Anti-Hindi Language Protests Result in Two Fiery Suicides

MADRAS (Reuters)—Protests against the adoption of Hindi as India's official language mounted in the Tamil-speaking state of Madras Wednesday, with a second fiery suicide and the death of a student shot by police.

A 32 - year - old mailman shouted anti-Hindi slogans before he poured kerosene over himself and lit it in the Madras suburb of Virugambakkam. A man, 22, burned himself to death in another suburb Tuesday.

At Chidambaran, 125 miles from Madras, a student was killed and another wounded when police opened fire on students protesting against arrests in Tuesday's clashes.

The protests were organized by the Dravida Munnetra Kzhagam, main opposition party in the state.

The party wants English to be retained as the official language of the country. It proclaimed Tuesday a day of mourning, as Hindi officially replaced English.

USED TEAR GAS

Police used tear gas Wednesday to disperse students attempting to hoist a black flag at Madurai, second-biggest city in the state, about 270 miles southwest of New Delhi.

A meeting of 20,000 students at Coimbatore, near Madurai, demanded the state ministry resign for failing to protect the interests of Tamils on the language issue.

In Madras City police raided two college hostels, arrested 40 students and seized bags of stones and bricks.

A procession of more than 3,000 students demanding to meet the premier of Madras was halted by police 300 yards from the state secretariat.

Students at all city colleges boycotted classes in protest against the arrest of student leaders. The Madras government advised the schools to remain closed until Monday.

Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri has said it would be "deeply humiliating" to seek to retain English for all time as the official language.

As a concession to 250,000,000 Indians out of 450,000,000 whose mother tongue is not Hindi, the government has agreed to treat English as an associate language for official purposes as long as necessary.

Civil Service Urges Bilingual Education

OTTAWA (CP) — The Civil Service Federation of Canada Wednesday recommended that French and English be taught as compulsory subjects in elementary and secondary schools in all parts of Canada.

The recommendation was one of four contained in a brief submitted to the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism by the federation representing 75,000 federal government employees.

The brief also recommended that:

—Civil servants and employees in industry be required to speak English and French if either language is spoken by up to at least 50 per cent of the public served.

—The federal government and employers in industry foster language training classes in French and English during working hours, and be prepared to pay allowances to employees required to use both languages in the normal course of their duties.

—The federal government, private industry and community organizations promote and foster the growth of bilingualism and biculturalism in Canada.

The brief was released to the press in advance.

It was the result of a survey carried out last summer when a two-part questionnaire was circulated among members. The first part of the questionnaire dealt with general information, and the second contained eleven questions on bilingualism.

The federation said 22,510 members, about 30 per cent of the membership, responded to the survey, and 22,168 of the replies were complete enough to be processed by a computer and used as the basis for recommendations.

Endless Line Pays Homage As Churchill Lies in State

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

LONDON (CP)—An endless queue of mourners passed the body of Sir Winston Churchill in homage Wednesday on the first day of his lying-in-state at Westminster Hall.

With tears and prayers, the mourners streamed five - to - seven abreast into the Hall of Kings, moving with whispering footsteps across the carpeted stone floors of the ancient edifice.

Police estimated the line was edging along at the rate of more than 4,000 mourners an hour past the flag-draped coffin resting on a high velvet-covered catafalque, the tall gilded cross and the six candles, burning with an icy light.

The Lord Chamberlain's office reported 35,566 persons had paid their respects to the fallen statesman by 7 p.m., fewer than a previous police estimate. Observers calculated that at this rate the total number by midnight Friday night will match the 306,000 who rendered final homage to King George VI in 1952.

WOMEN IN TEARS

Mourners on one side of the river gazed at those on the other, many of them—men as well as women—brushing away tears as they shuffled slowly along. Sometimes the farewell march to the catafalque and past the coffin took two hours.

Inside the vast, echoing Hall of Kings the scene was one of magnificence and splendor, the old stone and lacquered hammer - beam timbers of the arched roof blending in what has been called the smell of history.

The mourners passed in two streams on either side of the coffin, becoming motionless in a frieze-like portrait each 20 minutes when the five officers of the watch were changed.

FIVE WILL ATTEND

Five sovereigns have announced they will attend.

Heading them will be Queen Elizabeth, who arrived in London Wednesday from Sandringham Castle. She will attend with Prince Philip, Prince Charles and other members of the royal family.

The others are King Baudouin of the Belgians, King Olaf of Norway, King Frederick of Denmark and King Constantine of Greece. Queen Juliana of the Netherlands will be represented by her husband, Prince Bernhard.

But the lying-in-state—which continues today and Friday—is essentially the time for the little man, who became Churchill's firm friend in the dark days of the Second World War, although wealthy folk and aristocrats also are filing past the bier.

Sumner Russell, 50-year-old taxi driver, paused after emerging from the 900-year-old Hall of Kings to muse about the devotion Sir Winston inspired.

"The strange thing is that in pre-war days the working class would not have lamented the loss of Churchill," he said.

"But during the war they took to Winnie—the V-sign, the big cigar, the bulldog look, all that.

"When they took to Winnie, he took to them.

"Churchill was an aristocrat by blood, you know, despite all the talk about him being the great commoner. But the bond between him and the working class is very strong indeed."

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson is not going to London for the funeral of Sir Winston Churchill.

Johnson invited reporters into his bedroom at the White House Wednesday and told them that though his doctors felt he had made a substantial recovery from his virus infection the long journey was inadvisable.

Speaking from his bed, Johnson said State Secretary Dean Rusk, Chief Justice Earl Warren and Dave Bruce, U.S. Ambassador to Britian would represent him at the funeral.

He said he hoped to visit his office today.

Former Executive Assistant Testifies Charges Came as 'Complete Surprise'

MONTREAL (CP)—Raymond Denis, pale and drawn but spiritedly articulate, denied in the witness box Wednesday that he ever offered a bribe to Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne.

The accusation was "a bomb, an explosion, a terrible surprise," he declared before the Dorion inquiry.

It was the first public statement by the 32-year-old former executive assistant to Immigration Minister Tremblay on the case which has rocked the country since it broke in the Commons Nov. 23.

Mr. Lamontagne testified Dec. 15 when the inquiry opened in Ottawa Denis offered him $20,000 July 14 to agree to bail for Lucien Rivard, 49, wanted in the U.S. on charges of being a key conspirator in an international, Mafia - controlled narcotics smuggling ring.

Mr. Lamontagne was — and still is—acting for the U.S. government in the extradition case against Rivard, scheduled to be decided today by Mr. Justice Francois Caron in Court of Queen's Bench here.

QUOTED FROM REPORT

Andre Desjardins quoted from an RCMP report of an Aug. 19 interview with Denis that Denis had told police all he knew about the Rivard case was what he had read in the newspapers while on holidays.

Denis said he couldn't remember making such a statement to the RCMP.

"I was in a state of shock," he said, when inspector J. P. Drapeau had told him of Mr. Lamontagne's charge.

Denis said he couldn't have made such a statement because he hadn't had any holidays apart from weekends.

Earlier, he said he had discussed the Rivard case July 14 in Ottawa with Mr. Lamontagne and Liberal organizer Guy Masson had spoken to him of the affair June 22.

WENT TO OTTAWA

The witness, a Montreal lawyer who went to Ottawa in June, 1963, as special assistant to then Justice Minister Chevrier, said Mr. Lamontagne told him July 14 that he (Lamontagne) had been offered $3,000 and that "it was terrible that anyone could think a lawyer could sell himself in that way."

He said he had listened to Mr. Lamontagne's testimony about a bribe by himself and that "this is absolutely impossible."

Denis was just beginning what likely will be another harrowing two days in the witness box. Mr. Desjardins had not completed his questioning when the inquiry adjourned until Thursday morning. After that, Denis will have to face cross-examination by nearly a score of lawyers.

AT one point, as Mr. Desjardins was pressing questions about when Denis first learned Mr. Lamontagne, his former legal associate, was acting in the Rivard case, Denis said:

WORKED LONG HOURS

"It is important that you understand that I was working hundreds of hours a week. It was terrible. I seldom stopped before 3 a.m. or 4 a.m. and it is difficult to remember facts now."

A little later, he said his position in Mr. Tremblay's office was a political appointment and he thought he was filling it well.

"The Liberal members (of the Commons) accused me of not taking into consideration any political implications and they said I was a civil servant."

Denis said he told Mr. Lamontagne July 14 someone had informed him Rivard was a contributor to the Liberal party election fund. "I don't know why I said that," he added.

PHONED LAWYER

Denis said he telephoned Mr. Lamontagne July 14 and asked him to go to Ottawa to discuss the case of Joe (Bananas) Bonanno, a Mafia figure who then was trying to obtain Canadian citizenship. Mr. Lamontagne was acting for the federal immigration department in the case of Bonanno, who left Canada July 30, disappeared in October and who was last reported in Sicily.

Denis said Liberal MP Guy Rouleau, then parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Pearson, had brought him a letter from Raymond Daoust, a lawyer for Bonanno, asking that Mr. Tremblay use his good offices to obtain bail for Bonanno, then being held on a charge of perjury.

Denis said he had an appointment to see Mr. Daoust July 15 and wanted to bring himself up to date on the Bonanno case. He had therefore asked Mr. Lamontagne to come to see him.

"Mr. Tremblay and I said we wanted to know precisely where we were going," in the Bonanno affair, he testified.

He and Mr. Lamontagne had discussed the Bonanno case during the evening of July 14 and he had introduced Mr. Lamontagne to his minister.

RIVARD DISCUSSED

Mr. Tremblay had left and the discussion got around to the Rivard case.

Mr. Lamontagne had proved to him in "black and white" that the RCMP had strong evidence to extradite Rivard.

Denis said he asked if there could be bail for Rivard "but when he gave me proofs against Rivard I concluded immediately that there was no question of bail."

No Changes Expected In Iran Policy

TEHRAN (AP)—The assassin's bullet that struck down Premier Hassan Ali Mansour will bring no major changes in Iran's internal or pro-West foreign policy, the new premier, Amir Abass Hoveida, indicated Wednesday.

He said after presenting his cabinet:

"As can be observed from the composition of the cabinet, all of them are men who were used by Mansour. The new government does not intend any major changes in ministers.

"There will also be no change in Iran's foreign and internal economic and social policies."

The shah had named Mansour premier last March to press his campaign to buy up Moslem church land and that of other large holders and sell it to peasants on easy terms.

Security police continued their relentless investigation into the death Tuesday of Mansour. They are holding Mohammed Bokharaei, 20, a Moslem, as the slayer.

While Mansour was lingering between life and death, five new bills for Persian Gulf offshore oil exploration were put before Parliament.

Both parliamentary and oil circles said they expect the bills to be approved by both Houses of Parliament within a fortnight.

GOV'T WON'T INTERVENE

TORONTO (CP)—Premier Robarts of Ontario made it clear Wednesday there will be no direct government intervention in the Toronto newspaper strike.

Asked in the legislature whether he would play any part in resolving the strike by the International Typographical Union (CLC) against the three Toronto dailies, Mr. Robarts said the final responsibility for this rested upon the two sides, adding that the Labor Relations Act does not provide for compulsory arbitration.

1964 Best Year For Housing

OTTAWA (CP) — Last year was Canada's best year yet in housing.

A record 165,658 housing units were started, surpassing by nearly 1,000 the previous record set in 1958. The figure was 11.5 per cent higher than the 148,624 units started in 1963.

Figures released Wednesday by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation show that records also were established for dwelling completions and the number of units under construction at the year's end.

Completions totalled 150,963 units, 17.8 per cent higher than in 1963. Units under construction increased from 96,613 at the end of 1963 to 107,718 at the end of 1964.

Loans under the National Housing Act were approved for 58,133 units during the year. This was 3.3 per cent higher than the previous year.

Quebec Scandal:

Chiropractor Admits Dupuis Got $10,000 During Track Talks

QUEBEC (CP)—A question was placed on the legislative assembly's order paper Wednesday asking that the revenue and attorney - general's departments submit records of plans for a race-track at St. Luc, Que.

Union Nationale member Paul Allard also asked that any letters written since 1960 by Yvon Dupuis "to the provincial finance minister, the revenue minister, the roads minister or any other provincial minister" regarding the establishment of the track be tabled in the assembly.

Mr. Dupuis resigned as federal minister - without - portfolio Friday.

Roch Deslauriers, a St. Johns Que., chiropractor, Tuesday described as correct press reports that he turned over $10,000 in cash to Mr. Dupuis while trying to obtain a franchise from Quebec authorities for a race-track at St. Luc.

A revenue department spokesman had no comment Tuesday night about published reports that an RCMP investigation into "the mysterious case of Yvon Dupuis was ordered as a direct result of information supplied to the federal department of justice by the Quebec department of revenue."

Premier Lesage told the assembly Tuesday that he has no doubt about the integrity of revenue department workers. He declined comment on the Dupuis situation because it was still under RCMP investigation.

Not Guilty Pleas Entered In Meridan Murder Case

MERIDIAN, Miss. (AP) — Seventeen men pleaded not guilty in federal court Wednesday to charges of conspiring to kill three civil rights workers.

The judge gave the defence 15 days in which to file affidavits and allowed the U.S. government 15 days in which to answer.

No trial date will be set until the decision on the defence motions.

The 18th man charged in the case, James Edward Jordan, 38, formerly of Meridian, will be arraigned in Atlanta. The FBI said he gave a full statement on the killings.

One of the 45 motions forming the bedrock of defence strategy claimed that press coverage of the arrests prejudiced the case.

During a recess, Alton W. Roberts, 26, of Meridian, a defendant, punched and kicked a CBS cameraman who was filming him leaving the courthouse.

Several reporters and photographers ducked swinging fists from others outside the courthouse.

The bodies of Michael Schwerner, 24, Andrew Goodman, 20, white New Yorkers, and James Chaney, 21, a Meridian Negro, were found buried in a clay dam near Philadelphia, 35 miles north of Meridian in August.

Three Civil Rights Workers Arrested at Selma, Ala.

SELMA, Ala. (AP) — Three white civil rights workers were arrested Wednesday after they refused to get awayk from a line of Negroes seeking to register as voters.

Sheriff's deputies took the three in custody after a U.S. marshal ordered them away from the prospective voters.

Two of those arrested were identified as Frank Soracco of San Francisco and Roger Daley of Dartmouth College in New Hampshire, field workers for the Student Non-violent Co-ordinating Committee. The third was not immediately identified, but he, too, was an SNCC worker.

A short time later, a group of about 20 negroes attempted to get into the registration line. They were taken to jail when they refused to disband.

The negroes had been told that the allotted number of 100 already was in line and no one else would be permitted to line up during the day.

The limitation of 100 has been enforced by U.S. Marshal H. Stanley Fountain under a federal court injunction, which prohibits sheriff's officers from interfering with prospective voters but also restricts non-residents from trying to get into the line.

FINAL DAY

It was the final day of a special 12-day registration term.

The voter registration board will be in recess after Wednesday but will meet again Monday for one day. The campaign by Negroes wil continue in Selma and at the same time will move into an adjoining county.

Kimberley Students Suspended After Motel Drinking Party

KIMBERLEY, B.C. (CP) — Fifteen High School students — about eight of them girls—were suspended by the school board Wednesday night pending an investigation into an alleged drinking party involving the boys' and girls' basketball teams.

Authorities declined to comment on the incident, but it was learned that the coaches of the two teams returned the students to Kimberley last Saturday morning following a Friday night Motel party at Invermere, 85 miles to the north.

The motel party followed a game at Invermere. The teams were to have continued to Goldon B.C., Saturday for another game but this was called off.

The suspensions were handed out following an extraordinary meeting of the school board which was closed to the press.

PORT MORESBY (Reuters) — Scores of New Guinea natives, followers of the Johnson cult, waited vainly on the shores of New Hanover Island Tuesday night for ships and planes to bring them free gifts.

The cult leaders had said that President Lyndon Johnson was certain to send his worshippers gifts on his inauguration day, and these would arrive Tuesday night.

The Johnson Cult is the most recent revival of the much older Cargo Cult which taught that gifts for the chosen people and believers would be carried over the sea.

Johnson cultists increased in number last year and some of them wrote in the U.S. president's name in local elections and started a fund to "buy" him from the United States.

Mr. Vogel said furnishings for half the rooms had been donated to date.

Mrs. Deerward, teacher at the 11-year-old Cedar Hill school for handicapped in Nelson, said 10 pupils ranging in age from 4½ to 15 were attending.

Thanks were extended to organization for gifts to the school in the form of equipment.

Fire Chief Owens, who was thanked for providing transportation for the children, said that it may be necessary to provide bus transportation.

Dr. S. Bitnam was named new medical director.

Need for more individual memberships was stressed. The Flowers of Hope campaign will again be carried out this year, it was decided. The Christmas greeting campaign will also continue.

Various organizations were represented at the meeting, and parents attended as well as members.

Films of Christmas parties of the past two years at Cedar Hill school were shown by Harold Chernenkoff, who had taken the pictures.

RCMP Trio Faces Charges of Fraud

VICTORIA (CP) — Three RCMP constables and a cafe operator have been accused of fraud in the handling of meal accounts of prisoners at the Prince Rupert jail.

Assistant Commissioner D. O. Forrest, commanding officer of the RCMP in B.C., announced the charges Wednesday.

He said the men were charged by summons in the last two days following a four-month investigation in the supplying of meals to prisoners in the Prince Rupert jail.

Charged are Const. W. L. Giesbrecht, 27, Const. A. G. Kemp, 25, Const. W. S. Austin, 26, and cafe operator Kut Sing Low of Prince Rupert.

The case is scheduled to open in Prince Rupert magistrate's court Feb. 10.

Ernest A. Alexander, QC, of Vancouver has been named as special prosecutor by the Attorney-General's Department.

The charges accuse Giesbrecht of defrauding the province of money between Jan. 1, 1963 and March 31, 1963. The charge against Kemp covers a period between April 1, 1963, and July 31, 1964, and the period covered in Austin's charge is from August 24, 1963 to Sept. 11, 1963.

Low is accused of defrauding the province between Jan. 1, 1962 and July 31, 1964.

LENGTHY PROBE

The RCMP announcement said indications of possible irregularities were spotted by other members of the Prince Rupert detachment more than four months ago. A report was sent immediately to Victoria and an investigation was launched.

The force investigated reports that some members of the 21-man detachment had obtained free meals and groceries from a restaurant that provided meals for prisoners.

The restaurant was said to have covered the cost by increasing the price of prisoners' meals.

Const. Giesbrecht is in Shaughnessy Hospital here recovering from a gunshot wound. He is in good condition. He was taken to hospital after being found wounded in his home at Grand Forks last August.

Const. Kemp had been transferred to the Burnaby detachment from Prince Rupert prior to the investigation, and Austin is in Prince Rupert.

Kemp and Austin were taken off normal duty this week following the laying of charges.

Noted Poetess To Speak Here

A British Columbia poetess, social worker and teacher, Versatile Dorothy Livesay McNair will be guest speaker in the "Contemporary '65" public lecture series at Notre Dame University next Wednesday. "UNSCO Assignment: Zambia" will be the topic.

She plans to tell of her three years spent teaching English to African teachers as she prepared them for secondary school teaching. Her lecture will be liberally sprinkled with poems written during the African venture which, in her own words, "reveal the emotional impact of Africa upon a Canadian."

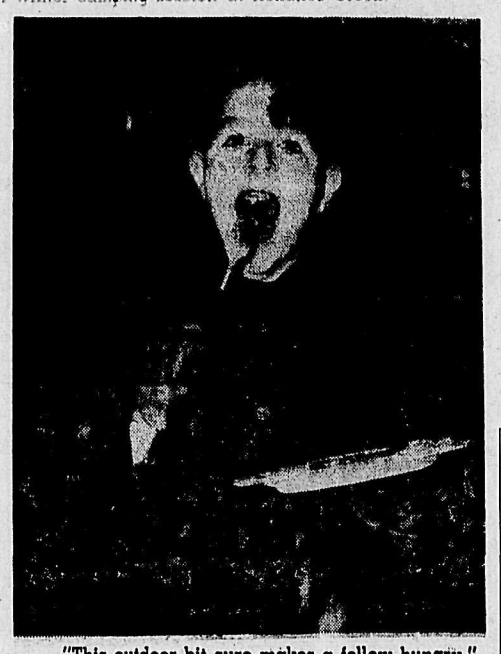
A native of Vancouver where she now lives and teaches in the department of English at UBC, she has had an interesting and varied life.

Author of seven volumes of poetry, Mrs. McNair twice received the Governor-General's Medal, for "Day and Night," and for "Poems for People." She also was awarded the Royal Society Medal for distinguished contribution to Canadian literature. Her name has appeared in anthologies for more than 30 years.

In 1951 she joined the department of extension at UBC as lecturer in creative writing, teaching adult education courses in journalism, modern short shorty, modern poetry, and drama. Her next position was with the young adult department of the YWCA in Vancouver after which she returned to UBC as part-time lecturer while she worked toward her education diploma.

As teacher and counsellor with the Vancouver School Board, she taught junior and senior secondary English and careers guidance. Later in Ottawa on a fellowship from The Canada Council she studied methods of teaching English on the secondary school level.

In 1959 Mrs. McNair joined UNESCO, working first in Paris and then in Northern Rhodesia. She returned to Vancouver in 1963 and has since been teaching at UBC.



"This outdoor bit sure makes a fellow hungry," Scout Gary Westfall seems to be saying as he mouths a forkful of campfire-cooked bacon during winter camping outing at Kokanee Creek last weekend.

The figures compared to 1963 sales of $56,763,000 and a net profit of $3,779,000, or 45 cents per common share.

57 Take Part In Course for Prospectors

Registration for the Chamber of Mines of Eastern British Columbia prospectors' course numbered 57.

The course began Monday with an introductory lecture by P. E. Olson, district engineer and inspector of mines who is directing the course.

Mr. Olson welcomed the class and gave a brief talk on the course. He stressed the vastness of geological time where it has taken millions of years to transform the earth to its present form.

He said the district is "really hot" in the search for minerals. He emphasized that the area has less than 30 per cent rock exposure and it took considerable work to uncover any finds that are made.

The Canadian economy was buoyant, metal prices were up and the logging industry was opening up the country with roads which in some cases may expose mineral showings, that the prospector could take advantage of.

Mr. Olson told the meeting that information covering mining properties and other matters pertaining to the mineral resources of the district may be obtained both from the Chamber of Mines and the Mine Inspector's office.

The course, as it progresses, will tell the class how to appreciate the wonders of nature, recognize something valuable and know what to do with any find made.

The lecture closed with the showing of three films showing how changes take place on the earth's surface, placer mining in the Yukon and an old time prospector's trip down the Nahanni River of the famous headless valley, in search of gold.

Mining Notes

From the Chamber of Mines

Gavin A. Dirom of the American Smelting and Refining Co., retiring president of the British Columbia and Yukon Chamber of Mines, at their annual meeting predicted that we should see the daily mineral production in British Columbia doubled within the next 12 to 24 months. This is an indication that we can look for more than ever accelerated search for minerals in the Kootenays.

New underwritings of numerous mining companies' shares is providing substantial funds for the development of their present properties and search for new ones. This situation augurs well for the prospector to option his property and derive some benefit from the work he has put in on his showing.

Dr. Chris Riley and Dave Sloan, well known mining engineers from Vancouver, were in the district recently and expressed interest in an old silver property in the Crawford Bay area. Newmont Mining Corporation engineers were in the district conferring with S. W. Barlcay, a resident of Balfour and a Newmont prospector.

CLAIM MERGER

New Cronin Babine Mines Ltd., have acquired a onetime silver-copper producer near Nelson. The property is a merger of five claim groups on Toad Mountain and some of the claims were owned by Nelson residents. A preliminary program of 4,000 feet of diamond drilling has been laid out at an estimated cost of $30,000.

This work is on the recommendation of Leo Telfer, retired chief of Cominco exploration Copper Soo Mining Co., continue to report cutting good lengths of high grade ore at their Estella property, Wasa, B.C. No. 3 raise 77 feet across 3.5 feet, 4.68 ounces silver, 11.0 per cent lead, 18.9 per cent zinc. No. 3 wing raise 70 feet across 4.4 feet, 8 ounces silver, 19.3 per cent lead, 22.3 per cent zinc. Utica Mines Ltd. report good progress on development of the Horn mine near Keremeos, where permanent camp working buildings have been completed. A 600-foot drive on the 2622 level gave assays of 86.92 ounces silver and 0.18 ounces gold over the last 100 feet with an average width of 1.23 feet.

McKinney Gold Mines Ltd., Rossland, B.C. property report first diamond drill hole on the St. Elmo claim intersected 39 feet of molybdenite mineralization assaying 0.564 per cent. There is some 1400 feet of molybdenite mineralization extending eastward from boundary with Torwest Resources who have established considerable tonage of molybdenite on their property optioned to Metal Mines Ltd., who expect to make an early decision on production.

$70,000 SPENT

Columbia River Mines Ltd. have spent some $70,000 on the development of their gold property near Trail, resulting in exposing three strong veins with good values. Three diamond drill holes cut gold values of from 1.18 ounces to 2.38 ounces per ton, 34 inches wide, for a total length of 60 feet. This company also holds claims in the Greenwood area near the Skomac mine presently being developed by Ganda Silver Mines Ltd.

Ottawa Silver Mines Ltd., Slocan, report first hole in diamond drilling program proves continuation of east vein to bottom of 9 level. A 5-foot section gave assay of 112 ounces silver per ton. Drilling is continuing.

Vimy Exploration Ltd., London Ridge, Panama silver property near Sandon, have completed 435 feet of a new exploratory level when work was suspended on account of snow. It is expected to cut the vein 50 feet ahead of the present face. There is approximately 350 feet of mineralization on the property carrying an average of 23.9 ounces silver per ton over a foot width.

Sterling Silver Mines Ltd., have amalgamated with Gem Exploration Ltd., who will take over development of the former's property on Enterprise Creek near Slocan, B.C.

TO SPEND $50,000

Arlington Silver Mines Ltd., have initiated a program for the development of their property on Springer Creek near Slocan, which calls for expenditure of $50,000, this to cover rehabilitating their main "A" level and advance "B" level heading and diamond drilling on both these levels. Additional work scheduled will include surface exploration and amount to $125,000. Some consideration is being given to leasing the Ottawa mill for test treatment of 100,000 tons of dump material.

Antoine Silver Mines on McGuigan Creek near Sandon, have continued their development programme throughout the winter under the direction of Walter E. Selnes, P. Eng., whose recommendations the company has been following. A report on this work should be forthcoming in the near future.

Blue Star Mines Ltd., are reported to be stock piling ore from the Triumph property at Ainsworth, for subsequent milling at the Yale mill which is under option.

It is reported that the Idler Group of copper gold claims situated at eight-mile south of Silverton, owned by Northlode Exploration Ltd., of Vancouver, B.C., have been optioned to Cominco for three years.

Ren Silica Minerals Ltd., report they shipped 10 carloads of bagged finished product stucco chips to eastern markets during the past season. Their product was highly accepted and in demand. Plant will be started up in spring and company is expected to go public. $100,000 has been spent to date on development and machinery at their Winlaw, B.C. silica property.

Uncertainty of Future Brings Fair Cancellation

EDGEWOOD — Due to the uncertainty caused by the Columbia River Treaty and the possibility of a number of farms changing hands, members of the Inonoaklin Farmers' Institute agricultural fair committee decided to cancel the fair for a few years.

The day's celebration will still be held, however, and an all-out effort will be made to enlarge on the woodsmen's competition which proved so popular last year.

The annual financial statement for 1964 showed a profit of $368.

Hays Indicates Needed Change in National Dairy Policy Coming

With four main objectives in mind, the federal government is formulating a change in dairy policy.

Projected for the coming year, the policy will aim: to improve the position of farmers on economic units; to maintain a high rate of consumption; to balance production and disappearance, and to keep costs at the minimum.

The change in policy was forecast by Agriculture Minister H. Hays, addressing the annual meeting of the Dairy Farmers of Canada in Regina recently on Canada's national dairy policy.

The present policy dates back to May, 1963.

Mr. Hays noted the government's reduction of butter stocks from 242.7 million pounds in November, 1963, to its present "reasonable level, which should adequately serve to stabilize the market."

The policy arose from the government's recognition of the existence of a market for increasing amounts of cheese. In order to divert milk from the production of butter and powder, both of which were in a surplus position at that time, the government changed the assistance program. The changes were intended to offer an incentive for cheese production.

The program had the desired effect. In 1963, 137.2 million pounds of cheddar cheese were produced in Canada, as compared with 116.6 million pounds the previous year.

In 1964, the situation changed dramatically. The world price of powder almost trebled, providing a new incentive for the production of butter and powder. But in spite of this, cheese production should be approximately the same as for 1963.

INCREASE FIRST GRADE CHEESE PRODUCTION

In May, 1964, a rather controversial change was made in the method of providing assistance to cheese producers when the payment was changed from 30 cents a hundredweight of milk to 3.6 cents per pound of first-grade cheddar.

The purpose of this change was to foster increased production of first-grade cheese since it was felt in many quarters that with a major increase in cheese production, if relatively large quantities of second-grade cheese were produced this could easily disrupt the market because, in general, second-grade cheese is not exportable.

In November, 1964, the percentage of first-grade cheese produced in Canada was 94.6 as compared with 87.3 per cent in November, 1963. The increase was shown to be reasonably consistent.

At the same time, producer prices have shown a distinct upward movement. In October, for example, the latest month for which figures are available, farm cash income from the sale of dairy products was up 3 per cent from the same month in 1963.

The average weighted value of all daily production was $3.27 per hundred pounds of milk, which was 12 cents higher than October, 1963. Fluid milk, at $5.01 per hundred pounds across Canada, was 14 cents higher. Creamery butterfat increased from 69.5 cents to 72.4 cents, while cheese milk rose to $3.01 from $2.91 in comparison with the same months a year ago.

Consumption also shows some growth. Fluid sales for the first ten months of 1964 were up 2.1 per cent over those of the corresponding period a year earlier.

The 1964 per capita disappearance of butter — once again for the first ten months — was 15.61 pounds, the highest per capita consumption recorded since 1957 and almost as high as the total per capita consumption for 1961, when disappearance fell to the disastrous level of 15.8 pounds per capita.

FARMERS LEAVE NEVERTHELESS

"Still," said the minister, "the dairy situation in many parts of Canada is not in the best of shape. Farmers are still leaving the industry and others are not getting what they consider to be a fair return for their labor and investment.

"It does seem that one of the major problems is that even though they are better right now than for many years, prices in the dairy industry have not kept up with the rise in the costs of goods and services used by farmers. In the ten-year period from 1954 to 1963, the costs of these goods and services increased by 21.6 per cent from 237.2 to 298.6. In the same time, manufacturing milk prices at the farm rose from $2.52 to $2.67 per hundredweight while fluid milk prices rose from $4.37 to $4.79. The greater rise in the fluid milk price was possible because 'surplus' production is diverted to another market — butter, cheese and powder — and does not depress the price for the milk used in the fluid market."

In the period 1962-63, over 40 per cent of manufacturing milk producers in Canada delivered, on the average during that year, only 22,176 pounds. An increase of 50 cents per hundredweight would return to them on the average less than ten dollars per month in greater income, Mr. Hays pointed out.

"I think this shows rather conclusively that for these producers higher prices alone offer no real solution. It is estimated that at least half of the manufacturing milk producers are operating units too small to achieve a satisfactory economic position on milk alone.

"This difficulty can be corrected only by the enlargement of the smaller units."

DAIRY FARM DANGER

Between 1956 and 1961, an average of over 14,000 dairy farms disappeared annually. Smaller units declined at the rate of 16,400 per year, while farms with 18 or more cows increased at an annual rate of 1700.

The larger dairy farms were 20 per cent of the total in 1961, compared with less than 10 per cent in 1956.

Government policies such as expanded farm credit and the new Machinery Syndicate Bill all help in this direction, and the change in dairy policy is designated to give further assistance.

Excessive Burden

The details of the provincial government's plan for assisted medical insurance coverage for British Columbians in the low income brackets will not be disclosed before the budget comes down next month, and meanwhile criticism will depend to some extent on suppositions.

But it appears entirely unlikely that this "mini-medicare," as it has been dubbed, will make any provision for free or low-cost prescription drugs for those who will benefit from it. The announcement in the Throne Speech afforded no such hint, indicating only that the government will help pay the insurance premiums, in connection with approved medical plans, of citizens who want the protection and quality for the assistance.

Giving full weight to the old saying about half a loaf, here may still be a serious deficiency in the proposed measure from the point of view of those contending desperately with the high cost of illness. If the price of insurance for doctors' services is more than they can pay, the price of having prescriptions filled often will be equally beyond them.

The cost of drugs of course is a troubling problem not among the lowest income group alone, but wherever sickness calling for expensive treatment afflicts family fortunes.

While the greatest need for relief can be seen in the instance of those who simply cannot afford the necessary medicines, and while it still is to be hoped that some provision for such help will be made in British Columbia's system, one can readily agree with The Spectator of Hamilton, when it calls on the federal government to take another course to alleviate the burden of the ill; to remove the hidden 11 per cent sales tax which is applied to the wholesale price of all drugs except cortisone, ACTH, insulin, radium, poliomyelitis vaccine and liver extract for anaemia.

"It is difficult," the Spectator says, "to imagine an argument that could justify a tax on the means of lessening human suffering. Taxes are essential if the government is to conduct its business, but they should be based upon morality and justice as well as the need for raising revenue."

That is a view to which most taxpayers, and certainly all who must pay high prices for essential drugs, would surely subscribe.

Russians Spied on Us Even at Peak of War

The claim in a recent Washington Calling column in this newspaper that a Swedish colonel spying for Russia got access to information on NATO air training in Canada may be well based. Even during the last war, when the Russians were our allies, they did their utmost to ferret out secrets which we did not consider it advisable to expose to them.

They were eternally curious about details of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan, the program through which large numbers of fliers of most of the Commonwealth countries were funnelled through from civilian life to the fighting fronts. There was, actually, extremely little that was really secret about the BCATP, because much of the data guarded with extraordinary security for the rest of the year was annually reported to Parliament.

One of the presumed secrets was a Canada-wide map, showing all BCATP air stations and detailing their nature. In the summer of 1943 one of Russia's supposed news correspondents in Ottawa, through the Wartime Information Board lined up a country-wide trip which was to take in some of the air stations as well as non-defence features. Word went out from RCAF headquarters to every air field to take down the Training Plan map until the Tass man had departed. One commanding officer in Manitoba forgot and when the Russian returned to Ottawa he put up an eloquent plea for a copy of the map. His people back home, he urged, would be so encouraged by this evidence of how well the war against Hitler was being fought within Canada. He did not get it, of course. His lies were met with other lies that the map was just out of print, that a new one was coming out and he would not be forgotten. He wasn't forgotten but he didn't get the map. There were, however, hints following the Soviet embassy clerk Gouzenko's defection soon after the war ended that the Russians had contrived to get an air stations' map from another source.

Canadian treatment of the ever-curious Russians was polite and indirect. The Americans did not waste time in evasions. There was a period during the war in which United States Air Force fighter planes were flown in great numbers up the chain of airfields along the Alaska Highway, for delivery in Alaska to Russian women pilots, who ferried them across the Bering Sea to Siberia. In the instrument panels of these planes were gaping holes, showing where secret instruments had been torn out just before the aircraft started the long flight north. Incidentally, Russia has not yet paid the U.S. for the planes, which were supplied under the wartime lend-lease arrangement.

Ultimate in Tipping

The practice of tipping as a reward for special service received has become a growth on civilization's skin no less maddening than television commercials.

But like television commercials tub-thumping for beauty potions and lotions, tipping in the port of Antwerp, Belgium, has reached ridiculous proportions.

For years ship owners have been following the practice of tipping harbor personnel responsible for traffic control and docking in the Belgian port. The larger the tip, the shorter the "turn-around" time—the period the ship lies, unprofitably, in harbor.

Now 600 workers operating locks and tugs have struck because they are not getting their share of the tips and their strike has opened a confusing and disturbing can of worms for the Belgian authorities to worry about.

This tip system has become such a familiar part of harbor life that most of the unions concerned regard it as part of pay. Now they want this additional payment legalized, a move that will, in effect, raise harbor dues.

Such a move, the government fears, will start a chain reaction resulting in all of the country's unions, especially in private industry, asking for more money.

Quiet Revolution in English Canada

Powerful Ontario Seems in Shock State

By PETER DESBARATS
(Fourth of a Series)

It is relatively easy, with one exception, to grasp the general mood of most Canadian provinces as they adjust to the new Confederation. The exception is Ontario. For once in its history, Canada's most populous and powerful province appears to be in a state of shock.

British Columbia and Quebec, for a variety of reasons, are intent on achieving greater control of their own destinies. The Maritimes and prairie provinces, with some exceptions, worry about an erosion of federal authority. But Ontario is hesitating in the middle. It is almost as if the swift recent changes have knocked it slightly off-balance.

"Ontario's position is understandably difficult to pin down," said Premier Robarts in an interview in his office at Queen's Park. "We're not asking for anything. We're not making great demands. We're not fired up.

"Quebec is going to the Federal Government and demanding various things. We're interested in seeing what the Federal Government does. We want to assess the implications."

In some ways, this wait-and-see approach isn't surprising. If Ontario has been quiet in recent years, it also has been extremely busy.

OLDER REVOLUTION

It contains a million more people than Quebec, more cars, more privately owned homes, more skilled workers and trained professional people, more industry and wealthier farms. As Premier Robarts said, "Ontario doesn't feel threatened. Of course we are concerned about our own strength and the strength of Canada as a whole. But we haven't been as vehement as Quebec because we haven't needed to move as quickly. The fact is, our revolution has been going on since 1945."

In other words, Ontario, compared with Quebec and the other provinces, has it made. Its economy is prosperous. Unemployment is relatively low. It has no hot quarrels with Ottawa, either on policy or methods of administration.

"We have close connections with Ottawa at the ministerial, deputy ministerial and technical levels," said Premier Robarts. "We're a big province. We've got a civil service that matches that of the Federal Government."

A senior civil servant in another province, not Quebec, agreed.

"Ontario never has had any difficulty in getting through to Ottawa," he said. "Ontario and Ottawa are the same thing.

"The competent French-speaking Quebecer in the old days really couldn't go to Ottawa and get a fair hearing. Compared with someone from Ontario, he didn't have the necessary contacts. And people from other provinces often had the same problem, even if they were speaking the same language as most of the civil servants in the capital."

Ontario isn't being stupidly smug when it says that it fails to see a need for radical changes in the federal structure. For Ontario, the old system worked reasonably well. At least on the surface in Ontario, there is little evidence of the kind of active discontent that is an essential condition of reform. In provincial politics, despite periodic scandals, the Conservative party in Ontario has won election after election for more than 20 years. When it was searching for a new leader in 1961, it was to be expected that it would pick someone like John Parmenter Robarts, now 47, barrister - at-law, naval veteran, Delta Upsilon, London Hunt and Country Club, likeable, serious, thoughtful. To an outside observer, the Robarts personality seems to express contemporary Ontario's.

Even the opposition Liberals in Ontario, at their recent leadership convention, selected a progressive, personable, but "steady" leader, Andrew Thompson rather than gamble on the more dramatic personality of Charles Templeton. Members of the New Democratic Party in Ontario are not as far to the left as most of their brothers in Western Canada or Quebec. Symptomatic of this has been recent speculation about an NDP-Liberal alliance or merger in Ontario.

The placid political atmosphere of the province doesn't mean that Ontario has been unaffected by events of the past four years.

Competition from Quebec

The renaissance in Quebec has deeply disturbed it. There was at one time indignation and horror in reaction to violence in French Canada, although this has waned rapidly. There is uncertainty about the effects in Ontario of economic development in Quebec. Ontario realizes that French Canada must prosper if it is to be a useful unit of Confederation but it is concerned about the possible loss of what used to be almost a captive Quebec market for many of its manufactured products. Plans to build two automobile factories and a steel plant in Quebec indicate that the province will not only be more self-sufficient in future but will compete more aggressively with Ontario for Canadian markets, particularly in the Maritimes.

PREMIER JOHN ROBARTS
. . . Economy prosperous, unemployment relatively low.

At the political level despite the separatist phenomenon, Quebec has been far more active and influential in federal-provincial affairs than it was half a dozen years ago. While defending provincial rights energetically, it has co-operated fully in the opening up of new channels of communication between Ottawa and the provinces and among the provinces themselves. In some instances the pension plan being the most spectacular, it has made a unique contribution to federal policy.

Co-operative One Way?

Premier Robarts objected to the bilateral pension negotiations between Ottawa and Quebec. In the interview, he described them as "a classic example of how not to do something in the federal-provincial field." At the time, he took a fairly critical attitude towards the Federal Government's "opting out" formula and Quebec's desire to opt out of a number of federal-provincial programs.

"I think that it must have a weakening effect nationally," he said. "I can't see that co-operative federalism can be a national policy if it is attractive to only one of the 10 provinces. But we aren't certain about the effects of this. We are using our best powers of forecasting to see what it will mean.

"The only thing that we are sure about is that we will never force ourselves back into the old pattern. The change is here."

A few days after the interview, however, Premier Robarts indicated publicly that Ontario may follow Quebec's lead and set up its own pension plan in co-ordination with the federal plan.

Quebec's activity in federal-provincial affairs, and the ideas produced by its new generation of civil servants, already have affected Ontario's national prestige. Younger civil servants in such provinces as Manitoba and New Brunswick seem to feel more akin to their counterparts in Quebec than those in Toronto.

ONTARIO HESITANT

"Ontario is in a funny position," said a young civil service economist in the Maritimes. "Almost all the other provinces seem to be bustling with ideas. By comparison, Ontario is very quiet and conservative. She isn't saying much these days."

This uncertainty shows up in some of Premier Robarts speeches.

On the one hand, he realizes that "the provinces will expand their role within certain areas as their responsibilities grow with population growth and social development." He admits that, as far back as 1945, when policies of the federal government "were predicated on developing centralized control of the economy to counteract economic stagnation, Ontario's thinking was the reverse . . . it was optimistic . . . it saw the role of the provincial government as the right hand of development and expansion."

But on the other hand, he insists that "if Canada is a nation, then it is more than a group of provinces joined together for particular purposes." He talks about the need for French Canadians to accept the "primacy" of the national government, a dangerously vague word.

A POSITIVE SIDE

In the same speech, delivered last November to his own party's annual convention in Toronto, he deliberately avoided taking too inflexible a position on federal powers.

"As Progressive Conservatives, we are not prepared to make changes simply for the sake of change," he said. "Nevertheless, if changes—even radical changes — are essential to develop a consensus in support of our federal system of government, we are prepared to make them."

This is essentially a rather negative approach. But it has a positive side. If Ontario has seemed to many English-speaking Canadians to have failed to "stand up to" Quebec as the largest English-speaking province, the reasons lie not only in Ontario's prosperous conservatism but in its loyalty to Canada and its goodwill toward Quebec. Ontario has not been overly enthusiastic about many trends in Quebec and in federal-provincial affairs but it has been willing to suspend judgment for a time. It has not wanted to rush to the ramparts to ward off a threat to English Canada without being certain that a real threat existed.

This is no small contribution to the building of the new Confederation.

"Let the Reds Protest"

To the Editor:

Sir—It seems that the Portland Oregonian relies on acceptance of cold war dogmas, i.e., the evil of godless red proletarians and the John Halifax Gentleman image of their exploiters.

In our early days we learned from Grandma to beware of evil spirits as of bad companions, but it took her granddaughter to notice that one of the good spirits was party to a conception that would scare a poor girl out of her wits.

May we remind this latter day John Halifax Gentleman that we remember Grandma's mite given to China's starving millions.

Happily the need for this ended when you, your conceptions and your Chinese friend went out on a Chinese proletarian boot.

By all means let the Reds protest.

Red China's UN Seating

By CARMAN CUMMING
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Two heavy ironies underlie the continuing United Nations exchanges on seating Communist China.

The first is that China's interest in a seat appears to be fading just at a time when her chances of getting one seem better than ever before.

The second is that Peking's reason for her lack of interest—that the UN is controlled by the imperialists — is probably less valid than ever before.

On the contrary, the influence of the Afro-Asian bloc is increasing along with its membership. Its chances of increased representation on the Security Council are good. And its majority in the General Assembly has ended the days of easy Western control there.

STAND HARDENS

Despite this, Peking has signalled a distinct hardening in its attitude towards the UN in two statements this month.

On Jan. 10 a government communique said the UN should be "thoroughly remodelled," and even called it a "paper tiger"—the ultimate insult usually reserved for the United States.

On Sunday Premier Chou En-lai followed this up with a call for formation of a new "revolutionary" United Nations free of the "manipulation of U.S. imperialists."

Both statements were made in the context of President Sukarno's withdrawal of Indonesia from the UN.

They raise questions of whether Peking is only making a pressure play against the West or whether it really is interested in Sukarno's idea of a grouping of the "new emerging forces."

PRESS FOR ACTION

Either way, the new Chinese stand will have its effect at the UN. It puts a strong argument in the hands of those many members pressing the U.S. to get Peking in before it is too late.

And either way, Western diplomats say, it is a discouraging blow to hopes that a deal could be arranged this year under which Peking would get the permanent Chinese seat on the council while Formosa would retain an assembly seat.

Clearly, the Western world is more disposed to this kind of arrangement than it ever has been before—although it is not nearly so clear how the deal would be achieved.

In the Western view, prospects of any agreement with Peking over Formosa now are slim.

On the other hand, Western diplomats say they don't expect a significant "second UN" to emerge in the Far East.

At the most, they say, such an arrangement would attract only a handful of Communist countries and Indonesia. And they doubt that even Sukarno, rebuffed by his closest non-aligned friends—would favor a grouping controlled by Peking.

Income Tax Tips

TUITION FEES RE 1964

The important point to keep in mind in regard to tuition fees, is that they are deductable only by the student and not by his parent or guardian who may have paid them. Prior to 1961, if a student earned over $950 the parent had no claim for him, but now his income for taxation purposes is the net amount after his tuition fees have been deducted.

There have been several important changes made, applicable to the 1964 year and every employed student may now have deductions not previously allowable. Formerly it applied only to students attending a Canadian university but for 1964, tuition fees paid to a University outside Canada are also deductable. The course must be one beyond the secondary school level leading up to a degree and the student must have attended for a period of not less than 13 weeks.

This section of the Income Tax Act has also been amended for 1964 to allow a deduction of tuition fees if they were in excess of $25, and the student was:

A) Attending a high or secondary school to obtain a certificate reguired for the entrance to a University.

(b) Attending an educational institution certified by the Minister of Labor to a school to inprove the students qualifications for employment or for the carrying on of a business or profession.

In the cases of (a) and (b) such schools must be in Canada, the fees must exceed $25 and be paid to such school or institution. A taxpayers personal expenses in this respect such as board and lodging are not deductable. In all cases, to be deductible the taxpayer must verify his claim with the proper receipts from the institution and such payments must have been made in the previous year and not previously claimed.

For a personal reply, enclose a self - addressed, FIVE cent stamped envelope, plus 25c for each question to C. A. Miller, care of the Daily News.

Question 1. My son is attending a University in the U.S.A. Is he allowed to deduct his tuition fees, since the University is not in Canada?

Answer. YES. This is allowable in 1964 but not in prior years.

Question 2. My daughter is a University student. She is not employed in the vacation period. Am I allowed as a deduction the tuition fees I pay for her?

Answer. NO. This deduction applies to students income only.

Labor Defeat Hurts House Legislation

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The devastating defeat in the Leyton byelection not only weakens the British Labor government's image abroad but virtually cripples its plans to introduce highly controversial legislation such as re-nationalization of Britain's steel industry.

It also increases the prospect Prime Minister Wilson may be forced into a general election at a time not of his own choosing. He now has an effective majority of only three in the 630-seat House of Commons and the nine-member band of Liberals has warned him they won't give him any more help if he keeps on catering to the whims of left-wing socialists.

The Liberals, Conservatives and one or two Labor members are opposed to steel re-nationalization, which was one of Wilson's major election campaign planks.

Indian Women Leaders' Spartan Living Aids Starving Hordes

By RUKMINI DEV
Canadian Press Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP) — Indian women leaders have launched a vigorous austerity campaign. They seem determined to give their men folk a good lesson or two in the much-talked-about but little-practised art of "plain living and high thinking."

All over the country women cabinet ministers, politicians, members of legislatures, trade union leaders and social welfare workers are switching to plain cotton saris, cheap rubber sandals and vegetarian food to show their sympathy with the Indian people in their current difficult economic plight.

India is going through a severe food crisis. Though the situation is far better than it was four months ago, Food Minister Subramanyam has warned the nation that the difficult days may not be over for some months.

Mrs. Indira Gandhi, daughter of the late prime minister Nehru and currently minister of information and broadcasting, has stopped wearing gold jewels.

GAVE UP ORNAMENTS

Recently, she turned over the last of her family ornaments to the national defence fund started by her father in 1962 when the Chinese invaded India in the northern Himalayas. One report said the ornaments donated are worth more than $75,000.

Mrs. Vijaya Lakshmi Pandit, 64-year-old sister of the former prime minister and a former ambassador in Washington and Moscow, has announced plans to live for part of the year in a tiny peasant's hut near Allahabad, the Nehru hometown in Uttar Pradesh state.

The Pandit hut will have a mud floor. There will be no electricity. Cooking will have to be done on a traditional coal stove.

Another Indian woman leader, Mrs. Lakshmi Menon, is reported to be living on one meal a day, donating the savings to the prime minister's national relief fund.

Women members of the Maharashtra state legislature have decided not to eat puddings "until the common man is able to buy two square meals a day."

Largest Girl Scout Camp Planned for North Idaho

SPOKANE (AP) — The Girl Scout international roundup in North Idaho this summer will be "the largest girl encampment for years in the western free world," a member of Idaho's economic development committee said here.

Kyle W. Walker, managing director of the Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, Chamber of Commerce, outlined plans for the huge summer camp before Spokane women's clubs. Walker helped attract the big roundup to the northwest.

Some 11,000 persons, including 9000 Girl Scouts, will converge on the old Farragut naval training station on Lake Pend Oreille. There will be representatives from all 50 states in addition to 200 Girl Guides from 40 foreign countries.

The area will become a city of 6000 tents and 324,000 meals will be served, Walker said.

The food bill for the roundup is expected to be about $190,000. The shopping list will include such items as 14 tons of meat, two tons of sugar, 5½ tons of butter, 9500 eggs, 135,000 quarts of milk and 39,000 loaves of bread.

Hints From Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

Mommies, help your little miss when she dresses her doll, by tying a small plastic bag over the doll's head and hair. Use a large rubber band to secure the plastic bag.

This saves the doll's hair from being mauled.

I make doll clothes and do try them on — that's how I learned.

Marie Rogers.

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

Dear Heloise:

I like to keep in touch with all my friends who have moved away, and keeping a list of their birthdays helps me.

I buy cards ahead of time, writing the date on which the card is to be mailed in the right hand corner (the stamp will cover it later). So far this hint probably isn't new but here is the catch . . .

To entice my friend to reply, I write a note that hints she is a year older than she really is.

I am always happy to have her letter of correction, because it usually contains all the news I wished to hear!

Jan Walbron.

Dear Heloise:

When a screw jars loose in our metal kitchen cabinet or drawers, we gob it with colorless nail polish before replacing the screw.

This keeps the screw from jarring loose when the drawer is pulled out or the cabinet opened.

Nancy M.

Dear Heloise:

A week or so ago, after baking an apple pie (frozen in a pliable aluminum tin), it collapsed in the oven when I was removing it.

I had two pot holders but the pan just folded up and apples and juice ran all over my clean oven.

Since then, when baking the pies in the aluminum pans, I place the pie pan in a larger, firm pan first and I can take that out with no spills.

Mrs. Brooks Booth.

Dear Heloise:

I removed the ring from the top of a baking powder can to give a sharp cutting edge, then punched holes in the bottom of the can (with an ice pick) to give air spaces.

I use this handy gadget to cut up boiled potatoes for hash browns, to chop boiled eggs as fine or coarse as I wish for sandwiches or salad, to cut shelled nuts, and for many other uses. It's just wonderful.

Mrs. H. J. Coqueugniot.

CWL Holy Hour Successful

The Catholic Women's League Holy Hour is functioning successfully, it was learned at a meeting of the Blessed Sacrament League held in the parish committee room, with president Mrs. P. Klassen in the chair.

One member of a circle is present in the church for Adoration for one hour each week. The League hopes that this will become a family action, with the entire parish participating.

Mrs. Klassen extended an invitation to all CWL members and their husbands to attend a CFM meeting. She stated that CFM is interested in ways to promote family happiness in the home itself, in the neighborhood and in the parish. "All couples of goodwill share this objective," she said.

Mrs. T. Naka, spiritual convener, gave a reading from the Bible.

Rev. Father Clarmont, director, discussed the forthcoming family day Sunday, when a service will be held, with the blessing of the children in the afternoon, followed in the evening, by a study of the Bible and the Liturgy as applicable to family living.

Refreshments were served.

Your Individual Horoscope

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars,

For Friday, January 29, 1965

MARCH 21 to APRIL 20 (Aries) — Though restlessness and/or some differences of opinion may exist, it is within your power to cope with them and make this day a memorable one.

APRIL 21 to MAY 21 (Taurus) — If you have a problem to solve, wait until the early afternoon when influences will be better than in the A.M. It may be better for you to modify your attitudes and demands.

MAY 22 to JUNE 21 (Gemini) — Your outlook and attitude will be most important now. In all that you do, consider your motives carefully. Do capitalize on your bright ideas, too. They could pay off handsomely.

JUNE 22 to JULY 23 (Cancer) — You should find yourself freer to spend the day according to your own desires now. Lunar influences favor the completion of confidential financial arrangements.

JULY 24 to AUGUST 23 (Leo) — If yesterday was well spent, this day should be even better. Your thinking should be sound and you have a big chance to make a fine step forward.

AUGUST 24 to SEPTEMBER 23 (Virgo) — Situations may place you in confilct with those who are enforcing "rules." Arguments will not get you anywhere, however. Be discreet and amiable.

SEPTEMBER 24 to OCTOBER 23 (Libra) — If you attempt to gain your way by unconventional methods, it could cause discord. Emphasize reason, logic, harmony.

OCTOBER 24 to NOVEMBER 22 (Scorpio) — Many problems which have bothered you in the past may be resolved now. Good deeds of the past may also pay off. Don't allow a feeling of lethargy to spoil what could be a very happy day.

NOVEMBER 23 to DECEMBER 21 (Sagittarius) — Avoid exaggeration in action or words. This can be a day of tremendously useful performance if you note immediate needs and forget past disappointments.

DECEMBER 22 to JANUARY 20 (Capricorn) — Admonition for this day: avoid haste in all things, especially in making decisions. Look closely at all situations. There may be values not seen at a cursory glance.

JANUARY 21 to FEBRUARY 19 (Aquarius) — Be prepared for interruptions, necessary delays. Some order and specifics will be disrupted, perhaps not showing effects till later. Clear the atmosphere of tension,

FEBRUARY 20 to MARCH 20 (Pisces) — If in doubt as to procedures, consult an expert who can set you straight. But, once having solicited the advice, do not ignore it.

YOU BORN TODAY have excellent staying power for work and extra duties, which you take as a matter of course, thus getting farther ahead than many who do only as much as demanded. Remember the necessity of deliberation, and not hurrying faster than wisdom permits. You can provoke irritation when too anxious to get on with accomplishment. Temper activity with ease of manner so as not to give the wrong impression or push beyond good sense. Fix your sights high, but appreciate little blessings along the way. Birthdate of: Wm. Montreal Canadiens Hit Hapless Chi-Hawks 2-0

By The Canadian Press

Montreal Canadiens scored twice in the dying minutes Wednesday night to blank their nearest rivals in the National Hockey League — Chicago Black Hawks, 2-0. The Habs increased their lead in the standings over the Hawks to four points.

New York Rangers celebrated the debut of Swedish Ulf Sterner, the first European-born and trained player in the NHL, with a 5-2 victory over Boston Bruins.

Both Montreal goals came from defenceman Jean-Guy Talbot.

He got the game's first goal at 15:14 of the third period, taking a pass from Jim Roberts and racing in alone to beat the Hawks' goalie Denis DeJordy with a fake and a sliding shot.

His second tally, and sixth of the season, came at 18:35. Jean Beliveau stole the puck from Pierre Pilote and Talbot, alone again in front of DeJordy, slapped it in.

FOUR GOAL BURST

New York scored four goals in the last nine minutes of the second period, breaking a 1-1 tie and pulling way from the last-place Bruins.

Sterner did not score but was on the ice for two of the Ranger goals.

Sterner, a 22-year-old centre called up from Baltimore of the American Hockey League two days ago, actually put the puck in the net once, but the referee ruled the whistle had blown.

Bob Nevin opened New York's account in the first, tied by Murray Oliver early in the second.

Then came the four-goal New York burst. Camille Henry got his 20th of the season, followed by tallies from Earl Ingarfield, Billy Hicke and Vic Hadfield.

Oliver again hit for Boston midway through the third period.

Kimberley Dynamiters presently top the Western International Hockey League standings in statistics released Wednesday with 42 points on 19 wins, 14 losses and four ties in 37 games played.

The Nelson Maple Leafs, who held a strangle hold on first place for three solid months, are in the number two spot with 40 points acquired on the strength of 19 wins, 17 losses and two ties.

Kimberley's Walt Peacosh leads the WIHL scoring race by a nine-point margin, having picked up 64 points in 37 games on 24 goals and 40 assists.

Billy Martin, Rossland Warriors high-scoring winger is the league's top goal-getter with 31 in 35 games to trail Peacosh with 55 points.

Playing-coach Bobby Kromm is the circuit's top playmaker with 42 assists to move into a third-place tie in the individual standings with Dynamiter Les Lilley, for 52 points.

Dave Cox of the Spokane Jets is the WIHL's top goaltender, posting a respectable 3.94 goals against average in 35 games with the American club.

Trail Smoke Eaters Bruno Forlin, who took over regular net-minding duties for the Trail club after an injury to Reno Zanier, is in second place with 4.00 goals-against average in 20 games with the team.

Cox is tied in the shutout department with Nelson's Jim Letcher, with two apiece.

Tom "Badman" Hodges has recorded the most time in the sin bin with a total of 167 minutes in 32 games for a game average of 5.22 minutes.

Nelson's Mike Laughton trails Warrior Martin in the goal-scoring department with 29 in 38 games with the Leafs:

Ernie Pitts Signs With Blue Bombers

WINNIPEG (CP)—Ernie Pitts, veteran end who holds two Canadian Football League pass receiving records, has signed a two-year contract with Winnipeg Blue Bombers, the Western Conference club announced Thursday.

Coach Bud Grant said Pitts, who joined Bombers from the University of Denver eight years ago, will work from a defensive half spot during the 1965 season in addition to his offensive end position.

Pitts, who became a Canadian citizen last year, holds the CFL records for most touchdown passes caught in a season, 16, and most touchdown passes in one game, five.

He was eighth in WFC pass-receiving in 1964 with 32 catches in 39 attempts for 459 yards.

SIGNED OR NOT? — Whether Jim Wilson, All-American tackle at Georgia, had signed a pro contract with the Boston Patriots of the American Football League prior to the 1964 season is being investigated. A spokesman for the Patriots said that Wilson signed an undated contract with them last August. Wilson recently signed with the San Francisco 49ers of NFL.

RC School Flags At Half Mast

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP)—Quebec's fleur de lis flag was lowered to half mast over one of Sherbrooke's Roman Catholic high schools Wednesday in tribute to the late Sir Winston Churchill, but the other high schools flew their flags as usual.

The one high school paying tribute to Sir Winston was St. Patrick, the English-language Catholic boys' high school.

Gordon Rink Captures West Kootenay Zone Title

The Max Gordon rink, representing the Nelson Curling Club, took the West Kootenay Zone Championship in Rossland at the weekend by dropping the George Dyson foursome of Rossland 10-8.

The victory for Gordon hinged on the last rock.

The Gordon rink consists of George Barefoot, Tom Lewis and Herb Miller.

The Rossland quartette was composed of George Dyson, Ernie Carkner, Dave Tweed and Denis Peebles.

The win for the Nelson rink entitles them to travel to Kamloops for the interior B.C. playdowns February 1, at which time they will attempt to win the right to take on the Pacific Coast champions.

Gordon won the finals of the 'A' event by dropping the John Merkley rink of Trail.

Dyson captured the 'B' section by dumping the George Menzies foursome of Castlegar.

The two-day event started Friday with 16 rinks entered from various parts of the district.

Teams from the Trail Shift Curling Club, The Trail Curling Club, and the Nelson Curling Club dominated the field while single entries came from Nakusp, Riondel, Castlegar, Rossland, Rossland Shift Curling Club, Salmo, Montrose and Fruitvale for the double draw competition.

In the East Kootenay zone championships, Eric Bisgrove captured the honors with a narrow 6-5 victory over club-mate Elgin Smith.

Jacobs Confident Canadian National Ski Team Has Spirit, Ability To Win

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two of Canada's top skiing experts disagree on whether Canada's skiing team has national spirit and the ability to rank among top skiing aggregations of the world.

The spirit is there and so is the ability, says Dave Jacobs of Montreal, coach of the Canadian national ski team now studying and training at Notre Dame University in Nelson, B.C.

Not so, says Bob Bartley of Vancouver, president of the Western Division of te Canadian Amateur Ski Association.

Bartley started the controversy recently when he said: "Canadian skiers are every bit as good as the Americans . . . all we need now is a national spirit like the Americans."

He also said Canada ranked behind only two countries in skiing talent — Austria and France. Canada will never compete against these two nations "because they are way ahead of the rest of the world."

Bartley said the team training program at Nelson may help to "attain the national spirit we have been looking for."

DAVE JACOBS
. . . fine team spirit

'NOT WARRANTED'

Jacobs says Bartley's statement about Canada never being able to compete against the Austrians and French "is certainly condemning and totally unwarranted.

"We will compete, and we will win, provided we race for Canada and not for ourselves."

Jacobs said the ski training program at Nelson "is an ideal one. One of the stepping stones to building this (team) spirit is to have the whole team live and train together so they can acquire the feeling of a common goal and push each other to greater heights in training and competition."

"Another of the stepping stones and a prime one, is to have the support of the nation, morally and financially. You can only build a team in relation to the money you have."

The European nations build with $250,000 while Canada comes up with a $40,000 team, he said.

RELUCTANT TO HELP

"Canadians want their athletes to win, but they are reluctant to provide the foundation that a Canadian athlete needs to win. It is sort of an all take and no give relationship."

Jacobs said this was more evident in skiing than in other sports. "Skiing is one of the most demanding and dangerous for the athlete, and unfortunately, one of the poorest for spectator value, although TV will change this.

"A skier, representing Canada in international competition, is virtually risking life and limb, and at times the cost is both. These athletes must be morally supported by Canada and financially supported at least by those interested in the sport."

Jacobs said his point was best illustrated in the case of Vancouver's Rod Hebron, one of Canada's top skiers.

"He cannot raise $1,000 from the city of Vancouver to cover his training expenses this season. Roddy will risk his life this winter with a Canadian national team crest on his shoulder, but supported by no one."

The ski coach admitted the French and Austrian skiers were among the best in the world, "but they are by no means way ahead."

Castlegar's Minor Hockey Day Saturday

Minor Hockey Week in Castlegar gets under way Saturday morning with 261 youngsters participating in the day's games.

Sponsored annually in conjunction with the Castlegar and District Minor Hockey Association, the event will feature the second game of the West Kootenay semi-finals between the Castlegar and Trail Bantam Rep teams.

Regular minor hockey games will continue all day from 8:30 a.m. until 10:30 p.m. with boys from Pee Wee to Midget performing for the parents and hockey fans alike.

At 7:00 p.m. the Castdegar Midget Rep team will meet the Rossland squad in the first game of the West Kootenay Semi-Finals. The arena will hold open house all day for the convenience of the adult spectators and the participating players will be treated to pop and hot dogs.

The Castlegar organization expects that its open house will draw the largest crowd ever.

Association President George Jackson commented, "We've been training these boys all winter; we know their parents will want to see how their boys are coming along."

VANCOUVER (CP)—Fire left Carl Aim, his wife Dorothy and their two children homeless Tuesday when an oil burner apparently touched off a fire that swept through the whole house.

Bombers, Bomberettes Split Weekend Series

L. V. Rogers Bombers and Bomberettes displayed too much offensive power against the Castlegar contingent Friday night as they swept a two-game Northern Division basketball series 42-29 and 54-43.

In the preliminary game, Linda MacLeod lead the Bomberettes attack with 15 points, followed by Diane Ingledew with eight.

Down 24-18 at halftime, the Bomberettes fought back hard in the 3rd quarter and outscored the Castlegar club 15-1.

The win for the Bomberettes is their fifth in a row.

In the boys game, the Bombers, using a zone press baffled the Castlegar Rockers to lead the Club 11-7 in the first quarter.

Dave St. Thomas, playing possibly the best game of the season, hit three consecutive foul shots to lead the Bombers to 23-17 halftime score.

The Bombers came out strong in the second half as senior guards Ross Tozer and Mike Kurison consistently stole the ball as they intercepted numerous Castlegar passes.

Mike Murison paced the L.V. Rogers club with 15 points with deadly-accurate 25-foot set shots.

Other Bomber scorers were Dave St. Thomas with 12, Ross Tozer nine and Pat French and Don Johnston with eight.

Senior guard Roland Porter played a steady offensive game in relief of Murison early in the third quarter.

Saturday night the L.V. Rogers teams travelled to Grand Forks for a two-game exhibition series with the Wolves.

In the opening game, the Grand Forks girls team's fast break proved to be too much for the Bomberettes as they downed the Nelson club 41-38.

The loss for the L.V. Rogers squad now gives them a 8-2 won-lost record.

In the boys contest, the Wolves edged the Bombers 39-37 in a closely-fought game before some 200 fans.

The Grand Forks club took a halftime lead 16-12 as both teams put up a tough defensive wall.

Personal fouls hampered the Nelson club in the early part of the second half as two of five members of the first string were fouled out.

Pat Laughton, a grade 10 rookie, picked up his first two points of the season in relief when he netted two consecutive foul shots.

The Wolves scored 15 of their 39 points on foul shots.

Pete Kootchin paced the Wolves with 10 points, followed by Les Seminoff and Pete Fofinoff with eight and seven respectively.

High point man for the Bombers was Mike Murison with 13 trailed by Pat French with six.

Friday, the Bombers and the Bomberettes host the Notre Dame Junior Varsity teams in the L.V. Rogers gymnasium.

Game times are 7:00 p.m. and 8:15 p.m.

Top Track Stars Set For Meet

VANCOUVER (CP) — Some top athletes will meet their former proteges next month at the Percy Williams Invitational Indoor Track Meet here.

The University of Oregon has entered 10 athletes in various events and coach Bill Bowerman has indicated he may bring several others for the Feb. 20 meet. Washington State has entered a 12-man contingent.

Dave Blunt, a former teammate of world 100-metre champion Harry Jerome, will run against Jerome in the 60-yard event. Leon Lincoln, another protege of Jerome, will wear Oregon colors in the 60-yard event.

Shot-putter Dave Steen will go against his old pupil and friend Neil Steinhauer of Oregon.

Distance runners Ken Moore and Don Tonn are expected to provide the main competition in their events. Tonn goes against Victoria's John Valiant.

Trail's Gerry Moro is entered in the pole vault against some first class jumpers, including Bill Self and Bob Yard of Washington State. Moro's best effort is 15 feet, six inches, while Self has done 15 feet, 9¼ inches and Yard 15 feet, five inches.

To date, the entry list for the meet totals 27, and more are expected.

Crothers To Break Record?

NEW YORK (AP)—A world indoor half-mile record is being touted for Canada's Bill Crothers at the Millrose Games here tonight.

Meet director Fred Schmertz sees the Markham, Ont., pharmacist as the only likely record-breaker despite the fact that an international field of 16 gold medal winners at the 1964 Tokyo Olympics are included among the competitors.

Many of the same athletes will compete in the meet at Toronto Friday night and the Boston A.A. meet at Boston Saturday.

"I'm only predicting one world indoor record," Schmertz said. "That's by Crothers in the half-mile. He won the 600 in Boston and took two in Los Angeles.

"He's in great shape, maybe the best ever, and is running stronger than ever before."

Crothers, 24, holds the meet record of 1:50, the fastest ever in North America for the indoor 880, and finished second to New Zealand's Peter Snell in the Olympic 800 metres.

He will be opposed by Wilson Kiprugui of Kenya, third in the Olympic 800 metres and marine Lieut. Charles Buchta, AAU champion.

The field for the mile features Bill Dotson of Kansas; John Davies of New Zealand, third in the Olympic 1,500 metre; John Whetton of England, and Jim Grelle of the U.S.

Car sales in Sweden were approximately 250,000 during 1964, up 11 per cent over the previous year.

Cahan Sent To Canucks

VANCOUVER (CP) — Larry Cahan, assigned to the Vancouver Canucks by the parent New York Rangers of the National Hockey League, arrived here Tuesday.

The 32-year-old defenceman, sent to Vancouver to replace rookie defenceman Bob Plager, called up last week by the Rangers, motored cross-country from New York through blazzards which delayed his arrival here. He was expected at the weekend.

Cahan, a Western Hockey League all-star during a previous stint with the Canucks, will join the team for their game against the Seals in San Francisco Friday night.

Increase in Hunting Deaths Despite Widespread Safety Campaigns in 1964

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Despite widespread intensification of hunting-safety measures, fatalities among Canadian hunters crept upward in 1964 from the low figure for modern times of the year before.

A compilation by The Canadian Press in a Cross-Canada Survey shows 55 accidental shooting deaths among huntsmen, slightly over the 53 of 1963 though far under the recent record of 94 in 1960.

It was a spotty year around the country. Prince Edward Island had no deaths, for the second straight year, and Manitoba had only one, also for the second time in a row. But Saskatchewan and British Columbia each equalled their top marks of nine, and each had four more than 1963.

Quebec's death toll dropped by nine. Ontario, though it had the highest provincial total with 14, dropped one from 1963 and had less than half its 1960 figure of 36.

The totals by provinces, with 1963 figures in brackets:

Newfoundland, 1 (3); Nova Scotia, 5 (2); New Brunswick, 3 (2); Prince Edward Island, 0 (0); Quebec, 10 (19); Ontario, 14 (15); Manitoba, 1 (1); Saskatchewan, 9 (5); Alberta, 3 (1); British Columbia, 9 (5).

FEW INNOVATIONS

There were no new departures in safety measures during the year, except that Nova Scotia adopted legislation making it mandatory for all hunters to carry basic survival gear in a waterproof container. Alberta put into effect the hunter training program now common in most of the provinces and qualified 195 instructors who trained more than 500 students.

Other provinces pushed ahead with existing programs. Quebec and Ontario, particularly, credited the safety training projects of the last several years with holding down their fatal shootings.

The bag of game varied from area to area but appeared generally satisfactory, though there were few statistics on kills. The Ontario lands and forests department reported a "banner" year for hunters, particularly bear and deer. The moose hunt was hampered by rain and snow. Bird hunting in the province was good, with duck bags reported up to excellent.

Quebec kept a count on moose and reported 7,435 killed—almost double the previous year's figure. There was an open season on females and young, to help balance the herds.

GOOD B.C. BAG

On the west coast, British Columbia's moose kill was indicated as up 10 per cent; deer up fractionally, and mountain sheep and goat, grizzly bear and caribou about the same as last year or slightly lower. The waterfowl season looked "fairly good," and the grouse kill apparently was edging upward after a cyclical decline.

In Alberta, there were no figures on big game hunting but the upland bird bag was slightly improved and the duck harvest was slightly down. There was an abundance of pheasants but hunting conditions were not good.

Wildlife officials in Saskatchewan report big-game hunting "generally successful" and the deer shoot excellent. It was the best year ever for pheasant and hungarian partridge, with pheasants described as "superb." The year also was one of the best for geese, though lack of water in sloughs cut down the duckshooting areas.

In Manitoba, for the first time in some years a "bucks only" law for deer was in effect in the province's south, where most hunting is done. Officials said the season came up to expectations. Reports on the moose season from Nov. 27 to Dec. 31 said severe weather made shooting difficult and the kill was believed lower than usual. The upland bird season was only fair, and some of the duck migration bypassed the more popular areas and reduced the bag.

GOOD YEAR IN N.B.

Indications from deer and bird hunters in New Brunswick are that the season was as successful as the previous year. A six-day moose total was at least 298 and not all reports are in. The kill in a similarly brief 1963 season was 296. The open seasons on moose started in 1960 after a ban since 1937.

Nova Scotia's deer kill is expected to pass the 20,000 mark, compared with 19,000 a year earlier. It works out at about one for every two hunters.

Prince Edward Island, with no big-game hunting, reports continuance of a 10-year decline in non-resident and urban resident licences — the only kind needed — for upland gunning. Officials feel this likely indicates a drop-off in the population of partridge and pheasant, though kill statistics are not kept.

Newfoundland officials report an apparent decline in the number of hunters and slight fall-off in big-game kills. The island for the first time had an open season on moose—30 days in the Avalon Peninsula—and there were 50 kills. There were no estimate on bird bags.

Sports Flashback

Flyers' "Pickles" MacNichol

By JOHN MOSHER

ST. ANDREWS, N.B. (CP)—It was a February night in 1942 in Maple Leaf Gardens, Toronto.

Ottawa RCAF Flyers and Port Arthur Bearcats, deadlocked 2-2 in the best-of-five Allan Cup final series, were playing the deciding game for the Canadian senior hockey championship.

H. Allison (Pickles) MacNichol, Flyers captain, scored two goals and assisted on another in leading the air force team to a 7-1 rout.

Then, as 15,000 fans cheered, Pickles skated to centre ice to receive the Allan Cup.

There were a lot of folks impressed by the small, explosive centre and quite a few were ready to predict he'd make the National Hockey League.

MacNichol weighed only 150 pounds and avoided the rough stuff, but he made up for his lack of size with excellent stickhandling and strong skating.

He appeared to have the qualities that have turned many little men into stars—Doug Bentley at five-foot-eight and 145 pounds, King Clancy five-seven, 155 pounds, Camille Henry five-ten, 151 pounds, Bobby Bauer five-six, 150.

A measure of his ability was that he starred with a team that had Bauer, Milt Schmidt and Porky Dumart, later to become the famed Kraut Line of Boston Bruins.

But a bigtime hockey career was ruled out when MacNichol was thrown from a motorcycle in the Netherlands during the Second World War and suffered a fractured right leg.

He was 20 when he joined the RCAF and 28 before recovery from the injury.

COACHES KIDS

Now 45 and in his 18th year as a customs officer in St. Andrews, his hometown, he has kept his hand in by aiding minor hockey and now directs an operation that has 28 clubs.

He played his first hockey in New Brunswick with St. Stephen St. Croix in 1938. Later that year he played five games with a Saskatoon junior team before money troubles forced it to fold. In 1939-40 he was high scorer in the Michigan-Ontario League with London Mohawks.

Joining the air force in 1940 and playing with Ottawa RCAF Flyers, he led the city league in scoring with 25 goals and 41 assists. In his last season before going overseas he played with Montreal RCAF in the Quebec Senior League. His team lost to Ottawa Commandos who went on to win the Allan Cup.

Today, when MacNichol puts on his skates and coaches the youngsters, the style that made him a star is still evident.

"When you can really skate, then you'll be able to play hockey the way it is supposed to be played—naturally," he tells the kids.

He watches NHL games on television and thinks they're less interesting than in his day although faster.

"Stick-handling is going out as a result of shooting the puck into corners and racing in after it instead of working in by passing."

This appraisal doesn't conceal a feeling of regret, however.

"I'm still sorry I couldn't have played just one game in the NHL to see what it was like."

WITH STANE AND BESOM

In the finals of the Plugs and Colts competition, the Plugs knocked out the Colts 13-10.

Playing for the Plugs were W. Wait, H. Miller, L. Rymal and R. Rosheleau, while the Colts team was comprised of D. Fawcett, W. Mydansky, G. Adams and L. Hyssop.

The Wait rink won the Plugs section playoffs by downing the E. Mason rink 11-7.

The following are the scores in the first round of the Presidents vs. Vice-Presidents competition:

Combination of Brain, Brawn Makes Miler

By ROD CURRIE

LONDON (CP) — Dr. Roger Bannister, first man to crack the four-minute mile, says it's the workings between the ears as much as physical ability that make great athletes.

Bannister, now 35 and a consultant neurologist at London's St. Mary's Hospital, says victory on the track requires "economy of effort" but psychological factors may well tip the balance between victory and defeat.

"Mental approach is one of the most important factors in running. The man who can drive himself further once the effort gets painful is the man who will win."

Bannister himself is a living example of the importance of psychology in breaking records.

Until he shattered the mile barrier, it was a frustrating dream. But since that day in 1954, when he ran the mile in 3:59.4 at Oxford University, the four-minute mile has been broken more than 100 times.

Peter Snell of New Zealand now holds the record, with a time of 3:54.1.

NO THREE-MINUTE MILE

Bannister, delivering one of a series of lectures sponsored by the Royal Society of Medicine and designed for young people, said he thinks sprint records will not improve much more but distance records will go on improving for some time to come.

Will anyone ever break the three-minute mile? Bannister thinks not.

"I've always been intrigued by the problems of why no one can run a mile in under three minutes," he said. "But I am quite convinced no one ever will."

Training, he said, is just "building up capacity to transfer oxygen" and, while this is important, the mental attitude of a runner in determining the sheer effort one puts into a race will always be the vital element.

He does not agree with the school of thought which measures an athlete's capabilities and potential on the purely physiological basis — the qualities of fatness, thinness and muscularity.

On the basis of these, he said, Snell, who won the 800 and 1,500 metres races in the Olympic Games in Tokyo, should have been a sprinter.

"In fact," said Bannister, "more is known about the shape of horses than the shape of athletes."

Kimberley Takes Wins in EKHSBL Play

Starting the second half of the playing schedule in the East Kootenay High School Basketball League, away from home, Sparwood teams lost both ends of a twin bill against Kimberley Selkirk. In the first game Sparwood girls went down to defeat by a 29-21 score. Kimberley girls led 23-13 at half time. Sparwood girls now have lost four games and won three in seven league games played. A. Volard was high scorer for the winners netting 14 points. In a losing cause for Sparwood, Pat Dufour collected 6 points and Gail Reghenas followed with 5 points. In the second game, Sparwood Spartons, who completed the first half of the playing schedule with six straight wins and remained the only undefeated team, were upset and suffered their first loss of the season as they were edged by Kimberley Selkirk boys by a 50-47 score in a tightly-played encounter. Kimberley boys led by a narrow margin throughout the game and led by a 25-22 score at half time. High scorer for the winners was G. McConnally with 16 points while E. Mussio followed with 15 points. For the losing Sparwood Spartans, three players, Ron Venzi, Bob Mihalynuk and Leno Collonello were tied with 12 points each. Sparwood Spartans, after suffering their initial defeat of the season, now boast a record of six wins and a single loss in league play.

Sparwood Rink Wins East-West Kootenay Draw

Sparwood High School rink, after winning the East Kootenay High School Curling zone championship at Fernie, continued their winning ways in district playdowns as they added the East-West Kootenay zone championship to their laurels in playoff action held in Grand Forks last weekend. Playing in a best-of-three series, Sparwood won the deciding game after both rinks had split the first two games. Sparwood scored a decisive 12-3 win in the opening game with Grand Forks winning the second by a narrow 8-7 margin in 11 ends. Sparwood copped the final game winning by a 6-5 score in 10 ends to win the East-West Kootenay High School Curling championship and advance in the provincial playdowns. Next weekend Sparwood rink wil journey to Vancouver to participate in a four team round robin series to represent the province of British Columbia. The winner of this round-robin curling playdowns will represent British Columbia in the Dominion High School playdown to be held at Fredericton, New Brunswick. The winning rink representing Sparwood High School consists of Bob Mihalynuk as skip, Mark Gamilli, third; Ken Komenac, second and Larry Cerny, lead. All reports indicate that the Sparwood rink received splendid hospitality while competing in the district curling playdowns at Grand Forks.

Industry Credit Bureau Nemesis of Mafia Threat

By GERRY McNEIL

QUEBEC (CP)—Jack Sadler has been in the credit end of the construction business for 17 years. The Mafia must hate his cheery smile.

For Mr. Sadler, as manager of the Construction Industry Credit Bureau, can smell a Cosa Nostra entry into the industry the moment it gets its grip on a tottering contractor.

During time off from the annual Canadian Construction Association convention here, he explained the syndicate's methods:

"What happens is that they buy out a contractor who is in trouble and shoot some money into the firm.

"The firm picks up several contracts. It takes the money for a few months, doesn't pay suppliers, then declares bankruptcy."

Under the present federal Bankruptcy Act, this leaves creditors such as building materials suppliers and subcontractors holding the bag.

The business of the credit bureau, which opened last May in Toronto and plans offices across Canada, is to tip the industry off to such operations.

The bureau, an offspring of the Canadian Creditmen's Association, keeps its expanding membership of 79 firms advised on "where the money is coming from" on jobs they may bid for.

PUT UP DUMMY

"The relationship between the owner and the builder of a commercial enterprise can put you on guard against possible bankruptcy," he said. "The owner may put up a dummy company, then sub - contract the work."

A Montreal office to be opened next month will offer evaluations of past work of subcontractors, and the present load they are carrying.

The failure of a sub-contractor can ruin the general contractor, who may find himself facing bills left unpaid by the sub-contractor.

The Canadian Construction Association has been pressing for several years for amendments to tighten the federal Bankruptcy Act. About 20 per cent of bankruptcies occur in the construction industry.

"We think rather a lot are fraudulent," Donald Jupp, president of the body, said in an interview.

Besides amendments to close loop-holes that allow "white collar racketeers" to milk a company through its name, he suggested that a superintendent of bankruptcy be given deputy minister rank in the provinces.

He would study each bankruptcy for fraud, investigating transactions that preceded the failure and the trustees that were administering it.

Measures also should be taken to prevent contractors from getting so deeply in debt they were ripe for failure.

POLITE BANDIT

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two bank tellers said Tuesday a bandit said "Sorry for the inconvenience" as he left with $8,000. They identified Gerald Martinello, 22, as the armed man who robbed their bank Oct. 8. They were testifying at a preliminary hearing into a robbery charge against Martinello.

Silk-Suited Tarzan New Jungle Image

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Memo to Johnny Weissmuller, Buster Crabbe, Glenn Morris, Lex Barker, Gordon Scott, Jock Mahoney and other movie tarzans:

Remember how you had to swim in brackish studio tanks, nuzzle slobbering chimps, mutter monosyllabic nonsense to Jane and sit on bristle-topped elephants in those skimpy loin cloths?

You fellows came along too early. Look what's happening to Tarzan No. 14, Mike Henry, linebacker for the Los Angeles Rams pro football team.

He gets to wear silk suits in his new picture, Tarzan '65. Not only that, he will film much of it in Acapulco aboard a posh yacht. His leading lady? A sleek blonde named Sharon Tate.

Whatever happened to Jane? She's back in the jungle cooking banana stew.

GETS SEND-OFF

The latest Tarzan was unveiled by producer Sy Weintraub at his Sunset Strip office crammed with impressionist paintings. The well - dressed Henry, 28, has a Tarzan build—six-foot-three, 212 pounds, down 16 from his normal playing weight.

He has been with the Rams for several seasons, meanwhile playing such memorable roles as Henry Fonda's brother in Spencer's Mountain and a doorman in Palm Springs Weekend.

How did Weintraub pick him for the erstwhile ape man?

"Because he has the physical qualities, being rugged and virile," said the producer. "But also because he is articulate and literate, fitting the new image I want to project for Tarzan on the screen.

"I am modernizing Tarzan, taking him out of the grunt-and-groan category and back more to Edgar Rice Burrough's original concept. In this film he will be more of a James Bond type, the difference being that Tarzan operates on the level of saving one man or one animal while Bond saved the world."

Henry, who intends to continue his football career, admitted his Ram comrades have had much sport with his casting. Cliff Livingston, his burly roommate on the road and fellow linebacker, has already been dubbed Jane.

The ocean's 335,000,000 cubic miles of water contain more metal than exists in all the mines on earth.

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

FORMER FASHION GENIUS RETURNS

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

PARIS (AP)—Irish-born Capt. Edward Molyneux, after 15 years of retirement, virtually has recaptured the world capital of fashion without showing a single style.

In the three weeks since his triumphal return to 5 Rue Royale, which he left in 1950 due to blindness in his left eye, his phone has rung incessantly with requests for dresses from his new collection, as yet unrevealed.

Adoring women wait for him in his hotel lobby, outside his showroom, everywhere. One day last week he found two sitting on the hood of his auto.

"I suppose this sort of thing can be expected, for it is a bit unusual, my coming back after all these years," says Molyneux, 70.

He leans back comfortably in a swivel chair and surveys his office. Everything is in shades of grey. He never wears anything but grey.

CLIMBED TO TOP

"Yes, it was an emotional thing coming back here . . . in the last couple of years I had had offers from London and America . . . but I only wanted to work again in Paris where I had climbed to the top of the tree."

When the captain turned his back on fashion in 1950, he continued to paint landscapes in Jamaica and in his secluded garden in the south of France.

He is as excited about his exhibit of 60 paintings beginning Feb. 5 at the Hammer Galleries in New York City as the new debut of his fashion concepts Feb. 1.

Pilots and Officers Of Collision Ships Blamed For Mishap

QUEBEC (CP)—Officers and pilots of both the Canadian ore carrier Leecliffe Hall and the Greek freighter Apollonia have been found at fault by a federal transport department inquiry into a collision on the St. Lawrence River 65 miles northeast of here last Sept. 5.

Mr. Justice Arthur I. Smith in a judgement rendered Wednesday said he was led to the "inescapable conclusion" that the Leecliffe Hall was too far south in the channel when the ships met in fog east of Ile aux Coudres. He also said both ships were travelling at excessive speeds considering conditions and neither had made effective use of navigational aids.

Mr. Justice Smith ordered the suspension of the certificate of Captain Walter Bowen, 64, of Owen Sound, Ont., for six months dating from Sept. 5, 1964.

Capt. Bowen's ship, the Leecliffe Hall, sank four hours after the collision during efforts to beach it, with a loss of four lives.

Mr. Justice Smith found no fault with efforts to beach the ship nor anything "which could justify the attachment of any blame for loss of life" to Capt. Bowen or any others involved.

Because the Apollonia is registered in Greece and Captain Ioannis Andreou, 51, of Athens, and the other officers of the vessel do not hold Canadian certificates "these cannot be dealt with by this commission."

The licences of both pilots involved were ordered suspended for five months retroactive to Sept. 5. The pilots were Yves Pouliot, 38, of the Apollonia and his uncle J. E. Pouliot, 64, of the Leecliffe Hall.

Both are from the Quebec City area.

Blight on B.C. Industry Blamed on Freight Rates

VICTORIA (CP) — Industry Minister Ralph Loffmark said Tuesday there are clouds on British Columbia's boom horizon and blamed them on the federal government and other provinces.

Speaking during the legislature throne speech debate, Mr. Loffmark blamed the misty economic horizon on a "crazy, crazy freight rate system" and "free trade impediments" placed on the economy by federal governments.

He said freight rates on goods shipped out of B.C. are often two or three times those for goods shipped into the province.

He criticized what he termed "internal restrictions on trade" and inducements made by some provinces to attract industry—including tax holidays and accelerated depreciation.

Elsewhere in his speech he said an announcement could be expected shortly regarding three coal deposits "which compare favorably with the largest deposits in the world."

HAS CHALLENGES

Earlier in the day's sitting, Liberal Leader Ray Perrault challenged the government to set up a royal commission inquiry into financial relations between all levels of government and to prove a throne speech contention.

Mr. Perrault said the premier wanted "a fiscal cake, decorated with dollar bills from Ottawa, while on the other hand he continued to shove crumbs at the municipalities."

Mr. Bennett produced a telegram to answer Mr. Perrault's challenge to prove a throne speech contention that the federal government was dragging its feet regarding a medical health plan.

The wire, read by Attorney-General Robert Bonner, had been sent to Prime Minister Pearson Dec. 2, seeking implementation of a national health scheme in time to have B.C.'s share included in the province's 1965-66 budget.

NO REPLY

Mr. Bennett said outside the House that no reply has been received.

Members from opposite sides of the House called for an inquiry into whether the government could provide an automobile insurance plan.

Frank Calder (NDP — Atlin) said the government should investigate reasons for recent rate increases in private plans "and at the same time make a thorough study of government-sponsored auto insurance."

Cyril Shelford (SC—Omineca) suggested the matter be placed before a legislative committee.

The insurance companies should welcome this change to present their case," he said, "because they are getting criticism from people all over the country."

During his speech, Mr. Shelford turned to medical care and said the best way for the government to meet such expenditures is "to go more and more" into investments, such as the proposed Bank of B.C.

Commonwealth Export Council Formed To Boost British Trade

LONDON (Reuters) — The government announced Wednesday the creation of a special Commonwealth exports council as part of a plan to boost Britain's exports.

This was coupled with moves to broaden the area in which exporters can get finance for their projects at a fixed rate of 5½ per cent.

A board of trade statement announcing these measures said the credit changes, which are being introduced immediately, "constitute a major development in our system of export finance."

Measures announced Wednesday are the second phase of the labor administration's plan to tackle Britain's balance-of-payments problem. The first phase came last Oct. 26 when a number of restrictive moves—including the controversial 15-per-cent levy on industrial imports—were announced.

Government sources described Wednesday's announcement as the more positive phase of the plan to boost exports by British industry.

Commonwealth exports council will be closely linked with the existing British national export council.

Chairman of both bodies will be Sir William McFadzean. Five new committees are being formed to cover exports to Commonwealth countries in addition to the committee for exports to Canada which already is in operation. The new ones will deal with exports to Australia, New Zealand, Commonwealth countries in Africa, in Asia, and in the Caribbean.

Measures to improve finance for exporters include lowering to £50,000 the level at which help can be given by the government's export credits guarantee department. At present credits can only be given for exports of goods worth more than £100,000.

Banks will in the future be able to give credit at a fixed rate of interest of 5½ per cent for exports instead of just giving a short part of credits at this rate and the rest at higher and varying levels.

OTHER MEASURES

Other measures announced included: More government backing for British industry to take part in overseas trade fairs; orders to diplomatic missions overseas to give priority to helping British businessmen find local markets; more help for both inward and outward trade missions; and wider publicity for government help already available to exporters.

The measures are in addition to the £80,000,000 a year rebate plan on indirect taxes paid by exporters, announced last October.

PLAN TO BAN AUTO TARIFFS TO BE HEARD

GENEVA (Reuters)—A Canada - United States plan to banish automobile tariffs at the manufacturers' level will be discussed by members of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade at their March 2 session, a spokesman said Wednesday.

But the spokesman of the 60-country GATT emphasized there was no formal protest by any member-country about the proposed duty elimination on vehicles and original assembly parts.

GATT executive secretary Eric Wyndham of Britain suggested the Canada-U.S. deal be included on the agenda and considered in the light of the rights and obligations of GATT members.

The spokesman denied press reports the agreement took the organization by surprise. He added it was already discussed privately and informally with GATT officials before the end of last year.

Meanwhile, an American spokesman said "we are going to ask for a waiver" of the basic GATT most-favored rule which says concessions granted one member must be accorded all others.

BOOM IN BABY ADOPTIONS IN B.C. REPORTED

VANCOUVER (CP)—The business of giving away babies is booming in British Columbia.

Mrs. Laura Fowler, adoption placement supervisor for the provincial social welfare department, said Tuesday a massive, province-wide, recruitment campaign for adoptive parents begun last March has been a success.

Mrs. Fowler said 850 homes were found between April and December last year, 326 more than during the same period in 1963.

There now were 182 children under the age of one year available for adoption in the province plus many others over one year.

Mrs. Fowler emphasized that the problem of a shortage of adoptive parents is far from solved.

"Every day we get more babies."

Over-Counter Market Beats Out Big Three

By GORDON GRANT

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's largest stock exchanges, Toronto, Montreal and Vancouver, have a competitor more than twice their combined size.

On an average day in 1964 the three did about $16,600,000 worth of business, with Toronto accounting for about $12,000,000 of it.

The competitor, the unlisted market — also known as the over - the - counter market—handled an estimated $35,000,000 in securities trading daily.

The list of over-the-counter issues ranges from the most highly-rated industrials to the lowliest mining speculation as well as all federal, provincial, municipal and corporate bonds and debentures.

On the other hand, stock exchange trading is restricted to a list of securities approved by the exchange governors.

When buying or selling in the unlisted market, orders are handled in much the same way as on the stock exchange except traders execute orders through telephone and teletype networks linking their offices. On a stock exchange, the traders meet on the trading floor to transact business.

The unlisted market offers tremendous scope for investors, speculators and gamblers with prices of stocks ranging from a fraction of a cent a share to more than $100.

Many large insurance company stocks are unlisted, while new mining and oil ventures on their first legs also trade on the unlisted market.

One of the major problems with the unlisted market is the lack of any true accounting of stock price ranges and volumes. However, one broker said, to keep track of all the stocks and bonds trading would be an almost impossible job.

Churchill's Old Regiment To Pay Funeral Homage

LONDON (CP)—Memories of the British Army's last cavalry charge will be recalled by Sir Winston Churchill's state funeral Saturday.

Key duties have been assigned to Churchill's first regiment, the Queen's Royal Irish Hussars, which he joined in 1895.

An army spokesman reported Tuesday that two of Winston's comrades in the Omdurman battle of 1898—said to be the last British full-scale cavalry charge—are expected to see the funeral, on television if not in person.

They were identified only as Capt. Baddeley and Sgt. Freeman, about the same age as Churchill, who died Sunday at 90.

Churchill was 24 at the time of the famous victory over the Dervishes at Omdurman in the Sudan.

Among the duties assigned to the Hussars Saturday is to carry Sir Winston's coffin to the train at Waterloo Station for his last journey to the burial ground at Bladon, near Blenheim Castle.

Officers also took part Wednesday at the lying-in-state ceremonies at Westminister Hall and the regiments insignia will be carried in Saturday's procession.

The ceremonies, which will involve more than 7,000 men of the three services, also will see a contingent from Harrow School's cadet force, to which Churchill belonged in his boyhood days.

MOST HOMES

CRANBROOK (CP) — This city had more Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation loans approved in 1964 than any other Kootenay community. Cranbrook had 54 loans approved for 54 housing units, of 184 loans approved for the Kootenays.

NEW SUSPECT IN DOUBLE MURDER

NEW YORK (AP)—A new suspect was charged Wednesday with the sensational double murder of two Manhatten career girls after a prolonged investigation whoch previously had implicated another man.

Richard (Ricky) Robles, 22, a short, skinny dope addict, was held without bail in the killing of Janice Wylie and Emily Hoffert in their fashionable east side apartment 17 months ago.

Clues gleaned from other narcotics users were said to have figured in his arrest.

Another man, George Whitmore Jr., also 22, a Brooklyn drifter, had been arrested last spring in the case, but he was released Wednesday, with the charge against him in abeyance.

Robles appeared slight and pale as he was brought to criminal court for arraignment. He wore a thigh-length black coat over rumpled khaki trousers.

During the long investigation, he had spent nine months in prison after he turned himself in voluntarily as a parole violator, back on the dope habit.
