CALLS FOR FULL EXPLANATION

Known Facts Regarding Ministerial Resignations, Coupled With Charges Publicly Made, Require Full and Open Statement from Premier.

Some extracts from a recent article in the Nelson Daily News are of general interest just now, in view of certain facts.

One of these facts is that a general election is pending.

Another is that Mr. Wilson dropped out of the McBride government last year while the legislature was in session; that the fact was concealed until after the House was prorogued, and no explanation has ever been given.

Another fact is that the Vancouver World and the Victoria Times have published, with considerable circumstantiality of detail, a statement that certain valuable lands, lying along the proposed route of the G. T. P., have been acquired by a syndicate represented by Sir A. Caron, in a manner which reflects upon the integrity of such members and officials of the McBride government as were cognizant of the transaction; and these papers, coupled with this a statement that the matter came before the government in May last.

Another fact is that Finance Minister Tatlow, according to the Province (McBride organ), refuses to talk about the story; and that the News-Advertiser, personal organ of Hon Mr. Cotton, prints a short and evasive paragraph which, while it calls the story a campaign slander, can hardly be called a denial.

The extracts from the Nelson article follow:

"That Mr. Green, now that he is out of public life, will engage in business, that he has something in view to which he proposes to turn his attention, is not doubted.

But that Mr. Green had pressed upon him any "job" where for his personal services he is to get more salary than he was getting as commissioner of lands and works, is ridiculous.

The general public believed (and until something different from a thin pretence is offered) will continue to believe, that on Saturday the 22nd of December, Mr. Green, just returned from a strenuous electioneering tour in the upper country, was called before a party caucus in Vancouver and severely handled.

That he was assailed more or less openly by Sir Hibbert Tupper, Charles Wilson, McGowan—probably Carter-Cotton and others, as a source of contention within the party, and of scandal and discredit in the country.

That through the good will of McBride and Tatlow, and by his own humble and plausible attitude, the resentment of his opponents was smothered and he took the noon day boat for Victoria under the impression that the storm had blown over.

That, while he was crossing the gulf an ultimatum was delivered by the recalcitrant element to McBride requiring Green's dismissal as the price of their continued support.

That upon Mr. Green's arrival in Victoria he found a message asking for his resignation and he tendered it. That he has since decided upon some line of business or speculation in which he proposes to engage for a livelihood, and as an afterthought, offers this as an excuse for his retirement.

Either Mr. Green was guilty of misconduct in office and got what he deserved or he was sacrificed to the greed and envy of the Vancouver Conservatives. In either case he retires from public life under circumstances of humiliation and disgrace.

But there is another horn to the dilemma.

For three and a half years Mr. Green, by virtue of his office, has been the chief trustee of the real estate of British Columbia.

All the land of the province, all of the timber, all of the coal and oil lands, all foreshore rights and fish trap privileges—all of the interest of the province in townsites, . rights of supervision remaining the province in regard to railway, ds grants all expenditures upon lic roads, have been in Mr. Gree hands.

On the eve of a dis ation of the legislature, (a dissolution which we are told Mr. Green opposed with all his might) with the inevitable fierce scrutiny of his administration that a general election campaign would bring, and with the probability of the speedy accession to power of those who would probe the secrets of his department, Mr. Green on his own showing has urgent private reasons for dropping out of public life.

To his own circle of friends he confides that he has formed business connections which promise such profit that he can no longer afford to remain in public life.

The nature of these connections, the nature of the contribution that Mr. Green has made to the capital stock of the syndicate from which he expects so much is to be kept secret.

Where Mr. Green the retiring manager of a bank or land company such a situation would excite the apprehensions of the stockholders. They would suspect malfeasance in office if not embezzlement, and they would insist upon an immediate and searching audit, and in the selection of the auditor Mr. Green would not be allowed to have a voice.

SAYS HIS OWN PARTY MADE THE BLUNDER

Leading Newfoundland Conservative Tells Why Ancient Colony Is not In Confederation

"It was my own party which failed to seize the opportunity to secure confederation, and it was one of the mistakes of the Conservative party," said Hon. A. B. Morine, a former member of the Cabinet of Newfoundland, speaking on the Island with reference to confederation with Canada before the Men's Club of St. Simon's Anglican Church. Hon. Mr. Morine described how in 1895 an anti-confederation Government of the Island had by the distress then existing been forced to come to Ottawa to ask for confederation from Sir Mackenzie Bowell's Cabinet. The negotiations were broken off because the Dominion Cabinet would not grant an additional $50,000 per year to the Island, and the delegates of Newfoundland left Ottawa very sorrowful. They told Sir Mackenzie Bowell if the Cabinet decided to make the additional grant that a message to that effect to the delegates at Halifax would at once bring them back to Ottawa. A telegram did come to the delegates at Halifax, but it was merely good-bye, and thus the opportunity was lost. Hon Mr. Morine said that since that day the Island had entered on a new era of prosperity, and it would cost Canada a hundred per cent. more now than it would in 1895 if confederation had been then consummated.

He supported the action of the British Government in the temporary settlement arrived at with the States over the fisheries, and urged that a union of Canada and Newfoundland would enable the Dominion to control the north Atlantic fisheries.

POINTERS

Grand Rally at Johnston's hall, Sapperton, to-night. Mr. Howay will address the electors.

The C. P. R. organ asserts that the province is solid for McBride; it also asserts that Zam-Buk is good for burns.

But if Gifford is a sure winner, why are the Columbian fellows hedging on their bets?

"Mr. Bowser was delayed by mud slides"; and still people will deny that there is such a thing as retributive justice!

"Mr. McBride tore into shreds" Opposition statements. So the organs inform us; but they are still as mice when one asks them to give a categorical answer to these same statements.

TEMPERANCE ORATOR DENOUNCES DRINK

Dr. Chown Explains His Views on Liquor Traffic—Sees Local Option Coming.

The supporters of local option, and many friends of the temperance cause, gathered together last evening in order to listen to one of the foremost temperance orators of Canada, the Rev. S. D. Chown, D.D., secretary of the moral and temperance department of the Methodist church in Canada, who delivered an excellent lecture in the Queen's Avenue Methodist church. The audience, although not as large as had been expected, was keenly appreciative, and followed the learned speaker's remarks with close attention from start to finish.

The speaker was introduced by the Rev. J. S. Henderson, the Rev. W. H. Barraclough and Rev. A. deB. Owen also having seats on the platform. In the course of his remarks, Dr. Chown stated that the co-operation of the churches on the question of the liquor traffic was most remarkable; churches might be divided on theological points, but they united in the common cause of fighting their worst enemy. In his opinion, the province of British Columbia was lining up for local option, and he had no doubt that it would prevail here before many years. If the drink traffic could be abolished, half the tears shed on the continent would be wiped away. It was a great mistake that the nation's flag should be used to protect the bottle instead of protecting the boys from the evil and corrupt influences of the bar-room. Even the hotel keepers had realized that they must make some kind of an attempt to make their traffic more respectable, and in Ontario, at their own request, an age limit of twenty one years had been placed on persons who could be served with drink at the bars.

The outlook of the temperance party was most hopeful, because the evils of the demon drink were becoming more fully realified every year, and this gradual awakening would naturally result in the complete suppression of the traffic. The degenerating influence of the drink traffic was perhaps better realized by the perusal of the prospectus of insurance companies, where the hotel men, bar tenders, and others connected with the drink business were placed in the lowest class.

Dr. Chown also devoted some time to the political questions of the day, dealing with them in a general way, and impressing upon the people the necessity of voting only for good and true men, who would properly represent the interests of all classes. The grasping greed for gold which is becoming one of the national traits of Canada, was also referred to in condemnatory terms, the speaker pointing out that manhood should stand before money every time. A vote of thanks moved by Dr. White, and seconded by Mr. Small, brought the evening to a close.

At Mission City To-Night.

There will be a Liberal meeting at Mission City tonight, when Mr. W. W. B. McInnes will address the electors.

CHILLIWACK CITIZENS CROSS TREACHEROUS ICE

Roped Together Like Alpine Tourists Five Men Safely Walk Across the River.

Capt. Gardner arrived in the city yesterday from Chilliwack after a thrilling trip. Five of the citizens (of whom Capt. Gardner was one) of that flourishing little centre made up their minds that they would venture across the frozen Fraser rather than go all the way round by Abbotsford. They therefore roped themselves together as though they were about to climb a mountain and started out. The first man was armed with a long, sharp pike pole, with which he prodded and poked the ice to see if it was safe to venture upon. Every few yords the roll was called to see if any of the number were missing, and if the rope was holding secure. The ice in some places was somewhat crackly and the hair of one or two of the members of the party which has hitherto hung as curly as a yard of pump water is said to have stuck out straight, "like quills upon the fretful porcupine." One man's foot went into the water and he stopped to investigate and find just how much of him had disappeared and was much relieved to find that he was all there. The trip to the opposite side of the river was eventually accomplished and when the roll was called upon the bank it looked like a second edition of the landing of the pilgrim fathers and the adventurous five felt quite proud of themselves. They all arrived in this city and someone has suggested that it would be well for them to apply for medals or the Victoria cross or something of that kind, and also that a tablet containing a record of the achievement be placed on the banks of the Fraser near to the spot where the deed was done.

Beaver Out Again.

Yesterday afternoon the toot of the Beaver's whistle was heard pealing over the water once more, when a brave and successful attempt was made to free the vessel from the icy barrier which hemmed it in. The help of the Dauntless was solicited to aid in the matter but she was otherwise engaged. The Flyer could have been secured, but it would have been necessary to have waited, ice bound, until today. Therefore Station Agent Goulet, with the captain and the members of his crew decided to work the trick without outside help. The ice was cleared from around the hull, and as soon as this had been accomplished, the vessel forged ahead for the bridge and broke through the ice in fine style. The first difficulty was encountered at the bridge. The vessel had slanted across the river and the trouble was to break away the ice so as to get a straight course through the draw. This was eventually accomplished and the next difficulty was breaking through the sharp edge of the ice after they had traversed the open water. The ice was very thick, but the steel hull of the Beaver dispelled it without very much trouble. The fog was so thick that the vessel approached the landing very slowly. A large number of citizens were at the landing to see her arrive.

CROOKES' DISCOVERY WILL DOUBLE CROPS

Wizard Scientist of England Solves Method of Extracting Nitric Acid From Atmosphere---Cereal Foods Will Tumble in Price as a Result.

New York, Jan. 23.—When scientists read yesterday the cabled report of Sir William Crookes' discovery of a commercial method of extracting nitric acid from the atmosphere, they said there was no longer any fear of a scarcity of food from overpopulation, because the result of the discovery would be the doubling of the world's crops. Nitric acid adds greatly to the productivity of the soil.

Nitrate of soda, used for that purpose, has now grown so scarce, it is said, that it will soon be exhausted. At present the process of extracting nitric acid from the air is expensive, Prof. C. F. Chandler, head of the department of chemistry of Columbia University, explained, but said that with the cheapening of electricity which is implied in the process, nitric acid manufactured by the new method will be cheaper than the nitrate of soda.

"When a practical working process is perfected," said Prof. Chandler, "every waterfall in the country will be available for the production of the atmospheric fertility. Scientists have been working on this problem for a hundred years, but real headway has only been made recently.

Chicago, Jan. 23.—A tumble in the price of cereal foods all over the world and a vast increase in the crops of farmers in all lands—such is the result foreseen by Chicago experts in agricultural chemistry as the sequel of Sir William Crooks' discovery of a method of extracting nitric acid from the atmosphere.

Local authorities declared yesterday that if the cablegrams were correct in saying that the method was sufficiently perfect to be of value commercially, then a most important effect would be had on the raising of cereals.

It is prophesied that farmers will be enabled to get a far greater yield from their land than had been the case in the past, if nitrates are cheapened so that they can be used to a larger extent for fertilizing.

Elihu Visits.

Montreal, Jan. 23.—Elihu Root, American secretary of state, arrived here from Ottawa last evening accompanied by Mrs. Root and Miss Root. They will be the guests of Lord Strathcona until Thursday, when the party will return to Washington.

SWETTENHAM'S REASON WILL REMAIN PRIVATE

British Government Has Jamaican Governor's Explanation of His Action—No Statement

London, Jan 23.—The British government here has heard from Gov. Swettenham, of Jamaica, concerning the incident involving the withdrawal of the American warships from Kingston. Absolute secrecy is maintained at the Colonial office, but the fact was elicited that during the night a good many telegrams were received from Swettenham, some of which dealt with the incident. These, it is understood, confirm the main features of the affair as already known.

It is not the present intention of the colonial office to make the telegrams public, the official view being that it is a personal affair between a government department and an official, which is properly adjustable between them. The authorities incline to the view that general interests will be best served by having the replies appear in a blue book at some distant period, in the meantime being dealt with through the usual diplomatic channels.

Funeral of James Spiers.

The funeral of the late James Spiers an old and trusted employe of the Royal City Planing Mills, who died at Rock Bay logging camp, will take place today at 2 o'clock, from Murchie's undertaking establishment to the Masonic cemetery. Mr. Spiers was born in Percy township, Northumberland county, Ontario, Nov. 14, 1844. He was well known to and highly respected by, New Westminster people. A sad coincidence is, that his only daughter, Mrs Dr. Fife, of Port Kells, is dangerously ill with pneumonia.

To-Night's Attraction.

Everything points to a very successful entertainment this evening when "Cupid in Posterland" is to be presented under the auspices of the Anti-Tuberculosis society. The advance sale of tickets has been such that the managers of the local amateur company have every reason to believe that a crowded house will greet the rise of the curtain tonight. A fully detailed programme will be found on page three of this issue.

MEROPOLITAN LIFE PLANS IMMENSE ANNEX

Gotham's Newest Skyscraper Will Boast 48 Storeys—Floor Space 25 Acres.

New York, Jan. 23.—Work will soon begin on the annex to the Metropolitan Life Building. Some of the dimensions of the annex, which with its tower, is to be the highest structure in the world follow:

Height above the sidewalk, 658 feet. Total height from foundation, 690½ feet, number of storeys above sidewalk, 46, number of storeys below sidewalk 2, grand total floor area of new Metropolitan Building, 1,035,663 square feet (about 25 acres).

The annex is to occupy the site of Dr. Parkhurst's old church on Madison Square.

The Metropolitan Life building and the church structure now occupy the block bounded by Madison and Fourth avenues, and Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth streets. When the annex is completed the entire block will be occupied by the company.

The Sick Chamber.

J. Walmsley, of Sapperton, is lying dangerously ill at his residence, and but little hope is entertained of the old gentleman's recovery. He is over ninety years of age. Detective and Mrs. Jackson, of Vancouver, were sent for yesterday, Mrs Jackson being a daughter of Mr. Walmsley's.

T. Goldie was reported early this morning to be doing very well, although his condition is still considered grave.

Both hospitals report having almost every available cot occupied with patients, la grippe being the prevailing ailment.

Makeshift Mashers.

New York, Jan. 23.—The latest innovation by a local theatre here is a corps of uniformed men as escorts for unprotected women who come unattended to evening performances. The professional escorts are stationed in the lobbby in full regalia. Any woman who desires an escort will simply be required to notify the box office between the acts and the man detailed to her service will be in evidence at the close of the performance.

A LITTLE NONSENSE.

'Twas a Long Root, Thought the Irishman,

An Irishman, with one jaw very much swollen from a tooth that he wished to have pulled, entered the office of a Washington dentist.

When the suffering Celt was put into the chair and saw the gleaming forceps approacning his face he positively refused to open his mouth. Being a man of resource, the dentist quietly instructed his assistant to push a pin into the patient's leg, so that when the Irishman opened his mouth to yell the dentist could get at the refractory molar.

When all was over the dentist smilingly asked:

"It didn't hurt as much as you expected, did it?"

"Well, no," reluctantly admitted the patient. "But," he added as he ran his hand over the place into which the assistant had inserted the pin, "little did I think them rootswint that far down!"—Success.

MALE DRESS REFORM

IT IS HOPELESSLY HAMPERED BY THE STIFF WHITE SHIRT.

The Way This Garment Interferes With Both Health and Comfort. Some of the Absurdities of the Present Masculine Style of Attire.

The necessity by which men feel coerced of proving to the world that they wear white shirts lies at the basis of all the difficulties of the dress problem.

Until the garment becomes extinct it is hopeless to attempt the reform of men's dress on the lines of health and comfort.

It will of course ultimately disappear, for it is but the mark of a stage in the evolution of dress, just as the vermiform appendix is a useless evolutionary remnant in the body. But the question is whether we ought to await the slow course of evolution or to use our common sense and abandon the ancient garment at once.

Why do we wear white shirts? Ages ago it was only the wealthy who could afford to clothe themselves in linen. The possession of linen underwear was then a mark of social position, and there was an obvious advantage in making public display of it.

We may put down three-fourths of the discomfort of the hot summer to the account of the starched shirt. It prevents the very process devised by nature to keep the body cool—the evaporation of sweat. In so far as it hinders this natural process in summer, the white shirt favors disease. But in winter it is a fruitful cause of illness.

In winter the mere wearing of a white shirt would no doubt leave a man no better and no worse if he were content to wear it for his own satisfaction. But the curious law of evolution comes in and compels him to wear it in such a way as to do himself physical injury.

Wherever evolution is at work it leaves vestiges—literally, footprints. Probably it is millions of years since the vermiform appendix became a useless organ, but it still survives. All evolutionary survivals appear to be harmful. The appendix is the seat of appendicitis. In the inner corner of the eye there is the remnant of a once useful third lid, which now only lodges dust and causes irritation.

The lord chancellor's wig was once a comfort in ancient drafty legislative chambers and now merely serves to make a sensible man look ridiculous and give him headaches.

People who drew up laws were long ago paid according to the number of words, but the multiplicity of words now only causes confusion. So the white shirt that was once a badge of wealth and culture, being no longer of value for that purpose, is only a cause of discomfort and disease.

It is necessary to cut a piece out of the vest and the coat, just over the most important organs of the body, in order to prove to our neighbors that we wear white shirts. Consequently in the winter time we expose the lungs and the air passages to the cold wind and the cold rain.

From the point of view of health nothing could be more stupid. Bronchitis is one of the most deadly of all diseases in this country. Bronchitis is simply inflammation of the bronchial tubes. This inflammation is excited by a chill, a chilling of that part of the body left exposed in order to show that we wear white shirts.

The white shirt, in fact, might appear in the tables of the registrar general as the cause of so many deaths, perhaps 100,000 a year.

And does it really improve a man's appearance? By virtue of the association of ideas it certainly does. Usually men who do not wear white shirts are not given to cleanliness. The man who wears a white shirt washes his face and hands and brushes his clothes; hence when we see a white front and white cuffs we experience that pleasant sensation produced by general neatness of the person and clothing. But that a few square inches of white clothing over the chest makes a man look better is an absurd conclusion.

The case for the white shirt has not a leg to stand upon. The garment is uncomfortable, unhealthy and unbecoming. And as it has lost the only useful function it ever possessed—that is, its symbolism of exceptional wealth—we ought to discard it altogether. The difficulties of this course are very great no doubt. What we want is an "antiwhite shirt society," which would agree to wear, from some prearranged date, a dress designed wholly with regard for comfort, health and beauty.—T. F. Manning in London Gossip.

Making Love Up a Tree.

Billing and cooing among the Fijians is a curious feature in their social customs. It is decidedly against the rule to do any courting within doors. The gardens or plantations are the spots held sacred to Cupid, and the generally approved trysting place of lovers is high up among the branches of a breadfruit tree. You may often walk around a plantation on a moonlight night and see couples perched forty feet from the ground in the breadfruit trees, one on each side of the trunk, a position which comes fairly within the limits of a Fijian maiden's ideas of modesty.

THE FUN OF THE THING.

There is a whole lot of humor tucked away in the utterances of Conservative writers and speakers in these days. Most of it, it is true, is unconscious humor, but it is all the funnier on that account. Nature planted in Middle Canada long stretches of splendid wheat land. The Government of the Dominion and other agencies advertised this fact, and settlers came pouring in. This, coupled with the destruction caused elsewhere by war and disaster, has made a splendid market for British Columbia lumber. Again, Nature has endowed New Westminster with certain advantages which make it one of the best, if not the very best, site for manufactures on the Pacific Coast. These causes have brought it prosperity, and as a consequence, the store-keeping part of the community reaped a fine harvest at Christmas time. Mr. Gifford, wishing to extol the McBride Government, points to this fact as a reason why that government should be sustained. As well might Mr. Howay have said that, because we have had a hard winter, the Government should be put out. One argument would have just as much in it as the other; the government has as much to do with one as with the other, yet Mr. Gifford thought he had made a fine point for his side. If you ask the Conservatives how and wherein the McBride government contributed to the prosperity of the Province, they are dumb; or perchance they will tell you of those barrels of apples which the Government sent to exhibitions in the Old Country.

Take another variation. Almost in the same breath, Monday night, Mr. Gifford told us that the Government should be sustained because the Province was so prosperous; and that the vexations road tolls on the bridge could not be taken off because the Province was so poor!

Take, again, the better terms question. The only "issue" there is the ridiculous mess the Premier made of the matter with his "grand stand play." The Conservative story, as we have it from Mr. Gifford and others is, that Mr. McBride spent days in urging the special claims of this province on the other premiers, but that the effort was in vain, because the conference was merely "Laurier's tool." Point out to them that the offer which Mr. McBride met by bouncing out and banging the door, was made by Mr. Whitney, the Tory Premier of Ontario, and they wheel around and say that better terms was not a question for the conference at all—the Dominion Government should have dealt with it. Point out then, that Mr. McBride did not give the Dominion Government a chance; did not put them "up against it," as the phrase is, and they say, there was no need; the cause had been fully stated in the official reports of the Province. The Dominion Government, they say, has the power to act, and should have acted on these reports. Then, if you are a Westminster man, you say, how about the official reports of the Province on the Fraser river fisheries. They demand that all fishing above the bridge be prohibited, and that the river be entirely closed for one or more seasons. Do you approve of that? Then they say, as Mr. McBride said at Coquitlam, "the Province has nothing to do with fishing regulations."

So these people go on, arguing round in circles, like puppy dogs chasing their own tails, and never seeming to realize what spectacles they make of themselves.

A cablegram announces the death of Dr. Agnes Turnbull, the Presbyterian missionary to Central India, who recently received the Kaiser-i-Hind medal for her services during the plague. This medal is a similar award to the Victoria Cross, and is bestowed for valiant and conspicuous service rendered to the government. Death was due to paralysis caused by over work and exposure while fighting the plague.

Having trouble with the salt? Gets damp and hardens? Then you are not using WINDSOR TABLE SALT. It never cakes.

Jove occasionally nods and the Toronto Globe makes slips. The Globe refers to "Judge Green" resigning to enter the stormy field of politics. Mr. Green did resign but not a judgeship. A judge also resigned but he was not Green. Persons, positions, and motives were all different.

Discussing the election of a new Primate of the Church of England in Canada, the Mail and Empire says: "The Archbishop in the East, moreover, is usually the chief of the two Archbishops, and is known as the Primate of All Canada, just as the Archbishop of Canterbury is Primate of All England, while the Archbishop of York is the Primate of England." There is no such relation between the two provinces of the Church. The first Primate was Dr. Macrae, Archbishop of Rupert's land. The second Archbishop Bond of Montreal. There has not been much room for any precedent to arise. The needs of the Church and not geographical location will probably govern for a long time to come.

Telling Tales.

The holder of the woman's national whist championship has declared that card-playing is a sin. Following so close on John D. Rockefeller's advice against the burden of wealth and Manager Fleming's declaration on the solicitude of the Toronto Railway Company for the comfort of the public, this looks as if the people who really knew were inclined to disclose their secrets.—Toronto Globe.

A SISTER'S COURAGE.

Presence of Mind of an Eighteenth Century Irish Woman.

In looking over some family papers and bundles of old letters I discovered one by Mrs. Jeffereys of Blarney castle, County Cork, which contains an account of a circumstance interesting in itself as an instance of heroism on the part of the narrator toward her brother, the Earl of Clare, and so valuable as bringing to light a remarkable event connected with the history of those troubled times that I feel I am only discharging a duty in submitting it to the notice of the editor.

The letter is dated 9 Molesworth street, July, 1807, and, among other matters, Mrs. Jeffereys writes as follows:

"On the day Lord Fitzwilliam was recalled, when my brother (as chancellor) was returning from the castle after having assisted at the swearing in of the newly arrived lord lieutenant, a ferocious mob of no less than 5,000 men and several hundred women assembled together in College green and all along the avenue leading to my brother's house. The male part of the insurgents were armed with pistols, cutlasses, sledges, saws, crowbars and every other weapon necessary to break open my brother's house, and the women were all of them armed with their aprons full of paving stones. This ferocious and furious mob began to throw showers of stones into my brother's coach, at his coachman's head and his horses. They wounded my brother in the temple in College green, and if he had not sheltered himself by holding his great square official purse before him he would have been stoned to death before he arrived through the back yard at his own house, where with several smithy sledges they were working hard to break into his hall door, while others of them had ropes ready to fix up to his lamp iron to hang him the moment they could find him. When I arrived, disguised in my kitchen maid's dress, my blue apron full of stones, I mingled with this numerous mob and addressed a pale, sickly man, saying: 'My dear Jo'n, what'll become of hus! I am after running from the castle to tell yees all that a regiment of hos is galloping down here to thrample hus, etc. Oh, yet, yet, where will we go?' Then they cried: 'Harry, hurry, the hos is coming to charge and thrample hus! Hurry for the custom house.' And in less than a moment the crowd dispersed.

"I then procured a surgeon for my brother and a guard to prevent another attack, and thus I saved Lord Clare's life at the risk of being torn limb from limb if I had been recognized by any of the mob."—London Notes and Queries.

Followed His Pipe.

An old Hungarian countryman had smoked the same pipe for more than fifty years and as a natural consequence had grown to love it as a companion. One day, however, his infant grandson smashed the pipe beyond all hope of repair. The old man was so broken hearted at his loss that he hanged himself on a peg. In his pocket was found a scrap of paper on which was scribbled, "My pipe is done for, and I must go too."

Helpful.

Mrs. Helphunter—A young strong girl like you from South Carolina ought to be able to do something around a house even if you cannot bake, wash, iron or dust furniture. Can't you do anything?

"Um-um, missy—ya'as, Ah kin cook yo' a gorjus possum dinnah—ya-as, indeedy!"—Puck.

Woman's Idea of Them.

"Here's a clever thing in oil," said she at the art exhibition. "It's called 'When the Cat's Away,' but I don't see the artist's name. I wonder who painted it."

"Evidently a woman," replied her escort. "See what a ferocious expression she has given the mice."—Philadelphia Press.

Not Discouraged.

"Doesn't it sometimes discourage you to find so many of your scientific theories inaccurate?"

"Not at all," said the learned man. "There are always plenty of new ones to discover. And theories are always more interesting than demonstrations."—Washington Star.

The condition of the cars on the city service of the B. C. E. R. company, which was complained of in these columns a few days ago, has been explained by D. J. AN OCEAN IN THE AIR.

The Queer Superstition That Once Prevailed in England.

The curious superstition that there is an ocean above the clouds is illustrated by the following strange story by an old English writer: "One Sunday the people of a certain village were coming out of church on a thick, cloudy day when they saw the anchor of a ship hooked to one of the tombstones, the cable, which was tightly stretched, hanging down from the air. The people were astonished, and while they were consulting about it suddenly they saw the rope move as though some one labored to pull up the anchor. The anchor, however, still held fast by the stone, and a great noise was heard in the air like the shouting of sailors. Presently a sailor was seen sliding down the cable for the purpose of unfixing the anchor. When he had just loosened it the villagers seized hold of him, and while in their hands he quickly died, just as though he had been drowned.

"About an hour later the sailors above, hearing no more of their comrade, cut the cable and sailed away. In memory of this extraordinary event the people of the village made the hinges of the church doors out of the iron of the anchor." It is further stated that these hinges "are still to be seen there," a bit of evidence much like Munchausen's rope wherewith he once climbed to the moon. If you doubted the story you were confronted with the rope.

There is another queer tale about this aerial ocean. "A merchant of Bristol," it is said, "set sail with his cargo for Ireland. Some time after, while his family were at supper, a knife suddenly fell in through a window on the table. When the merchant returned and saw the knife he declared it to be his own and said that on such a day, at such an hour, while sailing in an unknown part of the sea, he dropped the knife overboard, and the day and the hour were found to be exactly the time when it fell through the window." All of which was once implicitly believed by many and regarded as incontrovertible proof of the existence of a sea above the sky. One is at a loss to conjecture how that "unknown part of the sea" connected with the rest of it. A physical geography showing this would be no small curiosity.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

The doctor can't always cure you; sometimes it's your mean disposition.

The trouble about a good time is that people seldom agree on what it is.

If a shiftless man in a country town doesn't keep greyhounds he usually plays a fiddle.

So many men fool away so much valuable time doing things in which there is neither point nor profit.

It is not recorded that any financial genius ever got his start by purchasing diamonds on the installment plan.

When a man is telling of a quarrel he has had and says, "I said to the other fellow," he nearly always makes what he says a good deal worse than it was.

After a girl has married and left home she sits up and takes notice every time her parents buy an expensive dress for the daughter still at home.—Atchison Globe.

The Department Store.

The organization of a great department store is almost military in its discipline and is one of the best examples of what organization can accomplish. The proprietor is commander in chief, and under him are a number of assistants who are what might be considered district supervisors. Below them are the heads of departments, who are responsible to their district chief or to some other head. The floorwalker, the man who is so much in evidence because he spends his time in the aisles, is, in fact, a superintendent or foreman in charge of a department or series of departments. Each counter is under the general supervision of what is known as a head salesman, but this head salesman is subject to the direction of the floorwalker.—"Starting In Life," by N. C. Fowler, Jr.

Peasant and King.

Henry IV., the idol of the French people, was also a king of phrase makers. During one of his tours through France he arrived at a small village and ordered that the most intelligent villager be sent to converse with him while he dined. When the rustic appeared the king ordered him to take a seat opposite to him at the table. "What is your name?" asked the monarch. "Sire, I am called Gaillard," replied the peasant. "What is the difference," said the king, "between gaillard" (i. e., a jolly fellow) "and paillard" (i. e., a rake)? "Sire," was the reply, "there is but a table between the two."

Life Marks Are Indelible.

We are not writing in the sand. The tide does not wash it out. We are not painting our pictures on the canvas and with a brush so that we can erase the error of yesterday or overlap it with another color today. We are writing our lives with a chisel on the marble, and every time we strike a blow we leave a mark that is indelible.—Lyman Abbott, D. D.

Wedding Bells.

A very pretty wedding took place yesterday evening when Miss Eva Lennie, and Dr. E. H. McEwen, were united in the bonds of matrimony. The ceremony took place at the bride's home, on 7th street, the bride's father, Rev. R. Lennie, D.D., assisted by the Rev. J. H. McEwen, father of the groom, officiating. The ceremony was performed in the dining room which was most tastefully decorated for the occasion.

She carried a bouquet of white carnations and maiden-hair fern. The bride was assisted by Miss L Woods and Miss J. M. McEwen, while E. D. Lennie supported the groom. The bridesmaids were dressed in cream nun's veiling, and carried shower bouquets of pink carnations.

The gifts from the groom to the bride consisted of a beautiful gold watch and gold fleur de lis pin, while the bridesmaids were each presented with a gold broach, set with opals.
