LIGHTS SHOW RED TO HILL

Railway Magnate Sees Danger Signal Ahead and Declares That It Looks Like a Recession in Business.

LUXURIES WILL BE AFFECTED

Owing to Shortage of Ready Money, Many Costly Trifles Must Be Dispensed with, as the Financial Credit of the United States Has Been Assailed.

New York, March 26.—James J. Hill, president of the Great Northern Railway company, returned to the city yesterday from the West. When asked for his views on industrial and railway conditions, he replied:

"Remember that there is a decided difference between hard times and business recession. There is nothing in present conditions to make anybody apprehensive. Several months ago, the lights showed red to me and it looked like a recession in business. Wall street maintained the opinion that the light showed green and that meant that everything ahead was clear. The red lights are still ahead and that means that we ought to go slow. The recession that has set in is not formidable, but business has been affected. About 95 per cent of the country's business is done on credit. This credit is impaired and that is the chief trouble.

As I said months ago, the depression will affect the luxuries of life, such as automobiles and diamonds. Fewer of them will be sold, but the great necessaries of life—wheat, coal, iron and lumber—will continue to be used."

LEWIS GIVES EVIDENCE

Manager of Brunette Saw Mills Goes On Stand at Ottawa.

Ottawa, March 26.—L. A. Lewis, manager of the Brunette Lumber company, New Westminster, continued his evidence before the Lumber Combine Committee, in which he stated there existed a compact between the coast and mountain lumbermen for the purpose of maintaining prices, but the whole purpose of the coast association therein was merely to secure a legitimate price to manufacturers, and not in any wise to compel the payment of exorbitant figures. Prices of lumber had increased, but so had the price of logs and the cost of milling which Mr. Lewis substantiated by figures.

COMPANY BUYS SITE ACROSS THE RIVER

ANOTHER SAWMILL COMING TO NEW WESTMINSTER—PORTABLE OUTFIT PURCHASED.

M. J. Malcolm and J. P. Smith of Vancouver, on behalf of the Northwest Lumber company, have purchased a portable sawmill with a capacity of 25,000 per day, and will cut timber on their limits to be used in the erection of one large sawmill, or two smaller ones. The Northwest Lumber company has purchased a site on the Fraser river, directly opposite New Westminster, where a mill may be built. It has not yet been decided whether the company will build one or two mills.

If one mill is built it will have a capacity of 150,000 feet of lumber per day, and will be built on the site opposite New Westminster, but if two mills are built they will each have a capacity of 75,000 feet a day and will be built near the timber on Vancouver Island. The company owns large tracts of timber land on Vancouver Island, and it is probable that the one large mill will be built opposite New Westminster and the Royal City will thus reap the benefit.

GARNEAU COMMITTED.

C. P. R. Ticket Stealing Suspects Awaiting Trial.

Xavier Garneau, who was arrested in connection with the C. P. R. ticket steal, was yesterday morning committed for trial.

This case was one which considerably puzzled the C. P. R. officials until Detective Bradshaw, of this city, in connection with C. P. R. Detective R. Bullock, of Vancouver, took hold, and the result of their clever deductions was the speedy arrest of young Abney.

There was still a considerable number of tickets missing, and these two detectives set themselves to ferret out their whereabouts. Detective Bradshaw had his suspicions of Garneau for some time, as he had noticed him on several occasions in company with Abney. A search warrant was procured, and as Mr. Bradshaw knew where Garneau's trunk was, an expedition was made to the place, with the result that the balance of the tickets were found, and the acting chief having a knowledge as to Garneau's whereabouts, near Cloverdale. Chief Constable Spain was notified, with the result that Garneau soon joined his accomplice in the provincial jail. The total value of the purloined tickets amounted to something in the neighborheed of $500. The credit of their recovery is largely due to the clever and capable way in which Detectives Bullock and Bradshaw handled the case.

Oil Barge Adrift.

Portland, Ore., March 26.—Officers of the oil tank steamship Argyle report that when off Cape Blanco on her way from San Francisco to Portland last Friday, the steamship Atlas lost her tow—oil laden barge No. 91—while bringing her here from San Francisco. A terrific gale was blowing and the hawser snapped. The Atlas was unable to pick up the vessel again. Six men are aboard.

Officials Charged.

Los Angeles, March 26.—Charged with manslaughter, Engineer Kelly and Conductor Humble, of the Santa Fe, who were in charge of the overland which collided with the students' excursion train on the bridge spanning the Los Angeles river, Saturday night, causing the death of five persons, have been arrested. There are two cases against each of the defendants, and the court fixed bail at $3,000 in each case, or $6,000 for each man.

PREMIER COVERS MUCH OLD GROUND

LIBERAL LEADER MACDONALD MERCILESSLY DISSECTS McBRIDE'S RESOLUTION.

Victoria, March 26.—For the first time in British Columbia's agitation for fairer terms from the Dominion, the Legislature has divided, according to party affiliation, on a resolution affirming and pressing the provincial case, the self-glorifying motion of Premier McBride (prefaced by a long preamble, several sections of which were not in harmony with the facts on record) carrying in the house last evening by the votes of the party, those of the Liberal opposition being perforce recorded negatively, and the Socialists withdrawing rather than have a part in a resolution which, from its decidedly party color, became little less than farcical as an expression of provincial argument.

The resolution was moved by the Premier at the opening of the usual sitting, his speech covering much old ground necessarily. The first minister's address, in consequence of its dull repetition of well known matter, disappointed the majority, even of his followers, while the address of Mr. Macdonald following was as distinctive for its elimination of the obselete and its concise, incisive treatment of the essential features of the issue.

The essence of Mr. Macdonald's address was a merciless demonstration of the superficiality, crudity and weakness of Premier McBride's presentation of the case, it being shown that arbitration could not determine any new facts bearing on British Columbia conditions, that the McBride argument in chief has simply been belittling the foresight of British Columbia's public men of confederation times.

STATE OF SIEGE PROCLAIMED

Four Thousand Peasants Join Forces and March on Bucharest—Authorities Alarmed at Gravity of Situation.

SOLDIERS ORDERED TO SHOOT

Marauders Overrun District and Cut Telephone and Telegraph Wires—Armed with Cudgels and Hatchets, Revolutionaries Clash with Military.

Bucharest, March 26.—Four thousand peasants from the districts of Telormand and Vlashiua have joined forces and are now marching on Bucharest. A minor state of seige has been proclaimed. Should the peasants refuse to retire orders have been issued to the troops to use shrapnel against them.

Soldiers and large bodies of police have been stationed in the Jewish quarters of Bucharest for the protection of the inhabitants. Severe encounters accompanied by much bloodshed are reported from various places.

The district of Vlashica is overrun by marauders who have cut the telegraph and telephone wires. A band of peasants yesterday made a furious attack with hatchets and cudgels on a detachment of cavalry in that district. The troops only dispersed the rioters after killing or wounding many of them. Fifteen rioters have been shot in the town of Alexandria, about fifty miles from Bucharest, which place has been declared under martial law.

Home From 'Frisco.

A. G. Cook returned yesterday from San Francisco, where he has been for the past eight months. Mr. Cook intends to remain in New Westminster for about three weeks, after which he will once more wend his way to the stricken city.

SAPPERTON PARK IS NOW ASSURED

SCHEME MEETS WITH GENERAL APPROVAL AMONG RESIDENTS—COUNCIL'S GRANT.

A bumber meeting of the Sapperton park enthusiasts was held last night above the fire hall, Sapperton, and great interest was taken in the proceedings by all present.

The meeting was called in connection with the grant of $500 received from the city council for the purpose of clearing up the location and getting the place in shape for the summer. J. Digby acted as chairman, and in a short speech expressed great satisfastion at the manner in which the city council had acted. Mr. Couts and P. McDougal also spoke, after which everybody got down to business. A committee consisting of J. O. Coulthard, J. Digby, George Colson, and P. McDougal was appointed to act in concert with Ald. J. J. Johnston, chairman of Parks committee; and they are now at work getting ready their plans and specifications, which will be submitted to Ald. Johnston for advice and suggestions, after which tenders will be called for the clearing and grading of the park site.

The residents of Sapperton are highly enthusiastic on the subject, and as soon as the plans are ready, work will go on with a rush. Should the work not progress as speedily as expected, it is probable that the services of the chain gang will be secured, and with this valuable assistance the stumps which now adorn the prospective beauty spot will not last long in that locality.

PROSPECTOR ARRIVES.

Moneyed Man From Nevada Intends to Search for Metal.

Faith in the resources of the Fraser River district is not by any means confined to one class of people. A experienced mining prospector, who hails from the state of Nevada, and who has considerable U. S. dollars behind him, arrived in the city yesterday and proceeded to the office of Mr. Ross of the Royal City mills, who has been for 50 years in this country, and took part in the Cariboo excitement. Mr. Ross is a man whose opinion on gold mining in general and the Fraser river in particular, is from his practical experience in these matters, of considerable value both as regards placer and quartz prospecting. The Nevada man had been recommended to him as one who could give considerable information on matters in which the syndicate is interested. The two gentlemen spent considerable time together, and maps and charts were gone through and thoroughly over hauled. The Nevada man, whose name is not at present made public, will start operations in the near future along lines suggested by Mr. Ross, but the locality and time is not as yet definitely arranged.

Ald. Smith Explains.

In the course of remarks made at the city council on Monday evening, Ald. Smith was reported to have said that the fishermen had no kick coming on account of the conditions at the foot of Eighth street. The alderman wishes to correct an erroneous impression which might be gathered from this; his objection was not against the fishermen, but against the matter under discussion being referred to the board of works to act, instead of to report. He maintains that he is strongly in favor of additional slips being constructed for the use of the fishermen, and proposes to re-introduce the mattter before the city council at an early date.

New G. N. R. Depot.

The new G. N. R. combined ticket and freight station is an assured fact. The surveyors were at work yesterday on the proposed site, and work will be commenced in a few days. The new building will cost in the neighborhood of $18,000, and will be a storey and a half high, 150 feet long by 50 feet wide. The plans have been in readiness for some time, and it was the intention of the company to build in the main part of the city, but owing to the impossibility of procuring sufficient land to accommodate an edifice of the class called for by the specifications, it has been decided to commence operations on the old site. A considerable portion of the hill at the back of the present station will have to be removed, and work will be started as soon as men can be got on the ground.

The members of the Crescent Club will hold their annual meeting in the club rooms this evening. All members are expected to attend, as a president and five directors will be balloted for.

FIRE DESTROYS BIG SALT PLANT

NEW $250,000 ADDITION GOES UP IN FIRE—TOTAL LOSS AGGREGATES $1,000,000.

Hutchinson, Kas., March 26.—The explosion of a coal oil lamp last night started a fire that destroyed the Morton Salt Plant, the largest in the world, including a new $250,000 addition.

The plant was operated by means of oil burning boilers and in some way the oil was ignited and caused the flames to spread quickly. The loss, including a vast quantity of refined salt, may amount to $1,000,000. The Morton Block was the chief plant of the Hutchinson, Kansas company, owned chiefly by Joy Morton and his brother, Paul Morton, former secretary of the navy. The loss is partly covered by insurance.

George Williams, of Sapperton, is suffering from an injured hand, which happened to get caught in some machinery on Monday afternoon. It will be some time before the victim is able to return to work again.

SLOW SCHEDULE IS DROPPED

Storm of Protest Against Proposal to Run Trains at Lessened Speed Causes a Change in Official's Plans.

PRESENT SYSTEM IS SAFE

Reason Advanced for Lengthening Time of Runs Is That Freight Trains Are Delayed at Sidings Too Long for Profit to the Transportation Companies.

Chicago, March 26.—Passenger officials of the Western railroads at a meeting yesterday, failed to reach an agreement to lengthen by eighteen hours the schedule of the fastest trains between here and the Pacific coast, as was originally proposed. The plan of running trains slower throughout the West has raised a storm of protest from all the important places between here and California terminals.

From present indications, the schedule west of Kansas City and Omaha to San Francisco and Los Angeles will be lengthened by from seven to nine hours, but practically no reduction will be made east of the Missouri river.

Operating officials of all the roads declare that all the present schedules of passenger trains are not too fast for safety, but in order to run them on schedule time they are obliged to delay freight trains which pay much larger profits.

Running Record Broken.

New York, March 26.—Melvin W. Shepard lowered the American indoor half-mile record at the games of the Twenty-second Regiment yesterday. He finished in 1:58, two seconds faster than the best previous time.

ARBITRATION THE KEYNOTE.

Masters and Men Desire to Settle Seattle Dispute.

Seattle, March 26.—Arbitration now is the keynote of the dispute between the Building Trades' assembly and the Master Builders' association. Meetings are being held today by both the Master Builders' association and by the executive committee of the Building Trades' assembly, and each meeting is considering the proposition of the appointment of a committee of arbitration to settle all matters on which there is a difference of opinion.

This afternoon, members of the Master Builders' association expressed themselves as being emphatically in favor of arbitrating the entire matter. Their stand on this point, they declared, was made public a number of days ago, at which time they voluntarily came forward and offered to arbitrate with the representatives of the labor unions at any time. Their position on arbitration, they say, has not changed at all in the meantime.

James Murphy, business representative of the Building Trades' asembly, personally favors strongly the arbitration method of settling the dispute.

PARIS PAPERS WANT PRESTIGE RESTORED

FRENCH PRESS UNANIMOUSLY SUPPORTS CABINET—MOROCCO MUST COME TO TIME.

Paris, March 26.—The French press unanimously appreciates the gravity of the government's decision to bring the Sultan of Morocco to reason, and without exception the newspapers support the cabinet's determination to restore French prestige in North Africa by the occupation of Oudja, which it is considered will make the Moroccan authorities understand that France's national dignity cannot longer permit the Moors to disregard with impunity their solemn agreements.

CIVIC ESTIMATES ARE MADE PUBLIC

MANY INCREASES IN OFFICIAL SALARIES—EXPENDITURE TO BE HEAVIER THAN LAST YEAR.

After many long vigils, the city council has finally passed the estimates for the current year, and the result of their deliberations was handed out yesterday afternoon. Increases are made in nearly every case, the sum total over last year being nearly $60,000. Noticeable increases are those made in the schools, light, parks, health, bridges and board of works cases, the latter getting $7,000 more money voted than was the case last year. The estimates have been very carefully drafted, and were only passed after careful consideration and mature deliberation among the members of the city council.

Coincident with the larger estimates, is the increase in salaries granted to nearly everyone of the civic employees. Petition after petition had been received recently, and the city fathers appear to have understood that in order to keep the present efficient men in the employ of the corporation, it would be necessary to grant a general increase in salaries. Everyone who applied for a larger salary has had his request granted, while many others who did not make an application has also been gladdened by the knowledge that the pay cheque will in future be of more generous proportions. Many of the increases range from $5 to $10 a month, but in a few cases, larger increases have been made. Chief of Police McIntosh has had his salary raised from $95 to $125 a month, while all the other members of the force have also been granted an increase. The list of officials who have been granted increases in salaries is as follows:

City Clerk, $110 to $125 per month; city treasurer, $110 to $125; first assistant treasurer, $70 to $80; second assistant treasurer, $70 to $80; auditor $240 to $300 per year; health inspector, $75 to $85 per month; waterworks supt., $100 to $110; pipeman, $80 to $85; chief of police, $95 to $125; chief detective, $75 to $80; poundkeeper and police, $5 per month; market clerk, $75 to $100; librarian, $60 to $65; park ranger, $65 to $70; fire chief, $100 to $110; waterworks supt., $90 to $100; supt. of light $125 to $135; foreman, $77.50 to $80; operators, $5 per month increase; supt. of works, $100 to $110; bridgekeeper, $55 to $60; firemen and police get an increase of $5 per month. Increases start March 1.

UMBRELLA AND SHOES.

Their Importance In the Eyes of the Indian Native.

India is so vast that different etiquettes prevail in different districts. We have no standard etiquette, no standard dress. We mostly copy European etiquette while with Europeans. Even a Bengalese shakes hands with a Bengalese, speaks in English for a few minutes and then breaks forth into the vernacular. We shake hands with a European on parting, but by mistake again touch the hand to the brow in a salaam, so we both shake hands, salaam and do the like, and no sober minded European ever cared for the anomaly.

The umbrella is the emblem of royalty, the sign of a rajah, so natives generally fold their umbrellas before a rajah and not before anybody else, however great. It is not a part of the dress, but a protection from the rain or sun, a necessary appendage, just like the watch and chain. You might as well ask a European to take off his waterproof coat. A cooly is not bound to fold his umbrella when a brigadier general rides past. But a menial generally closes down the umbrella on seeing his master, whom he considers his king. But no Indian, however humble, ought to fold up the umbrella, even before a magistrate, because he is neither the master of the humble passerby nor his superior officer, nor is he bound to salaam him. But if he does, no harm. In a word, natives generally fold the umbrella before a master or a superior officer and not any other citizen, however great, and this is no insult.

While going to see a native chief in his palace the native visitor or official takes off his shoes if the reception room has a farash and the rajah is sitting on his musnud. But if he is received in the drawing room, furnished after the European style, the shoes are allowed. In some states no natives can go to a rajah without a pugree. In others the pugree is taken off and tossed at the feet of a rajah.

It is ridiculous in a European (from the Hindoo point of view) to order a native fortune off his shoes. This is what we ask our priest to do, so that we may touch the dust of his feet. A minister when nicely rebuked by his sahib took off his shoes, but recounted the whole scene to his better half, saying, "Sala hamara gor ka gurds lenay magtoal" ("The brother-in-law wants the dust of my feet.")—Indian Military Gazette.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

No man ever landed a particularly easy position by trying to dodge work.

Almost every man imagines he would do a lot of philanthropic stunts if he had the money.

Why is it that the people with nothing to do but sit around and visit are such dreadful bores?

Some people imagine that by being impudent they are showing others they are "as good as anybody."

When a father and son are in business the son can usually tell of a lot of mistakes his father makes.

Almost any married man can make his friends smile by saying he is perfectly free to do as he pleases.

"Checkmate."

"Checkmate!" represents "shah mat!"—"the shah is dead." "Shah," in fact entered our language long ago via Arabic and old French, arriving in the form of "check." "Chess" is really "checks," kings, and the cry of "Check!" means your king is in danger; hence the verb and substantive "check" in all their English meanings—"check," which was originally the counterfoil of a bill that served to "check" fraud; "checkered," from the aspect of the chessboard, and "exchequer," from the checkered pattern of the tablecloth on which the king's accounts were kept with counters. All these we owe to the Persian sovereign's title.—London Chronicle.

The Bosnian Roasting Jack.

A curious variety of the old fashioned roasting jack is used by the peasants of Bosnia and Herzegovina when roasting sheep whole, as on the occasion of a wedding ceremony. One often sees near a running stream a long pole having one end revolving freely in a socketed peg, while the other, overhanging the water, is equipped with miniature paddles. This is the Bosnian roasting jack. The sheep to be cooked is impaled on the log, a fire is lit underneath, and while the current spins the paddles and the pole merrily round the big joint is cooked literally to a turn.—Wide World Magazine.

Why She Was Pleased.

Tess—Did Mr. Borem ever call on you? Jess—Yes; he called last evening. I was quite delighted when the girl brought up his card. Tess—Oh, come now. You weren't really delighted? Jess—Certainly. You see, if she hadn't brought up his card I might have gone down to him, thinking it was some one else.—Philadelphia Press.

THE DETECTIVE STORY

Origin and Growth of the Clever Amateur Sleuth.

VOLTAIRE WAS HIS CREATOR.

The Great French Writer Introduced Him to the World of Fiction—The Genius of Poe and Gaboriau and Conan Doyle's Sherlock Holmes.

Most persons who read detective stories, and most literary critics, too, believe that this very popular form of fiction was invented by Edgar Allan Poe. They point to his story of "The Purloined Letter" as being the first of its kind—the first in which is introduced the man of keen mind, of close reasoning and of constructive imagination, who is able to piece together certain facts that are known and then by brilliant deduction to pass from them to other facts which are not known, but the truth of which he is able to establish beyond a doubt.

Poe himself had a mind precisely of this character—the mind of a mathematician, subtle, logical and capable of searching analysis. He once gave a remarkable illustration of what he could do as an investigator of mysterious crime. A young shopgirl named Mary Rogers was found murdered under circumstances which excited great public interest in New York. The police were completely baffled, though they advanced a theory which was plausible in part. Poe, taking the facts that were admitted, wove them into a story, the scene of which he laid in Paris and which he called "The Mystery of Marie Roget." Then from what was known he passed by deductive reasoning to what was quite unknown and worked out a solution to the puzzle which no professional detective had been able to explain. Years afterward the confession of a dying man afforded proof that Poe was right and that he had reconstructed accurately the whole series of events which led to the death of Mary Rogers.

This remarkable achievement fixed in the public mind the notion that this use of logic blended with imagination was original with Poe. As a matter of fact, it is almost certain that Poe, who was deeply versed in French literature, got the suggestion of the method from reading certain passages in the oriental tale called "Zadig," by Voltaire. In this book a young man is questioned as to whether he had seen a stray dog and horse that might have passed him on his journey. In reply he describes very accurately the peculiarities of both, though he had not seen them. He had deduced his knowledge from observing certain indications along the way—the nature of the footprints and many other signs which the ordinary person would either not have noticed or would have been too dull to understand. Here is really the germ of the conception which Poe so brilliantly elaborated in the story of "The Purloined Letter," where we find exhibited the striking contrast between the working of a usual mind and the achievements of a mind of exceptional power and training.

Poe's central figure, the amateur detective, was afterward caught up and elaborated with great effect by several French writers, of whom the chief was Emile Gaboriau. Gaboriau gave the world the character of M. Lecoq in the remarkable novel of that name. Lecoq is a professional detective, but appears in that book as a novice, inexperienced, but full of intelligence and enthusiasm and obliged to work out his clews against the secret opposition of his official chief, Gevrot, who is jealous of the young detective. In the background is the interesting figure of the real amateur detective, old Father Tire-au-Clair ("Bring-to-light"), a retired tradesman who studies crime from sheer love of the intellectual puzzle which it affords him and which he solves by purely scientific deduction.

Sir Conan Doyle in creating Sherlock Holmes openly acknowledged his great indebtedness to Poe. Like Poe's hero, Holmes works apart from the official police and is consulted by them when they are wholly at a loss. Many of the incidents in the Holmes cycle of stories were suggested by the inventions of Poe. Yet it is only fair to say that Doyle has gone one step further than his master. Poe's characters are abstractions. They are like chessmen on the board and excite interest only because of the complexity of the problem which they are made to solve. Doyle's characters, on the other hand, are drawn with sympathy and a shrewd insight into human nature. They entertain us by their whims and individual traits no less than by the adventures through which they pass. Thus Holmes' addiction to the cocaine habit, his trick of smoking great quantities of shag tobacco when thinking out a problem, his dislike of women, his skill as a boxer—in fact, a score of traits all give him individuality and make us think of him as a fascinating character quite apart from his powers as a deductive reasoner. And it is so with the minor personages as well—Watson, the somewhat obtuse chronicler of the adventures; Lestrade and Gregson of the official police and Moriarty, the arch criminal.

But, however brilliant Poe may have been, or however ingeniously Gaboriau may have spun tangled plots, or however ably Conan Doyle may have given life and reality to the central figure of his stories, they all derive their inspiration, whether consciously or not, from the clever tale told by the famous Frenchman before Poe saw the light.—Scrap Book.

UMBRELLA AND SHOES.

Their Importance In the Eyes of the Indian Native.

India is so vast that different etiquettes prevail in different districts. We have no standard etiquette, no standard dress. We mostly copy European etiquette while with Europeans. Even a Bengalese shakes hands with a Bengalese, speaks in English for a few minutes and then breaks forth into the vernacular. We shake hands with a European on parting, but by mistake again touch the hand to the brow in a salaam, so we both shake hands, salaam and do the like, and no sober minded European ever cared for the anomaly.

The umbrella is the emblem of royalty, the sign of a rajah, so natives generally fold their umbrellas before a rajah and not before anybody else, however great. It is not a part of the dress, but a protection from the rain or sun, a necessary appendage, just like the watch and chain. You might as well ask a European to take off his waterproof coat. A cooly is not bound to fold his umbrella when a brigadier general rides past. But a menial generally closes down the umbrella on seeing his master, whom he considers his king. But no Indian, however humble, ought to fold up the umbrella, even before a magistrate, because he is neither the master of the humble passerby nor his superior officer, nor is he bound to salaam him. But if he does, no harm. In a word, natives generally fold the umbrella before a master or a superior officer and not any other citizen, however great, and this is no insult.

While going to see a native chief in his palace the native visitor or official takes off his shoes if the reception room has a farash and the rajah is sitting on his musnud. But if he is received in the drawing room, furnished after the European style, the shoes are allowed. In some states no natives can go to a rajah without a pugree. In others the pugree is taken off and tossed at the feet of a rajah.

It is ridiculous in a European (from the Hindoo point of view) to order a native to take off his shoes. This is what we ask our priest to do, so that we may touch the dust of his feet. A munshi when mildly rebuked by his sahib took off his shoes, but recounted the whole scene to his better half, saying, "Sala hamara gor ka gurds lenay magtoal" ("The brother-in-law wants the dust of my feet.")—Indian Military Gazette.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

No man ever landed a particularly easy position by trying to dodge work.

Almost every man imagines he would do a lot of philanthropic stunts if he had the money.

Why is it that the people with nothing to do but sit around and visit are such dreadful bores?

Some people imagine that by being impudent they are showing others they are "as good as anybody."

When a father and son are in business the son can usually tell of a lot of mistakes his father makes.

Almost any married man can make his friends smile by saying he is perfectly free to do as he pleases.

When the carbolic acid bottle finds itself next to the cough medicine on the shelf, Death stops sharpening his scythe to lean back and be merry.—Atchison Globe.

"Checkmate."

"Checkmate!" represents "shah mat!" —"the shah is dead." "Shah," in fact entered our language long ago via Arabic and old French, arriving in the form of "check." "Chess" is really "checks," kings, and the cry of "Check!" means your king is in danger; hence the verb and substantive "check" in all their English meanings "check," which was originally the counterfoil of a bill that served to "check" fraud; "checkered," from the aspect of the chessboard, and "exchequer," from the checkered pattern of the tablecloth on which the king's accounts were kept with counters. All these we owe to the Persian sovereign's title.—London Chronicle.

The Bosnian Roasting Jack.

A curious variety of the old fashioned roasting jack is used by the peasants of Bosnia and Herzegovina when roasting sheep whole, as on the occasion of a wedding ceremony. One often sees near a running stream a long pole having one end revolving freely in a socketed peg, while the other, overhanging the water, is equipped with miniature paddles. This is the Bosnian roasting jack. The sheep to be cooked is impaled on the log, a fire is lit underneath, and while the current spins the paddles and the pole merrily round the big joint is cooked literally to a turn.—Wide World Magazine.

Why She Was Pleased.

Tess—Did Mr. Borem ever call on you? Jess—Yes; he called last evening. I was quite delighted when the girl brought up his card. Tess—Oh, come now. You weren't really delighted? Jess—Certainly. You see, if she hadn't brought up his card I might have gone down to him, thinking it was some one else.—Philadelphia Press.

Suited For Something.

"Your little boy may become president some day."

"I hardly think so. Archibald is too modest and retiring."

"Oh, well, he may get to be vice president."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

THE DETECTIVE STORY

Origin and Growth of the Clever Amateur Sleuth.

VOLTAIRE WAS HIS CREATOR.

The Great French Writer Introduced Him to the World of Fiction—The Genius of Poe and Gaboriau and Conan Doyle's Sherlock Holmes.

Most persons who read detective stories, and most literary critics, too, believe that this very popular form of fiction was invented by Edgar Allan Poe. They point to his story of "The Purloined Letter" as being the first of its kind—the first in which is introduced the man of keen mind, of close reasoning and of constructive imagination, who is able to piece together certain facts that are known and then by brilliant deduction to pass from them to other facts which are not known, but the truth of which he is able to establish beyond a doubt.

Poe himself had a mind precisely of this character—the mind of a mathematician, subtle, logical and capable of searching analysis. He once gave a remarkable illustration of what he could do as an investigator of mysterious crime. A young shopgirl named Mary Rogers was found murdered under circumstances which excited great public interest in New York. The police were completely baffled, though they advanced a theory which was plausible in part. Poe, taking the facts that were admitted, wove them into a story, the scene of which he laid in Paris and which he called "The Mystery of Marie Roget." Then from what was known he passed by deductive reasoning to what was quite unknown and worked out a solution to the puzzle which no professional detective had been able to explain. Years afterward the confession of a dying man afforded proof that Poe was right and that he had reconstructed accurately the whole series of events which led to the death of Mary Rogers.

This remarkable achievement fixed in the public mind the notion that this use of logic blended with imagination was original with Poe. As a matter of fact, it is almost certain that Poe, who was deeply versed in French literature, got the suggestion of the method from reading certain passages in the oriental tale called "Zadig," by Voltaire. In this book a young man is questioned as to whether he had seen a stray dog and horse that might have passed him on his journey. In reply he describes very accurately the peculiarities of both, though he had not seen them. He had deduced his knowledge from observing certain indications along the way—the nature of the footprints and many other signs which the ordinary person would either not have noticed or would have been too dull to understand. Here is really the germ of the conception which Poe so brilliantly elaborated in the story of "The Purloined Letter," where we find exhibited the striking contrast between the working of a usual mind and the achievements of a mind of exceptional power and training.

Poe's central figure, the amateur detective, was afterward caught up and elaborated with great effect by several French writers, of whom the chief was Emile Gaboriau. Gaboriau gave the world the character of M. Lecoq in the remarkable novel of that name. Lecoq is a professional detective, but appears in that book as a novice, inexperienced, but full of intelligence and enthusiasm and obliged to work out his clews against the secret opposition of his official chief, Gevrot, who is jealous of the young detective. In the background is the interesting figure of the real amateur detective, old Father Tire-au-Clair ("Bring-to-light"), a retired tradesman who studies crime from sheer love of the intellectual puzzle which it affords him and which he solves by purely scientific deduction.

Sir Conan Doyle in creating Sherlock Holmes openly acknowledged his great indebtedness to Poe. Like Poe's hero, Holmes works apart from the official police and is consulted by them when they are wholly at a loss. Many of the incidents in the Holmes cycle of stories were suggested by the inventions of Poe. Yet it is only fair to say that Doyle has gone one step further than his master. Poe's characters are abstractions. They are like chessmen on the board and excite interest only because of the complexity of the problem which they are made to solve. Doyle's characters, on the other hand, are drawn with sympathy and a shrewd insight into human nature. They entertain us by their whims and individual traits no less than by the adventures through which they pass. Thus Holmes' addiction to the cocaine habit, his trick of smoking great quantities of shag tobacco when thinking out a problem, his dislike of women, his skill as a boxer—in fact, a score of traits all give him individuality and make us think of him as a fascinating character quite apart from his powers as a deductive reasoner. And it is so with the minor personages as well—Watson, the somewhat obtuse chronicler of the adventures; Lestrade and Gregson of the official police and Moriarty, the arch criminal.

But, however brilliant Poe may have been, or however ingeniously Gaboriau may have spun tangled plots, or however ably Conan Doyle may have given life and reality to the central figure of his stories, they all derive their inspiration, whether consciously or not, from the clever tale told by the famous Frenchman before Poe saw the light.—Scrap Book.

A NEW RAILWAY SCHEME.

The Colonist wants the Dominion Government to set aside all monies derived from the sale of the three and a half million acres of Peace River lands which this Province gave it many years ago, as a fund to secure the construction of a railway or railways which will bring the Peace River country into direct touch with the seaboard cities of British Columbia. This suggestion is, the Colonist declares, made in all sincerity, without so much as a squint in the direction of political effect. It quotes the announced policy of the Dominion Government in the matter of the construction of the Hudson Bay railway, as embodying a similar suggestion to that which it makes. That policy is to use the funds derived from the sale of preemptions in the three prairie provinces as a source from which to provide the necessary subsidy for the Hudson Bay railway.

Now, while we are quite willing to discuss this matter apart from politics, we cannot divest ourselves of the knowledge that it bears a very strong family likeness to certain schemes which have enabled the McBride government, "ancient and modern," to carry elections in Victoria. We say this not with the intention of importing politics into the discussion, but simply to defend ourselves against a possible accusation that we have forgotten the history of the country.

Looking at the matter then entirely apart from any partizan view, we find in the first place that, however good the idea may be, it is not one that can be fairly supported by citing the Hudson Bay railway policy of the Dominion. In the first place, there is a sort of standing offer of a land bonus of 6,400 acres per mile in Manitoba and double that outside that province, for the construction of the Hudson Bay road, and the announced policy of the Government is a substitute for this. There is no such pledge as to the construction of a railway from the Peace River country to the Pacific. It is true that these lands were given by this province to the Dominion as a subsidy to secure the construction of a railway; but the railway has been constructed. The policy announced by the Dominion Government with respect to the construction of the Hudson Bay railway, is a substitute for the literal fulfilment of an outstanding obligation; the Colonist's proposal is a suggestion that a volunteer addition be made to a fulfilled obligation. It is, in fact, a request for an instalment of "better terms."

Here we come to the stone wall which has been built across the path of all negotiations of the kind suggested by the Colonist between this Province and the Dominion. As Senator Macdonald (the only Conservative representative of British Columbia at Ottawa) put it, the unwise course pursued in the better terms matter has closed the door in the meantime. We all hope that it may be possible to reopen it, and that the moral obligation of the Dominion to do great things for the development of its far western province may be suitably acknowledged by deeds, as it has been acknowledged by words; but we should be plainly unreasonable did we expect anything of the kind so long as the Province continues to sanction the maintenance of the truculent attitude which its Government has assumed.

Let the Colonist exert itself to infuse some slight knowledge of the rudiments of statesmanship into the aggregation which controls the destinies of this Province, and it will be doing something of real value towards securing the accomplishment of such projects as that which it suggests. So long as we maintain the policy of bounce and swagger—so long as we continue to shake our fist in the face of the Dominion and talk about "the foot of the throne," and all the rest of it—so long must we expect to be "stood over" until we exhibit some symptoms of returning sanity.

What a mistake to use coarse Salt for cooking! Fine, pungent WINDSOR SALT adds such a daintiness to the food! 138

Congratulations to Mr. Macdonald, M.P.P., on his "better terms" speech. It put the matter in the right light—put the saddle on the right horse—and showed that the Liberal leader is capable of taking a broad and at the same time a patriotic view of the relations between province and province, and between the provinces and the Dominion. The Opposition should have the speech circulated throughout the province. It would show the people "where they are at."

So the obedient majority has voted that Mr. McBride's "grand stand play" at Ottawa was the correct thing; and it has also voted that the plain and palpable misstatements in his "better terms" resolution, are truth, notwithstanding the fact that the resolution itself shows them to the the other thing. Truly the swallowing capacity of a Tory majority is wonderful.

PLAYING CARDS.

Peculiarities of Those Used by the Different Nations.

"One of the most interesting collections of foreign loot that I've seen recently," said a man ordinarily too busy to make the trip over the seas himself, "is an assortment of playing cards from various parts of the world.

"In every country the owner of the collection visited—and he went to a good many—picked up cards of local manufacture and so representative of the nation.

"The Russian cards are perhaps the most elaborate. The faces of the kings and queens are different in each suit, indicating the racial elements that go to compose the empire.

"On the Greek cards classical heroes and heroines are represented. Nestor, for example, is the king of hearts and Orestes the knave. Agamemnon is the king of clubs, Hercules the jack of spades and Minos and Danae the king and queen of diamonds. The Greek pack is rather a cheap one and scarcely does honor to the celebrities portrayed.

"Cadiz is a center for card manufacturing. The idea of the Spanish cardmaker seems to be to get as much color on the cards as possible. The royal robes are of unusual magnificence. The clubs are big bludgeons in green and red, and the knave of clubs, gayly caparisoned on a prancing horse, reminds you instantly of Jack the Giant Killer. The spades are ugly little daggers, and for hearts and diamonds there are disks and dice cups. The cards in some of the Spanish packs are very thin and have a capital spring.

"The Madeira cards come from Lisbon. The figures are more conventional in design than on the Spanish. The ace cards are adorned with typical Portuguese scenes.

"A peculiarity of the pack bought in Constantinople is that the ace cards, in addition to the single spade, diamond, club or heart in the center of each, have diminutive aces at the upper left hand and lower right hand corners.

"The Italian face cards portray decidedly gloomy personages. Each one of the face cards, by the way, carries in small print the name and address of the maker. There are tiny packs, an inch and a quarter by an inch and three-quarters in size, which can be bought on the streets of Naples for a soldo. These resemble the Spanish cards to some extent, although the royalties are more dignified.

"Cairo is a great card emporium, and Mousky street offers rich returns to the card hunter. Fortune telling cards must be in demand there, to judge from the samples I saw in the collection. The Cairo playing cards come mostly from Germany. They are brilliant in their coloring. The aces carry scenes from lands both west and east.

"The gem of all the packs comes from Switzerland. The cards are small, one and three-quarters by two and a half inches in size, and the back design is the edelweiss. The kings, queens and jacks are delightful studies in Swiss costume, and the purchaser certainly gets his money's worth, for each face card has two half figures quite unlike. On the aces are Swiss scenes and objects of interest, also two to a card, the subjects including the castle of Chillon, the Matterhorn, the bridge at Lucerne and the Lion of Lucerne."—Indianapolis Star.

Silvering Mirrors.

Mirrors are usually silvered by coating the glass with amalgam. For this purpose a large, perfectly flat stone is provided, and upon it is evenly spread a sheet of tin foil without crack or flaw. This is covered to the depth of one-eighth of an inch with clean mercury. The plate of glass, perfectly cleaned from all grease and impurity, is floated on to the mercury by sliding, so as to exclude all air bubbles. It is then pressed down by loading it with weights in order to press out all the mercury which remains fluid. This is received in a gutter around the stone. After about twenty-four hours it is gently raised upon its edge, and in a few weeks it is ready to frame.

There is a regular boom on at Port Moody, no less than nine Vancouver real estate men were sizing up the situation there last Saturday. Another hop fiend, hailing from Vancouver, was picked up by the city police yesterday evening. A young child of about four years of age had a rather narrow escape from being trampled on by a herd of cattle on Columbia street yesterday afternoon. The child's name is Smith, and his parents reside on Tenth street, near Royal avenue, from which place he had strayed, with the above result. Constable Maxwell had had his eye on the youngster for some time, but was not sure that it was lost. After rescuing it from the cattle, he decided to take the child to the station, where its identity was discovered, and then conveyed it to the home of the parents.

The death of W. B. Walker, an octogenarian, took place at his residence, Sixth street, about 6 o'clock yesterday evening. The deceased had been in poor health for some time and the end was not unexpected. Two daughters, Miss Walker and Mrs. Allen, were at his bedside when the old gentleman passed away. Mr. Allan, a son-in-law, was also present. For many years the late Mr. Walker carried on a floral and horticultural business in the city, and was the owner of the Sixth street greenhouses. The funeral arrangements have not yet been fixed, but D. Murchie will be the undertaker.

FAMOUS ARCHERS.

Stories of Wonderful Skill With Bow and Arrow.

The expression "drawing a long bow" does not of necessity mean the telling of a falsehood. It sometimes refers to a wonderful story, which may be true enough, but which is so marvelous as to require a firm trust in the veracity of the narrator to enable the hearer to believe it. Some of the longest bows of this sort have been drawn about bows and arrows.

These stories began long ago. Virgil in the "Æneid" tells of four archers who were shooting for a prize, the mark being a pigeon tied by a cord to the mast of a ship. The first man hit the mast, the second cut the cord, and the third shot the pigeon as it flew away. The fourth archer, having nothing left to shoot, drew his bow and sent his arrow flying toward the sky with such speed that the friction of the air set the feathers on fire, and it swept on, like a meteor, to disappear in the clouds.

The stories told of Robin Hood's archery, illustrated by his wonderful performance as Locksley in Scott's "Ivanhoe," are also a decided strain upon a sensible person's credulity. The famous story of William Tell, doubted by many persons, is believed by others to have a foundation of fact. There was a Dane named Foke of whom the same story is told, and William of Cloudesley, an Englishman, is said to have shot an apple from his son's head merely to show his expertness.

Most stories of bows and arrows relate to the accurate aim of the archers, but a Frenchman, Blaise de Vigenere, tells one that shows the tremendous force with which an arrow may be propelled if the bow be strong and long enough. According to his own account of the matter, he saw Barbarossa, a Turk, admiral of a ship called the Grand Solyman, send an arrow from his bow right through a cannon ball.

Where Snow Falls.

If you are not a lover of snow, go to Malta, which is the nearest spot where you are certain of complete immunity. If you are fond of it, the suburbs of St. Petersburg will furnish all you need to ask, for there you may be sure of it for 170 days in the year. The happy medium is supplied by Copenhagen, with thirty days, while Palermo, Rome and Venice, with one, two and five days respectively, may be recommended to those who merely care for snow as a casual and fleeting guest.—London Chronicle.

His Suggestion.

"That young woman is not intelligent, amiable or even decently courteous."

"Oh, but her father is worth a million dollars."

"Then I think she should be required to display a notice to that effect."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A Question.

"My wife thinks she will never find a better cook than the one we now have."

"Humph! Uh—er—say, what would you call your wife, a pessimist or an optimist?"—Cleveland Press.

THE SPANISH ESCURIAL.

It Is a Marvelous Specimen of Ancient Architecture.

The Escurial, the palace of the Spanish king, an architectural marvel, formerly described as the "eighth wonder of the world," is now seldom spoken of even by those who are ready to go wild over much less pretentious structures. The cornerstone of this "Spanish St. Peter's" was laid by Philip II. in 1563, but it was 302 years (1865) before the monstrous building was pronounced finished. It was built by Philip in fulfilment of a vow to erect the finest monastery in the world should his forces be successful in their great battle with the French. That battle was fought at St. Quentin on Aug. 10, 1557, St. Lawrence day, and in order to honor that saint as well as to fulfill his vow the king had the foundation of his great memorial laid on in the shape of a gridiron, the implement of torture upon which the goodly Lawrence is reputed to have suffered martyrdom.

To those who have never visited the Escurial the size of the gigantic structure is beyond comprehension. It is 740 feet from north to south and 580½ feet from east to west, the square towers at each corner rising to a height of over 200 feet. Within this monstrous building are the king's palace, a cathedral, a monastery of 200 cells, two colleges, three chapter houses, three library buildings, five large halls, six dormitories, three hospitals and over 3000 other rooms. In order to make St. Lawrence's gridiron complete, the building is built in quadrangular form, with seventeen rows or ranges of monstrous stone structures crossing each other at right angles, these forming the gridiron's ribs, the handle being a wing 470 feet in length. The church, which is a part of this vast pile of masonry, is 384 feet long, 230 feet wide, with a dome 330 feet in height. It is estimated that the building cost $50,000,000.

FRANKLIN'S GARB.

The Philosopher Often Taken For a Quaker, Though He Was Not One.

Benjamin Franklin was often taken for a Quaker, but the philosopher did not belong to the society of Friends. Franklin, being a simple citizen of Philadelphia, wore clothes of a fashion set by the Quakers in plain gray or drab suit. He continued to wear this costume while he was in France. Once when his court suit was not ready he appeared in his "republican" garb before Louis XVI. He became the fashion in France and indeed in nearly all Europe, and it was at one time the proper thing for young republicans and litterateurs to dress a la Franklin. The German historian Schlosser, describing Franklin's appearance in the French drawing rooms, speaks of "the simplicity of his external appearance, the friendly meekness of the old man and the apparent humility of the Quaker." In truth, the humility and the meekness were mostly matters of appearance, and the Quaker garb was only an aspect. Franklin was brought up by his parents in Boston in the Congregational church and was intended by them for the ministry. When he went to Philadelphia, he says in his autobiography, he paid his "annual subscription to the only Presbyterian minister or meeting we had in Philadelphia." But he distinctly avows his disagreement with Presbyterian doctrine and later was quite as ready to welcome and assist Whitefield, the Methodist, with whom he also openly disagreed. Later still, he took a pew in an Episcopal church, but he was never a communicant Episcopalian. He says much about religion in his autobiography, explains how he became a deist in his youth, but abandoned the doctrine because it was not useful in making men good. His own creed he declares to be belief in God and in the immortality of the soul. "Though my scheme was not wholly without religion," he writes, "there was no mark of any of the distinguishing tenets of any particular sect."—Youth's Companion.

HE GAINED HIS POINT.

To Do It the Actor Spoiled the Play and Lost His Position.

An American actress who had toured in England was telling her experiences and related an incident that amused her. She said:

"In a play produced in the provinces there is a scene in which the hero strikes the villain, who slinks away without seeking to defend himself. One night in a large manufacturing town the young fellow who played the deep dyed scoundrel remarked to the leading man before the curtain rose:

"'I say, old chap, I've got my fiancee out in front tonight with her father and mother. Now, of course they don't know anything about our business, and I'm afraid it would rather hurt me with them if I received a blow and ran away in the usual cowardly fashion. So, dear old chap, can't you omit the blow tonight?

"'But, my boy, the management will fine me 2 shillings!'

"'Well, I'll pay the fine.'

"'Oh, yes! That's all very well for you, but what do I get out of it? Nothing but a bad name with the powers that be.'

"'Oh, well, I'll give you 2 shillings extra, or, better yet, you hit me as usual, and I'll hit back! They'll fine me, not you, and I'll give you the 2 shillings besides. You see how I'm situated. I shouldn't like the girl to mix me up with the character I play. Outsiders are so funny that way.'

"So the compact was made, and that night when the hero cried, 'Sir Daniel Deepwater—or something of that sort—base offspring of a noble race, take that!' Sir Daniel not only 'took that,' but gave it back with such force that the pit in cheers rose at him, including his relatives to be by marriage, and he walked off the stage in triumph.

"I am sorry to add he lost his situation, but he gained his point."

An Odd Animal Community.

Natural enemies of the animal world are sometimes found living together in extraordinary communities. J. G. Millais in a volume on animals quotes this experience of an observer: "On one occasion when ferreting I bolted a fox, a cat, a stoat, a weasel and rabbits and rats out of the same earth. The fox bolted first, after giving the ferret a nip across the back, from the effects of which it died an hour later. Next came the stoat and then the cat, both of which I shot. Then followed the rabbits and rats promiscuously. It was a large burrow on the bank of a dry watercourse and often held a fox when I ferreted it afterward."
