Carter Report To Shock Taxpayers

Bighorn Sheep Winning Fight

Major Herd Recovering

CRANBROOK — The impressive Bighorn Sheep of the Rocky Mountain Trench — threatened with extinction less than two years ago — seem to be conquering their fight for survival.

In 1965, a fatal lungworm infestation broke out among the rare breed and since then has wiped out nearly 1,000 of them.

During the winter of 1965-66 it was feared that whole herds of the sheep had been decimated.

Bighorn in the Radium area are still dying of the killer disease.

But the Elko Ridge, Wig Wam River herd in East Kootenay "appear to have recovered," said Regional Game Biologist Raymond Demarchi, Thursday.

"This is one of the major herds in the trench and used to be 300 or more sheep.

"They were knocked down to around 100, but we estimate that with this last year's lamb crop there are about 175.

"The sheep have made a very good recovery and we expected this."

He attributes one of the reasons for the Bighorn's stand to an open season on elk.

"Until two years ago the sheep had heavy competition from elk.

"The sheep were occupying an area where there was no hunting season on elk and deer.

"But in 1965 we opened it up and managed to reduce the elk population and competition for the sheep."

The biologist added: "However, it is not my intention to decimate the elk."

Veteran conservation officer Jack Williams of Fernie has predicted that within five years the Bighorn population in the Elko area will increase to the point where there are more sheep than there have been in the past 70 years."

The Elko herd of sheep are in "excellent" condition, the lamb-ewe ratio ranges from 53 to 57 per cent compared with a four per cent ratio last year, said Mr. Williams.

Last year's winter was the most critical for the sheep.

"We had very poor lamb survival and lost a considerable number of ewes," said biologist Demarchi.

In the Bull River area a herd of 250 Bighorn sheep was whittled down to seven.

The cold winter and poor grazing accelerated the death rate among the sheep.

Mr. Demarchi said, "I think there is more hope. We are losing sheep in the most northerly part of the Trench.

"Sheep are dying off at Radium all this winter, but the disease won't spread any further north."

What started the deadly disease that ripped through British Columbia's Bighorns?

Regional biologist Demarchi says that herds of Bighorns in the Canadian and U.S. Rockies are known to have both organisms responsible for disease.

"One is a lung worm and the other is a bacteria which is dormant.

"But once the sheep have poor range and winter conditions, the bacteria becomes virulent."

First indication of the oncoming scourge was in 1963 when it was noticed that animals in the Wig Wam River herd were coughing and in poor condition.

The results from then on are clear to see.

Peak population for the Bighorns was around 2500 to 3000. The normal figure was between 1500 to 2000.

Today it is estimated there are 750 Bighorn Sheep surviving in the Rocky Mountain Trench in B.C.

And comments Mr. Demarchi: "They face a precarious future."

Daily News Carries New Feature

"It Happened in Canada," a new Canadian feature which in drawn illustrations show authentic happenings in Canada, begins today in the Nelson Daily News. It appears on page 11.

Many hours of extensive research, much of this through the facilities of the University of Western Ontario, London, preceded the art work by Gordon Johnson, for Algora Features. Only authentic records are used.

Highways To Be Fenced

VICTORIA (CP) — Extensive fencing programs will be carried out along both the Trans-Canada Highway and the Southern Trans-Provincial Highway Agriculture Minster Frank Richter told the B.C. legislature Thursday.

The programs, in conjunction with local stockmen's associations, will help eliminate the road hazard posed by grazing cattle wandering along 60-mile-an-hour highways.

Results of Tax Study To Be Released Today

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — The report of a four-year study of tax laws, containing drastic recommendations which may sock many taxpayers, is to be tabled in the Commons late today by finance Minister Sharp.

He has promised that the recommendations of the royal commission, headed by Kenneth Carter, 60, Toronto tax expert, won't be put into effect, however, until after some months of study and plenty of time for objections.

The report results from 99 days of public hearings and years of private study and research into all aspects of tax law — rates and kinds of tax, their impact on individuals, companies, and the economy generally, and administrative procedures and appeal machinery.

While primarily federal, the report is expected to keep provincial and municipal tax problems in perspective.

It is to be tabled in the Commons at 6 p.m. EST.

Details of the six - member commission's recommendations have been kept a closely-guarded secret.

DEAL IN SPECIFICS

But students of tax law who followed the hearings in 1963 and 1964 have said they expect the six - volume, 2,700 - page report to highlight several specific subjects. Among them:

INDIVIDUALS

The progressive schedule of rates now applied to personal taxable income, after deductions, begins at 11 per cent of the first $1,000 and runs up to 80 per cent of incomes exceeding $400,000 a year.

Arguments were put to the commission by various bodies that the lower and upper figures, and the stages of tax increases in between, need revision.

There also were arguments for and against introducing in Canada the system long used in the United States of taxing a man and his wife jointly on their combined incomes, instead of separately.

CORPORATIONS

Study was given to the incidence of present corporation profits taxes, which are 21 per cent on profits up to $35,000 and 50 per cent on profits over $35,000.

NEW DIVIDEND TAX?

In addition, some authorities believed there should be a new way of taxing dividends and profit transfers from one company to another, possibly a 15-per-cent, flat-rate tax on all dividend payments.

SALES

Federal sales taxes now are applied mainly to processed and manufactured goods, except foods and some other essentials, at the manufacturer's level of trade.

Arguments have been made out for extending them to services, ranging from professional fees and household repairs to haircuts and beauty parlor treatments.

INVESTMENT

Some further encouragement for Canadian individuals and Canadian investment corporations to buy more share-ownership of Canadian industry is likely, without impeding or penalizing foreign investment.

Companies with at least 25-per - cent Canadian ownership now enjoy corporation-tax advantages, and individuals now get a credit on their total income tax amounting to 20 per cent of dividends received from taxable Canadian corporations.

CAPITAL GAINS

Successive Canadian governments have long taken a stand against imposing capital gains taxes, believing them to discourage the small investor. However, there has been widespread speculation they will be recommended by the commission.

TAX ONLY BUSINESSES

Tax experts are at odds as to whether a capital gains tax would be more or less complicated to administer then present law. Capital gains on investments now are not counted as taxable income unless they result from transactions conducted regularly as in business trading.

Anglican Church Joins Divorce Change Campaign

OTTAWA (CP)—The Anglican Church of Canada said Thursday that "marriage breakdown" should be substituted for matrimonial offence as the basis for divorce in any new federal legislation.

It thus joined the United Church of Canada and several other large groups in calling for adoption of the marriage breakdown principle.

A brief presented to the parliamentary divorce inquiry by the Canadian House of Bishops said the Anglican church continues to "affirm the lifelong nature" of marriage.

But it said the church legislates only for its own members and claims no right to impose its canonical legislation on others.

And experience within the church had shown that present divorce law "is inadequate, that it is the cause of unreasonable hardship and that in some cases it is even a factor contributing to the hastening of marriage breakdown."

CONSIDERING CHANGE

The brief said the church is considering a change in its own canonical law "which in certain circumstances would permit the remarriage of divorced persons within the church during the lifetime of a former spouse."

The new law would base permission for remarriage not on persons being judged innocent or guilty of matrimonial offences, "but on substantial grounds that a second marriage as far as possible in keeping with the church's view of the nature of marriage now is possible."

The Anglican brief was presented by a committee headed by Rt. Rev. E. S. Reed, bishop of Ottawa, and Rt. Rev. R. K. Maguire, bishop of Montreal.

It was regarded as one of the major presentations to the Commons-Senate committee on divorce, which opened hearings last June and is expected to conclude them March 9, when it will hear spokesmen for the Canadian Catholic Conference.

VARIOUS GROUNDS

At present, adultery is the chief ground for divorce in most Canadian provinces. But cruelty is an additional ground in Nova Scotia and in some provinces a wife can get a divorce on evidence of certain forms of perversion.

Death of Ferrie Brings on Fear

Parliament Thursday

The prime minister's office said Mr. Pearson has postponed a 12-day Caribbean vacation. He still would go to Washington March 8, flying from Ottawa.

Mr. Justice Landreville again refused to give evidence or call witnesses before a committee investigating his alleged misconduct.

Defence Minister Hellyer told the committee studying unification that the navy would be able to keep its rank titles for now.

In the Commons, debate on an immigration bill continued despite a move by MPs caught in Montreal to have postponed until their return.

SPOKANE (AP)—Any legislation authorizing a study of importing or exporting water must protect both the Columbia River Basin and California, a key figure in the U.S. Pacific Northwest-Southwest water controversy said here Thursday.

Woman Silenced, Family Quits Town

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — David W. Ferrie's death has created fear among some people who claimed to have information relating to Ferrie or Lee Harvey Oswald in connection with the assassination of U.S. President John F. Kennedy.

Ferrie, described by District Attorney Jim Garrison as a prime informant in his investigation of the assassination was found dead in bed Wednesday. A preliminary autopsy report attributed death to a brain hemorrhage. A coroner's report Thursday ruled out murder, leaving suicide, natural causes or accidental death as possibilities.

A woman who was about to give The Associated Press details she said related to Oswald's activities in New Orleans was frightened into silence.

LEAVES TOWN

Another person on the periphery of the case, David Lewis, a bus station baggage clerk, dropped out of sight Wednesday night. Neighbors said the Lewis family suddenly had left town. Lewis had told reporters he feared for the safety of his wife and four children because of his knowledge of a possible conspiracy to kill Kennedy.

However, Lewis appeared at the district attorney's office Thursday. Before going into Garrison's office he said:

"I'm not worried about myself, but I am about my family. Maybe there has been too much said about me already, but they know my name and know what I look like and they know where I work, so that's it."

A former private investigator, Lewis claims to have known Oswald, the man named by the Warren commission as Kennedy's assassin.

Garrison called the death an apparent suicide. The coroner said there was nothing to indicate a suicide except an unsigned, undated typewritten note saying death was a "sweet prospect." Tests showed that the note, found on the dining room table, was typed on a typewriter in Ferrie's cluttered apartment.

STILL HOPEFUL

Garrison, who created international headlines by launching his own investigation into the assassination, said Ferrie's death was a temporary setback to his investigation. He said he felt Ferrie was on the brink of producing significant information. Nevertheless, Garrison remained optimistic that his investigation would produce results.

Ferrie told the FBI in 1963 that he knew neither Oswald nor Jack Ruby, the man who killed Oswald at a Dallas police station. The statement is included in the Warren commission files in the National Archives in Washington.

Veterinarian Act Studied

VICTORIA (CP) — A bill to establish a new act respecting veterinary medicine and surgery was introduced in the B. C. legislature Thursday by Agriculture Minister Richter.

The minister said in a corridor interview the bill brings up to date regulations established under provincial statute 55 years ago.

Hellyer Says Landymore Fired for Long Disloyalty

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Hellyer said Thursday night that Rear-Admiral William Landymore was fired for "18 months of consistent disloyalty to the policies of the people he was paid to serve."

The minister conceded under persistent questioning by Michael Forrestall (PC—Halifax) that he did not once talk to the admiral during those 18 months.

Mr. Hellyer said that from November, 1964, Admiral Landymore, then chief of Maritime Command, fully understood the government's policy on unification and was unalterably opposed to it.

He said the admiral returned to Halifax from the Ottawa conference in that month and did "everything he possibly could" to prepare for a confrontation on the issue.

Mr. Forrestall asked whether the minister thought Admiral Landymore should have been court-martialed.

"In the context of the single service concept, no," Mr. Hellyer replied.

WHY NO ACTION?

Mr. Forrestall later asked why the admiral was not court-martialed if he had been disloyal for 18 months.

Mr. Hellyer said that if the issue had been anything less serious than the issue of the single service he would have insisted on a courtmartial. He did not elaborate.

Admiral Landymore still is in the navy and will be until April.

Mr. Forrestall said Mr. Hellyer had made a serious allegation against a great Canadian's record.

Mr. Hellyer said Admiral Landymore had called his naval officers together and said to them something like "Who will support me in my fight against unification?"

Mr. Forrestall said: "I hope you don't live to choke on those words."

Mr. Hellyer said a third of Admiral Landymore's command was air force but that at no time were air force officers made to feel part of the team or been considered as equals to their "naval brethren."

Fulton Claims He's a Winner

OTTAWA (CP)—Davie Fulton said Thursday he's a winner who can unite the divided Conservative party, facing a federal election by next year at the latest.

Showing little sign of his usual reserve, the leadership candidate told a news conference the campaign for the party leadership should lay a base for a new unity.

"I am confident I will be successful in unifying the party," he said.

As to his present and future leadership opponents: "I can beat any and all of them."

The 50-year-old former cabinet minister, on the campaign trail for 10 days, said he's strong everywhere and has an organization in all parts of Canada, including Ontario and Quebec.

He rejected suggestions his failure to lead the provincial Conservative party in British Columbia out of the wilderness a few years ago would count against him in his campaign to succeed John Diefenbaker as national leader.

GREAT VOTE-GETTERS

He noted that Mr. Diefenbaker and Alvin Hamilton, member for Qu'Appelle, made little headway in Saskatchewan provincial politics but emerged as great federal vote-getters.

Noting he had been returned to Parliament seven times, he added:

"I'm going into this campaign as a winner and coming out a winner."

The hour-long session with reporters dispelled a little of Mr. Fulton's image as a cool and cautious intellectual. Asked about it, he termed himself a "fighting intellectual" who will carry his campaign down to the grass roots.

Asked if he could win, even if opposed by a Diefenbaker candidate, Mr. Fulton said "yes." Mr. Fulton said he didn't know whether Mr. Diefenbaker will support a particular candidate, but nobody is in a position to deliver a decisive block of votes at the Sept. 6-9 convention in Toronto.

Mr. Fulton, who quit the Diefenbaker cabinet in 1962 to return to B.C., said he didn't know whether Mr. Diefenbaker will run to keep his job.

Mr. Fulton said he would get his "fair share" of Prairie votes, where Mr. Diefenbaker is strongest, regardless of who enters the race.

He said anybody who intends to run should say so well before the convention. The party should have "clear notice" of this. "There should be no surprises."

Mr. Diefenbaker hasn't said whether he'll run at the convention. Only other major committed candidate to date is George Hees, an old Fulton cabinet mate, who declared last week.

Mr. Fulton, MP for Kamloops, said he believes he has a contribution to make to Canada as prime minister.

He predicted that once the leadership strife is settled, the party will regain the popular support it has lost as shown by public opinion polls.

"I'm a small-c and large-C Conservative," Mr. Fulton said. "I will lead this party along Conservative lines."

Amendment To Drop Loan Interest Ceiling

OTTAWA (CP)—A parliamentary committee amended the Bank Act Thursday with a formula that could knock the statutory interest ceiling off bank lending as early as January, 1968.

The amendment before the Commons finance committee was proposed by Conservative Ken More (Regina) with the blessing of Finance Minister Sharp and support of Liberal MPs, guaranteeing later approval in the Commons.

Only Colin Cameron (NDP—Nanaimo - Cowichan - The Islands) opposed the motion.

The formula would have the effect of establishing a ceiling of 7¼ per cent on loans by chartered banks when the new Bank Act comes into effect April 1.

This would be retained for the rest of 1967.

But it could vanish in January, 1968, if the average yield on short-term government securities dips to five per cent for any three-month period in 1967.

With the release of the ceiling, the banks would for the first time be free to charge rates determined in open competition, according to the supply of credit and the demand by borrowers.

The banks now are held to a six-per-cent ceiling and they have had to levy a variety of service charges in order to suit their loans to the varying credit risks. The charges have brought the actual rate as high as 11 per cent.

The intention of the government's own formula in the act was to adjust the ceiling, allowing the banks increasing freedom as they moved toward the final release of the ceiling.

The trigger point proposed by the government has been an average yield on government securities of 4½ per cent. But it has been the advice of some economists that this point may never be reached during the 10-year life of the legislation.

COTTONWOOD RECREATION COMPLEX PLANNED

Cottonwood Falls, scenic Nelson landmark, site of the first power plant in British Columbia, is slated for re-grooming.

Recreation and Parks director Charles Bell has undertaken the project involving a complete face-lifting for park, designed to preserve nature, and in keeping with its historic origin.

Underwater floodlighting for the falls, barbecue pits, picnic sites, a trailer park, indoor rifle range and meeting hall are tentatively embodied in recreation and parks plans to be initiated in the next few years.

Planned also, is a complete park grooming — clearing away of underbrush, installation of improved footpaths, clearing of loose rock around the falls and building of guard rails where required.

Floodlights will be of varying colors. Mr. Bell suggested the unused cement fisheries reservoirs be used, possibly as barbecue pits.

EASY ACCESS

A trailer park is scheduled possibly for both sides of Cottonwood Creek, with easy access from the Taghum highway, when completed two or three years hence.

Nelson Rod and Gun Club hopes to take over the large centrally located fisheries building for use as an indoor rifle range.

The forward part of the building could be used as a local meeting hall for boys groups.

A footbridge will be installed over Cottonwood Creek below the falls.

Houses, adjacent to the park land, and near the fisheries buildings, have been annexed by the Department of Highways, prelude to Nelson-Taghum highway development. Plans call for the road to encircle the park site — edging its perimeter to the south and east. Mr. Bell has expressed concern as to whether the highway shoulder will encroach on park land.

In keeping with park history, Mr. Bell adamantly advocates the hydro wheel, now resting in Lakeside Park, be moved to Falls Park.

Not only was Cottonwood Falls hydro plant the first such plant in B.C., but it is further believed to have been the first such plant west of Ontario.

The plant commenced operation Feb. 1, 1896, construction beginning four years previous.

Steam driven electric power provided the first electric lighting in Nelson in 1894. Local merchant R. E. Lemon was the first store owner here to install electricity.

Flood waters of the falls area were considered a potential death trap each spring. Luck carried three men to safety near the brink of the falls on separate occasions in those early years.

Hugh Nixon, a city worker, was dislodging driftwood and logs when he lost balance and was swept towards the falls edge. The man became lodged in a jam near the edge so firmly that a fellow worker was needed to pull him from the entanglement.

The next spring, city engineer A. L. McCulloch lost his balance in the same fatal place, but was able to clutch a passing branch, and struggle to shore.

Chamber Asks Gov't to Finance Colleges

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE meeting yesterday saw installation of Ross Mark, right, as first vice-president, by Mayor Louis Maglio, left. In centre is Jack Duckworth, production superintendent at Kootenay Forest Products' new plywood plant now under construction, who was guest speaker. Mr. Mark was unable to attend the recent Chamber installation night ceremonies.

The provincial government is asked to assume the cost of financing Selkirk College and other regional colleges in a resolution passed by the Nelson Chamber of Commerce at its meeting Thursday.

Drafted by the resolutions committee under R. E. Nelson, president, it asked that the college financing load be removed fro mthe shoulders of municipal ratepayers to ease the strain on local taxpayers.

The meeting also endorsed a resolution calling for pollution control measures for air, water and soil in British Columbia. Presented by committee chairman Dr. W. C. Murphy, it will be taken to the annual meeting of the Kootenay-Boundary Chambers of Commerce at Grand Forks next month.

A proposal that 80 per cent of dues collected from hotels, motels, service stations, gasoline representatives, etc., be placed in the matching grants program of the Kootenay-Boundary region was also supported.

Decision followed a request for guidance of the Chamber by Mr. Nelson, who said the proposal would be raised at Grand Forks. Under the matching grants program, the provincial government provides 60 per cent of the cost of regional tourist promotion.

Mr. Nelson explained that regional district boards had turned down requests of the various Chambers that funds be made available by the boards.

ASKS PROGRESS

Discussing highways, Mr. Nelson reported that a letter had been sent to Highways Minister Gaglardi asking what progress had been made by the highways department on a 1966 brief proposing highway extension from Duncan Dam through Stoney Creek to Highway No. 1 in Rogers Pass.

Decision to write the letter had been made at a meeting of the roads and bridges committee under chairman Sam Homen.

The extension would give this area a North-South access to the Trans-Canada Highway.

During other highways discussion, it was reported the Chamber had submitted no resolution to the coming Grand Forks meeting because the regional demands made available to the Kootenay-Boundary body and the B.C. Chamber last year were unchanged.

He recalled that the Kootenay-Boundary Chambers had established as priority roads the North-South Arrow Lakes and Duncan Lake routes; and the east-west Kinnaird-Salmo link. Resolutions must be on a regional basis at the Kootenay and provincial chamber meetings.

COMMITTEES BUSY

Committee reports were given by several chairmen. Plans to increase membership were described by V. C. Owen. A proposed incentive system which had boosted membership in other district chambers is to be studied.

Donald Champion said a busy program was being prepared by the industrial development committee and called for volunteers to assist.

Mr. Nelson reported that the queen contest committee under Fred Merrimen ,third vice-president, the Nelson float committee under Fire Chief Elwyn Owens, and the chamber manager committee headed by himself were well along in their programs.

Installed as first vice-president by Mayor Louis Maglio, was Ross Mark, who had been unable to attend the recent installation night.

Invitation to speak at an executive meeting will be offered an L. V. Rogers High School student. This was decided when a letter from Earl Jorgenson, LVR counsellor, asked if the Chamber would like to hear a student speaker during Education Week. Next general meeting will not be held until March 30.

Proposal that the Chamber look into the possibility of obtaining a veterinarian for small animals in Nelson would be discussed, Mrs. Het Kingsley was promised.

More than 40 people attended the meeting, one of the largest meetings for some time. A guest was Norman Hinton of Trail, Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation inspector appraiser.

Nelsonite Seeks To Aid Collegians

Nelson parents, eight so far, have taken up the cause, in favor of student transportation from Nelson to Selkirk College.

Head of the group, Mrs. Gordon L. Sutherland said Thursday, that a number of Nelson students have quit the college year because of the transportation problem.

"Nelson, tax-wise, is supporting Selkirk College, and as such, many of the Nelson students will probably want to take advantage of this for at least their first year of university, (not to mention the many advanced courses offered.)"

"The School Board, for various reasons, is unable to subsidize the running of a bus which, when it was in operation, carried only something like 15 students. The rest were getting to the college by car-pools, but I think this was largely due to the schedule then in operation at the college. Students who had a morning class only or one in the afternoon and another in the evening, were apt to take their own car. But I understand that this has all been solved and that a normal schedule has been adapted.

"I am told that a bus could be put back on immediately for a guarantee of $25 per day. This would require about 25 students, making daily use of the service.

"I am wondering if there are not more who are concerned, not only with this year, but when choosing the College which their children will be attending in future."

School board rejected their application for aid. One of the arguments put forth was that it would have set a precedent, opening the door to other groups or private individuals for such help from the board.

Central PTA Cancels Meet

Open House was to have been held at Central School Parent-Teacher Association meeting, scheduled for Wednesday night. The executive, however, felt that due to illness of some members, there might not be too good an attendance so they decided to delay the meeting to a later date.

Drama Festival Set for City

More than 100 students from 10 interior schools will perform in the Secondary Schools Drama Festival in Nelson March 1, 2 and 3.

Mrs. Betty Keller, chairman, said Wednesday that 17 plays will be staged in the three days of productions.

Students from Oliver and Osoyoos in the Okanagan, Grand Forks, Trail, Fruitvale, Argenta and Creston will be billetted by Nelson students.

Adjudicator will be Robert Ross of Vancouver Metro Theatre.

Education television equipment now on trial in the schools will be put to practical use when the performers will see themselves in action from video tapes taken during the plays.

The video showings will be at a banquet to be held March 4, after a day of workshops.

There will be an awards ceremony at the banquet also.

The students will have several choices of subjects at the workshops.

In the morning a two hour dance session will be conducted by Mrs. E. G. Peter, dance school instructress, while Felix Mueller, adult education director, will offer directing techniques.

In the afternoon, fencing techniques for fight scenes will be demonstrated by R. N. Bradshaw and Mrs. David Pearce will show character makeup.

NEW PICTURE of missing Nelson boy, Billy Koozhetoff, is being distributed by Nelson city police as a means of better identification for persons who might have seen a boy fitting his description. The boy has been missing from his Nelson home since Dec. 3. Police said letters from the boy indicated he might be in Chilliwack or the Okanagan area.

MONTREAL (CP)— The Montreal Catholic school commission and its 9,000 Roman Catholic teachers signed an agreement Thursday removing the possibility of a new walkout today.

Farmer Paid Less Though Milk Up

The cost of milk to the consumer rose at the beginning of the year, but the farmer is getting paid less for his milk than before the increase.

S. Pisacreta, secretary of the Kootenay Dairyman's Association, said that the reason for the price drop was because the production of milk had risen.

The Milk Board of British Columbia sets the price the farmer gets paid for his milk.

And because there was a greater surplus of milk in January, the overall price for milk was lower to local farmers.

The farmer's price for each 100 pounds of milk produced in January was 20 cents lower than in the previous month, due to the surplus to their quota.

Mr. Pisacreta said that there was no resentment felt by the farmers that their price was down while the price was up to the consumer.

He thought that packaging, processing and wages all contributed to push up the milk price for the consumer.

EXPERIMENT EXPLOSION

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two boys received minor injuries in an explosion Wednesday which occurred as they conducted a chemistry experiment in the basement of one of their homes. Police said Brett Walker, 13, and Steve Eckersley, 13, were showered with broken glass when they attempted to mix potassium nitrate and red phosphorus in a beaker.

Coal Strike Could Hit Markets

FERNIE — Fears were expressed Thursday night that if the strike of 500 coal miners continues much longer, Crows Nest Industries, their employers, could lose valuable customers.

With the strike in its fourth day, there was still no sign of a settlement in sight.

The strike, over a contract renewal dispute, has paralyzed Crows Nest Industries' entire coal mining operations.

George Barnes, industrial relations officer of the company, told the Daily News, Thursday:

"There is a fear every day that if this strike goes on, it could affect our relations with our customers.

"They have had to seek sources elsewhere."

LONG HARD LOOK

Mr. Barnes added that where new supplies result in extra cost, the affected companies "take a long hard look" at alternative producers of energy, such as natural gas or oil.

"This isn't going to help our market," he commented.

Wednesday, Cominco announced that it may have to shut down its iron and steel operation at Kimberley if the miners' strike continues.

The Kimberley iron furnaces use about 130 tons of coke and coal materials a day from the Michel mines of Crows Nest Industries.

Cominco officials added that the coke and coke breeze stock on hand, along with coal and slack coal it may get from Canmore, Alta., should enable continued operation of the Kimberley iron plant for 15 to 16 days.

Cominco's Trail smelter would not be affected for some time as the company has substantial stocks of coke on hand there, the company stated.

Cominco is one of Crows Nest Industries principal users of coal and coke products, but the company has customers throughout Canada and the U.S.

In deciding to strike, Saturday, union members rejected a 40-cent-an-hour wage increase in a two-year period, which within 10 months would give every miner at least $938 a year more than the present rate.

But by 821 votes to 83, the miners turned down the last minute offer. They are demanding a 40 cent an hour increase in a one year contract.

In the original offer, a conciliation board award, Crows Nest Industries set the wage increase at 32 cents an hour over two years.

Council Charges Assessment Basis

Improvements Now 50 PC, Land Set at 100 Per Cent

CRANBROOK — Decision was made by city council this week to alter basis of the 1967 city tax mill structure, to be based on full assessment of land, and 50 per cent of improvements assessment.

In 1966, council decision altered the structure basis to reduce improvements assessment levy basis from 75 to 30 per cent, continuing full land assessment. This failed to attract much notice until tax bills were issued when owners of undeveloped land and particularly commercial sites organized protest in the ratepayer association.

The mill rate for 1967 will not be struck until mid - April, and must raise the amount required for city general purposes and debt charges, plus the rate struck for school purposes which is outside city jurisdiction.

However, on the basis of the rate estimated to cover 1967 requirements, three samples have been worked out by city treasurer Bland Hoover, comparing tax bills on the 1965 basis of three-fourths improvements, 1966 30 per cent of improvements and the 1967 half improvements assessment, all with full land assessment.

In residential category the tax on a property with $1050 land and $4900 improvements assessment would have been $128.05 in 1965, $116.10 in 1966, and $123 the current year.

In commercial classification in business area a store with $4200 land assessment and $16,600 improvements assessment would have been $451.23 in 1965, $422.25 in 1966 and $439.28 the current year.

In undeveloped land area with land assessment $12,500 and improvements assessment $16,600 the tax would have been $598.93 on the 1965 basis, $752.83 on the 1966 basis, and $664.18 on the current year basis.

Area Councils Plan Meeting

CRANBROOK — Cranbrook city council has invited councils of three sister municipalities, Kimberley, Marysville and Chapman Camp to meet in Cranbrook Monday to discuss operation of the new $2.5 million East Kootenay airport. The Department of Transport expects to have it operating on an all-weather any-aircraft basis this fall. All four municipalities are within 13 miles range.

Cranbrook's pledged responsibility so far is limited to $15,000 toward terminal building and utilities arrangements temporarily to standard and the city had agreed to operate the airport which replaces its municipal airport just outside city limits as major district terminal. This was the basis for the decision to name the new airport Cranbrook.

Terms on which any or all the three invited municipalities might care to participate in the airport operation or any capital costs, and final designation of the terminal will be discussed at the joint meeting here.

Previously a delegation has travelled from Grand Forks to Victoria but their results were moderate. The meeting is to take place Monday and Tuesday.

B.C. Children Train For Unique Contest

From Atlin to Osoyoos British Columbia school children are in training for a unique athletic competition in which they may test their own ability against established standards of performance in three compulsory and one optional sports event.

The competition is known as the Centennial Athletic Awards Programme and is sponsored by the Federal Centennial Commission in cooperation with Provincial Centennial Committees and Departments of Education. Every Canadian school boy and girl, in every school which chooses to participate, will be given the opportunity to do a 300-yard run, a standing broad jump and one minute of speed sit-ups, and will choose one additional event from swimming, skating or cross-country running.

"This is a wonderful programme," said the Honourable L. R. Peterson, Minister of Education. "It is designed to encourage all our young people to strive for excellence in physical fitness too, and the Department of Education endorses it heartily."

Standards of performance have been set by the Canadian Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation. Gold, silver or bronze Centennial crests, depending on achievement, will be awarded to those who meet the standards ,and a red crest for participation.

The standards have been set for age groups and sex. For example, a 12-year-old boy would earn a gold crest for a standing broad jump of six feet, one inch; silver for five feet eight inches and bronze for five feet five inches. A 12-year-old girl would get a gold crest for only five feet 10 inches, but an 18-year-old boy would have to jump seven feet 11 inches.

Competition in the selected optional event varies by age. The cross-country run is 440 yards for six-year olds and goes up to a full mile for older age groups. The skating test varies from 92 to 368 yards and the swimming test from 25 to 100 yards.

BUENOS AIRES, (Reuters)— Trinidad and Tobago Friday became the first new member of the Organization of American States since it was founded in 1948. A special meeting here on the OAS council admitted by acclamation the Caribbean island nation as the 21st member—the first from the Commonwealth.

THE "BEST OF BARKERVILLE" troupe is on its way to town, bringing with it songs, dances, patter and fun presented with old-time fervor. The fast-paced show which first gained fame at the Theatre Royal in the restored Cariboo ghost town of Barkerville, is on tour under the sponsorship of the British Columbia Centennial Committee and local Centennial Committees. The ten talented performers who make up the scintillating cast of this rambunctious revue will appear at Kimberley, on Thursday and Friday, March 2 and 3 at Nelson March 8 and 9, in Trail, March 10 and 11, and in Castlegar March 13.

Higher Than Expected W. Kootenay Head Says

The conciliation board award to West Kootenay Power and Light workers, which their union has recommended to be turned down, is also causing the company concern.

W. K. Gwyer, President of West Kootenay Power, commented after the conciliation award had been published:

"I am very concerned by the size of the recommended award of the Conciliation Board.

"It is certainly much higher than expected and much higher than any other award of which we are aware.

"At this time, the Company has not decided whether it will accept or turn down the proposals. Further study will have to be done before a decision is made."

Mr. Gwyer added: "This award would be an extremely high pay increase of 17.9 per cent for the Company to absorb along with the recommended increase of one paid holiday."

The West Kootenay Power President stated that an example of the "magnitude" of the award was that retroactive pay alone would average $150.

He said that the three part award, amounted to a "62 cents" hourly increase over the two years for a lineman.

"By May 1, 1968, a first class helper, being the practical lowest rate would be receiving $3.04 per hour.

"An operator at South Slocan would be receiving $4.70 per hour, an increase of 71 cents over the two year period."

But Tuesday night, the Executive Board and bargaining committee of the IBEW's local, turned down the conciliation award, because of "failure to reach parity with B.C. Hydro crews on wages, hours of work, statutory holidays, proper apprenticeship training, vacations, overtime rates and seniority."

The Executive's recommendation now has to be ratified by the membership.

If the union Power and Light workers do decide to reject the conciliation award, a strike vote will probably be taken.

Cranbrook city council has named Mayor George Hadded its director on the RDEK board, to be sworn into office Saturday at its February meeting, first of its 1967 meeting schedule.

Another Inadequate Patch

Canadian governments, putting their federal-provincial rivalries behind them for once, have been unusually united in their approach to the consumer credit jungle that enmeshes so many Canadians. They have agreed that the approach must be uniform throughout Canada. An amendment to the federal Bank Act will require the disclosure of bank interest rates, similar legislation for provincial institutions came into effect in Nova Scotia on January 15, Ontario, Manitoba and Alberta have it in the works, and the other six provinces plan to follow.

The final report of the Commons-Senate committee on consumer credit and prices, tabled Wednesday in the House, should help them to decide where action is needed next.

The committee recommends that virtually all credit grantors be required to state the full rate of interest and carrying charges in simple annual interest and dollar terms. The credit grantors claim that this would be difficult if not impossible. They will find it possible as soon as it becomes the law. The various governments should speedily make it the law.

The committee would extend the Small Loans Act, which limits the interest on loans up to $1500, to cover loans up to $5000, a move also recommended by the Porter Royal Commission on Banking and Finance. That, too, is sound, as is the committee's further recommendation that a fixed upper limit on annual interest rates be considered immediately. The committee also had some useful suggestions for crimping the activities of car dealers, door-to-door salesmen and collection agencies.

Its most revolutionary proposal, however, is its loan scheme for families earning $4000 or less a year. The loans would have a maximum of $1500, be guaranteed by the government and be repayable over a long period at interest no more than 1 per cent above the prime bank rates — at present 5½ to 6 per cent. The government is understood to be considering the recommendation favorably.

On the face of it, it does sound reasonable and humane, for if there is one thing that various federal and provincial investigations have proved it is that those who need most, earn the least and have little collateral are subjected to the highest interest rates, that often they become hopelessly snarled in debt and in trying to pay it must deprive themselves of essentials. It would also be a relatively easy system to put into operation — for the government that is — because the banks would do the work and no great outlay of public funds would be required.

Yet it is really no more than another patch to our incredibly patched welfare quilt that still does not keep the poor warm. How many other patches have we applied? Family allowances, mothers' allowance, unemployment insurance, old-age pensions, to mention a few of hundreds. All unco-ordinated, all insufficient to meet the need they were designed to meet, all leaving gaps through which individuals may fall into direct want; and all multiplying the unproductive costs of administration.

The new loan program would enable some of the poor to consolidate some of their debts, to get some of the things they need to live and work; others it would only plunge deeper into the debt morass; still others it would not help at all.

The Canadian difficulty is that no consistent philosophy has shaped our welfare programs. If we notice a need and are bugged about it sufficiently, we meet it — half way. We have never decided what and how much of it our society owes to all its citizens, and set out determinedly to provide it. Yet the cruel and holey patchwork may well cost as much as economic justice would.

What we need is a thorough investigaton of need — not under the headings of the old, the blind, the deserted, the sick, but under the heading of human. How much does a human being in Canada need to live decently, how many do not now have that much, can we put a floor instead of a grid under all our people, can we add an escalator that would handle special need? It is possible that a seed of the solution exists in the guaranteed annual income plan for the aged, which does not guarantee enough to enough people and is insufficiently flexible, but is, perhaps, a beginning.

The investigation would be long and should be thorough and could lead to massive change; but who can deny the necessity?

Constitution Ideas

Numerous Washington citizens have been given the stimulus in recent weeks to look into the idea of state constitutional reform or revision.

Until Dan Evans became governor a little more than two years ago the idea had illtle more than cursory attention, and then chiefly from students of political science.

He had recommended to the 1965 legislature the passage of a resolution asking for a statewide vote on the calling of a constitutional convention. The resolution was approved in the House but was shelved in the Senate. Instead, the legislature authorized a study of the revision question by a 12-member Constitutional Advisory Council.

This year, after Gov. Evans renewed his request and made associated recommendations, Attorney General John J. O'Connell produced an A-B-C plan for a speedup in the calling and the conduct of a constitutional convention. The governor and the attorney general share numerous ideas on the need for a revision.

Separately, several lawmakers in Olympia have come up with varying plans which visualize the same general result. Rep. Tom Copeland of Walla Walla has introduced new ideas, emphasizing a "fast, easy method" of securing revision under the strict terms allowed by the present Constitution.

Two Veteran state senators, Earnest Lennart and John McCutcheon from the west side of the state, have injected another new note in the discussions. They would like to see the people be authorized to propose amendments by the initiative process. — Spokesman Review

Ottawa Offbeat

By RICHARD JACKSON
Nelson Daily News Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA—Will success spoil Joe Greene?

Will his explorations through the big, wide wonderful mink-and-orchid world of international diplomacy turn the folksy agriculture minister's humble head?

And what's going to happen to the self-proclaimed "Rustic from Renfrew" who so convincingly portrays the role of the "poor but honest politician," after he's discovered that Bloody Marys, Bullshots and Red Snappers, and not coffee, strong and black, is the regular breakfast eye-opener for the tails-and-tiara set?

For "Our Boy Joe" has been getting around of late, jet-setting it hither and yon in those high-flying altitudes of global statecraft where the working diplomatic man goes to his elegantly velvet-draped office in striped pants and cutaway.

Joe-Joe's been down to the UN's Tower of Babel in New York, sat around the green-baize conference tables of Washington, red-carpeted it into the palaces of power in Buenos Aires, sashayed up the Champs and over to the Quai D'Orsay in Paree, and now he's just fresh in from West Berlin.

But Junketing Joe, as they're beginning to call him, is merely keeping in aerial lock step with all our other perambulating politicians whose slogan has become "run for Parliament and see the world."

BEEN EVERYWHERE

It's got so they travel by delegation to Paris, to Washington, to London. You name it — like that ever-remembered wartime world traveller, Kilroy — they have likely been there.

Whole Commons committees are flying out all across the land.

And it's only a matter of time before they'll be going around the world like so many living satellites.

You can tell these days who's in the Parliamentary doghouse. It's the corporal's guard of MPs who remain in the Commons to vote — only about half of them — even when the issue is so basic and vital as armed forces unification, the up-tax mini-budget, or the transportation bill modernizing and streamlining the nation's railway network.

Junkets to faraway places are rewards, and those who don't get to go anywhere except into their green leather chairs behind their shared Commons desks obviously have been naughty.

But what's all this got to do with "Our Boy Joe" who came down from the rural reaches of Renfrew and found the front-bench to be the magic-carpet-to-everywhere?

Just this — Joe's displaying a diplomatic touch not only new but hitherto positively undreamed of in the rarefied never-never world of the chancelleries.

Over in the East Block, the dandified habitues of external affairs are petrified with horror.

It's not that they consider Joe something of a bull in the diplomatic china-shop — he's the whole stampeding herd of beef, fresh off the Renfrew range.

Joe sez he went traipsin' off to Europe on account of the prime minister told him he'd better get to heck over there and see what they're cooking up in the Common Market to do to Canadian farm exports.

The European agriculture ministers were gathering around the cracker barrel in West Berlin, so it was off to the Kurfurstendam for Joe the Diplomat-in-Training.

When he got back, of course, he called a press conference.

How'd things go?, they asked Joe.

Great, reported Joe.

"They talk my language even if I can't speak German or French or Dutch and the rest.

"Got to know 'em real well.

"And just think what that'll mean for us, now that I can pick up the phone and say 'Hello there, Hermann, what in hell did you all do over there this morning?' and find out first hand what they're up to with the Common Market."

Could he really do that, asked one of the reporters, a naive type not fully aware of Joe's particular talents, and wasn't that sort of approach perhaps a bit direct?

"Why sure enough," allowed our just-home-folks agriculture minister, "why fiddle about?"

Yeah, sure, think for a moment — why fiddle about?

Will success spoil Our Joe?

Will the gay, giddy world of cocktail diplomacy turn his down-on-the-farm head?

How'n tarnation can you spoil a homespun Ottawa Valley lad who any of these days may make his contribution to global peace and tranquility by calling Peking and drawling:

"Hi-ya, Mao — whadaya know?"

Russian Defeat–Glorious Triumph

By JOHN BEST

BORODINO, U.S.S.R. (CP) The Russian army retreated 80 miles after its collision with Napoleon here Sept. 7, 1812, yet the Russians see the titanic one-day struggle as a glorious triumph.

Without going quite that far, it can be said that Borodino gave Napoleon his first taste of Waterloo. It was a victory in the sense that it made inevitable the ultimate destruction of his Grande Armee.

This peaceful farm community, in and around which the battle was fought, lies 70 miles west of Moscow. The terrain is rolling and open. Here and there are patches of forest.

Spotted around the field are some 50 monuments to the memory of Russian units and soldiers who fought here. They testify to the hallowed place the heroes of Borodino hold in the hearts of Russians.

For sheer, concentrated carnage there has seldom been a battle to match Borodino. Tolstoy, in his epic novel War and Peace, tells of a horseback ride Napoleon made along his lines toward the end of the day:

"In the slowly dissipating gunpowder smoke that spread all over this terrain . . . in the pools of blood, lay horses and men, singly and in heaps. Such a horror, such a collection of slaughtered men, neither Napoleon nor any of his generals had ever seen in so small a place."

RETREATS FROM MOSCOW

Russian guides say the French suffered 58,000 casualties in the battle out of a strength of 135,000 while the Russian army lost 38,000 of 120,000.

Western historians say, however, the Russians lost more than the French, both in numbers and in proportion to overall strength. And even Tolstoy wrote that Field Marshal Mikhail Kutuzov lost fully half his force while the French lost a quarter.

Napoleon staggered on to Moscow while Kutuzov's army fell back 10 miles or so beyond the city. However, the French emperor didn't even attempt to hold Moscow in the face of oncoming winter. After five weeks he began his disastrous retreat during which almost his entire 500,000-man army perished.

For the first time Napoleon had come up against an army that withstood his heaviest blows. Two thousand miles from home, swallowed up in a strange land, his communications overextended, the chubby Corsican must have begun to have premonitions of doom.

Tolstoy, who lived on the battlefield for several months while doing research for War and Peace in the 1860s, granted the Russians no more than a "moral victory" on the day's activities at Borodino.

But although he was the acknowledged expert of his time on the battle, the years have turned Borodino into a Russian victory, pure and simple, in the eyes of this nation.

STIRS EMOTION

"It was not a rout of the French army but it was a defeat,' says' a guide at the Borodino historical museum.

Brochures on public sale refer to "glorious heroic deeds of Russian warriors who defeated a ferocious enemy in the battle of Borodino," and laud "the heroes who defeated the mighty army of Napoleon and saved their motherland from foreign slavery."

The very name of this sleepy hamlet exercises an emotional spell over the Russian.

During the Second World War, when every effort was being made to arouse his patriotism, War and Peace was turned into an opera with music by Prokofiev and Borodino forms a prominent part of the action.

Watching and listening to it, Russian spines tingle with pride and hearts beat faster.

Communist leaders recognize its effectiveness as a means of stirring nationalistic sentiment in times of stress and they have not tried to rewrite or otherwise tamper with the story.

The mystique of Borodino is far more captivating to the average Russian even than the heroic wartime defence of Stalingrad. But that may be because Stalingrad is still too recent, and the suffering still too fresh in memory, to be romanticized. And in any case Stalingrad has not found its Tolstoy.

Words of Life

The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom: and the knowledge of the holy is understanding. — Proverbs 9:10.

Indians Eyeing Red Guards

By RAM SUNDAR
Canadian Press Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP) — The Red Guard movement has deepened the average Indian's distrust of China, say knowledgeable observers here.

Reports from Burma, Ceylon, Nepal and other neighboring countries also suggest that the violent struggle across the Himalayas has undermined the Chinese image.

A correspondent writing from Katmandu, capital of Nepal, said in a dispatch to his newspaper in Calcutta that "people here are wondering how Chinese youths can behave so cruelly to their own parents." He was referring to the reported public denunciation of Liu Shao-chi by his son and daughter.

Press reports appearing here of public executions and of mutilations inflicted on "revisionists" have shocked the average Indian, who attaches great sanctity to legal procedures and democratic concepts.

Many Indians seem to be particularly horrified by the Maoist campaign to root out the remnants of family solidarity. The general consensus is that the attempt will fail.

DOOMED TO FAIL

A political science professor, A. K. Verma, said: "The Maoist attempt to destroy family ties altogether cannot succeed for the simple reason that 2,000-year-old traditions do not yield to the big stick that easily."

Candidates for the current Indian election made good political capital out of the reports from China. Prime Minister Indira Gandhi told an election meeting that "surely, we do not want such bad things to happen here."

Railway Minister Sadashiv Patil was more specific. He said the Red Guard movement "reveals the true face of communism — ruthless, remorseless and unprincipled."

The pro - Russian wing of the Indian Communist party was evidently anxious to assure voters that it has little sympathy with the Maoist cultural revolution. Its leader, Shripad Dange, told a workers' rally in Bombay that the Red Guards "are indulging in uncivilized behavior."

The Indian Communist party's pro - Peking wing, regarded as the more powerful of the two factions, has refused to condemn the Red Guards movement.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS
Feb. 24, 1967 . . .

Louis XIV of France took over New France from the "Company of 100" which had been trading and colonising Canada 304 years ago today — in 1663 — after the company's governor, Dubois Davaugour, had made himself thoroughly unpopular. The settlements were in no way a success, at that date, and only Dollard d'Ormeaux's gallant fighting had saved Montreal from being wiped out by Indians. Under royal control, the colony could raise more taxes and pay more soldiers, even though it could not compete for long with the far larger British settlements to the south.

1785—John Adams went to England as the first U.S. minister.

1945 — Premier Ahmed Maher of Egypt was assassinated in parliament after declaring war on the Axis.

First World War

Fifty years ago today — in 1917 — Gen. Sir Stanley Maude's Mesopotamian army captured Kut - el - Amara; the Turks abandoned Sanna-i-yat and lost 1,700 prisoners and much equipment; the British in France occupied Petit Miraumont on the Ancre.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1942—German Ambassador Franz von Papen escaped uninjured when a bomb exploded in the capital of neutral Turkey; the 200-ton yacht Struma sank in the Bosporus with all hands after being forbidden to land 769 Jewish refugees in Turkey or Palestine.

Friendship Street

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP) — The Chinese Embassy is located on a street called Friendship, a name that once symbolized relations between China and the Soviet Union but now seems a mocking anachromism.

Tucked well back in the Lenin Hills which dominate Moscow's south side, it is the biggest embassy in the city, with a huge chancery flanked by two other big buildings used at least in part for living quarters.

Outside, spaced at intervals around the embassy compound, stand Soviet policemen such as are posted at all embassies in Moscow. Along the sidewalk, until a few days ago, were glassed-in displays of Chinese propaganda photographs.

Lately the embassy on Friendship has been the scene of two extraordinary assemblies. Twice the Chinese invited foreign correspondents to press conferences.

The first time they accused Soviet policemen of manhandling Chinese students engaged in a peaceful demonstration in Red Square. The next time they told reporters Soviet authorities had organized a "fascist assault" on embassy property to remove several picture display cases, one of which contained photos of the Red Square scuffle.

CALLED CRIMINALS

Beneath a bust of Mao Tse-tung, with sayings of the Chinese leader spread in gold Chinese lettering behind it, a group of embassy officials denounced the "criminal activities" of Soviet police soldiers and "sleuths."

Such phrases as "fascist banditry" echoed through the elegant assembly hall. The Chinese also took a few swipes at the Kremlin leadership, describing it as a "revisionist clique" acting in collusion with American "imperialism."

The Red Square clash was only one of a series of collisions between Soviet police and Chinese students here during the last two years.

"The blood of Chinese students flowed not for the first time in the streets of Moscow," an embassy official declared solemnly.

Last fall the remaining Chinese students studying in the Soviet Union were expelled after Peking sent home Russian and East European students studying in China.

Recently, hundreds of other Chinese students have been stopping in Moscow en route home from Western countries to take part in the cultura revolution. Each group goes through the same ritual demonstrations and Soviet police never seem to know how to deal with them.

SAY WOUNDS FAKED

Some observers believe the students have been used as part of a plan to provoke the U.S.S.R. into severing diplomatic relations. The continuing demonstrations in front of the Soviet Embassy in Peking also fit this pattern.

So far the Russians have refused to rise to the bait but many here wonder how long they will continue to turn the other cheek.

The Chinese version of the latest incident here is that students were beaten with clubs and kicked when they gathered in Red Square to sing The Internationale, read from the works of Chairman Mao and place wreaths at the tombs of Lenin and Stalin.

They claimed that 30 of the 60 students taking part were injured, four seriously.

The Russians replied that the Chinese provoked the altercation and that, anyway, they faked most of the injuries.

At one point in the press conference, a Chinese student with a bruise under his left eye and another on his chin told how Soviet police snatched books of Mao's sayings—"for us, the dearest of all books"—from the hands of the young demonstrators.

An interesting commentary was provided by the makeup of the press conference. Russian and American correspondents were the only ones not invited.

In response the Russians called their own conferences to deny Chinese allegations. At the second of these they took the opportunity to warn the Chinese of possible consequences of further "outrages" against Soviet embassy personnel in Peking and to announce the evacuation—now completed—of embassy wives and children from the Chinese capital.

Newest Newspaper

TUKTOYAKTUK, N. W. T. (CP)—One of Canada's newest newspapers was opened last fall in this community inside the Arctic Circle on the Beaufort Sea, 1,200 miles north of Edmonton.

Coastline: Canada, published twice a week, is mimeographed by brothers David and Raymond Anderson who are trying to "create a paper which could deal effectively with situations concerning the over-all growth and expansion of the territories."

David, who has lived here four years, says he also will publish poems, stories and Eskimo legends.

"Advertising is not too great in this area at this time so we must rely almost totally on subscribers for making our way."

In their second edition, David and Raymond, who recently graduated from high school, introduced their "outside" readers to Tuk.

BARGE TERMINUS

"Between here and the North Pole there is nothing but water and ice. Here you walk on the polar tundra, earth permanently frozen except for two to six inches which thaws during the short summer."

Until the 1930s Tuk was important as a harbor for Arctic whaling fleets. After the fleets left, the community was selected as a terminus for barges transporting freight up the Mackenzie River and as a harbor for vessels supplying coastal villages.

The publishers point with pride to Tuk's development.

"Each year sees more homes and roads. The year 1966 saw a new addition to the school, new federal housing, including one for the administrator. An extension of roads and improvement of services such as garbage and water. Soon we hope the power."

But they showed disappointment on the front page when the scheduled Dec. 1, 1966, opening of telephone service from the "outside" was delayed.

"In the spot we had hoped to announce that the telephone lines to Tuktoyaktuk were now open. Unfortunately this announcement has now been indefinitely postponed."

CIVIL DEFENCE

On the whole Civil Defence is strongest and most active in the municipalities where the municipal government shows proper interest and gives full moral support.

Pharmacist Addresses Soroptimist Meeting

"What is Pharmacy?" was the subject discussed by pharmacist D. J. MacDonald, guest speaker at the Nelson Soroptimist Club's dinner meeting.

Mr. MacDonald explained the government regulations on the sale of drugs and prescriptions. He pointed out that a druggist must keep up to date on the new advances in medicines, their uses and effects.

Sister Mary Luca thanked the speaker for his informative talk.

Mrs. Rose Wassick was installed as a new member by Mrs. Velma Blaney.

Final arrangements were made for the marmalade and bake sale.

The service objectives committee reported the drapes and chair had been purchased for the ward at Mount St. Francis and members also approved purchase of a hoyer lift for the hospital.

Suggestions were made for a special program for the club's birthday in April.

Frederiksen-Nevakshonoff Vows Exchanged in Fairview Church

Pink and white was the color theme at the wedding of Mable Nevakshonoff and Calvin Kenneth Frederiksen, solemnized in Fairview United Church.

Pink carnations and white gladioli decorated the church and the bridal attendants' pale pink gowns made dainty contrast with the bridal white.

Rev. J. Rae Allan conducted the ceremony for the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Frederiksen of Nelson and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Nevakshonoff of Thrums. Mr. Angus Fraser played the traditional wedding music.

The bride's brother, Mr. George Nevakshonoff, escorted her to the altar. She wore a graceful floor-length gown of lace fashioned in tiers with scalloped neckline and lilypoint sleeves. Her five-tiered veil of net illusion was held by a pearl and sequin tiara and her bouquet was of pink roses with white satin ribbon.

Maid of honor Miss Norma Lebedoff and bridesmaid Miss Dawn Frederiksen, sister of the groom, wore matching floor-length gowns of pink peau de soie, shoes en tone and white gloves. Their bouquets were of white roses.

Mr. Keith Frederiksen was groomsman and Mr. Monty Frederiksen and Mr. Gary Watson ushered.

The reception hall was festive with pink and white streamers and matching flowers. Tall tapers burned on either side of the three-tiered wedding cake on the bride's table.

The bride's mother chose a beige suit of lace over satin with accessories in pink with a pink carnation corsage and the bridegroom's mother wore a pale blue wool suit with matching accessories and corsage of pink carnations.

Mr. Bill Hoobanoff, uncle of the bride, was master of ceremonies.

Congratulatory telegrams were received from Summerland, Edmonton and Fort St. John.

Before the happy couple left for a honeymoon at Radium and Banff, the bride changed to a peacock blue lace suit with matching hat with which she wore a corsage of white roses.

The newlyweds are making their home at Castlegar.

Out-of-town guests came from Rossland, Grand Forks, Vancouver and Summerland.

Guiding in Other Countries Related

Ten Girl Guides, with their leaders, Mrs. W. Burdenie and Miss Sandy Matheson, participated in an enlightening program on Guiding in other countries.

The meeting opened with inspection, presenting of colors, "O Canada", Guide prayer and Swiss prayer.

Service stars were presented to Dawn Anderson, Clara Pittman, Kathleen Vecchio and Mary Pittman. Dawn Anderson also received her artist's badge and athlete's badge.

Then followed the thinking day program. Each girl spoke on a country of her choice, giving a few interesting facts on Guiding in that country.

A candlelighting service followed, during which Sandy Matheson read the poems: "The World Is Round" and "Guides All the World Over".

The Guide promise was renewed and following this each Guide brought forward the flag of her chosen country and placed it around the table. Skits were presented by the Guides on "The Guide Law and What To Do in an Emergency".

At the conclusion of the ceremony, a Guide cake, appropriately decorated for the occasion, was cut and served by the girls.

The meeting concluded with campfire.

On Sunday, Feb. 26, Guides, Scouts, Brownies and Cubs will be attending church service in commemoration of Lord Baden-Powell.

DEAR HELOISE:

It has been eleven months now since I painted the grout between my bathroom tile and they are still like new. No more scrubbing, bleaching or anything . . .

When I wash the tiles it cleans between them too.

The time it took to apply the quick-dry enamel you told me about is nothing compared to the monthly scrubbing I used to do!

I am really thrilled with this discovery.

Laura McGrew

* * *

Dear Laura:

Yes, and the reason is, you have covered up the pores in the grout and the moisture cannot get in them to form mildew.

Before others try this, I would like to give you a few tips.

First, pour pure household bleach on a rag and wipe all of the grout. This will bleach out most of the marks.

The grout must be completely and thoroughly dried before applying any paint. This does not mean to just let your shower dry overnight. It has to be DRY-DRY.

One can dry this grout (that's the white stuff between tiles) by using an electric fan or a hair dryer. You can't do it in ten minutes . . . this takes hours.

Then go back and use quick drying enamel to paint between the tiles with a tiny paint brush.

On the vertical lines (that is, those which go from the ceiling to the floor), paint can be easily applied by pouring it into a snip-type bottle with a tiny point.

Where you will reap your reward is this: the shiny enamel paint will keep the water from soaking into the pores of the grout and the water will fall off like beads. It's worth it.

I do not suggest that any woman in the whole world try to do this in one day. It is not hard work, but it takes time and patience. Why don't you try a portion at a time. Perhaps one wall?

Watch your brands of paint. Buy the best for this job because it's only going to take a very small amount.

I suggest quick-drying enamel. And ladies, if you can keep your family from taking a shower for a few days until that grout is completely dried out, how much longer your paint is going to last.

I buy overripe bananas (for banana bread or cake) when they are on sale. Mash them with a fork, then freeze in a plastic container.

They thaw very rapidly and are so nice to have on hand whenever needed.

If a recipe calls for three bananas, use one cup of mashed frozen ones.

DEAR HELOISE:

File boxes in any size are the most wonderful inventions. They can make any cabinet organized and efficient even if the family isn't!

They can be used as a neat manicure box and when it comes time for that manicure, just grab the box. You have everything at your finger tips.

A file box can also be used to hold gift stamps, sewing supplies, small tools, screws and nails, or kitchen odds and ends.

They can easily be covered with adhesive paper to match your shelves.

Didja know . . .

If you use a pencil to mark your eyebrows and it leaves an unsightly line . . . rub your finger back across your eyebrows and the mark will blend into them?

It doesn't look so painted.

DEAR HELOISE:

For ladies whose families like a variety of cookies, try this:

Use the basic cookie recipe on the back of the chocolate-bit package. But before adding the chocolate pieces, separate the mixture into three bowls.

Put one cup of chocolate bits in one bowl, a half cup of peanut butter in another, and a half cup of oatmeal in the third. Then divide the mixture into the three bowls, mix and cook.

The basic recipe is the best I have found and you can please everyone's taste in less time.

DAVEY RESIGNS, McEACHERN NAMED INTERIM REPLACEMENT

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Sports Editor

MONTREAL (CP) — Allan McEachern of Vancouver, incoming president of the Canadian Football League, took over as CFL commissioner Thursday night — a position he will held without salar until a successor can be found for Senator Keith Davey.

The move came eight hours after Senator Davey ended a stormy 54 days in office with his resignation when he failed to win a vote of confidence from league owners.

The commissioner served little more than seven weeks of a three-year contract in the $25,000-a-year office.

Ted Workman, outgoing CFL president, said the appointment of McEachern was unanimous and came during a closed executive meeting.

"My tenure of office lasts only so long as it takes to find a suitable commissioner," McEachern said.

To allow the appointment, the CFL constitution had to be amended to delete a section which prohibits anyone with an interest in any of the nine-league clubs from holding the office.

"I will not become involved in any conflict of interest concerning the British Columbia Lions," McEachern said.

A committee of four — two from each conference — will work with the president on selection of a new commissioner.

Workman said that G. Sydney Halter of Winnipeg, the first commissioner the league had and who resigned Jan. 1, offered six months ago to help in the operation of the commissioners' office "in any way possible."

WILL SEEK SYD'S HELP

McEachern said "we'll certainly be looking to Mr. Halter for advice."

Senator Davey's resignation came swiftly.

Denied a vote of confidence by the owners of the nine league teams, he walked out of the annual CFL meeting, handed copies of his annual report to sports writers and left.

An executive order immediately was issued to the Toronto CFL headquarters that nothing was to be removed other than the senator's personal effects.

It was a bitter parting between the CFL and the man who had pledged himself to be "a fan's commissioner" when he took over on Jan. 1 from retiring G. Sydney Halter of Winnipeg.

Allan McEachern of Vancouver, incoming CFL president, said the commissioner asked for a vote of confidence and this was moved by Toronto Argonauts, in the past one of the most severe critics of the senator's outspokenness.

"No club had enough confidence in the commissioner to second the motion."

GETS NO MONEY

Because the commissioner resigned—"and he was not asked to resign, he was not fired"—he will not receive any money under the alimony clause in his contract, McEachern said.

Senator Davey had signed a three-year contract at $25,000 a year but with a six - month clause allowing either side to terminate within that time.

League officials said the next step likely will be for the CFL to form a committee, headed by McEachern to go into the matter of a successor.

Senator Davey's report, which contained nothing of an internal confidential nature recognized that criticism had been levelled at him during his brief term in office.

It ended:

"If I am not sustained I feel that in fairness to my position I ought to release this statement to the press. For this reason, I have purposefully excluded matters of a confidential nature which can be dealt with elsewhere on the agenda."

CRITICIZED RELEASE

Both McEachern and retiring president Ted Workman of Montreal were critical of the senator for making the document public.

In his report, Senator Davey said that a suggestion by Sam Berger, president of Ottawa Rough Riders, that "I sought personal publicity either as an end in itself or for some ulterior motive is both baseless and repugnant."

"It is, however, the picayune, petty and personal nitpicking kind of criticisms which have rankled me most. At first I was simply annoyed ; however, when these unfounded accusations found their way into the press I simply became downright angry."

League officials later disclosed the guidelines imposed upon the senator when he took over the CFL reins.

They required him to formulate policies and plans "for the benefit of football in general and the league in particular, upon his own initiative or under direction of the executive committee."

They made him responsible for all phases of player-club relationships and gave him supervision over the selection, training and discipline of game officials "including statisticans, tmekeepers and the public address men, both on and off the field."

Nowhere did the guidelines specify areas considered outside the commissioner's jurisdiction.

The senator's report listed goals he referred to as "a fan's bill fo rights" and included:

1. Communication with fans: Improvement of stadium facilities, public address system and crowd control. "Every league game should have a half-time show which sparkles."

2. Standardization: A one-league structure, retaining the East-West rivalry of two divisions. "Each team must have the same number of teams playing the same number of games."

3. Television: "Every game should be available in its entirety in the home as well as the away market." The blackout system "plays into the hands of cable operators."

4. The game: "We should encourage a more offensive brand of Canadian football."

5. Officiating: "A number of immediate steps should be taken to improve the calibre of officiating."

6. Awards: ". . . We should also institute an official Canadian Football League all-star team, with some kind of cash recognition by the league to the chosen players. The Schenley Awards must be replaced by league awards."

7. Players' association: "The league should not only recognize the new players' association, but make membership therein mandatory for all players in the league. The proposed CFL pension plan should become a reality in time for the 1967 season. . . . There should be a league all-star game with resultant funds going into the players' pension fund."

GOLF FOR ALL

The United States has more golf courses than any other country in the world, about 8,500 in all.

Lucy Markham Has Job; Rates Ladies' Golf Links

VANCOUVER (CP) — There are handicaps and there are women's handicaps, goes an old golf saying. But one woman golfer is out to change all that.

Lucy Markham of West Vancouver has been given the job of reviewing women's par on every course in Canada during the next three years. For the first time women golfers will be assured that the distances from the women's tees are accurate and their handicaps are valid everywhere.

Mrs. Markham, whose own handicap is 10, has been appointed women's course-rating chairman by the Canadian Ladies Golf Association and instructed to check nearly 500 courses.

"There is no need to panic," said Mrs. Markham. "But if we suspect some distances are wrong, there will be a reduction of the par rating on some courses, and this will mean higher handicaps."

She said if distances from tee to green are suspect, she will employ surveyors to measure the holes.

While distance is the main factor in setting handicaps, Mrs. Markham will also take into account the width of fairways, the condition of turf throughout the year, the traps and size of the greens, prevailing winds and elevation above sea level.

"I won't rate a course according to how it affects me. The criterion is the perfect golfer, the scratch player. . .

Selby Not Too Upset; Looks to Expansion Club

TORONTO (CP)—Boredom is the constant companion of Brit Selby, the National Hockey League rookie of the year last season, now confined to his Toronto home with a hip-to-thigh cast on his right leg.

In travel time he's not far from Maple Leaf Gardens where he scored many of the 14 goals that earned him the Calder Trophy last year. But in terms of his chances of returning to Toronto Maple Leafs as a player it seems a million miles away.

The handsome 21 - year - old left-winger from Kingston, Ont., is quietly sitting out the season with a fractured tibia. The large leg bone was snapped cleanly just below the knee when Jim Watson tripped him in a Western Hockey League game in San Diego last Dec. 7.

Selby had been sent down to Vancouver Canucks by Punch Imlach after arriving in training camp overweight and scoring only one goal in six games this season.

He had hoped to return to Toronto after a season in the minors — "Punch is the best coach I've had and it's the best place to play"—but he figures the injury has pretty well ensured he'll go to some other club in the NHL expansion draft.

"I don't think Leafs will protect me but I'm not too upset about it," he says. "Somebody will draft me. What's the difference as long as you're playing in the NHL? Anyway you get seven per cent on your money with the U.S. teams."

Meet the Nationals

WAYNE HENDERSON

Wayne Henderson forms one-half of the Canadian National Ski Team's brother combination, along with Scott. The younger of the two, Wayne was named to the 1966 FIS team that competed in the World Championships at Portillo, Chile in August, following the European and American ski competitions.

This season he was again named to the "A" team and competed on the European circuit. He is now with the team in Montana for the first race on the U.S. circuit — the International Team race at Vail.

First named to the team in 1963, Wayne was born in Calgary, Alberta, and like his brother Scott, now makes his home in Banff. Wayne last year attended Notre Dame University, but this year is back at the University of Washington, the U.S. university he attended in 1965 and studied engineering.

Only 22 years old, Wayne stands 5' 11" and weighs in at 165 pounds.

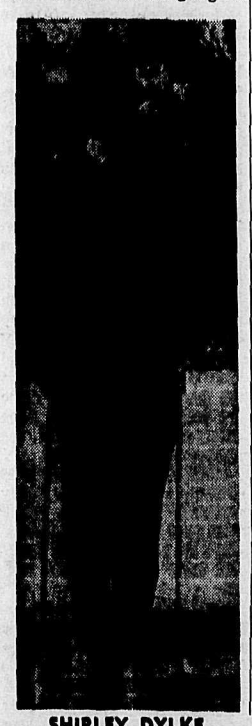
HIGH SCHOOL SKI RACERS SWARM SILVER KING TODAY

High school skiers from all over the Kootenays and Okanagan descend on Silver King Ski Hill this weekend for the Kootenay Inter-High Ski Meet.

Some 75 competitors from points as far away as Vernon and Penticton will be going all out to take home a piece of the silverware. The two-day meet is fully sanctioned by the Canadian Amateur Ski Association and will consist of slalom and giant slalom competitions.



SHIRLEY DYLKE

The slalom will be raced today, with the first run at 10:00 a.m. over the 35 gate course. The second of the two runs will be held this afternoon, beginning at 1:00 p.m., also over a 35 gate course, with the combined winner taking the trophy.

Following the day's events, a banquet and dance will be held in the lodge for the competitors and officials.

The giant slolam will be held Saturday morning and will be a one-run competition from the top of Silver King. The girls' run could be shortened if conditions are too icy.

Pam Aiken of Trail last year made an almost clean sweep of the girls' events in the meet held at Rossland. Only Maureen Fox of Nelson ruined her perfect record as the Nelson girl captured the giant slalom race. Miss Fox will not be comneting this year.

But Shirley Dylke of Nelson noses another threat from L. V Rogers High. Miss Dylke has been skiing well this winter and with a good run could bring home top prize.

The boys' competition will be hotly contested with any one of a number of competitors capable of winning. Rossland's Ken Greene, brother of the famous Nancy of the Canadian National Ski Team and teammate Barry Nyman are two of the top boys entered in the meet.

But LVR has two top boys equally capable of outskiing the

BRAD FYFE

Rossland pair. Phil Filleul and Larry Mogentale have been battling each other all season for top spot in various meets, the most recent one being the Vernon competitions.

In the fight for overall team honors, Rossland, Kamloops and Nelson boys should be in the thick of the battle but the girls from Rossland rate as the heavy favorites to again take home top honors in their division.

VANCOUVER (CP) — The cost - of - living index in Vancouver jumped almost half a point in December as a result of higher food and housing prices, the bureau of statistics reports. The bureau said the index for December was 139.9, compared to 139.5 in November.

Meet the Leafs

Nelson Maple Leafs were faced with a problem this season. All summer long they knew they weren't going to go with Jim Letcher in goal, but they didn't have a replacement.

Then they talked to Rossland coach Seth Martin and from the Warriors they obtained Don Holmes ,back-up netminder to Martin last season. In 28 games last year Holmes allowed 5.32 goals per game and recorded one shutout. Latest statistics released this season show the 26-year-old goalie leading the WIHL with a 2.44 goals against average and one shutout to his credit.

Holmes starred throughout junior hockey with Flin Flon Bombers of the Manitoba Junior Hockey League and hasn't changed in his years of senior competition.

The stockily - built netminder was riding along on top of the league when he sustained what appeared to be a minor ankle injury in December.

But that "minor" injury has kept Holmes out of action since. He was ready to return to action three weeks ago when the real extent of the injury was discovered. The native of Flin Flon however has been out to practice this week and could start the game tonight against the Smoke Eaters in Trail.

Holmes played brilliantly in the semi-final series against Spokane Jets last spring when Martin was with the Canadian Nationals and pushed the Jets to the limit before the U.S. club could take a victory.

With the Leafs he's been the same way. A holler guy on the ice, Don has filled the netminding gap along with rookie Bill McDonell and gives the Leafs the strongest goalkeeping in the league.

Butterfly Bonspiel Entries Rapidly Approaching Limit

Creston's Butterfly Bonspiel, being held March 3, 4 and 5, is rapidly approaching its maximum entry limit.

One of the most popular men's open bonspiels in the district, the Butterfly is again drawing entries from the Okanagan to Alberta. Rinks from Vernon, Calgary, Lethbridge, Pincher Creek and other curling centres in southern Alberta and the Okanagan have already entered to participate in the annual competition being held in the Creston Curling Rink. Numerous other entries from nearly every curling centre in the East and West Kootenays are also expected to be taking part in the competition for one of the five top trophies.

To date, some 58 entries have been received and an entry deadline of Monday, February 27, has been set by the bonspiel committee.

Only 64 rinks are accepted each year for the bonspiel and that total is expected to be reached this weekend without any trouble. Butterfly Bonspiel Secretary James Duncanson is receiving the entries.

The bonspiel, as in past years, is mainly outside rinks and the majority of the entries already received are from outside Creston.

The 64 rinks accepted battle for the top prizes in the five events staged in the competition, with local industries supplying the trophies.

The Butterfly Bonspiel commitee stressed a reminder Thursday that anyone interested in participating in this, the 22nd Annual Butterfly, should get his entry in immediately.

The first draw is being started Friday with the championship games going on Sunday March 5.

Silver King Closed Today

Silver King Ski Hill will not be open for skiing Friday but will be Saturday. Friday the Kootenay Inter-High Ski Meet will require full use of the hill for the two slalom runs to be completed by the nearly 80 competitors.

Saturday the ski competitions will continue all morning and into the early afternoon with the giant slalom event being run from the top of the slope. The hill will be open to the skiing public, providing there is no interference with the ski competitors.

Sunday everything will be back to normal with the lifts and hill open to the skiing public all day and again on Monday.

YOUNG OUTWEIGH OLD

The population of Honduras is the youngest in the world, with 50 per cent of the total aged 14 or under.

Parent Backstops Bruins

MONTREAL (CP) — Boston goalie Bernie Parent held off a sustained Montreal attack Thursday night as the Canadiens tied the Bruins 2-2 in National Hockey League action.

The tie left Montreal in fourth place in the standings, one behind Toronto Maple Leafs who defeated Detroit Red Wings 4-2 Thursday night.

Veteran winger John Bucyk paced Boston and scored both goals. John Ferguson and Ralph Backstrom replied for the Canadiens.

In 12 meetings to date, the Bruins and the Habs have divided honors with five wins each and two ties.

OPENED SCORING

Montreal opened the scoring at 8:03 of the first on a smooth-passing play. Yvan Cournoyer passed the puck to Jean Beliveau, 20 feet in front of the net, and the tall centre expertly relayed it to Ferguson, who scored from 15 feet out.

It was Ferguson's 12th of the season.

Then Bucyk evened the score with his 18th of the year at 15:01, with Murray Oliver and Ron Murphy drawing the assists.

Kilburn Loses Bid For U.S. Nationals

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — President Tom Lockhart of the U.S. Amateur Hockey Association has rejected a suggestion that the U.S. National team be moved from Minnesota to Spokane, General Manager Colin Kilburn of the Western International Hockey League Spokane Jets said Thursday.

Kilburn, who suggested the move, said Lockhart informed him of his decision in a letter, noting that several U.S. players have obtained jobs in the Minneapolis-St. Paul area, making a move west unfeasible.

Lockhart suggested that the Spokane team recruit U.S. citizens, making the team eligible for world and Olympic competition in future years, said Kilburn.

MacKenzie Rink Wins CPR 'Spiel

The 1967 C.P.R. Employees' Bonspiel was won by the Bob MacKenzie rink. Skip MacKenzie was given good support by his front men of K. Kuntz, E. Cook, and W. Warner, and compiled a total of 34 points out of a possible 40 to edge the H. Godderis and W. Mydansky rinks who were tied for second with 33 points each. This necessitated a playoff for second prize awards and after four extra ends, the H. Godderis rink from Castlegar won out.

Besides winning first prize awards, the MacKenzie rink gained custody of the handsome William Manson Trophy for the ensuing year. The runner-up rinks were made up of H. Godderis, C. Trevelyan, W. Gray and K. Preston, and W. Mydansky, C. Symmonds, J. McFetridge and F. Ivan. The T. Bate rink of E. Seaman, R. Proudfoot and H. Kilb earned the consolidated prize for their six point total.

Notre Dame Jr. Varsity Hosting Victoria Vikings

Notre Dame Junior Varsity Knights host University of Victoria Vikings in two exhibition hockey games this weekend, with a short-handed club.

The two teams meet tonight at 8:00 p.m. and again Saturday afternoon at 2:00 p.m. at the Civic Centre.

The Vikings bring a strong, well balanced team to do battle with the Knights and try for revenge for the loss suffered at the hands of the Knights last season in Victoria.

Jack Legget tand Don Gibbs will suit up for the Knights in goal with Jim Kinahan, Silvano Duregon, Dan Lousier and Glen Carter on defence. Up front will be Jim Turner, Ernie Moisey, Danny Calles, Rick Pepper, Footso Harton, Terry Minnis, Tom Vanness and Bruce Rossini.

Notre Dame is unable to ice its regular varsity team because of prior commitments with Nelson Maple Leafs and their weekend WIHL games with Trail.

Leading the Vikings into battle will be several players from the Kootenays, including ex-Knight Jim Shkwarok who played with NDU during the 1963-'64 season. The 21-year-old centreman, born in Creston, played junior hockey with the NDU Knights, and also with Cranbrook juniors, but now is in his third year with the Victoria club.

Glyn Harper, 25year-old fourth-year man with the Vikings is an ex-Trail Junior Smoke Eater who patrols the right-wing. Born in Trail and having played his minor hockey there, Harper has among his collections leading scorer and most gentlemanly player awards.

Another product of the Trail Minor Hockey Association is 23-year-old Ted Hurd. A four-time all-star, Hurd is the number one goaltender with the Vikings in this, his fifth year on the club.

Rossland fans will remember Mike McAvoy, 20-year-old sophomore with the Vikings.

He won the most sportsmanlike player award in Rossland minor hockey leagues and is one of the bigger players on the Viking forward unit at 6' 1", 185 pounds

The Vikings have formed their club from across Canada and the Notre Dame Junior Varsity will have its hands full trying to take a victory tonight.

Manitoba Knocks Alberta

FLIN FLON, Man. (CP) — Nova Scotia and Alberta held on to first place with easy trips to the victory circle in the ninth round of the Canadian schoolboy curling championship Thursday night.

Charles Rafuse of Bridgewater, bidding to become the first skip from east of Ontario to collar the title, clobbered shorthanded Prince Edward Island 10-4 for his seventh win.

Stan Trout of Edmonton, out to keep the title brought to Alberta in 1966 by Brian Howes of Calgary, stole five on the fourth end to overwhelm Saskatchewan 9-3.

Brian Clapham of Winnipeg, who directed Manitoba to an 8-7 decision that saddled Alberta with its first loss in Thursday afternoon's eighth round, had a grip on third place after waltzing round Newfoundland 18-5. Clapham also has seven wins, but has suffered defeat twice.

Leafs Move Into Second

DETROIT (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs moved into third place in the National Hockey League Thursday night by defeating Detroit Red Wings 4-2.

The victory was the fifth straight for the Leafs and their sixth game without defeat. It boosted their points total to 53, one more than fourth - place Montreal Canadiens and seven behind the idle New York Rangers.

Larry Hillman, Mike Walton, Ron Ellis and Frank Mahovlich scored the Toronto goals, while Alex Delvecchio scored both goals for the Red Wings.

"Effective today, American Motors announces a policy change that makes it possible for 100,000 Canadian families to get the kind of car they really need, at the price they want to pay."

Earl K. Brownridge, President, American Motors (Canada) Limited

During the last few years, a major gap has developed in the automobile market. A gap between the price of imported cars and domestic compacts. It is a gap that no North-American car is filling. And it gets wider every year. Because of this gap, about 100,000 Canadian families each year are forced into the position of having to buy an imported car . . . cars that are not really designed for Canadian driving habits, Canadian roads, Canadian weather and Canadian traffic.

North American built compact cars are really what these families need and want. These cars have the comfort, performance, room, reliability and safety features required for our conditions. But the price of the domestic compact has risen in the past few years; risen to the point where it is beyond what a great many families want to spend for transportation.

We at American Motors believe that it is time to close this gap. It is time to give those 100,000 Canadian families the kind of car they really want to have, at the price they want to pay: a Canadian-built compact at a competitive price.

How are we going to do it?

We have decided that future changes to the Rambler American (the original compact car) will be limited to genuine improvements; essential changes that will improve the safety and reliability of these cars. There will be no annual face-lifts. No annual model changes. No changes for the sake of change alone. We can do it and still provide a technically up-to-date car because the American has been continuously improved since its introduction 10 years ago. This year we added a completely new line of Six and V-8 engines. Now, we have reached the point where we consider an annual model change is unnecessary for cars designed as basic transportation.

Annual model changes cost the auto industry and you millions of dollars each year. This major policy decision means that those millions can be turned into savings, which we are passing on to you, right now! Effective today, the list price of all Rambler American models is reduced as follows:

Series & model	Old Price	New Price	Saving
220 2-Door Sedan	$2494	$2272	$222
4-Door Sedan	2566	2382	184
4-Door Station Wagon	2871	2693	178
440 2-Door Sedan	$2627	$2446	$181
4-Door Sedan	2699	2536	163
4-Door Station Wagon	3009	2860	149
2-Door Hardtop	2722	2582	140
Rogue 2-Door Hardtop	$2913	$2767	$146
2-Door Convertible	3130	2977	153

Make no mistake about this: these are not stripped down cars. They are exactly the same as models built prior to this policy decision. The complete range of Rambler American body styles, options, engines, colors and accessories is still available. All that we have trimmed away is the waste so inherent to the annual face-lifting game.

What does all this mean to present owners of Rambler Americans? Simply this: higher resale values due to stabilized styling and lower parts cost.

If you are considering the purchase of either an imported car or a domestic compact, I urge you to examine the chart below very carefully. See for yourself how the Rambler American fills the gap to give you the kind of car your family really needs at the price you want to pay.

Here's the proof that dollar for dollar, Rambler American is now the best automotive value in the world.

Rambler American Rogue

This new policy for the Rambler American completes the repositioning of American Motors cars that began with the introduction of the full-size 1967 Ambassador and the intermediate-size Rebel. We now offer a complete selection of cars in every size and price category to meet the needs of every new car buyer. But even beyond these cars that are a reality today, we are looking ahead and designing cars that are radical in concept, imaginative in design and operation. Cars that will set the pace in the automotive world in the challenging years ahead. The role of "the innovator" is a familiar one to us—after all, we did pioneer the whole idea of the compact car—and we are looking forward to being "the innovator" again in the very near future. We promise you exciting news from American Motors. This is only the beginning.

Your Individual Horoscope

By Frances Drake

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars,

Saturday, February 25, 1967

MARCH 21 to APRIL 20 (Aries) — You may be a bit tired, feel let down. So give yourself the chance to revive energies and enthusiasm with some quiet rest, relaxation. Don't neglect essentials, however.

APRIL 21 to MAY 21 (Taurus) — There's a tendency now to reject good opportunities before thorough investigation. Consider carefully before saying "No." Don't "jump the gun," however.

MAY 22 to JUNE 21 (Gemini) — Don't use express train tactics where a local speed is required. Keep an open mind and pick up all information available — not one or two opinions. Be thoroughly aware of what others are about.

JUNE 22 to JULY 23 (Cancer) — Be alert to all opportunities, but keep matters in proper perspective as you make short, or long-term plans. On this somewhat average day, your best judgment will be needed.

JULY 24 to AUGUST 23 (Leo) — You can accomplish much with few tools and through your wits, and now is the time! As you feel badly when your ideas are belittled, so make it a point to appreciate those of others.

AUGUST 24 to SEPTEMBER 23 (Virgo) — Sow the seeds of good will and cooperation to as sure better living for all. You are being observed, can prove highly influential.

SEPTEMBER 24 to OCTOBER 23 (Libra) — Mixed influences. Step gingerly with those who are "on edge," touchy. Stand your ground where principle is at stake; give a little where generosity can aid.

OCTOBER 24 to NOVEMBER 22 (Scorpio) — Thoroughness and adaptability must be stressed. Day will be outstanding in one way or another, so make sure you are in line, in tune.

NOVEMBER 23 to DECEMBER 21 (Sagittarius) — Do not fear the future. This could defeat your purposes. Ignorance magnifies dilemma, so be prepared to offset it with a well considered program based on knowledge and know-how.

DECEMBER 22 to JANUARY 20 (Capricorn) — Saturn, favorable, stimulates ingenuity and a spirit of enterprise. Keep mistakes to a minimum and follow your best judgment to chalk up a noteworthy record.

JANUARY 21 to FEBRUARY 19 (Aquarius) — Take helpful hints from all directions. From the least considered may come the best ideas. Leave no stone unturned in your quest for praiseworthy advancement.

FEBRUARY 20 to MARCH 20 (Pisces) — Neptune, in highly favorable position now, stimulates your talents and ambitions. Don't let your better self down! But enjoy some deserved rest, too.

YOU BORN TODAY have excellent endurance and reasoning qualities; are dexterous, "sea worthy" in emergencies. You surmount obstacles easily and, no matter what your age, are young in spirit. This, plus your faculty for getting along with people and ability to hold firmly against opposition, suit you for organization and community work. Overcome tendencies toward anxiety and stubbornness, however. Birthdate of Enrico Caruso, famed singer; Pierre Renoir, renowned painter.

GUILTY OF SPYING

MOSCOW (AP)—A Soviet Jew has been tried here on a charge of spying for Israel and found guilty, Izvestia reports. The Soviet government newspape says the man, Solomon Dolnik, was a betrayer and "got what he deserved." It does not disclose the sentence. The maximum penalty for spying in the Soviet Union is death. Izvestia says Dolnik, a retired civil engineer, passed secrets about military topography to a member of the Israeli embassy staff.

NEWCOMERS ARRIVE

The population increase in Canada, 29 per cent from 1954 to 1964, is the largest of any developed country in the world.

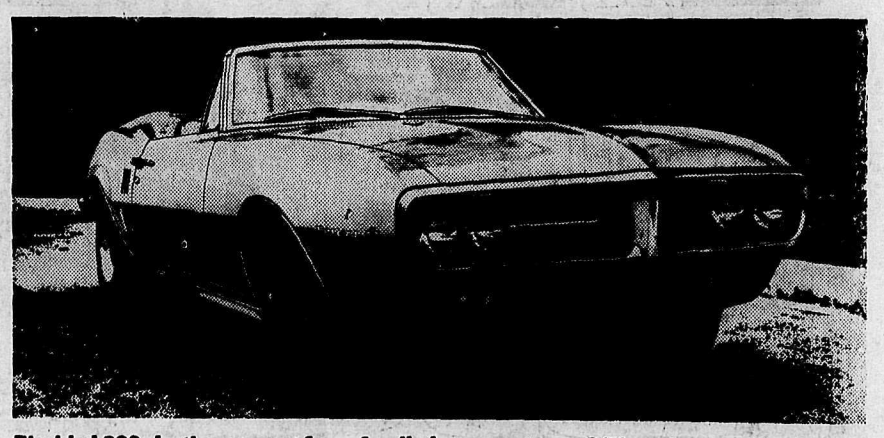
If you thought Pontiac was coming out with just another sports car, you don't know Pontiac!

Pontiac announces not one, two, three or four, but five magnificent new Firebirds for every kind of driving.

Now you can choose from five new Firebirds with the same advanced Pontiac styling, but with five entirely different driving personalities. And they all come with supple expanded vinyl interiors, wood grain styled dash, exclusive space-saver collapsible spare, bucket seats (or you can order bench in coupes) and GM's standard safety package. All come with wide-oval tires as standard equipment. Which Firebird is for you?

Firebird 400. Coiled under those dual scoops is a 400 cubic inch V-8 that shrugs off 325 hp It's connected to a floor-mounted heavy-duty three-speed. On special suspension with redline wide-oval tires. You can order it with a close- or wide-ratio four-speed. Or with our stupendous three-speed Turbo Hydra-Matic. This could be called the ultimate in grand touring machines. After this, there isn't any more.

Firebird HO. HO stands for High Output. As a split second behind the wheel will attest to. The Firebird HO boasts a 285-hp V-8 with a four-barrel carburetor, dual exhausts and sport striping. Standard stick is a column-mounted three-speed. Or you can specify an all-synchro floor-mounted four-speed or automatic. Naturally, all Firebird options such as Rally wheels and gauge cluster are available.



Firebird 326. Is there room for a family in a sports car? There is now. The Firebird 326 combines the excitement of a sports car with the practicality of a 326 cubic inch V-8 that delivers 250 hp on regular gas. (Yes, we said 250!) Standard transmission is an all-synchro three-speed, but you can order an automatic that does all the work for you, and options that include everything from air conditioning to stereo.

Firebird Sprint. Now you don't have to go to Europe for a sophisticated road machine. Firebird Sprint's standard motivation is a 215-hp version of our eager Overhead Cam Six. It's mounted on special suspension that practically welds it to the road. (Any road!) With a floor-mounted all-synchro 3-speed and special emblems. You can order all Firebird options like front wheel disc brakes and a hood-mounted tach.

Firebird. This is our economy Firebird—with the same exciting options and interiors as the more exotic ones. What gives it its unique personality is that it was designed for inexpensive fun driving. Its Overhead Cam Six squeezes 165 hp from regular. Order it with a column-mounted 3-speed or automatic. Like all Firebirds, it comes with seat belts with pushbutton buckles, front and rear.

Says Penitentiaries Listed

By CY FOX

MONTREAL (CP)—A Montreal-based group called the United Council for Human Rights said Thursday that mental hospitals and penitentiaries are among places listed by the government as official "immigration stations."

Immigrants can be held in such institutions if their documents are not in order and while awaiting a further hearing by immigration department officers, A. H. J. Zaitlin, a director of the council, told a special joint committee of the Senate and Common studying immigration problems.

Mr. Zaitlin found that the existence of a list including mental hospitals and prisons among the stations apparently was unknown to committee members, who agreed that the nine-page document should be entered on the committee record.

It was issued in 1964 by the deputy minister of immigration said Mr. Zaitlin.

Among the centres listed as immigration stations were Bordeaux jail in Montreal, the Toronto Psychiatric Hospital, the British Columbia penitentiary at New Westminster and the Halifax Mental Hospital.

QUESTION FOR COMMONS

The council spokesman was unable to say whether immigrants actually had been detained at any of the listed stations. That was a question that should be asked in the Commons.

The United Council for Human Rights is made up of representatives from unions, the Society of Friends, student and artist groups, Negro rights organizations, The Canadian Jewish Congress and other organizations.

REPORT SICK DRIVERS

TORONTO (CP) — Doctors should be required by law to report medical conditions in their patients which might make it dangerous for them to drive, the Ontario Medical Association says. In a brief to Transport Minister Irwin Haskett, the OMA says the department of transport should employ medical consultants to judge each reported case and decide whether to recommend suspension of the patient's driving licence on medical grounds.

Horoscope

For Friday, Feb. 24, 1967

MARCH 21 to APRIL 20 (Aries) — Organize yourself — and your program — so as to eliminate time-wasting, confusion. A good activity day for those born under this Sign.

APRIL 21 to MAY 21 (Taurus) — Superior quality of workmanship and tact in all matters advised. Balance things; gear endeavors in keeping with high hopes. Results can be gratifying.

MAY 22 to JUNE 21 (Gemini) — In a defensive position, be circumspect in voicing opinions; in your approach to others. On the offensive, be gently persuasive rather than argumentative.

JUNE 22 to JULY 23 (Cancer) — Stick close to facts and control that imagination of yours. Don't try to put a square peg into a round hole. Pick your way discreetly.

JULY 24 to AUGUST 23 (Leo) — What you want and what you actually need may be widely different. Be realistic about your affairs and don't put the cart before the horse, falling witlessly into traps.

AUGUST 24 to SEPTEMBER 23 (Virgo) — Keep domestic matters harmonious; much of the burden may rest on YOU this week-end, but you can handle it. A day of mixed influences. Emphasize discretion, level-headedness.

SEPTEMBER 24 to OCTOBER 23 (Libra) — You are always ambitious, and this day will open new areas for you to profit by your knowhow. Results may not be immediate, so be patient.

OCTOBER 24 to NOVEMBER 22 (Scorpio) — Since you naturally subscribe to the maxim that "anything worth doing is worth doing well," you should get along fine during this busy, if sometimes hectic period. Handle essentials first.

NOVEMBER 23 to DECEMBER 21 (Sagittarius) — Not everyone will say what he really means or make his best impression now, so give others the benefit of the doubt and most will do the same for you.

DECEMBER 22 to JANUARY 20 (Capricorn) — You now have a chance to capitalize on some of your finest gifts, two being adaptability and enterprise. But keep reins in check. Don't be overly aggressive.

JANUARY 21 to FEBRUARY 19 (Aquarius) — Make a slow enough start to insure steadiness and careful footing. Don't rush anything through just to "finish it." Timing important, also self-confidence.

FEBRUARY 20 to MARCH 20 (Pisces) — Avoid "fussiness" with details, plans. Be cautious but not to the extreme. A bright day is in the making.

YOU BORN TODAY: A union of many talents and a marriage of attractive personal assets, as well as a genuine liking for people, can make you highly successful. You tell a story well, present a neat appearance and could be an effective actor. A retentive memory for important things equips you for detail or large-scale operations. You have tremendous capacity for enduring trials and work assignments.

Bacteria Caused 100 Deaths

TORONTO (CP) — A 1963 Newfoundland epidemic which caused 100 infant deaths was caused by a strain of bacteria "since incriminated as the most prevalent type causing epidemic diarrhoea among infants in various parts of the world," says an article in the Canadian Medical Association Journal.

The Newfoundland outbreak totalled 1071 cases.

In an autopsy study of 16 cases from all over Newfoundland, two St. John's doctors said their post mortem examinations disclosed nothing in the way of bodily changes that would lead to an earlier recognition or a better understanding of the basic nature of the disease.

"Dath in most cases was attributed to multiple factors and the gastroenteritis was considered as a predisposing or contributory factor to other fatal diseases," said Doctors Yong-Myun Rho and J. E. Josephson of the department of pathology, St. John's General Hospital.

"Severe respiratory infection was the leading terminal cause of death. . . .In only three cases could the cause of death be explained solely on the basis of dehydration, undernourishment and electrolytle imbalance."

The specific organism involved in the diarhoea was identified as serological type 0111:34, a strain first identified as responsible for an outbreak of gastroenteritis in London in 1945.

"Age of the infant was apparently an important factor in the series of (Newfoundland) fatal cases," the article said. The average age was about five months, with the age at the time of admission to hospital varying from 10 days to 1½ years.

Almost half the 16 cases occurred within four months of birth. The occurrence of the disease was not confined to any particular season and this finding tallied with conclusions reached from surveys of eight epidemics in Britain.

LIVERPOOL (AP) — Students at Liverpool University have not helped British government embarrassment over the number of prison escapes. They broke into Walton Jail, from which five men had escaped at Christmas, painted "Panto 67" on a wall to celebrate their annual "rag week," and escaped again undetected.

MARKET TRENDS

TORONTO (CP) — Industrials scored their second consecutive sharp gain in light trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange Thursday.

The group got off to a slow start in morning activity, but turned around at noon as it followed the trend at New York.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market groped its way through another irregular session Thursday with trading fairly heavy.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 2.67 to 846.77.

The gain in the average was made possible by Anaconda, which leaped 4⅛ to 90¾ on news that it plans a 2-for-1 stock split and raised dividend on the split stock.

Of 1,445 issues traded, losses outnumbered gains by 616 to 605.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was unchanged at 314.8.

Mineral Production $4 Billion in Canada

TORONTO (CP) — Value of Canada's mineral production passed the $4,000,000,000 mark last year—four years ahead of predictions, the president of the Mining Association of Canada said Wednesday.

W. S. Kirkpatrick told the association's annual meeting that 1966, when 13 new mines came into production, was the eighth consecutive year of increased production.

For this year, 19 new mines are expected to come into production and prospects for uranium sales appear to have brightened considerably as many countries show interest in buying additional supplies, he said.

Mr. Kirkpatrick said, however, that the industry is suffering a continuing severe shortage of skilled and unskilled manpower.

Jean Marchand, manpower and immigration minister, had instituted special surveys of the industry's manpower requirements and "we trust that . . . an acceptable solution will be found. . . ."

Mr. Kirkpatrick said Canada's gold mines, caught between sharply increasing production costs and a fixed price, are in the worst position. More gold mines had been forced to close last year.

Finance Minister Sharp has promised to extend the Gold Mining Assistance Act, which expires at the end of this year, Mr. Kirkpatrick said.

A text of the address was released before delivery.
