Kootenay MLA Nimsick Threatened With Expulsion in Stormy Debate

Withdraws Charge Of Chicken Coop Gov't

VICTORIA (CP)—The British Columbia legislature Thursday erupted into raucous debate over repeated demands from opposition members for an increase in B.C. social welfare and supplementary old age payments.

At one point, Herb Bruch (SC—Esquimalt), chairman of the committee of supply, threatened Leo Nimsick (NDP—Kootenay) with expulsion from the chamber.

Mr. Nimsick had charged that the government was "a chicken coop administration" forcing people to live in hovels and chicken coops.

Both NDP and Liberal members repeatedly told the house the federal government would pay 50 per cent of whatever social assistance payments the province wished to make.

Premier Bennett said there was a "joker" in the federal offer, in that Ottawa set the ceiling.

"If the federal government will raise it, we will do likewise," he said.

The premier said that at a recent federal-provincial conference he asked the prime minister whether the ceiling on supplementary allowances could be raised.

"I got no answer," Mr. Bennett said.

Welfare Minister Campbell said the federal government allowed a maximum welfare payment of only $135 a month to a single person and $240 a month for a married couple.

Dave Barrett (NDP—Coquitlam) said there was no ceiling other than that placed by the provincial government.

"That's a falsehood," retorted the premier.

The provincial government would raise the ceiling if the federal government would contribute, Mr. Campbell said.

"How far are you prepared to go," shouted Opposition Leader Strachan.

"As far as Ottawa will go," retorted the premier.

After Liberal Leader Ray Perrault had quoted a section of Hansard apparently outlining federal policy, Herb Capozzi (SC—Vancouver Centre) interjected, "I suggest someone 'phone Ottawa."

Mr. Nimsick said no Social Credit MLAs had criticized the low welfare payments. The NDP member said the Social Credit backbenchers had been "muzzled."

Mr. Capozzi asked Mr. Nimsick to withdraw the statement.

Despite repeated requests from Chairman Bruch, Mr. Nimsick refused to withdraw the "muzzling" charge.

Then, with the chairman standing and banging his gavel for order, Mr. Nimsick refused to be seated.

"I'm going to name you," Mr. Bruch warned. "Will the member please be seated."

Gordon Dowding (NDP — Burnaby Edmonds) said there had obviously been a mistake. It was well known no one could muzzle Mr. Capozzi, Mr. Dowding said.

"I'm asking the member to withdraw that statement," Mr. Bruch repeated to Mr. Nimsick. "Will the member please be seated."

"I didn't make a reflection on the integrity of anybody," Mr. Nimsick, still standing, insisted.

Social Credit MLAs in the back row shouted "throw him out."

Mr. Nimsick finally withdrew the "muzzling" statement, but again started discussion the chair ruled out of order.

Mr. Bruch cautioned the NDP member to stick to the vote in question, the $4000 for the Minister of Welfare's office.

Mr. Nimsick said "I'm not willing to give up the battle for the people who are in this category, it's too important."

"Give everybody the right to live," continued Mr. Niimsick.

"Don't let them live in a miserable hovel. They come to their MLAs with tears in their eyes."

There were cries of "crocodile tears" and laughter from other MLAs.

"Can't we get off this laughing jag and get on with my vote?" Mr. Campbell asked.

Nobody could live on a welfare payment of $75 a month, Mr. Nimsick said. "This is a type of chicken coop administration.

"At $75 a month people can't live in anything but a chicken-coop."

Chairman Bruch again interjected "the chair is asking the member to stick to the vote."

He should not waste time by lecturing other MLAs, Mr. Bruch said.

Mr. Nimsick protested the ruling, saying "If I have to lecture the minister . . . The minister is gone!"

Mr. Campbell, as the heated discussion continued, had quietly left the House.

Young Cranbrook Man Given Life Sentence

D. R. Nelson, 24, Found Guilty In Knifing of Patrick Hughes

CRANBROOK — Donald Richard Nelson, 24, of Cranbrook, was sentenced to life in prison after he was found guilty Wednesday of non-capital murder in the knifing death Nov. 19 of Patrick Hughes, 25.

Mr. Justice F. Craig Munroe sentenced Nelson after a jury of 10 men and two women deliberated for two hours.

Mr. Justice Craig Munroe, in his charge, told the jurors they had verdict choice of guilty of capital murder as charged, of non-capital murder, of manslaughter, or acquittal on the basis of evidence heard.

The prosecution, conducted by Harry McKay, alleged deliberate murder, citing evidence of Mrs. Evelyn Henry, who said the accused had come to her house the morning of the death looking for Hughes, who, he alleged, had been out with "his girl".

Mrs. Ellen Allan testified to intimacies with the accused from March to November, including a false alarm concerning her suspected pregnancy.

The victim's mother, Mrs. Bessie Hughes ,testified the accused came to her house the morning of the alleged knifing seeking Mrs. Allen who was there with her son. Hughes joined the accused in the hallway of the house.

There were no witnesses to the stabbing, and Hughes died a few hours later.

The defence contended self-defence by the accused ,and cited an earlier incident when Hughes was convicted of shooting at someone through a plate glass window.

The hearing of the charge required two and a half days of the current East Kootenay criminal assize session at the courthouse here.

Child Who Phoned for Help, Dies

TORONTO (CP) — Jane Gowland, a six-year-old girl who quietly telephoned for help and changed into clean pyjamas after she was critically burned more than five weeks ago, died in hospital Thursday.

The girl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Gowland of Toronto, had burns to three-quarters of her body after her dress caught fire when she was leaning over the stove. Her parents had been out for a few minutes.

Jane called the telephone operator who calmed her, told her to rip off her dress, got her address and notified police.

When the officers arrived to take her to hospital the girl was waiting outside her home dressed in clean pyjamas.

To Match Russia Unless Pact

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate armed services committee Thursday unanimously recommended a start on deployment of an anti-ballistic missile defence system unless an early agreement is reached with the Soviet Union.

Chairman Richard B. Russell (Dem — Ga.) said the Senate panel approved installation of a multi-billion-dollar defence system to match one already set up in Russia.

Russell said this statement will be included in a report approving authorization of nearly $20,000,000,000 worth of military research as part of the U.S. defence money bill for the fiscal year which begins July 1.

President Johnson and administration leaders have been working on an agreement with the Soviet Union for a halt on the costly missile defence program.

Assassination Not One Man's Work—Cushing

BOSTON (AP)—Richard Cardinal Cushing said Thursday "I never believed" that the assassination of President John F. Kennedy "was the work of one man."

The Roman Catholic Archbishop of Boston said he doesn't think the official Warren commission report on the assassination is complete. He said of the New Orleans investigation: "I think they should follow it through."

Cardinal Cushing made his remarks at a news conference announcing a $50,000,000 fund drive for the Boston archdiocese.

Former Oswald Lawyer Indicted by Grand Jury

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Kennedy assassination conspiracy hearing stalled on a legal hassle Thursday but the grand jury kept the probe moving with a surprise indictment.

After overnight adjournment of a special preliminary hearing on whether to send Clay L. Shaw to trial, the Orleans Parish grand jury indicted Dean A. Andrews Jr. on a charge of perjury.

Andrews, a puzzling figure in the Warren commission investigation, was placed under $1,000 bond. He once was Lee Harvey Oswald's lawyer in several minor matters.

Andrews was suspended from his post as an assistant district attorney of suburban Jefferson Parish earlier Thursday.

In interrogation by a Warren commission lawyer, Andrews testified a Clay Bertrand contacted him about representing Oswald after the assassination. But he said he didn't know how to contact Bertrand. The FBI never found him.

CALLED BY JURY

The grand jury summoned Andrews last week to ask him about his commission testimony.

District Attorney Jim Garrison contends that Bertrand was an alias used by Shaw, 54, a wealthy retired executive.

In the preliminary hearing, star witness Perry R. Russo testified that he knew Shaw as Clem Bertrand.

Before leaving the stand, Russo testified he did not get the impression that Shaw, Oswald and David W. Ferrie intended to actively participate in an assassination attempt.

Under cross - examination about details of the conspiracy talk Russo says he heard in Ferrie's apartment, the witness was asked:

"You weren't part of it?"

A. "No, sir."

Q. "Was it understood that these three men would actively participate in the assassination?"

A. "I didn't get that impression, no."

Q. "Was Dallas mentioned?

A. "No."

"That's all," lawyer F. Irvin Dymond said, and sat down.

WAS EXCUSED

At that point, Russo — who admitted being hypnotized recently in the courthouse — was excused from further cross-examination.

He testified earlier that he never spoke to the official Washington-appointed Warren commission because "I was a voice in the wilderness . . . I wasn't going to fight with the government."

Russo's testimony was brought out by lawyers for Shaw, who has been charged by District Attorney Jim Garrison with conspiring to kill President John F. Kennedy.

The other two alleged conspirators—Oswald and Ferrie—are dead.

Russo, on the stand for the third straight day in a hearing to decide whether Shaw should go to trial, told a three-judge criminal district court panel that "there were no specific instructions that I can recall" during the hypnosis sessions. He said they took place between Feb. 24 and March 13 in the office of the Orleans parish coroner, and were handled by Dr. Esmond Fatter.

Canadian Pupil's Speech Backing U.S. Distributed

WILLOW BUNCH, Sask. (CP) The United States government information agency is distributing copies of a Canadian high school student's speech defending the American role in the Vietnam war.

Baynish Bassett, 17, a Grade 12 honor student at the Willow Bunch high school, presented the speech last fall in two oratorical competitions in southern Saskatchewan.

The speech said Americans were "peace-loving," and that critics of the U.S. policy were "misguided." It said Communist leaders might be regarded as a "perhaps immature fragment" of the world's population.

The boy's father, W. A. Bassett, sent a copy of the speech to the U.S. embassy in Ottawa. Officials wrote asking permission to use it.

TEXT PUBLISHED

Text of his speech and a letter from the student to the U.S. embassy in Ottawa were published without comment in a five-page news release.

"Since you may get the impression that the majority of Canadian students are against your stand in Vietnam, I thought you might be glad to read my speech, which is 100 per cent in favor of your country's policy in Vietnam," the letter said.

"You are free to use it in any way you wish. I regard it as my centennial project designed to bring justice to Vietnam."

The speech said it was the "primary concern of peace-loving people" to end the war.

CRITICISM MISGUIDED

"The Americans, of course, are among these people.

"However, they are reluctant to sacrifice millions of South Vietnamese to a reign of Communist terror in order to obtain this peace, and so for this reason and for this reason alone, they have earned the violent criticism of misguided people throughout the world."

British Bank Rate Cut Boosts Stocks

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's bank rate, which determines the interest rate of all loans in the country, was cut one-half per cent to six per cent Thursday. Within minutes the pound and most stock prices moved upwards.

The cut was the second of this size in seven weeks and brought the rate down to its level of June, 1965. It reflected Britain's continuing economic recovery after two years of crises.

Although government spokesmen made it clear that the lower interest rate did not necessarily mean a let-up in their economic freeze - and - squeeze policy, industry welcomed the fact money was cheaper.

It meant that industrialists planning large development programs to raise productivity would not have to pay so much for loans.

This brighter prospect was reflected in higher stock prices for most of the industrial giants. The Fnancial Times price index—regarded as a barometer of price trends — jumped 2.7 points during the day.

EFFECT MARGINAL

The direct effect on the ordinary citizen probably will be marginal.

Millions of Britons buying homes through loans from building societies will have to go on paying at the higher rate, at least for some months.

The pound, which opened in the foreign exchange market at $2.7955 U.S., rose during the afternoon to $2.7961.

The growing strength of sterling was one of the main reasons the Bank of England felt justified in making the cut. Gold and dollar reserves have risen, the world's bankers promised to continue backing the currency against a fall and Britain's overseas trade is within a few million pounds of being in balance.

MONTEVIDEO (Reuters) — The central bank of Uruguay devalued the Uruguayan peso Thursday, raising the official quotation of the U.S. dollar to 85.50-85.90 from 79.40-79.80.

No official reason was given for the devaluation, but financial sources said it was reaction to the 40-per-cent devaluation of the Argentine peso earlier this week.

Steel Workers Ordered To Pay $2 Million for Part in Strike

QUEBEC (CP)—The powerful United Steel Workers of America Thursday were ordered to pay more than $2,000,000 to Gaspe Copper Mines Ltd. in one of the most expensive court judgments ever rendered against a union.

Two of three justices of the Quebec Supreme Court found the Steelworkers responsible for a violent 1957 strike against the company's Murdochville, Que., mines. They rejected a union appeal against a 1964 Quebec Superior Court decision which was also in favor of Gaspe Copper.

The majority report, handed down by judges Miller Hyde and Andre Taschereau, ordered the union to pay the company $1,646,057 plus interest accumulated from Dec. 31, 1957.

This was a reduction of about $100,000 from the amount awarded in the 1964 decision.

In Toronto, Murray Cotterill, a public relations officer at the Canadian headquarters of the Steelworkers, announced the appeal would be carried to the Supreme Court of Canada.

TAKING HEART

He said the union was taking heart from a minority report by Mr. Justice Roger Brossard that held the union only 75 per cent responsible for the strike and the company 25 per cent.

The decision followed months of court hearings in which Gaspe Copper alleged the Steelworkers' Pittsburgh headquarters ordered the start of the seven-month strike and union witnesses claimed it broke out spontaneously among Murdochville workers.

Gaspe Copper originally sought $5,278,692 for damages to company property and loss of copper production during the walkout, which has been called one of the most violent in Quebec labor history.

Murdochville, a town built by Gaspe Copper when it opened its first smelter there in 1953, was the scene of one man's death, of clashes between guards and strikers and acts of sabotage during the walkout.

Canada Names Ambassador

OTTAWA (CP)—The external affairs department Thursday announced appointment of a new Canadian ambassador to Denmark and of a deputy permanent representative to the United Nations.

Max H. Wershof, 57, assistant undersecretary of state for external affairs since 1962, becomes ambassador to Denmark. Paul Andre Beaulieu, 53, Canadian ambassador to Brazil since 1961, takes the UN job.

Queen's Orders To Remain

OTTAWA (CP) — There is no intention of dropping "Queen's orders" to the armed forces in favor of "Canadian Forces orders," Defence Minister Hellyer said Thursday. He was replying in the Commons to Gordon Churchill (PC—Winnipeg South Centre).

Ouimet Asks More Sensible Conditions for CBC

By TOM MITCHELL

OTTAWA (CP) — The president of the CBC made a strong plea Thursday that the corporation be subjected to fewer inquiries and "allowed to operate under more sensible conditions."

J. Alphonse Ouimet, in a speech to the Canadian Club, blamed the recent Fowler committee study of broadcasting for aggravating clashes within the publicly-owned corporation between the producer and management levels.

He said he hopes Canadian parliamentarians in time will come "to see some merit in the tradition of restraint which their British colleagues observe with respect to the BBC."

The 1964-65 study under R. M. Fowler "contributed in no small degree" to the trouble that brewed up around the public affairs television program This Hour Has Seven Days, Mr. Ouimet said.

"This inquiry took so much time of senior CBC officers that there simply was none left to see clearly what the recalcitrant thoroughbreds of Seven Days were up to, even less to work out preventive measures."

AUTHORITY WEAKENED

The Fowler inquiry's direct "in camera" consultations with production and other staff brought "a gradual erosion of senior management's authority," Mr. Ouimet said.

"The hypercritical tone of the committee's report completed the process to the point where Seven Days leaders apparently felt quite safe in flouting corporation directives and policy, even in launching a full-scale rebellion."

Mr. Ouimet, who plans to retire from his post when new broadcasting lgeislation is introduced, probably later this year, said he would be "less than honest" if he let the Commons broadcasting committee off.

The committee also held hearings on the dispute between management and co - hosts Patrick Watson and Laurier LaPierre, who were dropped from Seven Days, and Douglas Leiterman, the executive producer.

". . . The nature and the conduct of this intervention was also most damaging to the corporation's ability to exercise that measure of control over all its staff which it judges necessary if it is to be itself accountable for what the CBC puts on the air."

DISPUTE PROLONGED

The whole conflict should have been left to the CBC directors "to settle internally in a couple of weeks, instead of being dragged out through 32 meetings of a parliamentary committee over a period of six weeks to the great delight of headline writers across the country."

The program Sunday, successor to Seven Days, had also touched off a couple of controversies, Mr. Ouimet said.

". . . All of these controversies received a great deal of added impetus, either through parliamentary intervention as in the case of Seven Days or through more or less prolonged debate and condemnation of CBC expressed in the House or Senate."

The press had been "having a real field day" on the fact that the CBC supplied free color TV sets to certain officers of the corporation. But the CBC could not expect them to carry out their jobs without providing the tools.

CBC NEED RECOGNITION

Mr. Ouimet said there was need for more widespread recognition "of the great vulnerability of the CBC as an institution to any parliamentary accusations or insinuations of wrongdoing, whether deserved or not. . . . The corporation has no effective means of answering such criticism."

The president said he hopes new broadcasting legislation will recognize that Canada should have a "two board" regulatory system — one for the private stations and another for the CBC.

The government white paper on proposed broadcasting changes would put the Board of Broadcast Governors firmly in control of both.

The president also suggested one more committee on broadcasting might prove useful—one to find out just what contribution was made by all the previous studies.

"If you need a volunteer to chair this committee, my services should be available before the year is over—perhaps even this afternoon."

Seek New Prison for Nelson Area

Castlegar . . .

Council Criticizes Regional District

CASTLEGAR — Procedures adopted for the hiring of a full-time secretary-treasurer by the Central Kootenay Regional District came under fire at a special meeting of Castlegar Town Council this week.

Grave concern over the manner in which advertising o fthe post was initiated by the board was expressed by Ald. Lorne Zinio, council representative to the Regional District Board.

He said that there were many, many faults to be found in the procedures adopted. First of all, he said, not nearly enough time was given for applicants to consider the position.

Mayor Robert Maddocks summed up the feelings of council. "A man extremely well-versed and experienced in the municipal field is required," he said.

Councillors pointed out that the Provincial government is giving more and more authority to the Regional District and therefore, "The caliber of senior staff is a matter of extreme importance and concern."

Mr. Maddocks declared "It is important that a man be appointed that has the full confidence of the participating municipalities and areas."

He told the meeting that he lacked confidence in the present part-time secretary-treasurer. "I don't feel that he has the necessary qualifications nor the length of experience in this field to fit him for the responsibilities that he will have to undertake," he said.

Council asked Ald. Zinion to fully consider the feelings of council before casting any ballots on an appointment to the position.

A great deal of criticism was voiced over the choice of the Regional District of a publication in which to advertise the position.

It was pointed out that the bulletin of the Municipal Officers' Association of B.C. was nothing more than a news letter, that no charge was made for insertions, that the circulation was very limited, and that there was no set publication date.

Taghum Area Resident Dies

Luka Bubas, well known resident of the Taghum area, died in Nelson Wednesday, aged 67 years.

He was born in 1899 at Jospic, Yugoslavia. He immigrated to Canada shortly after the First World War and worked for a short time in Eastern Canada before coming to the Nelson area. Here he was engaged in the mining industry and had worked in a number of mines here and at Brittania mines at the coast.

He married the former Mary Barisoff here in 1942. For the past several years Mr. Bubas was employed in the construction field. He is survived by his wife, and one son Nick of Vancouver, a brother Mike of Chicago and two daughters, Miss Katherine and Mrs. Anne Ratovich in the old country.

Court Report Had Error

The report of the case against RCMP Constable Robert Stephens carried in Thursday's edition of the Nelson Daily News of evidence given on Wednesday by Dennis H. Helbecque stated in error that Helbecque told the court he saw Stephens in the back of Taghum Store "having a drink with everyone else there."

Mr. Helbecque had not referred to the Taghum Store, but had referred to another business premise in Taghum.

The Nelson Daily News apologizes for the error and regrets any inconvenience it may have caused.

HILARIOUS MOMENT FROM BLITHE SPIRIT OPENER

Show Opener Hilarious But Turnout Lacking

Dabbling in the occult can prove disconcerting to say the least when, at a seance, a former wife is called from the spirit world into the home of her former husband and his second wife.

The hilarious sequences that ensued were superbly presented by a splendid cast as the Nelson Little Theatre presented Noel Coward's "Blithe Spirit."

It was unfortunate there was such a poor house for this admirable local effort, which is being presented again this evening.

"Is there anyone there? Is there anyone there? One rap for yes, two for no." This was the cry of Madam Arcati as she attempted to reach the spirit world and succeeded admirably, but found it even more difficult to undo that which she had accomplished.

Outstanding in this part was Olwen MacGregor, whose every word and gesture created this fascinating character. Her excellent diction and wonderful sense of drama made her unforgettable in this part.

Charles, as the distraught husband was played with splendid plausibility by Steve Rey. His wife, Ruth, portrayed by Georgie Hamson, behaved exactly as a wife would when she finds the ghost of her husband's first wife has moved into her home, that he can see her and talk with her and she can't.

Dr. and Mrs. Bradman played by Dennis Bannert and Ann Dahlquist, parties to the fatal seance also played their parts well as the scoffers at such stuff and nonsense.

Pat Trickett, as the maid did justice to her role in a house gone slightly mad.

Gunne Clegg as the irrepressible "blithe spirit" was excellent in her role as Elvira and created as much mischief as she possibly could under the strange circumstances.

It was a thoroughly delightful farce, admirably played and deserving of a far larger audience. It moved swiftly from scene to scene and being always in the living room setting there were no long waits for scene changes.

The 3-act play was directed by Mae MacFarlane. Jane Steed, Alice Laine and Nicki Schiesser were in charge of properties and Dick Bradshaw and Dave Pearce, the stage set. The cast, assisted by Lou MacMillan, handled the costumes and the Trafalgar Drama Students were in charge of lighting. Jack Reid and Pat Rooney provided the sound effects and Doreen Pearce was in charge of make-up.

Marie Bradshaw handled publicity, tickets and program, Peter Mills, posters and program design and Shelley Ann, the hair styles.

S. T. Rogers gave the introductory remarks.

Gilker Baby Laid to Rest

Rev. D. D. Wiebe of the First Baptist Church conducted funeral services for two-month-old Grant Douglas Gilker at Thompson Funeral Home, Thursday.

Mrs. W. A. Manson was organist and the hymn was "Safe in the Arms of Jesus."

Interment was in Nelson Memorial Park.

Bryden Sparks Chamber Study

Taxation study initiated by the Kootenay-Boundary Chambers of Commerce was sparked in part by comments of a delegate to the annual meeting, James Bryden of Trail.

Mr. Bryden said he felt that industry was paying an unfairly heavy part of the tax burden, in speaking on behalf of industry.

The British Columbia Mining Association brief being presented to Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell, had for instance, pointed out that an association member, Cominco Ltd., was paying 92.7 per cent of the taxes in one of the electoral areas in the East Kootenay Regional District in which Cominco plants are situated.

The Chambers set up a committee to study the levels of taxation of industry in the area.

Nelson Socreds Present Brief to Robert Bonner

By DON KOLFAGE
Editorial Director, The News

A concentrated drive to obtain a proposed new Provincial prison for the Nelson area has been launched with Attorney-General Robert Bonner by the Nelson Social Credit Group.

Mrs. Edith Van Maarion confirmed Thursday that a brief has been presented to Mr. Bonner, and that a copy has been forwarded to Provincial Secretary Wes Black, asking that the proposed new prison be located in the Nelson area.

Mrs. Van Maarian said that two logical sites for the prison were suggested in the brief, one west and the other east of the city.

The Attorney-General last week announced plans for a new prison to be located in the B.C. interior, and probably in the Kootenays.

The Socred brief reminded the government that it was understood at the time the Nelson Gaol was closed that should the Provincial Government find it necessary to build another prison that it would be located in the Nelson area.

Mrs. Van Maarian said the brief pointed out that the city of Nelson has the adjunct facilities for a Provincial prison, the RCMP headquarters here, the County court house, plus extremely pleasant living conditions for the resident staff.

She said that both of the sites recommended consist of more than 200 acres, and would provide adequate ground area, not only for the prison buildings, but for such necessities as farming areas and gardens, as well as other necessary buildings.

"Nelson is geographically the central location of the interior," Mrs. Van Maarian said.

She noted that with the prison located in either of the areas mentioned that the permanent staff would utilize the commercial facilities offered by the city of Nelson, and would thereby provide a boon to the city's overall business picture.

STEPHENS CASE ENDS, VERDICT MARCH 23

Two months of court battle ended Thursday for Robert Stephens, Nelson RCMP constable originally charged with failing to remain at the scene of an accident and impaired driving.

All is over but the waiting.

With the hit and run charge dropped earlier in the week, decision on the sole count of impaired driving now rests in the hands of Magistrate William Evans. The verdict will be announced Wednesday, March 23.

Both charges arose from an incident on the Taghum bridge about five miles from Nelson on Christmas day.

Hospital Needs Staff Housing

Kootenay Lake General Hospital administrator Procter noted the immediate need for staff housing, in a letter to council recently.

He recalled that when built in 1959, it was constructed "on the basis of shortage so as to assure it would be constantly filled." But "neither private nor business developments have occurred to provide housing facilities of the number or nature required by trained health service field personnel."

"Dr. Helen K. Mussallam, Executive Director of the Canadian Nurses' Association, last year reported 61 per cent of all hospital staff nurses changed their jobs during 1965, and that this trend was continuing."

"The hospital has actually recruited nurses who have failed to remain when adequate housing was not immediately available. The hospital is aware that 14 nurses will be leaving to travel or change their jobs during the period February to September."

In light of these facts, he continued, extensions to existing staff homes will be made.

Bennett Remarks Draw Criticism

Union of British Columbia Municipalities president H. J. Gardner launched a campaign to have allegations made by Premier Bennett concerning misuse of government grants, stopped.

The statements were made in the Legislature in early March.

As was stated in a UBCM letter sent to all member municipalities including Nelson recently, that the president sent two telegrams, one to Mr. Bennett and another to minister of municipal affairs Dan Campbell concerning the incident.

The communication to Mr. Bennett read as follows:

"All municipalities shocked at your statement to the Legislature that they are misusing government grants. In our opinion there is no foundation for such a statement. Request that you immediately name the municipalities you are accusing or else retract this alarming statement. Surely you must realize the implication of making such a broad statement brands all municipal people as dishonest."

His second telegram, to Mr. Campbell said:

"Have wired the Premier as follows qoute "(as above)" will you please help to head off what could develop into an extremely serious breach of the existing good relations between the government and ourselves."

Gavel Due Here On March 30

British Columbia's Centennial Travelling Gavel will make a stop at Nelson March 30 on its tour throughout the province.

Accompanying the gavel will be a book in which the name of each municipality and the date of the meeting will be recorded. The gavel is to be used at an officially constituted meeting of each council.

Silverton mayor has been asked to transport the gavel for official presentaton to Nelson Council. Mayor Maglio, in turn, was asked by the B.C. Centennial Committee to take the gavel to Salmo the next stop on its route.

Funeral Held For J. C. Boyce

Funeral services for John Calvin Boyce were conducted by Archdeacon F. D. Wyatt at Thompson Funeral Home Wednesday. Mrs. W. A. Manson was at the organ.

Hymns were Psalm XXIII and "The Day Thou Gavest Lord, Is Ended."

Honorary pallbearers were W. A. Manson, J. E. Dale, O. G. Macintyre, W. A. Houck and S. Linton.

Cremation followed

Mr. Boyce, a longtime Nelson resident, died Monday, aged 64 years.

Pollution Is World-Wide, Jaycees Told

"Pollution is all over the world, not just in Nelson, and everyone is beginning to worry about it," warned Mr. McEwen, speaking at Nelson Jaycees regular meeting Wednesday night.

"This is why we organized the Nelson Pollution Control Committee," he said, "to keep our finger on the pulse and help industry with the problem if possible."

Concerning industrial institution of processing plants, he voiced his conviction that "architects should put them in original plans," instead of having them instituted later at a much costlier price. He noted further that Nelson by law must have such a sewage treatment plant by 1969, and that much money could have been saved had it been allowed for in original city plans.

"We can't say let's look for more economic methods in the future, as the costs are increasing yearly."

During a tour of eastern Canada last year, Mr. McEwen saw some startling results from pollution. "Lake Erie is dead, and they are seriously thinking of closing Niagara Falls, a tourist centre of the east because it is becoming a health hazard," he noted.

"If we are going to have a democracy, then let's govern it right, not ruin it."

Mr. McEwen recalled the marked development of pollution on Kootenay Lake. Fishing became very poor in the whole central portion of Kootenay Lake in the early 50's. Meanwhile, people on "the arm" in places like Procter and Balfour, were getting water from the river.

About 1958, Mr. McEwen reflected, people began complaining that they were unable to keep their intakes clean because of growth in the water. "But no one was trying to find out where this pollution was coming from," and it has evolved to its present polluted state.

Close Watch Being Kept On Nelson School Patrols

School patrols are to be watched closely for the next two weeks Const. R. J. Hall reports, with particular attention being neatness of dress and efficiency of the patrols on the street.

Good marks could mean a trip to Ottawa for some boy or girl as Nelson's representative of 12 going from B.C.

A letter has been received from the B.C. Automobile Association saying it is having a jamboree in Ottawa May 18-21, at which time it anticipates attendance of an estimated 5000 pupils representing school safety patrols across Canada and the United States.

Nelson's representative will go to Ottawa for the three days, all expenses paid, where he or she will be meeting and associating with all the other school safety patrolmen.

There will be tours of the Parliament buildings, the city and area's points of interest, and they will attend a special afternoon circus.

All this is in appreciation of the work of the school patrols in stressing safety in crosswalks, Const. Hall reports.

A competition, of which he will be the judge, is being held in various elementary schools in Nelson to select the best representative for Nelson. The competition will consist of writing an essay on school patrol benefits and duties.

The competition will be narrowed down to six finalists at which time these six will be given a personal interview when they will be questioned on their knowledge of safety in regard to school patrol duties.

Nelson's representative will be flown to Vancouver where he will meet the 11 other B.C. representatives and all will be taken by jet to Ottawa, the trip being chaperoned.

It is planned to have this as an annual affair. Winner of the contest is to be announced around April 6, Const. Hall said.

Logging by Sleigh In the Good Old Days

Sleigh hauling of logs was a common thing in the Nakusp area in the good old days. This old photograph . . . circa 1914, was supplied to the Nelson Daily News by Sydney Hutcheson, amateur historian and resident of Balfour. The identity of the men is not known, but the photograph will recall fond memories to many of the area's old-timers.

Inter-Club Held . . . . . At Silverton

It Was Keith for Chief as Kinsmen Meet

SILVERTON — "Keith for Chief!" was the slogan of the Nakusp Kinsmen Club as they paid an inter-club visit to the Kinsmen Club of New Denver-Silverton.

Twenty-three Kinsmen of Nakusp and 17 members of the New Denver-Silverton Kinsmen Club were in attendance for this initiation night. Vice-president Harry Hudyma, who was in the chair, welcomed the two newest members into the club, Walter Welch and Dave Turner.

One minute's silence was observed in memory of the late Governor-General Georges Vanier.

Colin Stewart reported that the Teen and Twenty Club had elected officers and would be holding a dance.

Skip Hayden reported on the service club signs, which were progressing satisfactorily, and hoped to have these up before the end of next month.

Chairman Don Silzer advised the club that he had received further information on ice plants for artificial ice for the curling rinks and that more information is forthcoming.

Dave Turner volunteered to be parks chairman for New Denver and Ian McLeod to be parks chairman for Silverton.

The Kootenay's 1967 spring zone meeting is to be hosted by the Kinsmen Club of Castlegar-Kinnaird for the first time and will take place at Kinnaird on April 1 and 2 with district governor Bill Reid in attendance.

Fred Johnson of Nakusp gave a speech on Keith Robertson of Nakusp, who will be their candidate for deputy governor for the Kootenay zone and wished the New Denver-Silverton club would back them up and vote for him. Mr. Robertson, who is employed by Celgar Ltd. as a forester, has been in the Nakusp Kinsmen Club for 4½ years, holding various positions, and has attended every convention since joining the Kinsmen Club.

Members initiated during the evening's ceremony were Roy Abey, Dave Turner, Ernie Baja, Jim Hicks, Mehandar Singh, Walter Welch, Dave Norris, Don Silzer and Wally Leszczyzen. Another new member, Boris Krevesky, could not be in attendance.

Chairman Hudyma welcomed the members into the club and each member was presented a Kin pin, dinner badge and booklets. Mr. Hudyma said, "The Kinsmen Club of New Denver-Silverton has had a few rough and lean years in the past, but is today one of the strongest, fastest-growing clubs in District 5. From a year ago, with a membership of eight, the club membership has increased to 20 at present, and hopes to be further increased to about 25. The Kinsmen Club is the only service club in the communities of New Denver and Silverton and so the responsibility of looking after the needs of these villages falls squarely and almost wholly on the shoulders of this club."

It is hoped that the club would make an inter-club visit to Nelson on March 28.

Mr. Hudyma thanked president Mac Falkiner and the Nakusp Kinsmen for their visit and hoped that in the near future the visit could be repaid.

New Scouting Program Launched

Venturer Companies Already Formed

An exciting new program has been introduced into Canadian Scouting and already sixty-six Companies of Venturer Scouts have been formed in British Columbia and the Yukon, servicing at the present time six hundred and five boys in the age range 14-17 years.

This new program, now under experimentation for an eighteen-month period, will give the young men in the program a chance of choosing, planning and running the activities of their Company. The suggested program covers experience areas in competence, cultural, exploration, fitness, service and vocational fields.

In order to assess the progress made to date and to deal further with implementation, promotion and the training of Venturer advisors, a conference of the executive staff of the Provincial Council and the eight Boy Scout Regions will be held on March 17.

Hugh R. Whitehead, chairman of the Venturer subcommittee of the National Council, will conduct the conference.

Mr. Whitehead, a former Cub and Scout in the Burnaby area is now an executive with Cyanamid of Canada and a resident of Pointe Claire, Quebec.

The introduction of the Venturer Program is just one phase of the new look in Scouting. Recently a five-star program for Wolf Cubs was introduced to update the program for boys 8-11.

A pilot project dealing with the boys from 11-14 is now underway in Peterborough, Ontario. The results of this pilot project will be helpful in bringing up to date the program for this age range of boys. A study committee is now working on the Rover Scout section for young men 17-23.

Garden Named To Head Trustees

KIMBERLEY — Murray Garden was Wednesday night named chairman of the board of trustees of Kimberley and District Hospital, replacing R. O. Millar, who has been transferred to Trail.

Doug Stewart is vice-chairman ,and Al Fabro treasurer. One new trustee, John H. Reid of Chapman Camp was elected by last night's annual meeting attended by 20 persons.

Average daily occupancy increased 4.4 per cent for adults and children, and .3 per cent for new-borns. Births dropped from 151 to 136. Based on a 10 minute unit period, laboratory examinations showed a 6718 unit increase. X-rays increased by 1,037. Operations were up by 175, and out patients increased by 852. An operating surplus of $929 was reported, making 1966 the second successive year the hospital has shown a profit.

Centennial Gavel Making the Rounds

The British Columbia Centennial Committee's "Travelling Gavel" neared the half-way mark on its 5700 mile journey through the province when it reached Salmon Arm, March 6.

The Gavel was especially carved for the Provincial Centennial Committee as its tribute to the municipalities and will be used at officially constituted meetings of every municipality in British Columbia.

Up to March 6, the Gavel had been used to call to order meetings in 47 Cities, Districts, Towns and Villages.

When its journeys are finished at Victoria on June 22, the Gavel will have been used in 127 communities.

During the first half of its travel throughout the Province, it has been used to convene joint meetings in many municipalities.

"The Provincial Centennial Committee is most encouraged by the enthusiasm which has greeted the Centennial Gavel in each municipality," L. J. Wallace, general chairman, stated. "This is serving to unite the Province in marking the Centenary, and to encourage Centennial celebrations on a local basis."

For example, when the Gavel reached White Rock the entire Surrey Council delivered the Gavel and was invited to a dinner and "social evening" by the White Rock Council.

In the Dawson Creek, Pouce Coupe and Taylor area it travelled in a horse drawn cutter and was greeted by citizens in old time costumes recreating the mood of a century ago.

More modern means of transportation have been the standard for the movement of the Gavel, including automobile, rail and air.

Grand Forks . . .

Barkerville Well-Received

GRAND FORKS — The Best of Barkerville was presented to the Grand Forks district residents and was received with near capacity crowds.

The Barkerville group presented two shows to the public, one a matinee held primarily for students of the secondary school and an evening performance for the people unable to see it the first time. The performance was truly successful for it kept the crowd laughing and wondering what next was going to happen.

Cranbrook . . .

Set Pulp Mill Building Schedule

CRANBROOK — Resident engineer for consultants H. A. Simons Ltd. in construction of the Crestbrook Timber Ltd. pulpmill at Skookumchuck, Gordon Lehto has prepared the construction schedule for the initial phases. The $33 million plant is committed to 350 tons a day production by 1969 with construction to continue at a similar cost from then toward 750 tons a day by 1971.

Contractor for the $152,000 construction workers accommodation at the site already started, 30 miles north of Cranbrook, Fabro Building and Supplies Ltd. crew of about two dozen carpenters and laborers are scheduled to have the cafeteria in use April 15, and the dining hall complete April 30.

Underground water, sewer and gas installations are scheduled for start by March 20, to be operating by June 15.

Frost at the relatively level site alongside the Kootenay River is deeper in the ground than was anticipated, but site preparation has been set to start March 20 toward grading and excavating, with pouring of concrete footings scheduled for early May.

Mr. Lehto has opened a trailer office at the site, and plans to establish his home in Cranbrook. Most of the hiring, which will be on an ascending rate as various phases develop, is being done through the Canada Manpower centre at Cranbrook.

Specifications are being circulated by the engineering firm for the main pulpmill building but tenders are still open on the project.

Building permit issued by Regional District of East Kootenay inspector Andrew Renaud to the engineering firm covering the 1967 construction plans estimated value at four million dollars.

Kimberley . . .

Mellor Funeral Service Held

KIMBERLEY — Funeral services were held Tuesday, March 14, for Mrs. Florence Shera Mellor, 88, a pioneer resident of Kimberley and Marysville, who passed away in Kimberley and District Hospital March 11.

She was born Florence Shera Moore on July 6, 1878 at, Rupert, Province of Quebec, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Moore, pioneers of that area.

As a young woman she came west to Winnipeg and then to the Kootenays, where she married Albert Mellor on Christmas Day, 1900, at Nelson.

Mr. and Mrs. Mellor made their home at Pilot Bay on Kootenay Lake from 1900 to 1902. In 1902 the family moved to Marysville, where Mrs. Mellor purchased the Frank McCabe General Store, which they operated until 1921. In 1919 the Mellors opened a branch store in Kimberley, in the premises now owned by the Hudson's Bay Co. They moved to their present location in 1921, building their home in Kimberley the same year.

From 1919 to 1921 this pioneer couple commuted between Marysville and Kimberley by horse and buggy. Mrs. Mellor took an active part in both communities over the years. Besides raising their family, she was an industrious worker for the United Church, and worked along with her husband in the store. Following his death in 1939, she took over operation of Mellor's store until retiring in 1957, when Mrs. Edith Mellor became manager, assisted by her brother Earl. In 1958 Mrs. Mellor moved to Vancouver, where she lived until returning to make her home here with her daughter last September.

Surviving are one daughter, Edith, Kimberley; two brothers, Harry Moore of Vancouver and Percy Moore of Portland, Ore.; and three sisters, Mrs. Fred Clark of Montreal, Mrs. Abbey Darnell and Mrs. Dolly Applegarth, both of Vancouver. There are seven grandchildren, 18 great-grandchildren and one great-great-grandson. Besides her husband, Mrs. Mellor was predeceased by both her sons, Earl in 1957 and Percy in 1966.

Logging Operations Annoy Residents

MIDWAY (Staff) — Area residents are up in arms over logging operations on a hill opposite the town, but are powerless to stop it.

Tree removal operations were commenced Sunday, March 5 under direction of Patric Forcier. He will be skidding the timbers, destined for Boundary sawmills over the land of two local ranchers. They have given full approval to the project, happy to have the trees removed.

A forester in the area noted that if left alone, the chances of the trees spreading over a larger area would be good.

He noted the risk of erosion the removal of the trees would present. If the land were Crown owned, logging in the area would most certainly not be permitted, as it includes the only watercourse on the hill in question, he continued. Mr. Forcier said he intended to remove at least 40 yellow pine from the area.

Fernie . . .

Expect School Tenders Soon

FERNIE (Staff)—Three School Board school tenders are expected to be called in the near future.

They include, the new Industrial Education and Home Economics wing slated for Sparwood School; an Industrial Education addition to Fernie Elementary-Secondary School and an elementary school at Sparwood.

Fernie Industrial addition will be experiencing a recall for tenders, necessitated by the changing costs of building since last year.

MLA Leo Nimsick recently informed the school board that he had been talking to the Minister of Education, Mr. L. Peterson regarding the new school.

Cranbrook . . .

Former Logger Dies Aged 84

CRANBROOK — Andrew John Wall, who had lived at Shaw's Rest Home recently, died suddenly Sunday at the age of 84 years. He was a logger and miner in this district since 1920 to retirement in 1948.

Mr. Wall was born in Ockebor, Sweden, and came to Canada in 1907 and British Columbia as a young man. He was a veteran of service in the First World War in the Canadian Army. Rev. Allistair Macintosh conducted the funeral Thursday with burial in Royal Canadian Legion cemetery.

He had no relatives in this district.

Grand Forks . . .

Students Return From Coast Trip

GRAND FORKS — Five students from Grand Forks Secondary School recently returned from an expenses-paid trip to Victoria and Vancouver.

The five, P. Malakoff, M. Lorenz, M. Magarry, J. Kazakoff and Fred Wolfram, visited the Parliament Buildings and nearby universities.

The students were supervised by secondary school vice-principal L. Morrison. They plan talks on their trip to Victoria and will present them to the senior students of the school.

While visiting in Vancouver, they were shown through the University of B.C., Simon Fraser University and the B.C. Technological Institute.

The trip was financed partially by the school board and student council.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Fraser Valley municipal leaders said Monday they do not think the Fraser River will overflow its banks this spring. In a telephone poll, officials said they're sure the dikes along the river can stand a sudden, high runoff.

Nakusp . . .

Undertake Major Capital Programs

NAKUSP (Staff) — Development district here will undertake two major capital programs during the coming year.

As was reported at the recent district annual meeting, three hydrants will be installed, one between Marshall's Hill, Twin Valley on Highway 6, and the others in the downtown area.

The NDD voted to undertake the replacement of a four inch pipeline in the White corner to Swigarts corner area, with six inch mains.

Also to be undertaken, under works foreman Reg White, is the removal of mains and valves in the Bay Street area, because of pending waterfront development .

H. G. Gardner defeated William Moseley, and D. Blyth to take the chairmanship, formerly held by Mr. Moseley.

Expenditures totalling $27,000, topped revenue by $7,952, it was reported in the financial statement. A large portion of the indebtedness was to a $3,000 tax bill carried over from the year previous.

Commissioner Nixon noted that an engineer's study of the proposed pressure pump placement at the highway bridge for the purpose of turning water from Kuskanax Creek into the village supply, revealed a cost estimate of $21,000.

Cranbrook . . .

Olive Funeral Service Held

CRANBROOK — Rev. Don Anderson conducted funeral rites at Christ Church Wednesday at 4 p.m. for Thomas Weldon Olive, who died Sunday at St. Eugene Hospital after a long illness. He was 55 years old.

Mr. Olive was born at Carp, Ont. and grew up there. He came west to the Windermere Valley in 1945, and three years later to Cranbrook where he became a railway carman. He was active in Christ Church parish affairs.

Surviving him are his wife Catherine, sons Harvey, Colin and Ian, and daughters Vera and Rita, all at their home at 125 Seventh Avenue.

Burial in Westlawn will follow the funeral service.

Man Jailed After Fight In Trail Home

TRAIL — Charge of wounding with intent to commit bodily harm arose from a brawl here late Tuesday night in which a man and his wife were badly slashed by a broken wine bottle.

Donald Letendre of Fort McMurray, Alberta, pleaded not guilty and was found guilty by Magistrate Parker Williams and sentenced to two years in the B.C. Penitentiary Wednesday. The charge carries a possible 14-year sentence. It arose from an incident in a Trail home.

Clifford Bechard of Trail became involved in a fight with Letendre, who took up the wine bottle, breaking it and using it as a weapon, court was told.

Bechard's wife Dorothy tried to help her husband and also received cuts. Bechard required about 20 stitches to close a number of deep cuts on his body. Police noted that one cut, about six inches long was so deep it went down to the bone.

Social Credit And the Future

The resignation of Robert Thompson as national leader of the Social Credit party will give the party an opportunity to reorganize. It badly needs reorganization if it is to hold its tenuous position in the House of Commons. It is a splinter party but, in the last few years, splinters have developed in the splinter, reducing it to something less than a credible political unit.

The major problem in the party was the alienation of the Western wing from the Quebec wing; the split between the Raillement de Creditistes and the so-called national party. This was partly a question of personalities. On one side, the stumbling block to unification seemed to be the member for Lapointe, Mr. Gilles Gregoire. He has now left the Creditistes to sit alone. The other roadblock, apparently, was Mr. Thompson himself. Now he has resigned.

Mr. Thompson led the party through three general elections. He had no notable success in reviving interest in the party as a national force, even in the Western provinces where it has its deepest roots. Mr. Thompson is a man of considerable personal qualities. His knowledge of Africa and his service there, particularly in Ethiopia, has earned him respect. His sincerity and integrity have never been in doubt. But he lacked the dynamism needed for effective political leadership.

Where will Social Credit go now? Where, indeed, can it go?

It started as a radical conservative movement in Western Canada in the 1930s. The radicalism has all but disappeared. Social Credit governments have ruled Alberta since 1935 and British Columbia since 1952. They both are generally conservative regimes (despite Mr. Bennett's erratic ways), and highly successful ones.

The Social Credit parties in Alberta and British Columbia successfully fill a political vacuum on the right in those provinces. Perhaps the reason why the party has been largely unsuccessful in breaking much new ground, either federally or provincially, outside these two provinces is that the various provincial conservative parties have filled the needs, whereas in federal politics conservatism has found a place (even if at times unhappily) in both the main parties.

The one exception, of course, in breaking new ground was the extraordinary success of the Raillement de Creditistes in Quebec in the 1962 federal election, when the party elected 26 members. But here too the Creditiste success came at a time when there was a political vacuum on the right in this province. Provincially, at least, the vacuum is no longer there.

Nevertheless, if the Quebec wing and the western wing do work out their differences in the next few months, the party's future would be much brighter. And it would be much brighter still if the national Progressive Conservative Party fails to rally in the next six months and regroup its disparate elements.

Regrouping the western and eastern wings of the Social Credit party seems like a distinct possibility. But the chances of the Progressive Conservative Party disintegrating, despite the internal bickering of the past few months, seems remote.

The party has relied on vacuums. But if it is true, as Alberta's Premier E. C. Manning contends, that there may be a vacuum on the right in federal politics, the Social Credit party, at least under that name, cannot hope to fill it.

The principal problem in the way of its success in Ontario and elsewhere is its name and its doctrine, neither of which anybody takes seriously. Indeed, attempts in Alberta to put Social Credit theories of the late Major C. H. Douglas into practice in the late 1930s and mid 1940s were ludicrously unsuccessful. The laws were declared ultra vires or illegal by higher courts. No new attempts have been made.

It would seem, then, that the future of the Social Credit party on the national scene may well lie in a coalition of some sort to produce a party of the right. In the next few months the chance may arise. But the future of the party under its present name, even with a new leader, even with a reunion of the west and east, and even with a reorganization of the party's structure does not look bright.—Montreal Gazette.

Trapped by the System

Francisco Lombardo would be happy to send his three children to the public school just around the corner from his home on Goldsboro Road in North York. But education is a highly organized business these days, dedicated unswervingly to system, orderliness and methodical application of the rules, and it is naive to think there might be simple solutions to simple problems.

This explains why, starting this week, Mr. Lombardo's children are being driven by taxi daily to St. Jude's Separate School, about 2½ miles from their home. They have not attended any school during the past four month, during which time the school authorities have wrestled with the enormous difficulties of transferring Mr. Lombardo's name from the roll of separate school supporters to that of public school supporters.

Since he moved to his present address, Mr. Lombardo has been ready to make the change so that his children could go to the neighborhood public school, but the system said no — and this, of course, is a much more powerful refusal than one from an individual or even one from an entire board of education.

It should not be supposed, because Mr. Lombardo's children are now attending school, that the system was beaten. Gordon Risk, a former trustee; Elvio Del Zotto, an Italian lawyer; and Daniel Iannuzzi, a member of the Italian press in Toronto, have agreed to help finance the taxi service.

Theirs is a gallant gesture, but should we not find it shameful that, in an age of lightning-fast computers, sophisticated forms of local government, social concern and acceptance of the need for universal education, this was the best answer that could be found?—Globe & Mail.

Ottawa Offbeat

By RICHARD JACKSON
Nelson Daily News Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA — Two not-so-funny things happened the other day on Parliament Hill.

And happened coincidentally—which gave them all that much more impact.

Happening No. 1: The Commons was told — with the widely-recognized and well-established authority of Auditor General Maxwell Henderson — that government waste and extravagance is costing Canadians annually additional millions of tax dollars.

Happening No. 2: The Commons-Senate Committee on Consumer Costs was told — with the similarly widely-recognized and well-established authority of the Canadian Economic Foundation — that government taxes are largely to blame for the ever-rapid rise in prices.

So the poor, patient taxpayer is getting it both ways, coming and going . . . with the government wasting his tax dollars while driving up prices with those same taxes.

After 26 years of continuous Parliament - watching from a daily front-row Commons Gallery pew, you begin to get the idea that Auditors General come and Auditors General go, but the big bureaucratic spenders go on forever.

OLD - FASHIONED

Economy in government — especially the high-tax federal administration — long has been out of style.

Perhaps it never really was "in" politically.

But it became outlandishly unfashionable soon after John Diefenbaker in 1957 awakened the Conservatives from their 22-year out-of-power sleep, and the great promise - anything giveaway race for the Welfare State got started for real between the Grits and the Tories.

Think for a minute — can you remember any recent Federal election in which there was even a hint of economy or tax-trimming amid all the bigger and better spending promises?

So?.

As old C. D "Trader" Howe was quoted as saying back in the mid-'50s when he was running Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent's government, "What's a million?"

You've been getting the playback on that one ever since from the Federal government: "Nothing, really."

Except that every year the Auditor General raises a little well-mannered cain, the Opposition scolds the Cabinet, the Commons Public Accounts Committee investigates a few of the more bizarre cases of waste, everybody happy-go-luckily forgets all about it, the big bureaucratic spenders romp on with their adventures in extravagance, and up go the taxes taking prices with them.

You know the kind of stuff the Auditor General digs up:

*The CBC paying out better than half a million for work not performed.

*The Public Works Department generously leasing at $1 a year government property not declared surplus.

HEADING FOR HALF

*The Industries Department paying $103,000 for 42,064 hours not worked by compositors at the Queen's Printers.

*The Public Works Department paying $39,182 in penalties for a $604,732 building contract not let on time.

*The Public Accounts Committee letting more tax millions be wasted by not probing three-quarters of the cases of waste and extravagance exposed two years ago by the auditor-general.

Big waste, little waste, a hundred dollars here, a hundred thousand there . . . who cares?

Obviously not enough care enough — except for a fleeting moment of irritation at federal income tax time — that anything much is ever done about it.

But look at it this way: the way big government works, the more it spends, the more it wastes, the more it taxes.

And mull over these financial home-truths spelled out by the Canadian Economic Foundation to the Commons-Senate Consumer Costs Committee which has been travelling the nation investigating the upwhirling price spiral:

*Twenty years ago the government — all levels of public administraton — took 20 tax cents out of every one of your income dollars.

*Currently government — and the federal administration gets the biggest grab — takes 37.2 tax cents out of each of your income dollars.

*While the government's tax share of national income soared those 17.2 percentage points, average after-tax income upcrept 1.6 points.

*By far the biggest part of the price increase is the built-in rising cost of taxes.

Speech Lessons

NEW YORK (AP) — William Gargan, the old movie tough guy, grabbed a grey-haired man by his coat lapels and began coaxing the words out of him.

"You can belch it up, you can breathe it up," Gargan growled. The man tried, a thin vacuumed sound rising from deep in his chest. Gargan let his hands drop and smiled.

He had just guided Bill Howe, whose cancerous larynx was removed five weeks ago, into something like speech. Gargan, now 61, lost his private eye rasp in a similar operation five years ago.

Now he speaks in a rumbling but clear voice, and spends his time convincing other people whose voice boxes have been removed — they are called laryngects—that they too can talk.

"I feel right in character with my hands on someone's throat," Gargan said. "It's good to be able to choke a guy once again."

But he didn't laugh. He can't. Nor can he whistle, sing, smell or taste.

"It was murder at first," he said. "I felt tremendous bitterness. But that changed and the more I talk the easier it is. It's like a machine — you have to warm it up. With a little scotch and soda in me, you can't shut me up."

Gargan said there are about 25,000 to 30,000 people in the United States faced with the same voiceless problem.

Until a few years ago they forgot about normal conversation, and were resigned to expressing themselves in shrill whispers.

Drought Hits Wheat

By RALPH JOSEPH
Canadian Press Correspondent

KARACHI (CP) — A prolonged winter drought, the third in three years, has blighted Pakistan's wheat crop and complicated the nation's problem of feeding itself.

Pakistan's annual wheat requirement is 6,000,000 tons—or 120,000,000 bushels — and because of the drought President Ayub Khan says farmers may bring in a crop of only 4,200,000 tons in April.

His estimate is probably an optimistic one for home consumption, intended to belay panic price rises.

Last year's harvest was only 3,500,000 tons, and it was at first officially stated to be a little more than that. This didn't prevent prices from doubling locally, reaching a level four times as high as in parts of the world with wheat surpluses.

The ground was hard and dry in some of the wheat-growing areas I visited in February. Some 60 to 70 per cent of these regions depend almost entirely on rain.

The stoney - eyed farmers looked heavenwards and prayed for even a light shower for the crops. They couldn't believe the drought was anything but God's wrath. Divine displeasure seemed evident when frost destroyed crops in some areas and power failures caused tubewells to stop working in others.

TROUBLE CONFOUNDED

It was all the more disheartening because the food crisis caused by last year's drought is not quite over.

In Harnai, a little town in the Baluchistan hills, I happened to be present when the manager of the area's only factory was frantically telephoning the district headquarters 60 miles away for more food for the town.

He was talking to the deputy commissioner who asked him to call the food controller. When he reached the food controller he was referred back to the deputy commissioner.

"That's the way it is," he told me, looking disgusted.

I tried to console him.

"You're getting wheat at 30 rupees a maund here, I see. I've been to places where it is selling at 40 to 45 rupees a maund."

"Thirty rupees—when I get it!" he retorted. Then he pointed out of the window.

"You see how poor these people are. How can a man who earns hardly 60 rupees a month be expected to pay 30 rupees a maund for wheat alone?"

A maund is 82 pounds, about as much as an average-sized family could scrape along with for a month.

SHOPPING ABROAD

President Ayub has once again begun shopping in the world market to meet next year's crisis. Some 10,000,000 bushels of wheat under the latest purchases will begin arriving in June. To make sure they get to the interior in time the president has ordered officials at Karachi, West Pakistan's only port, to keep the docks working round the clock seven days a week.

What heightens the crisis is that purchases from the United States, as of last year, must be paid for in dollars instead of local currency under President Johnson's Food for Freedom policy.

As President Ayub has pointed out, this will mean Pakistan now must spend 1,000,000,000 rupees — about $227,000,000 Canadian — annually on food imports and give up valuable foreign exchange.

This could seriously slow down Pakistan's third five-year development plan, exchange for which is being procured with considerable heartache as it is.

Reacting to this, Ayub has altered some of the priorities of the plan, shifting more emphasis to agriculture. In fact, a kind of three-year plan for agriculture has been drawn up in hopes it will once and for all close the annual food gap.

ALWAYS SHORT

Even in normal years the gap runs to 1,500,000 tons for wheat alone, not to mention such other crops as rice and edible oils.

The plan is a modest one, but this is precisely why it ought to work. It blueprints a boost in foodgrains acreage, hustling along the pace of four new fertilizer factories already being built, stepping up rural electrification, sinking more tubewells and building 200 more small dams as quickly as funds become available.

By far the most important step, however, will be the introduction of the new "miracle" wheat, called Mexi-Pak.

This dwarf-sized hybrid, of Mexican and Pakistani parentage, can take a heavy load at the top because of its short, stout stem. It has shown a yield five times higher than the purely indigenous wheat plant.

But scientists who developed it at the agricultural research farm at Lyallpur prefer not to be too optimistic because the new plant has not yet developed enough resistance to the harsh local conditions.

They are expecting a yield of some 22 bushels an acre, which is 2½ times the purely indigenous yield.

This season there are 300,000 acres under Mexi - Pak wheat but they are intended more for seed-gathering than anything else. It won't be before next year that some 3,000,000 to 4,000,000 of the total wheat acreage of 14,000,000 can go under the hybrid.

Another problem is money. Rural credit needs stand at 3,000,000,000 rupees annually but government credit agencies have so far been able to advance only 250,000,000 to the farmers.

NANAIMO (CP)—Mayor Pete Maffeo said he will probably discuss with the Greater Nanaimo water board the possibility of a district-wide plebiscite on fluoridation.

Hands Eliminated

BURNABY, B.C. (CP) — At Simon Fraser University students don't have to raise their hands to ask the professor a question. The time - honored practice has been eliminated by a new electronic gadget.

On the arm of each desk in the lecture hall is a multi-positioned switch. The switches are connected to a master meter on the instructor's podium.

The switch and the professor's panel console have five positions marked A, B, C, D, and E. When the instructor asks a question, the students register their degree of comprehension electronically.

The electric signals give the lecturer an exact percentage of student comprehension. If his meter reads D or E, he goes over the subject matter until the meter tells him the students are up to snuff.

Dr. Brian Pate, head of SFU's chemistry department where the new system is being tried, says the electronic response system is on the "positive side" of the educational ledger.

"Now a student can keep his anonymity when indicating he hasn't grasped a point," said Dr. Pate.

"The system also enables the lecturer to pace his material according to the speed of the class and indicates to him whether the students are mastering his material."

He said the system will eventually be installed in other SFU lecture halls.

CIVIL DEFENCE

Survival of a nation in this age of nuclear weapons could depend on "self help." This, Civil Defence urges, would mean the acquiring of some elementary knowledge about first aid, home nursing, fire fighting, emergency cooking, and what stocks of food and water to have in the house.

March 17, 1967 . . .

The French government of Aristide Briand fell 50 years ago today—in 1917—after 18 months in office with the war news growing steadily worse. France was in chaos for eight months, with mutiny in the army and intrigue in government, before Georges Clemenceau, a radical journalist, came to power. Nicknamed "The Tiger," Clemenceau gave France the leadership needed to finish the war but he is also credited with insisting on heavy penalties against Germany in the Treaty of Versailles.

1845 — The Geological Survey of Canada was established.

1897 — Bob Fitzsimmons beat James J. Corbett for the world heavyweight boxing championship.

Guest Speaker Tells Of Mission Conference

The Evening Group of St. Saviour's Women met in the Mary Robertson room Monday with vice-president Mrs. Crozier-Smith in the chair.

The meeting opened with the devotional period taken from the Living Message. Leader was Archdeacon F. D. Wyatt and the reader Mrs. T. Dyson, with the group saying the responses.

A letter was read from the diocesan secretary of ACW asking for information on the women's group in the church, and one from Mrs. Eggleton enclosing copies of the World Day of Prayer service .

The Dorcas secretary, Mrs. S. Zabawa, gave a list of requisitions for the Indian school, pyjamas, mitts, aprons, stocking fillers or Christmas plastic toys and toothbrushes. These were divided up among the members to be turned in by the middle of May.

The social service secretary, Mrs. G. Beltner, reported that she had called on a newcomer. Visitors to Mount St. Francis will be Mrs. A. W. Moore and Mrs. S. Zabawa, and Mrs. H. Glock for the hospital.

The group was told of the rummage sale Saturday and asked to take contributions to the Memorial Hall, Mrs. Crozier-Smith reported that a package of church papers had been sent to Father T. Matheson at the Oxford Mission in Calcutta and a church calendar is also to be sent.

It was decided to adopt a suggestion and serve hot cross buns and beverages in the Memorial Hall after the 9:30 a.m. service Palm Sunday morning. An Easter card was signed by the members to be sent to Dean R. W. S. Brown.

Guest speaker was Mrs. K. Massey, who gave an informative talk on her visit to the Northwest Internation Mission Conference held in August. It took place in Salem, Oregon, at the Willamette University and she was delegate from the United Church Women in B.C. There were 70 Canadians out of 338 delegates. There were two themes, "Study of Canada" taken by Rev. K. G. McMillan, secretary of the Canadian Bible Society, who gave four addresses and "Affluence a Poverty—the Christian Dilemma."

Two addresses were given by Rev. W. E. Scholes of Golden, Colorado, who is western field secretary of the Poverty Committees of the National Council of Churches. The theme was continued by a colored Baptist minister who spoke of poverty in the urban areas and a Methodist minister on the board of missions who led the discussions on the Biblical teachings of poverty and riches. They all stressed the hopelessness of people who cannot even read and write and therefore can earn little money. Now a six-weeks reading course has been started to help them to read pamphlets on agriculture so they can improve their crops.

There were many interesting discussion groups on such subjects as the value of coffee houses and whether they are helpful in bringing the young people to church. Also why do some sects attract more people than the standard churches. There were a dozen young people there who had been chosen for their active church life. They put on plays and skits.

The next conference is planned for August, 1967, at the University of British Columbia. A vote of thanks was given Mrs. Massey by Mrs. Zabawa. Refreshments were served by Miss H. Rapley and Mrs. A. W. Moore.

News In New Knits

By ALICE ALDEN

DELIGHTFUL news on the knit front comes to us from Wool Associates, representing the woolknit industry. The news is in a mohair-and-wool soufflé which is soft, pretty, flattering and comes in radiant colors. This two-piece dress by Glosgo is done in the newest soufflé-links stitch. The short-sleeved pullover is topped with a contrasting turtleneck inset, and the lined skirt is slim and easy moving.

It is nice to know that the dress, which comes in a very wide range of colors, is knit in bouncy, wrinkle-shedding all-American mohair and wool.

DEAR HELOISE:

I have a great idea for an unloved shoe bag.

I took three pieces of pretty colored ribbon and attached the bag to the foot of our little baby's crib!

In the bag I placed: powder, oil, lotion, comb and brush, safety pins, baby's shoes and socks, etc.

Naturally, I fastened this bag to the outside of baby's crib where he couldn't reach it.

DEAR READERS:

Here's a wonderful way of handling those large packages of frozen peas.

If you're not going to use a whole package, hit the package of frozen peas on the edge of your drainboard until you feel them come loose and feel like a bag of marbles.

Then with your V-shaped can opener, punch a hole in one end of the package as if you were opening a can of juice. Pour out as few or as many peas as you want.

The rest of the frozen package can be replaced in your freezer until needed later.

P.S. This also works on bulk frozen peas which come in plastic bags. Just hit 'em flat on your drainboard and they pour like salt when it's NOT raining—

DEAR HELOISE:

At last I've found a use for the little circle of foam rubber from the center of a toe pad (such as you buy from a chiropodist).

Now I use it to cushion an earclip that is too tight. This little bit of rubber can be glued on the back of the clip or temporarily secured with a small piece of double-sided sticky tape.

Or better still, if I want to use the pad with different pairs of earclips . . . I just hold it to the back of the clip, press it to the front of my ear lobe and let the spring snap into place.

No more numb ear lobes.

DEAR HELOISE:

Here is a "jim-dandy" way to repair a man's worn-out pants pocket.

As soon as a thin place appears in the pocket, make an entire pocket by ironing on blue jean patch iron-on tape.

Be sure the pieces of tape are overlapping or eventually a hole will wear where they come together.

Do both sides in the same manner and let cool. Then, machine stitch across the bottom of the pocket through the tape.

If all surfaces of the pocket exposed to wear and tear are covered with iron-on tape in this manner, the pocket will outlast the pants.

Mrs. Wm. H. Holt

Mrs. Holt, thanks for this easy, lasting way to repair pants pockets.

After all, when our men work hard to earn money we don't want it lost through a hole in their pockets, do we?

Her Woven Hangings Pose Display Problem

HALIFAX (CP) — Wherever she lives Canadian artist Charlotte Lindgren always has to solve the problem of finding a suitable studio in which to display her woven hangings.

In Halifax she has solved the problem in an unusual way by buying a 100-year-old church on the outskirts of the city.

The church, nestling at the foot of a steep slope, is in Armdale. Originally built as a Presbyterian church, it now is used by the Plymouth Brethren, who agreed to sell it to Mrs. Lindgren.

"I was walking up the hill to my house one day, trying to think of where I could find a suitable place to hang my things, when I noticed the church," she said. "It is just at the foot of my garden and I realized it would make an ideal place in which to put the finished hangings."

At first Mrs. Lindgren rented three small rooms in the back of the church but then she decided to buy the building.

"I have to have high ceilings for my work and this is ideal," she said. "Some of my hangings are as much as 10 feet long, so you do need quite a large studio."

Members of the Plymouth Brethren will continue to use the church twice a week and Mrs. Lindgren will only use the small rooms at the back, which she plans to make into one large room.

Mrs. Lindgren, 35, is married to an architect and has two children. She holds a bachelor of science degree from the University of Toronto and first became interested in weaving when she studied at the University of Wisconsin.

Mrs. Lindgren weaves the hangings, which have been exhibited in many parts of the world, in her studio in Armdale.

"When they are finished, I hang them in the rooms in the church, but all my work is done at home."

Urge Becomes Irresistible When Spring Hats Appear

By MARGARET NESS

NEW YORK (CP)—No female whatever her age needs an excuse to shop for a new hat at any time of year. But the normal urge becomes almost irresistible at the merest whisperings of spring. A new hat will tide her over that last spurt of wintry weather and give a lift to drooping spirits.

This spring the Millinery Institute of America took for its theme—"This season there's a reason." The reasons include hats with matching accessories such as a scarf, gloves or umbrella; hats in flattering, lightweight fabrics; hats that are easy to pack for travel.

Of course, tourists off for a trip to Europe will need to take only one hat—for emergencies or for lunch and shopping in London's West End. The rest of Europe seems to be going more and more in a hatless state.

Bright colors are favored this spring. Lilly Dache displays them in a beret with swirling yellow-and-mauve stripes. Sally Victor uses clusters of gold-and-pink flowers in a back-riding tam effect.

The Sally Victor hat, incidentally, was modelled in the millinery show by Heather Hazell of Winnipeg, one of the top models used by the hat houses. Mr. John says she's one of the best and he always uses her for his pink champagne salon showings for press and socially prominent guests.

MATCHING STOLE

Mr. John showed a princess cap of striped silk in nasturtium orange - and - sunflower gold, banded by hand-crocheted lace in a gold mille fleurs design. There is a dramatic matching stole completely edged with the same wide band of lace.

He also included a high-crowned straw fedora in his popular-priced line, using white and wild rose pink in a checkerboard weave and banded and bowed in matching pink silk grosgrain.

Adolfo uses Moroccan striped silk in a sombrero of turquoise stripes, complete with matching parasol, and in a pouff coif of shocking stripes with matching shoulder scarf.

Silhouettes this spring feature brims. Many swoop up dramatically in front to show newly bangless foreheads. Lilly Dache uses pliable panama moulded back on itself in just such a manner, with the back brim plunging down to cover a suit collar.

Other large brims include the sombreros which are popular with spring coats.

Revived interest is shown in the padre, a shape like that worn by priests, with shallow crown and wide brim curling up at the sides.

LIKES HIGH CROWN

Mr. John prefers a combination of small brims and high crowns. Some even have chin ties. One high stovepipe crown has a visor front and turn-up back. When he does include a large brim it is likely to be a huge, floppy cartwheel. Some are worn straight on, others at an eye-shading tilt.

Emme is partial to Eastern headgear for spring and showed several adaptations of the fez, feminine versions of the hats worn by the men of Morocco.

Turbans are in this year. They have become an all-seasons hat, probably because they are flattering to most women and can be made in practically any fabric.

Berets are even more popular than last season when they staged a comeback. Emme does one style in linen in an orange houndstooth check. Another designer likes a multi-colored ribbon beret which is easy to pack. There's also a bubble beret by Mr. John but it's in straw and not for travel.

Even paper gets into the millinery act. Adolfo has a paper printed hat with a hug brim that droops to the shoulders in back.

HOLDEN LEADING

As was the case during the regular season, centreman Gail Holden has been setting the pace through the semi-final series. The Weyburn Red Wings graduate, recognized throughout the WIHL as its greatest competitor, has compiled seven goals and five assists in the four games for 12 points.

Goals for the second game are included, but the assists are unavailable and therefore not counted in these figures. All goals and assists from the other three games are included.

Buck Crawford is second to linemate Holden with eight points, split evenly between goals and assists. To show the value of the Crawford - Holden-Brian Russill line, Russill holds dow nthird spot. The left-winger was second to Holden during the season and now has five goals and one assist for six points.

Carl Chwachka and Corky Agar follow with records of three goals and one assist and Leroy Mowery also has four points, on two goals and two helpers.

Murray Owen, right - winger for Chwachka and Agar, is seventh with one goal and two assists as he isn't enjoying his best series.

Captain Hugh Hooker has one goal and one assist while defenceman Wally Chernenko and Rod Collins each have two assists. Gary McQuaid has one goal and one assist, Don Borgeson has one goal and defenceman Bill Steinke and Frank Arnett each have one assist.

The Leafs have taken their first step along the trail to the Allan Cup — their target this season — but the next one will be much harder. The Dynamiters and Jets will prove to be more of a challenge for the Nelson club than Trail.

Meet the Leafs

Wednesday night in Trail, Smoke Eater defenceman Harry Smith made one of his classic rushes up the ice. He got as far as the Nelson blueline before Maple Leaf defenceman Bill Steinke stepped into him and sent Smith flying. It wasn't the first time Smith had been hit, but this time it slowed him down.

That's the way it's been with Steinke. The 21-year-old blueliner, now in his third season with the Leafs, has made his presence felt around the Western International Hockey League with his crushing body checks.

Bill finished the 1966-'67 regular schedule with two goals and 25 assists in the offensive department — third in the scoring among Leaf defencemen behind Hugh Hooker and Frank Arnett — but his value has been on the defence.

BILL STEINKE

The 5'11", 186 pound blueliner, one of the younger players on the club, joined the Leafs under Bobby Kromm and played a role in their run to the Allan Cup finals in 1965.

A graduate of the Kamloops Rockets of the Okanagan Junior Hockey League, Steinke was immediately noticed by Seattle Totems of the Western Hockey League and has attended their training camp in the past.

This season the Leafs were hit by the loss of Stan Ruzicka on the blueline, and coach Arnett quickly inserted Wally Chernenko and Rod Collins into the defensive lineup. But the Nelson defence, while missing Ruzicka, has held together and this year combined with the goalies, limiting opposing teams to only 148 goals, by far the lowest total in the WIHL.

Steinke was one of the key defensive players responsible for the low total and figures prominently in the Leafs success and how far they will go this year

Brewer Will Play In World Tourney

By CARL MOLLINS

VIENNA (CP)—Canada's national hockey team got some good news Thursday when it was announced that Carl Brewer will be able to play in the world amateur championships beginning Saturday.

Brewer, former National Hockey League defenceman who is a key to Canada's hopes for regaining the world championship, suffered a bruised thigh muscle during an exhibition game and has been a questionable starter.

But coach Jackie McLeod said Thursday night that Brewer, who had waged a stubborn battle for reinstatement as an amateur so he could join the national team, will be in the lineup.

Earlier Thursday, McLeod said Brewer may be among the four players he will cut from the 22-man squad by Saturday to meet the player limit.

B.C. Versus Manitoba In Decider

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP) — British Columbia set the stage for a battle of the giants today with a narrow 8-6 win over Quebec Thursday night in the eighth round of the Royal Canadian Legion curling championships.

Skip Joe McKinnon of Kamloops now has a 6-1 won lost record and meets Manitoba, 7-0, in the final round. Manitoba had the bye in the round.

If the B.C. rink wins against Manitoba, it will force an extra game, to be played this afternoon, to decide the championship.

Gadsby Turns Down Offer From Stars

EDMONTON (CP) — Bill Gadsby said Thursday he has turned down an offer to coach Minnesota North Stars when they enter the National Hockey League next season in favor of a three-year renewal of his contract to coach Edmonton Oil Kings of the Canadian Major Junior Hockey League.

The 39-year-old veteran, who ended a 20-year career as an NHL defenceman last spring, said he received the Minnesota offer shortly after his retirement.

But he said he decided to stay in Edmonton, his off - season home since he graduated to pro hockey from the Junior Canadians in 1946.

"I appreciate the chance to coach an NHL club," he said. "But I've got a good challenge going right now with the Oil Kings. I enjoy working with the kids."

The Oil Kings, last year's Memorial Cup champions, are barred from defending their title because of a jurisdictional dispute between the CMJHL and the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association. They have clinched first place in their seven-team league.

Owner - manager Bill Hunter said Gadsby's new contract calls for a "sizable increase" and that he believes it will make him the best-paid junior coach in Canada.

"Old Pros" Visit Dennis; Fund Approaching $6500

Arnold Sherwood, chairman of the Dennis Chernenko Benefit Fund Campaign, last week informed the News of a donation received from the British Columbia Hockey Benevolent Association.

The association is operated by a group of "old pros" for professional players who need help and is well known around the country for its work.

The Association wasted no time when they were informed of the injury suffered to Dennis Cherenko of Nelson, The youngster, injured in a junior game in Fernie, remains in Vancouver hospital, paralyzed from the waist down. The association sent a cheque for $500 to the fund with wishes that Dennis' injuries will not be permanent.

But the association, with ex pros such as "Cyclone" Taylor "Babe" Pratt, Neil Colville, "Scotty" Milne, "Max" McNabb and others, didn't stop with the money help.

Taylor and Art Jefferd also paid a visit to the hospital to see Dennis and talk with him.

It was a great gesture from a group of "old pros" to a young amateur and shows the interest the group has in hockey at all levels.

Report from the hospital says that Dennis now has movement and feelings in his arms and hands but remains paralyzed below the waist.

Dennis left the hospital to see the game between New Westminster Royals and Trail Junior Smoke Eaters earlier this month and now can leave the hospital on occasions, in a wheelchair.

Sherwood also stated in his letter that the fund total is now approaching the $6500 mark.

DENNIS CHERENKO

But the money will only go to pay the expenses involved. The most important thing is Dennis.

Since the first month of his hospitalization, Dennis has been receiving fewer and fewer letters and notes from his friends back home.

In a case such as this, the attitude of the patient plays one of the most important roles in the final outcome. His feelings can play a major role in how well he recovers.

Dennis, being the youngster he is, remains in high spirits. But he has been in Vancouver for nearly four months now, and will probably now be missing his friends in Nelson.

It takes only a few minutes to sit down and write a letter or drop a card or other item, to let Dennis know that he is being remembered and watched back home. Easter holidays are only one week away.

It would be great for Dennis if some of his friends dropped in to see him in Vancouver.

Meet the Nationals

Rob Hebron, 24-year-old Vancouver native came closer than any Canadian male to winning a medal at the 1966 FIS World Championships at Portillo, Chile, last August.

"Yogi" as he is known by teammates, turned in the fastest time of any competition in the preliminary run of the slalom event. He was third after the first run of the meet, but fell in the second run, erasing his chances of bringing home Canada's only medal.

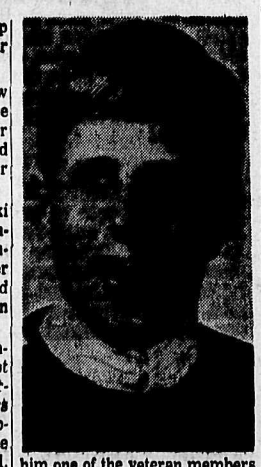
But Hebron remains one of the top Canadian threats in the field of international skiing.

At 5'10", 175 pounds, Hebron has a list of impressive victories behind him. The slalom specialist of the Canadian team, Rod finished first in the Canadian championship slalom last year and capped an outstanding year of skiing by winning the U.S. National Slalom Championship and by placing third in the Silver Skis Slalom.

This season, Hebron, who now makes his home in Vernon, where his father is area manager for the Silver Star Ski Area, joined the team late, but had another fine year.

A member of the Tyee Ski Runners, Yogi captured the slalom event of the Canadian Championships in Rossland earlier this month, and finished second to teammate Scott Henderson in the combined competitions.

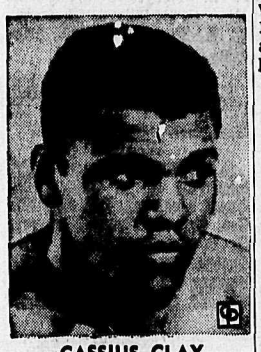
Rod is one of only four members of the National Team not attending Notre Dame University in Nelson. While the others are attending other schools, Hebron is the lone member of the team to have completed school. He is a graduate of Oregon State University in December, 1965.



On the team since 1959, making him one of the veteran members, Yogi has competed in the 1962 and 1966 FIS Championships and in the 1964 Olympics.

Clay Ordered To Report For Induction April 11

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Heavyweight boxing champion Cassius Clay has been ordered to report for induction into the army here April 11, the chairman of his draft board said Wednesday.



CASSIUS CLAY

J. Allen Sherman, chairman of the Louisville board, said Clay's appeal to the presidential appeals board "did come back to us from them."

Meanwhile, in another attempt to keep Clay out of the army, his lawyer filed suit in U.S. District Court in Owensboro, Ky., seeking an injunction against his induction on the grounds that there is a racial imbalance on his draft board.

The suit also asks that all draft boards in Kentucky be revamped to eliminate racial imbalance.

Judge James F. Gordon set March 29 for a hearing in Louisville on the request to name a three-judge panel to hear the suit. He turned down a request for a temporary restraining order against Clay's induction, requested by lawyers Hayden Covington of New York and Ernest Woodward II of Louisville.

The suit attacks the constitutionality of a federal statute that, Covington said, "allows the governor of Kentucky to appoint an imbalance of whites and Negroes to local draft boards.

CHARGES DISCRIMINATION

All Kentucky's draft boards are acting illegally, he said, because "they discriminate against the Negro race."

Judge Gordon declined to issue a temporary restraining order against Clay's induction because, he told the lawyers, the presidential appeals board was reviewing the champion's 1 - A classification. Clay had asked a 4-D classification as a Black Muslim minister.

The local board chairman said, however, that the matter had come back from the appeals board and that Clay's induction was set for 6:30 a.m. April 11.

Sherman said one member of the local board, Robert Terry Downs, is a Negro. He also said the board did not discriminate against anybody because of race.

Natal Sports Scene

NATAL — The Natal-Michel Curling Club staged its closing local mixed bonspiel in the Natal Curling arena over the past weekend. Some 16 rinks competed in the weekend competition for prizes in the two events that were staged. Keith Camilli rink, with member Evelyn Henriet, third; John Rudeman, second, and Stuart Cerny lead, captured the A event; winning over the Siro Cimolini rink with Emma Chala third, Tom Travis second, and John K. Mitchell lead.

The Irivine Morgan rink, with Myrtle Cerny third, Adrian Roberge second and Lois Bertoia lead, won the B event, winning over the Frank McVeigh rink with Vera Cimolini third, Bert Lyne second and Jackie Martin lead. Prizes to the winning rinks and runners-up in both events were presented by club officials following the conclusion of the final games.

Playing in the fifth game of a series of exhibition broomball games played at the Natal Skating Arena between local teams, the Natal All-Stars registered their third win of the season as they downed their arch rivals, Michel RAOB (Buffs) by a 6-3 score in a keenly contested game. The All-Stars were led by Dennis Zeith who accounted for four goals while Gino Volpatti and Gordon Kozler added single counters. For the losing Buffs, Mickey Mannion, Abbie Desjardins and Lyle Taylor were the goal getters. Previously in the fourth game played between these two teams, the Buffs outscored the All-Stars in every period to register a convincing 9-4 win. The Buffs to date lead the series by a close 3-2 margin in games won.

Playing in as econd game of a home-and-home exhibition hockey series at the Natal Skating Arena, the Natal-Michel Coal Kings had their two game winning streak stopped when the visiting Blairmore Bearcats outscored the opposition in every period to win the game by a 9-6 score. Blaimore led 3-1 at the end of the first period, 7-4 at the end of the second period and matched the two goals scored by the home team in the final period. Marshall scored three goals for the visitors with Petras and S. Ulrich Jr. hitting the net on two occasions each. Singletons were added by Misurelli and Wojzsel. For the losing Coal Kings, DePoili notched two goals wih single goals registered by Gris, Bevilacqua, Cimolini and Serafini. The Coal Kings, after being two goals down early in the second period, scored two quick goals to tie the game at 3-3. Playing at Blairmore previously the Coal Kings scored an 11-8 win over the Intermediate Bearcats in a free scoring game.

Three rinks represented the St. Michael's Young Adults Club of Natal recently at the Coleman Funspiel sponsored by the Catholic Youth Organization of Coleman. One of the rinks came in third in the A event. Members of this rink were Fred Komenac, Loris Bertoia, Raymond Rousseau and Linda Wettstein. A second rink won first place in the B event. Members of this rink were Bill Wojtula, Alfredo Berdusco, Bill Cytko and Jack Rybachuk. A third rink, consisting of Silvanna Carpino, Dorothy Wettstein, Paul Roberge and Steen Anderson failed in their efforts to place in any of the events although the rink curled exceptionally well throughout the bonspiel. Following the day's curling, the members enjoyed a pot luck supper which in turn was followed by a record hop which was enjoyed by all the visiting and host club members.

Folley Confident of Beating Champ Clay

By MURRAY ROSE

NEW YORK (AP) — Angelo Dundee, trainer of heavyweight champion Cassius Clay, has high respect for challenger Zora Folley's professional skill.

"He has a good defence and he can counter well," Dundee said Thursday. "He has a move like the champ's—he slips a jab and counters with his right."

How long will it go?

"Folley will go out between the seventh and 11th rounds," replied Dundee, a pretty good picker so far.

FOLLEY RELAXED

This is the kind of talk Folley hears all the time. It doesn't seem to perturb the quiet challenger, who will be collecting about $70,000—his best purse to date—and getting his first shot at the title after 13½ years of professional fighting.

"I can knock him out," said the stolid, poker-faced No. 1 contender from Chandler, Ariz.

"It could come early or late. He can be hurt and I can punch hard enough to hurt him."

How about a decision?

"That depends on how the fight goes," Folley replied. "I can win it that way. He makes mistakes. He holds his hands low. He pulls away from punches. Experience will be going for me and I plan to take advantage of his mistakes."

CLAY UNBEATEN

Other opponents have mentioned the same flaws in Clay's style but no one has beaten him yet.

"The champ is unique," said Dundee. "His style is his own. He can do the things he does and get away with them. He is fast — the fastest heavyweight ever—and who's gonna catch him?"

In his workouts with sparmate James Ellis, Clay rarely lets loose with punches. He has contented himself mainly with moving away from Ellis, dancing nimbly about the ring.

Both Clay and Folley plan to box through Sunday. Then they will wind up with gym work in the Garden's Exposition Hall Monday and possibly Tuesday.

Clay is a 5-1 favorite for the Wednesday night title bout, scheduled for 15 rounds at Madison Square Garden.

Frenchmen Not Intimidated By de Gaulle's Warnings

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

"Frenchwomen, French men, once again at a decisive moment I have been speaking to you for France. . . ."

President de Gaulle's exhortation seemed to carry all the old magic when he appeared on television on the eve of the French National Assembly elections.

But the setback suffered by Gaullists in the second round of the elections Sunday seem to show that Frenchmen no longer are satisfied with the general's Olympian technique of identifying himself with La Belle France.

They were not frightened by de Gaulle's warning to the cabinet that the vote would be a choice between his Fifth Republic and freedom on the one hand and a Communist - dominated left on the other.

And they were not intimidated by his TV caution that failure to support him would result in France being "terrorized by crisis" as it was under the Fourth Republic, before he came to power nine years ago.

PERILS DEFIED

So great was the electoral swing, the voters seemed to be saying they were willing to court the very perils de Gaulle warned against rather than remain submissive to his authoritarian dictums. Not until Monday night was it determined that de Gaulle's supporters would have a narrow voting margin in the National Assembly.

Yet some observers feel the voters may not have intended such a harsh rebuff to de Gaulle. The success of the Gaullists in the first election round March 5, and the unanimous reports of public opinion polls that they would win a comfortable margin in the second round almost certainly caused complacency among the general's followers before Sunday's vote.

This was seen in the great number of constituencies that were wrested from the Gaullists by margins of a few hundred or even a few dozen votes—as in Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville's defeat.

Voters may have wanted to teach their president a lesson without going so far—as they almost did—as to frustrate his efforts, as he put it, to "guarantee the destiny of France."

MAY CHANGE GEARS

In the great guessing game about de Gaulle's intentions now, some deputies believe he will try to go on as if nothing had happened but devote far more attention in the future to bread-and-butter matters. In this way he might steal some of the thunder on the left.

De Gaulle himself admitted in his pre-election broadcast that on the road to economic prosperity and social justice there remains "beaucoup, beaucoup, beaucoup" to do.

France's social shortcomings, particularly the housing shortage, have been festering while de Gaulle spent her treasures on a force de frappe and extolled her grandeur in the world scene.

Bertrand Russell Volume Out

By JAMES FLANNERY

LONDON (Reuters) — The first volume of the autobiography of philosopher - mathematician Bertrand Russell, 94, was published Wednesday with all copies sold in advance.

The volume ends at the time of the First World War and covers the 10 years in which he produced classic explorations into realms of pure thought that other philosophers acclaimed the greatest contributions to logic since Aristotle.

Lord Russell, whose chief fame today rests with his left-wing pacifism and espousal of nuclear disarmament, describes the torment, exhilaration and essentially lonely quest of "a new mathematical technique by which regions formerly abandoned to the vagueness of philosophers were conquered for the precision of exact formulas."

He also describes how the strain of personal unhappiness combined with severe intellectual work made him stare morbidly at passing trains "determining that tomorrow I would place myself under one of them."

Russell grew up with aristocrats at the height of England's Victorian age. He questioned everything he saw and read.

WORKED IN DESPAIR

His work on The Principles of Mathematics and, in collaboration with Alfred North Whitehead, Principia Mathematica plunged him into "the darkest despair that I have ever known," he said.

For the complex theories at the heart of his work, it was necessary to resolve situations in proof where two answers could be given, each implying the opposite.

Finally, he recounts, he elaborated complex formulas toward overcoming the apparently intractable—his theory of descriptions, presented in 1905, followed by the theory of types in 1906.

For 10 years work on Principia Mathematica, Russell and Whitehead had to contribute to the printing costs and eventually lost money on the classic.

But Principia Mathematica is among the early and relatively little read volumes that combined philosophy with analysis of mathematical notions and series that may remain his most enduring works.

LEFT HIS WIFE

In this period he fell out of love with his first wife, Alys Pearsall Smith, a Philadelphia Quaker, whom he married in 1894 when he was 22. One day in 1910, he said, when he was in love with Lady Ottoline Morrell, he rode away on a bicycle.

"I did not see Alys again until 1950 when we met as friendly acquaintances," Russell said.

His suicidal tendencies were overcome during this period because "there was always another mathematical problem to solve."

Three more marriages, world honors including a Nobel Prize, 40 more books and a series of fierce controversies ranging from sexual mors to the Vietnamese war followed in the years after the First World War which will be covered in the next volume of the autobiography.

Gov't To Care for Graves Of Fathers of Confederation

By GERARD McNEIL

OTTAWA (CP)—The cost of maintaining the graves of 36 Fathers of Confederation will be underwritten by the federal government from now on, it was announced Wednesday.

Where the graves haven't been badly neglected, they have usually been cared for by descendants or by private groups.

The announcement may stir a controversy, however.

It left out the name of Hewitt Bernard, the secretary to the Quebec and London conferences at which the British North America Act was drafted.

An official of the historic sites and monuments board, which recommended federal care of the graves, said it doesn't recognize Bernard as being a father.

However, the federal centennial commission has listed him as one in biographies mailed this year to thousands of school teachers.

APPEARS IN PORTRAIT

Bernard is among the 37 figures in the famed portrait of the fathers. He is buried at Beechwood Cemetery in Ottawa.

The board was questioned about Bernard after a check of a press release turned up several errors in the 36 names.

Edward Whelan, a Prince Edward Island father, was listed as E. Winslow and W. H. Steeves, a New Brunswick delegate, was listed as W. H. Speares.

Sir Hector - Louis Langevin was down as H. S. Langevin.

The press release was issued by the information office of the Indian affairs and northern development department, home also of the national and historic parks branch.

"This whole thing was prepared by the board," said a spokesman at the information office.

"This was issued by the information service," said a board official.

The press release attributed the announcement to Northern Development Minister Laing, who said the board recommended that Ottawa pay for the upkeep of the graves.

SEARCHED FOR GRAVES

The Boy Scouts, in a centennial project, had to use all their lore last year to find some of the forgotten burial places.

The centennial commission is searching for descendants of the fathers to take part in graveside memorial ceremonies this summer.

Mr. Laing said a detailed examination of the condition of the graves will be made.

"Canada will underwrite perpetual maintenance of the graves," he added. "Each will be marked by a distinctive plaque to be designed for this specific purpose.

"Thirdly, financial assistance will be provided to individuals or assocations who wish to partcipate in the erection and maintenance of grave memorials."

Mr. Laing said the full cost won't be known until the field study has been made and a proposal outlined to the treasury board.

"Canada has neglected a very sacred duty in not giving these truly outstanding Canadians the care their last resting places deserve," Mr. Laing said.

Following is a list of the 36 fathers, the cemeteries where they are buried and the locations:

Hunter Safety Program Reduces East Accidents

TORONTO (CP)— Ontario's program of hunter safety training has reduced accidents despite an increase in hunters, says the department of lands and forests, but it hasn't stopped hunters from seeing rabbits in trees or dogs from shooting their masters.

The Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters founded the safety program in 1960 when 154 accidents were reported, 36 of them fatal. The six-year average since then has been 118, lands and forests reports show. Hunters still continue getting shot in unusual ways, however.

One hunter last year thought he spotted a rabbit on a tree branch.

He fired his 12-gauge shotgun at the rabbit, striking a friend who had tossed the dead animal there from behind the tree. The friend lived, but 13 other hunters last year did not.

"It was a crazy thing to do, coming down the ladder with a cocked gun," one hunter said just before he bled to death. He had stuck his loaded, cocked rifle barrel into the top of his trousers to have both his hands free in descending from a treehouse deer watch.

SHOT BY DOG

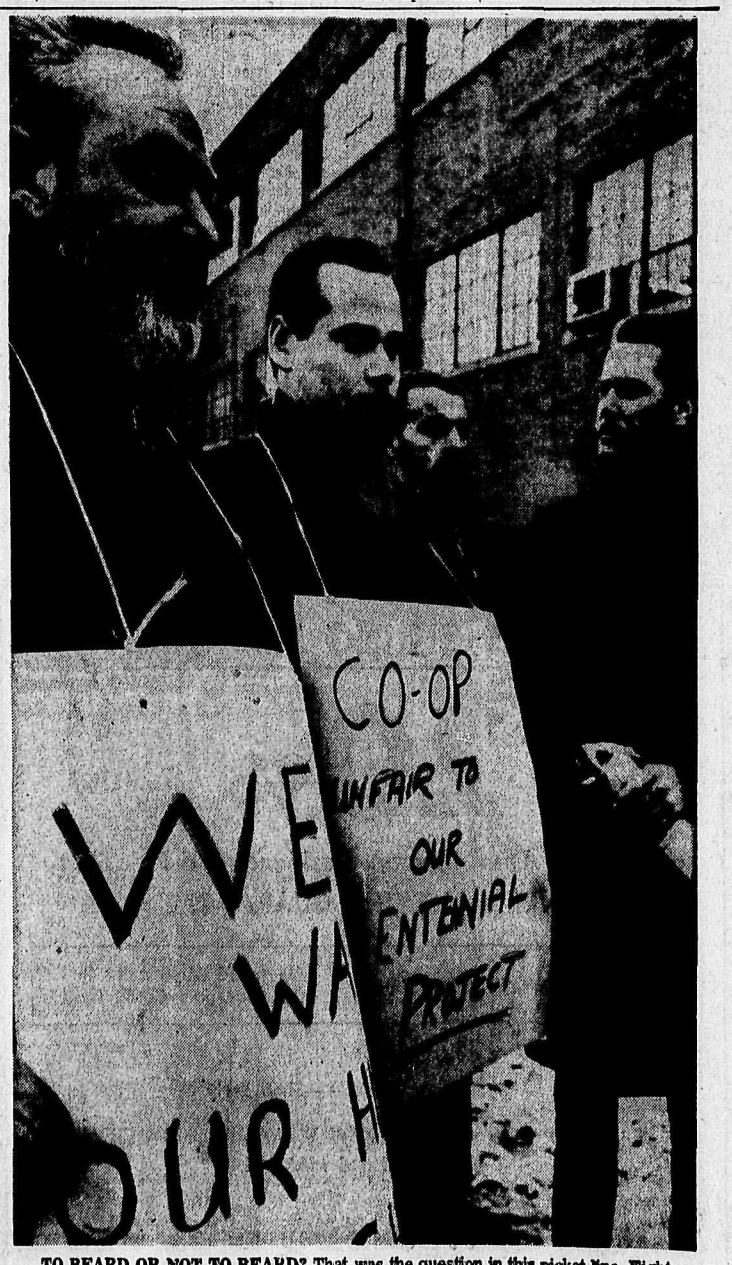
Another hunter had an elbow and a chunk of arm muscle shot away when his dog stepped on his rifle which was lying on the ground. The dog's paw pressed on the safety button, releasing it, and then on the trigger.

Most accidents happen through carelessness, says Jim Gage of the department's fish and wildlife branch. Records, however, show that 16 of last year's 117 accident victims were mistaken for game.

Sportsmen can be charged with "careless hunting" and have their hunting privileges revoked or be fined, Mr. Gage said.

A careless hunting charge aainst one man last year was dismissed bgecause the hunter he accidentally shot and killed was wearing a white — fur-trimmed buckskin vest.

But protective clothing alone isn't always safe. One hunter was shot last year while wearing a fluorescent cap and red coat.



TO BEARD OR NOT TO BEARD? That was the question in this picket line. Eight Toronto cabbies went "on strike" because they were ordered to shed their "centennial" foliage. Customers complained that the drivers were "unshaken and unkempt." They were given two weeks to clean up.

Ambassador by American Motors is big where a big car should be big. Inside.

For openers: more rear-seat legroom than any other standard-size car! For the rest: read on.

Ambassador is a 6-passenger standard-size car. To us that means 3 in the front and 3 in the back. All adults. All comfortable. All the time. That's why Ambassador has more rear-seat legroom than a standard-size Chev, Ford or Plymouth. Even more than an Oldsmobile 88. Heads? We give them breathing room. Lots of it. Hips? Ambassador provides as much hip-room per person as an office arm chair (the kind many people sit in 8 hours a day). To illustrate Ambassador's people-space even more dramatically, we'll compare our convertible model. It actually has 6 inches more rear shoulder-room than any other standard-size convertible! Nor have we neglected trunk room. Ambassador gives you an honest 18.2 cu. ft. of storage space. That's more than enough for all your vacation luggage.

Along with all that extra room, we also provide the best way possible to enjoy it—coil spring seats. Front and rear. Coil spring seats are a great idea that other standard-size cars don't give you. (The only other North American car that does is Cadillac.) The firm support that these seats give actually reduces driving fatigue. Ambassador also offers optional reclining seats with safety headrests.

There's another thing inside Ambassador that's worth shouting about—the quiet. There are two reasons: tightness and insulation. Tightness in Ambassador begins with the way American Motors puts the body together. We use Single-Unit Construction. All body parts are welded tightly together to form a single, solid unit. Door frames are precision-tooled to guarantee a tight fit. Then we add another Ambassador exclusive: 2 separate rubber weather seals. On hardtop and convertible models, the windows have a broad metal edge which forms a tight seal against road noise, wind and weather.

Doors with double weather seals stop wind and weather.

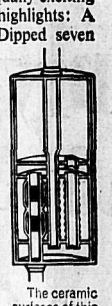
Insulation is another problem. A car's ceiling should do more than just cover up the underside of the metal roof. It should insulate against noise, heat and cold. Ambassador's molded fibre-glass headliner does just that. And because it's a one-piece, preformed unit, it stays effective and attractive for years. It's also easy to clean.

Still inside, but under the hood, Ambassador has even more big news—the newest, most modern engines in the industry. Lightweight engines that don't add needless pounds to the weight they already have to pull. There are 2 high performance 6's and 3 V-8's, giving you a choice of power ranging all the way up to a 343 cu. in. V-8. To your choice of engine, add Ambassador's "extra-gear" 3-speed automatic transmission. The extra gear allows the engine to operate closer to peak performance for better acceleration. Or, choose from other transmission options like Shift-Command, for both manual and automatic shifting; the fully synchronized 4-on-the-floor; or overdrive.

Ambassador's extra roominess is a no-extra-cost extra from American Motors.

Ambassador 990 4-Door Sedan

That's part of our inside story. Roomy, comfortable, quiet, powerful, practical. There's an equally exciting outside story. Some highlights: A beautiful body Deep-Dipped seven time in special rust-proofing solutions. A long-lasting acrylic enamel finish that stays bright and lustrous. A new coil spring suspension system that soaks up bumps like a sponge. An exhaust system with a corrosion-resistant ceramic coating to help it last for years.



The ceramic surfaces of this American Motors exhaust system are like a sheet of glass. Makes it tough for corrosion to get a foothold.

What more can we tell you? There's so much more. Enough in fact, to warrant your taking a much closer look at Ambassador. Go see an American Motors/Rambler Dealer. Try the roomier Ambassador on for size. Try it on the route you drive. Then draw your own conclusions.

Your Individual Horoscope

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Saturday, March 18, 1967

MARCH 21 to APRIL 20 (Aries) — Synchronize activities to coincide with needs of the day. More than the usual reward is promised for constructive endeavors. Benefactors are waiting to assist you.

APRIL 21 to MAY 21 (Taurus) — Venus, favorably aspected, especially encourages artistic aspirations, original ideas, domestic affairs and new friendships.

MAY 22 to JUNE 21 (Gemini) — Consider the suggestions of others. Some you should not follow, of course, others you could adopt — and profitably. Don't sell any new idea short, and do look for new opportunities which may not be obvious on the surface.

JUNE 22 to JULY 23 (Cancer) — Yesterday's adverse planetary restrictions lift now, and you should have a real good day. Especially favored: Actors, writers, musicians, designers, all those involved in dealings with the public.

JULY 24 to AUGUST 23 (Leo) — Both your endurance and serenity of disposition are still being tested. But take heart. In a couple of days the adverse stellar influences which have governed your life for the past few days will lift, and you can go full steam ahead.

AUGUST 24 to SEPTEMBER 23 (Virgo) — Getting behind in chores, keeping promises? Perhaps you have over-committed yourself. There are always ways to retreat, and people will understand if you talk things over promptly, frankly.

SEPTEMBER 24 to OCTOBER 223 (Libra) — Venus in fine configuration. Get out your bag of tricks and launch your pet projects now — especially those having to do with artistic interests and family affairs.

OCTOBER 24 to NOVEMBER 22 (Scorpio)—While you haven't too much planetary help now, you can, nevertheless, keep this day out of the mediocre class if you emphasize your innate enthusiasm and good cheer. Some heart warming news indicated.

NOVEMBER 23 to DECEMBER 21 (Sagittarius) — You can achieve great satisfaction by completing a well-done job, starting someone else off with an assist toward cherished goals. Emphasize stability, consistency. And do beware of those who would take advantage of your generosity.

DECEMBER 22 to JANUARY 20 (Capricorn) — A good period for improving on current projects as well as launching new ones. Your integrity, sense of balance and perseverance, even in the "rougher" moments, will lead to success.

JANUARY 21 to FEBRUARY 19 (Aquarius) — Carry on with matters already planned and launched, and don't delay your progress by going off on tangents periodically. You may have a tendency to restlessness now, but try to curb it.

FEBRUARY 20 to MARCH 20 (Pisces) — Your modesty and unassuming manner usually stand you in good stead, but this may be a day when you will have to speak up firmly, especially in the support of worthwhile causes. Don't hesitate. Your known trustworthiness will make others listen.

YOU BORN TODAY are innately a reasoner, a philosopher, are adaptable to almost any environment as long as it is above the mediocre. You have an intense love of home and domestic ties, will go out of your way and work hard to satisfy the needs of loved ones. You are extremely versatile; are a natural teacher; very artistic, inventive, and are meticulous about details; could succeed in the literary world, too. Avoid a tendency to make promises you cannot possibly keep. Birthdate of: William Jennings Bryan, U.S. statesman.

COFFEE BREAK-IN PERHAPS? Thieves who broke into a church house made a couple of cups of coffee and drank it. They weren't fussy about loot as nothing was missing, but they were careful about leaving prints as Constable Waymouth discovered after he carefully carried the cups on a pencil to headquarters.

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Some lessons we've learned about making small cars for Canadians.

Lesson 1. Build them in Canada. That's where the rugged weather is.

Lesson 2. Watch your paint. Use 5 separate coats of Canadian primer and paint, after rustproofing the bodies 6 times.

Lesson 3. Offer something unusual. Like a small car automatic for around $2,000.

Lesson 4. Make it good-looking. A small car doesn't have to be ugly to be well engineered.

Lesson 5. Give it a great independent suspension. Canadians have a knack for leaving the beaten path.

Lesson 6. Make the seats convertible to beds. A lot of Canadians are campers.

Lesson 7. Put in 4-wheel disc brakes, and offer a 4-speed synchromesh gearbox. Canadians are a sporty group.

Lesson 8. Keep at least a million dollars worth of spare parts. And keep them available everywhere in Canada.

Lesson 9. Put in an engine that likes to be driven hard. Canadian roads are long and Canadians like to move along.

Lesson 10. Install a heater as large as most domestic big cars. Put in a booster fan and outlets for back seat passengers. Canada is a frosty country.

Lesson 11. Keep your prices down and your engineering quality up. There's a lot of competition.

These are lessons we've learned in Canada. This is the Renault 10 Major.

Drop in and give one an exam.

World Briefs

LONDON ON THE LINE

LONDON (Reuters) — Direct telephone dialing to Canada and the U.S. will be introduced for subscribers in London in 1969, Postmaster General Edward Short announced Tuesday.

CALL IT RABBAGE?

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Russians have crossed a radish and a cabbage and come up with a hybrid which has a root like a radish and soft succulent leaves where the cabbage head should be, the news agency Tass reported Tuesday.

WILLIAMS IN RUSSIAN

MOSCOW (AP) — Nine plays by Tennessee Williams, never performed in the Soviet Union, being published in a collection, the Soviet news agency Tass announced Thursday. Tass said the collection includes Orpheus Descending, the only Williams play performed in U.S.S.R. and a long article stressing the importance of his works in the development of the modern theatre.

Puerto Rica Future At Stake in Vote

SAN JUAN (CP) — Puerto Ricans vote July 23 in a referendum aimed at determining the political future of the Caribbean island.

Observers see little chance of the vote producing startling results. They say it's already clear Puerto Ricans will choose to retain their special status as a commonwealth of the United States.

The referendum will offer three choices: continued commonwealth status, full statehood within the U.S. or total independence.

But if the vote is expected to produce no surprises, neither is it expected to provide a final answer to the island's future. Spokesmen for the statehood and independence parties say they will continue their struggle even if the referendum shows overwhelming support for commonwealth status.

Ironically, independence party leaders claim their following is growing at a time when the government of Roberto Sanchez Vilella, a staunch supporter of the commonwealth system, is bringing in new industry almost as fast as the island can find room for it.

150 NEW FIRMS

Under the government's Operation Bootstrap, 150 new industries moved into the island last year. Net income from the total of 2,300 plants operating on Puerto Rico grew by 10.7 per cent to $485,000,000.

But government opponents say the industrial program is doing far more good for the American businessmen operating the plants than for the Puerto Rican peasants, many still trapped in grinding poverty.

Poverty is not hard to find on the island of 2,700,000. Much of the worst of it is concentrated in this capital of 700,000, where a matter of inches can separate squalid huts from palatial houses ringed by ornate Castilian balconies

Juan Mari Bras, leader of the Pro-Independence Movement, says the operation has meant "low salaries, low rents but all kinds of incentives for the Americans."

Replying to those who say Puerto Rico, 1,000 miles southeast of Miami, would suffer a crippling economic blow if separated from the United States, Bras says independence would instead provide the island with greater economic freedom than ever before.

The Pro - Independence Movement, founded in 1959, is the newest and most vocal of several independence parties on the island.

Although its strength is difficult to determine because it usually calls on its followers to abstain in elections, Bras claims his party now controls 13 per cent of the voting population.

How could the United States be forced to grant independence to the 3,423-square-mile island, about 1½ times as large as Prince Edward Island?

"We believe the combination of increasing international pressure against colonialism and the national mobilization of the people of Puerto Rico will force the United States to give us our independence," said the American-trained lawyer.

Puerto Rico "is not a commonwealth as Canadians know it, it's only a colony in full disguise."

Barbers in Price War

WINNIPEG — CP — Barber shops in some parts of Winnipeg are engaged in a price war that gives the customer a wide range of prices. In some cases he can even make an offer of less than the normal rate and have it accepted.

A year ago the Manitoba Master Barbers' Association, representing about two-thirds of local shops, raised its price for haircuts to $1.75 from $1.50.

But some members couldn't put the increase into effect because they are located in areas with non - member shops that didn't go along with the boost.

Carl Allenback, secretary of the association, says an example is a two-block area with four shops, one proprietor of which is a member. Unable to agree on an increase in price, the four are stalemated at $1.25.

What's more, if a customer offers $1 for a haircut there's a good chance the barber will accept it.

Mr. Allenback cites the case of one barber who took in a total of $2.75 in one day—$1 from "a kid," $1.25 from an adult and 50 cents from a teenager who said that was all he had but he'd pay $1 next time.

There's even one barber who charges as little as 50 cents but he "throws them out like sausages out of a sausage machine."

These Lees On Opposite Sides of Fence

OTTAWA (CP)—William E. Lee has submitted a brief to the Commons defence committee opposing unification of the armed forces.

He is not to be confused with William M. Lee, who says he is still in favor of unification.

The anti-unification Mr. Lee says he retired last month as an army major because he believes unification will destroy the armed forces. He lives at Clarkson, Ont.

The pro-unification Mr. Lee is executive assistant to Defence Minister Hellyer.

The anti-unification Mr. Lee says in his brief, officially received by the committee, that things now are so confused in the armed forces that personnel and their families are being posted to stations for jobs which are subsequently eliminated.

MARKET TRENDS

Consumer Prices Vary

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumer prices rose last month in Halifax, Saint John, .B., Montreal and Winnipeg but remained steady or dropped slightly in eight other cities for which the Dominion Bureau of Statistics compiles regional indexes.

Strongest gain was in Montreal where the index, based on 1949 consumer prices equalling 100, rose to 144.8 from 144.1 in January.

The other increases were to 139.3 from 139.0 in Halifax, to 143.3 from 143.0 in Saint John, and to 141.1 from 140.7 in Winnipeg.

The indexes measure the change in prices from month to month from the base year, 1949. DBS says they do not indicate whether it is more expensive to live in one city or another.

The Ottawa index held steady at 145.2, as did the index for Edmonton and Calgary at 136.6 and Vancouver at 140.9.

The index for St. John's, Nfld., based on June, 1951, prices equalling 100, dropped to 126.6 from 127.0. The Toronto index eased down to 148.1 from 148.2, and the Saskatoon and Regina index fell to 137.0 from 137.3.

TRAVELLING QUEEN—Selected from more than 200 models to be Miss Sunken Gardens (Fla.) for 1967, Karol Kelly from St. Petersburg will travel with a collection of exotic birds to appear on television and at travel shows.
