PEACE MEDI'S AS FAIL TO AGREE

U. S. Refuses to Let Huerta Name New Foreign Minister.

Compromise May Be Affected and Differences Overcome—No War Indemnity Asked.

Niagara Falls, Ont., June 9.—The United States is unwilling to extend recognition to a new provisional president if named according to the plan advanced by the Mexican delegates, it was learned tonight. The method is that General Huerta would appoint as minister of foreign affairs the man who is agreed upon here to head the new government.

The Washington administration contends that if General Huerta is permitted to name the foreign minister who by constitutional succession will be elevated to the presidency, even though the selection is made here, such an act would be construed as recognition of the Huerta government.

On this issue the mediation plenipotentiaries came to a disagreement today at a conference held for consideration of the exact method by which the new provisional government of Mexico would be created.

Mediators Strike Snag.

For more than two hours the mediators and American delegates argued in vain and it was apparent when the conference ended that what hitherto had been considered a subject of detail had suddenly developed a snag. Although the three South American diplomats argued strongly from the Mexican viewpoint, there was good reason to believe tonight that the Mexican delegates would not insist upon this arrangement if they found the United States determined against it.

There is a possibility that a compromise will be agreed upon. Pedro Lascurain, who was minister of foreign affairs when President Madero was assassinated, could be re-appointed to the cabinet and succeed to the provisional presidency and then appoint as foreign minister the man agreed upon by all parties for the new provisional executive.

No War Indemnity.

A point which gave the Mexican delegates much satisfaction was that no war indemnity would be demanded by the United States as a result of the occupation of Vera Cruz.

Probabilities are that the constitutionalists will send their delegates here within a few days to discuss the terms on which an armistice might be declared, but it is assured that they will not agree to suspend hostilities until they know the details of the peace plan.

In the discussion of the form of provisional government, the American delegates are understood to have told the mediators that inasmuch as Carranza had been moving forward toward undoubted military conquest of Mexico City, it seemed essential that the constitutionalists be given ample share in the new government. The mediators are not averse to this, but are unwilling to transfer the Mexican government at one full swoop to the constitutionalist party.

BOVINE TUBERCULOSIS UNDER CONTROL IN B.C.

This Province Has Made Most Advance of Any in Dominion in the Stamping Out of Disease.

Ottawa, June 9.—The following statement of interest to the public was issued by the department of agriculture:

For the past two years Martin Burrell, minister of agriculture, has had under contemplation, the necessity of taking some step toward the lessening of bovine tuberculosis. The relation of bovine tuberculosis to human tuberculosis is well known and the transmission of the disease by milk of infected cows is no longer a matter of serious dispute.

The veterinary branch of the federal department of agriculture formerly under the able direction of Dr. Rutherford and lately under the capable present veterinary director-general, Dr. Torrance, has largely undertaken the work of stamping out contagious diseases of animals, such as glanders and hog cholera. Jurisdiction, however, is concurrent, and amongst the provinces, British Columbia has made the most advanced step by enacting a statute providing for the slaughter of and compensation for dairy cattle infected with tuberculosis and with very satisfactory results. By a recent federal order-in-council regulations have been authorized which will empower the department of agriculture to enter into any agreement with cities for the definite object of eradicating bovine tuberculosis from all dairy herds supplying milk to the cities in question.

Bandits' Trial Postponed.

Montreal, June 9.—The trial of Arthur Focault and Joseph Beauchamp, so-called bandits, charged with murdering Constable Bourdon, was today postponed until September.

WAITING INVESTIGATION OF EMPRESS DISASTER

Inquiry Will Open Next Week—All Efforts Being Devoted to Recovery of Bodies of Victims.

Montreal, June 9.—There was no developments today in the Empress of Ireland matter. It is a case of simply waiting until the investigation can be begun next week on the arrival of Lord Mersey in Canada, and in the meantime the discussion as to which captain was to blame for the sinking of the Empress, if either, has settled down.

Even the two captains themselves, who were so much in the public eye a few days ago, are seldom mentioned now. So-called experts are bobbing up occasionally with views as to how the Empress could be raised, but no action has as yet been taken to lift the sunken ship.

Captain Walsh of the Canadian Pacific company, is devoting his attention to recovering as many bodies as possible from the vessel.

"This is our first work now," he said today. "We must recover them if at all possible."

AD MEN WILL BE HERE SATURDAY

General Reception Committee Will Meet Thursday Afternoon.

Ladies Completing Details for Lunch—Many from Here Will Attend Vancouver Pageant.

Owing to the fact that the ladies committee in charge of the luncheon to be given the visiting Ad. men, hold a meeting to complete final arrangements on Wednesday night, the meeting of the general committee has been put over from that evening until Thsurday afternoon at the city hall.

The luncheon committee will meet at the home of Mrs. C. B. McAllister, president of the Women's Auxiliary of the Royal Columbian hospital, Third street and Third avenue.

The celebration, as affecting New Westminster will commence on Friday at Vancouver, the mayor and council together with many of the citizens having accepted the invitation to attend the pageant to be held that day. The May Queen together with past queens and maids of honor, will be given a prominent poistion in the procession which is expected to eclipse anything yet held on the lower mainland.

New Westminster's day comes on Saturday, when, following the completion of their business at the fourth annual convention, the visiting delegates will board waiting autos and make their way along Kingsway to the Royal City.

The weather man appears to be playing into the hands of the local committee, the forecast from Washington early in the week predicting fine and warm weather for the rest of the week commencing either today or Thursday.

Good bright weather will be welcomed for the occasion as a celebration of this kind would be marred considerably should Old Jupe start out on a rampage.

Many of the business men are taking kindly to the suggestion advanced by The News yesterday that bunting be flown on Saturday while the private residences along the line of procession will also be suitably decorated for the occasion.

Preparations are going on in South Vancouver, Maillardville and Port Coquitlam to assist in the celebration which promises to be one of the features of the side trips made during the convention.

PORTLAND'S ANNUAL ROSE CARNIVAL

Thousands of Visitors Throng the City to Enjoy the Carnival—River Pageant and Street Parade.

Portland, Ore., June 9.—Thousands of citizens and visitors thronged Portland's streets today at the opening of the eighth annual rose festival.

Among the visitors who arrived today were Mayor G. A. Bading and a special trainload of the merchants and manufacturers' association from Milwaukee, Wis., who are on a trade promotion tour.

The many events which were carried out today included the opening of the rose shows and festival centre, and the crowning of the rose queen following a river pageant and street parade. The city was brilliantly illuminated tonight and the carnival spirit was in evidence. In addition to the competive exhibits at the rose shows, roses were used in lavish abundance in street decorations.

SEVEN CASES ARE SET FOR HEARING

Dominion Railway Commission to Decide Many Grievances.

Four Against Great Northern, Two Regarding B. C. E. R. and One Against the C. P. R.

Several matters of importance affecting New Westminster and adjoinin b municipalities will come up for discussion before the Dominion railway commission sitting in Vancouver today and Thursday. New Westminster will be represented by Mayor Gray, Alderman Kellington, Alderman Dodd and City Solicitor W. G. McQuarrie, while Burnaby, Port Moody and Coquitlam will also have representatives present.

In four of the seven cases set down for hearing, the Great Northern will be required to show cause why orders should not be issued allowing action on the complaints. In one the Great Northern is seeking to close certain roads in the vicinity of Sapperton, while the other two are against the B. C. E. R. and C. P. R., one of alleged over-crowding of cars on the Burnaby ake line and the other, the petition of the Ladies' club of Whonnock for a station agent.

Chief among the cases is the application of Burnaby, New Westminster, Port Moody and Coquitlam, asking for a level crossing over the G. N. R. tracks on the North road in order to permit the installation of tracks for the extension of the Sapperton car line. Opposition is expected from the Great Northern railway to this move as this this would tie up the company's operations leading to the construction of freight yards near Sapperton. Should this opposition appear it is expected that the commission will make a ruling as to when a start is to be made on the high level steel bridge crossing the G. N. R. tracks which the railway company has been ordered to build. The cases are:

List of Cases.

Application of the cities of New Westminster and Port Moody and the municipalities of Burnaby and Coquitlam for a temporary level crossing over the Great Northern railway tracks at North road.

Petition of the residents of the Tynehead district for station facilities at Tynehead on the Great Northern railway.

Application of the V., V. and E. railway to take land in the district of New Westminster re Gunn road and North road.

Complaint of the municipality of Burnaby against the crowding of cars on the Burnaby Lake line of the B. C. Electric railway.

Resumed hearing of the application of the residents of White Rock, Ocean Park and Crescent for an order directing the G. N. R. to give round trip week-end fares the year round to and from New Westminster and Vancouver.

Petition of the Ladies' club of Whonnock for a station agent at that place.

Consideration of the matter of protecting the Great Northern railway crossing at Brunette street, New Westminster.

CHARGES OF GRAFT CAUSE SENSATION

Edmonton, June 9.—A sensation was caused this evening by the arrest of William Wheeler, a well known citizen and proprietor of the Dominion club, on a charge of attempted extortion from women of the underworld Wheeler has just returned from a trip to Winnipeg and immediately on his return reported to O. M. Biggar, who has been chosen to conduct the legal end of the investigation. His arrest is the first one in connection with charges of graft which has been made against the police department, and the investigation of which will begin next Friday before Justice Scott. It is alleged that Wheeler has been a close assistant of ex-Chief Lancey, who was dismissed some days ago as head of the police department. Wheeler was released on $2000 bail.

WATER BYLAW REPEALED.

Maillardville Council Repeals Ordinance Passed Last Year.

A special meeting of the Coquitlam council was held yesterday to consider the Maillardville water bylaws. Reeve Marmont presided. Councillor Oxtoby moved that the bylaw repealing the one of 1913 be delayed for two days to give them an opportunity of consulting the solicitor to learn whether the old bylaw was still legal and the water system of last year installed.

Councillor Robertson seconded.

An amendment that the 1913 bylaw be repealed was, however, supported by Councillors Baker, Whiting and Percy and carried.

The only other business transacted was the authorizing of Fire Chief Parr to buy three roof ladders, each 14 feet long, and two extension ladders of 24 feet, for fire protection. Authority was also given the chief for purchasing a battery for ringing the alarm bell continuously and to provide himself with a pair of rubber boots.

SEWER DESIRED BUT AT LESS COST

Sapperton Ratepayers Receive Information Regarding System.

Committee Appointed to Confer With Board of Works to Devise More Economical Plan.

After a clear and instructive address by City Engineer Blackman, searching questions from the ratepayers and equally convincing answers on the Sapperton No. 2 sewerage scheme, a keen and interesting discussion ended in the appointment of five ratepayers to meet the board of works and endeavor to reduce the cost of the undertaking.

There was no whisper against a sewerage scheme for Sapperton but a decided disinclination to admit that the present scheme was the most economical one in the circumstances.

Before meeting the board of works the committee will thresh out the question among themselves and concentrate upon some modification of the scheme whereby some material saving may be effected. The result will be submitted to the board of works and, if necessary, the services of an independent engineer of experience will be called in to advise. The committee will meet with Mr. Lewis, manager of the Brunette Sawmills and learn the attitude of his company on the subject of the easement through the mill property.

President Munro occupied the chair and there was a good and representative gathering.

Mr. Blackman, the city engineer, opened with a brief sketch of the scheme from its initiation and showed the advantages and ultimate economy of the combined sanitary and storm sewers. He said that in his opinion the outfall through the Brunette mills was the only practical one and less expensive than two or three others

C. N. R. BILL PASSES THIRD READING

Will Become Law as Soon as Assented to by Governor General.

Vote Was 35 to 20—Thirteen Liberals and 22 Conservatives Voted for the Measure.

Ottawa, June 9.—The Canadian Northern aid bill received a third reading in the senate this afternoon and as soon as formally assented to by His Royal Highness, the governor-general, will become law.

Thirteen liberals voted in favor of the bill on third reading.

All the conservative senators voted in favor of the measure except Senator Monplaiser. He is one of the oldest members of the upper house, having been appointed to the senate in 1891 by Sir John A. MacDonald. He voted for the bill on second reading.

The analyis of the vote is that 13 liberals and 32 conservatives voted for the bill on the third reading, with 19 liberals and 1 conservative against.

The vote in third reading was really a motion by Senator Choquette that the bill be reported to a committee for investigation, this being rejected by 35 to 20. The third reading was then declared carried by the same division.

Objections Not Well Founded.

The vote on the second reading stood 47 to 12 in favor of the bill.

Hon. Mr. Lougheed declared that the objection to the bill enumerated in Senator Bostock's amendment, were not well founded. He said that the security the government was getting was ample. He stated that it was unreasonable to demand that Mackenzie and Mann should be required to place their personal fortunes to the successful completion and operation of a ten thousand mile railroad system such as the Canadian Northern. The personal fortunes of those behind the Canadian Pacific had not been so pledged. The Grand Trunk declined to pledge itself to the construction of the G.T.P. Why then should the pledge of the personal fortunes of Mackenzie and Mann be asked for. The proper expenditure of the money realized from the C. N. R. guarantee bonds was absolutely assurred by the terms of the contract.

At the evening sitting, on motion of Hon. Mr. Lougheed, the bill guaranteeing Grand Trunk Pacific bonds to the amount of $16,000,000 was given third reading.

A Youthful Bandit.

Montreal, June 9.—A bandit leader of only nine years of age was before Judge Choquette this morning. He was arrested with two other boys of 11 and 13 years for breaking into a house. The leader has been six times before the court on charges of theft.

GENERAL FEELING VERY OPTIMISTIC

Canadian Railway Officials Confident That Nominal Conditions Will Soon Hold Forth

Winnipeg, June 9.—Railway men in Canada are plucking up courage Things are beginning to move. Passenger and freight traffic are each showing considerable improvement.

On the C. P. R. this improvement is very marked. The recent statement by Sir Thomas Shaughnessy that the country is sound to the core is every day being more emphasized.

Local C. P. R. men are confidently optimistic. "The worst is over," they say. 'Confidence is returning and we shall be all right in a jiffy. Give us good weather and let the crop come on all right and we have nothing to fear."

It is true that the C. P. R. is not undertaking any development work outside of finishing up what was undertaken last year, but there is some improvement work going on, and the general feeling among railway men is that business improvement from now on will be uninterrupted.

MILLION DOLLARS VOTED FOR NAVY

Demand for Naval Training from Different Parts of the Dominion.

Prorogation Will Not Take Place Before Saturday—Re-Distribution Bill May Not Be Introduced.

Ottawa, June 9.—The naval issue which has lain dormant during the present session was stirred up in the commons this evening and for several hours nothing but naval talk was heard.

The cause of the debate was the estimates of the naval department.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said that last session the government proposed to send ships to Great Britain. Now they proposed to send men. He thought the spending of money to train sailors to fight when there were no ships was absurd.

Premier Borden said that the naval reserve plan was based upon the requests from different parts of Canada that naval training might be taken up just as military training.

French-Canadian Liberal members seized upon the statement that sailors trained in Canada sould serve in the British navy as an indication that the proposal went further than Sir Wilfrid Laurier did in his naval policy.

Naval Policy Endorsed.

Hon. L. P. Pelleiter said that the proposed naval reserve was quite in keeping with the government's naval proposals of last year and that the arguments of the liberals were ridiculous. He said that the naval policy of the government had been endorsed by the electors of Chateauguay in the bye-election.

The debate continued until after midnight when the million dollars was voted and other items were taken up.

It is possible that after all prorogation may not take place this week. Both parties still hope that a compromise regarding re-distribution will be effected and that the bill will be introduced this session. The feeling is that, after spending so much time upon the question and having settled every constitutiency except two, namely Russell and Richmond, it is a pity to have all their efforts go for naught. But even if the re-distribution bill is not introduced this session, prorogation is not expected before Saturday.

"HIGH COST" INVESTIGATION

Royal Commission Will Meet in New Westminster This Week.

The royal commission investigating the high cost of living, a subject dear to the heart of every housewife and wage earner, will hold a session one day this week in the city hall, according to plans made yesterday. The commission, which was appointed by the Dominion government early last fall, is now holding sittings in Vancouver and may possibly go to Victoria before reaching New Westminster. Ample notice will be given in order that evidence may be given before the commission by anyone interested in the campaign to alleviate the present cost of residing on this earth.

MANY COURT CASES.

County court matters occupied so much attention at the court house yesterday as to engage the attention of two judges, their honors Judge Howay, and Judge McInnes, of Vancouver. Such an occurence where two county court jurists are sitting at one time at the local court house is known to be very rare, necessitating the attendance of two court officials.

ROYALTY FORCED TO PAY TRIBUTE

Prominent People Subscribe to Suffragette Fund for Immunity.

Her Majesty's Offer of Five Thousand Dollars Refused—Militants Score Against Government.

London, June 9.—Police raids on the suffragette headquarters today resulted in the discovery that several of the royal family, including the Prince of Wales, have been regular contributors to the militant funds, while the queen tried to contribute but her offer was refused. These contributions do not mean that royalty favors the militants. On the contrary, it really amounts to paying blackmail for immunity for the persons and property of the royal family from militant attacks.

When the raids were made and the lists of subscribers found, the government hastily announced that it would immediately begin criminal prosecutions on the charge of supporting a criminal organization but the minute examination disclosed among the subscribers several royal names, including the Duchess of Teck, the Duchess of Fife and still still further investigation showed that immunity payments had been made in the name of the Prince of Wales. He had so frequently argued with his parents in favor of the suffragettes that there was uncertainty as to what category his contribution came under.

Queen's Offer Refused.

It was also learned that the queen offered a subscription of $5000 if the militants would agree to stop annoying their majesties but this subscription was refused, the militants being unwilling to lose their most valuable advantageous medium. Among others in the list are the Duchess of Portland and Westminster and many Americans including the Duchess of Marlborough, the Countess of Essex and Lady Cunard.

American hostesses in London have been let conspicuously alone by the militants. Detective agencies which since the season began have had female detectives at every society function to guard against militant outrages told the police that they were never called by American hostesses.

When the royal names were found on the list the government had to give up the idea of prosecuting subscribers, but is now considering the prosecution of the militants for blackmail. The royal and noble subscribers, however, seem unwilling to become complainants and without their aid nothing can be done.

Of course many subscribers are strong supporters of militancy but they are also safe as the government cannot prosecute them and refrain from prosecuting the others. So the militants seem to have scored on the government once again.

A WARM MEETING BUT WITHOUT RESULTS

Maillardville Residents Discuss Proposed Water System But Are Unable to Agree.

The meeting of Maillardville residents with Reeve Marmont and Councillors Robertson, Oxtoby, and Baker on Monday evening to discuss the water system proposition cannot be described as exactly a hormonious one. The reeve explained the scheme in detail and congratulated his French-Canadian constituents on the improvement of the plan over the one proposed by the preceding council. The estimated cost was 7 1-4 cents per front foot. The lower portion of the settlement had been cut out and wooden pipes had been adopted in preference to steel, both of which had economized the expense.

Opposition manifested itself in the audience, and it was claimed that last year's scheme involved only three and a half cents and with the addition of interest and other charges amounted to little more than five cents. Figures clashed, speakers grew warm and Mr. Boileau drew insidious comparisons between the abilities of the past and present councils much to the disadvantage of the present one. Exchanges of personal compliments followed.

Councillor Robertson endeavored to throw oil upon the troubled Maillardville waters but with indifferent success. Councillor Oxtoby added fuel to the flame and the reeve waxed warm and the meeting closed somewhat noisily without any action being embodied in a resolution.

Social and Dance.

The Girls' Auxiliary of St. Mary's church, Sapperton, held an ice cream social and dance in the church hall last night. The hall was decorated and festooned with flowers most tastefully, the floor was in capital order, the girls lovely and the music charming; small wonder an exceedingly happy evening was spent. Commercially, the treasury netted $25.

WHEN THE CROP'S IN.

In about three months there will be a hum on the Canadian prairies and the harvesters will be busy in what at present promises to be the biggest crop the middle west ever has garnered.

In Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta government and railway estimators place the increase in acreage under crop at one million and three-quarter acres, the bulk of this added tilling being in wheat and oats. Careful investigation shows that the present condition of the seed bed is much more favorable than in many years past, while the moisture is sufficient to carry the crop along for quite a long time to come.

The returns from this year's coming harvest are of tremendous importance to the business interests of Canada, but more particularly to the west. Last year, following on the heels of a stiff financial stringency, the crop came to the rescue of the people, enabling them to liquidate the most pressing obligations and finance along for another twelve months. If this year's harvest bears out its promises of still greater results, it will serve to straighten out pretty nearly all the remaining kinks in the financial situation and, in all liklihood, will provide considerable floating capital for enlargements of production.

Already wholesalers are reporting collections coming in more easily, with the prospect of a splendid business improvement after the present crop is in. With this accomplished a return to normal business conditions may be looked for with confidence.

If the prairie oil boom continues it will make the once famous prairie wheat crop look like a chiffon ruffle in an April shower.

Eight tornadoes visited South Dakota on Monday. Thank goodness those visitors don't make this part of the world a port of call.

It looks as though the Canadian senate were taking pointers from the weather man. You never can tell just what it's going to do.

"Let them die," seems to be becoming a popular slogan in the old country with regard to the suffragettes. It's all right to let 'em, but what if they won't?

It is reported from Niagara that plans are all complete for the peace of Mexico. A message from Carranza to the same effect would be more encouraging.

A Hazelton mine has presented the Prince Rupert board of trade with a bar of silver. Now, if the delinquent members would pay up their dues, everything would look rosy.

Well, well. well! There's our old friend Harry Thaw still fighting for his freedom. Harry should be able to appreciate the feelings of the down-trodden peons of Mexico.

The Burnaby school board has started holding star chamber sessions. Most public bodies get that bug sooner or later, but it will never become a permanent affliction till men cease to enjoy "seeing their names in the paper."

A money-order branch is being opened in connection with the East Wellington postoffice. Wonder if the reason they didn't have it before was because there was no money there or because the people didn't have the nerve to order it.

NEW ZEALAND WILL BAR OUT HINDUS

They Are Not Wanted There—Premier Massey Has Strong Views on Imperial Defence.

Wellington, New Zealand, June 9.—Speaking to a delegation interviewing him in regard to the peace movement, Premier Massey said today that he was anxious to preserve peace, but that the Empire could only be kept together by an efficient defence system. It was right that the colonies should do their share in contributing to the defence of the empire.

In connection with the suggestion that the government of New Zealand should apologize to Japan or endeavor to explain away the statement made by General Sir Ian Hamilton, the premier said he had no intention of doing anything of the sort. He might not agree with some of the opinions of General Hamilton, but he was not going to reflect upon a man who had done such good work for the empire.

The present government, he said, would stand or fall by its defence policy, and if the promoters of the peace movements did not approve they could vote against the government. This sally was greeted by cries of "Hear, hear," by members of the deputation.

Speaking in Christchurch subsequently, Premier Massey said that New Zealand was heavily in debt. A larger population was essential, but New Zealand did not want Hindus. Next session the government hopes to enact legislation making it impossible for the Hindus to come here. He felt very strongly on the subject. The country did not want Hindus at all.

SCOTTISH CHURCHES MAY UNITE AGAIN

London, June 9.—The reunion of the Church of Scotland and the United Free Church, after seventy years of separation, now seems in sight. The realization Church of Scotland committee, at a joint meeting in Edinburgh yesterday issued a report containing draft articles of the constitution for union. Lord Balfour, of Burleigh, in moving its adoption at the established assembly, said they held that questions of state relations and church endowment had not actually come within the four corners of such constitution. It was primarily the declaration of freedom of church to deal with all spiritual matters. This motion was adopted with a large majority.

At the Free Church assembly, the Rev. Dr. Young moved the adoption of the union committee's report, asking the assembly to reappoint committees to continue negotiations. This was also agreed to by a large majority.

The Rev. T. R. Whitelaw said that any union, to be satisfactory, must provide not only complete spiritual freedom, but also absolute equality of all the churches. What they wanted was to have all the church in Scotland placed on the same footing as churches in Ireland were and those in Wales were going to be.

Correspondence

THE CALGARY OIL STRIKE.

To the Editor The News:

Sir,—Though I might be ever so capable, I did not feel that my short visit to the oil district fitted me to make a lengthy or accurate report on the situation, but recent publicity forces me to come out with such information as may be of interest to readers of The News.

Apparently some individual takes great pleasure in either boosting or knocking the oil boom at the expense of uninterested parties returning from that district. Some of the utterances are not only injurious to the party to which they are credited, but are misleading to the general public.

To the south of Calgary some forty miles and in an easterly and westerly direction along the foothills of the Rockies lies the district recently made famous by the Dingman strike as the Calgary oil fields.

The nature of the land, like all prairie formation, is rolling with knolls and hogbacks formed by the rush of water, no doubt from the glaciers of the Rockies. These shapes so formed furnish little, if any, oil indications, but in them nature has provided a great aid to the geologist. Along the washed banks of streams he can trace the elevations of the different strata and by this means he locates the most valued and promising location for an oil prospect, the apex of an anticline.

For years the writings of numerous geologists have favored this particular district. The Dingman strike proves the accuracy of their judgment, but by no means proves that the field will be of any great commercial significance.

The product of the Dingman well, without its slight tinge of yellow, could not be detected from pure gasolene. From reliable resources I am informed that it is 65 per cent. pure and has a commercial value of nine dollars per barrel. A strike of this quality in the reported quantity is a phenomenon unknown, at least unwritten in the history of the oil world.

As crude oil contains a certain amount of solids, filteration through sand or conglomeration may account for its purity. We must suppose that in its natural state it was impregnated with bitumen or asphaltum which may later influence the flow.

With every confidence I look forward to one of the many drills now going down on the anticline to produce a gusher of crude oil Should such a thing happen, it would sure be a memorable event in the history of Western Canada. Just what influence it would have on the local financial situation is hard to say, but, as we usually feel the effects of a good wheat crop, it is only natural to suppose we would share the good fortune in oil of our neighbors.

My visit east was in the interests of the C. P. R. and had no connection with the oil strike, other than from a photographic standpoint. My expenses were all generously met without indulgence in the stock market, as previously reported, and I wish it distinctly understood that I neither desire to encourage or discourage the purchase of oil stock, but trust that no one will turn an oil strike into a bread and butter gamble.

The photographs made on this trip, other than the ones of Calgary proper, will not be exhibited as stated, as they were made for a private concern without privileges, and the harvest of great profits on my part were only the dreams of a piper.

SAND AVALANCHE SMOTHERS BOY

Toronto Lad, Playing in Heap, Meets His Death Under Tons of Material.

Toronto, June 9.—Caught under an avalanche of sand while playing with a number of companions near his home, Johnny Brown, aged 6, 18 Baden street, was smothered to death. Two chums, lads of his own age, Charlie Chufky, 14 Baden street, and Wesley Richmond, 16 Baden street, were fortunate in escaping the fate which befell their playmate.

The accident happened behind James Gow's sheet metal works at Ossington avenue and Arthur street. This is the third fatal accident which has occurred within ten days in this vicinity. A street car conductor was killed in a fall from a running board, and a boy, in a street car collision.

Yesterday afternoon a number of young lads started to dig a cave behind some sign boards fronting on Arthur street. They finished their work shortly before 6 o'clock, and returned after their supper to play in it. Chufky Richmond and the unfortunate Brown boy crawled through a narrow tunnel into the cave. While in the cave the combined weight of a number of companions racing about over their heads caused the cave-in, burying the three mentioned under tons of sand. Young Brown was completely buried, the light sand filling his lungs. Men in the neighborhood promptly answered the cries of the shouting children. Within a short time all had been taken from the pit.

Constable Udell worked over young Brown with a pulmotor until the arrival of Dr. Clark, Shaw and Halton streets. The boy was taken to the Western hospital, dying an hour after his admission. Neither Chufky or Richmond were seriouesly injured.

The body was sent to the morgue, where an inquest will be held.

MATERNITY, SURGICAL AND MEDICAL CASES ATTENDED.

BONAPARTE MARRIED BY TAMMANY BOSS

Descendant of Famous First Consul Weds a Divorced Woman in New York.

New York, June 9.—There was once a little corporal who believed he might make the world spin backward. The wise men of his and all other times said it could not be done. The traditions echoed the warning.

The story of how he fought the world for its crown, how he made and unmade nations, and their kings, and how a rainstorm and a country road bertayed the master of Europe, is, one may well believe, the finest romance of history.

Romance wears thin, but there are always fresh blades. There are other romances in this little corporal's own line—old ones and new ones, good and bad.

The most recent lifted its face from the rubbish of everyday life at the city hall of New York the other day when Jerome Napoleon Bonaparte married Mrs. Flanche Pierce Strebeigh with a week-old divorce decree under her arm.

Jerome Bonaparte is the great-grand-nephew of the little corporal. While he waited in the half-dim passage of the city hall for the arrival of a Tammany alderman to utter the spoken word of marriage his bride tangoed on the flags. Somehow the memory instinctively goes back to Rostand's description of the coronation of that first Bonaparte's little son in "L'Aiglon." There was no tango there, but there were kings.

The story of the little corporal's romance all men know. It is written in "high piled books," on the map of Europe in the blood of a continent. That of his grand-nephew is more elusive. But here it is, as far as one may presume to know the inner affairs of another:

Jerome N. Bonaparte has been for a number of years one of the beaux of Washington, where his mother, until her death, two years ago, kept a great house and strove to hold in life the traditions and formalities of her husband's line.

She was always "Madame," and much of the ceremony and circumstance of the Bonapartes of old went with her functions. Her son was of somewhat different cloth, choosing rather the democracy of his country.

He was seen wherever the best resident society of Washington was seen, at the club, the dance, the tea, the reception. It was known that he would inherit half of his mother's large fortune. It was seen that he was a young man with a large possession of the social graces, so it is not remarkable that he was, if one may be so impolite, a marital target.

This and that matchmaking matron chose for him this and that young woman in the social lineup. But the young man continued to steer an even bachelor keel.

It was even rumored—as many things are—that he was to marry Matilda Townsend, who was the most admired of Washington young women for some seasons and who finally married young Congressman Gerry.

Enough to Arrest the Eye.

None of these things appeared to ruffle the complete calm of the young Bonaparte. He seemed to sail past the matrimonial temptations as his ancestor had marched through Europe, nowhere arrested. In short, he was the kind of young man who gives the mothers of better social circles unutterable ennui—or should one say chagrin?

But there is always (the ancient figure) a Waterloo. A little less than two years ago young Mr. Bonaparte wash at Narragansett Pier with his Washington chum, Billy Marrow. There he met one evening Mr. and Mrs. Harold Strebeigh, of New York.

Strebeigh is what some of us like to call a man about town, a Columbia graduate, member of the university baseball team, of the University and Rockaway Hunt clubs, wealthy, good-looking, popular. Snow-white hair distinguishes a face still fresh with the early forties.

Mrs. Strebeigh was a woman to arrest the eye; one not so different, perhaps, from that "Glorious Betsy" who married the first Jerome Bonaparte.

She was in her first 30's, of medium height, with a pale, luminous face, crowned with Titian hair. Her figure was slight and girlish, and she smiled captivatingly at a captivating world.

At Narragansett with the Strebeighs were their twin daughters, schoolgirls in Washington.

Secret From Intimate Friends.

Consider well, now, the case of Mr. Bonaparte, it is worth remembering. His past has been a steady and calm avoidance of the tender snares which women contrive so artfully and, it is possible, spontaneously.

The sophists say, however, that every man has his price. Similarly it may be contended that every man will somewhere find a woman to whose allure he is not impenetrable. Napoleon Bonaparte became the Corsican when the daughter of the Hapsburgs was the object of desire. Henceforth his carefully followed plans went all awry.

Comes now the latest of the Bonapartes to his crux. That summer two years ago at Narragansett Pier saw that Jerome Bonaparte devoted himself almost exclusively to the company of the Strebeighs. Here and there and everywhere he was seen with the couple and their daughters.

There was, however, little, if any, comment. Indeed, it was not until after that quick marriage in New York city hall that people remembered how much the two had been together that season.

Not even the most intimate friends of Mrs. Strebeigh and Mr. Bonaparte had any suspicion of the status of affairs between them until the other day the couple drove up to the city hall square and were married in the basement with an alderman for cardinal and reporters for witnesses.

Not Billy Marrow, who had introduced the Strebeighs and Bonaparte; not the bridegroom's sister, the Countess von Moltke Huitfeldt, had an inkling of what was to be.

Descendant of Glorious Betsy.

When the ceremony was over the pair drove away to spend the honeymoon at a place as unknown as their previous plans. However, the big house of the bridegroom's mother in K street, Washington, is being opened and put into shape for the reception of the couple on their return.

In this fine place, where the young man's mother in her latter life tried to keep awake some of the glory and circumstances of her family, the latest Mrs. Jerome Bonaparte will try to work out a happiness superior to that of the earlier American girl whom history knows as the wife of tre first Jerome Bonaparte.

The present bridegroom is the descendant of that Jerome and of his glorious and unhappy Betsy, whom the ambitio nand callousness of a conqueror divided from her happiness and kept from a throne.

But though Elizabeth Paterson lost her husband when the kingdom of Westphalia and Charlotte of Wurtemberg were thrust upon him by his emperor brother, she yet had the son who was born to her in England in 1806.

He also was named Jerome. His mother remained abroad for some years trying to osften the heart of Napoleon and become reunited with her husband.

Then she took her son and her sorrows back to America, where the boy was to found the American branch of the Bonapartes. This Jerome was the grandfather of the recent bridegroom.

The father of the present Jerome Bonaparte, identical of name, went back to France to serve Louis Napoleon after the coup detat, was politely patronized by that adventurer and endured the name, "Paterson-Bonaparte," to distinguish him from the European line. In Paris, where he lived for a number of years, the latest of the line was born.

Perhaps the romance will be less significant historically than those of his ancestors. It may be happier.

FINDS BURIAL SPOT OF RULER OF DEAD

Professor of Geneva University Returns From Egypt With Tales of Strange Discoveries.

Paris, June 9.—Prof. Edouard Haville of Geneva University, a well-known Egyptologist, has just returned from Egypt and today gave some interesting details of his discoveries, which include a reservoir more ancient than the pyramids and the tomb of the god Osiris, King of the Dead. The professor was assisted in his investigations by Thomas Whitttemore of Taft College, Boston, and by two London antiquarians.

The discoveries were made at Abydos, the old Egyptian Abut, which is situated half way between Cairo and Assuan, about eight miles away from the Nile, in the desert.

"The ground I went over was not in a sense exactly new," said the professor, "for in 1903 Professor Flinders-Petrie and Miss Murray of University college, London, had made interesting discoveries at Abydos; but I penetrated farther during my two expeditions in 1912-13 and 1913-14.

"We worked from December 24, 1913, to March 11, 1914, and during the eleven weeks we experienced some anxiety and excitement. At nine yards under the soil we found large buildings constructed in granite and very hard red sandstone. This edifice is divided into three naves, which are surrounded by sixteen large cells, all identical in size and shape and containing no inscriptions on the walls whatever.

Proves Its Antiquity.

This latter fact proved that the building was very ancient, as the walls of the more modern edifices in Egypt are covered with inscriptions. In front of the cells is a stone platform supported by ten huge blocks of granite, and the platform skirts the reservoir, which we have not yet explored.

"It is very probable that the waters of the reservoir had curative virtues in the popular belief.

"In the opposite side to which we entered we found the burial place of Osiris, as the Book of the Dead and the inscription on the walls of the funeral chamber, twenty yards by five yards, proved to us beyond all doubt. We found also that in some remote past Egyptian thieves had entered the chamber of Osiris by piercing a hole in the wall, but it will, of course, never be known what the thieves carried away. Did they take the sarcophagus of Osiris?

Dismembered Every Night.

"According to our observations, the temple and tomb of Osiris was modified, and perhaps enlarged, by Seti I. about the year 13 B. C. Ancient legends state that the body of Osiris was dismembered every night by his enemies, and that the members were transported to different parts of Egypt and, further, that his sons gathered the members every morning and brought them back to the temple of Abydos. For this reason perhaps there are supopsed to be several tombs of Osiris in Egypt, but the real one is at Abydos, we are sure.

"During my next visit to the scene of our discoveries in the coming winter I shall be able to study matters more closely, and hope to be able to obtain more definite details about the tomb of Osiris and the ancient reservoir in the temple, which, as I have stated before, is probably more ancient than the pyramids themselves."

Osiris, it may be recalled, was one of the principal Egyptian dieties, and the son of earth and heaven. After resenting the eternal conflict between good and evil, he was slain. He rose again, however, and had dominion over the dead in the netherworld of Amenti. His wife was Isis (the dawn), his son Horus (the sun in its full strength).

H. Schmidt, who is one of the largest mine owners in the Aspen Grove district, has just returned from Salem, North Dakota, where he has been spending the winter. Mr. Schmidt was in Merritt on Monday last makings his purchases of powder, drills and other requisites and stated that he was going to start development on the Big Sioux and some of his other properties and will continue the work throughout the summer.

ENGLAND MAY GET MOTOR ROADWAY

If Bill Passes Parliament Twenty-five Million Dollars Will Be Spent On It.

London, June 9.—If a bill which is to come before parliament soon is approved England will have a splendid highway confined exclusively to automobile traffic. The proposed road will be about fifty miles long and 150 feet wide. Its estimated cost is $25,000,000, and it is to be constructed by a syndicate, the London, Brighton and South Coast Motor Road Syndicate Co., Ltd.

The idea was conceived by Otta Tamini, a director of the company, with the object of relieving the existing main roads of much of their heavy motor traffic, and, in consequence, the local authorities responsible for the upkeep of the roads of much of the additional expense of maintenance due to the wear caused by motor vehicles. Brighton has been selected as the southern terminal of the new road because it is the favorite seaside resort of London motorists, owing to its easy distance, for a day's outing and the facilities offered there for the entertainment of motoring parties.

The roadbed proposed is of reinforced concrete with a bituminous surface, which provides against dust and sideslips.

Wherever the present main roads cross the new roads, bridges will be built, so that the traffic on neither will be interfered with. The road itself will be provided with three tracks—the first for fast traffic, the second for heavier vehicles, such as auto-omnibuses and chars-a-bancs, and the third for motorcycles and cyclecars.

Each track will be shut off from the others by a barrier.

According to the plans the entrance to the road at Richmond will be in the form of an ornamental stone arch and a rectangular building for garages, workshops, and the sale of accessories. At various points on the road there will be grand stands and workshops. The stands will be for the observation of auto racing on certain specified days, and the workshops for hauling broken down cars from the road and repairing them.

The syndicate purposes building 180 auto omnibuses de luxe for first, second and third class passengers. The fares will be the same as existing railway fares for the journey between the various stations. There will also be a large fleet of commercial vehicles for the conveyance of merchandise.

CONAN DOYLE, MAN OF MANY PARTS

Not Only a Busy Author But Great Reformer—Now on Visit to America.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, who is on a visit to this continent, is probably the most popular author of the day. His name, or that of his chief hero, Sherlock Holmes, is known wherever the English language is spoken. In that lean sleuth Conan Doyle invented a character that has achieved a wider celebrity than any since the days of Dickens, and in the Brigadier Gerard he produced another hardly less widely known. His famous novels, "The White Company," "Micah Clarke," "A Duet With an Occasional Chorus," "Rodney Stone," "Round the Red Lamp," and others equally popular, besides the Holmes stories and the Gerard stories, would appear to account for most of the working hours of even an industrious author. Doyle, however, is more than a writer. He is a reformer, and has to his credit a more lasting memorial, perhaps than any of his works in the court of criminal appeal in England. It is largely due to the agitation carried on by Conan Doyle that England now has a court where judicial errors in criminal cases can be corrected.

The Court of Criminal Appeal.

Until a few years ago there was no machinery for correcting these miscarriages of justice. In civil cases, of course, there was the right of appeal, but once a man had been convicted of a crime in England the best that could happen to him would be a pardon. No matter how overwhelming in his favor might be the evidence subsequently adduced, there was no court before which the matter could be laid and the prisoner rehabilitated. He could simply be pardoned for a crime that he had not committed. Moreover, pardons were hard to secure. The Beck case, and following that the Edalji case, which attracted a great deal of public interest followed up by the agitation instituted by Conan Doyle, led to a royal commission being established to consider the question of criminal appeals, and finally to the establishment of the court. The court of criminal appeal acts very swiftly. Usually it gives a decision in an appeal within a few weeks of the original trial. It will be recalled that the expedition of this court in reviewing the evidence in the Crippen case brought forth eulogies in most of the big newspapers in the United States.

Beck and Edalji.

Men with good memories will remember the outstanding features of the Beck case, which has been discussed here more than once. Beck had been convicted, sentenced and imprisoned for a series of mean crimes upon women. He served his time. Later on he was again arrested, following an outbreak of similar crimes, again tried, convicted upon the sworn testimony of a number of women, sentenced and imprisoned. After he had served part of his sentenced the real perpetrator confessed. Beck had been the victim of the law, for it was subsequently proved that he bore a strong resemblance to the actual criminal, but there was no court to rehabilitate him. He was pardoned, and the British government voted him an honorarium of $15,000. Not long afterward the Edalji case occurred. This man was the son of an English mother and a Parsee father, who was a very popular Church of England rector in Staffordshire.

Conan Doyle Gets Busy.

He was convicted of maiming cattle and sentenced to imprisonment. The neighborhood in which he lived had suffered severely from the depriations of some human fiend who spent his evenings in roaming over the country side maiming and mutilating cattle in a horrible manner. When Edalji was arrested the feeling against him was very strong, and he was sentenced to imprisonment, stoutly protesting his innocence. While he was in prison there was another outbreak of this peculiar crime. This attracted Doyle's attention, and he went down to Staffordshire to investigate. The distinguished author must possess some of the qualities of detection ascribed to Sherlock Holmes, for he was able to produce evidence that not only cleared Edalji, but resulted in the conviction of a man named Farrington, the establishment of a royal commission to pronounce upon the Edalji case, and, as noted, the subsequent establishment of the court of criminal appeal.

Sherlock Holmes Original.

Few distinguished men owe more to their school teachers than does Conan Doyle. While a medical student at Edinburgh he became the favorite pupil of Dr. Joseph Bell, the great anatomist. Not only was Bell a famous medical expert and a great favorite with Queen Victoria, but he was a born detective. He was, in fact, the original of Sherlock Holmes. By looking at the hands of a man, at the dust upon his shoes, he could give a shrewd guess as to his occupation and his recent travels. It was Bell who first showed Doyle to what lengths the science of induction could be carried. Doyle promised to be a noted physician in time, but when he wrote "A Study in Scarlet" he became almost instantly famous, and was compelled to abandon medicine for letters. Soon he was earning huge sums, but he did not forget that he was a doctor, and during the South African war he served as an army surgeon. Incidentally he wrote two books upon the war which have had a great sale, and are today the most popular volumes that the war has produced.

TORTURED WITH RHEUMATISM

Could Not Walk, Until "Fruit-a-tives" Completely Cured Him

CHATHAM, ONT., April 3rd. 1913.

"I am a veteran of the Crimean War and the Indian Mutiny, volunteering from the Royal Artillery into the Royal Engineers, and served under Lord Roberts during the Indian Mutiny, and am a pensioner of the British Government. Fierce hand-to-hand fighting and continual exposure, left me a great sufferer from Rheumatism, so much so that my legs swelled up, making it impossible for me to walk. My bowels were so constipated that I only had one passage a week until I got to using "Fruit-a-tives". They cured me of both the Rheumatism and Constipation. In my regular employment, I walk thirty miles a day and enjoy perfect health. No more Rheumatism or Constipation. You are at perfect liberty to publish this letter if it will be advantageous to "Fruit-a-tives".

ADVERTISING TALKS

The News is the Morning Paper of New Westminster and the Fraser Valley. See that your business announcements appear in its columns.

Many advertisers lose sight of the fact that it is often wise to pay for special positions in a newspaper in order to conpel the reader's attention. This, of course, only applies to certain propositions, but it plays a very important part in the production of results.

Many newspapers charge from 15 to 25 per cent. extra for special positions, but the results mostly justify it, where the advertising does not deal with articles of daily or weekly consumption.

The grocer who is offering his weekly "specials" as well as discussing his general line of goods, the economy of dealing at his store, etc., would be unwies to use special positions. He invariably uses a very large space and the housewife knows that on certain days in the week she will see his special offerings in the particular newspaper that comes to her home. If she is interested in grocery bargains, she never fails to look through the newspaper for them on the days that she knows they will be advertised.

The grocer, therefore, can spend his appropriation to much better advantage by using larger space at "run-of-paper" rates.

Take a wine merchant, however, who once or twice a year secures a small, choice parcel of imported vintages and instead of locking up his capital, desires to dispose of these goods at a nominal profit, it is particularly important that he should use special or preferred positions. Women, as a rule, do not buy wines for the home, and men do not look as carefully through the advertising pages as women do. It is, therefore, essential to place this kind of advertising in a special position where it cannot fail to catch the eye of the prospect. Similarly, sporting goods advertisements will amply justify the extra cost of appearing on the display page of a newspaper.

A well-known baker and confectioner in Montreal claims that a two-inch advertisement on the front page of a leading evening paper brings him better returns than four inches double column had obtained in other positions. The reason for this is that, although his is not special advertising, he has to make special efforts to catch the attention of ladies who invariably have somewhat set ideas upon the matter of bread and confectionery.

Don't reduce the size of your advertising for the sake of using preferred position unless you can tell the story of your product completely in the space you decide to use. If your goods are such that they are in constant demand either by the housewife or her husband, special positions are not essential, although where a competitor is using them it is as well to run an occasional card in special positions, drawing attention to your regular advertising on Tuesdays or Friday, or on such dates as you find it expedient to advertise in ordinary positions.

Reversed plates—white type on a black background—are helpful in catching the eye, but should be used only where the amount of copy involves only such a number of words as can be printed in big, bold type, and also where the plates can be used again and again at various intervals, on account of the extra cost of electrics.

WILLS

There is a period in the life of every man when he thinks about the future welfare of those dependent upon him. Sometimes this does not come until sickness overtakes him. Then he makes a will—but it may be made under wrong influence.

Had the will been made during good health, the most deserving persons—according to the deceased's wish—would have shared in the distribution of the estate.

Do you not realize that it is your sacred duty to no longer delay making your will?

that had been suggested. The size of the sewer had been based on carefully prepared data taken of the rainfall and after consultation with Mr. Powell, the harbor engineer, it had been increased 10 per cent. There were 347 acres in the area accommodated by the Sapperton No. 2 sewer, and the scheme was designed for cellar, street and roof drainage as well as the sanitary arrangements for all time.

Property Assessment.

The rate for property owners above Richmond street would be 10 cents per front foot and below Richmond street 23 cents. Below Richmond street the construction would be immediately proceeded with and when the other portion was ready to come in an additional 13 cents would be levied bringing their assessment up to 23 cents. The city council paid $42,000 towards the work. They would be able to drain from every cellar 100 feet back to a depth of five feet into the sewer. The separate sewer system would cost in the end one-fourth more than the combined system. The cost undoubtedly looked heavy but taking 50 foot lots it was less than $1 a month. The outfall was expensive but it was inevitable. In Vancouver it was heavier; in one instance it ran to 37 cents for a combined sewer.

Equalizing the Expenditure.

It did not appeal to residents above Richmond street why they should pay for a system they did not immediately benefit by, but it would not be fair to tax the lower area for the extra size of the pipes designed for their use ultimately. Twenty-three cents was only an estimated assessment and if a saving were effected in any department a reduced assessment would follow.

Total cost of System.

Mr. Cameron asked what the outfall would cost to which Mr. Blackman replied: $44,237 and the pipes at Brunette street past the brewery $31,000.

Mr. Cameron—Does that include the Brunette mill compensation?

Mr. Blackman—We don't anticipate having to pay anything.

Mr. Cameron—You will have to pay for shifting their lumber.

Mr. Blackman—Two hundred dollars.

In answer to another question Alderman Dodd thought any additional cost on account of easements would naturally be charged to the Sapperton bylaw. He spoke of course for himself.

Mr. Blackman explained and demonstrated on a blackboard the method pursued in draining a street of different levels on each side and said every care would be given to save cost in excavation.

W. H. Keary discussed fully the financial situation contending that the scheme would cost more like $200,000 than $179,000.

Mr. Blackman denied this and said every practical contingency had been allowed for and the estimated cost based upon tenders called for. Economies had been enforced in material and pipes and these additional savings were sufficient to take care of depreciation. He further explained the basis of assessment and how, when frontage was not practicable the assessment was calculated on area.

Mr. Keary—Above Richmond street you charge 10 cents and the people get no benefit.

Mr. Blackman—Not immediately, but the pipe is big enough for them when they are ready. When any other section came in an increase of 13 cents, bringing it up to 23, would be levied and no more under any circumstance. Of course they could not take in one house. It was a progressive and comprehensive scheme. To the Glenbrook scheme Burnaby contributed $150,000 and the Dominion government supplied convict labor.

Sanitary Sewer Sufficient.

A. Garrett suggested the sanitary sewer was sufficient in these hard times. Sapperton was a working man's district. Hitherto the storm water had been provided for with plank drains and with some slight exceptions had served the purpose well.

The president commented that 23 cents for a combined sewer did not seem excessive.

Mr. Keary urged the great necessity for evolving a scheme at less cost without effecting the efficiency.

Mr. Watson spoke at length on the expediency of separating the systems leaving the storm sewer arrangement out, but when he learned this involved scrapping all the present plans he left off.

Alderman Dodd speaking at length corrected misapprehension that the scheme was being provided for 50,000 or 100,000, whilst Sapperton had a population of only 12000. The plans were for an area of some 350 acres which was capable of accommodating a population of 100,000.

A. Hogg deprecated too much academical discussion and moved a committee be appointed to place suggestions before the board of works. This was carried and the following were appointed: President Munro, J. Watson, A. Coulson, Q. McGill and Jos. Cameron.

Alderman Annandale made a rousing speech on the great facilities for industries in Sapperton and gave an interesting glimpse of the history of the loss of the foreshore rights of the city to the Brunette mill company.

Votes of thanks to the engineer and aldermen concluded a splendid meeting.

TIDY IS THE LOSER OF A TIDY LITTLE SUM

Judgment Rendered in Favor of Opera Houes Company in Suit for $500 Wages.

His honor Judge Howay heard the case of Tidy, the florist, against the New Westminster Opera House company yesterday for wages for ten months at $50 a month, as manager of the opera house. A claim for $115 for personal disbursements during his tenure of office was also made.

Defendants denied liability for the wages and declared no such contract ever existed. To the claim for $118 they offered a sum of $60.54, and lodged it with the registrar of court.

Mr. Tidy giving evidence in support of his claim, which he based on a verbal conversation between himself and Messrs. Hart, Eastman, Agar and another gentleman. He understood he was to get $50 a month and more if the theatre paid. It was not to be expected he said, that he would do two men's work for nothing.

The defendants, on the other hand, replied that the bargain struck was a speculative one and that it was arranged that Mr. Tidy should get $50 a month out of net profits, and only on the understanding that there was that sum over after all expenses had been paid.

Evidence was adduced in the usual way and there were four oaths against one, for the truths of the respective stories.

His honor finally awarded the plaintiff $60.54, the amount tendered, subject to payment of defendants' costs. The weight of evidence was in favor of defendants. On the arrangements as to salary he must accept defendants' version and in that case had to judge whether there was a profit or a loss. He could not admit the argument of plaintiff's counsel that because some months the opera house paid he should receive salary for that month. The net profits or loss must be gathered from an examination over a certain period of time; a year, or the season or otherwise. His honor then went into calculations and decided there was unmistakeably a loss on the whole although certain months showed a profit. He gave judgment for the $64.54 with costs to the defendants. Tidy had had command of the receipts and never made a claim for salary nor deducted his salary from the money passing through his hands.

J. P. Hampton Bole represented the plaintiff; J. D. Kennedy represented defendants.

At the Theatres

AT THE ROYAL.

Today and tomorrow the fourth chapter of the famous "Mutual Girl" series will be shown at the Royal theatre in which the country boy and his detectives are still on the trail of the smuggled diamond necklace. The next morning it comes to light in a very sensational way. Margaret and her aunt are starting for the races at Piping Rock, when the jewels, which have been hidden in Margaret's muff by the count, fall to the pavement. The ladies get into their limousine and drivie away. A detective across the street, who is watching the house, sees the necklace drop—and as soon as the automobile is off, he hurries over and picks it up. That evening he calls on Margaret—and she, frightened by his presence and accusations, phones District Attorney Whitman, who assures he rof his co-operation. This number shows a panorama view of Columbus Circle and the entrance to Central park, where about 11,000 automobiles cross during the rush hour of each day. It shows also the exciting scenes at the races at Piping Rock, with scores of the notables in New York's Four Hundred. The interior of Bonwit Teller & Co's famous shop is also a feature.

"Caught in a Cabaret" is a great two-part Keystone comedy, in which Mable Normand and the inimitable Charles Chaplin shows his versatity girls. Its a scream! What with three other interesting reels and professor Coply playing appropriate melodies upon the lovely new organ it makes the show equal to anything of its kind on the Pacific coast.

DENIES HOSTILITY IN IRISH PARTY

Dublin, June 9.—John E. Redmond, leader of the Irish Nationalists, issued a statement tonight in which he emphatically denies the reports that the irish volunteer movement is hostile to the objects of the Irish party, and adds:

"Up to two months ago I felt that the volunteer movement was somewhat premature, but the effect of Sir Edward Carson's threats upon public opinion in England, the house of commons, the government and the occurrences at Curragh camp and the successful gun-running in Ulster, virtually altered the position, and the Irish party took steps about six weeks ago to inform their friends and supporters that in their opinion it was officers and all will be held pend- movement. As a result, it has spread within the last six weeks like a prairie fire, and all the nationalists in Ireland shortly will be enrolled."

WILLIAMS DEFEATS COULON WITH KNOCKOUT IN THIRD

Bantam Championship Won in Short Order—Winner Had Best of Fight All Through.

Ringside, Vernon, Cal., June 9.—Johnny Coulon, bantamweight champion of the world, lost his title tonight to Kiid Williams of Baltimore who knocked him out, with a stiff righthanded punch to the chin in the third round of their scheduled 20 round contest.

The fighting was all Williams' own from the start Coulon seemed unable to solve the problem of landing anywhere in the short interval of the first two rounds and was saved at the close of the second only by the ringing of the bell.

The result proved the wisdom of the betters who favored Williams from the start, holding that Coulon's illness that kept him out of the ring a year had robbed him of championship form. The odds on Williams went as high as two to one at the ringside where betting was in evidence, it was plain that there was plenty of money placed just before the contest at 10 to 6.

Round One.

Coulon led off with a left to the body. They clinched. Williams attempted sharp infighting and was blocked. Williams landed an overhead right to the body. Coulon then drove left to Williams' face. They clinched and on the break-away Williams landed to face and Coulon got in right to body.

Round Two.

Williams reached the kidneys over Coulon's shoulder repeatedly. Williams chopped Coulon on the chin. Coulon was on his knees while the referee counted up to seven when the bell rung.

Round Three

Both men rushed to the centre, Williams making wild lunges without damage. In the clinch he delivered several kidney punches over Coulon's shoulder. Coulon landed straight left to stomach and ducked a wild left swing. Williams seemed more reckless than in former rounds and closed in on his man, with a right uppercut to the chin, sending Coulon to the floor. He attempted twice to arise as Referee Eyton counted but was unable to do so until the end of the count and Referee Eyton declared Williams the winner.

SPORT PUBLIC DEMANDS AN IDOL IN FIELD GAME

Toronto, June 9.—Have you ever noticed in sports how the crowd demands an idol? No matter how perfect the system or team play it is upon the individual player that discussion centres. For instance a lacrosse team comprises 12 players. Each one is a necessary unit of the team's effectiveness and each player knows how necessary it is to have the other 11 working in harmony with him. That is what makes a winning team.

But the crowd, the spectators, see it otherwise. They must have their favorite. Some one whose style stands out more prominently or showily than the others seizes their fancy and makes a hit. Such players could not shine if the balance of the team were not playing in unison with him but the hero worshippers heed not this. The feature of the game is not the team, but the player. And as in lacrose so in football, baseball or any other field sports where the same factors of speed, quick thinking and cooperation are required.

Con Jones, that eventful student of human nature on the coast, recognized this habit of crowds and catered to it. Newsy Lalonde was the man chosen. Newsy was made the king pin of every play and his play which was naturally conspicuous was individually accentuated until the name of the Vancouver lacrosse club became synonymous with that of Lalonde. And Con did not read the crowd wrong as the gates on the coast that year attested.

Cliff Spring.

The recent instance of the same trait on the part of crowds is in the case of Spring, the Westminster recruit to Torontos. Spring by his stick handling and signal ability at once caught the public fancy. Immediately he monopolized the lacrosse conversation. He was compared with Lalonde, Warwick and other stars of the first magnitude and some opined even that he was greater than Billy Fitzgerald, the peerless. Be that as it may the fact remains that the crowd likes to go to see star players perform and it is by the individual calibre of the players that the status of the league is judged.

A thoughtful man who was a great follower of sports once said that the field of sport was a miniature of the field of life. Said he: "As a man acquits himsel in competition on the field so he reveals himself later in his trials in the arena of life." And come to think of it there is a great deal of truth in what he says. And following out our former topic of the preference of crowds for the individual there is this similarity between sports and the history of nations, that where our knowledge of history is strung upon the outstanding figures who moved in the events of their time, such as Wellington, Napoleon, Frontenac, rather than the events themselves, so in our recollection of sports strung upon the individuals, such as Hanlan, Casey, Baldwin, Hans Wagner, Hinny Hoobin, et al, rather than upon any particular game. The name of the individual recalls the event, not the event the individual. In short, the generalization to be drawn from sport is identical with those to be drawn from history, which probably is one reason why sports are so popular.

Another remarkable foible of retired or semi-retired athletes is that to them no subsequent generation ever contains such contests of such prodigies of valor as their own. They like to sit back and smoke and tell of the men of their day and impress upon you the inferiority of the present day sports. And the young fellows like to humor them by listening with patience and seeming acquiescence perhaps because some day they themselves will expect to be so listened to. At all events respect is due to all such veterans because you may be sure that to leave such a lasting impression their sports were real and vivid to them, even if the feats they defend have been eclipsed by subsequent records.

FOUL BALL, GOOD NOSE, FAN COLLECTS

Kansas City, Mo., June 9.—An opinion by the court of appeals which awarded C. A. Edling, a lawyer, $3500 for being hit on the nose by a foul ball while watching an American Association game here, said:

"If the Kansas City Blues had kept their eyes on the ball with the accuracy that they contended Edling should have exhibited they would have attained a higher place in the pennant race."

The accident to Edling's nose occurred in 1911. The ball hit him after breaking through a wire netting. He obtained a judgment for $3500. The club owners appealed contending he either should have caught the ball or dodged it.

A RECORD GAME.

Minneapolis and Louisville Play 20 Innings.

Minneapolis, June 9.—Minneapolis and Louisville established a new American Association record today when they played a 20-inning game that was won by Minneapolis 3-2. The previous record was set by Milwaukee and Columbus on July 16, 1913, when Milwaukee won in 19 innings.

Joe Lake pitched the entire game for Minneapolis, holding his opponents to 15 hits and striking out eight men. Loudermilk worked 12 innings for the visitors and retired in favor of Tenney. Loudermilk struck out 15 men. It required 3 hours 31 minutes to play the game.

Zach Wheat saved the day for Brooklyn, Wheat making a wonderful catch and sensational throw to the plate, cutting off Johnson.

Poor old Cleveland got its bumps, Boston making it three straight, 9-0.

Ty Cobb stole home in the fourth even though the Tigers lost to the Athletics.

Frank Chance's Highlanders lost the whole series to Chicago.

The Chicago Federals are crowding Baltimore in the outlaws, being only half a game behind.

Steele, pitching winning ball for Victoria, is a brother of Ed Steele of the Columbus.

Washington lost another yesterday. The Mackmen appear to be hitting their regular pace.

CAN'T STOP 'EM

Moose Trample on Columbus 12-3—Horn Nearly Pitched No Hit, No Run Game.

Good, bad and indifferent ball was dished out to the fans at Queen's park last night when the Moose maintained their unbeaten record by defeating the Columbus team, 12-3.

The grounds were hardly in fit condition to stage the contest, the rain of the morning allowing the twirlers no chance to maintain a hold on the sphere, but rain or shine the fans turned out in force.

Jack Horn, in the seventh, saved himself from growing two feet two inches taller when he allowed three hits, the only trio scored by the Columbus. During that stanza three errors on the part of the herd coupled with the three safe swats accounted for the three tallies scored by the opposition. With a score of 12-0 staring them in the face, the Columbus sent up Steele in the seventh who connected with a double. Leeper singled scoring Steele. Walsh got on through Weingartner's fumble. McCabe struck out. Leeper stole third and came in on a wild throw. Sinclair singled scoring Walsh, and Ames flyed out to Williams ending the game.

The Moose circled the sacks five times in the first without getting a hit, two batters hit by pitched balls, free passes and wild throws accounting for the quintette. The herd came back in the fourth when with two out Horn singled and was brought in by a single by Weingartner.

Errors and timely hitting in the sixth resulted in six tallies being put over, four hits and two errors doing the damage.

Fred Lynch handled the game, being called upon to give several close decisions on the sacks.

East Burnaby Will Attempt to Lower Colors of West Ends at Queens Park Tonight.

West Ends and East Burnaby will compete in an intermediate lacrosse fixture at Queens park tonight, the change in date being made owing to several players signed by the Burnaby club not being available on Thursday.

According to reports the suburbanites have scoured the entire municipality in search of players and have located several stickhandlers who are affiliated with the Vancouver league residing in Burnaby.

Tonight's game will start at 6:30 sharp, with last year's champions ruling favorites.

A CLEVER BOAT.

Shamrock IV Showed Clean Pair of Heels of 1912 Challenger.

Southampton, June 9.—The first actual racing test between Shamrock IV, Sir Thomas Lipton's new challenger for the America's cup, and his older Shamrock took place today over a 30-mile course. Shamrock IV finished 2 minutes 15 seconds elapsed time ahead of the other, but the difference by no means represents the full measure of the challenger's superiority.

While the wind held true, favoring both yachts equally, Shamrock IV proved much the speedier craft, but nearing the finish, when she had a long lead, the wind almost deserted her, while the older boat, still holding a good breeze, rapidly closed the gap. According to American measurements Shamrock IV gives the older boat an allowance of 4 minutes 23 seconds in a 30-miles course.

SPORT CHATTER

(By the Potter.)

Sumas will be the visitors at Queens park on Saturday, June 20, when they clash with the New Westminster all-stars. On the following day the Washington nine will meet the Circle F at Fraser Mills. This will be the first visit of an American nine this summer and with Hurley in the box for the visitors, the fans can expect some classy ball.

C. C. Carroll, a newspaper man of Winnipeg and Saskatoon,, who pitched a New Westminster team to victory over the Bellingham Elks at the fair two years ago, was a visitor in the city yesterday.

Steele of the Columbus, is the most polished first sacker playing in the city league. Up to last night he had been seen back of the plate playing out of his position. They way he accepted all chances and binged out the first hit off Horn in the seventh just appealed to the fans.

A meeting of the city baseball league will be held in Ryall's office at 8 o'clock tonight when arrangements will be made for a game with the Bellingham Elks providing the committee in charge of the Citizens excursion select the Washington state city as the meeting place. With no counter sports scheduled in the city for Saturday an effort will be made to hook up with one of the Vancouver league teams at Queens park.

The amateur game in Vancouver on Saturday between the Royals and the V. A. C. should be a hummer from start to finish. The cupholders have improved wonderfully since the shutout administered by the Royals on May 16 and there will be no wide margin following Saturday's game.

Jimmy Duffy, the Hamilton marathoner and Edouard Fabre, a crack long distance runner of Montreal, are in wrong with the amateur union. Fabre was suspended recently but entered a race at Kingston against Duffy which was run in the presence of 15,000 people, including the Duke of Connaught. Fabre now claims that he was never notified in writing of his suspension. The same old story with the athlete being made the goat by the union.

Now that an amateur has been defined at the international gathering in Lyons, France, it might be about time for the B. C. A. A. U. to look over its constitution. Recent events have given the fans the impression that the constitution can be switched around to fit each case.

Any guy who has his nose broke at Queens park by a foul ball would have some difficulty in collecting 35 cents let alone the $3500 gathered in by a Kansas City lawyer. It makes Herb Ryall and the rest of the local magnates shiver to think of the days when no protection was afforded local fans by the installation of wire netting.

The old Minto cup is beginning to squirm on its base at the thought of being transferred to Victoria. Anyway professional lacrosse cannot make Victoria any worse as a sporting town than what it now is. The baseball club is in the cellar position, the hockey seven got a beautiful trimming from the Torontos, Hal Beasley has quit the cinder path for this season at least, the yacht club failed to enter a challenger for the Lipton cup races at Seattle, the boxing club recently closed its door. No; we don't think of any more details.

Fraser Mills will invade Sumas, Wash., in goodly numbers next Sunday when the Circle F team clashes with the Washington nine. Special cars are being chartered for the trip, leaving the Columbia street depot around noon.

Willie Ritchie slipped one over the London promoters when he set the date with Freddie Welsh for July 4. It would be the bitterest gall to hear of Willie defeating Welsh on such a memorable day.

WESTMINSTER LACROSSE TEAM MAY BE TRANSFERRED TO THE CAPITAL

Saturday's game Will Test Feeling of Island Fans Towards the Sport —Joe Gorman Anxious.

Victoria, June 9.—Should Victoria by its patronage at next Saturday's lacrosse match between Vancouver and Westminster in this city prove that it wants the change, the famous Salmon Bellies will transfer their franchise to the capital and will play as a Victoria club in the future.

This interesting information was handed out at Vancouver on Saturday night after the Westminster-Vancouver game. The game was witnessed by a scant 300 enthusiasts at New Westminster and the players have about decided to throw up the sponge unless Victoria is willing to support professional lacrosse. Secretary Scragg of the Vancouver club will be here this week to look into the situation and the transfer of the Westminster franchise to the capital is looked for.

Not only did Mr. Gilchrist of the Westminster club state that the players were ready and willing to come to Victoria, but he added that the formation of a Victoria lacrosse club means that the Minto cup will be brought here and that Westminster will be eliminated from the professional lacrosse circles.

The failure of the B. C. L. A. last year and the subsequent jumping to the Big Four of such players as Cliff Spring, Johnny Howard and Len Turnbull, turned the Royal City fans against their club. Westminster today fields a team that could beat any aggregation in the Dominion. The town is a veritable lacrosse nursery but it cannot turn out the crowds to support professional lacrosse.

'LIL ARTHUR AGAIN

Negro Champ Is Still in Wrong with U. S. Authorities.

Chicago, June 9.—The United States circuit court of appeals today affirmed a previous decision reversing portions of a decision of the lower court which convicted Jack Johnson, the negro prize fighter of violating the Mann white slave act. It was also ordered that Johnson be re-sentenced.

The negro originally was fined $1000 and sentenced to a year and a day in the penitentiary. He fled the country and is now in France. In the petition for a re-hearing the district attorney argued that the lower court should have been sustained in every instance.

Boys who are in the habit of killing our songbirds with air guns and sling shots, are probably not aware that such sport is in violation of the provinces law, and any person who sees them kill a bird can have them arrested and fined for every offense.

BANDIT PROBLEM IS HARD ONE FOR MEXICO

It has been said again and again that the basic problem in Mexico is the land problem. Under the present system a few men own most of the land, and have been able to reduce the majority of the agricultural and pastoral population to a condition approaching servitude. Whether this system is responsible for the bandits of the country is a matter for discussion. Certain it is that the bandit problem is also one of the most important and perplexing in the country. Mexico is overrun with bandits, some of them, like Villa, becoming powerful revolutionists; the others merely robbers and plunderers. Since their victims are almost invariably the ranchers, it is likely that if the solution of the land problem does away with the powerful ranchers it will also solve the bandit problem by destroying the bandits' prey. Or it may have the effect of making the bandits look for other victims. Instead of raiding one great ranch and torturing the owner, they will raid a dozen prosperous farm houses and torture the owners.

Made Bandits By Poverty.

There can be no doubt that the land system which tends to make one man very rich and one thousand men very poor is responsible for most of the Mexican bandits. Nearly all of them are former peons, the hardship of whose lot drove them into brigandage. From peaceful industry they had nothing to hope, and when one of them happened to be bolder than the rest he would frequently steal a horse and rifle and become a bandit, arguing that to be killed in a fight was not, after all, much more terrible than the fate that lay before him as a laborer. Then there was the cheering prospect that he might not be killed, that he might become the leader of a band, have as many horses as he wanted, money in his pocket to gratify his barbarous tastes, and the respect of the community. It is not surprising that in these circumstances there are so many bandits in Mexico. As long as anyone remembers there have been bandits there. The nature of the country encourages them. The mountains are an ideal fastness. In the north the long American border marked by the shallow Rio Grande is another inducement. Bandits can drive a herd of stolen horses or cattle across the border and dispose of them. They can stay on the American side and plan their campaigns. Mexico was made for bandits.

Diaz and the Bandits.

Nevertheless, in the days of Diaz the bandits were by no means so powerful as they have been since. The old president formed the rurales, or mounted police, for the purpose of exterminating the bandits, and had the wisdom to enroll most of the ex-bandits whom he could find in this force. He paid them to hunt down the other bandits, and was not too particular in holding his rurales strictly to the letter of the law in their dealings with their former comrades. If a bandit was caught and happened to be shot in an attempt to escape Diaz did not ask embarrassing questions. He calculated that there was one bandit the fewer in the world. The rurales had quite as much sport and excitement hunting bandits as did the outlaws in the pursuit of their crimes, and since they were paid regularly, it was not difficult to maintain an efficient force.

Bandits as Revolutionists.

Diaz' method of ensuring the safety of any travelers in whom he took an interest was simple and direct. If a traveler was passing through a bandit-infested district Diaz would give him a letter to the governor of the district, in which he said that he would hold the governor responsible for the safety of the traveler. In turn, the governor would pass the word to his subordinates, and there is no record of a man thus recommended ever being shot or robbed, no matter how many bandits might be in the region. Probably if Diaz had remained in power until the present time he might have ended the bandit menace in Mexico. Under Madero it became a veritable scourge. Most of the leaders in the Madero revolution were bandits or ex-bandits. Villa, for instance, was one. Another noted desperado who fought under Madero was Maxmimo Castillo. After Madero's election as president he demanded an office, but as there were more bandits than officers his demand was ignored. Then he became a candit again.

The Worst of Bandits.

Pascual Orozco was another. He fought for Madero, or rather was in the field against Diaz before Madero declared himself. But after the success of the Madero insurrection he continued to rob and murder people. He is still robbing and murdering, his preferred victims being the followers of Villa. Zapata is another. He is the most devilish of all Mexican bandits, and appears to murder for the sport of the thing. He is against Huerta today, but he would be against Carranza tomorrow if he were president. Zapata is a born bandit, in perpetual revolt against all authority. Villa is in full control of Chihuahua, but in that state are at least two well-organized gangs of bandits who rob and murder in defiance of Villa. Salazar, now a prisoner in the United States, is a combination of soldier and bandit. He was with Madero and later with Huerta. Should Carranza succeed in displacing Huerta he will find the bandit problem awaiting him, and there can be little doubt that hundreds of men now fighting under his standard will turn upon him when they find that there are not enough offices in Mexico to go round.

SPENDTHRIFT HAD SPEEDY CAREER

Berlin, Monday, June 9.—Following the automobile accident in which Theodor Dreber, the well-known German sportsman, met his death, some amazing accounts of the spendthift habits of this son of a millionaire have come to light.

Two years ago he lived at Brioni during the winter months and one day feeling very dull, he sent out telegrams to twelve of his best men friends and to twelve women friends, asking them urgently to come down to Brioni to have supper with him. Some of these friends lived at that time at Vienna, others in Hungary and others even in the Riviera, while among the women eight were at Vienna and four at Paris.

In order that their journey might be as comfortable as possible, each of them had a special train placed at his disposal, and in order that every one of them might preserve a pleasant memory of the occasion, each of the male guests received a souvenir in the form of a golden cigarette case, and each lady a gold handbag with the date of the supper set out in diamonds The affair cost $200,000.

On the death of his father he inherited $20,000,000. More than half of this has evaporated during the last three years.

Buy Dancing Partners

The quaint custom of selling village girls as dancing partners to the highest bidder, has been revived in a number of Rhenish villages in connection with Whitsuntide Church dedications. The auctions take place in the public square, and the village swains engage in a lively competition for the honor of securing the prettiest girls as partners for the festival.

The older girls are "knocked down" at a price as low as five cents, while village beauties of a tender age go for one to one and a half dollars. The highest prices are commanded by girls who are both pretty and rich, as the Whitsuntide dances traditionally lead to engagements and marriages. The proceeds of the auction are devoted to communal purposes.

ENSILAGE CORN GROWN TO WEST OF CASCADES

Agassiz Experimental Farm Proves Results to the Farmers—

Agassiz, B.C., June 9.—That the silo may become a common sight in the Fraser valley, where it is conspicuous now only by its absence, is a possibility following experiments with corn at the Dominion experimental farm here. For many years, owing to the cool nights and only medium warm days, dairy farmers have not considered corn a practicable crop in the Fraser valley. This state of affairs has retarded hog-raising, and has induced dairymen to depend on mangels and turnips for succulent feed during the winter months. Considerable astonishment was caused, consequently, when Superintendent P. H. Moore, of the experimental farm, announced last fall that he had grown corn and placed it in the silo at a total cost of only $2.73 a ton.

In 1913 the corn was grown on a piece of land from which, since 1910, orchards had been removed from time to time. A part of the area was badly infested with couch grass, and other portions suffered somewhat from shading, due to its location between mountains on the north and a section of Douglas fir trees on the south. The total yield of silage corn was 284 tons, 1770 pounds. The varieties grown were Compton's Early and Longfellow, the two sorts which Mr. Moore recommends as the best for the Fraser valley.

"Because the field was overrun with couch grass," states Mr. Moore, "a great deal of preparation was required. Many harrowings were given with the drag type of harrow, for too much cutting only defeated our plans. Barnyard manure was plowed in at the rate of sixteen tons per acre. The corn was planted by machine in checks three feet apart each way, for this distance has proved the most advantageous for this district in getting good silage results. The land was harrowed with a drag harrow twice before the corn came up, to keep down the corn spurrey. After the last cultivation with a two-horse two-rowed cultivator, and the finishing off, for which we used the single walking scuffler, it was hand-hoed once. In harvesting the corn was bound and hauled on low-wheeled wagons."

Out of many varieties tried at Agassiz in the past few years, the Longfellow, while not the heaviest yielder, has given the best all-round ensilage results. Some of the other varieties which have been planted are Angel of Midnight, Leaming, Wood's Northern Dent, Early Mastodon, Kaffir Corn, Champion White Pearl, Superior Fodder, Eureka, White Cap, Yellow Dent, Pride of the North, Mammoth Cuban, Salzer's All Gold, and North Dakota White. Considering that only two or three varieties of corn are adapted to the Fraser valley, and that the farmer in the past has had so many to choose from, the unpopularity of the crop is most natural.

ADVERTISE IN THE DAILY NEWS

Summer Advertising

The most valuable asset in advertising is age. It is something which cannot be rushed or bunched. It has no overnight competition. The new advertiser can't date back.

Advertising cannot take a vacation without a loss. The cumulated values of previous months or years immediately begin to shrink or evaporate. It will invariably cost more to make good the shrinkage than to omit the vacation.

Good advertising is a continuous performance before the same audience. No better definition was ever invented. It admits of no exceptions or variations.

Buyers are not so firmly attached to buying traditions during the Summer months as at other seasons. They go about more, enjoy more freedom, are interested more in variety. The new advertiser finds it easier to break in; the old advertiser finds it necessary to be more persistent and watchful. The province of advertising is to attract new customers, as well as to hold old ones, and the vacation season, more than any other, is the season of changes; the season, more than any other, when the advertiser can least afford to permit his goods and his service to be forgotten. The trifling purchase of July or August is often the forerunner of a much larger purchase in October or November.

Use the New Westminster News during the Summer Months and Keep Your Trade Lively.

BIG SHIPS HAVE MANY TROUBLES

They Are Hard to Handle and Each Has Its Difficulties—The Vaterland is the Latest.

Under the caption, "Floating Cities," and apropos to the Empress of Ireland wreck, the Montreal Weekly Witness says:

The big new steamers are giving a good deal of trouble. They are difficult to handle, and each one has gone through a number of troubles shortly after leaving its makers' hands. The Olympic, when she was launched, had one trouble after another, culminating in the destruction of the naval cruiser Hawk, which she ran into in the Solent. The Imperator stuck in the channel going down the stream from the shipbuilding yards to the docks, where she had to be fitted out; then, after making a cruise or two across, had to be put in dock again, and her internal arrangements reconstructed. The latest leviathan, the Vaterland, got off to a smooth start, but ran into trouble in the harbor of New York. There are, as yet, but four of these great ships, the Aquitania, of the Cunard line; the Olympic, of the White Star line; the Imperator, and the Vaterland, of the Hamburg-American. Our Scottish correspondent gives an account of the vicissitudes of the Aquitania in working her virgin way down the Cylde from the shipyard where she had birth. Among all the other ships that sail the seas, there are none that even nearly approach these in tonnage and horse power. The growth of ships has gone by jumps, but never so markedly so as in the last case.

In 1885 the large ships ran about ten thousand tons, such as the St. Louis and St. Paul of the American line, and La Touraine of the French line. In 1900 just about thirteen thousand tons had become the standard of first class size. In 1905, the Corcnia and Campania of the Cunard line set the twenty thousand ton style. Their building was followed in Germany by the building of the Kronprinzessin Cecilie. Almost in a single jump we have gone from twenty thousand to fifty thousand ton boats; there were intermediate steps, but they followed each other so rapidly as to be less noted. It will be seen from this that the new type of boat is now and there are so few of them, that it is impossible to secure captains for them who have ever had any experience in handling similar ships. The new captains cannot calculate to a nicety the time it will take to stop the momentum of their sixty thousand tons,, or calculate how great will be the suction or repulsion caused by the turning of their four screws driven by sixty thousand horse power turbines. The mistake of the Olympic in not stopping her engines in passing close to the cruiser Hawk with the result that the Hawk was sucked into her, was a thing that the captain could not have calculated, but had to learn by experience. It is the captain of the Vaterland that is now having his troubles.

PET CAT KEEPS A DEATH WATCH

Feline Found on the Body of Los Angeles Liquor Victim.

Los Angeles, June 9.—Mournful wails of a cat kept a whole neighborhood awake for a week. Finally a two-room shack was broken into. There lay the body of Frank Hamble, who had been dead a week. On his breast lay a black cat ,too weak to cry any longer.

Hamble had been an athlete at the University of California. Later he became a travelling agent for the Southern Pacific. For the last four years he lived in the shack striving to cure himself of the liquor habit. There he read almost incessantly.

Perhaps it was an attraction—or an obsession—for the works of Edgar Allen Poe that led him to adopt the cat from the university police station.

Before his death, which was presumed to have been from heart disease, he had locked the doors and windows of his shack, so his pet kept an involuntary death watch over his body.

KAISER FEARS "LIFTS" IN HIGH STRUCTURES

Declines to Enter Elevators Unless He Is Assured of Safety.

Berlin, June 9.—If skyscrapers existed in Germany, Emperor William probably never would enter one. It has just come to light that he declines to ride in any elevator outside of those in his own palaces or in a government building.

The kaiser recently signified his readiness to inspect a new invention which had enlisted his interest. When told that it could only be seen on the top floor of a five storey building in the Unter den Linden, accessible only by elevator or by climbing the stairs, his majesty said the invention would have to be brought to him.

It appears he will not enter any elevator of whose absolute safety he has not unquestionable personal knowledge. The invention, therefore, was transported for the kaiser's benefit, to the Doeberitz military camp, on the outskirts of Berlin. It is a cinematographic contrivance, known as "live targets," which enables a person to shoot film reproductions of human beings, animals, aeroplanes or other animate objects. The kaiser heard of "live targets" from Ambassador Gerard. He took 300 shots at Doeberitz this week, and was so delighted with his experience that he has ordered the apparatus installed in several cadet schools and naval training ships.

LOOKED OUT AND LOST THE TOP OF HIS HEAD

Hamilton, June 9.—Robert Anderson, thirty-eight years of age, a workman employed in repairing the east end incline railway, met death in a peculiar and horrible way this afternoon at 3:30. With another workman, Peter Armstrong, he was putting the finishing touches on repairs which have occupied several months, preparatory to reopening the railway. With his companion, he was working about half-way down the incline underneath the track, with his head and shoulders sticking through between the ties. Some Italians working at the top of the incline let a tie slip. Anderson and his companion saw it coming and dodged it. After it had passed he stuck his head up and just as he did so he was caught on the forehead by another tie which the first had loosened, and it was coming with such terrific force that it took the top of his head off.

FRUIT GROWERS HAVE NEW RULES

Okanagan Association Puts Changes in Force—Ultimatum To Be Enforced in Weights.

Vernon, B. C., June 9.—Following a protracted meeting of the managers of the nine local fruit unions with the executive of the Okanagan United Growers, the big central selling agency which disposes of the produce of the members of the local unions, important changes in the packing rules, regulations of grade and standard, and in the pooling regulations have been announced by R. Robertson, manager of the central.

The changes were all concurred in by the different managers of the locals, and were later formally adopted by the directors of the central. The changes in the pooling operations and regulations will undoubtedly result in the growers betting their money more quickly than last year.

An important set of rulings adopted this year for the first time are those setting minimum gross weights for all standard packages of fruit and produce. These new rules are designed to give protection to the buyers and consumers of Okanagan valley produce by assuring them of a certain weight to a certain package.

No Standard Weight.

For instance, in the past a crate of strawberries graded No. 1 had no standard weight. The pack from one ranch might run 32 pounds, and that from another 28, or even as low as 26. Hereafter a crate of No. 1 strawberries, packed in 4-4th baskets must have a minimum gross weight of 30 pounds. If the gross weight is less than 30 pounds, the crate will either have to be filled up to the standard weight, or it will be graded No. 2. The minimum gross weight of a box of No. 1 apples has been set at 40 pounds, and minimum standards have been established for all standard packages of all fruits shipped from the valley.

A detailed statement of the new standards and regulations is being printed in booklet form, and will be distributed to each of the members of the nine local organizations.

Another new feature of prime importance is the adoption of a list of standard varieties of fruits that will be packed according to variety, and graded No. 1 and 2.

Last season, for instance, more than 140 varieties of apples were handled by the central. Separte pools had to be established for each variety, which entailed an immense amount of bookkeeping and a large operating expense. This year a "main crop" list has been established not only for apples, but for peaches, prunes, plums, etc., which will greatly lessen the labor and cost of operation, and make possible more prompt returns to the growers.

The apple list contains 43 varieties, divided into three classes, summer, early fall and fall and winter varieties. The one hundred odd other varieties will not have separate pools, nor will they be graded No. 1 and No. 2, but will be handled in an orchard run pack and graded No. 2 special.

Hughes of the Canadian customs department for alleged under-valuation to the amount of $32,000 The cattle are placed in the charge of special desirable to support the volunteering the action of the company's officers.
