Bill Will Require Belts, Abolish Ambulance Sirens

VICTORIA (CP)—A bill requiring installation of seat belts in all B.C. motor vehicles manufactured after Dec. 31, 1963, was introduced in the British Columbia legislature Wednesday.

The bill, introduced by Attorney-General Robert Bonner, says no persons may sell or offer a vehicle for sale that is manufactured after that date without two seat belts for use in the front seat.

The government is reported to expect that the belts will be installed in the automobile factories. But if they are not the belts will be the responsibility of the dealer selling the vehicle.

Safety officials have been saying for years that seat belts prevent serious injury or death in motor vehicle accidents.

The amendment exempts motor cycles from its provisions.

The attorney-general said recently that the legislation means that eventually all motor vehicles in the province will be equipped with seat belts.

B.C. is believed to be the first Canadian province to introduce this legislation. Oregon state has made a similar move.

The amendment also:

Makes illegal the use of sirens on ambulances;

Removes controversial onus of proof sections;

Removes sections providing for impoundment of vehicles involved in accidents.

New Democratic Party members during this session have protested provisions of the motor vehicle act which make it necessary for an accused person to prove himself innocent of certain charges instead of working on the usual assumption that a person is innocent until proved guilty.

Mr. Bonner said that the sections were originally passed because it was hard to check the speed of vehicles.

But recent mechanical devises had made this possible.

Removal of sirens from ambulances follows a request from the B.C. College of Physicians and Surgeons. Flashing red lights are still permitted under the amendment.

Mr. Bonner said that the college says that the sirens add to a patient's shock during the trip to hospital. Speed was not as important as it was first thought to be.

Police can now impound vehicles involved in accidents, particularly if the driver has no proof he has insurance. Under the amendments police would pick up licence plates if they want to stop a person from driving a car.

Serum Rushed To Aid Lad On Liner

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States Coast Guard sent out a plane from Elizabeth City, N.C., Wednesday night carrying anti-rabies serum to the liner Queen Elizabeth to help a Canadian boy who had been bitten by a dog several days ago.

The dog died and authorities suspect it had rabies.

Dr. David E. Price, U.S. deputy surgeon-general, said in an interview he got the call for help Wednesday from Edmonton where Dr. Stuart Smith, director of local health services, informed him of the suspected rabies case and the fact that the boy involved had gone to New York to board the Queen Elizabeth.

Dr. Price said he was asked if the public health service could assist in locating the ship and providing it with rabies serum if there was none on board.

EDMONTON (CP) — An Alberta health official said Wednesday night health officials only "suspect" that a dog which bit or scratched a four-year-old boy was rabid, but they want "nothing left to chance."

Dr. Stuart Smith, director of local health services for the provincial health department, said the boy, Andrew McLeod, is on the liner Queen Elizabeth returning to England with his family. He declined to provide "further identification."

Dr. Smith, stressing that rabies once contracted is always fatal, said the request was made only because health officials want nothing left to chance.

The boy had been bitten or scratched some time ago and the dog's body sent to Lethbridge for a rabies test.

Dr. Smith said there is an "equal possibility it could be distemper."

Says Not Guilty To Murder Charge

BELMONT, Mass. (AP)—Roy Smith, 35-year-old Negro handyman, was charged in Cambridge district court Wednesday with murdering a Belmont housewife by strangulation. He pleaded not guilty and was held without bail for further hearing March 29.

Through 12 hours of questioning, Smith maintained he was innocent in greater Boston's ninth such murder in less than 10 months. He insisted that Mrs. Bessie Goldbert paid him $6.80 for cleaning her home Monday and that she was alive and well when he departed.

Mrs. Goldbert's husband, a businessman, returned a short time after Smith said he left and found his wife dead—with around her throat.

Alouette Credited for Discoveries

WASHINGTON (AP) — Canada's Alouette satellite — the first spacecraft not built by the United States or Russia—may have uncovered a previously unsuspected action of the mysterious Van Allen radiation belts, it was reported Wednesday.

Evidence gathered by the 350-pound satellite tends to indicate that the Van Allen belts may play a role in periodically harassing long-range radio communication on earth.

This was disclosed at an international symposium at which Alouette was credited with piling up various other items of new information. The meeting is sponsored by the U.S. National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

American scientists had high praise for the design, construction and achievements of the Canadian sphere which was launched into a near-polar orbit on Sept 28, 1962, from Point Arguello, Calif., and is still sending down information. A U.S. vehicle carried it into orbit.

Dr. E. S. Warren of the Canadian defence research board's telecommunications establishment near Ottawa, gave one of the main reports on Alouette's findings. Others were given by American and British scientists.

Grit Truth Squad Hears More Than Bargained For

By ALAN DONNELLY

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — The Liberal "truth squad" went into operation Wednesday night in a blaze of publicity—not all of its own making.

The Liberal trio headed by Judy La Marsh, MP for Niagara Falls in the last Parliament, heard Prime Minister Diefenbaker use the word "truth" a score or more times during a 65-minute speech here, though not once did he refer directly to them.

The squad, equipped with portable typewriter, tape recorder and a small suitcase full of reference material, sat just below the stage at a table decorated with a large sign — posted there by Conservatives — reading "reserved for truth squad."

LOOKS UP REFERENCES

The third member of the group, Fred Belaire from Liberal headquarters in Ottawa, had the job of looking up references in the squad's file of government statistics, newspaper clippings and Hansard reports of Commons debates.

There were mixed boos and cheers from the audience when a preliminary speaker referred to the squad, reading some doggerel verse starting "the ghosts are with us tonight."

Later, Mr. Diefenbaker said with pointed emphasis that he welcomes those who "desire the truth." He, too, turned to rhyme, adding:

"For awhile the light holds forth to burn.

"The greatest sinners may return."

The audience was left in no doubt where the squad sat. Camera floodlights were trained on them much of the time.

COURTENAY, B.C. (CP)—T. C. Douglas, national leader of the New Democratic Party, Wednesday night called on Liberal Leader Pearson to call home his "truth squad."

In an address to 500 persons in the Native Sons hall in this central Vancouver Island community, Mr. Douglas continued his denunciation of what he called lack of a firm program on the part of the Liberals.

He said "they are passing out copy books for children to color," and added "a word about the truth squads."

"This is a cheapening, degrading step, coming at a time when people in Canada have little enough confidence in the leadership," Mr. Douglas said.

"I hope Mr. Pearson will overrule the smart boys," who thought up the plan.

'GIMMICK MADISON AVE.'

"If he fails to send the truth squad home he will be held responsible for this unedifying, thoroughly reprehensible Madison Avenue gimmick.

". . . Mr. Diefenbaker after all is prime minister.

"To have him followed about by this little squad—who wouldn't know the truth if they came upon it in broad daylight — is unbecoming to the dignity of public life."

ST. GILLES, Que. (CP)—Real Caouette, deputy Social Credit leader, said Wednesday night the two old parties will not have legislation beneficial to lower-income groups because they are tied to financial interests.

Speaking in spite of a hoarse voice, he told the crowd of 400 in the town hall here that the Conservatives and Liberals are ashamed to disclose the source of their campaign funds because most of them come from financiers.

MAN DIES DESPITE APPEAL

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Fifty persons responded to desperate appeal for blood for an elderly man on the operating table Tuesday. But the battle was lost 12 hours later.

The 73-year-old man, whose name was withheld by hospital authorities, was undergoing emergency surgery for a ruptured artery when doctors found they didn't have enough O-type blood.

Royal Inland Hospital officials put out a radio appeal for blood donors.

Fifty persons responded, and 29 pints of blood were used to keep the man alive.

"I was amazed at the response from donors," said administrator J. M. Morrison. "They jammed the switchboard for more than an hour."

Early Wednesday the man died of complications and loss of blood when the artery ruptured.

Russ Charge USN Fired at Trawlers

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government charged Wednesday that United States Navy gunners lobbed four dummy shells last Friday at one of the dozens of Russian trawlers operating between the Grand Banks of Newfoundland and the Caribbean, endangering the vessel and its crew.

Two American cruisers and a destroyer fired on the Soviet refrigerator-trawler OSRTR 9007 on the high seas 70 miles east of Norfolk, Va., in an "act of sheer wantonness which could have grave consequences," a protest note to Washington declared.

The note demanded punishment of the persons responsible and assurance that the purported incident won't happen again.

U.S. state department officials said the navy was investigating to determine what happened.

GRAVEDIGGERS GO ON STRIKE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Twenty-two bodies were stored in city mortuaries Wednesday as 30 gravediggers continued to picket two cemeteries to back up demands for more pay.

Funeral services were held but burials deferred pending settlement of the strike by members of local 602, Construction and General Laborers' Union at Ocean View and Forest Lawn Parks.

Gilbert Arnold, president of the cemeteries, said burials were cancelled "to avoid unpleasantness for bereaved persons." The postponement will continue indefinitely, he said.

The bodies, properly embalmed, can be stored at room temperature indefinitely without posing any hazard to health, he added.

Contractor Tells Hearing Highway Contracts Fixed

Holzworth Says Was Threatened But "Not Worried About It"

By STEPHEN SCOTT

VICTORIA (CP) — A Montana contractor who sparked an investigation into allegations of graft in the highways department testified Wednesday that he believed a highway contract was fixed so he could make up a $200,000 loss on a previous contract.

Dick Holzworth of Helena, Mont., told the legislature's public accounts commitee that he lost $200,000 on a Trans-Canada Highway project known as Project 819. The project was awarded to Mr. Holzworth's company, Union Contractors Ltd., after another company, L and M Logging Ltd., could not finish the job.

He testifed that principals of Union formed another company, Continental Construction Ltd., which was awarded another contract, called 1023, and the principals were to "get well on 1023."

The Montana contractor denied, however, that he was part of a conspiracy or that he was cheating the public.

DOCTORED FIGURES?

Dan Campbell (SC—Comox) asked whether Mr. Holzworth thought officials of the highways department doctored figures on contract 1023 so "that you could get well."

"Yes," replied Mr. Holzworth.

J. Donald Smith (SC — Victoria) asked whether Mr. Holzworth thought the contract was "fixed."

"Yes," Mr. Holzworth repeated.

"We were just receiving back what we lost on the other contract."

Angelo Branca, QC, counsel for the highways department, said the Montana contractor admitted he was a party to cheating the people of British Columbia.

Mr. Holzworth said this wasn't so because he had lost on contract 819.

"And you believe that that takes it out of the field of cirme," said Mr. Branca as he sat down.

Project 819, completed in 1958, was near Revelstoke. Project 1023 was a highways job near Creston.

GUARD JFK ROUTE

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. fighter planes will patrol the route when President Kennedy flies to Costa Rica next week, the White House said Tuesday night. Press Secretary Pierre Salinger said similar arrangements have been made in the past, as when the president visited Venezuela and Colombia.

VICTORIA (CP)—Dick Holzworth, a key witness in a graft investigation here, said Wednesday he had been warned his life is in danger.

The warning, he said in an interview, came from Harvey Campbell, a contractor. He said the lawyer told him "I thought you were supposed to be eliminated."

Mr. Campbell told reporters that Holzworth's statement was "utter and complete nonsense."

Mr. Campbell said he had never warned Mr. Holzworth, a Montana contractor, of such a threat.

Operator Makes Counter Charges

VICTORIA (CP)—A Kamloops timber operator who has been accused of forcing the price of timber to an exorbitant level defended his position Wednesday and made counter-charges before the legislature's standing committee on forestry.

C. V. Bennett submitted a brief under legislative immunity which charged that C. C. Ternan, first-vice-president of Savona Timber Co. Ltd., and the company started "these vicious bidding practices against us which he now deplores."

In his brief presented last week, Mr. Ternan said that Mr. Bennett as president of Halston Planing Mills Ltd., and Terrace Forest Products Ltd., was forcing the bidding on timber up to make other operators pay an unrealistic price for his mill.

Another brief signed by 10 operators of the Kamloops area said an operator—not named—has suggested to others "that the established permanent mills in the Kamloops region could combine and pay him $500,000 for his investments, generously estimated to be worth $100,000 including timber."

In his submission Wednesday, Mr. Bennett submitted his companies' books which he said showed the combined assets in excess of $1,000,000. He said this was appreciable evidence of responsibility.

Mr. Bennett defended the position of his companies' bidding recently "as an attempt to regai some of the timber which was previously bid away from us."

"In both briefs previously presented it has been intimated that the people with the heavy investment in the larger plants should have preferential treatment," said Mr. Bennet's brief. "If these few are to receive this consideration it is going to mean the elimination of about 90 per cent of the operators in the Interior.

Half Million Unemployed In February

OTTAWA (CP) — Strength in the construction and manufacturing industries helped to underpin the Canadian labor market in February, slowing down the usual rise in unemployment.

This was the key factor cited Wednesday by the labor department and the Dominion Bureau of Statistics in a joint statement pegging the mid-February jobless total at 545,000 — 8.4 per cent of the country's labor force of 6,496,000.

This was a one-month increase of 4000 in unemployment. But the statement described it as "'no appreciable change" and noted that in previous years the jobless ranks have tended to swell in this period.

In February last year there were 583,000 without work, or 9.1 per cent of the labor force. Two years ago the jobless rate was 11.3 per cent.

LOST JOBS RECENTLY

About two-thirds of the total of 545,000 jobless had been unemployed for three months or less. An estimated 118,000 had been seeking work from four to six months, and 56,000 for more than a half year.

Of the over-all situation, the joint statement said non-farm employment held up better than usual this winter because of "continued strength" in manufacturing and construction.

The Atlantic provinces were still by far the worst off in February, with 14.9-per-cent unemployment—a total of 87,000 without jobs, a decline of 1000 from January. A year earlier the four provinces as a group stood at 16.2 per cent.

Main improvement in manufacturing was in the durable goods industries — especially motor vehicles, electrical apparatus and iron and steel.

The same situation applied to the year-to-year rise in employment. Forestry jobs were fewer, but employment levels in all other non-farm industries were either unchanged or slightly higher than a year earlier.

How About Butterscotch Or Orange?

PENTICTON (CP) — Peppermint flavored beer?

That's the story in Penticton beverage rooms these days.

A national brewery (Molsons) sent out its normal deliveries but to the disappointment — or delight — of the tipplers, the tap beer came out with a peppermint flavor.

Robert Lampart, brewery distributer here said the "peppermint" beer was part batch No. 57 from the firm's Vancouver brewery.

Complaints have been registered by three hotels.

"Beer is temperamental," said Mr. Lampart, "and something may have got into it to affect it like this."

The brewery has recalled the batch from retail outlets and distributors. All kegs delivered in the Okanagan have been recovered.

Luce Calls For More Columbia Storage Dams

PORTLAND (AP) — Charles F. Luce, head of the Bonneville Power Administration, Wednesday called for construction of more Columbia River Basin storage dams to correct what he said was an imbalance in the river's power system.

Addressing the Columbia Basin Interagency Committee, Luce particularly urged construction of the Knowles Dam and reservoir on the Flathead River in Western Montana.

He said there are too few storage projects on the system in relation to the run-of-the-river dams.

The result, he said, is that run-of-the-river dams produce great quantities of power in seasons of high water. With adequate storage, he said, much of the seasonal power could be converted into power available even in times of low water.

HONG KONG (Reuters) — The Chinese Communist party news paper Peking People's Daily today reported that "people's armed units" in South Viet Nam killed 106 American "aggressors" and shot down or burned 29 U.S. aircraft in January and February.

Bidault to Stay in Bavaria

By DAVID SELLS

STEINEBACH, West Germany (Reuters) — Anti-Gaullist leader Georges Bidault will seek permission to stay in Bavaria "for a limited period," a spokesman for the former French premier said Wednesday.

Oskar Stammler, a West German newspaper man, told a Bavarian radio reporter this when the reporter asked Bidault: "What decision have you made —will you seek asylum?"

Crowds of reporters jostled under a window at the Steinebach villa where Bidault is staying as Bidault posed briefly for photographs.

Bidault's decision followed statements by West German authorities that he would be allowed to remain in Bavaria providing he promises to cease all political activities.

Bidault is the leader of the Council of National Resistance, successor to the terrorist Secret Army Organization, dedicated to overthrowing the government of President de Gaulle.

THANKS PEOPLE

The 63-year-old fugitive, who has been under interrogation since his arrest by West German police here Sunday, thanked the Bavarian people for their "sympathy and understanding" in a brief radio interview.

He decided to reveal through Stammler his decision to accept "limited" asylum.

Stammler told the radio reporter Bidault had decided to write Bavarian Interior Minister Heinrich Junker for permission to stay in the state.

Earlier a spokesman for Bidault denied a French radio report that Bidault would refuse asylum in West Germany and elect to go to Portugal.

Will Quarantine Sects Refusing Immunization

FORT MACLEOD, Alta. (CP)—Several families who refused because of their religious beliefs to be immunized against diphtheria have been quarantined, it was announced Wednesday.

Dr. Kurt Adler, medical health officer of Chinook Health Unit in this southern Alberta centre, said his action in quarantining the families is supported by Alberta Health Minister Dr. J. Donovan Ross.

Sixteen cases of diphtheria have been treated in hospitals. Two children have died from the disease.

Dr. Adler said he has detected 15 carriers since the outbreak occurred. He said the Black Stocking Sect of the Dutch Reformed Church and Christian Scientists are partly responsible for the outbreak.

"They are the ones who refuse to be immunized," he said. "And of course that sort of stops us from wiping out diphtheria. If everybody were immunized there would be no diphtheria.

A spokesman for the Netherlands Consulate said members of the Black Stocking Sect of the Dutch Reformed Church refuse to accept any type of insurance. They reject life insurance policies which are usually attached to bank loans.

Dr. Adler said he is not picking on members of any religious group and he will quarantine any family of any religion which refuses immunization.

"If they have a carrier (of diphtheria) in their family I'll quarantine the whole shooting works," he said. "But I would do that with any religion. I'm not going to pick on these people. If they're Christian Scientists, Catholics or Anglicans if they are not immunized, and if one family has it, I'll quarantine the whole lot."

And in This Corner . . .

SEATTLE (AP)—Two young women who stowed away on the U.S. Navy carrier Kearsarge — one for love, the other for adventure — were found Tuesday night before the big ship put to sea, the FBI reported Wednesday.

J. E. Milnes, special agent here, named the two as Leotta Hope Buss, 22, an unemployed office worker, and Sandra Sue Stettler, 18, an unemployed waitress, both of Bremerton, Wash.

Milnes said they sneaked aboard the Kearsarge Monday night with the help of two sailors and hid in a dry provisions locker five decks down.

The carrier left Bremerton Tuesday bound for Long Beach, Calif., and was taking on ammunition at the nearby Bangor naval ammunition depot when the stowaways were discovered by members of the crew. They were held for the FBI.

Milnes said Miss Buss loved a sailor on the Kearsarge and wanted to follow him to Long Beach. Her companion was along for adventure.

The two were charged with being stowaways.

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP)—Fred Schultz awoke early Wednesday and called firemen to his home. They found no fire.

"I just had a bad dream and thought the house was afire," he apologized.

On Ottawa NATO Talks Agenda

International Nuclear Force Envisioned

OTTAWA (CP) — Creation of a multi-national NATO tactical nuclear force in Europe, with possible Canadian participation, will be discussed at the NATO ministerial meeting here May 22-24, informants said Wednesday.

The NATO nations now are talking over informally what types of nuclear weapons might be included in such a force. One mentioned is the CF 104 low-level jet bomber, now being delivered to the eight squadron RCAF air division in Europe.

Widespread publicity has already been given current NATO discussions on possible formation of a multi-national NATO strategic nuclear seaborne strike force equipped with American long-range Polaris missiles.

But little attention so far has been paid to the concurrent problem of creation of a NATO tactical nuclear force.

LIMITED RANGE

A NATO seaborne strategic force would be capable of firing long range nuclear rockets at Russia. A NATO tactical force, however, would have limited range and would not be able to reach targets in Russia. Its targets would be in Communist satellite countries in Europe.

Informants said it is unlikely Canada would participate in both forces, though it conceivably could help man ships of the seaborne force. Any Canadian participation probably would be confined to a NATO tactical nuclear force.

However, it was emphasized that no decisions have been made yet and NATO still is a long way from creation of a genuine multilateral strike force.

United States attempts to form a NATO strategic nuclear force appear to have two main objects: Emphasis on the concept of an Atlantic community as opposed to President de Gaulle's European community, and to give West Germany a larger voice in the nuclear weapons field to prevent it from creating its own independent nuclear force.

In other words, the main advantages would be political and not military. No offical here believes a NATO nuclear force would add materially to military strength.

CONTROL PROBLEM

Formation of a NATO tactical nuclear force has similar objectives with the added advantage that such action could be taken almost immediately because the tactical forces already exist. The big problem, of course, is political control of such a force.

Mild Winter Leaves Ski Hills Of W. Kootenay Disaster Area

By VERN SIMALUK
Daily News Staff Reporter

Winter rains and thaws washed thousands of dollars down Kootenay ski slopes this season.

One of the mildest winters recalled has West Kootenay skiers ready to declare their region a "disaster area."

"Calling the past season disastrous is puttin git mildly," reported one board enthusiast.

Not only have the skiing clubs felt the melting influence of the sun on revenue, but associated businesses, sport shops, cafes, hotels and motels have recorded declining totals for a season nearing a premature end.

It is estimated that the sun evaporated $50,000 from assorted tills throughout the Kootenay.

Only the perennial skiing challenge, North Star Mountain in Kimberley, reports a season favorable with its past successes. Its 6000-foot, 650-passengers per hour T-bar lift, servicing five groomed runs totalling seven miles, and eight miles of cleared trails, has been doing good business with good skiing conditions.

SNOW REPLACES GOLD

The other Kootenay skiing giant, Red Mountain Ski Club of Rossland, survived a disastrous season which saw a minimum of snow and a maximum of rain. The one-time booming gold centre relies largely on falling snow to be matched by falling silver for its winter lucre.

"They only realize now how much they depend on the ski business," hill manager Peter Alder said of the effect on the business area.

Home of many Canadian ski team members, the hill has had a fairly good season considering the circumstances, but manager Alder reports its revenue has dropped considerably, about 30 per cent, or $14,000, from last year's total of $42,000.

"We're still hoping for snow," said Alder as it appeared the lack of the white stuff may shut down the 3800-foot, 400-passenger chair lift in about three weeks time. "We never have had too much snow but have had some of the best conditions in the West."

He reports about eight inches on the lower slopes and up to two feet at the top of the 5800-foot mountain, well below the average depth of 60 inches.

BUSINESS DROPS

It is estimated that the business section has seen revenue dwindle by $10,000. One motel owner reported a drop of 70 per cent in his trade. His Christmas season trade, which is normally sold out, carried only 10 per cent of its normal business this Christmas as skiers cancelled out due to warm weather. The Kootenay had a green Christmas and the first permanent snowfall didn't arrive until the middle of January.

Second hardest hit club was the Silver King Ski Club of Nelson whose members never had a chance to use their 2560-foot T-bar lift. Club president S. E. Fyfe figures the club lost $10,000 this year and subsequently, the development program for the hill has been set back at least a year. A project tentatively scheduled for this summer, increasing the height and length of the hill, will probably have to be shelved. Financial commitments may have to be combatted with special fund raising campaigns.

"We were already to start," said Mr. Fyfe. "All we were waiting for was the snow."

Once the club, during the area's coldsnaps — two weeks in late January marked by lower temperatures and 15 inches of snow — had its small 750-foot tow in operation, but it was quickly shut down as skiing on the rock studded slopes was declared dangerous.

DEALERS SUFFER

Ski dealers in the West Kootenay have watched a drop in equipment sales, mounting to thousands of dollars. One reported a drop of 40 per cent in total sales.

The East Kootenay slopes fared much better. Kimberley is still having a good season while the newest ski hill, Fernie's Snow Valley, is expected to fall slightly short of its anticipated total attendance. Considering that its official opening had to be postponed from early November to mid-January, the club feels its 4500-foot main hill did quite well in its maiden season.

It is reported that the entire hill is being skied on, but the snow is hard packed, icy, pinched right down to a few inches at the bottom and about 3½ feet at the top.

It is believed that even with rainy weather, skiing on the slopes should last for at least another three weeks. Normally it lasts until June.

Trail Legs Sturdy Enough To Beat Nelson Walkers?

Nelson students' 50-mile hike has been challenged..

Fred Merlo, Trail restaurateur and hotel operator, has challenged Trail students and other Trailites to beat the time of nine Nelson students in a 50-mile hike from Nelson to Trail.

Last Saturday several individual groups of Nelson students trekked from Nelson to Trail and vice-versa with Ted Ryan and Peter Offerman placing first, clocking in at 14 hours and 12 minutes.

Of a $5 entry fee to be collected from entrants, half will be donated to the Crippled Children's Fund.

Besides the entry fee, 20 entrants must sign before the hike will start. The other half of the entry fee will be split between the three hardy individuals making first, second and third places and each entrant will receive a free meal from Mr. Merlo at the completion of the hike.

All entrants will be driven to Nelson next Sunday to start the hike from Nelson's city hall.

Mr. Merlo said, "I believe Trail lads can outdo the Nelson boys in a 50-mile hike and I'm willing to put up a free meal to all entrants in order to back my belief."

And, he adds, Trail youths should find the hike a rewarding experience in aiding a crippled child.

Security Goal of Those Girding for War–Chandy

"Man puts up his boundaries firmer and firmer, for he thinks it will give him security," said Rev. K. K. Chandy in a public address at St. Paul's Trinity United Church Wednesday night.

Dr. Chandy is a minister-priest of the Church of South India, a union of Anglican, Congregational, Methodist and Presbyterian bodies. He spoke on the topic "The Church and the Challenge of Marx and Gandhi."

"Mankind has all along tried to justify violence and war in terms of unavoidable self-defence," said Dr. Chandy, quoting the Indian religious and political leader, Mahatma Gandhi. He added, "It is a plain fact the violence of the aggressor can only be defeated by the superior violence of the defender. All over the world mankind has been caught up in a mad race for armaments."

K. K. Chandy is a devout Christian who was greatly influenced by Gandhi. His home is in Kerala province. "It was here," said the guest from India, "that Communism was voted into power in a free election. It was also voted out in a free election."

He reported that the Communists hold little power in the government. This is a result of the coalition of the opposition parties which together from the majority of the parliament.

Dr. Chandy stated that he finds many in the West beliving that the government of Jawaharlal Nehru is a Gandhian government. "Many in Canada consider Nehru to be a believer in the non-violent action of Gandhi," he says. "This is not correct. Nehru's government was not and is not Gandhian." Dr. Chandy spoke in answer to a question about the rearmament of India at the present time.

WAR NOT SOLUTION

"Gandhi wanted India to follow the way of non-violence, but Nehru could not respect it," the speaker stated. He added that Prime Minister Nehru holds that non-violence is the only way for humanity, but that India was not able to bear the full burden of it.

"But neither is India able to bear the burden of violent action. To be involved in a war will not solve the problem," Dr. Chandy said.

Gandhi's idea of liberation was based in divine justice. "If each man sees his neighbor as a brother he will be freed from the need to be classified as an enemy," Dr. Chandy stated.

In response to a question indicating that Christianity is an ethic for individuals and not for governments, Dr. Chandy stated that if Christian Faith is impossible, then it ought to be abandoned altogether. The Way of Love taught by Jesus is a vital way for expression for governments, he said. "We can and must train our people in non-violent resistance. We may not be saved by it, but neither will we be saved by turning to violence and war."

Dr. Chandy also belives that Christians can live by the pattern set forth in the very early years of the Church. This is a life with material things in common.

He pointed out that there is a great difference between the Christian distribution on the basis of need and the Communist distribution. The former is done in love for one's fellows. The Communist plan is done through violence. Dr. Chandy's way is being applied in the community in which Dr. Chandy, his wife and five children and their many neighbors are living. No private property is held. Cattle farming, agriculture and weaving support the community of 150. Some materials are exported.

In the afternoon, the Kootenay Prebytery of the United Church attended a retreat led by Dr. Chandy.

At an informal luncheon at the church at noon, he said he though Nelson was one of the most beautiful cities in the world. he had been facinated by the many faces its scenic setting presented from the various parts of the city he had visited, including Kootenay Lake General Hospital and Mount St. Francis Infirmary.

Rev. Peter Faris introduced Dr. Chandy to church members and a small number of guests. Members of the Excelsior Club served the luncheon.

B.C.? It's Right Here

Relating an amusing experience during the recent B.C. Travel Bureau trip to Southern California, Harry D. Harrison, chairman of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Southeastern B.C., told this story to fellow chamber members Wednesday:

"On arrival at posh Riviera Hotel in Palm Springs, the party were all wearing their tams of B.C.-plaid. The familiar Dogwood blossom decorated the tams, surrounded with the motto "Scenic B.C."

One well-dressed, apparently well-travelled hotel guest approached Mr. Harrison and enquired what convention had arrived. Mr. Harrison explained this was the group representing the British Columbia Travel Bureau on a goodwill "Salute to California."

"British Columbia, eh?" replied the enquirer, "Yeah, I know where that is . . . say, that's just east of Canada, ain't it?"

It didn't take long for Mr. Harrison to get hi mback into to correct geographical groove . . . and now, this man really knows where British Columbia is.

Mr. Harrison hopes so, because the gentleman said he's coming to visit British Columbia this year. He's defintely on the mailing list of the publicity committee of this area's Associated Chambers of Commerce at any rate.

FIRE ALARM FALSE CALL

A false alarm caused by pranksters sent the Fire Department to Gordon Road and Fifth Street about 4:30 p.m. Wednesday. Fire Chief E. S. Owens said the youngsters had fled immediately after turning in the alarm.

George Cady Luncheon Guest

Liberal candidate in Kootenay West, George Cady of Warfield attended an informal luncheon in his honor at the Hume Hotel Wednesday.

Hear Herridge Pledge "Canada for Canadians"

RIONDEL — H. W. Herridge, New Democratic Party candidate for Kootenay West, addressed a meeting of over 45 people at Riondel on Tuesday evening, discussing foreign affairs, the United Nations and the need for aid to underdeveloped nations.

He touched on the collapse of the government and harmful Liberal partisanship.

Mr. Herridge said that federal economic planning could be achieved, with provincial cooperation. The New Democratic Party would utilize the national budget, the credit of the Bank of Canada, and a national development fund to promote a capital project plan for schools, hospitals, roads and other projects.

He urged the ". . . development of Canada by Canadians and for Canadians." Mr. Herridge stated that ". . . national objectives and economic targets can be achieved as a result of policy, purpose, and people's participation."

The New Democratic candidate spoke of senior citizens and the necessity for portable pensions. He stressed the need for a national health insurance plan where the costs would be evenly distributed and benefits would be available to all without regard to ability to pay.

The meeting was followed by a question period. In response to a question, asking what the public could do to prevent the destruction of resources by the proposed High Arrow dam, Mr. Herridge advised: "Let the government know, in no uncertain terms, that you oppose the destruction of our natural resources, recreational opportunities, and fish life for an immediate dollar, as against the long term development of the nation's interests."

Mr. Herridge addressed a meeting at Boswell Wednesday and will be at Procter tonight.

Thompson of Kimberley is campaign manager, and committee chairmen from the Creston, Columbia, Cranbrook and Fernie sections of Kootenay East at a meeting here made the plans for Mr. Mundy, student in social service at the University of B.C., whose campaigning time in the constituency is three weeks before he returns to the campus for final weeks of the term.

Speakers on his behalf at meetings in the riding will be NDP party leader, Hon. T. C. Douglas, at Creston March 23, and the long-time member of parliament from Kootenay West, W. H. Herridge, in Cranbrook Saturday.

The candidate will arrive in Cranbrook Saturday to remain for three days, then spend four days in the Columbia Valley, leading up to the Windermere District Chamber sponsored all-candidate forum at Invermere, March 22. He travels to Creston March 23 with Mr. Douglas and spends four days there, then moves to Fernie for four days in the Crow's Nest Pass, climaxed by the all-candidate meeting at Fernie March 29, also under Chamber sponsorship.

An all-candidate meeting for Golden has been set for March 23, but because of the Creston meeting commitment, Bev Harris of Invermere will represent him as speaker.

Mrs. Rosen Dies At Fernie At 83 Years

CRANBROOK — Funeral service was conducted at Cranbrook United Church Tuesday by Rev. Brian Colwell and Jaffray student minister John Godfrey for Christine Rosen, resident of Jaffray since 1907. She died Friday at Fernie Memorial Hospital at the age of 83 years.

Born Christine Johnson at Bedane, Varmland, Sweden, she came to the United States and Michigan in 1901. Six years later she married Andrew Rosen at Spokane and they settled at Jaffray, where both were active in many phases of district development there. Their home was near McBain's Lake, which later was named Rosen Lake and operates as a district resort. She was active in Jaffray United Church and a charter member of its Women's Auxiliary. Mr. Rosen died in 1927.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. A. C. (Pauline) Rutledge at Chilliwack and Mrs. Olga Anderson of Jaffray; five grandchildren, nine foster children and a brother in Sweden. Burial in Westlawn followed the funeral rites.

Municipalities Combine for C.D. Course

FRUITVALE — Fruitvale and Montrose municipalities, working together in civil defence, have an orientation course in progress, with K. R. H. Roberts of the provincial civil defence staff at Victoria doing the instructing.

The course covers three evening sessions and includes, besides lectures, films and demonstrations. Nearly 30 people attended the opening night.

Both municipalities have drawn up a by-law to put civil defence into action, and have named Oliver Passmore as joint co-ordinator. It is expected a candidate will be sent to Vancouver to take a rescue course toward the latter part of March.

WHAT'S THIS? A fifteen-two hand for a grand slam at blackjack? Guess again. — It's duplicate bridge, which has been going great guns in Nelson since last spring. Contract bridge has taken a new lease on life also with many attending bridge parties on the North Shore recently.

Highway Signs To Indicate Southern Route

CRANBROOK — Destination signs with mileage indicating alternative Southern Transprovincial Highway points are planned for early erection at Mount Eisenhower Junction on the Trans-Canada Highway in Banff National Park.

J. A. Byrne, most recent member of parliament from Kootenay East, has been notified of this, following a letter of inquiry to the Department of Northern Affairs and National Resources which administers national park affairs.

Steep drop in tourist traffic through southern East Kootenay resulted in the 1962 season following opening of the Trans-Canada Rogers Pass route linking Golden and Revelstoke, which drew hundreds of thousands of motorists during the season.

TO SOUTHERN ROUTE

Signs at the junction will specifically indicate Radium Hot Springs, Kimberley and Cranbrook where the Radium-Kingsgate road links the Trans-Canada to the Southern Transprovincial Highway.

The letter to Mr. Byrne also comments on the proposed relocation of the Banff-Windermere Highway through Radium Townsite.

It reports appraisals on properties under lease involved in the construction program but adds decision is still pending. No construction work is planned there this season, National Parks Branch director J. R. B. Coleman reports.

Teachers to Attend English Conference

TRAIL—Trail district teachers will host an English conference for West Kootenay teachers at the J. Lloyd Crowe Senior Secondary School Saturday.

The conference will deal with forthcoming changes in English courses. First of these will be a new course in English composition to be introduced at the grade 9 level.

Explaining the scope of the conference, Al Johnson, principal of Montrose school, said, "The revisions will eventually affect the teaching of English at all grade levels. The conference will help prepare teachers to teach the new courses as they are introduced."

Four of British Columbia's best qualified people in the field of English will attend the conference. Philip Penner of UBC's faculty of education and co-author of the new text to be used for the grade 9 course will be present. Coast specialists assisting will be Miss Gladys Edgecome, primary; Walter Scott, intermediate, and Frank Bertram, secondary.

"Weeks of intensive planning have gone into this conference," said chairman Johnson in praise of his committee, "and teachers can look forward to an extremely interesting and rewarding session."

He pointed out that since the publication of the Chant Report, Trail district teachers have taken part in six such conferences. They have dealt with primary reading, art and physical education; intermediate reading and modern mathematics for grades 3 and 8. Further conferences are in the planning stage.

He noted that 42 persons have enrolled in the adult education golf playing course at the school.

An intensified program has been planned to clear the rough on the fairways and said everything seems to be in good condition for 1963, the president said.

The meeting discussed obtaining water for the course, set the 1963 fees, and announced they would sponsor a tournament in connection with the Blossom Fesitval in May.

Student Action Committee Circulates Petition to Support Higher Education

VANCOUVER — There will be no students' strike or boycott at the University of British Columbia and the University of Victoria. This type of action has never been planned upon and never will be the action of responsible students at either of these institutions.

This is the statement by both Malcolm Scott, president-elect of the Alma Mater Society (UBC), Doug Stewart, president of the Alma Mater Society (UBC) and Alf Pettersen, president Victoria University student body.

The petition which will be circulated by these students reads as follows:

"We the undersigned residents of UBC congratulate the minister of education on his promise of legislation enacting a program of higher education throughout British Columbia and petition the provincial government to:

Take immediate steps to provide financial support in order to implement a comprehensive plan for province-wide higher education; privide during the current session of the legislature the requested operating budgets of the existing public inistitutions of higher education in B.C.

ALUMNI ASSOCIATION SUPPORT

The Alumni Association of the University of B.C. has thrown its weight behind the student campaign for support for higher education.

It urged Alumni to:

Sign the student petition; telephone or write MLA's expressing concern over the situation of higher education; help the students bring the petition to the public in individual towns. Campaigners will cover the province soliciting the signatures for a petition this weekend.

FINANCIAL SUPPORT

The petition urges the government to take steps to provide financial support in order to implement a comprehensive higher education plan for B.C. and to provide the operating grant requested by existing higher educations institutions for the coming year.

Thursday noon, students will hold a general meeting on the campus and later hold a demonstration on the courthouse steps requesting "justice for higher education."

Students in Victoria will conduct a class with more than 600 students on the steps of the legislature to demonstrate the size of some of the classes.

At a meeting Tuesday afternoon, attended by over 400 faculty members, the Faculty Association of the University of B.C. passed the following resolutions:

"Resolved the Faculty Association wholeheartedly support the proposal of the aims to present the case for higher education in British Columbia to the public and urges members of the faculty to cooperate as fully as possible with these groups in this endeavour. In particular, this association calls upon members of the faculty to do everything possible to facilitate student participation in the scheme to secure signatures from people throughout the province to a petition to be sent to the legislature concerning the present crisis in higher education of this province."

Spare That Spray!

Emotions are relieved when fruit growers pass resolutions deploring the high cost of pesticides. That's all that's accomplished though — and costs don't come down!

But, advises federal entomologist Dr. J. Marshall, there is an effective way of lessening the spray bill — by corrective, or curative spraying.

The researcher, who is based at Summerland, B.C., explains:

"In corrective spraying, you spray only when you must. You don't spray according to a prearranged schedule, nor because you think a pest might materialize. That is preventive spraying, and it is an expensive habit.

"Nor do you spray because the moon is in a propitious phase; nor because your neighbor is spraying!

"You use your intelligence instead of your instinct, or your urge to conform. You disregard that slick symbol of modern living, the formula.

"You never lose sight of the fact that you have insect friends in the orchard, as well as insect enemies. You do all you can to avoid unnecessary killing of your friends so that they may survive to attack your enemies."

Dr. Marshall adds that at Summerland, corrective spraying shaved about $25 an acre off spray costs. He notes that "year in and year out, that's a consideration worth a second look."

Researchers plan to establish large demonstration blocks in five of British Columbia's main fruit growing areas to show how the grower can keep those dollars in his pocket.

First Things First

While many will agree with Dr. John Macdonald's report on higher education and for the need of expansion of our university system, the large amount of money which will be required to implement the recommendation has left many people stunned. It is understandable, therefore, that the provincial government has not yet arrived at a decision how best and how soon to deal with the problem.

Time is necessary for consideration, for undoubtedly the building of colleges and the setting up of universities cannot be done overnight. Patience is a virtue possessed mainly by older persons. Young people and particularly university students, are not noted for this quality. They want things done and done at once.

At this moment the students of UBC with the eagerness of youth have begun a crusade in favor of more money for their university to meet its budget and at the same time they declare the government has failed to announce full support for the UBC president's report on higher education. They object to what they call a conspiracy of silence on the part of the board of governors of the university and the provincial government.

We have some sympathy with the aims of the students. It is difficult to run any institution without sufficient money, and if the needed $1,800,000 is not provided by the government it will have to be met by raising student fees. Certainly the question of implementing the report on higher education is one which should not be rushed without further study. As for the so-called conspiracy of silence, that is purely a matter for those concerned — the board and the government.

While we have sympathy for the students we are doubtful of the propriety of their mass campaign. Indeed, we think they should put first things first and surely this means that they should not take time off from their studies. They have their part to play in higher education and perhaps this is the hardest part. They will serve the interests of their university best if they apply themselves diligently to their studies rather than indulging in agitation.

Smile of Smiles

Those viewing the Mona Lisa at the National Gallery of Art in Washington may reflect that they are confronting the most comprehensive smile in the folios of Western art. "La Gioconda" has arrived in the United States with all the timeliness of a news commentator, perhaps with an equal perception, and certainly with the same genius for suggesting that the world's affairs are an enigma to which only she has the key.

The anonymous public will probably apply "the Gioconda smile" generally and vaguely to what is euphemistically know as the status quo. Its gallery gods, however, may feel more specific twinges of discomfort. Or they may squirm with the delight of schoolboys under the amused approval of a beauteous teacher, as they try to outface the face that has launched a million guesses.

One can foresee President Kennedy, wondering whether it was his first try in Cuba or his later success that the lovely Lisa wishes to remind him of. Some Britons are said to believe that Dean Acheson will avoid the National Gallery entirely during the Mona Lisa's tenure, feeling that his own role as an international charmer may be "about played out." There is even a rumor that Adlai Stevenson and The Saturday Evening Post will confront each other at twenty paces in front of the famed picture, and let the smile decide.

Prime Minister Macmillan is not expected to prolong his New World visit in order to receive the Da Vinci heroine's sly comment on the Common Market negotiations.

—Christian Science Monitor.

The Danger

In his senior year at college, when Britain and her Commonwealth partners were fighting alone against Hitler and his Nazi hordes, President Kennedy wrote a book entitled "Why England Slept."

In his book Mr. Kennedy, whose only claim to fame at the time it was published in 1940 was that he was the son of the ambassador to Britain, attempts to analyze why England was so ill-prepared for war in 1939.

His conclusion was that England was caught unready because she was a democracy, a form of government which he described as one superior to totalitarianism because it was based on respect for man as a reasonable being but dangerously weak in preparing for war because it was a system essentially geared to peace.

If democracies were to survive, he found, their weaknesses must be recognized and corrected. "It is our problem," he wrote, "to find a method of protecting them in a world at war."

Though not claiming to have found the answers to the problem at that time, Mr. Kennedy goes so far as to say that if the democracies succeeded in winning the 1939 war, they must not be allowed to revert to the ways of weakness again. The United States, he asserted, must profit from the mistakes of England and "be prepared to take our part in setting up a world order that will prevent the rise of a militaristic dictatorship."

"To say that democracy has been awakened . . . is not enough. Any person will awaken when the house is burning down. What we need is an armed guard that will wake up when the fire first starts or, better yet, one that will not permit a fire to start at all."

Many things have changed since Mr. Kennedy wrote those words. In the intervening years he himself has been many things; a college student, a naval officer, a senator and now, president of the United States. His career has been remarkable, but even more remarkable is that his views on the necessity of eradicating the weaknesses of democracy remain completely unchanged.

However, his unswerving and unalterable dedication to this purpose carries with it the danger that it may itself destroy the very principle he seeks most to protect.

Pearson Shooting for Big Goal As Party Gets Into High Gear

By BEN WARD

OTTAWA (CP)—On the chilly night of March 31, 1958, Lester B. Pearson watched the Liberal party plummet to the worst election defeat in its history. The party he had headed for only 64 days lay shattered.

Friends urged him not to attempt the back-breaking job of rebuilding it.

Today, five years later, the Liberal federal organization is in high gear again and the diplomat-turned-politican who got it humming is shooting for the biggest goal of his notable career.

The interval wasn't easy for Mike Pearson, who will have his 66th birthday 15 days after the April 8 federal election. But the results of the vote last June 18, which doubled the Liberals' Commons strength and cut the Progressive Conservatives down to a minority government, have given him new energy.

In reviving the party Mr. Pearson also had to remould himself. He had to switch roles from an accomplished master of foreign affairs to that of a confidence-inspiring leader in domestic politics. It meant turning from the other-world atmosphere of diplomacy to immerse himself in the not-so-dainty realities of parliamentary infighting, party organizing and policy decisions tuned to conflicting provincial, regional and local interests.

FOCUS ON LEADER

A mark of his success is the tone of the current campaign. Last year the stress was on the "Pearson team." This time it is on Mr. Pearson's personal leadership. "Mike for Me in '63," the campaign buttons proclaim.

Before he took on the leadership, succeeding Louis St. Laurent, Mr. Pearson had already won world fame as a troubleshooter and peacemaker. His crowning achievement was in 1956 when he won acceptance of a proposal that a UN Emergency Force be sent to Egypt to neutralize its border with Israel after the British-French-Israeli Suez attack. A year later he was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize.

His 10 years as external affairs minister in the former Liberal government were marked by other achievements: A leading role in shaping the NATO alliance; presidency in 1953 of the UN General Assembly which worked out the Korean armistice pact; nine years as leader of the Canadian UN delegation; two nominations for the UN secretary-general's post, both rejected by the Communists, and service on the three-man committee for NATO integration which became known as "the three wise men."

JOINED CABINET

When he joined the cabinet in 1948 after 20 years in the foreign service, Canada became a voice in the world far beyond its power status. And the voice was that of Lester B. Pearson.

In his early years it would have been difficult to picture Mike Pearson as a future force in world councils.

Born in Toronto, the son and grandson of Methodist ministers, he joined the army medical corps at 17, transferred to the infantry and fought in Salonika in 1915 and 1916.

"I lost most of my friends . . . and you got to the point where you just assumed there was no other world, resigned to either being invalided home or ending your life there."

A commission and a transfer to the flying corps ended that gloomy era.

After the war he completed his degree studies at the University of Toronto, spent a short hitch in business with a Chicago meat-packing firm, then returned to university to teach history.

For a time he played semi-professional baseball at Guelph, Ont., and coached college football and hockey teams.

DID RESEARCH

He was doing research in Ottawa when the late Dr. O. D. Skelton, undersecretary of external affairs, persuaded him to join the department he was later to head.

In 1957 the Liberal government was defeated in an election. Seven months later he replaced Mr. St. Laurent as opposition leader. He was just settling down 15 days later when Prime Minister Diefenbaker, then heading a minority government, called the election of March 31, 1958.

Still shocked by the initial upset, the Liberals were no match for the surging Conservatives. Only 49 of the 105 Liberal MPs survived.

Mr. Pearson spent the next four years rallying his broken forces and learning the art of politics. He barnstormed the country mending the party organization, hunting for new candidates and preaching the Liberal program.

The first payoff came last June when 100 Liberals were elected to the 265-seat Commons and the Conservatives lost their majority.

Mike Pearson — the name Mike is an old army label—is looking for the second instalment April 8.

F. B. Pearce Writes

Reporters and journalists have consistently claimed the right to keep secret the sources of information. This claim has been upheld in some American courts, but in recent cases in England reporters who claimed this right have been sentenced to imprisonment for refusing to do as the judge directed and state the sources of their information.

This is probably good law and may even be natural justice and while the British are staunch upholders of the law newspapers in that country are concerned by the decision. In this particular spy case they feel that it is against the public interest. Their concern is all the greater since for some time they have been fighting an attempt to control them. They do not take kindly to government direction.

It is noteworthy that while the newspapers strongly believe that they are within their rights in withholding the names of their informants this right may not be conceded by the general public, some of whom may find themselves hurt by this attitude. It is purely newspaper ethics and no doubt the press will seek to uphold it.

There is the alternative that if sources must be quoted newspapers will not publish certain stories. This, it is claimed, may be to the public hurt since the only way some wrongs can be aired is through anonymous allegations. This is something which should be well considered.

In Britain it is probable that a bill will be introduced in parliament to guarantee the right to newspapers to protect their sources of information. If this is done journalists must be prepared to justify their position. So far they have not really done this. They will have to show that publication without revealing sources is to the public interest, not merely to their own, and that it is not damaging to the reputation of any individual.

The principle is an important one and the whole matter deserves far more study. It should not be allowed to go by default and it would be to the benefit of everyone if the British parliament were called upon to make a decision.

CIVIL DEFENCE

Although government departments and services are used to develop and implement emergency plans, Civil Defence also accents the need for volunteers. By their enthusiasm and skills they would provide a capable working force as against a skeleton crew, if only regulars and professionals are available.

BOOSTS LIBERALISM

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters) The South African Institute of Race Relations said Wednesday that if the government uses its "despotic powers" to destroy liberalism it would destroy the only force which could defeat communism in South Africa. The executive committee said if non-whites are "denied access to the democratic process by which grievances are normally redressed" they would have no alternative but to turn to communism.

'Flu Strikes Villagers

GOGAMA, Ont. (CP)—Twelve of this town's influenza-stricken population were seriously ill Wednesday and six—three children and three elderly persons—have developed pneumonia, said Dr. J. C. Doherty, flown to Gogama Tuesday with a nurse to relieve the situation.

This outlying community of 700 people has been without a doctor for 20 years. Dr. Doherty, head of the Sudbury-Algoma Sanitorium, and nurse Janice Fournier of Sudbury immediately set up a clinic in the lands and forests department office.

They treated about 130 people Tuesday

Dr. Doherty said the serious conditions resulted from having no doctor in the town. He said "quite a few" are getting the virus twice.

Dr. Doherty said the sick in Gogama will be safe as long as another doctor visits them again within a few days.

During the winter the only exit from Gogoma is a twice-daily train to Sudbury, 90 miles southeast of here, by plane, or a 200-mile route to Timmins via highway or 87 miles by bush road.

Mine-Making Opportunity Offered To Prospectors

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

TORONTO (CP) — Mine-making opportunities in many countries of the world, some of them with quite a bit of dazzle, were held out to Canadian mining men Tuesday at the annual meeting of the Prospectors and Developers Association.

In a symposium on "world-wide prospecting," the key question was: "Should Canadian companies spend their exploration money in Canada or are their better chances elsewhere?"

The consensus of a dozen panelists appeared to be that vast resources wait to be tapped in South America, Mexico, the United States, Europe, South Africa and Australia, with varying opportunities for Canadians, and with South America sending out the most siren call.

The symposium wound up, however, with a rousing exhortation that Canada, for the mining man, holds the most substance and glitter of all.

LISTS REASONS

The exhortation came from V. C. Wansbrough, managing director of the Canadian Metal Mining Association, who gave the following practical reasons for the success and attraction of Canadian mining:

Enlightened tax legislation concerning mining which allows a new mine tax exemption for the first three years of production and then allows it to write-off for tax purposes its pre-production expenses.

Stable government and a democratic system under which people can talk to the government.

He predicted that if Canadian companies "experiment" with exploration abroad it will be as a fringe rather than as a basic effort.

Both Mr. Wansbrough and Dr. Duncan Derry, Toronto consulting geologist, warned that Canada won't hold her present mining position without active exploration for new mines to replace those which will be depleted over the next 25 years.

SEES BRIGHT FUTURE

Dr. C. E. Michener, of the International Nickel Mining Company of Canada group, predicted that the mines now producing in the first 100 miles of Canada's exposed pre - cambrian shield, will be duplicated in the future in the second and third 100-mile belt. He rejected suggestions that the southern portion of Canada's pre-cambrian has better mine possibilities than more northern portions.

"Not many countries," Dr. Michener stated, "can look forward to the mineral growth expected in Canada."

ABOUT BOOKS

AIRFORCE: THE DECISIVE FORCE IN KOREA
By Colonel James T. Stewart
D Van Nostrand Co., Toronto

If it had not been for airpower, the United Nations forces in Korea may have been defeated at the Pusan Perimeter.

This collection of articles from the U.S. Air Force's Air University Quarterly Review vividly portrays aerial warefare in Korea and draws significant conclusions for future similar combat.

If the Communists had used airpower more aggressively they probably would have pushed the UN right off the Asian peninsula; or at least prolonged the war. Most certainly airpower would have given them a much better bargaining position at the Panmunjon truck talks.

Strategic targets were knocked out early in the Korean War, allowing U.S. Fifth Air Force fighters to concentrate almost exclusively on troop and supply movements.

In spite of almost 24-hour harrassment on supply routes, the Communists were able to get 10 per cent of their materiel through to their front line. That was enough to fight a damaging holding action and to even stockpile strategic goods.

Through fascinating and devious means and by being able to call on almost unlimited stocks of manpower, the Reds were able to keep supplies moving.

All aspects of the air war are described in this book, including the jet fights in MIG alley and the buildup of Chinese airfields which were never able to be used.

The air force explains here why such targets as the massive hydro-electric and irrigation dams were turned to in desperation.

An excellent account of war in the air for students of air power and of Red China. R.T.P.

Says Practical Nurses Not Well Enough Trained

VICTORIA (CP) — Facilities for training practical nurses in B.C. are totally inadequate, Mrs. E. P. Thomas, representative of School District 63, told the Greater Victoria Metro Health Board Tuesday.

There is a long waiting list of applicants for course on practical nursing now provided by the provincial government, she said.

Many of those now working as practical nurses in private hospitals, nursing homes and boarding homes took their training by correspondence from a Chicago school, she pointed out.

"These people have only a few weeks of experience in hospital work."

The Practical Nurses Act was drawn up to protect patients in private institutions "from individuals who have not had adequate training," but it has never been brought into force, she said.

Rectory Shower, Prayer Day Planned by Cathedral CWL

Plans for the linen shower for the Rectory to be held March 31, and a day of prayer on the Feast of the Annunciation, March 25, were among important items of business discussed at the Cathedral C.W.L. meeting held in the Parish Hall Tuesday.

Msgr. F. J. Monoghan was present at the meeting, one of the best attended in recent month, at which President Mrs. W. H. Wilson received committee and circle reports.

Secretary Miss Mary MacDougall read a letter of appreciation from the Sacred Heart Radio program director, Father Walsh, for the League's work in promoting the program in the past, and appealed for further assistance. A letter of thanks from Mrs. E. Bonacci and a letter from the Cerebral Palsy Association regarding their annual meeting were read.

Following the report of Mrs. M. J. Boyes, treasurer, Mrs. W. Kardos outlined the success of the League's participation in catering for a recent benefit, and she also stated that stock of rectory linen had been taken and a shower planned at the rectory to replenish much-needed items

Mrs. S. Bragagnola reminded members of the Rosary for Peace to be held today and the devotions on the Feast of the Annunciation March 25.

On behalf of Mrs. E. Edgar, Mrs. S. Cristofanetti presented the sick visiting committee report which indicated that a total of 59 visits had been made and that a card had been sent to a sick member, Mrs. W. J. McKim.

Mrs. M. J. Boyes read the report prepared by Mrs. Edgar on the annual cerebral palsy meeting, which contained an appeal for homes for out-of-town patients during the school week in order that they may take advantage of educational facilities provided.

IMMIGRATION ASSISTANCE

Calls for reading and writing letters, completing Income Tax forms, and assistance with shopping and sewing had kept Mrs. S. Cristofanetti, Immigration chairman busy as indicated in her report.

Plans are complete for the annual spaghetti supper being held Saturday. Mrs. Fukala extended a vote of thanks to all who assisted in any way with the recent benefit.

Mrs. T. Murphy related that enrolment in Brownies had increased from 24 to 34 and that Mrs. Filiatrault is assisting with the work.

Circle reports of Mrs. D. A. Carmichael, Mrs. G. R. Barefoot, Mrs. L. Maglio, Mrs E. Boechler, and Mrs. P. Kuntz showed that all assisted with the catering for the benefit and in addition Our Lady of Lourdes Circle had made a contribution to the medical fund of the Missions, and St. Rose Circle is in charge of plans to honour Sister Mary Bernadette of the Sisters of the Precious Blood on the occasion of her 25th anniversary.

Mrs. G. R. Barefoot and Mrs. H. May were appointed to audit the books for the year.

Mrs. Wilson asked all committee chairmen and circle leaders to attend a report from meeting at her house March 21.

A lengthy discussion followed on the merits of continuing the fall bazaar or finding an alternate method of raising money.

In response to an appeal from Monsignor Monoghan for assistance in preparing the Retreat House before retreats, Mrs. Morton and Mrs. S. Bragagnola volunteered their services for this week with the Ava Maria Circle and Our Lady of Lourdes Circle undertaking the work in successive weeks.

Mrs. J. Fukala asked for two leaders to help with Guide instructions and work on Thursday evenings. In reply Mrs. L. Maglio stated that she would be willing to give assistance whenever possible.

Offers to Extend Water Line at Own Expense

KINNAIRD — D. Romanin appeared before the Tuesday meeting of the Kinnaird village commission with an offer to install an addition to the water line on Tenth Avenue to service his property on Ninth.

Mr. Romanin was told to check with other property owners in the location in an effort to assure more than one connection and a possible cost sharing agreement.

Regarding a proposal from the Genelle Improvement District and the Blueberry Creek Irrigation District for use of the Kinnaird dump, it was decided at the meeting that these two areas be informed that an organized dumping ground has been prepared for their use and for this reason, Kinnaird turned down their request.

A motion was passed to proceed with installation of a 125 h.p. river pump.

In reviewing cemetery facilities, it was resolved that under no circumstances will any vehicles be allowed inside the Park Memorial cemetery. Funeral directors will be notified of this.

Your Individual Horoscope

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Friday, March 15, 1963

MARCH 21 to APRIL 20 (Aries) — You must recognize your limitations, of course, but aim to increase these boundaries judiciously, through earnest, intelligent study and observation, and you will progress the sure, lasting way: start now

APRIL 21 to MAY 21 (Taurus) — According to your properly set-up calendar, are you up to, or behind, schedule? Side-stepping important details? Answer yourself these and other questions thoroughly; make adjustments.

MAY 22 to JUNE 21 (Gemini) — And your itinerary — is it properly drawn up? Are you following through in a valid, effectual manner? Day's aspects favor protecting due rights and privileges through responsible action. Stress accuracy.

JUNE 22 to JULY 23 (Cancer) Some spectacular situations are indicated, but certain "dull" matters will require attention nonetheless. Stress clear-cut thinking, judicious penetration, levelheadedness.

JULY 24 AUGUST 23 (Leo) — What you ordinarily do may not be the thing today. A favorite activity or pastime may have to be by-passed. Meet eventualities with perception and poise. A great time for growth!

AUGUST 24 to SEPTEMBER 23 (Virgo) — This could be a livelier day than anticipated, but Virgoans can meet all situations with grace and agility. If day does not please in part, it's for you to work on, remedy; improve conditions.

SEPTEMBER 24 to OCTOBER 23 (Libra) — Take a dignified approach to all problems now. In personal relationships there may be some differences to recognize, cope with.

OCTOBER 24 to NOVEMBER 22 (Scorpio) — Note the questions others ask, where they place their trust. This is not so that you may follow, but to be guided in using your own powers of evaluating and consideration. Try to be roundly careful.

NOVEMBER 23 to DECEMBER 21 (Sagittarius) — A tip-toe period for achieving happiness through personal relationships—especially with family and close friends. Make this routine day stand out.

DECEMBER 22 to JANUARY 20 (Capricorn) — Some expansion approved, retrenching needed in other areas. Be equal to your obligations. You have an innate sense of propriety; make it work with vision, potently.

JANUARY 21 to FEBRUARY 19 (Aquarius) — Especially favored now: students, teachers, technicians. Make the most of your skills and adaptability. Even if gains seem slow in coming, take all in stride.

FEBRUARY 20 to MARCH 20 (Pisces) — You may need more energy in certain occupations, so supply it. It's as simple as that! Prevailing opinions may change, so do not move too quickly. Neither hesitate to express sound views.

YOU BORN TODAY are a deliberate though quick thinker; an idealist, with a flair for the unusual; a worker of miracles when they are most needed. 1963 will be an excellent year for the arts, science, activities in air and water (your especial realm), making things grow. You should enjoy benefits of past efforts. Birthdate: Andrew Jackson, 7th U.S. president.

Blame Britain For Missing ECM

LOS ANGELES (AP)—French ambassador Herve Alphand said Wednesday it is Britain's own fault it didn't get into the European Common Market.

Britain, he said, asked "for exceptions . . . that were contrary to the spirit and the letter" of the Rome treaty which established the European community.

In a speech prepared for delivery at the University of California, the envoy in Washington gave the French version of the Brussels talks in which France vetoed Britain's entry into the Common Market.

Alphand maintained that the Common Market's door is not closed to Britain. He suggested an agreement between Britain and the Common Market which would help develop trade and "leave Great Britain free to proceed with the indispensable evolution" he said is necessary for Britain before it could ask for admittance again.

Labor Congress Against Shippers

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Labor Congress Wednesday attacked the Seafarers' International Union of Canada as a "hoodlum empire" working hand-in-glove with certain shipping companies.

In a blistering indictment of its former affiliate, the 1,050,000-member congress lambasted Hal C. Banks' sailors union as an evil tyranny that no longer can claim to be a legitimate trade union.

"It is a racket, not a union," said CLC lawyer Maurice Wright, in a formal submission to Mr. Justice T. G. Norris' one-man investigation of labor strife on the Great Lakes.

The CLC, central body of organized labor in Canada, expelled the SIU in 1960 for raiding another union, and then set up a rival sailors union, the Canadian Maritime Union.

The resulting struggle for labor supremacy on the Great Lakes precipitated violence and shipping disruptions, which led directly to the appointment of the Norris commission of inquiry.

After collecting evidence about terror and trouble in the marine industry during seven months of hearings, Mr. Justice Norris, 69, of the British Columbia Court of Appeals, is now hearing final arguments.

WANTS 'GROWTH' REMOVED

Mr. Wright portrayed the SIU as a "growth" upon the Canadian labor movement and upon Canadian society.

He urged Mr. Justice Norris to recommend "whatever social surgery is necessary to relieve both the trade union movement and society from this growth."

"There is no place in our social structure for a hoodlum empire which works hand-in-glove with certain shipping companies to the advantage of both and to the disadvantage of the workers and the general public." The shipping companies were not named.

The CLC lawyer proposed two steps, one aimed at destroying the SIU in Canada and the other designed to avert further disruptions to shipping. The recommendations were:

1. That Mr. Justice Norris rule that the SIU is not a bona fide union, proposing whatever action is necessary to "ensure that legal and practical efficancy will be given to such a conclusion."

2. That the Canadian government open international talks with the United States to ensure that Canadian ships are granted peaceful entry to American ports—without a recurrence of SIU picketing and boycotting of the last two years.

Russ Troops Leaving Cuba Slowly

WASHINGTON (AP)—United States sources said today Soviet troops are leaving Cuba at a relatively slow pace with only two days remaining in which Premier Khrushchev can keep his pledge to President Kennedy that "several thousand" would depart by mid-March.

In Moscow, the Communist party newspaper Pravda said four ships carrying troops had sailed and a fifth was loading.

It said the fourth, the 11,030-ton Black Sea cruise ship Gruzia (Georgia), left Sunday carrying specialists who had been training Cubans in "powerful, up-to-date Soviet military techniques."

This is the first time any such departure story has appeared in the Soviet press, indicating the beginning of a propaganda build-up.

Pravda's dispatch from Havana said that the jobs of the specialists who sailed Sunday were finished, and that Premier Castro's government had agreed that the Soviet experts could go home.

U.S. experts in Washington estimated there were 17,500 Soviet military personnel in Cuba when the withdrawals began. This was 5,000 fewer than believed stationed there at the height of the Cuban crisis last October.

Winnipeg Teenagers Proving They Can Handle Responsibility

By GRAHAM COX

WINNIPEG (CP) — Four thousand Winnipeg teen - agers are proving to their elders they can bear responsibility.

The youngsters, 13 to 19, are members of Winnipeg community centres located at 18 parks in the city.

They work under a seven-member youth council of their peers, headed this year by 17-year-old Don Bryk.

The only adult supervision is from one councillor in each club, Alex Hamilton of the city parks and recreation department and a designated member of the city police force.

At the club level the members elect their own council and send three delegates to the city youth council which, in turn, elects its executive.

Learning to accept and handle responsibility is the biggest benefit of membership in the centres, says Don Bryk.

"Give a young person responsibility and show you have faith in him and he generally will come through with flying colors.

"We set our own rules and our own standards and anyone who breaks those rules or lowers those standards is either suspended from club activity or has his membership card permanently taken from him."

NO ADULT PRESSURE

Don says the senior councillors often offer advice and always are ready with suggestions when asked, but they don't try to impose their views on members.

"You have to be very careful when dealing with teenagers," says Mr. Hamilton. "If they get the idea you are trying to tell them what to do or to run their show, you'll lose them."

The annual budget for these community centres runs between $500,000 and $600,000, Mr. Hamilton says, but members themselves raise money as well for financing local projects.

Holding dances to raise funds to plow back into the centre, and controlling the activities of these dances, are major parts of each council's work.

A strict set of rules has been put up by the members covering dress and deportment, hours, smoking and drinking. White shirts and ties for the boys, dresses or skirts and sweaters for the girls are the general dress rules. Skylarking and roughhousing are frowned upon. No liquor is allowed and smoking is permitted only in designated places, never on or near the dance floor. Hours are 8 p.m. to 11:30 p.m.

OUTFIT HOCKEY TEAMS

To make sure local clubs are handling their affairs properly, members of the city youth council often drop in at dances, take notes on what they see and report them to the local council.

Money also is used to outfit playground hockey teams, often coached by the senior youths of the centre.

Last year the council put on a Greater Winnipeg youth conference attended by 375 delegates. It discussed the possibility of extending the program to other Winnipeg-area municipalities.

Another Metro conference is scheduled for next May. And the council will send delegates to the Northwestern Ontario Conference.

OTTAWA (CP) — Retirement of Lt.-Col. Rene P. Landry as vice-president and assistant to the president of the CBC was announced Wednesday by the publicly-owned corporation. He will continue to serve as a part-time consultant. Col. Landry, one of the pioneers of the CBC, reached the retirement age of 65 on Feb. 28. He was appointed a vice-president in 1960, capping a distinguished 30-year career in public broadcasting.

FROWNS, NO TEARS, OVER SPILLED MILK—Dairymen more than 2,000 strong from Minnesota and Wisconsin pour 4,600 gallons of skim milk into a field on a farm at Annandale, Minn., in a fracas with the milk processor. It's a protest against the processor's refusal to buy the milk unless the Martin Lampl Creamery broke its contract with the National Farmers Organization. Hub of the milk spilling is Albion-French Lake Co-Op.

OTTAWA (CP) — The New Democratic Party has started canvassing its constituency associations across Canada for money to bolster its Quebec campaign. The party said in a statement the decision was made by its federal campaign committee at a Toronto meeting Tuesday.

Russ Charge U.S. Fire On Fish Boat

MOSCOW — The Soviet Un-

MOSCOW—The Soviet Union charged Wednesday that three dummy shells at a Russian fishing vessel last Friday in international waters about 70 miles east of Norfolk, Virginia.

A protest to Washington asserted two cruisers and a destroyer fired on the refrigerator trawler in "an act of sheer wantonness which could have grave consequences."

"The U.S.S.R. government regards this shelling as a gross violation of generally accepted international law standards and of the principles of freedom of navigation in the open sea," an announcement by the Soviet news agency Tass declared.

The Russians said the trawler was engaged in fishing on the high seas when the warships approached at 12:15 p.m.

"In all, four shots were fired, endangering the trawler and her crew," Tass said.

"The Soviet government expects that those guilty will be punished and the necessary measures taken to prevent such actions in the future."

Tass made no mention of dummy, or non-explosive shells. But Moscow radio referred to the shells as dummies after first reports of the protest left confusion as to whether the Russians claimed "shrapnel" or "dummy" shells had been fired because of the similarity of the two words in Russian.

"According to information received, two American cruisers of the Boston class and one destroyer of the Franks class fired on the Soviet fishing trawler-refrigerator Os-Rtr 9007 engaged in fishing in the open seas," the protest said.

Allies to Police Tests

GENEVA (AP)—The Western allies Wednesday substantially reduced the area they say each on-site inspection should cover in order to police a ban on underground nuclear tests.

United States Ambassador Charles C. Stelle put before the 17-nation disarmament conference the first detailed western plan for inspection procedures.

The plan provides that any on-site inspection would cover a maximum of 500 square kilometres (193 square miles). Previously U.S. spokesmen had demanded inspection of an area of 700 to 800 square kilometres (270 to 308 square miles) to determine whether a suspicious underground disturbance was an earthquake or a banned nuclear explosion.

Mohawks Warned Voting a Risk

CORNWALL, Ont. (CP) — Chief Ernest Benedict of the St. Regis-Mohawk Indian tribe on nearby Cornwall Island said that any member of the tribe who uses his voting privilege in the April 8 federal election will be risking his tribal membership.

In an interview, Chief Benedict said: "This is not a federal law and is not included in the Indian Act, but it is the law of our people and is embedded in our tradition."

"This law now is in our St. Regis band council resolutions and these laws govern the entire reservation."

"No enumerator has come to our reserve, and if one was to come here, he would not be welcome," he said.

Supreme Council To Guide Soviet Industry, Building

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union established a supreme national economic council Wednesday for the management of industry and construction and Premier Khrushchev heads it.

This appeared to mark completion of Khrushchev's design for centralizing economic guidance which he announced at a meeting of the Communist party's central committee last November.

It was a drastic effort to cure agricultural ills and industrial stagnation besetting the economy. Khrushchev last fall wrote off his 1957 experiment with decentralized economic administration.

The central committee approved his plan for returning tight controls to central agencies to eliminate the shortcomings of the scattered regional economic council system he created at great political risk five years ago.

MARKET TRENDS

NEW YORK (AP) — Tobaccoes and motors paced a continued stock market rise Wednesday as volume, the heaviest in three weeks, topped 4,000,000 shares.

Tobaccos continued their rally which began Tuesday, and autos attracted renewed attention.

The Dow Jones industrial average gained 2.46, at 677.66.

Volume rose to 4,120,000 shares from Tuesday's 3,350,000 and was the largest since a similar total changed hands Feb. 20.

Of 1,273 issues traded, gainers outnumbered losers by the respectable margin of 591 to 387.

Nine of the 15 most active stocks advanced, three declined and three were unchanged. Two of the active gainers were tobaccos and three were motors.

Sunray DX Oil was the most active stock, losing 1 at 32 on 145,900 shares.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose 1.0 to 257.0.

An estimated $1,400,000,000 was added to the quoted value of stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange, based on the rise in the AP average.

Among Canadian issues, Walker Gooderham rose 1⅛ and International Nickel rose 1 while Distillers Seagrams and Hudson Bay Mining each advanced ⅜. Dome Mines gained ⅛ and McIntyre Porcupine fell ⅛.

Prices on the American exchange were generally higher.

Volume was 890,000 shares compared with 840,000 Tuesday. Scurry Rainbow Oil was up ⅜ and Jupiter Corp. ¼. Preston fell ⅛.

MONTREAL (CP) — Stocks moved slightly higher on the Montreal and Canadian exchanges Wednesday. Trading was moderately active.

Asbestos rose ½ to 25½ among base metals and Walker was up ⅞ at 58⅞. Seagrams gained ½ to 49½. Industrial Acceptance rose ¼ to 25½.

Among losers, Trans-Canada Pipe Lines fell ¾ to 24¼ in active trading after falling a point Tuesday. Canadian Breweries fell ⅛ to 10⅜ and Hudson's Bay Company was down ⅛ at 13⅝.

In mines, Vanguard rose three cents to 10½ cents in heavy trading and Dominion Leaseholds fell four cents to 31 cents.

TORONTO (CP)—The stock market continued to show loss of earlier gains Wednesday to close mixed after moderate trading.

The exchange index showed industrials and base metals each ahead about a quarter of a point, and golds and western oils down fractionally. Several active speculative stocks helped keep the volume around the 3,500,000-share mark in accord with Tuesday's turnover.

Walker - Gooderham, despite its trading ex-dividend 40 cents, paced the slight industrial advance, as the stock rose ¾ on fairly active turnover.

Additional main list gains were recorded in Interprovincial Pipe Line, Industrial Acceptance Corporation, Dominion Foundries and Steel and Building Products, all ahead . Distillers Seagrams advanced ⅜ and Power Corporation, one of the session's most active industrials, rose ¼ on 17,700 shares.

Losses in a ¼ to ⅝ range went to Toronto-Dominion Bank Royal Bank, Bell Telephone and Trans-Canada Pipe Lines.

WESTERN OILS OFF

On index, industrials gained .26 to 594.63 and base metals .25 to 200.08. Golds eased .48 to 90.80 and Western oils .04 to 115.59. Final volume was 3,573,000 shares, compared with 3,719,000 Tuesday.

Bibis Yukon Mines, most active speculative during this week, remained unchanged at 36 cents on a turnover of 569,400 shares. Canadian Astoria followed with a three - cent jump to 21½ cents trading nearly 300,000 shares.

Base metals were higher, with International Nickel up ¾ and Falconbridge ½. Denison dropped ¼.

Trading in Western oils was dull and few significant changes were noted.

Indecent Pets Show Just Fun

NEW YORK (AP)—The Society for Indecency to Naked Animals shaped up Wednesday as a stunt to promote the sale of a new record.

The society reaped publicity last week when its pickets circled the White House with placards asking President Kennedy's wife: "Won't you please clothe your horse for decenty?"

Vice - president (and picket) Bruce Spencer said that SINA was a band of 50,000 moralists headed by C. Clifford Prout Jr. of New York. Prout's late father had left $400,000 to institute an organization dedicated to the proposition that "all animals should wear clothing for the sake of decency," Spencer said, and Prout was carrying out his father's wishes.

The man using the name of Prout is a writer for the Garry Moore television show with the professional name of Buck Henry and the actual name of Buck Zuckerman. He was reported by his office Wednesday to be in California.

Time magazine quotes Zuckerman as saying: "It's not fair to say G. Clifford Prout Jr. doesn't exist. A large part of the time that is who I am."

The magazine adds: "A more thorough explanation was to be found in a just-released record Inside SINA, narrated by, of all people, vice - president spencer . . ."

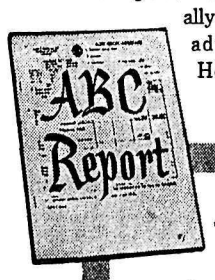
MEMO TO ADVERTISERS

The Hallmark of Circulation Integrity

AUDITED PAID CIRCULATION ABC

In the same way that STERLING on silver signifies a standard of known value, so is this A.B.C. emblem a symbol of FACTS about the circulations of newspapers and periodicals. It is the emblem of membership in the Audit Bureau of Circulations* and is assurance to advertisers that the circulations of member publications are measured, audited and reported in accordance with the rigid standards that have been mutually approved and adopted by advertisers and publishers. Here's why our membership in the A.B.C. is important to our advertisers and ourselves: At regular intervals one of the Bureau's large staff of experienced circulation auditors makes a thorough inspection and audit of our circulation records. The results of this exacting audit show: how much circulation we have; where it goes; how it was obtained; and many other FACTS that advertisers need as a sound basis for their advertising investments. This audited information is published by the Bureau in easy-to-read A.B.C. reports which are available to our advertisers on request.



*The Audit Bureau of Circulations, of which this newspaper is a member, is a cooperative, nonprofit association of 3,575 advertisers, advertising agencies and publishers. Organized in 1914, A.B.C. brought order out of advertising chaos by establishing a definition for paid circulation, rules and standards for auditing and reporting the circulations of newspapers and periodicals.

Churchill To Receive U.S. Honor

AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — Winston Churchill for years was tormented by the thought he had to make a name for himself early. He expected to die young, as his father did.

He didn't die young and by the time he was 65 he was a political failure. If he had died then, in 1939, he would have been at best only a footnote in history.

He was despised, distrusted and even hated by many in British politics, including many members of his own Conservative party.

Now at the age of 88 his services to the Western world are bringing him honorary United States citizenship — one more signal honor in the long list that has accumulated since the start of the Second World War.

Churchill long has been recognized as a tremendous and delightful orator. But all through the 1930s, he had an urge to run the show.

The war came, just as he had warned. He was brought into the cabinet in 1939. And on May 10, 1940, the day Hitler attacked the West, he was made prime minister.

In the next five years—the time it took to win the war—his leadership, and the inspiration he gave both his own people and Britain's allies, made him one of the greatest figures in history.

Now the U.S. Congress, anxious to pay him tribute in his lifetime, is about to make him an honorary American citizen, something it has done for no other man. The House of Representatives approved this Tuesday, the Senate will soon.

There were many reasons for Churchill's failure until he was 65. He switched from right to left and back to right; he fought with his own party; and he got mixed up in mistakes and disaster.

WAS OUT OF DATE

He belonged more in the 19th than the 20th century when he first entered Parliament in 1901. He was a reactionary, an isolationist, a pacifist, an imperialist into his old age, a boob in economics, without a clear philosophy except for getting ahead.

He lacked understanding of both workers and the poor. He fought against enlarging the army, although the Kaiser's Germany was arming.

He fought with his Conservative party's leadership. In three years he switched over to the Liberals and helped put through a raft of social legislation unprecedented in British history.

By 1911 Germany was an obvious menace and prime minister David Lloyd George took Churchill into his cabinet as first lord of the admiralty.

But soon after war began in 1914 Churchill plunged into a disaster. He spearheaded the Allied attack on the Dardanelles. It failed and cost the British and French more than 300,000 casualties. A royal commission put some, but not all, of the blame on Churchill. He was out of the cabinet.

Later, he held other high posts, but his days of social crusading were over. He had switched back to the Conservatives by then but many in his own party distrusted him. So did the Liberals and the Labor party.

Why was he picked as prime minister in 1940 when he had been repudiated so long?

Because when the danger of Hitler became unmistakable, popular thinking and Churchill's thinking became one: Total resistance to the Nazis.

No sooner was the war over than the voters threw him out and replaced him with a Labor government. Why?

Churchill, absorbed in the war, had given no thought to peacetime needs. The Labor party did, and had a program. Churchill and his Conservatives had nothing to offer except Churchill's photograph.

After six years of Labor rule, the people in 1951 put Churchill back in power. But he was 77 then. In 1955, when he was 81 and growing feeble, his own cabinet asked him to step down. He did, but still has a seat in Parliament.

Clay Rallies for Unpopular Decision

Swedes Win Fifth Straight; Russians, Czechs Meet Today

By ROD CURRIE

STOCKHOLM (CP) — First-place Sweden won its fifth straight game in the world hockey tournament Wednesday night, defeating West Germany 10-2 to take a three-point lead over Canada and Czechoslovakia, both tied for second place.

The Swedes trailed 2-1 at the end of the first period, then hit top form and whipped across three goals in the second period and six in the third period.

Eight different players scored the Swedish goals with Nils Nilsson and Lars - Eric Lundvall each bagging a couple.

Helmut Novy scored in the last two minutes of play in East Germany's 1-0 upset victory over Finland. It was the first win for the East Germans following four straight losses.

But the win was a costly one. The East Germans lost one of their best forwards, Manfred Buder, who suffered a severe skate cut on his right shin bone. He was taken to hospital.

The Swedish and East German victories were fifth-round games, the only two scheduled in the top bracket.

TOPS STANDINGS

Sweden, the defending champion, leads group A with five victories and 10 points—a perfect mark. Sweden's two remaining games in the eight-country round-robin are with Canada Friday and Czechoslovakia Sunday.

Canada and Czechoslovakia, both with open dates Wednesday, have seven points apiece. They have a game in hand, however.

The two countries played a 4-4 blemish on their records that includes three victories each.

Russia, also with a day off three wins, one loss and six points.

Goalie Kjell Svensson, who let in two of four shots in the first period, didn't have much of a chance on the West German goals.

Peter Rhode scored the first West German goal when he took a cross-ice pass from Siegfried Schubert and drilled a 10-footer. Schubert again got the puck and slipped it to Manfred Gmeiner who lifted it over the sprawling Swedish goalie.

GERMANS OUTCLASSED

Outside of this brief flurry, the West Germans were out of their class completely. The Swedes outshot them by a 5-to-1 margin. Karl Oberg, Hans Mild, Ulf Sterner, Sven Maatta and Ronald Pettersson scored singles.

The West German offence was so feeble that Svensson had only six shots to handle in the first two periods and totalled nine saves for the entire contest. Michael Hobelsberger stopped 47 shots for West Germany, 19 of them in the third period.

West Germany lost its first three games to Czechoslovakia 10-1, Canada 6-0 and Russia 15-3. The lone West German point in the standings was earned in a 4-4 tie against Finland.

East Germany's win moved the country into sixth place behind Finland. The Finns, with a win, three losses and a tie, have three points.

Novy scored the East German goal from a scramble at 18:49 of the third period.

Finnish goalie Juhani Lahtinen turned in 27 saves while Peter Kolbe had 26 for East Germany.

CASSIUS CLAY
. . . no more predictions.

Jones is Good Fighter Admits Cassius Clay

NEW YORK (AP) — From now on," scowled Cassius Clay Wednesday night, "no more predictions on what round I'm going to finish my opponents. People are so hypocritical."

Clay, 21, had just won a unanimous 10 - round decision from Doug Jones, a tough hombre who can shake off a punch like a raindrop. The cat-calls and hoots from the packed Madison Square Garden crowd still were ringing in his ears and he was hurt.

"They came to see me whipped," he complained. "They hated to see me keep winning. I hit Jones twice as much as he hit me. That's why they were upset."

Clay now has won 18 bouts in a row and said he wants to fight heavyweight champion Sonny Liston within the next six months.

How about Jones again?

"What?" he almost screamed. "What do they want me to do? They billed this as a heavyweight elimination bout and I want Liston in the next six months."

Well, then, why didn't he finish Jones in four rounds as he predicted? After all he predicted the end of all his other opponents.

'JONES IS GOOD'

"Jones is a good fighter," he said seriously. "In four rounds, I had him figured out. My best round? It was every round. As you can see I'm as pretty as a girl. I don't have a scratch on me. I think I'll get rid of the big bear (his favorite name for Liston) quicker than Jones. No doubt about it, Jones is a better fighter than the big bear."

"Jones tagged me a couple of times in the first round," Clay conceded. "And he got in another good punch in the fourth. But I proved at least that I can go 10 rounds under pressure. I think I would say I won the fight by about seven rounds to three. Jones really couldn't do anything in the 10 rounds.

"Why, I had him about out a couple of times. When are they going to realize I'm the greatest? Furthermore (in an obvious reference to his victory over Archie Moore), they can't say I was fighting an old man. I tried to get rid of him in four, but I couldn't."

By this time, Clay was looking with more charity on the crowd.

"They came to see the destruction of the Louisville Lip," he said, "and they didn't. The next time they'll pay $100 tops instead of $12 as they did this time."

Then he marched to the shower.

Schmautz Scores Four Goals As Bucs Down Flyers

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) —Arnie Schmautz banged in four goals to lead Portland Buckaroos to an 8-1 Western Hockey League victory over Edmonton Flyers Wednesday night.

Portland exploded for five goals in the second period, with Schmautz scoring three of them.

Cassius Rocked In First Round

By MURRAY ROSE

NEW YORK (AP)—Rocked in the first round, cocky Cassius Clay rallied to gain a narrow, unpopular 10-round decision over Doug Jones of New York at Madison Square Garden Wednesday night.

The self-proclaimed "greatest heavyweight of them all" looked far from that as he failed to even score a knockdown over his smaller rival.

The capacity crowd of 18,732 let loose with a storm of boos and cries of "fake" seconds after the unanimous verdict was announced.

The three officials all had Clay the winner by the following scores:

Judge Frank Forbes and judge Artie Aidala 5-4-1 each in rounds; and referee Joe Loscalzo 8-1-1. The AP card had Jones in front, 5-4-1.

A quick poll of the ringside writers showed Clay with a 7-5 edge and three writers calling it a draw.

Teddy Brenner, Garden matchmaker, said he would bring the pair together again outdoors in the summer.

Only a sweep of the last two rounds carried the undefeated Clay from the brink of disaster. He won those two rounds from all of the officials and that won it.

DIDN'T COME CLOSE

Never once did the 202½-pound Clay, a 3-1 favorite, come close to flooring his 188-pound rival. The 21-year-old Louisville contender had predicted "Jones will fall in four."

Loscalzo's verdict was the last to be announced and the crowd greeted that with boos and then started throwing things.

It was the 18th straight victory for Clay, who turned pro shortly after winning the Olympic light heavyweight title in 1960. But his streak of knockout victories was ended at nine.

Jones, a 26 - year - old New Yorker and almost a forgotten man in his hometown, suffered his fourth defeat. He has won 21.

But the capacity crowd, roaring throughout the close fight, gave Doug an ovation at the finish.

The spindly - legged New Yorker gave Clay quick notice that he had no intention of falling quickly. Early in the first round, he caught Cassius with a hard right to the jaw that shook the cocky one all over. Clay had just leaned his head back and Jones came through with the right.

LOOKS LIKE NOVICE

Jones also rocked Clay in the fourth and seventh rounds, and at times made the tall, handsome youngster look like a novice. Cassius was often short with his piston-like left jabs and Jones blocked many other punches.

Clay finally penetrated Jones' guard in the third round with snapping left jabs and fast combinations to the head. But not once did the underdog waver under fire.

When the fourth round started, the crowd roared in anticipation. Cassius bared his white mouthpiece and leered at Jones. But Doug didn't scare a bit. With 15 seconds left in the round it was evident Jones wasn't going to fall. The crowd gave out with the boos. After that it was a battle between two fair fighters—neither in a class with champion Sonny Liston.

Jones had the edge going into the ninth.

CLAY OPENS UP

Then Clay opened up. His hands pumping like pistons, he unleashed barrages of eight and 10 punches at a clip.

Jones took it all and replied with punches of his own. Cassius, however, had a big edge in the last two rounds, especially the 10th when they staged several hot trades to the delight of the crowd.

Despite his victory, Clay lost plenty of prestige. He was wild often, ineffective on the inside and his best bombs had no effect on Jones.

The first boxing sellout in the garden in six years brought a gross gate of $104,943. The fight was telecast via closed circuit to theatres and arenas and probably added another $200,000 to the promotion.

Clay earned about $90,000 and Jones $75,000.

I Thought I Had Won It, Says Jones

NEW YORK (AP) — Moustachioed Doug Jones sat moodily in his dressing room after losing a 10-round decision to Cassius Clay Wednesday night and said:

"I thought I won it no worse than 6-3-1. I don't think much of him. He never hurt me and I know I hurt him at least a couple of times."

Jones said the fourth round —in which Clay predicted he would be knocked out—meant nothing to him.

"I'll tell you one thing," said Jones, "I don't think he'll make too many predictions from now on. The fourth round certainly meant nothing to me. I don't know how he felt."

"He pulls away. Most of his punches landed on my gloves. But I don't like to alibi. I would like a rematch. I feel that I could take him a lot easier."

Jones said he didn't think too much of Clay's over-all ability.

'QUIET IN RING '

"He talks a lot outside but not much in the ring.

"I don't think he's very good. He has a lot of amateur in him. He's no match for Liston. I couldn't compare him favorably with a lot of my previous opponenets but he won the decision. I won the fight."

Jones manager, Alex Koskowitz, was almost speechless.

"We won it 6-4," he said.

"Clay is nothing. He's a fake."

Koskowitz said he was more concerned with how referee Joe Loscalzo arrived at his 8-1-1 decision in favor of Clay than in a return bout.

"What fight was he watching," ranted Koskowitz. "If you can lose a fight when you win it this way, what's the sense of a rematch?"

I COULD GET LOCKED UP FOR MURDER – LISTON

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) Heavyweight champion Sonny Liston watched Cassius Clay score a narrow victory over Doug Jones Wednesday night, then remarked:

"Clay showed me that I'll get locked up for murder if we're ever matched."

Liston viewed the match on closed-circuit television at Miami Beach Auditorium. Later he said:

"I thought Clay won the fight."

"Is Clay ready for you?" Liston was asked.

"I don't think so," the champion said. "Like I said, I could get locked up for murder."

Richardson Upset In World Curling Matches

PERTH, Scotland (CP)—Four Detroit curlers who grew up in Canada shot into the lead Wednesday in the international curling championships here, upsetting Canada 7-6 and defeating Scotland 9-7 in their first two matches.

The Canadian champions — skipped by Ernie Richardson of Regina, who has won this title three times in the past—came back in their second game to defeat Sweden 22-4 and garb a share of second place with Scotland. The Scots defeated Sweden 15-4 in their opening match.

The United States, Canada, Scotland and Sweden make up the competition in the double round - robin tournament in which each rinks meets each of its rivals twice. Canada has won the championships every year since it was started in 1959.

The U.S. victory over Richardson ended the Regina skip's linning streak of 16 consecutive games in the championships as Mike Slyziuk's Detroit curling club crew scored a pair on the 12th and final end to win.

GREW UP IN MANITOBA

The Detroit rink includes Slyziuk's brother, Ernie and Wally Hubchik, all of whom grew up in Grandview, Man., and Nels Brown, raised in Southampton, Ont.

Slyziuk led 4-2 after seven ends Wednesday. Richardson, who won an unprecedented fourth Canadian title last week, came back with two on the eighth but the U.S. went ahead again with a single on the 10th.

Richardson pulled ahead with two on the 11th but lost it on the final end when Slziuk came in with last rock for two.

The competition is scheduled to end Friday. Richardson's rink, with another crack at the U.S. champions coming, can still retain the international title if it continues through the balance of competition undefeated.

Creston Trampled At Hoop Tourney

VANCOUVER (CP)—Vancouver College, rated number one high school team on the lower mainland, trimmed Prince George 64-34 Wednesday night in the eighth game of the B.C. High School Basketball Championships.

Earlier, Jack Hik scored 34 points in leading Queen Elizabeth to a 62-48 upset win over Lord Byng in the seventh match of the day.

The tournament is being held in UBC War Memorial Gymnasium.

Hik failed by just three baskets to topple the tournament record of 40 points in a game set by Jerry Ford of Prince Rupert in 1953. Dave Gardner was high for Lord Byng with 15 points.

Neil Williscroft, judged last year's most vaulable player in the tournament, scored 26 points in leading the Vancouver College attack. Stan Kellet was high for Prince George with 10.

Prince George put up a surprisingly good fight. They were down only 21-10 at the end of the first quarter but College was on top 38-14 at the half.

In the fifth and sixth matches of the day, Alberni beat Lester Pearson High 54-43 and Mei Clearbrook trampled Creston 99-28, respectively.

Marvin Johnson and Gary Grunland each scored 13 points for Alberni and Wyatt Dreger led Pearson with 16. Ed Suderman's 24 points were tops for Mei, who fell only three points short of tournament high-scoring record of 102 points set in 1953 by Prince Rupert.

Cliff Shofer and Ron Mesenchuk got eight points apiece for Creston.

The first four games included two easy wins and two shuttle-the-lead contests.

Favored Courtenay defeated Prince Rupert 5;-37, North Surrey stars downed Penticton Lakers, West Vancouver etched out a 50-47 win over Abbotsford, and Nanaimo Wild Cats slid to a 36-34 victory over Killarney of Vancouver.

Pacing Courtenay, Ted Brown got 20 points in sparking the Islanders to victory over the north-coast squad, whose mainstay was Wayne Heldene, who got 16 points.

The North Surrey team had no trouble with Penticton. The Lakers waited until the 7:27 mark of the game before netting the ball. Detleff Moeller added 13 points to the Surrey score, while competitor Gil Schmunk managed only six for Penticton.

The next contest saw two highscorers with the game tied five times in the last three minutes of play. West Vancouver finally went ahead on foul shots. Murray Stewart got 19 points for winning West Van, while Mike Shannon received 20 for the losing Abbotsford team.

The fighting Nanaimo Wild Cats came from behind four times to defeat Killarney. Nanaimo held a 17-16 lead at half time. Standout Vancouver forward Randy Berg was fouled out at the 4:47 mark of the final quarter. Berg got a game total of 16 points. Gary Williams of Nanaimo got ten points, four of them in the last minute.

A total of 16 teams are competing in the four-day tourney. Finals are scheduled for Saturday. The teams advanced to the provincial championship after winning the titles of their respective zones.

Bananas are not native to Canada . . . and neither are rums. Lemon Hart, for example, is produced under the most wonderful conditions in The Caribbean. But for Lemon Hart, even that is not enough: It's shipped to London where it rests quietly in underground vaults where neither the temperature nor the humidity varies more than a degree or two year in year out. National Hockey League Bonus Pot Biggest Ever

By MARVEN MOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The National Hockey League bonus pot carries a whopping $220,000 this season.

The players will complete the process of slicing it up during the remaining 11 days of the schedule and the post-season playoffs.

This year the total is bigger than ever because the NHL doubled the cash for all-star team selections and the six individual trophy competitions.

A system of payments based on half - season performances was devised, over and above the lump sum for the over-all winners.

The total breaks down this way:

There is $54,000 for the four top teams at the windup of the schedule. Toronto, Chicago, Montreal and Detroit have already qualified, excluding New York and Boston.

Another $135,000 is to be distributed for Stanley Cup performance.

The money for each team is split into 18 equal units. It's up to the players to decide who deserves a full share. Usually they make provision for such team personnel as the trainer with partial shares.

$1,500 FOR FIRST

For the first-place club each share is $1,500. The figure drops regressively to $250 for the fourth-place club.

In the Stanley Cup scramble, the NHL profers $1,500 units for the two semi-final winners and $750 for the losers. The emerging clubs then scrap for a unit payoff of $2,000 with a $1,000 consolation for the loser.

A total of $18,000 rides on the all-star selections and there is $13,000 in the pool for the individual trophy winners.

Half-season leaders get $500 and the top over-all performers $1,000. Runners-up in each case receive half the amount.

Two members of Chicago Black Hawks, goalie Glenn Hall and defenceman Pierre Pilote, stand to pick up more bonus money than anyone else around the league this season.

PLENTY OF 'IFS'

Both have a $9,000 potential. To realize it the Hawks have to emerge atop the standings. They have to win the Stanley Cup. Both men have to lead the all-star balloting at the respective positions for the second-half as they did in the first half. (Hall was actually tied for the No. 1 spot with Detroit's Terry Sawchuk.)

Hall has to turn in another top-ranked performance in the second-half Vezina Trophy race and the same goes for Pilote in the Norris competition for the outstanding defenceman.

After a three-day break in the schedule, all six teams swing into action tonight.

The Hawks, tied with Toronto for first-place with 76 points, meet the Bruins in Boston while the Maple Leafs battle the Canadiens in Montreal. Detroit Red Wings are at home to New York Rangers in the other game.

Canada to Meet Mexico in 1963 Davis Cup Opener

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada will meet Mexico in the first round of the 1963 North Aemrican Davis Cup draw, it was announced Wednesday. Dates and site are undecided.

The Canadian Lawn Tennis Association said it has invited Mexico to play in Canada, although it is Mexico's turn to be host. In 1961 Mexico defeated Canada 3-2 in Quebec City.

Mexico was a sensation in 1962 Davis Cup play, defeating the United States, Yugoslavia, Sweden and India before bowing to Australia in the challenge round.

Canada's 1962 team was composed of captain Don Fontana, Toronto, Francois Godbout, Waterloo, Que., Keith Carpenter, Montreal, and Harry Fauquier, Toronto. The 1963 team has not yet been chosen.

Some Swedes Have Impression That Canadians Are Rough Lot

By ROD CURRIE

STOCKHOLM (CP) — Are Swedish hockey fans as anti-Canadian as they seem to be?

The answer isn't so simple.

To an outsider, it looks as though there's a division of opinion.

Those Swedes who don't know much about hockey and confine their reading to the less serious papers appear to be convinced that the Canadians are a bloodthirsty, bad-mannered bunch.

But Swedish youngsters and others who follow hockey with some understanding mainly respect the visitors as tough men who play a tough game as it should be played.

Teen - age rooters in this hockey-struck city are enthusiastic about collecting Canadian autographs. They have their books well organized, with the pages carefully lined, and the player's name has to go in just the right place.

There also are expressions of goodwill toward Canada. One rotund, elderly businessman approached this reporter and said:

"I hope you Canadians won't go away with unhappy memories of what our papers have been writing about you."

But there also seems to be a kind of closed-mind attitude, even on the part of some serious Swedes.

ATMOSPHERE WAS STORMY

Before the world championships opened here, the atmosphere was somewhat stormy. The brawl at the exhibition game in Goteborg, in which Canadian coach Bobby Kromm was struck by a splinter of ice, left a sour taste.

Swedes have a reputation as a stolid, soft - spoken people. Their Scandinavian reserve may be ruffled by brash behavior and uninhibited language.

"This just doesn't suit the Swedish temperament," one resident said.

But I was surprised to hear a veteran Swedish reporter, reputed to have wide contacts, who passed along as fact unconfirmed rumors about the Canadian players.

There are the usual misunderstandings based on differences of approach. In Europe generally, players go gently on bodychecks. What Canadians regard as innocuous tactics bring the house down here.

After a mild game between Canada and the United States, the tabloid Expressen published on its front page a picture showing a Trail Smoke Eater holding an American against the boards.

No penalty was awarded—but the picture probably made a deep impression on Swedes who never saw a hockey game.

All these things, coupled with national pride, tend to leave some Swedes with the impression that Canadians are a rough lot. It's hard to say how widespread the impression is, but it seems to be fairly prevalent.

BAUER RETURNS AFTER SIZING UP OPPOSITION

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Rev. David Baurer, who will coach Canada's next Olympic hockey team, left by air for Canada Wednesday after sizing up the opposition at the current world hockey championships.

"I came here to see just what kind of players we will require in Canada's team." Father Baurer said. After watching the teams in action for the last three days he remarked, "I have to say they are very good."

The 1964 Olympic team, not yet selected, will be made up mostly of college students, some older graduate students and some senior amateurs, he said. It probably would be the most truly amateur team Canada has sent into world competition for a good number of years.

Father Baurer was heading for Toronto to coach his University of British Columbia Thunderbirds in the intercollegiate finals next weekend.

Ultra-Modern Stadium Lacks Dressing Rooms

By ROD CURRIE

STOCKHOLM (CP) — The ultra-modern, ultra - efficient new ice stadium here is something like a posh gambling casino without a powder room.

Sitting on a frozen hill a 10-minute subway ride from downtown Stockholm, the new stadium, with a capacity for 16,000 spectators, resembles a small - scale United Nations building.

In an arch in front of the aluminum - glass - concrete building fly the flags of the 21 nations now competing in the 1963 world hockey championships.

Inside, amid all the glitter and color, the operation of the stadium, like most such institutions in Stockholm, goes like clockwork.

The one big drawback—there are no dressing rooms, a source of considerable inconvenience to the players and the press.

The players change in their hotel, tramp past fashionably-dressed guests lounging in the lobby, and drive by bus to the stadium where they don their skates in a small locker room. After the game they return to their hotel to shower, change and eat.

REPORTERS COMPLAIN

When some of the hundreds of reporters covering the games complained that they had no opportunity for the traditional post - game dressing-room comment, it was arranged to have the two coaches concerned meet the press briefly in a nearby lunchroom.

Bobby Kromm, coach of Canada's Trail Smoke Eaters, usually brings along one of his players.

The stadium was completed about four months ago but work on landscaping the surrounding grounds won't start until spring.

Adding to the color inside the stadium are eyecatching Swedish blondes in crimson, fur-trimmed uniforms, selling drinks and snacks and men in pink-and-white candy - striped coats, white caps and white wooden shoes selling hot dogs and coffee from steam tables.

Officials — timekeepers, announcers, penalty box attendants—wear navy blue topcoats with dark red felt hats trimmed with white braid.

The ushers are turned out in grey slacks and royal blue-and-gold jackets and wedge caps.

Trans - Canada Car Rally One Of Major Events

LONDON (Reuters) — The Trans-Canada Car Rally will be one of five major world motor contests to count towards a new world championship trophy, the Royal Automobile Club announced Tuesday.

The club said the trophy would be awarded to the make of car scoring the highest points in four out of five of the following rallies:

The Trans-Canada Rally, the East African Safari, the Scandinavian Rally of the Midnight Sun, the Liege-Sofia-Liege Rally, and the RAC British International Rally.

Giants' Holdout Problems Ended As Maricahl Signs

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Right-hander Juan Maricahl signed an estimated $25,000 contract with San Francisco Giants Wednesday, ending the National League baseball champions' spring hold-out woes.

Maricahl, who had sought $30,000, an increase of $13,000, was 18.11 last year. He reached the compromise with Giants vice president Chub Feeney after two days of negotiations. He signed less than 24 hours after Orlando Cepeda, the other principal Giants holdout.

NOTED DOCTOR DIES

BOSTON (AP)—Dr. Charles S. Curtis, 73, former superintendent of the Grenfell Mission in Newfoundland and Labrador, died here Wednesday. Dr. Curtis was associated with Sir Wilfred T. Grenfell, founder of the Grenfell mission at St. Anthony, Nfld. for several years.

Dodgers' Duke Snider Asks To Be Traded

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Duke Snider, one - time king of Los Angeles Dodgers' power hitters, has asked to be traded.

That was the situation Wednesday as the 36-year-old outfielder arrived here with the Dodgers for an exhibition game against Milwaukee Braves.

Snider, unable to beat out Ron Fairly, Willie Davis or Frank Howard for a starting outfield berth, presented his request to Dodger general manager Buzzie Bavasi Tuesday after fresh reports that either he or Wally Moon, another spare flychaser, will be sent to another club.

"Duke feels he could still play regularly for some other club," Bavasi said. "But he still has much value to the Dodgers and I told him to sit still—that the thing would work itself out."

Heads for Hoop Championships

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal's Yvan Coutu Huskies left Wednesday by plane for Lethbridge to compete in the Canadian senior basketball championships.

The Huskies, who will represent Eastern Canada in the four team round - robin tournament starting tonight, were strengthened by the addition of two tall centres—Barry Agre of Ottawa Fellers and Don McRae of McMaster University.

The team winning the Lethbridge tournament will form the nucleus for Canada's basketball entry in the Pan American Games next month in Brazil. In years of international games, teams are allowed to recruit players from the clubs they have eliminated.

Coach Vince Drake said his squad, which has racked up a 23-1 won and lost record this season, will have to rely on speed and playmaking ability. The favored Lethbridge Broncs, defending champions, have five player more than six feet seven inches tall.

Writer Must Cut Out Strip Tease

LONDON (AP)—Arthur Fox has had to write stripteasers out of the script for his campaign for Parliament.

Fox opened his campaign Tuesday with two leggy but fully dressed lovelies on the platform with him.

They were strippers from the Manchester night club which Fox owns. Both were foreigners — Gloria (Baby Doll) Ayala and Fraulein von Manuela.

The home office ordered Fox to campaign without his girls after the Variety Artists' Union complained that the girls' work permits didn't say they could go electioneering.

Arrest Seven

NEW YORK (AP) — Detectives arrested seven persons including a former college basketball star Tuesday night and seized heroin valued at $250,000 police said today.

They identified one of those arrested as Ed Warner, 33, a Negro who played on a championship city college of New York basketball team and became involved in the "gambling fix" scandals.

NATO Nuclear Talks Wind Up

LONDON (Reuters) — Livingston Merchant, President Kennedy's special NATO envoy Wednesday concluded two days of talks with British officials on the proposed $5,000,000,000 mixed-manned NATO nuclear force.

He wound up with a 90-minute conference with the Earl of Home, foreign secretary.

Authoritative British sources said only that the talks had gone well and both sides were satisfied with them.

A foreign office spokesman was asked Wednesday about "cool and tepid" British reaction to the United States plan for a fleet of merchant ships armed with Polaris missiles.

The spokesman told a press conference "the best thing I can do is refer you to the statement last night that the talks have been very satisfactory to both sides concerned."

Lord Home was assisted at Wednesday's talks by Deputy Foreign Minister Edward Heath.

A foreign office spokesman said after Tuesday's meeting between Merchant and Home that the talks "were very satisfactory to both sides concerned."

The veteran U.S. diplomat, who is touring Western Europe to promote the force among NATO members, also met Tuesday in "very satisfactory" talks with Prime Minister Macmillan.

LONDON (Reuters) — Anglo-American talks on the proposed multilateral NATO nuclear force have revealed a "wide area of common understanding" on various elements of the proposal, it was announced Wednesday.

The announcement came in a communique issued by the foreign office at the end of two days of talks between President Kennedy's envoy, Livingston Merchant, and top British officials, including Prime Minister Macmillan.

The communique said the talks confirmed that the agreement in principle between the British and United States governments for a multilateral force would make an important contribution to the unity and strength of NATO.

ARMED WITH POLARIS

The communique said no decisions were expected at these talks, but they gave rise to a useful exchange of views in which Merchant set out U.S. views on the way in which a mixed-manned multilateral seaborne force, armed with Polaris missiles, might be brought into being.

"British ministers assured Mr. Merchant of Her Majesty's government's continuing support for the idea and their hope of finding ways to participate in the project," it said.

"Similarly Mr. Merchant expressed the support of the United States government for the early creation of a NATO nuclear force out of existing forces," the communique said.

Two Provinces Eager For More Money

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The need for more money to meet provincial needs occupied members of two legislatures Tuesday.

The Nova Scotia assembly gave unanimous approval to a resolution from Premier Stanfield calling for the federal government to recognize "fiscal need" in its system of equalization payments to the provinces.

At Winnipeg, Premier Roblin told the Manitoba legislature the province might have a new form of taxation in a few years to take some of the burden from municipal taxpayers.

Mr. Roblin's reference to a new tax came after Liberal criticism of high property taxes as a result of the introduction of uniform assessment in Manitoba last year.

The premier said: "If there is to be a transfer of costs from the municipal taxpayer to some other level—and that may be in the cards—then we are faced with a new set of problems and decisions. . . . There will have to be some other kind of tax."

N.B. GOES TO POLLS

The business of other legislatures:

Fredericton—The New Brunswick House was thrown into a cheering uproar when Liberal Premier Robichaud announced a general election for April 22 on the issue of industrial development, after Conservative Leader C. B. Sherwood said arrangements for a pulpwood mill in the Miramichi area appeared to be a "fantastic public scandal of large proportions."

Liberals hold 31 of the legislature's 52 seats. Conservatives hold the other 21.

Quebec—Deputy Health Minister Dr. Jean Gregoire and two other Quebec government officials submitted resignations after Premier Lesage published the report of a government inquiry commission which found a "gigantic fraud on the public" in the administration of a Gaspe sanatorium.

BOOST PAYMENTS

Toronto — Higher payments under the Workmen's Compensation Act were introduced by Labor Minister Leslie Rowntree, providing increases in the maximum benefits to $4,500 from $3,750 a year and higher pensions for children who have lost parents in an industrial accident.

Transport Minister James Auld announced a new system of three-year drivers' licences to be introduced at the end of 1963 and said the department is studying a three-year system of vehicle licence plates.

Regina—Walter Erb, former CCF health minister and now Liberal member for Milestone, introduced a non-confidence motion, contending the budget does not meet Saskatchewan's needs despite excessive taxation.

Edmonton — E. G. Hansell (SC—Okotoks-High River) said juvenile crime can be reduced by imposing whippings on young offenders since the "proper sentences can teach young hoodlums a lesson."

Victoria—A Montana contractor, whose affidavit of excessive highway department spending sparked a legislative investigation, testified that former logging company official Bert Lymburner was hired at $1,000 a month to "keep the door greased" between his company and Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi.

HORSE COLLARS NOT ENOUGH, APPARENTLY—Pickets representing the "Society for Indecency to Naked Animals" tramp the pavement outside the White House fence demanding presidential support for their campaign to put clothing on animals. This pair is Bill Moran, 65, and Jeanne Spencer, both from New York.

Coast Mills' Production Up

VANCOUVER (CP) — Sawmills along the B.C. coast produced more than 3,000,000,000 board feet of lumber last year, an increase of 5.7 per cent over 1961.

T. E. Burgess, retiring president of the British Columbia Lumber Manufacturers' Association, told the annual meeting that coast mills cut 52 per cent of total B.C. production in 1962.

The United States remained the province's largest customer, he said, purchasing about 43 per cent of total production.

Shipments to the United Kingdom rose five per cent, while quotas, tariffs and other restrictions held down sales to South Africa.

Sales to the European Common Market, however, rose 33 per cent to 90,000,000 board feet.

Nuclear Bomb Production Is Big Business in United States

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

In a little - noted speech, George Bundy, President Kennedy's security adviser, recently disclosed that the United States has an inventory of "tens of thousands" of nuclear weapons and that "we make thousands more each year."

Clearly, nuclear bomb production is big business in the United States. A lot of opposition would develop — as indicated in the U.S. Congress—by some scientists, military authorities, politicans and uranium mine operators if the U.S. suddenly agreed with the Soviet Union on a nuclear test ban treaty and presented such a treaty for ratification by the U.S. senate.

But while the use of uranium in bomb production might slow down if bombs are not exploded in tests, production for on-the-shelf inventory is likely to continue until some disarmament agreement is reached.

The U.S. has so many bombs and continues to produce so many more that the U.S. administration feels it can make a good case for a treaty, based on the estimate that the present U.S. nuclear inventory is far superior to that of the Russians.

SEVEN INSPECTIONS

Thus, it may be a bit of a puzzle why the administration stands firm on demanding at least seven on-site inspections of Soviet territory annually as the prime price for a treaty particularly in view of State Secretary Rusk's statement that the U.S. has many clandestine as well as open means of detecting Soviet nuclear explosions—in the atmosphere and underground.

The U.S. administration has been bitterly attacked by Republicans and right-wing Democrats in Congress for having gradually watered down American demands in treaty negotiations while the Russians have done little to escalate their own concessions. The Russians refuse to allow more than three on-site inspections a year and won't negotiate further details until this offer is accepted by the West.

Rusk and his associates tried to get the message across to Congress, without breaching security, that the U.S. has ample means of telling, within a relative degree of accuracy, whenever Russians explode a nuclear device of any significant size. This is possible through improved long - range seismic apparatus as well as other intelligence-gathering means.

CONCLUSIVE PROOF

Why, then, the need of seven on-site inspections? Mainly, it appears, to produce conclusive proof to the world that cheating has taken place if the Russians should attempt a series of sneak tests.

It can be predicted authoritatively that the U.S. in fact might be willing to reduce the present demand of seven inspections — which compares with 20-a-year originally proposed—if Russia is ready to negotiate detailed on-site inspection procedure and to establish clearly the size of the area available for inspection.

So far, Rusk has stated, the outlook for a treaty is dim. But some American authorities are convinced the last door on negotiations has not been opened and that the Russians may make some further move when the dust settles over the present unsettled state of affairs in Asia and Europe.

Toronto Police Work With United States

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto police said Tuesday they are co-operating with police in the United States to help crack what they call an international car-theft ring with parts exchange depots in Toronto.

Det. - Sgt. Kenneth Craven and Det. Robert McBride are working with Federal Bureau of Investigation officers and United States municipal police to round up U.S. members of the gang.

Police said cars stolen in Buffalo, Detroit and Toronto during the last eight months have been recovered in Windsor, Edmonton, and New Westminster, B.C.

A man in New Westminster has been arrested in connection with the case, police said, and Kenneth P. Reeves, 29, of Toronto was charged Monday with possession of four cars recovered in the Canadian cities.

War Declared On Tribesmen

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — An Iranian provincial governor declared war Wednesday on southern tribesmen resisting the shah's sweeping land reform program. He said they would be bombed or hanged in 24 hours.

Gen. Karim Varahram, governor of Fars province in southwestern Iran, said the bombardment would be carried out Thursday by the Iranian aor force, probably using U.S.-supplied F-86 jet fighters.

Varahram confirmed that rebellious Ghashghaei tribesmen had killed officers and gendarmes in raids on police posts. Press reports said previously 40 tribesmen and 10 officers and gendarmes were killed during the first Ghashghaei attack early this month.

There are about 200,000 Ghashghaeis who are chiefly cattle breeders. They have been nomads for centuries, living in black woolen tents.

National Book Awards To Poet, Biographer

NEW YORK (CP)—The National Book Awards for 1962 have been won by fiction writer J. F. Powers, biographer Leon Edel and poet William E. Stafford.

The $1,000 awards for the most distinguished books in three classifications, written by United States citizens and published in the U.S. in the year preceding presentation, were announced Tuesday.

Powers, 45, of St. Cloud, Minn., took the $1,000 fiction prize with Morte d'Urban, his first published novel.

Stafford, 49, of Portland, Ore. won the poetry prize with Travelling Through the Dark.

The non-fiction prize went to Edel, 56, a New York University lecturer, for the second and third volumes of his four-volume biography, Henry James.

Edel was born in Pittsburgh, but moved to Canada with his family at the age of four and was brought up and educated at Yorkton, Sask., and Montreal.

He worked as a reporter and editor on Canadian newspapers and with the Canadian Press.

The prizes are donated by three book trade organizations.

'THE WOLF' CAPTURED

ROME (Reuters) — Police Wednesday captured Vito (The Wolf) Nardiello, an outlaw under sentence of life imprisonment for murder and robbery. Nardiello had hidden for 12 years in the bleak mountains of south Italy. Nardiello, 39, had a price of 3,000,000 lira (about $5,000) on his head. He is accused of killing a policeman who found his hideout after he escaped from jail in 1951.

Russian Delegation Eager For Trade Pact With Canada

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—A four-member Russian trade delegation is anxious to reach agreement as soon as possible with the Canadian government on renewal of te current trade agreement between the two countries.

The delegation, headed by big, affable Andrei Manjulo, chief of the Western countries trade department in the Soviet foreign trade ministry, arrived Tuesday night and was met by a group of Canadian trade and foreign affairs officials headed by J. H. Warren, an assistant deputy minister of the trade department.

Asked how long the talks are expected to last, Mr. Manjulo said:

"That depends—on our colleagues. We are ready. We wish to reach an agreement as soon as possible, but trade is two-sided."

Objective of the closed-door discussions will be renegotiation of a trade agreement originally signed in 1956 and extended in 1960 for three years. There were preliminary exploratory talks in Moscow last November.

In the past, the Russians have expressed concern that Canada has not bought more from the Soviet Union. The trade agreement makes no requirement for Canadian purchases and the Canadian government has reminded Russia it cannot compel Canadian businessmen to buy.

Canada sold Russia $24,275,644 worth of goods in 1961, but sales dropped sharply last year to $3,296,596 mainly as the result of Russian cuts in wheat and nickel ingot purchases. Last year, Canada sold Russia hides, plastics and synthetic rubbers.

Strategic goods are not traded.

Canadian imports from Russia, mainly fur skins, alloys for steel manufactures and some chemicals, amounted to $2,745,727 in 1961 and to $1,304,289 in the first nine months of 1962.
