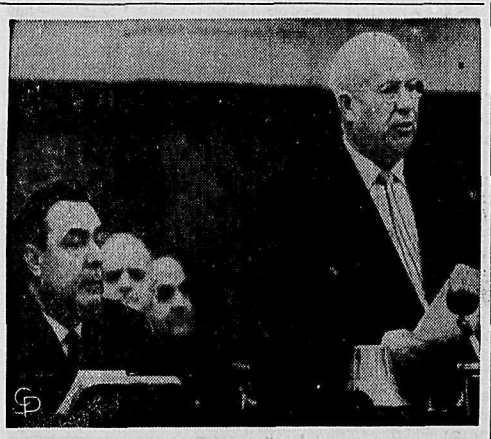
Top Soviet Military Officials Die in Air Crash

Soviet Peaceful Co-Existence Policy Still Stands — Brezhnev



THIS MAY HAVE BEEN THE START DOWN—Nikita Khrushchev is shown addressing a recent high-level Communist Party meeting at which Leonid Brezhnev (left) was elevated to deputy party leader. Now Brezhnev is first secretary, the top post Khrushchev held. The photo and caption information come from an official Soviet source.

New Leader Hints May Try To Heal Sino-Russ Rift

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The new secretary of the Soviet communist party, Leonid Brezhnev, hinted Monday that the Kremlin will make new efforts to patch up the Sino-Soviet rift.

Brezhnev also continued to hammer home the Soviet theme that the removal from power of Nikita Khrushchev last week will not mean a change in Soviet policy.

Brezhnev, who replaced Khrushchev in the top party job while Alexei Kosygin took over as premier, made his first public appearance Monday since Khrushchev was removed. He spoke in Red Square at ceremonies hailing the Russian cosmonauts who made a three-man space flight last week.

He made no direct mention of China and never once named Khrushchev.

Brezhnev said the basic foreign and domestic policy line worked out since 1956 "was, is and will be the sole and unchangeable line in the entire domestic and foreign policy of the Communist party and the Soviet state."

He said peaceful coexistence remains the "unshakeable basis" of Moscow's foreign policy.

STRIVE FOR PEACE

The Soviet Union will continue to strive untiringly to consolidate peace, friendship and co-operation among the nations and work for the further relaxation of international tensions.

In what observers took as a hint of possible Soviet concessions to China, Brezhnev said the Soviet party would uphold the general line of the world Communist movement, and work to unite all Communist parties on the basis of Marxism - Leninism, proletarian internationalism, and the declarations adopted by world Communist conference in 1957 and 1960.

On other foreign policy questions, Brezhnev said:

1. Russia sees its international duty in supporting the "just struggle of the peoples against imperialism, colonialism and neo-colonialism, for their social and national liberation, for peace, democracy, national independence and socialism."

2. "We are for the termination of the arms race, for general and complete disarmament, for the liberation of the peoples from the burden of military expenditures."

3. "We are for the strengthening of the United Nations in the interests of peace and the security of nations . . . we are for effective security in Europe."

The new leader also set a course for "no change" in domestic policy.

Brezhnev said Lenin taught the Communists to carry out the people's wishes firmly and persistently, "constantly to feel the pulse of the people's life."

Foreign observers said the remark was apparently an allusion to reported charges that Khrushchev was guilty of "armchair methods" and had deviated from the Kremlin's stated policy of collective leadership.

$225 Million Steel Mill Set for Quebec

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Jean Lesage announced Monday that the Societe Generale de Financement will establish a new company to set up a $225,000,000 steel mill in the St. Lawrence River valley within the next four years.

Of the initial capital of $25,000,000, Premier Lesage said $20,000,000 will be furnished by the Quebec government and $5,000,000 by the Societe Generale, which was established by the government to encourage industrial development in Quebec.

Spokesmen for the societe said the exact site of the mill has not yet been determined but engineers have recommended either Becancourt, 90 miles northeast of Montreal on the south shore of the St. Lawrence, or the Sorel-Contrecoeur area, 40 miles east of Montreal.

Premier Lesage said the government is "firmly convinced of the economic advantages" of the project.

"Both the government and the SGF consider it fundamental that a majority of the capital stock of the proposed company be owned by the public generally," the premier said in a statement.

"The government intends to give its full support and is confident the public will do so in full measure."

Premier Lesage said the remaining $200,000,000 will be raised by the sale of shares, bonds and securities during the construction period, estimated to be three to four years.

Religious Census Being Taken

VANCOUVER (CP) — A religious census has been launched in the city's densely-populated West End by more than 350 laymen representing a five-denomination committee.

The unique project will see members from eight churches in the area knocking on doors Sundays and week nights to survey how many of the apartment-dwellers attend church and to what faith they belong.

First stage of the census began Sunday.

"Each church hopes to attract those members of its particular denomination back into church as a result of the census," William J. Blain, a Central Presbyterian Church layman who heads the survey committee, said in an interview.

"It's the first time the churches in this area have ever gotten together on a single project.

"We had to co-operate — each church couldn't have handled its own indivdiual problem alone."

Taking part are St. Andrews-Wesley and St. John, United Church; Christ Church Cathedral and St. Paul's, Anglican; Guardian Angels and Holy Rosary Cathedral, Roman Catholic; Central Presbyterian and First Baptist.

TANKERS COLLIDE

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)—Two tankers, one loaded with jet aircraft fuel, collided here Monday night and burst into flames that sent billows of black smoke high into the sky.

Three hours later one ship was abandoned, the other was severely damaged but limped out of port. One man was missing and two others injured.

Consortium Awarded Contract

VANCOUVER (CP) — A consortium to be known as Tasu Mine Developers has been awarded a contract to prepare for production the biggest iron ore property in British Coulmbia.

Falconbridge Nickel Mines Ltd .of Toronto announced it has given a letter of intent to the consortium, composed of Taylor Woodrow of Canada Ltd., Standard-General Construction (International) Ltd. and Emil Anderson Construction Ltd.

Falconbridge would not reveal the value of the contract, believed to be worth several millions. The contract is for surface stripping, plant site excavation and underground development of Tasu Inlet on the Queen Charlotte Islands, where the property is located.

The property, held by Wesfrob Mines Ltd., a Falconbridge subsidiary, contains an estimated 40,000,000 tons of iron ore.

The provincial government recently approved Falconbridge's plan to export the ore in concentrate form to Japan, subject to a 50-per-cent recall if the ore is required for a steel industry here.

The entire Tasu Inlet development will cost about $25,000,000. The mine is expected to be producing in 1966.

Courtenay, Comox Courting

VICTORIA (CP) — The Colonist said today informal talks have been held toward possible amalgamation of Courtenay and Comox.

The newspaper said it has learned some officials of the two Vancouver Island communities have already met to discuss formation of a study group on amalgamation.

Formation of a similar study group was a key step leading to a refrendum Saturday in which residents of Alberni and Port Alberni voted in favor of amalgamation of the twin cities in 1967.

A similar study group involving Campbell River and several outlying areas has been at work for some time regarding possible formation of a district municipality.

The city of Courtenay has a population of just under 4000, while adjoining Comox, a village, has about 2000 residents.

Bombing Near "Sons" Prison Investigated

AGASSIZ (CP) — Police are investigating the bombing of a power pole that carries lines that supply Mountain Prison—the special Sons of Freedom Doukhobor institution — with electricity.

The pole was slightly damaged by an explosive device that was set off by a timer.

The explosion did not disrupt power at the prison half a mile away.

Parliament

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Commons considered the government's labor code legislation.

Opposition parties combined to defeat the government on an NDP amendment to the code, voting 49-44 for an amendment raising the number of holidays to eight from seven.

Three Social Credit MPs joined the government in voting down another NDP amendment, 57 to 51, that would have made the act applicable to the Northwest Territories.

The Commons adopted unanimously a report suggesting committees be set up for an entire Parliament and be allowed to sit between sessions.

Jackson Flag Wins Friends

OTTAWA (CP)—Famed artist A. Y. Jackson is on the road to becoming Canada's Betsy Ross. His flag design is reliably reported to be the choice of a majority of members of the Commons flag committee.

Informants say the committee probably will split 9-5 in recommending to the Commons that the 82-year-old Canadian printer's maple leaf design become Canada's flag and that the Canadian Red Ensign be used to mark Canada's Commonwealth connection.

Where Betsy Ross is said by legend to have stitched the first stars and stripes flag for Washington after the American Revolution, Jackson's design was produced in 1959 on a piece of paperboard with watercolors.

Mr. Jackson, one of the famous Group of Seven artists, has appeared before the flag committee, scheduled to report its choice to the Commons by Oct. 29, and explained the origins of the design. It has three red maple leaves joined on a single stem against a white background with a wavy horizontal blue bar at top and bottom.

DIFFERS ON EDGING

Its chief difference from the flag design proposed by the government last May is that the government's design had a vertical blue bar at each edge.

Jackson is reported to have advised the committee that he got the design idea from one of his most famous works, Red Maple. It shows a small maple tree with bright autumn foliage against a background of a river.

The wavy blue bars are meant to represent Canada's rivers, the high roads on which the fur traders and explorers first penetrated the new continent.

Reliable sources say the Jackson design has the support of Liberal, New Democratic, Social Credit and Creditiste MPs so far. The five Progressive Conservatives still haven't committed themselves and one source says they aren't expected to back the majority choice.

HOOVER OUT OF COMA

NEW YORK (AP) — Former president Herbert Hoover rallied from a coma Monday, and was reported resting comfortably. His condition remained grave.

A medical bulletin in late afternoon said:

"The condition of former president Herbert Hoover remains virtually unchanged this afternoon. There has been no further evidence of bleeding, and the vital signs remain stable . . .

"The level of consciousness is slightly improved, and he is resting comfortably."

An earlier bulletin described the 90-year-old patient as in "a state of unresponsiveness."

"The outlook is grave," said a medical bulletin signed by Hoover's physician, Dr. Michael J. Lepore.

Amalgamation Papers Being Drawn Up

VICTORIA (CP) — The provincial government will start immediately to draw up formal documents to complete the amalgamation of Port Alberni and Alberni, municipal affairs minister Dan Campbell said Monday.

Mr. Campbell said the 80 per cent approval given to the merger of the two cities by residents Saturday was "first class."

"It's a pretty good example of giving people facts first, letting them vote, and they'll come up with the right answer," he said.

Mr. Campbell said the next step is for the government to draw up new letters patent, the official document setting up the boundaries of the combined cities.

The amalgamation will be effective Oct. 31, 1967.

Chief of Staff Among 18 Killed in Mountain Crash

From AP-Reuters

BELGRADE (CP) — The flaming crash of a Russian airliner in Yugoslavia Monday killed Marshal Sergei S. Biryuzov, chief of staff of the Soviet armed forces, and all the 18 persons aboard. Biryuzov, 60, was known as a Khrushchev man.

Groping for a landing in rain and fog after a 1,100-mile flight from Moscow, the four-engine IL-18 smashed into a mountain 10 miles south of Belgrade and disintegrated in a fiery explosion.

The marshal, who was also first Soviet deputy minister of defence, was the chief of a Russian delegation assigned to the celebration today of the 20th anniversary of Belgrade's liberation from Nazi occupation in the Second World War.

The delegation included Col.-Gen. Vladimir I. Zhdanov, chief of the Soviet Armored Forces Academy, and four army corps commanders—an indication of the severe blow to the higher echelons of the Soviet military.

Representatives of the Soviet embassy visited the site and demanded that the debris be left as it was for inspection by a special commission to come from Moscow.

The Yugoslav news agency Tanjug identified the other members of the Russian delegation as: Lt.-Gen. Shkodunovich, Lt.-Gen. Kravtsov (ret.), Maj.-Gen. Mironov, Col. Shalutsko and Maj.-Gen. Bocharov.

The Soviet embassy in Belgrade said 18 were aboard—the seven members of the official party plus 11 crew members.

The airliner hit a pine and beech woods on the mountain, called Avala Hill, about 120 feet below its 1,700-foot peak. Debris was scattered over an area of more than half a square mile.

One engine landed on a hairpin road leading to the peak, where the Russians were to have placed a wreath later Monday at the white marble monument commemorating Yugoslavia's Unknown Soldier.

A dispatch from Moscow said the death of Biryuzov settled a touch of gloom on a Kremlin reception for the Soviet Union's latest space heroes, the three-man crew of the Voskhod (Sunrise).

Biryuzov's rise in the Soviet military hierarchy kept close pace with the political progress of Nikita Khrushchev, who fell from power last Wednesday.

When Khrushchev moved up to first secretary of the Soviet Communist party in 1953, Biryuzov was close behind.

He was made deputy defence minister and took command of Soviet anti-aircraft defence—the rocket forces—a year later.

Biryuzov became a member of the Communist party's central committee in 1961. He was appointed chief of staff of the armed forces in March, 1963. His decorations included two orders of Lenin and the medal hero of the Soviet Union.

3-Day Auto Strike Ends

DETROIT (AP) — A three-day American Motors Corp., strike ended Monday. President Johnson meanwhile prodded General Motors and the United Auto Workers to end the GM strike, now in its 26th day, in the interest of the national economy.

Johnson, declaring the GM strike is starting to effect production and employment in other industries, urged GM and the union to reach agreement as speedily as possible.

The agreement between American Motors and the UAW sent 24,000 AMC automotive workers back to work.

Still to be worked out, however, was a separate pact covering about 3000 workers in the Kelvinator Appliance Division at Grand Rapids, Mich.

Assembly lines at General Motors have been stopped since Sept. 25, when some 260,000 UAW workers were ordered off the job over failure to obtain agreement on a national contract.

IQ Tests Not Sure Indicators

OTTAWA (CP) — Intelligence tests may not be a valid way to detect mental retardation in children, a Montreal psychologist said here Monday.

Speaking on the opening day of a four-day federal-provincial conference on mental retardation, Dr. Sam Rabinovitch, senior research psychologist at the Montreal Children's Hospital, sharply criticized established I.Q. (intelligence quotient) tests now used to evaluate the extent to which a child is mentally retarded.

"The notion that a child's I.Q. remains constant is widely prevalent. We have to start thinking of human beings as a constellation of abilities. Naturally these abilities come in different amounts in different persons."

Letter Tells of Tragedy as Man Faced Death

BELLA COOLA, B.C. (CP)—"I am writing this because if I should pass on before I get help you will know what happened."

Those words were contained in a letter written by Percy Sims, sole survivor of an air crash in remote Tweedsmuir National Park Wednesday.

The 38 - year - old Kimberley, B.C., miner sat in a freezing cabin, his face smashed and his hands and feet frostbitten, chronicling the events that led to the death of his friends, Pilot Richard Poet and hunter Jim Holt, both of Anahim Lake, B.C.

Sims was in hospital Monday at this coastal community about 300 miles north of Vancouver where he is recovering from a broken upper jaw, split lip and nose, a sprained ankle and frostbite.

DIES IN PLANE

Holt is believed to have died in the plane when it crashed on takeoff from Fenton Lake, 65 miles north of here. Poet made it to shore with Sims but died while they tried to reach a cabin.

Sims made it to the cabin and wrote his letter to a friend, Bob Stewart, a part owner with Poet of Nimpo Lake Lodge and Wilderness Airlines.

The letter was found in the cabin by a forest ranger after Sims had moved to open ground Friday where he was spotted by another Wilderness plane which rescued him.

Believing he was facing death Sims wrote that the three men had shot two caribou at a lake then flew into Fenton Lake to a campsite.

He said they took off after supper.

"NOSED DOWN"

"When we gained speed Dick cut sharp to the left and the plane nosed down and we were in the water trying to get out," the letter said.

"The cabin filled right away. When I reached the surface I saw Dick swimming for a broken float so I made for it too. The plane was sinking fast and we did not see any sign of Jim.

"I guess he got hit and couldn't make it.

"I know it was the good Lord that got Dick and myself out. Dick had a gash on his forehead. I got the worst. I have a broken upper jaw and one side of my nose is split as well as my lower lip and forehead.

IN PAIN

"As I am writing this I am in great pain."

The letter said they tried to light a fire, and when they couldn't, decided to try and walk to a nearby cabin to keep from freezing.

"The going was much harder than we thought at first. We had swamp and channels. Dick seemed very tired after the first hour.

"He kept falling all the time and calling me to help him. I would get back and pick him up and then we would go again.

"I was all beat with loss of blood and my sprained ankle. But I knew wet like we were we had to keep going.

"Dick finally gave up.

"JST SAT THERE"

"I tried to talk to him to come but he just sat there in the swamp. I picked him up and packed him. I don't know how long then I walked while I held him.

"That is how I got poor Dick to where he died.

"Dick couldn't go any further. I tried to keep him the best I could.

"I held Dick for I don't know the time. When he passed on I said a prayer for him to my best.

"I know after making that trip to the cabin Dick could never have made it.

The letter was left unsigned.

Rescuers said later they thought Poet had gone about five miles around the lakeshore before he died.

Rebel Jaycees Rejected at Congress

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (CP) — A breakaway French-Canadian group of the Canadian Junior Chamber of Commerce, La Federation des Jeunes Chambres du Quebec, Monday was refused admission to the Junior Chamber International at its 19th world congress.

The French-Canadian delegation of 135 walked out after the vote. The Quebec group decided to break its affiliation with its parent Canadian Junior Chamber of Commerce last fall. However, the split was never ratified by the other Canadian Jaycees.

Legion Warned Costly Extension Programs Crippling to Branches

ROSSLAND (Staff) — A need for branch counselling in the field of building extensions was expressed Sunday by J. C. Hall, first vice-president of the West Kootenay zone of the Royal Canadian Legion at its zone meeting here.

"There are now three branches in B.C. under the trusteeship of Provincial Command of the Legion because of a failure to meet their financial commitments," Mr. Hall told a dismayed meeting.

He reiterated his plea for moderation in construction when building a new centre or even in the case of building extensions. With the ever-increasing costs of construction, a new building could cost between $100,000 and $200,000, and result in high mortgages.

"Our construction should be geared to accommodate the membership of the next five or 10 years," Mr. Hall advised.

An advisory council, formed by the provincial command and composed of an accountant and an architect was proposed in an effort to combat this form of investment, but which would not seriously curtail the autonomy of the individual branch.

Zone sports director Ken Heywood presented a film on the provincial junior track and field championships held in Richmond in conjunction with the Legion's Junior Olympic training program. More than 1000 athletes participated, including bantams and midgets from West Kootenay.

ALTER PROCEDURE

Voting procedure was altered deleting the two-thirds majority in favor of a simple majority of 51 per cent.

The thorny problem of a definition of an honorarium in the general bylaws was brought to the meeting's attention by O. Johnson, the official delegate from Edgewood.

By definition, an honorarium is a token paid spontaneously to the secretary of a branch for meritorious service in the performance of his duties.

The view was taken that if this payment was made with any regularity, it could no longer be considered an honorarium but would take the form of a salary.

If this were the case, then the secretary, being a salaried employee, would not be entitled to be on the executive of the branch and therefore would not be allowed to formulate policy.

Secretaries of Legion branches who obtain a salary, at present act only as ex-officio members or on a consultant basis.

Invitations are being received from all zones in connection with their regional bonspiels. The West Kootenay zone bonspiel will be held in Nelson this year in January.

Due to the withdrawal of financial support of the team which will represent British Columbia in the Legion's Dominion Command curling championships to be held this year in Quebec, it appeared doubtful that a team from B.C. would attend.

"It's a simple matter of geography that any expense imposed on a team would be too great to warrant representation," immediate past zone commander Bert Lamb told the meeting.

59 SCHOLARSHIPS

Fifty-nine scholarships had thus far been awarded in B.C. by the Scholarship Committee, totalling more than $7,000.

R. L. Harrison, executive-secretary of Provincial Command, spoke on the activities of the Vancouver zone, stressing the need for an organized program to locate and aid veterans in B.C.'s lower mainland, and especially the greater Vancouver area.

"Too often veterans are found in Shaughnessy (veterans' hospital) too late for our branch to be of any help. All we ask is that if any comrades from this zone are to be confined in hospital, let us know so that we can form visiting committees."

He reported that an increased awareness by the general public of veterans' affairs resulted from the instigation of Veterans' Week which provided all veterans in the area with a week of comradeship and entertainment.

One primary objective of the branches during the next few weeks will be the location of all veterans in their respective areas in order to insure that the attendance for the Remembrance Day ceremonies will be a true representatiion of Legion spirit.

Crankcase Cracked In Cascade Caper

CRESTON (Staff) — The case of the crumpled crankcase was brought before the quarterly meeting of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Southeastern B.C. here Saturday.

The mountain mishap was submitted to the tourist tribunal by a member from Trail, who told the meeting that he had "received a letter" from an irate driver who had wound up stranded in the brush with a cracked crankcase due to "misleading" markings on his road map. The incident happened on the highway between Cascade and Rossland.

"More attention," said Association president E. Salvador, "should be given to maps in the future." "They should," opined Creston member, Frank Merriam, "be checked with government sources."

Although seemingly insignificant at the outset, the 'map musings' did lead discussion into what resulted in the approval of association representation at a chamber regional meeting at Burnaby.

It was decided that Tourist and Publicity Chairman H. D. Harrison of Nelson and secretary-treasurer Don Sutherland be appointed delegates to the Chamber chit-chat at Victoria.

The Association didn't suggest which route the delegates should take, or which map they were to follow.

Ratepayers To Vote on Water, Sewage Disposal Works Program

Nelson takpayers will be given a chance to vote on a water and sewage disposal public works program in December, it was decided at special meeting of council Monday night.

Following discussion that took up most of the evening, a motion by Ald. M. B. Ryalls to "go to the people for an expression on water and sewer," was approved, and the engineering department instructed to prepare a bylaw, with consideration of all material relative to water and sewage, to that effect.

Initiated by Mayor E. T. Bodard, who advocated that council "push ahead for something to place before the people," the proposed bylaw, if passed, would be in line with a 16 per cent relief fund from the department of municipal affairs if completed within a termination date of April, 1966.

Cost of a sewage disposal unit, said Mayor Bodard, would be one cent a day more if put on a "self-liquidation basis." He added that the rate would be 50 per cent below what ratepayers now pay for water.

Voicing objection, Ald. F. A. Beresford complained that "the poor old taxpayer gets nailed to the cross every time he turns around." He added, "let's forge ahead, but let's forge ahead to what our pocket can stand." He suggested tabling the matter for future consideration.

SPEED NEEDED

Anxious that the matter be "resolved, one way or another," Mayor Bodard said that delay would only create the necessity of having to pass an approval bylaw at a time "outside of regular polls." He added that if the bylaw was not passed in December, "at least we could say that we did our part." The mayor further stressed the need to expedite the project, and some discussion of time limitations was discussed with C. W. R. Harper, city administrator.

Following calculations, it was decided that the bylaw should be readied for vote before December 8. Mr. Harper said that the bylaw should be prepared and submitted to the inspector of municipalities by Nov. 23, and be advertised Nov. 30.

Asked by Alderman Ryalls what the building time for the disposal unit would be, Mayor Bodard explained that it was a matter of what type of construction was used. He added that mechanically, it was a matter of "driving piles." D. Likar, public works superintendent, told the meeting that reports of test drill samples of the area had not come back. He said that although it was expedient to locate construction "above water level," that technically, there was no difference. However he added that "dollar-wise," cost for work below the water table would involve pumping expenditures.

Pressing for settlement, Mayor Bodard urged a "clear-cut policy," reminding that delay would "have an effect on all of us here."

"Is the government grant worth the expenditure?" Alderman Beresford asked.

"You have to do it someday," replied the mayor.

Admitting this, Alderman Beresford asked what other cities of comparable size had done.

Mayor Bodard replied that investments of up to $16,000 had been made for water disposal units, and that "we could bring something to the people at a reasonable price." His worship added that if "pulping operations" went ahead further up the lake, that the city would be in a favorable position of having no water contamination.

Alderman Beresford thought that pulping considerations would not go ahead without assurance of non-pollution.

Taking a cautious stand, Ald. Ryalls admitted to the need for a water disposal unit, but thought council should "go slow," and dig out "all the facts." Mayor Bodard persisting in asking settling of matter, said "it took us three years to bring in a zoning bylaw to second reading."

New Naturalist Club Sees Research Slides

The Nelson Naturalist Club officially came into being last week with a lecture and slide presentation hosted by the Notre Dame Biology Club.

Coming as a result of a proposal voiced at the regional meeting of the B.C. branch of the Canadian Audubon Society in Penticton, the club has stimulated interest in the Nelson area in the appreciation and knowledge of Nature.

Dr. T. S. Bakshi, associate professor of Biological Sciences, presented slides of his research work for the government of Sierra Leone.

Situated in West Africa, Sierra Leone covers an area of about 2700 square miles and is subjected to between 60 and 200 inches of rain in four months.

As chief officer in charge of the research centre in Freetown, the capital of Sierra Leone, he worked on a scheme to extend the available agricultural land into the plains regions.

Unwanted plants were found to be choking the land, seriously limiting the agricultural output. Near shallow rivers in an area where the only mode of transportation is by boat, tall, thick grasses grew so thick that they blocked traffic.

"Formerly the nomadic cattlemen (Fula) would lead their herds from place to place, feeding as they went. Recently the government decided to settle them on appropriate land in order to promote an interest in agriculture."

Prestige for these wandering people was measured in terms of the number of cattle they possessed.

"Inevitably the consumption rate far exceeded the growth rate and the land became virtually barren."

Palm oil was found to be beneficial to people and was made into a form of margarine as well as fats for cooking purposes.

Experiments in the quality and vitamin content of rice were conducted at the Rice Research Institute and new varieties were developed which proved to be much more nutritious.

Prior to his four years of research work in Ghana, Dr. Bakshi spent a year with the research department of the University of Saskatchewan.

Dr. Bakshi is in his first year with the Notre Dame faculty.

Steel Stocks Drop on London Market

LONDON (CP) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson called his first cabinet together Monday under the threat of a dock strike and falling prices on the stock market.

At the same time, Wilson moved to cement ties with the United States by agreeing to dispatch Foreign Minister Patrick Gordon Walker to Washington for talks with Secretary of State Dean Rusk Oct. 26 and 27.

With fears growing among businessmen that Wilson intended to re-nationalize the steel industry, steel stocks led a downward slide on the London Stock Exchange.

On the labor front, the dock workers voted to tie up the London port with a one-day wildcat strike Thursday. There was a possibility of the stoppage spreading throughout Britain. The dockers demand another 25s a week — twice what employers are ready to pay.

The new labor government's three-man committee of economic experts — Wilson, economic boss George Brown and Chancellor of the Exchequer James Callaghan — worked at high pressure through the weekend. Their first emergency proposals to counter the worsening foreign trade balance due to falling exports and too many imports were expected to get cabinet approval later.

Detailed Finance Reporting Goal of Associated Chambers

CRESTON (Staff) — Which Chamber contributed how much to whom for what, what did interim payment mean, and the need for detailed accounting of revenue received, came in for lengthy verbal scrutiny at the quarterly meeting of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Southeastern British Columbia here Saturday.

Precipitated by M. G. Klinkhammer of Cranbrook who complained that "people want to know how we spend their money," the area of argument centred generally around a financial accounting of publicity and brochures but more specifically with funds collected by publicity chairman H. D. Harrison of Nelson and the Trail Chamber.

Baffled by an item in the accounting for $1000, marked as an interim payment from Trail, the Cranbrook delegate wanted to know "what interim payment was." His confusion extended to a transfer of tourist funds by the publicity chairman, which the report indicated as $5094.42, after expenses.

The Cranbrook delegate said that knowing where collected money was being spent "would make our job easier when we go back to our respective communities to collect future money."

Association secretary-treasurer D. Sutherland of Trail, in his financial report, had earlier lauded the publicity chairman's efforts in fund-raising as a "wonderful job", adding that "no one in the history of the organization had ever collected money like this before."

During his report, the secretary told members that one area that had to be "pinned down" was how much each chamber paid to the association.

He said the provincial government allowed a matching grant of $15,000 for tourist promotion but that the financial obligation of each chamber was an undecided matter. "The government expects us to do business in a businesslike manner," he added, and urged that the financial responsibility of each chamber was a "question that has to be decided."

TERRIFIC EFFORT

Deeming the fund-raising receipts a "terrific effort", the secretary explained that the money had come to him in a "lump sum" and that some of it had been collected by people working for the association on a "part time" basis.

Asked by the Trail Chamber if the whole amount had been submitted "as being received by the association," the secretary said that it had, but that he did no know "where it had all been collected from." There was also some doubt as to whether the sum would be listed as 1963 revenue or 1964 receipts.

It was this point in the discussion that sparked Cranbrook concern over the lack of a detailed accounting of revenue sources in the financial statement report. Following a few lukewarm exchanges between Mr. Klinkhammer and the secretary-treasurer(who had asked president E. Salvador that he be relieved of his position before the meeting) the matter eventually resolved itself amicably in a resolution by Ron Powell of Cranbrook.

Pased by the association, the motion asked that a complete accounting of the matching grants program for 1963-64 be made, with a complete financial breakdown of each chamber, with amounts for 1964-65 receipts and expenditures included.

Sharing discussion time was the association's forthcoming brochure, which is being prepared by the Tourist and Publicity Committee, headed by Mr. Harrison (who was absent from the meeting). In a written report to the meeting, conveyed by Nelson representative H. Farenholtz.

The chairman stated that "your committee has been very active since the last executive meeting, in spite of criticism to the contrary regarding promotion of the area."

The report continued that a large quantity of the supplementary brochures "Southeastern British Columbia — Vacationland", had been circulated, featuring a revise map of the Kootenay Skyway.

GOOD RESPONSE

Response to the brochure had been good, the publicity chairman's report added, with numerous enquiries from individuals as well as information centres being received and "attended to." Exceptional results were also obtained, said the report, from publicity trips with B.C. Government Travel Bureau representatives to Spokane, Coeur d'Alene, Kalispell, Mont., Lethbridge, Medicine Hat, Swift Current, Calgary, Red Deer and Edmonton, prior to the opening of the Kootenay Skyway. Three separate groups who made the trip had "exceptionally good results."

Dealing with the forthcoming 24-page new brochure on Southeastern B.C., the report said that a paste-up had been reviewed by Victoria and good comments and ideas received. The brochure covers every area of the Kootenay-Boundary country, with color-photo illustrations from each point.

J. Kristensen To Head Kiwanis Club

John Kristensen will head the affairs of the Kiwanis Club in Nelson in 1965. Mr. Kristensen is also secretary of the club's Projects Society, which directs the senior citizens low-rent villa project scheduled for opening Nov. 14.

Election of the new president was made unanimously at the club's last meeting. Others elected were: A. W. Gibbon, vice-president; Walter Toffoli, treasurer; and George Paxton, J. G. Somers, A. E. Lashmar, A. L. Stevens, A. J. Hamson, Reginald Newbury and F. V. (John) Lindsey, directors. A secertary is appointed later by the new executive.

Guests were several members of the Castlegar Kiwanis Club headed by president J. E. Young, on an inter-club visti; J. E. C. Sutcliffe and H. T. Fraser, both of Trail.

Council Okays Referendum

Another chapter was written into the controversial Nelson Centennial Project story Monday night, when city council approved a request by the Centennial Committee for permission to submit a referendum to the people regarding the choice of a hundredth-year undertaking.

Mayor E. T. Bodard stressed the results of the referendum will not be binding upon the committee, but will act only as a gauge of public opinion.

Asked whether the Centennial committee will be in a position to outline prospective costs of the various project possibilities, the mayor said he expects that the approximate costs will be available for the consideration of the voters. Indications are that three suggested projects will be voted on at the mid-December referendum.

The Centennial Committee, formed more than a year ago to decide upon and facilitate Nelson's centennial project, has been wracked by dissension among its members and hampered by public apathy.

Officials hope a referendum will kindle public interest in the project and decide once and for all what steps should be taken to commemorate Canada's 100th birthday.

Need Seen For Assistant To Administrator

City Council took under advisement Monday night, a proposal by Mayor E. T. Bodard that it approve the hiring of a full-time assistant for city administrator, C. W. R. Harper.

The mayor said at a special sitting of council that Mr. Harper was badly in need of an assistant to handle "mundane chores that prevent him from spending time in the field where he can survey the operation of the various city departments at first hand."

He informed council he felt so strongly on the subject that if council refused to agree to the creation of such a position, he would have no alternative but to "consider new methods of relegating city authority, based on my observations."

Reaction of the four council members present was favorable, but it was agreed to table the proposal until such time as a full council was in attendance. Aldermen Edith Van Maarion and H. Farenholtz were absent from Monday's session.

Rites Held for Arthur Kay

Funeral services were held Monday at the Church of the Redeemer for a well-known Arrow Lake resident, Arthur Kay, who died in Trail Wednesday, aged 70. Rev. W. F. Bushe officiated.

Hymns sung were "O Love That Wilt Not Let Me Go" and "How Sweet The Name of Jesus Sounds." Organist was Mrs. C. H. Baker.

Pallbearers were C. J. Annas, A. J. Kennedy, O. K. Karlson, G. Lee, F. Maesland and J. Rogers.

Interment followed in the Anglican Plot, Nelson Memorial Park.

Beretta's Punting Deadly

TORONTO (CP) — There is at least one phase of Jim Trimble's Montreal Alouettes that doesn't need improving—Gino Beretta's punting.

Berretta, one of the few regulars to survive after Trimble took over Alouette coaching duties early in 1963, has the strongest foot in the Eastern Football Conference.

He has punted 105 times for 4,478 yards, tops in the EFC, and his longest of 76 yards is second only to Bernie Faloney of Hamilton who has a 79-yard punt.

His proficiency has accounted for most of the Alouettes' 4,965 yards punting, another conference high.

Team - mate Ted Page also leads the EFC in punt returns with 57 for a total of 351 yards.

But from there on in it's strictly a duel between first place Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Ottawa Rough Riders, according to EFC statistics released Monday.

SUTHERIN LEADS SCORERS

Don Sutherin of the Tiger-Cats leads the league in scoring with 79. Team-mate Garney Henley tops the pass interceptions department with six for a total of 85 yards returned, the longest for 43 yards, and one touchdown.

The second - place Rough Riders have the top ground-gainers in Ron Stewart, who has rushed 781 yards in 124 attempts for an average gain of 6.3 yards and a longest gain of 46 yards.

Lay Catholics Seek Changes

ROME (CP) — Nine Canadians are among 148 lay Roman Catholics who have signed a document addressed to Pope Paul and the bishops of the Vatican Council on Family Problems, including birth control.

The document, saying certain elements in the present teaching of the church on these questions "appear to have become at least debatable," makes two specific requests.

It asks that "the teaching church lay less emphasis on certain formulations of her doctrine which are largely the products of their historical context."

It also asks that "a way be opened for the new scientific and philosophical discoveries in this field to be integrated with the theology and living thought" of the church.

Discussing the church's teaching on the natural law, man's rights over his body and the purpose of the sex act, the signers say they are "convinced that a place must be found for a concept of the natural law which does not exclude man's effective responsibilities with regard to procreation."

In the Courts

A Nelson man, Stanley M. Stasyn, was fined $300 and costs when he appeared in magistrate's court Monday, charged with impaired driving. He pleaded guilty before Magistrate William Evans.

He was charged by Nelson city police Saturday when he was observed to be driving erratically along Railway Avenue, court was told.

David C. Dabner of Trail was fined $30 and costs when he pleaded guilty to passing a car on the righthand side. Police said the offence took place on Baker Street over the weekend.

A fine of $50 was paid by A. L. Tremain when he pleaded guilty to a charge of false pretences. The charge was laid after he passed a worthless cheque for $20 at a downtown hotel, it was testified.

Rchiard Magition was raised to Criminal Court from Family and Juvenile Court to face a charge of theft of a motor vehicle. Magistrate Evans placed Magition on 12 months probation and ordered him to post a $200 bond to keep the peace. He pleaded guilty.

Chief Gives Fire Prevention Tips in Rotary Club Address

"If you don't care about your own life, think about your family," Fire Chief E. S. Owens told a meeting of the Nelson Rotary Club at its meeting Friday.

Speaking on the topic of Fire Prevention, Chief Owens graphically illustrated the household hazards of overloaded electrical circuits, as well as combustibles such as gasoline, through actual demonstrations at the meeting.

Setting the mood of the subject with the sober warning, "the fire bell tolls for thee, it might be your house," the Chief told the gathering there was a total loss of $155,000,000 in the Dominion of Canada, at the expense of 71 lives in B.C. alone. "You can't replace a life," he added grimly.

"Warming up" to his topic, the Chief said that it was likely that 95 per cent of members present didn't know the firehouse number and that 60 per cent weren't aware of a secondary means of escape in their homes. "It's beyond me, how to comprehend which is the greater criminal, the voluntary or the involuntary arsonist." The Chief emphasized his remarks with the statement that he could pack a storehouse on the top of a mountain with dynamite and nitro-glycerin with perfect safety. "But put a man up there with it, and anything can happen," he added.

DANGER IN FUSES

The dangers of overloaded circuits came in for particular scrutiny by the Chief as members were treated to a demonstration of what happens when wrong amperage fuses are used, or a substitute "penny" is placed in the fuse socket to bridge the broken electrical gap. Representing wiring in the average house of more than 20 years' vintage, an element on the demonstration panel lit up with a red glow. "That's exactly what happens to the circuits within the walls of your house," said Chief Owens.

Commenting on the dangerous practice of using too many appliances on too little amperage, the guest speaker reminded the gathering of the need to keep electrical outlets away from the kitchen sink areas. "Thirty volts can kill you," he reminded his audience. Generally, houses built within the past 20 years are circuited to accommodate heavier electrical loads, Chief Owens continued, although he quickly pointed out that the use of fuses of more than 15 amps was "asking for trouble."

PRODUCES EXPLOSION

The most vivid demonstration concerned the dangers of gasoline fumes. Pouring two drops of gasoline in a long metal tube, assistant Fire Chief Frank Yasek, produced a mild explosion by passing a lighted match over the mouth of the metal cylinder. Proving that fumes from the combustible fuel are "heavier than air", and a constant menace around any source of heat, was an illustration using a metal scale two-storey house. After heating a piece of metal with a blow torch and placing it in the "downstairs" portion of the model, a gasoline-soaked rag was then positioned near a stairwell in the upper floor. While the gathering watched through an unbreakable glass panel of the simulated home, invisible gasoline fumes descended slowly until a loud, fiery blast indicated a meeting with the pre-heated object.

"Before you can drive a car," Chief Owens said, "you need a licence. But you can buy a boat without having any safety training whatever." The comparison related to the hazards of operating outboard motors or working with gasoline engines, which constituted another environment in which deadly gas fumes abounded.

SAFETY AWARDS

Percy Ross enlarged on his introduction of the guest speaker by outlining a brief biography, which included a past war service history in the RCAF, as well as fire-fighting background in North Battleford and Edmonton, before arrival in Nelson 11 years ago.

"During his stay in Nelson the City has received many safety awards," Mr. Ross noted.

Special guests introduced to the meeting by chairman Stanger included: Percy Ross, Wally Bishop, of Nelson, N. S., Belam, visiting Principal British Trade Commissioner, Frank Rotter of Salmo, Ed. McGauley, of Castlegar, and Joseph Kary, newly apponted Provincial Tax Commissioner for West Kootenay.

Creston Speaker Says Scout Changes Coming

CRESTON — T Mortlock, National Scouting Headquarters representative, Ottawa, was the guest of local scouting enthusiasts at a banquet here last week. Mr. Mortlock spoke on sponsoring groups and their relationship to Scouting in Canada and the community.

Mr. Mortlock is making a cross-Canada tour on behalf of the Scouting Headquarters, which represents approximately 300,000 Canadian boys. He noted the complete revision and modernization of all Scouting phases in order to meet ever-changing emphasis on contemporary needs. The accent of the program is directed towards the 14 to 15-year-old bracket which makes up the greatest percentage of dropouts in today's schools.

The speaker took the opportunity to praise the work of the churches in scouting, stating the Catholic Church was a significant leader in the field, working with the Anglican and United faiths. He was of the opinion that the influence of the church was responsible for scouting growing into the healthy organization it is today and will be in the future.

"The nation of Canada will witness a vast change in scouting within the next two or three years," predicted Mr. Mortolck. He foresaw a complete change of uniform and equipment which would become optional according to the needs of the troop. The entire emphasis of scouting would be placed on bringing Scouts to conform with modern progress, he said.

The speaker was introduced by D. A. Mars, Regional Scout Director, as were the leaders of the local troops and church officials.

Chairman Breaks Deadlock On Creston Contract Vote

CRESTON — Charles Ostrensky, on behalf of local heavy equipment contractors, eld a delegation into verbal combat with the Civic Council at the regular meeting. He questioned the commissioners as to when the town should or should not build roads against the bids of local contractors. He emphasized the heavy tax burden shared by such contractors.

The issue arose when Mr. Ostrensky bid on the Vandruff - Speers road at $2400 under the impression that the task was a private job. the town countered Mr. Ostrensky's bid with one of their own, totalling $1900.

After deliberation and discussion, the Commissioners voted on the matter, the result being a split decision. Chairman Dodd broke the deadlock by voting in favor of withdrawal of the civic bid. The council will revise its by-laws to differentiate on such matters.

Mr. Dodd announced that a meeting between Department of Transport officials and the Council will be held Thursday at 8 p.m. Although representatives from all organizations concerned will be invited, Mr. Dodd stated the meeting would not be pubilc.

DOT official, Mr. Irwin, who was formerly strongly in favor of the Creston airport, has reversed his opinion and is reported as stating the DOT will not support a municipal airport here.

James A. Byrne, MP for Kootenay East, will be in Creston and it is assumed he will attend the meeting.

Accounts passed for payment totalled $30,566. The Creston Civil Defence budget was raised to $770, an increase of $120 over last year and the Council passed a bylaw borrowing back some $14,360 for working capital on Creston's probelm streets this year.

KAMLOOPS (CP)—Zonal negotiations between teachers and school trustees in Kamloops, Barriere, Birch Island South Cariboo school districts ended in failure Saturday. Negotiations now will be conducted on an individual district basis in attempts to reach settlement before the compulsory arbitration deadline of Nov. 15.

Chambers Plan Good Will Tour to Alberta

CRESTON (Staff)—A request by the Creston Chamber that a committee be appointed to organize a good will tour of Alberta as far east as Saskatchewan, was approved by the quarterly meeting of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Southeastern B.C., here Saturday.

"I think it should be done on a large scale," E. Salvador, president, told the gathering, adding that the appointed committee, made up of chairmen of publicity from all chambers, should be a "functional one."

It was suggested by the Trail Chamber that Vancouver offered better tourist-promition possibilities, but another delegate offered the observation that "pretty nearly every third car is from Alberta."

Grand Forks' member, Leo Mills thought a bus tour would be more effective than car, and Nelson president, H. Farenholtz favored rail. Both were so enthusiastic about the project, they were appointed to organize the tour committee.

A motion to convey thanks to travel bureau of the department of recreation and conservation was approved. Made by T. Toyota of Creston, the bouquet was for a story on the Kootenay Skyway which appeared in Beautiful B.C. Magazine .

Deferred to a later meeting was a motion by Creston that all quarterly meetings be held in Creston.

When you're over 40 you begin to realize that good health may not always be yours. If you're wise you make the necessary adjustments—you enjoy life, but you don't overtax yourself.

Life insurance suddenly becomes more important, too. You want to make sure that all the gaps are plugged, now.

But uncertain health could make life insurance difficult to buy—more costly. Who can help you?

I think Manufacturers Life probably can. We believe life insurance should be available to as wide a group of people as possible—including people with coronaries, high blood pressure, or ulcers, for example—at lowest possible cost. In fact, our company was the first to offer life insurance to men and women with diabetes.

If you are under 80 and worried about your life insurance because you are worried about your health, give me a call. I'll review your present insurance and show you how Manufacturers Life may be able to plug any gaps there are in it —without placing you under any obligation.

"Why should I build my home this winter?"

Here's one good reason!

$500.00 CASH

You Get a $500 Cash Incentive
To help keep Canada's building trades busy and productive during the winter season, the Federal Government is again offering to pay a $500 cash incentive to those who build or buy a winter-built home for their own occupancy.

What is a Winter-Built Home?
A winter-built home under this program is one that has not proceeded beyond the first floor joist stage by November 15th and is substantially completed by March 31st, 1965.

How Do You Proceed?
It's easy. Pick up an Application for Certification form at your National Employment office or Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation office, fill it out and mail to your nearest CMHC office. If you wish, your builder can do this for you. Complete information on the program is included on the application form.

Act Now
See your builder and arrange to have your home winter-built. Help yourself to that $500 cash incentive and help Canadian industry stay busy throughout the winter.

Last winter more than 28,000 homes were built under this program.

WINTER BUILT

DO IT NOW! Have Your Home Winter-Built!

Issued by authority of Hon. Allan J. MacEachen, Minister of Labour, Canada.

What Use To Blame Now?

Who killed Christ? The declaration introduced to the Ecumenical Council a year ago said it was unjust to put the blame on the Jews either of that time or of this. A revised declaration, newly tabled in Rome, merely says it is unjust to blame the Jews of this time — implying that Christ was killed by Jews of His own era. This new declaration is under attack within the Ecumenical Council as lending itself to anti-Semitism.

Events of almost 2,000 years ago are hard to pinpoint. The four Gospels differ among themselves in their accounts of Christ's trial, conviction and sentencing. Two things, however, are fairly clear. One is that Judea was at that time under direct Roman rule, Pontius Pilate as procurator having absolute power in the province. The other is that crucifixion, preceded by scourging, was a characteristic Roman method of execution. The characteristic Jewish method was that of stoning people to death.

Pilate appears in the fragmented history of those times as a weak ruler, apprehensive alike of his superiors in Rome and of the rebellious Jews. He may have agreed reluctantly to have Christ crucified, but agree he did as a means of keeping the Roman peace.

On whom, then, should we place the stigma of deicide — present-day Italians, present-day Jews, ancient Jews, ancient Romans? The Roman Catholic Council of Trent (1545-1563) studied the matter at length and concluded that the whole of mankind shares the guilt for the Crucifixion. The conclusion of four centuries ago seems the best one to guide us today.

Remember 'Plenty for All'

The B. C. Federation of Labor has been authorized by its members to establish a drug retailing outlet on the lower mainland, with branches in other parts of the province to be set up later. Its aim will be to provide drugs at lowest possible cost to union members, senior citizens and unemployed.

Everyone will wish the Federation well in its effort. Reduction in the cost of basic commodities is a popular objective.

Federation leaders, however, would do well to remember that they propose to enter a highly specialized and complicated field, one in which economy does not and should not take precedence over the highest standards of efficiency and precision.

In this connection some may recall the formation in the Hungry Thirties of a co-operative plan called "Plenty For All" whereby food and other commodities were to be sold at cheaper prices in neighborhood grocery stores throughout the lower mainland. One of the leaders in the movement was the late Dr. Lyle Telford, who was the Socialist mayor of Vancouver from 1938 to 1940.

"Plenty For All" was successful until a Vancouver woman was poisoned by the contents of a can of baking powder which some worker in the co-operative had mistakenly filled with rat poison.

This was just a stockroom accident, of course, but patronage of "Plenty For All" fell so disastrously that the co-op soon went out of business. It had plenty of everything but customers.

Probably the moral of this story is that, whether it is drugs or food, one of the biggest cost items is expert and careful preparation, without which there can be no true economy.

Still in Control

Premier Jean Lesage's sweep of Quebec provincial by-elections appears to be an encouraging, if limited, endorsement of his Liberal government. Voters in the four widely separated ridings elected government candidates with handsome majorities. The most optimistic forecast had been three victories.

As might be expected, Union Nationale leader Daniel Johnson has cried foul, that the government bribed voters with massive public works spending. The charge comes oddly from the political heir and one-time colleague of the late Maurice Duplessis. What is more significant is that Mr. Johnson has evidently failed to revitalize his party, which remains a weak and discordant opposition.

For other reasons as well, it would be unwise to read major importance into the result. The campaigns centred on local issues and personalities; matters of high policy, such as Quebec's constitutional stand, were not seriously in dispute. Quebec voting habits tend usually to return government candidates in by-elections, and it needs exceptional controversy to rouse any protest vote.

Nevertheless, in the light of the government's recent worries, it can be said at least that there is no evidence that Quebec is turning from Mr. Lesage's self-styled moderate radicalism, or losing confidence in his administration. In particular, since the voting age was 18 for the first time in Quebec, there was no sign that Quebec youth is turning against him.

Financial Alchemy

The New Democratic party seems to be stealing a leaf out of the Social Credit book in B. C. It has evolved a method of converting seven and one-half cents into $1. On a national scale, such NDP financing might work wonders, and the party leaders should find room for it in their platform at the earliest possible moment.

The B. C. organization conceived the idea when facing the challenge of a $14,000 party debt. They obtained 14,000 ball-point pens at seven and one-half cents apiece, to offer to the public at $1 apiece. The purchaser got, along with the pen, a chance to win $1000 or a trip to London for the opening of the next British Parliament. He had to guess the outcome of the October 15 British election, and if there was a tie among contestants, the final winner was the one who gave the correct answer to a political question.

It would seem that out of 14,000 contestants there must be a fair number guessing the election outcome correctly. This would mean a formidable series of run-off question-and-answer games, and that would mean the NDP will need to have a lot of good political questions ready to ask.

One which comes to mind is, what happened to the CCF party? But that might be a trifle embarrassing and difficult to answer correctly. What are the NDP chances in the next Canadian election? Now there's a good question. There can be no doubt about what the answer should be, and it would speedily separate the men from the boys.

One of the big questions which NDP economic philosophy always raises is, where is the money to come from? Dare we think the answer to that one now is—from ball-point pens?—Calgary Herald.

Missionaries Overcame Hardships To Spread Christianity in Bolivia

When Canadian Baptists set up a mission in Bolivia almost 70 years ago, the teaching of any religion but Roman Catholicism was punishable by death, a penalty that was revoked in 1906. Despite early difficulties, the mission has carried on. Its work is described in this story by Paul Kidd of the Hamilton Spectator, writing for The Canadian Press.

By PAUL KIDD

GUATAJATA, Bolivia (CP) — Goose-stepping soccer players marched past a reviewing stand on the edge of legendary Lake Titicaca in the Bolivian Andes.

Watching them were bowler-hatted Indian women, and four Canadian Baptist Church workers.

At the head of a long, straggling procession of schoolchildren, the flags of Canada and Bolivia flew side by side.

It was a national holiday in the South American republic and hundreds of Indians had gathered at the remote village of Guatajata, 50 miles from La Paz, to celebrate.

After a tortuous three - hour truck ride along dust-clouded mountain roads, I reached Guatajata, a centre of Canadian Baptist missionary work in Bolivia for 43 years.

The village nestles on the banks of shimmering Titicaca, the once sacred lake of the Incas and the highest navigable stretch of water in the world.

It was almost 70 years ago that Archibald Reekie, while a third year student at McMaster University in Hamilton, read an article about religious conditions in Latin America.

OPENED SCHOOL

During the following summer vacation, financed by his family and fellow students, Reekie visited Bolivia to see for himself what conditions were like.

On returning, he persuaded a Baptist convention at London, Ont., to open a mission in the backward, landlocked republic.

In 1898, two years after his first visit, Reekie returned to Bolivia and soon opened the first Protestant school in the country.

Another McMaster graduate, Bertha Gile, followed in 1900 to become the first Canadian woman missionary in Bolivia.

At that time, according to the penal code of the land, the propagation of any religion other than Roman Catholicism was punishable by death.

Although stoned by mobs, the Canadian missionaries were protected by local officials from the death penalty, which was revoked in 1906.

Established in 1911 by an American missionary society, the Hacienda Guatajata settlement was originally a 1,000-acre farm with 250 Aymara Indian laborers. It came under Canadian Baptist control in 1921.

But it was not until 21 years later that the Indian peons on the church-owned estate were finally emancipated.

SERFS GOT LAND

The labor system of farm serfdom, long a custom in Bolivia, was inherited by the Canadian missionaries when they took over the hacienda.

Finally, over a five-year period beginning in 1937, the liberation of the serfs was accomplished.

To get title deeds to their land, the Indians were required to build homes, plant trees and scientifically raise crops.

In 1942, title deeds to pieces of land were handed to 32 heads of families.

Thus, for those Aymaras, a four - century - old system of slavery came to an end.

Since Bolivia's 1952 socialist revolution, land has been redistributed to some 2,500,000 Indians under a government agrarian reform program patterned, in large part, on that of Guatajata.

Some 30 years ago, a Spanish - style Baptist church was built at the lakeside village. Since then, six smaller churches have been established in the Guatajata region.

NURSE RUNS CLINIC

Today, there are also 16 church-run schools, a bible college and a clinic.

Up to 30 patients a day are treated at the clinic by Ruth Dryden, a 30-year-old graduate nurse from Vancouver.

An Indian woman, a baby strapped to her back, was patiently waiting outside the clinic. Miss Dryden examined the small Aymara, gave the child some medicine and assured the mother there was nothing seriously wrong.

Relieved, the smiling mother padded down the hill to her hut.

By this time, several Indians were waiting to be treated for various complaints. Some were given injections, at 15 cents a shot. Patients pay the cost price for drugs, but treatment is free.

Serious cases are driven to a La Paz hospital, where, if costs are higher than the Indian can afford, the church makes up the difference.

Some 1,215 pupils, aged from seven to 15, attend Baptist-operated schools while 25 students attend the Bible college where they learn agrarian skills, carpentry, mechanics and Bible knowledge.

BUILT RADIO STATION

Kay Rowe, a 37-year-old former Hamilton schoolteacher who came to Bolivia in 1954, is in charge of the school system.

The remaining members of the Canadian colony at Guatajata are the 43-year-old administrator, Rev. Peter Amy, his wife, Ruth, 39, and their three children, Wendy, 8, Susan, 6, and Bruce 3.

Amy, who comes from New Westminster, B.C., met his wife, whose home town is Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., when they arrived in Bolivia as missionaries 13 years ago.

In La Paz, Canadian Baptists operate a powerful radio station which has a wide listening audience of all faiths.

Established in 1949, the station is known as Radio Cruz del Sur — "The Southern Cross."

Developed at a cost of $150,000 Canadian-raised funds, the station has a range of 150 miles on its medium wavelength while its short wave can reach as far as Santiago, Chile.

FIRST FM STATION

Aided by the fact that the transistor radio has become a status symbol on the 12,000-foot-high altiplano, where three-quarters of Bolivia's population lives, the Baptist station is able to communicate with hundreds of thousands of Indians who are unable to read and write.

Programs — 12 hours daily and 16 hours on Sunday consist of classical music, three to four hours of religious works and music and one hour and 40 minutes of news and sports daily.

Reporters gather local news while the BBC and Voice of America bulletins are used for international news.

Cruz del Sur, the first FM station in Bolivia, reaches 2,000 FM sets.

With a staff of 15, the station broadcasts in the Indian languages of Quechua and Aymara, Spanish, English, and, for the benefit of La Paz's 20,000-strong German - speaking colony, in German.

Such is the Canadian Baptists' modern-day method of delivering the same message that Archibald Reekie brought to Bolivia nearly seven decades ago.

Flies Won't Bother World's Fair Visitors

MONTREAL (CP) — Visitors to the 1967 Montreal world's fair won't be bothered by shadflies if a scientific project started this summer is successful.

With attention centred on St. Helen's Island, the fair site, an 11-man team has been collecting facts about breeding habits and life span of the pesky aquatic insects.

Shadflies emerge in warm weather from underwater breeding grounds in huge numbers and, along with causing great bother to people living in the area, they stuff up car radiators and blanket windshields.

Information gathered by the anti-shadfly team, headed by Dr. P.S. Corbet of the federal department of agriculture, will be analysed and recommendations made to the Expo '67 authorities on how to control them.

Tests identified at least 56 species of shadfly, and at the height of the breeding season more than a million were caught in a single trap on one day.

FOND FAREWELL TO THE NATION'S "BANJO EYES"

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A last visit with Eddie Cantor:

Cantor in his final years was far from the vital, kinetic figure who had danced across the Ziegfeld stage and the screens of movie houses. His speech had grown slow and heavy-tongued, evidence of the heart attacks that had withdrawn him from the entertainment scene. He moved with a deliberateness of a man who knew he was existing on borrowed time.

But his mind was sharp as ever. As I visited at his Beverly Hills home one day, his memory seemed unimpaired as he reached back to those days he liked to recall, when he was first flashing across the horizon of the entertainment world.

Cantor's doctor had prescribed a shot of whisky each day to assuage his ailments, and the comedian still didn't enjoy taking it.

DISLIKED DRINKING

"I never enjoyed drinking, and I think I know why," he said. "My first roommate in the Ziegfeld Follies was W. C. Fields. He never drank before the show—he couldn't and do his juggling. But when the show was over, he got plastered.

"I saw him three days before he died, and he said to me, 'I sometimes wonder what I could have been if I had't been on the stuff'."

Cantor felt a mellowness toward Fields, as he did toward all his old fellow performers. But for Fields he had a special affection.

"He helped educate me," Cantor said. "Fields always carried books with him, and every day he would read the New York Times and several other newspapers. Each night he would get out the dictionary and pick out three words that he made me learn and use in sentences. By the end of two years with the Follies, I had amassed a pretty good vocabulary."

GONE BUT still remembered as a man who brought joy and happiness to the lives of millions — Eddie Cantor. From his earliest days in the Ziegfeld Follies, he had his audiences rolling in the aisles with laughter.

Cantor refused to let his heart disability end his good works. He was using all his efforts to line up a big television spectacular to raise money for Dr. Jonas Salk's polio research foundation.

"I can no longer raise money retail: I have to go after it wholesale," said Cantor, who had collected millions of dollars for other causes.

RECALLS GOLDWYN

He reminisced about the great names he had worked with. He spoke affectionately of Samuel Goldwyn, who had brought him to Hollywood for a series of film extravaganzas. One was Whoopee, in which Cantor had starred on Broadway for Flo Fiegfeld.

The stage producer wanted Cantor to stay in the show and make the movie version on Long Island during the daytime. Goldwyn argued that the film could be made cheaper in Hollywood, "because I can get the Indians right off the reservoir."

Eddie laughed at his joke, but there was little mirth in his voice. I didn't realize the measure of his loss of Ida, his beloved wife for 48 years who had died in 1962. At the mention of her name, he dissolved in tears and had to leave the room.

He returned composed, but it was obvious that the great zest for life he once possessed now had departed. He was compliantly serving out his time, which ended last Saturday night.

Tuition Fees Have Sharply Risen in Canadian Schools

By CARL MOLLINS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A university education costs more this year at most major Canadian schools—up to $2,000 for fees and other costs—and it is harder to gain admittance in some regions.

But enrolment this fall soared by more than 12 per cent as the universities stretched facilities or pushed building projects to meet the demand for higher education.

The increases ranged from a $15 levy at Montreal's McGill for student organization budgets through $60 more for general arts at University of Toronto to $79 more for most courses at Queen's of Kingston, Ont., and $80 at Loyola College of Montreal.

The universities of Manitoba and Alberta, Montreal and Laval of Quebec City were among the minority that held the line this year on fees.

ENROLMENT UP

Of the 34 universities surveyed, all but New Brunswick and Fredericton and Mount Allison at Sackville, N.B., which are holding enrolments at 2,500 and 1,200 respectively until expansion plans mature, recorded increased student population.

The total for the 34 is up by almost 15,500 this year to 142,000 students.

Cost of living on or off the campus has remained steady in general, averaging about $700 for room and board over the 7½-month academic year, with costs slightly lower in parts of the Atlantic provinces and the Prairies than in central Canada.

With the tuition fee for a general arts or science course averaging about $500, room and board, books and other expenses would push the cost of a year at university to between $1,500 and $2,000 without many luxuries. It would be more for students of medicine and engineering.

A survey of 26 universities by the Canadian Union of Students found fees for arts courses were up this fall by an average $60 in 20 of the schools.

Asks Union President Jean Bazin: "Are tuition fees going to rise year after year when jobs available for students are declining, when efforts are being made to democratize the university, when financial aid to students is not keeping up with the normal growth of the universities?"

URGE RESTRAINT

The 28th congress of the union at Toronto in September passed a resolution urging universities to "freeze the fees" pending the result of current studies on costs and the ability of students to meet tnem. The union also asked university administrations to consult student organizations before raising fees.

While university fees have been climbing, figures compiled by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics show that tuition fees paid by students account for only 26.6 per cent of the operating and research costs of the universities.

The remainder of a total $235,002,000 in the 1962-63 academic year was supplied by government and endowment—38.9 per cent from provincial governments, 19.3 per cent from the federal government and 15.2 per cent from endowments and other sources.

Operating expenditure per student that year was $1,662.

University capital outlays in 1962-63 amounted to $112,000,000, a figure likely to be exceeded this year as almost every higher education institution in the country is engaged in putting up new buildings or adding to old ones. In addition, new universities such as Trent of Peterborough, Ont., Brock of St. Catharines, Ont., Simon Fraser at Burnaby, B.C., and a branch of University of New Brunswick in Saint John are building new campuses.

While some universities report they are crowded, most of them foresee relief when current building projects are complete and there are indications that the capital expansion of the last few years is catching up with the enrolment growth rate in other centres.

Laval University reports no overcrowding despite an increase of more than 500 to 6,500 students this year. All qualified applicants for every faculty except medicine were accepted. But only 125 of the 400 qualified were accepted in the medical faculty.

A survey in Ontario showed that over all there was slightly more room than students this year, although not all universities and faculties had extra room.

McMaster at Hamilton, Windsor and Laurentian of Sudbury could have taken more qualified applicants and Toronto and Queen's had unfilled spots in some faculties.

Experts say the appearance of unfilled spots is a result of over-expansion of facilities in some cases, a decline in popularity of some courses in others.

Engineering, for example, is less popular. Toronto had places for 750 but only 492 are enrolled in engineering, a drop of 60 from last year. Queen's can take 300 in engineering but has only 242.

Another factor contributing to unused space in the lecture halls is that some high school graduates apply to several universities and if accepted at several leave last - minute vacancies when they take the opening they like best.

Vatican Faces Question Of Religious Rights

By BERNARD DALY

VATICAN CITY (CP) — Vatican council statements on religious liberty should help ease the fears held by some non-Catholics, says Roman Catholic Archbishop Philip F. Pocock of Toronto.

The archbishop was interviewed between sessions of the council where almost the entire body of 224 American bishops initiated an appeal for the church to come out in favor of religious freedom for all.

He recalled fears expressed by some in Canada, especially in the United Church, when immigration began to result in rapid increases in the Catholic population.

These fears, he said, arose from doubts about what would be the views of Catholics on religious and personal freedom in the event they became a majority.

The question has particular importance in Toronto where the Catholic population increased to 600,000 from 300,000 between 1951 and 1961 and is expected to double again by 1975, Archbishop Pocock said. Metropolitan Toronto's total population now is about 1,600,000.

"This council statement is going to reassure non-Catholics that Catholic population ascendancy is not going to interfere with religious rights."

Archbishop Pocock spoke also of the council's efforts to reach agreement on a statement on the church's attitude toward Jews.

He said he favors a statement that would declare unequivocally present-day Jews should not be blamed for the crucifixion of Christ, a view shared by many Canadian and American bishops.

Such a statement would have wide-ranging effects on Catholic teaching and preaching.

It would be important in Canada, he said, because there is still a great deal of discrimination against Jews even though many try to deny it.

SOME OF THE "TOP BRASS" of the Girl Guide Commissioners' Conference held in Nelson are, left to right: Mrs. J. S. Hamilton, of Nelson, Kokanee Division commissioner; Mrs. L. Aune, of Vancouver, B.C. public relations commissioner; Mrs. Roy Holmes of Vancouver, provincial commissioner; and Mrs. Colin Stewart, provincial training commissioner and chairman of the conference.—Daily News photo.

New Program Topic as 80 Guide Leaders Meet Here

Nelson was honored Friday and Saturday by the visit of more than 80 leaders in the Girl Guide movement from all over the province, who gathered to discuss the impact of the new Guide program and age grouping.

The smartly styled navy blue uniform of the Guide leaders was a familiar sight to many as the visitors made the most of a few moments to shop in the Nelson stores in between program sessions, coffee and tea parties and a tour of the newly opened Notre Dame University buildings.

In the course of discussion, the role of the volunteer and the growing competition for leisure time was related to enlisting and keeping leaders.

Slides and information about Tsoona, "the Camp that cookies built" created a great deal of interest in correspondence notes introduced at this conference.

Mrs. Curtis Rice, a music consultant from Vancouver, gave a teaching session.

Mrs. Roy Holmes, Provincial Commissioner, with her deputy, Mrs. J. S. Kendrick, met local citizens and parents at a coffee party Saturday morning. Among them were Mrs. E. T. Bodard, Mrs. R. H. Dill, Mrs. J. Rae Allan, Mrs. H. Derraugh, vice-president of the Royal Canadian Legion, and Mrs. Hector Mackenzie, regent of the Kokanee Chapter of the IODE.

The Conference ended with a tour of Notre Dame University. The delegates were most impressed with the new buildings and the size of the campus.

Before leaving by chartered bus for the Coast, the commissioners were entertained with refreshments at the Scout-Guide Hall by women of the District Association.

Many Contribute To Pantry Shower

Artistically arranged, an autumn-flowered centrepiece on the tea table set the decor theme at a pantry-shower for the Sisters of St. Joseph, Sunday afternoon.

Fall shades of the centrepiece, made by Mrs. G. R. Coletti, were echoed in chrysanthemums and other flowers ornamenting the convent rooms at 1109 Hall Mines Road as St. Joseph's School Auxiliary welcomed guests to the shower event, designed to fill the needs of the teaching sisters. Visitors came bearing food items and linens for use of the members of the Order during the fall and winter months.

Receiving the guests were Mrs. V. M. Killeen. Conveners were Mrs. Louis Maglio and Mrs. J. Gawryletz. Presiding at the tea table during the afternoon were Mrs. Robert Stack, Mrs. W. C. Murphy, Mrs. Jeffrey Craig and Mrs. Joseph Vingo. Serviteurs were Mrs. William Freno, Mrs. W. V. Joyce, Mrs. Henry May and Mrs. George DeGirolamo.

Assisting with the refreshments were Mrs. Joseph Fukala and Mrs. Arthur Choquette.

The guest book was tended by Miss Sharon Maglio.

FALL SOCIAL EVENT, one of many yearly events convened by St. Joseph's School Auxiliary, was the annual pantry shower held Sunday for the Sisters of St. Joseph at the convent, 1109 Hall Mines Road. Klein-Carlson Vows Heard

Pink, Mauve Shades Color Theme of Wedding Decor

A pretty pastel color theme highlighted shades of pink and mauve, complementing bridal white in the wedding procession as Donna Lynne Carlson walked down the aisle of Fairview United Church Saturday afternoon, October 3, to exchange marriage vows with Mr. Dayton Verne Klein.

Rev. J. Rae Allan read the double ring marriage service uniting the niece of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Currie and the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Klein in holy matrimony.

Purple glass vases on either side of the chancel held mauve and white chrysanthemums and gladioli and a silver and white basket in the chancel proper held pink, rose and white flowers.

Mr. Currie escorted the bride down the aisle. She was charming in a satin brocade gown with portrait neckline and lily point sleeves. Her skirt fell in graceful folds from a slightly dropped waistline. The neckline formed a V at the back and the skirt back was en train. Her single strand of pearls was a gift of her grandmother, Mrs. G. Truscott of Vancouver.

Seed pearls encrusted the crown which held her embroidered and scalloped waist-length veil, and mauve, pink and white rosebuds comprised her bouquet, which was tied with wide white satin ribbon. The bride's gown was made by the bride and the sister of the groom, Mrs. Melvin Warner.

Cocktail-length gowns in the same style as the bride's were worn by her attendants, Miss Margaret Clark as maid of honor, and Miss Roberta Topp, bridesmaid. Their gowns of peau de soie were in a deep pink shade, complemented by their bouquets of mauve and white carnations with wide white satin bows. They wore satin shoes en tone and their pink petal headdresses held short pink veils.

Mr. Kenneth Anderson supported the bridgroom as best man and ushers were Mr. Benjamin Anderson and Mr. Dennis Currie, cousin of the bride. Organist Mr. Angus Fraser accompanied Mrs. R. G. Messer as she sang The Wedding Prayer during signing of the register.

Assisting in the receiving line at a reception held in a downtown hotel banquet room, Mrs. Currie wore a champagne brocade sheath with otter brown accessories and gold and bronze rose corsage, and Mrs. Klein chose a jacket sheath dress of silk print with brown, gold and rust with gold hat and gloves and brown purse and shoes. Her corsage was of golden chrysanthemums.

Mr. Arthur Foster was master of ceremonies. Mr. and Mrs. Foster were responsible for the floral arrangements in the church.

The banquet room was decorated with pink, mauve and white streamers, with white wedding bells, strung between the chandeliers over the bride's table. Mauve tapers in silver candlesticks and small pink floral bouquets were set on the lace-covered table, which was centered by a three-tiered wedding cake ornamented with pink roses and miniature mauve flowers. A bride and groom and silver leaves topped the cake, which was embedded in mauve tulle. The reception decor was arranged by Mrs. Horace Ward, Miss Beverlee Ward and friends of the bride.

A buffet-style supper was enjoyed by 91 wedding guests. A toast to the bride was proposed by her great-uncle, Mr. J. G. Dickinson of Claresholm, Alta., and to the bride's attendants by the best man. Mrs. Nelson Ball of Vancouver entertained with several piano selections.

For travelling, the bride changed into magenta wool with black fur jacket, a gift of the bridgroom, with black velvet and satin cloche and black accessories. Following a wedding trip to Spokane, the newlyweds have taken up residence in the Haldane Apartments.

Out of town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Klein and Mr. and Mrs. G. Klein of Calgary; Mr. and Mrs. M. Klein of Ponoka, Alta., Mr. and Mrs. Vern Klein of Acme, Alta., Mr. and Mrs. N. Stadnyk of Edmonton; Mr. and Mrs. Ken Klein, Mr. Ves Klein and Mr. Delbert Klein of Vancouver; Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Clever of New Denver, Miss Margaret Clark of Spokane; Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Dickinsen of Claresholm, Alta., Mrs. May Truscott of Creston, Mrs. William Boychuk, Mrs. Nelson Ball, Miss Sylvia Keefe, Miss Roberta Topp of Vancouver and Mrs. Jack Hale of Salmo.

Procter Notes

PROCTER — Mrs. J. Fitchett of Procter has had as her guests her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Fitchett of Vancouver. While here, Mr. and Mrs. Fitchett have also visited Mr. Fitchett's brothers and their families, Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Fitchett of Harrop and Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Fitchett of Procter. Before they return to Vancouver, they plan to visit Mrs. Fitchett's brother in Kelowna and her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Fitchett and children in Kamloops. They will then continue on to Terrace where they will visit Mr. Fitchett's niece. Mrs. B. Carruthers and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Spigariol of Procter have recently had as guests H. H. Vanderburg and daughter Sharon of Trail, also Mr. and Mrs. Ollie Tjader of Trail.

About 20 people from Procter and district saw the colored slides that were shown at the Procter school recently on ceramics and pottery. They were obtained from the Extension Department of the U. of Alberta and shown by Mrs. Neil C. MacLeod, who instructs the ceramics classes held at Procter during the winter.

MENU Magic from the TEST KITCHEN

Hobgoblin Hamburgers

Make these "spooky" burgers for your youngsters and their friends, this way. Top hamburg patties with slices of cheese—when they're almost finished cooking—then serve them in toasted buttered hamburg buns. The hobgoblin touch comes when you make a face on top of each bun—using stuffed olives for eyes, a carrot round for the nose, and for a ghoulish grin, just cut or tear the roll, letting the melted cheese show through.

"Witch Hat" Desserts

For each serving, fill an ice cream cone generously with ice cream just at serving time . . . then invert it on a large flat cookie and pour chocolate sauce over the make-believe "witch hat".

Deviled Franks

Give wieners a "devilish" dressing up—for Hallowe'en or anytime—by slitting each "frank" lengthwise and inserting a generous strip of nippy Canadian cheddar cheese. Wrap the wieners in bacon, securing with toothpicks, then broil them just until the bacon is cooked and the cheese melting. Slip them into buttered toasted wiener buns which have been given a good lining of relish.

Popcorn Shell-Out

Popcorn, buttered or "cheesed" will make such a hit, the youngsters will come in and sing and recite for you while you pass the bowl around. Pop plenty of corn, sprinkle with salt and pour on the melted butter. Or try adding grated Canadian cheddar cheese and oven-toasting for a few moments. Ummm . . . we think we'll call at your house!

A Prophecy Cake . . .

For the night when witches ride and fortunes are told! Make up a big butter spice cake—2 or even 3 layers. Before frosting it, cut slits in it the way you do for birthday cakes. Insert eerie favors and fortunes—to make your guests shiver just a little when they read 'em. For the filling and frosting we suggest a cheese icing (goes so nicely with spice cake). Cream together 2 (4-ounce) packages of cream cheese with a couple of tablespoons of milk to moisten. Add sifted icing sugar gradually—you'll need about 4 to 5 cups. Might tint the frosting orange, with food coloring, then outline a jack-o-lantern on top with melted chocolate.

Hints From Heloise

By Heloise Cruse

Dear Friends:

When you buy a box of something that says "Press in here to open . . ."

Don't waste a fingernail.

T'aint worth it.

Pick up an opener (commonly called a beer can opener, but I have never figured out Why since we use it for a thousand other things!) and use it on the box. Works beautifully.

This includes boxes of rice, cream of wheat, laundry soap, etc.

Save those fingernails. You might just need them for something else!

Heloise.

* * *

Dear Heloise:

If you are tired of untangling rubber bands and untwisting metal bands on food in plastic bags for the freezer, try using bobby pins.

After pressing the air out of the bag, I fold the two sides inward to the width of a bobby pin and then slide the pin on the bag.

And it's just a snap to take off!

Nancy Jane.

* * *

Dear Heloise:

After struggling for years to clean baked-on cheese from frying pans (after making cheeseburgers), I finally had an inspiration . . . use the kitchen scissors to make rounds of those square cheese slices!

The remnants of cheese can be wrapped and saved for spaghetti sauce or what-have-you.

Former-Cheeseburger-Hater.

* * *

Dear Heloise:

As I take diapers out of the washer, I shake each one and lay it across my left arm. If diapers have folding lines on them, I arrange the same lines together as I lay them across my arm. This cuts time in half at the clothesline.

Then I hang five diapers together, another five, and on down the line.

When I take the diapers down, I take the first five and turn the tops to the next five, and so on, until I have removed all of them.

This way, the diapers are all together, straight, and smooth. They are ready to be laid on a flat surface to fold and I don't have to keep reaching for another diaper, smoothing it out, and then folding it.

Ann Lachuey.

Dear Heloise:

Instead of throwing away rubber spatulas (or bowl scrapers, as I call them) when they become ragged and the rubber starts breaking off . . .simply trim the spatula with a pair of good scissors and you will have a new one . . . a little smaller, but useable again.

Grace Rasch.

FAIR WEATHER FORECAST — Most parts of Canada will have above normal or near normal temperatures from mid-October to mid-November acording to the 30-day weather outlook of the United States weather bureau. The Atlantic provinces and eastern Quebec are expected to have below normal temperatures. In British Columbia, Newfoundland and parts of Nova Scotia, precipitation will be moderate. The rest of Canada will have light precipitation.—CP Newsmap.

Your Individual Horoscope

By Frances Drake

Look in the section in which your birthday comes, and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Wednesday, Oct. 21, 1964

MARCH 21 to APRIL 20 (Aries) — Get an early start and develop plans carefully. Stress accuracy. Don't scatter energies, producing disjointedness, tension. You could afford to take some chances — if astute.

APRIL 21 to MAY 21 (Taurus) — Note which way the wind blows, in which direction you should channel talents and endeavors. Have hope, put forth best efforts, new ideas of value. Even the smallest could produce fine results.

MAY 22 to JUNE 21 (Gemini) — You may lose a little here, gain some there, but the overall picture is one of advancement. A good Mercury day stimulates ingenuity, alert moves, quick thinking.

JUNE 22 to JULY 23 (Cancer) — If you cannot work a matter out one way, try another method. Do not be disturbed by momentary obstacles, opposition; they're part of life. Some fine opportunities!

JULY 24 to AUGUST 23 (Leo) — Handle routine with alacrity. Don't be distracted by trivia. Some "odd" situations could turn out to have great future value.

AUGUST 24 to SEPTEMBER 23 (Virgo) — Capitalize on all talents now. This day is for Doing, backed by know-how; steady endeavor. Especially favored; artists, scholars, scientists, technicians and secretaries.

SEPTEMBER 24 to OCTOBER 23 (Libra) — These (your innate) traits will stand you in good stead now: Self-reliance, intuition and willingness to push on against big odds. Rewards will really surprise — and happily!

OCTOBER 24 to NOVEMBER 22 (Scorpio) — The present position of Mars now suggests that you avoid over-aggressiveness, impulsive action and speech, over-zealousness in pursuit of goals which are not basically sound.

NOVEMBER 23 to DECEMBER 21 (Sagittarius) — It may be a bit difficult to keep some matters in line, but there is ample opportunity for the diligent and knowing to succeed. Big growth potential.

DECEMBER 22 to JANUARY 20 (Capricorn) — A noteworthy day can be yours for the making and the taking. Don't miss those good "little" things along the route. Your innate adaptability, perceptiveness and plain common sense will be a big help.

JANUARY 21 to FEBRUARY 19 (Aquarius) — Uranus influences, not too generous now, make it necessary to use extreme care and extra diligence in banking matters, investments and in handling machinery or tools.

FEBRUARY 20 to MARCH 20 (Pisces) — A period for review, realignment and re-evaluation of all situations. Positive and negative forces are both strong. Give Your best and you can profit by the positive.

YOU BORN TODAY are active, versatile, endowed with fine judgment and a good sense of balance. Whatever you undertake, you carry on faithfully and meticulously. The Libran is an excellent organizer and has been known to take over a business, completely change its systems and procedures and make it a liveller, busier one. Your fair-mindedness, impartiality and objectiveness are outstanding and make you an excellent arbitrator or mediator. Birthdate of: Alfred Nobel, chemist, founder of Nobel Prize; Samuel T. Coleridge, poet, philosopher.

Non-Catholics Involved in Vatican Council

By BERNARD DALY

ROME (CP) — Official non-Catholic observers at the Vatican ecumenical council find themselves deeply involved in its work, says Rev. Eugene R. Fairweather of Toronto, the only Canadian among them.

The observers are able to follow all that is going on and are urged to make candid comments on proceedings, the Anglican priest adds.

As a result, observers find themselves taking sides on Council questions, supporting some speakers and disagreeing with others, hoping that votes will go according to their preferences.

Observers are not permitted to vote but they are allowed to attend all sessions and are furnished with copies of secret documents.

Dr. Fairweather is one of 58 observers from other religions at the council. He teaches theology at Trinity College, the University of Toronto.

The observers discuss council topics at length in meetings of their own and go twice a week to a Methodist church beside the Tiber where they pray for the council "and for good judgment in our participation in it," says Dr. Fairweather.

Most of the observers live together in rooming houses within walking distance of St. Peter's Basilica where council sessions are held five mornings a week.

Their special hosts are the members of the Vatican secretariat for promoting Christian unity, who act as translators to help any observers having difficulty following the Latin used for all council discussions.

Leafs Out To Avenge Only Loss of Season

Nelson Maple Leafs will be out to avenge their only loss of the season tonight when they travel to Rossland for a Western International Hockey League game with the Warriors.

Rossland downed "Kromm's Kids" 4-1 in the season's opener despite the fact that the Leafs had a wide margin of play throughout.

Seth Martin was nothing short of fantastic in that one, kicking out 36 shots, many of which appeared to be sure goals.

Nelson has chalked up three wins and a tie in their four succeeding games while Rossland scored back-to-back victories over Trail before losing two in a row to Spokane Jets.

Leaf coach Bobby Kromm said Monday, right winger Dave Toner's arm injury has been diagnosed as a sprain, rather than a fracture as was originally feared. The big sharpshooter from Calgary will be in the line-up Saturday when Martin's tribe makes its seasonal debut at Civic Centre.

Maple Leafs will be seeing a greatly changed Warrior line-up from the one they faced two weeks ago.

Adding to the Rossland crew's scoring power are Jimmy Chow, a high-scoring Chinese-Canadian who came to the Warriors from Eddie Dorohoy's Spokane Jets' camp a week ago, Harvey Stoltz, an Okanagan product who tried out for the Leafs and Fred Hyslop, a WIHL veteran.

Rossland is currently in second spot in the league standings, one point behind the Nelson squad. A win for either team means undisputed possession of first place.

Punch Is Glad He's A Winner

NEW YORK (AP)—"It's a good thing we won the Stanley Cup last year," chuckled George (Punch) Imlach, hockey's most successful coach. "The way things are happening with winning baseball managers you never can tell what might happen."

Imlach's Toronto Maple Leafs, have won the Stanley Cup, the hockey equivalent of baseball's World Series title in each of the past three seasons. And if the Leafs suddenly sour on ice, Imlach doesn't have to answer to a general manager.

He is also the general manager.

"Still, I'm an employee," he said, "and if you ever get bounced there are only five other jobs open in the National Hockey League compared to 20 in major league baseball.

"I think it was a gross miscarriage of justice that Yogi Berra got fired. After all, you hire a fellow to win and Yogi won. What more can you ask? But I guess it's the same in most sports. It's easier to fire one fellow than fire the whole team."

Berra was dismissed as manager of the pennant winning New York Yankees last Friday, the same day that John Keane resigned as field boss of World Series winning St. Louis Cardinals.

"In hockey you have to keep winning. That's our security. In baseball, it looks as though even winning doesn't give you security," Imlach said.

VECCHIO WINS CROSS COUNTRY

Tony Vecchio won the St. Joseph's School annual cross country with a record breaking time of 13 minutes, 28 seconds for the two-mile course. Carol Gawryletz won the girls' race in 19 min., 30 sec., breaking last year's record set by Carol Lissa.

Results:

Boys — Tony Vecchio 13:28; Milan Coschizza 13:29; Gary Samis 14:20; Nick Glasnovick 14:32; Danny Gare 14:53; Vern Samis 14:58.

Girls — Carol Gawryletz 19:30; Patricia Troyan 19:36; Gloria Brooks 20:24; Monica Troyan 20:25.

Announce New Healing Substance: Shrinks Piles

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissue.

In case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place.

Most important of all—results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue.

Now Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H. Ask for it at all drug stores—money back guarantee.

Russia Closes Olympic Gap

Reds Grab Three Gold Medals But Rally May Come Too Late

By JACK SLLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

TOKYO (CP) — Russia has startd to close in on the United States in the battle for Olympic Games medals, winning eight, including three gold, in the women's discus, men's fencing and wrestling Monday, but the move may be too late.

With the gymnastics competition now under way, the Russians are expected to pick up a good share of the 14 gold medals awarded for that sport. But they face the strong Japanese who are even keener this time as the host country.

In these Olympics, the Russians have lost seven gold medals in track and field they took at Rome while the Americans have won 12, equalling their 1960 production with two days to go.

Track and field, the major portion of the Games, winds up Wednesday with the marathon. The Games themselves have four days to go.

The U.S. team equalled its total medal output of 71 at Rome Monday when Mike Larrabee, a 30-year-old mathematics teacher, beat a class field to win the 400 metres and sprinter Edith McGuire sped to victory in the women's 100 metres, and the equestrian team won a silver medal.

15 GOLDS TO EUROPEANS

But that was all the U.S. got as Europeans moved strongly, taking 15 of the 17 gold medals awarded.

Russia won three gold, three silver and two bronze Monday for a total of 48 medals—16 gold, 13 silver and 19 bronze. The U.S. enjoys a wide lead with 31 gold, 21 silver and 19 bronze.

But there is little left on the program for the U.S. to dominate, perhaps outside of basketball.

There are 65 championships still to be decided out of 163. And the Russians are expected to do well in such events as canoeing and boxing in addition to gymnastics.

The unofficial team standing shows the Americans with more than 567 points, already surpassing their 1960 total-point showing of 564½. The Russians are way off their team-winning 1960 total of 807½ points, and must make a tremendous showing in the next four days to get anywhere near it. They have roughly 368 points, almost 200 points behind the U.S.

CANADA SHOWS BETTER

Canada already has surpassed by a healthy margin its 1960 showing when it finished 26th among 84 countries with 16 points. Three medals—a gold, silver and bronze—won at Tokyo have placed the Canadian team in 17th place with 35 points.

Four Olympic records were broken in track and field Monday as the famous Tamara Press of Russia won the women's discus.

Tamara, who weighs nearly 224 pounds, hurled the discus 187 feet, 10¾ inches to beat the Olympic record. Ingrid Lotz of Germany, the silver medallist, also smashed the old mark with a heave of 187-8¼. Russia's defending champion, Nina Ponomareva, set the old mark of 180-8¼ four years ago, but here she slipped to 11th place.

Nancy McCredie of Brampton, Ont., Canada's Pan-American Games champion, didn't qualify for the final round. Her best toss was 154-7.

TIGHTEST FINISH YET

Karin Balzer won the women's 80-metre hurdles for the combined German team's first track victory at Tokyo. Mrs. Balzer equalled the world record of 10.5 seconds.

With all three medal winners clocked in 10.5, it was the tightest finish of the Games. Terese Ciepla, Poland's European champion, was second with Pam Kilborn of Australia third.

Olympic records were broken in four of the five track and field events and another was equalled in shooting.

Miss McGuire, a 20-year-old student at Tennessee State, the college that produced the 1960 triple gold medal winner Wilma Rudolph, won the 200 metres in 23 seconds flat and wiped out Wilma's 1960 mark of 23.2.

U.S. MAKES SWEEP

Miss McGuire's victory, coming on top of Wyomia Tyus's win in the 100 metres, gave the U.S. a sweep of all four women's and men's sprints.

While Miss McGuire's win was expected, Larrabee's was not. His rush to the wire nipped the field in the excellent time of 45.1 seconds, about a yard in front of Wendell Mottley of Trinidad.

France's Maryvonne Dupureur won her semi-final heat in the women's 800 metres in the Olympic record time of 2:04.1.

New Zealand's Peter Snell, winner of the 800-metre gold medal in a battle with Bill Crothers of Toronto, turned in a spectacular 1,500 metres Monday, equivalent to a 3:55.8 mile.

Snell and Dyrel Burleson of the U.S. both won their semi-finals in the metric mile and established themselves the best bets for medals Wednesday night.

Snell, who set an Olympic record in the 800, clicked off a 3:38.8. metric mile while Burleson won his heat in an excellent 3:41.8. Ergas Leps of Toronto placed eighth in the heat won by Snell.

EXPECT MAJOR UPSET

A major upset seemed to be in the making in the gruelling 10-event decathlon. After five events contested Monday, three Germans were in the first four with C. K. Yang of Formosa, the favorite, ninth.

Bill Gairdner of Toronto was 15th with 3,568 points and Jerry Moro of Trail, B.C., 21st and last with 3,261.

MORE FOR RUSSIA

Russia won a gold, three silver and bronze in the Greco-Roman wrestling. All eight championships were decided Monday.

Finland collected its third gold medal when Pentti Linnosvuop won the rapid fire pistol shooting with an Olympic record of 592.

Bill Hare of Ottawa placed 22nd in the field of 53 with a score of 579 while Gary McMahon of Dartmouth, N.S., was 47th with 551.

First Keane, Now Rickey Resigns From St. Louis

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Branch Rickey, 83-year-old player consultant to world champion St. Louis Cardinals, has resigned.

Bow Howsam, general manager of the Cardinals, made the announcement in a one sentence statement Monday. He would not elaborate.

Rickey's resignation followed that of Cardinal Manager Johnny Keane, who resigned last Friday in a continuing shake-up of the Cardinals' high echelon personnel.

Rickey was said to be the man behind the decision by Cardinal owner August A. Busch Jr. to fire former Cardinal general manager Bing Devine, now with New York Mets.

Rickey's influence with Busch was believed to have been shaken by the Redbirds' drive for the National League pennant and world championship. St. Louis defeated New York Yankees in the seven-game world series.

PRAISED BEFORE OUSTED

Devine has been named major league executive of the year by The Sporting News for his work with the champion Cardinals before he was ousted.

When Devine was fired, Cardinal business manager Art Routzong also was fired. Routzong's dismissal also was reported to have been at Rickey's suggestion.

Rickey became player consultant for the Cardinals about two years ago, working for a reported salary of $65,000 a year.

The Old Mahatma — sports writers gave him the name—had a knack of involvement in controversy.

This old master maker of pennant teams who founded baseball's farm system caused one of his biggest furors when he broke the sport's color line. He brought Negro Jackie Robinson into the old Brooklyn Dodger organization in 1945.

ANSWER CRITICISM

When Jackie moved up to the Dodgers two years later, Rickey answered criticism with typical Rickey syntax:

"The American public is not as concerned with a player's pigmentation as it is with the power of his swing, the dexterity of his slide, the gracefulness of his fielding or the speed of his legs."

Today, Negroes play on every major league club and many of them are the game's brightest stars.

Rickey, who has been associated with baseball for 60 years, spent 26 years with the Cardinals before moving to Brooklyn and Pittsburgh. While with St. Louis, the team won six pennants and four world championships — not counting this year's.

Olympians Heap Praise On Canada's Harry Jerome

TOKYO (CP) — Two of the greatest comeback stories in modern Olympic track history have been written at the national stadium in Tokyo by Harry Jerome of Vancouver and Betty Cuthbert, the phenomenal blonde beauty from Australia. Each was supposed to be washed up two years ago.

Jerome, who has been an inspiration to the Canadian track team the last few days, missed making it for the second time to the medal-winning podium when he was a driving fourth in the men's 200-metres Saturday at the Olympic games.

But he gave Canada its first finalist in the men's furlong since 1936. At the same time, he exploded the myth that he folds under pressure and proved that he could come back after personal tragedies in the 1960 Olympics and the 1962 British Empire Games.

Jerome went lame in the 100-metre semi-final at the Rome Olympics four years ago, and didn't finish the race.

OPERATED ON LEG

At the B.C. Games in Perth, Australia, he pulled up lame in the 100 yards, withdrew from the 200 and left for home. Shortly after, he underwent an operation for the leg injury and resumed his track career in 1960.

In Tokyo, tributes have been heaped on Jerome by his fellow-Canadian athletes and team officials.

Bill Crothers of Toronto, who won the second - place silver medal in the 800 metres Friday, paid Jerome high tribute.

"I can say that it is almost impossible to make the finals of both sprints, but Harry did it despite eight races in four days."

Jim Daly of Winnipeg, manager of the track team, said Jerome had carried the heaviest load of any of the Canadian team because of his poor showing in Rome and Perth.

"In the finals of the 100 and 200 he came up with two of the best times (10.2 in the 100 and 20.7 in the 200) and missed the bronze in the 200 by a whisker. No other sprinter here has run so many races.

"Canadians should realize that this is a fantastic job he has done."

"I didn't want to come last," said Jerome, who won the third-place bronze medal in the 100 Thursday. "I'm not really strong enough for the 200 but I wanted to give it a big try. I knew the rest of the field was fresh and I was hoping that someone would make a mistake and I would be in there to cash in.

"Now I want to go back home and see if I can build up my strength for the 200."

Miss Cuthbert, written off as a has-been four years ago in Rome, flashed to brilliant victory in the women's 400 metres Saturday, winning her fourth gold medal in the last three Olympics.

The only other woman to win four gold medals was Mrs. Fanny Blankers-Koen of The Netherlands at the 1948 Olympics in London.

Crothers, who jokingly had said "I shouldn't even be in the 400," ran twice in the 400-metre heats Saturday and advanced to the semi-finals. He equalled his Canadian native record in the first round with a clocking of 46.8 and broke it in the second with 46.7.

Keane To Sign for Yankees

NEW YORK (AP) — Johnny Keane is expected to sign a two - year contract today as manager of New York Yankees.

Any doubt Keane would succeed Yogi Berra as field leader of the American League champions was all but dispelled Monday with the announcement by club general manager Ralph Houk at a major press conference Tuesday.

Houk let the cat out of the bag by making a personal trip to meet with Keane in his home town of Houston.

After a two-hour visit with Keane, during which salary, length of the contract and a possible change in coaches were discussed, Houk telephoned the Yankee offices in New York and advised it to alert news agencies to the press conference.

Keane is expected to draw around $45,000 a year with the Yankees. That would be $10,000 more than he received this year as manager of St. Louis Cardinals, whom he led to a National League pennant and World Series victory over the Yankees.

Sisler Takes Over As Redlegs Manager

CINCINNATI (AP) — Dick Sisler, son of the great first baseman George Sisler, became manager of Cincinnati Reds Monday, replacing Fred Hutchinson who had to quit because of the ravages of cancer.

Sisler has ben a coach of the Reds since 1960 and has been acting manager since last Aug. 13 when Hutchinson was forced to take a leave of absence because of his failing health.

During Sisler's tenure as acting manager, the Reds make a great stretch run in the National League pennant race. They came from behind to take the lead in the last wek of the season only to lose out to St. Louis Cardinals on the last day of the campaign.

The Reds finished in a tie with Philadelphia Phillies for second place.

Reds' President William O. DeWitt, making the announcement that Hutchinson was quitting and that the 44-year-old Sisler had been named to succeed him, called it "a sad day and a happy day."

SPEAK WITH HUTCH

After the announcement at a hushed press conference, both DeWitt and Sisler talked with Hutchinson at his home near Bradenton, Fla. by telephone. The phone was hooked to a loud speaker and newsmen were able to hear the husky-voiced Hutchinson say:

"I'm very happy to see Dick get the job. I always had hoped he would after the fine job he did for me."

Sisler told Hutchinson he hated to get the managerial job "under such conditions" but, he added, "we all know the show must go on."

DeWitt said Sisler's contract is for one year at undisclosed terms and he said Hutchinson will remain on the club payroll as a consultant.

Hole-in-One

Cliff MacDonald, formerly of Nelson, carded an ace on the third hole of the Mission Golf and Country Club course recently, becoming the third person to do so this year.

A former Canadian Pacific employee, Mr. MacDonald shot his ace on the tree-bordered ravine hole, using an eight iron.

This was the seventh such hole-in-one recorded since the club opened three years ago.

NOTHING TO CHEER ABOUT—It was the end of the season for the Redlegs, and ailing manager Fred Hutchinson sits in a corner of the dressing room as acting manager Dick Sisler talked to newsmen. Hutchinson, beset by cancer, attended the finale.

Ladies' Curling Action Begins

The Nelson Ladies' Curling Club personnel for "Get Aquainted Bonspiel" is as follows (in order of skips, thirds, seconds and leads):

VOW Asks Gov't Watch For Iodine Fallout

TORONTO (CP) — Voice of Women of Canada Monday urged the federal government to step up and expand immediately all existing monitoring procedure for the direction of radio-active fallout—in particular iodine 131—expected to fall on Canada as a result of the Chinese nuclear test.

If there is no change in the monitoring of milk schedules, done at monthly intervals, the results will be too late for safety measures to be taken during this crucial period, the women's organization said.

While the Canadian government can only implore the nuclear nations to refrain from testing, they said, it is entirely within the government's power to protect the Canadian people from the harmful effects of such testing.

MARKET TRENDS

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market continued to make upward progress Monday despite weak spots in some sectors.

Trading was active, with volume at 5,050,000 shares compared with 5,160,000 Friday.

Steels had the benefit of industry reports that demand for steel has remained strong in spite of the strike at General Motors, now in its fourth week. Weekly steel production was higher.

But all of the Big Three auto stocks declined. General Motors was off ¼ at 100. Chrysler, which reports on earnings and dividends Thursday, lost ¼ at 59⅞. Ford lost ½ to 60.

Coppers enjoyed another rally following news that the price for spot copper in London had soared to a record high. Anaconda rose 2, Kennecott 1⅛, Cerro 1⅛, Magma ¾ and Phelps Dodge ¼.

The Dow Jones industrial average advanced 2.67 to 876.21.

CLOSING HIGH RECORD

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose 1.4 to a record closing high of 329.8 with industrials up 1.8, rails up 1.2 to a record high and utilities up .4 to a new high for the year.

Of 1,362 issues traded, 692 rose and 417 fell.

Among active losers, Texas Gulf Sulphur fell 1¼.

Among Canadian issues traded, Canadian Pacific and Distillers Seagrams each rose ⅝ while International Nickel and McIntyre Porcupine gained ⅜ apiece. Walker Gooderham lost ½.

Prices were generally higher on the American Exchange. Volume was 1,780,000 shares compared with 1,420,000 Friday. Brazilian Traction advanced ¼ while Canadian Javelin lost ¼. Down ⅛ each were Jupiter Corp. and Scurry Rainbow Oil.

TORONTO (CP)—The stock market advanced across a narrow fractional range during only moderate trading Monday.

Base Metals gained 6½ cents to 28½ cents with turnover of 1,087,500 shares, the first time an individual issue has traded more than 1,000,000 shares in a day since July 31 when Windfall produced its spectacular fall.

The industrial list was pitted with gains of ½-point or less.

Imperial Oil and Victoria and Grey Trust added ⅝ each to 54¼ and 15⅝ respectively, the latter touching a high of 15⅞. Aluminium and Distillers Seagram each tacked on ½ to 33 and 66 respectively, while Trans Prairie Pipe Lines and Burns gained ⅜ each to 10⅝ and 16¾.

CPR and Dominion Electrohome each advanced ⅜ to 52⅛ and 15. Algoma Steel, B.C. Telephone and Calgary Power each gained ¼ to 73¾, 64 and 23⅞ respectively.

LOSSES SCATTERED

Industrial losses were scattered. Dofasco and Bank of Nova Scotia each declined ½ to 24¼ and 76.

The senior base metals list featured a number of issues with hefty gains. Inco and Falconbridge each tacked on ¾ to 92¾ and 77¾ respectively, while Noranda rose ⅞ to 50¼ and Cassiar ⅛ to 12. Hudson Bay was ahead ⅜ to 74⅜.

Gold trading was brisk through the day as the 12-stock gold index set a record high of 150.02 at its noon compilation. Giant Yellowknife was the main impetus behind the rise, gaining ¾ at the close to a high of 15. Dickenson and Cochenour-Willans added five cents each to $5 and $3.10 Dome, however, lost ⅜ to 35.

GREAT PLAINS LOSES

In slow but steady senior western oils turnover, Great Plains lost ¼ to 12 on news that it has offered to buy all the outstanding common shares of Canada Oil Lands at $3.25 each under an offer that expires Feb. 16, 1965. The deal could involve just under $6,000,000. Canada Oil Lands was ahead 15 cents to $3.05—after selling five cents higher—in light volume.

Home A and B gained ⅝ and ⅛ each to 19⅜ and 19¼.

On index, industrials rose .60 to 165.99 and TSE index .52 to 155.00, while golds gained 1.45 to 149.65. Base metals rose .02 to 71.59 but western oils fell .22 to 94.63. Volume was 3,420,000 shares compared with 2,847,000 shares traded Friday.

MONTREAL (CP) — Stocks slipped off late Monday to close fractionally lower in light industrial trade on the Montreal and Canadian Stock exchanges.

Industrial volume was at 205,000 shares. Composite was off 0.1 on index at 156.0.

Papers were off 0.3 at 149.4. Price Bros. dropped ¾* to 47¼, Consolidated ¼ to 43¾ and Abitibi ⅛ to 14⅞. Fraser gained ¼ to 32½ and Domtar ⅛ to 22⅞.

Banks were also off 0.3 at 131.0. Royal and Banque Canadienne Nationale lost ½ each at 76½ each and Commerce ¼ at 67. Montreal picked up ⅜ to 68¾ and Toronto - Dominion ¾ to 68⅝.

Industrials were off 0.2 at 161.8. Southam dropped ¾ to 29¼, Canada Cement and Du Pont Canada ½ each to 47 and 58½.

Utilities were up 0.5 at 146.9. CPR advanced ⅜ to 52⅛ and B.C. Telephone and Trans-Mountain Pipe Lines ¼ each to 59⅜, and 20¼. Trans - Canada Pipe Lines dipped ⅛ at 43⅛.

Senior base metals were stronger. Noranda gained ⅞ to 50⅜, International Nickel to 92¾ and Consolidated Mining and Smelting and Hudson Bay Mining ¼ each to 41¼ and 74¼.

Senior oils were stronger. Imperial added ¾ to 54½ and Home Oil A ¼ to 19⅛.

Primary metals were mixed. Aluminium gained ½ to 33. Dofasco dropped ½ to 24⅜.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Satellites "Spy With Little Eye"

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defence experts said Monday they are sure Russian Cosmos satellites are being used to spy on the United States.

The Soviet Union last Wednesday launched the 48th in a series of Cosmos satellites which the Russians describe as unmanned, scientific spacecraft probing radiation belts and other phenomena.

The Russians have been sending Cosmos satellites aloft since March, 1962. Some still are in orbit, following paths that take them over the United States at altitudes ranging from about 120 miles to nearly 300 miles.

At such altitudes, sensitive cameras can get clear and detailed pictures of features on the ground.

U.S. reconnaissance satellites —about which the air force and defence department are silent— are believed to operate at some 300 miles altitude while passing over Russian and Chinese territory.

Information from these U.S. Samos reconnaissance satellites may have played a part in alerting the United States weeks ago to the iminence of Red China's first atomic test blast, which occurred last Friday.

Space agency officials say the United States knows little about Cosmos hardware—the rocket that launches it, the satellite itself or its equipment.

Defence experts, while saying they are certain the Cosmos satellites are used for reconnaissance as well as for scientific jobs, admit they do not know how good these Soviet satellites are in gathering photographic and other information of a military nature.

With its claimed new anti-satellite system, the U. S. presumably could shoot down the Cosmos satellites if it considered them a serious threat.

However, any U. S. moves against the Cosmos satellites would almost certainly at least be answered in kind. And the U. S. probably would be the blinder of the two without its reconnaissance satellites, since much of the Soviet Union and all of China are closed to inspection.

Sees Erosion of Federal Gov't Taxing Powers as Real Threat

TORONTO (CP)—Saskatchewan Premier Ross Thatcher Monday told a Canadian Club of Toronto gathering that there is another threat to Confederation, almost potentially as dangerous as separatism.

"At one Dominion-Provincial conference after another, the provinces faced with increasing costs, are making ever greater financial demands on Ottawa," he said. "And year by year, the federal authorities, for the sake of national unity, have been forced to give ground."

Surely the steady erosion of federal taxing powers must cause concern to all Canadians, he said. He added that in Saskatchewan they feel very strongly that the federal government has a job to do in ensuring stable economic growth.

"We believe the federal government must have adequate financial resources to cope with unemployment and economic recessions," the premier said. "Above all, we believe that Canadians, regardless of where they were born or happen to live, should have certain minimum living standards and, as a matter of rights, a basic standard of education, health and welfare services.

"Ottawa can fulfill these responsibilities only if it is able to retain adequate taxing powers. This is why I say that the time has come for provincial and even municipal governments to stop raiding the federal treasury."

Mr. Thatcher said that the danger isn't that the country will have a weak federal government, but that "if the trend continues, there may not be a confederation at all."

In turning to the provinces of Saskatchewan, Mr. Thatcher said that the two main aims of the new government during the next several years will be directed primarily at achieving major tax reduction and the expansion of industrial development and investment.

"Our province and country can only prosper if industry is permitted to make reasonable profits and keep a fair share of those profits for expansion," he said.

"There are many indications that governments at the three levels are taking such a huge tax bite that business has not the capital left to create the jobs needed for full employment.

"Taxation is a major roadblock to growth, expansion and employment."

He said that all political parties must accept a share of responsibility for the rapidly increasing tax rates in Canada since the war.

"In Saskatchewan I find it ludicrous that thousands are drawing unemployment insurance or social aid at a time when farmers cannot obtain farm labor or housewives, domestic help," he said.

"Future social welfare measures—at either the provincial or federal level—must be related to the economic capacity of the taxpayer."

He said that while political parties must accept much of the responsibilities for high taxes, the public must also take part of the blame.

"Almost every day at Regina or Ottawa, some group or organization comes to press the government for some new project or expenditure," he said. "Citizens cannot steadily and consistently demand more expenditures yet, at the same time, expect taxes to be lowered."

Mr. Thatcher said that taxes have become so burdensome in Saskatchewan partly due to hospitalization and medicare schemes which are more comprehensive than in any other part of Canada.

"As a result, on a per capita basis, people in Saskatchewan have been virtually the high man on the tax totem pole."

He said he is satisfied that cutting expenditures is "the correct approach" if Saskatchewan is to have the economic climate that is needed to provide new jobs.

He suggested that success in tax cuts in the U.S. warrants immediate consideration for similar action in Canada, particularly at the federal level of government.

Miss LaMarsh Foresees New Era for Retarded

OTTAWA (CP)—A new deal for Canada's 500,000 mentally retarded citizens was forecast here Monday by Health Minister Judy LaMarsh as she opened the first federal-provincial conference on mental retardation.

She paid tribute to the work of the Canadian Association for Retarded Children, the Canadian Mental Health Association and other voluntary agencies, saying their work had underlined the needs in the field of retardation.

Speaking to more than 250 specialists from health and welfare departments in every province, Miss LaMarsh said the members of her department feel the four-day conference will be "one of the most important things the department has ever attempted."

She called for a massive attack on the problems of retardation by specialists in the fields of health, welfare and education.

Referring to the recent report of the royal commission on health services, Miss LaMarsh said the conference may well agree with one o fthe commission's major findings—"that it is imperative that community resources for the retarded be increased to obtain early diagnosis, because lack of proper treatment impairs the chances of rehabilitation."

PARENTS FINED

CLOVERDALE (CP) — Magistrate Hugh Ellis fined Mr. and Mrs. Nat Lace $50 and $10 respectively Friday on a charge laid under the Protection of Children Act after court was told both parents left their seven-year-old daughter alone during the day while they worked at jobs in Vancouver. An RCMP constable testified he found the child 1 ½ miles from home and had been unable to contact any relative for five hours.

No Grounds for Gov't Takeover Sweep Winnings

OTTAWA (CP) — A revenue department official said Monday he doubts the government can claim any of the $60,000 sweepstake win of an Edmonton gardener who died two weeks before his horse came in.

R. B. Rombough, 66, had purchased a sweepstakes ticket on the second-place finisher in Saturday's Cambridgeshire. He died two weeks before the race, leaving a widow.

An estate tax expert in the revenue department said: "We've never had one like this before . . . but these winnings don't appear to be taxable."

He said estate tax is calculated on the value of a per*son's estate at the time of* death, minus a basic $60,000 exemption.

"His ticket at time of death would appear to have been worth only its face value—just over $3."

From an Income Tax Act point of view "gambling winnings as a rule are not income and are not taxable unless it can't be proved the individual is a professional gambler," said another tax authority.

The $60,000 winnings, lodged in court in Dublin, now awaits a claim by Mr. Rombough's executors. There seem to be no bars to it being turned over and eventually distributed to any beneficiaries.

B.C. Highlights

VANCOUVER (CP) — Maury Ouelette, 4, died after drinking weedkiller left on a garage shelf at a relative's home, laboratory tests discovered. Officials said the tests showed traces of an arsenic-based weedkiller in the boy's stomach, although a post mortem last week failed to establish the cause of death.

ESQUIMALT (CP) — An investigation is underway at HMCS Dockyard to discover how salt water is entering the local water system, which serves 3,000 residents here. Officials said none of the consumers has yet been affected by the sea water.

COMIC FIRED AFTER SUNDAY NIGHT SHOW

NEW YORK (AP) — Entertainer Jackie Mason was fired from the Ed Sullivan variety show after his performance Sunday night on the hour - long Columbia Broadcasting System program.

Bob Precht, producer of the program, said he cancelled the comic's contract calling for six more appearances on the show.

He said Mason was guilty of "offensive conduct, insubordination and gross deviation from material agreed upon for the telecast."

A spokesman for Mason said the comic meant no offence by his on - camera antics and claimed that they had been thoroughly misunderstood by Sullivan and Precht.

Sullivan said Mason made "uncalled for gestures" when coming on camera to finish a monologue that had been interrupted by a special viewing of Persident Johnson's U.S.-wide message.

Robert Chartoff, Mason's manager, said the comic was merely trying to get the attention of the audience.

He said Mason had not been officially notified of the contract cancellation, but Precht said he notified the comic that he was fired as the latter was leaving the stage following his performance.

RECORD GRAIN SHIPMENT

CLEVELAND (AP) — Grain shipment by U.S. vessels on the Great Lakes this year to Oct. 1 totalled 61,560,729 bushels, a record for the period, the Lake Carriers Association said Monday. But this was only 11.3 per cent of the total grain hauled, most of which is carried in Canadian and foreign ships, the association said.

ROYAL TRAIN FOR SALE

LONDON (Reuters)—One of Britain's few remaining privately - owned railway companies advertised Monday for a buyer willing to pay £1,000 for a royal train. The engine and coach used by King Edward VII and King George V—who both autographed the driver's cab—are being sold by the Romney, Hythe and Dymchurch Railroad, which runs miniature trains along a stretch of the English south coast. The engine, built in 1895, still works.

Chinese Feel Atomic Power Gives Military, Politicians "Big Stick"

TOKYO (AP) — Industrially weak and 20 years late, China could not overtake the United States as a nuclear power for many years. Why, then, did it explode an atom bomb?

There are two answers, one military, the other political.

Lacking long-range missiles or other delivery capabilities, the apparent military aim of the fledgling Chinese nuclear program is to develop tactical atomic weapons to beef up already powerful conventionally-armed ground forces.

Their purpose: To deter the United States from moving troops into South Viet Nam or Laos, or into any other regional conflicts in which Peking is directly or indirectly involved.

Secret Chinese army bulletins releaced by the U.S. reveal that three years ago the Chinese high command looked forward to the use of tactical nuclear weapons but made no references to strategic weapons, whose usefulness would depend on missiles or aircraft.

A study of the secret Chinese papers suggests that Peking is fully aware of the dangers involved in atomic weapons and, despite its public stance of recklessness and billigerence, is not likely to embark on nuclear adventures.

Politically, the Chinese presumably hope to intimidate their immediate neighbors, including India.

President Johnson immediately assured Asian nations that the U.S. would come to their assistance if they were menaced by China. But India and other nations may reason that it would be more prudent to reach an agreement with Peking now than to rely on American retaliation that might come too late.

The Chinese also presumably hope through this display of power to influence the underdeveloped nations of Asia, Africa and South America they are courting. So far, there has been no cascade of congratulatory messages from any of these countries, most of which have signed the nuclear test ban treaty.

If China hoped to win converts to its policies in neighboring Japan, it has been disillusioned by a socialist delegation that attacked the test publicly in Peking Saturday.

Tomomi Narita, secretary-general of the Japanese Socialist Party, said at a banquet in the Chinese capital:

"Our anti-bomb movement is making great efforts to oppose nuclear tests by any country and is supported in its earnest desire for peace by the Japanese people, the only nation to suffer an atom bombing.

"Today, before the banquet, we expressed our opposition to the test and at the risk of being impolite, we repeat our opposition now."
