NELSON'S CARNIVAL OF AQUATIC SPORTS

July Regatta Will Bring Together on Kootenay Lake the Best Oarsmen of the Pacific Coast

An Attractive Programme Will be Provided Which Should Bring Many Visitors to This City

The annal regatta of the N.P.A.A.O., which is to be held in this city on Thursday and Friday, July 25th and 26th, promises to be the most important meeting in the history of the association. There are a number of circumstances which will contribute to this result. One of these is the unrivaled course which Kootenay lake presents for the holding of the regatta, not alone from the oarsman's standpoint but from that of the spectator as well. On the dates fixed for the regatta the oarsmen can count upon a sheet of water in which the current will scarcely be noticed, while the course, from Roberts' ranch to the boathouse, will afford a stretch which can be followed from the shore without difficulty, while those who desire to keep reasonably close to the contesting crews will have an opportunity of doing so by following them in any of the commodious steamers running into the Nelson port.

The N.P.A.A.O. is composed of the Vancouver Rowing club, of Vancouver; the James Bay Athletic association, of Victoria; the Portland Rowing club, of Portland, Oregon; and the Nelson Boat club, of this city. At the last meeting of the association the following officers were appointed for the ensuing year: H. D. Helmcken, M.M.P., of Victoria, president; A. H. Buchanan, of Nelson, vice-president; H. W. Kent, of Vancouver, secretary-treasurer; and Messrs. Dallain and O'Sullivan, of Victoria; R. C. Hart and W. A. Robb, of Portland; A. M. Johnson, Nelson; and J. A. Russell, of Vancouver, members of the executive.

A meeting of this kind is no small advertisement for a city, and it will stand the people of Nelson in hand to see to it that the management of the Nelson Boat club receives such assistance as will enable it to carry the regatta through to a successful conclusion. The financial end of the July meeting will be unusually heavy, as the local club has been forced to make initial preparation this year for the accommodation of the visitors, including the erection of a commodious club house. So that instead of a matter of a few hundred dollars the requirements of the July meeting call for close upon $3,000. Once provsion for this is made, however, a long step will have been taken in the way of giving amateur rowing a good foothold in this city, and its local devotees will have a chance of meeting their competitors on the coast upon something like equal terms.

The approaching regatta should bring to Nelson at least thirty members of the association as competitors in the several events, each organization being represented by senior and double fours, as well as having representatives in the doubles and single events. Reports that have come to hand within the past few days all point to a series of very spirited contests as the different associations are all doing their utmost to bring out the best of their available material for regatta representation.

In addition to the rowing associations comprising the N. P. A. A. O. it is not unlikely that the Winnipeg Rowing club may be induced to send a crew to Nelson to compete with the winners of the regatta senior fours. An effort has been made to bring the Winnipeg men into the Pacific Coast association, and while it is hardly likely that this can be accomplished in time for the approaching regatta, there is said to be every liklihood that the Winnipeggers will be induced to try conclusions with the oarsmen of the coast, and no better opportunity could present itself than the July meeting.

There is something thrilling in a four-oared race, especially when there are four crews sent over the course at the same time. Rowing races in heats is not to be compared to a contest of this kind. It is a struggle from the shot which sends the crews away until the finishing line is crossed, and one in which it is especially interesting to watch the generalship of the contesting crews, which not infrequently determines the result. The programme for the two days' racing will include senior fours, junior fours, senior and junior doubles, senior and junior singles, mixed doubles, two and four paddle canoe races, a tug-of-war, tilting races and other aquatic sports. There will also be a local event in the way of a four-oared lapstreak race for the championship of Kootenay lake.

The crew of the Nelson Boat club will row in a new Claspar cedar shell, which has been ordered from the maker at Putney, England. The make-up of this crew has not been definitly decided as yet, but it is likely that it will be Winter, Mason, Fraser and Wetmore. They have been practising together for some time and are said to be shaping up well. The local four will enter in the junior fours, and, if they are successful in finishing in front the crew will be put into the senior event.

On Friday evening at the close of the regatta it is proposed to hold a water carnival, and on Saturday evening the visiting oarsmen will be banquetted when the presentation of prizes will take place, to be followed by a smoker.

In addition to the water sports and races, arrangements are being perfected for the holding of baseball and lacrosse tournaments as well as a rock-drilling contest, so that during the days of the regatta Nelson will offer one of the most attractive programmes of sport ever held out in the province as an inducement to travel.

APPROVE AMALGAMATION

SHAREHHOLDERS OF VENUS GOLD MINING COMPANY ELECT OFFICERS.

The annual meeting of the shareholders of the Venus Gold Mining Company was held yesterday afternoon, W. H. Pearson, vice-president of the company presiding. The financial statement for the past year was read and accepted, after which the election of officers followed, all the old officers being re-elected, as follows: George Gillies, president; W. H. Pearson, Sr., vice-president; L. L. Merifield, secretary-treasrer; W. H. Pearson, Jr., and Dr. P. E. Doolittle, directors.

A statement of the terms of the amalgamation of the Athabasca and Venus companies was then read to the meeting, as prepared by the directors in Toronto, and upon a vote of the meeting was adopted unanimously. It is understood that the basis of this amalgamation is that the shareholders of the Athabasca assume all the present liabilities of the company. It is also provided that the debts of the Venus company shall be a first charge upon the net proceeds of the ore from the Venus mine.

A meeting of the boards of the two companies will be held at an early date to arrange the final terms of the consolidation.

A request was made at the meeting by the shareholders for a local representative on the board of the new amalgamated company. It was pointed out that as there were a number of large shareholders in the companies here this would not only be more satisfactory to them, but also be of advantage to the company generally.

It is understood that work is to be started on the properties at an early date.

HE FAILED AT SUICIDE

GUS LOFTUS SEVERED ARTERIES IN HIS WRISTS WITH A RAZOR.

Kaslo, June 3.—[Special to The Daily News.]—Gus Loftus, a man of about 40 years of age, attempted to commit suicide this evening by severing the arteries of both wrists with his razor. He was found in his shack, in considerable blood, and with his face half soaped. It is conjectured that the suicide mania attacked him whilst preparing to shave. He has been drinking heavily lately and received bad news by today's mail. He is known here as a cook, having worked in that capacity both on the S. S. International and also in the Whitewater mines. He has a brother Tom in Indianapolis. It was at first thought that he was quite dead, but Dr. Hartin discovered signs of life and after working on him for some considerable time gives hope of his ultimate recovery.

An enthusiastic meeting was held in the court room this evening for the purpose of hearing an address on the hospital movement by Miss McLeod, of the Victorian Order of Nurses, Ottawa. The Kaslo Victorian Memorial hospital is now a certainty, private subscriptions have amounted to something in the neighborhood of $1,000, and the mayor stated in the meeting that he was authorized to say for the council that they had just passed a grant of $400 as the city's donation towards the building fund, and Miss McLeod promised $1,500 from the order. The site will be chosen tomorrow and the work be pushed forward as fast as possible in order to have the hospital in running order by the fall.

DUNSMUIR HAS WON OUT

Canadian Northern Railway Bill Received Its Second Reading Last Night

Work of the Session Will Probably be Completed in a Few Days

Victoria, June 3.—[Special to The Daily News].—The Canadian Northern railway bill passed second reading in the house this evening. When the division took place there were two members absent and the measure which the opposition had fought so bitterly went through on a vote of 19 to 15. The announcement of the vote was received by the government members with considerable applause. It is now thought that the government having shown unexpected strength, where it was supposed to be weakest, will be permitted to put through the necessary supply votes and conclude the work of the session without further delay. Something in the nature of a promise to this effect was given by the leader of the opposition a few days ago.

The Vancouver-Midway railway bill is now up for its second reading, but as it is expected that the vote upon it will be the same as that upon the Canadian Northern bill, interest in the debate is lacking.

ESQUIMALT ALL RIGHT.

Victoria, June 3.—[Special to The Daily News.]—General Parsons completed his inspection of the fortifications and troops here today, and in an interview declared the station the finest he had ever seen for its size. The only drawback to it he said was the higher cost of living and maintenance here. He expects to have a meeting tomorrow with General Fukushima, the Japanese general who arrived today on the Empress of Japan.

COLLIDED WITH THE EMPRESS.

Victoria, June 3.—]Special to The Daily News.]—Coming into the wharf this morning the Shinano Maru struck the Empress of Japan on the port bow, breaking a boat, a part of the rail and slightly damaging her. The C.P.R., through Drake, Jackson and Helmcken, libelled the Shinano Maru for $5,000 and Bodwell and Duff, for the Great Northern, furnished security and released the vessel.

MURDERER DIES GAME

Louis Poquette Pays the Penalty for the Killing of Alfred Legere

Committed the Crime Because He Loved His Victim's Wife

Vancouver, June 3.—Louis Poquette was hanged today in the jail yard at Kamloops for the shooting of Alfred Legere. Both the murderer and his victim were French Canadians. Legere was aged 30 and Poquette 53. The latter was in love with the young English wife of Legere.

Poquette made advances to the woman, who, however, ignored his attentions. One night, while under the influence of liquor, he called at Legere's house, and while the man and his wife were engaged in making a bed for him, he shot the husband dead with a rifle.

Mrs. Legere fled from the house, pursued by Poquette, but, turning off on a side road, escaped to a neighbor's farm.

Poquette was apprehended, and then he told the police that he had shot Legere, but that it was all for love.

During his imprisonment Poquette preserved a stolid demeanor and went to the scaffold, disdaining assistance, and the coolest man in the jail yard. The drop was seven feet, but it was thirteen minutes before life became extinct. Although the skin on his neck was abraised he died without a struggle. Groans seemed to issue from his throat after the drop, but the physicians said it was merely wind escaping.

CITY LOCAL NEWS

J. H. Ashdown, the well known hardware merchant of Winnipeg, arrived in town last night.

Henry Duhamel and family, and Emile Levesque and family have left for Edmonton where they purpose making their home for the future.

A dispatch received from Fernie last evening stated that so far 120 bodies have been recovered from the Coal creek mines, and that it was supposed there still remained in the mine some nineteen others.

Judge Forin will hold sessions of the country court at Revelstoke on the 4th, and at Golden on the 5th instant. During his absence from the city there will be no chamber sittings in Nelson, the first being set for Monday next.

Alex Christ, the Indian who is charged with having stolen clothing in his possession, knowing it to be stolen, was brought before Stipendiary Magistrate Crease yesterday and remanded for eight days so as to give the crown a chance to get the prosecution in shape.

The funeral of the late D. T. Morice will take place this afternoon from his late residence on Edgewood avenue, at 2.30 o'clock. Members of Nelson Aerie, No. 22, and all visiting brethern, are requested to meet at their hall at 2 o'clock for the purpose of attending the same.

There was but one location recorded at the Nelson record office yesterday: King Edward Fractional, on Mount Brown, 2 1-2 miles. from Ymir, by Matt Guyman. Certificates of work were granted to Paul Victor Loth on the Queen, Union Jack, Empress, Climax and Horseshoe mineral claims, comprising the well-known Union Jack group on Porcupine creek.

George Doyle has returned to Nelson after an absence of several months, the greater portion of which he spent in the Slocan lake section. He says work on the Neepawa property on Ten-Mile creek was shut down on Saturday, but will be resumed again without delay. This property is under bond to Sandiford, who has had a crew of thirteen men a work. One of the payments fell due on Monday and, as extensive arrangements for the working of the property were made up till the day that the men were laid off, it is altogether likely that the payment was met.

THOUSANDS WERE KILLED

WHOLESALE SLAUGHTER OF REBELS IN DISAFFECTED PORTIONS OF CHINA.

Victoria, June 3.—The big Japanese liner Shinana Maru, which arrived today, brought advices of the rebellion in China to the effect that the capture, of the rebel leader, Hung Yunk Sing, has given a check to the Kwangsi rebellion, and the troops sent to the relief of Nanling, met with very little opposition. Steamers are now running to Nanling, and the forts of that town are being strengthened under the supervision of an American sergeant and the missionaries. France is trying her best to take a hand in the suppression of the rebellion, and went so far as to send troops across the border from Tonking, they were ordered back by the Viceroy and went. Since then France has sent word to Pekin that if the rebellion is not soon put down she will have to interfere to protect Nanling.

A later despatch from North China says that the riot in Chili province has been entirely quelled by the government troops after two days' fighting. The chief of the rebels has been caught, and about 13,000 of his followers have been killed or wounded.

In the commencement of this outbreak the rioters met with considerable success. They captured a lieutenant, a color sergeant, and 200 imperial soldiers, whom they massacred, and afterwards ambushed a body of imperial troops sent to punish them and routed them. Two parties of pirates numbering 14, who have been terrorizing the boatmen near Ningpo have been captured and executed.

JOCKEY LANE IS INJURED

England's Premier Rider Incapacitated for Greatest Derby in Years

Sceptre Continues the Favorite With Odds Five to Four Against

London, June 3.—At Epsom today King Edward and suite watched the races which will culminate in what is expected to be the most brilliant Derby in years. Nearly all the members of the royal family and the foreign potentates will be the king's guests for the event and the demand for coaches threatens to exceed the supply. Today's racing was marred by accidents to three jockeys in the race for the Craven stakes. Owing to the unevenness of the turf, three horses collided, throwing their riders, including England's premier jockey, Lane, and incapacitating him from riding in the Derby. Maher, American, captured the Woodcot stakes, and the Wallington plate, the latter on Mrs. Langtry's Smilax.

Maher will ride the Duke of Devonshire's brown colt, Cheers, 20 to 1 against. Jenikns, an American will have the mount on Wallace Johnston's bay colt, Fowling Piece, 100 to 9 against. J. Martin, American, will pilot Gubbin's brown colt, Ard Patrick, 7 to 1 against. J. Reiff will be in the saddle on William C. Whitney's chestnut colt Intruder, 100 to 6 against. Ian Spencer, American, will have mount on J. R. Keene's bay or brown colt, Kearsarge, 100 to 1 against.

All these horses are regarded as outsiders except Ard Patrick who is supported by many of the sporting papers as being the best hazard for a place in the race.

Reiff, who it is said had the offer to ride R. S. Siever's bay filly, Sceptre, the favorite at 5 to 4 against, and had W. C. Whitney's permission to do so, says he would rather ride a loser for Mr. Whitney than win for Mr. Siever.

EXCLUSION OF ANARCHISTS.

Washington, June 3.—The house today began consideration of the Anti-Anarchy bill. The house committee reported a substitute for the same measure, when Mr. Raet (chairman of the judicial committee), who was in charge of the committee, argued that the senate bill was unconstitutional. Mr. Teller, Texas, supported the feature of the bill to exclude anarchists but opposed that making it a particular offence to kill the president or any one in the line of the presidential succession. He argued that every man was equal before the law and that existing laws were ample to punish the killing or attempted killing of the president.

SPOKANE WILL ASSIST.

Committee Appointed to Solicit Donations For Fernie Relief Fund.

Spokane, June 3.—Mayor Bryne has appointed J. H. Travers, president of the British Benovelent society, W. S. Norman and W. A. Aldrich a committee to solicit donations for the relief of the sufferers from the recent coal mine disaster at Fernie, B. C.

"This is prompted by a letter I have received from the mayor of the stricken town," said Mayor Byrne. "He says there is great destitution among the families of the miners and indicated a desire that Spokane should join in the relief movement.

"I hope our citizens will give generously to this worthy cause. The cry of distress does not stop at international boundaries, and we should be as prompt to respond to such an appeal as I am sure our neighbor across the line would be to answer such a call from any community that might be similarly stricken in the state of Washington. I understand that relief measures are urgent, and I hope our people will remember that he who gives quickly gives double."

LORD KITCHENER'S GREAT WAR PRIZE

Expected That in Addition to Further Distinctions He Will be Presented With Half a Million Dollars

Britain Will Offer Paul Kruger a Safe Conduct if He Will Agree to Return to His Farm

London, June 3.—King Edward has cabled his congratulations on the conclusion of peace to Lord Kitchener, and Lord Milner. The text of the royal dispatch to Lord Milner is as follows: "I am overjoyed at the news of the surrender of the Boers, and I warmly congratulate you on the able manner in which you have conducted the negotiations."

To this message, Lord Milner replied: "I offer my deepest thanks for your majesty's gracious message. I am profoundly thankful that your majesty's coronation will be celebrated with peace throughout your South African dominions."

The following is the text of King Edward's dispatch to Lord Kitchener: "I send you my most hearty congratulations on the termination of hostilities. I also heartily congratulate my brave troops under your command for having brought a long and difficult campaign to so glorious and successful a conclusion."

To which Lord Kitchener replied: "The army in South Africa highly appreciates your majesty's most gracious message, which I am now communicating. I humbly beg to thank your majesty."

Utrecht, June 3.—The Boer delegates in Europe arrived here this afternoon. They held a prolonged conference in the house of Mr. Kruger, and afterwards another meeting was held in the hotel DePays Bas here. None of the Boer delegates were willing to talk with regard to the conclusion of peace, or of what had been done at today's meetings. Mr. Leyds and Mr. Fischer will remain here. Mr. Wessels and Mr. Wolmarins have proceeded to The Hague.

Berlin, June 3.—Referring to the terms of peace in South Africa the German newspapers express great disappointment, and say they amount practically to the unconditional surrender of the Boers.

London, June 4.—Contrary to custom the house of lords will hold a sitting today to receive a message from King Edward, with reference to peace in South Africa. It is expected that this message will announce the conferring of a title on Lord Kitchener and the granting him a reward for his services. This reward will probaly be £100,000.

It now appears that Lord Kitchener will not return to London for the king's coronation, and Joseph Chamberlain, the colonial secretary has said that the government does not propose to have the New South African colonies represented at the crowning of King Edward. The Transvaal and Orange river representatives could hardly reach London in time for the function.

London, June 4.—Telegraphing from Amsterdam, the correspondent of the Daily Mail says that Sir W. Conyingham Greene, the British minister at Berne, Switzerland, and who was formerly British agent at Pretoria, together with Lord Reamy, from London, has arrived here and conferred at length with Dr. Kuyper, the Dutch premier. It is rumored containues the correspondent that Sir Conyingham Greene and Lord Reay propose accompanying Dr. Kuyper to notify Mr. Kruger of the conditions of peace, and to offer him safe conduct to South Africa, and other facilites, conditional upon his retirement to his farm at Rustenburg. Dr. Kuyper's good offices in this matter were requested by Great Britain.

Pretoria, June 3.—Lord Kitchener accompanied by his brother, General Kitchener, visited the camp at Vereniging last Monday, and greeted the delegates to the Boer conference there. He expressed his hope that in the future Boer and Briton would live in amity.

London, June 3.—Joseph Chamberlain, the colonial secretary, was received by King Edward at Buckingham palace tonight. Mr. Chamberlain's residence at Birmingham is nightly the scene of patriotic demonstrations and ovations.

GREENWOOD HAPPENINGS

O'HARA SURVEY PARTY IS NOW LOCATING INTERNATIONAL BOUNDARY.

Greenwood, June 3.—[Special to The Daily News.]—The action brought by the Standard Pyritic Smelting Co., Ltd., against the B. C. Copper Co., Ltd., in the supreme court, to recover $687.35, stated to be due by the defendant company for a receiving well, etc., has been disposed of, the jury finding a verdict for the defendant. The chief point at issue was that the plaintiff company maintained that the receiving well was sold to the defendant company whilst the latter produced evidence to show that it was only lent and that it had offered to return it in good condition when its own well, previously ordered, was received.

W. F. O'Hara, of the geological survey of Canada, arrived yesteday afternoon to resume the work in connection with definitely locating the international boundary line upon which he was engaged last year. His party will number sixteen or eighteen men. After completing some work near Midway, which will take two or three weeks, Mr. O'Hara will move his party to south of Rossland and commence operations there.

F. H. Parker, in the employ of P. Burns and Co. at Greenwood, lost an eleven year-old son last night. The lad was ill only three or four days and his death was quite unexpected.

WIDOWS AND ORPHANS.

From an authoritative source The Daily News learns that as a result of the Fernie disaster at least fifty women have been made widows, and two hundred and fifty children rendered fatherless. These figures plead more eloquently than can any words of ours for generous contributions to the relief fund. At the most conservative estimate it will take fully $100,000 to provide for these innocent sufferers. Of this amount there has already been subscribed about $20,000. The Coal company may do a very great deal but it is hardly likely that it will find the entire amount necessary to protect from want so large a number of women and children. This is a case in which "small donations will be thankfully received." Whilst $100,000 looks a big sum it could easily be got together if everyone to whom the mere thought of a little child being compelled to go hungry would be painful would contribute a dollar or two. Contributions can be sent direct to the Canadian Bank of Commerce relief fund at Fernie, or left at this office for transmission.

AN IMPORTANT MEETING.

That the conference of the Dominion boards of trade at Toronto will be attended with important results which will have a practical value, is the earnest hope of every one. A gathering of business men assembled for the one purpose of discussing matters bearing upon the devolopment of Canadian trade cannot fail to serve a very good and useful service to the country at large. With delegates from fifty or sixty boards of trade, representing every province and practically all the main industries, the discussions that will take place, will tend to bring to the fore the claims of the various sections of the dominion and to establish a better understanding between the business men residing at widely separated points. It may be taken for granted that the several questions that will come up for consideration will be treated strictly from a commercial point of view and that political feeling will be entirely left out. If the only result of the meeting is the establishing of a clearer conception in the minds of the eastern delegates of the requirements and opportunities of the west, the conference will not have been in vain. But it will do more than that. The airing of views on topics of widespread and imperial concern will broaden the grasp of all in attendance respecting them. The questions of imperial defense, preferential trade, and other subjects of like imperial moment are too important to be disposed of offhand although on some of these matters there will be perhaps a variance of opinion, their discussion can be but productive of good.

The conference opens today and may possibly last several days. It would perhaps be a very good move if a similar conference became an annual or even a biennial fixture, a sort of trade parliament in which politics would be conspicuous by its absence. This idea will probably be broached before the present conference disperses There is much in the plan to recommend it and its adoption is not at all unlikely.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Premier Ross' rather slim majority has been decreased by the death of one of the newly elected members, Mr. J. W. Munroe, who on Thursday last carried the riding of North Renfrew for the Liberal government Premier Ross' majority is now only three.

Lord Strathcona, writing to the Empire Review for June, opposes the representation of the colonies in the imperial parliament at any rate until a truly imperial parliament is established dealing with imperial affairs. He says the colonies might seriously consider any authoritative proposal to contribute to the cost of the army and navy. No such proposal has yet been made, but he warns Englishmen that the proposition affects the whole problem of imperial unity and representation, and says the empire must pay greater attention to the development of imperial trade and he sees no valid reason against regarding the domestic trade of the empire more favorably than foreign trade. The commercial relations of the empire should be put on a family footing.

The large influx of Americans into the Northwest has created a problem for the Canadian Manufacturers' association. These new immigrants bring with them a natural taste for American manufactured products of every description, and unless the Canadian manufacturers bestir themselves what should prove a most lucrative field for them will be taken possession of by their more alert competitors from across the line. The association have decided as a preliminary move in the campaign for securing to themselves the trade of the Northwest to exhibit on a large scale at the Winnipeg Industrial exhibition. Our advice to the Canadian manufaturers' association would be to indulge a little more freely in the the use of printers ink.

The Alienation of the General.

I FIRST encountered him in the streets of a Montana "cow-town," where he was affording amusement to a crowd of men and boys, while a tipsy musician was attempting the Boulanger March on an antique piano. To save him from further abuse I bought him, and ever afterwards he was known to his little world as "General Boulanger."

We grew to look upon the General as an interesting scientific phenomenon. His was a soul saturated with hate for all men. Any amiable qualities he may have possessed in early youth had been killed by abuse. He knew but distrust and fear. We determined to reclaim him, and in our lonely camp the General became the object of such flattering attention that only his unconquerable misanthropy kept him from becoming an arrant snob. For a long time our efforts were unavailing, but as the weeks went by I thought I noticed a little less shrinking, fewer growls, and a faint gleam of recognition in the glassy eyes when I approached. I felt the thrill of conquest, and redoubled my efforts. The heart of stone was at last touched, and my theory in regard to "yaller dogs" was correct.

We returned to the outskirts of civilization, and one day, driving once more to the town, so filled with painful memories for the General, I was surprised to behold him again in the street, slinking about with others of his kind. The slight results of our patient labors were in peril. It would never do to allow the General's slowly growing faith in man to be nipped in the bud by further town life, so with infinite pains I secured him and tied him to the back of my wagon. I remonstrated with him gently, as he lay cringing in the dust, for his base desertion of the only friends he had ever known.

The painful journey homeward began. The General betrayed a distinct unwillingness to ride, so he was allowed to follow at the end of a long rope behind. With his usual acumen, he fancied the strength of two half-broken broncos to be as naught compared to his fiery determination to remain in town. So he sat down. With an expression of pained surprise on his countenance he traversed a few hundred yards of the dusty road in this position, and then tried his back. It was quite in keeping with the eccentricities of the General's mental processes that a simpler method did not occur to him, until, striking a deep rut, he was hurled high into the air, and by some happy chance alighted on the extremities nature had provided for purposes of locomotion. Then, with bowed head, he trotted contentedly along. I turned to look at him occasionally, and flattered myself that I saw in his demeanor evidences of regret at his folly, and a determination to do better in the future. I spoke encouragingly to him, but he was too absorbed in meditation to look up.

A hot afternoon's ride brought us to an irrigating ditch. After rattling over the few loose planks which served as a bridge, I stopped to repair a break in the harness. The General, hot and dusty, at once dashed into the little stream to drink and bathe. With my back to the tired horses I watched him.

As I looked he performed his colossal act of folly, the final episode in his witless career. After refreshing himself on one side of the tiny bridge, quite unmindful of his connection with my rear axle, he laboriously splashed under the bridge and came out the other side. Cooled by his bath, he came to the side of the wagon and looked sweetly up at me. Immensely impressed by his sagacity, I was on the point of alighting to free him from his dangerous predicament, when the hand of fate, ever turned against him, struck the last blow.

A fly stung my off bronco, and with a squeal he and his startled mate rushed madly down the road. I was hurled to the bottom of the wagon, but not before I saw the General turn a perfect back somersault and shoot toward the stream. In a cloud of dust he disappeared into the water, and then followed a symphony of howls as he traversed the dark and damp nether side of the bridge, to be shot up into daylight once more by the united strength of two frightened broncos. In a shower of spray he struck the road twenty feet from the bridge, and did not gain his feet until I had brought the horses to a standstill. Once more I turned to the General. He was a pitiable sight. Covered with mud and half strangled, he quivered with cold and rage.

As we traversed the short distance to camp I tried to fancy what his reflections were. Knowing him as well as I did, I felt sure that he looked upon the past weeks of kindness as part of an elaborate scheme to win his confidence enough to practice this last insult upon him. I dreaded the consequences of the episode, and planned new blandishments to reinstate myself in his favor.

Arriving in camp, my first thought was to release him from the wagon. But the water and mud made it difficult to unfasten the knot at his collar. Feeling keenly the embarrassment of his position, I untied the rope from the axle and threw it on the ground.

The General watched me sulkily, and when the end of that hated rope fell free he bounded to his feet. With one final snarl of utter hate and disgust he was off like a shot; not in a wild, purposeless circle, but straight as the flight of an arrow across the prairie. Away he went, with the lariat dragging behind him.

With eyes raised to the solitary snow peak a hundred miles away he flew from us, with a heart full of hate and a grim determination to put half a continent, if need be, between himself and tyrant man. As I watched the little cloud of dust, raised by his hurrying feet, disappear on the horizon, I realized the futility of battling against fate.

Then our packer broke the silence: "There goes the ornriest cur in the world with the best lariat in Montana."
—"Atlantic Monthly."

The Color Cure.

Now it is the color cure, and medicine men are recommending that their depressed and nervous patients should wear nothing but garments of red. Mr. Ruskin went so far as to say that all the people he had known who were morally and physically sound loved bright color; that the yellow hues of a canary were enlivening to behold, and that it was enough merely to see a huntsman in his "pink" to give you courage to take a ditch yourself."—"Ladies' Field."

A Cheerful Prophecy.

THE animal that cannot be trained to keep its wits about it on the approach of a motor car must disappear. Its stupidity, filth, sloth, fear of everything and useless size prove to the most conservative that it must go. The horse that will not stand a motor car may be the delight of its owner, but it is a public nuisance and a public danger, and ought to be shot like a mad dog. Horsemen have no right to bring unmanageable brutes into the public highways, to the public danger, and it is time this elementary justice should be recognized. The motor is going to become the means of locomotion for all light transit, and by the ordinary roads as they exist to-day. It is the pedestrian and the horse that have got to give way. The horse in traffic, if he chooses to bolt, is uncontrollable. The motor, from the lightest bicycle to the heaviest car, is perfectly controllable, occupies half the space, and travels now through the congested streets at double and treble the speed of any horse-drawn vehicle. The only thing the two have in common is that at times they both refuse to go.

The unobservant talk of the accidents that would happen. The accidents will be a great deal fewer in number. A conclusive proof of this, to any one with any sense, is the fact that in the thousand miles tour no one, I believe, was hurt, though the roads were lined with spectators. In the race from Paris to Berlin, three days, and the tour around Italy, ten days, but two children were killed, the result entirely of their own carelessness or that of their parents. Suppose, for a moment, that in France a hundred and ten teams, or, rather, droves, of horses—there were a hundred and ten motors—ranging from fifty in a bunch down to two—this was the horse-power of the machines—had been let loose and driven at top speed for three days on the public roads. Will anyone tell me that thousands of people would not have been killed, that hundreds of drivers would not have lost their lives as well? But that would have been described as sport. . . . The only danger to be feared from the motor car is to its own driver, the only drawback is its own imperfection. Read the reports of automobile accidents: proportionately, these are far fewer than from any other form of locomotion, and in nine cases out of ten the accident occurs to the driver or the occupant of the car; in the tenth case it is owing to the stupidity or the carelessness of the person who gets in front. The average pedestrian has simply got to learn to keep out of the way, and that is the end of it.—Joseph Pennell in "Contemporary Review."

No Breach of Discipline.

THE colonel was entertaining some of his friends with stories of army life, and the talk turned to the inflexibility of orders. That reminded the colonel of Tim Murphy's case.

Murphy had enlisted in the cavalry service, although he had never been on a horse in his life. He was taken out for drill with other raw recruits under command of a sergeant, and, as luck would have it, secured one of the worst buckers in the whole troop.

"Now, my men," said the sergeant in addressing them, "no one is allowed to dismount without orders from a superior officer. Remember that."

Tim was no sooner in the saddle than he was hurled head over heels through the air, and came down so hard that the breath was almost knocked out of him.

"Murphy," shouted the sergeant, when he discovered the man spread out on the ground, "you dismounted!"

"I did."

"Did you have orders?"

"I did."

"From headquarters, I suppose?" with a sneer.

"No, from hindquarters."

"Take him to the guard-house!" ordered the sergeant.—Detroit "Free Press."

Winter Uplands.

The frost that stings like fire upon my cheek,
The loneliness of this forsaken ground,
The long white drift upon whose powdered peak
I sit in the great silence as one bound;
The rippled sheet of snow where the wind blew
Across the open fields for miles ahead;
The far-off city towered and roofed in blue,
A tender line upon the western red;
The stars that singly, then in flocks appear,
Like jets of silver from a violet dome,
So wonderful, so many, and so near,
And then the golden moon to light me home;
The crunching snowshoes and the stinging air,
And silence, frost, and beauty everywhere.

—Lampman.

Epitaph.

Here lies Luke Longpenne, the distinguished historical novelist, who died at the age of eleven years in the full height of his fame, three weeks after the publication of his first book.—"Life."

On a Dog.

"They're thinking now of reversing the usual process, and first trying plays in New York before taking them out on the road." "What's the idea?" "Well, if a play succeeds in New York, the rest of the country will know it's rotten."—"Life."

A Matter of Contrast.

"Give an example of how heat expands and cold contracts." "In the summer the days are long; in the winter they are short."—"Judge."

Little Georgie was taken by his aunt to see the newcomer, aged one day. He was duly and profoundly impressed with the specimen, and asked where the little brother came from. "God sent it," answered the aunt, reverently. The answer made a deep impression on Little Georgie, for that afternoon he was seen out in the backyard gazing up into the deep blue sky and spreading his diminutive apron expectantly as he said: "Dear God, please throw me one down, too."—Troy "Press."

First Little Girl—The doctor brought us twins yesterday! Second Little Girl—That's where you made a mistake. You should have had a homeopath!—N. Y. "Life."

Man as an Incarnation.

PEOPLE of a materialistic frame of mind, to whom man is but a machine, says an editorial writer in the "Hospital," are apt to put on one side all that cannot be weighed and measured as not only inexplicable or unthinkable, but as quite beyond the range of reasonable discussion. Such people are advised to attend a meeting of the Society for Psychical Research for "a change of scene." What they will see is thus described:

"There they will find people, quite as convinced as they are of their own sanity, and quite as content as they can possibly be with the correctness of their own interpretation of things, asserting the most astounding propositions, without turning a hair. To those who are so self-centered as to think that there is something cranky about all who do not see as they do, it is a wholesome awakening to find good, solid, comfortable, and respectable people believing in telepathy as a thing indisputable, and holding that man, as we see him engaged in his various more or less ignoble pursuits, in the city and elsewhere, is but the incarnation of one little bit of himself as he exists in an intangible and ethereal form. At the last meeting of the Psychical Research Society, Dr. Oliver Lodge, F.R.S., said that he did not hold that the whole of any one of us was incarnated in their terrestrial bodies; certainly not in childhood; more, but perhaps not so very much more, in adult life. What was manifest was only a definite portion of a much larger whole. What the rest was doing during the years spent here he did not know. Perhaps it was asleep; but probably, he said, it was not entirely asleep with men of genius, nor perhaps was it all completely inactive with people called mediums. Now to the modern materialist all this is absolute 'rot.' Yet Dr. Lodge is not exactly a man to pooh-pooh. Indeed, may not the immaterialists retort that this is a Christian country and that our very religion teaches us not to weigh and measure too exactly? Again, Roentgen, Tesla, and Marconi have of late been giving many shocks to old ideas. At any rate, this is clear, that we must not too rigidly put outside the bounds of sanity belief in the unthinkable. It is a queer world, and which half of it is sane appears still undecided."

An English Departure in Insurance.

A CORRESPONDENT writing from London under date of February 13 says: "One queer phase of the present smallpox scare is the smallpox insurance department opened at Lloyd's. The current rates are 2 1-2 per cent. if recently vaccinated, and 3 1-3 if not vaccinated since infancy. The insurance becomes due on the doctor's certificate that the policy-holder has smallpox." He adds: "After jogging along comfortably with smallpox in its midst for six months, London is now beginning to get worried, and a large contributing cause of that worry is that if the plague spreads much more it is going to frighten away the profitable American cousin, who is expected to come over in unprecedented shoals for the coronation season and scatter dollars right and left. Trouble began away back in August, and has been slowly growing, off and on, ever since, until the average lately has been about 50 new cases a day. One day last week it ran up to 82. There were 188 new cases in September, 309 in October, 473 in November, 804 in December and 1,295 in January. Yet, according to previous experience, smallpox reaches its height in London from January to May. Consequently it would be well for readers planning a trip to see King Edward's crown put on to watch the smallpox returns from London for the next four or five weeks. At present the plague can be said to be well under control, but a big sudden increase would tax London's resources to the utmost and might cause a panic."

Onions and Epidemics.

A READER of "Marmaduke's" letters in London "Truth" has sent him the following:

"Whilst turning over some old books in my library last week I stumbled upon the following paragraph in the 'Rural World' of 1863. As there is an epidemic of smallpox in London it has occurred to me to send this to you, for some of your medical readers may be either able to prove or disprove the statements it contains:

"'Onions and Epidemics.—In the spring of 1849 I was in charge of one hundred men on shipboard, with the cholera among the men. We had onions, which a number of the men ate freely. Those who did so were soon attacked, and nearly all died. As soon as I made this discovery their use was forbidden. After mature deliberation I came to the conclusion that onions should never be eaten during the prevalence of epidemics, for the reason that they absorb the virus, and communicate the disease, and that the proper use for them is sliced and placed in the sick-room, and replaced with fresh ones every few hours. . . . After maintaining the foregoing opinion for eighteen years, I have found the following well attested: Onions placed in the room where there is smallpox will blister and decompose with great rapidity; not only so, but will prevent the spread of the disease. I think that as a disinfectant they have no equal if properly used. If needed, the foregoing (which I have greatly abbreviated) can be attested on oath.'"

It is a curious echo of a bygone preventive, and it is given here without much hope that the suggestion can be valuable.

Doubtless She Was.

Mrs. Browne—And who is the president of your club now, Mrs. Malaprop? Mrs. Malaprop (proudly)—I am the present encumbrance, just now.—Philadelphia "Press."

Bargains.

Reform will just be great,
Two dollar votes will be marked down

Jay—Yes, sir; when I was in New York a sharper robbed me of fifty dollars. Hay—Why didn't you call a policeman? "Well, I thought fifty dollars was enough."—Philadelphia "Press."

Protected.

IN recalling incidents of international courtesy, when British and Americans have supported each other a writer in the Boston "Transcript" tells the following story which came from an American sailor who had landed at a port in Chile:

The men had gone ashore and become somewhat hilarious, and one of the police officers, instead of warning him not to make a noise in the street, drew his sword and knocked him down. The American got up, and promptly knocked the policeman down in return. He was arrested, tried, and condemned to be shot the next morning.

Mr. Loring, the American consul, expostulated with the authorities, saying that it would be monstrous to put a man to death for such an offence; but they paid no attention to him. On the day specified the sailor was brought out and pinioned, in readiness for execution.

The English consul, preparing to hoist the Union Jack, saw a crowd in the field opposite, and realized that the execution was about to take place. He rushed over to the American consul, and cried:

"Loring! You're not going to let them shoot that man?"

"What can I do?" was the answer. "I have protested against it. I can do no more."

"Give me your flag!" cried the Englishman.

With the two flags in his hand, he ran to the field, elbowed his way through the crowd and soldiery, and reached the prisoner. He folded the American flag about him, and laid the Union Jack over it. He stepped back, and faced the officers and soldiery.

"Shoot, if you dare," he shouted, "through the heart of England and America!"

The man was not shot.

The Old-Age Habit.

"FOR why would I look old, darling? Answer me that, now!" Mrs. Mullaly demanded. She had been Honora Costigan formerly, Mrs. Morris's loving and faithful house-girl; but that was twenty years earlier. Mistress and maid had been at opposite ends of the earth in the meantime, and the mistress, who had noticeably aged, felt almost a shock of resentment at sight of the plump and buxom Nora she used to know.

"Sure, I've had me bad times and me good times, like the rest of the world," Mrs. Mullaly went on, reflectively. "But, glory be! before the bad times quite finished me the good times always came again—me always leaving the door ajar to let them in, d'ye mind?

"I am older; I feel it sometimes in me poor back; but I'm not old. Whisper, darling, it ain't the years that go over; it's the heart that's inside that changes the faces of us.

"'Twas a cousin of mine that teached me the truth of it, this long ago. She begun to be old the day she was born, did Katie, and when she was fourteen, looking and acting twenty, 'twas a great help to her. But when she was twenty, 'I'm getting on!' says she. When she was twenty-five, 'No,' says she to Johnny Walsh, that came a-courting, 'I'm too old and settled in me habits to be marrying.' Then when she was thirty nothing would do her but to get wid the old women and talk of the time when she and they was young.

"So the heart of her went into the face of her. It did so! I mind when she was thirty about and me over twenty, we went together one day to a big new hotel to get work. A good worker was Katie. But the boss he looked us up and looked us down and asked his questions, and then says he, 'I'll give you a trial, my girl,' says he to me. 'But as for you,' he says to Katie, 'it's young, strong, lively women we want,' says he, 'and I'm thinking you're after mistaking this for the Old Ladies' Home, which,' says he, 'is in the next block.'

"'O-ho!' says I to meself at that. 'Am I going out to hunt for wrinkles and rheumatism before me own mother gets gray in her hair? No,' says I, and 'twas then I begun to toss me birthdays over me shoulder as fast as they came. They're all behind me, glory be! where I can't fall over thim.

"Whisper, darling," Mrs. Mullaly added, impressively, "old age is a bad habit, like drinking, and if ye give way to it ye won't so easy break it off. Sure, there's a new year every twelve months, but that can't make ye an old woman—never, darling, until ye're willin' to be!"

Team-work Among Squirrels.

A party of young people who were tenting in a grove near a glen at a Northfield Conference witnessed an incident which seems to show a friendly understanding among squirrels. The Deerfield Valley "Endeavorer" tells the pleasing story.

An out-of-doors dinner had just been finished, and the party were still sitting at the table, when a red squirrel, with glistening, eager eyes, came creeping down a tree which stood near the table. He crept nearer and nearer, and finally leaped upon the table.

The lady who was presiding said, "Yes, help yourself to anything you want!"

Upon this invitation the little fellow made bold to creep up to a loaf of bread from which only a slice or two had been cut. He seized it and dragged it to the side of the table, and somehow managed to scramble down the side with it to the ground. He then fixed his teeth in the crust, and dragged it away and down the steep sides of the glen.

But when he reached the bottom and confronted the steep rise on the other side it was too much for him. Then he gave a sort of call, which seemed to be understood, for soon squirrels were seen coming from several directions. They crowded round him, and after a little conference, all took hold, and with tug and strain they managed to bring the loaf to the top of the hill, and disappeared with it in the woods beyond.

Two Ways.

When a woman gets frightened at night she just pulls the bedclothes over her head, says she is terrified out of her wits, and goes to sleep. But with a man it is different. He says he is not afraid, pushes the clothes down and lies tremblingly wake for two hours, straining his ears at every sound.—"Pick-Me-Up."

Lost Opportunity.

EVERY time a package goes out of your store which does not contain some advertising matter, you are losing an opportunity to make your store the store of the town.

Each package you send out is proof that a sale has been made. Every sale is supposedly of goods that are going to give the customer full value, and are going to give satisfaction. This will create a favorable impression. Every sale proves that some person has shown a disposition to trade with you.

Now this disposition is either great or small. In either case it can be made greater. And one of the most effective methods to bring about this desired effect is to place the advertising matter in the packages you send out.

THE CITY

Jay P. Graves, of the Granby smelter, is in town.

The steamer International yesterday brought in two cars of Whitewater ore for the Trail smelter.

On Monday a train on the Crow's Nest had three cars ditched near Jeffries. No one was hurt.

A letter was received yesterday from Charles Hillyer, late of this city, stating that he is now located in Winnipeg, where he has taken some building contracts.

An application is being made by the Nelson board of school trustees of the department of education to arrange for the holding of a session of the Normal School here this summer.

The water of the lake in the twenty-four hours ending at 3 p. m. yesterday rose an inch and one-half. The Indians in town state that the lake has reached the highest point for the season and will now go down very fast.

On Monday afternoon the steam shovel which has been working on a slide covering the railway track a short distance east of Michel toppled over, and one of the laborers who happened to be below it was crushed to death.

Over one hundred laborers from the Lardo road were brought down by the Kokanee yesterday morning. Most of the men are staying in town for a couple of days before going on to other points where railway construction is in progress.

The summer session of the Normal school will commence on July 4th. Forms of application for admission can be obtained from the principal, Mr. Burns, Vancouver. All teachers holding Provincial B. C. Certificates, obtained prior to August 1901, are eligible to attend this session.

A letter was received this week by Captain C. W. Busk from Victoria, informing the settlers along the north shore of the arm that the government had no money to spend on the road asked and that anyway the steamer service should be sufficient. Another meeting of the settlers is to be held this week to consider what is best to be done under the circumstances.

Word was received this week from the foreman of the Tyee mine tramway, now being built by B. C. Riblet of this city, which indicates that there is a good demand for men, particularly carpenters, in that part of Vancouver island. On the tramway alone there is work now open for twenty additional carpenters and laborers, and two smelters, the Crofton and the Ladysmith are in course of erection within fifteen miles of the tramway.

Word was received yesterday from the coast stating that judgment had been given in the Star Mining and Milling company vs. Byron White, allowing the plaintiffs application with costs, compelling defendants to produce all their working plans of the Sloean Star for inspection and copying by the plaintiffs. This application arose under the order made by the full court last January, practically covering the same ground. The defendants contended that notwithstanding the appellate order they were not compelled to produce the plans. The decision now given definitely settles this point.

Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Byers had a narrow escape on Sunday afternoon from a collision with a locomotive. It appears that they were going out fishing and missing the regular train for Procter took a hand car. They had gone some distance, when stopping to rest they became suddenly aware of a train coming from the opposite direction in which they were travelling, a curve having hidden it from view and the noise of the handcar having prevented them hearing it approach. Mr. Byers endeavored to get the handcar off in time and was successful but in doing so had the end of one of his fingers taken off, it catching in a cog of the handcar as he threw it over.

MINING NEWS.

J. Frank Collom, of the Arlington Mines, passed through Nelson yesterday on his way to the coast. In speaking of the programme mapped out at the Arlington for the present season Mr. Collom said the property would ship all the way from 300 to 600 tons of ore per month, but that the amount of the shipments would in a very great measure depend upon the treatment accorded the mine by the smelters. There are upwards of 70 men employed at the Arlington, and the work is progressing very satisfactorily under the foremanship of "Bill" Hudson. The product of the Arlington is a dry ore which under normal conditions is very much in demand at the local smelters, but at the present time, with the comparative stagnation in lead mining, there has been a considerable falling off in the ordinary competition for it. This while it cannot be said to seriously impair the value of the Arlington property has a very appreciable effect upon the shipments, as under a restricted output little beyond the first-class ore is shipped, whereas some time ago the company found it profitable to ship the ore from the dumps which carried something like 20 ounces silver to the ton. This low grade ore is at present going on the dumps again, and, while it remains an asset, it is in a measure unsaleable.

D. W. Moore, of the Trail smelter, was in Nelson yesterday. He says the smelter's refinery project is proceeding slowly, and although it has been running for the past few days the refinery has not as yet commenced to turn out pig-lead in a marketable form. Just when the refinery would be turning out commercial pig Mr. Moore said he was not in a position to say, but in his opinion it might be well on to the first of next month.

Mining men who complain of their treatment from the local smelters have no cause of complaint, so far, upon the smelters action in withholding ten per cent. of the values on silver-lead ores to cover the possible fall in prices for a period of 90 days following the date of its arrival at the smelters. While this means that the smelters have the use of this holdback for the period of 90 days without interest, still the advantage to the mine of the mean price of silver for the same period has so far meant much more than the interest on the amount held back. This scheme of settling upon the mean price for 90 days following shipment was devised to protect the smelters against falling market, which, during the past year, hit the smelters rather hard, the loss in the case of the Nelson smelter being figured at something like $50,000 for the last fiscal year. The experience of the past few months have shown that having met the losses of the year of falling prices it would have stood the smelters in hand to play the game for what it was worth, and have taken advantage of even the slight advances which silver has experienced during the present year, as under the existing arrangement the smelters are in a measure precluded from recouping themselves upon a rising market for the losses, which under a different system, they suffered from the falling market of last year.

O. F. Richtel, manager for Finch and Campbell, who arrived in the city yesterday from the Bayonne mine had an interesting but unpleasant experience en route. At the mine landing he engaged two squaws to paddle him to Kootenay Landing, so that he could make connection with the steamer for Nelson. The fare for the trip had always been $1.25, but seeing that he was in a hurry the aborigines demanded double. This was refused and after some argument the $1.25 was accepted and paid in advance. After half the distance had been covered the squaws paddled the canoe to the shore and told the passengers to get out. This he demurred against, but was told that the fare for the rest of the trip was another $1.25. Expostulation being useless this was paid, but only to be followed by a demand for another fare. As it was important for Mr. Richtel to catch the steamer he had finally to give in and pay it over, making three fares he was obliged to put up for one trip. When next Mr. Richtel travels he will probably take Marc Gilliam along. "Marc's" knowledge of Indians and their methods is second only to his knowledge of mining.

The meeting of the shareholders of the Venus company which was held in this city yesterday will prepare the way for the early resumption of work at the Athabasca and Venus properties, as the amalgamation scheme was unanimously approved. The financing of the new company is now all that remains and it is understood that satisfactory arrangements of this nature have been made. Of the stock in the new company which it is proposed to issue to the present shareholders of the Athabasca and Venus companies, that to the former will have six cents subject to call on the 25 cent stock, while the stock of the Venus shareholders will be fully paid.
