Union, Cominco Meet, No Progress Reported

Strike Date May Be Set Tonight at Creston

TRAIL (CP)—Representatives of the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company and representatives of about 4000 of its workers met Monday for two hours but both sides said only technicalities of a strike were discussed.

Members of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Ind.) voted Saturday 89 per cent in favor of a strike to back demands for higher wages.

A strike date is expected to be set by the union's 135-man policy committee at a meeting in Creston tonight (Tuesday).

A Cominco spokesman said the discussions Monday concerned "orderly procedures in anticipation of strike." No wage discussions were conducted and none were scheduled.

Meanwhile, government conciliator Reg Clements, who conducted the supervised strike vote Saturday, was still in the area. Harvey Murphy, chairman of the union's bargaining committee, said he outlined the union position to Mr. Clements in the hope he would attempt an eleventh-hour reconciliation.

The union wants a 15-cent hourly wage increase on present rates which range from $1.97½ to $2.85.

New storm clouds are gathering on the B.C. labor front.

Just a week after settlement of a multi-million-dollar dispute which tied up the giant Macmillan, Bloedel and Powell River Limited's pulp - paper complex at Port Alberni for seven weeks, this was the picture Monday:

—Some 400 carpenters in the interior Okanagan are due to strike, joining 300 already out in the Kootenays.

—Some 4,500 Mine-Mill union workers at the huge Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company operations at Trail and Kimberley have voted to strike without setting a date.

—Critical negotiations are under way or scheduled in the northern and southern interior lumber districts with members of the International Woodworkers of America (CLC).

—More than 2,500 fish plant workers at canneries along the coast are taking a union ballot on a possible strike. A government - supervised vote would be needed before a walkout could be called.

The carpenters have struck or are striking in an effort to get their wages up to a standard parity of at least $3.34 an hour. Spokesmen for the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners (CLC) say that of the more than 10,000 carpenters in the province, 7,000 now get the provincial standard hourly rate or better.

RATE VARIES

In the Nelson-Trail-Castlegar area where the carpenters already are on strike, the rate is $3.14. In the Okanagan, where carpenters were to go out on Monday, the rate varies from $3 an hour down to $2.85.

Labor sources say root of the trouble is that interior carpenters, employed by local contractors at local rates, find themselves working in the same areas as carpenters employed by coast contractors who pay the provincial standard or better.

SUSPENDS TALKS

Provincial conciliation officer E. P. Fisher, who recommended terms which were accepted by 26,000 coast lumber workers, has completed a week-long series of talks with lumber workers and contractors in the northern interior. He has suspended the talks to decide on further action.

Another conciliation officer, Robert Raguin, begins efforts Monday to bring about an understanding in a dispute involving southern interior lumber workers. The talks will be held at Kelowna.

The 6,000 to 7,000 interior workers seek parity with coast workers. This would increase their base rate to $2.23 an hour from $1.89.

No Generous Compensation Promise Given

OTTAWA (CP) — A last-ditch appeal was unsuccessful Monday in obtaining a government promise that owners of land to be flooded by Columbia River dams will be generously compensated.

H. W. Herridge (NDP — Kootenay West), whose constituency includes much of the area to be flooded, said many residents are pioneers who worked hard to clear land for farming and have owned it for many years without debt.

They should be satisfactorily relocated or recompensed in cash for their loss, he said. The land was in "a beautiful valley — the Garden of Eden of Canada."

Tom Barnett (NDP — Comox-Alberni) and Arnold Peters (NDP — Timiskaming) joined in Mr. Herridge's appeal to the government, but there was no reply.

The debate took place on third and final reading of an appropriation bill advancing $275,000,000 to the British Columbia government to finance three dams being built on the Columbia River as part of the U.S.-Canadian development of its power and irrigation potential.

EXPECTING—The parents of the only quintuplets to survive in the United States, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Fischer confirmed in Aberdeen, S.D., that she is expecting another baby. They did not say when the latest addition to their 10 is expected.

Sons Say Not Going Back to Kootenay

AGASSZ (CP) — Encamped Sons of Freedom Doukhobors, facing an eviction order Wednesday, said Monday sect members have no place to go and "it appears that prison is the only place left for us."

In an open letter delivered to Reeve James Fraser of Kent municipality, the Freedomites said they would not return to their former Kootenay stronghold of Krestova.

"So if we have no place in Canada then build us jails and we will live there . . . do with us as you please."

An estimated 500 Freedomites have been repeatedly served with notices that they must leave the municipally - owned ground where they are camped near Mountain Prison at this Fraser Valley community or face ejection by authorities. The eviction order is to be carried out Wednesday under present plans.

The Russian - speaking sect camped near the gates of the prison last year, saying they would say there until all the Freedomites, now imprisoned for terrorist activities, are released.

Reeve Fraser said he took no immediate action to evict them on advice from the attorney-general's department. But several months ago he issued a verbal warning, followed later by posted notices, that eviction would be carried out July 15 unless the Freedomites moved voluntarily.

Man Charged With Three Boys' Murders

MISSION CITY, B.C. (CP)—A non-capital murder charge was laid Monday against a former soldier as police delved into the deaths of three youths, shot in their sleep beside a lake in forbidden territory.

Each died of a .22-calibre slug in his head.

Their bodies, still encased in the sleeping bags into which they had crawled, were found Sunday. An overturned lantern was the only thing out of place.

Dalton Grey, 24, an unemployed laborer who once served in the army, was charged with non-capital murder in the death of Rodney Wiren, 19. A psychiatric report was ordered for his next court appearance July 22.

Wiren's body was found beside those of Donald Kehler, 19, and Rob Webster, 18. All were from Surrey near New Westminster.

Police pieced together this story:

The youths and a fourth companion left Friday on a weekend camping excursion near here in Kehler's black convertible. They apparently took with them Kehler's .22-calibre rifle.

They travelled down a rough, rutted road to a man-made lake about seven miles north of this Fraser Valley community. Ignoring signs saying trespassing, hunting and fishing were prohibited, they climbed through a barbed-wire fence and camped on the shore of the lake.

FAMILIAR WITH AREA

Saturday apparently was spent shooting at empty beer bottles and roaming through the area, which they had visited several times before.

Later Saturday night Kehler, Webster and Wiren crawled into their sleeping bags. A few hours later they were shot through the head with a .22-calibre rifle.

Later that day, Peter Kehler, 16, brother of Donald, and four companions went to look for the youths.

"They were still in their sleeping bags when we arrived —we thought at first they were asleep," said Peter. Then they discovered the youths had been shot.

Several hours later police arrested a man in a motel in nearby Langley.

Late Monday police still were trying to find the murder weapon. Dogs were searching the surrounding woods while skin divers scanned the lake bottom.

Goldwater Appears In Party Control

SAN FRANCISCO (CP)—An appeal to Republicans to reject the venom of hate from the political right and left came from keynote speaker Mark Hatfield, youthful Oregon governor, Monday night.

The second session of the Republican convention opened with strong indications that Senator Barry Goldwater of Arizona had captured control of the party. Nevertheless Hatfield in his speech urged on the party some positions at least partially in opposition to the stated ideas of Goldwater and the more right-wing of his supporters.

"There are bigots in this nation who spew forth the venom of hate," Hatfield told the huge throng gathering for the first evening session in the big agricultural coliseum six miles south of San Francisco.

"They must be overcome and this applies to the Ku Klux Klan, the John Birch Society, the Communist party and the hundreds of others like them."

Pennsylvania Governor William Scranton, who appears to have been soundly beaten by Goldwater in the battle for the party's presidential nomination, has demanded the convention openly condemn the extremist Birchers who support Goldwater.

The platform committee has rejected this and other Scranton demands and the governor, heading a revolt of the moderates, intends to initiate a floor battle on the platform issue at today's third convention session.

Student Loans Bill Gets First Reading

ITU Turns Down Offers Of Publishers

TORONTO (CP) — New proposals made by the three Toronto daily newspapers for settlement of a five-day strike of printers were rejected Monday night by union negotiators.

The publishers, whose papers have been printed since the 680 employees walked off Thursday, offered the strikes a lifetime guarantee against unemployment caused by automation, a vital issue in the dispute.

In return, they asked for discontinuance of what they described as "featherbedding," and of the practice of having foremen and assistant foremen members of the International Typographical Union (CLC).

Robert U. McCormack, president of ITU Local 91, angrily denounced the management proposal as "tantamount to a declaration of war" and "a union-busting campaign."

Though Mr. McCormack would say no more, the talks which began Monday morning had evidently collapsed. He said the union negotiators would meet management again today in the office of Ontario Labor Minister Leslie Rowntree, in response to an invitation accepted last week — but only out of courtesy to the minister.

Learns of Good Fortune From Newspaper

CALGARY (CP)—Arthur Appleton of Calgary was reading a Vancouver newspaper Monday when he noticed a news item from his hometown.

By the time he was finished reading it, he was more than interested — the story was about him and a $50,000 gold brick he won Saturday at the Calgary Stampede.

The ticket on the Junior Chamber of Commerce gold brick was purchased last week by Mr. Appleton's son.

"I told my son and his wife just yesterday that I was going to win but I was only joking," he said in a telephone interview from Vancouver.

He was vacationing with another son in British Columbia and police were unable to find him to break the news.

He said he has no plans for the money and will continue working on a part-time basis.

The retired city employee was to receive the brick Tuesday.

Canada Guessing On Russ Wheat Market

WINNIPEG (CP) — A prolonged guessing game by Canadian grain officials on the wheat-buying intentions of the Soviet Union may soon end.

Russia will probably have enough facts on its domestic supply situation within six weeks to gain a clear idea of its needs.

Then the Communist country would be in a position to approach Canada for more wheat if its supply position demanded it.

The mid-summer harvest of the Russian winter wheat crop should go a long way to clarifying the Soviet supply picture.

Winter wheat accounts for 40 per cent or more of the Russian crop which annually totals close to 2,000,000,000 bushels, four times the size of Canada's.

The remainder of the Russian wheat crop is the spring-planted variety harvested in the fall. The Soviets should soon have a good idea of its size.

Officials here are also quick to note that the Russians made their approach for Canadian wheat last year in early fall and the same could apply this year.

Last year's approach led to a 239,000,000-bushel sale of wheat and flour worth $500,000,000. It is directly responsible for pushing Canadian wheat exports in the current crop year to a forecast record of 580,000,000 bushels. The crop year ends July 31.

In any case officials here doubt that lightning will strike twice in the same place. A repeat order of this size is a remote possibility, it is felt. For one thing the 1963 Soviet crop failure is unlikely to be repeated.

At the same time there are doubts that Russia could sufficiently recover in a single year to make her independent again.

Officials say the most likely possibility is for Russia to buy Canadian wheat again, but on a much smaller scale, in the next crop year.

Parliament

By The Canadian Press

Legislation to provide interest-free loans to needy university students received speedy first reading.

Associate Defence Minister Cardin said the maple leaf flag design was flown for a time by a Canadian destroyer.

Finance Minister Gordon rejected Opposition Leader Diefenbaker's idea for a national conference on Canadian problems.

Paul Martineau (PC-Pontiac-Temiscamingue) enlarged on the conference idea, saying it could write a new constitution.

Up to $1000 a Year For Eligible Student

OTTAWA (CP)—A government bill setting up a system of guaranteed bank loans for university students who need them was introduced in the Commons Monday.

It will provide up to $1000 a year for students who can produce a provincial "certificate of eligibility" showing that they have a satisfactory scholastic standard and are in need of a loan to continue their studies.

The federal government will pay all interest on the loan during the time the student attends university, and for six months later. Following this period, the student will take over the loan repayment himself, paying off the principle and interest in between five and 10 years.

A $5,000 limit is placed on the total value of loans a student may obtain during his university years. Interest rates will be established by the federal cabinet.

The preliminary resolution was introduced without the usual debate and the bill obtained speedy first reading. All parties had agreed to hold off debate until the second-reading stage, expected later this week.

ONLY OBJECTION

Gilles Gregoire (Creditiste—Lapointe) registered the only objection, calling the legislation another intrusion by the federal government into the provincial field of education.

The bill provides for total loans of $40,000,000 in any one year, apportioned among the provinces according to their share of the population aged 18-25. Any province that wants to run its own plan will get compensatory payments on the same basis.

Students qualifying must be Canadian citizens or be residents for at least one year and sign declarations they will reside in Canada after graduation. No age limits are mentioned.

The government will pay off the loan, plus accrued interest, in the case of a student who dies at any time in the loan or repayment period.

The $40,000,000 annual ceiling on loan amounts will be increased in relation to increases in the population aged 18-25.

Loans will be arranged at the chartered banks by the individual students. The "certificate of eligibility" will be issued by authorities designated by each province.

One section of the bill stipulates that the loans will be recoverable by the banks as though the borrower had been of the legal age of 21 when the loan was made. Under present law, there can be no such claim against a person who acquired a debt while under 21.

400 Okanagan Carpenters Leave Jobs

PENTICTON (CP) — An estimated 400 Okanagan Valley carpenters walked off their jobs Monday, joining another 130 Kootenay carpenters already on strike.

The carpenters struck in an effort to get their wages up to the provincial carpenters' standard of $3.34 an hour. The United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners (CLC) said 7000 of the province's 10,000 carpenters already receive the standard wage.

In the Okanagan the rate varies from $2.85 to $3. In the Nelson, Trail and Castlegar areas of the Kootenays the rate is $3.14.

Bill Cameron of Vancouver, president of the B.C. Carpenters' Council, was expected to fly to the Trail area today in an effort to settle the Kootenay walkout.

Projects affected involved motels, schools, apartment blocks and shopping centre construction in both the Kootenay and Okanagan.

Some major construction work in the Kamloops area was not affected. The contractors are from the Vancouver area and are paying coast scales.

In a statement, the South Okanagan Contractors' Association blamed the situation on union "bosses from Vancouver."

Seven Killed In 2-Car Crash

LONG SAULT, Ont. (CP) — Provincial Police here said Monday at least seven persons, including six adults and a child, were killed in a two-car collision on Highway 401 about 12 miles west of here.

Police said three persons were also taken to hospital as a result of the crash.

They said a provincial police car discovered the accident two miles east of Highway 31 about 25 miles west of Cornwall. One of the cars had New York state licence plates and the other Ontario.

Three of the victims, in the Ontario car, were identified as Bryce Swerdfeger, 40, of Ingleside, Ont., his wife Zena, 37, and Lulu Mabel Burrell, a relative from Heuvelton, N.Y. Names of the other dead and injured were not released.

Police said it was raining at the time of the accident but further details were not available.

BOY RECOVERING

VANCOUVER (CP) — David Bock, 6, is recovering in hospital after he was pulled from a Stanley Park swimming pool by a life guard. He is in fairly good condition after having apparently swallowed a lot of water.

Second Partial Body Found

TALLULAH, La. (AP) — A second mutilated body of a man was found in a sluggish offshoot of the Mississippi River about 17 miles south of here Monday.

This body, as the other, contained only the lower half of the victim.

Meanwhile, officials at Jackson, Miss., tentatively identified the remains of the first body as that of Charles Moore, 20, Meadville, Miss., Negro and former Alcorn and A and M college student.

Dr. J. D. Boyd, president of Alcorn A and M, said Moore's family reported he had left home "to go to Louisiana to work."

Officials ordered a search of the Old River on the possibility that the body found Sunday might be one of the three civil rights workers who vanished near Philadelphia, Miss., June 21.

Council Considers Abolishing Civic Centre Commission

Abolition of the Civic Centre Commission was mooted at a special city council meeting Monday, called to discuss the hiring of the commission's new recreation superintendent.

The general tenor of the meeting appeared to favor replacement of the commission by a single civic employee, but the who, why, when, where and how of the task criss-crossed the chamber with lines of disagreement.

The result of 1½ hours of discussion was a vote of confidence in the commission and instruction that it continue to operate as before.

Ald. M. B. Ryalls, who put forth the motion, later indicated that this operation will be temporary in nature, and council should take a good look at all ramifications of replacing the commission before action is taken.

Earlier in the meeting, Mayor E. T. Bodard said his council was unanimously in favor of dispensing with the commission as of Dec. 31, 1964. This has been spoken of unofficially for several months but Monday's remarks were the first official ones on record.

The council made it clear they were talking only of the Civic Centre Commission and felt the recreation commission should still exist, its members being appointed as is done now.

Under the present arrangement, the seven commissioners constitute both bodies.

RESIGNATION THREAT

Purpose of the special meeting which provoked threat of concerted resignation by the commissioners, was to ensure that the new Civic Centre employee understood that a possible change in Civic Centre administration is pending.

"By the end of the year we will terminate what is known as the Civic Centre Commission and bring it back as part of the city operation," said the mayor.

He added that there has been considerable thought about abolishing the commission with the feeling that it no longer serves the purposes for which it was created.

Council's irregular procedure to check the hiring of the successor to the combined post of Civic Centre manager-recreation director under the title of recreation superintendent irked the commission.

RAP INTERFERENCE

"We have no desire to continue if this kind of interference occurs again," said J. S. M. Harts, commission chairman.

He said the tone in the letter summoning the commissioners to the special meeting and delaying the hiring, "rubbed them the wrong way."

The letter was despatched Thursday after each alderman had been polled on the hiring of the new man without first consulting with council. Only Ald. F. A. Beresford and Ald. D. F. Porteous refused to sign the letter.

Council acted hastily via correspondence because there were indications that the commission was prepared to hire the successor Thursday night, said the Mayor.

Commissioner L. G. Algar wondered why council waited until the last moment to intervene, as it knew the process of finding a successor had been underway for the last two months.

Mayor Bodard replied that the first time he knew applicants were being interviewed was when the city processed a cheque for $150 to cover sundry expenses incurred by the hiring committee. He said the progress of the hiring was not recorded in the commisson's minutes.

Council representative on the commission, Ald. Beresford charged the mayor of "trying to stop us from hiring a recreation superintendent. We have not been too successful with the present operation. We are trying to improve the system."

He said the commission is looking for a man who can eventually assume control and maintenance of civic parks under his title of recreation superintendent.

These remarks prompted a discussion on the future and need of recreation in the city.

BEHIND THE TIMES

Speaking of the present day setup, commissioner L. N. McEachern said, "They (applicants) said we are 10 years behind the times. I would hate to tell you what they really told us."

It was disclosed that all applicants were informed that they would be responsible to the commission and two prospects sought an annual contract of service.

The discussion spiralled off into various tangents of the recreation situation, but the consensus was that an eventual merger of parks and recreation was needed. How, and when it is to be accomplished was another matter.

Several members felt the new recreation superintendent would be an excellent choice to outline a program culminating in a combined parks - recreation board.

Inquest Into Boy's Death Adjourned

CASTLEGAR — An inquest has been adjourned for two or three weeks at Grand Forks pending completion of an RCMP investigation into the drowning in Christina Lake of 18-year-old Castlegar youth William Walter Wishloff.

RCMP in Grand Forks said last week that it is not known at what time Wishloff drowned although he definitely was in attendance at a dance at Christina Lake on Wednesday evening, July 1. His body was found floating in the lake at about 6:45 p.m. the following day by teenager Kenneth Campbell.

The body was fully clothed and RCMP say the spectators estimate the body was about 150 feet from shore when it was discovered. It is not known yet how Wishloff got into the water.

An autopsy was held Thursday evening and a subsequent coroner's inquest under coroner Dr. E. E. Tomashewsky was adjourned until police complete their investigation. RCMP said the inquest is expected to be held "in two or three weeks."

A former Castlegar News delivery boy, Billy was the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Wishloff of Castlegar. Funeral services for the youth were held from the Russian hall here.

The youth was born on Dec. 10, 1945, and received all his schooling here. He was active in sports, particularly hockey and baseball.

He is survived by his parents, three sisters, Violet, Elaine and Linda; three brothers, Peter, Louis and Johnny, and numerous relatives at Robson, Brilliant, Grand Forks and Castlegar.

Driver of Crashed Car Being Sought

An RCMP dog tracked the injured driver of a crashed, stolen car towards Salmo early Sunday morning where the track petered out. It is believed the man hitched a ride.

The 1964 model car belonging to Edward L. Wilson of Creston, was stolen between 12 midnight and 4:25 a.m. Sunday morning. The driver, after stopping for gas at Salmo proceeded two miles west of town to the railway crossing where it was found wrecked.

Police believe the driver was travelling at excessive speed, lost control and the car hit the ditch, turned over a number of times, and landed upright once more in the ditch, completely demolished.

Blood found on the hood of the car indicates the driver may have lacerations although the amount of blood leads them to believe he was not seriously hurt. Police feel he may have been thrown clear before the car turned over.

RCMP have asked that anyone knowing of an individual with unexplained bruises and cuts, or the party who gave a hitch-hiker a ride back into Salmo about 6:30 Sunday morning, please notify the Salmo detachment.

Fire Hazard Moderate; 36 Fires Burning

The fire hazard in the Nelson Forestry District continues to range from low to moderate, a spokesman stated Monday.

To date there are 36 fires burning with most of the blazes concentrated in the central portion of the area.

The fires are small and are not causing any trouble, the forestry spokesman stated.

Fighting the fires are 37 men, five tractors and one helicopter.

Fire fighting costs have been estimated over $4000 to date.

Mayor Delays Selling Trip

Mayor E. T. Bodard has voluntarily called off his proposed municipal selling trip to business interests at the coast.

Monday the mayor said he intends to seek reconfirmation by council of the "intent of what I am to accomplish before I proceed."

Three weeks ago city council authorized the mayor to personally sound out business investment in Vancouver for development in Nelson. Civic duties have so far delayed the flying trip.

Misinformation Blamed For Tourist Drop Here

Visiting tourists appear to be bypassing Nelson in the 1964 season and centering in Trail.

Nelson's guest book in the Chamber of Commerce information booth indicates only 763 visitors dropped in by the end of June this year to inquire about the allurements offered by the Queen City of the Kootenays, as compared to 1499 at the end of June last season, and 2567 in 1962.

Trail is on the upswing, reporting a 60 per cent increase over last year.

A sweeping survey of Nelson area motels reveals that few tourists are coming in via No. 6 highway from Salmo and 3A west from Castlegar, but Crescent Beach area reports they are having a good year and their share of tourists.

Chamber of Commerce information guide, Mrs. E. Christiansen, believes the slackness on two entering routes may be due to misinformation.

Tourists have told her that the Kimberley information centre has sent them via the Skyway and through Trail, to arrive at Nelson and points north.

The scenic lake route to Kootenay Bay, where free ferry service can be had to Balfour, a much shorter route, is apparently not being pointed out.

CBC Toronto has added to the misdirection by announcing in a recent broadcast that tourists wishing to avoid the Cascades, but not go through Trail, should drop down to U.S. highways. The Nelson route was not even mentioned.

Mrs. Christiansen is sending letters to both Kimberley and CBC Toronto.

Boy's Death Accidental, Jury Finds

CASTLEGAR (Staff) — The death of a young Shoreacres boy was found accidental by a coroner's jury here after he was struck and killed by a car driven by Paul Legebokoff of Robson June 14.

A rider was attached to the verdict that a warning device be erected in the Shoreacres area and this was referred to the Department of Highways.

Six-year-old Peter Kalmakoff, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Kalmakoff, was crossing a straight stretch of highway with a group of playmates near the post office when he was struck by the Legebokoff vehicle. He died two hours later in Castlegar District Hospital.

Legebokoff testified before Dr. V. Goresky, who conducted the coroner's inquest.

Legebokoff told the jury he was driving home with his wife and small baby when an oncoming car proceeding towards Nelson came over a hilltop.

He saw a group of boys playing on the left hand side of Highway No. 3 and as the car passed him, the boys were blocked from view.

Just then Peter darted out on the road and Legebokoff applied his brakes and headed for the ditch but the back of the car swung around and hit him.

Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Pryslazniuk of Nelson saw the accident from their car and confirmed Legebokoff's testimony.

Nelson Woman Hurt In Crash

A Nelson woman who was returning from Spokane, where she had undergone an operation, received multiple injuries in a two-car collision near Newport Friday night.

The city's assistant postmaster, E. S. (Stan) Hall and Mrs. Hall were returning to Nelson from Spokane when their vehicle was in collision with an American vehicle. It was erroneously reported Monday that city postmaster, W. G. Hall, a brother of E. S. Hall, and his wife had been involved in the accident.

The two occupants of the American car and Mrs. Hall received emergency treatment at Newport hospital. Mrs. Hall was brought to Kootenay Lake General Hospital by ambulance.

ROTARY POOL TO BE PATCHED WEDNESDAY

The Rotary Pool at Lakeside Park is rapidly becoming known as the big drip to the city.

Since the pool opened six summers ago, it has had a chronic leakage problem which grows larger each year.

This spring's temporary patchwork to stem the escape of water from the pool has proved inadequate and Wednesday city personnel will again attempt to plug the crack or cracks which are allowing 20,000 gallons daily to escape from the pool.

Ald. F. A. Beresford, city parks chairman, confirmed the leakage through cracks caused by frost heaves and settlement of the concrete slab.

Because of the addition of 20,000 gallons daily of fresh water to the pool and its filter system, the heating up of the water has been slowed down.

The pool is scheduled to reopen Thursday.

Funeral Held For R. Newcomb

Funeral service for Raymond Newcomb who died in Nelson Friday, was conducted at the Church of the Redeemer Monday.

Representations from the Masonic Lodge, government staff and city hall were present for the services conducted by Venerable Archdeacon F. D. Wyatt. Cremation followed.

Hymns sung were "The King of Love My Shepherd Is" and "Breathe On Me Breath of God."

Honorary pallbearers were W. W. Motion, T. Whitehead, D. Stephens, E. A. Mann, C. W. R. Harper, H. H. Hinitt, A. K. McAdams, G. Helbecque, L. P. H. LaPointe.

Active pallbearers were John Cone, Tom Fox, Tom West, Al Batchelor, Laurie Tees and Fred Graves.

In the Courts

In provincial court Friday, Magistrate William Evans found three who appeared before him guilty as charged.

William Andronik of North Surrey was found guilty of passing while it was unsafe to do so and was fined $15 and costs, and had his licence endorsed.

S. L. Atwell of Nelson pleaded guilty to speeding and was fined $10 and costs.

E. J. Middleton of Nelson was found guilty of speeding and fined $15 and costs.

In city court, Magistrate Evans passed two decisions.

William A. Mayer and Andrew Vhalocich, both of Nelson, pleaded guilty to causing a disturbance by fighting near the Civic Centre and were fined $50 each, plus costs.

Nick Alec Polzun of Nelson pleaded guilty to being in a beer parlor while under age. The fine was $50 and costs.

HURRICANE HITS AUSSIE

ADELAIDE (AP) — A hurricane swept across South Australia Monday causing damage estimated at $1,000,000. The fishing village of Coffin Bay, 20 miles west of Port Lincoln, received the full brunt of gale.

Arrow Lakes Folk Anxious To Know Relocation Plans

Some of the difficulties facing the Arrow Lakes people as the Columbia development becomes a reality are being pointed out by the Edgewood-Needles-Fauquier Citizens' Protective Association.

The association feels the residents are being kept in the dark concerning plans for roads and townsites in the area for those who will be displaced by construction of High Arrow dam. Citizens of the area are anxious for information so they can make their personal plans accordingly.

Following is the comment of the association, formed in 1960:

"For many years the people living along the Arrow Lakes have talked and wondered about the High Arrow dam. Now it has become a reality. The present average low level of the Arrow Lakes is about 1378 feet. When the dam is completed the water will reach a height of 1446 feet. This will mean that most of the small communities which are situated on the lakeshore will either be completely or partially flooded.

Three such communities affected are Edgewood, Needles and Fauquier. To reach them one can drive, over mostly paved roads, from Vernon, for 83 miles, or come from Nelson for 138 miles. Behind the communities of Edgewood and Needles lies a beautiful farming valley, called Inonoaklin. The people of this valley use all the services of the two communities. The total population of the whole area would be about 500 people.

SOME WISH TO STAY

"With construction of the High Arrow dam the question arises, What will become of the people of these communities? Many will wish to stay in the valley. For them to do so, a new community or communities must be established. New homes must be built to replace the old ones they are forced to vacate. A few homes may be moved. There are no available homes in the area for these people to puhchase. They must rebuild if they wish to remain here.

"The B.C. Hydro and Power Authority has stated it will pay fair market value for their properties. Is there a market value on flooded lands and homes? These people must replace what they now own with new. They cannot purchase old materials to build old homes again. They should not be forced to go into debt to replace what is now theirs. This seems only reasonable and fair.

"In December of 1960 the communities of Edgewood-Needles-Fauquier joined together to form the Edgewood-Needles-Fauquier Citizens' Protective Association, under the Societies Act. The purpose of the organization is to assist members and citizens to secure adequate and equitable compensation in the matters of real and personal property, and-or relocation, and other matters resulting from the construction of, and flooding by, the 'High Arrow' dam.

"Since forming the association, the executive has kept in contact with all the parties concerned. It has prepared a brief outlining the wishes of the people with regard to replacement value, utilities, rental housing, public buildings, etc. It has held meetings with various Hydro officials, town planners, etc.

MODERN COMMUNITY

"The general feeling of the membership and residents is to build one modern community with all facilities from the three. They cannot, however, make any definite plans until they are told where the new roads will be located. Will the present road No. 6 go south from here to join with No. 3 at some point near Castlegar? Which side of the lake will the road be built on? Will there be a bridge or a free ferry at the crossing between Needles and Fauquier? The association has approved a petition, presented by the people, asking that the B.C. Hydro make an immediate survey for a townsite and/or townsites in the three areas. They have also asked the Highways Department to give them some definite direction as to the relocation and future planning of highway connections.

"Is it fair to let people, especially older people, remain uncertain as to where they will have a piece of land on which to start again? This should be decided quickly. It is hoped that the B.C. Hydro will expedite their proceedings and give the people something definite to go on.

"It would seem to have been a dereliction of justice if a project with the magnitude of the Columbia would not leave the people better off than they were before. It is hoped that in the end the settlements will all have been satisfactory, that all decisions will bring a better future for the people of the Arrow Lakes, and that the province of British Columbia may have benefitted from this great undertaking."

Kimberley Hospital Pushes Towards Accreditation Goal

KIMBERLEY — Reports aired at the recent meeting of the trustees of Kimberley and District Hospital indicate a progressive program aimed at full accreditation of the hospital.

Chairman Nicholson welcomed the newly-appointed government representative, Kim Reynolds, to the board.

The administrator's report indicated a heavy load in June, with patient days up 166 days above the May estimate, with 91 per cent occupancy. The X-ray machine is in working order after overhaul, the older X-ray unit now giving trouble. The Elks Club has donated a television set to the hospital.

The auxiliary report showed over 1000 items sewn by the WA, with 1478 volunteer hours put in.

The director of nurses said that the expected arrival of triplets to a Kimberley mother had been carried out satisfactorily with co-operation exercised by the hospital team.

A large amount of work has been concluded in the re-arrangement of the pharmacy operation.

Negotiations for services of a consultant dietitian are proceeding. Approval has been granted to interpretation of electrocardiograms by an intern at Trail-Tadanac Hospital.

A new addition to the medical staff will be Dr. David Johnston of Calgary, August 1.

Expenditures of $30,679 for May were ratified.

Longtime Crib Player Gets Perfect Hand

NAKUSP — After playing cribbage since she was 14 years old, Mrs. N. A. Herridge of Nakusp has received a 29-point hand for the first time.

Mrs. W. Ward was Mrs. Herridge's partner on this occasion.

Re-Draft Building Bylaw Considered by Fruitvale

FRUITVALE — The village commission is planning on re-drafting its building bylaw for easier interpretation and enforcement.

At a meeting last week it was decided to obtain copies of other village's building bylaws to give a guide in re-drafting the bylaw.

It was reported that a good percentage of taxes are still outstanding.

The village clerk was instructed to seek action against two business establishments which have not been licensed in accordance with the trades licence bylaw.

The commission discussed revised estimates on the construction of sewer services into the Hill Avenue area as presented by Associated Engineers Limited.

Residents in the area concerned will be asked to have a delegation at the next meeting of the commission, so that costs and financing of the project can be fully explained to them.

Improvements to the cemetery grounds and to the upper ball diamond are progressing favorably, it was reported at the meeting.

The parks committee informed the commission that cleanup is being continued on the park grounds and that partitions for the new washrooms would be installed shortly.

Two Montrose commissioners attended the meeting and joint participation of Montrose and Fruitvale in a civil defence program was discussed.

Fruitvale commissioners were invited to attend a meeting in Montrose to discuss the proposal further.

Kanester Sent To Essondale

VICTORIA (CP) — A Victoria man sentenced to 20 years for raping two girls has been declared mentally ill and sent to Essondale mental hospital near Vancouver.

A cabinet order Monday transfers Larry Kenneth Kanester from Oakalla prison farm to the mental hospital.

He will remain there until the cabinet decides he is fit to return to jail.

Kanester was described by Mr. Justice T. W. Brown at his trial last month as a man who had "preyed on women since boyhood."

He was previously convicted of rape in Nelson and was on parole in January when he raped two girls here.

Tender $135,000 Too Low

Contractor's Nightmare Happens in Hydro Tender

Of such things dreams are made — bad dreams. A slip of the pen, a contractor's nightmare, cost Dawson Construction Ltd. its $75,000 performance bond on a B.C. Hydro contract.

That was the explanation given by company president Gerald Dawson after it was learned his company had forfeited its bond rather than meet its bid on the job.

"All contractors live in dread of experiencing a substantial error in their estimating and take many precautions to verify their calculations," Dawson said.

"In spite of this, errors do occur and we had the unfortunate experience to have one of such proportion that it was impossible to perform the work at anywhere near our tendered price."

Dawson's firm submitted the low bid of $742,000 when tenders were opened May 12 for a contract to relocate a section of Canadian Pacific Railway line which will be flooded out by the Arrow Lake dam.

The next lowest bid was for $1,000,200, submitted by Peter Kiewit and Sons (Canada) Ltd., one of Dawson's partners in the three-firm consortium building the Portage Mountain dam on the Peace River.

"Our tender price was so far out of line that we immediately sensed something was wrong and went back through our calculations," Dawson said.

Nine days later, on May 27, the company notified Hydro that something was indeed wrong — its bid was $135,000 lower than it should have been.

Explained Dawson: "It was a very complex engineering thing, but put it this way: there was an error in transmission of information from our engineer's field notes to the work sheet that was used to make up the estimates."

Dawson declined to name the man involved, beyond saying that he was — and still is — a senior employee.

A Hydro spokesman confirmed the construction firm notified the crown utility May 21 that it had made a mistake and at the same time proposed an adjustment of its tender. With the adjustment, Dawson's bid would still have been lowest.

On May 27, he said, the company told Hydro it was withdrawing its bid.

"We told them we expected them to carry out the contract and issued the purchase order June 10," he said.

Issuance of the purchase order, which made Hydro's acceptance of the Dawson tender official, could not be done until that date, which was the day the federal government ratified the Columbia treaty.

On June 11, the Hydro spokesman said, Dawson returned the purchase order, thus signifying it was giving up the contract. Eight days later the job was awarded to Peter Kiewit & Sons.

The Hydro spokesman said the $75,000 performance bond which accompanied Dawson's tender was not all profit, however.

He said the utility was put to considerable additional cost in assessing other tenders when the firm defaulted on its bid.

He said whatever is left of the $75,000 after these extra costs have been computed and deducted will be paid into the Columbia project fund.

"For Insubordination"

Cabinet Approves McAnulty Dismissal

VICTORIA (CP)—The cabinet Monday approved the dismissal of Dr. James McAnulty, medical health officer for the West Kootenay area, for insubordination.

He was suspended May 8 after it was reported he tried to impose his views on Castlegar council when he opposed a local sewage disposal system.

He appealed the suspension but the Civil Service Commission recommended his dismissal after a private hearing.

A health department spokesman said the official reasons for his dismissal are "conflict with policies of the department and insubordination."

The spokesman said there had been a series of incidents in which the doctor had been in conflict with his superiors. One concerned water pollution, another was about a suspected case of sleeping sickness near Trail.

His dismissal is effective May 25. He will be replaced in about a month by Dr. Nick Schmidt, now with the federal Indian Health Service in Nanaimo.

Another committee with Harry Lefevre as chairman is endeavoring to pick up old mining equipment to be used as display pieces at the museum.

Cyprus Situation

Information that both Greek and Turkish forces have landed on Cyprus puts a much more serious face on the situation there.

Canada, with 1122 troops serving in the United Nations force on the island, is understandably concerned. A plan to evacuate this force by air on a moment's notice is said to exist. Implementation of such a plan would not amount to running away from duty. The Canadian troops, and those of other countries represented in the UN force, were sent to Cyprus to keep violence from spreading among the civilian population. The UN contingent was never meant to stand between major military forces, as it now may find itself doing unless the picture alters soon.

The latest indicated development shows clearly the basic limitation of UN peace-keeping forces. They are usually effective only when there is a chance for opposing sides in a dispute to save face by having UN troops between them. This explains the effectiveness of the UN force on the Gaza Strip. Israel and Egypt were looking for a chance to call off their battles. Each was able to save face by drawing back from the UN force set between them. If the situation had been otherwise, and large forces had been engaged to serve uncompromising ambitions, the likelihood of UN troops being able to save the day would have been remote.

There appears to be no willingness to compromise on Cyprus. Neither the Greeks nor the Turks, nor the Greek or Turkish Cypriots seem to want to save face by disengaging in the presence of the UN.

Greek and Turkish soldiers on Cyprus could mean that warfare of major proportions may erupt momentarily. If this happens, the UN forces will be quickly overwhelmed if they remain.

It appears that the Cyprus situation has changed and that conditions are vastly different now from those existing when the UN was called in. The new situation calls for a different type of solution. Perhaps it is time that the big powers intervene directly. Since the dispute involves two North Atlantic Treaty Organization members, its leading members should bring their influence to bear on hammering out some realistic terms of settlement.

'Inexactitudes'

It is the technical code, sometimes rather specious it seems, that in formal sessions a parliamentarian must be assumed to speak the whole truth and nothing but the truth. A member's statement must be taken at its face value, no matter the reservations any of his fellows may have in relation thereto.

That is to say, one parliamentarian may not call another a liar.

This is the code, and not alone in Canada. In other lands the protocol is the same, and probably just as well for the sake of ordered debate. Inevitably of course, human nature being as it is, what Sir Winston Churchill once termed "terminological inexactitudes" come into play. The trouble is that the play may assume disturbing proportions.

In the necessary result of restrictive parliamentary procedures frank answers are not always given to frank questions. Sometimes the question is a fishing expedition for political purposes, and sometimes a plain yes or no cannot well be given to a question. There are varying degrees of truth, which cannot always be expressed in unequivocal fashion.

Nevertheless the tendency to ambiguity, to evasion, to misleading statement, is all too prevalent, giving rise frequently to the suspicion that the code is being abused with premeditated purpose. As with Caesar's wife it is not enough to be above suspicion but also to appear to be so.

And the public on occasion may easily feel that evasion sometimes comes too close for comfort to plain and deliberate distortion of the facts.

No one political party may be indicted before another, the temptation to "terminological inexactitude" is common to all. But it is undue indulgence along this line that dilutes public respect for parliamentary institutions and weakens the fabric of democracy.—Victoria Colonist.

A Little Bombast, Please

So much for the smashing vocabulary. A New York advertising man — set a thief to catch a thief — now tells us that the selling language of advertisers has been reduced to five key words.

White — as in whiter than white. Power — as in a deodorant with underarm power. Mild — cigarettes and detergents, of course. Refreshing — from soap to toothpaste. And relief — from everything under the sun.

Where will it all end?

With, perhaps, the one key word, relief?

Or is there a challenger in a key word recently exploited in Vancouver car advertising? Bombast — as in bombasting car prices.

It may be only a rhinestone from the treasure chest of the English language. But with a little polishing it just might go places. It sounds good, like a key word should.

Sit It Out

Man I know went to a "violently funny" play, found it violently unfunny and decided to walk out at the second interval. As he put on his coat a member of the audience called out helpfully, "I say, there is a third act." He explained that he could not stand any more and, as he retreated, heard a woman say, "I'm not surprised — it's terribly hot in there." Which shows that people are fundamentally decent, and will not believe that a sane man can be so wrong-headed as to throw away something he has paid for.—Punch.

Savagery, 1964

Note these facts from the annals of human idiocy.

The U.S. Navy has 37 nuclear-powered, nuclear-armed submarines in operation.

Some 51 more are being built which means 88 nuclear subs will soon be prowling the seas with a total of at least 1400 Polaris missiles.

Each missile has the destructive power of all the bombs dropped by all combatants in the last war.

Given the realities of the military competition, we can be sure that the Russians either have, or soon will have, at least as much underwater nuclear capacity as the Americans.

These weapons, let it be noted, are in addition to the land-based intercontinental missiles, as well as the nuclear bombs at this minute airborne in U.S. bombers and stockpiled at airfields.

Land, sea and air are now more than overloaded with nuclear overkill. If the human race survives, the people of 2064 and 2164 are going to look back on us as crazed savages.—Financial Post.

Eisenhower Believes May Have Erred

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — In the past, Dwight D. Eisenhower has come to Republican conventions as a candidate for president and as president of the United States.

At this year's convention, which opened Monday, he is cast in the unfamiliar role of "consultant" to a broadcasting company.

Eisenhower made his debut on the American Broadcasting Company network Sunday. At one point in the program it sounded as though he felt he had made a mistake in entering into the contract.

The format of the program is for Eisenhower to be interviewed by James Hagerty, an ABC vice-president who was his White House press secretary for eight years, and William H. Lawrence, ABC political news editor.

Lawrence asked him if he felt his participation in the convention "has been inhibited in any way as a result of being made a consultant with us." Lawrence remarked that "this charge has sometimes been made."

"This is what I think, Bill," the 73-year-old former president replied. "I may have made a mistake 14 months ago when I decided to take this position. I am not sure, but in any event it is too late to change that."

As Eisenhower went on to say that it now would be "completely a double-cross on my part to change that position," Lawrence came in with a clarifying question.

"You mean you may have made a mistake when you said you would remain neutral throughout this contest?"

"Yes," Eisenhower told him, going on to reiterate that in urging leading Republicans 14 months ago to make themselves available for the presidential nomination he had assured them he was not going to be for or against any of them.

This was one of the rough spots in the program, and he had to be prompted at another point when the name of Governor George Romney of Michigan slipped his mind. But for the most part it went off smoothly enough even though it produced no startling news.

Lions Elect International President

Claude M. DeVorss of Wichita, Kansas, was elected President of Lions International at the Association's 47th annual convention in Toronto, Canada, July 8-11. Lions International, with 720,000 members in 124 countries, is the world's largest service club organization.

Lions International is best known for its many youth programs, community service projects, sight conservation activities and aid to the blind. Last year Lions Clubs around the globe completed more than 400,000 individual community projects.

Russia Will Build Grain Stockpile

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Soviet Premier Khrushchev said Monday Russia will build a giant grain stockpile to guard against "accidents."

The premier told the opening joint session of the Supreme Soviet the stockpile will be equivalent to at least half or even the whole of the Soviet Union's annual grain needs.

Khrushchev did not say when the stockpiling will begin or where the grain will be obtained.

Russia was reported last May to be thinking of buying 500,000 tons of wheat annually from Canada.

After a severe crop failure in the Soviet Union last year the Russians bought $500,000,000 of wheat and flour from Canada and other large amounts from the United States.

Khrushchev said Monday there are good prospects for this year's Soviet harvest, despite a late spring.

OUTPUT INCREASES

The Russian leader told the Supreme Soviet in his speech the output of the country's economy increased by 9.7 per cent in 1962.

Khrushchev said industrial production accounted for all but 1.2 per cent of the increase. He said this was because of bad crop failure that year.

The session, the Supreme Soviet's usual summer meeting, was not expected to last more than four days.

Although Russian sources said earlier the Supreme Soviet will enact a five-day, 40-hour week, the subject was not specifically mentioned in the agenda adopted Monday.

However, the deputies agreed to discuss the question of pensions for peasants and wage increases for teachers, health workers and employees in the catering trade and consumer services.

Russians now work a 41-hour, six-day week.

Khrushchev said Russia's economic target is an annual increase in production of between nine and 10 per cent.

GIVES FIGURES

Referring to the 1962 figures, the Russian leader said engineering output went up 14 per cent, production in the chemical industry 15 per cent, and production of steel, oil and gas outstripped their quotas.

Khrushchev called for improved quality in consumer goods and said this task is one of the country's central objectives. He also called for better food supplies in certain areas.

He said the Russian national income rose 2.3 times in the last 10 years, that 65,000,000,000 rubles ($71,500,000,000) new [illegible] invested in building in this period, and that half the country's working population now had a high school education.

The public insurance funds, from which pensions are paid, more than doubled since 1953, he said.

Describing the results of the country's economic and cultural development, Khrushchev also touched on peaceful economic competition with capitalist countries, primarily with the United States.

"We have no doubts as to the outcome of this competition," he said. "We are bound to win."

SCOFFS AT RUMORS

He scoffed at foreigners who speak with "malicious glee" about the "crisis" and "fiasco" of Russian agriculture following last year's crop failure.

Figures showed that over the last 10 years Russian grain production had risen by 77 per cent, he said. Meat production more than doubled, milk rose by 76 per cent, butter by 82 per cent and sugar by 130 per cent.

Because of the crop failure, Khrushchev said, Russia had to purchase about 12,000,000 tons of grain to avoid rigid economies on bread and the discontinuance of a number of food products.

He said Russia could have got by without buying the extra grain, but "the Soviet government refused to take such a course."

He said 10 years ago the volume of Russia's industrial product was only 33 per cent of that of the United States and in the last year it was already nearly 65 per cent.

Over the last six years the mean annual rate of increase of industrial products in the Soviet Union was 9.7 per cent, compared with 3.6 per cent in the United States.

Pearson Proposes

Racial Equality in The Commonwealth

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP)—A declaration of racial equality, drafted by Canada, made a big impression Monday on the conference of Commonwealth prime ministers.

The Canadian declaration, circulated after this morning's crucial final meeting on Southern Rhodesia, called for a "structure of society" within the Commonwealth offering equal opportunity for all, regardless of race, color or creed.

But it was reported that Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home appeared to have averted a threatened split in the Commonwealth over the issue of majority rule for Southern Rhodesia.

CONCILIATORY ATTITUDE

Douglas-Home's weekend talks with African delegates on the Rhodesian question apparently produced the conciliation Britain had hoped for.

Pearson also offered technical and other aid to Southern Rhodesia beyond what Canada already is doing. He said Canada would welcome Africans from Southern Rhodesia for training.

The Canadian declaration read in part:

"It should be an objective of policy to build in each country a structure of society which offers equal opportunity and non discrimination for all its people, irrespective of race, color or creed.

"The Commonwealth should be able to exercise constructive leadership in the application of democratic principles in a manner which will enable all people of the many racial and cultural groups in our various countries to exist and develop as free and equal citizens."

AFRICANS IMPRESSED

Pearson suggested these ideas as the basis for the declaration by all the prime ministers and presidents attending this 13th conference which has now passed its halfway mark at Marlborough House.

Pearson's unexpectedly forthright statement was understood to have won considerable support from his fellow premiers and to have made particular impression upon the African delegates.

The whole basis of Pearson's statement was to indicate that unless the Commonwealth was seen to be doing something constructive and positive in the field of racial discrimination and democratic equality it would let slip a great opportunity.

What was being done at this conference would be taken as a test of the seriousness of the Commonwealth as an institution. Its acts would be regarded as a "symbol."

PROMISES CANADIAN HELP

Speaking specifically of Southern Rhodesia, the Canadian prime minister called for the early release from prison of African leaders in the territory, still a British colony though long under minority white Rhodesian rule. He suggested this would be a necessary prelude to any fruitful negotiations between the two sides.

He expressed Canada's willingness to do whatever it can to help Southern Rhodesia, including receiving selected African personnel in Canada for training.

He said Canada would be prepared to allocate resources to assist in a "crash program" for education and specialized training.

Many observers feel that secondary education is the outstanding need to advance Africans into positions where they would be ready to accept responsibility.

Pearson also spoke of the situation in British Guiana, which 12 years ago seemed to be among the most advanced of the Caribbean territories but now was deadlocked in a dispute between persons of Indian and African descent.

MUTUAL CONCESSIONS

The essential need was to establish confidence and a mutual will for concessions. He warned that intervention should not be on any basis other than something agreed by both sides.

In his references to Southern Rhodesia, Pearson counselled prudence and said that it would introduce a new and difficult element into the situation if the white Rhodesian minority government made a unilateral declaration of independence.

The emphasis should be on supporting moderate and prudent elements in the country.

He had been impressed by a warning from Kenya's Jomo Kenyatta that a refusal of concessions to the black majority might weaken the control of responsible elements among the black African leaders.

BRITISH RESPONSIBILITY

Pearson recognized that the responsibility for Southern Rhodesia's future must remain with Britain.

Kenyatta said Southern Rhodesia was a British responsibility and called on Britain to see to it that the colony gets majority rule as soon as possible.

He repeated the demand of African members of the Commonwealth for a constitutional conference to resolve the problem of the franchise in white-ruled Southern Rhodesia, where only about 13,000 of the country's 4,000,000 Africans have the vote, compared with 90,000 of its 250,000 whites.

The sources said other African leaders at the conference backed Kenyatta.

Kenyatta's speech closed debate on the highly-charged Southern Rhodesian issue.

San Franciscans Protest Goldwater's Nomination

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The largest civil rights demonstration in San Francisco's history was staged Sunday to protest the likely nomination of Senator Barry Goldwater as the Republican candidate for president.

Police Traffic Director Thomas Zargoza estimated about 35,000 persons—a majority of them white—marched up Market Street and assembled in this Republican national convention city's Civic Centre.

There they heard a dozen speakers, including New York Governor Nelson Rockefeller and Henry Cabot Lodge, former ambassador to South Viet Nam.

Both praised the marchers, as did New York Senators Jacob Javits and Kenneth Keating, and vowed to fight for a stronger civil rights plank in the Republican platform.

Rockefeller declared the Republican platform completed Sunday was an "utterly inadequate document" and a "betrayal of our history and heritage."

Neither Lodge nor Rockefeller mentioned Goldwater by name. But most of the other speakers did.

William Chester, chairman of the San Francisco Negro Labor Assembly and the leadoff speaker, declared:

"We march to make known our opposition to the presidential candidacy of Senator Barry Goldwater, his vote against the civil rights bill, and the racist view he represents."

The crowd, peppered with anti-Goldwater placards, heard similar statements from James Farmer, national head of the Congress of Racial Equality; A. Philip Randolph, head of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, and other Negro leaders.

Farmer predicted a disaster for the Republican party if Goldwater is nominated.

The rally was sponsored by a coalition of Negro, labor and church groups which had predicted 50,000 marchers would take part. Police reported no incidents.

Says Viet Nam War Could Begin World Conflict

LONDON (Reuters) — President Ayub Khan of Pakistan said Monday he believed any extension of the war in South Viet Nam would be a much bigger war than anticipated and could turn into a world war.

Khan was answering questions at a luncheon here given by the Foreign Press Association and two Commonwealth writers' groups in London. He is here for the Commonwealth prime ministers conference.

He had been asked the consequences the United States faced in risking war in Southeast Asia.

Earlier, in a speech at the luncheon, Khan said the struggle between the United States and China in Southeast Asia is "very blurred." He said the struggle both in South Viet Nam and Laos is not for military targets but for men's minds.

PAKISTAN ISSUE

Referring to the Pakistani-Indian dispute, the Pakistani president said that even if India genuinely believes the Chinese are threatening to invade, her first aim then should be to come to terms with Pakistan—or Kashmir and other issues—for the joint defence of the Indian subcontinent.

Khan echoed what has become a constant theme of his public utterances since the death of Prime Minister Nehru:

"The Kashmir quarrel is draining the blood of India and of Pakistan. Mr. Nehru had come to realize this before his death. We have great hopes that his successor (Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri) does so too."

The Pakistani stressed that "no question of surrender" by either neighbor-state is involved—for both it was a matter of survival. And he pledged that if the new leadership of India realizes this, they would find Pakistanis ready to play their part.

Georgia Presses Search For Shotgun Killer

COLBERT, Ga. (AP) — FBI and Georgia state agents continued Monday to push an intensive investigation into the mysterious shotgun slaying of a Washington Negro educationist.

State investigators fanned out Sunday along the route taken through northeast Georgia by Lemuel Penn, 49, director of Washington's vocational high schools, when he was shot at the wheel of his car early Saturday.

Residents along the rural route said agents moved from house to house in their questioning, but Public Safety Director Lowell Conner said there were no arrests.

Penn, a lieutenant-colonel in the army reserve, was killed by a shotgun blast fired from a car which suddenly passed his automobile from the rear, about 10 miles northeast of Colbert. Two other Negro officers riding with Penn escaped injury.

The three men had completed a refresher course at Ft. Benning before beginning their trip back to Washington.

There was violence in other parts of the South during the weekend.

LEADS TO RIOT

An argument involving a Negro and a white man in a recently integrated Henderson, N.C., restaurant led to a riot that was quelled only when police arrested 16 persons.

About 200 Negroes and white persons — including men and women—took part in the pitched battle using fists, rocks and bottles. Police finally restored order about 3 a.m. Sunday with the arrests of four white men and 12 Negroes.

While there were many with minor cuts and bruises only one person was injured seriously enough to require hospital care.

In Florida, two Negro youths were shot. Police in Mims said John Demson Jr., 15, was wounded by a shot apparently fired accidentally by a Negro companion, Eugene Stiggons, 17.

Sheriff Lee Wilson said the two youths and two companions had armed themselves Saturday night and had started firing at a passing car when Demson was hit. Stiggons was charged with aggravated assault.

SHOT IN BACK

At Lake City, Fla., Charlie Avenger, 18, was hit in the back by buckshot early Sunday but was not badly injured. Police said the shot was fired from a passing car.

In Jackson, Miss., a white man struck a Negro woman with an iron bar while the two were arguing at an integrated bus station lunch counter.

The woman, Mrs. Bennie Lee Catchings, 28, was arrested on a charge of disturbing the peace. The man left before police arrived.

Elsewhere in Jackson Sunday a group of teen-agers slashed the tires of a car used by several Negroes who were eating in a restaurant.

Police in Tallulah, La., are investigating to learn if the lower half of a body, found in a river 17 miles south of Tallulah, may be part of the answer to the disappearance June 21 of three civil rights workers from Philadelphia, Miss. Tallulah is some 125 miles southeast of Philadelphia.

The condition of the body was such that it was impossible to tell its sex or race.

Eight Negroes went to a beach near Charleston, S.C., Sunday where about 100 white youths roughed them up, beating one severely.

Police broke up the fight and arrested one Negro for carrying a concealed weapon.

San Francisco had its biggest civil rights demonstrations in history when a crowd estimated by police at 35,000 persons marched up Market treet.

The demonstration was called to protest the likely nomination of Senator Barry Goldwater as the presidential nominee of the Republican Party. The Arizona senator voted against the civil rights bill.

Shatosky - DeFerro Principals To Make Their Home in Nelson

Widely attended by friends and relatives from Nelson and out of town, a late afternoon wedding ceremony held in the Blessed Sacrament Church in Fairview saw the marriage solemnized between Phyllis Catherine DeFerro, daughter of Mrs. Charles DeFerro and the late Mr. DeFerro, and Mr. Garnet M. Shatosky, son of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Shatosky of Hazel Dell, Sask.

Rev. D. Langi officiated at the pretty June ceremony, for which the church was filled with roses and huge baskets of peonies.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Joseph Trozzo, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white floral brocade; the fitted bodice featuring a scoop neckline and lily-point sleeves and the softly pleated skirt sweeping into a graceful train Her veil misted from a coronet headdress and she carried cascading red roses with white stephanotis, ivy and trailing satin ribbons. Her jewellery was a drop pearl necklet, gift of the bridegroom.

The attendants' gowns in shrimp shade provided a pretty contrast to bridal white. Of short style floral brocade, they were matched by the accessories and headpieces of the matron of honor, Mrs. Robert Ratcliffe; bridesmaids Miss Noni Buckley and Miss Doreen DeFerro, sister of the bride. Flower girl, Karen Hellekson wore a frock of white floral brocade with shrimp sash and matching headpiece. The matron of honor and bridesmaids carried bouquets of white and shrimp cascading carnations. Their headdresses were made by Miss Mae Macfarlane, as was that of the flower girl who carried a colonial bouquet of shrimp and white carnations.

Mr. Marvin Shatosky of Swift Current, Sask., supported his brother as best man and Mr. Alfred Trozzo of Trail, cousin of the bride, and Mr. Art Miller of Nelson acted as ushers.

Mr. Melvin Maglio was vocal soloist during the service and organist was Mrs. Georgette Hamson. Altar boys were Lou and Gordon Coletti.

At the reception, the mothers of the bride and groom assisted in the receiving line; Mrs. DeFerro wearing a pink ensemble with white accessories and Mrs. Shatosky in blue with white accessories. Both wore corsages of pink and white.

White wedding bells, flowers and shrimp and white streamers ornamented the Catholic Hall for the event, with red roses on the tables. The three-tiered wedding cake made by the mother of the bride, and decorated by Mrs. J. C. Eckmier was set on shrimp tulle on a lace-covered table, with white tapers glowing on either side. The cloth was made by the aunt of the bride, Mrs. Louis Santor.

Grace was said by Msgr. J. F. Monaghan and master of ceremonies was Mr. Alfred Trozzo, uncle of the bride.

The best man proposed a toast to the bridesmaids.

Telegrams from cousins Mr. and Mrs. I. LeGrandeur of Winnipeg, Mr. and Mrs. R. Adrian of Ucluelet, B.C., Mr. and Mrs. C. Shatosky, brother and sister-in-law of the bridegroom, of Calgary and Miss Judy Shatosky, sister of the bridegroom, from Swift Current, were read.

Before leaving for a trip to points in the United States and in the east, the brdie changed into a two-piece turquoise suit with matching purse and white accessories. Her corsage was of pink carnations. The newlyweds placed the bride's bouquet on her father's grave; her going-away corsage was to be placed on the grave of the bridegroom's brother in Swift Current.

"Havoc in A" Caused by Four Extra Vibrations

CHICAGO (AP) — A shock wave is running through the world of music fundamentals. The musical note A, as steady as the rock of Gibraltar for nearly 50 years, is beginning to creep up again.

If you strike note A above middle C on a properly tuned piano, the piano strings will vibrate 440 times a second.

If you tap an A note tuning fork, the prongs will vibrate 440 times a second.

But some modern symphony orchestra conductors and musicians have been cranking up the A to 444 vibrations, in an attempt to get extra brilliance into the orchestration. Correspondingly, they have sharpened slightly the pitch of all other notes.

This has run head-on into opposition from piano tuners and some musical instrument makers in Canada and the United States.

MUST TUNE OFTEN

They say retuning a piano to conform with an A-444 puts an extra half-ton tension on the instrument's 220 strings and necessitates more frequent tuning.

The Piano Technicians Guild, which represents the piano tuners in Canada and the United States, has vowed a continuing tight to maintain A-440 as the standard of musical pitch.

They have an ally in Jack C. Deagan, who heads a Chicago firm that produces mallet percussion instruments and tuning devices. He told guild members at their annual meeting here Thursday:

"The individual musician who plays above A-440 for 'extra brilliance' is unfair to his fellow musicians."

300 Topless Dresses Sold to Western Stores

WINNIPEG (CP) — Three dresses with revealing tops were displayed here Monday at a private showing and the distributor said he had sold 300 to Western Canada stores.

David Fogell of Winnipeg, Western representative for the manufacturer said he expected women would wear the dresses at private parties and such.

"The young business girl and the young married woman will be the best customer," he predicted to reporters.

Most revealing was a tight-fitting black number, solid cloth from knee to just above the waist of the chic model. Seven vertical cloth strands took over from there.

The strands were held up by a horizontal neckline strip. The dress was backless.

"We sell a blouse with it," Mr. Fogell said. "Then the girl can decide later whether she wants to wear it."

For those who want the effect of topless nudity without being nude, the strand dress also comes with a flesh-colored nylon mesh attachment.

More decorous was a black sheath with a filmy bodice which hid little.

Each of the three costumes retails for $19.95. A blouse is $10 extra.

Mr. Fogell said "The prices are so low because there is less cloth in them."

He lamented that North American women "have been on the shy side" when it comes to this type of dress. They have been worn in Europe for some time.

"Women also wore dresses such as this in the 15th and 16th century."

Mr. Fogell said he had made the 300 sales on a two-week swing through Western Canada. He said 60 dresses had been sold in Winnipeg alone to six sotres

He emphasized that the daring strand dress becomes a conventional articles of clothing when worn with a blouse.

Relax, Husbands—No Radical Changes Noted in Fall Styles

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

NEW YORK (AP)—When two weeks of style previews for the U.S. press came to a close here Saturday, husbands could at last be consoled that nothing — not even the topless bathing suit — has evolved to outdate their wives clothes by next fall.

Now they have only to sweat out the Italian and Paris collection openings this month before relaxing the grip on their wallets.

The only financial risks evident in the collections shown by the New York couture group last week, or the American designers group the week before, is that fall clothes are pretty and feminine enough to inspire a man with the magnanimity to insist that his lady own some.

Specifically, these style trends have developed:

Silhouettes — The easy-fitted shift of last season is not outdated, but yokes, curved seaming, and darts put the body back in the fashion picture. Empire lines—that is skirts attached to the bodice at the bosom—now stay close to the figure, at least to the waist, before flaring outward.

LIKE LONG TORSO DRESS

Every designer's favorite, however, is the long torsoed dress or costume, with a flash of pleats or a flare of gores beginning well below the hipline. Last year's blouson is here, but it's narrower, folding over a swinging skirt instead of a slim one.

Suits and costumes—Jackets are long versions of the smoker, brief cutaways, abbreviated overcoats, trench coats and redingotes.

Coats and coat dresses are either double breasted or open to the side with a single row of buttons. Most are narrow, built high under the arms, with gold or even rhinestone buttons, and very often trimmed with braid or fringe.

Costume details — Hemlines range from the knee cap to several inches above the knee. But the shortest are worn with leotards or patterned stockings. Turtlenecks, double rings, cowls and dainty white school girl collars frame the face by day. Tie blouses and scarves are fill-ins for wide-necked suits. By night the bodice is reduced to its lowest common denominator all the way around.

Sleeveless is the rule under jackets and coat costumes, thanks to well heated buildings in winter. But the wrist length goes along with the favorite covered up, long torso silhouettes.

Hues—A deep shade of red, not quite burgandy or maroon, combines with pinks, blues, whites and yellows . . . everything. Camel teams with white occasionally, and very often with black. Saffron yellow, emerald green, and fireman red are the vivid color successes. There is also winter white and black, black, black.

Fabrics—Mohairs are not as bushy as in the past. Menswear fabrics—the grey flannels, herringbone tweeds, particularly—obviously were on every designer's order lists. So were twills, jerseys, velvets, corduroys, silk satin, and a lot more brocade than was really necessary. Chiffons and crepes were on the fashion scene, too, but were crowded out of the limelight by brocade.

Accessories — Newsboy caps, tams and boy scout hats were as predominant on pretty manikins this year as fedoras and derbies were last. Ladylike snoods and scarf hats had precedence over big brimmed chapeaux. For evening only cock feathers or ostrich plumage would do.

Shoes were open at the sides with closed heels and toes, always with a tiny ladylike heel for day. But a higher heeled mass of straps kept sole to body for party wear.

Jewelry was invariably gold, sometimes lace - like, usually with a florentine finish, as link necklaces, pendants, swirling pins, or replicas of fish and reptiles.

But during the fashion shows most models were faithful to long ropes of pearls and an occasional giant jeweled pin.

Banana-Split Salads
You can adapt this ice cream parlor favorite for summer salad lunching by putting scoops of cottage cheese on banana "splits" in lettuce cups. Sauce them with fresh fruits of your choice . . . sugared, in a syrup, or slightly mashed and mixed with a little mayonnaise. Garnish with sprigs of mint. Pretty as a picture, and high in good quality protein, courtesy of the cottage cheese!

Drip Tip
Know how to keep that cream pitcher from dripping? Just butter the outside of the pouring lip. A useful hint from Grandma's day!

Summer Safety
Choose picnic foods with care, then keep them cold in transit! Scotch coolers and ice bags are a great boon for toting perishables that could otherwise lead to spoiled foods and summer sickness. And here's a hint. Freeze those cans of fruit or vegetable juice you plan to include, then wrap the meats, butter and cheese nestled up to the frosty tins. The foods will be kept cold until you eat, and by then the juice will be defrosted but nicely chilled!

Hidden Cheeseburgers
Surprise folks at your next cook-out by featuring cheeseburgers-with-a-difference! Make the meat patties half the usual thickness, then "sandwich" two together with a good-sized piece of cheese between them. Vary the flavor combinations by using different kinds of cheese each time you make 'em . . . Cheddar, Swiss, Blue, Smoked Processed, Tilsit . . . all made-in-Canada!

Hints From Heloise

By Heloise Cruse

Dear Heloise:

For those who have electric toothbrushes—

Ever tried taking an old tooth brush head and inserting it in your toothbrush holder, using the reverse side and giving yourself a quick face massage?

Also wonderful for tense, tired neck muscles and the back of the neck, etc.

Love you,
Evelyn O.

Heavens to Betsy!

The moment we got this letter, I got up and tried it. Fabulous for that aching muscle in the back of the neck. Just use it gently for a few minutes. Sure helps tension headache.

Since you didn't enclose your address Evelyn, I will have to send a kiss through the column, Here 'tis . . . "X".

Dear Heloise:

This is an easy way to sew snaps:

After sewing on the snap (with the protruding end) I put a contrasting color of chalk on the tip of the snap and press it to the material, and there is no guess work as to just exactly where the snap should go.

Dear Heloise:

I use onion and potato mesh bags for my children's puzzles and other small toys. I hang them on a pegboard in their play room.

I also use one of these bags for my extension cords, and they are always at hand. I hang this bag in the basement stairway just off the kitchen. Now, no more hunting through the kitchen drawers for that particular cord.

Mrs. H. Franke.

Dear Heloise:

When an electric blanket konks out, we unravel the thread from the bottom ribbon, saving both thread and ribbon on a spool.

Turning the blanket inside out a little at a time, we clip the threads holding the electric wire until the entire wire is free. Then we remove the wire. The countless threads left inside do no harm.

We then turn the blanket right side out again, replace the ribbon, and a more comfortable blanket cannot be found.

This may help others who have an electric blanket which is no longer electric.

Dear Heloise:

Here is a tip for those who want to grow long, long nails:

Always keep nail polish on your nails, but the most important thing is to put a coat of polish underneath the tip of your nails. This strengthens the nails and will keep them from splitting.

This is a good idea for the girls who have their hands in water a great deal.

I have done this for years and my nails are very long and strong.

Dear Heloise:

Thanks for the idea about a shelf in the hot water heater closet. I now have two short clotheslines over the heater for quick-drying an item or two.

This is especially useful when washing baby's training pants several times a day.

No Shockers In Rome's Fashion Show

ROME (AP) — Rome fashion showings for fall and winter opened Monday with lots of toplessness — but not a shocker in the lot.

There were "topless" shoes and "topless" gloves in the morning accessory exhibit, and an almost-topless nightie in the afternoon boutique presentations. The nightie stopped millimeters from scandal, but created a flutter all the same.

Assunta showed brief after-ski pony skin or broadtail jackets embroidered in sparkling jet.

A three-quarter black mink coat had a gobelin tapestry lining, and high tapestry boots to match. For evening, Assunta presented narrow midcalf-long kimonos — chinchilla over a black velvet tube dress, and white mink over white-on-black silk.

Ninety Puck Students Attend Nelson Clinic

Ninety National Hockey League aspirants were in attendance as the first division of the annual international hockey clinic swung into action at Civic Centre rink Monday.

Athletes from Buffalo, New York, to Los Angeles, California, showed up to benefit from hockey instruction by NHL stars Johnny Bower, Norm Ullman, Doug Barclay and head tutor Metro Prystai, who starred under the big top for twelve years.

Students will learn the basic skills of shooting, skating, stickhandling, passing, as well as receiving instruction in facing off, back-checking, body-checking, positional play and digging the puck out of corners, and general offensive and defensive strategy.

Goaltenders are taught the proper use of hands, stick, pads, skates, clearing and covering the angles by Bower, one of hockey's all-time greats.

The boys live in the adjacent dormitory and take their meals in an adjoining dining room.

MAYOR WELCOMES

Mayor E. T. Bodard welcomed the visiting players at a dinner held at the Civic Centre Monday evening, and pointed out that the lessons in sportsmanship, co-operation and fair play which they learned at the clinic would aid them throughout the remainder of their lives. He stated that the most important lesson to be learned from participation in sports is that there has to be a loser, and that to succeed a man must learn to lose gracefully.

George Vogan, founder and manager of the clinic, told the youngsters that many of hockey's finest players had attended the international clinic and schools like it.

He spoke of a player who had attended a clinic which he once ran in Moose Jaw. The player had showed a world of talent, led his team through his junior years and was finally called to an NHL club. There, Vogan said, the puckster discovered the joys of high living and was never heard from again. There was, he suggested, a lesson to be learned from the story.

Bud Poile, coach of the San Francisco Seals of the Western Hockey League, will be a guest instructor at the clinic. He is expected to arrive in Nelson later this week.

The current clinic lasts two weeks, with a second division slated to begin immediately thereafter.

Vogan hopes to have Murray Balfour, former member of Chicago Black Hawks' famed "Million-Dollar Line" who was traded to Boston Bruins at the close of the 1963-64 season, as an additional instructor at that time.

Newcombe Finds Cup Training Rough Grind

MONTREAL (CP)—The Au e "You've got to keep working at it day in and day out," John Newcombe explained Monday after sweating through a two-hour workout with fellow teammates Owen Davidson and Tony Roche.

"It's a long road back to meeting the United States for the cup so you might as well start preparing immediately. If we make it to the challenge round, it'll be because we did not waste a minute and didn't loaf."

Spectators at the Mount Royal Tennis Club, scene of the elimination matches July 17-19, have watched in awe as non-playing captain Harry Hopman drills the team twice a day like a marine colonel. Everyone is in constant motion as Hopman rifles tennis balls to every corner of the court and barks out instructions.

EMERSON TOP AUSSIE

Newcombe played on the Australian team for the first time last year and is the second ranked member this year. Top man is Wimbledon champ Roy Emerson, expected to arrive Monday evening from Europe.

Emerson had been suspended by the Australian Lawn Tennis Association for leaving his country before April 1 and playing in international competition. His suspension was lifted last week to permit his participation in the Davis Cup matches.

The winner of the Canada-Australian elimination meets the survivor of the Mexico-New Zealand round. No one really expects Canada to gain anything but experience.

Damp Weather For Yacht Trials

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP)—Paul Henderson of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club in Toronto easily took the Flying Dutchman event on a rain-filled, foggy course at the Canadian Olympic yachting trials here Monday.

Henderson with a time of one hour, 28 minutes and 18 seconds for the 10.83-mile course, was four minutes and eight seconds ahead of second-place Ward McKim of the rittania Yacht Club, Ottawa. Wim Zegers of the Royal St. Lawrence Yacht Club, Montreal, was third in the En Garde.

Henderson took the win in the Syndi and McKim followed in Aries.

Under the Olympic scoring system Henderson was awarded 1,055 points for the win, McKim 754 and Zegers 578.

There are seven races in each class during the week-long trials with each competitor's six best to count.

The Royal St. Lawrence Club earned two wins Monday when Ed Botterell placed first in the Dragon class and Dr. S. A. Mcdonald took the 5.5 metre class.

Bonar Davis and Dave Miller of the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club finished one-two in the Star class and Tim Clarke of the Queen City Yacht Club, Toronto, won the closely contested Finn event.

Davis guided the Simba across the finish line 31 seconds ahead of Miller's Glisten to win the Star class. Davis was timed in one hour, five minutes and 29 seconds. He picked up 1,101 points, Miller 800 and third place Dave Millar of the RCYC, 624 points.

Exhibition Tilts Tough on Rookies

MONTREAL (CP) — Those pre-season exhibition games are always tough on rookies trying to crash the lineup.

For Norm Thomas, 23, the British Columbia rookie with Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Conference, the task is doubly tough.

Thomas would have been cut from the squad last Wednesday, except that he caught a 35-yard touchdown pass in the dying minutes of an intra-squad game.

"I had his name scratched from my list," coach Jim Trimble said later. "That one play saved his job. Anyone who can do a thing like that deserves a second look."

That second look comes tonight when the Alouettes play host in an exhibition to the tough Calgary Stampeders, one of three pre-season games they have lined up with Canadian Football League teams.

WON REPRIEVE

In the dressing room after the intra-squad game, Trimble announced to all the players that Thomas had won a reprieve for his touchdown.

"I wish he hadn't done that," Thomas said Monday in an interview. "Now I feel I'm under the gun more than ever."

But the six-foot, 191-pound New Westminster, B.C., native, who likes to say he's a hard guy to get rid of, knows that the Calgary game may decide his professional football future.

As a flanker prospect, he has tremendous competition but is quietly confident that he can make the team. "I don't kid myself. I haven't made this team yet."

An Alouette draft choice, Thomas is one of seven Canadians in contention for flanker positions on the team.

TORONTO (CP) — There's a certain amount of dramatic irony in the fact that Calgary Stampeders will be the opposition when Toronto Argonauts open their pre-season exhibition football schedule Thursday night.

Argos remember only too well the last visit here by the Stampeders. The 1963 season was well along when the Western Football Conference contenders walloped Argos 50-0 in Toronto.

Argos never did recover from the humiliation and the season's end found them in last place in the Eastern Football Conference.

And while pre-season games are supposed to do little more than give the coach an indication of how his talent shapes up, there's perhaps more than average significance to the Stampeders' visit.

A victory, or even a defeat with honor, might give Nobby Wirkowski's club the confidence it needs to have any serious thoughts of vacating last place. A lopsided beating, on the other hand, might be a setback from which Argos won't recover until it's too late.

Even the most confirmed Toronto fans, however, aren't figuring the team for anything better than third place. Many concede that Hamilton Tiger-Cats, defending Grey Cup champions, are the club to beat in the East and that Ottawa Roughriders are the most likely candidates to do it. That leaves Montreal Alouettes, third-place finishers last year, as the team Argo fans figure to displace in the three-team eastern playoffs.

American League Record Shattered

NEW YORK (AP) — American League players shattered a major-league record by hitting 25 home runs Monday, breaking the mark for most home runs in a five-game schedule.

The old record of 21 was set by the National League May 2, 1954, and equalled by the American League July 1, 1961.

Kansas City and Chicago accounted for 11 homers in a doubleheader climaxed by a eight-homer battle in the second game, with the Athletics blasting six. New York and Boston hit four apiece.

Twenty-four different players hit for the circuit, with Tom Tresh of the Yankees the only player to hit two, slamming one left-handed and the other right-handed.

The last player to hit a home run from both sides of the plate in a single game also was Tresh, on Sept. 1, 1963.

Giants Retain Lead; Yankees on the Move

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New York Yankees climbed within 1½ games of the first-place Baltimore Orioles in the American League on the eve of their crucial three-game series with the Orioles by blasting Cleveland Indians 10-4 Monday night.

Four homers—two by Tom Tresh and one each by Mickey Mantle and Clete Boyer—accounted for seven runs and made things easy for the Yanks as they capitalized on Baltimore's defeat by Detroit Tigers.

The Tigers whipped the Orioles 4-3 on Jerry Lumpe's single with the bases full and one out in the 10th inning. Brooks Robinson's two-run homer in the ninth had tied the score for Baltimore.

The third-place Chicago White Sox split a doubleheader with Kansas City. The White Sox won the opener 8-6 as Gary Peters helped win his own game with a three-run homer. The Athletics snapped a six-game losing streak by taking the second game 8-7 on Wayne Causey's ninth inning single with the sacks loaded.

Bill Monbouquette turned in a four-hitter as Boston Red Sox shut out Washington 7-0.

CUBS WHIP DODGERS

In the National League, Chicago Cubs exploded for five runs with two out in the sixth and walloped Los Angeles Dodgers 10-4.

St. Louis Cardinals beat Pittsburgh Pirates 5-4 in a 12-inning opener of a twi-night doubleheader. Julian Javier singled home the winning run with Bill White on third.

San Francisco meanwhile clung to first place in the NL by defeating Houston 5-3 on Orlando Cepeda's sacrifice fly in the ninth that broke a 3-3 tie.

The runner - up Philadelphia Phillies snapped a four-game losing streak by beating Milwaukee 3-2 as rookie Richie Allen banged out a double and a triple and scored two runs.

The Cincinnati at New York game was postponed because of rain.

Records Fall at Alberta Swim Meet

MEDICINE HAT (CP) — A record 278 athletes competed in the two-day second annual international swim meet during the weekend.

Sixteen Canadian records were broken, four of them by 12-year-old Didgie Blain of Seattle, Wash.

Wendy Lindsay, 14, of Calgary's Barracuda Club, and 10-year-old J. J. Pomfret of Vancouver broke two records each.

The swimmers established 37 Alberta records and 35 open records during the meet which included entrants from as far away as Moncton, N.B., and St. Louis, Missouri.

Junior Golf School Goes Next Week

VICTORIA (CP) — Sixteen of B.C.'s top golf pros will teach 136 young golfers at the second annual junior golf clinic being held at the Royal Colwood Golf Club for the next week.

The clinic, under the sponsorship of the B.C. Professional Golfers' Association with one of Canada's best golfers, Stan Leonard, in charge, has drawn pupils from Manitoba, Seattle and Prince George, and is to promote junior golf.

"It's not devised to produce champions although it's undoubtedly going to," said Colwood's Laurie Kerr. "What we're really after is to produce good club members for future years."

Last Friday, Kerr was thinking in terms of "about 100" golfers attending the clinic, but by Monday afternoon the ranks had swollen by 30. "They seemed to be coming from everywhere," he smiled. "Some we'd never even heard of."

The pupils from outside Victoria pay $80 for the week's course, while local players who can live at home are charged $50. Players supply their own clubs, but the clinic provides practice balls — 10,000 of them.

The Sports Scene

By PAT McMAHON
Daily News Sports Editor

A tip of the old fedora to freshman Western International Hockey League president Milo Fabro and his directors for their courageous stand on Sunday sports. Sunday hockey games are just what the doctor ordered to counter competition from televised NHL games, and to get around the problems which players experience in arranging time off from jobs to play hockey.

It is to be hoped they experience no serious opposition in their drive to have the legislative bodies concerned sanction the scheduling of Sunday hockey games during the forthcoming season.

Other provinces are moving away from the ridiculous, outdated dictatorial blue laws which prohibit the charging of admission to Sunday sporting events. It is to be hoped British Columbia will follow suit.

Vancouver, which does not come under the jurisdiction of the provincial Municipal Act has set a precedent in this regard. A referendum was put to the people and the result was an overwhelming "yes" vote.

Burnaby made a request to legislature, recently, for permission to charge on Sundays, and for reasons known only to himself, the provincial minister of municipalities turned it down flat.

If sufficient pressure is exerted on elected representatives, both at the city and provincial levels, Victoria will have no recourse but to lend a receptive ear to the request.

* * *

When officials of the Rossland Warrior hockey club made their pitch for a larger slice of the Western International Hockey League assessment, they assured one and all that they would be in a position to field a top-flight contender when hockey action gets under way this fall.

Rumors to the effect that Seth Martin, Dave Rusnell and Pinoke McIntyre were stopping around for a better deal were shrugged off as false and Harold Jones, they said, was almost a mortal cinch to sign as player coach.

All they needed was an extra thousand bucks with which to operate.

Representatives of the league's other four teams unofficially agreed to take a two per cent cut in their assessment to allow the Warrior's an eight per cent increase in the assessment grant.

* * *

If the Warrior's are, indeed, assured of the services of the "Big 4", then their request for financial help is a reasonable one. They kept their operating costs down to approximately half of those of the other teams in the loop, in spite of the fact that their net receipts were from 25 to 50 per cent less than their contemporaries. If there is any chance, whatever, that the Warriors can ice an interesting club of WIHL calibre, every effort should be made to keep them in operation.

* * *

However, if they are living in a dreamer's paradise with regard to the aforementioned players — and many persons close to the scene believe they are — then perhaps it would be best for all concerned if they died gracefully, now, instead of prolonging the agony until after the schedule has been drawn up.

Rumors have been rampant in Kootenay hockey circles to the effect that the Warrior stars, Rusnell and Martin in particular, are interested in making a change. It seemed to me that I detected a smug smile on the faces of certain Trail officials when Mac McCann announced that Rusnell and company would definitely be back.

None of the players in question had signed with Rossland as of Sunday. All four are reported to have received a signed release last year.

Even the most optimistic Rossland supporter would not be so foolhardy as to suggest the club could hope to compete without these players, who were the backbone of their club last year.

* * *

It is interesting to note that while every other team has posted its $500 guarantee bond with the league, Rossland has not. This would seem to indicate club officials are less certain of their position than their outward optimism indicates.

Without Rusnell, McIntyre, Martin and Jones, the Warriors wouldn't draw flies at home or on the road.

It is to be hoped that if these players do elect to seek greener pastures the Warriors will fold rather than dress an inferior squad which would be destined from the start to lose money and bore fans in other WIHL centres.

Have it on good authority that Harry Smith won't be back with the green and white next season. Pressure of business and a desire to spend more time with his family has the classy rearguard considering hanging them up. You can't argue with reasons like those but his absence would leave a gaping hole in the Nelson defence.

How does a club go about replacing a man who was considered good enough to represent his country in world championship and Olympic competition five consecutive times?

Perhaps Harry is merely angling for a better financial deal from the Leafs but I doubt it. He doesn't strike me as that kind of guy.

It is to be hoped that he doesn't wind up in a Trail uniform next season. That would be a doubly crippling blow.

Moose Skowron Traded Again

WASHINGTON (AP)—Washington Senators traded first baseman Bill (Moose) Skowron to Chicago White Sox for first baseman Joe Cunningham in a double waiver transaction Monday.

Carl Bouldin, a right-handed pitcher, was sent by the Senators to Indianapolis, a White Sox farm team in the Pacific Coast League, as part of the deal.

In addition, the Senators are to receive another player at a later date. Both teams said no cash was involved.

Under baseball law, only player deals permitted after June 15 must be via the waiver route. The waiver price is $20,000.

Skowron, 33, had a .271 batting average with the Senators this year. The Senators purchased him last December from Los Angeles Dodgers, who had acquired him the previous year from New York Yankees in a trade for pitcher Stan Williams.

Cunningham, 32, is left-handed. With the Sox, he had a .252 batting average in 39 games. The White Sox acquired Cunningham from the St. Louis Cards in December of 1961.

Opponents Praise "Sandy the Great"

LOS ANGELES (AP)-Up to now the story of Sandy Koufax has largely been a story of statistics.

One trouble with statistics is they sometimes get a little tedious. But about the only alternative is to have the story told by people, and the trouble with people is that they sometimes get a little carried away.

The former International League president, Frank J. Shaughnessy, who saw such pitchers as Christy Mathewson, Grover Cleveland Alexander and Walter Johnson, says Koufax "comes closer to being unhittable than any other pitcher I ever saw."

Ex-outfielder Richie Ashburn calls Koufax "a superman among pitchers."

"I was playing for the Mets when Koufax pitched that no-hitter against them in 1962," Ashburn says. "I remember one pitch he threw me in that game. It was the hardest pitch I ever saw. And, in 15 years, I saw quite a few."

Alvin Dark, now manager of San Francisco Giants, says Koufax is the only pitcher against whom he never entertained the slightest hope of hitting a home run.

Bob Oldis of Philadelphia Phillies says when Koufax is pitching "the batter should get four strikes and three balls and the runner should be credited with one-quarter of a run for every base he occupies."

ADD TO RECORD

The Koufax statistics cover the better part of two pages in the 1964 Dodger yearbook, and Koufax has added to the list since the book was published.

He is the only pitcher now active with three no-hitters. He is the only pitcher in major league history with two 18-strikeout performances.

He holds the National League strikeout record for a single season—306 in 1963—and has fanned 10 or more batters in a game on 55 occasions, a major league record.

He also holds the record for most strikeouts in a World Series game, 15 in the first game of 1963. And his strikeout average, better than nine per game, is the highest in major league history among pitchers who have worked 1,000 or more innings.

Koufax had the lowest earned-run average among major league starting pitchers in 1962 (2.54) and again in 1963 (1.88). He pitched 11 shutouts last year, the most ever achieved by left-hander in one season.

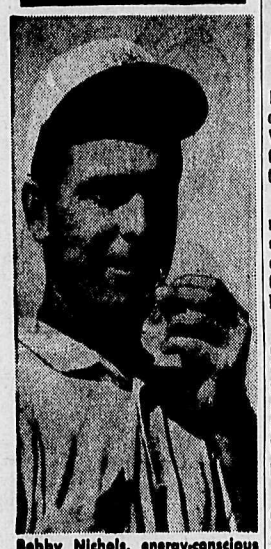
Golfing with ALEX MORRISON
Teacher of Champions



Bobby Nichols, energy-conscious pro, frequently grabs a soft drink and mite of food during brief pause between nines.

TOURNAMENT pros are neither camels nor fanatics on a hunger strike. They need drink and nourishment more than participants in most other sports.

Added to the physical task of hiking around all kinds of courses, very often in adverse weather, they must continually struggle against extreme mental tensions. This combination of mental and physical trials tends to exhaust even the most rugged competitors during a round or tournament.

Accordingly most pros pick up some kind of refreshments between nines when unable to stop for lunch. They favor soft drinks, hot dogs, hamburgers or candy bars. Feeling tired or empty on the course is bound to handicap your shot making and scoring. So, grab a snack when possible during play; you'll feel better.

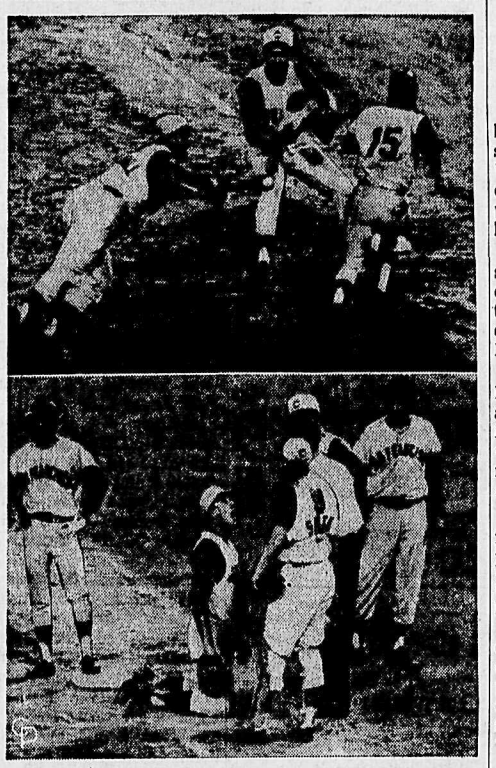
Armstrong Needs Minor Miracle



BEGGARS CAN BE LOSERS—Yep, and Joe Nuxhall, Cincy pitcher who elected to try for the runner himself (top photo), pleads his case with umpire Shag Crawford (below) but loses. The runner, Jose Pagan of the Giants, was safe.

Eskimos Optimistic — No Where To Go But Up

EDMONTON (CP) — It has been said that when Neill Armstrong toiled as an end for Winnipeg Blue Bombers in early 1950s he made half his pass receptions standing on his head.

He'll have to be at least that spectacular this year in his debut as head coach if he hopes to guide Edmonton Eskimos out of the depths of the Western Football Conference.

Armstrong, 37, was named Eskimos head coach March 6, a month after the club fired Eagle Keys in the climax to a wholesale reorganization. Keys now is an assistant with Saskatchewan Roughriders.

The quiet-talking, easygoing Armstrong quit as assistant to Pop Ivy of Houston Oilers of the American Football League to accept the two-year contract here.

Armstrong's return to Canada comes a decade after he decided to quit the game as a player when Blue Bombers lost out to Eskimos in the Western final, Edmonton went on to win three consecutive Grey Cup titles.

But since 1956 Eskimos have managed to get to the Grey Cup only once. In 1960 under Keys they made it, only to lose 16-6 to Ottawa Rough Riders.

FINISHED LAST

"This is a good opportunity for someone getting a head coach's job for the first time," said Armstrong, referring to the fact that the Eskimos finished last in 1962 and '63 and have no way to go but up. "Everyone is optimistic from the directors down to the players."

The optimism is fine but Armstrong would also like to find a "few surprises" among the 60 or so players, including a record 38 imports, invited to training camp.

Len Younce, back for a second season, and Harry Buffington will be Armstrong's regular assistants, though quarterback George Blanda of Houston and George Burnhardt were also on hand to help during the early camp.

Armstrong, an Oklahoma A and M grad and all-American in his senior year, played with Philadelphia Eagles from 1947 to 1950, joining Winnipeg in 1951 and being chosen all-star end. In 1953, after a year out of football, he returned to Blue Bombers and was picked as all-star defensive half.

From 1955 to 1961 he served as assistant to Cliff Speegle at Oklahoma State and joined Ivy for the 1962 and '63 seasons.

NO HOLIDAY

Since his arrival from Houston, Armstrong has been studying films, examining player charts and plotting strategy with his assistants. He has also roamed the province and the north, speaking to service clubs and luncheons in an effort to stimulate interest in the team.

The new job cost the Armstrongs and their three children a vacation. "We normally take our holidays in June and December but the football schedule is a little different in Canada, where June is a busy month."

Fur, Fin and Campfire
By BILL BERO

It also forced him to give up golf, a sport he loves almost as much as football—he shoots in the high 70s or low 80s.

But if some of the Armstrongs have some reservations about a move that forced them to change vacation plans, Neill Jr., 17, has no doubts. He loves horses and rodeos and this summer is working at an Edmonton stable.

Ray Kinasewich Proves He Belongs in Ivy League

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP(— When Gene Kinasewich, Edmonton-born hockey ace, entered Harvard University four years ago, his arrival produced a storm of protest and he became the centre of controversy.

Kinasewich, now 22, had played Junior A hockey in Edmonton and his athletic eligibility at Harvard was protested both in the Ivy League and the Eastern College Athletic Conference.

Harvard, despite its lofty scholastic rating, was accused of "importing" Kinasewich for his hockey prowess. The critics said the young Canadian was not a solid student.

Kinasewich, one of 13 children of Ukrainian immigrant parents, let his performances do his talking.

Just a few weeks ago, he left Harvard as one of its most honored graduates. He became the first student from outside the United States to win the William J. Bingham Award, highest athletic honor at Harvard. At the graduation exercises, he served as first class marshal, highest elective office an undergraduate can attain.

SECOND HIGHEST

Hockey captain his senior year, Kinasewich finished his varsity career as the school's second highest scorer with 110 points. Only Olympian Bob Cleary scored more.

Now married to the former Janet Mittell, a Massachusetts girl, Kinasewich received magna cum laude honors on his senior thesis in his social relations major. He has studied adolescent psychology and with all his other duties spent time in social work, helping children at a local settlement house.

The dean's list student says there will be no professional hockey in his future, though he has been thoroughly scouted.

Kinasewich has been named one of four winners of a Henry Russell Shaw foreign travel fellowship for nine months study overseas. Gene says he wants to travel in eastern Europe and visit Communist countries.

"If we can figure out a way for two to live as cheaply as one, I'll take my wife, too," Kinasewich says.

Kinasewich was paid for playing junior hockey as a teenager, a common practice in Canada. He was the youngest player on the Edmonton Oil Kings at 17. His total pay was $1,122.

He attended Deerfield Academy in Massachusetts one year before enrolling at Harvard. As a Canadian Junior A graduate, Kinasewich was ineligible for hockey as a freshman. So he played baseball to maintain his athletic scholarship.

DECISION REVERSED

Just before his junior year, the Eastern College Athletic Conference eligibility committee declared Kinasewich ineligible because of the pay he received in Canada. Later in the same season, the decision was reversed on the basis of a special exception.

If he hadn't missed the half-season, Kinasewich would almost certainly have established an all-time scoring record at Harvard.

Kinasewich was an orphan at 10. One brother, Ray, plays professional hockey with Cleveland of the American League. Another brother, Bob was on Cornell's unbeaten freshman squad last winter.

When Harvard won the ECAC hockey tournament in 1963, Kinasewich was named most valuable player. He scored three of the four goals against Boston College in the championship game, including the winner in sudden death overtime.

He also was most valuable player in last winter's hockey festival tournament at Boston Garden when the Crimson upset both Minnesota and Toronto. He scored three goals against Minnesota.

He became the second highest scorer in Harvard history with 110 points on 61 goals and 49 assists in 2½ seasons of play. He had to sit out half of one season due to the eligibility question. He was not eligible to play at all in his junior year.

During Kinasewich's varsity career, Harvard's hockey forces lost only 15 of 76 games.

Young Canadian Shooter Makes Bisley History

BISLEY, England (CP)—William Brereton, 13-year-old son of Lt.-Col. Donald Brereton of Winnipeg, Canadian Bisley team captain, made Bisley history Monday night.

Bill became the youngest winner of a cash prize in a major competition and the first boy to challenge successfully a National Rifle Association prize list.

On Saturday, he scored 47 out of a possible 50 in the Daily Telegraph Cup competition at 300 yards, beating his father and at least 20 other internationally known marksmen, but he was "counted out" of the prize list.

He challenged the accuracy of the prize list Monday night and put in a claim for one of the tyro-class prizes.

After an official check, the NRA issued a corrected list, including a $3 prize for Bill.

AMONG TOP SCORERS

Pet. D. Moffat of Calgary, an Englishman serving with the 1st Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, and E. Thompson of Australia were among the top scorers Monday who will shoot off Wednesday for a challenge cup and $150.

With 12 British competitors, they put all 10 shots into the bullseye at 500 yards to make the highest possible score of 50.

Thompson also tied with J. Powell of Britain for the top score—49 out of a possible 50—in the Duke of Cambridge Trophy competition of 10 shots at 900 yards.

Cadet WO2 B. W. Watt of Victoria placed fourth in the Clementi Smith Challenge when he scored 145 out of a possible 150 in three of Saturday's events at 200, 300 and 600 yards.

Asks School Children Settle Flag Issue

OTTAWA (CP) — Let the school children — the Canadian leaders of the future—decide on the design of the Canadian flag, says Frank Howard (NDP—Skeena) in a letter to Prime Minister Pearson.

Mr. Howard suggested that at the start of the fall school term all primary and high school students be permitted to cast ballots on three flag designs—the Red Ensign, the government's proposed three maple leaf flag and a single maple leaf flag.

"Because our schools contain tomorrow's leading figures, and because a symbol such as a flag becomes more honored and reflective of national pride as time passes, it is my thought and suggestion that the school children of today should be the ones to decide upon our national flag design," the letter says.

He suggests the school children be asked to mark their preferences for the three designs on secret ballots under a single transferable vote system.

Thus votes cast for the design receiving the fewest number of total first-preferences would be transferred to the other two designs in accordance with the second preferences shown.

"Following this decision of our school-age children, Parliament would then be duty-bound to pass an appropriately-worded resolution reflecting the decision made by those who will direct the affairs of this nation in the future."

MARKET TRENDS

NEW YORK (AP)—Television apparently provided the stock tickers with tough competition Monday and as a result the market had trouble deciding which way to go.

Prices moved up in the morning and then faltered in early afternoon. The result was a net loss in the popular averages although more issues gained than declined.

The Dow Jones industrial average closed at 845.55, off 1.96 and at its lowest of the session. The Associated Press 60-stock average gave up .2 at 318.7 with industrials off .5, rails down .1 and utilities up .1 to a 1964 high of 157.8.

Standard and Poor's 500-stock index closed lower at 83.31. All three averages were at new highs Friday night.

Relatively new changes exceeded a point although a few blue chips fell that much and exerted a drag on the averages. These included Kodak, off 2¾, Union Carbide down 1⅛ and Standard Oil (New Jersey) off 1⅜.

Trading, which started out at a fairly active clip, slowed and fell below 5,000,000 shares for only the second time in eight sessions. It totalled 4,810,000 compared with 5,420,000 Friday.

STILL LEADERS

Motors and steels, leaders in the market's fifth consecutive weekly rise last week, continued their role during the morning. By noon they had steadied and no other groups assumed the leadership.

BVD Co. was the most active stock, up ½ at 18½ on 114,600 shares.

General Motors and Chrysler again set new record highs, GM at 92¾ and Chrysler at 52⅝. Chrysler closed at the high, up ¾ on 97,300 shares for runner-up on the most active list.

GM closed at 92½, up ⅞.

Among Canadian issues traded Distillers Seagrams added ½, and Aluminium Ltd. ⅜. International Nickel and Walker Gooderham lost ½, Hudson ay Mining ⅛. Granby Mining was unchanged.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange were lower. Scurry Rainbow Oil gained ¾, Canadian Javelin ¼ and Preston ⅛. Brazilian Traction eased ⅛.

MONTREAL (CP) — Speculative mining activity continued to be heavy, but was well below Friday's level, and most indices reached new highs on the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges Monday.

The composite index was up 0.3 to a new high of 150.3 as advances outnumbered declines 88 to 74.

Among the mines, Fano added one cent to 19½ cents as 420,800 shares changed hands. Porcupine Prime was unchanged at 12 cents, on a volume of 327,221 shares.

Native Minerals climbed nine cents to 35 cents and New Imperial three cents to 69 cents.

Banks led the main list upward, as the average added 0.8 to 128.0. Toronto - Dominion picked up a point to 65 and Royal ½ to 76. Nova Scotia eased ¼.

Utilities rose 0.4 on index to 140.7. International Utilities gained 1⅛ to 27½. Interprovincial Pipe Line and Calgary Power were off ⅛ each to 87⅞ and 24⅜.

Papers were up 0.3 to a new high of 140.5. B.C. Forest and Consolidated improved ¼ each to 31¼ and 43, and MacMillan ⅛ to 30⅞.

Industrials edged up 0.1 to a new high of 155.8. Building Products tacked on 1½ to 38½ and Canada Cement one point to 47.

Senior base metals lost ground. Falconbridge eased ¾ to 73¼, and Hollinger and Inco ⅜ each to 28½ and 87½. Noranda moved ahead ¼ to 47½.

Senior oils were mixed. Shell was up ⅜ to 19⅜ and B.A. ⅛ to 33⅛. Home A fell ¼ to 19¾ and Pacific Petroleum ¼ to 14.

TORONTO (CP)—Wide fluctuations in speculative mining issues highlighted trading on the stock market Monday.

Windfall—which climbed from 56 cents a week ago—was again the key issue. It turned over 1,085,335 shares and closed with a loss of 35 cents to $3.65. However, during the session it traded as low as $2.70 and as high as $4.75.

In early trading it moved lower after the company said that core samples from the first hole on its Prosser Township property had not been assayed. Bargain hunters moved in and the stock shot to $4.75. Near the close the company issued a further statement which shed no new light on developments and the stock closed lower.

The roller-coaster type trading pattern was followed by a group of other issues with properties in the Timmins area.

PCE Exploration was down seven cents to 56 cents, National Exploration four cents to 25 cents, Glenn two cents to 32 cents and Genex one cent to 54 cents. Goldfields was unchanged at 75 cents after selling as high as 86 cents and as low as 63 cents. The stock turned over 759,900 shares.

COUNTERS TREND

Croinor and Gulf countered the trend, gaining two cents to 28 cents and four cents to 29 cents respectively.

Industrials climbed to a record index reading as gains outnumbered losses by a large margin. Numerous issues covering a wide range of industrials reached 1964 peaks.

Included among these issues were: Canadian Hydrocarbons and Famous Players each ahead ¾ to 20½ and 21, Du Pont up ¾ to 55¾, Canadian Utilities up 1¼ to 34, Chrysler up ½ to 57 and Dominion Stores up ⅛ to 23.

Calgary and Edmonton led western oils higher with a gain of ¾ to 23⅝.

Golds were stronger, paced by Dome which tacked on ⅜ to 29⅜.

On index, industrials were ahead .41 to 159.38, golds .45 to 132.68, western oils .18 to 100.01 and the exchange index .35 to a new high of 48.75. Base metals were down .21 to 64.92. Volume for the session was 7,924,000 shares compared with 11,011,000 shares traded Friday.

Kennedy Joins Suit Against Segregation

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — U.S. Attorney - General Robert F. Kennedy, moving quickly for a court ruling on the civil rights law, seeks to join with three Negroes in the first compliance test under the statute.

His staff filed under Kennedy's signature a motion to intervene in federal court in a suit against restaurant owner Lester Maddox who has refused to serve Negroes.

In the government action filed Monday in the clerk's office, Kennedy seeks an injunction and certifies "this case is of general public importance."

Kennedy asks for an injunction restraining Maddox and his restaurant from refusing to admit Negroes "upon the same basis and under the same conditions that non-Negro members of the general public are admitted."

Maddox, a segregationist leader, was sued last week by three Negro theological students who drove to the restaurant July 3, the day after President Johnson signed the civil rights bill into law.

They were chased from the parking lot by Maddox, who waved a pistol, and a crowd of white persons carrying axe handles.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Heavy Casualties in Viet Nam Battle

By PETER ARNETT

SAIGON (AP) — Government forces drove off a Communist siege during the weekend in the most violent action in South Viet Nam's Mekong delta in several weeks.

Both sides suffered heavy casualties in the battle for the mud-walled fort at Vinh Cheo, 100 miles south of Saigon.

Using the 56 militiamen garrisoning the fort as bait, the Communist guerrillas lured four civil guard companies to the outpost and opened fire from ambush.

The badly mauled civil guard forces were withdrawn Saturday night. Four regular South Vietnamese battalions thrown into the area lifted the siege Sunday.

The Communist forces killed 39 and wounded 129. One South Vietnamese officer estimated Communist losses at 300, but American advisers said they doubted more than 100 were killed or wounded.

The Viet Cong guerrillas also were reported to have captured about 100 weapons.

ARTILLERY SAVES FORT

The attack on Vinh Cheo was the third in two years. American officers said government artillery saved the fort and the village from total destruction.

Meanwhile, Premier Nguyen Khanh charged that regular North Vietnamese troops had crossed the border to attack South Vietnamese installations several days ago.

He warned the Saigon government would "soon take new, special steps to halt this Communist invasion." But he did not elaborate.

Radio Hanoi said a North Vietnamese military court is trying 17 Chinese Nationalist commandos, the survivors of a group of 26 agents landed in North Viet Nam July 28.

In Taipei, the Chinese Nationalist Chung Shing news agency claimed anti-Communist guerrillas in the south China province of Kwangtung sank a 120-ton Red Chinese naval transport that was believed to be carrying military supplies to North Viet Nam. The report said the transport, one of three, was blown up July 3 in Chinchow Bay, in southwest Kwangtung.

DEAL FOR JOURNALISTS

LIMA (Reuters)—The Peruvian Congress Sunday passed a bill granting journalists retirement after 25 years' service or at age 55. Journalists who continue working after the retirement age will be entitled to a 33-per-cent increase in salary. The bill also provides for a seven-hour day and double pay for Sunday, holiday and night work.

Title of World's Baldest Man Won By Frenchman

BAVENO, Italy (AP) — After a three-day scrutiny of 23 heads, with the help of magnifying lenses, an international jury Sunday named a French bank teller "the world's baldest man of 1964."

He is Henry Braye, 31, of Pithiviers, Loire, France. Guido Salvadori, 25, another bank employee, of Verona, Italy, was second.

Braye, who has won the annual contest since 1961, "has not even the shadow of a hair" on his head, announced the mayor of Baveno, Italo Ottimetti, president of the judges committee. Salvadori "has something in the back of his head which appears like lint," the mayor said.

Koolaree Echoes

At last after two weeks since the advance party made their way into Koolaree, we have found time to make our first Echo. Two wetks ago our man of many parts, Frank Crockett, took his cohorts, Doug Jefferson, Ralph Peitzsche, Garry Stuart, and Richard Bradshaw across the lake to pack in the groceries and what have you, necessary for the camp's operation.

They were followed by a joint work party from the Fraternity and Sorority, Jo-Ann Langridge, Roberta Robinson, Lynn Williamson, Claire Fraser, Hazel Halsey, Maryka Harts; Fred Robins, Stuart Donaldson and Doug Margerm. This party put in the weekend washing dishes, getting beds to the cabins and many chores necessary for the opening.

Monday th ecamp became a hive of activity for the directors and the leaders of the various camps who entered into a two-day training session. This is a first for Koolaree and we hope it will continue.

Directors in attendance were Mrs. Stevenson, Senior Girls; Mrs. Flemming, Intermediate Girls; Mrs. A. Nichols, Junior Girls; Rev. Glen Betts of Grand Forks; Intermediate Boys, Scott Van Alstyne, Junior Boys, Fred Robins for the Senior Boys. The directors met with leaders and laid initial plans for their respective camps.

Fred Robins led the group in camp administration; Jack Steed "A Leaders Responsibility"; Mrs. Steed, some aids to better calpfire drafatization; and Mrs. Flemming "Visual Aids and Dress up". Mr. Betts led the group in getting the most out of their program books, particularly the study periods.

The leaders have gone home leaving Freddie to cope with the incoming senior boys, his staff leaders. First to arrive were Ted Archibald of Nelson and Mr. and Mrs. Ron Gaskell of Trail. As the boys arrived, Mrs. Robins quickly assigned them to cabins, we say quickly for another first in a good many years was a downpour, which seems to be a feature every other day this year. To assit for the weekend were Don Service, John Groom, Lyle Work and Doug Margerm. These chaps took over most of the duties, greatly relieving the full time staff.

And the rains came, and then some more, but this hardly affects the Senior Boys. They got in a few good volley-ball games, touch football and a softball game with the leaders, and many have broken through the ice on the lake. Guess it can't be too bad.

Sunday morning the chapel service was conducted by Fred Robins with Barbara Moen at the organ. The rains that descended upon us Saturday night didn't scare off some 30 visitors Sunday afternoon, among them Dr. and Mrs. Daly of Trail, who were members of Koolaree's first Young People's camp. Norman McLuckie and family were there too. Cal Moen, the chairman of the Koolaree Presbytery Committee, also came along to visit his family. Shirley is assisting in th ekitchen until Mrs. Riley is able to get out there. Mrs. Janet Vogelsang is acting cook in charge. Cal will also be directing the Senior Boys for their last four days in camp.

During the afternoon the visitors were able to watch a novel ceremony resplendent in Indian dress, a gift of Don Armstrong to the camp. The ceremony saw Cal Moen and Chief Freddie bestow an honorary chieftainship on Norm McLuckie before he leaves to take up residence in Vancouver.

We have already introduced two full time leaders to the camp and on Monday Lloyd Wilkinson and family move in. Lloyd, an old camper and his wife Heather, who will act as camp nurse. Rev. Frank Willey and family will also be in camp all wetk; Rev. Rae Allen will be in on a daily basis to assist with the study groups.

We expect to see a hut erected by the wharf to house our life jackets, oars, boat gas, etc., this project will be under Ron Gaskell's direction. Elsewhere in the camp there will be the usual and necessary seat repairs in the chapel. Skills in archery, rifle shooting, football throw and other events will be tested throughout the camp.

LES POUPEES DE PARIS (Soundtrack)

This Sid and Marty Krofft production of giant puppet reincarnations of show biz personalities and famous acts fascinated audiences at the Seattle World Fair and is currently repeating its success at New York's extravaganza.

Esteemed tunesmiths Sammy Cahn and Jimmy Heusen have hammered out a variety of thematic material and ballads, much of it as wooden as its performers, lacking visual punch. They have provided some smart comedy for Liberace and Jayne Mansfield, "It's A Living," and top ballads, Pearl Bailey's tongue in cheek, "Love Is a Bore," and the romantic air of "Wings of Romance."

Other personalities heard include Milton Berle, Phil Silvers, Gene Kelley, Tony Martin, Edie Adams, Cyd Charisse, Loretta Young, Annie Farge.

Novelty time.

GOLDEN FOLK SONG HITS VOL 111 (Johnny Mann Singers)

The best of the current folk crop is knowingly cultivated by the slick vocalizing of the Johnny Mann Singers.

Plain accompaniment offsets the soaring voices in their zestful rendering the like of "Abilene, Freight Train, Alabama, There's a Meetin' Here Tonight." No echo chamber is required as the big sounding voices recreate popular arrangements, right down to the growl on "Saturday Night."

Buffing gold.

BEST OF DANNY KAYE

The musical tomfoolery which first endeared the clowning delight of Danny Kaye to the world has been reissued in this entertaining bargain shelf recording.

Much of the tongue tripping verbiage, earthy shouts, ludicruous lyrics have been garnered from his early screen chores and were originally issued on 78 rpms.

His cast of old acquaintences includes, "Minnie the Moocher, Dinah, Tchaikowsky, The Babbitt, Jenny."

Earlier issued as a long play recording under the album title, "Pure Delight," it is still just that.

Early Kaye.

THE FIRST TWELVE SIDES (The Just IV)

Vigorous singing and brisk plucking underline the initial offerings of this latest addition to the folk craze.

The group is strong on conviction and bristles with power in clever ragtime arrangements which highlights the song be it the familiar, like "Midnight Special," the runaway popular "San Francisco Bay Blues," or the less familiar notes of "Universal Soldier, Fog Horn."

Intensely energetic romps lift this performance a bit above the average level of contemporary folk polyphony.

Interesting start.

JOHNNY BOND'S BEST

The difference between western music today and two decades ago is as strikingly different as the topless and bikini bathing suits. It was known as western swing, powered by a potent rhythm section, harmonica growl, woodwinds and honky tonk piano as well as traditional strings. One of its expert practitioners was Johnny Bond and 10 of his best performances are enclosed on this bargain shelf recording.

Before the woe of the hills drenched country and western music, its notes were concerned with "rounders", the wild side of life interpreted humorously but always with a beat.

Best of western swing.

MOZART: STRING QUARTETS Nos. 14 and 15 (Juilliad String Quartet)

The first two string quartets of the "Haydn Six", inspired by Mozart's admiration for Haydn's genius, are most expressively interpreted by the Juilliard String Quartet.

From the vernal spontaneity of first quartet of the six, No. 14 to the stark foreboding eloquence of No. 15, the fine craftsmanship of the quartet preserves the solemn objectivity which underscores the work as well as their innate harmonic and contrapuntal brilliance. The group performs the quartets with full knowledge of their importance and soulful explorations

Interesting Mozart.

HAYDN: SYMPHONIES 95 and 101 (CLOCK) (Fritz Reiner conducting his symphony orchestra).

Bordered in black, this album is an outstanding tribute to the genius of the composer who died last fall. In the age of the baton, where outstanding conductors overshadow the composer, the native of Budapest stood near the pinnacle of his vocation.

Possessing a repertoire of enormous scope and variety, Reiners performances were marked by lucidity, balance and a technical superiority. These virtues are amply present in his reading of the Haydn works which have pace, breadth and engaging charm, creating contrast, color and variations by keen musical perception of musical balance.

Lasting tribute.

TOPLESS SUITS BIG SELLER IN TORONTO

TORONTO (CP) — Topless bathing suits and topless dresses not only are attracting window shoppers — they are bringing in their share of sales as well.

"It's the most peculiar thing in the world about all this nudity," said Leonard Zelsman of a midtown Toronto store which has two topless suits on display in the window. "We have sold 620 topless dresses—a complete sellout. More are on order.

"We thought topless dresses would appeal to the 20 and 22-year-olds, but the surprise is that women from 35 to 50 have grabbed them up," he said.

Mr. Zelsman said that Friday night a man phoned to say he was having a party and wanted a dozen topless bathing suits put aside for him. Mr. Zelsman figured it was a gag, but the next morning the man came in and bought the 12 suits.

Mrs. Helen Cook, manageress of a downtown store, reported a sell-out on the topless bathing suits.

"Men have been buying them for their wives," she said. "One lady came in and said she wanted a topless suit to w around her private swimming pool. Her feeling about it was why shouldn't she be up-to-the-minute in fashion."

Himmler Aide Goes on Trial

MUNICH (Reuters)—Former Nazi Gen. Karl Wolff, 64, one-time top aide of Gestapo chief Heinrich Himmler, went on trial here Monday charged with taking part in at least 300,000 murders during the Second World War.

Wolff, who after a breach with Himmler helped negotiate the early surrender of German forces in Italy, was arrested in 1962 after writing a magazine article about Himmler.

The former SS (Elite Guard) general lived under his own name near here as a prosperous advertising executive.

The trial is expected to last several weeks.

Weekend Drowning Number 4 in B.C.

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Drowning took four lives in British Columbia during the weekend but there were no deaths reported on the highways.

Antonio Clobraro of Richmond drowned at Crescent Beach near the Canada-U.S. border Sunday when pulled under by a strong current. Police are still dragging for his body.

Nadene Martin, 10, of Vancouver, drowned at North Lake near Sechelt after her uncle's boat overturned. Nadene, who had gone there for a weekend holiday struggled free of her uncle's grasp when he went to help her after the boat tipped. Her body was recovered.

Vernon Peter Robilliard of the Victoria area, drowned Sunday at Rathtrevor Beach, 19 miles north of Nanaimo. Police believe he floated beyond his depth on an air mattress and then tipped. Artificial respiration failed to revive the youngster after he was pulled from the water.

Gerhard Ternes, 7, drowned at Alice Lake Park near Squamish. The boy's body was recovered from the lake two hours after he was reported missing in the park.

Fish River Bridge Starts Valley Opening

Completion of the Fish River bridge between Beaton and Camborn is the first major step in development of the Fish River Valley, an article in the recent Arrow Lakes News reports. The main structure is two 96-foot, 13-ton wooden pressure girders fastened by five wooden panels and bolts.

The bridge was completed at the beginning of June and is the culmination of many months of difficulty in transportation of materials and construction. The crib foundations were finished in December; the girders and panels placed in January, placing of decking cross ties was done in May.

The girders came by rail from Vancouver to Nakusp; were placed on two specially rigged trailers and transported from Nakusp to Beaton by barge, then were pulled the rest of the way by a D-8 and a smaller tractor.

Alex James was supervisor of the bridge project and his crew consisted of F. Larder, N. Strobbe, M. Kelley, P. Yofonoff and K. Daney.

Pensions and Pay Raises Announced By Khrushchev

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Khrushchev Monday announced old age pensions for collective farmers and pay raises for doctors, teachers and employees in housing and service industries.

Khrushchev said the farmers pension measure, affecting about 6,500,000 Soviet peasants, was of "tremendous historical importance." Most of them have been outside the pension system.

In a speech at the opening of the summer session of the Supreme Soviet, Khrushchev said the agricultural position had improved so that farmers can now be brought under the system.

The pension plan described by Khrushchev envisions minimum monthly payments of 12 rubles ($13.20) and a maximum of 102 rubles ($112.20) beginning next year.

The payments, however, were tightly hitched to wage levels reached before retirement age 65 for men and 60 for women.

Khrushchev announced average wage increases of 25 per cent for workers in education, 23 per cent in public health, 25 per cent in retail trade and 15 per cent in retailing and housing and municipal services.

Khrushchev declared real income of the Soviet people has risen 61 per cent in the last decade. But he said not enough is being done to satisfy public demand for consumer goods. He called for greater efforts to increase production of such goods.
