Problem Boys To Be Treated At Dormitory at New Denver

By JEAN BAKER

NEW DENVER — A plan has been proposed for use of the New Denver dormitory which if adopted, will see the first institution of its kind in Canada operating in this Slocan Lake site.

Hon. Wesley D. Black, minister of health and social welfare, announced Tuesday that a home environment in the rehabilitation of boys with behavior problems, will be the role dropped on the spacious building which has sheltered many others with varying needs during its 24-year history.

Mr. Black outlined his plans at a meeting Tuesday morning following a final inspection of the building, when he was accompanied by R. J. Burnham assistant director of social welfare, of Victoria; Donald Bingham, deputy superintendent of child welfare of Victoria; W. H. Crossley, regional director of social welfare at Nelson, and Randolph Harding of Silverton, MLA for Kaslo-Slocan.

The provincial secretary pressed immediately for cooperation from the community at a meeting held in the social welfare office at New Denver, attended by village chairman N. C. Uphill, Women's Institute representatives Mrs. J. A. Greer, Mrs. T. Steenhoff and Mrs. T. W. Clarke; and Chamber of Commerce representatives Gunnar Lepsoe, A. L. Harris, L. R. Campbell and James Draper.

He poured cold water on proposals of the New Denver Women's Institute that the buildings be used to house senior citizens, by pointing out the unsuitability of the site for this purpose, at the same time advising the organization how to go about planning sponsorship of senior citizens' homes by a local organization and senior government.

He also quashed rumors concerning the buildings' possible use for retarded children's work pointing out that the facilities are entirely unsuitable for this purpose.

20 TO START

The boys receiving rehabilitation at the proposed shelter will be between the ages of 12 to 18 years. Starting with 20 lads, the venture will expand immediately it is found successful, to include a total of 40 boys, with an unstated maximum for the future.

An unstated amount will be proposed for the next health and welfare budget to cover the cost of preparing the dormitory for the proposed use and maintenance, but the prime consideration, pointed out the member for the Nelson-Creston riding, is the choice of staff.

PLAN OUTLINED

Mr. Black laid the "bare bones" of his department's plans before the meeting, after noting the dormitory's unsuitability for other purposes.

"We will start on a 20-boy basis, expanding to a 40-boy basis and will go on from there as we are able to determine the success of the proposed venture.

"We will require changes in the building. We will require staffing. The professionally trained type to handle these boys are in short supply. We do have people in our own department, however, who are capable of handling this type of centre.

"We will need specially trained and skilled top people and will use all the local services possible. He pointed out that the entire staff will have special training, from highly skilled supervisor to maintenance personnel

ASKS CO-OPERATION

New Denver, which twice before has co-operated in extending community goodwill to influxes of peoples placed there by government decree, was once more asked for its assistance in making a success of the proposed rehabilitation program.

"We will try and use the whole community in trying to rehabilitate them," said the provincial secretary. "Some may be here as long as two years. We will use the facilities of the community and the public school system where it is advisable to do so. We can't get the success we hope to have unless we have your help."

He commended the community on the way it had dealt with the Sons of Freedom problem when the children of the sect were kept at the dormitory and many were sent to the local schools.

Among staff members proposed for the institution will be the superintendent, two teachers, two social workers, six supervisors, two cooks, building service personnel, house matrons, social welfare staff, nurse, occupational therapist and others.

Mr. Black regretted the length of time allowed to pass before a use was found for the dormitory. "The government was unable to let go of the place so long as the Sons of Freedom problem was with us."

"The facilities are tailor-made for what we have in mind," he noted.

The Women's Institute members expressed disappointment that their plans for the dormitory as a senior citizen's home were not accepted, but they and the rest of the meeting expressed keen interest in the welfare minister's proposal.

The minister and his party and Women's Institute representatives were entertained at a luncheon arranged by the Chamber of Commerce community affairs chairman L. R. Campbell.

DEPARTMENT OF SOCIAL WELFARE PERSONNEL who have been involved in investigations resulting in a proposed plan for use of the New Denver Dormitory as a rehabilitation centre for boys with behaviour problems are, from left, Donald Bingham, deputy superintendent of child welfare; W. H. Crossley of Nelson, regional director of social welfare, and R. J. Burnham, assistant director of social welfare. The three men accompanied minister of health and welfare Hon. W. D. Black to New Denver Tuesday for the announcement of the dormitory's proposed use to community representatives.

Cuban Exiles Demand Total OAS Severance From Cuba

Clash With Police Outside Washington Conference Site

By MORRIS W. ROSENBERG

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cuban exiles clashed with police in a wild melee outside as the 20-nation inter-American conference convened Tuesday amidst growing sentiment for total diplomatic and trade isolation of Fidel Castro's Cuba.

As the foreign ministers began their four-day meeting to consider sanctions against the Communist Caribbean nation, several hundred Cubans — among some 5,000 who set out to stage a peaceful demonstration — fought and struggled with scores of police.

They threw stones, they jeered and cheered. They chanted "Cuba Si, Russia No." They carried banners saying in both English and Spanish, "We Save Cuba or We Lose America."

"Wake Up OAS," said another banner, referring to the Organization of American States.

For half an hour the exiles, gathered here from Miami, New York, Baltimore and other U.S. est coast cities as well as Chicago, defied the police.

Only quick action by mounted patrolmen who rode into the crowd broke up the melee.

One mounted officer was hit in the face by a flying rock and by a board. His face was bloodied but apparently he was not cut seriously.

Another officer was hit on the leg by a rock and was seen limping.

Ambulances also carried away two injured Cubans but there was no complete report of the total injured. It was believed to be small.

Four Cubans were reported arrested.

VENEZUELA PRESSES

At the conference, Venezuela pressed its "hard - line" demands for a complete diplomatic and trade break with Cuba by all members of the OAS.

This stand, based on Venezuela's claim that Castro tried to overthrow the Venezuelan government by sending arms to Venezuelan Communists during recent general elections, is embodied in a resolution introduced by the foreign ministers of Colombia, Costa Rica and Panama.

The resolution condemns Cuba for its subversive acts and calls for the following action by OAS members.

It also calls for:

1. Suspension of all trade by the American republics with Cuba, except for foodstuffs and medical supplies.

2. Suspension of all air and sea transport between the American republics and Cuba "with the exception of transport necessary for emergency reasons of a humanitarian nature."

3. Rupture of diplomatic and consular relations of the American republics with Cuba.

The Cuban demonstrators had been authorized to march to the Lincoln Memorial and back to demonstrate their support for imposing sanctions against Cuba.

They were not authorized to march up 17th St. to Constitution Ave., but all went peacefully until they attempted to demonstrate in front of the Pan-American Union building, site of the inter-American meeting.

Mounted police and other officers, totalling about 70, blocked their way. Then the disorders began.

B.C's Indirect Debt Reported $1.37 Billion

VICTORIA (CP)—British Columbia has no direct debt but the mid-summer economic review released Monday showed it has an indirect debt of $1,379,455,226.

The figure is for the year ended March 31, 1964, and is up $33,496,097 from the previous year.

The indirect debt, called "contingent liabilities," is paid off either by Crown corporations or by municipalities and school districts whose bonds are guaranteed by the province.

Most of the liabilities — $940,190,451—were accounted for by B.C. Hydro and Power Authority.

Other liabilities included school bonds, $152,052,800, Pacific Great Eastern Railway $124,440,555, and Toll Authority (now renamed Ferry Authority) $47,473,640.

The economic review included previously-issued figures showing government spending totalling $385,600,000 and revenue of $389,700,000.

The government got an unexpected $11,700,000 more in sales tax income than it had estimated.

Revenue from this source amounted to $107,800,000, up 11 per cent from the previous year.

Other sources of revenue that brought in more than estimated included:

Logging tax, $4,300,000 at $8,807,000;

Gasoline tax, $1,600,000 at $46,420,000;

And liquor, $986,000 at $32,836,000.

Logging tax income was up 116 per cent from the previous year, gas tax up eight per cent and liquor up five per cent.

The economic review also showed the ferry system had net income of $772,196 compared with $456,159 in the previous year.

Operating revenue was $11,740,074, operating expense was $2,807,978 and there was a subsidy from general revenue of $909,019.

As previously announced, B.C. Hydro had profit of $8,800,000 and the PGE $7,014.

Parliament

By The Canadian Press

Prime Minister Pearson announced Governor-General Vanier's original five-year term has been extended to late 1965.

Paul Martineau (PC—Pontiac-Temiscamigue) said Douglas Fisher (NDP — Port Arthur) made a disgraceful attack on Quebec MPs Monday.

Creditiste Leader Real Caouette said Mr. Fisher had again demonstrated his prejudice against Quebec.

Jean-Charles Cantin (L — Quebec South) said the government's student loan bill is in the interests of all Canadians.

Three amendments to the student loans bill suggested by the opposition were accepted by Finance Minister Gordon.

The Senate voted in favor of referring to the Supreme Court of Canada a bill by Senator Jean-Francois Pouliot to amend the Marriage and Divorce Act.

New Constitution For Malta Approved

By SEAGHAN MAYNES

LONDON (Reuters) — The British government announced Tuesday agreement on a new constitution for Malta when the Mediterranean island becomes independent.

Authoritative sources said this would probably be in September although no date for Maltese independence was announced here.

Britain and Malta have also initialled a 10 - year defence agreement giving Britain the right to base troops on the island and the obligation to provide military aid or advice if asked.

Commonwealth Secretary Duncan Sandys said the Maltese constitution contained a "large chapter" on human rights, which he said had been strengthened in negotiations that ended Tuesday.

CHURCH A POWER

This was taken as a reference to the power of the Roman Catholic Church, over which there has been sharp division between the Maltese government headed by Borg Olivier and Dom Mintoff's Labor party.

The constitution stated that all persons in Malta shall have full freedom of conscience and religious worship.

After passing through the House of Commons Thursday, the independence bill will go to the House of Lords and then to Queen Elizabeth for royal assent.

Sandys requested the opposition Labor party's co-operation in expediting the bill, as Malta's independence had already been postponed. It was originally fixed for last May 31, but the political parties in Malta failed to agree on the terms of a constitution.

Sandys said Britain had agreed to provide up to £50,000,000 ($150,000,000) to Malta over a 10-year period for the development and diversification of the economy and assistance for emigration.

Draft of Health Plan May Be Seen Early in 1965

Draft Aims at Stage-by-Stage Action on Commission Proposals

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — A comprehensive system of medical and health care on a national basis appears to be several years off.

Health Minister Judy LaMarsh said at the end of a two-day federal-provincial health ministers conference Tuesday she hopes to have a draft program ready for preliminary talks with the provinces early next year.

At the request of the provinces, the draft would aim at stage-by-stage implementation of some of the recommendations of the Hall royal commission on health services.

"We hope to be able by early 1965 to develop a policy of how much of the plan we would be in a financial position to offer the provinces," Miss LaMarsh told a press conference.

She said the federal and provincial governments accept the "inevitability" of medical care insurance. But she made it plain that the governing factor will be the resources available to the governments involved.

PROVOKES LAUGH

The Hall commission suggestion of provincial sweepstakes to help finance a plan was mentioned. "There was a laugh and that was that," she said.

The conference had shown "we will have to move rather more slowly than some would wish."

Meanwhile, she said, a technical committee will work on defining what kind of mental patient care should be covered in the current hospital insurance program.

The provinces had urged that mental and tubercular patient care be covered but "we gave them at this time no indication that now or in the immediate future we would be prepared to assume the cost."

The provinces also were to provide Ottawa with estimates of their spending on hospital construction between now and 1968, when current federal construction grants expire, and for the five years thereafter.

TO STUDY GRANTS

The federal government was to study ways that the current health grants program could be widened to give support to provincial programs against alcoholism. This was suggested by Quebec and Manitoba.

But on comprehensive medical care, all levels of government were taking a cautious approach while accepting it as inevitable.

The general feeling, with one exception, was that the Hall commission estimates of costs were too low. The commission estimated that by 1971 the present system of health services will cost $4,015,000,000 and said that for another $466,000,000 Canada could expand the system and provide medical care for all.

She said Saskatchewan, the only province with experience of a medicare program, disagreed on this point.

The commission was "overconfident of governments' ability to digest such a report and regurgitate a policy," she said in connection with the commission proposal for a conference of medical care within six months.

NO KITCHEN SINK

"I haven't seen the kitchen sink in there but I've seen everything else."

The commission had done what every royal commission does, "without regard to the practicabilities, recommend the optimum". The government then had to select what to implement.

"I don't think any commission report in the last 10 years has been adopted holus - bolus. I don't think this one will be, either."

Bennett to Ottawa on Bank Issue

VANCOUVER (CP) — Premier W. A. C. Bennett boarded a plane for Ottawa Tuesday with a briefcase bulging with reasons why the Senate should grant a federal charter to the proposed Bank of British Columbia.

"British Columbia will not be turned down," said the premier.

"The Porter commission (on banking) says we need more banks, and if more are needed B.C. is the place. I'm sure we won't continue to bow three times to the east each morning."

Mr. Bennett will appear before the Senate banking committee in support of the charter application for a bank in which the government will buy up to 25 per cent of the shares.

The premier repeated his argument that B.C. industrialists cannot negotiate major capital borrowings without having to travel to the head offices in Eastern Canada of the major; chartered banks.

He said, however, he was "full of goodwill," and added there would be no threats or ultimatums to the Senate.

He said he expects to have the charter before the end of the year.

282,000 Tons of Sulphur Shipped In June

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver is rapidly becoming one of the world's most important sulphur shipping ports.

Bulk loading facilities at Vancouver and at Port Moody a few miles east have been working close to capacity for the last few days shipping Alberta sulphur for various world ports.

Monday 18,000 tons were loaded in two ships at Vancouver while the bulk terminals at Port Moody loaded 38,000 tons in two days.

Total exports to the end of June were 282,000 tons, with 95,000 tons scheduled for July and 63,000 tons for August. Last year's total sulphur shipment was 257,000 tons.

Set Fire To Wife's Bedroom Door

VANCOUVER (CP) — Magistrate Lorne Jackson Tuesday ordered a marital armistice of at least a year for Raymond Makowski.

Makowski appeared in court charged with setting fire to the door of his wife's bedroom.

Court was told the fire was set after a verbal battle over the time she was taking to get ready to go out and after she locked the bedroom door and wouldn't let her husband in.

The bedrom door was scorched.

Magistrate Jackson suspended sentence but ordered Makowski to keep out of trouble for a year.

Banks Evades Apprehension

MONTREAL (CP) — Bailiff Andre Landriau failed to apprehend Hal C. Banks Tuesday in two visits to the suburban Pointe Claire home of the deposed president of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada (Ind.)

Mr. Ladriau was trying to serve a writ of arrest on Banks for the former waterfront leader to be taken to north end Bordeaux Jail to begin serving a 30-day sentence for contempt of court.

Three police cars were immediately ordered to remain at Banks' home on the shores of Lake St. Louis in the western end of Montreal Island. Police also posted a cruiser on the lake to keep watch.

Mayor Wagner Rushes Home

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor Robert F. Wagner cut short a European business trip and returned Tuesday to this racially troubled city, where FBI agents —under President Johnson's order—were investigating three nights of bloody rioting.

The mayor immediately went into a private conference with acting mayor Paul Screvane and other city officials to discuss the rapid-fire developments in one of the city's most tense racial situations in more than a decade.

The mayor's return came only hours after President Johnson directed that the FBI conduct a full investigation of the violence that has claimed one life and brought injury to more than 100 persons.

Wagner welcomed the FBI co-operation, but added that he had "complete faith" in city Police Commissioner Michael Murphy.

Vancouver's City Core Plan Gets Two Boosts

VANCOUVER (CP) — The city's proposed $120,000,000 program to revitalize its downtown core took two steps closer to reality Tuesday.

The provincial government announced it was going ahead with plans for a $12,000,000 office building and courthouse annex adjacent to the present court house.

At the same time Eaton's of Canada announced it would definitely build a new department store as soon as the city's related development program got rolling.

City council was meeting Tuesday and was expected to approve its part of the project, involving the initiation of worldwide negotiations with private investors to rebuild an entire block in the heart of the business district.

The entire project, covering 12 city blocks, centres on Georgia and Granville streets.

The proposed Eaton's store, estimated by city officials to cost about $20,000,000, would be located on the southwest corner.

The entire block to be developed by the city is on the northwest corner. A variety of small shops and offices are currently located in the area.

The Hudson's Bay store occupies the northeast corner and the southeast corner block contains a large jewelry store, theatres and numerous stores and offices.

The land the government announced it had taken title to Tuesday is on another block to the west of the proposed Eaton's store. The new building would be constructed behind the present courthouse which fronts on Georgia.

Part of the downtown redevelopment project would be a new $8,000,000 sports coliseum opposite the Queen Elizabeth Theatre on Georgia. The coliseum, under negotiation between the city and the Toronto Maple Leafs, would occupy land several blocks east of the centre point.

Various other construction programs were planned as part of the development including a $5,500,000 expansion to the Hotel Vancouver in the adjacent block west of the existing court house.

Mayor William Rathie said Tuesday the provincial government plan for its new building and the Eaton proposal "represent the beginning of the implementation of the plan of redevelopment submitted to council this day."

The provincial government plan was announced jointly by Works Minister W. N. Chant and Mayor Rathie.

"The province intends to follow very closely the development plan as originally envisaged by the city of Vancouver and has agreed to collaborate with the city in making outstanding improvements to its part of the downtown area," said Mr. Chant.

Three Women Killed As Lumber Load Slips

PRINCETON (CP) — Three women were fatally injured but five other persons, including four children, escaped late Tuesday when a lumber load tumbled from a truck on a highway curve and struck two cars passing at the time.

RCMP identified one of the dead women as Agnes Lydia O'Neill, 41, of Squamish, B.C.

Identification of the other two victims is being withheld.

RCMP said a big diesel-tractor truck, driven by Gerald Keegan of Richmond, B.C., loaded with lumber, was rounding a curve going east 12½ miles east of here when parts of its load gave way.

The load tumbled onto a car going in the opposite direction and occupied by two women. They were fatally injured.

A second car, following the first and containing Mr. and Mrs. O'Neill and their four children, also was struck by the tumbling lumber and plowed into the wreckage of the first car.

Mrs. O'Neill was pronounced dead on arrival at Princeton hospital. Her husband escaped with slight injuries and their four children were unhurt.

Truck driver Keegan stopped his truck after the accident and was not injured.

Princeton is 183 road miles east of Vancouver.

Seven-Man Team Reviews Dam Site at Duncan With Engineers

KASLO— The Columbia Development Engineering Board of Review spent three hours with consulting engineers working on the Duncan dam site Monday.

The seven-man team, formed following ratification of the Columbia River treaty by the British Columbia government, reviewed both the site and the materials to be used in the dam's construction.

Composed of United States and Canadian engineers they also inspected the Mica Creek and High Arrow dam sites.

Two Consulting engineers from a Montreal engineering firm, Hugh Watson of Montreal and Bob Peterson of Saskatoon answered questions as to what they would do and how they would do it.

The team, which included B.C. Hydro and Power Authority workers R. C. McMordie and Gordon Tallman, travelled in an amphibian plane and landed at Lardeau. They drove to the dam site.

Last week Hari Mohan, an engineer from India toured the Duncan Dam site under auspices of the Canadian Government.

WOODS DRYING OUT; FIRE DANGER HIGH

The condition of the woods in the Nelson Forestry District is rapidly approaching the dangerous level with regard to forest fires.

All but one ranger district reports a fire hazard rating of moderate, while the Canal Flats-Cranbrook area has a rating of high. During the past week the woods have dried out considerably with the onset of warm temperatures and drying winds.

Seven new fires started over the weekend to bring the number of fires burning to 22. All the fires are small, requiring the attention of 11 men and one bulldozer.

26 Apply for Police Chief Position

The city has received 26 applications for the position of city police chief.

Mayor E. T. Bodard, head of the police commission, said the entries were from points widely scattered over the three western provinces.

The commission will select the successor of chief Robert Harshaw prior to September. Chief Harshaw plans to retire early in the new year.

Dr. Smart Leaving For Vernon Position

DR. M. R. SMART

Selkirk Health Unit head, Dr. M. R. Smart, will be leaving Nelson and the Kootenays at the end of this month.

Dr. Smart, who became director of the Health Centre in June, 1962, will leave for Vernon July 31 to assume duties as Director of the North Okanagan Health Unit.

A successor for the Nelson position has not yet been announced.

In the two years which Dr. Smart has directed the district's health activities many programs have been initiated and carried out. Two oral polio campaigns have been completed, while a new school health program has been instigated. His office also assisted with plans for the local sewage treatment plant.

Also during his stay Dr. Smart has contended with two outbreaks of disease. This spring an infectious hepatitis outbreak was curtailed in the Nakusp-Slocan area, while in 1962 an outbreak of influenza was put down.

Dr. Smart has been active in community affairs as a member of Rotary, Gyros, Masonic Lodge and a steward at St. Paul's-Trinity United Church.

He is married and has two children, Brent, 4 and Bradley 1.

Dr. Smart graduated in medicine from the University of Saskatchewan in 1957 and, prior to coming to Nelson, was doing post graduate work at the University of Toronto.

Burglar's Loot Small Fortune

VANCOUVER (CP) — A burglar in a west end apartment block hit the jackpot when he entered a suite and found cash and a case containing $12,577 in jewellery.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie C. Kardos, occupants of the suite, were at an antique auction when the thief jimmied the front door. The loot included a $1600 pearl necklace and a $2500 diamond ring.

The thief entered another apartment in the building the same way.

Captive Whale Eats First Food

VANCOUVER (CP) — The world's only captive killer whale has gulped down her first meal — a live flounder squirming on the end of a line.

The whale, housed in a partially submerged drydock, had previously spurned all attempts to entice her to eat dead salmon and 10 pounds of horsemeat. Her usual diet is live salmon and seals.

Scientists expressed excitement that her eating the flounder, about two pounds, was an indication they could entice her to eat a full diet and keep the animal alive in captivity.

Dr. Pat McGeer, a University of British Columbia neuro-chemist and Liberal MLA, sounded a cautious note.

He said a two-pound fish is not much of a meal for a whale that could weigh up to five tons.

"It's like a man eating a peanut," Dr. McGeer said. "But it is certainly most encouraging."

He said the biggest problem is to get the whale on a regular diet. To encourage her, vitamin B-12 pills will be fired into her side in a dart.

Dr. Murray Newman, Vancouver aquarium curator who captured the beast, said Tuesday the whale's health is fine. His assistant Vince Penfold said the harpoon wound in her back has healed over.

KILTIES TO PARADE AT COEUR D'ALENE

Council Jottings

Tenders will be called in the future to fulfill the sand, gravel and fill needs of the city.

Council adopted this recommendation of Ald. D. F. Porteous Monday night. The public works chairman urged that the city refrain from purchasing land for the purpose of a gravel pit.

The cost of bulldozing in the city pit is making the cost of the product more than that offered by private interests.

The city's first aottempt to cut down on the number of parking exemption stickers ended in indecision and an investigation by Ald. H. Farenholtz, transportation chairman.

The Department of Highways applied to council for reissuance of stickers for four staff members. The stickers were issued originally when the department's office was located on a street dotted with parking meters. Since then the department has changed its address and acquired its own parking facilities.

One of the recommendations of the Nelson Retail Merchants Association recently to alleviate the parking peril was to cut back on the number of parking exemption sticker;s issued.

A request by B. J. Frocklage for a curb to eliminate water runoff from Ninth and Fell Street was referred to the public works chairman for report.

Another water runoff problem, this time off Cherry and Selby Streets across the 1023 Carbonate St. property of J. C. Fletcher, was also referred to the public works chairman for report.

Council looked favorably on a suggestion by Mrs. Shirley Stainton that stop signs be erected on Kootenay Street at the corner of Victoria Street, making Victoria a throughway. The matter was referred to the transportation chairman for report.

Though in sympathy with the plight of Orlando Milinazzo of 1604 Cedar Street concerning payment of his municipal taxes, council turned down his appeal to have the five per cent tax penalty waived in his case.

The CPR employee said he attempted to make the deadline date of July 15, but, because of his job, wasn't able to get to city hall until after business hours.

The Municipal Act ties council's hands on appeals it was declared. It automatically invokes a 5 per cent penalty on unpaid taxes as of 5 p.m., closing time July 15.

"There are 1001 excuses for this and if you ever accept one it proves disastrous," stated Mayor E. T. Bodard.

"If you accept one you should accept all," added C. W. R. Harper, city administrator.

"Do they crow every morning?" enquired Ald. Porteous.

"And how!" exclaimed Ald. Farenholtz and the request of J. G. King to continue his hobby of breeding pure-bred fancy ban tam chickens at his 310 Sixth Street residence for exhibitions was rejected.

Though the property technically conformed with the requirements of zoning bylaw, the Selkirk Health Unit frowned upon the request for sanitary reasons.

The city has complied with safety recommendations of the Worker's Compensation Board, suggested for the city power plant.

Erection of a catwalk for the crane operator and chain wire guards around moving shafts will cost about $550.

The matter of exempting Columbia College property from municipal taxes was laid on the table until the dimensions of the educational property are finally defined.

The city granted a licence to Chiye Hamakawa to make noodles at 2102 Falls Street. Sixty-seven per cent of the property owners owning 76 per cent of the assessed land have given their approval.

Blackline Paving Ltd. plans to begin a sand and gravel operation here, starting Aug. 10.

The accusations of H. S. Hall of Gordon Road are unfounded as far as public works chairman Ald. Porteous can determine.

"I cannot see any reason for complaint," the alderman said of the Gordon Road reconstruction and paving project. Once curbs and gutters are in place and the project completed, it is felt, that all complaints will be resolved.

City council approved 150-foot water line extension up Howe Street to service the new homes being built on Falls and Howe Streets.

The water application by Transco Development Co., is relatively new, causing council to ponder if they could justly provide this service before more outstanding applications. D. Likar, city works superintendent, said most outstanding applications of the past have been processed.

Lack of early morning patronage has necessitated the cutting back of bus service to the Vocational School. Instead of two early morning trips, henceforth there will be one leaving downtown at 8:05 a.m. In September the two-bus trip service will be restored.

Ald. J. H. MacMillan was absent from the meeting.

Mayor to Coast On "Selling Trip"

Mayor E. T. Bodard's municipal selling trip got off the ground Tuesday.

The value and goals of the trip were reaffirmed by city council at its meeting Monday and the mayor took to the airways Tuesday afternoon.

Proposed three weeks ago, the trip to sound out business investment at the Coast in Nelson development has been delayed by civic duties. The delay and other factors prompted the mayor; to have council reassess the value of the venture.

Four aldermen favored the trek while Ald. Edith Van Maarion opposed it, saying, "I can't see what you accomplish by going."

Ald. H. Farenholtz, D. F. Porteous, M. B. Ryalls were outspoken advocates of the trek while Ald. F. A. Beresford was in favor if the mayor had the business contacts.

Ald. Beresford also suggested that the mayor should not hesitate to call upon his aldermen if they are needed at anytime during the negotiations.

The mayor said that during the three weeks several business people, he originally intended to visit, have called in at city hall but there are other businesses he wished to visit.

Public Hearing Planned On Building Height Bylaw

The sky's the limit for city council under amendment Bylaw No. 1387, which received three readings Monday night.

The amendment to city zoning bylaw No. 935 clears the way for construction of the 12-storey Kokanee Towers in a residential area.

It allows council's discretion to be the final determinant in establishing the height limitation on buildings in the city.

Under the 26-year-old bylaw height limitation for residential and semi-residential areas was 2½ storeys and six storeys for the commercial district.

A public hearing on the amendment will be held in the council chambers on August 3. just prior to the regular meeting of council. The meeting will not dictate council action in the matter but serve as a basis of information for aldermen prior to the fourth and final vote on the bylaw.

"This affects the whole community. It is not aimed just at one section of the community," Ald. F. A. Beresford explained the significance of the bylaw.

Harry Hulls, Longtime Nelson Resident, Passes

Longtime Nelson resident, Thorvald (Harry) Hulls died in Vancouver General Hospital Monday, aged 80, following a short and sudden illness.

Born in Hommelvik, Norway in 1884, Mr. Hulls came to Canada at 18 years. His first job was in Quebec and after working his way gradually westward, he finally settled in Nelson in 1908.

Mr. Hulls was an ardent ski enthusiast and in his earlier years participated in the sport. Later, he officiated as judge at many tournaments in Nelson, Rossland, Kimberley and Revelstoke among other centers.

In 1918 he was initiated into the Independent Order of Oddfellows and was charter member of the Fairview United Church.

He spent much time as an advisor and consultant during the church's construction.

Survivors are his wife Alice, one daughter, Mrs. B. E. (Hazel) O'Neail of Slocan; two grandsons, Terrence O'Neail of Edmonton and Daniel O'Neail of Regina; a brother, Chris Hulls of Phoenix, Ariz., a sister in Norway, two nephews, J. ## Channel Relay Record Broken

DOVER, England (Reuters)— Ten English schoolboys beat the English Channel and some schoolgirl rivals Tuesday when they set a cross-channel relay record.

The Denstone College team from Uttoxeter, central England, reached Dover at 5 a.m., locali time, 11 hours and 27 minutes after leaving Cap Gris Nez, France. Despite thick fog they bettered the 10-yeor-old record for a cross-Channel relay swim of 14 hours and 57 minutes and also the time of 16 hours and 20 minutes set last week by a team of London schoolgirls.

World Briefs

RAWALPINDI (AP)—Twenty-six persons died Monday in Bahawalnagar, 400 miles south of Rawalpindi, as the result of a severe rainstorm, the Pakistan Times reported. The report said hundreds of cattle also perished in the storm.

TEHRAN (AP)—Eleven persons died, 24 were injured and 2,500 were left homeless when floods swept through five Iranian villages around Memesani, south of Shiraz, Friday, according to official reports reaching here Tuesday.

SUPERB FISHING can be found on the West Arm of Kootenay Lake as evidenced by Rev. and Mrs. Donald Rathjen's catch last week. The Creston couple are vacationing at a North Shore resort and caught 16 Rainbow between Tuesday and Friday in the Crescent Bay area. Of their five fish the largest was two-pounds. A North Shore resort owner reported over 125 fish ranging up to 10-pounds were caught in the West Arm between Nine-Mile Narrows and just below the Harrop ferry last week. A silver willow leaf hooked to a flat fish has proved the best come-on fro the trout.

Clocks Reveal Fallibility Of the Human Character

Editor's note: The circumstances of this story by Harold Webber of Castlegar are entirely true, only the moral has been added. The house in which the clocks were acquired by Mr. Webber is situated in Rossland.

The dark clock is now in Prince Rupert, situated on the mantle over the fireplace. The blond clock is still in the jewellers in Trail and there is still doubt as to whether it will work again.

This is a story of two clocks, that lived in the same house, but under entirely different circumstances and surroundings. Both clocks were identical in size, shape, and make with only the color of the finish being different.

The clock that lived upstairs had a beautiful blond finish. Its life had been spent on the mantle over the fireplace. From there it could see out of the front window to the green, lush valley below, which was overshadowed by tall, dark, splendid mountains. Above the mantle hung a large oil painting. This scene of trees, river and cottage indeed complemented the clock, adding just the right touch to enhance its beauty. The morning sun played on the golden Roman numerals on the face of the clock, while the fine glass door seemed to sparkle, with the piercing of the sun's rays. Truly this was a fitting location for such a handsome clock.

DARK CLOCK

The second clock in our story was of a dark finish, and had at some time lost a corner of its base, which made it unable to stand. This clock was now in the basement, once on a shelf but now on the cold, dirt floor. Its only companions were an old coal furnace, a table and chair that had also lost their place of honor in the house, and a portabl eclothes closet, that seemed to portray sadness as it leaned against the grey, cold cement wall. A film of soot covered everything.

The house became vacant and for several years was rarely lived in. As a result, the owner decided to sell the furnishings Piece by piece they went. The Chippendale couch, the Grandfather's clock, the first electric gramaphone in the city, the grand piano, the hand painted vases on the buffet, and some of the other small articles that comprised the furnishings of the house. Soon all that was left was a large dining room table, a few poor quality antique chairs and the clock on the mantle.

INTERESTED PARTY

Before long, an interested party looked over the remaining pieces and, impressed by the clock, decided to acquire it. Advised of a second clock in the basement, he expressed a desire to see it. The basement was dark and foul-smelling, and the uneven floor made it necessary to step with extreme caution. There on the dirt, lying as it had for so long, was the dark clock. It was examined but, with its covering of dirt and broken base, had no appeal. The clock was replaced and once again was confined to its former lowly position.

The blond clock was taken home and a feeling of satisfaction filled the new owner. This would not be kept, but would be given to someone who would appreciate it even more. When the clock was given to this person, a point was made that unfortunately the clock was not working. The assurance was given that this did not matter, but that a jeweller, with an untarnished reputation as a watch repairman, would be able to restore the clock. However, things did not seem to be working out the way it was hoped. The jeweler advised that the beautiful light coloured clock might never work again.

TRUE BEAUTY

Another person who saw this clock was quite taken by it and asked the first owner if he knew where he might acquire one. Remembering the dirty, broken clock in the basement, he told him of it. Certainly it would be a pleasure to pick this up. A special trip to the house was made to acquire the clock. Taken home, it was cleaned up and as the filth came off, the clock began to shine. A mild excitement caught hold of the cleaner and an increased effort was made. This was soon finished and a step back revealed it to be a thing of true beauty. Now the excitement was mixed with pure pleasure, as a piece of wood was placed under the missing corner to allow the clock to stand erect. In jest, the pendulum was knocked into motion. It ticked, and ticked and ticked and it kept on ticking. Suddenly a lovely sound came forth from the depths of this resurrected piece; it chimed, the hand pointing to the hour.

The dark clock was warmly received by the new owner and now hangs in a place of prominence in that household; and it is still ticking, as if its very life depended on it.

Mr. Webber's story has a moral-spiritual application, for we have learned that we should never judge anyone by his colour, creed, or social position. We find this teaching in the scriptures, in the heartsearching lesson that was given the Apostle Peter that prompted him to say —

"But God hath showed me that I should not call any man common or unclean".

—Acts 10:28

DAMAGES AWARDED

VANCOUVER (CP) — Damages totalling $58,272 were awarded against Dominico Grillo in Supreme Court Monday to the relatives of Thomas Tobacco of Port Alberni, killed in an accident in the Island city Dec. 18, and to Joseph Blaschak, a passenger in Tobacco's auto who was seriously injured. The court ruled that Grillo was guilty of "carelessness and wanton driving." Blaschak received $14,759 of the amount.

Bid Too High On Gov't Agent's Home

Only one bid was received when tenders were opened last week in Victoria for the government agent's house at Kaslo.

Kaslo-Slocan Social Credit candidate Burt Campbell said he was advised by Public Works Minister W. N. Chant that the bid was considered much too high and the public works department is now looking into costs of prefabricated homes.

Carpenters' Strike Poses Cranbrook School Problem

CRANBROOK — Labour dispute building tie-up at the T. M. Roberts and Laurie Elementary Schools will leave the Cranbrook School District eight classrooms short of the number it anticipated for September.

The school board believes arrangements for temporary accommodation of additional enrolment at the latter school can be made for normal school hours, but at Roberts School shift will be necessary until its six additional classrooms are ready for occupation.

They were roofed, but not completely enclosed when the strike of carpenters suspended work June 29. Only excavation work had been done by then at the Laurie addition which will also house home economics and industrial arts classrooms.

Outstanding teaching staff vacancies still exist at Mount Baker Secondary School, short the occupational teaching post left by Leonard Weaver, and two teaching positions. All elementary staffs are filled.

Resignation was accepted from Robert Meredith of Grade 6, Laurie School, who becomes Crawford Bay principal and his successor will be Miss Patricia Foulkes who comes from England. Mrs. Irene Ayers of Kimberley has been appointed primary specialist for a class which will cover Grades 1 to 3, and will be located at Tenth Avenue School, instead of its former Central School location.

Cities Asked Help Keep Rossland-Cascade Open

TRAIL — A natural gas company has appealed to the city in its efforts of keeping the Rossland-Cascade Highway open during the winter months.

The department of highways recently said it plans to close the route Nov. 1 to May 1.

The appeal was received from the Inland Natural Gas Company Monday night during a regular city council meeting.

Similar appeals have been received by the villages of Castlegar, Kinnaird and Warfield and the cities of Nelson and Rossland.

The company says its main transmission line is located at a point almost parallel to the lines of the West Kootenay Power and Light Company, the B.C. Telephone Company and the old highway "for the express purpose of having available access to our system in this mountainous region.

USED FOR PATROL

"We patrol our main lines through the mountains once a week during the winter months and more frequently during the early part of winter, namely November and December.

"This is done to ensure the safety of our facilities and to assure our customers of a continuity of service."

The road connects Rossland and Christina Lake through the Monashee range.

The department of highways is reported to be considering closure of the route during the winter and keeping the Rossland-Sheep Lake Highway open.

The company says it serves approximately 6,000 residential customers in the West Kootenay as well as two large industrial complexes — Cominco and Celgar.

"Therefore, the public interest is so involved in this matter that we respectfully ask the department of highways to keep the road open in order that we will have access to our transmission facilities," the company said.

They have eight clubs with 163 members studying cloth ing, flower arrangements, picture hanging, cost of packaged food, food preservation, program planning and officer's training

They also sponsor a 4-H Club which has 250 members and 38 leaders.

Mrs. J. S. Scott, Provincial Director of BCWI asked the audience how many know that the large world organization is the only women's group represented by the United Nations.

Having just returned from the National Conference she gave the highlights on an educational address given by Dr. Margaret Nix, assistant professor in the Faculty of Medicine at McGill University.

She stressed that it is the kindergarten and junior grades who are in need of the best teachers possible and that reading is one of the most completely important aspects of a child's life .

The president of the Spokane County spoke on the activities which has 28 clubs with 600 members.

They work with club women and county agents to learn new ideas. They also have a consumer's market, the purpose being to help in the ordering and marketing of agriculture produces. Forestry, dairying, testing soils, poultry and weed control are also studied.

Mrs. MacArthur, provincial home economics convenor spoke on the entrees for the Pacific National Exhibition and tree fruits.

An invitation for the 1965 picnic was extended by Mrs. Coombs of Lincoln County.

Charges Dismissed In Cranbrook

CRANBROOK — Ernest William Sarsons, apprehended in Calgary and returned to Cranbrook for hearing of a breaking and entering charge, was dismissed by Magistrate Stephen Denroche when he appeared here for preliminary hearing, having elected jury trial.

Charge was laid concerning offences the night of August 16, 1962 when five premises along the arterial highway in city limits were broken and entered. The A. W. Root Beer stand was the only one to report theft, about $60 cash. The investigation was carried out and three weeks ago Sarsons was charged by police in Calgary. He appeared here and elected jury trial, and was released on bail. His counsel at preliminary hearing was Fred Barry of Kimberley, and Peter Graham of Cranbrook represented the crown.

A Problem in Allegiances

The Quebec Liberal Federation has officially severed its affiliation with the National Liberal Federation. Only five members of the Quebec organization voted against the move while 1,400 voted for it.

Premier Lesage urged the split. He said the provincial body had been placed in an awkward position during recent difficulties with Ottawa because it was also responsible for the rights of federal Liberals in Quebec.

Mr. Lesage also explained he and his cabinet ministers no longer refer to Quebec as a "province," evidently believing it presumes to the status of a separate "state."

This effort of Quebec Liberals to separate themselves and their province from Ottawa raises an interesting question: What do Quebec Liberals in the federal cabinet represent, Canada or Quebec?

Where does their first allegiance lie?

In case of a clash between the federal goevrnment and Quebec, will the French-Canadian ministers speak and vote for the rest of Canada or for the province with which they have cultural, language and racial ties?

This is hardly a hypothetical or academic question. There are eight French-Canadians in the Ottawa cabinet of 26. This cabinet has decided a number of policies in which the rest of Canada has bowed to Quebec's wishes and it seems fair to anticipate other decisions in which Quebec's interests will not be identical with those of the other provinces.

With almost a third of the federal cabinet representative of Quebec, is it possible for Quebec Liberals to pretend that they have really severed themselves from Ottawa?

And if this is what they wish, should Quebec have such a strong representation in the federal government? It is a complete nonsequitur for Quebec Liberals to wish to be separate and at the same time play a major part in determining policies affecting the rest of Canada.

Quebec, like any other province, would of course like to have the best of both worlds, and in the present context of Canadian politics, seems to have a good chance of doing so.

If such inconsistency is to be remedied at all it will first have to be recognized by Canadians in every province. And it will have to be challenged before any satisfactory and permanent modus vivendi can be reached with Quebec.

Parliament Should Not Forget

Among the things that urgently need Parliament's attention is reform of the divorce law. Like so much other important legislation, it is being neglected.

The Ontario government has set up its own law reform commission, with former Chief Justice McRuer at its head. The commission will study the state of the law on divorce, abortion, desertion and other matters, whether these are under provincial or federal jurisdiction.

Such a study ought to have been launched years ago by Ottawa in conjunction with the provinces.

In part the omission is due to the complications of our unwieldy constitution — a problem colored by the need felt by all our federal governments to be sparing of Quebec's feelings.

Quebec, of course, has always been the stumbling block in divorce reform. This was on religious grounds. Separatist feeling — or rather the fear of such feeling on Ottawa's part — does not dispose politicians to challenge Quebec on the divorce question now.

Agitation for reform was strong in the House of Commons until last year, when at last the MPs agreed to eliminate divorce petitions from Quebec and Newfoundland from their list of chores. Parliament created a divorce commissioner, an officer of the Senate, to handle these petitions.

But Parliament should not now sleep. As Mr. Justice J. G. Ruttan of the B.C. Supreme Court has pointed out, British divorce law of 1858, long ago abolished in Britain, still rules in Canada. Except in Nova Scotia, adultery remains the only legal ground.

Canada is one of the few countries in the 20th century having such an archaic, even cruel law.

Ex-King Edward 70

To those who recall the dashing, boyish Prince of Wales of between-wars, it is a jolt to read that the prince who failed as King Edward VIII is now 70. To mark the anniversary, there are two stories out of London. One urges that the Duke and Duchess of Windsor be welcomed back to Britain, without restriction. The other describes him as almost forgotten.

A century or more ago, a young American naval officer, named Nolan, in an outburst of temper over a disappointment, is reputed to have declared: "Damn the United States. I hope I may never hear of the United States again." The legend is that he was placed aboard a navy ship, and transferred from it to another vessel as the first headed for port, so that he spent the rest of a rather long life in exile on the seas.

The former King of England has to a degree been a second Man Without a Country since he left the throne 28 years ago to marry Mrs. Wallis Simpson, a twice-divorced American. The Windsors reside in France. Edward is free at any time to return to Britain and to live there if he so wishes. With his wife, he goes annually to London to do their Christmas shopping; sometimes he returns alone, to visit friends of his youth. The barrier to re-establishment of the ex-king and his wife in England is long-standing cabinet decision against granting the title of royal highness to the duchess, and refusal of the royal family to receive her. Until these bars are removed, the duke is described as preferring to remain in exile. The general opinion is that he will end his days away from the England which once idolized him.

One report is that the Queen Mother is particularly adamant against any recognition of the former Mrs. Simpson, and that her point of view influences the rest of the royal family. The Queen Mother is said to have resented and to continue to resent the strains imposed on her late husband when he became King George VI through his brother's abdication.—Guelph Mercury.

Severance With Cuba Urged by Venezuela

WASHINGTON (AP) — Foreign ministers of the American republics, meeting here this week to determine what sanctions should be taken against Communist Cuba, held a preliminary secret session Tuesday.

There was widespread talk among the delegates that tough penalties would be adopted against the Fidel Castro regime for its alleged attempt to overthrow the democratic government of Venezuela.

"I think we are winning in our demands for fullest sanctions," said Enrique Tejera Paris, Venezuelan ambassador, as he went into the closed-door meeting.

Venezuela has insisted on a break in diplomatic relations with Cuba by all American republics and a suspension of all trade with Cuba, except for foods and medical supplies.

Jose A. Mora, OAS secretary-general, presided at the opening of the secret session called chiefly to elect president officers and committees of the conference of hemisphere foreign ministers.

Mexico is the only hemispheric country which still has a scheduled Cuban Airline service with Havana.

OPPOSE SANCTIONS

Mexico and Chile are known to be strongly opposed to the sanctions demanded by Venezuela.

Brazil is reported to be seeking a compromise solution that would satisfy representatives of all the 20 nations.

The conference was called at Venezuela's request to consider punitive action against Cuba for Castro's efforts to overthrow the Venezuelan government.

The charges of aggression were based on the finding of a three-ton cache of arms which Venezuela said was secretly landed on its coast last fall by Cuba to supply pro-Communist guerrillas. The finding was confirmed by an OAS investigating committee.

An ambassadorial commission prepared three resolutions, considered as "working papers," for the foreign ministers conference.

CONDEMN AGGRESSION

One of these would condemn Cuba for aggression against Venezuela and call for the suspension of all trade—with the exception of food and medical supplies—between members of the Organization of American States and Cuba.

It would also call for the suspension of all maritime communication between member states and Cuba.

The resolution then would recommend—but would not require—a break in diplomatic and consular relations by member states.

It further would recommend the suspension of all air communications with Cuba.

Venezuelan officials said this resolution does not go far enough.

They expressed confidence that a two-thirds majority of the conference, 13, would adopt the resolution they planned to introduce Tuesday calling for the fullest extent of sanctions—short of armed attack—provided by the 1947 Inter-American Treaty of Reciprocal Assistance. This is known as the Rio Treaty because it was signed in Rio de Janeiro.

The Venezuelan proposal was expected to provide for the lifting of the sanctions "as the danger from Cuba is eliminated," a Venezuelan official said.

Interpreting the News

By CAROL KENNEDY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A useful rule of thumb in African politics today might be: No matter how extreme a political leader may seem, there is generally someone more extreme waiting for a chance to take his place.

Even in South Africa, Premier Hendrik Verwoerd's race-separationist philosophy is almost liberal compared with what might happen if some of his nationlist ministers gained power.

Dr. Hastings Banda of Malawi and Jomi Kenyatta of Kenya are no longer regarded as extremists even by white settlers, but they have men behind them with extreme reputations: In Banda's case, Henry Chipembere and Kenyama Chiume; in Kenyatta's case, the Communist sympathizer Oginga Odinga.

The rule has been demonstrated in action three times in Southern Rhodesia. When the Liberal Garfield Todd was deposed in 1958 and his place as prime minister taken by the more conservative Sir Edgar Whitehead, there were signs of despair from many who thought all chance of racial conciliation now was unlikely.

Whitehead was defeated in his turn in 1961 by the right-wing Rhodesian Front Party headed by Winston Field. Instantly the loss of Whitehead's cautious but well - intentioned gropings toward racial peace was lamented by Liberals in Rhodesia and Britain.

Field was labelled a reactionary. Nobody then suspected that Finance Minister Ian Smith would within two years become premier and his white-supremacy for-ever policies make Field's "evolution, not revolution" platform seem the acme of moderation.

Now it is reported from Salisbury that Smith's position is weakening. He is trapped between two bitter alternatives. Either he declares a rebellious independence from Britain, making his country an international outcast and forfeiting all the valuable economic support of the Commonwealth—a course now thought much less likely by on-the-spot observers — or he temporizes, which will certainly lead to pressure by the arch-segregationists in his party.

It may seem incredible that Smith should ever appear in retrospect as a moderate, but that could be the case if ever John Gaunt, Clifford Dupont or William Harper — all ministers in Smith's cabinet—should oust him from the driver's seat.

Gaunt, a large aggressive man who likes to trace his ancestry back to Shakespeare's John O'Gaunt, has talked on British television about the "Dunkerque spirit" and in his own words doesn't give a damn for the Commonwealth. He has also compared the black African nationalist leaders with poisonous snakes.

If Field proved too left-wing for his party, what about Smith?

NOT INVITED

The Rhodesian prime minister made his perilous position clear after last week's Commonwealth leaders' conference, to which he was not invited. After rejecting the call by Commonwealth premiers for a constitutional conference, he described himself as a "middle-of-the-road man" and told a public meeting in Salisbury: "I have as much trouble with the extreme people on the right as I have with the extreme people on the left."

It is hopefully anticipated in Britain that if the small-majority Smith government falls it will be replaced by a moderate coalition headed perhaps by Whitehead, Field and Sir Roy Welensky.

One thing looks certain—another twist to the right could take Southern Rhodesia to the edge of the precipice.

REVEAL PRICES FIXED BY ALBERTA FIRMS

OTTAWA (CP)—Ten plumbing-supply wholesalers worked together to set a standardized pricing system in Alberta between 1956 and the launching of a federal inquiry in 1959, the restrictive trade practices commission reported Tuesday.

The commission recommended to Justice Minister Guy Favreau "steps should be taken to seek prohibition of resumption of collusive activities" by the wholesalers. Its report did not spell out what these steps should be.

Mr. Favreau said in a statement "the usual consideration would be given the question of what further steps ought to be taken."

Named in the report were these companies:

Crane Limited, Montreal; Emco Limited, London, Ont.; J. H. Ashdown Hardware Company Limited and Marshall Wells of Canada Limited, both of Winnipeg; Burgess Building and Plumbing Supplies Limited and Western Supplies (Calgary) Limited, both of Calgary; Western Supplies Limited and Engineering and Plumbing Supplies (Edmonton) Limited, both of Edmonton; Western Canada Hardware Limited, Lethbridge; and Bartle and Gibson Company Limited, Victoria.

The report said these companies all belonged to a trade association, known as the Alberta Heating and Plumbing Council, which they used to establish "a generally standardized system of pricing of wholesale plumbing supplies."

REACHED AGREEMENT

The commission said this council reached agreement on basic wholesale prices, common discounts to be offered to specific customers, "flat" prices to meet competition in the small part of the Alberta market they did not dominate, and uniform quotations to municipalities.

Sometimes the council members entered into agreements with reservations, and did not always adhere to the agreements.

"However, the commission can not avoid the conclusion that there existed a systematic effort to reduce competition among the members of the council."

The commission absolved an 11th council member, Grinnell Company of Canada Limited, in Toronto, from the price arrangements.

It said the council members had between 85 and 90 per cent of the Alberta market. The rest of it was held mainly by Cronkhite (Calgary) Limited and Cronkhite (Edmonton) Limited, which were never invited to join the council and never sought to join. The Cronkhite prices were generally lower than those of the council members.

DIVIDED ALBERTA

The council divided Alberta into northern and southern zones by a line drawn just south of Red Deer. Basic wholesale prices were the same in both zones, but trade discounts were calculated differently in the two zones. The result was slightly lower net prices in the northern sector.

The commission gave this description of how the council operated:

"No catalogue or group of catalogues was circulated in Alberta as a pricing guide for use by wholesalers and the plumbing trade generally.

"Through a co-operative effort, compilation was made which served as a price list.

"One firm or another recognized as a leader in a particular field would issue a price list for certain items which would be accepted by the others.

"If wholesale prices of any items required adjustment for any reason, whether because of freight rates, increased factory prices, or otherwise, the firm within whose pricing jurisdiction the items fell would issue an amended price list for circulation to the council member. . . .

"Western Supplies, Calgary, issued prices on fixtures. Emco provided the price list on brass goods and copper pipe and fittings. Crane was responsible for lead pipe and pipe fittings, Marshall Wells for soil pipe, Ashdown, Calgary, circulated prices on water heaters."

The commission said John Dyer, retired Ashdown branch manager in Calgary, acted as secretary-manager of the council. His office sent out the price lists, many of which were headed "very important, destroy after perusal" or "record and destroy."

NEW HOPE SEEN FOR DIABETICS

By CARL MOLLINS

TORONTO (CP)—Doctors and research scientists held out a bundle of hope Monday in describing new approaches in the treatment of severe, often fatal, complications of diabetes.

Reports presented at the fifth congress of the International Diabetic Federation described experimental methods of combatting such dangerous side ailments of diabetes as deterioration of vision, blood circulation and kidneys.

Some papers also suggested these complications may develop in persons with inherited susceptibility to diabetes as well as in the possibly 180,000,000 people actually suffering from the disease due to deterioration of the insulin-producing pancreas gland.

Dr. P. R. Thornfeldt of the Devers Memorial Eye Clinic in Portland, Ore., described "a new and most promising" approach to stemming a typical diabetic disorder in which blood vessels proliferate in the eye to a point where the retina may become detached.

The treatment involves destroying the excess blood vessels by a process called photocoagulation — directing an intense light at the vessels. In treatment of more than 100 cases of various degrees of progress during the last four yers, Dr. Thornfeldat ws able to destroy the complication in the early stages and limit damage in later stages.

DIFFERENT APPROACH

In The Netherlands, eye doctors A. J. Houtsmuller and H. E. Henkes of the Rotterdam Eye Clinic have been using a different approach to a similar problem, giving patients a tissue-building substance — anabolic steroids—to prevent the breakdown and prolifertion of blood vessels in the eye.

The treatment was also found to reverse blood disturbances associated with diabetes. The doctors suggest early treatment by this method can help hold off diabetic complications.

Still another approach was described by a team under Dr. J. H. Lawrence at the Donner Laboratory of the University of California at Berkeley, where diabetics with retina disturbances were helped by the bombardment of the pituitary gland with radio-active material.

A report by Israeli diabetic specialist H. Wolfsohn of Haifa suggests that prediabetics—persons prone to get the disease—may be detected by spotting enlargement of blood vessels in the membrane connecting the inner eyelid and eyeball during eye examinations.

DIETARY TREATMENT?

A simple method of detecting prediabetics would open up the possibility of staving off the onset of the disease by dietary or other treatment.

A wide-ranging survey of diabetes by Dr. Paul S. Entmacher and Herbert H. Marks, associate medical director and statistician respectively of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company of New York, indicates trends in modern living affect the prevalence of diabetes.

Noting an apparent decline in the incidence of diabetes in women of the Western world, Dr. Entmacher says the fashion for slimness may be a factor. Obesity contributes to the onset of diabetes in adulthood.

Heredity, eating habits and the pace of life also are important factors ,the doctor concluded, with inherited susceptibility probably the most important.

However, the general availability of rich foods and the presence of stress in everyday life probably hasten the onset of diabetes in persons prone to it, he adds.

Statistics indicate a difference among racial groups, with U.S. Negro and Indian male diabetics having a death rate one-third higher than whites, Japanese-American mortality less than whites and Chinese higher.

Submit Garibaldi As Olympic Site

VANCOUVER (CP) — Undismayed proponents of Garibaldi Park launched a new campaign Tuesday to bring the 1972 Winter Olympics to the wilderness park north of here.

Admitting that Banff, Alta., still has an edge, officials of the Garibaldi Development Association said they were embarking on the new campaign with confidence.

"It's probably quite truthful to say Banff has a 55 per cent edge — in other words, we have a 45 per cent chance — but we feel our chances will grow stronger every day with a vigorous campaign," spokesman David Mathews told a press conference.

The Canadian Olympic Association, which backed Banff's ill-fated bid for the 1968 Winter Olympics, has since said it will consider both Banff and Garibaldi as possible 1972 sites, Mr. Mathews said.

A decision by the COA may be made at a Montreal meeting Sept. 12.

Backing the Garibaldi bid officially are the provincial government and the Canadian Amateur Ski Association's western division, which covers skiers in British Columbia and the Yukon.

Garibaldi proponents said their chances of getting the Winter Olympics in competition with Banff have improved since the bidding for the 1968 games by construction of a $3,000,000 access road by the provincial government.

The park is now largely a wilderness area, although some skiing is being done.

A gondola tramway and a T-bar tow to carry skiers to skiing areas will be built by next year in a further effort to improve Garibaldi's bid.

PLAN BUILDING

The Garibaldi bid is based on building ski runs, a bobsled run, a hockey rink and other Olympic facilities as well as an Olympic village on privately-owned land at Whistler Mountain near Alta Lake, 72 miles north of here.

These would not be built unless Garibaldi received assurances of getting the 1972 games.

"It should be noted that Banff (has) already lost the International bid twice, and possibly a new area with better facilities would stand a much greater chance of being selected at the international level," said Mr. Mathews.

Successful Operation Ends in Tragedy

VANCOUVER (CP) — An autopsy Monday showed that Mrs. Lillian Barker, who made Canadian surgical history with insertion of three artificial valves in her heart, died from complications not related to the operation.

Mrs. Barker, 51-year-old wife of a gardener, was the first Canadian to have three defective heart valves replaced by plastic substitutes.

She died 11 hours after returning home from hospital at the weekend.

A hospital spokesman said the heart operation could not have been more successful.

"This was a totally unexpected complication," he said.

He said the woman, who suffered shortness of breath then collapsed as she talked to well-wishers in her home Saturday, died of a bowel disorder which might have happened to anyone.

"The operation was without any question at all 100 per cent successful," the hospital spokesman said. "The heart had shrunk to its normal size and the artificial valves were all in perfect working order."

Mrs. Barker, who had suffered heart trouble for years, agreed to the complicated operation last March, knowing the possible consequences of the surgery performed successfully only once before.

A month later a team of doctors replaced three of her five heart valves with new ball-in-cage valve devices. During the operation she was technically dead for a total of 80 minutes. The valve substitute was developed by Dr. Albert Starr of Portland, Ore.

Mrs. Barker walked across the hospital grounds Saturday with her husband and her 16-year-old daughter, Barbara. Eleven hours later she was dead.

Conference To Explore Problems of Old Folks

OTTAWA (CP — A full-scale exploration of the welfare problems of Canada's elderly will be made at the Canadian Conference on Aging in Toronto in January, 1966.

Preparations are already being made for the meeting, sponsored by the Canadian Welfare Council and 13 other organizations.

The aim is to throw light on the many prejudices and half-truths that surround the aging process and to explore the psychological, physiological and social facts about old age.

More than 400 professional people and volunteers working in the field will meet for five days of talks on subjects such as employment and preparation for retirement, income maintenance and cost of living, health and rehabilitation services, family life and integration into the community and living accommodation for the aged.

Conference chairman is Hope Holmested of the Toronto suburb of Willowdale, a volunteer who has long been concerned not only with the elderly but with the entire subject of aging.

"We hope to bring together information about aging from the professions, voluntary organizations and government agencies active in the field," she says. "In this way we hope to stimulate thought and improve services for the aged all across Canada."

SENATE INVOLVED

Miss Holmested heads an executive committee of 40 engaged in planning the conference program. Honorary chairman is Senator Muriel Fergusson of Fredericton, a member of the special Senate committee on aging.

The Senate committee has been hearing dozens of briefs on the problems of the aged, and by the time the national conference begins in 1966 all this material plus the committee's recommendations should be available to it.

Conference planners hope the meeting will stimulate research, before and after, into the special needs of the aged.

Canadians have relied too long on statistics and commentary on aging from beyond their borders, say the planning organizations. The conference will seek Canadian facts and figures —Canadian answers to a Canadian problem.

The Canadian Welfare Council is providing staff and administrative facilities for the conference, and the following national organizations have been invited to lend their support as co-sponsors:

The Canadian Medical Association, Canadian Public Health Association, National Council of Women, Canadian Council of Churches, Canadian Jewish Congress, Canadian Catholic Conference, Canadian Association for Adult Education, Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, Confederation of National Trade Unions, Canadian Labor Congress, Canadian Hospital Association, and the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities.

TO PICK DELEGATES

To achieve the utmost effect from the conference, participation in the sessions will be limited to invited groups and individuals chosen by the executive committee.

The executive committee now organizing the 1966 meeting includes the following professional and lay people:

Spices Used Subtly Bring Out Flavor

By JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP) — The first use of spices was to hide the taste of tainted meat.

Nowadays they can be used a shade more subtly. In fact, properly used, you shouldn't be able to identify the spice in food, says Jack Curlette, assistant to the general manager of a firm that imports spices.

"Spice is as much to bring out the flavor in other things as it is to impart a taste of its own," he says. "Celery seed, for instance. You've never been in a restaurant and said, 'Gosh that celery seed is good.' "

Mr. Curlette's advice to the novice is to "try a chart and a little bit of curiosity." With practice you can find out which tastes and how strong a taste your family will like.

"Make a little gravy with spice and some without spice to taste the difference."

He notes that many standard cookbooks have spice charts and that his firm prints suggested uses on package labels.

Mr. Curlette says spices should not be kept any longer than a year because when they dry out they lose their flavor. He explains that it's oil that gives the taste.

PEPPER IS OIL

"Spice is basically oil. When you buy pepper you are buying oil. That's why we seal packages to keep the flavor."

Spices are made from seeds, bark, leaves, roots, fruit. They come from all over the world, a fact that sometimes creates difficulties. For example, Mr. Curlette says, the world's best cinammon comes from Saigon and the political strife in Viet Nam has made it scarce and high-priced.

The company gets its mustard seed from Alberta, paprika from Spain, pepper from India's Malabar coast, chile from Mexico.

Incidentally, Mr. Curlette says paprika has a high vitamin C content but if you use it in recommended quantities it's probably only of academic interest.

And an indication of how far spices go is that only 60,000 tons of pepper, the biggest seller, are sold in the world in a year.

Mr. Curlett, whose company is a food processor, says most of its spices are milled in Canada and tested by experts who taste them, smell them, look at them through high - powered magnifying glasses, even listen to them by rubbing grains together. They are checking flavor, freshness, consistency and cleanliness.

Haida Carver Book Subject

PRINCE RUPERT, B.C. (CP)—Author Christie Harris is off in search of material for another book—this time to the isolated Queen Charlotte Islands off the northern British Columbia coast.

With the help of a Canada Council grant, Mrs. Harris will work on a historical novel about the famed Haida Indian carver, Charlie Edenshaw. As with most of her stories, it will be aimed mainly at young readers.

Mrs. Harris, who lives with her family near Vancouver, has been bringing out new books at the rate of one a year. This year it's You Have to Draw the Line Somewhere, a fictionalized story based on the career of her daughter Moira, a New York fashion illustrator, who did the illustrations for the book.

Next year it will be a historical adventure set in Western Canada and in 1966 the story of Charlie Edenshaw.

Mrs. Harris, who was born in the Fraser Valley, began her career writing children's stories for newspapers. Later she became a CBC script writer and turned out about 350 school broadcasts plus plays, musical fantasies, talks and sketches.

She lived for a time in Prince Rupert and it was here she did research for Once Upon a Totem, a book of Indian legends.

Accompanying her to the islands are her husband, Capt. T. A. Harris, who retired in 1961 from the immigration department, and the youngest of their five children, Gerald, 15.

Hints From Heloise

By Heloise Cruse

Dear Heloise:

For the increasing number of camping enthusiasts:

Here is an idea for making an inexpensive but warm sleeping bag:

Fold a dacron comforter in half (length-wise) and baste-stitch along the bottom and three-fourths of the way up the side. Cover with inexpensive material or an old bedsheet and use a liner inside to keep the comforter clean.

Use this sleeping bag during the camping season and, come cold weather, remove the basted stitches and use the comforter on your bed.

Total cost should be no more than $10 (and nothing if you have a comforter) and you'll get the light weight and warmth of a $40 bag.

The comforter could be folded in the opposite direction to make a sleeping bag roomy enough for two small children.

Dear Heloise:

I bought a typewriter table and we use it for everything.

I can roll my portable sewing machine in and out of the closet on it.

It's great for the home movie projector.

When my daughter doesn't want to leave cartoon time for her meals, I can roll a hot meal in to her.

It's wonderful in the scik room.

In fact, I think I'll get another one . . . for the typewriter!

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

Dear Heloise:

When I sat down to wait for baby's bottle to heat, in the wee hours of the morning, I would almost fall asleep!

Now, I use that time to set the breakfast table! It saves time in the morning . . . and you Can't fall asleep while you're walking around!

Dear Heloise:

This is for mothers who have tiny children.

The pretty bonnets they have for little girls always look wilted when you wash them.

When I wash mine, I wring it out and stuff it with tissue paper while it is still wet. I hang it on the line by its strings and spray it all over with spray starch.

When the bonnet is dry, I press the brim and there is no need to press the rest.

This method makes the bonnet look like the day it was new.

Ever tried blowing up a balloon and putting the wet bonnet over it? They are inexpensive, too . . .

Dear Heloise:

When you go to the peach, an old flannel-backed plastic table cloth is wonderful for sun bathing. Put the plastic side down and the flannel side up and it is very comfortable.

The sand shakes off easily and it folds to a very small item to tote along with all the other beach accessories.

Dear Heloise:

The other day when I started to wash our car, I needed a thick pad. This is what I did:

I had an accumulation of dish-washing-size sponges which were too limp for further kitchen use, so I sewed three of them inside of a worn terry cloth wash cloth. This made the dandiest pad I ever used, besides cushioning to dig around tire rims, etc.

Also, I noticed less water ran down my arms when reaching the top of the car.

I washed the homemade pad, squeezed out the moisture and it dried nicely, ready for the next turn.

Algerian Tyrant Increases Hold

ALGIERS (AP) — Most of President Ahmed Ben Bella's enemies are in full retreat, and every new move against him seems only to tighten his one-man rule over Algeria.

Everywhere except in the Kabylie Mountains, the loyal national army is in full control. Rebel leaders are being picked up one by one or are fleeing into exile. All legal political opposition to Ben Bella's "socialist revolution" is silenced.

Even in the Kabylie there is evidence that the traditionally rebellious Berber tribesmen, weary of almost 10 years of continuous guerrilla warfare, are wavering in their allegiance to insurgent leader Hocine Ait Ahmed.

Ben Bella's popularity appears to be declining everywhere as his pseudo - Marxist policies help to plunge the country ever deeper into economic crisis.

But for the moment there is no trace of widespread popular revolt or of sympathy for the fugitive rebels still calling for a general uprising. Nor is there any sign of disaffection in the army, the mainstay of Ben Bella's regime.

EMERGED STRONGER

Although he is beset by towering economic problems, Ben Bella has emerged strengthened from every clash with his hopelessly divided opponents.

Col. Mohamed Chaabani, who tried to stir the Sahara inhabitants against Ben Bella, was betrayed by the same population that helped him for eight years to elude the French. His arrest roused not a stir of sympathy.

Western diplomats are convinced that if the rebels succeeded Algeria would collapse into chaos and anarchy. Consequently, the Western powers have quietly fallen in line with the Soviet Union in doing all they can to bolster the Ben Bella regime.

This means supporting an openly anti - Western dictatorship.

"It often sticks in our throats, but we don't have any choice," one Western ambassador commented.

MacEachen Reports On B.C. Seaman's Strike

OTTAWA (CP)—Labor Minister Allan J. MacEachen said Tuesday that he expects alternative arrangements to be made if the strike of seamen against two west coast shipping companies continues to tie up two ships that operate to northern British Columbia ports.

In reply to Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, Mr. MacEachen said he based his expectation on what happens in other strikes involving transportation.

He indicated that the federal government has no plans to provide alternative transportation itself.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the strike is rapidly approaching serious proportions and is threatening northern communities and industries.

Mr. MacEachen said two experienced federal conciliators are on the spot trying to help work out a settlement of the dispute. About 35 seamen are involved in the legal walkout over wages and working conditions.

Mr. Diefenbaker accused the labor minister of minimizing and ridiculing the situation.

Mr. MacEachen said the government recognizes the seriousness of the situation and is making every effort to achieve a settlement.

KHRUSHCHEV CRITICIZES GOLDWATER NOMINATION

CP from AP-Reuters

WARSAW — Premier Khrushchev said Tuesday U.S. Senator Barry Goldwater is attempting "to enter the White House under the slogan of frantic anti-communism and military threats."

Khrushchev spoke on a program with Polish Communist leader Wladyslaw Gomulka, who also assailed Goldwater, the Republican party's nominee for the U.S. presidency.

U.S. Ambassador John Moors Cabot walked out in the middle of Gomulka's speech, which preceded Khrushchev's.

Khrushchev said:

"The Americans themselves say that one should not take everything said during the presidential campaign seriously. But the election of a president and the laying down of foreign policy for several years cannot help but absorb our attention.

"If warlike slogans are thrown about during the election campaign then the socialist countries cannot but draw appropriate conclusions."

Khrushchev arrived Tuesday to help Poland celebrate its 20th anniversary as a Communist nation and to confer with three other Communist chiefs of Eastern Europe.

Khrushchev, accompanied by his wife, Nina, grinned broadly as he waved his hat to a crowd of 10,000 at Warsaw's Okecie Airport.

The Soviet premier exchanged kisses on both cheeks with Polish Communist Leader Wladyslaw Gomulka. Khrushchev arrived minutes after Czechoslovak President Antonin Novotny and East German Communist Chief Walter Ulbricht.

Khrushchev is to spend two days in Warsaw taking part in events marking the birth of Poland's Communist government in Soviet-held Lublin July 22, 1944.

Polish officials said Khrushchev's crammed schedule left little time for political talks with Gomulka and the other Communist leaders. But they are expected to find time to consult on Communist - bloc problems, including the Moscow - Peking split.

MAY CALL CONFERENCE

The Kremlin has indicated it may be on the verge of issuing a call for preparations for a world conference of Communist parties, despite Chinese threats to boycott such a parley.

The Kremlin told the Chinese in an impatient letter last week that it wanted preparations for a world meeting to begin without delay. It made clear the Russians do not intend to give Peking time to draw supporters by splitting Communist parties around the world.

Novotny and Ulbricht, Moscow's staunchest East-bloc supporters in the dispute, have repeatedly endorsed the idea of a showdown meeting.

Gomulka has showed signs of wavering, apparently sharing the fears of other Communist leaders that such a meeting could do irreparable damage to the world Communist movement. But he gave the idea a half-hearted endorsement at the Polish Communist Party Congress last month.

Khrushchev is expected to end his Polish visit Thursday and probably head for his vacation home on the Black Sea.

FBI To Investigate Harlem Riots

WASHNGTON (AP)—President Johnson ordered a full FBI investigation of race rioting in Harlem, declaring that "violence and lawlessness cannot, must not and will not be tolerated."

Johnson added in a statement Tuesday he had informed acting New York Mayor Paul Screvane that the Federal Bureau of Investigation is "conducting a complete investigtion of the possibility of violation of federal laws in connection with the recent disturbances."

At the same time, Johnson said he expressed to Screvane "my willingness to co-operate in every way possible to help him in this time of agony."

STUDENT LOAN DEBATE SPARKS NOTABLE QUOTES

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — With time running out in the Commons sitting Monday night, veteran Parliamentarian H. W. Herridge (NDP—Kootenay West) seemed a leadpipe cinch for the best quote of the day.

"The morals of the society in which we live . . . are dog-eat-dog morals plastered over with a superficial layer of professed Christianity on the part of those who support the system," he said.

On an ordinary night, there would be nothing better. But Finance Minister Gordon spoke after Mr. Herridge and from the dull depths of a constitutional argument tossed out this nugget:

"The majority has some rights, even in this country."

While Mr. Herridge and Mr. Gordon were well ahead of the field in dropping the most quotable quotes, Douglas Fisher (NDP—Port Arthur) fired the sharpest remarks of the day.

DIRTY TACTICS

In obvious annoyance, Mr. Fisher accused Quebec Conservatives of "petty, nasty and dirty tactics" in opposing the government's student loan legislation.

And with equl anger, Paul Martineau (PC — Pontiac-Temiscamingue) jumped to his feet to demand a withdrawal.

"If he stands for anything at all, he is going to get up and apologize and withdraw his remarks," said Mr. Martineau.

"I m not going to do anything of the kind," retorted the NDP member.

What raised the quotes and tempers was the fourth day of debate on the government proposal for guaranteeing bank loans to university and technical school students.

VIOLATION OF RIGHTS

Most opposition members from Quebec who spoke on the bill's second reading said the proposed legislation represented a flagrant violation of provincial rights.

Virtually all of the other speakers supported the bill.

It was this situation that prompted Mr. Gordon's quote. The same situation raised the ire of Mr. Fisher.

". . . We think the majority of the people in English-speaking Canada want this bill and will approve us voting for it," Mr. Fisher said. "But what are we hearing from this group from Quebec in the Conservative party . . .? This is the other side of the double frustration, that when the majority of the people in this country want something and the government does take this timid step, they are being harpooned for invading provincial rights, despite the fact that the provincial government has been consulted on this.

"If you disagree with this bill on constitutional grounds, state your point and vote against it."

PROTEST SWAMPED

When second reading was called, the seven Creditiste members present were joined by four Conservatives in opposing the motion, but the combined strength of the other MPs swamped the protest 144 to 11. The bill immediately went into clause - by - clause study, which continued Tuesday.

Mr. Gordon said it was difficult to support charges of an infringement on provincial jurisdiction when provinces were free to opt out of the plan and get the cash equivalent. Quebec had already announced it would do this.

There was no doubt that universities need more financial assistance and it was a matter of opinion whether it should come from the federal or provincial government.

Mr. Gordon said "I am not for a moment suggesting that majority opinion makes anything right but, by the same token, I certainly do not agree that minority opinion makes anything right, either. The majority has some rights, even in this country."

Lamarsh Explains

Must Analyse Tax Structure Before Introduce Medicare

By DON HANRIGHT

OTTAWA (CP)—Health Minister Judy LaMarsh said Monday the start of public medical care insurance on a national level in Canada—as well as expansion of the existing hospital insurance program—must await a detailed study of the country's tax structure.

Miss LaMarsh, speaking to reporters after the opening of a closed two-day conference of health ministers, was referring to the federal-provincial ministerial study envisaged by the premiers and Prime Minister Pearson at their Quebec City conference last spring.

That study has not yet begun. As conceived in Quebec, it was to be a "review in depth" of Canada's tax resources in relation to the financial responsibilities of the federal and provincial governments. An interim report was to be made by the end of this year, with a definitive version in early 1965.

However, a spokesman in the prime minister's office said later Monday the committee has not yet been established. He said arrangements for its work now are being completed and the study probably will begin this fall.

Speculation here is that a detailed report will take at least a year.

CAUTIONED MEETING

Miss LaMarsh cautioned in her opening statement to the cent recommendations of the Hall royal commission on health services involve big expenditures.

(The Hall report said Canada's present system of health services will cost $4,015,000,000 by 1971. It said that for another $466,000,000—probably raised by higher taxes — Canada could have a greatly expanded system, including complete medical care for everyone).

Miss LaMarsh said her impression of opening statements by several of the provinces was that they are concerned over the cost of such a system, and some felt the Hall commission underestimated the amount of additional money needed.

However, the principle of medical care insurance was reported to have drawn support from all provinces although Quebec said "it is not ready, for the moment, to establish such a program."

Quebec's opening statement to the conference—released to the press later—said the province wants to have such a program "eventually," and when that day comes, Quebec will "exercise its full and complete jurisdiction."

EXERCISE OPTION

Meanwhile, if Ottawa went ahead with such a program financed jointly with the provinces—and the Pearson government is committed to such a venture —then Quebec would "exercise the fiscal option."

Monday the conference dealt chiefly with hospital insurance—especially provincial demands that Ottawa start sharing, 50-50, the costs of hospital treatment for mental and tuberculosis patients.

Miss LaMarsh said there was unanimity that this was a desirable step, but there still was a question of finding the money.

Ottawa's share of the existing program is estimated at $420,000,000 this year. The enlargement sought by the provinces would cost the federal government an added $53,000,000 this year, it is estimated.

The minister said with the federal-provincial tax structure committee about to begin its work, "this is no time to get into that sort of thing."

Later she was asked whether her remark also would apply to the Hall commission recommendations.

"Oh yes," she replied.

Meanwhile, she said a technical committee of the health ministers' conference will be set up to define the class of mental patients that would be brought under hospital insurance.

She also announced that a group is being set up in the federal health department to study the reasons behind mounting hospital costs, and the differences in costs between various parts of Canada.

Yankees Grab AL Lead

By The Associated Press

Philadelphia Phillies preserved their first place standing in the National League Tuesday night when Jack Baldschun came on in relief for a 6-3 victory over Milwaukee Braves.

But in the American League, New York Yankees crept into first place by defeating Washington Senators 7-1.

In other American League action, Baltimore Orioles lost their tenuous hold on the top spot, dropping a twi-night double-header to Cleveland Indians 4-2 and 8-5.

Boston Red Sox broke a 4-4 tie to dump Detroit Tigers 7-5 on Dick Stuart's seventh-inning three-run homer while Los Angeles Angels completed a double-header sweep over Chicago White Sox with a 3-2 victory. New York Mets defeated Cincinnati Reds 4-2.

Kansas City edged Minnesota 5-4 in the other league game as Rocky Colavito knocked in three runs with a single and a deciding double in the seventh inning.

In other National League games, Chicago defeated San Francisco Giants 2-1, Houston Colts edged Los Angeles Dodgers 1-0 and Pittsburgh Pirates took a 8-4 victory over St. Louis.

Baldschun replaced Art Mahaffey with one out in the eighth, the bases jammed and the Phillies ahead 4-2. He got Hank Aaron to hit into a force play as a run scored, then retired Joe Torre on a tap in front of the plate.

TWO RUNS UNEARNED

The Phillies scored two unearned runs in the ninth, wrapping up only their fifth victory in the last 14 games. The loss was the fourth for the Braves in 14 games.

Home runs by Bobby Wine and Tony Taylor of Milwaukee southpaw Wade Blasingame and three hits by Richie Allen staked Mahaffey, now 9-4, to a 3-0 lead but the Braves rallied for two in the seventh.

Tom Tresh crashed two home runs and Jim Bouton pitched a four-hitter for the Yankees.

Tresh connected with the bases empty in the second inning and hit his 12th homer following a walk to Roger Maris in the fourth. Both homers came off Dave Stenhouse, (0-6). Tresh also doubled and scored in the sixth and walked, stole second and scored in the eighth.

ROMANO'S THIRD

Johnny Romano's third homer of the night and a three-run homer by Woodie Held triggered an eight-run eighth inning uprising, giving Cleveland their 8-5 victory.

Romano had hit two homers and a double, driving in three runs, in the Indians' first game victory.

Stuart's line shot into the left field screen was his 100th hit and his 24th home run, and fattened his major league leading runs batted in total to 84.

The big first baseman's clutch drive offset a pair of long home runs by first baseman Norm Cash and one by George Thomas as that had helped pull the Tigers even at the end of six innings. Thomas hit his second homer of the night in the ninth inning.

Right - hander Bill Monbouquette posted his sixth victory and third straight with Jack Lamabe's ninth inning relief help.

Kokanee Glacier Site Of Summer Ski Camp

Many Top Canadian Skiers Expected at CASA School

One of the first steps in the development of a strong Canadian ski team will commence during August on the slopes of Kokanee Glacier.

Some of Canada's top skiers will don the boards in a Canadian Amateur Ski Association sponsored summer ski camp in an attempt to get a jump on some of the world's strongest competitors.

Purpose of the Kokanee camp is two-fold. The recognized ski techniques will be emphasized and practised by the promising juniors, at the same time the finer points of competitive skiing will be shown and improved in Canada's national team members.

The summer skiing is part of the CASA proposed program which could bring many of Canada's best skiers to this area to attend Notre Dame University and at the same time practise on the numerous ski slopes found throughout the southeast portion of the province.

The camp will be divided into two sections. From Aug. 1-16 the men will take over the snowcovered glacier, followed by the women from Aug. 14-30.

During the month all the skiers will live on the glacier slopes. On week days they will eat and sleep in the Slocan Chief cabin and on weekends inhabit the dwellings found at Cork Province Mine near Kaslo.

All supplies necessary for the four-week stay will be flown in by helicopter, while the skiers will have to hike in from the Kaslo side of the glacier. The hike will entail a near 2000-foot vertical climb to reach the 6200-foot level of the cabin. Most of the skiing will be done between the cabin and the 8000-foot level.

Connection with the outside world will be maintained through radio telephone.

On August 16 the camp personnel will hold a giant slalom race for the tutored individuals and any other interested skiers. It is hoped that some of the big ski names not at the camp will also be able to participate in the competition.

John Platt of Trail, a member of the CASA, and a booster of the Kokanee program feels that the snow bound area is ideal for a summer camp. He said that in August snow conditions are good, "the glacier is accessable and the slopes are good.

Each member participating in the camp will be required to pay a fee of $125, to alleviate the cost on the CASA.

SHEFFIELD (Reuters) — The suspensions of two British soccer players were lifted Tuesday in time for them to report for their club's first workout.

Vancouver Oarsmen To Row for Canada

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—The Canadian Association of Amateur Oarsmen Tuesday recommended sending an eight-man crew, a four-man crew and a singles sculler to the Olympic Games in Tokyo in October.

The decision was reached following trials over the Henley course in which a combined Vancouver-University of British Columbia crew won the eight event, St. Catharines Rowing Club won the fours, and Leif Gotfredson of Toronto Argonauts, captured the singles event.

A CAAO spokesman said the recommendation for the three entries would be made to the Canadian Olympic Association, but a decision on spare men for the rowing team would follow later.

Rowing had been designated 15 men on Canada's 1964 Olympic team. The eight, the four and the singles sculler would leave an open place.

The team will be coached by Glen Mervyn, the coach of the Vancouver-UBC crew. The manager is Charles M. Adams of Montreal, immediate past president of the CAAO.

The Vancouver - UBC entry was clocked in five minutes, 49.8 seconds on a sun-drenched Henley course to defeat St. Catharines and Toronto Argos. The triumph marked the third successive Olympic games a Vancouver crew will carry Canada's colors into the eight-oared competition.

Gotfredson, a 30-year-old Toronto electrical worker, captured individual honors in two events. He won the singles event, finishing an easy nine lengths ahead of Robert Sawlor of the North Star Boat Club, Dartmouth, N.S. His time, however, was a slow seven minutes, 4.2 seconds for the 2,000-metre distance.

His second victory was with Bart Hildebrand, a 24-year-old Toronto high school teacher, in the doubles event. The pair finished two lengths in front of John Orchard and Ray Guy of Hamilton Leanders. Their time was six minutes, 2 seconds for the 2,000-metre distance.

A group of St. Catharines Rowing Club veterans posted the only upset of the trials when they won the fours event over the favored Vancouver-UBC entry.

The Vancouver eight, boasting veterans from Canada's 1962 British Empire Games crew and the 1963 Pan - American Games gold medal eight, never dropped a stroke below 40 to the minute in finishing two lengths in front of a St. Catharines' crew. Argos finished another 3½ lengths back.

Skrien Almost Quits Lions

Near Resignation Over Ticket Mix-Up

VANCOUVER (CP) — The game of musical chairs, which left wives of the British Columbia Lions out in the wet and caused head coach Dave Skrien to threaten to quit, has ended amicably.

The women will get seats equal to or better than those they occupied in Empire Stadium last season.

Skrien touched off headlines when he accused general manager Herb Capozzi of "a deliberate attempt to undermine me" by moving the wives of players and assistant coaches from free seats in prime, covered positions to uncovered seats ranging from the end zone to the 20-yard line.

"I can't coach if I am undermined and I can only view this as a deliberate attempt by the general manager to undermine me. It may seem a small thing, tickets, but team harmony is being threatened and my authority is being challenged.

"If I let this go, I am dead as a coach. This will kill me in the eyes of my football players."

A MUSUNDERSTANDING

Clayton B. Delbridge, club president, said the incident resulted from a misunderstanding.

The wives' seats, previously scattered through several sections of the cavernous stadium, had been consolidated into one section, he said.

In view of the uproar, however, he would see to it that the wives were given seats equal to or better than those occupied last year.

Delbridge said he hadn't known until Saturday, when informed by Skrien, that the seats had been switched.

"It was news to me. I was at a loss to understand why they were moved after we had won the Western Conference. I can't understand why the players would get seats that were not as good as those they had last year.

"If I had moved them this year I would have moved them to better seats in appreciation of what their husbands did."

Skrien, who said he would hand his resignation to the board of governors at the club's annual meeting Tuesday night unless the situation was rectified, said he was satisfied.

Earlier, he said that after the 3-0 defeat by Hamilton Tiger-Cats in an exhibition game Monday night the players were more concerned with the ticket situation than the game they had just lost.

Capozzi said he had no comment.

Trimble To Field Best Squad Against Roughies

MONTREAL (CP) — Coach Jim Trimble of the Montreal Alouettes said Tuesday he will start his first stringers against the Saskatchewan Roughriders tonight.

But he remained convinced that pre - season exhibition games have no more status than trial runs. However, he presumably yielded to fans who pay regular - season ticket prices to see better efforts than last week's 35-7 loss to Calgary.

"The fans in Canada are going to have to understand that our fight with the NFL and AFL for players is dead serious," said Trimble. "Financially, it is simply impossible to keep pace with those leagues for top players.

"AFL teams are offering $15,000 to $20,000 a season. The NFL is considerably higher."

The Alouette coach used inexperienced Canadian youngsters against the Stampeders and it cost the Als dearly, especially defensively.

"We must give these Canadian kids a chance to develop. And the only way to do it is in exhibition games."

The rookies will get another chance tonight, but Trimble will use the first portion of the game to study his mainstays.

George Bork will start at quarterback and newcomers Larry Tomlinson and Gerry Philp will man the ends. The backfield will consist of George Dixon, Nat Craddock, Dave Hoppmann and McGill star Willie Lambert at flanker.

Vernon Cole, obtained from Winnipeg after three years in the armed services, will back up Bork.

Pitcher's Duel May Decide First Place

First place in the Can Am Baseball League Northern Division is at stake tonight as Trail Smoke Eaters invade Civic Grounds to take on Nelson Braves.

Standings released from Division headquarters in Kimberley, Tuesday, show Smoke Eaters leading the league, a scant two percentage points ahead of the Braves. Trail has played three more games than the local squad.

STANDINGS

|---|---|---|---|

| Nelson | 13 | 7 | .650 |
| Cranbrook | 14 | 10 | .583 |
| Kimberley | 7 | 14 | .333 |

Tonight's contest looms as battle of the pitchers.

Nelson fans will get their first look at Gordon Midge, the sensational sixteen-year-old Smokie hurler who handed Southern Division leading Spokane Orphans their first defeat of the season in Trail Saturday. Midge came into the contest in relief and held the vaunted Orphan batting order to three hits as the Smoke Eaters squeezed out a 7-6 victory.

He will oppose starry righthander Miles Desharnais who boasts a 2-0 record over the Trail nine.

Desharnais went all the way in both contests whipping Trail 16-2 three weeks ago and hurling a five hitter as Braves won 3-2 in Trail last Wednesday. He also came in relief to save a 12-5 Nelson win, the last time Trail appeared at Civic Grounds.

Health Improves

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Former National Hockey League star Aubrey (Dit) Clapper is progressing favorably and is out of his oxygen tent most of the time, hospital officials said Tuesday.

Clapper, the only man to play 20 years with the NHL, suffered a heart attack last Thursday afternoon. He played all his NHL career, from 1927 to 1947, with Boston Bruins and was named to the all-star team as a defenceman three consecutive years.

Willemse Wins Swim For Fifth Straight Year

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (CP)—Herman Willemse, 30-year-old Dutch school teacher, won the 26-mile Atlantic City swim Tuesday in the record time of 10 hours, eight minutes and 15 seconds.

It was the fifth victory in the swim in five years for Willemse, who receives a $5000 first prize.

Willemse, a native of Utrecht, Holland, far outdistanced the remainder of the field, taking a 1¼-mile lead by the time the race was half over. Near the finish he was two miles ahead.

Probably only a well-aimed torpedo could have stopped the fast-swimming Dutchman.

Willemse set the former record of 10:30.5 in 1960.

Last year his time was 10:31.15.

The phenomenal Dutchman crossed the finish line at the Atlantic City Marina to the cheers of hundreds of spectators, many of them in boats.

Abdel Latif Abou-Heif of Egypt was second in 10:31.23, beating out John LaCoursiere of Montreal by two-tenths of a second.

The two men had come splashing down to the wire in one of the closest finishes in this marathon's 11-year history.

Abou-Heif won $2000 and Lacoursiere $1,000.

Cliff Lumsdon of Toronto, winner here in 1956 and 1959, was fourth in 10:32.50. He earned $800.

Marty Sinn of Ann Arbor, Mich., won $800 for being the first woman to finish. She placed seventh over-all in 10:37.15.

She was almost assured of winning in her category after seven-time winner Greta Anderson dropped from the race after complaining of feeling faint.

Miss Sinn also won $200 for placing seventh over-all.

Jorge Mezzadra of Argentina was fifth in 10:34.01 for $500, followed by Dicki Bojadzi of Yugoslavia, who had pressed Willemse hard during the early stages of the race, in 10:35.45. Bojadzi won $300.

Miss Sinn set a 26-mile course record for women. The former record of 11:07.25 was set in 1959.

Warns $1 Pay May Set Dangerous Precedent

VERNON (CP)—A bylaw cutting Mayor E. C. Rice's monthly pay from $300 to $1 was given all but final readings here Monday, but the mayor indicated he'll probably refer the bylaw back to council when it comes up for final approval.

Final reading is set for next Monday.

Mr. Rice said the bylaw could be a dangerous precedent in B.C.

He warned it could be used as a club to force the acquiesence of other mayors and aldermen out of step with the majority of council.

The reduction in the mayor's payment had been sought by five aldermen after Rice had refused a demand that he resign immediately.

A non - confidence motion charged the mayor with "incompetence, arrogance, ignorance and inability." A sixth alderman Fred August, was the only member of council to oppose the motion a week ago.

Council also voted to delay the reduction until Aug. 1, instead of July 1 as originally planned.

The mayor said the cutting of his indemnity will set him up as a martyr and the five aldermen will be more hurt by public reaction than he will be by the loss of his pay. He intends to stay on no matter what.

MARKET TRENDS

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices recovered from a fairly steep afternoon tumble to close moderately lower Tuesday.

Iprovement by the airlines and selected other issues, plus a number of earnings reports that showed good boosts over a year ago, apparently touched off the comeback.

Trading was relative slow, falling below the 5,000,000-share level for the seventh straight session. It totalled 4,500,000 shares, up from Monday's 4,350,000.

Market analysts failed to find any specific news item they could blame the slide upon. It developed slowly after irregularly lower morning trading.

Youngstown Sheet and Tube and Union Carbide were among key companies disclosing healthy profit boosts. Youngstown stock fell 1⅜ while Carbide was off 1.

DOW JONES OFF

The Dow Jones industrials average closed at 846.95, off 2.44 or the most since June 23 when it fell 3.68.

The Associated Press 60-stock average declined .9 at 319.9 with industrials down 1.4, rails off .8, and utilities lower by .1. Standard and Poor's 500 stock index dipped .20 at 83.54.

Of the 15 most-active issues seven declined and six advanced.

Chrysler closed at a new high of 53⅝, gaining 1⅛ and topping the most active list on 94,400 shares traded. The stock was lower much of the session.

Commonwealth Oil was second most-active on 54,800 shares and lower by ⅜ at 11¼. The company's second half net failed to match last year's.

FEW MOVED MUCH

Besides Chrysler the only moves of a point or more on the most active list were Richfield Oil, up 2⅛, and Reichhold Chemical, up 1⅜.

Among the motors GM gave up another ⅝; Ford was off ⅜. American Motors was unchanged and Studebaker up ⅛.

Liggett and Myers advanced 1⅜ in a weak tobacco section. The government reported cigarette sales fell in May after a big jump the month before.

Among Canadian issues Distillers Seagrams added ⅝, and Dome Mines and International Nickel ⅛ each. Canadian Pacific, Hudson Bay Mining and Walker Gooderham were off ⅜ each, McIntyre Porcupine ½, Granby Mining ¼.

TORONTO (CP) — Volume boomed ahead to 11,538,000 shares on the stock market Tuesday, the heaviest since April 23 when 18,292,000 shares changed hands.

More than one-third of the volume was contributed by National Exploration which climbed 7½ cents to 45 cents and sold as high as 69 cents. National Exploration turned over 4,171,500 shares as rumors circulated that mineralization had been encountered in a drill hole on its property in Prosser Township near Timmins. However, the company has issued no assay results.

Windfall, the company which triggered the current speculative spree on rumors of a find on its property—also in Prosser Township—slipped 45 cents to $4.75 and sold as high as $5.60.

While speculatives were boiling the remainder of the market took a modest setback.

Trans-Canada Pipe Lines led industrials on a downward path with a loss of 1 to 42. Dominion Stores was down ¾ to 22, Dominion Tar ⅝ to 22⅞, Toronto-Dominion Bank ½ to 66⅞ and Massey-Ferguson ⅜ to 29⅝.

There were, however, some good gainers. Fraser climbed to a 1964 peak of 34 with a 1½ advance. Labatt was up ⅞ to 21½, Dofasco ⅝ to 25⅝ and R. L. Crain and Distillers Seagram ½ each to 17¼ and 62½.

Senior base metals were lower on index although the undertone was strong. Cominco and Hudson Bay were up ½ each to 38½ and 66½.

In western oils, Canadian Superior dipped ⅝ to 19.

On index, industrials were down .19 to 160.63, golds .38 to 132.75, base metals .13 to 65.13, western oils .20 to 99.86 and the Exchange Index .19 to 149.84.

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices eased fractionally in moderate trading on the Montreal and Canadian Stock Exchanges Tuesday. Speculatives were active as Mistango River registered the day's best gain, climbing 14 cents to 68 cents on a volume of 73,600 shares.

Suit for Ivan Ends Soviet Polo

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet national water polo team has been disbanded because 10 of its 11 members brought foreign clothing back from a tour of Yugoslavia and Romania.

Komsomolskaya Pravda said the athletes told customs men the clothes were for poor relations, but the paper said they planned to sell them on the black market.

The paper indicated an almost entirely new team will be formed for the Tokyo Olympics in October.

Only one member of the 11-man team, Boris Grishin, did not have any foreign clothes. He is the only man left in the former national team.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints Each day the code letters are different.

Singapore Riots Incur Curfew

SINGAPORE (Reuters)—Five persons were killed in clashes between groups of Malays and Chinese here Tuesday and curfew was imposed on the entire port city.

Unconfirmed reports said at least 50 persons were injured.

Scuffles continued through the evening between the Malays, who are virtually all Moslems, and the Chinese. The two groups make up the two main recial segments in the city.

Hundreds of police were called out as the two groups clashed in the streets, overturning Chinese-owned street stalls and attacking stores.

The trouble began during an afternoon procession marking the birthday of the Moslem prophet Mohammed.

Seek End to Free Medical Treatment

By COLIN FROST

LONDON (AP) — Britain's family doctors have decided to press for an end to free treatment for patients under the National Health Service.

The decision, announced by the British Medical Association Monday, is intended to reduce overcrowding in consulting rooms. Many doctors say they are desperately overworked.

Most of Britain's 49,000 general practitioners are members of the BMA. But their plea for consulting room charges is unlikely to make much headway in an election year.

At the moment a Briton who calls in his doctor or goes to his surgeon need pay no fee, except one shilling (15 cents) for a medical certificate.

The only other charge is two shillings paid to the pharmacist for each prescription. Doctors are paid by the state according to the number of patients on their list and the service is financed from taxes.

John Nicholson-Lailey, chairman of the BMA's governing council, told reporters that growing population and a declining number of doctors meant many were unable to provide a proper standard of treatment.

"Since there is no hope of increasing the number of doctors for 10 years, every expedient must be tried to discourage unnecessary or frivolous calls on their time."

LEVEL NOT DECIDED

Nicholson-Lailey said the association had not decided what level of charges should be imposed, except that it should be small and should not be burden to the poor or elderly.

He explained the charge would not go direct to the doctor's pocket but would be handed to the government. In compensation he suggested the government might be able to reduce taxation or abolish the prescription charge.

The association's proposal now will go to a government commission inquiring into medical practice and doctor's pay.

At the same time the association will undertake a campaign to educate the public in the use of the medical services.

Dr. J. C. Cameron, chairman of the association's general medical service committee, explained that there again the aim would be to reduce unnecessary calls.

"The dwindling number of doctors now that the emigration drain is making itself felt has produced a desperate situation," Cameron said.

At its final meeting Monday the association voted against planning for strike action or some other form of sanctions if its pay demands are not met.

It is seeking an increase of 25 per cent in salaries now averaging £60 ($180) a week. Many young physicians have left in recent years for the United States and Canada, where rewards are higher.

VANIER REMAINS ANOTHER YEAR

OTTAWA (CP)—The Queen has approved a one-year extension in the term of Governor-General Georges P. Vanier to late 1965, Prime Minister Pearson announced in the Commons Tuesday.

Mr. Pearson said the extension was granted in recognition of Gen. Vanier's dedicated and distinguished service as the Queen's representative in Canada.

Gen. Vanier, 76, was appointed governor-general Sept. 15, 1959.

Born on St. George's Day, April 23, 1888, Gen. Vanier has had a long career in Canadian public life as a lawyer, soldier, diplomat and patriot.

Mr. Pearson said one of the happiest aspects of the extension will be the continued presence at Rideau Hall of Mme. Vanier.

The announcement met with immediate approval by all party leaders.

Opposition leader Diefenbaker said the government was to be congratulated for extending Gen. Vanier's term.

T. C. Douglas, New Democratic Party leader, said Gen. Vanier's willingness to remain another year will be hailed enthusiastically by all Canadians.

Robert Thompson, Social Credit leader, said Gen. and Mme. Vanier have been a unifying force in Canada.

Real Caouette, Creditiste leader, said the Governor-General and his wife have been an honor and glory to all Canadians.

Seventh Montreal Newspaper Starts

MONTREAL (CP) — Metro-Express made its first appearance on newsstands Tuesday, increasing to seven the number of daily newspapers in Montreal.

The morning tabloid is the second French-language daily to start publication here since La Presse, Montreal largest daily, suspended publication June 4 following a typographers' strike.

Le Journal de Montreal, an afternoon tabloid, began publishing June 15.

Metro-Express is published by Jacques Brillant, of Rimouski, Que., who publishes the weekly newspaper Le Progress du Golfe and operates radio and television stations CJBR and CJBR-TV there.

Plans call for two editions daily, 32 pages each, of the new daily. In announcing the new publication recently, Mr. Brillant said the policy of the newspaper will be objective, "indifferent to nothing and independent in everything." Montreal area news would receive top priority, he said.

The new daily is printed by the offset method and a cold type process is used for composition of news and advertising.

BIG "3" SYMBOL

VANCOUVER (CP) — A big figure "3" will probably be the symbol of the forthcoming Three Universities Capital Fund Campaign. Drive officials hope to raise $28,000,000 for construction of buildings at the University of B.C., Simon Fraser University and the University of Victoria. The fund is scheduled to start in October.

Asks Prisoners Remain Jailed

OTTAWA (CP)—Justice Minister Favreau was asked Tuesday not to release any prisoners from federal penitentiaries during the fall visit of the Queen.

The Canadian Corrections Association said in a letter that granting amnesty was not a proper way to show respect to the Queen. The practice should stop beginning with the royal visit here.

"The modern correctional view is that a prisoner should be released prior to the expiry of sentence only when the parole board believes his attitudes have changed sufficiently to warrant such action," the association's letter said.

"To grant amnesty in honor of the Queen's visit negates this principle and substitutes a basis for release that requires no effort on the prisoner's part."

The association, a branch of the Canadian Welfare Society, said that all Canadians would want to pay "full reverence" to the Queen and honor her visit in every way.

"It is the opinion of the Canadian Corrections Society that granting amnesty to prisoners is not a suitable way," said the letter.

Mine Undergoes Million Dollar Expansion

LITTLE BAY, Nfld. (CP)—Atlantic Coast Copper Corporation Limited, an Ottawa company which mines and smelts copper in this northeast Newfoundland settlement, plans to increase its shares to 5,000,000 from 3,500,000 to finance opening of five new mine levels to the 2,000-foot depth.

The mine, which operated to 1,350 feet underground last year, is on an ore body which first was mined in the 1800s.

President J. Barry O'Brien of Ottawa said in his annual report the extra capital would be needed next year. Diamond drilling this summer to 2,000 feet is expected to confirm extensive ore deposits.

The company has declared operating profits of $220,001 for last year. Mr. O'Brien said gross revenue for the year was $2,029,419 "practically all from mine production." An average price of 30.844 cents a pound was received for copper compared with 30.498 cents the previous year. Mr. O'Brien predicted more price increases because of unstable political conditions in some of the world's leading copper producing countries.

Mine Manager B. L. Jackson said the mine operated during the year at near capacity. Three hundred seventy six thousand, four hundred three tons of ore was mined, yielding 6,419,878 pounds of copper and 819 ounces of gold.

Mr. O'Brien said the grade of concentrates produced and percentage of copper recovered was higher than in the previous year. Milling expenses, however, were $442,060 compared with $414,613 for 1962.

The mine, which employs about 154, is one of six in this area.

MILLION DOLLAR PLANT OPENS IN VANCOUVER

VANCOUVER (CP) — Lockport Pacific Ltd. will open its new $1,000,000 felt plant in suburban North Vancouver Wednesday.

The plant, employing 40 persons, will manufacture felts for Western Canada's pulp industry. it will also export felts to Australia, New Zealand and South America.

The opening ceremony will be attended by provincial Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston, Lockport president F. W. Charlton and board chairman Raymond J. Lee.

Lockport Pacific is a joint venture of B.C. interests and Lockport Felt Company of Newfane, N.Y.

Castro Expresses Willingness To Negotiate

SANTIAGO (AP) — Cuba is ready to meet the United States at the bargaining table "anywhere, anytime and discuss whatever would be necessary" to iron out problems between the two countries, Armed Forces Minister Raul Castro said Tuesday.

But for such a possible reconciliation move to succeed, Castro said, "there must be no previous conditions demanded by both countries."

Castro was asked in a press conference with foreign correspondents whether this meant Cuba would abandon the five points set forth by his brother, Premier Fidel Castro, in the October, 1962, missile crisis, as essential conditions to be set prior to any negotiations.

Raul answered. "I repeat that if we would have any negotiations, they would have to be without any previous conditions."

Fidel has demanded American withdrawal from Guantanamo naval base, suspension of surveillance flights, suspension of aid to "internal subversion," lifting of the economic blockade and suspension of "aggressive incursions against Cuba."

Banks Will Serve Thirty Days

MONTREAL (CP)—A Quebec superior court writ ordering the immediate jailing of Hal Banks to serve a 30-day sentence for contempt of court has been obtained, a spokesman for Upper Lakes Shipping Limited said Tuesday.

A bailiff was to pick up the writ "for coercive imprisonment" and probably would act on it later Tuesday, the spokesman said. The writ ordered the bailiff to "seize Banks and deliver" to jail.

The 30-day sentence was imposed on Banks, deposed head of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada (Ind.), last September. The contempt charge alleged that SIU members continued to picket an Upper Lakes vessel at Trois-Rivieres, Que., in May, 1962, despite a court injunction.

The Supreme Court of Canada last month turned down a bid by Banks to appeal the conviction.

DeGaulle, U Thant Lunch At Palace

PARIS (AP) — President de Gaulle met privately Tuesday with United Nations Secretary-General U Thant and then, in a gesture indicating a warming of France's attitude toward the UN, was his host at a luncheon in Elysee Palace.

There still was no sign, however, that France was ready to drop objections to cost of maintaining the UN peace force in the Congo and to some other UN policies which have attracted French opposition.

Thant was in Paris for a one-day visit. He flew from Geneva on his 18-day tour of Europe, Africa and Asia.

The French are known to have been favorably impressed by Thant personally during his visit to Paris in April. De Gaulle at that time was recovering from a prostate operation and was unable to see him.

He was invited to return and did so Tuesday.

The warmth of de Gaulle's toast to Thant at the luncheon was in sharp contrast to the president's past remarks about what he has called "the dis- United Nations."

"No one understands better than we in France, how important, complex and delicate your present high mission is," de Gaulle said.

"The United Nations, an organization without precedent in the history of the world, affords an opportunity for representatives of its member states to meet permanently and to exchange views and their hopes for the future. It is natural that the opinions which are expressed there are diverse and often impassioned.

Thant said he discussed the Cyprus crisis and the situation in Southeast Asia with de Gaulle. He called their meeting "very fruitful."

Expansion Precedes Construction

VANCOUVER (CP) — Northwood Pulp Ltd. announced an expansion of a Prince George, B.C. pulp mill that has not yet been built.

President Adam Zimmerman said in a telephone interview from Toronto. The mill, planned at 500 tons a day, will instead handle 625 tons.

Clearing now is under way on a 1,500-acre site six miles north of Prince George for the new mill, which will utilize wood waste and chips from a pulpwood harvesting area only recently approved by the government.

The company may eventually expand the mill to 1,000 or 1,200 tons daily.

"As you go up from 500 to 750 tons, each unit becomes less expensive," said Mr. Zimmerman in announcing the expansion. He said the company, a subsidiary of Noranda Mines of Toronto and Mead Corp. of Dayton, Ohio, hopes to let a contract for site preparation within a week.

Armed Forces Air Views On Bilingualism

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — The royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism has heard privately some 20 members of the armed forces and expects applications from several hundred others for private audiences.

The commission has scheduled a meeting for Aug. 10 to discuss how to handle the large number of requests from servicemen for hearings.

Informed sources said Monday the defence department has decided that a serviceman can get time off duty to testify before the commission but that he will have to bear himself any expenses involved.

The commission, however, may be more lenient and provide some travel expenses for servicemen at remote stations. No decision has been taken on this point, or on whether part of the commission or its staff should go to Europe to hear the views of Canadian servicemen there.

At the moment, serviceman may appear before the entire 10-member commission, a single commissioner, the commission's research staff or submit his views in writing.

The defence deprtment has ruled that no serviceman can participate in public hearings of the commission but may make a submission privately.

AIR GRIEVANCES

It is understood the department was mainly worried that disgruntled servicemen might use the commission to air grievances against military superiors in public.

It considered this could have adversely affected military discipline as well as Canadian unity, particularly where complaints involved promotions allegedly denied on the grounds of language.

Such a case occurred about a decade ago when a French-speaking RCAF flight lieutenant got an MP to take his argument to the Commons that he was being discharged because he wasn't sufficiently proficient in English. The government denied the charge but the case caused some bitterness.

One of the few defence department studies on bilingualism in the armed forces was done in 1959 by Marcel Chaput, then a defence research board scientist and now a separatist leader in Quebec.

Mr. Chaput found that French-speaking Canadians enlist in the army about as readily as English-speaking Canadians but do not remain in the service as long as the latter.

He concluded that the difference in length of service explained the shortage of French-speaking Canadians in the ranks of the army.

It is understood the royal commission has obtained a copy of Mr. Chaput's report for study. The report covered 1953 to 1957 and did not deal with the navy or RCAF.

Stuns Officials By Refusing Degree

BANGOR, Wales (Reuters) — Parents applauded Monday when a 21-year-old student refused to accept his Bachelor of Arts degree because the University of Wales "has disowned the Welsh language."

Before stunned college officers at the annual congregation of the university here, the student, Robert Paul Griffiths, speaking in Welsh, declared:

"For almost two years we the students have asked again and again for the Welsh language to be given a place of merit in the college. The authorities have refused all . . . requests.

"The fight will continue. But for me this is the final opportunity."

Griffiths then repeated his statement in English.

Scout Jamboree Spreads Peace and Goodwill

By R. J. ANDERSON

VALLEY FORGE, Pa. (CP) On the plains, the rolling hills, the gentle valleys, parched now under a blazing sun, of historic Valley Forge, 52,000 youths live in fellowship and understanding.

This is the week of the sixth national jamboree of the Boy Scouts of America and 16-year-old Glen Anderson of Edmonton summed it up when he said: "It's colossal."

He is one of 418 Canadian scouts and about 600 from other countries participating with American youth in the top event of scouting—a jamboree. And he's having a ball.

So are the other Canadians, despite the heat. All 10 provinces are represented, with one scout, Wayne Hewitt of Inuvik, from the Northwest Territories.

They camp out, cook their own food, compete in every phase of scouting with others from a dozen countries — and engage in hard bargaining in the interminable swapping. For the Canadian patch, with the Red Ensign in the top, left-hand corner, is at a premium here.

ABSORBS HISTORY

The visitors cannot help but absorb American history here where the 11,000 men of George Washington's ragged Continental Army bivouacked from Dec. 19, 1777, to June 18, 1778, the darkest days of the Revolutionary War. Three-thousand men died during the bitter winter.

Valley Forge, 17 miles west of Philadelphia, now is a memorial park.

The Canadians were "at home" Monday, a day when the temperature was in the 90s and the sun beat pitilessly upon the land with only a few forlorn trees providing a little shade. They gave a reception for representatives of all participating troops.

As a memento, national headquarters presented to American scouts on behalf of the Boy Scouts of Canada a 2½-foot-high ookpik, stuffed Arctic owl which has become almost a symbol of Canada. The presentation was made by Jewitt, who spoke of continuing friendship with the United States.

There was a second presentation at the reception—a carved buffalo, symbolic of much in American history. It was made by Alberta Commissioner Ernest Kumm of Red Deer, who is leader of the Canadian contingent.

WOMAN KILLED

CEREAL, Alta. (CP) — Mrs. Alfred Brunner, 34, of the Acadia Valley district in Southern Alberta, was killed late Sunday in a car accident near this community, 140 miles east of Calgary. Her husband and six other passengers in the car were taken to hospital.

PIONEER DIES

EDMONTON (CP) — Mrs. Alfred Thompson, 85, an Alberta pioneer, died Monday in Edmonton. Born in Madison, Wis., Mrs. Thompson moved to North Dakota and then to Orion, Alta., with her husband in 1910. They later lived in Claresholm, Magrath and Edmonton.
