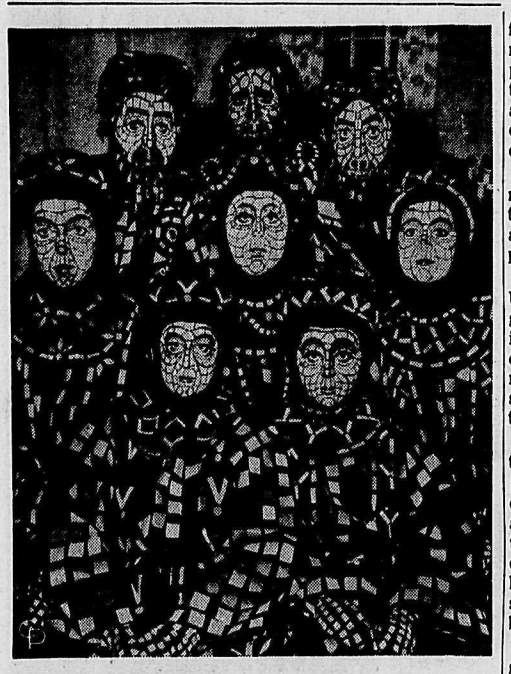
1000 Reported Drowned in India Flash Flood

China's First Nuclear Explosion To Be Heard Soon, Says Martin



LIVING STAINED GLASS—A miracle of makeup transforms the Kentucky Mountain Players into a living stained glass window as they enact "The Book of Job" in London. Their performance is an annual event at theater in Pineville, Ky.

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Martin said Wednesday China's first nuclear explosion will be an atmospheric test, contaminating the air at a time when fall-out effects from other tests has died out markedly. (Also see story on page 12.)

Mr. Martin said the Communist Chinese could make their test "in the fairly near future," and that it "will be an atmospheric test."

State Secretary Rusk of the United States said Tuesday his government had learned China is nearing readiness for a nuclear detonation. Mr. Rusk's formal statement, however, did not say it would be an atmospheric test.

Mr. Martin told a reporter that the first detonation would "in all probability" be followed by others in due course, resulting in atmospheric contamination at a time when there have been indications that the hazards to health from earlier tests by Russia and the Western powers had begun to decline.

Mr. Martin said the Canadian government regrets Chinese intentions to conduct atmospheric or any other kind of testing in the face of world opinion that such testing should cease.

TOKYO AP — China celebrates its 15th birthday today with speeches and parades amid reports the Chinese soon will explode their first nuclear device.

The Chinese Communist party no doubt would like to cap the festivities with an announcement that China has joined the nuclear club. But whether Chinese scientists are ready for the big test is unknown.

U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk said in Washington Tuesday that a nuclear test explosion by Peking may take place "in the near future."

The Communist Chinese remained silent on the nuclear question.

Peking's official pre-celebration line was centred on advances in the economy. Chinese Communist newspapers predicted 1964 would go down in China's history as one of the country's best agricultural years.

DENOUNCE RUSSIANS

The Chinese have denounced the Russians for having concluded a treaty with the United States and Britain, banning all except underground nuclear testing. The pact, the Chinese charged, was an attempt to keep them from acquiring the bomb.

The Russians in 1959 refused to honor an earlier pledge to deliver a sample of the bomb to Peking. This, and the subsequent withdrawal of Soviet military and economic aid, brought the Chinese-Soviet dispute over ideological questions to an unprecedented stage of bitterness.

Last year, the Russians sent a chess team and some football players to the birthday celebration.

This year the Soviet group is headed by Viktor Grishin, alternate member of the Soviet party central committee presidium.

On the eve of the anniversary, Peking's official People's daily said Communist China's economy today presents an entirely different appearance from that of 15 years ago.

City of 25,000 Hit As Reservoir Bursts

NEW DELHI (AP)—A rain-swollen reservoir burst, sending a 10-foot-high wall of water surging through a southeast Indian town and drowned more than 1000 persons, unofficial reports said Wednesday night.

The disaster, worst of its kind in India, struck Macherla, a town of 25,000 in Andhra state, Tuesday and late-summer monsoon rain floods spread death and misery through seven Indian states.

Thousands of persons were reported perched on housetops and clinging to trees in Macherla. Helpless patients were carried away by the flood when the torrent hit a hospital.

The disaster, blamed on an unprecedented three -day deluge, came a few days short of the first anniversary of a similar tragedy in Italy. The Vaiont reservoir in northern Italy was hit by an avalanche Oct. 9, 1963, and nearly 2,000 died in a flood wave 150 feet high.

AFFECT 6,500,000

Even before the Macherla disaster, Indian Irrigation Minister K. L. Rao told Parliament that floods had killed 145 persons, washed away 2,800 head of cattle and affected 6,500,000 persons lving in 18,000 villages.

Rao said 6,100,000 acres of Indian land were under water.

Loss of crops has caused famine through much of India, touching off foods riots and bringing a severe crisis to the government of Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri.

Total losses are estimated at more than $84,000,000 in the affected states; Andhra, Uttar Punjab, Rajasthan, Delhi, Assam and Bihar.

Macherla is about 850 miles south of New Delhi.

Banks Quits $20,000-Year Post in Seafarers' Union

MONTREAL (CP) — Hal C. Banks, the ex-shipping union czar in Canada who has a five-year penitentiary sentence to serve should he ever return to this country, has resigned all his offices in the Seafarers' International Union, it was announced Wednesday.

Banks, ousted last March from the presidency of the SIU of Canada (Ind.), has quit his $20,000 - a - year post as vice-president and international representative of the SIU of North America, the announcement said.

He has also resigned as vice-president of the maritime trades department of the AFL-CIO in the United States, of which the SIU of North America is a member.

The announcement was made by Earl Shepard, an SIU of North America vice-president, to SIU of Canada members here at a regular semi-monthly meeting.

Banks' bail of $25,000 on which he was set free pending appeal of a five-year prison sentence for conspiracy to assault a rival union official was confiscated earlier in the day. He did not show up for hearing of the appeal in mid-September and it was dismissed.

NOT BEEN SEEN

The 55-year-old burly native of Minnesota has not been seen in the Montreal area since a bailiff tried to serve him with a warrant July 21 ordering him to jail for 30 days on a civil contempt of court conviction.

The Star says Banks' letter of resignation to Paul Hall, president of the SIU of North America, was mailed in New York City.

The announcement said Banks' resignation "was submitted some weeks ago and accepted by the union's executive board at a meeting in San Francisco several days ago."

Union spokesmen declined to say whether Banks gave any reason for his resignation and said they have "no idea" of his present whereabouts.

If Banks ever returns to Canada, he is also faced with a bench warrant for his arrest to face trial on a charge of conspiracy to commit assault on Richard Greaves of Vancouver in 1960.

He also has been charged with being "unlawfully" at large after failing to appear for trial on an accusation of conspiring to incite seamen to leave their ships. The charge arose from an SIU march on Ottawa last fall to protest federal trusteeship legislation.

IWA Locals Battle For West Leadership

VANCOUVER (CP) — A straight two-way fight for leadership of the west region of the International Woodworkers of America (CLC) developed Wednesday when the dissident Vancouver local backed a candidate against the current president.

The region is made up of 16 British Columbia locals two in Alberta and one in Saskatchewan.

Stu Hodgson financial secretary of Vancouver local 1-217 was nominated by local president Syd Thompson to oppose region president Jack Moore.

First vice-president Jack McKenzie will be opposed by Weldon Jubenville of Duncan B.C. Secretary-treasurer Fred Fieber will be opposed by Port Alberni's Walter Allen.

Others up for re-election are second vice - president Jack Holst and third vice-president Bob Ross. They were unopposed as were international board members Wyman Trineer of New Westminster B.C. and Cliff Michael of Salmon Arm B.C.

Keitch Johnson of Edmonton an alternate will be opposed by Howard Webb of Prince George B.C.

Hodgson said in an interview after nominations closed that he will not be a stooge for Thompson, long an opponent of Moore.

He said he would solicit the help of local unions to "rid the western regional council of tensions" which he said were caused by the present leadership.

Moore who defeated a move within his own regional caucus to replace him as caucus candidate said he was disappointed that Thompson would not run.

"He has been making a lot of noise and a lot of charges" Moore said.

He said the regional convention has "by and large upheld the leadership in its decisions."

Thompson said the real issues in the election are to bring "the turmoil in the organization to an end."

He blamed Moore and other officers for the turmoil which erupted most recently when he accused Moore and others of improperly using strike funds to publicize their stand on contract proposals.

Results of the balloting are expected to be known in about 40 days.

Jet for Canada Proposed

OTTAWA (CP)—The defence department believes the armed forces need a tactical jet plane and it is prepared to spend up to $300,000,000 on such a program.

But will the defence department or the needs of the Canadian aircraft industry dictate what type of plane will be acquired and where it will be built?

This is the crux of the major defence problem now facing the government, officials said Wednesday.

Specifically, the question boils down to whether Canadair Limited, Montreal, a wholly-owned subsidiary of General Dynamics Corporation of New York, should be awarded another multi - million - dollar aircraft contract.

Officials said production of an American - designed jet plane, mainly for support of the army in the field, would cost more than purchase of the plane in the United States because of royalties, costs of tooling and the like.

AFFECTS JOBS

On the other hand, the jobs of several thousand workers probably would be affected in a city which is represented by four cabinet ministers, including C. M. Drury, minister of industry and defence production.

Canadair is said to be in favor of the McDonnell Phantom, which would cost a basic price of about $2,500,000 each.

The defence department, however, now appears more inclined toward production of the Northrup F-5, a version of the plane which the previous Conservative government rejected in 1961 but which costs only $800,000.

No Coup, Says Khanh

SAIGON AP — Maj.-Gen. Nguyen Khanh says he will hold the premiership of South Viet Nam until he turns over the government to civilians.

Khanh discounted speculation, fed by the pressure of young generals for a purge of officers they call corrupt and incompetent, about the possibility of a new military uprising against him.

"There will be no coup," Khanh declared in an interview Wednesday. Oct. 27 is set for the end of military rule.

Four controversial officers got their walking papers.

Lt.-Gen. Tran Thien Khiem, a member of the ruling triumvirate and the highest-ranking South Vietnamese military man in the Communist - menaced country, was ordered to London on a diplomatic mission.

Col. Pham Ngoc Thao, Khanh's press aide who was one target of the coup attempt Sept. 13, drew an assignment to South Viet Nam's embassy in Washington instead of the combat duty he had offered to resume.

Khanh's office also announced the acceptance of resignations by Brig.-Gen. Do Mau, deputy premier for social and cultural affairs, and presidential secretary Nghiem Xuan Hong.

Tourist Surplus Turning to Deficit

OTTAWA (CP) — Tourism, a source of strength in Canada's balance of payments last year, seems likely to be a weakness in 1964.

First - half figures for this year show that Canadian spending abroad exceeded by $145,000,000 the spending of foreigners visiting Canada. The net outflow of tourist money a year earlier was $93,000,000.

If this trend continues, this is how 1964 would end:

Foreigners would increase their spending in Canada by about $50,000,000 to a record $651,000,000, up eight per cent from 1963. This assumes that the wet, chilly August didn't keep them home.

Canadian spending abroad — roughly two-thirds of it in the United States—would jump by 25 per cent to $736,000,000 compared with last year's $589,000,000.

FOLLOWS SURPLUS

That would mean an $85,000,000 deficit on the tourist account for 1964 after last year's $13,000,000 surplus, the first since 1950.

Such a deficit would be a large element in the anticipated rise in the current account deficit, which includes all forms of trade, to $600,000,000 this year from $521,000,000 in 1963.

Clearly, the main reason for the backsliding tourist picture is Canadian travel abroad. It has been increasing steadily, offsetting the country's gains in tourist income. Economists attribute it to higher prosperity.

Canadian tourist spending in the United States in the first half of this year reached $242,000,000 as against $192,000,000 a year earlier. Outlays overseas climbed to $100,000,000 from $83,000,000.

DOLLAR FIRM

NEW YORK (CP)—Canadian dollar unchanged at 92 1-32 in terms of U.S. funds. Week ago 92 31-32. Pound sterling up 1-64 at $2.78 21-64.

MONTREAL (CP) — United States dollar in terms of Canadian funds was unchanged at $1.07½. Pound sterling was unchanged at $2.99 3-16.

Seat Warmers Must Go

KAMLOOPS (CP)—The school board here has endorsed a principal's efforts to eliminate "seat warmers" from his high school.

Walter Winter, of North Kamloops, said he would first issue a warning to students found lazy.

If there is no improvement in studies, a warning would be issued to the offender's parents and then to the school board.

The principal said the Public Schools Act contains a provision for eliminating seat warmers and that if the student does not react favorably to warnings the board would have no alternative but to recommend dismissal.

PCs Retain Manitoba Seat

WINNIPEG (CP)—Porgressive Conservative Maitland Steinkopf Wednesday retained the Manitoba legislature seat he resigned a month ago in a storm of controversy.

The 52-year-old former cabinet minister defeated Liberal Scott Wright in a close byelection in the Winnipeg constituency of River Heights that saw his previous majority cut by more than half.

The final official count showed Mr. Steinkopf with 4826 votes compared with 4388 for his 34-year-old opponent. In the 1962 general election Mr. Steinkopf defeated another Liberal by 1013 votes.

The byelection, first test at the polls for Premier Roblin's government since 1962, left standings in the 47-member legislature unchanged at Progressive Conseravtive 36, Liberal 13, New Democratic Party seven and Social Credit one.

IS 'VINDICATION'

Mr. Steinkopf said the outcome was in a sense a personal vindication for his role in purchasing land for a centennial arts centre in Winnipeg that led to his resignation.

NDP CONTEST EXPECTED TO PAY OFF DEBTS

VICTORIA (CP)—British Columbia's New Democratic Party hopes the British election next month will pay off most of the party's debts.

The NDP has launched a contest in which participants stand to win $1,000 cash or a trip to London for the opening of the next British Parliament — for guessing the outcome of the Oct. 15 election.

Party members across the province are giving out ballpoint pens and an election-forecast ticket in exchange for "a dollar for democracy."

NDP officials say the operation doesn't contravene Canadian laws banning lotteries.

The pens cost the party 7½ cents apiece and there are some 14,000 of them.

Sale of all the pens would wipe out most of the party's debts and current obligations which now total $14,000.

Party Secretary Ernest Hall said today business so far has been slow but he still hoped for a "fairly handsome return."

Mr. Hall said that if there is a tie among contestants they will be asked a political question to decide the winner.

Western Europe Trade Climbs, But East Slumps

GENEVA (AP) — Booming Western Europe continues to increase its share of world trade while its Communist East European neighbors still struggle to make a success of their centrally planned economies, according to a report out Wednesday.

The report issued by the Economic Commission for Europe said the increased prosperity in West European countries is mainly due to a sharp rise in trade among themselves.

But Eastern Europe rates of growth of both imports and exports slumped during 1963.

"This was mainly as a result of the import squeeze in most of Eastern Europe and the drastic reduction in the rate of growth of Soviet imports," the report said.

In Western Europe the rate of growth in the volume of exports increased from five per cent in 1961-62 to eight per cent in 1962-63.

ITALY LAGS

In the first half of 1964 five of the six European Common Market countries (West Germany, France, Italy, Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg) all had accelerated growths in production. Italy was the exception.

Analyzing the deterioration of Britain's trade balance in 1964, the report said this was largely due to buoyant economic conditions that induced rising imports.

The deficit was due particularly to a rise in the import prices of commodities on which Britain depends heavily. The rise in the price of sugar alone accounted for almost one-third of the increase in the value total British imports between 1962 and 1963.

Another cause was the need to replenish stocks that had fallen to abnormally low levels in 1963 following the previous year's import squeeze.

Among the seven members of the European Free Trade Association (EFTA), Denmark and Britain were the only nations with a higher import surplus this year. The others, Norway, Sweden, Switzerland, Portugal and Austria, all improved their balance of payments positions.

BOOM YEAR

The report forecast that the full year of 1964 is likely to result for Western Europe in "a much larger increase in industrial production than in any of the last few years."

Apart from the failure of Soviet exports, the slow growth of import requirements and the large outstanding credits to developing countries were named as other factors that had an adverse result on trade in Eastern Europe.

The developing nations of the world are also benefitting from the boom in Western Europe, according to the report. In 1963, the value of their exports to Western Europe rose by nine per cent.

Parliament Wednesday

By The Canadian Press

Prime Minister Pearson said legislation permitting provinces to opt out of federal-provincial projects will be introduced this sessions if the work load permits.

Justice Minister Favreau launched debate on repatrition of the constitution, saying the issue should be above any partisanship.

R. G. L. Fairweather (PC — Royal) was asked if the government was considering giving up any control over immigration, tariffs or monetary policy.

Andrew Brewin (NDP — Toronto Greenwood) said the government should use a more flexible formula, reducing veto rights of the provinces.

Creditiste Leader Caouette said Parliament should leave the BNA Act in England and draft our own constitution.

Stubborn Battle Rages Over N. Rhodesian Mineral Rights

LONDON (CP) — A mystery brewed in Whitehall and the *City of London Wednesday con*cerning the wrangle over Northern Rhodesia's mineral rights.

Northern Rhodesia is heading for independence as Zambia Oct. 24 with no legal claim to its vast mineral resources, including the famous copper belt that produces 14 per cent of the world's copper. The mineral rights have been claimed for 65 years by the British South African Company, formerly the Chartered Company, to whose founder Cecil Rhodes they were ceded in 1899 by the then ruling African chiefs.

Zambia contests the legality of the company's position and wants control over its own mineral wealth.

A week ago Prime Minister Kaunda sent his finance minister, Arthur Wina, to negotiate with Sir Alec Douglas-Home's government over a clause in the independence document — an order-in-council — that the Zambian government maintains entrenches the BSA company's rights.

COMPANY BACKED

Talks broke down Tuesday night with the British government firmly supporting the BNA company's legal position.

Wina told a press conference his government now has "no option but to consider the steps it should take to restore the natural resources of Zambia to the rightful owners, the people of Zambia."

As a last resort, he said, they would have to revise the constitution immediately after independence to eliminate the controversial clause — a course most observers here feel would poison Anglo-Zambian relations from the start, and indeed, Britain's relations with most other of her former African possessions.

Patrick Keatley, Commonwealth correspondent for the Guardian, comments: "As an exercise in obstinacy, the present inscrutable actions of the British government have no parallel in post-war colonial history."

A spokesman for the Commonwealth relations office said: "The British government does not enter into it. This is a matter between Zambia and the British South Africa Company. The British government is simply acting as umpire, holding the ring and trying to negotiate an agreement."

MINERAL RIGHTS

A BSA company spokesman said the company does not want to stand in the way of Zambia acquiring control over the mineral rights, but it wants "reasonable compensation." Asked to comment on press speculation that the proposed compensation figure had dropped to £18,000,000 from £35,000,000, the spokesman would say only that "anything below £18,000,000 would be pretty derisory."

Royalties from the company's rights in Zambia have been running about £7,000,000 a year after tax.

Heavy Schedule Faces DeGaulle

SANTIAGO, Chile (Reuters)—A program packed with 67 items in 26 hours awaits French President Charles de Gaulle who is scheduled to arrive in Chile today.

Chile's present and future presidents will both greet de Gaulle.

And in This Corner . . .

SEATTLE (AP)—It's no laughing matter when Melvin Berg sits down to his electric organ and a radio program comes out.

Berg says ever since the family moved into a new home two months ago the organ, which he has had for years, started picking up radio stations, some as far away as San Francisco.

Experts have been unable to find the trouble. Sometimes the radio music is soft: sometimes loud.

Says Berg's daughter, Joan, 11:

"I'd be playing something on the organ and pretty soon the radio station is louder than I am. It bugs me, it really bugs me."

PARKERSBURG, W. Va. (AP)—Senator Barry Goldwater's campaign train rolled across Ohio Tuesday, one passenger lighter after Republican sleuths ferreted out a Democratic agent.

Press Secretary Paul F. Wagner said he asked the Democratic miss, who identified herself as Moira O'Connor, 23, of New York, to drop off the train here. She did.

Miss O'Connor apparently signed aboard as a reporter, Wagner said. She distributed a mimeographed broadside called The Whistle Stop, listing midwestern newspapers that have endorsed President Johnson.

Ottawa To Cut Red Tape on Older Workers' Program

OTTAWA (CP) — Some of the red tape will be eliminated in this winter's version of the federal program to encourage the hiring of unemployed workers over 45.

The program was tried out last winter and almost flopped before it got off the ground, despite a $198,000 advertising campaign. There were complaints that it had too many restrictions.

Informed sources say labor department experts have spent the summer preparing a revised plan which is expected to go before Labor Minister MacEachen for approval shortly.

Mr. MacEachen was not completely satisfied with the original program that ran for five months and resulted in jobs for 2,000 men. But he feels it was valuable as an experiment and could become an important factor in easing the job-damaging effects of automation.

SPURT IN LAST WEEKS

The most heartening aspect of last year's experiment was that more than half the 2,000 successful applications came in the final four weeks. It is hoped that this spurt will carry over into the first part of the 1964-65 winter drive.

Under the program, Ottawa paid half of the wages or $75 a month, whichever was less, for 12 months for each worker hired. Employers applied for this bonus through their local National Employment Service office.

To qualify, a worker had to be 45 or over, unemployed for at least six of the previous nine months and receive a "significant amount" of training on the job.

However, a worker had to be employed for three months before the employer could apply for the federal payment. Approved applicants then got a retroactive payment covering the first three months. Subsequent claims had to be entered monthly for the next nine months.

Aim of the 12-month payment period was to subsidize an older worker while he was being brought to full productivity through training. But there was no guarantee that the worker would be kept on the job when the federal bonus period ran out.

Canada Probes Cyprus Agreement With Soviet

MOSCOW (AP)—Foreign Minister Spyros Kyprianou of Cyprus said he signed an agreement Wednesday for military assistance from the Soviet Union "with no strings attached."

He refused to comment on the weapons or financial arrangements involved, or on whether the agreement will bring Soviet personnel to the Mediterranean island torn by communal strife.

Earlier Costas Ashiotis, director-general of the Cypriot foreign ministry, said the agreement also covered economic issues but Kyprianou said "we did not discuss economic matters."

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson called in Soviet Ambassador Ivan Shpedko Wednesday to seek details of Russia's arms agreement with Cyprus.

External Affairs Minister Martin, who disclosed this in the Commons, was present at the meeting. He gave no details of the talks.

Mr. Martin said Cyprus has the right but, in the view of the Canadian government, no justification for acquiring arms from Russia. He added that the full nature of the agreement is not clear.

Canada is the main contributor in personnel to the 6200-man United Nations force on Cyprus.

Provincial Services Extension To Indians Aim of Conference

OTTAWA (CP) — A federal-provincial conference Oct. 29-30 will consider ways of extending such provincial services as education and social welfare to Indians, Citizenship Minister Tremblay informed the Commons Wednesday.

But, he said, that doesn't mean the federal government is surrendering any of its constitutional jurisdiction over Indian affairs. The government intends "to maintain all the rights accorded it under the constitution over Indian affairs."

Mr. Tremblay ran into a barrage of questions about what he called preliminary discussions for the October meeting here. He declined to indicate how the provinces feel about the idea or whether there is any opposition. However, a reliable source says three provinces are taking the stand that Indians are a federal responsibility which they have no right or obligation to assume.

TALKS EXPLORATORY

Mr. Tremblay said the October meeting is exploratory and no decisions will be made. Before any are arrived at, the Indians would be consulted.

He told David Orlikow (NDP Winnipeg North) that no province has asked Ottawa to turn over to it responsibility for administering Indian affairs.

Mr. Tremblay was needled for "double-dealing" by Opposition Leader Diefenbaker and accused of being "coy" about answering questions on the subject by Frank Howard (NDP—Skeena).

Mr. Diefenbaker repeatedly asked Mr. Tremblay whether several provinces turned down Ottawa's suggestions about extending services and wondered whether the government is bargaining away Indian rights without prior consultation.

Mr. Tremblay reiterated that there's no question of the federal government abandoning its jurisdiction in Indian affairs. It already had agreements in force with some provinces to extend services such as education to Indians in exchange for federal payments.

Kootenay Pioneer Dies at Creston

BOSWELL—A variable and interesting life came to an end with the death Tuesday of Adam N. Fletcher of Boswell, who died at Creston Valley Hospital at the age of 86.

An expert on locks and combination locks, Mr. Fletcher was in demand frequently on short notice, in the district and at the coast, when keys were lost or mislaid or to change combinations on safes.

Born in Minnedosa, Man., Oct. 3, 1879, Mr. Fletcher worked on the farm as he got older and took many long trips by sleigh delivering cordwood.

For some years he worked for the CPR and became an engineer, running between Minnedosa and Bredenbury, Man.

He felt the call of the west and, working for a time with a survey party, he eventually arrived in Rossland, passing through the big rockslide which came down and buried the town of Frank at that time en route. After some years at Rossland, where he worked as a hoist man and steam engineer, and following a bad explosion when a powder magazine blew up, he left the Kootenays for the coastal area.

He spent two years aboard ship as chief engineer, sailing between Vancouver and the Orient, then worked for a time at the first CPR Hotel Vancouver. He left this position for the logging camps, where he ran donkey engines.

By 1910 he had had enough of wandering and was employed by the Norris Lock and Safe Company of Seattle at their Vancouver workshop. Later Mr. Fletcher became the proprietor, and the business became known as the Fletcher Lock and Safe Company until 1946, when he retired.

Mr. Fletcher became well known and trusted and was reputed to be one of the best "safe" men in the country. He had records of practically all the big business safes in Vancouver and had worked on most of them.

The "Best" lock is one of Mr. Fletcher's well known products and is still on the market, the old firm being still in business in Vancouver.

Mr. Fletcher retired to Boswell, buying a small house, which he enlarged. He often received calls from district business men who had safe problems and was always willing to be of assistance.

His business partner for 40 years, who also lived at Boswell, Miss Gertrude Abbott, died last week at the age of 75.

Gergely Named Bandmaster

President A. E. Lashmar announced the appointment of T. Gergely as bandmaster of the Nelson Civic Band at the band's rehearsal Monday evening.

Mr. Gergely received his music background at University of B.C. under the direction of Robert M. Barr, and is the former director of bands at the Southern Okanagan High School in Oliver.

At the present time, he is the director of instrumental music at Trafalgar Junior-Secondary School and has played in numerous bands throughout the interior.

Youths Believed Killed in Crash

CAMPBELL RIVER (CP) — Two youths are believed to have drowned Wednesday when their car plunged off a trestle into 110 feet of water in Upper Campbell Lake, 20 miles west of here.

William Henry Knowles, 18, and Marshall Stewart Abbott, 19, both of Campbell River, were returning to work at Elk River Timber Company's Camp Eight on the Gold River road when the accident occurred.

When they failed to show up for work Wednesday men at the camp formed a search party and backtracked along the road to Campbell River.

On a trestle about a mile above the Upper Campbell Lake dam they found a water barrel had been knocked out of place and merks where a car could have gone over the edge.

Negotiations "Rolling" In GM Strike

DETROIT (AP) — Negotiators for General Motors Corporation and the United Auto Workers Union concentrated on local, at-the-plant demands Wednesday in efforts to end a costly U.S.-wide strike of some 260,000 assembly line workers.

"I think the thing has started to roll," said Louis Seaton, GM vice-president in charge of personnel.

The strike, which GM said is costing the workers some $7,000,000 daily in wages, was called last Friday when negotiations failed to reach agreement on non-economic issues, such as working conditions, union representation and disciplinary procedures.

Both sides reported there is virtual agreement on money matters along with the general pattern of an economic package negotiated earlier this month with GM's chief competitors, Ford Motor Company and Chrysler Corp.

This includes higher pensions, increased wages, longer vacations, additional holidays and other fringe benefits.

In what the union terms selective strike strategy, workers have walked out only at plants producing GM's 1965 automobiles.

An estimated 90,000 others continued reporting for work at GM plants which turn out parts and accessories sold to other automotive firms, thus exerting maximum pressure on GM for a settlement.

From all indications, no agreement is expected to be wrapped up before next week.

Sawlogs Off In September, Up for Year

Despite noticeable gains in September in the production of fir, balsam, and larch, the total sawlog production in the Nelson Forest District was sharply lower than that of 1963.

The production of hemlock was almost halved and minor declines were reported in cedar, white pine and lodgepole pine.

Although the monthly totals for September showed loss in production in 1964, the total production for the year to date has shown a rise of more than 42 million board feet in comparison with the figure for last year. Increased production of cottonwood, yellow pine and spruce contributed to this year's additional output to date.

In minor products, the production of poles and piles fell to less than one-half of its 1963 total and the output of mine timbers dwindled to nothing. Only the production of cordwood showed a sign of increase, but only slightly.

The following list shows the 1964 production figures, with the 1963 figures in brackets:

Spectacular Fighter Launched by U.S.

SANTA BARBARA Calif. (AP)—A new jet fighter designed to knock down any bomber known in the world bolted down a runway and into the sky Wednesday at nearby Edwards Air Force base in a breath-taking display of the new U.S. defence power.

The YF-12A once called the A-11 was deliberately kept below its plus - 2000-mile-an-hour top speed in the demonstration, the first public showing since the interceptor was announced by President Johnson last February.

Air force officials told reporters the YF-12A has more than doubled the range at which U.S. fighters can intercept invading bombers and is "many times superior" to current aircraft such as the F-106 in detecting and knocking down hostile aircraft.

Col. A. K. McDonald of the air defence command, Colorado Springs Colo. displayed charts indicating YF-12As based as far away as Tucson Ariz. can with a few minutes alert hit a fleet of bombers attacking from the north before they can cross Canada.

Also disclosed for the first time was a 2000 - mile - an-hour missile called A.I.M. 47 which the twin-tailed YF-12A carries in its thin 90-foot-long fuselage. The initials A.I.M. stand for air intercept missile.

Launched from an YF-12A going 2000 miles an hour McDonald said an A.I.M. 47 rocket can approach its target at a combined speed of 4000 miles an hour—six times the speed of sound.

The nuclear - tipped radar-guided rocket has a proximity fuse and does not need to score a direct hit.

E. Lowenberg Gets Sentinel Scholarship

SOUTH SLOCAN — Mrs. N. Baker of the Mt. Sentinel Scholarship Committee has announced that Miss Emily Lowenberg of South Slocan, a June graduate of Mount Sentinel Jr.-Sr. Secondary School, has won the 1964 Scholarship of $200.

Miss Lowenberg is enrolled at University of British Columbia. Well known in the Slocan Valley, she was formerly a student at W. E. Graham Secondary School at Slocan.

The scholarship announcement was made at the first meeting of the South Slocan School and Community Club, when incoming president, Mrs. B. Hyland, presided.

A letter was read from J. H. Harding, senior traffic engineer, Department of Highways at Victoria, declining the community's request for a portable flashing amber signal to be placed on No. 3 Highway where the children from No. 3 Plant cross to attend school. This was thoroughly discussed. Mr. Harding's suggestion of a school patrol to hold back the children until a safe crossing gap in traffic occurred resulted in an offer from Mrs. D. Kuchar to patrol the children herself, each day. Her offer was accepted by the Club.

Mrs. J. Jacobson was named refreshment convener for the year.

Welcome to the community of South Slocan was extended to Miss Shields and Mr. McKee, principal, of the Elementary School staff.

MULTIPLE SCHOLARSHIPS AIM

R. Ring, Principal of Mt. Sentinel Secondary School congratulated the Club on their annual contribution of a Scholarship to student graduates of the School. He noted that in 1963, due to available funds, four Scholarships of $200 were awarded. He suggested the club spearhead a drive for further funds to make multiple Scholarships available every year. Ways and means of raising such monies over and above the annual drive now held, were discussed, with the resulting decision to hold a Benefit Dance in the early Spring. The annual drive for funds will be held in November as well.

Mrs. Pat Conkin chairs the committee set up to organize the Benefit Dance.

Dr. Coy Reports On Holiday Highway 93

INVERMERE — Dr. F. E. Coy of Invermere reported to the September meeting of the Windermere District Chamber of Commerce on the annual convention of the North American (Holiday) Highway 93 Association held at Hinton, Alta.

Representatives from Alaska, Alberta, British Columbia, Montana, Nevada, Idaho and Arizona were present.

Dr. Coy said, "The objective of the association is to develop a paved all-year highway extending from Fairbanks, Alaska, to Panama City. The southern end of the highway is gradually being achieved. Of the 10,000 miles of highway, only 1700 miles remain to be paved, 1200 on the Alaska Highway and 500 through the Central American countries."

The convention decided to prepare a new brochure adding four more pages to cover Central America and to print 20,000 copies for distribution, Dr. Coy reported. He said, "A new television film is to be prepared covering the whole route, and three extra copies will be printed for showing in schools and to service clubs and travel clubs."

Archdeacon F. D. Wyatt attended the meeting, when arrangements were made to serve refreshments following th Sunday Church Service when members of the Church of the Redeemer Choir and congregation were in attendance, to celebrate St. Matthew's Day.

Mrs. W. Baker will be the delegate to the Deanery meeting being held in Fruitvale October 8.

Members of the W.A. will arrange for collection of fruit and vegetables for the Harvest Festival to be held October 11.

ELECTROHOME

with new TRANSISTORIZED performance

In Store Demonstration — Today - Friday - Saturday!

Why Transistors? Here's the Story:

People interested in stereo sound will certainly want to know about the advantages that transistors hold over tube construction. Added to all the other amazing features offered by Electrohome units (in such areas as changers, cartridges, wattage, stylus, speakers, tuners, FM switch, frequency control, multiplex, and so on), the following advantages add up to quite a story for 1965.

1—Freedom from microphonics. This is especially important in high gain preamplifier stages where input signal levels are low.

2—No warm-up time delay. The second you turn your set "on", it is "on".

3—Cooler operation. Heat contributes more to the failure of components than any other single factor.

4—Long life. Generally speaking, transistors will outlast tubes by a margin of ten to one.

5—Compact. Less space is required to do the same job, thereby permitting better use of the available space.

6—Fewer "hum" sources to contend with. Eliminates heater to cathode leakages and filament lead dressing problems.

7—Less thermal background noise or hiss. In most applications transistor low impedance circuits generate less hiss than their high impedance tube counterparts.

8—Lower power consumption. A greater percentage of the available power is converted to its ultimate use instead of being wasted in the form of heat dissipation.

9—Extremely rugged. They can generally withstand very severe environmental surroundings.

10—Low operating voltages. All other things being equal, low operating voltages means that there is less likelihood of failure by components due to voltage flashover.

The new, perfected "Solid State" sound in home entertainment by Electrohome is a built-in feature in nearly all Stereo and many TV units for 1965. Here is unmatched performance and reliability, the result of four years of research into the use of transistors.

Sound is now cleaner, purer than ever; richer in the bass levels. Performance is now far more reliable and service-free, with greatly increased component life . . . a major breakthrough in the industry. Come and see these exciting new models at the Bay . . . or phone us at 352-2755 and ask for a free home demonstration.

Centennial Club Must Get Down to Business

The time has arrived when the Nelson Centennial Club must terminate its internal wrangling and state of abject indecision.

A year has passed since the inception of the committee, and what has been produced as a result of months of deliberations? Precious little, and this is obviously due in large measure to the state of confusion and misunderstanding existing in the ranks of the centennial committee.

An example of the indecision and time wasting was evident at the Tuesday meeting when, after two hours deliberations, little was decided which would enhance promulgation of the intended centennial project. Internal consternation and lack of information caused some harsh comments at the meeting.

Leadership seems to be lacking in this important organization when it is needed badly. At present the organization is like a flock of sheep, not knowing where to turn next.

The Centennial group should take stock of its present unhealthy situation, resolve it without delay and knuckle down to its appointed task.

What the Nelson Centennial Club needs is the appearance of a true spirit of dedicated service and working-togetherness which, at present is not possessed. The club should get it quickly.

During the meetings plans were unveiled for provision of a heated indoor swimming pool of near-Olympic standards to cost in the region of $250,000. This project would best be forgotten. Even with federal assistance citizens of Nelson should not be asked to provide such a large sum for a centennial project.

Mayor E. T. Bodard made what seems a sensible suggestion, in that the present badminton hall in the Civic Centre could be converted into an indoor pool at a much reduced cost. The Centennial Club should give this proposal serious consideration.

Nelson's committee might also take a look at the operation of the Castlegar-Kinnaird Centennial Committee. They have been in active operation for less than a month and already have virtually decided their project. There also, service clubs have suggested projects for submission to the Centennial Committee.

Mr. Diefenbaker Draws Blood

If there is one thing a politician ought not to do, it is to lose his temper in public. And if there is one thing Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker is good at, it is making other politicians lose their tempers in public, especially Finance Minister Walter Gordon.

Mr. Diefenbaker was at the top of his infuriating form this week when he surprised the Government benches in the House of Commons by announcing that he would not move a motion of non-confidence in the Government during the debate on supply. "We have no confidence in the Government," he went on winningly, paused to deliver a number of broadsides against absent Prime Minister Lester Pearson, and concluded with the statesmanlike declaration that his party was only anxious to get on with the nation's business.

All of this brought Mr. Gordon to an enraged defence, through clenched teeth, of Mr. Pearson as "the greatest Canadian of his generation", and a general trading of insults with a delighted Opposition.

The honors were all Mr. Diefenbaker's. Why, one is moved to wonder, does he waste time on filibusters when a few well-placed barbs will do the job?

Nik's Favorite

Canadian politicians have many distasteful chores to do, and often complain of their hard lot. But in one respect at least, they are better off than Premier Nikita Khrushchev of Russia. They never have to act as hucksters for horse meat.

According to a report in Pravda, Mr. Khrushchev, during a recent tour in Kazahkstan, waxed lyrical on the merits of the horse as a meat course. Cried he:

"Nothing tastes better than 'friendship sausage' made from horse meat and pork. Fried horse meat is remarkable. It is worth while to develop horse breeding to supplement meat resources.

"He who cannot eat horse meat need not do so. Let him eat pork. But he who cannot eat pork, let him eat horse meat."

Behind this appeal lie some of the hard realities of Soviet life. Meat is in chronically short supply, and Soviet planners doubtless figure that the rations might go a little further if people could be persuaded to try horse meat.

Another complication in the food situation is the fact that some 25,000,000 Soviet citizens are Moslems, forbidden by their religion to eat pork, the commonest meat in Russia. It is perhaps no coincidence that Mr. Khrushchev's ode to Dobbin was delivered in the heart of the Moslem belt — "he who cannot eat pork, let him eat horse meat."—Toronto Star.

Ego in Flower

Independence for some states is a heady thing, as the once Dark Continent of Africa is demonstrating these days. The ego easily becomes enlarged.

Thus, for instance, the statement by a Kenya cabinet minister, before his own parliament, that African members of the Commonwealth might expel Britain from this assembly if she continues to supply arms to South Africa.

That will be the day.

It is nevertheless one that could come about as these newfound African members of this former comity of British nations flex their political muscles, although not quite in the fashion this Kenya minister imagines. Already they talk and act as though they would like to take over the Commonwealth and dominate its councils.

And their bent is to fashion all-African control of their own continent, forming in effect a commonwealth of their own.

But the Commonwealth without Britain would be Hamlet without the Prince. Kenya and its fellows would be left to rue their own, with possibly the original white-nation Commonwealth back where it started. There are some who even now think this wouldn't be a bad thing.

Indeed, so far from the democratic concepts of Commonwealth ethos are some of these new member states, there would be reason enough for them to be expelled.

ALTERNATIVE ROUTE FOR POWER FLOW — Premier Joey Smallwood wants power for Newfoundland from the Hamilton Falls development in Labrador. He has suggested a route through Newfoundland and the Maritimes to the United States. Underwater cables would carry power across the Strait of Belle Isle and Cabot Strait. Robert H. Winters, chairman and chief executive officer of the British Newfoundland Corporation, the firm developing the area, has said that for reasons of geography, Quebec is the logical customer for the power from the falls. But Quebec is at odds with the company over the price of the power.

Interpreting the News

By CARMAN CUMMING
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Confusions and frustrations of the Viet Nam war are being reflected on the domestic political scene in the United States.

The erratic fortunes of the Washington-backed South Vietnamese government have made it difficult for the two presidential candidates to make firm policy commitments.

And the U.S. public, exasperated but lacking a clear picture of the political and military situation in South Viet Nam, is caught in the middle.

President Johnson has campaigned on the approach that the United States won't abandon the South Vietnamese to the Communist guerrilla forces supplied and directed by North Viet Nam. But he says the U.S. "intends no rashness and seeks no wider war."

At the same time there are hints of a tougher approach.

COULD EXPAND

Last Saturday a flurry of news stories emerged from Washington, with an authoritative ring, saying Johnson was reported to have decided that, if Communist planes attacked U.S. naval forces off Viet Nam, U.S. fighters would be authorized to chase them back across the Chinese border if necessary.

And on Tuesday, state department official William P. Bundy spoke in Tokyo of the possibility that the war might be expanded. He said the U.S. does not want or seek any expansion but it "could be forced upon us by the increased external pressures of the Communists, including a rising scale of infiltration."

Only one day earlier, Johnson had taken a more cautious approach in a New Hampshire speech.

"I want to be very cautious in dropping bombs that would involve our boys in Asia with 700,000,000 Chinese," he said. "We're not going north and drop bombs at this stage of the game, and we're not going south and run out and let the Communists take over."

In the other camp, Republican Barry Goldwater has been making considerable political capital of the deteriorating situation but has been less than specific in recommending solutions.

NO BACKBONE CHARGED

Goldwater says the Johnson administration stumbled into a war that it does not know how to end; that Johnson has "hundreds of lives and hundreds of lies to answer for, and that Johnson and his advisers "have wishbone where they need a backbone."

In essence, both candidates seem to be tied to a position they don't care for but don't dare change.

Goldwater, after raising a storm of protest with his suggestion low-yield nuclear bombs might be used to cut off infiltration from North Viet Nam, has contended himself largely with criticizing the government position.

Johnson, faced with a deterioration situation, seems reluctant to put forward any radically new solutions that might turn into political dynamite.

So he is expected to continue a hanging-on operation, at least until the Nov. 3 voting, while indirectly warning the Communists not to take advantage of the campaign with new manoeuvres.

Politicians And Gods Are Not Far Apart

By RUKMINI DEVI
Canadian Press Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP)—The margin between Indian politics and the gods was never so thin as at present.

In the current national festival of Lord Ganpati, the bestower of good luck and plenty, the four - armed, elephant-headed god seems to have assumed a determined political posture.

One nine-foot golden image of the elephant god, worshipped by thousands in Parel, Bombay's labor area, shows him in the company of the late prime minister Nehru. Above them flutters a banner with these words: "Let's be true to the memory of beloved Nehru!"

Hundreds of Ganpati images, big and small, have been installed in Bombay and other Indian cities for public worship. Many of them have political motifs.

Not far from the American Consulate is an elephant god with bright hammer-and-sickle flags in all his four hands. Even the paper flowers are red. An inscription above the image reads: "Intensify the struggle against capitalism!"

WORSHIPS DAILY

A dainty princess of the former maharajah - ruled Indian state of Kolhapur walks from her Malabar Hill flat every morning to worship a small image of the elephant god set up by pro-Communist taxi drivers. The image shows Lord Ganpati raising one foot in a symbolic ejection of a figure representing "European colonialism."

There are also Ganpati images in an anti-Communist stance. "Beware of Indian Communist traitors," proclaims a banner spread over one Ganpati image.

Prime Minister Shastri seems popular with followers of the elephant god. There are many images showing Lord Ganpati blessing the young Shastri government.

Some Indians think that this mixture of politics and the elephant god has been carried too far. "Why bring the lord into the arena of ideological controversy?" asked a college student.

But most people seem to be convinced that the mixture is not only pleasing but that it may even do some good to Indian politics.

"We need some of the elephant god's idealism," said one Indian.

Word of Life

God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble. Therefore will not we fear, though the earth be removed, and though the mountains be carried into the midst of the Sea. Psalm 46:1,2.

Barren Waste of Northeast Canada Becomes Hub of Industrial Action

By GERRY McNEIL

QUEBEC (CP) — Those who have visions about the north usually look northwest. But they would have a hard time imagining what's been going on in Canada's northeast.

Since 1950, roughly $2,000,000,000 has been invested beyond the Saguenay and there is no sign of a slowdown in this fantastic development.

Baie-Comeau now ships more grain than Quebec City, and Sept-Iles has developed into a bustling centre of iron ore shipments.

Mining towns such as Gagnon, Schefferville and Knob Lake, complete with everything from bungalow to bowling alley, have been planted in a Quebec wilderness so rugged even the Indians left.

And the hydro-electric power developments have been ambitious enough to cause the Russians, recognized experts in this field, to come over for a look.

By autumn, 1965, power from the Manicouagan-Outardes development will be humming to Montreal on 735 kilovolt lines, the greatest in the world.

By 1970, the project will be generating 6,000,000 horsepower.

Meanwhile, preparations for another 6,000,000 - horsepower project are under way at Hamilton Falls in Labrador, 250 miles northeast of the Manicouagan development.

Quebec's northeast had a turbine capacity of 83,000 horsepower in 1950, but this has since grown to 2,700,000.

HUGE INVESTMENT

So far, $600,000,000 has gone into power development. Quebec-Hydro will spend $170,000,000 this year on the Manicouagan-Outardes project, and this and the Hamilton Falls development may eat up another $1,000,000,000 by 1970.

Meanwhile, three iron ore companies have invested $1,200,000,00 in Northeastern Quebec and Labrador.

Iron Ore Company of Canada made its first shipments from a $50,000,000 complex 10 years ago. Quebec Cartier Mining Company began shipments in 1961 after a $300,000,000 investment.

Wabush Iron Ore is developing a $300,000,000 project, including a $50,000,000 pelletizing plant now under construction at Pointe-Noire near Sept-Iles.

The 55,000,000-ton plant, which will concentrate ore into pellets easier to handle, may be in operation next year.

Things began to boom in 1950, when Quebec Iron and Titanium started shipping titanium ore from Havre St. Pierre, northeast of Sept-Iles, to Sorel, near Montreal.

This single development attracted three major plants to Quebec—Atlas Steel, Canadian Titanium Pigments and British Titan Products.

The iron ore developments and the 2,055,000 - horsepower Bersimis River power development followed. In 1957, Canadian British Aluminium Company produced its first ingot at Baie-Comeau.

MAJOR GRAIN PORT

A 13,000,000-bushel grain elevator was built at this port near the mouth of the Manicouagan in 1959 and Baie-Comeau as a result is becoming one of the busiest grain handlers on the east coast.

Meanwhile, Quebec North Shore Paper Company, which developed the community in the first place, is completing installation of a 90,000-ton newsprint machine, bringing its mill capacity to 2,700,000 tons.

Between newsprint, aluminum, grain and the activity caused by the Manicouagan project to the north, the 12,000 residents of Baie-Comeau are anything but idle.

Neighboring Hauterive also is developing, and has a population of 9,000. Meanwhile, Sept-Iles has bloomed into a major centre of 25,000 population.

Since 1950, the population of the north shore has nearly tripled to 110,000 residents. Minnesota iron men and Montreal engineers mingle with a population that once depended on fish for a living.

Since the coast produces practically nothing in the way of food, nearly everything is shipped in, and the coastal trade is booming. It has been partially responsible for the development of Quebec City as a year-round port, and suppliers now are investing in ships that are ice-reinforced.

Volume of cargo at the principal lower St. Lawrence and Gulf Ports in 1952 was a mere 5,000,000 tons, but it had zoomed to 28,000,000 in 1962.

During the winter of 1956-57, Baie-Comeau, Port Cartier and Sept-Iles handled 30,000 tons of cargo. The figure was 1,800,000 tons in the winter of 1962-63.

That noise heard in the northeast isn't the snoring sound of the visionary. It's the boom of the builder in an area that gets so cold the steel freezes, and the Christmas trees grow upside down—the big branches at the top to catch the sun.

Former Warfare Specialist Now UN Peace-Keeping Expert

By CARMAN CUMMING

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Oddly, one of Canada's top experts in the art of peace-keeping used to be a specialist on chemical warfare.

The army loaned William H. Barton to the Defence Research Board. DRB loaned him to external affairs. Once borrowed, he has never returned.

And so the wartime major who showed sappers how to lob gas bombs now is preoccupied with shaping United Nations machinery to prevent war.

That is only one of the contradictions of Bill Barton, 46, No. 2 man of Canada's UN mission, who left for Ottawa Sept. 11 to head the external affairs department's UN division.

Stocky, restless and gregarious, Barton neither looks nor talks like a diplomat. But he has the reputation of a professional who gets things done.

Normally good-humored and friendly, he is capable of straight, blunt talking.

"I've even known him to show temper, but only by design, never by accident," says a fellow Commonwealth diplomat.

"He got results, too."

Barton shows impatience with diplomatic doubletalk and never uses it himself. But he has seemingly endless patience in the protracted hair-splitting that goes into even the simplest UN action.

CHIEF LIEUTENANT

As chief lieutenant of Ambassador Paul Tremblay, Barton has been responsible for much of the spade work of Canadian initiatives over the last three years.

Typically, a dull committee meeting would see him roaming unobtrusively about the conference hall, jacket open and hands thrust deep in his pockets, talking to delegate after delegate.

At lunchtime he would be in a corridor alcove, going over a draft resolution with an aide and pencilling in the exact phrase or word to satisfy conflicting views.

Canada's interest in peace-keeping has kept Barton at the edge — and often smack at the storm centre—of the looming showdown on peace - force financing that could see the Soviet Union lose its General Assembly vote when the next session opens in November.

His toughest UN assignment came in a preliminary round of the same issue.

This was the search in mid-1963 for a formula to finance the Congo and Middle East force. It was an almost classic case of UN horse trading. Every group in the UN was divided over the issue and the Soviet bloc was on the sidelines, refusing to pay anything towards the two forces.

FORMULA ACCEPTED

Months of preparatory work, culminating in six weeks of hard negotiation at a special assembly session, produced a formula that no one liked. But it won grudging acceptance by a majority and the UN soldiers remained in the field.

Barton was chairman of the unofficial negotiating group, drawn from various blocs, which worked out the compromise. Fellow delegates gave him a large measure of credit for the success.

Barton himself says the issue provided a good example of Canada's UN role.

"We didn't get the headlines but behind the scenes, through quiet negotiations, we kept the thing going and finally emerged with a solution."

In certain areas, he said, Canada is in a position to do an effective negotiating job because of recognized loyalty to the UN.

"We have no axes to grind, no strings. People will listen to us and talk to us if we go about it the right way."

Born in Winnipeg, Barton was brought up in Vancouver and went into the army in 1940 after graduation from the University of British Columbia.

His work on chemical warfare led to a part in planning the Defence Research Board. The army seconded him to the DRB when it was established in 1946 and he stayed six years in a variety of posts, becoming secretary of the board in 1950.

NAMED SECRETARY

Two years later external affairs borrowed him "for a year" to help with foreign relations aspects of atomic energy and radar lines planning. He was named secretary of the Canadian - U.S. permanent joint board on defence and served as drafting officer for the DEW line agreement between the two countries.

He also had a part in planning the International Atomic Energy Agency. This led to a Vienna posting in 1956 and appointment as alternate Canadian representative on the agency when it was formally set up in the Austrian capital a year later.

In 1960 he returned to Ottawa as head of the department's defence liaison division and in 1961 he moved on to the UN.

Barton's return to Ottawa comes just before the expected climax of the peace-keeping issue. He is confident a compromise will emerge to avoid a showdown over Russia's voting rights.

"I don't think any member of the UN—no matter how much they differ on what they think it should or shouldn't do—wants to see it wrecked," he says.

High Quality a Symbol Of London's Bond Street

By MARGARET CONLIN

LONDON (AP)—Bond Street's very name is the trademark of quality.

Extending from Piccadilly to Oxford Street, its quarter-mile of glassed and gilded windows, doorways and showcases constitute a tight little enclave of richness without ostentation that exudes luxury, craftsmanship, good taste — and altitudinous prices.

Bond Street is, in fact, so high class that to refer to its establishments as stores or shops sems almost an affront to delicancy.

Within deep-carpeted interiors are fastidious but highly knowledgeable men and women dealing with the public (some of them would probably faint if you called them clerks) who won't even use the word "sell."

They avoid that crass, commercial verb with such circumlocutions as:

"We recently supplied one of our clients with . . . ."

"One of our patrons obtained from us . . . ."

"We were able to provide Her Royal Highness with . . . ."

Along Bond Street you can find everything from tinned kangaroo tail soup to lace-trimmed bed sheets retailing at £100 a pair.

The names of some of its establishments are known around the globe—Cartiers, The White House, Asprey, Justerini and Brooks, Frank Partridge and Sons, and just around the corner on Piccadilly, Fortnum and Mason, where grocery-shop assistants wear morning clothes.

Sotheby's, the famous auctioneers, are in Bond Street. Already this year, its total sales have soared beyond £11,000,000.

Bond Street also houses the famous firm of William E. Hill, who will repair your Stradivarius or sell you one.

The premises of The White House are one floor, floded with daylight from a vast are of skylighting. It shuns artificial lighting so that mothers don't have to take little Jane outside to see if the blue of a certain frock matches the blue of her eyes.

Linen, napkins, pillow cases and children's wear are made by hand. The management is so deeply concerned about the care of these goods that it maintains its own laundry.

Like a small, excited boy showing his treasures, Eric Asprey himself showed a visitor around his premises.

"Aren't they lovely?" he asked, showing off a pair of silver birds with ruby eyes, cheap at £950.

One item was a shooting stick with a transistor radio in the seat. When you get bored with the point-to-point racing, you tune in the Oxford-Cambridge rugby match.

At most Bond Street establishments, chairs are provided for the customers and if a woman shopper is accompanied by a man, there will be two chairs.

NO ADVERTISING

One Bond Street shop, Beale and Inman, is so conservative that it has never advertised in its 150 years of business.

"It's against our principles," explained an official. He seemed pained at the very thought of mention in print.

This establishment makes shirts, ties and pajamas and, as is the case with many other Bond Street shops, numbers among its customers kings, princes, maharajas, sheiks and eastern potentates.

Sir Thomas Bond planned the street 278 years ago. Bond Street is actually two streets — New Bond is the section near Oxford Street; Old Bond the part near Piccadilly.

Officials and employees of Bond Street shops are extremely polite, whether you buy or not.

Sir Gerald Kelly, 85-year-old past president of Britain's Royal Academy, once said:

"Bond Street is an entire little world. For many, many years I've gone there not only to shop, but to look at the beautiful girls. Like the street's shops, they must be the most elegant and expensive in the world."

CIVIL DEFENCE

Because Civil Defence is "Your Business" everyone should be familiar with its aims and objects. Your safety and welfare are both involved.

"Do you HAVE to call in the neighbors for consultation?"

CWL Looks Back On Active Summer, Plans Fall Events

The summer's activities were reviewed at the first fall meeting of the Cathedral Catholic Women's League held in the Cathedral Hall.

A busy and successful summer was indicated by the treasurer's report presented by Miss Elizabeth McKinnon. President Mrs. M. J. Boyes told of catering by the C.W.L. for three wedding receptions, the Notre Dame University president's cocktail party and the farewell coffee party for Father Lynch, expressing her thanks to all who had assisted.

She asked for help in filling three convenerships, the citizenship, radio-TV-films and press.

Plans were made to help with the mobile TB clinic, operating in Nelson September 24 to October 3.

Annual Youth Day will be observed October 1, it was noted by Mrs. E. Boechler, who read an article regarding the event from the League Magazine.

Mrs. W. Palmer, in her Altar Guild report, stressed the need for more helpers to fill in for members who had to give up the work or who had left the parish.

Mrs. E. Edgar's Prospector report indicated success in subscription campaigning. Mrs. Edgar stated that in her work on the hospital visiting committee, she had made a total of 117 visits to homes, Kootenay Lake General Hospital and Mount St. Francis during the summer.

Mrs. E. Pepin spoke on the work of the bazaar committee. Mrs. E. Thast will be in charge of the candy booth and a penny auction will be convened by Mrs. J. G. James, who explained the new event for the benefit of the members.

Msgr. F. J. Monaghan led a discussion on topic of concern to the parish, including assistance to a family who had recently lost their home and contents in a fire at Slocan City.

Ainsworth

AINSWORTH HOT SPRINGS — Mr. and Mrs. Peter Read and sons left for Vancouver. Mr. Read will continue his studies in geology before leaving for New Zealand in December, where he will be teaching the following term.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bershl and David have left for Calgary, where they plan to spend the winter.

24 Girls Waiting for Guide, Brownie Leaders

CRANBROOK — More than two dozen Cranbrook girls have been listed by the Cranbrook Girl Guide Association, adult sponsoring group, as ready to enroll in Girl Guide companies or Brownie packs as soon as additional volunteer leaders can be obtained, the Association reports.

Girl Guide program for the season is already under way for the three companies, about 110 girls, for whom leaders were available, but the companies are already enrolled to complete capacity. Brownies start in October, and 125 younger girls have filled to capacity the four packs for which there were leaders. The Association, of which Mrs. Robert Wheeler is president and Mrs. Arthur Jones secretary, is urgently calling for volunteers, women who were themselves Guides or who enjoy working with Brownie and Guide age groups in various courses leading to badges.

Girl Guides themselves are manning a Good Deed no-charge baby-sitting service for women with young families who will volunteer for regular leader work. District Guide Commissioner is Mrs. C. W. Brockington, and city Commissioner Mrs. R. S. Inglis. Among leader skills needed are knitting, darning and semaphors leading to badge testing, with badge committee members Mrs. J. H. Zwick, Mrs. Jack Walkley, Mrs. J. T. McGovern and Mrs. James Dalman.

Separate adult committee has been established this year to care for Guide Hall matters.

Imagination Runs Riot in Candle Making, Anything Goes in Molds

By JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP) — If you want to try candle making, you need only a few special ingredients — paraffin wax, color buds, wicks, a bit of plasticene.

Most of them are available in hardware or hobby stores. Wicking may be difficult to find, but it is worth trying, because string is not an altogether satisfactory substitute.

The rest of your tools and moulds you will find in the kitchen, says Inge Lange, consultant for the Candle Making Institute, and owner of a Toronto candle shop.

You need a double boiler; a ladle or spoon for filling moulds; a knife to cut blocks of wax or spread wax frosting; a fork for beating slightly cooled wax to make frosting; scissors for trimming wicks and ornaments; all - purpose glue to attach decorations; a skewer or large paper clip for supporting wicks in certain types of moulds; cooking oil to grease the inside of moulds.

Use your imagination, says Mrs. Lange, and you can find moulds everywhere. Milk cartons, plastic containers, paper cups, tin cans, tubes from wax and foil papers, food moulds, egg shells, vases and bowls will all serve.

The main thing to be certain of is that the candle will come out of the mould easily. Unless you want to destroy the mould, the top should be the same size or larger than the rest of the container, and should be smooth.

ORGANIZE FIRST

The first step is the same first step a good cook uses. "Get everything organized right from the beginning. Have everything handy. Cover your working area with newspaper or aluminum to keep it clean." A candle in a paper cup might be the simplest to try first.

Cut the wax into large pieces to melt in medium heat over a double boiler. Coat the inside of a paper cup with cooking oil.

Thread about nine inches of wick through a hole in the bottom of the cup. Tie a slip-knot in the end of the wick at the bottom to hold it outside the cup and pull it snug. Then seal the hole with plasticene.

Cut two V notches in the rim of the cup to hold a skewer. Pull wicking firmly over the rod and down the side of the cup. Hold it in place with a rubber band.

Put cup on foil to catch any overflow of wax.

When wax is melted, if you are going to use color, shave a small amount into the boiler and blend it. Wax crayons may be used, but will probably make only light shades.

Ladle about one-half inch of melted wax into the bottom of the cup and let it cool slightly before filling the mould to within a quarter of an inch of the rod.

Save some wax for use as the candle cools. As it does, a hollow will form. When it is quite deep, puncture three holes with something like a knitting needle, and pour more wax in. Repeat until the wax stops receding.

Let the candle set at room temperature for six to eight hours. Then cut off the slipknot, remove the rubber band, turn the mould upside down and tap gently.

The candle may be trimmed with whatever ornaments appeal to you.

Do not pour leftover wax down a sink drain. The best way to clean utensils is to heat them in water in the boiler until they are free of wax. Then set the boiler aside to cool and skim off the wax that forms on the surface.

FRUITVALE — Harvest Festival to be held Sunday, was topic at the recent meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of St. John's Anglican Church in Fruitvale.

Plans were made to decorate the church at a cleaning bee, which was held Wednesday after the 9:30 service. All women's groups had been asked to participate.

At the meeting, a short story was read by Mrs. A. Messer, entitled "The Third Knott".

A questionnaire from Mrs. Hope of New Denver asked about ideas for celebration of St. John's first anniversary, November 20.

Kalfsnieren Recipe Comes From Dutch

From the Dutch kitchen comes a recipe for Veal Kidneys or Kalfsnieren, which are kidneys soaked, simmered, then sauteed in bread crumbs.

KALFSNIEREN: 2 veal kidneys, 2 cups bouillon, ½ bay leaf, ¼ teaspoon salt and pepper, ½ small onion, 1 egg, breadcrumbs, 3 tablespoons butter.

Soak the kidneys in water for 2 hours, changing the water twice. Simmer for ½ hour in the bouillon with bay leaf, salt, pepper and onion. Cut them into slices. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Dip them in the egg diluted with 2 tablespoons of water, roll in the bread crumbs, saute them in butter. Makes four servings.

Receives Gold Medal

Dutch Grandmother Heads Touring Firm With Six Sons

Heading a well-known Dutch touring car enterprise is great-grandmother van Olffen of Amsterdam, who last month celebrated her 90th birthday. She then was the radiant soul of a reception held in her honor in one of Amsterdam's best known hotels.

She is as active as if she were half her age. She enjoys directing the 37 tourist buses on their trips all over Europe.

The Lindbergh Touringscar Ltd. was established on Mrs. van Olffen's initiative some 50 years ago, in co-operation with her late husband. She is the president of the family business. Other members of the flourishing company are her six sons, for besides setting up a touring car business, Mrs. van Olffen raised a family of eight. Her sons, respectively business partners, for the most part are grandfathers themselves.

The 90-year-old president holds the reins firmly in hand. No new bus is purchased without her consent. For it was her idea, way back, to enlarge her husband's small transport business with one passenger bus. "We didn't plan any big trips, just occasionally from Amsterdam to The Hague," Mrs. van Olffen recalls, "we could get the bus cheaply, so we thought we might give it a try."

That small try opened the way to the busy trans - European touringcar enterprise.

Mrs. van Olffen lives all by herself in Amsterdam, where else than above the Lindbergh garage? From her window she watches the comfortable luxury buses with their loads of tourists depart and arrive, from Switzerland, to France, or Spain; or to Belgium and Germany, Austria.

Only recently she abandoned her habit of waiting up late for long-distance drivers arriving in the small hours of the night, with coffee ready for them or, in winter, piping hot peasoup.

Mrs. van Olffen's achievements found recognition with the authorities. In 1962, her hard-working life received its crown when the mayor of Amsterdam pinned on her the gold medal of the Royal Order of Orange-Nassau.

In Mrs. van Olffen's opinion, "hard work kills nobody." "Look at me," she says, "my physician predicts that I might live to be a hundred." She looks forward to the years that still may be granted to her, to fill them with work for her transport enterprise.

IWA Approves Negotiation of Millwrights Training Program

VANCOUVER (CP)—The annual convention of the western district of the International Woodworkers of America (CLC) Tuesday approved renegotiation of its controversial millwrights' training program.

There was no opposition as 150 delegates approved a Courtenay resolution calling for the renegotiation of the plan that has been one of the contentious issues between warring factions in the 36,000 member district.

In other matters the convention asked that beer and wine be sold in grocery stores.

The IWA regional executive negotiated a millwright's training program with coast operators last year. But Syd Thompson, president of the 7,000-member Vancouver local, objected, saying that it did not have protection for men who had been millwrights for years.

Thompson protested to International president Al Hartung, who ruled that the executive had no right to negotiate the plan that had not been approved by the membership.

The program is one of the issues between president Jack Moore and his regional council and supporters of Thompson. Moore and Thompson clashed Monday over the operation of the strike fund.

Moore is standing for re-election, but in an interview Thompson refused to say whether he will personally oppose him.

The Courtenay resolution said there should be maximum protection for the present millwrights, a point to which Thompson previously objected.

There was no opposition, although Harry Jaeck of the Thompson-led local said that the previous training plan had unnecessary requirements.

The arithmetic required that a person have university entrance to cope with it.

Fred Fieber, secretary-treasurer of the region, sad that other training programs will have to be negotiated within the region that includes members in Alberta and Saskatchewan.

Ed Haw, of Victoria, said he supported the plan, but that maximum protection must be given to present millwrights. If a millwright wanted to continue his trade without a certificate from a training plan, he should be permitted to do so.

A Salmon Arm, B.C., resolution that was approved urged the provincial givernment permit the sale of beer and wine in grocery stores. The resolution said outlying areas do not have liquor stores in the immediate area, "thus causing the citizens in small communities a grave inconvenience."

Other resolutions called for amendments to Labor Relations Act to protect employees during periods of union organization and called on the IWA to intensify efforts to have anti-labor legislation abolished.

Constitution Discussion Before House for Initial Hearing

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP)—With a quick change of pace, the Commons Wednesday moved to the Canadian constitution after two days of wading slowly through an unlikely mixture of farm problems and parliamentary procedure.

The temporary break from a controversial government farm loan bill was taken Wednesday so members could discuss proposed formulas to repatriate the constitution. A formula, agreed to in principle by the provincial premiers earlier this month, will be studied in detail by Justice Minister Favreau and the 10 attorneys-general when they meet here next Monday and Tuesday.

Mr. Favreau is bringing his estimates before the Commons so members can express their views on the constitutional changes prior to the meetings. NDP Leader T. C. Douglas had sought such a debate.

The study of estimates continues Thursday and Friday. Then, the Commons will probably go back to the farm legislation, under which the government would guarantee loans to groups of farmers for machinery-buying purposes. Under the bill, the farm syndicate could get loans up to $15,000 per member or a total of $100,000.

An amendment by Terry Nugent (PC — Edmonton Strathcona) to refer the bill's subject matter to a committee prior to second reading — in effect it would kill the bill—was defeated by a vote of 120 to 61 Monday, with only Conservative members supporting the move.

PASSED BY VOICE

Immediately the bill came up for second reading, and it was passed so fast, without dissent, that Agriculture Minister Hays was not able to fulfill his request for a roll-call vote on the question.

A roll-call vote on second reading would require members to state their stand either for or against the principle of the bill. Mr. Hays argued that those in favor of Mr. Nugent's amendment were opposed to the principle of the bill, since the amendment would kill it.

Conservative members had said they were not opposed to the bill in principle, but wanted it referred to a committee for study.

Tuesday's procedural moves followed a more complex wrangle Monday when Gerald W. Baldwin (PC—Peace River) attempted to introduce a sub-amendment to Mr. Nugent's amendment. The sub-amendment would have the bill remain on the Commons order paper while the subject matter went to a committee prior to second reading. Deputy Speaker Lucien Lamoureux said the sub-amendment contradicted the amendment and it was ruled out of order.

Mr. Baldwin had said he could not support Mr. Nugent's amendment as it stood. He was not in the chamber when it was voted on Tuesday.

After going through second reading, the bill went into committee stage where it ran into a barrage of questions from the opposition benches.

WHAT IS LIVESTOCK?

What was the definition of livestock? asked Jack Horner (PC—Acadia). If it included the raising of horses, what about race horses? Or what about fur-farming?

Mr. Hays said officials of the farm credit corporation, under which the program would be administered, would define livestock in the "widest possible terms."

Former Conservative agriculture minister Alvin Hamilton wanted to know why the new program was not coming under the Farm Improvement Loan Act. Mr. Hays said the Farm Credit Corporation had the supervisory machinery already established, and under the Farm Improvement Act a downpayment of one-third was required while the new program required only one-fifth.

Mr. Horner also led the questioning about the definition of farm machinery—a definition the bill leaves in the hands of supervising officials.

Was a silo farm machinery? Or barbed wire? He asked whether farmers could import a pure-bred bull to improve their strain of cattle. Mr. Horner said such a bull should be classed as farm machinery, but Mr. Hays did not reply.

MAPLE LEAFS TRAINING CAMP OPENS TONIGHT

BY PAT McMAHON
Daily News Sports Editor

Nelson Maple Leafs training camp opens today, with coach Bobby Kromm still awaiting the arrival of some of his most highly rated newcomers.

The Queen city mentor had expected most of 1964-65 hopefuls to be on hand when equipment is meted out at 6:30 this evening, but learned yesterday that at least two of the players he hopes to land will be delayed ten days to two weeks.

Kromm's number one prospect, who's name he still refuses to divulge, has run into a snag in winding up his personal affairs and will be unable to leave his prairie home until the middle of the month.

Another newcomer, who expects to attend Notre Dame University is 20 year old Murray Owens, a high flying winger from the Okanagan Junior League who is currently attending the camp of the Portland Buckaroos, of the Western Hockey League.

Portland coach, Hal Laycoe, intends to use Owens in exibition games against Toronto Maple Leafs next week.

TOP SCORER

On the credit side of the ledger, Kromm announced 20 year old Larry Roberge, who led the Okanagan Junior Hockey League scorers last season, has arrived in Nelson for a tryout with the Leafs. A shifty centre ice man, Roberge clicked for 29 goals and 33 assists in a 35 game season last winter, while with the Kamloops Rockets.

Also in the city, to attend camp are Harvey Stoltz, a Kamloops product, and Leroy Mewery and Don Melin, from New Westminster.

Bill Orstwell, a winger attending the Portland camp, has forwarded his marks to Notre Dame for approval and has expressed an intention to try out for a berth on the squad.

DEFENCEMAN INJURED

Kromm's plans received a cruel blow, Wednesday with the news that Don Hughes, a 6'2" defenceman, attending New York Rangers' camp has suffered a broken wrist and will be out of action for the season. The Alberta rearguard had intended to toil for the Maple Leafs while attending University, in preference to turning pro with St. Paul of the Central Professional League.

The Leaf coach, said however, he is still in contact with a couple of promising young defencemen and hopes to have an announcement in the near future.

Gus Adams will be in the nets when training camp gets under way, but Kromm still has high hopes of signing another goaltender. He is presently awaiting word from Jim Letcher, who played one period for Vancouver Canucks against Boston Bruins in an exhibition contest last week.

"We'll have to take things slowly," Kromm said.

"We won't know just where we stand until some of the young players who have told us they want to play for the Leafs, arrive. I think we're shaping up real well, actually. We've got a couple of holes to plug but if we can get one or two of the boys we're dealing with, and if some of our youngsters produce, we'll be in real good shape."

ROSSLAND OPENS

Meanwhile, Rossland Warriors, the team everyone said couldn't ice a squad this year, opened training camp Monday, and 21 players answered coach Seth Martin's whistle.

On hand were returnees, Bud Andrews, Joe Paolone, Alex Reid, Ed LeGare, Sid Gallamore, Doran Hamilton, Bill Martin and Terry Brennon.

Ivan Susheski and Palmer Anderson, from last year's Trail Smoke Eaters were also on hand as was Joe Conn, an aging veteran who saw action with Springfield and Cleveland of the American Hockey League.

Rookie hopefuls attended the Warrior camp from Saskatoon, Edmonton and Flin Flon.

Also skating were Ad Tambellini and Hal Jones, but they are slated to leave for Europe within the next two weeks.

OAKLAND FANS WANT INDIANS

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—Business and civic leaders here sent a series of telegrams Wednesday in support of a bid seeking the transfer of the Cleveland Indians baseball team to this city.

Fourteen messages went to Cleveland president and general manager Gabe Paul and to William R. Daley, chairman of the board of directors.

Jim Stockman, chairman of a group which bid over $6,000,000 for the American League club, has offered to fly Paul and Daley to Oakland to study the proposal.

BRUINS BOMB RANGERS 6-2

WINNIPEG (CP) — Boston Bruins brushed aside a quick goal by New York to beat the Rangers 6-2 in a National Hockey League exhibition game before 4,800 fans Wednesday night.

Jean Ratelle scored for Rangers six seconds after the game started but Bruins stormed back to win on two goals by Ab McDonald and single tallies by Johnny Bucyk, Bob Leiter, Murray Oliver and Ron Schock. Val Fonteyne also scored for Rangers.

It was Boston's fourth victory in 13 exhibition matches. New York has won four, lost two and tied two pre-season games.

Ranger goaltender Jacques Plante faced 37 shots while at the other end, Ed Johnston faced 20.

It would be nice to say that White Hart needs no introduction but that wouldn't be the truth. Even though we at Lemon Hart have been making fine rums for generations, White Hart is rather unique. It took seven long years to develop the process; it has been matured to the exquisite colour of a fine white wine, retaining only the slightest haunting flavour of the most heavenly Demerara rum.

Now that you have been introduced, would you try White Hart. Experiment with it. Enjoy it in different ways . . . in soda, in tonic, as a Daiquiri. Imported with the greatest of pleasure, it's available now.

Yankees Sweep Doubleheader; Phillies Virtually Eliminated

A TEST, A SKID, AND DEATH—It was just a tire test at Charlotte, N. C., Motor Speedway, but it cost Jimmy Pardue, veteran stock car driver, his life. Pardue's racer slammed through a guard rail after a skid (as seen at left) and went down a 75-foot embankment. Pardue, 32, was rushed to a hospital after the accident but he died two hours later.

New York Moves to Within Two Games of AL Pennant

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

New York Yankees reduced the magic number they need to reach to clinch the American League pennant to two Wednesday night as they grabbed a doubleheader from Detroit Tigers 7-6 and 11-8.

And, at the same time, Baltimore Orioles almost dropped from view in the vanishing pennant race as they only managed a split with Washington Senators, losing 6-3 after winning 8-4 on a pair of solo homers by Jerry Adair and a single two-run homer by Jackie Brandt.

In another league doubleheader, Luis Tiant struck out 11 in the first game and Sam McDowell seven in the second as Cleveland Indians swept 5-0 and 3-0 shutouts from Boston Red Sox. In the only single game scheduled, Jimmie Hall and Don Mincher slammed out back-to back home runs as Minnesota Twins toppled Kansas City Athletics 6-1.

In the National League, St. Louis Cardinals maintained their slim lead with an 8-5 victory over the sagging Philadelphia Phillies and San Francisco Giants scored in the bottom of the 11th inning to edge Houston Colts 2-1.

Any combination of Yankee victories and defeats for the runners-up totalling two clinches the flag for New York.

Heavy hitting won the doubleheader for the Yanks, who have taken 13 of their last 14 games.

MANTLE HOMERS

Run-producing singles by Roger Maris and Elston Howard and a two-run double by Mickey Mantle knocked out Hank Aguirre in the first inning of the nightcap.

Mantle tagged his 35th home run of the season and Joe Pepitone also homered in the opener.

Baltimore's split, coupled with New York's sweep, left the Orioles four games behind—five in the lost column. Baltimore would have to win its three remaining games and the Yanks drop their last five for the teams to wind up in a tie.

Baltimore remained a half-game behind second-place Chicago White Sox who were idle and have four games remaining.

A 12-hit attack, featuring a two-run homer by Willie Kirkland, paved the way for Washington's second game triumph and Claude Osteen's 15th pitching victory.

Two of Baltimore's runs scored on Boog Powell's 38th homer in the third inning.

SETS RECORD

Tiant's 11 strikeouts in defeating the Red Sox gave Cleveland a major league strikeout record for one season.

Cleveland pitchers have struck out 1,123 batters this season, topping by one the mark set by the Los Angeles Dodgers in 1960.

Fred Whitfield's 10th home run of the season in the sixth gave McDowell all the runs he needed in the nightcap as he picked up his 10th victory in 16 decisions, allowing just seven hits.

Max Alvis and Leon Wagner hit home runs in the opener to account for all of Cleveland's scoring behind Tiant.

Cardinals' extended their win streak to eight games and the victory virtually eliminated the Phillies from the pennant race.

The victory assured the Cardinals of no worse than a tie for the lead.

Curt Simmons got the key victory against his former Philadelphia teammates, extending the Phillies' losing streak to 10 games and leaving them in a position to do no better than tie for the pennant. The Phillies have only two games remaining.

Back-to-back errors with two out enabled the Giants to score the winning run.

Tom Haller walked with two out and moved to second on Orlando Cepeda's single. Then Joe Morgan booted pinch hitter Duke Snider's bouncer and Eddie Kasko kicked Jim Davenport's grounder, allowing Haller to score.

With two away in the Giant sixth, Haller had hit his 14th homer to tie it 1-1.

REDS DUMPED

The Pirates dumped Cincinnati from a tie for first place on a squeeze bunt by rookie Jerry May in the 16th inning.

The Reds have one game left with the Pirates and two with the Phillies while the Cardinals play three with New York.

Donn Clendenon raced home from third as May bunted along the third base line. May beat out the bunt for a single.

Dennis Menke hit his 20th home run to give Milwaukee their sixth straight triumph.

MILT CAMPBELL INJURED

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonaut Milt Campbell will be on the injury list for a minimum of three weeks, coach Nobby Wirkowski said Wednesday.

Campbell, a corner-linebacker, suffered what was first thought to be a fractured left ankle after attempting a tackle during the Argos' 30-25 loss to the Calgary Stampeders Tuesday.

However, on closer examination it was learned the former United States decathlon champion had sustained a bad bruise to the left tibia. Wirkowski has not decided on a replacement for Saturday night's encounter here with the undefeated British Columbia Lions.

MAKING LAST CALL—Veteran umpire in the National League, John B. (Jocko) Conlan is retiring at the end of the 1964 campaign and has been given a chair which will be installed in Houston's domed stadium behind home plate—and he can use it for life. Conlan joined the majors in 1941.

Cleveland Brass Discusses Future

CLEVELAND (AP) — Gabe Paul, president and general manager of Cleveland Indians, met Wednesday for the second straight day with a group including Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes and Mayor Ralph S. Locher to discuss the future of the Tribe in Cleveland.

The group, which wants to keep the Indians here, reportedly outlined plans for an advance ticket sale campaign, a better deal on the rent the finally struggling Indians pay in Municipal Stadium and improvements to the stadium.

Paul has indicated the Tribe directors will make a decision this week or next on whether the Indians stay here or move.

U.S. Olympic Horse Killed

NEW YORK AP — The United States Olympic team lost one of its top horses Wednesday when Markham, a veteran performer on the team, was destroyed on an airplane en route to Tokyo.

The 11-year-old brown gelding was loaded aboard a chartered plane along with 10 other horses and became unmanageable about an hour after the noon takeoff.

With the plane at 12,000 feet, Markam went berserk and attempted to break out of his stall. The team veterinarian was forced to destroy the horse by an injection.

Markam, ridden by Michael Plumb of Syosset, N.Y., finished 15th in the 1960 Olympics in Rome and was a member of the Pan - American gold medal winning team of 1959 and 1963.

Another horse, en route from Chile to the Tokyo Olympics, died in flight between Wake Island and Japan. It was believed the horse died of a heart attack.

Howe Paces Wings To 3-2 Victory

LEAMINGTON, Ont. (CP) — Gordie Howe triggered two goals in leading Detroit Red Wings to a 3-2 exhibition victory over their combined Pittsburgh - Memphis minor league farm clubs before 900 fans here Wednesday night.

All the scoring took place in the second period with Al Langlois counting the first goal for the National Hockey League club.

Andre Pronovost and Lowell MacDonald clicked for the tallies by the Pittsburgh - Memphis squad.

CINCINNATI (AP) — Danny Murtaugh announced early Thursday he was resigning as manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates "because of health."

BLUBBER ALI'S SECRET WEAPON?

MIAMI BEACH (AP)—Heavyweight champion Cassius Clay, returning to heavy training Tuesday after a two-day layoff, said weight will be his secret weapon against Sonny Liston in their Nov. 16 title re-match at Boston.

"Everybody wants to know what I weigh," said Clay. "Well, it's a secret and it's going to stay a secret until they announce it in the ring. And just watch Liston's face when they do."

Clay looks bigger than ever and training camp guesses ranged from 230 to 245 pounds.

He has sparred 17 rounds since he opened serious training here Friday.

Angelo Dundee, Clay's trainer, said the champion has put in 73 miles of roadwork.

"He's working harder now than he did for the first fight," Dundee said. "That's why I made him take Sunday and Monday off. I don't want him to get sharp too fast."

GOLF TEAM SET FOR ROME

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian amateur golf team played its final exhibition rounds here Wednesday before leaving today for the 25-nation world team tournament to be held in Rome Oct. 7-10.

The four-man team is comprised of Nick Weslock of Toronto, Gary Cowan of Kitchener, and Doug Silverberg and Keith Alexander of Calgary.

Accompanying the team will be Art Johnston of Winnipeg, president of the Royal Canadian Golf Association, who at a dinner Wednesday night described the team as the strongest ever to represent Canada.

Channel Swimmer Hospitalized

DOVER, England (AP) — Greta Anderson, 37-year-old Los Alamitos, Calif., school teacher, was in a hospital Wednesday night suffering from exhaustion after heavy seas forced her to quit an attempt to swim both ways across the English Channel.

Miss Anderson gave up Wednesday after swimming for 24 hours. She made the England-to-France crossing in record time of 13 hours 40 minutes and was well on her way back when high seas forced her to quit.

Hurricane Heads Toward Louisiana

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Hurricane Hilda moved through the Gulf of Mexico Wednesday toward a Louisiana coast hastily mobilizing for a threatened onslaught.

Hilda, which graduated from a tropical storm into the season's fifth hurricane Wednesday morning, packed winds of up to 80 miles an hour near its widening centre. It appeared to be picking up strength as it moved northward.

Red Cross and Civil defence agencies mobilized shelters and supplies on land and oil companies took steps to secure their multi-million-dollar offshore investment.

Canada's Olympic Squad Leaves for Tokyo Today

TORONTO (CP) — The main body of Canada's 1964 Olympic team leaves for Tokyo today modestly confident of its ability to improve on the record of its immediate predecessor and with a few potential gold-medal winners in its ranks.

Due to take off from Montreal at 8 a.m. and from Vancouver at 11:45 a.m. PDT, the chartered aircraft has a passenger list of 131 athletes and officials, embodying Canada's chief hopes for glory at the Games, which open in the Japanese capital Oct. 10.

Another 14 athletes have preceded them to Japan, although they aren't sure yet whether they'll still be there when the Olympic torch is set alight. They are members of Canada's basketball team, currently engaged in a round-robin preliminary tournament at Yokohama to decide the last four qualifying berths for Olympic competition.

Few world-shattering achievements are needed to better the Canadian record at the Rome Olympics of 1960, when only a second-place finish by the University of British Columbia's eight-oared crew prevented Canada from being shut out of the first three in every event on the agenda.

In the unofficial point standings, based on a 10-5-4-3-2-1 count for the first six in each event, the 1960 Canadians placed 26th among the 84 countries competing with 16 points, compared with the 807½ amassed by the first-place Russians.

Even the most pessimistic forecasts of Canada's 1964 showing anticipate a better performance in this month's two-week competition.

No fewer than three Canadians are given a chance for a gold medal on the track.

One of them is Harry Jerome, the Vancouver sprinter who was Canada's hottest prospect and biggest disappointment in Rome, where he pulled up lame in the semi-final of the 100 metres.

OUT FOR YEAR

Injured again as he finished last in the 100-yard final in the 1962 British Empire Games at Perth, Australia, Jerome underwent surgery for a damaged thigh muscle and was out for a year before beginning his comeback.

But at 24, he remains the co-holder of the world record of 10.0 seconds for the 100 metres and has run 10.1 since his recovery.

Bill Crothers, the 24-year-old Markham, Ont., pharmacist who has dominated North America in the middle distances, is rated among the top four in the 800 metres. Bruce Kidd, 21-year-old Toronto prodigy, is rounding into the best shape of his career in a bid for glory in the 10,000 metres and marathon.

Dianne Gerace, 20-year-old receptionist from Trail, B.C., is a prospect in the women's high jump, but her best performance is more than three inches under the world record and experts feel she would do well to finish second or third.

SWIMMER RATES HIGH

Sprinter Irene Piotrowski of Vancouver is another seen as possibly making the first six in her event.

Rated high on the Canadian swimming team is Mary Stewart of Vancouver, a courageous finalist in the 100-metre freestyle at Rome at the age of 14. She is back for an effort to regain the world record she set in the 100-metre butterly two years ago.

Diver Tom Dinsley of Vancouver won the spring-board event in the Pan-American Games last year in Brazil and was second in the 1962 British Empire Games.

The Vancouver Rowing Club eight, most of them UBC graduates, are given only an outside chance to reverse the decision against the German crew that defeated Canada in 1960 and Canada's four, double and single entries are mostly new to international competition.

Moral: Don't Take Your Wife to the Race Track

TRENTON N.J. (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Jack Farrell have gone to race tracks frequently in the 2½ years they've been married.

"Five days a week — two times a day from one track to the other" she said.

Until April 4 it was tough going financially for the Farrells. That particular afternoon they ran through a bundle at Aqueduct in New York until Mrs. Farrell won $50 on the last race.

That staked a trip to Roosevelt Raceway in Westbury N.Y. the same night. "I gave him (Mr. Farrell) $10 and paid the bus fare" Mrs. Farrell said.

He said the $10 was a loan and the dispute wound up in Superior Court Tuesday because the money was used to buy a $2 twin double ticket at Roosevelt Raceway that paid $27,450.80.

TALKED OF PLANS

The Farrells talked of plans to put the dress shop owned by Mr. Farrell on its feet financially. They were going to buy a house and pay all their bills.

But things didn't work out that way and the Farrells argued Tuesday about $6700 Mrs. Farrell took when she and her husband separated this summer.

Mrs. Farrell contended she took the money because her husband went back on his word not to play the horses again. Her husband said the money was all his.

Judge Frank J. Kingfield ruled the bet was a joint venture and "each party has the right to his share of the proceeds . . . and they'll each have to pay taxes."

Black Hawk Bosses Pick Leafs to Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chicago Black Hawks aren't being fooled by the spotty pre-season antics of the Stanley Cup champion Toronto Maple Leafs.

The Black Hawks have the best record along the National Hockey League exhibition trail so far while the Leafs are third behind Detroit Red Wings.

But Chicago coach Billy Reay and Hawks' general manager Tommy Ivan both pick the Leafs to end the regular 70-game NHL season 10 to 15 points ahead of the other five clubs.

Reay called the Toronto club to be winners by 10 points during an interview at the Hawks' training camp in St. Catharines Tuesday.

"Every other team in the league has question marks, possible weaknesses but Leafs have none" he said.

A few weeks ago Ivan picked the Leafs to win the league championship by 15 points.

Toronto posted a 6-2 win over Vancouver Canucks of the Western League Tuesday night while Detroit defeated Pittsburgh Hornets of the American League 4-1 at Goderich Ont. and Chicago coasted to a 4-1 win over Buffalo Bisons of the AHL at Welland Ont.

FIVE NHL LOSSES

The Leafs have won three exhibition games against minor league clubs but have two wins five losses and two ties against NHL competition. Chicago has seven wins including two against minor clubs and two losses. Detroit has five wins two losses and a tie fter playing seven exhibitions against NHL clubs and one against minor league competition.

Boston Bruins have the poorest record with four wins against four minor clubs and five losses against NHL clubs.

BRITISH SEATS

There are 630 constituencies represented in the United Kingdom parliament, 511 for England, 71 for Scotland, 36 for Wales and 12 for Northern Ireland.

New York Rangers have played two games against NHL competition and two against minor teams and have three wins including two against the Leafs. Montreal Canadiens have won all four of their pre-season games against minor league competition.

Eddie Shack Bob Pulford George Armstrong Gerry Ehman, Kent Douglas and Frank Mahovlich counted one goal each as the Leafs romped to an easy win over Vancouver. Bob McCusker and Bob Baird replied for the Canucks.

Alex Delvecchio scored twice and teammates Doug Barkley and Bruce MacGregor got the others as the Wings defeated their farmhands. Parker MacDonald fired the lone Pittsburgh goal.

Billy (Red) Hay got a pair for Chicago while Doug Robinson and rookie Al Caron who holds the EPHL and CPHL goal-scoring records got one each.

NO VISIT BY POPE

ROME (Reuters) — Archbishop Sergio Pignedoli, Apostolic delegate to Canada said Wednesday "the possibility of the Pope going to Canada for the Montreal World's Fair in 1967 is nothing but the fantasy of some journalists." Answering questions about montreal press reports of such a visit, Archbishop Pignedoli said the Pope often receives invitations but the possibility of his going "has no reality for the moment."

ADENAUER INJURED

BONN (AP) — Konrad Adenauer, 88, former West German chancellor, fell and broke a rib at his vacation retreat on Lake Como in Italy, Bonn sources reported Wednesday. The fall occurred recently when Adenauer was out on a walk. The sources said the former chancellor, who still is active in politics, is making a good recovery and continuing work on his memoirs.

60 Years of Complacency Stagnated Baseball - Frick

By WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK (AP) — "When you don't go to a dentist for 20 years and suddenly turn up with a toothache, you find it very expensive and painful," says Ford Frick, commissioner of U.S. baseball.

"That's what happened to us. For 50 or 60 years we went along without making any changes. We were smug and complacent. Then it hit us.

"People changed. Populations shifted. Old ball parks wore out. Franchises became obsolete. We found ourselves in the 20th century with a 19th century revolution."

Thus Frick, the bushy-haired onetime sports writer who has governed the U.S. national pastime for 13 years, views the changing face of baseball.

It's a game with a swollen jaw. It is in severe pain. There are a lot of people around offering home-made remedies. But soon the tooth will come out, the commissioner says, baseball will get on an even keel again and enjoy another 50 or 60 years of unbroken health.

Other baseball figures have different ideas.

NOT INDIVIDUAL SPORT

"It seems that baseball is no longer an individual sport," complains Phil Wrigley, the chewing - gum tycoon whose family has operated Chicago Cubs in the National League for nearly half a century.

Wrigley's is just one of many voices sounding concern over the intrusion of cold and impersonal big business dollars into the almost sacred diamond sport—a worry accented recently when the Columbia Broadcasting System bought 80 per cent of New York Yankees' stock. For years now, particularly since the Second World War, business enterprises and syndicates have been taking over major-league franchises.

The transaction created more than the usual ripples, apparently for two reasons: (1) CBS is a giant in the communications industry and television and radio have become an integral part of baseball. (2) The successful Yankees are perhaps the country's top sports commodity.

So the justice department in Washington got its legal talent looking into the deal to see if there were any violations of the Anti-Trust Act. And complaints came from sources who cried that CBS might gain control of all baseball, a fear baseball officials scorned as ridiculous.

Not to be dismissed, however, is the impact that radio and TV have on club operations. This year the 20 teams of the two major leagues will realize $13,575,000 from radio and television broadcasts of local games. Another $3,500,000 will come in from the World Series and the All-Star game go in part to a players' pension fund.

High salaries and the security of the pension fund have bled all the dash, derring-do and color from baseball, critics say. Nobody plays the game any more for the sheer love of it.

No more are there exciting personalities such as those characterizing the St. Louis gas house gang of the 1930's: Dizzy Dean, who lit bonfires in the dugout to keep warm; Pepper Martin who slid into second base chin first, and Joe Medwick, who antagonized fans so much they gave him a bottle shower in the outfield.

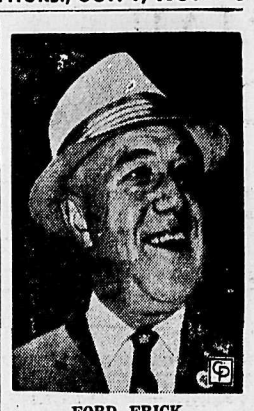
The present-day player wears a three-button suit and looks like a Madison Avenue executive. He is as cold and as dispassionate about his job as he might be in running a business.

Some of them even do. Willie Mays, San Francisco's $100,000-a-year outfielder, has an interest in a bank. The Yankees' Mickey Mantle recently sold a motel. Pitcher Whitey Ford of the Yankees owns a golf course in South Carolina, the Braves' Warren Spahn has a ranch and Bob Allison of Minnesota Twins owns a soft-drink concern.

PLAYERS CODDLED

The late Rabbit Maranville, a fragile 150-pounder whose career spanned 24 years, always complained that the mid-century ball player was too coddled. "He can't afford to horse around or take chances, he might bust an arm or leg, lose an $80,000 salary and spoil his pension," the Rabbit once said.

To most of the fans, it's this loss of color on the field that has dulled the lustre of the game more than anything else.



FORD FRICK

Most of the enthusiasts couldn't care less about the machinations in the front office.

But it's the latter that is disturbing the baseball brass, with very little they can do about it.

"We didn't want to see the corner grocery store go or the old cracker barrel," says commissioner Frick, using another analogy. "But times change and we have to change with them.

"Operation of a major-league franchise these days is such an expensive undertaking that no single man normally can do it. So the corporations move in."

Paul Anka Misses Royal Visit Show

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Ottawa singing star Paul Anka won't be in Charlottetown to perform before Queen Elizabeth Oct. 6.

The Prince Edward Island centennial committee said Tuesday night it had received a telegram from Irvin Field, Anka's agent, which said: "Sorry, have been completely unable to cancel Paul Anka's other commitment. Paul would have loved to have performed."

The other commitment was a television appearance arranged before confirmation of the royal performance was made.

CALLS FOR PEACE

VIENNA (AP) — Ethiopian Emperor Haile Selassie left Bucharest for Belgrade Tuesday after signing a communique with Romanian President and Communist party chief Gheorghe Gheorghiu-dej calling for preservation of world peace. Market averages told a slightly conflicting story, but 60 more stocks declined than advanced on the New York Stock Exchange.

The session also was marked by considerable churning among the more speculative oils and mining stocks.

The strike against General Motors continued through its sixth day and tended to dampen not only motor stocks but issues representing linked industries.

TORONTO (CP) — Lower prices in the industrial list and only moderate trading characterized the stock market Wednesday.

Although small fractional losses predominated, a number of industrial issues attained 1964 highs in relatively heavy turnover. These included Burns, Clairtone, MacMillan Bloedel and Page-Hersey Tubes.

Distillers Seagram, active recently, traded more than 9,000 shares Wednesday but dropped a point to 65. B.C. Telephone also lost a point to 62.

Trading was moderate with industrial volume at 256,900 shares and speculative trading at 772,400 shares.

Royal highlighted the banks, advancing a point to 77. Montreal gained ¾ to 68 and Banquen Canadienne Nationel ½ to 77½. Toronto - Dominion eased ¼ to 68.

Troops To Relieve Force in Cyprus

CALGARY (CP)—The reconnaissance squadron, Lord Strathcona's Horse (Royal Canadians) of Calgary, next week begin a six-month tour of duty on strife-torn Cyprus.

An advance party of 14 officers, including Maj. J. Barry Rose, commanding officer, left two weeks ago for the island to prepare for the arrival of the main body of 89 men, scheduled to leave Calgary Wednesday.

The squadron will relieve members of the Royal Canadian Dragoons as part of the United Nations force on Cyprus.

"Role of the squadron will be primarily one of observing both the Greek and Turkish sides," said an army spokesman. "It is a non-combatant role, under which they will report what each side is up to and try to help work out peaceful solutions to problems."

From Calgary, squadron members were scheduled to fly to Trenton, Ont., and then to Cyprus by RCAF Yukon aircraft during the weekend, he said.

Strathconas have wide experience in peace-keeping roles. In 1956 the Reconnaissance Squadron formed the nucleus of a 56-member Canadian reconnaissance squadron which saw service in Egypt as part of a United Nations emergency force.

SERVED IN EGYPT

Strathconas again served in a reconnaissance role in Egypt in 1961 and in 1963, and in Germany with North Atlantic Treaty Organization forces in 1958 and 1959.

The regiment had its origin following the Northwest Rebellion of 1885 when the School of Mounted Infantry was established in Winnipeg for internal security.

In 1891 the name was changed to Canadian Mounted Rifle Corps and the following year was amalgamated with the Canadian Dragoons, stationed in Toronto.

Dragoons served in the South African war in 1899-1901. In January, 1900, Lord Strathcona offered to send to South Africa, at his expense, a mounted unit to be raised in Western Canada. The unit, known as Strathcona's Horse, took part in seven major battles of the war.

The regiment disbanded in 1901, but was re-established in 1909 under its present name. Its members served in major actions of both the First and Second World Wars.

NONG Securities Trial Discloses Judge's Participation in Dealings

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — An Ontario Securities Commission investigator testified Tuesday that Mr. Justice Leo Landreville of the Ontario Supreme Court sold 7,500 shares in Northern Ontario Natural Gas Company for $14 to $20 apiece in the spring of 1957.

Investigator H. R. Huxley, the only witness in the opening day of a preliminary hearing on charges of municipal corruption under the Criminal Code against Mr. Justice Landreville, said this would mean a gain of $105,000 to $150,000.

The 54-year-old judge—mayor of Sudbury from January, 1955, to September, 1956, when he was named to the bench—is accused of accepting NONG stock as a consideration for help in getting NONG's Sudbury franchise through city council in 1956, and also in agreeing to accept stock for signing the franchise agreement.

He is also accused of conspiring with Ralph K. Farris of Vancouver, president of NONG, to have the franchise agreement adopted.

Mr. Justice Landreville elected trial by judge alone, and no plea was taken at the preliminary hearing.

Farris, who is seriously ill, was convicted of perjury in Toronto in April and was sentenced to nine months definite and three months indefinite. The conviction, being appealed, was based on Farris's sworn statements that he did not know who received 14,000 shares of NONG stock.

For nearly three hours of the hearing, portions of transcribed evidence from the Farris trial were read in court. This included testimony by John McGraw, head of the Vancouver brokerage firm of Continental Investments Company Ltd.

'ESTABLISH FUND'

It said that Farris instructed McGraw to establish subscription fund of 14,000 NONG shares at $2.50 a share in November, 1956.

The first of a series of letters read by Mr. Huxley was from McGraw to Mr. Justice Landreville in February, 1957. It mentioned Farris's instructions to buy 10,000 NONG shares at $2.50 apiece, and said this $25,000 charge had been covered by selling 2,500 of the shares at $10 a share. The remaining 7,500 shares were enclosed in the letter.

A few days later, Mr. Justice Landreville wrote the Vancouver firm acknowledging the stock and offering his assistance in promoting the company, the previous evidence said.

Another letter was from Farris to Mr. Justice Landreville in July, 1956. It dealt with Mayor Landreville's apparent expressions of interest in the gas company and his offer to help NONG with its problems in Sudbury and Northern Ontario generally.

The letter said a directors' meeting a few days earlier resolved that Mayor Landreville be offered a year's option to buy 10,000 NONG shares at $2.50 a share.

Ten days later Mr. Justice Landreville wrote Farris indicating that he intended to exercise his option before the year was up, and reassured Farris of his personal interest in promoting the company.

Mr. Justice Landreville added that his efforts on behalf of the company were somewhat restricted because he was mayor, but that as of January, 1957, he would be able to consult with the company on matters of mutual interest.

The hearing continues.

For Friday, October 2, 1964

MARCH 21 to APRIL 20 (Aries) — Day has many opportunities, but you may be called upon to make some weighty decisions. However, this should not daunt the well-developed Arien who, even in the most critical moments, thinks clearly and astutely.

APRIL 21 to MAY 21 (Taurus) — Do not procrastinate in important matters. There's a tendency now to "put off until later," shunt aside, refuse to face facts.

MAY 22 to JUNE 21 (Gemini) —Try to avoid making drastic changes in your schedule. It could delay you, disturb others working with you. Keep everything on an even keel. Originality, writings favored.

JUNE 22 to JULY 23 (Cancer) — Some plans may have to be changed, so consider revisions as soon as their need becomes obvious. You do not usually procrastinate, but everyone falters at times.

JULY 24 to AUGUST 23 (Leo) — This can be a day of significant achievement — if you are ready, willing and able. Any needed co-operation will be available now.

AUGUST 24 to SEPTEMBER 23 (Virgo) — You should make fairly good headway in most activities, but don't go off on tangents or scatter energies. It could offset best endeavors.

SEPTEMBER 24 to OCTOBER 23 (Libra) — Do not become involved in matters which do not really concern you, but do take an interest in new trends within your own field.

OCTOBER 24 to NOVEMBER 22 (Scorpio) — If you have difficulties on the job, explain them to co-workers whom you can trust. Then act — and move forward under helpful influences.

NOVEMBER 23 to DECEMBER 21 (Sagittarius) — Study the methods used by successful persons, add your own know-how and the lessons of past experience. Then do some more studying. In this way you can assure the success of your endeavors.

DECEMBER 22 to JANUARY 20 (Capricorn) — Expand in operations going well, setting a better pace for speedier results. Sagittarians are known for their clever management and organizational ability. Stress these traits now.

JANUARY 21 to FEBRUARY 19 (Aquarius) — Be prepared to withstand opposition, unexpected disturbances. You may not only be able to learn by both, but may be able to settle matters in such a way as to win the admiration and confidence of others.

FEBRUAR 20 to MARCH 20 (Pisces) — More gains indicated than you may anticipate. But there will be some obstacles, so pick your way alertly and cautiously — but without anxiety.

YOU BORN TODAY are a natural arbitrator, counsellor and usually objective in your thinking, never letting your heart rule your head. You thrive on responsibilities and rarely let adverses "get you down." In your personal life, you are charming, courteous and a good mixer; in career matters could become an intense and dynamic actor, a brilliant attorney or jurist, a powerfully persuasive writer, You dislike drudgery of any kind, but must learn to accept annoying details and even periods of tedium as part of the success pattern. New Terrorist Groups Exposed at Quebec Trial

By STRUAN MATHESON

MONTREAL (CP) — Two Crown witnesses described activities of a new terrorist group, l'Armee Revolutionnaire du Quebec, at the preliminary hearing Tuesday of six persons accused of conspiracy in a Montreal arms raid.

Marcel Tardif, 22, and Gilles Brunet, 28, and three other men have been committed to trial on murder charges in the Aug. 29 killing of Leslie MacWilliams, 56, during the raid on the International Firearms Company in downtown Montreal.

Tardif first balked at testifying then gave halting, sketchy testimony when his lawyer, Yvon Mercure, appeared in court. Mr. Mercure, backed by Crown prosecutor Jacques Ducros, said he and his client had been threatened right in the courtroom and called "traitors to the revolution" by the six accused during a brief recess.

Louis - Philippe Aubert, 21; Bernard Mataigne, 20; Marc-Andre Parise, 20; Claude Nadeau, 21; Jean-Guy Lefebvre, 26; and Yvon Hussereault, 18, are charged with conspiracy to commit a number of crimes including armed robbery.

The hearing resumed Wednesday.

Tardif said he heard of the ARQ in mid-July. Its goal was to "liberate the country." The group decided to "requisition" arms from armories or stores.

Tardif said he and Edmond Guenette, 20, and Francois Schirm, 32, met at a camp near St. Boniface 80 miles northeast of Montreal to "discuss what was going on in the province." Schirm was the chief, the rest were "soldiers."

The members of ARQ contributed their own funds. Tardif said he spent $400.

Gilles Brunet, father of six children, then took the stand to say Schirm, his co-worker at a suburban Montreal department store for two years, mentioned formation of the ARQ at the end of July.

He said that obtaining weapons was mentioned at two early ARQ meetings and that Schirm was armed when he visited the remote camp. Brunet identified all the accused as being present at the camp on one of his trips.

Brunet said the camp's aim was to "form character" for persons planning separatist demonstrations in Montreal.

Previous witnesses testified finding a large quantity of Communist and separatist literature near the St. Boniface camp.

L'Armee de Liberation du Quebec was smashed last spring following arms raids on armories in Montreal and Shawinigan, Que. Police say most of the weapons have been recovered.

Le Front de Liberation Quebecois was broken up in May, 1963, following a six-week wave of terror in the Montreal area in which one man was killed and another seriously injured in dynamite blasts.

GRADING BOSS RETIRES

OTTAWA (CP)—Elgin Senn, 64, of Ottawa retired Wednesday as chief of grading of the agriculture department's livestock division, after 30 years with the department.

U.S. Warned Over Chinese Blast

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The expected explosion of a nuclear test bomb by China threatens new risks and difficulties for the United States in trying to keep the war in South Viet Nam in bounds and eventually to win a limited victory there.

The chief risk is that Chinese triumph in the nuclear field may make it much more difficult for the United States to persuade China and North Viet Nam that they can't win in South Viet Nam and will have to pay an increasing cost to keep the war going.

The United States is confronted by two overriding problems in South Viet Nam at the present time.

The most immediate and potentially the most dangerous problem is preventing a political collapse in the country which has been rocked by a series of government crises during the last 11 months.

The present U.S. answer to this problem is to provide all-out support to Premier Nguyen Khanh in the hope that he will prove capable of guiding his divided and embattled people through the present government crisis.

A broad outline of U.S. policy was given Tuesday in a speech in Tokyo by Assistant State Secretary William P. Bundy who is on a visit to Japan and Korea. Bundy is one of the officials directly responsible for U.S. policy in Southeast Asia.

"We do not aim at overthrowing the Communist regime of North Viet Nam," Bundy said, "but rather in inducing it to call off the war it directs and supports in South Viet Nam."

'COULD BE FORCED'

Bundy also said that expansion of the war beyond South Viet Nam is not a course of action which the United States wants but one which "could be forced upon us by the increased external pressures of the Communists," including a rising scale of infiltration.

As for the larger questions of how to try to bring the war to a conclusion, no major U.S. policy changes are expected until after the November election.

The key to such possible changes lies in Bundy's statement that the United States seeks to "induce" the Communists to stop the war in South Viet Nam. It is in this sense that the United States aims at a limited victory in the conflict.

The only apparent answer to the problem of how to induce the North Vietnamese and Chinese to call off their support for the guerrillas operating in South Viet Nam lies in putting them under actual or threatened military pressures from U.S. power.

China's explosion of a nuclear test device would not change the military balance which exists in Southeast Asia. The Chinese Communists are a good many years away from becoming a true nuclear power in the judgment of the best informed authorities here.

But the mere achievement of a nuclear explosion could engender a cocky, confident attitude on the part of the Communist leadership which would make them much harder to "induce" to call off their support for the guerrillas in South Viet Nam.

Fifteen Years Given Former SS General

MUNICH (Reuters)—Former SS Gen. Karl Wolff, 64, was sentenced to 15 years at hard labor after a West German court here Wednesday convicted him on charges of complicity in the wartime murder of 300,000 Jews in Poland.

Wolff hal been an adjutant of Heinrich Himmler, Nazi SS (elite corps) chief, and liaison officer to Hitler before becoming German commander-in-chief in Italy at the close of the war.

He was found guilty of having provided the rolling stock in which 300,000 Jews went to their deaths in Nazi concentration camps.

Throughout the trial, white-haired Wolff denied knowledge of the Nazi program of the extermination of the Jews.

The prosecution charged that Wolff belonged to the Nazi brain trust that planned the extermination of Jews.

The prosecution had demanded life imprisonment for Wolff, since capital punishment was abandoned in West Germany in 1949.

SOUGHT ACQUITTAL

The defence asked that Wolff be acquitted. Wolff claimed it was only after the war that he learned that Jews had been murdered by the Nazis.

To the specific charge that he helped in the deportation of 300,000 Jews from Warsaw's ghetto to extermination camps in Poland, Wolff replied that he believed the Jews were removed only for resettlement.

The former Nazi officer was visibly pale as he stood ram-rod straight in court as the judge read out the verdict.

Wolff had achieved early post-war fame for his secret negotiations with the Allies to arrange the surrender of German forces in Italy. He was a witness at the Nuernberg war crimes trial. Although confined by the Allies for a short time, he was not prosecuted by them.

In January, 1962, the Germans arrested him and kept him in pre-trial confinement until his trial opened last July 13.

World Briefs

NEW DELHI (AP)—A fleet of 75 fishing boats with about 450 men aboard is missing and feared lost in heavy seas in the Bay of Bengal. Port officials at Kakinada, 300 miles north of Madras, said one survivor swam ashore Tuesday night and said his boat capsized in a storm but that he did not know what happened to the other boats.

30 CONGO REBELS DIE

BUKAVU (AP) — Congolese army headquarters in Bukavu claimed its troops killed 30 rebels Tuesday 20 miles west of the Kivu province capital. It was the first confirmation of rumors that rebel tribesmen again were moving on the eastern Congo city. A rebel attack on Bukavu was repulsed last month.
