Girl's Death Sparks Protest

GENELLE DEMANDING ACTION

Want Safety Measures For Area's Pedestrians

By GORDON WOOD
Daily News Correspondent

GENELLE—A general meeting of the residents of Genelle Monday night demanded that the provincial government take immediate steps that would result in new and safe highway construction through the community.

The meeting charged RCMP with displaying an "excessively lax attitude in connection with traffic violations.

The meeting of the residents was called after the tragic highway death of a 13-year-old Genelle girl, Nona Hodgson, January 22 as she and a friend were walking to her home from a birthday party they had been attending.

Her companion, Gary Jones, 15, was hospitalized with a broken leg, cuts and bruises.

Meeting chairman Tom McKenzie described the meeting as a "spontaneous meeting of indignation—a feeling of protest by all of the people of Genelle.

THREE RESOLUTIONS

The meeting unanimously passed three resolutions, one demanding immediate action by Mines Minister Don Brothers, local MLA, and highways minister Gaglardi to "make a complete review of construction progress, and that we (the residents be informed as to when we can expect the relocation and reconstruction (of the highway) to take place."

A second resolution demanded that the two ministers take immediate steps to see that the highway department "be authorized to make a survey of measures necessary to ensure the safety of pedestrians walking in the vicinity of the highway."

The final motion charged an "excessively lax attitude displayed by law enforcement officers in connection with traffic violations", and demanded that Mr. Brothers and Attorney-General Robert Bonner "take immediate steps to overcome the lack of public service."

The meeting placed a February 10 deadline for action by the provincial government, and decided that if action was not forthcoming by that date, that the continuing committee be empowered to take whatever steps it deemed necessary to bring about action on the resolutions.

AMBULANCE DELAY

The meeting charged that there has been poor ambulance service to the Genelle area. The meeting was told that on the night of the tragedy, the delay in the arrival of the ambulance necessitated stopping a passing truck to transport the injured girl and youth to the Trail hospital where the girl later died.

Attending the meeting were Hilda Reid, past president of the Trail District Safety Council and district highway superintendent R. F. Staite, RCMP Constable Geall of the Trail detachment highway patrol.

Constable Geall told the meeting that only two RCMP patrol cars cover the highways from the summit of the Blueberry-Paulson Pass to the U.S. border to the summit of the Salmo-Creston Skyway.

Mr. Staite favored reducing the speed limit on the highway through Genelle to 35 miles an hour from 40. He said highway crews have been instructed to keep the highway through the sand banks on the Genelle Hill open to provide ample space for pedestrians.

"Drastic Steps" Needed

VICTORIA (CP) — Action by the provincial government to curb traffic deaths was urged in the B.C. Legislature Tuesday by Willis Jefcoat (SC — Salmon Arm).

Speaking during the Throne Speech debate, the member noted there were 500 deaths on B.C. highways last year and "drastic steps" are needed to curb this figure.

"The number of deaths should be cut in half," he said.

He suggested construction of passing bays along the B.C. section of the Trans-Canada Highway and establishment of driver training courses.

The government was asked to assign another policeman to Sicamous to assist the single officer in that centre.

Mr. Jefcoat said all traffic to and from the Rogers Pass must pass through Sicamous and the burden was too much for one man.

30-Foot Drifts Bury Counties In N. York State

OSWEGO, N.Y. (AP) — Whole counties of northern New York state lay buried Tuesday under drifts up to 30 feet deep after one of the worst snow storms on record. Oswego, on the southeastern shore of Lake Ontario reported 102 inches on the ground.

Industry shut down. Schools and stores closed. Some newspapers went unpublished, others couldn't deliver editions. A shortage of milk and bread threatened. Streets were impassable to fire trucks, cars and buses.

The snow, which struck during the weekend and was driven by winds gusting at 60 miles an hour, diminished to flurries Tuesday. But the U.S. weather bureau said a new storm might dump another two to four inches in the stricken area today.

The streets of Syracuse, which has a population of 216,000, were drifted in some places 10 to 15 feet deep. Onondaga County executive John Mulroy declared an emergency and called for state and federal help.

WILL GET AID

In Albany, the New York state Senate promised financial assistance for communities hard est hit by the storm.

The snowbanks were so deep in Syracuse that 40 sales girls of Mohawk Airlines were trapped in their offices from Saturday night until plows broke through Tuesday.

"We just couldn't get out," said Nadja Kyryczenko, 20. "The drifts were 12 feet high outside the building.

Police waded through the drifts to bring the girls food and other supplies.

The Girls took catnaps on couches while they were trapped.

"But mostly we stayed on the job," said Sheila Mason. "We've had 50,000 calls since Sunday night."

Mayor John Lindsay of New York City started a convoy of four rotary snow plows on a trip of nearly 300 miles up the New York State Thruway to help dig the city out. Another 13 plows headed for Syracuse from Albany.

Emergency Declared in Oswego

Oswego, a city of 23,000 declared a state of emergency, with all 87 miles of its streets blocked solid, some by 20-foot drifts.

Normal industrial and business activity halted in Rome, Utica and throughout Onondaga, Oswego, Madison and Cortland counties.

At least 16 deaths were attributed to the storm.

Oswego's big fall began last Thursday.

Mayor Ralph Shapiro declared a state of emergency Monday night and warned that unless supply routes soon were opened meat, milk and bread might have to be rationed. Shapiro said meat was in especially short supply.

In the Pompey and Manlius districts of Onondaga County, 240 homes had been without electricity since the storm cut the power Sunday night. Power company repair crews were trapped in drifts for 24 hours without food before snow plows rescued them Tuesday.

Deputy Sheriffs Deliver Babies

The Red Cross and civil defence officials set up emergency centres for stranded travellers in two armories and the Onondaga County War Memorial Auditorium in Syracuse. Deputy sheriffs delivered eight babies at homes.

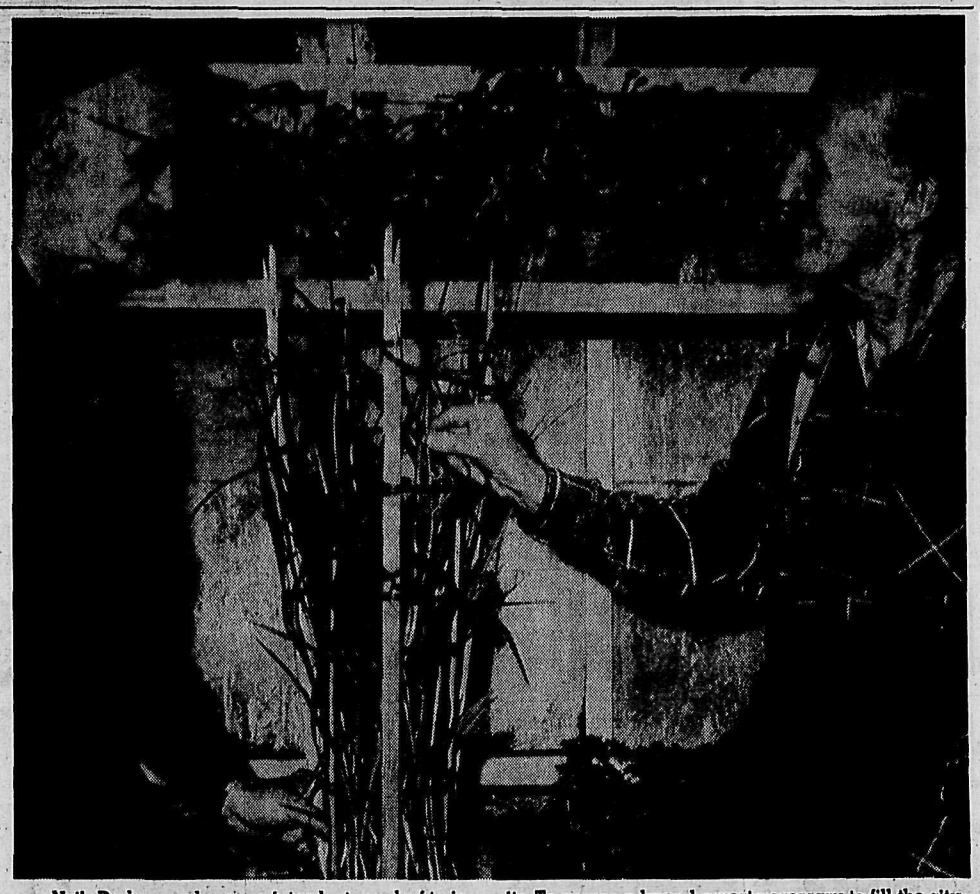
The storm caused at least seven highway deaths. Heart attacks were fatal to seven persons shovelling snow or pushing automobiles. A father and daughter died of exposure in a car caught in a drift.

A convoy of 150 state snowplows headed out of Albany to clear the six-lane Thruway. At one time the superhighway was blocked for 270 miles, from Albany to Pennsylvania.

The Thruway authority cautioned against travel and said there was no indication when it would be fully reopened.

A snowplow convoy was organized to rescue more than 500 travellers stranded at a service centre near Little Falls. Another convoy rescued 600 Monday.

Seven locomotives were used to pull the New York Central's Wolverine passenger train, with 250 aboard, loose from nine-foot drifts which halted it for more than five hours between Rochester and Buffalo, just south of Lake Ontario.



Neil Derby, parks superintendent on left, is shown a freesias bud by greenskeeper Doug Grahame. This plant, as are all others in the greenhouse, is rich with buds and ready to bloom. This is the busy time of the year for the gardeners, with thousands of plants being transplanted, seeded, and potted. Each of these receives individual care and attention. The annual plants are soon to be seeded. This will require over 100 flats to be planted with at least 80 seeds. These must be spaced evenly and kept at the proper temperature and humidity within strictly defined limits. To ensure a large harvest necessary to fill the city flowerbeds, the above requirements must be met. All types of plants are simultaneously being prepared and nursed for their springtime debut. This year more flowers than ever before will be seen blossoming in Lakeside Park. The time-consuming work will be paid for by the appreciative glances of tourists. Even the greenhouse will be arranged for public inspection as a display is being planned for late in May. This display will include many rare varieties of flowers and foliage not usually grown in the Nelson area.

Auditor General Urges Tighter Government Financial Controls

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — Auditor-General Maxwell Henderson's annual report of the government's financial transgressions tabled in the Commons Tuesday, indicated he is widening his study of the public accounts.

He called for more formal controls over the 1,200-or-so organizations that claim tax relief for contributors to charitable causes, tightening of government administrative procedures in the North and more care guarding against sheer waste of public funds.

Mr. Henderson, a chartered accountant and senior corporation executive before joining the public service, also repeated references to earlier gaps in government administration on which he reported to the Commons in past years, but which have not yet been effectively dealt with by the administration.

REPORTS TO COMMONS

As auditor - general, Mr. Henderson not only audits the books of the government and most of the Crown agencies but reports directly to Parliament over the heads of the ministry on what he finds amiss.

Among his findings this year:

—Financial control of government offices at Fort Smith, N.W.T., is inadequate, with loop-holes through which taxpayers' money might escape.

—Because of undue delays, bad planning, or other results of bureaucracy, millions of dollars have been spent for no productive purpose.

—Inadequate procedures in the winter works program has meant losses through fraudulent and improper practices.

—In development of the project alone, the defence department wasted more than $7,000,000 on equipment that proved obsolete before it was completed.

4000 Cheer Queen At Gander Airbase

By DON McLEOD

GANDER, Nfld. (CP)—Queen Elizabeth, smiling gaily and bundled in a mink coat against temperatures below freezing point, warmed a blustery winter day Tuesday during a one-hour stop at the international airport here.

The Queen and her prince consort, the Duke of Edinburgh, were flying from London to the warm West Indies. As they stepped off their blue and silver jet liner on to a damp tarmac scraped clear of snow by scurrying workmen just minutes before, they were greeted by 4,000 cheering, flag-waving Newfoundlanders.

An hour and eight minutes later the huge super VC-10 of British Overseas Airways Corp. disappeared into the overcast, carrying the royal couple to a five-week vacation in the Caribbean. The four-jet plane was bound for Bridgetown, Barbados.

There, the Queen and Prince Philip will board the royal yacht Britannia to tour Commonwealth territories in the Caribbean area. The Queen will return to London March 6 leaving Philip to carry out a charity and trade promotion trip in the United States and Canada.

GOES WITHOUT HITCH

The visit here went without a hitch. The Queen chatted freely with her Canadian subjects jamming the airport terminal building that she officially opened in 1959. She inquired how far some of the hundreds of schoolchildren had travelled to get a glimpse of her.

She shook hands with many of them and frequently turned to talk with Lieutenant-Governor Fabian O'Dea of Newfoundland during a fast tour of the building.

Buster Keaton, Deadpan, Dies

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Buster Keaton, the baggy-pants comedian of the silent screen, died today at the age of 70.

A spokesman said he died of lung cancer at his home in suburban Woodland Hills.

His wife of about 25 years, Eleanor, was at his side. Keaton had two sons by actress Natalie Talmadge: James of Santa Monica and Robert of nearby Marina del Rey.

Keaton had been under treatment for cancer for about three months.

Keaton was one of the great comics of the silent-screen era and one of the last surviving giants of that day.

He had been in show business nearly all his life, starting as a child.

In recent years he had done character spots in movies and guest shots on television shows.

Keaton's trademark was his dour deadpan expression in the face of any disaster, comic or genuine. That and a straw hat that he usually wore when performing.

Granted Divorce

SUN VALLEY, Idaho (AP)—Patricia Lawford, sister of the late president John F. Kennedy, was granted a divorce Tuesday from actor Peter Lawford on grounds of mental cruelty.

Mrs. Lawford, who established Idaho residence at the Sun Valley resort Dec. 20, was given custody of their four children. He was given visitation rights.

The Lawfords were married 11 years ago.

Colorful Columnist, Hedda Hopper Dies

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Hedda Hopper, whose movie gossip column was as flamboyant as her hats, died in hospital Tuesday of double pneumonia with heart complications.

The death of the 75-year-old actress-writer was announced by actor William Hopper, her only child, who plays detective Paul Drake on the Perry Mason television show.

Miss Hopper entered hospital Sunday.

Her column appeared in newspapers in the United States and Canada.

Born Elda Furry on a farm near Holidaysburg, Pa., one of nine children of Quaker parents, she got the name Hedda from her only husband, De Wolfe Hopper, a theatrical giant at the turn of the century.

She was 23, a beautiful chorus girl in New York, when she became the sixth wife of Hopper, then 55. They were divorced in 1922.

She came to hollywood where her good looks and regal bearing made her successful at playing society women in silent and talking movies.

"Half the time, I was playing mother to actors older than I," she said. Then during the depression, movie jobs got scarce and she turned to real estate to supplement her income and support her son.

She got into the column business in 1936 after a newspaper syndicate asked a publicity man for a recommendation.

"Why not try Hedda Hopper?" the man said. "She knows more of what is going on in this town than anyone I know. In fact, when we want to know something in MGM publicity, we call Hedda."

Hedda soon became a real threat to Louella Parsons' throne as gossip queen of the town. As had Louella, she had a radio show too.

"Louella had the town in her hand when I came on the scene, so I had to be aggressive and sometimes brutal," Hedda recalled.

A long feud developed between Hedda and Louella, but they periodically made up.

Her trademark was her hats . . . a new one for every occasion. She loved them.

Maritimes Expect More Snow Today

By The Canadian Press

The Maritimes, recovering from two recent storms received flurries again Tuesday and are expecting another three to six inches in some areas today.

The region was covered with up to 21 inches of snow last Thursday. Then, while digging out, it was hit by hurricane-force winds and torrential rains in a weekend storm that dropped eight more inches of snow on northern New Brunswick.

Residents of the West Coast, however, enjoyed melting temperatures and sunny skies.

The Maritimes expect cloud today and a storm, developing in New York may bring more snow to southern Nova Scotia and other sections of the Atlantic provinces.

In Quebec, roads were slippery Tuesday in 25 - degree temperatures, but no serious accidents were reported. However, snow was falling in the Gaspe region and Montreal residents were preparing for a possible storm that may leave as much as 12 inches. Already, more than eight inches of snow has fallen in the last four days.

Ottawa still was digging out of its worst storm since 1947. During the Sunday-Monday period more than 19 inches of snow fell and the weatherman forecast another four to 14 for today.

Almost every British Columbia community enjoyed melting temperatures Tuesday and most can expect more of the same today, with cloudy skies only in the interior. A combination of fog and ice in Vancouver forced police to close main arterial routes through the north and west of the city early Tuesday after between 20 and 30 cars were reported in collisions.

France, Soviet Vote Against U.S. Proposal

By BORIS MISKEW

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — France threw her weight behind the Soviet Union Tuesday in an assault on a United States proposal to place the Vietnamese war in the lap of the United Nations Security Council.

The rejection of the U.S. proposal by the two permanent members of the 15-nation Security Council came after U.S. Ambassador Arthur Goldberg suggested representatives of both North and South Viet Nam be invited to take part in the council debate on the war in Viet Nam.

At the request of Jordan, the council adjourned until 3 p.m. EST today. At least four other members of the council joined the Soviet Union and France against placing the Viet Nam issue on the Council agenda. Jordan, therefore, appeared to hold the key to whether the U.S. would get the required votes to place the item on the agenda.

The meeting was sought Monday by the U.S. after the resumption of American bombing of North Vietnamese targets.

Britain backed the United States in trying to get the council to approve Viet Nam as an agenda item so a full-scale debate on the Vietnamese crisis could take place. The U.S. needed nine supporting votes to place the issue on the agenda. The big - power veto did not apply because the issue was considered a procedural matter.

Goldberg defended the bombing as the only course open to President Johnson following refusal of President Ho Chi Minh of North Viet Nam to agree to peace talks.

He said the U.S. suspended bombing Dec. 24 to test the validity of claims by some governments the air raids were a barrier to peace talks.

Soviet Ambassador Nikolai Fedorenko said in reply to Goldberg the Soviet delegation objected to convening the Council to discuss Viet Nam and was against its inclusion on the agenda.

The Soviet Union supported the position of North Viet Nam that the problem should be settled within the framework of the Geneva agreements of 1954 and 1962, said Fedorenko. The U.S. was not interested in a genuine settlement in Viet Nam but was indulging in a "diversionary tactic."

The Geneva accords of 1954 ended French control of Indochina and provided for the partitioning of Viet Nam. They also called for withdrawal of foreign troops from the entire territory, free elections leading to reunification and an international control commission — consisting of Canada, Poland and India—to oversee these arrangements.

READY 10,000 PLANTS FOR CITY'S PARKS AND GARDENS

CYCLAMEN READY FOR SPRING PLANTING

LEMON TREE READY TO BEAR FRUIT

GERANIUMS READY FOR FLOWER BEDS

Over 10,000 plants will soon be growing in preparation for this summer's flower gardens declared Doug Grahame, keeper of the greens for the city's hothouses. Nelson's scenery will be enriched by the 2000 geranium cuttings now contained in individual pots.

These plants date back to last fall when cuttings were taken from mature stems growing in the Lakeside Park. The slips were placed by Mr. Grahame into boxes of sand to hasten the development of roots. Two or three of the rooted greens were transplanted into each pot during late October. In December of last year these groups were separated into individual containers.

The blooms from these potted plants are cut by the keeper to insure maximum growth of the supporting stems. Mr. Grahame reports that after the danger of frost is over these 2000 vessels will be removed and their contents placed in patterns by the foreman to create the decorative flower beds.

He stated that seeds for 50 varieties of annuals have arrived and are to be planted within the next two weeks. They will be set into small flat boxes. It is felt by the keeper than over 8000 plants will develop from these seeds. When approximately two inches high each of these has to be transplanted into a larger box. This work is done each year between February 15 and the beginning of March.

They will be planted during the second and third weeks of May. Included in the types of annuals soon to be seen are Phlox Twinkle, Snapdragons, Petunias, Zinnia, Verbina, Nicotiana, Nemesia, and Marigolds.

Mr. Grahame reported that once all the potted plants are removed for planting in the park's gardens a display will be set up in the greenhouse. This display usually attracts many tourists into the park area. However, it cannot be maintained throughout the year because of the cramped quarters.

The chief problem faced by the men working in the houses are the insects. The entire facility must be fumigated twice yearly. Before the annuals are plants this operation will destroy pests such as aphids, white fly and red spider. In addition to this Mr. Graham reports that the plants are sprayed regularly by hand. However, the types of sprays used must be continually changed due to the insect's ability to become immune.

Describing the care given to the tubers of perennials Doug Grahame showed the dried roots collected in boxes. Each fall lillies and others are dug up. Their tops are cut off and the tubors taken to the greenhouse. These are then dried and potted in the middle of February to hasten their blooming. Before this they are cut into sections. Each section contains a bud and will develop into a new bush. Because of techniques like this one the number of flowers to be seen in the park during the spring and summer have slowly increased over the past several years.

The corms of dahlias are given the same amount of care. They are gathered in the fall and the green tops cut. Mr. Graham stated that the skins are peeled and the root allowed to dry. Different from the lily this plant's underground stem after being split can be potted and immediately placed outside.

The keeper mentioned that he mixed his own soil but used no fertilizer. This mixture contains one part sand and one part leaf mould or peat moss to two parts earth. These various components come from the land in the park.

Growing in the hothouse presently are snap dragons, daisy cuttings and foliage plants such as the dusty millar. These flowers have developed from cuttings of the mature perennial plants taken last fall.

Asked about the wide variety of greens in the house, Mr. Grahame stated that each year he tries different varieties in the park in order to broaden the scope of the flower beds. This year he plans to set out some fuscia in order to grow larger plants from them.

DEVELOPMENT HINGES ON ROAD CONSTRUCTION

Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet Well Received at L. V. Rogers

Contributed

Just when it appears that Nelsonites only attend hockey games and curling bonspiels, they turn out 1300 strong to sit in a school gymnasium to see and hear Shakespeare's work performed. It was the Playhouse Theatre Company's production of Romeo and Juliet at the L. V. Rogers Senior Secondary School on Monday.

And it was a good performance. Not a completely spell-binding performance, but a competent and faithful reproduction of Shakespeare's tale of the teenaged lovers caught in the maelstrom of a Veronese feud. The spell began successfully in Act I, with the richly-hued costumes weaving patterns on a set comprised of platforms and stairs and copper-tube frames decked with parti-colored canvas. It was Shakespeare's magic that shone in the wit and vigor of the scarlet-costumed Mercutio, in the bawdy humor of Juliet's nurse in the young lovers' lingering good night scene, and in the convincingly real rapier play.

But Mercutio lost his moment when he suffered his mortal wound, for his audience couldn't make the instant transition with him down from trenchant wit to death rattles. In Act IV, Juliet launched into the two-page "Farewell, God knows when we shall meet again" speech on a sustained hysteric pitch that robbed the scenes which followed of their sincerity.

The company was plagued by a sound system from which music boomed irregularly, but the design of the set conquered quite successfully the acoustics of the L. V. Rogers stage, and gym. It was the Act IV and V lighting, however, which really sabotaged the audience's determination to believe. How can you accept a corpse (Juliet) who runs unaided from the set in the wash of stage backlight and then is arranged on a funeral bier by a stage assistant in the dimmed glow of a spotlight?

Technical considerations aside it was a well-turned-out production, handsomely costumed, simmering with energetic, youthful acting and sparked by some extremely clever and imaginative directing.

Macmillans Remanded

TORONTO (CP) — George and Viola MacMillan, Canada's best-known mining couple, were remanded Tuesday for a fourth time for preliminary hearing on fraud charges laid in connection with the boom-bust cycle of shares of Windfall Oils and Mines Ltd. in July, 1964.

The new date for the hearing was set for Feb. 22.

TODAY'S THE DAY... IT'S GROUNDHOG DAY

Sun's glaring rays bode ill tidings for Nelson residents Tuesday. The groundhog, innocent herald of good or ill will not possibly be able to escape his shadow if the good weather continues.

This animal is the innocent meter stick of the season and by seeing his shadow will indicate an additional six weeks of winter.

The myth states that when the groundhog emerges from his winter burrow he must decide whether or not to remain in the open. When the sun is shining and his shadow is visible the decision is traditionally to return and wait for six weeks. Meaning of course that winter will continue for this time.

However, if no shadow is visible the groundhog remains on the surface and Winter has come to an end.

It is doubtful if this has any effect on the fall of snow. In the past it was never seen to go over night but only in its own good time.

Consider Second North Shore Line

A second try by the city electrical department for an auxiliary power line to the North Shore system will be considered by city council for inclusion in the final budget.

Implementing the recommendation which was included in his report to council, electrical superintendent, L. W. Bicknell, told the meeting that permission to place the overhead line across Nelson Bridge had already been approved by the Department of Highways. He added that utilization of the span would not be as expensive as another submarine cable (that currently supplies North Shore power) and which had to be replaced once since 1950.

Some thought on hooking up with Ainsworth was evinced by Ald. Hans (Fritz) Farenholtz. Mayor Louis Maglio wanted to know if a "stand-by" power source would cost more to install, and was informed by Mr. Bicknell that it would. He added that the present submarine cable could "go out" and cause a "lot of trouble". He urged that the auxiliary line be included in the final budget.

Dam Clearers Choose IWA

Employees working on a Columbia Hydro system forest land clearing project have chosen the International Woodworkers of America as their bargaining agent.

IWA International Assistant Director of Organization J. C. Walls said in Kelowna last week the B.C. Labor Relations Board has certified the IWA as the bargaining agent for employees of Comet Construction Co. Ltd. The unit, he said, covers all company employees working in the boundaries of Kelowna Local 1-423 and Cranbrook 1-405.

The union official explained that the joint certification held by the two local unions will ultimately mean negotiation of a single labor agreement. This will facilitate administration of the collective agreement as well as the flow of manpower when and where requir[illegible] [illegible]ually helpful to union, e[illegible]s and management, [illegible]ncluded.

SCOUTING WORKSHOP FIRST IN PROVINCE

The first Scouting Workshop Conference to be held in the Kootenays, and the second in B.C., is scheduled for Mount Baker High School, Cranbrook, on Feb. 6.

The conference is designed to provide valuable aid and assistance to scouters in giving leadership to the scouts. The conference will deal with the roll of the adult in scouting, and scouters will be asked to express their views.

The new Cub program and changes in the scout program will come under discussion. Plans are under way for a program to clarify both programs.

Included on the conference agenda will be proposed changes to the troop program.

W. H. "Scotty" Marr, Mr. Curler, Dies

William H. "Scotty" Marr, 81, known throughout the Kootenays as "Mr. Curler," died in his homeland of Scotland, Friday.

"The Earl of Marr," as his hundreds of curling friends dubbed him, returned to Scotland in September 1960 after 50 years in Canada. He resided with a niece at Cellardyke, a fishing village in Fifeshire.

For 30 years he was a brewer for Kootenay Breweries Ltd. in Nelson, retiring in July 1954.

In March 1944, he skipped a Nelson rink to the British Columbia curling championship, first to bring the crown to the interior. On his rink were O. Olsen, John Thom and N. R. Sardich.

He came to Canada in 1910, living first in Winnipeg then in Vancouver. After a year in Vancouver he moved to Frank, in the Crow's Nest Pass, where he was hired to make lime barrels. Mr. Marr had been a cooper in Scotland, making barrels for fish.

He went to the breweries for the first time in Calgary, and in 1915 joined the Canadian Army with the 31st Battalion, which went to France.

Leaving the army in 1919, he returned to the brewery at Calgary, then to Lethbridge and worked in breweries there until coming to Nelson in 1923.

Mr. Marr was also an ardent fisherman and in his early days played soccer, assisting in organizing the game in Nelson.

One sister in Toronto and many nephews and nieces in Toronto and Scotland, survive. Funeral services were held Sunday.

Winners of the 1965 poster contest sponsored by the Canadian Cancer Society in British Columbia and the Yukon were announced this weekend.

East Kootenay winners were Raymond Abry, first, Michel-Natal Elementary School, and Joyce Wickwire, second, Creston Elementary School.

West Kootenay winners were first, Jackie Butula of Laura J. Morris School, and second, Kathleen O'Farrell, James L. Webster School, both of Trail.

Charles Ross Dies Aged 53

Charles (Charlie) Ross of 726 Second Street, died in Kootenay Lake General Hospital Sunday evening, aged 53.

Born in Pleasant Home, Manitoba, in 1912, he moved to Vancouver in 1932. He worked out of Vancouver in the logging and pulp mill industries, and was employed at Queen Charlotte Island, Port Ellis and Vancouver Island during this time.

He came to Nelson in 1936, and worked for a time for West Kootenay Power and Light Company and was employed in the CPR shops and as a shovel operator during the war years.

He went into the general contracting business on his own about 1946, and was doing mostly road building in district mines and also some logging contracts. He was in partnership with Baine Oliver, in the Premier Sand & Gravel Company for four or five years. He married the former Marie Elizabeth Morris of Nelson in 1939. He was an ardent fisherman.

Besides his wife he is survived by one son, Stuart, of Nelson; three daughters, Mrs. Robert (Doreen) Kropinak, of Regina, and twin daughters, Jean and Joan at home; five brothers, Frank of Nelson, Jim of Detroit, Ed of Vancouver, Joe of Nakusp and Walter of Detroit, also one granddaughter.

Plan Thirty-Two Houses In Rosemont Section

The fate of a 32-unit housing development in the Rosemont area will be decided by a $40,000 question relative to public works.

To help resolve the matter, city council will meet with Vancouver builder of the proposed project, Norm Noble, at a special session Thursday. Main bottleneck and a costly contemplation for council is development of a 794-foot extension of West Richards Street to provide access to the proposed housing unit at a "guesstimated" price, according to city engineer, P. Puziak, of $40,000.

As submitted to building inspector Derek Turner, preliminary plans of the housing development, to be situated at the southwest corner of Silver King Road and West Richards, calls for construction of 32 dwellings on three lots within an area 421 feet long by 330 wide. No estimation of cost was disclosed.

Initial plans submitted encompassed a single lot, and had to be changed to conform to a zoning bylaw which stipulates that no more than one main building may be designated on a lot. The plans also revealed that cars from the development would back directly onto Richards Street. A second set of plans corrected this fault by providing a 15 foot "cushion" between Richards and the housing units, as pointed out by town planner, G. A. Butling.

An alternate and less costly access route to the property, via Silver King Road, could be a possible solution to the situation it was brought out during discussion. Asked by Ald. Hans (Fritz) Farenholtz where present water and sewer facilities extended in the area, Mr. Butling replied there was nothing beyond Silver King Road. He added that builders only wished development of Richards Street up to the development itself.

Referring to development of the alternate access, Silver King Road, the town planner pointed out that normally, the city did not collect garbage on a private road and that it was the best location for installation of sanitary and storm sewers to service the housing development. Provision of such service was "very important" when it came to the development of the area, he added. This was supported by city engineer, Mr. Puziak.

The whole project, opinioned Ald. Edith Van Maarion, would have to be considered "with a fine tooth comb" so as to avoid any "boomerangs" as experienced by the city with other projects. She suggested tabling the matter for further study.

More concerned with the "authenticity" of the proposal, Ald. Hans (Fritz) Farenholtz directed a question at T. C. Lambert, representative of the builders, as to what preparations had been made to back up the development. He alluded to past experiences by the city where time and efort had been expended only to have the "whole thing fall flat."

On the contrary, commented Mr. Lambert, the builders were "very serious about this," and had not only prepared preliminary drawings but had also arranged financing with CMHC. He stressed that the time element was important since their option would be up February 15. CMHC had, further, confirmed their loan figure.

Mayor Louis Maglio reminded that biggest hindrance to the proposal was cost involved in extension of Richards Street, which was expanded upon by the city engineer with the information that work would involve smoothing out a 20-foot elevation difference. Most of the expense would be incurred "cutting" the hill in preparation for sewage installation extending some 1000 feet to present city service.

Although only aproximately 400 feet would be utilized by the proposed housing unit, said Mr. Lambert, the builders intended to eventually expand into the full 794 foot length of the property which it proposed to purchase.

There was some discussion by Mayor Louis Maglio concerning development of Silver King Road as a cost-cutting measure since not as much rock would be involved. He also asked Mr. Lambert if the builders were prepared to share cost of road extension with the city, with the latter replying in the negative. His Worship pointed out that the practice of cost-sharing was done in other centres. "There are a lot of things involved," said Ald. D. F. Porteous. It was suggested by Mayor Maglio that a special meeting be held to discuss the matter.

QUEBEC (CP)—The Quebec government has purchased $14,627 worth of books by authors from the province. The 5,460 volumes, representing 43 different titles, were purchased for distribution in Canada and Europe as part of a government effort to promote Quebec literature.

Parents Club Told Of Dental Health

WILLOW POINT (Staff) — A small audience at the A. I. Collinson Elementary School Parents' Club January meeting heard Dr. A. S. Richardson speak on Dental Health for Children.

Mrs. Geldart introduced Dr. Richardson, Kootenay regional dental consultant. Dr. Richardson received his degree in dentistry at the University of Edmonton and did post-graduate work there.

Dr. Richardson dramatically emphasized his lecture with colored slides of young children's teeth, showing varying stages of decay. He noted that teeth may decay at an early age and dental care should begin when the child is three or four years old.

Working in conjunction with the Public Health Unit, Dr. Richardson particularly stressed the "preventative" aspect of dental hygiene and outlined a program to maintain the teeth in good condition. He stated that it had been "definitely proven" beneficial to have fluoride in drinking water.

D. R. Fawcett, principal, chaired the meeting in the absence of the president.

Main items of business were the A. I. Collin Parents' Club Bursary and the proposed "Family Fair".

Membership Increase At Salmo Library

SALMO — At the recent annual meeting of the Salmo Public Library Association it was noted there had been a substantial increase in membership in 1965.

A progressive year all around, the roster showed 168 memberships. Sixty-two adults and 102 juniors, a jump of 30 over the previous year.

Two hundred and sixty new books were purchased during the year, 142 for adult interest and 118 for juniors, bringing the number of volumes to 3190. Library members and other interested persons donated a total of 94 books.

Book circulation for the past year was 7560. An interesting point was the fact that juniors continue to read more than adults. Thus disproving oft-heard comment that children of today prefer watching television to reading.

The following members make up the board for 1966 — Mr. T. E. Lund, as chairman, Leonard Weaver, as vice-chairman, secretary duties accepted by Mrs. Kurt Stahl, treasurer, Mrs. Ignace Pierzchalski and acting Librarian, Mrs. F. A. Likus. Board members are Mrs. Frank Rotter, Mrs. J. D. Watt, Mrs. Leonard Weaver and Mrs. Thomas Tennant.

The new books on the shelves of the library are — FICTION — My Shadow Ran Fast by Sands, Some With Steel, Crowley; Martha, Mary and George, Sharp; Emergency in the Pyranees by Bridge. NON-FICTION — The Great Canadian Range, Long; Two Hour Shorthand, Szfara and India by Spear. MYSTERIES — Airs Above the Ground, Stewart; The French Doll, McConnor; Neutron Beam Murder, King; Deception at St. Nazaire, Bardouv; Signpost to Fear, Drin, and The Cook by Kressing. JUNIORS — Nursery Rhymes To Be, Bain; Guns in the Heather, Amerman; Ranch in the Rockies, O'Donnel and Jan — Son of Finn by Dawson.

District Woman Dies Aged 44

CRANBROOK — Wednesday requiem at St. Mary's Church has been set for widely known district native daughter, Mrs. Howard Lucas who died suddenly Saturday at her Marysville home. She was formerly Cesira Angelina (Sis) Pellegrin of Cranbrook.

Born at Wycliffe 44 years ago, a few infant years were spent with her family in Italy before they established permanent residence in Cranbrook in 1929. On school completion here she graduated from the Moler School in Vancouver and operated a beauty parlor here which she transferred to Kimberley when she and her husband moved to Marysville. She was a former member of the Legion Ladies' Auxiliary here. Surviving are her husband at their home, and one sister, Mrs. Henry (Louise) Bertoia, Cranbrook.

Burial in Westlawn Cemetery will follow the requiem to be celebrated by Rev. A. V. Maglio.

Freedomites Buy Land In Krestova District

KRESTOVA—Sons of Freedom Doukhobors have bought 120 parcels of land in this West Kootenay district where they were squatters for more than a quarter of a century.

If members of the sect return here from the Coast, any building will be done over the ruins of shacks once burned down in protests.

The land here and thousands of acres in the Kootenay was bought by the government from mortgage companies in 1940 to prevent displacement of hundreds of people. Students of Doukhobor history have blamed Doukhobor leader Peter P. Verigin for misuse of Freedomite funds and defaults on mortgages.

The first land buying was done by Orthodox Doukhobors in 1961 after the appointment of Magistrate William Evans as land commissioner.

These purchases were followed quickly by an outbreak of bombings and burnings that led eventually to a number of convictions against Freedomites. Some 48 Freedomites still are serving terms in a special prison at Agassiz in the Fraser Valley, and 300 relatives and sect members remain camped nearby.

Purchases here have been made by members of the Freedomite fraternal council, by persons living in the Agassiz camp, and even by some of the prisoners.

Magistrate Evans says returning Freedomites probably will follow the lead of the Orthodox group in building attractive homes on the land.

Present Gift To Ex-Councillor

FERNIE (Staff) — Joe Gaal ex-village commissioner, left the Natal council after a six-year tenure recently and upon his leaving was presented with a desk set by the village chairman Orlando Ungaro.

After having his resignation refused by his colleagues, he remained in office until his term expired and then refused to enter another campaign.

Mr. Ungaro, in describing Mr. Gaal, stated he had at all times kept the good of the taxpayer in the forefront, and could always be counted upon for a sound and unbiased opinion.

Mel DeAnna, living in Castlegar, had also resigned and the two posts were filled by J. Myles, Natal postmaster and Larry Cheston, garage operator.

Siro Cimolini was reelected to the council for another term.

Viet Nam Manoeuvring

For the present the two most hopeful portents concerning the Viet Nam situation are President Johnson's reported refusal to set a deadline on his peace offensive and Russia's undoubted desire to see a peaceful settlement achieved .

In addition there is a groundswell of opinion rising in the United States that the U.S. should get out of Viet Nam if it can be done with reasonable honor.

Gov. Mark Hatfield of Oregon, a candidate for the U.S. Senate, is a spokesman for those who would push for an honorable peace.

Lt.-Gen. James N. Gavin, the army's former research chief, had added momentum to this movement, perhaps, with a recent statement that to win the war will require so many American troops that China is almost bound to come in. It was Gen. Gavin who also dropped the opinion that it is not necessarily true that all Southeast Asia would fall to the Communists should the U.S. withdraw.

Yet Arthur Goldberg, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, recently pointed out some stubborn facts. He said the U.S. had been told that the bombing of North Vietnamese targets was the obstacle to peace negotiations. The U.S. has stopped the bombing — but it turns out that this was not the obstacle after all.

Then, said Mr. Goldberg, the U.S. was told that non-recognition of the Viet Cong was the obstacle. So President Johnson declared that even this could be surmounted. But, added Mr. Goldberg, non-recognition of the Viet Cong does not seem to be the obstacle either. The North Vietnamese still are not ready apparently to come to the conference table.

What will bring them? Apparently there have been contacts between the Americans and Viet Cong representatives in Algeria but nobody is saying anything.

The outcome of Russian envoy Shelepin's visit to Hanoi is still obscure. Russia is anxious to improve its position in Asia and undoubtedly the continuation of the war in Viet Nam is dangerous to this position. However, in view of the way the war has been publicized in the Communist camp — and for that matter in the Western camp — as a struggle of Reds and anti-Reds for the minds of men, the Russians can hardly fail to support the North, at least in appearance.

Right now, in the mood of the American administration, Hanoi stands to gain much from a negotiated peace. But it is possible that Moscow and Hanoi alike are afraid to be hasty lest China take some drastic action — such as invading North Viet Nam with an army of "volunteers". Such a move by Peking would immediately escalate the war to new proportions. More than that, it would force on Russia a most agonizing reappraisal indeed of its whole cold war policy.

No Protection

It is understandable that there should be a special significance for prison guards in the federal government's recent decision to commute the death sentence imposed on Reginald Colpitts.

Colpitts is the latest in a long line of condemned men to be saved from the gallows by federal government action. But prison officials must view this particular commutation with some apprehension, because Colpitts had originally been sentenced to death for the murder of a prison guard in 1964.

This murder took place at New Brunswick's Dorchester Penitentiary, although Colpitts has since been transferred to another institution. The guards at Dorchester have reacted to the federal cabinet's commutation of his death sentence with justifiable concern. Indeed, they have gone so far as to demand an extra $1000 a year danger pay.

While this demand might seem rather melodramatic, it is nonetheless easy to appreciate the guards' position. When new legislation pertaining to the crime of murder was passed by Parliament a few years ago, one of the offences for which capital punishment was retained was the murder of prison guards. It was sensible legislation, deterrent in its purpose. It was designed to afford guards a measure of protection from prisoners in the conduct of their dangerous jobs.

Now, having commuted the death sentence of a man convicted of murdering a prison guard, Ottawa has deprived prison employees of this protective legislation. A prisoner already serving a long sentence will now feel that he may attack and possibly kill a guard in the awareness that he has nothing to lose in the process. The worst that can happen to him is a life sentence which, under this country's odd penal system, can mean a period of as little as ten years.

The attitude of both the present government and the late Conservative government towards the death penalty has been ambivalent to say the least. Present legislation has not really been applied: it has been rendered meaningless by the practice of commuting death sentences to life imprisonment. But by its latest action, Ottawa may well have placed the lives of many prison guards in jeopardy. This is a factor Parliament should consider when the question of death penalty comes before it this session.—Calgary Herald.

Dr. John B. Janusch in the Chapel Hill (N.C.) Weekly says he enjoys working with baboons and lemurs because the baboons remind him of his colleagues on university faculties and the lemurs remind him of undergraduates.

Lemurs are bright-eyed, bushy-tailed and can't believe the world is the way it is.

Baboons, on the other hand, are intelligent, sociable, clever, untidy and you can't trust them.

Missile Future Makes Big Change

By MALCOLM REID

LA MACAZA, Que. (CP)—Things changed for this Laurentian village when North American defence planners chose it as the site for a Bomarc missile base.

First came the base itself, with jobs as helpers for many local people.

Then came the pacifists.

In the summer of 1964, after the missiles on the base were armed with United States nuclear warheads, about 50 demonstrators came north to protest. They had opposed nuclear weapons on Canadian soil during the 1963 general election, won by the Liberals, when accepting the warheads was a campaign issue.

They sat down in the middle of roads to the base and were repeatedly dragged away by guards. They spoke to the guards and spoke to the townspeople, but in the end had to pack up.

They were outsiders, from Montreal and farther away, and they were attacking an institution which had had time to establish itself as a boon to some local citizens before they arrived.

TRY DIFFERENT ROLE

But they failed to gain local backing.

"We shocked the people of La Macaza," said Andre Cardinal, 24, of Waterloo, Que., one of the few French - speaking peace demonstrators, in a post-mortem on the sit-downs of 1964.

So Andre and a group of fellow-pacifists decided to go back to La Macaza in 1965, not as demonstrators, but as students of what local people think of the base, the world and their future. Then they would propose the pacifist answers.

Three of them eventually undertook to do the work on the spot. They were Cardinal, Terry Moore, 22 ,of Winnipeg, a political science graduate of the University of Winnipeg, and Aline Desjardins, 21, of Kapuskasing, Ont., who became interested in the pacifist movement at McMaster University in Hamilton.

They rented rooms in the house of a Ukrainian farm couple and began travelling Labelle County in a car in search of occasions for speaking to residents of "disarmament, development and decolonization."

HAD STUDENT BACKING

The three - part slogan had sprung from talks between the pacifists, organized in the Student Union for Peace Action, and l'Union Generale des Etudiants du Quebec, the association of Quebec university and college students.

"Disarmament" was what the demonstrators originally came to La Macaza for; "development" was an attempt to link the missile base with the economic needs of Labelle County; and "decolonization" was an appeal to French-Canadian nationalist feeling among UGEQ militants.

Then, one night last July, La Macaza became the scene of an incident that had nothing to do with missiles or pacifism.

Seven young men, armed with rifles and encamped in the La Macaza area, were confronted by Quebec Provincial Police, engaged in some gunplay in which one of their number was wounded, and kidnapped a policeman.

Constable Onil Bourdon was missing in the woods for 24 hours, then escaped unharmed. The seven have since been tried and several jailed for the kidnapping. It became evident as the case unfolded that their political ideas were separatist rather than pacificist.

"Every time we meet someone now," Terry Moore wrote shortly afterward, "we have to . . . explain that the peace movement would never be involved in such activities."

RETURN THIS SPRING

Due to a combination of lack of money and advice from the three workers that it might renew ill-will, a demonstration for the end of last summer was called off.

What next?

To a conference of the Student Union for Peace Action in St. Calixte, Que., last fall—which heard from similar projects across Canada — Terry Moore had this to report:

"What can we hope to accomplish? We will leave behind a number of people sympathetic to the project and interested in development of the region, invigorating local politics, broadening political participation, improving social welfare, and ready to support removal of the base. . . .

"Then in 1966, get up there about mid-May with a larger, better-prepared team."

Centennial Medallion For Pioneers

VICTORIA (CP) — Canadian pioneers now resident in B.C. are eligible for a special centennial medallion and ribbon to be presented in 1967.

The Canadian confederation centennial committee of B.C. says any person either born in Canada or a resident of Canada prior to Jan. 1, 1892 is eligible for the award, which depicts Alexander MacKenzie's arrival at the Pacific near Bella Coola.

Committee chairman Laurie Wallace said eligible persons need not have had continuous residence in Canada but must now be resident in B.C.

Application may be made through local centennial committees and forwarded to Victoria not later than Nov. 19, 1966.

No Productive Advance Despite Boom Times

OTTAWA (CP)—The department of industry says in a review of manufacturing industry that despite boom times, Canada failed last year to maintain its rate of productivity advance.

The department said in its 1964-65 annual report that in terms of demand, employment and output, conditions were good last year for the manufacturing industries.

But as the year developed, "a number of factors became of concern," said the report tabled in the Commons Monday.

"Industrial selling prices moved steadily upward. The shortage of skilled manpower was felt over a wider range of industry and at the same time, the demand situation led to significant pressure on productive capacity in certain industrial sectors.

"With the higher utilization of available skilled manpower and production resources, indications are that the rate of productivity advance of previous years was not maintained."

A factor contributing to the overall growth of the country last year was the rapid expansion of manufacturing industries. Practically all sectors of manufacturing had greater output, with the biggest gains in the automobile, iron and steel, machinery, and electrical industries.

Menzies Domination All-Encompassing

By VINCENT MATTHEWE
Canadian Press Correspondent

MELBOURNE (CP) — Sir Robert Menzies, who has just retired after 16 years as Australian prime minister, has dominated politics as no other man has done in the country's history.

The excitement about Menzies' going, simmering for months, became intense in October when he bought a house in a Melbourne suburb, a two-storey, seven-room dwelling in a leafy garden setting. He bought it to retire to, he admitted, offering the first tangible evidence that he really would one day quit the heights of national and international political life for the quiet of a suburb street.

He had talked about it before. He had given hints. But half of Australia's population is under 30. And few of those millions could ever remember any prime minister but Menzies. So it seemed he would go on forever.

He was 71 Dec. 20 last. And last July, on his return from his yearly world trip, he said: "Any self - respecting man of my age must give thought to his future and his duties. I am doing that."

A travel - weary Menzies went into hospital for a check-up, came out bright and perky, said, "I feel perfectly well," and scoffed at reports that he was going to give up political life immediately.

But when the federal Parliament rose before Christmas, he gave a hint that it might be his last as government leader.

The man who had been waiting in the wings for nearly 17 years while Menzies ruled supreme was Harold Holt, 57, federal treasurer since 1958 and a faithful Menzies ally.

Holt, who succeeded Menzies as prime minister, marked his 30th year as a member of Parliament last year. He is suave, capable, energetic, an efficient political machine. He has none of the magnetic Menzies appeal —but neither has any other Australian politician.

ENOUGH FOR AN IMAGE

Still, the public relations men have plenty to work on in Holt. He is a smooth public school product, has a happy family life, is seen often with his two small grandchildren at his beachside home at Portsea, 60 miles south of Melbourne, and has a wife, Zara, who is successful in her own right as a leading Australian dress - designer. Holt is a keen skindiver and water skier—sports that go down well with sea-loving Australians.

Politically, Holt has had some hectic moments as the man responsible for the nation's economy, though in fact no decision of his could ever have been implemented without Menzies' approval.

When the government brought in credit restrictions in 1960 to put the brake on a galloping economy heading for inflation, Holt took the blame. That blame is a political burden he will carry for a long time. The requences of unemployment and bankruptcy for small firms made Holt unpopular and nearly toppled the government in 1961.

Holt is a vigorous supporter of overseas — especially American—investment in Australia. Last July, Menzies sent him on a mission to the United States in an attempt to persuade Washington to modify its restrictions on the flow of capital to Australia. When he returned, apparently satisfied with the mission, he said that projects essential for the development of Australia's natural resources would be beyond the scope of the nation's financial resources unless money was taken from defence and other purposes.

But it is on this question that Holt could meet his biggest political difficulties. The Australian government is a coalition of Liberal and Country parties. The Liberal party is the bigger of the partners and represents the powerful city industrialists. But the Country party has an influence much greater than its small numbers suggest.

LEADER POPULAR

Leading the Country party is John McEwen, 65, who has wide popular appeal far outside the ranks of his own party. And he has many times publicly criticized the extent of the takeover of Australia's resources by overseas investors.

Bickering and jealousies between the two coalition parties were kept firmly under control during the Menzies reign. The less-dominating Holt could find himself in trouble.

There will be a federal election this year, but the possibility of a change of government is remote, even though the loss of Menzies will be felt keenly in the ranks of government supporters.

Australia is enjoying economic prosperity and, despite a few sombre warnings, there are no apparent signs of anything to upset it. If things keep ticking along as they are, Holt should be able to lead his coalition to a comfortable electoral victory.

Gov't Showed Early Confidence in Plan

The British Columbia government's medical care plan meets three of the four requirements laid down by Ottawa to qualify for inclusion in a national medical care insurance scheme. The B.C. plan may be broadened to cover the fourth requirement — universal coverage. Details of the provincial scheme are set forth in this story.

VICTORIA (CP)—The British Columbia Medical Plan was still in its infancy when the federal government last year announced its willingness to help bear the financial burden of provincial plans.

As a result, the B.C. government is unwilling to say how far it will bend its scheme to meet federal requirements until the first growing pains are over.

However, the B.C. plan does meet three of the four major requirements laid down in Ottawa's offer to pay 50 per cent of the cost of provincial plans:

—It provides for the services of both physicians and specialists on referral by a general practitioner.

—A person who has had coverage in another province may join the B.C. plan on his arrival rather than waiting to become eligible as a resident —which appears to meet the federal requirement of transferable coverage between provinces.

—The plan is administered as a non-profit organization by directors appointed by order-in-council.

But the scheme hits one major snag—coverage is not universal, which is the fourth requirement stipulated by the federal government.

PLAN IS VOLUNTARY

While there are no restrictions for applicants regarding age, state of health or financial status, the plan is completely voluntary.

Several private plans which were available before the government inaugurated its scheme have continued to operate despite the new competition.

There are indications that Premier W. A. C. Bennett will expand the plan during this legislative session to provide universal coverage.

Last year he answered an assertion by New Democratic Party leader Robert Strachan, the Opposition leader, that the government plan was "tin cup medicare," with the statement that the plan was a "first step" toward a comprehensive system.

With talk in the air of a provincial election this year, announcement of coverage extension would cut a major plank out of the NDP platform.

COULD RATE SUBSIDY

Perhaps the greatest benefit would be that the provincial plan would then meet all four federal requirements for monetary assistance.

Almost 200,000 persons have applied for coverage under the plan since the first benefits were made available last Sept. 1.

The last complete figures available show that of the 141,000 persons enrolled by the end of October, 69 per cent were assisted by special provisions for needy persons.

The regular monthly premium is $5 a person or $12.50 for families of three or more.

Persons with less than $1,000 taxable income pay $3.75 a month for individuals or $9.37 for families and those with no taxable income pay $2.50 a person or $6.25 a family.

The balance of the premiums for needy persons is paid by the government. Premier Bennett estimated this would amount to $6,000,000 for the fiscal year ending March 31.

An additional $1,000,000 was provided for a stabilization fund to compensate for high-risk cases.

The bouffant underskirt had accordian pleat trim and the overskirt of lace was caught up in front by two bands of sequins. Her bouquet was of two shades of yellow roses with green fern tied with yellow and silver ribbon.

Her attendants, Mrs. B. Funk and Misses L. Thiessen, L. Funk, C. Funk, D. Funk and flower girls Miss K. Funk and Miss L. Remple, were gowned identically in lime green. Their headpieces were bands of yellow roses and they carried bouquets of yellow roses with fern, trimmed with rust colored ribbon.

The reception in the Royal Canadian Legion hall featured a sit down dinner. The hall was decorated with streamers and a huge heart with the couple's names in silver was above their chairs.

The three-tiered wedding cake had been decorated by Mrs. W. Kerby, the layers supported by pillars on mirrors topped by a miniature bride and groom.

Hints From Heloise

HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

A man at our favorite service station gave my husband this hint:

To get that grease and dirt off your hands, after working on a car, lawn mower, or any other greasy object, use a mixture of one-half gramular laundry detergent and One-Half Cornmeal! ! !

I mixed this and put it in a shortening container (a coffee can would be ideal), and left it in our utlity room. My husband has been using this for two years now, and swears by it.

By the way, after two years, the can is still three-fourths full, so using a smaller amount and smaller container might be more practical and easier to store.

M. M.

* * *

Dear Heloise:

Wow!

This hint has been tested, and it works fantastically . . .

I cannot imagine anything so simple. It seems that the cornmeal literally grinds the grease out of the tiny pores in your skin.

Our thanks, not only to you for sending the hint to us, but also to that kind garage man who told your husband about it.

Heloise.

Dear Heloise:

When refilling a salt shaker, I always took the shaker to the sink so the loose salt in the cap could fall into it.

Now I wait until I'm cooking a meal, remove the shaker cap right over food which needs to be salted, and let the loose salt in the cap fall right into the food.

Nothing spectacular, but thought it might be worth a grain of salt!.! !

Mary.

Dear Heloise:

When painting with oil base paint, pour some of it from the gallon can into one of the new coffee cans that have the plastic lids.

When a lengthy interruption comes, just snap on the lid, put your paint brush in a plastic bag, and twist a rubber band on the bag.

This keeps the air from the brush, and when you go back to painting, the brush is still soft, and the paint has no scum.

Mrs. T. Norris.

Dear Heloise:

This suggestion is for those who still desire to hang their wash outdoors:

Instead of lifting and lugging a basket of heavy wash, I use one of those handy shopping carts that rolls on two small wheels.

After putting in a liner of plastic, I am all set to "wheel" up and down the stairs — inside and outdoors — and when the wash is dried and put back in the cart, I can push it around the house and make "deliveries" to proper locations.

Helene E. Hart.

* * *

Helene, you are so right. You can either pull the cart up the steps behind you, or "roll" it down in front of you.

Really a back saver.

Heloise.

Dear Heloise:

When we use frozen dinners, I always save the metal containers, and give them to my daughter to use at their summer place.

It saves a lot of dishwashing, as she uses them once and throws them away.

I always save the heavy aluminum covers, too. I wash them and press out the creases. They make wonderful bowl covers for leftovers.

Raids Were Terrible, Mrs. Tawse Recalls

In one of the first letters my Mother wrote after I got there she said, "I am so thankful you are no longer in London; the raids have been terrible lately."

I was so glad she did not know what we were getting here! Enemy planes were over every few days, sometimes by day taking photographs, on which occasions they did not drop bombs and were chased away by our anti-aircraft guns, but is was interesting to look up at the white puffs of smoke and calculate how near they were to their targets.

When they came at night it was different; we knew when they were on the way to England, as they flew high and dropped no bombs and on their return we were safe, too, as they had expended all their ammunition.

When they visited us, they often arrived before we left work at 10 p.m. and we had to walk home during the raids, at which time the inhabitants were all down in their basements with their bedding for the night and occasionally a head would appear at the pavement level and we heard a nervous query "Est ce fini?"

"Oui, oui," we would answer reassuringly and the news was passed to those within.

"Les dames Anglaises disent que c'est fini." (the English ladies say that it's finished,) but, of course we didn't know.

However, what really frightened us when walking home during the raids was encountering a horde of gibbering, panic-stricken Chinese, members of the labor batallion, housed in a camp the other side of the town and employed in helping to demolish and repair battered aircraft.

On nights when raids were bad, the gate of their camp was left unfastened so that they could seek shelter where they chose and this happened to be under some railway arches near the road to our camp.

They came like a torrent, filling the road we had to cross, intent upon nothing but getting to those railway arches, and we should have been swept off our feet had we tried to get through; so we often had to wait for long periods until an opening occured through which we could dash to shelter in our huts .

As often as not, one of us would find her bath water getting cold. Our orderlies prepared our baths in rotation, putting out the large, galvanized tubs in our room and filling it with boiling water, just before she went off duty, regardless of whether we were home or not — oh well, if the water had become a bit cool, the steam had heated the hut nicely.

Five Game Suspension for Maple Leafs' Chwachka

Nelson Maple Leafs' forward Carl Chwachka has been suspended from play for five games by the directors of the Western International Hockey League.

Chwachka has sat out two games so far and will be out for three more. He will be able to return to the Maple Leaf line-up February 8 when the Leafs journey to Rossland.

Spokane Jets' general manaber - coach Colin Kilburn has been suspended for the balance of league play. However, after five games the suspension will be lifted and placed in abeyance, contingent on satisfactory conduct from that time on.

Kilburn will remain out for three more Jet games and will return to the helm of the Spokane team February 12 when the Jets play host to Cranbrook Royals.

Kilburn, therefore, will miss both meetings between the Leafs and the Jets — on February 5 when Nelson is at Spokane and on February 12 when the Leafs host the Jets.

Chwachka will be back in time for the game in Nelson.

The suspensions came about as a result of a brawl which broke out in a game between the two clubs January 23 in Spokane. The brawl started when Chwachka — who had just received a broken nose after being cross-checked by Jets' defenceman Vince Collins — and Kilburn clashed as the Leaf player was leaving the ice by the Nelson bench for treatment. Fans and players from both benches joined in the melee.

With the score tied 1-1 and three minutes and 48 seconds remaining in the game, referee Buzz Mellor halted it. Seconds later Mellor was hit on the head with a chair thrown by one of the fans and required nine stitches to close the cut.

Chwachka and Kilburn were suspended indefinitely after the game, pending the decision reached by the league vice-presidents.

CARL CHWACHKA

Both teams also had to put up good-behavior bonds, the Leafs $500 and the Jets $1500.

The game was played under protest as Kilburn argued the use of Rossland Warriors' netminder Seth Martin by the Leafs. The Nelson club had received permission from the league to use another goalie since both regular Jim Letcher and sub Gus Adams were on the Nelson injury list.

WIHL president Milo Fabro said Sunday the Leafs were within their rights to use Martin as long as they had the permission of the Rossland club.

Fabro said a decision will be reached on the protest when all information is gathered.

The Maple Leafs and the Jets are currently tied for first place in the league, two points ahead of Kimberley Dynamiters. The Leafs are in Trail to meet the fourth-place Smoke Eaters tonight.

Bobby Hull Remains Hot As NHL Race Tightens

MONTREAL (CP) — Bobby Hull continued to roll along in high gear last week while the National Hockey League standings tightened up.

Statistics released by NHL headquarters Tuesday showed Chicago Black Hawks' all-star left winger scored four goals in Chicago's four games last week and added another three assists, giving him 68 points so far this season.

Hull has 42 goals with 26 games left to play in which to score nine goals necessary to set an all-time record for most goals in a season.

The 27 - year - old native of Point Anne, Ont., shares the record with two retired Montreal Canadien players—Maurice Richard and Bernard Geoffrion.

Hull's nearest rival, Norm Ullman of Detroit Red Wings, has 52 points, including 24 goals, second - highest total in the league.

Ullman's grip on second place, however, has slipped to one point over Stan Mikita of Chicago.

ADDS 4 POINTS

The Black Hawk centre missed two games last week but still scored once and assisted on three others to boost his season's point total to 51, which includes a league-leading 30 assists.

BOBBY HULL

Gordie Howe of Detroit is fourth with 48 points and needs only one more goal to hit the 20 mark for the 17th consecutive season in his 20-year NHL career.

Alex Delvecchio of Detroit climbed into a fifth-place tie with Montreal's Bobby Rousseau ,each with 46 points, three more than Henri Richard of Montreal.

Bob Nevin of New York Rangers and Jean Beliveau of the Canadiens are tied for eighth place with 42 points, three more than Bob Pulford of Toronto Maple Leafs. Nevin and Pulford have each scored 20 goals.

DETROIT GOALIES LEAD

The goaltending race remains tight with Detroit's combination of Roger Crozier and Hank Bassen holding a slim lead over Montreal's Lorne Worsley and Charlie Hodge. Crozier leads the league in shutouts with seven.

Ted Green of Boston Bruins continues to lead in penalties with 113 minutes while New York is the most penalized team with 576 minutes.

Detroit and Chicago are tied for first place in the standings with 52 points each, one more than third-place Canadiens. In fourth place are Toronto Maple Leafs with 45 points, followed by New York with 30 and Boston with 26.

Junior Leafs Lose Again, But Improve Performance

TRAIL — Nelson Junior Maple Leafs went down to their ninth straight defeat Tuesday night as they were dumped 6-3 by Trail Junior Smoke Eaters.

But the Leafs went down fighting.

Playing one of their finest games of the season, the Juniors from Nelson showed the spirit and desire that won them hockey games early in the year.

A lot of the spark was added by the return of Bob Jeffs, defenceman - turned - forward, returned to the Leaf lineup after having his indefinite suspension lifted by the British Columbia Amateur Hockey Association on Saturday.

Jeffs was suspended, along with teammate Jim Boyce and coach Bill Freno, as a result of a brawl that erupted in a game in Rossland against the Juvenile Warriors.

Ron Doig led the Smoke Eaters' attack with three goals while singles were counted by Larry Brandt, Terry Arnett and Butch Simpson.

Pat Laughton, Reg Cherenko and Jeffs tallied the Nelson goals.

While the Leafs went down to defeat, the loss was helpful to the team. It enabled new coach Rob Birce to have a good look at his new lines; and Birce said after the game that the club was greatly improved over recent performances.

In one of the cleanest and fastest games of the season, the Smokies took a 3-1 first period lead, extended it to 5-2 in the second stanza and matched the Nelson team with a marker in the final 20 minutes.

Referee John Hanic called seven minor penalties; five of them in the first period, and one each in the last two stanzas.

Both goaltenders, Dave Allen for the Leafs and Brian Purdy for the Smokies, were outstanding. The two teams took turns containing each other in their zone for minutes at a time, but the netminders rose to the occasions, only to be beaten after coming up with big saves under pressure.

BOB JEFFS
. . . Back in action.

Allen kicked out 34 shots for Nelson, while Purdy kicked out 29.

Jeffs was united with Cherenko and Laughton and lifted the two players to the form they had achieved earlier in the season when Freno first formed his "Scooter Line."

Larry Black was moved from left wing with Cherenko and Laughton to centre with Greg Cook and Don Mathews.

Both lines worked well together and formed the most balanced offence the Leafs have had this season.

The Leafs' defence also tightened up and gave Allen more protection than he has been getting in the last several outings.

Tonight the same two teams meet again, this time in Nelson. With the Leafs' improved showing Tuesday night and a home crowd to play for, it could mark the end of a long drought for the juniors.

But the Leafs, now out of contention for first place in the WKJHL, are preparing for the playoffs against the Smokies, and will be going all out for wins to build up the confidence they may have lost during the past month.

Sunday night the suspension to Boyce will be lifted and the Leafs will be back at full strength in time to begin a final late season drive to tune up for the finals.

Tonight, they're looking to begin that drive to the West Kootenay Junior Hockey League Championship.

Rangers Look To Improve Record Against Black Hawks

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

New York Rangers, second to last in the National Hockey League standings and practically out of playoff contention, are aware of at least one thing —they can beat Chicago Black Hawks in Chicago.

In four games on Black Hawks ice this season, the Rangers have won two games and tied one.

They get a chance to increase that record tonight when they meet the Black Hawks in Chicago in the only scheduled NHL game.

"There's something about that big rink that makes our club go good," said Emile Francis, coach and general manager of the Rangers.

"We've always played well in Chicago and we're hoping to keep up the good work tonight."

HULL SCORED FOUR

The last time the two teams met in Chicago, the Rangers edged the Black Hawks 6-5, despite scoring sensation Bobby Hull's four goals.

In Toronto, Punch Imlach, coach of Toronto Maple Leafs confirmed Tuesday Bobby Baun will be in the lineup Thursday when his club plays Montreal Canadiens Thursday in Montreal.

But Imlach wasn't sure who would play defence with Baun, sidelined nine weeks with a knee injury.

Baun was pressed back into action after defenceman Marcel Pronovost injured his knee Sunday as the Leafs lost 8-4 to the Rangers.

Goaltender Johnny Bower, expected to be out a week or 10 days with pulled groin muscles, was scheduled for further medical examination today. Imlach will decide after Bower has been examined whether he will bring up another goaltender to work with Terry Sawchuk.

Detroit Red Wings announced Tuesday forward Ab McDonald has been sent to Memphis Wings of the Central Professional Hockey League.

Coach Sid Abel of the Red Wings said the move was designed to get McDonald's injured right leg back into shape. He has been suffering from a muscle strain in recent weeks.

Canuck Bobsledders Record Fastest Time

CORTINA D'AMPEZZO, Italy (AP)—The No. 1 Canadian team, defending world four-man bobsled champions, turned in the fastest practice time Tuesday night as lower temperatures allowed competitors to get in their first trial runs.

The Canadian sled captained by Vic Emery of Montreal, shot down the 1,860-yard Ronco Chute in one minute, 18.18 seconds. Other members of the crew are second Peter Kirby of Montreal, third Douglas Anakin of Montreal and brakeman Mike Young of Port Credit, Ont.

Rising temperatures the last few days have eaten at the icy walls of the chute, forcing cancellation of Monday night's drills.

The situation threatened the championship, scheduled for Saturday and Sunday night.

The temperature fell to 33.8 degrees at sunset from a high of 46.4 during the day. Two hours after sunset the competitors were permitted to try the chute.

Second fastest time of 1:18.54 was turned in by the British team of John Blockey, Michael Kirby, John Morrison and Michael Freeman.

The No. 2 Canadian team of driver Lamont Gordon of Harriston, Ont., second Purvis MacDougall of Montreal, third Bob Storey of Collingwood, Ont. ,and brakeman Paul Levesque of Montreal, had the sixth fastest time of 1:19.99.

Doug Engstrom's rink from Prince George, B.C., High School Curling champions by virtue of their 10-9 defeat of Esquimalt in the finals in Kimberley, will represent the province in the Dominion title play in St. Johns, Nfld.

Admiring their trophy, (left to right) are Gary Augustine, second; Gordon Nash, lead; Wilf Peckham, coach; Engstrom and Gerald Peckham, third.

MANN DRUGS LTD.

Krebiozen Developer Found Not Guilty

CHICAGO (AP) — The U.S. government's effort to prove fraud and conspiracy in promotion of krebiozen collapsed Monday when a jury repeated its acquittal verdicts for the final two defendants.

Dr. Stevan Durovic, developer of the drug used by some cancer patients and the Krebiozen Research Foundation he heads were found not guilty. The seven women and five men jurors had listened to nine months of testimony and deliberated 47 hours 50 minutes in reaching the final verdict

The jury Saturday freed Dr. Andrew C. Ivy, 72, physiologist who was chief medical baker of the drug; Marko Durovic, 65, lawyer and brother of the doctor acquitted Monday, and Dr. William F. P. Phillips, a general practitioner who prescribed krebiozen for some cancer sufferers.

Estimates of the cost of the trial, longest federal criminal trial in the Chicago area's history, ranged from $450,000 to as high as $3,000,000.

Dr. Durovic, 60, a Yugoslavian refugee, obviously relieved over the result of the verdict, commented that "an American jury has made the decision that the government was wrong in all its accusations."

DECLINED COMMENT

He declined to comment on his future plans for krebiozen or the proposal of Dr. Ivy that a committee of doctors be established under government sponsorship to test krebiozen on cancer patients.

Dr. Ivy said after his acquittal that a new test is the only way the drug's worth can be evaluated in cancer control.

However, the Food and Drug Administration in Washington issued a statement Sunday saying Krebiozen has not been approved for commercial distribution as safe and effective "and it does not now meet the standards for distribution even for investigational use."

Adolph Beranek, 59, foreman of the jury, sad that throughout the jury's deliberations "we were convinced that krebiozen had some merit and that the government had not proved it did not have any."

The defence called as witnesses numerous patients who had received krebiozen therapy for a condition that had been diagnosed as cancer.

Senator Paul H. Douglas (Dem. Ill.) said in a statement issued in Washington that the food and drug administration has "stubbornly refused" to act on his suggestion made over several years that krebiozen be given a clinical and hospital test.

"In the recent trial, nine months of time have been consumed and probably the expenditure of at least a million dollars," he added. "Only a fraction of this sum would have been needed to carry through such a test.

"I am not a medical expert, but I would suggest that since the national institute of health is testing over 100 chemical products a year in the cancer field, it would seem only proper to add one more."

The defendants faced the possibility of long prison terms and heavy fines, if convicted. Dr. Durovic, named in 40 counts of the 42-count indictment, faced a maximum punishment, if convicted, of 104 years imprisonment and a $364,000 fine.

Dr. Ivy, former vice-president of the University of Illinois and now director of medical research at Roosevelt University, Chicago, said he is "not yet fully relieved" by the jury's verdict and that the trial was "just an incident in my quest for a clinical test."

"I intend to go back into research into the anti-cancer substances which I have been working on since 1917," he said. "Krebiozen is such a substance, but I think there may be others."

Windfall Holds Quiet Meet

TORONTO (CP) — Windfall Oils and Mines Ltd., the most frequently discussed company in Canadian business a year ago, held its annual meeting in relative privacy Monday.

Only six shareholders, all directors, attended the meeting held in a small room in downtown Toronto. The shareholders, including Viola MacMillan, Windfall's largest shareholder, represented 343,003 shares and proxies 1,114,729 shares. Her husband, George, was relected president.

POLICE CALLED

VANCOUVER (CP) — Pitkethly Brothers, a Vancouver construction supply firm, has asked for special police protection because more than $1,000 damage has been done to company equipment in recent months.

Canada Must Be Free From Exchange Bind

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian Chamber of Commerce said Monday that unless Canada frees itself from a commitment to the U.S. to hold its foreign exchange reserves steady, it will either have to devalue the Canadian dollar farther or set its exchange rate free.

The chamber urged the government to hold spending plans and welfare programs in check as much as possible to ward off current inflationary pressures.

Views of the chamber, speaking for local and district chambers of commerce and boards of trade across the country, were put before Finance Minister Sharp in advance of preparations for Mr. Sharp's first budget. The chamber said the budget this spring should primarily encourage domestic output of goods and services.

The chamber's brief was presented to Mr. Sharp and Revenue Minister Benson, chairman of the chamber's executive council, and D. L. Morrell, its general manager.

Canada's agreement with Washington to hold Canadian foreign exchange reserves steady at about $2,500,000,000 in U.S. funds, and to take special action to reduce them if they grow much beyond that, prevents Canada from persuing a vigorous monetary policy, the brief said.

Monetary policy—the management of interest rates and the value of the dollar—should be used to impose discipline on the economy, the chamber said.

The Canadian dollar was fixed at an external value of 92½ cents in U.S. funds by the former Conservative government in 1962, and since taking office the present Liberal government has said it would not change it.

"If Canada is to remain on a fixed exchange rate system, and at the present parity, she must have some freedom to let her exchange reserves rise as well as fall," the brief said.

"Canada should explore every possibility of freeing itself from any agreement that by prohibiting any buildup of Canadian exchange reserves would prevent using monetary policy to avoid inflation at home.

"The alternatives are to move to a new fixed parity or to let the exchange rate float again in order to free monetary policy for dealing with the inflationary potential that now exists."

The chamber said preparation of the 1966 budget is not going to be easy. The principal objectives should be:

—To encourage domestic output of goods and services

To control government expenditures to maximum extent possible

—To restrain inflation forces already evident in the economy

—To remove impediments to the free use of monetary and fiscal policies

—*To increase freedom, flexi*bility and competition in the financial system.

The chamber said its specific recommendation is that "government spending plans and welfare programs should be held in check as much as possible."

The brief recommends withdrawal of the 11 per cent sales tax on production machinery, imposed by former finance minister Gordon. The tax meant an increase of 20 per cent in some production costs.

"The imposition of sales tax on productive machinery has a serious impact on the ability of Canadian manufacturers to compete with foreign manufacturers in both domestic and export markets," the brief said.

Your Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Thursday, February 3, 1966

MARCH 21 to APRIL 20 (Aries) — This day needs enthusiasm, but that won't stand up alone without thorough knowledge of what you're about. Reckon with others' skill, experience. Competition may be strong.

APRIL 21 to MAY 21 (Taurus) — Don't make "snap decisions" and don't look for "the worst" as may be tendencies now. No matter how difficult your assignments, you can do a better job than you think.

MAY 22 to JUNE 21 (Gemini) — Mercury, favorable, stimulates your ingenuity, quick-wittedness and perceptiveness. You should give a fine performance, therefore, DO — because others are depending on you.

JUNE 22 to JULY 23 (Cancer) — Tangible benefits indicated if you handle responsibilities conscientiously. Don't neglect the substantial for "flashy" but momentary gain.

JULY 24 to AUGUST 23 (Leo) — Steady, wise continuance of any worthwhile endeavor will soon bring rewards. Not an unusual day in any respect, but much can be accomplished.

AUGUST 24 to SEPTEMBER 23 (Virgo) — This could be a day of great personal achievement. Aim to attain goals you have set for yourself, but don't expect the unreasonable.

SEPTEMBER 24 to OCTOBER 23 (Libra) — Care needed in both budgetary and domestic matters now. Also, avoid restlessness and changeability. This is a day for straight-line thinking and action.

OCTOBER 24 to NOVEMBER 22 (Scorpio) — You may have a desire to try something a bit "different," but think well beforehand of the possible outcome. Your desire may not be based on logic.

NOVEMBER 23 to DECEMBER 21 (Sagittarius) — Double-check on plans. Work out business, all deals with deliberation, ascertaining facts beforehand. This is a period for advancing and seeing brighter horizons.

DECEMBER 22 to JANUARY 20 (Capricorn) — Take sufficient time to plan your schedule so you will not become flustered along the way. Stop, reason, know exactly what you are about. Shun undue excitement. Stress your innate adaptability.

JANUARY 21 to FEBRUARY 19 (Aquarius) — Don't be overly cautious that you lose out on advantages. And don't wait for others to "mend the fences." Some things need to be straightened out — by you.

FEBRUARY 20 to MARCH 20 (Pisces) — Decide how much you can and should accomplish, and call a halt to anything further that would run down your energies, crowd you into a spot where you cannot achieve well in any area.

YOU BORN TODAY are tactful, soundly independent, intelligent, reliable and always a DO-ER. You are gregarious, endowed with great imagination and combine artistry with practicality. Your ideas are brilliant and you also have the quality of being able to improve on the ideas of others. You are extremely ambitious, but must be careful not to undertake too much or to scatter energies or you will capsize your own boat. Your sense of humor is outstanding. Birthdate of: Felix Mendelssohn, German composer; Horace Greeley, American statesman, journalist.

MARKET TRENDS

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market Tuesday took its worst loss in seven months as selling mushroomed across the board, taking in blue chips along with recent high flyers.

No specific news was linked with the sudden drop but rather an accumulation of factors over a period of time.

Volume was 9,090,000 shares compared with 7,790,000 Monday.

The Dow Jones industrial average closed with a loss of 7.62 at 975.89 after showing its deepest loss of 9.96 at 2 p.m. EST. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks fell .3 to 363.3.

For both averages it was the worst loss since July 20 when Dow dropped 11.47, The AP average 4.3.

MARKET BROKE

The market began to break sharply early in the afternoon. From a technical viewpoint, the warning of a possible correction was sounded last week when it was apparent large blocks of high - quality issues were being sold at lower prices, American Telephone being an outstanding example. This was a sign that "big money" was getting out of the market or switching to other investments.

Among disconcerting news factors was the doubt about what is going to happen in Viet Nam. Investment-grade issues were adversely affected by the climb in U.S. interest rates.

The greater losses were taken by airlines, aerospace stocks, electronics, other defence - related issues and color television manufacturers. Coppers took sharp losses.

But General Motors held a gain of 1⅞ at 104⅝ following its report of higher earnings. Ford was up ½ and Chrysler ⅛. These were the only gainers on the list of 15 most active stocks.

Among Canadians, International Nickel, Hudson Bay Mining and Dome Mines all lost a point. Granby Mining was down 1¼ and McIntyre Porcupine more than 2 points.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange declined. Canadian Javelin was off ⅜ and Canadian Marconi ¼.

What stocks did:

	Tues	Mon
Advances	222	425
Declines	1,022	739
Unchanged	188	255
Total issues	1,432	1,419

MONTREAL (CP) — Stock prices continued to slip lower for the fourth day Tuesday on the Montreal and Canadian Stock Exchanges.

Only banks among the senior groups was off less than a point on the index.

Patricia Silver held the spotlight in early dealings as it dropped to 80 cents, but came back at the close to 91 cents, a loss of eight cents during the day.

Officials of Patricia Silver Mines Ltd. said they had no news to account for the sharp drop it had Monday on the Canadian Stock Exchange.

However, a spokesman said the first exploratory drill hole may be completed in the Pine Point area of the Northwest Territories late Tuesday.

Industrial Volume was 157,017 shares and mines and oils 1,302,388.

Declines outnumbered advances 133 to 62 as the composite index fell a significant 1.25 at 162.25.

TORONTO (CP) — Investors slashed prices of industrial stocks Tuesday on the Toronto Stock Exchange, folowing the lead of the New York market where shares were hit by heavy selling.

The Toronto industrial index, which measures investors' sentiment toward key stocks, fell 1.50 to 173.25, for its fourth setback in a row.

Losses in the main list out*numbered gains by 166 to 95 and* all 19 indexes calculated by the exchange were lower.

The bank index fell 1.17 to 147.98 with all five listed chartered banks taking losses. Nova Scotia dipped ⅝ to 73¼, Montreal ½ to 63½, Imperial Commerce ¾ to 68½, Royal ½ to 77¾ and Toronto-Dominion ¼ to 66¼.

MINING STOCKS LOST

With investors taking a crack at blue-chip issues, speculative mining stocks lost some of their vigor. However, prices firmed in some leaders. Eldona was ahead 12 cents to 1.42, Thomson Lundmark 23 to 68 cents and Wilco 7 to 70 cents.

Senior mining issues didn't fare so well. The world's No. 1 and No. 2 nickel producers ran into selling with Inco down 1½ to 105 and Falconbridge 1½ to 107½.

Canadian Export Gas led the western oil section lower with a loss of 25 cents to 3.40.
