Banks Found Guilty of Conspiracy

Russ-Sino Rift Evident In Red May Day Parades

Castro Links Arms With Both Camps

By The Associated Press

The Communist nations paraded their weaponry before the world Friday, but on this day of labor solidarity the Moscow-Peking rift was evident in the big celebrations in the Soviet Union and Communist China.

Troops and weapons of war thundered through the streets of Communist capitals from Moscow to Havana, and Russian equipment was displayed in a parade in Zanzibar.

Premier Khrushchev, after watching a parade of Soviet rockets in Moscow's Red Square, warned the United States that continued U.S. reconnaissance flights over Cuba could be disastrous.

But his big pitch was to Africa, where Red China has challenged Soviet Union influence. Khrushchev rolled out the red carpet for President Ahmed Ben Bella of Algeria, made him a guest of honor at the parade and gave him the Lenin Peace Prize and the Soviet Union's hero medal, the country's highest award.

The Russians refused to attend the Peking rally and withdrew an invitation to a Chinese labor delegation to view Moscow's parade in Red Square.

In Peking, Premier Chou En-Lai boasted of Communist China's new strength and said his country would win its ideological quarrel with the Russians and other Communist critics.

Peking's celebration was boycotted by East Germany, Bulgaria, Hungary, Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia, in addition to Russia.

The sun had set on the May Day festivities in the two big Communist capitals when the Western Hemisphere's Communist leader, Cuban Premier Fidel Castro, took the stage in Havana. Castro and other top Cuban leaders, marching with linked arms, opened the parade. Huge portraits of Khrushchev and Red China's Mao Tse-tung were carried side by side.

The Cuban premier, as expected, said the U.S. has no right to fly over Cuba. He said the U.S. knows what weapons Cuba has and knows "that we will be in condition to use these arms."

A parade of troops and tanks in East Berlin brought a joint protest from the Western allies that it was "a blatantly militaristic demonstration" violating Berlin's four-power status.

After the Communist East German regime paraded troops, tanks, artillery and rockets on the Marx-Engels Square in East Berlin, U.S. British and French garrison commanders of West Berlin said: "It is once again clear on which side of the wall militarism has been fostered."

They pointed to peaceful demonstrations in West Berlin, where Mayor Willy Brandt recalled the visit last June to Berlin of the late president John F. Kennedy and said "his message of peace still lives in Berlin." Brandt and West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard spoke to about 500,000 Berliners. The chancellor called for peace and German unity.

Communist arms, including new anti-aircraft rockets and a flyover of supersonic jets, were displayed by the Soviet Union's independent Communist ally, Yugoslavia. President Tito and other leaders reviewed this parade in Belgrade.

Romania's parade reflected the regime's neutral stand in the Soviet-Chinese feud. The Romanians included the Peking regime in their May Day messages.

Communist leaders of Hungary, Czechoslovakia and Bulgaria addressed brotherly greetings to the Soviet Union but ignored the Communist Chinese.

LISBON (AP)—A civilian was killed by gunfire following street demonstrations in this Portuguese capital Friday night. Two others were reported wounded.

Steel-helmeted police, shouldering rifles and burp guns, broke up several international Labor Day demonstrations in the downtown area. Shots fired into the air by police shattered a few windows.

Don't Bug Your Neighbor, High Court Says

LONDON (AP) —The British High Court solemnly ordered Charles R. Stonor to quit making faces at his neighbor, Ingram Poole.

An injunction signed by Justice Sir John Pennycuick Friday also directed Stonor to cease and desist forthwith from:

"Whooping, dancing, shouting, raving, mocking, jeering, gesturing, hissing, cat-calling and making gobbling noises at Poole, members of his household, visitors, servants and agents."

The order further restrained Stonor from "otherwise causing distress to such persons, and affixing notice and writing upon or flashing lights over Mr. Poole's property."

Stonor also consented to paying Poole £200 damages for wear and tear on his nerves.

No explanation was offered for the bad neighbor policy.

Justice Pennycuick assessed Stonor £600 in court costs.

Interfering Mother-in-Law Sued

PORTLAND (AP) — A circuit court jury Friday awarded $65,000 damages to a woman who sued her former mother-in-law for alienation of affections.

Mrs Eunice Schmeer contended in her suit that the mother-in-law, Anne M. Schmeer, was responsible for her April 5, 1963, forced from Robert S. Schmeer.

Mrs Schmeer said the mother-in-law criticized her cooking and housekeeping and encouraged her husband to associate with other women.

The jury awarded $40,000 general damages and $25,000 punitive damages.

Parliament

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Opposition members said Transport Minister Pickersgill forced the CBC to let him make a TV a statement on air policy he should have made in the Commons.

Mr. Pickersgill denied his Thursday statement about TCA and CPA integrating their overseas services constituted government policy.

A Conservative censure motion against Mr. Pickersgill was ruled out by the speaker, whose decision was upheld 111-63.

Works Minister Deschatelets said his department is prepared to study conditions in a given area to see how it can stimulate economic activity.

INDIANS THWART QUEBEC

QUEBEC (CP) — George Lalime, Quebec cultural affairs minister, said Friday his department didn't pay a cent towards the cost of sending a band of Huron Indians to Tours, France where they are representing Quebec.

Operations of a fair in Tours were giving a false image of the province by depicting the Indians, from a reserve near Quebec City, as representatives of the real owners of the province.

"You would die laughing," Mr. Lapalme said in the legislative assembly. "We spend millions to maintain Quebec House in Paris to get publicity and this is the description given Quebec."

"Enlightened Capitalism" — Bennett

VANCOUVER (CP) — Premier W. A. C. Bennett said Thursday night the aim of his Social Credit government has been to provide British Columbians with "enlightened capitalism."

Social Credit has tried to take the best of "the so-called left, right and centre."

It had been "more conservative than the Conservatives in financial matters, more liberal than the Liberals in terms of providing the nation's highest old-age and social assistance benefits, and ever more in favor of public ownership than the CCF because of our ferry system and hydro program."

Speaking to Vancouver Junior Chamber of Commerce, the premier said the government expropriated the B.C. Electric Company in 1961 because it had to choose between "high-cost private power and low-cost public power."

AGONY COLUMN NEWS

OTTAWA (CP) — Is a new political party on the horizon?

The Ottawa Journal carried the following advertisement in its personal column Friday:

"Men wanted as candidates for next federal election. Must believe in God and understand finance and banking."

MAYBE FISCHER QUINTS AREN'T—Pictured at their home in Aberdeen, S. D., recently, the famous, 7-month-old Fischer quintuplets, born prematurely Sept. 14, 1963, may not be quints after all, according to a copyright story in the May 2 issue of the Saturday Evening Post. They now are believed to be identical triplets and two single babies. James Andrew (center), only boy in the group, is surrounded by his sisters (clockwise), Mary Margaret, Mary Catherine, Mary Magdalene and Mary Ann.

Viet Cong Sabotages U.S. Aircraft Transport

SAIGON (AP) — Communist terrorists sank a U.S. aircraft transport in Saigon Harbor on Friday.

All 73 men of the civilian crew were reported safe.

The Communist guerrillas blew a hole into the 9800-ton USS Card below the waterline. The ship had arrived here with a cargo of helicopters and fighter bombers.

It was the first time a major U.S. vessel had been sunk in the battle against Viet Cong guerrillas.

The Card had taken on a cargo of old helicopters for return to the U.S. and had been scheduled to sail later today.

The explosion occurred at 5 a.m. Saigon time and the ship began sinking almost immediately.

The ship settled onto the muddy bottom of the 48-foot-deep Saigon River with its flight deck and superstructure above water.

Civilian Capt. Borge Langeland, 55, of New Orleans, said there was a possibility the ship would capsize.

Quiet Arms Build-Up Along Florida Coast

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States has started another major build-up of troops and planes on the Florida coastline, it was learned authoritatively Friday.

An informant said the buildup is being undertaken quietly for possible action in the event Castro carries out his threat to shoot down American U-2 reconnaissance planes which have been flying over Cuba since the 1962 Cuban missile crisis.

He said the U.S. does not believe Castro will carry out his threat, but if he does, the U.S. wants to be in a position to move quickly with counter-action.

He gave no indication how far the U.S. would carry such counter-action; whether it would mean an aerial bombardment of Cuba or an invasion attempt.

'May Day' Baby Born to Princess

LONDON (Reuters) — Princess Margaret gave birth Friday to her second child, a girl, in the same London palace where Queen Victoria was born.

Margaret's baby weighed six pounds, two ounces, it was announced Friday night.

Mother and baby continue to make good progress, the announcement added.

The baby's father, the Earl of Snowdon, 34, said after seeing his daughter: "She looks a super baby. It is marvellous news."

The child becomes seventh in line to the British throne.

PM Pushes Flag At Legion Meet

ESPANOLA, Ont. (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson Friday took his argument for a new Canadian flag into a hall of the Royal Canadian Legion—an organization that stoutly supports the Red Ensign as Canada's official flag.

Mr. Pearson had just become an honorary president of the Legion's Branch 39 in this Algoma East Town, represented in the Commons by the prime minister when he expressed the hope that Canadians would be bound more closely under new symbols.

"We hope to be able to agree before long on national symbols that will bring us together in a way that will show no disrespect to those other symbols that mean so much to us."

He mentioned ties with England as being among those other symbols.

He referred only to "symbols" throughout his remarks.

GM to Build In Quebec

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Jean Lesage Friday announced that General Motors of Canada Limited will build an automobile production plant at Ste. Therese de Blainville, about 20 miles north of Montreal.

The premier made the announcement at a press conference. With him was E. H. Walker, president of General Motors of Canada.

The plant will employ 1,000 persons when it begins operations, probably in the summer of 1965.

It will employ in a very short time more than 2,500 people, said Mr. Walker.

Production would start with Chevrolet and Pontiac 1966 models. Buick and Oldsmobile models would be built later.

VIOLIN BRINGS £8000

LONDON (AP) — A Stradivarius violin, dated 1719, sold at a Sotheby auction Friday for £8,000. It was offered by a London woman, and bought by a dealer for a violinist living in England whom he did not name.

Politics Affect Bridge Tourney

NEW YORK (AP) — Teams from the United Arab Republic and Lebanon are under orders from their governments not to play an Israeli team in the 30-country world bridge Olympiad which started Friday.

The UAR captain, Omar Sharif, made the report of the boycott plans against Israel Thursday.

Each of the 30 national teams will play every other team at least once.

Possible 14-Year Sentence For "Act of Gangsterism"

By STRUAN MATHESON

MONTREAL (CP)—Hal C. Banks, former president of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada (Ind.), was convicted Friday on a charge of conspiring to assault a rival union official seven years ago.

The burly, 56-year-old accused showed no emotion on hearing the verdict at the end of a 56-page judgment which took Judge Claude Wagner two hours and 20 minutes to read to a packed court. However, tears came to his eyes as he was being taken to cells.

Banks' $2000 bail was cancelled and he was ordered held in Bordeaux Jail until sentencing Tuesday, when defence counsel Joseph Cohen said an appeal will be filed and application for bail will be made.

Banks was charged with conspiracy to assault Capt. Henry Walsh with intent to wound, maim or disfigure. The organizer for the Canadian Merchant Service Guild (CLC) was beaten up Aug. 18, 1957, in a darkened hotel parking lot in Owen Sound, Ont.

Paul Carsh and Jack Richardson of Montreal and Jack Casper of Sacramento, Calif., were named as co-conspirators in the charge, which carries a 14-year maximum sentence.

In his judgment, Judge Wagner said:

"The court has come to the conclusion that the beating of Capt. Walsh was a manifest act of gangsterism agreed to, prepared, ordered, directed and supervised by Harold Chamberlain Banks.

"The court has no hesitation whatsoever in finding the accused guilty as charged."

He said Banks' profession of faith in a policy of non-violence at the trial is "incompatible with the evidence this court has heard."

"Not only has it been established beyond a reasonable doubt that a beating took place, but it has also been established and also beyond a reasonable doubt, that this beating was ordered by the accused.

"The accused has taken such liberties with the truth in his testimony that it is now impossible for this court to believe him."

The judge described Banks' attitude in his testimony to Capt. Walsh's beating as "flippant."

The doctor who saw Capt. Walsh after the beating noticed he had been the victim of a concussion of the brain, of multiple contusions and abrasions and that he was covered with bruises from head to foot.

DESCRIPTION SHOCKING

"The description of the injuries was so shocking that the court on this point cannot accept the flippant attitude shown by the accused when he was questioned," Judge Wagner said.

He referred to testimony in which Banks said: "I don't run on every rumor if somebody got a slap on the side of the head."

Judge Wagner commented:

"Well, at least as far as this court is concerned, we know how badly Capt. Walsh was hurt and we know that until this day, his legs are weak and he is lame."

He paid particular attention to evidence by Capt. J. J. Deslauriers, brought in by the prosecution as a rebuttal witness after defence witnesses had testified.

Capt. Deslauriers, then business agent in Montreal for the Deck Officers' Guild, testified he had been in Banks' office in 1957 and heard him complain of Capt. Walsh's activities, saying "it is about time to take action or about time to do something about this punk."

"The court is unable to accept the interpretation given by defence counsel John Ahern to this incident when it is submitted that the accused was behaving like any businessman would.

"It would be disturbing, indeed if businessmen were in the habit of behaving this way," Judge Wagner said.

ORDERED ASSAULT

Crown witnesses testified Banks ordered Carsh, Richardson and Casper to assault Capt. Walsh.

Bruce Smith, a marine engineer from Thorold, Ont., said he located Capt. Walsh for Carsh and Richardson.

"It is true that under cross-examination, this man appeared frightened but seemed decided to let the truth prevail," the judge said. "The hesitations which were his are perfectly understandable in view of his membership in the SIU.

"They are more understandable that at the prompting of Leonard McLaughlin, executive vice-president of the SIU, it was suggested to him that he proceed to the defence attorney's office before testifying instead of going directly to the prosecution who had subpoenaed him."

He criticized Mr. McLaughlin's act as "inappropriate."

"The court wishes to state that it entertains very little regard for the conduct of Mr. McLaughlin, who more than any other member of the union was familiar with the sentiments of the man at the top.

FAVORS ACCUSED

"This Mr. McLaughlin in his testimony gave us the definite impression that he was bent on favoring the accused by attempting to minimize the motives which had prompted the beating of Capt. Walsh."

Mr. McLaughlin is scheduled to replace Banks, removed by the board of maritime trustees in March, as SIU president although no date for this has yet been set.

Judge Wagner dismissed testimony of the defence witnesses saying "these gentlemen are agreed on one thing: To deny and to deny until the end any association whatsoever with the incident of the beating of Capt. Walsh."

Crown witness Richard Greaves, president of the National Association of Marine Engineers (CLC), was described as "not merely a witness to the conspiracy" but a man whose actions "resemble much more the actions of a co-conspirator."

Greaves testified he received a letter from a union member saying Capt. Walsh had been overheard saying he supported John McGough, a union rival of Greaves, in their struggle for power on the Great Lakes.

SPARKED TROUBLE

Judge Wagner said Greaves' action of showing this letter to Banks was "the spark that lit the fire." Banks supported Greaves' attempts to bring the marine engineers into the SIU welfare fund plan.

"The court finds Greaves was no stranger to the conspiracy but is convinced he was fully aware of the risk which he was assuming in divulging what had happened in the office of the accused," Judge Wagner said.

Banks also faces trial in the May assizes on a charge of conspiring with Mr. McLaughlin and Norman Cunningham, a former SIU official, to assault Greaves four years ago in Vancouver. Neither Mr. McLaughlin nor Mr. Cunningham have been charged.

Banks also faces preliminary hearing June 16 on a charge of conspiring with 14 other SIU officials to entice seamen to abandon ship in connection with last October's SIU march on Ottawa to oppose establishment of the board of trustees.

Work Only Means, Not Goal—Pope Paul

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI told 10,000 Italian workers on this May Day holiday that work is not the ultimate goal in life, "it is only a means."

"Today, on this holiday of labor, we tell you that we know your difficulties in your hard but blessed activity," the Roman Catholic pontiff said. "It is our desire to help you."

He appealed to Christian workers to help their fellow laborers avoid "errors and temptations."

The Pope spoke in a general audience in St. Peter's Basilica.

May Day is a traditional labor holiday here, but it is also the day dedicated by the Roman Catholic Church to St. Joseph, the carpenter of Nazareth, patron saint of working men.

While the Pope spoke, about 45,000 other workers massed in a square before St. John Lateran Basilica, the Pope's see as Bishop of Rome, for the 20th anniversary celebration of the Communist-led Italian General Federation of Labor.

Speakers protested againt the rising cost of living in Italy's present inflation.

BUTLER ARRIVES

TOKYO (Reuters) — British Foreign Secretary R. A. Butler arrived in Tokyo Friday to exchange views with Premier Hayato Ikeda and Foreign Minister Masayoshi Ohira. Butler flew here from the United States to take part in another round of the regular ministerial consultations between Japan and Britain which were initiated last year.

Flood of Columbia Words Expected to Run Dry Soon

OTTAWA (CP) — The intensive Commons committee scrutiny of the Columbia River Treaty with the United States will end in mid-month, evidence indicates.

The last scheduled witness—although there is nothing to prevent others after that—is Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, chief treaty critic whose examination was incomplete after four days. He was granted a recess.

One question mark is the appearance of the Saskatchewan government which had been due May 14 to elaborate on its contention that the 60-year treaty inhibits the possibility in future years of lifting water over the Rocky Mountains from the Columbia basin for Prairie use. Treaty supporters say the plan is impracticable.

A letter from Premier Lloyd was filed Friday with the Commons external affairs committee, seeking a postponement until the apparent Liberal party victory in Saskatchewan has been confirmed. This is expected May 13.

There is some doubt here whether the delay can be granted since the committee may want to close the books and report back to Parliament, which will then proceed with ratification of the treaty and protocol to it, signed last January.

However, it is also possible that the new Saskatchewan government that would be headed by Ross Thatcher might withdraw anyway.

The committee's only alternative is to accept or reject the treaty and recommend accordingly to the House of Commons. The New Democrats still are the only political group opposing it.

Aside from Gen. McNaughton the main remaining witness appears to be former Justice Minister Davie Fulton, now B.C. Conservative leader and the head of the federal-B.C. team negotiating the 1961 treaty with the U.S.

He is due to appear May 11-12. Much of his evidence, committee questioning has indicated, is likely to concern events both before and after the 1961 signing.

Friday the committee completed its 16th day—some of them lengthy three-session sittings—and its fourth week. At a brief meeting, the United Electrical Workers (Ind.) criticised the treaty, the first of several trade unions that will appear starting Monday.

Oct. 1 has been set as treaty ratification deadline, the U.S. is due at that date to have paid $274,800,000 in advance for a 80-year power purchase from B.C. which will more than pay for three storage dams.

VANCOUVER (CP)—Elephants, dandelions and fire-breathing monsters — Vancouver city pound has licences for them all.

"You can get a dog licence for anything," George Massey, city poundkeeper, said Friday.

He was replying to Dale Proud who facetiously applied for and obtained a $2 licence for "one chimera, male" following a pound employee's sleuthing.

Massey wasn't aware his department had licenced a mythical creature — defined as a fire-breathing monster — until Proud's prank was reported in newspapers Thursday.

"You can get one (licence) for a dandelion in your front lawn," Massey retorted. "An elephant if you want. It's fine with us as long as you pay for it."

Proud applied for the chimera licence after a pound employee inspected his home and reported there were three dogs on the property.

Proud admitted owning two dogs — but maintained the third was merely a figment of the city's imagination.

LONDON (CP)—The worst fears of Muriel Wiggle came true Friday when the following notice in the list of undefended divorce suits caught the eye of journalists:

"Goodman (formerly Wiggle) M. G. versus Wiggle (formerly Goodman, formerly Wiggle) T. J."

When being courted by Trevor Wiggle 11 years ago, Muriel agreed to become his wife as long as she didn't become Mrs. Wiggle at the same time. She thought it would make people giggle.

So Trevor changed his name to Goodman. But in the Gloucestershire village of Little Dean where the Wiggle-Goodmans lived, the Wiggles are well established and the name died hard.

Even Trevor couldn't always remember to call himself Goodman and that's why he signed the divorce papers Wiggle.

DEMONSTRATING DRIVING SKILLS that took him to the finals last year in the Teenage Safe Driving Road-e-o is Ken Scheelar, chairman of the Jaycee-sponsored contest Sunday. Teenagers will compete in a battery of driving skill and written tests which start at 10 a.m. in Fairview. Drivers must be over 16 and under 19 when the national finals are held in Toronto July 15. The winner will travel to the provincial finals at Cloverdale at the end of May. Last year Nelson winner Ken Scheelar went on to win the provincial finals and came in second at the national road-e-o.

Soprano Concert Feature Of Musical Workshop

The rich soprano notes of former professional singer Cora James transformed a small stage into the grandeur of a large concert hall for a small Nelson audience Friday night.

Mrs. James' powerful voice, which has reached the apex of maturity, acknowledged encore after encore, called for by the audience, numbering 35.

A professional singer with CBC radio since 1938, her singing career ended when she moved to Golden four years ago from Vancouver.

She began her one-hour program with Handel's "Come Unto Him" from the Messiah. Pat Halleran Green was accompanist.

Her powerful voice filled the room and entranced the responsive group on her second selection, "Jerusalem", by Mendelssohn.

The musical pace quickened with the contemporary number by Machael Heal, "Little Road to Bethlehem."

The attractive brunette rippled unaccompanied along the scales, displaying remarkable depth in the crescendos, dimenuendos in "A Singer.'

Her flawless diction was most noticeable in her selections of American folk songs which she also sang unaccompanied.

ARIAS THRILL

Her operatic arias, "Porgi Amor" from Mozarts "Marriage of Figaro" and "Vissi D' Arte - Vissi D'Amore" from Puccini's Tosca were moving examples of her musical versatility.

"I have a particular love of folk songs," Mrs. James told her audience. Her program ended on a spiritual note with "Sweet Little Jesus Singing."

Mrs. James joined the CBC radio in Winnipeg and has since sung with the Vancouver and Toronto Symphony Orchestras.

During her semi-retirement at Golden for the past four years, Mrs. James has been choir director at the church and has sung to many groups.

Mrs. James will join her husband soon in Saskatoon where she hopes again to start her professional singing career.

Her recital highlighted a church workshop, which ends today, for church musicians from the Kootenays. This is the second workshop held in Nelson.

PANEL SITS TODAY

Saturday morning a panel discussion entitled "The Role of the Church Musician" will be conducted at St. Paul's-Trinity United Church.

Panel members are Rev. Donald Anderson of St. Andrew's Anglican Church, Trail; Rev. Peter Collins, St. Andrew's United Church, Rossland; Rev. Rodney Booth, East Trail United Church, Trail, and Very Rev. Brown, St. Saviour's Pro-Cathedral, Nelson. Moderator is Rev. Peter Faris of St. Paul's-Trinity United Church.

Jean Ellison from the East Trail United Church and Thelma Hindle from St. Paul's-Trinity United Church will conduct a workshop for junior and intermediate choirs starting at 11 a.m.

Following a luncheon for the 25 delegates a music display will be given by Mrs. Sampson-Ayers of Spokane.

Professor Leonard B. Martin of Spokane will speak on "Entertainment or Christian Education in the Choir Loft" at 1:30 p.m.

All choir members in Nelson are invited to attend this session which will involve much choral work.

Professor Martin is a graduate of Westminster Choir College, touring with the choir for three years. He holds a Master's Degree from USC, major musicology.

He is chairman of Metropolitan Opera auditions for Eastern Washington, Western Montana and Northern Idaho. He also adjudicates for choral and vocal festivals.

He is a member of the National Association of Teachers of Singing, Music Teachers National Association and was guest conductor for Music Festival of Church Choirs in Hilo, Hawaii, in 1961.

Professor Martin has been a tenor soloist with San Francisco Bach Society, Bach B Minor Mass. He has been a member of the Music Faculty of Whitworth College for the past 15 years, where he teaches voice, history of music and church music. He is minister of music at Manito Presbyterian Church.

Well Known Creston Man, R. Joyce Dies

CRESTON — Russell M. Joyce, 74, Creston resident for 40 years and prominent in many community activities, died in Trail-Tadanac Hospital Thursday. He resided here at 509 Tenth Avenue.

Mr. Joyce was a past president of the Creston Board of Trade, the Hospital Board and the Creston Curling Club; executive member of the B.C. Curling Association, a Mason, and secretary of the East Kootenay Shrine Club.

He came to Creston in 1924 and worked for the late Sam Speers until 1936, when he opened his own clothing store. He retired in 1955.

He was born in Toronto July 28, 1889, and was raised there. He was educated in Toronto and Owen Sound and moved back to Toronto then to Weyburn, Sask., in 1911. For a time he worked in a store in Maple Creek, Sask.

At the outbreak of World War I, he enlisted with the First Division Motor Transport. In 1919, he returned to Maple Creek to resume working in the men's store. He moved to Medicine Hat in 1924, then to Creston in December of that year. He was married in 1922 to Margaret E. Williscroft in Medicine Hat, Alta.

Besides his wife, he is survived by one son, Murray of Kelowna; one daughter, Mrs. R. E. (Kathleen Isobel) Norris of West Summerland, B.C.; one sister, Miss Mabel Joyce of Toronto and eight grandchildren.

Thomas Burdass Last Rites Held

Funeral services for Thomas Burdass, who died in Nelson Tuesday, were conducted at St. Saviour's Pro-Cathedral Friday, Very Rev. R. W. S. Brown and Ven. Archdeacon F. D. Wyatt officiating.

Hymns, "He is Risen" and "Let Saints on Earth in Concert Sing," were sung with Mrs. W. A. Manson playing the organ.

Pallbearers were A. W. Moore, Tom Stenson, D. Turner, J. H. Whitfield, R. T. Proctor and Phil Deerward.

Interment followed in the Anglican plot of Nelson Memorial Park.

KUJUNDZIC CHOSEN FOR "WHO'S WHO"

Zeljko Kujundzic ,principal of the Kootenay School of Art at Nelson, has been chosen for biographical inclusion in the 1964 Dictionary of International Biography, a record of contemporary achievement.

It is published in London, England, and completed questionnaires are housed permanently in various archives, including Manchester public libraries; Society of Genealogists, London; The Institute of Contemporary Arts; the Trinity College of Music, London; and the Society for Theatre Research.

In the Courts

A 17-year-old Nelson juvenile charged with speeding, was fined $25 and had his licence suspended for a year. He pleaded guilty to speeding on Nelson Avenue before Family and Children's Court Judge William Evans.

Dangers to Children Safety Council Topic

TRAIL — A warning was issued to parents of small children and toddlers by the Trail District Safety Council discussing matters of general concern at the regular meeting here.

Tiny tots allowed to roam the streets are being exposed to danger. Several near-accidents have been noticed by public health and safety officials, particularly in areas where there are no sidewalks.

A warning was also issued concerning the use of bubble bath capsules being used by children. Containing a highly concentrated detergent, contamination of the the eyes could result in blindness. A case told of a small child that picked a capsule out of the bath before it had dissolved and squirted the contents into her eyes. The mother had presence of mind to immediately wash the eyes out with running water. The doctor called reported that in another 30 seconds the child would have been blinded.

A warning was also issued to the inexperienced venturing alone on the river or out in a boat. High commendation was expressed by Safety Council members for the quick action of Joe Biagioni in rescuing two people from the river last weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Pat Haley of the Kinnaird Safety Council attended the meeting. Mrs. Haley, president of the Kinnaird Society, reported on the recent B.C. Safety Council zone convention held in New Westminster.

Louis Forte will represent the Trail District Safety Council on the board of directors of the B.C. Safety Council.

R. Groggins Of Kalso Dies

Robert Groggins of Kaslo, 79, died in Victorian Hospital at Kaslo, Friday morning.

He was born in Nelson, Lancashire, England, Feb. 12, 1885, and came to British Columbia in 1904. He later moved to Alberta and farmed in the Peace River district until coming to Kaslo. He operated a shoe repair shop in Kaslo for several years before retiring.

Survivors are a niece, Mrs Doris Bolin of Ketchikan, Alaska, and one nephew, Albert Ingham of Nelson Lanc.

LONGTIME RESIDENT AT PERRY SIDING

William A. Osachoff of Perry Siding, 69, who died in a tractor accident Thursday, had resided there since 1 1.

Born in Tiflis, Russia, he came to the Yorkton, Sask., district in 1898 with his parents, and moved to Brilliant with his father in 1913. In 1927, he moved to Edgewood where he resided until moving to Perry Siding. He married the former Molly Sherstibitoff at Brilliant in 1914.

Besides his wife, he is survived by two sons, John of Perry Siding and William Patterson of Kamloops; three daughters, Mrs. Martin (Stella) Springford of Penticton; Mrs. John (Tina) Koozen of Appledale; Mrs. Ken (Polly) Martin of Christina Lake two brothers, Sam of Perry Siding, and Nick of Vancouver; one sister, Mrs. Polly Povinnikoff of Kamsack and 10 grandchildren.

The Canadian death toll from leukemia in 1962 climbed to 1,126, and it's estimated there will be 1,800 new cases in 1964.

Cominco's Safety Program Launched

TRAIL — The annual May safety month commenced at most Cominco operations Friday morning. Exception this year is the operation at Kimberley where four separate weekly programs are being held throughout the year.

At Trail, operation safety month started off with fanfare from the Sea Cadet Band and color party, starting at the main gate, marching through the shops and plans to attend a series of employee rallies.

Supervisor of Cominco's safety and hygiene department, J. C. Ink, said that safety month provides an opportunity to revitalize safety. "It is the co-operation of everyone that helps to make safety month a success," he stated. "We are all our brothers' keepers and have to help ourselves and help each other."

Mr. Ink mentioned a phase of safety wherein the company issued safety glasses to employees where needed and urged use of them. Reg Bozzer was formally accepted into the Wise Owl Club. His eyesight had been protected by the use of glasses.

J. V. Rogers, manager of the engineering division, addressed the shop rally. "The reason we have safety month is because injuries do still occur to men on the job. No job is so important or so urgent that we cannot take time to do it safely. We always produce a good record during safety months. If we can do it during safety month we can do it during the rest of the year."

The plants are decorated with safety slogans, all drawing attention to safety. At present the company's engineering department has the best record, particularly the power and instrument departments, which will have gone more than one millon man hours without a lost-time accident.

Greater participation in safety by the individual is the aim. More than 4000 will be involved in the program at Trail.

Ministers, Laymen Join In Training

Fairview United Church will be host to six teams of ministers and laymen from various centres in the Kootenay Presbytery at a supper meeting Monday.

Rev. William P. Irving of Calgary, field secretary for the Missionary and Maintenance Department of the United Church for Alberta and British Columbia, will conduct a training meeting in the new Program of Proportional Responsibility being inaugurated in the United Church this year.

Each minister - layman team will be trained to present the program to each charge in the Presbytery challenging to fuller commitment to the total mission of the Christian Church.

Ministers attending with laymen are Rev. Donald Smith, Kimberley; Rev. Fred Cline, Creston; Rev. Francis H. Willey, Castlegar; Rev. John Fast, Nakusp, and Rev. Peter Faris and Rev. Rae Allan of Nelson.

Comptroller Appointment Announced by CM&S

The appointment of E. G. Randall as comptroller of the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company of Canada Limited was announced Thursday by R. D. Perry, vice-president, finance, the appointment effective May 1.

Mr. Perry also announced, effective May 1, the appointment as assistant comptrollers of A. M. Murray and J. A. Thomson; and the appointment as assistant to the comptroller of H. T. Ommanney.

Messrs. Murray and Ommaney reside in Montreal and Mr. Thomson in Trail.

Mr. Randall joined the accounting staff of Cominco in Trail in 1927. He was appointed assistant chief accountant in 1934, chief accountant 1943, and assistant comptroller, 1950. He lives in Trail, where he has been active in community affairs.

Mr. Murray joined Cominco in 1953 as assistant internal auditor and became financial analyst in 1954. He graduated from the University of British Columbia with the degree of Bachelor of Arts (mathematics and physics) in 1948 after serving overseas with Canadian armed forces in the United Kingdom and North West Europe. He is a member of the Institute of Chartered Accountants of Quebec.

Mr. Thomson joined the accounting staff of Cominco at Trail in 1929. He held several posts in this work and in 1959 was transferred to head office in Montreal as assistant to the comptroller. He returned to Trail in that capacity in 1963.

Mr. Ommaney joined Cominco in 1929 and served in the accounting department in Trail, Goldfields and Yellowknife before coming to head office at Montreal in 1959 as tax supervisor. He was in the Royal Canadian Armoured Corps in World War II.

Rites Sunday For Victim Of Accident

PERRY SIDING — Funeral and interment rites will be held Sunday afternoon at the Perry Siding Community Cemetery for William A. Osachoff of Perry Siding, who was killed in an accident on his farm Thursday.

Mr. Osachoff is survived by one sister, Mrs. Polly Podvennikoff; two brothers, Nick and Sam, of Appledale; three daughters, Polly of Christina Lake, Tina Koozen of Appledale and Mrs. Annie Springford of Penticton; two sons, John, of Penticton and William of Kamloops, and ten grandchildren.

Catholic School Board Named

CRANBROOK — Formation of a district separate school system became official last week as officers were elected to the newly formed St. Mary's Catholic Public School Board.

Elected to the board were: Arnold Quinn, chairman; Brian Finnerty, vice - chairman; Alex Sochowski, treasurer, and Joe Stropky, secretary.

Plans are presently being laid for construction of a new Catholic elementary school within the city, with school-site property already secured.

This will be the first new Catholic public school to be built in Nelson diocese within the past 10 years. Four other separate schools are already in existence at Nelson, Trail, Kelowna and Penticton.

Financing of the proposed city school will be partly through federal grants toward integrated (Indian and white) schools and partly with tuituion fees, and possible grants.

School construction should start this year providing classrooms for grades one to seven level. Sisters of Charity of Halifax will teach at the school.

City council recently approved a recommendation from city finance committee turning down a request from the church that city funds be used to build a road into the school property, located along St. Joseph's Creek in an undeveloped section of the city.

Creston Hospital Filled; Seek 30-Bed Extension

CRESTON — The Creston Valley Hospital Board has gathered all its forces for an intensive effort to obtain a 30-bed extension to the hospital in order to accommodate the present and future population of the valley.

Matron Standidge's report indicated that extra beds have been set up within the hospital and the institution is experiencing a busy period, with all wards filled to capacity.

Her report also indicated the resignation of Mrs. J. Law, to become effective May 3. Two new applications have been received, with more applications expected in September.

The need for an emergency power plant to operate the hospital when and if local power outages were experienced, was the main topic of the report from the building committee. Efforts to obtain such a plant are now under way.

The hospital is badly in need of an ice machine and it was hoped the auxiliary would take note of this situation.

A report was received from H. K. Legg relative to the recent meeting of his committee, J Preston president of the board, J. Moffitt, hospital administrator, and Hon. W. D. Black, relative to further hospital expansion.

In order to meet accreditation standards and medical education, the board authorized the purchase of a projection machine valued at $731.50. The machine will be purchased from the Randolph Bruce Estate Fund, and medical films from a central library will be used.

Crawford Bay Plans Work For Centennial

CRAWFORD BAY—At a meeting held at Crawford Bay Hall Tuesday, the community of Crawford Bay decided that improvement of the park land would constitute its Canadian Centennial project, if approved by Victoria.

Maxwell Gordon, district recreation consultant, attended the meeting and advised those present of the conditions under which government grants are allotted.

The meeting was also advised that two communities may band together on one project, but that each community would receive separate grants. Too, if either community raises the necessary $1 on behalf of the other, the community for whom the $1 was raised does not have a voice in the proceedings.

Federal grants have to be wholly used for the project, whereas the provincial grant may be divided 60 per cent on project and 40 per cent on centennial celebrations. Forty per cent of the provincial grant will be received without need of application. In order to receive grants a professional cost estimate and map of community boundaries must accompany the application.

The centennial committee will hold a meeting at the earliest opportunity to draw up a plan of ideas for the improvement of the park, and will then present them to a public meeting for comment and approval.

New Zealand uses 850,000 telephones, or one to every three people, to rank fourth in per-capita telephone usage after Canada, the U.S. and Sweden.

Students To Hear Vocation Talks

CRESTON — An opportunity for parents and students to hear speakers on their respective fields of endeavor will be presented May 8 at Prince Charles secondary school.

In one-hour sessions, each speaker will discuss his occupation, leaving a 20-minute period at the conclusion for questions from the floor. Each speaker will then repeat his talk to a new audience, thus enabling parents and students to examine at least two occupations.

It is hoped that some 20 vocations and their related fields will be covered. Representatives from nursing, teaching, forestry and the armed services will be present, as well as a social worker, journalist, insurance broker, optometrist, veterinarian, laboratory technologist, dietician, a representative from the CM&S and the Department of Labor to outline apprenticeship trades.

All speakers were chosen through students' suggestions and represent their choices of occupations to be studied

Each group will be in charge of a designated student chairman with interested parties to meet and talk withthe speakers of their choice. PCSS has held a Career Night once every two years.

Oscar Day Still Most Exciting in Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Academy aftermath—

For the knocking and the ribbing it gets, the annual Oscar event remains a unique exhibit of glamor and professionalism.

Everyone gets weary of the parade of recipients with their effusion of thanks. But what would we do in their shoes? The same thing, probably.

The point is that the Academy Awards are a contest. That's why most of us sit through the dreary speeches and the limitless commercials to find out who is going to win.

That doesn't mean that Oscar can't be improved. As Debbie Reynolds pointed out before the event, lack of participation of Hollywood's top names is shocking. Only a handful of stars outside of those who were presenters or nominees attended.

Five or 10 years ago, most of Hollywood's big names put on their best furs and feathers to make the Oscar bash the ultimate in glamor.

Today the studios no longer wield the power to make the stars turn out in numbers, and apparently the actors feel no civic responsibility to do so. Monday night Rock Hudson appeared in white tie and tails to usher cameras into the auditorium at the beginning of the telecast. Then he dashed home to watch the show on television.

PARTY VIEWING

Many other stars form parties to view the Oscar cast on the home screen. They wouldn't think of driving all the way to Santa Monica (five to 10 miles) and facing those crowds.

This year's results evoked as much satisfaction as any since 1955, when Marty came through with its cinderella win. The crowd was pulling for Sidney Poitier, who won for Lilies of the Field made in 14 days, over much more costly entries. The fact that he is a Negro was not overlooked by the voters, but that does not detract from his performance.

Patricia Neal, whose Hud role was scarcely more than supporting, scored another popular victory. Again, sympathy was not overlooked, since she has been plagued with personal tragedy. But she also is a consummate performer.

Melvin Douglas won over the highly touted John Huston and Hugh Griffith.

The British beachhead didn't materialize, although the voters were happy to reward Tom Jones, Margaret Rutherford and Tony Richardson. It was a well-balanced ballot, and everyone, including some of the losers, were pleased.

Lardeau Valley News

LARDEAU — Travellers from Lardeau to Nelson obvserve signs of progess in various areas en route, including road construction and improvement at survey crews at Fletcher Creek and surveying on the Lardeau-Marblehead road. Surveyors are busy also around the damsite at Howser and on properties that may be affected when the treaty is finally ratified.

Cooper Creek now has 30 residents, with prospects of continued population growth, and a family has moved into the Bluebell Gardens area.

Patients at Kaslo Victorian Hospital include Ernest Alexander, little Charaine Bovair and Ed Snider.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Bueller of Howser have moved to the Waite property at Marblehead. The house has been remodelled and placed on a new foundation. Mr. Bueller is cook at the Kootenay Forest Products camp at Marblehead. They have three small children.

Female Drivers Bring Chaos to Italy

ROME (AP) — The woman driver has come into her own in this city of the traditionally dominant male.

Thanks to new parking rules clamped on this week to stave off traffic chaos, some 70,000 more Roman wives get the family car for themselves all day.

Many have to pay the price of taking hubby to work in the morning, collecting him for lunch and picking him up in the evening. But in between the car is theirs.

The ladies are taking to their new mobility by the scores. They have been enrolling all week for driving lessons and lining up for driver's licences.

Last Monday the city took the paper wrappers off several thousand new traffic signs throughout downtown Rome. The signs prohibited parking or even stopping on all main streets.

They imposed a one-hour parking limit on almost every other street in downtown Rome.

Police enforced the rules rigidly. In a single day more than 5,000 Romans had to pay parking fines.

The idea was to thin out congested traffic. It did.

Police estimate at least 70,000 Romans who used to drive to work and leave their cars parked on a downtown street have changed their ways. City bus services estimated they sold 200,000 more tickets every day this week.

Plans for Catholic School Discussed by Cranbrook Board

CRANBROOK — Board of School Trustees heard officially Monday of plans to build a separate elementary Catholic School in the city.

A letter from Rev. A. V. Maglio informed the board of formation of St. Mary's Catholic Public School Board, and said a new Catholic school should be ready for teaching by September, 1965.

When the separate school plan first became public, school district trustees had been concerned over the effect the new school would have on school disrict educational grants and teacher entitlement. But the number of students attending a Cranbrook separate school should not appreciably affect the present situation, it was felt.

School district future projects call for construction of a new eight-room school in the city, and word of the expected separate school will not alter these plans.

Members of the board were concerned with the transfer of separate school graduates into district school grade eight. The board did not act upon a suggestion that an informal liaison committee be formed to assist the new school in choosing textbooks and courses.

Trustee Eric MacKinnon said there must be a co-operative effort to co-ordinate the transfer of students from one school to another.

No More McKay-Truscott Development Until Planned

CRESTON — Futher development of a public or residential nature will be held up in the McKay-Truscott and adjacent subdivisions.

This was announced at a special meeting by village chairman H. L. Dodd to a large audience in the Royal Canadian Legion hall. No development will be carried out until such time as an orderly development plan for streets ,sidewalks and utility lines is drawn up and finalized.

The meeting followed the passage of a zoning by-law of the aforementioned areas with regard to residential and commercial views. The council felt that such a by-law was a protection to those owning homes in the newly acquired areas.

Mr. Dodd welcomed the 412 persons of the area into the corporate limits of Creston and asked for the whole-hearted co-opertion of all concerned regarding future council decisions.

The main cause of the areas joining the corporate limits was that of sewerage disposal and the council stated it intended to continue with the extension of present lines to all parts of the area.

The commission was of the opinion that any taxes collected from the new areas would be "plowed back" until adequate service to all had been provided.

Mr. Dodd described the present situation as a "crazy quilt" of property lines. Orderly development and planning is essential if facilities were to be installed properly. Specifically, the commission has to know where streets, sidewalks, utility lines and other services would be located. Mr. Dodd stated immediate action toward an efficiently engineered plan was required because of the present fast development in the area.

Property lines would be given little attention, although existing buildings would be taken into account with the drawing up of a new plan. Despite this, Mr. Dodd foresaw increasing property values and future problems minimized.

The chairman said the plans were by no means final and were subject to revision.

CO-OPERATION

All civic speakers stated those with odd - shaped properties would be wise to pool their land with other adjacent lots so each owner would benefit from a final survey of the area. Without this kind of co-operation, civic planning would be severely hindered.

V. Mosher, engineer, emphasized the point that commissioners had no intention of moving houses and every action would be studied with an economic benefit in mind. Council hopes to give access to all areas as well as providing a park or playground in the vicinity.

Many present felt the provincial government had been lax in providing the area with required roads and asked for civic application for financial aid in future road construction.

New Denver

NE WDENVER — The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Slocan Community Hospital in New Denver held a successful dance in the Bosun Hall, with a floor show also provided by members and friends.

The Hillbilly Beatles performed during the evening show.

Cashiers were W. G. Thring, chairman of the hospital society, and T. W. Clarke, board member.

Refreshments were served at midnight.

The Past Chiefs Club met at the home of Mrs. C. W. Nelson, with Mrs. John Taylor as co-hostess and president Mrs. Elsie Nelson in the chair. Mrs. May Steele took the place of the secretary - treasurer and Miss Marjorie H. Butlin acted as chaplain. Members wished Miss Butlin a pleasant journey during her trip to England this month.

During a game of whist which followed, Mrs. Janet Graham won first prize and the consolation went to Mrs. Isobel Pendry. Jacob Steele and Mrs. Nelson looked after transportation.

TEACHER TRAINING FOR UNIVERSITY GRADUATES

The Department of Education is making a province-wide survey to discover university graduates who are seriously interested in becoming certificated teachers but are prevented by circumstance from understanding the university programme which leads to teacher certification.

I would earnestly request the co-operation of anyone in this group, in completing the form below and sending it WITHOUT DELAY to the Coordinator of Teacher Recruitment, Department of Education, Victoria, B.C. Local education authorities may later contact you to obtain and provide further information.

Saving the Lives of Children

The year-round safety of children is the objective of Child Safety Day which will be observed on Sunday to focus attention on child accidental deaths and injuries. The Nelson chapter is joining in observance of the day.

Each year, needless accidents claim the lives of many children in this province — 129 last year.

Thousands are injured seriously enough to require hospitalization, some of whom suffer permanent disabilities.

Accidents in homes, play and outdoor areas, and streets and highways all claim their share of this grisly record.

On the encouraging side reports show that 45 less children died by accident last year than in 1962.

To ensure that this downward trend continues in 1964, the B.C. Safety Council and its chapters throughout the province ask all adults to consider, on Child Safety Day, their responsibility to protect children from accidental death or injury throughout the year by supervision, training, removing hazards and, especially, by the right personal example.

It's Time to Restore Old Virtues to Proper Place

A generation ago, children were taught to be brave, thrifty, patriotic, polite, unselfish, honest, diligent and loyal, and their heroes were men and women who embodied those qualities. Today we live in the era of the anti-hero, and our society has called into question, or openly repudiated, every single one of the old-fashioned virtues. In government, business, even domestic life, the emphasis today is on a person's rights, not his responsibilities; on getting his fair share from society, rather than on making his contribution to the community. There is not one of our fundamental institutions which is not openly mocked and derided, whether it be religion, law, government, or the Queen herself, nor is there a single canon of accepted morality and good taste which is not deliberately violated by the popular novelist and dramatist.

There is nothing surprising in this seeming contrariness of public attitude. It is simply a reflection of a widespread revulsion against the values and precepts which were hammered home and unnaturally emphasized by a long and bitter war; a war in which survival was only achieved at the price of untold sacrifice, courage, loyalty and unselfishness. After such an outpouring of blood and dedication it was only natural that the survivors should have turned in relief to a less demanding way of life, and should have attempted to bring their children up to a softer code in a gentler and more beneficient society and one in which rewards, rather than responsibilities, would be emphasized.

Yet such an attitude is a luxury which can only be enjoyed after immense sacrifice, and cannot be long maintained. The creature comforts, the leisure, the apparent security which we now enjoy are the benefits won for us in a previous generation by the exercise of those very qualities which we now deride, but which we will continue to neglect only at our peril. For the world in which we live is a fiercely competitive one, and will not be shut out by our feeble attempts to achieve an illusory security.

In such a world, only strong societies survive while the weaker go to the wall, and a strong society is one in which the individual has learned to subordinate and sublimate his selfish natural instincts for the common good. In such a society it is the difficult, the demanding which must be valued above the easy and commonplace; bravery, rather than the more natural cowardice, sacrifice above selfishness; loyalty, honesty, hard work.

In the bitter, endless battle, economic and social as well as military, to which mankind is committed, our society today is subsisting on the benefits won for it by the technological achievements, hard work and sacrifice of previous generations. If it is to long survive it must soon return to proper recognition of the principles and values which alone can bind weak and errant men into a strong and virile community.

Songs

Whatever else the Canadian Authors Association accomplishes with its offer of a prize of $1000 for the best new lyrics to The Maple Leaf Forever, it has certainly kept Canadian newspaper writers busy.

Herewith, two tongue-in-cheek rewrites of the old patriotic song.

A Maritime version, with the compliments of The Halifax Chronicle-Herald:

"In days of yore, to our fair shore,
Came a man called Sir John A.,
And planted firm a perfect plan
To steal our wealth away."

Chorus:

"Bleached sulphite pulp, and Volvo cars,
And higher freight rates never,
Reduce the tariff, close the bars,
The Maritimes forever.

Chorus:

"Don't close the mines, enough we've lost,
Or take our heavy water,
Right or wrong, whate'er the cost,
The Martimes forever."

And The Brantford Expositor's offering:

"In days no more, from sep-rate shore,
The first bilingual Canucks came,
And planted firm a distinctive flag on
Canada's belle terrain;
Here may we slave, our John and Jacques, in dollar race together,
The FLQ and Orange Blue, the NHL forever."

Fighting Back

The Englishman's home (and castle), proof against invasion for centuries, is being quietly conquered by the same insensate force which quietly took over this continent, the all-digit telephone number.

In North America, we moaned about it but gave in quietly. In Britain, by Jove, they're doing something about it. Or so we judge by The Times of London.

A reader from Matching Green, Harlow, Essex, wrote to The Times to complain that in order to telephone to the railway station at Ongar he had to dial 99728332049. This was too much for his British spirit, and he added what may be the solution for all number-beset humans:

"With a favorable wind, one is inclined to take the easy way out, and just shout."—Windsor Star.

Let French Speak English Cultural Commission Told

By RONALD LEBEL

REGINA (CP) — The royal commission on bilingualism and biculturism was told over and over Thursday night that French - Canadians should become English - speaking Canadians.

If all Canadians spoke English the problems of national unity would be solved and Quebec would catch up with the rest of North America, agreed the majority of the speakers at a commission meeting here attended by 400 persons from all walks of life.

The majority view was that French Canada has condemned itself to an old-fashioned pastoral economy" and "backward" educational system by insisting on preserving its separate language and culture.

Social and technological progress would come only if the French - speaking majority in Quebec adopted English.

Commission Co-chairman Davidson Dunton was moved to remark at one point that English-speaking Canadians cannot ignore the fact that more than 5,000,000 Canadians are determined to "speak French for a long time to come."

HAVE GUARANTEES

His colleague Frank Scott, McGill University constitutional expert, observed that legal guarantees to a distinct French-Canadian group date back to the Utrecht treaty of 1713 and have been strengthened by the British North America Act and other constitutional documents.

A few speakers called for expanded educational rights for Indians, French-Canadians and children of Ukrainian and other European origins, but the theme running through the debate was "one Canada."

A typical comment was made by an unidentified German immigrant amid loud applause: "Let the French learn English —they're in the minority. It won't do them any harm."

Another well - received comment was: "Why divide up this country by bringing in other official languages? Bilingualism is detrimental to a country. Look at Cyprus and Viet Nam."

Frank L. Bastedo, Conservative - appointed lieutenant-governor of Saskatchewan from 1958 until last year and a Regina lawyer, said Quebec has fallen far behind in economic and educational terms because French - Canadians "have set their face against learning English."

"French-Canadians who move to the United States become good American citizens and learn English. Why can't they do the same thing in Canada?"

'WENT TOO FAR'

He regretted the fact that the federal government had gone far beyond the constitution in adopting bilingualism. The introduction of bilingual currency and government cheques had been unnecessary and more than French - Canadians deserved.

Reeve Gabriel Gaschler of Southey, 40 miles north of here, said the RCMP should round up all Quebec residents who are threatening to assassinate Queen Elizabeth before her scheduled visit to Quebec City in October.

He said bilingualism is not a problem in Saskatchewan. Many persons of French origin he knew no longer could speak French. "We never heard about Quebec until six months ago."

Robert Dunn, a young man, said it is "socially ridiculous" to try to maintain Quebec as a French - speaking entity in a North Amercan mass of 200,000,000 English-speaking people.

About 70 community leaders and professional people attended informal group discussions in the morning and afternoon. They generally were receptive to suggestions for voluntary instruction in French, Ukrainian and the languages of other ethnic minorities in elementary schools.

REGINA (CP) — Some participants at an informal meeting of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturism Thursday suggested a federal intervention in education to promote the teaching of second languages.

One of the discussion groups proposed that a new federal agency be created to train and hire French and English teachers, who would be sent to elementary and secondary schools of the other language group to teach the second language.

The group said French teachers are in very short supply in the Western provinces. As an alternative, they proposed stepped-up programs to train language teachers in the various provincial teachers' colleges.

Another group of 10 community leaders agreed that regional French-language schools for French-Canadian minorities outside Quebec should be guaranteed as a right.

It called for a reform of provincial education laws to remove "obstacles and prohibitions" slowing the spread of bilingualism.

A joint statement presented by group leader Glen MacKenzie of the Saskatchewan education department said the "ultimate aim" should be to teach most Canadians to converse in a second language, French or English, but this would take more than 30 years.

An anonymous participant commented that at present, the only things French- and English-speaking Canadians have in common are taxes, currency and postage stamps. More cultural and social contacts were needed.

'Get Tough' UN Policy Will Prevail in Cyprus

By GEORGE BRIA

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The UN command has moved toward a policy of peace with muscle in Cyprus. The sterner attitude emerged after UN prestige tottered amid a worldwide cry: "Why can't they stop the fighting?"

UN troops took firm action in the field after UN officials from Secretary - General U Thant down spoke with a new note of thoroughness.

At stake is the image of peacemaker the UN acquired on delicate missions in Palestine, Egypt and The Congo (Korea was another matter).

On March 27, British and Canadians, plus som elrish, Finnish and Swedish troops, were entrusted by the UN Security Council with the task of restoring order on the Mediterranean island while diplomats sought a way to get the Greek- and Turkish-Cypriots to live in harmony.

Why, until the last few days, did the UN force play a meek and mild role while Greek- and Turkish - Cypriots continued to kill each other?

One main reason was that countries which sent soldiers didn't want them needlessly exposed to fire.

The situation deteriorated to the point where a mob of Turkish-Cypriots stoned the car of the UN commander, Indian Lt. Gen. Prem Singh Gyani, last Sunday. And for four days, with no tangible restraint from the UN, Greek-Cypriots waged an obviously well prepared assault on St. Hilarion Castle, main Turkish - Cypriot bastion in northern Cyprus.

With the St. Hilarion offensive, the UN role was plunged into crisis. Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker cried out in the Canadian House of Commons that the UN force was reduced to mere "vulnerable spectators." The British government made known its anxiety to Thant. So did the United States and Turkey.

Diplomats familiar with the background and operations of various UN forces over the years list a number of factors that contributed to the poor early showing in Cyprus.

First of all, the assignments are different. The current Middle East force went to the Sinai Desert and the Egyptian-administered Gaza strip after the 1956 Israeli and British-French invasions of Egypt not as a fighting unit but as a police force to keep the Egyptians and Israelis in their own defined territories. On Cyprus the warring communities are mingled over much of the island.

COULD USE FORCE

The Congo UN force was set up as an army and authorized to use force if necessary to restore order and unify the former Belgian colony.

On Cyprus, UN forces operated during the first month under detailed restrictions. These arose mostly from the demands that troops not be put needlessly into positions where they would be shooting at Cypriots—or being shot at. In general, U Thant's orders were for UN troops to fire only in self defence.

The British from the start took the view that a minimum of 10,000 troops would needed. Thant has between 000 and 7,000 and this inevitab restricted the UN ability to e ter into military situations th could become hazardous.

Brtish authorities say success of a peacemaking signment rests essentially the degree of co-operation corded to the UN mission by Cypriots. In London's view, Greek - Cypriots have prod and probed to see just h much they could get away w

That was the situation w the Greek-Cypriots opened th offensive against St Hilar Castle Saturday and touched an international furor.

REPORTS TO COUNCIL

Gen. Gyani, veteran of UN's Gaza strip mission, the Greek-Cypriot attack "serious implications" for month-old force. Gyani sent long report to Thant, and secretary-general followed an urgent message to the S curity Council.

Thant spoke of "irresponsib ity, callousness and sava acts" and put it bluntly to Greek- and Turkish - Cypr leaders to tell their people stop fighting and let the U force begin to function.

He suggested a specific pr gram to stop bloodshed, incl ing disarming of civilians, op ing of roads and "control of e tremists."

His message was quickly f lowed by evidence on the sce that the UN had decided more push and less persuasi

In the village of Timi, Sw ish soldiers not only fired be at battling Greek- and Turki Cypriots, they disarmed Greeks.

WARNS VILLAGERS

At Ayios Theodoras, a fr trated British lieutenant, see his men under fire, warned lagers they would fire 10 aimed" shots for every fired at them.

At Lefka, a Swedish colo ordered Turkish-Cypriots to move a road block. When Turks stalled, he pulled Swedes out of town to Turks' despair.

In the mountains above renia, scene of the most ser recent fighting, Canadian tro set up 13 permanent posts key trouble spots, including at the gate of besieged St H arion Castle.

They began expelling armed men from the villa where posts were establish And they warned that any sh fired on the villages would considered fired on the UN returned.

NDP Charge Increased Mail Costs Hurt Householders

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's plan to raise $8,500,000 more for the post office by charging an extra one cent for locally-delivered letters is running into rough weather in the Commons.

New Democratic members, accusing the post office of charging letter writers to help subsidize low postal rates for newspapers and magazines, served notice Thursday they plan to put up a strong fight.

Conservative members were critical too, though their opposition was milder.

Target of the attack was a resolution paving the way for legislation which would abolish the special four-cent rate for local delivery of first-class letters. It would be replaced by the normal five-cent rate now levied on inter-city mail.

Postmaster - General Nicholson said the extra burden will fall mainly on commercial firms whose mailings account for 55 to 60 per cent of local delivery letters.

"Those firms are not paying their way. They're being subsidized by the taxpayers."

He said a low local-delivery letter rate had some merit years ago when local letters were handled within a single post office. Now a letter could be carried at local rates for as far as 25 miles in some areas such as Vancouver.

Mr. Nicholson said that though his department's accounts show expenses are close to being covered by postal revenues, there was in fact a deficit of more than $37,000,000 in the form of services provided free by other departments of government.

Reid Scott (NDP — Toronto Danforth) said the real deficit occurs from low second-class rates for newspapers and magazines, which were "well able to pay the freight."

He said first-class mail—letters—already yields a profit of $35,000,000.

"We can't understand why the users of first-class mail should bear the load of second-class mail on their backs."

Mr. Scott said the NDP would oppose the increase in local-delivery rates "as vigorously as possible."

Douglas Fisher (NDP — Port Arthur) said the increase will give Canadians "the wonderful chance to pay to help disseminate Time and Reader's Digest around the country."

He was referring to figures quoted by Rod Webb (PC—Hastings-Frontenac) estimating that the Canadian editions of those two U.S. magazines receive annual postal subsidies through low rates of between $600,000 and $900,000 each.

J. A. McBain (PC — Elgin) said local delivery letters should continue to have a preference over inter-city postal rates. The increase would add to living costs for individuals and small businesses.

Both Maurice Cote (SC—Chicoutimi) and Charles - Arthur Gauthier, Creditiste — Roberval) criticized the increase in local delivery rates as a new tax.

Opposition members pointed out the rate increase would be the third in recent months. By cabinet order, rates on registered mail, special delivery, parcel post, C.O.D. charges and "householder" advertising mail were boosted to bring in some $8,140,000 in added revenue yearly.

Another change would abolish a special local delivery rate on publications issued less frequently than once a week. Mr. Nicholson said this results in some copies being charged as little as one-fortieth of a cent each. It would be replaced by a minimum rate of one-half cent for each mailing to a separate address.

Ontario To Launch Civil Rights Query

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Robarts announced Friday he has appointed a royal commission to undertake "an exhaustive inquiry into civil liberties and human rights in Ontario.

Mr. Robarts said the single commission will be Chief Justice J. C. McRuer of the Supreme Court of Ontario. The premier described the chief justice as being "eminently equipped" to conduct the inquiry.

In his statement to the legislature, Mr. Robarts indicated the establishment of the royal commission emanates from the public controversy caused by the government's Bill 99. He said:

"In the debates of recent weeks concerning amendments to the Police Act, I assured the legislature and the people of Ontario that I personally, and the government which I have the honor to head, will not for one moment tolerate legislation which infringes upon or jeopardizes in any way the rights and freedom of the individual."

Section 14 of Bill 99, which would have empowered the Ontario Police Commission to imprison persons who refused to testify in secret about crime, was killed by the legislature last month.

Attorney - General Cass, who introduced the bill, resigned.

Premier Robarts said it seems "timely" to examine the whole relationship between the government and the people, and the guarantees of civil liberties which are inherent in citizenship.

The government must concern itself with the authority it gives to various boards and commissions, he said, "both in their administrative functions and in their investigative powers."

Mr. Robarts said he wanted a close study of means that could be devised, or strengthened, to guarantee no infringement on civil rights.

The royal commission would study the desirability of creating a public defender or of developing a comprehensive civil rights code.

Another alternative might be "the adaptation of the Canadian Bill of Rights in relation to the powers of our province," the premier said.

"In short, we may require a Magna Carta of our own based upon the principles of the original greater charter."

CIVIL DEFENCE

Past disasters in East and West Kootenay point to a need for emergency planning. Civil Defence seeks to provide this by having all municipal departments compile plans. These are then co-ordinated into a master plan.

Excommunicated Pair Meant No Disrespect

IONIA, Mich. (AP)—An excommunicated couple said Thursday they intended no criticism of the Episcopal (Anglican) Church in a letter-writing uproar over a high school musical production.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert T. Clore of Ionia were excommunicated by their rector, Rev. Raymond E. Bierlein, after accusing him of having "archaic beliefs and moral knowledge."

The Clores objected to Bierlein's assertion that a dance performed by a girl was "salacious." The couple's charge was published by the Ionia Sentinel-Standard.

"We did not, nor would not, set aside respect for God's church," the Clores said Thursday in a statement published in the newspaper. "If we did this, we would have no basis for moral criticism, good or bad."

The rector said the Clores set aside respect for the church in their contents on his criticism of 16-year-old Kristi Honson's dance. She had danced off stage and pinched cheeks in the audience during her performance in Damn Yankees. School officials heard Bierlein's objections and ordered Kristi to remain on stage in the role of the temptress, Lola.

A vestryman, Robert Beach, said the rector would reconsider the excommunication on two conditions. One was that the Clores write the rector saying they did not mean to criticize the church or its moral thinking. The second was that the Clores assert they did not intend to speak for the congregation.

Interpreting the News

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

It isn't really because he grabbed the dog by the ears, it just seems that way.

It happens newspaper stories —plus photos and cartoons—of President Johnson lifting a dog by the ears coincide with a small spate of criticism of the American chief of state in Britain and elsewhere.

Johnson, of course, has been under the European and British microscope since he succeeded the much-loved John F. Kennedy and he can be sure of immediate scorn if he does anything considered unworthy of the assassinated leader.

The dog incident may have come as an unexpected bonus to Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home in his campaign for re-election in Britain. Nobody can imagine the wispy Douglas-Home committing that particular blunder.

The famed cartoonst Giles of The Daily Express shows, on the other hand, a Tory electioneering party in which an irate functionary is telling a housewife:

"Madam, your confounded dog has picked our prime minister up by his ears."

Another newspaper cartoon shows Cuba's Fidel Castro holding Johnson by the ears and the left - wing weekly New Statesman expresses a similar concept in a different way.

Kennedy, the magazine says, had reduced the risk that the Cuban revolution would export itself and so provoke a violent U.S. response.

"Now the confidence of Latin - American Democrats in Washington has evaporated, and the U.S. administration finds itself committed to the indefensible theory that it has a natural right to infringe Cuban sovereignty by overflights."

The magazine suggests unless Kennedy's policies are restored soon "cold war may once more break into violent flame" in the Western Hemisphere.

In West Germany, anger has been stirred by a Johnson magazine interview in which he reported to have advised Chancellor Erhard to do everything possible to get nearer to the Russians.

"Put yourself in the Russians' place," Johnson quoted. "Try to understand their feelings. They have a real fear of Germany."

As it happens, Erhard's stock is high just now after regional elections showed to his credit and the Germans may feel he shouldn't be told how to do his job.

Anyway, the important newspaper Frankfurter Allgemeine Zeitung remarks:

"Johnson should show more reserve. A magazine interview isn't the best way of informing the German people."

Willow Point Couple Mark 50th Anniversary

Ashby Home Filled With Flowers As Friends Extend Congratulations

By SHARON CURRIE

A couple who have shared 50 years since their marriage in Calgary in 1914 received warm congratulatory wishes from close friends Thursday.

Celebrating their golden wedding anniversary were Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Ashby, district residents for over 40 years.

Close to 75 well-wishers gathered in the Ashbys' North Shore home, bedecked with flowers and cards, during the afternoon and evening.

Telegrams and cards of congratulation were received from Prime Minister L. B. Pearson, Hon. R. D. Black, provincial secretary, Mayor E. T. Bodard, on behalf of the City of Nelson, Lieutenant - Governor George Pearkes, H. W. Herridge, MP for Kootenay West, Hon. W. A. C. Bennett, B.C. Premier, and Esmond Butler, secretary to the governor-general.

Their daughter, Mrs. C. G. (Joan) Clake with her husband and two children, Judy 18, and Jerry, 15, travelled to Nelson from North Surrey to honor her parents.

Anniversary gifts included a rose bowl, books, gold cups and saucers, and sweets.

The Willow Point WA and WI presented the Ashby's with a large bouquet.

MUSIC PREDOMINATES

A rich life, with music predominating, has filled the Ashby home in both Canada and England.

"We are intensely fond of music," said Mr. Ashby. His wife's talents as a pianist and cellist support his enthusiasm.

Mr. Ashby is cheerful despite a crippling illness.

He was born in Staines, England, 85 years ago. He received his education in Somerset, and after working with his brother-in-law in the wholesale tea and coffee business, he came to Canada in 1906.

His first job on Canadian soil saw him working on a farm in Ontario, but after one year he travelled west to Calgary, obtaining jobs on farms in the outlying district.

At this point, he met and married Mrs. Ashby, who had emigrated from England to the foothills city in 1910.

Mrs. Ashby was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, and at an early age she moved with her family to England.

In England, her love of music was born, and even now she plays her instruments for her husband's enjoyment.

Following their marriage, the Ashby's rented a farm out of Calgary before returning to their homeland for 18 months.

Coming again to Canada their journey took them through the Rockies to Harrop, where they operated a fruit ranch for over 20 years.

Here, their only daughter Joan, was born.

Mr. Ashby took an interest in Harrop children and organized the first Sunday School class there.

He was superintendent of the Sunday School and a layman in the Harrop Anglican Church for many years.

His interest in Harrop young people was not confined to indoors. Mr. Ashby started a boys' brigade, a forerunner to the Boy Scout movement, taking the young lads out on summer camping trips on Kootenay lake.

Mr. Ashby gleans great pleasure from sitting by his window watching species of birds perch in a little patch of birches beside the lake.

Since first emigrating to Canada in the early 1900's, the Ashbys have returned four times to their native land.

They moved to their present home at Willow Point in 1946.

Celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary are Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Ashby of Willow Point.—Daily News photo.

Trail-Rossland Women Plan ND University Auxiliary

TRAIL — Approximately 40 women of Rossland and Trail met Tuesday evening in the hall of Our Lady of Perpetual Help church in East Trail to form an organization in support of Notre Dame University of Nelson.

Those present decided to call their organization Trail-Rossland Notre Dame University Women's Association. A framework of officers was elected to organize for the next meeting May 27.

Mrs. George Nixon, Rossland, was named president, with Mrs. J. B. Varcoe, Trail, vice-president. Other officers will be Mrs. Isadore Muzzin, Trail, secretary, and Mrs. Kevin Malloy, Trail, treasurer.

Mrs. Varcoe offered to take charge of membership until other officers are elected. Phoning committee members will be: Mrs. Tom McEwen, Trail; Mrs. John Laurie, Trail; and Mrs. Ross Albo, Rossland.

Many of those present at the meeting were parents of present and former students of NDU. Miss Nola Landucci, president of the university alumni, also attended.

Assisting with the formation of the group through information about their own organization were four members of the Nelson Assocation: Rev. Dr. L. R. McKenzie, vice-president of NDU and liaison officer between the university and the Women's Assocation; Mrs. M. E. Drew, president of the assocation; Mrs. G. B. Arnesen, vice-president; and Mrs. J. S. McIntosh, corresponding secretary and publicity officer.

Dr. McKenzie told of the history of Notre Dame, and described campus life as it is today. He also discussed several future plans of NDU. Mrs. Drew explained the aims of the Women's Association and urged her listeners to draw membership from a cross-section of the two communities.

Mrs. Arnesen spoke about the activities of the Nelson group during its first year, and named the committees of which it is composed. Mrs. McIntosh displayed a scrapbook of clippings and the bulletins issued by the organization to its members.

Several members of the new organization will be guests at the Nelson Association meeting May 13. A large group plans to attend commencement exercises at NDU May 16.

High Jet Age Fashion To Be Seen At Fair

VANCOUVER (CP)—A "seasonless look" for the "gentle woman in the jet age" will be stressed at the 1964 British Columbia International Trade Fair.

Co - ordinator Winnifred Mather will present Fashions International each night during the fair's May 13-23 run, with two matinees.

Today's woman must appear well-dressed in Vancouver today, New York tomorrow and Nairobi or New Zealand the following day," she says. "That's the whole idea behind the seasonless look."

While "nothing will ever take the place of the little black outfit," the word for this year is brown, with fashions running from beige right through to deep chestnut.

"For our wedding sequence, the color is blue and it goes from forget-me-not through to hydrangea."

HATS REFLECT MOTIF

The BCITF will be the largest fair of its kind west of New York City this year and the New York's world fair motif will be reflected in women's hats.

"They are going to be bulbous, taking their cue from the unisphere at the world's fair."

Fashions International will feature exotic fashions from Cairo and Hong Kong, along with the Paris originals of Pierre Balmain, Cardin, Nina Ricci and Jacques Griffe.

Reflectng the gentle look will be costumes from Sweden, Switzerland and Spain. Knitwear from Israel will be shown, along with colorful Italian originals and richly embroidered laces from Vienna.

Citizenship Minister Lauds Mother of Year

OTTAWA (CP) — A cabinet minister had warm praise Wednesday for the work of Mrs. Mildred Gottfriedsen, 46-year-old Indian woman from Kamloops, B.C., who was named Canada's Mother of the Year late last month.

At a luncheon in honor of Mrs. Gottfriedsen, Citizenship Minister Tremblay said:

"Her life exemplifies a number of values which could play a very vital role in Canadian society, especially today, if they were found with the same intensity in a greater number of citizens.

"I refer to two in particular: Namely, her acceptance of all religious, racial and ethnic groups on a basis of full equality, and her devotion to the improvement of the social life of the community to which she belongs."

Mrs. Gottfriedsen, who lives with her husband and family on the Kamloops Indian reserve, is the mother of 12. She also has one adopted child and has raised 20 foster children.

Wednesday morning Mrs. Gottfriedsen met Mrs. Lester B. Pearson. She also visited the Senate and carried out a busy schedule of radio and television interviews.

Her visit is sponsored by the Florists Telegraph Delivery Association, a non-profit organization of florists which has conducted a Canadian Mother of the Year competition for the last five years.

Natal Notes

NATAL—Mr. and Mrs. Frank McVeigh of Sparwood have spent two weeks at Mount Vernon, Wash., and Vancouver, B.C., where they visited their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. L. Rayborn and family of Mount Vernon, and relatives in Vancouver.

Dominic Romano, who was employed at Michel as a tipple mechanic, recently left for Hope where he has accepted a position in the shops of a construction firm. Prior to leaving Natal, he was presented with a wrist watch and a sum of money on behalf of the tipple crew. It is expected that he will be joined by his wife and family in the near future.

Mr. and Mrs. Mike Ivanisko recently returned to Natal after spending two weeks in Vancouver with relatives. They visited their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Yzerman.

One winner was announced from Natal in the recent East Kootenay Big Game Trophy competition held at Cranbrook recently. Max Masiuk, of Natal, a well known local sportsman, was awarded second prize in the elk competition for 1963 with a score of 330-4. In the past few years a few awards have come to the Natal-Michel district.

44 at Kaslo Well Woman's Clinic

KASLO — A total of 44 women attended the "Well Woman's Clinic" sponsored by the Kaslo Kinettes.

Dr. J. C. Carpenter and Dr. G. R. Barrett of Nelson were in charge, assisted by Mrs. Gwen Olson, R.N., and Mrs. Mona Steele, R.N., of the Nelson Medical Clinic. Dr. Carpenter commended Kinettes for the way they organized the clinic, which was held in a unit of one of the local motels. He also asked the Kinettes to remind all those who attended of the free chest X-ray, which may be had at the Kootenay Lake General Hospital in Nelson every weekday both morning and afternoons and on Saturday in the mornings only.

Mrs. Joyce Higgins, president of the Kaslo Kinettes, and her committee of Mrs. Pat Frie, Mrs. Colleen Hewat and Mrs. Anne Onishko, expressed their satisfaction at the success of the first clinic of its kind held in Kaslo. It is hoped to hold another in the fall. They also expressed their thanks to a local transport firm for transporting the beds from the hospital to the site where the clinic was held, and also returning them.

Lardeau Notes

LARDEAU — John Luke of Fernie is visiting at Cooper Creek.

Calder Soules of Beaton is once more hauling logs in the Lardeau area.

Mrs. Tony Visnoski was surprised by a visit from her brother, Arthur Blackham of Mission, Saturday. This is Mr. Blackham's first visit here.

Mr. and Mrs. John Greenlaw of Howser have returned from a trip to the coast. They spent some time with the Pat Dennys, Ralph Carsons, Claude and Ron Denny and the Clifford Andersons, all near Victoria. En route home over the Hope-Princeton highway, they were turned back by a foot of snow and detoured around by the Fraser Canyon. During their absence, Mrs. Elsa Roper was postmistress at Howser.

KASLO SENIOR CITIZENS HAVE CARD PARTY

KASLO — The Senior Citizens' Club held another of their popular card parties recently.

Winners at bridge were: first, Mrs. C. Carlson, George Michel; consolation, Mrs. Neta Hunter, Mr. W. Jones.

Winners at whist were: first, Mrs. Harry Jones, Mrs. P. Ritchie; consolation, Mrs. S. Helme, Mrs. J. Stoddart.

McFarland-Aoyama Vows Heard at Smithers Church

Given in marriage by her brother, Dr. Roy Aoyama of Prince George, the former May Aoyama of Smithers, daughter of Mrs. T. Aoyama and the late Mr. Aoyama of New Denver, became the bride of Mr. Norman Ross McFarland of Smithers.

Rev. Gustaf W. W. Hewall van Wickenburgh offciated at the ceremony at Smithers United Church, which was ornamented wth daffodils and fern for the occasion. Organist was Mrs. Lee, and soloist for the ceremony was Mrs. Ed Herman, who sang "O Promise Me."

A traditional floor-length gown of white Chantilly lace over peau de soie was worn by the bride, the flowing skirt sweeping into a train. The bodice featured a high neckline and lily point sleeves. Her shoulder-length veil was held by a crown of orange blossoms and she carried a cascade of white carnations.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Amy Suzuki of Vancouver, and Mrs. Diane Sibley Telkwa, bridesmatron. They were gowned alike in turquoise satin with white carnation and hyacinth bouquets.

Mr. Art Buchman was best man and ushers were Mr. Ian McDonald and Mr. Brian Collison.

A large reception was held in the Elks Hall, where Mr. W. Bryant, princpal of the junior high school, was master of ceremonies. Mr. Ed Thomas proposed the bridal toast. The wedding cake was made by the mother of the bridegroom, Mrs. Russel G. McFarland.

For their wedding trip, the bride changed into a pink wool suit and black and white topcoat and accessories.

Out of town guests at the wedding were Mrs. Aoyama of New Denver; Mrs. Hickey, Mrs. D. McFarland, Barbie and Lyne, Mr. and Mrs. T. Suzuki and Leslie, Miss Diane Miyasaka, all of Vancouver; Mr. Ian McDonald of Jasper; Dr. and Mrs. Roy Aoyama of Prince George; Miss C. L. Ingledew and Miss J. Kelanowski of Kamloops.

Hints From Heloise

By Heloise Cruse

Dear Heloise:

I want to pass on another great idea for using your nylon net.

I keep a piece of it in my laundry room. I use this for scrubbing out the laundry tubs and also for getting dirt out of the children's clothes.

Just wet a soiled garment, apply suds to spot and rub it with a piece of your net. Put the soapy garment on either a flat surface or lay it on the palm of your hand and scrub away, then wash as usual.

I could not believe my eyes when I tried this, on a pair of shorts that had been soiled from sitting in the dirt.

The soil washed away like pure magic.

Ann Smosna.

• • •

Dear Heloise:

I have white ruffled curtains all over my house and love them except for the ironing.

I find that if I slip a plastic bag over the bottom part of the curtains above my kitchen sink . . . it keeps them clean and they do not need to be laundered so often. I clip the bag into the folds of the curtain in the back with clip-type clothespins. The clothespins are hardly noticed. One could use pins.

Jean.

Or hair clips maybe?

• • •

Dear Heloise:

What is an inexpensive and easy way to clean copper bottom pans?

Smiles.

• • •

Dear Smiles:

Pour some vinegar on the bottom, throw some table salt on it and rub it with your fingers. Yep, there goes our vinegar again.

Watch the dark copper begin to gleam. Wash and rinse as usual. No rubbing, no scrubbing and no energy wasted.

If you like (and I do) a shine, all your have to do is to scour lightly with a soap-filled pad. This will help prevent tarnishing so soon again.

These soap-filled pads contain what I call "jeweller's rouge."

Love, Heloise.

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

Dear Heloise:

How many of us forget to remove hamburger from the freezer in time to thaw it for supper? Well . . . I found a quick thawing method:

Just put your frozen meat in the top of your "reliable" double boiler and put the lid on. It works every time.

Judy.

Dear Heloise:

To keep sweet corn-on-the-cob fresh, I wrap each ear in 3 squares of paper towel, soak it in water and put it in the refrigerator. If the towel dries out, re-soak it.

Keep the towel wet until you get ready to boil or roast the corn. It will be as fresh as when you bought it. Three towels are just about right for one ear of corn.

J. A. Montague.

Dear Heloise:

Often times a ringing telephone will waken a sleeping child when he's napping. The easiest way I know to smother this noise is to place the phone on a pillow then throw another pillow on top of it.

Mother can easily hear the soft buzz but baby sleeps right on through.

Mother.

On most phones nowadays — the type where the bell is in the phone itself — if you will turn it over you will see a little wheel on the bottom. This wheel looks like a silver dollar. It may be turned to the left or to the right so that the bell either rings very loud or quite softly.

Heloise.

Modern Living In A Modern Age

Better Your Living in 1964

CLEAN UP—PAINT UP—FIX UP

A Home of Your Own

CONDENSATION

Open your windows more often to get rid of excess water vapour and avoid condensation. Outside air in winter usually contains much less moisture than warm inside air. Opening the windows for a minute allows this moisture laden air to escape outside. What causes condensation? The living habits of the occupants of the house may be responsible to a large extent.

Cooking, laundering and bathing all add moisture to the air in the house. A certain amount of moisture content of the air gets too low, woodwork may also be damaged through excessive shrinkage. Finding the most favourable condition requires some experimenting. If you cannot locate the cause of condensation it may be advisable to call in an expert.

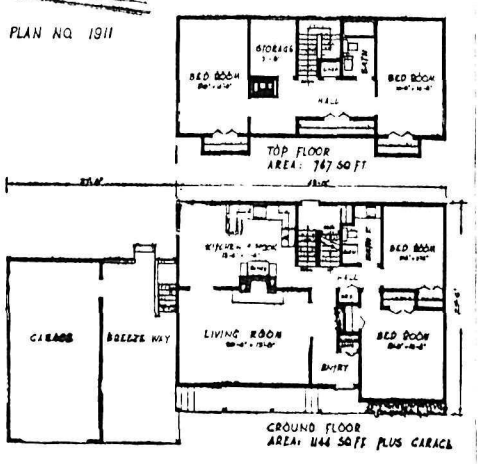
The Modern Home

PLAN NO. 1911



A dash of the ranch style and a generous portion of tradition, added together are evident in the crisp neat lines of this four bedroom, full basement house.

The main floor shows a space living room with inside wall fireplace, kitchen and dining area adjacent, two good sized bedrooms with lots of closet space and main bathroom.

An unusual treatment of the stairs is shown with the stairway to the second floor, located next to the basement stairs. The second floor shows two bedrooms and a full sized bathroom, along with a good sized storage area. Lots of closet space in the upstairs room too.

The exterior of this house is almost reminiscent of grandfather's farmhouse, charming, solid and comfortable. Garage and breezeway add to the look of length of the house.

Designed for N.H.A. approval, blueprints are available from the Building Centre (B.C.) Ltd., 96 Kingsway at Broadway, Vancouver, B.C.

TORONTO (CP)—The cost of building materials will probably rise five to six per cent by this spring and summer, James Lind, vice - president of the Ontario Retail Lumber Dealers Association, said here Monday.

Mr. Lind said in an interview the federal sales tax is slated to go up to eight per cent from four per cent April 1 and supply and demand will make the increase in price even greater.

He said the high demand for British Columbia lumber in the United States, where construction is in high gear, will reduce the available supply in the Canadian market and help increase prices.

Civic Leaders Call on Public To Assist in Cleanup Week

MAYOR E. T. BODARD

Mayor E. T. Bodard said Friday that the Clean-up Campaign is a yearly reminder to our community of its responsibility to itself, for the outward appearance reflects the spirit of our citizens.

Good civic housekeeping is a necessity to any community's betterment, but no community is stirred to action until somebody sells it an idea, and charges its people with enthusiasm. The Clean-Up — Paint-Up — Fix-Up program spearheaded by our Fire Department is by far the most effective method to achieve low fire losses.

When you help in this campaign, you help yourself.

Fritz Farenholtz, president, Chamber of Commerce — The Chamber of Commerce is primarily concerned with the welfare of people. Every year many thousands experience suffering, sometimes death, and often heavy property damage as a result of fire.

It is natural, therefore, that we place emphasis on the importance of fire prevention Clean-Up Week. This is a continuing necessity; a moment of carelessness may easily lead to a life of regret. Fire Prevention must be a 365-day job; and if we fail, we, or those we love, may be the ones to suffer.

For these reasons the Chamber of Commerce gives its endorsation to Clean-Up Week and we urge everyone to assist in the program.

Peter Reibin, president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce—The need for Clean-Up Week, as well as a constant fire prevention campaign, is forcibly brought to our attention that Canada's per capita fire loss is approximately four times that of Great Britain.

It is hoped that the Clean-Up Campaign will bring greater co-operation from the Nelson public and do everything in their power to maintain low fire losses. Clean-Up—Paint-Up—Fix-Up.

Malcolm Brandon, president of the Rotary Club—Every Nelson citizen has a stake in Fire Prevention. By taking the simple measures necessary to prevent fires from getting started, lives can be saved, tragedies averted, and property damage prevented.

"Clean-Up — Paint-Up — Fix - Up" is an appropriate slogan. I commend and heartily endorse Clean-Up Week. I commend the interest being shown by the fire department in their efforts to arouse the public in fire prevention measures. It is a worthy undertaking.

A. K. McAdams, vice-president of the Chamber of Commerce—The insurance industry, probably more than any other business in Canada, has a greater realization of what fire costs Canadians both in terms of human lives and suffering and in actual physical loss and damage. And because of this awareness, there isn't an insurance company writing fire insurance in Canada that isn't only too conscious of the great need for even greater emphasis on fire safety practices and education.

We in the insurance business are proud of the fact that we have long been in the forefront of this work but we realize that much still remains to be done. The insurance companies, both individually and collectively through associations, have devoted much time and money and effort to helping make the public fire prevention conscious. To us, every week is Fire Prevention Week.

Through the use of movies, printed material, speechs, advertising and other methods, the Nelson fire department has tried to impress upon our citizens that when there is a fire, everyone loses. There is not only the loss to the person concerned, but there is the economic waste to not only the community but also to the country.

We shall continue this work co-operating with our fire department, trying to maintain low fire losses in Nelson. We must all work together toward this end, remembering that fire prevention is everybody's business and by working together we can hold in restraint this great enemy which has cost us so much in human lives and suffering and money.

The Sports Scene

By PAT McMAHON

Sports chatter of importance and otherwise . . . Willie Mays' great start has baseball experts wondering whether he will become the first major league slugger to hit .400 since Ted Williams got the job done in 1941. The last National Leaguer to turn the trick was Bill Terry, who hit .401 for the Giants in 1930 . . . When Broker's Tip scored an upset win in the 1933 Kentucky Derby it was a case of giving the big effort when it counted. It was the only race he ever won . . . The Nelson Outlaws may come up with a player announcement shortly that will strike terror in the hearts of their opponents . . . speaking of announcements, the Nelson Booster Club may have something big to announce in the not too distant future . . . When the Boston Celtics downed the San Francisco Warriors to wrap up the National Basketball Association Championships it marked the sixth straight time Wilt Chamberlain and the boys from Beantown took home all the marbles . . . Which is the beefiest team in organized hockey? The Toronto Junior Marlboros. They average 185 pounds, over 10 pounds more than the parent Maple Leafs . . . Bobby Taylor, who set a WFC pass receiving record with 74 receptions and Pete Manning, everyone's all star end have signed their 1964 Calgary Stampeders contracts . . . The combined salaries of Frank Mahovlich, Red Kelly and Andy Bathgate this year was $78,000, or an average of $26,000 . . . Kansas City Athletics' owner Charles Finley's "pennant porch" isn't helping much. The A's were only able to bang one homer over the shortened fence in five games . . . Edmonton Oil Kings are almost sure to pick up Regina Pat star Fran Huck for their Memorial Cup finals. Huck is the most highly touted junior hockey player to come along since Bobby Hull was a pup. Former National Hockey League hockey star Doug Bentley said recently that the 18-year-old, 140 pounder could stick in the NHL today . . . Bob Pulford was named by a poll of visiting newspapermen as the outstanding player in the 1964 Stanley Cup playoffs . . . A record $132,232 was won by a lucky bettor on a "twin double" ticket at Roosevelt Raceway in Westbury, New York Tuesday. The winner had track officials puzzled for awhile as he did not make an appearance to pick up his money until nearly three days later . . . A Toronto Maple Leaf director congratulated Johnny Bower on his fine save on Alex Delvecchio in the first period of the last Stanley Cup game, which he said was the turning point of the contest. Bower's retort was short and to the point. "Oh yeah? If you think I was that great get me some tickets to the Beatles' performance in Maple Leaf Gardens next fall!" . . . When Ken Johnson of the Houston Colts pitched a no-hitter and lost the game recently, he became the first pitcher to lose a no-hitter in a nine inning game. Seven others have pitched no hitters that have gone more than nine innings and gone down to defeat. In 1917, Jim Vaughn pitched a no-hitter for the Cubs and lost because his opponent, Fred Toney of the Reds, also hurled a perfect game . . . Yes I know I goofed and referred to Northern Dancer as "Native Dancer" in yesterday's column. Native Dancer is Northern Dancer's maternal grandpappy. He only lost one race in his career — Yep it was the Kentucky Derby . . . Ken Wharram over Gordie Howe on the NHL all star team??? . . . The Department of Recreation and Conservation has stocked Corra Linn waters with 10,000 Kamloops trout and Slocan Pool with 15,000.

Pacific North-West Gymnastic Championships To Start Today

Seattle Man Heads Judges

Local gymnastic judges will get an opportunity to evaluate competitors' performances under the expert guidance of several experienced officials from Vancouver and Seattle and Saskatoon.

Heading the list of guest officials is R. Tanic, Pacific North-West A.A.U. Gymnastic committee chairman. He will be joined at the judge's table by Mrs. Tanic, R. Wolecke, Saskatoon and Dr. Norman Watt, Dr. H. D. Whittle, Rheal Finnegan, Joe Morchand, Deter Wichert, Monique Lindeman, and Ann Ramsay, all of Vancouver.

Local judges are Mrs. J. Lefeaux, Mrs. G. Bos, Alex Ross, Esmat Mansouri, Walter McIntyre, Len Cutler and Henry Beausoleil.

Junior competitions will begin at 10:30 a.m. Senior activities will begin at 12:30.

Following a "Banquet of Champions," at the Canadian Legion Hall, a "Review of Champions" will be held at the L. V. Rogers gymnasium commencing at 8:00 p.m.

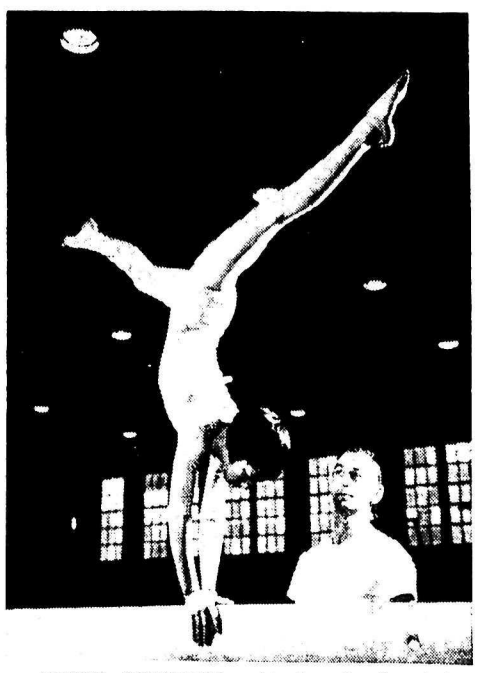
Top Flight Athletes Represent Seattle Y'

Bill Crowe, 27, a versatile athlete from the University of Washington will lead a large contingent representing the Seattle YMCA Gymnastic Club into the Pacific Northwest Gymnastic Championships here today. Crowe is the former U.S. National Collegiate Athletic Association tumbling and long-horse vaulting champion and currently holds the Pacific Northwest trampoline title, which he will lay on the line tonight against a formidable list of opponents from Alberta, Saskatchewan, British Columbia, and Oregon.

Crowe is considered a favorite to earn a place on the two-man canoe team which will represent the United States in the summer Olympics in Tokyo this fall. He is also active in diving and swimming circles.

His main competition in the trampoline section of the championships is expected to come from Seattle club-mate John Anthony, a sixteen-year-old gymnast whom experts feel is a sure bet to gain international recognition within a very short time.

Another top-flight competitor from Seattle who will demonstrate his ability at the meet is Charlie Denny, current U.S. flying ring champion. Denny doubles as a trampoline star.



GLENNA SEBESTYEN, outstanding Canadian junior women's gymnast puts the final touches on her training program prior to the opening of the Pacific Northwest Gymnastic Championships here today. Her father-coach, Chuck Sebestyen, looks on.

12-Year-Old Prodigy Will Display Wares

Featured attraction in the junior ladies' division of the Pacific Northwest Gymnastic Championships which get under way at L. V. Rogers High School this afternoon will be the performance of 12-year-old Glenna Sebestyen of Saskatoon.

Miss Sebestyen will be remembered as the sensational young athlete who caused quite a controversy in Canadian amateur athletic circles when, after proving herself to be the second best woman gymnast in Canada, she was ruled ineligible to represent her country in the Pan-American Games at Sao Paulo, Brazil, due to the fact that she was only ten years of age.

Undaunted, Glenna journeyed to Montreal where she walked off with the Canadian junior all-round championship. She then competed in the North American Gymnastic Championships in Philadelphia, in wide open competition, against women of all ages, representing Canada, Mexico and the United States. She managed to place ninth.

Her competition in this event was made up largely of U.S. and Mexican Olympic aspirants.

The graceful youngster comes by her gymnastic ability honestly. She began her acrobatic education at the tender age of six under the astute guidance of her father, Chuck Sebestyen, a deputy fire chief in Saskatoon and naitonal chairman of the Gymnastic Committee of the Canadian Amateur Athletic Union. Sebestyen also serves as president of the Pan-American Gymnastic Federation, an international athletic body.

He feels that at four feet nine inches and eighty pounds his agile daughter's slight stature works against her and that she is still some three or four years away from reaching her peak. If his evaluation is correct, Canada should be well represented in the 1967 Pan-American Games which are to be held in Winnipeg.

Bernie Faloney Becomes Citizen

TORONTO (CP)—Bernie Faloney, 32-year-old star quarterback with Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Eastern Football Conference, became a Canadian citizen yesterday.

Faloney has been with the club for seven years and has lived and worked in Hamilton for the last six.

He is a director and vice-president of a Hamilton industrial concern and he owns a farm which he and his wife Jan are building into a horse breeding operation.

Faloney played for Edmonton Eskimos of the then Western Interprovincial Football Union and led them to the national championship in 1954.

Doug Ford Loses Lead In Tournament Play

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Puerto Rico's Chi-Chi Rodriguez, who weighs 120 pounds but hits a golf ball like a heavyweight, battled through high wind and an occasional sandstorm Friday to take the lead in the second round of the $65,000 Tournament of Champions.

The 28-year-old five-foot-7½ Rodriguez shot a two-under-par 70, one of only four players to break par in a round beset by gusts of wind that ranged from 30 to 45 miles an hour. He posted a 36-hole socer of 139.

Jack Nicklaus remained in second place with a 73 for 141. The first-round leader, Doug Ford, shot a 75 for 142 and a tie with Gary Player and George Knudson of Toronto.

Arnold Palmer, co - favorite with Nicklaus in pre-tournament speculation, shot his second straight 72 and was tied at 144 with Doug Sanders and Don Fairfield.

KNUDSON HAS 70

Rodriguez and Knudson, each with a 70, and Player and Paul Harney, who had 71s, were the only four of the field of 29 who could break par.

Ford, starting out with a one-stroke lead over Nicklaus and two over Rodriguez and British Open champion Bob Charles, promptly went one over par on the first hole. So did Palmer. Nicklaus, with a ball in the trap, wound up with a two-over-par 7.

The 41-year-old Ford was still in front at the turn with several of the field bunched closely behind.

As Ford and Palmer continued to have troubles, Rodriguez finished the last nine with a 34.

Maroons Grab Allan Cup Lead

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Maroons skated freely through a weak defence to clip Woodstock Athletics 5-0 in the first game of the Allan Cup senior hockey final before about 6500 fans Friday night.

Second game in the best-of-seven series will be played here Sunday afternoon.

Maroons, given easy access to the Woodstock goal through failure of the eastern squad's defencemen to use body contact, were held from an even higher goal total by the spectacular netminding of Athletics' Ron Salter.

Rod, Gun Club May Leave B.C. Federation

The Nelson Rod and Gun Club may sever connections with the B.C. Federation of Fish and Game Clubs it was announced at the NRGC monthly meeting on Thursday.

The Nelson group was one of the federation's original founders some 15 years ago, but rising costs and dubious benefits have caused many local members to question the advisability of continuing affiliation with the parent group. President Harold Hall remarked that almost one third of the club's dues would go to the federation if a proposed increase of 30 cents per member was approved at a province-wide convention in Nanaimo today. He said that during the past year membership in the B.C. Federation had contributed little or nothing to the betterment of the club.

At the federation's inception it came under the direct supervision of the provincial government, and a resolution made then it was in effect a resolution presented to legislature.

The organization has since become an autonomous one. Many of the club's executive feel that the money which is now being paid to the provincial body in the form of dues could be used to better avail in financing local Rod and Gun activities.

In other business, the meeting passed a resolution to refrain from charging range fees for the forthcoming year.

It also granted the Range committee a $200 revolving monthly budget with which to finance range and trap shooting activities.

The first women members were welcomed to the ranks, and Mr. Hall expressed the hope that more women would take an interest in club activities and become members as the season progressed.

SLOW TURTLE

BEECHER City, Ill. (AP) — An old acquaintance turned up again Thursday and Jacob Julius reached for his knife — again.

Two boys found and brought to the 64-year-old farmer a turtle on which Julius first carved his initials and the year 1917. The years of subsequent meetings also are engraved on the shell: 1921, 1925, 1955.

PLAY FOR FUN

The Queen's Hotel team, winner of last year's Nelson Fastball League, will enter the Play for Fun League. Practice is set for 10 a.m. Sunday. Anyone wishing to join the club is askeo to attend.

Tobin Rote Not Exactly Enamoured With Argos

By ED SIMON

TORONTO (CP)—When Tobin Rote and Toronto Argonauts severed relations after the 1962 football season, they didn't exactly part friends.

He had come to them three years earlier, an established quarterback of the first rank, the hero of Detroit Lions' underdog triumph over Cleveland Browns in the 1957 National Football League final and a star with Green Bay Packers years before that.

Rote began by leading Argos to the Eastern Football Conference title. But the honeymoon ended abruptly three weeks later when Ottawa Rough Riders, with Rote sitting on the sidelines, pulled the venerable sleeper play out of the mothballs for a key touchdown in the eastern final that cost Toronto a bid for the Grey Cup.

Argos were third the following year but Rote appeased the wolves by passing the Riders into oblivion in the semi-final and almost stealing the final from Hamilton before the Tiger-Cats survived a desperate last-minute punt exchange and went on to win in overtime.

THREE-TIME LOSER

Then Argos finished last in 1962 and the egg hit the fan. Rote, who was playing out his option, happily departed to San Diego Chargers of the American Football League. He had led EFC passers for the second time in three seasons but as far as his critics were concerned he was a three-time loser.

So when Rote hit print last year with some uncomplimentary remarks about the Toronto management and coaching staff, his adversaries kissed him off as a disgruntled, over-the-hill quarterback reduced to a diet of sour grapes.

Against this background, some recent Rote quotes make interesting reading:

"The Chargers of last year had more punch, more speed, more fine receivers and more guys up front who wanted to knock down somebody than any team I ever played with."

Suffering from bursitis and torn ligaments in his elbow, Rote had piloted the Chargers to the AFL title. He had been voted the league's most valuable player, topped the passers with a 59.4 per cent completion average and presumably was feeling better.

COULD USE ALWORTH

From the depths of another last-place finish, Rote's old antagonists stopped devouring the current Argonaut quarterbacks long enough to mutter that it only goes to show the calibre of the AFL when a 36-year-old has-been can look that good.

Maybe so. But a faintly disloyal thought occurred to some of the television witnesses of San Diego's triumph that Jackie Parker or Sandy Stephens might have looked a good deal better with a couple of offensive backs like Paul Lowe and Keith Lincoln to take some of the pressure off the passing attack.

And perhaps a little more solidity on the offensive line would have reduced the number of occasions when Toronto quarterbacks had to run for their lives.

And just possibly Toronto might be interested in a pass receiver like Lance Alworth if he were available.

Meanwhile, Rote is doing weight - lifting exercises to strengthen his arm for another season with the Chargers.

Would he ever consider coming back to Toronto? he was asked.

"Hell, no."

Whitey Ford Downs Senators With 2-Hitter; Mays Whacks 8th Homer; Reds Edge Mets

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Whitey Ford pitched a two-hitter for his second shutout and Tom Tresh singled in the game's only run in the fourth as New York Yankees defeated Washington Senators 1-0 Friday night.

The game, the first played by the Yankees since last Sunday because of a week-long rain, proved costly to both teams. Mickey Mantle, the Yankees' slugging outfielder, pulled a muscle in his right leg and Senators' starter Bennie Daniels left in the seventh with a stiff shoulder.

In the only other AL game Friday night, Earl Battey smashed a grand slam homer to power Minnesota Twins to a 10-5 triumph over Kansas City Athletics. Cleveland at Baltimore and Los Angeles at Chicago, the other scheduled games were postponed.

In the National League, Philadelphia Phillies defeated Milwaukee Braves 5-3 for their 10th victory in 12 games, Cincinnati Reds nipped New York Mets 4-3 and St. Louis Cardinals whipped Pittsburgh Pirates 6-2.

At Los Angeles, Don Drysdale pitched a five-hitter for the Dodgers and Tommy Davis drove in four runs as they thumped San Francisco Giants 7-1. A crowd of 52,773 turned out.

At New York, Ford, bringing his record to 2-1, did not allow a hit after the third inning and did not allow a runner past second base. Ford struck out eight and walked three.

Battey's performance at Kansas City overshadowed the four home runs which accounted for all the Athletics' runs.

He connected off starter Moe Drabowsky, who had struck out Jimmie Hall and Harmon Killebrew after the Twins loaded the bases on two singles and a walk.

Battey singled home Tony Oliva and Bob Allison in the Twins' five-run eighth. Rich Rollins also singled across two runs in the inning.

At Milwaukee, the Phillies struck for three runs against Warren Spahn in the sixth inning and held on to defeat the Braves.

The 43-year-old Spahn fought a losing battle with wildness and suffered his second setback in three decisions while losing to the Phillies for the first time since 1962.

TWO SLAM HOMERS

At Cincinnati, Gordy Coleman and Marty Keough slammed home runs in the seventh inning for Cincinnati.

Keough homered after John Edwards singled, giving the Reds their winning runs. Coleman hit a solo blast at the start of the inning narrowing the Mets lead to 3-2.

The homers drove Tracy Stallard (1-3) from the mound. The righthander had allowed only three hits before the seventh.

At St. Louis hard-luck Roger Craig gained his first victory for the Cardinals beating Pittsburgh on a seven-hitter for the Cardinals' third straight victory.

The Cardinals put together a double and five singles for four runs in the fourth inning against the Pirates' starter Vern Law.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X B
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

MARKET TRENDS

NEW YORK (AP) — Strength in General Motors and Chrysler highlighted a vigorous stock market rally Friday.

Volume rose to 6,000,000 shares from the 5,700,000 in Thursday's losing session.

Leadership by blue chips and the increase in trading as prices rose provided a distinct change in atmosphere for Wall Street. In the last several days the emphasis has been on declines.

The Dow Jones industrial average advanced 6.33 to 817.10 in a recovery of recent losses.

Texas Gulf Sulphur, which has been the most active stock for the last three sessions, dropped to second place, but still piled up big volume of 460,300 shares. It lost 1⅞ at 52¾ in a continuation of profit-taking.

First place among the volume leaders was taken by Curtiss 578,500 shares. Talk continued 578,50 0shares. Talk continued about mineral possibilities on the Curtis land which is next to the Texas Gulf discovery near Timmins, Ont.

General Motors inspired other high quality issues as it advanced 2¾ to 87¼ on 107,300 shares, making it fifth most active stock. Wall Street was full of rumors to the effect that when GM directors meet on Monday they may propose a stock split or stock dividend and possibly declare a husky cash dividend as well following their record-breaking quarterly earnings.

Chrysler, seventh most active, spurted 2¼ to 46⅝. After the market close came announcement that Chrysler plans to acquire Mack trucks. Mack advanced 2⅝.

Airlines, steels, rails, aerospace issues, tobaccos, electronics and electrical equipments were among the gainers.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced 1.4 to 303.1.

Richfield Oil, up 3 at 55¾, rose in active trading in response to various rumors. Some of these were that the company was planning to sell its assets, others concerned the possibility, later denied, of a rich discovery in Canada.

TORONTO (CP) — Industrial prices on the Toronto stock market followed the lead of New York with a gain of nearly one point on index to close the week in good style Friday.

All major sectors of the industrial board advanced although there was a scattering of declines.

Steels were leaders most of the day. Dominion Steel and Coal closing up 1½ to 16⅞. Algoma and Dominion Foundries and Steel ½ each to 66 and 21½ respectively and Steel Company of Canada ⅛ to 25⅞.

Alberta Gas rose 1⅛ to [illegible] in pipelines, B.C. Forest ¾ to 30 among papers and Nova Scotia one point to 72 in banks.

Elsewhere on the industrial board, International Minerals and Chemical advanced 2¼ to 79½, Simpsons and CPR 1¼ each to 43¾ and 44⅝ respectively, Chrysler one point to 49⅛ and General Motors ¾ to 92.

Senior metals edged ahead near the close, International Nickel gaining one point to 88¼ and Falconbridge ½ to 72½ while Geco Mines fell ½ to 34½.

Among speculative mines, Cusco advanced 4½ cents to [illegible] cents on 692,500 shares. North Coldstream rose 11 cents to 75 cents and Manoka Mining nine cents to 25 cents. Bunker Hill slipped three cents to 64 cents.

Home A was ahead ⅞ to 18⅞ and Union Oil ⅝ to 15⅛ in senior oils. Alminex rose 30 cents to $3.95 in juniors.

MONTREAL (CP)—The Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges were off to a slow start Friday but picked up speed in the afternoon as prices rose. At the close all groups were higher.

The composite index advanced 0.7 to 143.0 and advances led declines 120 to 77.

Trading was active as industrial turnover reached 189,000 and mines and oils 1,859,700 shares.

Papers held the spotlight as they jumped 1.1 to 134.3. Great Lakes advanced ⅝ to 24⅞, Dominion Tar ⅜ to 19½ and B.C. Forest and Price Bros. ¼ each to 29½ and 44¼.

Utilities climbed 1.0 to 131.7. CPR rose one point to 44½. Newfoundland Light ⅝ to 11⅝, Calgary Power ½ to 22½ and Bell Telephone ¼ to 53½.

Industrials climbed 0.7 to 148.2. CIL advanced ½ to 18¼ and Dominion Textile and Moore Corp. ⅜ each to 24⅞ and 52¾.

Banks edged up 0.1 to 125.9. Canadienne Nationale dipped ¼ to 77¼, Montreal ⅜ to 64⅜ and Provinciale ¾ to 55¼. Royal advanced ½ to 75¼ and Nova Scotia and Toronto-Dominion ¼ each to 72 and 75¼.

In speculative mines on the Canadian exchange Fano rose 10½ cents to 45 cents and traded 1,071,100 shares, the highest volume of any issue for the day. McAdam advanced one cent to 74 cents on 77,500 shares. Chipman ½ cent to 9½ cents on 51,500 shares and New Formaque ½ cent to seven cents on 45,500 shares.

White Star copper, the second most active issue, slipped four cents to 85 cents as 134,300 shares changed hands.

Imperial dropped ⅜ to 49⅝ and B.A. ⅜ to 17⅛ in senior oils. Pacific Petroleum advanced ⅝ to 13⅝.

NEW YORK (AP)—Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

American working girls are going to town in a big way . . . around 1900 one out of five employed women earned her pay on a farm or ranch . . . today only one out of 40 does.

If you want your dog to behave well, you must set him a good example. . . . It has been found that dogs reflect the personalities of their owners. . . . Cats, on the other hand, are more independent-minded and generally lead their lives according to their own sense of discipline.

Fire is man's most warming friend—and still one of his most expensive foes. . . . Annual U.S. property losses from fire have exceeded $1,000,000,000 for the last seven years. . . . The toll in 1963 was $1,400,000,000.

Isn't science wonderful? . . . An ancient Greece Aristotle once counted the teeth of his housekeeper and those of a male servant . . . he found the woman had four fewer teeth. . . . So for hundreds of years it was taken for granted that men had four more teeth than women.

CAN'T CHANGE MIND

Quotable notables: "A fanatic is someone who can't change his mind and won't change the subject." — Winston Churchill. Incidentally, George Santayana once described fanaticism as "redoubling your effort when you have forgotten your aim."

Prosperity note: Japan is building a new $20,000,000 Imperial Palace. . . . It will have an underground garage for 150 cars, a dining room that will seat 500 persons and a front garden that will accommodate 18,000 persons for afternoon tea.

Steele May Fight Dismissal Action

By DENNIS ORCHARD

VANCOUVER (CP) — If it was only a matter of a job, Fred Steele wouldn't mind being fired.

Five or six years as assistant production manager at the Masset cannery gave him a background that guarantees him employment elsewhere.

But Steele says he likes the life high up on the Queen Charlotte Islands. And he's going to have to leave because of this dismissal — an action flowing from a snarling conflict of substandard living conditions, union power, legal and civil law, and Indian-white relationships.

Queen Charlotte Canners Limited fired the native of Penzance, England, last Sunday, abiding by a 126-to-49 vote of the native Haida workers who staff the cannery during the months it is open.

The Haidas bore a seven-month grudge against Steele, driver of a truck that left the road near Masset last October, killing one Haida man and injuring several Haida women.

Steele was tried and fined $200 for careless driving, a penalty not debated by the attorney-general's department. Attorney-General Robert Bonner said there was in fact reasonable doubt that Steele was guilty. Steele didn't think it worth the court and legal costs to fight the decision.

SEEK HIS DISMISSAL

The workers, who live on unemployment and welfare benefits through the winter months, refused to go back to their jobs for the crab-fishing season in mid-April. They demanded that Steele be dismissed and turned down his offer to quit after the cannery had been operating for three weeks.

Finally, the company promised to abide by a straight vote on his dismissal.

"The Indians could have gone on indefinitely living on welfare," a company spokesman said. "We would have been out of business in a month. We have to give in to exist."

Reports from several sources indicated the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union tried to promote much of the conflict. Union officials convinced workers Steele deserved stiffer punishment, that there was "one law for the Indian and one law for the white man," the sources said.

The company spokesman said the fishermen's union hoped to play the role of champion of the oppressed Indians and improve its position in a fight against the rival Native Brotherhood of B.C.

The workers escaped responsibility under the B.C. Trade Unions Act because they did not in fact stage an illegal strike. The cannery could not be struck because it hadn't yet begun 1964 production.

Attorney-General Bonner says the dispute appeared to him to be a civil matter.

In a telephone interview from the village 500 miles northwest of here, Steele, 43, said he, his wife and two sons "have enough money to keep going."

In Canada 14 years after emigrating from Penzance, his logging and cannery experience is considerable. He has had four job offers since Sunday, but he is contemplating legal action and plans to stay on the islands until fall.

"The whole problem should have gone through arbitration," he said. "The vote to dismiss me was just plain persecution by a minority."

The Fishermen's Union insists it was asked by the Indians for "direct aid in airing longstanding grievances."

Rev. Eric Bays, Anglican missionary at Masset, agrees that the grudge against Steele was just part of the trouble.

"Action against him was the inevitable result of an increase in population and a decrease in employment."

The union says it has a promise from the department of Indian affairs to send a representative from Ottawa. He is asked to consider replacement of Indian agent Peter Hensen, alleged police hostility toward the Haidas, and a cost-of-living allowance to help pay high prices for food and clothing.

Redistribution Will Be Revived After Respite

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP)—The current hiatus in Commons study of redistribution is expected to continue for another few weeks and be followed by a showdown among the contending political forces, informants say.

Redistribution has been pending before Parliament for more than a year. The current plan —to redraw the map of constituency boundaries through an independent commission for each province—struck a major snag last week.

After a three-day effort to get the legislation moving, it was beached temporarily while the Commons turned to other matters.

But informants say the effort will be renewed. For the moment, priority is to be given to such matters as the budget bills, a new draft of the Canada Pension Plan and, possibly, a national labor code.

When the redistribution bill reappears for study, an uninterrupted drive is being planned to decide its fate. Liberals and New Democrats contend the Progressive Conservatives intend to filibuster in hopes of forcing removal of features to which the Conservatives object.

DISCUSS MANNER

The immediate holdup last week was a proposal by the New Democrats on the manner of selecting personnel of the 10 redistribution commissions.

Originally it was proposed that two members of each commission be picked by the prime minister and the leader of the opposition. Chief Electoral Officer Nelson Castonguay has been designated a member of each commission and the chief justice of each province was to name a chairman from among his fellow judges.

However, the New Democrats proposed that, instead of the prime minister and the opposition leader each selecting a member for each commission, the provincial chief justice should make these selections.

Although the Liberals generally were agreeable to the idea, the Conservatives objected at length, effectively stalling the bill.

Nevertheless, this point isn't regarded by most MPs as the real stumbling block. The Conservatives have made it plain their major objection centres on another provision relating to variations in constituency size.

SET BY POPULATION

Under the bill, a target-size constituency fo each province is determined by dividing the number of Commons seats into the total population of the province.

The bill would permit a variation of 20 per cent above or below this figure.

The Conservatives want a variation of 33 per cent with a greater variation still in special cases of far-flung, sparsely-populated constituencies. They made a similar proposal in a bill placed before Parliament in 1962 but not enacted.

The Liberals are said to be willing to stretch the tolerance to 25 per cent. The New Democrats want a tolerance of less than 20 per cent but are reported willing to go along with a higher figure. Opinion in the Social Credit and Creditste parties on this point isn't clear.

However, it appears there are enough members on both sides of the House in favor of reaching a final decision to ensure a showdown when the bill comes up for debate again.

B.C. Highlights

ESCAPE FIRE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Nurse Constantine Chepil helped three elderly patients to safety when fire Thursday night damaged an upper section of the Cumberland House Rest Home. One of the elderly people, Mrs. Evelyne Bigger, 81, was treated at the scene for smoke inhalation.

LOGGING ACCIDENT

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — A man identified only as Ed Surochan was being treated in hospital here Thursday for injuries received in a logging accident on the Queen Charlotte Islands Wednesday. He was apparently caught under a falling tree and a branch pierced his stomach. He managed to crawl to a road where he was picked up by a passerby.

A Leader's Decline

Prince Hal's Empire Falling Around Him

By ROBERT RICE

OTTAWA (CP) — Hal C. Banks has bucked some big people in his rumbustious life on the waterfront.

As head of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada, he thumbed his nose at governments, cowed some of Canada's biggest shipowners and blithely ignored public criticism.

He never pretended to be a patsy. He was big and tough, a movieland version of a waterfront labor czar.

He liked the big time—flashy cars, night clubs, power boats, high living.

Wielding the power to hire and fire seamen on Canadian ships, Banks built himself an empire of affluence and authority that seemed unassailable.

Now his labor empire is crumbling.

It took the censure of organized labor, the condemnation of a public investigation, the weight of public opinion and the authority of Parliament to dislodge him from his throne.

HE'S DEPOSED

An outcast in the Canadian labor movement, he was deposed as SIU president in March. He promptly was given a $20,000-a-year job with the SIU of North America, his old union alma mater.

Another chapter is being written in the saga of Harold Chamberlain Banks, the landlubber from Waterloo, Iowa, who clawed his way to prominence as Canada's most controversial labor leader.

The 55-year-old Banks stood before a court of justice in Montreal Thursday to hear judgment on a charge of conspiracy in connection with a brutal beating inflicted seven years ago on a rival union leader.

He denied the charge.

"I have been a union official in Canada for 15 years and 15 in the U.S. before that," he testified at his trial.

"I found out long ago that violence won't get you anywhere in this type of case. One of my big jobs hee has been to keep violence down, not cause it.

"That is why I would tell the boys to keep their hands in their pockets."

CALLED VIOLENT

But a federal inquiry into SIU affairs portrayed him as a violent, lawless man who held monopoly control of both seamen and shipowners through gangster tactics.

In the process, he built himself a luxurious home in suburban Montreal, stocked with the finest liquors. For a while, he rented a plush downtown Montreal apartment and used union money to furnish it lavishly—including $1,400, worth of mirrors.

He drove a white Cadillac, paid for with union money.

He collected $20,000 a year as pay, plus another $20,000 as expense money.

Banks stands taller than six feet and weighs more than 240 pounds. He has a chunky face that can shift swiftly from a frightening scowl to a rather charming smile.

When he smokes a cigarette he grips it between his teeth so that it waggles when he talks.

Due to a back injury, he walks with a swagger.

DECLINE STARTS

The decline of Hal Banks began just before dawn on the morning of Thursday, July 5, 1962.

That was the day workers on the locks of the St. Lawrence Seaway began boycotting ships manned by SIU crews. They wanted a government investigation of the Seafarers' Union and an end to a reign of terror that had swept the shipping industry.

The boycott forced the Conservative government to name Mr. Justice T. G. Norris as a one-man commission of inquiry.

After almost a year of public hearings, Judge Norris handed in a sizzling two-volume report that described the SIU as a corrupt organization, used by Banks to impose "one-man lawless rule over shipping on the Great Lakes."

The Norris report, in turn, led to parliamentary action to impose government trusteeship on the SIU and four other maritime unions.

Banks came to Canada in 1949 —at the behest of organized labor, some prominent shipowners and the Liberal government of that time.

His job was to get rid of the Canadian Seamen's Union, a Communist - run organization that had disrupted shipping in the post-war years.

METHODS DESCRIBED

Judge Norris said Banks "bludgeoned" his way to power, then used lawless and violent means to build himself a dictatorship based on fear and intimidation.

While the SIU was part of the Canadian Labor Congress, Banks had a cloak of respectability. He was sent to Geneva as a labor representative in the Canadian delegation to an International Labor Organization conference.

Once outside the CLC—expelled in 1960 for raiding another union—he was attacked publicly by his former labor allies, who said they erred in their earlier support.

Banks argued that he produced results for his members, boosting the monthly pay of a deckhand to $329 in 1962 from $160 in 1949.

"I've had to fight finks and scabs and look out for my boys," he once said. "It's a tough position and sometimes I haven't had time to be a gentleman."

Complex Problem Faces Williston

VICTORIA (CP) — Over the the flickering flames of midnight oil, Ray Williston and his British Columbia forest service advisers ponder the fate of a burgeoning pulp industry in the north.

The problem is simple in definition but complex in solution:

How to provide enough forest stands to feed a proposed complex of mills that could mean a $400,000,000 boom in the growing northland.

Mr. Williston, a school teacher-turned cabinet minister, last week concluded a series of public hearings from Kitimat to Smithers as lands and forests chief.

The proposals:

(1) By MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd., the giant in the Canadian forest industry—a $150,000,000 pulp and paper mill complex at the aluminum town of Kitimat;

(2) By Columbia Cellulose Ltd. — a $70,000,000 kraft pulp mill at Prince Rupert;

(3) By Bulkley Valley Pulp and Timber Ltd., a local northern group — a $52,000,000 pulp mill at Houston, Northwestern B.C.

The problem facing the lands and forests ministry is that all three applications for Crown timber conflict in one way or another. Each claims it must have this timber to make its particular project economically feasible.

Mr. Williston must come up with an answer soon, and he has said that utilization of the available timber will be a key factor in his decision.

He said at the conclusion of the hearings that he wanted all three mills built, if possible. He feels confident there is enough timber because of the industry's increasing attention to utilization of timber that scant years ago was tossed on the rubble heap.

Mr. Williston, who must open a new set of hearings in Prince George in May into applications for two more pulp mills costing some $100,000,000, commented:

"If it's a weed today I'll bet it is gold-plated tomorrow."
