of American policy and the extent of civilian control over it."

Exchange Would Ban Domestic Arbitrage

TORONTO (CP) — Members of the Toronto Stock Exchange Tuesday deferred until their annual meeting in May a proposal to discontinue domestic arbitrage, a plan that was strenuously criticized by the Montreal Stock Exchange.

A statement issued after Tuesday's special meeting of members said the deferment was made at the request of the Montreal and Vancouver exchanges. It added:

"The governors of the Toront exchange are convinced that domestic arbitrage is not in the best interests of the investing public and hope that between now and their annual meeting in May some mutually satisfactory arrangement may be arrived at between the Montreal and Toronto exchanges, and perhaps Vancouver as well, which will have the effect of accomplishing what the Toronto exchange considers the proper policy."

Arbitrage is the system under which stock is bought on one market and sold on another at the same time in order to take advantage of price differences in the two markets. Its object is to keep the prices in various markets at the same level.

ANNOUNCED JAN. 10

The Toronto exchange, in announcing Jan. 10 the proposal to discontinue domestic arbitrage, said the exchange governors feel it is no longer justified "since communication facilities now are adequate to allow every broker to execute clients' orders in the market where the best price prevails."

The January 10 announcement commented that the New York Stock Exchange does not permit domestic arbitrage by its members, but that arbitrage over international boundaries is permitted by New York, Toronto and other major exchanges.

Eric W. Kierans, president of the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges, in criticizing the Toronto proposal Jan. 17, said it would build up the New York Exchange at the expense of the Toronto and Montreal exchanges. He stated that it would build up two distinct and separate markets in Canada, one based on Toronto and one on the Montreal - Canadian exchanges.

The Toronto move was widely interpreted in Montreal as directed against exchanges there, and Mr. Kierans commented that rather than Montreal becoming a regional exchange of Toronto, all Canadian exchanges would become regional to New York.

DEFER PROPOSAL

Decision on a proposal to extend 50-50 commission splits to members of the Vancouver and Canadian stock exchanges, an arrangement that has been in effect with the Montreal stock exchange for many years, was also deferred.

Howard D. Graham, Toronto exchange president, told Tuesday's meeting that discussions are proceeding with the Montreal exchanges with t'si o3n of eliminating in the near future the "curb" section in Toronto and the "unlisted" section in Montreal. Stocks now traded on these sections would be invited to become fully listed.

Mr. Graham also said an agreement has been drafted with Chicago's Midwest Stock Exchange, and now is awaiting final approval by the governors of both bodies. Under the proposal Toronto members would acquire a franchise to trade on the Midwest through a correspondent.

Cuba Conference Causes Violence

By ALPHONSE MAURI

PUNTA DEL ESTE, Uruguay (Reuters)—The Organization of American States resumed its hearing on Cuba Wednesday with seven countries reported to be pressing for a postponement of any action against the pro-Communist regime of Premier Fidel Castro.

Conference sources said the proposed postponement was contained in a memorandum backed by Brazil, Argentina, Chile, Mexico, Bolivia, Ecuador and Haiti.

The memorandum came up for discussion by the foreign ministers as chances faded for strong collective measures against Cuba.

The U.S. was believed to be shifting to a "softer line" under pressure from the seven countries, whose memorandum was reported to condemn the idea of sanctions against the Castro regime.

WANTS MORAL SANCTION

Richard Goodwin, deputy assistant secretary of state for Latin America, told reporters Tuesday the U.S. sought a "firm moral sanction" of Castro's government rather than outright penalties against it.

But the U.S. earlier was reported seeking drastic action, including the possible expulsion of Cuba from the OAS, a diplomatic quarantine, strong economic sanctions and establishment of a common anti-Communist defence organization.

The position of the influential Brazilian delegation was believed to be far from fixed despite its support for the memorandum.

Unofficial reports Tuesday night said the delegation had received government instructions to take a "tougher line" favoring stronger action against Cuba.

Previously the Brazilian delegation was adopted a "live-and-let-live" attitude toward Cuba.

NO ALTERNATIVE

The Brazilian spokesman said Tuesday the Western Hemisphere had no alternative but to coexist with a socialist country.

The U.S., in its campaign has had the consistent backing of a group of countries, mostly small Central American republics.

But the current lineup was believed to leave the U.S. short of the minimum majority of 14 votes required to make any serious measures against Cuba obligatory to all 21 member states.

The Associated Press reported meanwhile that the conference continued to produce public violence at various Latin-American points.

Sixty-five miles from this Atlantic beach resort and its diplomatic visitors, thousands of pro-Castro demonstrators marched through the main street of Montevideo shouting "Cuba si! Yankees no!" The demonstration apparently was linked to a meeting of Latin American leftist leaders scheduled to open in the Uruguayan capital today.

In Venezuela, a country that has broken with Cuba, the toll from two days of clashes in Caracas climbed to 13 dead and more than 30 wounded.

More bombs exploded in scattered sections of Caracas Tuesday and eight buses were reported burned. More than 200 persons were believed under arrest.

One man was killed and 30 injured in La Paz, Bolivia, in street fighting between pro-Castro and anti-Castro demonstrators.

Gov't May Get Leads On Foreign Ownership Control

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP)—The government may get leads for setting future policy on foreign ownership control of Canadian companies and unions through revised legislation on the furnishing of financial and statistical information.

The immediate object of a bill introduced in the Commons Monday by Justice Minister Fulton is to require companies and unions to furnish the government with a wide range of financial and similar data. Some of it will be kept confidential; some will be open to public scrutiny.

However, the government has given no clue publicly of what will be done, if anything, with the information once it is provided.

A bill requiring similar information from foreign - owned or foreign - controlled companies and from unions with head offices outside Canada was introduced at the last session but was not proceeded with. There were protests that it discriminated against such companies and unions because Canadian-owned firms and Canadian unions were not required to supply the data.

The revised legislation applies to all companies and unions with a few exceptions, mostly among companies required to provide similar data already under other laws now on the books.

MAY PROVIDE LEADS

A qualified informant indicated that the government is expected to get leads for framing policy on foreign ownership and control. The Progressive Conservatives are on record as advocating a greater measure of Canadian participation in companies operating in this country.

It was argued that because only foreign-owned or controlled companies or non-Canadian unions were affected by the earlier legislation, an incentive was provided to "Canadianize" their operations, management and direction.

By making the new bill apply to Canadian as well as foreign companies and unions, it is conceded that some of this incentive has been lost. However, the information required might give a guide to the government if it wants to enact legislation to change the pattern of operations of foreign companies or unions.

The informant said the information required will give a very real picture of the nature, extent and effects of foreign ownership and the advantages foreign companies enjoy over Canadian competitors.

Northern MPs Study 1961-'62 Estimates

By JACK VAN DUSEN

OTTAWA (CP)—Money was uppermost on the minds of the members of Canada's parliament of the north Wednesday as they began study of the $7,614,684 1962-63 spending estimates.

Northwest Territories council Commissioner Gordon Robertson said Tuesday one of the council's main problems is finding money to run the giant territory.

The territory is generating "less than 50 per cent" of the funds it needed, with the rest coming from the federal government.

The council approved a five-year agreement with the federal government, which includes grants totalling more than $2,000,000 a year.

This does not include assistance in education, old age pensions, hospital insurance and other projects similarly given federal aid in the provinces.

Estimates for 1961-62 totalled $5,595,792. Estimated revenues totalled $3,323,011. Health estimates of $1,885,500 were approved.

WILL RAISE TAXES

The biggest revenue producer was liquor at about $1,648,000.

Under a bill given approval in principle, despite the objections of council member E. J. (Scotty) Gall of Yellowknife, gas taxes will be raised to nine cents a gallon over five years and oil taxes to four cents in the same period.

The council also approved in principle to a bill increasing motor vehicle licences to $10 from $5 and introducing new fees for trucks ranging from $20 to $200 depending on the size of the vehicle.

Mr. Gall said the council was discriminating against Yellowknife by increasing the fuel and gas taxes as Yellowknife, with a population of 3,000, was the biggest user of both.

He suggested the taxes be left as they are and an additional grant be sought from the federal government.

DOESN'T AGREE

Commissioner Robertson said a few cents would not hinder development and the federal government now was being as generous as could be expected.

Mr. Gall said the federal government was practising another form of discrimination against other residents of the north by providing subsidized housing and fuel for civil servants. This was creating a two-class society in the north.

He said it would be better to increase civil servants' salaries and let them pay standard rents and fuel oil costs. Otherwise they were transients and this was not the type needed to build a territory.

Mr. Robertson, who is also deputy minister of northern affairs, said his department has been seeking to have this change made for some years without success.

Astute Jurist Retires After 15 Years on Bench

WINNIPEG (CP)—An astute jurist known to Manitoba lawyers as "The Chief" has retired after 15 years on the bench and 50 years in law.

Chief Justice Eston Kenneth Williams of the Manitoba Court of Queen's Bench, top trial court in the province, said he retired because "I'm completely tired out." He's 72 and could have stayed until he was 75.

He left at the beginning of the year but planned to continue as chairman of the board of trustees of the Manitoba Law School and may do some writing.

Born in Parkhill, Ont., Mr. Williams came from a family with a strong legal tradition. Both grandfathers were lawyers and he got an early start on his legal education when he was 14 during a visit with his maternal grandfather.

He grew up in Toronto where he graduated from Osgoode Hall in 1911. A toss of the coin brought him to Winnipeg after he had practised for a short time in Toronto.

NAMED BY W. L. M. KING

In 1912 he received invitations from friends in the Barbados and in Winnipeg to spend Christmas with them. Flipping a coin, he chose Winnipeg and has been there ever since because the climate agreed with him.

His appointment was somewhat unusual by Canadian standards. A Conservative, he was appointed Dec. 10, 1946, by Liberal prime minister Mackenzie King on the advice of his justice minister, Louis St. Laurent.

A distinguished looking man with a white goatee to match his hair, Chief Justice Williams ruled his courts with a strict hand and allowed no sloppiness in legal matters.

He recalled that his grandfather once told him law was a "gentleman's profession and that there was to be no deviation from the highest standards for any reason whatsoever."

RETIREMENT DINNER

Four hundred lawyers, many of whom had been on the losing end of some of his decisions, turned out to applaud him at a pre-retirement dinner.

In his address he said: "I kept thinking that the hands of friendship were averting the whips of criticism. All were more than kind and I am grateful to each. As they spoke, I hoped that each, out of his kindness, was trying to see me as what I desired to be."

Discussing the role of men in his profession, he added: "The judges—and perhaps only the judges—are not swayed by public opinion or the opinions of any group of the public, nor are they responsive to such pressures.

"They are not the servants of any government, of any party, or of any group. They are the impartial servants of the law; and this must be so if Canadians are to remain free."

SUNDAY SKATING

CALGARY (CP) — City officials were to meet Wednesday to consider a provincial government legal opinion on the question of charging admission to city skating rinks on Sunday. The officials did not reveal contents of the government opinion. A calgary woman recently filed a complaint against the city under the Lord's Day Act.

Federal Surveyors To Chart Northern Yukon

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal surveyors plan to set out by dog sled early next month to chart the northern Yukon and help guide future exploration for new hydro and oil resources.

The team, whose dogs will be driven by an Indian squaw, will venture farther north in deep winter than any previous topographical survey undertaken by the mines and technical surveys department.

The project, carried out in conjunction with a northern affairs department water resources development program, involves detailed surveying for the first time of the rugged terrain between Fort McPherson, N.W.T., and Dawson City in Yukon.

The northern and toughest section of the route through mountain passes and canyons will be covered by dog sled. The southern part will be surveyed by another crew using motorized sleds and toboggans.

Headed by James B. O'Neill, a senior field officer of the federal topographical survey, the dog sled team is scheduled to leave Feb. 8 from the Mackenzie River settlement of Fort McPherson, 60 miles north of the Arctic Circle. It expects to join April 18 with the second crew which is starting out from Dawson.

In its 200 - mile southward trek, Mr. O'Neill's party expects to brave blizzards and temperatures as low as 60 degrees below zero. As the surveying instruments are winterized for use in temperatures down to only 40 degrees below, a prolonged severe cold snap could hamper the expedition.

However, Mr. O'Neill, 43, of St. George, N.B., embarking on his 13th successive winter of traversing frozen muskeg and swamp with geodetic level, is confident that operations will be as efficient as in summer.

He will be assisted by two surveyors and seven Indian guides, drivers and rodman.

SOCIETY CHARGED

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Winnipeg Film Society pleaded not guilty Wednesday to a charge laid under the Lord's Day Act. The society was charged after it held Sunday film showings for its 1,000 members at a city theatre.

U.S. Inquires Into "Major Racketeers"

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney-General Robert F. Kennedy said Wednesday the justice department is investigating what he called attempts by "major racketeers" to move into the stock trading business.

He emphasized in an interview that the probe does not involve the over-all operation of any stock exchange and is not connected with a Jan. 6 report by the Securities Exchange Commission charging abuses by officials of the American stock exchange.

"There have been some efforts by major racketeers to get into the stock field," Kennedy said.

"Now, I'm not saying that stock exchanges are controlled by racketeers," he added.

But he said crime figures have branched out into stock dealing, in keeping with their pattern of investing in legitimate businesses with money obtained from gambling and other illegal enterprises.

MANIPUATE PRICES

Kennedy did not detail the illegal nature of any stock market activity by underworld elements. Other justice department sources said, however, it sometimes involved manipulation of stock prices.

One department official said the operations were in line with "gangster infiltration of real estate, vending machines, night clubs, beer distributorships, produce, trucking, hotels and motels, manufacturing and construction businesses."

Kennedy said his department had been checking on the move into the stock field for some time.

"But I think it's become more pronounced in the last several years," he said. "It's not a matter that has swept the country. It does exist in several cities."

Algiers Flies French Flag

ALGIERS — The French tricolor was flown Wednesday throughout Algiers' European areas in a massive demonstration of opposition to Algerian independence.

The flag display was ordered by the European Secret Army Organization, which also called for a 75-minute general strike late this afternoon and told the European population to turn off the lights in their homes for the last 15 minutes. The strike was expected to paralyze the city.

The Secret Army Organization used the occasion of the anniversary of the 1960 settlers' uprising to demonstrate anew its hold on the European population and its determination to keep Algeria French.

Police halted traffic on the city's main streets in expectation of disorders. Troop patrols deployed through the city and army helicopters hovered overhead.

POLICE REMOVE WREATHS

Groups of Europeans gathered in the streets and some loudly voiced hostility to President de Gaulle and his Algerian policies.

Police removed wreaths placed in the early morning hours on the spots where seven European civilians died in a clash with gendarmes two years ago.

The strike was the latest of a series which have been staged in recent months in the North African territory, now in its eighth year of a Moslem nationalist insurrection.

Doctors in Algiers and Oran ended a two-day strike Tuesday that came on the heels of token walkout by teachers in the two cities. Both professions were seeking protection from attacks by Algerian Moslem insurgents and the European extremists.

ATTACKS CONTINUE

Moslem and French terrorists continued to lash Algeria's major cities with sub-machine-gun and bomb attacks. The count Tuesday was 14 killed and 31 injured in 20 bloodlettings across the country.

In Paris, nine plastic bombs were exploded during the night, injuring one person. Police blamed the secret army.

In the 1960 uprising, several thousand Europeans rallying under the black crosses of the National French Front clashed with gendarmes sent to disperse them. Seven civilians and 14 gendarmes died and 140 persons were wounded.

The crowd barricaded itself in the heart of the city for eight days, hoping to force de Gaulle to change his policy of self-determination for Algeria or to force him out of power. Neither happened, and the rebellion collapsed.

East Berlin To Have Conscription

EAST BERLIN (Reuters)—The Volkskammer (parliament) Wednesday passed a bill giving East Germany military conscription for the first time.

The conscription law allows drafting of East German men 18 to 26 for 18 months of basic military training. In addition, the government can order up to three months annual reserve service for all men up to 35, and up to two months for those up to 50, or 60 in the case of officers.

The timing and extent of the actual recruiting was left up to the defence minister.

East German armed forces, which presumably will be increased by the new conscription bill, were officially totalled at 90,000 when the East Berlin border was closed last August.

Since then, the government claims, a recruiting drive has added 250,000 volunteers.

West German sources say the present total is about 200,000—176,000 army, 14,000 navy and 10,000 air force.

In addition, the sources say, there are 30,000 mobile police equipped with tanks and armored cars, 80,000 police with infantry training, 400,000 armed "factory fighting groups," and 53,000 members of the para-military "Society for Sports and Technology."

West German forces, a defence ministry spokesman said today, total 375,000, and the country hopes to increase this to 420,000. West Germany also has introduced a conscription bill.

2 American Airlines To Combine

NEW YORK (AP)—American Airlines and Eastern Air Lines will combine into the United States' biggest system if stockholder and government approval is forthcoming.

They announced plans Tuesday to merge. The consolidated line would be called American Airlines.

The proposal to create a system with $900,000,000 in assets, 39,000 employees and 400 aircraft will be submitted to stockholders of both companies and the Civil Aeronautics Board.

The merger would be another step in the quickening scramble to tie together competing transportation lines in an effort to pull out of a financial morass.

United Air Lines and heavily-in-debt Capital Airlines merged last May, making United the biggest of the domestic carriers. On the rail front, the New York Central and Pennsylvania systems agreed last week to merge. Other proposed combinations are being pushed.

CARRIERS LOSE HEAVILY

The 11 U.S. trunk air carriers lost an aggregate of about $30,000,000 in 1961. Eastern went deeply in the red while American earned $6,800,000.

C. R. Smith, president of American, and Malcolm A. McIntyre, president of Eastern, jointly announced that the aim of the merger was to provide a stronger system "which can survive today's financial crisis, meet its obligations to the public and cope with the technological demands of the future."

They estimated savings of $50,000,000 a year could be effected by eliminating duplicating flights and other services and by better utilization of equipment and facilities. Details have not been worked out.

Smith would be chairman and chief executive officer of the Eastern - American combine with McIntyre president and second in executive authority.

The merger terms provide that Eastern stockholders would receive for each Eastern share held 1.3 shares of American, plus warrants good for five years to purchase an additional one-third share of American at $28 a share.

Winch Assails Gov't On Nuclear Issue

OTTAWA (CP) — Harold Winch (CCF-Vancouver East) said Wednesday the government has brought Canada in to international disrepute and made it a laughing stock among other nations.

He said in the Commons throne speech debate that on the one hand the government advocates no extension of the nuclear club at the United Nations while at the same time arming Canadian forces with weapons effective only with nuclear warheads.

"How do you put the two together? . . . It's political hypocrisy."

The government was guilty of conscious dishonesty unless, of course, it had no intention whatever of actually arming the weapons with nuclear warheads. In that case, how could the government justify the millions spent on acquiring the weapons?

Two Basic Questions Face Cabinet on Rails

By ROBERT RICE

OTTAWA (CP) — Two basic, inter-related decisions appear to confront the cabinet in considering what to do about the transportation proposals of the MacPherson royal commission.

The main findings of the six-man commission, contained in two volumes, one made public last April, the other released Tuesday, are incredibly complex and not easily translated into legislative action.

Boiled down to the essence, here's how some observers see the key questions as they face the cabinet.

1. Should railway freight rates be set free, subject to safeguards for "captive" traffic?

2. If so, should the commission's first - volume plan for shrinking rail subsidies also be implemented?

Major policy decisions on many other recommendations in the two reports hinge on the answers to these two questions.

A decision to go ahead on the two basic issues foreshadows far-reaching consequences, politically and economically.

If the government decided to proceed, the necessary legislation would be comprehensive, involving new measures as well as sweeping amendments to existing statutes on freight rates, railway operations, subsidy assistance and so on.

NO EASY TASK

The task of drafting such legislation would be neither easy nor short.

For these reasons, most observers do not anticipate hurried or immediate action in Parliament.

They suggest that if the current session is not suddenly curtailed for a general election, it might be possible for the government to introduce legislation based on the MacPherson report before prorogation.

The commission's central argument is that competition can create a more efficient over-all transportation system at lower cost than can a welter of new regulations, old rules and perpetual subsidies.

But before this new climate of competition can be really effective, it said, the old burdens of public regulation and obligation must be removed from the backs of the railways and freight shippers.

B.C. Beef Shipments To U.S. Up

VANCOUVER (CP) — A federal department of agriculture official says B.C. beef cattle shipments to the United States increased to 21,158 head last year from 14,423 the previous year.

He said the increase is the result of higher beef prices in the U.S. while B.C. prices remained the same.

B.C. breeders sent 27,241 head to the Prairies for grain feeding.

Provincial government inspectors recorded 126,351 cattle in B.C., an increase of 10,691 head from 1960, and hide shipments increased to 15,193 from 13,989.

U.K. Expected To Protect Commonwealth

LONDON (CP)—Britain's chief negotiator on entry into the European Common Market said Wednesday Canadian Finance Minister Fleming has expressed complete confidence that Britain will do her best to protect Commonwealth interests in the negotiations.

Deputy Foreign Minister Edward Heath was answering questions in the House of Commons on his recent talks in Ottawa and Washington.

In reply to a question Heath said that "no Commonwealth country is asking for a veto over the United Kingdom. We have given certain undertakings to the Commonwealth and the House of Commons."

He said "the Canadian government expressed greater understanding between us in their communique about the reasons why we are entering into negotiations."

Explosions Rock Two Buildings

MISSOULA, Mont. (AP) — Explosions rocked two buildings near the Montana University campus Wednesday, injuring three persons — two of them Canadian students.

Officials said the explosions, three hours apart, apparently were caused by seeping natural gas. Emergency control measures were taken in the university district to prevent a recurrence. Homes in a two-block area were evacuated while Montana power company employees looked for gas leak.

Mrs. Mary Wasson, 32, a waitress, was severly burned in the first explosion and flash fire in the Chimney Corner, a restaurant patronized by students.

Three hours later an explosion took place in the basement apartment of two students across the street from the restaurant.

The injured students are Clarke Lamont, 21, a sophomore, and Walter McNeil, 24, a senior, both of Calgary.

Brief Submitted

VICTORIA (CP)—A government-sponsored investigation of "sharks and vultures" in the provincial real estate business was sought here Tuesday by a delegation representing the independent International Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers' Union.

The delegation submitted a brief to the cabinet.

"The union is appalled by recent revelations made by the British Columbia Federation of Labor . . . concerning the shady practices which have so profound a bearing on living costs of working people in this province," said the brief.

Harvey Murphy, western district president of the union, said he had "got the impression very clearly" that the government will order a Royal Commission investigation into Workmen's Compensation Board procedures.

Mr. Murphy said the union had asked the government to include lung cancer and chest disorders in the list of pensionable industrial diseases and that rules governing silicosis pensions be eased.

Educational Pamphlet Says U.S. People Being Misled

By JOE MacSWEEN

NEW YORK (CP)—A United States writer and former state department consultant says American understanding of the Soviet Union is distorted "beyond reason" and this increases the danger of nuclear war and serves the cause of communism.

Fred Warner Neal, in a widely distributed educational pamphlet, charges U.S. leadership with dismal failure since the Second World War and states:

"The American people have been misled to a point where public opinion constitutes a real barrier to the kind of compromises that are so vitally necessary."

The pamphlet entitled U.S. Foreign Policy and the Soviet Union was issued by the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions, Santa Barbara, Calif., main arm of the Fund for the Republic Incorporated.

The opinions expressed are those of the author. The non-political fund — established in 1952 by a grant of $15,000,000 from the Ford Foundation—has sponsored the publication of numerous provocative essays on subjects ranging from religion to labor unions and the press.

URGES NEW STUDY

Fund chief is Robert M. Hutchins, former president of the University of Chicago, and a founding member was Robert McNamara, now U.S. defence secretary and then executive head of the Ford Motor Company.

Neal, one-time correspondent for the Wall Stret Journal and later consultant on Russian affairs for the U.S. state department, says that since the end of the war there has been no serious re-evaluation of American foreign policy.

Now professor of international relations at Claremont Graduate School in California, Neal says "the very life of our nation—to say nothing of many other nations — depends on such a re-evaluation, on a dispassionate re-study and re-thinking in terms of the realities of the nuclear age. . . .

"There has evolved an American image of the Soviet Union that is not only distorted but hardened beyond reason. . . . American attitudes toward the Communist colossus have become befogged in a miasma of fear and emotion.

"It is imperative that they be clarified . . . because our continued misunderstanding of the Russians in fact serves the cause of communism rather than of freedom and at the same time fsters policies on both sides that increase risk of nuclear war and mutual destruction."

FEAR IS MUTUAL

The 60-page pamphlet contends:

1. The Russians fear the U.S. at least as much as the Americans fear them.

2. The Russians seek to foster communism throughout the world and this is a type of aggression. But it does not necessarily constitute military aggression.

3. "The status quo in Berlin is by no means vital to our interests. That it cannot be preserved in any event was illustrated by the comparative ease with which it was altered when the Russians and the East Germans more or less walled off East Berlin."

4. The U.S. failed to understand revolutionary currents after the war and wrongly ascribed many such movements to communism, thereby assisting the Communists.

5. The U.S. attitude toward disarmament is ambiguous and the world will never know whether Soviet Premier Khrushchev means his pledges for total disarmament unless he is taken up on them.

"Imagination and more imagination, in both word and deed, is what is needed to break the deadlock."

ONUS ON PRESIDENT

Without naming him, Neal says the necessary leadership must come from President Kennedy who, with wisdom and courage, could "do a number of things almost at once without risking a head-on collision with public rigidity." Such leadership could:

1. Instruct the people regarding the nuclear danger.

2. Undertake "cautiously to convince" the people that the Soviet Union is "not necessarily militarily aggressive"; that compromises are both possible and necessary; that while the cold war does not have to be lost, neither can it be won.

3. Insist on caution in public statements and ensure that they be neither misleading, inflammatory, nor provocative.

4. Initiate at private, official levels detailed confidential proposals for compromises on Berlin, disengagement of military forces and curtailment of American bases abroad. "It is not proposed, for example, that the United States unilaterally withdraw its forces from Central or Western Europe. But mutual disengagement, in a situation where American bases no longer ringed Soviet borders, would be a true subject for negotiation."

5. Begin to show the people the "futility and disadvantage" of challenge to the Soviet Union on Eastern Europe.

Neal, who during his state department service was chief of foreign economic research on Eastern Europe, seeks to show that the area has traditionally been of prime Russian concern.

After Russia pushed back Nazi armies from the area, "it was not a subject for negotiation any more than, say, the Panama Canal Zone or the Monroe Doctrine would be considered as subjects of negotiation by the United States."

Engstad Shooting For Skiing Title

Peter Engstad, Nelson's cross-country and ski jumping star, will shoot for the jackpot of all ski jackpots in February when he attempts to ski his way to the Canadian Junior Ski Championships.

PETER ENGSTAD
. . . starts long climb.

Engstad's schedule for the next month will be one of travelling from one ski center to another. In the latter part of this month, Jan. 28 and 29, he will compete at Princeton in the Similkameen championships. A week later he will show his wares in one of the two major meets, competing in the British Columbia Junior Ski Championships in Revelstoke Feb. 4.

After the B.C. championships Peter will go to Leavenworth, Washington to contest for honors in the Pacific Northwest Ski championships. Seven days later he will have an opportunity to gain fame when he competes in the Western Canada Nordic Ski championships to be held in Nelson on the Silver King Ski Hill.

Peter will have to make a big choice in early March — whether to go to Revelstoke to participate in the North American championships or go to Rossland to compete in an inter-high school meet.

In other years Peter has played "second fiddle" to his brother Phillip, who won many of the major cross-country and jumping meets. This year the shadow is gone and Peter Engstad will have a chance to shine atop the skiing pedestal.

Hawks Edge Leafs, Wings Blank Rangers

By The Canadian Press

Toronto Maple Leafs dropped a 2-1 decision to the surging Chicago Black Hawks Wednesday night in Chicago on the strength of the stellar goaltending of Glenn Hall.

In another exhibition of great netminding, Terry Sawchuk recorded his fifth shutout of the season, a 3-0 affair for his Detroit Red Wings over the New York Rangers.

At Chicago Hall, who made 19 saves for the night, lost his bid for his sixth shutout of the year at 17:19 of the final period when Toronto's Bert Olmstead scored with teammate Frank Mahovlich in the penalty box.

Bobby Hull gave the Black Hawks a 1-0 lead at 7:24 of the first period when he grabbed a loose puck in the Chicago zone and out-stripped Leafs' defenceman Carl Brewer in a rink-length race, and jammed the puck under the falling form of Toronto goalie Johnny Bower. The tally was Hull's 21st of the year.

Stan Mikita scored on a neat pass by Ken Wharram early in the final period to provide Hall with the goal he needed.

At New York, Gordie Howe scored a pair of goals as Detroit handed New York their eighth straight defeat.

Howe's first goal came on a power play early in the second period and the other late in the final period. The goals were his 22nd and 23rd of the season and gave the veteran winger 53 points. He trails Andy Bathgate of the Rangers, the scoring leader, by six points.

Sawchuk, who had to leave the ice briefly in the second period with a wrenched shoulder, wound up with 28 saves. His five shutouts tied him for the lead in that department with Glenn Hall of Chicago.

May Shift Hockey Championships

GENEVA (AP) — The executive committee of the International Ice Hockey Federation failed to reach a decision Wednesday on a possible shift of the 1962 world championships from Colorado Springs, Colo., to another country.

J. D. (Bunny) Ahearne of Britain, vice-president of the federation and chairman of the committee, scheduled another meeting today.

The meetings were called to discuss the United States state department's failure so far to approve visas for the East German team. Ahearne said earlier that a decision must be made soon, otherwise the hockey federation would offer the championships to Canada and West Germany, in that order.

In Washington, the state department said the East German team applied for travel documents at the Allied travel office in West Berlin Jan. 9 and on the same date asked for U.S. visas. It said no action had been taken as yet.

L. V. Rogers Has Big Year In W.K. Athletic Circles

With a four-teacher physical education staff, L.V. Rogers High School is looking forward to another highly successful year in the field of competitive athletics.

In 1961 L.V. Rogers High School hit its peak in competitive athletics, especially in West Kootenay competition capturing nine successive titles in 10 championships.

The only loss suffered by the school came in February when the boys basketball team, the Bombers, were ousted from West Kootenay championship contention by Salmo Falcons.

The Bomberettes, the girl's basketball squad, entered the West Kootenay Zone competition as an underdog, defeating Trail's J. L. Crowe Hawkettes in the finals by one point. This final victory sent Bomberettes and coach Bernie Clarkson to Vancouver for the provincial championships in March, where they won one of three games.

During Bomberettes campaign in Vancouver, the West Kootenay gymnastic championships were held in Nelson, with both the boys' and girls' teams of LVRH victorious. Terri Fyfe, a member of the girls' gym team copped the provincial junior girls' title winning three of the four events she entered, first in free standing exercise, tumbling and balance teams and third in vaulting.

TRACK HONORS

With spring approaching track and field became the sport at L. V. Rogers as the school captured the two pre-season meets and combined with the Nelson Junior High School to take West Kootenay track laurels and the Cominco Shield, symbolic of track supremacy in "A" sized schools.

Summer holidays failed to stop the victory streak as coaches Gordon Taylor and Jimmy Todd led their soccer teams to victories in the West Kootenay Soccer championships held in Castlegar during October. For the girls' squad the win meant retired victors, as grass hockey will replace the foot sport this fall. The boys' victory was the fifth in the last five years.

Coach Todd, in mid-November, won his second West Kootenay championship, leading the boys' volleyball team to victory. The girls' net artists, under Miss Sharon Gernaey, gave Nelson a clean sweep in the championships, as they captured the girls' competition. Because of a request by L. V. Rogers the West Kootenay Athletic Association allowed some schools to enter two teams in this tournament, with the result both boys' and girls' teams from Nelson met in the finals.

Strength of L. V. Rogers' teams is an outgrowth of the noon intramural program for all students and includes soccer, touch football, volleyball, badminton, basketball, table tennis, track and softball as well as special events, such as foul shooting, tug-o-war, and indoor track meet.

Other areas of endeavor on the athletic field are skiing, curling, and bowling. A ski hill, recently slashed from behind the high school is slowly becoming the site for noon hour activity and hopes are for the installation of a tow in the near future. A curling league under the organization of R. L. Bruce has been established, having many students in its ranks. Bowling has become a favorite pastime of the students with almost 100 students using the lanes every Saturday morning. After school activities include a high school basketball league, gymnastic club and a track club.

Stress in athletics at L. V. Rogers is in the learning of fundamental skills during physical education classes in grade 10 and 11. Team sports are emphasized in grade 10 in grass hockey, soccer, volleyball and basketball. In grade 11 the physical education course is reversed with emphasis placed upon individual sports and the application of skills with golf, tennis, gymnastics, badminton, wrestling and rythmics taught in the course.

Purpose and hope of the L. V. Rogers physical education department is to teach its students the value of athletics in hopes the values will be carried over into adult life and keep them in healthier and better physical condition.

BICKNELL WINS SECOND CURLING COMPETITION

Len Bicknell's foursome won the second Nelson Curling Club competition Wednesday night, swamping the L. J. Maurer quartet 17-4 in the final match.

Bicknell reached the finals by defeating Art Ronmark 9-5, while Maurer tumbled Art Waters 9-6.

Personnel of the Bicknell rink are Bicknell, skip; Gordon McKenzie, third; Vern Miller, second, and E. Stewardson, lead.

Warriors Walloped 10-2 By Powerful Smoke Eaters

TRAIL — A small nine-man Rossland Warrior crew tried vainly to keep up with a strong 15-man Trail Smoke Eater squad last night at Cominco Arena, but for the second night in a row the men from the mountain were thumped by Trail, before 750 fans Tuesday, Rossland was beaten 10-3, last night in Trail the Braves were trampled 10-2.

Smokies had no difficulty in the rival clash, using their superior talent and precision-built machine to the utmost. Trail toyed with the short-handed Warriors after having exhausted the battling nine early in the game.

The "orange and black," after building up a 6-1 lead at the end of the first 20 minutes, coasted their way to victory. Trail added three goals to Rossland's one in the middle frame and scored a single in the third period.

Dave Rusnell and Harold Jones paced the front-running club to victory with a pair of goals each, while Lawrie Bursaw, Ad Tambellini, Gerry Penner, Ed Cristofoli, Norm Lenardon and Bobby Kromm added singles.

Rossland high scorers of Owen Mailey and Ray Demore replied for Rossland.

Rossland	7	21	0	100	177	14

*Kimberley gets 2.5 points per win.

Majority of Trail's goals came on quick passes from one wingman to the other wingman, who broke in home-free on the perfect pass.

Lenardon's tally early in the second period was the picture goal of the night as Tambellini sent in the colorful forward on a breakaway. Lenardon made no mistake as he pulled Gerry Zanussin out of the Rossland cage and flipping the puck into the open net.

Second of Rusnell's goals was a duplicate of Lenardon's shot as the witty Rusnell faked out the stickless Zanussi, before pushing the disc into the net.

A fight between Russ "Killer" Kowalchuk and Joe Conn erupted late in the game. Result was Kowalchuk with a bleeding nose from one of Conn's blows, and five-minutes each in the penalty box.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

MARKET TRENDS

NEW YORK (AP)—A vigorous late rally at the end of a losing session Wednesday almost gave the stock market one of its few advances of 1962.

The popular market averages and the statistics gave a net verdict of "lower" but the mood of Wall Street amid heavy buying before the final bell was "higher."

In fact, Standard and Poor's 500-stock index actually registered a rise of .11 to 68.40. General Motors advanced as the most active stock and its huge number of outstanding shares weighs heavily in Standard and Poor's.

GM's advance followed Senate's approval of a bill easing the tax bit on du Pont shareholders when that company's court-ordered distribution of its 63,000,000 shares is made.

The stock showed only a fractional gain early in the day but closed with a fat advance of 1⅜.

MEETS SUPPORT

Most analysts agreed that the stock list "met support" just above the 690 level in the Dow Jones industrial average — a level which has provided solid ground for some past rallies. The Dow industrials had slipped as low as 691.50 in the middle of the day but closed at 698.17 for a small net loss of .37.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dropped .30 to 253.80.

Thanks mainly to a rush of buying near the close, volume of 3,760,000 shares exceeded Tuesday's 3,350,000.

Aside from the GM-du Pont action in the Senate, the day's biggest news was the plan for a merger of American Airlines and Eastern Air Lines. Both of these issues took fractional losses and airlines as a group were down. Too many obstacles loom for this proposed corporate marriage and the news seemed to focus attention on the unhappy financial condition of the airline industry.

International Nickel, off ¾, led a long list of Canadian losers. Dome Mines was off ⅝, Hudson Bay Mining ½ and Canadian Pacific ⅛. Aluminium Ltd. added ⅛.

On a mixed American Exchange Preston gained ⅝.

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market dipped to its lowest point in more than two months during moderate trading Wednesday.

The industrial index toppled as much as 4.57 to 599.68—its lowest point since Nov. 1—before reviving slightly to close at 599.79.

Biggest losers as a group were banks, with Nova Scotia, Montreal, Royal, Toronto - Dominion and Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce all off in a ⅜ to 1⅜ range.

Among other losers, Aluminium was off ¾, Price Brothers ¾ and Moore Corporation ½.

Consolidated Paper and Walker - Gooderham both touched new lows for 1961-62 before climbing slightly.

On the exchange index, industrials dropped 4.46 at 599.79. Golds declined .35 at 90.53, base metals 1.34 at 209.00 and western oils .53 at 118.32. Closing volume was 4,035,000 shares compared with Tuesday's 4,084,000.

Base metals were led lower by Noranda's 1⅛ drop. International Nickel fell ¾ and Falconbridge ⅛. In speculatives Lake Dufault dropped 35 cents to $6.90.

Western oils saw losses of ⅜ to Dome and Home A. Home B gained ⅛, as did Calgary and Edmonton.

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices dropped sharply on the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges Wednesday. Trading was active among industrials, and moderate in mines.

Among utilities Union Gas dropped a point to 20 and Power Corporation eased a point to 58.

International Nickel dropped 1¼ to 80½ after falling to 79½ among base metals. Hudson Bay fell ¾ to 55½.

Price fell ⅛ to 53, Macmillan eased ⅜ to 18 and International Paper dropped ¾ to 34¾ among papers.

Western oils were lower. Pacific Pete fell ½ to 15¾, Central Del Rio eased five cents to $7.35 and Home Oil A fell ½ to 14¼.

Among industrials, Hudson's Bay Company eased ⅜ to 11⅝.

In mines, Saucon dropped sharply late in the afternoon to close at $1.15, off 21 cents.

On index, banks were off 0.58 at 71.08, utilities off 0.9 at 140.7, industrials off 2.5 at 338.4, combined off 2.0 at 272.5, papers off 3.3 at 480.3 and golds off 0.65 at 83.68.

Keep Up-to-Date With New Books

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sir Robert Watson-Watt, generally known as the father of radar, has long been identified with those scientists who wonder if man can survive the misapplication of his own ingenuity.

Man's Means to His Ends (McClelland and Stewart) is concerned with two ends—life and death—the means of maintaining one and avoiding the other as the time for decision grows dangerously short.

The British - born inventor who lived for a number of years in Thornhill, Ont., before taking a consulting post in New York has often spoken of the dangers of bacterial and nuclear war.

In his book he contends that we should be able to avoid war since it is not a natural biological instinct but a cultural development.

Examining man from his earliest pre-history, with ideas reflecting the views of biologist Sir Julian Huxley, Sir Robert maintains that war is instinctive only to a couple of species of ants and that all available evidence indicates prehistoric man did not wage organized war.

CAN'T COMMUNICATE

He says major handicaps in man's struggle for survival are his confused views of his own nature and history coupled with an inability to communicate simply, truthfully and without coloration.

Man was split roughly into two camps—the humanist and the scientist—each with his own view. Sir Robert wonders if we can afford the luxury of this "plurality of truths."

He says the standard study of man concerns his development around the Mediterranean since the time of ancient Greece. This, however, represented only a fragment of man's total experience.

A too large part of this study had been devoted to war and the glorification of war makers. This was a false view of man which had not only perpetuated the wrong ideals but had led inevitably to a greater "habituation of horror" in the present than in all man's previous history. What the Caesars and the Fuehrers had been unable to do for themselves had been done for them by this false view of history.

WON'T BE EASY

Sir Robert does not believe the abolition of war—the only real solution—will be easy.

As first step the channels of communication must be unclogged, he says. His wartime experience bred a distrust of journalists and politicians.

Scientific work had been oversimplified and often its full implications misunderstood. But the responsible, ethical journalist was still the best link between the scientist and the layman.

Man could save himself but only if he fully understood what he is and what he is capable of, for both good and evil.

With the beginning of 1962, McClelland and Stewart of Toronto became Canadian distributor for the New York publishers, Atheneum and Grove Press, and J. B. Lipincott of Philadelphia.

Arthur Friedheim's Life and Liszt (Taplinger, New York) was a notable contribution to the 1961 Liszt sesquicentennial year, one of special interest to Canadians.

Friedheim, pianist, composer, conductor and teacher, was recognized for 40 years after Liszt's death in 1886 as the foremost performer of the works of the Hungarian master. Friedheim first played in Toronto in 1891, and was the solo pianist at the opening of Massey Hall there. He returned to Canada several times, and for two years after 1922 was a teacher at the Canadian Academy of Music in Toronto. Later he taught in California and New York.

The famous Liszt pupil died in 1932, and the present book is edited by Theodore L. Bullock, former Toronto music critic now living in New York, from two Friedheim manuscripts never before published.

Probably the most interesting impression gained from the book is that of the warm, continuing link between great musicians of the past and present. Friedheim of course was an intimate and devoted pupil of Liszt, who died in 1886, and among Friedheim's own pupils were the Canadians Reginald Stewart and Colin McPhee and a girl from Texas — Rildia Bee O'Brien — who became the mother of Van Cliburn.

Astronaut Expects Saturday To Be Day

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Relaxed and with a fresh crewcut, astronaut John H. Glenn Jr., follows his "D-minus 3" routine with all the signs pointing to an attempt to birt him around the earth Saturday.

The schedule three days before flight usually calls for rest, relaxation, sun and exercise, sleep and reading and a few technical meetings. And a change in diet, to begin eating foods creating little body waste.

Within about 24 hours, experts had located and repaired a leak in the oxygen flow system in Glenn's capsule, putting in a new valve and ducting. This fault had forced a postponement in his flight, once set for today.

Glenn checked out the life-supporting systems in the capsule Tuesday. And his back-up pilot, M. Scott Carpenter, flew a pretended three - orbit, 4½-hour mission in space.

Everything now looks satisfactory, officials of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration indicated, with preparations going forward a launching attempt "no earlier than Saturday."

Weather or other unexpected problems could force more delay.

Disillusioned Mars Man Thinks Earth Not Ready

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—One year a space ship from Mars arrived here secretly.

It was manned by a single Martian, operative Z-Y-125-X, whose assignment was to find whether the earth was advanced enough for Mars to consider opening interplanetary relations.

Here is his first report, sent via mental radio, to his command post on Mars:

"Trip uneventful and according to plan. After hiding space ship, I ventured into city. Found inhabitants unbelievably friendly and hospitable. Many were interested in my strange garb.

"One man, noting my helmet, remarked, 'What are you advertising, bud?' When I told him 'Nothing,' he replied, 'I am a department store manager, and our Santa Claus is sick. How would you like to take his place?'

'I consented. It seems Santa Claus is a kind of god, and the earth people worship him most at Christmas. I have enjoyed playing his role of god. Little children come sit on my lap and tell me what they want, and I laugh out loud and answer, 'Okay. Ho! Ho! Ho!'

"The earth people are quite cultured. Nobody works. All they do all day is eat and tell each other jokes and exchange presents in beautifully colored packages which they get at the department store merely by signing their name."

TWO DRINKS

Operative Z-Y-125-X sent his second message to Mars on Christmas evening. It read:

"A wonderful day. I wandered into one of the local temples—they are called bars. A friendly earth man said, 'Pal, have a couple on me.' I had two drinks of their ambrosia. It made me feel strange and big."

Immediately this message was sent to operative Z-Y-125-X by his Mars command post:

"Satisfied your mission accomplished. Return at once."

And back flashed this answer:

"Not me. I like it here."

On Jan. 2 operative Z-Y-125-X sent his fourth and last message to Mars :

"Earth has suddenly gone crazy. No one smiles. Everyone scowls. They hurry, hurry, hurry as if demented. They bump into each other rudely. The department store manager took away my Santa Claus suit, and told me, 'Beat it, kid.'

"I had nothing to wear but my space suit and helmet. A policeman stopped me and said, 'What are you—some kind of a nut or something? I've got a good mind to toss you into the cooler.' Some children jeered at me.

"This is a frightening place. As soon as it is dark, I will board my space ship and return to Mars."

His superiors held a council and gravely decided it might be better to let the earth people grow up for another thousand years or so before considering interplanetary relations.

And that's why you haven't seen any men from Mars lately.

Biologists Give Help To Nations' Wildlife

By FRED CHAFE

TORONTO (CP) — Biologists whose job is concerned with the welfare of the nation's wildlife have learned a lot of tricks to give nature a helping hand. But when a natural calamity strikes, there's not much they can do—especially when it hits twice in a row.

As an example, take the case of Ontario's deer herd.

Ontario had two winters of unusually deep snow in 1958-59 and 1959-60—deep enough to restrict the movements of deer to the best feeding areas during the lean months.

The young suffered most. In some areas, survival conditions for fawns were all but impossible.

Spring surveys following the two winters bore out predictions of trouble. Dead deer were found strewn all through the wintering range, particularly in the heavy snow belt stretching eastward from Sault Ste. Marie through the Sudbury, North Bay and Pembroke districts.

WORST IN YEARS

As a result, the fall deer hunt in 1960 was the worst in years. Last year it was better, but not much.

While bad weather in some districts admittedly restricted the hunting kill, a major factor has been the unusually low proportion of yearling and two-year-old deer available to hunters. These were the animals that would normally have been born and survived during the two winters if the heavy snows hadn't intervened.

Preliminary figures of the Ontario department of lands and forests show the damage was worst where winter conditions were most severe.

In the Pembroke district only 24 per cent of the deer shot last fall were yearlings. Two-year-olds which had managed to live through both tough seasons made up 17 per cent of the kill. In Tweed and Kemptville districts to the south, which didn't suffer as heavily from snow, these two age classes made up well over 60 per cent of the total bag.

In Parry Sound, where hunting success improved somewhat over 1960, the two age groups made up 45 per cent of the hunters' kill compared with close to 70 per cent in 1958.

SHORTEN SEASON

In the North Bay area—and some of the deer range here is marginal at best, particularly on the northern fringes—the situation has hunters and tourist operators worried. Pleadings have been heard to close or at least shorten the season for a while and give the deer a chance to come back.

Some tourist outfitters were reported to have decided against conducting a hunt last fall rather than face disgruntled guests because, they say, "the game just isn't there."

Robert Marshall, president of the North Bay Anglers and Hunters, says his group favors banning the use of dogs and shortening the season to 10 days. Last year it ran from Nov. 3 to Nov. 25.

"We know the hard winters of recent years have had an effect on the deer population," he says. "The wolves haven't helped either, but years ago we had both wolves and hard winters and we had a greater deer population."

Lodge operator Walter Hesman doesn't think a closed season would be popular among hunting clubs which have invested big money in their camps, but agrees a ban on dogs such as went into effect last year on Manitoulin Island might help.

No Tampering To Make Coast Festival Success

By JIM PEACOCK

VANCOUVER (CP) — There will be no tampering with quality in planning to make the fifth Vancouver International Festival a financial as well as artistic success, says the man who heads the festival's reshuffled management.

"It's not a question of cutting down the festival," said Grdon Hilker, 48, acting general manager. "It's a question of doing it more skilfully."

Mr. Hilker, Vancouver producer and promoter who last summer was promotion and publicity director of the festival, was installed in the key administrative post in November, releasing Nicholas Goldschmidt to concentrate on the task of artistic director.

His appointment followed announcement that last summer's program lost $52,000 over and above the $160,000 in subsidies in spite of the largest over-all attendance in the arts festival's history.

CAME TO RESCUE

The deficit has been wiped out, however. The provincial government and the city of Vancouver each have granted $20,000 and private subscriptions raised the other $12,000. Planning for next summer's festival is under way in detail.

Many administrative changes have been made. Staff has been consolidated and tighter control is being arranged over all facets of operation to keep a firm grip on spending.

The latter, Mr. Hilker said, should prevent one segment, such as the drama productions last summer, from incurring expenses that can't be justified by box-office appeal.

Two plays given North American premieres here last summer drew far below expected minimum attendance and cost much more than expected to produce.

As a result, production of Men, Women and Angels, and Do You Know the Milky Way lost $52,000, the amount of the festival deficit.

ATTENDANCE UP

Attendance at film and arts festival functions totalled 121,000, an increase of about 20,000 over the previous year, and when the eight - day military tattoo was added, total attendance was 277,301. Mr. Hilker said the budget for 1961 totalled $960,000, including tattoo spending.

The 1962 program, without a tattoo, will cost about $500,000, and frills would be cut out in order to preserve quality of performance.

The program will aim at widening the base of the festival audience, with selection of events based at least partially on Mr. Hilker's belief that "it doesn't have to be dull to be artistically good."

Two new wrinkles are being planned, making use of a new 650-seat civic theatre and of the natural beauty of Vancouver's surroundings.

The civic theatre, in addition to providing more ideal setting for drama and chamber music, will give the festival a place for special afternoon children's programs.

The outdoor idea springs from a report in 1955 by director Tyrone Guthrie. He suggested the festival should capitalize on the natural setting here.

Mr. Hilker said the festival hopes to stage many events outdoors, using the mountains and sea as scenic backdrops.

Expect Canada To Back Afro-Asian Resolution

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Canada is expected to support a 40-country Afro-Asian resolution calling on Portugal to undertake political, economic and social reforms in Angola and set its people on the road to independence.

Prolonged — often repetitive —debate resumes today over the Portuguese West African territory and will continue through the week but the Afro-Asian resolution seems assured of passage.

Submitted Tuesday in the 104-member United Nations General Assembly, the draft asks UN members to deny Portugal, a member of NATO, any support or assistance "which may be used by it for the suppression of the people of Angola."

It "requests member states to use their influence to secure the compliance of Portugal with this resolution."

URGES REFORMS

The resolution "solemnly reaffirms the inalienable right of the Angolan people to self-determination and independence."

It urges Portugal to undertake at once "extensive political, economic and social reforms and measures" in Anogla and particularly to "set up freely elected and representative political institutions with a view to transfer of power to the people of Angola."

It also appeals to Portugal to release all political prisoners in Angola.

Informants said Canada, scheduled to speak Thursday or Friday in the Angola debate that opened Jan. 15, would support the criticism of Portugal, although perhaps reservations would be made on some points.

PROTEST CONDITIONS

WINNIPEG (CP) — The United Steelworkers of America (CLC) say a letter has been sent to Manitoba Health Minister George Johnson charging that unsanitary conditions prevail in the living area for nickel mine workers at Thompson, Man.
