The Hon. Mr. graphed to Mr. Whitney and obtained a flat contradiction of the whole story. This showed how hard up the Grits were when they must accept the false statement of some political hireling in order to minimize the work he had done. He found a lamentable ignorance of the province among the people of eastern Canada. It was this ignorance of local conditions which made it so hard for the province to obtain the better terms to which it was entitled. He then described how he had pleaded with his brother premiers for a whole week before bouncing—leaving the conference, and stated that he only took this step when everything else had failed. He did not wish to advocate any extreme means, but he certainly was going to insist upon getting all the province was entitled to.

Mr. McBride believed that his action had been approved by a large majority of the residents of this province, and the fact that he was deluged with telegrams congratulating him upon the stand he had taken while he was still in Ottawa, proved this conclusively. When he arrived nearer home, he was feted and banqueted along the line, while upon his arrival at the capital he was treated with the utmost generosity.

The question of better terms had not been introduced by him as a party cry, in spite of what his friend, Mr. J. A. Macdonald, might have said at a meeting held here on Wednesday. "The trouble with the Liberals," continued Mr. McBride, "is that they are suffering from chronic cold feet. It is the most amusing thing for me to read the speeches of Mr. Macdonald and the editorials of my good friends Higgins and Brown. Both are very good friends of mine, especially Mr. Brown. In fact, when Mr. Brown has been against me in an election, I have generally succeeded. Let him continue his good work. He is helping out our cause a great deal through the medium of the Daily News, which is a very good little paper." The premier also referred to editorials in the Vancouver World in much the same strain, and merely changing the nature of his sarcasm a trifle, so that it might not become wearisome upon his hearers.

A reference to the difference in the treasury since the Conservatives entered into office, and a few remarks concerning the inmprovement in the school system which they had introduced, together with some interesting information about the lumbering industry, and a modest assertion that the Conservatives were wholly responsible for the prosperous state of the province, closed an interesting and entertaining address by the Conservative party leader. After thanks had been extended to the various speakers, the rank and file marched out, while a select few remained in the hall to discuss political matters.

EXPLODING BARREL INJURES YOUNG LAD

Lighted Candle Falls Among Tar and Starts a Blaze—Boy Badly Hurt.

Stanley Spring, a 14-year-old boy, was injured rather seriously last evening by the explosion of a barrel of tar in a woodshed at the rear of his father's residence, Twelfth street. The young lad was sent out to chop some kindling wood and took a candle with him. He placed the candle on the edge of a barrel containing tar and proceeded to perform his work. By some means the candle fell into the tar and a frightful explosion immediately resulted. The lad was struck in the face by flying pieces of wood, and was badly cut and gashed, while the woodshed was set on fire. An alarm was sent in to the fire hall, and the brigade was soon on the spot, but the neighbors had mastered the flames in the meantime. Drs. W. Kenney and Rothwell were summoned and attended to the little sufferer.

DECISIVE ACTION.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—As the result of friction over publishers' privileges in the two countries, the Canadian government has notified the United States government that the postal convention between the two countries will be abrogated on May 1st next. The notice is accompanied by a statement that it is only in so far as it relates to second-class matter that this action is desired to extend, and that if by legislation, or departmental action, new regulations are framed for the guidance of the United States post office department regarding second-class matter, Canada will be prepared to enter upon negotiations for another convention relating to this class of matter.

Evidence All In--- Decision Reserved

The much discussed libel suit brought by J. D. Taylor, editor and publisher of the Daily Columbian, against J. C. Brown, managing director of the Daily News, came up for hearing in the police court yesterday morning, when the court room was crowded by well-known men about town, who were taking keen interest in this novel suit. The case was opened by a few legal arguments between the different counsel, Messrs. F. W. Howay and J. P. Hampton Bole representing the defendant, while Messrs Whiteside and Edmonds acted for Mr. Taylor.

At the outset, Mr. Whiteside addressed the bench and stated that he wished to have the information changed somewhat. The words "deliberately false statement" he wished to have altered to read "wilful and deliberately false statement." The counsel for the defence immediately raised an objection to thus changing the charge against his client. Mr. Whiteside wished to have the objection overruled, and considered that he was within his rights in asking for the amendment. Mr. Howay reiterated his objection on the ground that it was a most material change in the charge, as the libel was in the innuendo. He and his colleague had come prepared to meet the charge with but one construction.

The court decided that the change could be made.

J. D. Taylor was the first witness to take the stand, and in answer to counsel's questions, said that he was the editor and manager of the Columbian, and that he was a member of the board of trade. He was present at the meeting of the board on Nov. 14 and presented the resolution asking for a subsidy for the Fraser river bridge, and also took part in the discussion which followed. He read the account of the meeting in the Daily News the next morning, and also read the editorial complained of, and, as he was the only J. D. Taylor present at that meeting, he knew that the person mentioned in the editorial must be him. He received the copy of the Daily News at his office, by virtue of an arrangement made between himself and the former editor of the Daily News, when that paper was first established.

Ald. Howay objected to Mr. Brown's name being introduced into an arrangement with which he had no connection, as it was made before he was identified with the Daily News. He protested on the ground that this case was brought against Mr. Brown personally, and not against the Daily News Publishing Company. A contract made between the Columbian company and the Daily News company could not be used as evidence against Mr. Brown.

Magistrate Corbould finally offered to take Mr. Taylor's evidence on this particular point, subject, however, to Mr. Howay's objection.

Mr. Taylor then detailed the agreement, which was that two copies of the papers should be exchanged daily. He received the paper produced in court in pursuance of this agreement. Mr. Howay objected to the copy of the paper being put in as an exhibit, saying that his learned friend should have followed the usual procedure and have had the proof usual in such cases. The paper was then marked for identification.

In answer to further questions by counsel, Mr. Taylor said he considered that the editorial complained of was intended to convey that he had made a deliberately false statement with the intention to deceive the board of trade.

Under cross-examination by Mr. Howay, Mr. Taylor said that he introduced the resolution dealing with the bridge subsidy at the meeting of the board of trade, and had prepared a lengthy report dealing with the subject, the said resolution having been printed in extenso in the Daily Columbian of Nov. 15. Before answering to certain questions, Mr. Taylor referred to a copy of the Columbian which he held in his lap. When requested by the counsel for the defence to put the paper away, he refused, but complied upon the magistrate saying that he could refer to the paper whenever there was absolute necessity. The matter of bridge subsidies had been discussed during the election of 1904, but he did not remember having been asked certain questions pertaining to the granting of subsidies, and did not remember that any had been asked. He did not remember being told during the election of 1904 that a provincial bridge could not get a subsidy from the Dominion government.

Further cross-examination elicited the information that the report of the board of trade meeting which appeared in the Columbian was written by a reporter who was present at the meeting. Mr. Taylor admitted that he had re-written part of it, and that the portion of the article dealing especially with the resolution introduced by him, and the discussion which followed was his work. He stated that it was his practice to revise anything which was written for the Columbian which concerned him in any way. He rewrote the portion of the article about noon on Thursday, after he had read the editorial in the Daily News. He did not know that the reading of the editorial influenced him in any way in the writing of the report. Would not say that it had or had not. He had not taken any notes at the meeting, and wrote from memory, but to the best of his knowledge, the quotations used were correct. He did not rewrite the article with a view to further proceedings.

Mr. Taylor stated that he objected particularly to the words "unwritten law." Mr. Crean did not say unwritten law; he used the word act, and referred more particularly to the B.N.A. act. He had no fault to find with the Daily News' report, but claimed that the expression "unwritten law" was not used. He was positive on that point, until shown a copy of the Columbian, where the word law appeared. Upon seeing this, Mr. Taylor said that he supposed his memory was better ten days ago, when the events were fresher in his memory. This concluded the complainant's evidence. Before signing his evidence, Mr. Taylor insisted upon one or two minor changes, which were not challenged by opposing counsel.

Henry St. Vrain Johnstone, linotype operator at the Daily News office, was the next witness. He had set up the article describing the proceedings at the board of trade, and also the editorial entitled "Board of Trade," but could not say by whom the editorial was written, as it was handed in to him. Mr. Brown usually wrote the editorials, and he considered Mr. Brown the editor of the paper. He could not say what had become of the editorial copy in this particular case. Mr. Whiteside asked the witness a number of questions with regard to the disposal of the copy, and also enquired whether the statement inserted in the News saying that J. C. Brown was managing director was correct. Mr. Howay objected, pointing out that Mr. Johnstone had no means of knowing this, and that it could be learned through the proper channel, which was by examining the company's books. Mr. Whiteside complained that the witness was unduly reticent, saying that he knew very well who handed in that particular piece of copy, who wrote it, and what had become of it. The witness pointed out that he set upwards of a hundred articles every night, and that he paid no particular attention to who handed in the copy. It was brought in by different members of the staff. The counsel appeared satisfied with this information.

Daniel Costello, questioned by the prosecuting counsel, said that he did not know who wrote the editorial complained of. Mr. Brown had charge of the office, and he was subject to Mr. Brown. The witness also went into details connected with the printing office, and gave the names of all the members of the staff.

P. W. Luce, a reporter on the Daily News, was the next witness placed on the stand. After answering the preliminary questions, he stated that he reported the proceedings at the board of trade meeting on Nov. 14. He wrote the article which appeared on the front page, and submitted it to Mr. Brown. The notes which he took at the meeting were destroyed about Thursday, as he was not in the habit of keeping notes after the articles had appeared. He took his notes on loose sheets of paper, and in both long and shorthand. The reports of meetings were not kept on file after they had appeared in the paper. He did not know who wrote the editorial complained of, but he did not write it. The editorial staff of the Daily News was composed of Mr. Brown, Mr. Lever and himself. Mr. Brown was in control and edited all the copy.

Cross-examined by Mr. Howay, Mr. Luce said that he wrote the article dealing with the proceedings at the board of trade, but could not swear that it appeared word for word as he wrote it, as changes were made sometimes in articles by Mr. Brown. With regard to the words "unwritten law," the witness said that he wrote that from his notes, and to the best of his knowledge, these were the exact words used by Mr. Crean. He had a conversation with Mr. Brown before the report was written, dealing more par-

MISSION WORKERS MEET IN CONFERENCE

Receive Satisfactory Reports From Branches---Are Entertained at Dinner, and Listen to Several Stirring Missionary Addresses.

The annual convention of the Methodist Women's Foreign Missionary society of the New Westminster district was held yesterday afternoon and evening in the Queen's avenue Methodist church. There were not many delegates from outside points, but all the mission circles and bands in the district sent in encouraging reports. There has been growth in numbers during the year to the extent of one new mission band.

The Ladner delegates were prevented from being present on account of the death of their president, Miss Thirkle, whose remains were placed in their last resting place yesterday.

The officers present were Mrs. W. H. Barraclough, district organizer, and Miss Olive Woodward, who was elected secretary. The feature of the afternoon session was an address by Mrs. W. E. Pescott, of Vancouver, on impressions received at the general women's missionary conference which was recently held at Belville, Ont. The question drawer was ably conducted by Mrs. W. J. Cunningham, and following it, an address to the assembled children of the city mission bands by Miss H. D. Winters, teacher of the kindergarten school, which took the form of an object lesson on "The Clean Heart," which was greatly enjoyed by the children.

At the close of the afternoon session, dinner was served in the lecture room of the church, and the ladies present nearly all stayed for the evening session, which commenced at 8 o'clock.

At the evening session, the chair was occupied by Rev. W. H. Barraclough, and the speakers were Rev. H. D. Robertson and Rev. C. P. Holmes, who will shortly leave for China and Japan, respectively.

Mr. Robertson was the first speaker. He told his audience some interesting facts about the field for which he soon expects to sail. He said that a greater awakening was going on in China at the present time than the world in general had any idea of. At Chen Tu, to which place he was going, a college had been organized, with the teaching staff of which he would soon be identified. A friend of his, in writing from China, recently had said: "If you do not come to China soon, you will not see China." Ten thousand Chinese students are now studying in Japanese colleges, and all through China an educational system was being put into operation on lines very similar to those now in vogue on this continent. In Chen Tu, it was no uncommon sight to see 4,000 Chinese students, arrayed in their college dress, wending their way to their college campus for their athletic sports contests, shouting their college yell as they passed through the streets. China was awakening, and very rapidly. It was only a matter of a short time, and the antiquated methods and customs of long ago would give place to twentieth century ideas and methods. The need at the present time was to get the gospel in as fast as it could be got there, and win the land for Christ.

Rev. C. P. Holmes was next called upon and gave an interesting address on work in Japan, to which he has decided to devote his life. Both gentlemen will be heard in the city churches to-morrow. Mr. Holmes will occupy the pulpit of the Sapperton Methodist church on Sunday morning.

INJURED MINK PLAYS 'POSSUM ON HUNTER

Shams Death and Then Chews Up the Assailant's Hand—Blood Poisoning Results.

Robert Clapp, better known as "Bob," is nursing a hand which has been threatened with blood poisoning, as a result of the bite of an angry mink. Bob was out walking on Lulu island, and incidentally gaining strength after a somewhat serious attack of typhoid fever. While traversing one of the by-paths of the island, he saw a big, healthy looking mink ahead, and thought it would look well skinned and converted into a fur coat or something of that kind. He had a stick in his hand, and as he was bigger than the mink, he came out ahead in the first lap. The mink turned up his toes to the azure sky and closed his eyes, while his lips moved in silent something or other. Bob hastened to grab his prize, when, to his surprise, the prize grabbed him, chewed one hand up as though it tasted good, and then when Bob took the other hand in order to induce him to leave go, the wicked little beast took a chew at the hand which had gone to the rescue. Bob eventually won the third lap, and took the "varmint" home in his pocket and the hand home in an extemporized sling. After a couple of days the hand developed strong symptoms of blood poisoning, and required prompt attention. The danger is now past and the hand is on the mend. Bob says that the next time he kills a mink with his bare hands, he will have buckskin gloves on.

Students' Sensational Story.

Toronto, Nov. 23.—A number of Toronto university students, in sworn testimony before the police commissioners last night, told stories of being clubbed by police on the morning after Hallowe'en. They said they had offered no resistance, and that the police had also made use of threats and bad language before charging against the students. No stones had been thrown, however. The investigation was adjourned, and at the next sitting the version of the police will be heard.

TYROLESE CUSTOMS.

Peculiar Manner In Which Proposals of Marriage Are Made.

There is an old custom prevailing among the Tyrolese regarding proposals of marriage. The first time a young man pays a visit as avowed lover he brings with him a bottle of wine, of which he pours out a glass and presents it to the object of his desires.

If she accepts it the whole affair is settled. Very often the girl has not yet made up her mind, and then she will take refuge in excuses so as not to drink the wine and yet not refuse it point blank, for that is considered a gross insult, proving that she has been merely trifling with the affections of her lover.

She will, for instance, maintain that the wine "looks sour" or that wine disagrees with her or that she is afraid of getting tipsy or that the priest has forbidden her to take any—in fact, she makes use of any subterfuge that presents itself at that moment.

The purport of these excuses is that she has not come to a decision and that the wine offering is premature.

This strange custom, dating very far back—according to one account, it was known as early as the ninth century—is called "bringing the wine" and is synonymous with the act of proposing.

Shy lovers, loath to make sure of their case beforehand, find it a very happy institution. Not a word need be spoken, and the girl is spared the painful "No" of civilization.

If any of the wine is spilled or the glass or bottle broken it is considered a most unhappy omen—in fact, there is a peasant's saying for an unhappy marriage, "They have spilled the wine between them."

SACRED CROCODILES.

The Famous Shrine and the "Labyrinth" In Egypt.

The crocodile, one of the most sacred animals of the east, has given its name to several ancient sites. Of the various cities of crocodiles the names of which have been handed down to us by Herodotus, Pliny and Strabo, perhaps the most striking was the "Crocodilopolis" of the ancient Egyptian province of Fayum, which, according to tradition, was built by that pharaoh who "made the lives of the children of Israel bitter with hard service." This province lies within an almost complete circle of hills—a little oasis in the midst of the desert, where roses and grapes mingle with figs and olives and luxuriant palm trees grow almost into forests. Its capital is Medinet, and a little to the north of the city are a number of irregularly shaped mounds. Beneath these are the ruins of the pharaoh built "Crocodilopolis," the "City of Crocodiles," later called Arsinoe and the shrine of the sacred crocodile of the neighboring Lake Moeris, which was then 450 miles in circumference. This lake held the sacred crocodiles, and as each died in turn it was buried in one of the 1,500 underground sepulchers of the world famed "labyrinth" at hand, side by side with the embalmed bodies of successive pharaohs.

Holy Saturday In Naples.

Naples celebrates in a curious manner Lent and the end of Passion week. Ropes are stretched from house to house across the streets in the ancient districts on the day of the carnival and dolls made of rags, wearing the traditional Neapolitan costume and carrying a distaff and bobbin, are suspended from these ropes. At the feet of the spinner is attached an orange containing seven feathers, corresponding to the seven weeks of Lent. Each week one feather is plucked, so that only one remains at Holy Saturday. Then, as soon as the cannon of Fort St. Elmo and the church bells announce the noon hour and the resurrection of Christ, firecrackers, which have been tied in long strings to the orange at the dolls' feet are lighted, and the Quaresima figure explodes amid the cries of the crowd, wherein pious formulas and profane phrases alternate.

London's Most Ancient Court.

The ancient court of hustings is of Saxon origin, and the name is derived from hus, a house, and thing, a matter of cause—that is, a house or hall of causes. Courts of the kind were established in all the great cities, and, as regards London, it is the supreme as well as the most ancient court and is the court of appeal from the sheriffs' court. In the earliest times it was held weekly, but it is now summoned only as occasion requires.

Golf.

A writer in an English paper has this to say regarding the game of golf: "Golf is a great game, but shiver me niblicks if I think it comes up to tiddledywinks. It is played with a couple of farms, a river or so, two or three sand hills, a number of implements resembling dentist's tools, a strange language much like Hindoostanee, any old clothes and a large assortment of oaths."

Two Looks.

He climbed down from the pay car, with his month's wages still in his hand.

"Sure, ye must be feelin' rich, Pat, with all ye have there," said a bystander.

"And what does this signify to me?" answered Pat. "Just two looks, wan whin I get it and wan whin I give it to the ould woman."—Life.

UNION LABEL

SATURDAY, NOV. 24, 1906.

The Columbian of yesterday has a "well defined" rumor that John Oliver, M.P.P., will not be a candidate for Delta, and that R. Jardine, nominated as Liberal candidate for Dewdney, will be withdrawn in order to give Mr. Oliver a chance there. There is not, of course, a shadow of a shade of foundation for this rumor, and it would be interesting to know which of the party of sensitive honor and short memories evolved it from his inner consciousness.

Here are a couple of pertinent paragraphs from the Ottawa Free Press:

"Detectives are after the scalp of Hon. Robert Rogers, the erratic Manitoba politician, because he refused to pay them for services rendered during the recent election. The fact that there was no crooked work on the part of Hon. Mr. Rogers' opponents is no reflection upon their astuteness. Even the laborer for the professional politician is worthy of his hire."

"Premier McBride, who has returned to British Columbia, declares he attended the conference of provincial premiers at Ottawa to represent the rights of the people of his Province, and not in any political capacity at all. The danger is that this fact may be forgotten, not by Mr. McBrid's opponents, but by his friends and supporters, when election time comes around."

F. T. C. Lever, also a reporter on the Daily News, said that he recognized Mr. Brown as the editor, and the reporters took all their orders from him. He did not know who wrote the editorial complained of, but he did not write it. Mr. Brown wrote some of the editorials, and he was the final authority as to what should and what should not go into the paper.

Cross-examined by Mr. Howay, Mr. Lever said that a considerable amount of copy was contributed by outsiders, and he had known editorials to come in from outside sources. The outside matter comes in at irregular intervals.

This was the last witness called by the prosecution, and Mr. Howay stated that they did not propose to call any witnesses. In fact, he did not see why they should, as the case was of the flimsiest character. To see anything in the case, one would need Sam Weller's double million magnifying glasses.

Mr. Whiteside retorted that he did not expect that his learned friend would see anything in it, and immediately after this, the court adjourned until 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Promptly at 3 o'clock, Mr. Howay commenced his speech for the defence. He contended that, to be indictable, a libel must be actionable, and this was not so in the present case. After quoting at length a number of authorities, Mr. Howay said that when a man went into public affairs, he must expect to be criticized. When a man goes out seeking public notoriety, he must expect to be severely criticized on his statements. Mr. Taylor came before the board of trade, as the Moses who was to lead the people out of the darkness into the light, and because he got criticism when he was looking for it, he should not complain.

A man who had been so long an active figure in politics as Mr. Taylor should not be so thin skinned as to fly into a court of law because he was adversedly criticised. The free criticism by the press was the best safeguard of the public institutions. A man who tried to pose as leader of the people must expect criticism, and not always criticism of a favorable nature. Leaving aside the question of libel, Mr. Howay said he would pass on to the question of publication. Before his learned friend could hope to succeed, he must prove publication, and he thought it would be admitted that the prosecution had fallen down most lamentably in this case. Authorities were then cited as to what was implied by the term "publication." There was no evidence that Mr. Brown wrote the editorial complained of, no evidence that he published it, and no evidence that he delivered it to anyone. The next point dealt with was the question of facts. There was a great deal of inconsistency and incoherency in the case. Two witnesses produced by the prosecution, Messrs. Taylor and Luce, differed materially in their evidence. Mr. Taylor swore that the article written by him for the Columbian was correct, while Mr. Luce was equally certain that the report appearing in the Daily News was accurate as regards the disputed point. Checked side by side, the reports differed with reference to the words "unwritten law." The prosecution should have produced the speaker of the words in question, and placed him on the witness stand, so that he might have repeated his statement. The prosecutor knew that there was a difference in the two articles, and in connection with the statement involved in the case. He contended that the libel fell flat. He submitted that the statement made by Mr. Taylor had to be considered and carefully weighed in view of the fact that he altered the article and re-wrote it after he had read the article which appeared in the Daily News. After again quoting authorities at some length, Mr. Howay resumed his seat.

Mr. Whiteside then took the floor, saying that they were not there to discuss the statement made in the reports of the two papers, but to discuss the editorial complained of, and they were not there to decide whether Mr. Taylor or Mr. Luce was correct. He thought the facts brought out clearly proved that Mr. Brown was responsible for all that appeared in the paper, as he edited all the copy and sent it down to the printer. Mr. Johnstone had proved publicity by swearing that he set the article in type, and that Mr. Taylor got the paper in the usual way, had been clearly established. After again reading the article complained of, counsel stated that he considered that it contained a wilful, deliberate falsehood. Such a statement was calculated to injure Mr. Taylor in his business, and to provoke him to commit a breach of the peace. After citing precedents and having another legal argument with opposing counsel, Mr. Whiteside left the case in the hands of the magistrate.

His worship reserved his decision until Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock, after the usual police court proceedings will have been disposed of.

A Letter of Importance.

THE INHABITANTS OF NEW WESTMINSTER IN GENERAL, AND OUR FRIENDS IN PARTICULAR:

Lately we have been constantly asked if we are selling out, or moving larger premises. These enquiries have no doubt been created by the shipments of furniture leaving our stores and warehouses daily.

No, we are not leaving our present site, but we certainly are selling out (the time). Not with any catchpenny reductions, but a genuine legitimate method of trading which we have made successful by always marking goods lower than the lowest of other furniture houses in British Columbia.

NOW, IT'S UP TO YOU whether you want old and out of date goods at old price, or the very latest and newest goods that money and experience can buy.

Just come in and pay us a friendly visit; no one will bother you to buy. Christmas goods constantly arriving. Look them over, and if you see something good, select it, and we will deliver any time or anywhere you wish. We will advise you in purchasing Morris Chairs, Morris Rockers, Rocking Chairs, Extension Tables, Pictures, Sideboards, Buffets, etc.

A chimney fire in the Dupont block gave the firemen from No. 1 hall a run last evening. The fire was got under control before any serious damage was done.

Mr. J. R. Coon, barber, who has been with Mr. D. Walker for the past six and a half years, will be found at the Windsor barber shop, and will be pleased to meet all his friends there. 218d6w

The injuries received by Louis Legace, the apprentice baker, who was injured by boiling lard splashing in his face on Thursday afternoon, are not as serious as first anticipated, and it is expected that he will be around again in a few days.

The New Westminster Rovers are going over to Vancouver this afternoon to play a football game against the Celtics at the Brockton Point grounds. The locals are feeling in good form, and are confident that they will be able to outdistance their opponents easily.

About one acre of land is about to be added to the Catholic cemetery at Sapperton, and the general clearing of the burial ground is to commence immediately. Considerable changes will be made by the time the men get through with their work, and the place will be greatly improved.

The funeral of William Cobban, who died suddenly Thursday evening on the Richmond road, will take place this afternoon in the Masonic cemetery. Coroner Pittendrigh viewed the body yesterday afternoon, and gave the cause of death as heart failure. The Rev. Mr. McKenzie will officiate at the funeral service, which will take place at 2 o'clock.

Twenty-six missionaries are expected to arrive in the west between now and next Tuesday, when they will all set sail for China and Japan. This will be the largest number of missionaries to sail from a Canadian port to the foreign field at one time, and represents in a small measure the great forward missionary movement, which is apparently world wide.

In honor of Premier McBride's political visit here last evening, the Columbian Printing Co. illuminated their premises with their usual Saturday night display of electric lights. Shortly before 10 o'clock, the lamps were noticed to be giving off a very poor light, owing, it is presumed, to the immense displacent of superheated atmosphere in Cunningham hall, adjacent.

An arrest was made by the city police last evening in connection with the recent passing of several bogus cheques on different city merchants. The police received information that the suspected person was in the city, and, armed with a description of the man wanted, Detective Bradshaw and Officer Johnston visited the hotels and other resorts where he might be found. The person suspected was finally apprehended shortly before midnight.

"The Woman Hater," as put on by Harry Beresford and his clever company of artists, in the opera house last night, proved to be a real delectable comedy, and was one huge laugh from start to finish. The unexpected always seemed to happen in the most natural manner, and Mr. Beresford ably maintained his reputation as a comedian. There was a fairly good house, and frequent spontaneous applause showed that the audience was satisfied.

The ladies' altar society of St. Peter's church will conduct a sale of work in St. Patrick's hall on the afternoon of Thursday, Nov. 29. After the sale of work the hall will be cleared and tables introduced for progressive euchre in the evening. The series of games will start at 8 o'clock, under the patronage and management of Mesdames Goulet, Leamy, Lewis, Heaton and Sampson. The proceeds will go to swell the treasury of the society under whose auspices the games are to take place.

SINGULAR CUSTOMS.

Bulgarian Ceremonies That Come From Pagan Rites.

The people of Varna, on the coast of the Black sea, in Bulgaria, have a singular custom which they observe at the feast of the Epiphany, which takes place on Jan. 6. The clergy, both Greeks and Bulgarians, accompanied by an immense crowd, go to the seashore, carrying with them a wooden cross. The cross is thrown by the clergy into the sea, and thereupon the strongest swimmers jump in after it. The best swimmer gets it, of course, and brings it in triumph to shore.

The Varna people have a still more singular salt water custom on the same day. After dark at night all the newly married men in the town are conducted, with bands of music and singing, to the shore and made to take three successive plunges into the icy water. They are then conducted home, where their brides, accompanied by their relatives and friends, have been awaiting them in state. After this there is feasting and merry making. These singular customs are believed to have a Pagan origin.

One of the most interesting places in New York to study human nature is at a counter in a photographer's shop where the customers come to get amateur photographs they have had developed and printed. The anxiety they display to get the products of their "shots" would seem to be out of all proportion to the results, when you catch a glimpse of them, and their disappointment if the prints are not ready is almost as keen, apparently, as if some important business transaction had fallen through. And when they do get the prints their faces are even more interesting. The satisfaction of these amateur photographers over a set of fairly good pictures is absolutely idiotic, and their dismay at a lot of failures is tragic. The frankness of these exhibitions is not the least interesting phase of the whole thing.—New York Press.

Firing a Distress Signal.

When a ship does not carry a cannon or mortar with which she can fire distress signals, a metal socket on the bridge or poop rail is used for that purpose. Into the socket a detonating rocket is placed, and inside this is a firing tube. A lanyard is hooked on to the tube, and a man, by giving the lanyard a sharp jerk, explodes the rocket. It contains a high explosive and on leaving the rail gives a loud report and another on reaching its highest altitude. Both reports are as loud as the report of a twelve pounder cannon. The socket is slipped in the rail at an angle to prevent the rocket touching the rigging.

A Spoiled Sermon.

A clergyman was unexpectedly called upon to preach before the students of a well known college. He chose a sermon from his "barrel" and without reading it went to the college chapel. He got on splendidly until near the close, when he amazed the boys with his peroration, beginning, "And now a word in conclusion to you who are mothers."

Several Dialects.

McCall—What sort of hybrid creature is that new butler of yours? Nutitch—Why, how do you mean? McCall—I called to see you the other day, and when I asked him what time I might catch you at home he said, "At haff pawst tin, sah."—Philadelphia Press.

Quite Regular.

"The last time I saw Gayley he wasn't very—er—regular in his habits."

"Oh, he's very regular now."

"He hasn't. His habits are all bad now."—Philadelphia Ledger.

MAN, HORSE AND LOAD FALL FROM PLATFORM

A young man named Jake Ward, a recent arrival from the east, was badly hurt yesterday in the Brunette mill yards by a load of lumber falling upon him, breaking his ribs, and it is feared injuring him internally. It is said that the lining of the lungs has been torn, and the young man is in a very precarious condition.

Mr. Ward drives a horse in the mill yard, and was busy taking on a load of lumber on one of the raised platforms. The horse became frightened in some way, and the young man undertook to quiet it. In the scuffle, the horse rolled off the platform, carrying rig and man with it. Ward still hung on to the lines, and the heavy load of lumber fell upon him. He was unconscious when picked up, and was immediately taken to the Royal Columbian hospital. The doctors hold out a slight hope that he may recover. He is a brother of Mrs. Brown, Keary street, Sapperton.

New York, Nov. 23.—The stock of the Standard Oil Co. sold at $500 on the curb market to-day. This is its lowest price for years. At this price the stock shows a shrinkage in market value of more than $234,000,000 since the high price of January this year.

Shot Her Husband and Herself.

Chicago, Nov. 23.—James F. Delaney, vice-president of the American Shipping Co., was to-day shot and killed by his wife, who immediately afterwards committed suicide. No one at Mr. Delaney's office could throw any light on the affair. The two were married eight years ago, and had no children.

Synopsis of Canadian Homestead Regulations

Any available Dominion Lands within the Railway Belt in British Columbia, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry must be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate.

The homesteader is required to perform the conditions connected therewith under one of the following plans.

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of the homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Six months' notice in writing should be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of intention to apply for patent.

FRIDAY'S MARKET REPORT

The usual weekly market which was held yesterday was well attended, and trade was brisk. The stalls were all taken up, and the wares offered for sale showed their usual excellence.

The supply of beef offered was not quite so plentiful as usual, but the quality was well up to the standard. The demand was strong, and the total supply was snapped up almost before it got into the market building.

Mutton is coming in better than it was a few weeks ago, and the demand was still in excess of the supply.

Of veal there was a fair offering, and the buyers were keen for good fat stock.

The pork market was somewhat slim, only a few carcases being offered. The demand was strong.

The egg market showed signs of improving, from the consumer's standpoint, and a considerable quantity were sold at 55c per dozen. The wholesalers were paying 50c a dozen.

The chicken market was not quite so large as it has been for the past few weeks, and the supply was apparently equal to the demand, the buyers being keen only for first-class birds. Old fowls were also not quite so numerous, and were all sold at prices quoted.

Ducks were offered in fair numbers, and found a ready market.

Apples still continue to be offered in considerable quantities, and the demand for them is fair. Pears are still coming in, although they are not plentiful. The demand for that line of goods is decidedly weak.

Potatoes are still coming in in considerable quantities, and there is only a fair demand for them.

Quotations.

Beef, hindquarters, 7½c to 8½c lb.
Beef, forequarters, 4c to 4½c lb.

WHERE CATS CAN'T LIVE.

In Very High Altitudes the Felines Go Mad and Die.

Cats go mad and die in high altitudes. Leadville, Colo., is a city over 10,000 feet above sea level, and there is not a single cat in the place that has been there more than three months.

The greater the height above sea level the greater the degree of nervousness both in people and the dumb animals. Even in Denver, which is only half as high as Leadville, cats are high strung and flighty, given to sudden fits of arching their backs and growling at nothing. But they do not go mad in Denver with the same unanimity that they do in Leadville. In the latter place cats seem to be more than usually drowsy when they are first brought there and spend nearly every hour of the twenty-four in sleep. This condition will last a week or two, and is succeeded by a state of ordinary well being, which terminates at a greater or less interval of time by their suddenly having a violent fit, which in a human being would be called hysterics. These fits are repeated with continually increasing frequency until one more violent than any of its predecessors carries the cat off. Even kittens born in high altitudes never seem to get accustomed to them and invariably go the way of their parents.—New York Herald.

Important Correction.

Under the terror in France people learned to be excessively cautious in all they said and still more cautious in what they wrote.

An old letter is said to be in existence of the revolutionary period in which the author had at first written to a friend, "I write under the reign of a great emotion."

Then, apparently reflecting that it was dangerous to speak of "reigns" at such an epoch, he amended the sentence thus:

"I write under the republic of a great emotion."

Forethought.

"That fellow Mulkley you were engaged to at one time may have some of your old love letters, may he not?" asked the husband. "And aren't you afraid he might be cad enough to"—

"Not a bit," replied the wife decisively. "He knows I've got a trunkful of his love letters to reciprocate if he ever does."—Judge.

Peary Still Has Hopes.

Halifax, Nov. 23.—Peary's steamer, Roosevelt, reached Sydney at 7 o'clock this morning, and immediately upon arrival, Commander Peary boarded a tug and came on shore to meet Mrs. Peary, who has been awaiting him at Sydney for the last two weeks. He appeared to be in excellent health, and none the worse for his perilous exertions up north. He was apparently in the best of spirits. Peary tells of his experience with his ship in a leaky condition, and the loss of much interior work—ladders, beams and almost everything movable on board having been sacrificed to keep the party warm. Peary still believes the north pole can be reached, and the same opinion is expressed by Captain Bartlett.

Mrs. E. Henderson, of Fourth avenue, returned to the city yesterday, after spending a week visiting in Vancouver.

Economy

SARGENT'S Gem Food Chopper is an economical addition to any kitchen. It saves time and lessens labor, and thus economizes the housekeeper's time and strength. With it many attractive and appetizing dishes can be made from what might be wasted if it were not for the Gem.

It chops food of all kinds—meats, vegetables, fruits, bread, crackers, etc. It does not mash, squeeze, tear or grind, but chops the food as you want it—fine, coarse or medium. Easy to operate, self-sharpening. No kitchen complete without it.

BAD CROP YEARS.

When Birds and Animals Do Not Mate at the Mating Season.

"When birds and animals do not mate at the mating season, it is a sign that a bad year is coming," said a farmer.

"Quails, gophers, rabbits and squirrels all refuse to mate in certain years. These years afterward turn out to be bad ones. The quails are particularly weather wise. By instinct the little wild creatures know that for lack of rain or for some other reason there is to be a grass famine and a seed famine, and, instead of pairing off and mating and setting up housekeeping in little families of two, they remain unmated in the large bands in which they have flown all winter, living, as it were, a kind of apartment house life. That year inevitably turns out a bad one, though the bachelor and spinster quails, with a good deal of picking and scratching, manage to get enough to eat. But to feed families of little ones in such a famine year would be impossible.

"In California the squirrels in a famine year not only do not mate; they do not even live. They become dormant. As by a miracle, they remain dormant until a season of plenty comes with the next winter's rains."—Exchange.

For Her Welfare.

Mrs. Goodheart had made up her mind that most of the so called charity of the present day was not, strictly speaking, charity at all. Whoever gave, she had concluded, did so for the pleasant sensation of seeing his or her name figure on subscription lists, and she did not agree with this ostentation.

"Here, my good man," she said one day last week to a man who had begged alms of her, "here is a threepenny piece, and please to understand that I do not give this because I hope to be rewarded for my charity some day, but because it gives me pleasure to do so."

"Look 'ere, mum," he said. "In this 'ere wicked world we don't orften get the chance to enjoy ourselves. Why not make it a shillin' an' 'ave a real good time?"—London Tit-Bits.
