LIBERALS DECIDE TO HOLD CONVENTION

Candidate for Federal House Will Be Nominated on April 21—Tories Criticized

At a general meeting of the Liberals held in the Eagles' hall last evening it was unanimously decided to hold a nomination convention for the New Westminster electoral district on Friday, April 21.

The meeting was largely attended and when President George Kennedy called the assembly to order almost every chair in the hall was filled.

It did not take long for the president to introduce the business for which the meeting had been called, to wit, the advisability of calling a nominating convention at an early date.

John Oliver placed the matter in a tangible form by stating that at a meeting of the federal executive, held during the afternoon, it had been decided to call the convention.

Time for Organization.

He explained that it was time that the Liberals displayed more activity and the sooner a candidate was got into the field for the next Dominion elections the better it would be for the Liberal party in British Columbia.

There was some objection raised to the meeting being called at the present time, but after the matter had been thoroughly threshed out the motion to endorse the action of the committee which fixed the date was put and carried. On a question raised by R. Jardine, John Oliver announced that in case the quarantine in some of the districts was not raised until a short time before the date fixed, the convention would be postponed.

A feature of the evening was an eloquent address by John Oliver, while making some criticisms of the Conservative party and urging the abuses mentioned as a reason for the necessity of hurried and concerted action on the part of the Liberals.

Too Many Tramps.

He first referred to the great number of tramps, vagrants and desperate criminals which seem to come over the boundary at will and which at the present time infest all the boundary country around the Fraser. He did not deny that the Dominion government was in some measure to blame for some of the men who came over the boundary in spite of immigration officials, but he claimed that the provincial Conservative party was much more derelict in its duty for the reason that, although there were two members of the provincial police force stationed in the city of New Westminster, there was not a single officer along the line to protect the lives and property of the people of British Columbia.

When Mr. Oliver stated that he spoke on the subject from personal knowledge there was some laughter, for all present knew the story of Honest John's hold-up, but it could be seen that he was earnest in his remarks and that the feeling of the meeting was unanimously in accord with the strictures he had expressed.

He proposed to place the blame for such a condition where it belonged—on the shoulders of the attorney-general. It was too much to expect the Liberals to bear the sins of their own party and also carry the blame for the gross carelessness of the provincial Conservatives.

High Cost of Living.

Another matter he touched on was the high cost of living. In the Conservative platform at the recent election it was set forth that certain coal lands owned by the province should be retained and the price of coal thus brought down. But though tens of thousands of acres of coal land had been disposed of not one acre had been set aside for the use of the people. He recalled some history which had taken place at the time he was a member of the house. He had wanted the government to institute an inquiry into the high price of coal, but every Conservative member of the house had gone on record as opposed to the proposition. Dr. McGowan wanted the Dominion government to institute an inquiry, although all the lands and the disposal of them were vested in the provincial parliament.

Now he had changed around and the thing that he (Mr. Oliver) had advocated, namely, a provincial inquiry, was being brought forward by Conservative Dr. McGowan.

The C. N. R. Policy.

Referring to the C. N. R. policy of the provincial government he said that he would stake his reputation on the assertion that when the road was completed it would be weighted down with an indebtedness of $100,000 per mile. The contract for the construction of the road was let to the Canadian Northern Construction company, another name for Mackenzie and Mann. By this deal he was of the opinion that Sir William Mackenzie and Sir Daniel Mann would be enabled to pocket about $41,000,000.

The land policy of the provincial government also came in for criticism. Hundreds of thousands of acres had passed into the hands of speculators through the negligence or connivance of the Conservative party. "Is it any wonder," he exclaimed, "that the millions of dollars we are taking from our forests and fisheries are going to other countries to supply us with the necessities of life."

Spoils for Speculators.

He said that the Conservative party had adopted at their convention in Nelson a resolution to the effect that it was time a colonization policy was adopted by them. This meant that they were now going to build roads to the lands which they had previously disposed of to speculators so that the actual tiller of the soil would be compelled to pay an advanced price for his land and enrich the speculators.

In referring to the Canadian navy he stated that although it had been laughed at by the Conservatives it was necessary to protect Canada's coast trade and would doubtless lead to greater endeavors along that line. "I look forward to the time when there will be an Imperial council and representatives from Canada will sit on the board. And I say to you that is good Liberal doctrine and nothing to be ashamed of."

George Kennedy, president of the Westminster Liberal association, gave an interesting report of his visit to Ottawa with the delegation which went to ask for a grant for the improvement of the Fraser river.

Coming Improvements.

He explained that following the visit to the capital by Mr. Jardine and himself there had come the establishment of the mail service on the B. C. E. R. Chilliwack line; the visit of Deputy Postmaster General Dr R. M. Coulter and the consequent promise of an increase in the number of post offices in the district, and the inauguration of the free transportation of mail carriers on the city car lines. He also stated that he had made some representations in regard to the fishing industry and thought that the result would be that there would soon be placed in New Westminster an official with a thorough understanding of local conditions and larger discretionary powers than had hitherto been invested in any one in connection with the industry on the coast. It was also quite probable that there would be some changes in the fishing regulations.

W. T. Cooksley gave a notable speech on organization in the district and ex-Councillor Fox, of Coquitlam, and A. E. Kellington gave interesting speeches on matters of considerable interest to the party.

SAILING IS NOT PLAIN FOR TREATY WITH CANADA

Washington Prophets Say Agreement Will Not Be Ratified by Congress or Senate.

Washington, Jan. 27.—Snags began to loom up in the pathway of the new Canadian reciprocity agreement before the measure had been open for discussion in congress twenty-four hours. The prediction is made by members well versed in the question of preferential tariff that the bill will not pass congress, and even if it did it could not pass the senate.

London, Jan. 27.—The scope of the reciprocity treaty between Canada and the United States came as a distinct surprise to the public, as no one expected such a long list of changes in the free entries.

On the whole the measure may be said to be favorably regarded. The United Kingdom loses some of the advantages it has hitherto enjoyed with Canada, but this was expected.

The tariff reformers and the Imperialists are not at all enthusiastic.

SEERESS SOON TO BRIDGE STYX

Medium Sees Short Cut To Spirit Land by Way of the Telephone.

Chicago, Jan. 26.—Laura A. Fixen, a spiritualistic medium, announces that an instrument is in progress of invention which will enable the living to communicate with the dead. This invention will bridge the Styx, and its success will be due to mechanical genius, she says.

"It will be something like a telephone," said Mrs. Fixen. "As soon as we get it each of us can talk directly with loved ones gone before. Can any thought be more beautiful?"

Her auditors signified they could think of nothing so closely approaching the seraphic.

FLAG-WAGGING IS NOT STRONG POINT OF WEST

London, Jan. 27.—H. S. Woodward, president of the Prince Albert board of trade, tells London people that they don't do much flag-wagging in the west, but the English tradition is stronger than in the east.

"We probably regard ourselves as less of an arm of England than they do in the east, but there is more of the relation of mother and son," he said.

"Round Prince Albert we don't have huge steam-broken, steam-plowed and steam-reaped prairie, but mixed farms, more like England."

TODAY USHERS IN CHINESE NEW YEAR

Festival in Chinatown Will Last One Week—Celestials Give Presents.

Everyone in the city who is at all intimate with a Chinaman or who has one in his employ is sure today to get a present of Chinese delicacies, for today the celebration of the Chinese New Year commences.

On this occasion the Chinaman, usually so frugal, opens his heart in a way worthy of the emulation of white people. Every Chinaman presents his white friends with packages of Chinese nuts, boxes of ginger, and where there are any children in the family, with some firecrackers.

The celebration in Chinatown will start tonight with a grand salvo of firecrackers and will continue intermittently for one week. The Chinese residents of the city have been making preparations for the event for weeks and everything is now in readiness for a first class time.

At the market yesterday the Celestial market goers made a clean sweep of all the poultry offered. Poultry is the staple food during the celebration of the greatest holiday in the Chinese year.

In all the stores and in many of the more pretentious dwellings in Chinatown little shrines have been rigged up. Large colored drawings of some mysterious Chinese saint, the identity of whom no white man has far been able to fathom, form the background for a little table set with strange collections of Chinese food and before this incarnation of all that the Chinaman holds dear he performs queer rites and mystical Oriental ceremonies.

The celebration will not reach its height until Monday, the start tonight being merely by way of a preliminary for the greater proceedings of the days to follow. Sunday will be celebrated in a quiet way.

BONSPIEL BROOMS SUGGESTED BARGAIN SALE

Edmonton, Jan. 27.—Everybody in Edmonton is not Scotch, and that is probably the reason why some people have been perplexed during the past week when they saw every second man on the street or in a street car carrying a broom.

For instance, a woman with a practical mind was walking along Jasper avenue on Wednesday and was meeting curler after curler. Then she met another woman who went to the same church as she did, and who knew her pretty well. She was excited and her friend remarked that she seemed worried over something.

"I certainly am," she replied. "There is a bargain sale in brooms somewhere in town. I need one badly, but at the rate they seem to be going, I'm afraid they will be all sold out before I find the place. I have wanted to ask the men I've been meeting where they got them, but I just couldn't."

QUEEN OF MOULIN ROUGE IS NOT AT ALL NAUGHTY

Big Audience Watched and Waited for Salacious Stuff, But All in Vain—Music and Dancing Good.

"The Queen of the Moulin Rouge" has been advertised as an extremely sensational musical comedy, but apart from having a perfect chorus both in singing and in form there is nothing unusual about this much-talked-of musical comedy. A large audience attended the production in the opera house last night and went away satisfied that they had witnessed one of the best musical shows on the coast.

Although the "Apache Dance" has been widely exploited as something unusual to be shown on the stage those playgoers who expected to see something risque could hardly be satisfied.

As Savourette, Harry Short was the whole show, and his dry humor from start to finish caused many laughs. He is the whole show and without Harry Short the interest would sag. Miss Grace Turner, as Princess Maritz Rakonitza, and later Rose Pompette, "The Queen of the Moulin Rouge," made the most of her part.

Twenty-two songs with as many encores filled the evening and as the songs are more or less new to the city they were well appreciated. The scenery in the two acts, which took in ten scenes, was splendid.

Everything went with a swing that was well appreciated and the company will be well received if a return engagement is secured. This is probably the largest company and carries more scenery than any play that has ever been shown in New Westminster and Manager McCaig is to be congratulated on securing this fine musical melange for his patrons.

A tentative move towards having the performance cancelled by the authorities was made yesterday afternoon, but no action was taken.

TRAPPER BELIEVED DEVOURED BY WOLVES

Wife, Left Alone In Cabin Has Awful Experience—Hair Turns White.

Cobalt, Jan. 27.—A tragic story comes from the district fifty miles north of Gowganda, where a trapper named Wilson is supposed to have been devoured by wolves.

With his bride of four weeks Wilson set out on snowshoes for his shack. Leaving his wife there he started out to inspect his traps, but when he had not returned for two days his wife grew anxious and attempted to follow him. She was without snowshoes and after making only two miles in two days through the deep snow she returned with difficulty to the shack.

In the meantime a friend of Wilson's named Dumont came across Wilson's tent with the utensils scattered around, but no sign of the owner.

Dumont immediately organized a search party and made the return trip to Wilson's shack, a journey of seventy miles, without a stop.

There they found Mrs. Wilson in a terrible condition. Her supply of food was almost exhausted and her hair had turned completely white from the effects of the cold and the terrifying howling of wolves about her cabin every night.

She was taken to Gowganda and it is expected that she will recover, although her reason seems to be affected.

No trace has been found of Wilson, and it is considered almost certain that he fell a prey to the wolves.

HEAR EVIDENCE.

Railway Commissioners Listen to the Arguments for Higher Rates.

Montreal, Jan. 27.—The board of railway commissioners today continued hearing the evidence in connection with the application of the Vancouver board of trade for an order directing the C. P. R. to lower its western freight rates.

The application alleges discrimination in freight rates west of Lake Superior, but this was denied by General Traffic Manager McInnes, who claimed that the rates were fair and were higher in the west on account of the greater cost of operation.

He repudiated the suggestion that the company was trying to destroy the natural advantages of Vancouver as a seaport.

OPINIONS DIVIDED.

Eastern Lumbermen Do Not Agree on Reciprocity.

Ottawa, Jan. 27.—Leading eastern lumbermen are about equally divided on the benefits that will accrue from the duty on Canadian lumber. Some say that the trade generally will benefit considerably, while others maintain that the passage of the measure will result in the loss of the western trade, with no market in the United States for the output.

COTTAGE CITY LIFEBOAT PICKED UP WITH ALL SAFE

Ill-Fated Steamer Which Ran Aground Off Cape Mudge Is Broken Apart Amidships.

Victoria, Jan. 27.—The tug Snohomish left the wreck of the Cottage City at three o'clock this afternoon with the passengers and crew of the ill-fated steamer.

It is believed that the Cottage City cannot be saved as the hull has broken apart amidships.

The missing lifeboat was located this morning with all hands safe and well.

"THIS WOMAN AND THIS MAN."

"This Woman and This Man" is a play that stands alone, not belonging to any class of plays in particular, as the New York Times remarked in its review of the play: "Even as you and I are its people, it is truly the greatest treat of the year."

At the time of the first production of "This Woman and This Man," speculation as to the author's ability ran high that he would in the near future write another success. Predictions have been realized. "Seven Days," by the same writer, has proven that Avery Hopwood is a dramatist of rare ability. "This Woman and This Man" will be seen at the Westminster Opera house tonight with that realistic little actress, Minnie Victorson, and the entire New York production and cast of specially selected players.

PERU THREATENS ECUADOR.

Reports of an Encounter on the Common Frontier.

Lima, Peru, Jan. 27.—Rumors of another encounter between Peruvian and Ecuadoreans on the frontier near Zaruga, Ecuador, were confirmed today. At midnight the Peruvian cruiser Almirante Grau sailed from Callan for Payti, on the northwest coast, carrying two hundred infantry to reinforce the frontier guard.

TYPHOID OUTBREAK IN OTTAWA GETTING SERIOUS

Hypo Treatment of City Water to Be Commenced Today—313 Cases Now Reported.

Ottawa, Jan. 27.—The health officer reports that there are 313 cases of typhoid fever in the city.

The hypo treatment of the city water will be in operation on Saturday and the emergency hospital, for which the city council has made a grant, will be opened on Saturday.

TEES FLOATED.

Steamer Proceeding to Victoria Under Own Power—Badly Damaged.

Victoria, Jan. 27.—The steamer Tees was floated this afternoon.

She picked up her passengers and in spite of the fact that she has a hole four feet in diameter in her forward hold and a leak in the forward ballast tank, is proceeding here under her own steam. The pumps keep her free from water.

VICTORIA IN NEED OF MORE HOTELS

Indications That Accommodation Will be Inadequate For Tourist Traffic.

Victoria, Jan. 27.—"One of the most serious problems confronting the people of the city of Victoria right today is contained in the question: 'What are we going to do to provide the hotel accommodation necessary to handle the tourist traffic of the coming summer?'"

This statement was made this morning by a gentleman well qualified to discuss the subject, and his subsequent remarks were corroborative of the truth of his observation. He pointed out that in consequence of the transfer of the Driard hotel to the Spencer interests and the closing down of that large and popular hostelry the hotel accommodation of the city had been seriously curtailed; that today the Empress and other leading hotels of the Capital City have their accommodation taxed to the utmost and that there are few indications that new hotels will be opened in time for the summer business.

A factor in the situation thus outlined is that a number of projects for the erection of new hotels have been advanced by the holders of saloon licenses, who see in the recent decision of the people on the referendum bylaw a determination at an early date to get rid of all saloons in favor of bars in connection with hotels, the same as is the case in Vancouver.

The matter, to those who have given it any attention, is regarded as very serious. As things stand at present it is absolutely certain that the existing hotel accommodation will be inadequate for the requirements of the summer months, and should projects be advanced for the erection of new hotels little time remains in which to get them ready for occupation.

OUTLINE OF LAUDER PROGRAM.

Professor of Music to Give Clever Recitals Next Week.

Wednesday afternoon, 3:30—Introductory address: "The New Art versus the Old," with interesting recital program of piano numbers, followed by a short study of "The Strangest Genius in Modern Music—Claude Debussy, composer of 'Pelleas and Melisande.'" Friday evening—1, Scenes from "Hiawatha" with Indian music; 2, "King Robert of Sicily," set to music by Rossiter Cole, by Mr. Lauder; 3, "A Lover in Damascus" (song cycle by Amy Woodford-Finden); 4, "In Memoriam" (Liza Lehman), Miss Lauder.

Monday afternoon — The great classics, Beethoven. The influence of the best in arts and literature upon the student and the world, with selected program of music, by Mr. Lauder.

Monday evening—Song recital by Miss Lauder.

As Mr. Lauder's repertoire is very extensive many things and works and matters of critical and literary and musical interest will be added by him to these programs.

EPIDEMIC IS MILD, SAYS HEALTH OFFICER

Dr. Fagan Makes Encouraging Statement to the News—Advises Vaccination.

"No change for the worse in the smallpox situation," was the cheering report given out by Dr. Fagan, provincial health officer, last night. The doctor just came in from a trip to Chilliwack yesterday and he states that everything is progressing most satisfactorily.

The most encouraging statement made by Dr. Fagan to a News representative late last night was to the effect that the disease had made its appearance in a mild form. No deaths had occurred and although there were one or two rather serious cases in Mission, the chances were good for their quick recovery.

"We are adopting drastic measures," said the doctor, "and hope to be able to cope successfully with the situation. Chilliwack city is looking after the epidemic in that city, and Dr. Jones here has taken every precaution and if any cases develop here, they must have come in before Dr. Jones was notified of the disease."

"I wish you would impress on the people," said he, "that the situation lies in the hands of the people. If they get themselves vaccinated all trouble will be avoided. If every unvaccinated person could be persuaded to hurry to a doctor and ask to be vaccinated none would have cause for alarm at the outbreak."

Asked as to the time within which vaccination was effective, Dr. Fagan stated that there was some dispute on the subjects. Most authorities in England and America agreed that vaccination retained its potency for seven years. The Germans thought that five years was the limit.

"Can you tell by the appearance of the vaccination mark?" asked the reporter.

"No," replied the doctor, "you never can tell."

"And I want to tell you that four points are better than one. If you are vaccinated in four places, your arm may be somewhat disfigured, but you are ten times as safe as though you were vaccinated but once."

The doctor seemed cheerful and while not attempting to minimize the danger, he was confident that the authorities could cope with the outbreak without any serious difficulty. As he stated all he needed was the co-operation of the people.

While Dr. Fagan was here he was entertained at the Russell by Dr. Jones.

HOBOES OUSTED FROM DWELLINGS DE LUXE

Piqua Officers Cause Willies to Hike From Camps Along the C., H & D. Railroad.

Piqua, O., Jan. 26.—The police today were requested to break up the tramp camps along the line of the C., H. & D., east of the city. The request came from C., H. & D. officials.

Accordingly officers were sent out and caused to be destroyed seven camps, extending two miles along the line. Thirty-six hoboes were found in them and were compelled to "hike" after the work had been finished. They had taken railroad ties, of which the C., H. & D. has had a great number in piles for use in the construction work north of Kirkwood. Out of these ties they had built small huts that were quite comfortable. They kept warm by means of coal stolen from loaded cars on the switches. It is estimated that they have used over $2000 worth of coal in the course of a winter.

ALBERTA COLLEGE IS UNDER QUARANTINE

Edmonton, Jan. 27.—When it was discovered yesterday morning that Douglas Telfer, of Edson, a student at Alberta college in Strathcona, was suffering from a throat affection which Dr. A. A. Nicholls diagnosed as diphtheria, the institution was promptly placed under quarantine.

An ambulance bore Mr. Telfer to the Edmonton Isolation hospital, where he is being treated. Throughout yesterday and last night, the fifty students at the college remained within the grounds.

There seemed small possibilities of the dreaded disease spreading. Mr. Telfer is suffering from a mild attack and Dr. Nicholls who is attending him declares that his recovery will only be a matter of days.

Telfer's room was thoroughly disinfected at the orders of Dr. S. Archibald, M. H. O. for Strathcona. All the other students are in good health.

SIR ALAN AYLESWORTH ON ATLANTIC FISHERIES

Pays Compliment to Reasonable Spirit of United States Negotiators.

Ottawa, Jan. 27.—Sir Alan Aylesworth made report upon the negotiations upon the Atlantic fisheries, which he and Mr. Brodeur have concluded at Washington, a few days ago. The explanation was delivered with all Sir Alan Aylesworth's rotund and rolling amplitude of phrase. Condensed, it is this: The Americans objected to four points in the Canadian regulations:

1. The prohibition of the use of purse seines.
2. The prohibition of Sunday fishing.
3. The assertion of Canada's right to board and search American fishing vessels suspected of breach of the fishery regulations.
4. The assertion that American fishermen should be obliged to take out Canadian licenses before fishing in Canadian waters.

The Americans have withdrawn their objections in the first three cases.

The Canadians have consented to modify Canadian license regulations in three respects:

1. The existing regulations forbidding fishing for herring and cod with trap nets in the Gulf of St. Lawrence without license is modified by the proviso that it shall not apply to any fishermen, Canadian or American, in the case of trap nets placed 1000 yards from the shore, or from any other trap nets set from the shore.

Trap Nets Regulations.

2. The present regulation requiring the leader of a trap net for herring and cod to be extended from the shore is modified in this way. If the leader of such a net extends from shore, the fisheries officer may determine its length. The regulation is to be silent as to such nets. Those leaders start from a location below water mark. That is, any fisherman, American or Canadian, may set a net whose leader is beyond low water mark.

3. There is to be an additional regulation, expressly recognizing the right of any American citizen to obtain a license if he applies for it.

It will be observed that these changes were for the most part of a highly technical nature, and that their full bearing can be judged only by persons intimate with the industry affected. It is only proper to state, however, that some apprehension is expressed by Maritime Province members lest the effect be to cede the use of the inshore fisheries to the Americans. However, it is a matter for expert opinion.

History of Award.

Sir Alan Ayleswoth rose on the orders of the day to make his statement. He reviewed the history of The Hague Award, and of its reference of the British, i. e., Candian and Newfoundland, regulations to a sub-tribunal. None of the parties relished going before the sub-tribunal, and there was a general disposition to try personal negotiations. Accordingly, through the medium of the British foreign office, the recent conference at Washington was arranged. As a result Sir Alan Aylesworth was of opinion that all the existing difficulties had been cleared up.

The Americans had formally objected to all the fishery laws and regulations of both Canada and Newfoundland. After going over these in detail it became evident that the differences between the views of the United States on the one hand and of Canada and Newfoundland on the other could be classified under sveeral general headings. It also became evident that for the present it would not be possible for the United States and

SHOE NEWS EXTRAORDINARY

Johnston Slaughters His $30,000.00 Shoe Stock

TWO, THREE and FOUR PAIRS for THE PRICE OF ONE

THIS MORNING, sharp at 9 o'clock, we open our doors to the greatest shoe sale ever inaugurated on the American continent. We have just finished stock taking and have over $30,000.00 worth of Men's Women's and Children's Shoes in stock, and as much more in transit. It is absolutely imperative that the present stock be cleared out entirely before the arrival of spring goods. We realize that this is a big undertaking, but we have made up our mind to do it and if low prices will help any, then we're sure to be successful. Prices have been cut to the quick. Not an atom of profit is left. The knife has been used unsparingly. You can buy shoes as cheap now as the ordinary retailer can in the east. Now is your chance to lay in a supply--enough to last a year won't be too many, for shoes will never be as cheap again. Below we quote a few prices. They are but an inkling of what you may expect at the store. Read:

THE RECIPROCITY AGREEMENT.

The reciprocity agreement completed between this country and the United States, which was introduced into parliament by Hon. W. S. Fielding on Thursday, is likely to arouse varied feelings among the different interests concerned. But we think the terms of this are likely to meet with general acceptance among the majority of Canadians. Full particulars of the arrangement are not yet to hand, but the summary published and the explanatory statement of the finance minister present circumstances which show that an honest effort has been made to bring about a fairer trading basis between the two countries.

The arrangement is based upon the excellent principle that a free interchange of products will broaden the general market and increase the aggregate volume of trade. It has yet to be ratified by the Canadian parliament and by the American congress. If this mutual approval is given then there is likely to be a general increase in trade in such articles of every day use as grain, meat, canned goods, dairy produce and fish, and in such things as cattle, paper and pulp, lumber and coal. To British Columbia the items of special interest are lumber, fish, fruit, pulp and pulp wood. The last named does not come into force without the consent of the provinces affected, and it remains to be seen what course the government of this province will take in regard thereto. The removal of the duty on rough lumber may prove a welcome impetus to the trade of the British Columbia mills. In regard to fruit, a deal of American produce is already imported into this province, and whilst this may be cheapened by the removal of the duty, some of the trade now enjoyed by the fruit growers of British Columbia with the prairie countries may be lost to the neighboring states of Oregon and Washington, which are pretty keen competitors. In regard to fish, the freeing of this will probably be advantageous to Canada generally. The free interchange of grain will be welcomed to the farmers, but it is doubtful whether the millers will regard this concession in a favorable light.

It is evident that if the arrangement becomes effective it must result in the dislocation of certain trades and interests. This circumstance is to be regretted, but it is of course inevitable in any re-arrangement of fiscal affairs. Yet if it eventually results in bringing about increased trade all round with our neighbors to the south that may be regarded as a satisfactory setoff to any losses that may be experienced. When explaining the outcome of the negotiations to the house of commons, Mr. Fielding stated that the arrangement would mean a reduction in taxation amounting to two million two hundred and sixty thousand dollars, assuming that in the first year of operation the volume of trade is the same as last year. From this, therefore, it would appear that Canada will gain considerable benefit from the agreement.

IS CANADA CIVILIZED ?

Editor, Daily News:

Sir—I would like to ask a question through your paper: Is Canada civilized? Undoubtly every man will answer yes. Well, if so, let us see what civilization is; is it catching salmon on Sunday, or is it sending missionaries to China, or is it ballasting railway tracks on Sunday, or is it going to church and paying the last cent you have to give the minister a fat salary and then come out and rob your neighbor. This may be civilization. There is another point that looks to me just like civilization. If you would just take a walk along where they are slashing Port Mann Townsite, you would see them on the Sabbath, Jap and white man, slashing and burning on the Sabbath; just as busy as bees around a hive. You would really think we had not a day to do life's duty without stealing God's day.

Now, Mr. Editor, the blessed Master has given us a beautiful country to live in, and I believe He has bestowed upon us all blessings that nature requies, and I for one feel very grateful to the Creator for the blessings He has bestowed upon each one of us; and I think the least we may do is to give the Creator one day out of seven, and if we have no respect for ourselves let us show a little respect to the God that told us to remember the Sabbath day and keep it holy. I have come to the conclusion that this thing ought to be put a stop to by some one. I know not whether there is any law that will stop this Sabbath work. If not, it is just about time one was drafted. I say it is a disgrace to any intelligent community. The public may say it is none of my business. If it is none of my business, I want some other man to pick it up that has got more intelligence than I have, and make it his business. Thanking you for your space.

J. A. KENDALL.

WANG TALKS OF CHINESE IN CANADA

"My Countrymen are Faithful, Honest, and Law Abiding," Says Official.

The consul-general for China, Hon. Mr. Wang, gave a dinner last evening to introduce the new secretary of the legation, U. Chan. The dinner took place in the restaurant of the Russell house, which was beautifully decorated for the occasion with flowers and electric lights. Among the guests were Sir Wilfrid Laurier, several other cabinet ministers, the consuls-general at Ottawa of other powers and a number of prominent citizens.

Only two toasts were given, Mr. Wang proposing the health of the king, and Sir Wilfrid Laurier proposing that of the Chinese emperor.

In responding in English to the latter toast, the consul-general of China said:

"Let me assure you of my gratification at your presence here tonight, and of my sensibility of the honor you pay me, which honor I accept in the name of his imperial majesty, whose dominion it is my privilege to represent here. I must bespeak, however, your kindly indulgence for my unfortunately limited acquaintance with your language, the idioms of our Chinese tongue being so different from yours that only long and serious study can enable one to pass from one language to the other with ease, and the opportunity of that study, of which the subject is so well worthy, the stress of official business has heretofore denied me.

Three Months in Canada.

"My residence here, as you know, is of very recent date, as I have only been about three months in Canada, but still I may perhaps be credited with having gained in that short time some small insight into the relation between this western dominion and my country. And it is on that subject that I would prefer to say a few words tonight; trusting that you will find them, if not interesting, at least not wearisome.

"It was in the early eighties, when the construction of the Canadian Pacific railway was planned, that the Chinese were first introduced into this land. Canada was then not yet as thickly inhabited as it is to-day, and laborers were greatly in demand. Realizing that the Chinese are hard and willing workers, the company sent agents to South China for the purpose of seeking and getting men to come over to help working for the road. At that time, the number of Chinese laborers in Canada, according to statistics, amounted to about seventy thousand. After the completion of that railway, the majority of those men went back to their native land, while the others began to settle down in their respective occupations, and as true it can be, it was their affection for this country that has in a way impelled them to remain.

Faithful and Honest.

"Although only about 15 per cent of the twenty-five thousand Chinese now in Canada are engaged in mercantile business and can be literally termed merchants, the rest of them, who are being employed as farmers, miners, gardeners, etc., are, as a matter of fact, beneficial to this country both in indutry and commerce. On the other hand, the Chinese are generally known to be extremely faithful in their services and honest in their dealings, besides being always diligent and frugal, which are their natural characteristics. As to their daily life, they are law-abiding, peaceful, quiet, courteous, and what more I need not mention, they have been recognized as such by everybody and everywhere. This is largely due to the consideration and fair treatment which has been accorded them by this government, whose kindness, I am sure, will be remembered by them forever.

Relations Are Cordial.

"It gives me the greatest pleasure to know that the relations between our two countries are of the most cordial and enduring nature. Personally, I feel most happy that my government has sent me as a representative to a country of such splendid people and beautiful surroundings, and hope that my stay may be indefinitely prolonged. It is my earnest wish that my humble efforts may be instrumental in furthering the friendly relations already existing between the Dominion of Canada and the Chinese empire."

TOO MUCH CUMMINGS.

Sherlock Holmes Needed to Unravel Case that Puzzles Police.

Saskatoon, Jan. 27.—Arthur Cummings, arrested in this city last Tuesday and held as a vagrant, was yesterday morning charged before Magistrate Brown in the police court with stealing a bank cheque drawn by a firm of Regina lawyers on the Royal bank there for $169.75 in favor of Alfred Cummings. Defendant elected to take a preliminary hearing which will come up in the local police court on Monday. It appears Cummings called at the Regina postoffice and asked for the mail of A. Cummings, and was handed the letter in which was the cheque. Cummings came to Saskatoon and endeavored to cash the cheque here, knowing that it was not for him. The case has several very peculiar side issues, and is providing a problem for the police here and also at Brandon.

For some some time the police here and at Brandon have both been wanting a man named A. Cummings, and descriptions have been exchanged. Immediately on this man's arrest here Chief Dunning communicated the authorities at Brandon giving his description and asking if it tallied with the man wanted there. The reply was to the effect that they had already secured the A. Cummings wanted, and also stated that he in many respects answered the description given by Chief Dunning of a man named E. Spencer, wanted here on a charge of forgery. At the same time the Brandon police are of the opinion that the Cummings arrested here may be wanted there under the name of Dresser. There are thus two Cummings under arrest, and a third one still wanted. Both men now in custody are thought to be wanted under different names, the Cummings at Brandon in Saskatoon, and the man held here at Brandon. Is the Cummings at Brandon the Cummings wanted here, and is the Cummings at Saskatoon the Cummings wanted at Brandon? or is Cummings Spencer, or Spencer Cummings, or again is Cummings Dresser, or finally is either of the two Cummings Cummings at all; and then what about the third Cummings ?

SPORTS

ROLLER HOCKEY MATCH TO BE PLAYED NEXT SATURDAY

Westminster Boys Will Try Conclusions with Capital City Players at Pythian Rink.

The first real game of roller hockey that New Westminster fans have had the opportunity to witness will be played in the Pythian rink one week from tonight.

A team is coming over from Victoria and it is confidently expected that the program will be in every respect first class.

The team which is coming to New Westminster is the same one with which the Westminster team played a game in Victoria a few weeks ago.

On that occasion the game was fast and furious and resulted in a tie, neither side scoring a goal. The local men expect to change that result when they get the Victoria men on the Westminster rink and have been doing a lot of practicing lately with that end in view. The same team, with the exception of Wright, who is out of town, will compete against the Victoria team.

BOWLING

SOURDOUGHS STILL AFTER THE OLD GOLD

It's Cold up There, But Not so Very, Very Cold at That, After All.

Edmonton, Jan. 27.—"Yes, the grizzly old sourdoughs still linger. They'll be there till they die, no doubt, still seeking gold. Fifteen years ago, before the Klondyke stampede, they had staked claims in Alaska. Most had won fortunes and lost them. The craving for the gold is still in their souls. The mineral still lures them on."

So spoke Harry D. Bush, of Fairbanks, Alaska, to a reporter last night. For four years Mr. Bush has been mining in the North country. He is now at the Queen's hotel, visiting friends in Edmonton.

"Things are comparatively quiet in the gold mining regions," he said. "There is not the same buoyant spirit as of old. Just like this province, though, there is mineral in Alaska to be dug out."

Fairbanks is a city of about 6000 inhabitants, 360 miles in from the coast in the American territory. Its nearest coast port is Valdez, where steamers stop from Seattle.

A Long Journey.

Over a month had elapsed before Mr. Bush reached Seattle from Fairbanks. He travelled 360 miles to the coast by foot, to catch the southbound boat.

"I 'mushed' that distance in twelve and one-half days," he said. "There are no decent transportation facilities in that part of the frozen world. In the warm months the Yukon river, which is navigable, is utilized by a steamship company to carry freight and passengers back and forth over a distance of many hundred miles. But in the winter persons desiring to get away from the interior are forced to take a stage or walk. I preferred the latter.

Shipments of Gold.

"Fairbanks and Nome are the principal mining centers in Alaska. Camps are scattered here and there throughout the country. Some imagine that Alaska is practically deserted. This is not so. Diggings are quite numerous and prospectors year in and year out are at work with sluice boxes.

"No, I had no hardships in my long journey to the coast," he continued. "I took it easy. The mercury at times registered 50 below, but from all accounts Alaska is no colder than this place. Roadhouses are dotted here and there and there on the trail I 'mushed.' They range from nine to eighteen miles apart. I stayed at these places over night. Yes, they give very good accommodation, but they know how to charge. It costs about $2 or $3 a meal, which seems rather steep in this country for an ordinary hand-out."

"You know, I feel extremely happy after being caged in for four years," said Mr. Bush. "It certainly feels good for awhile to live up there in the open and breathe freely, but then it gradually grows monotonous. Don't know when I'll go back. Just depends on how things pan out in these parts. I'll go back sometime, though. I don't think I could stay away for long."

MARKET REPORT

To a white man Thanksgiving is not Thanksgiving without turkey. To a Chinaman New Years is not the real thing unless his festive board groans beneath a plentiful supply of chicken, rice, raisins, nuts, oranges, noodles, dried fruits, etc., and then more rice and chicken, with a little extra chicken on the side. Hence, big demand for chickens at the weekly market yesterday, for the Chinese New Year starts tonight.

A few minutes after the market opened yesterday morning it was hard to see a Chinaman without a chicken; an hour later it was hard to see a chicken without a Chinaman. More birds were brought to the market than had been the case for months, but in spite of the large supply the Celestials rose to the occasion and purchased practically everything in sight. The farmers had been holding back on the chicken shipments for some weeks, hoping to get bigger prices when the holiday demand came. In this they were disappointed, for prices showed very little difference from the previous few markets. It was a case of supply just about balancing demand, with buyers just as keen to purchase as vendors were to sell.

Apart from the Chinese-chicken combination, there was little of note at the trading station. Vegetables were rather scarce. Eggs maintained their price of half a dollar a dozen, retail, a dime less being asked from wholesale buyers. Meats showed a slight advance.

The fish stalls and the florists' quarters were almost deserted, very little being offered or sought in those sections.

Official Quotations.

Prices recorded were as under:

Beef, forequarters, per lb.	7c to 8c
Beef, hindquarters, per lb.	9c to 10c
Veal, per lb.	12½c to 13c

* * *

One of the largest afternoon gatherings of the week was the tea given by Mrs. J. H. Diamond at her residence on Queens avenue on Wednesday. The fine weather made it possible for nearly all who had invitations to be present. Mrs. Diamond, who was wearing a gown of yellow silk trimmed with gold passementeric, with touches of pale blue and black, and her mother, Mrs. James Leamy, in purple satin with black and gold trimmings, received at the entrance of the room. At the lower end Mr. Frank Major played the piano. The tea table was centered by a great cluster of dark red carnations and lighted with red-shaded candles. Pouring tea and coffee during the early part of the afternoon were Mrs. J. R. Grant and Mrs. A. E. Eddy, whose places were taken later by Mrs. W. G. McQuarrie and Mrs. J. H. Jones. The ices were served in the spacious new billiard room by Mrs. Harold Leamy and Mrs. Jack Allan. Among the girls helping were Miss Freeze, Miss Marion Martin, the Misses Leamy, Miss MacGowan, Miss Alma Lewis, Miss Muriel Cotton, Miss Keary and Miss Naomi Briggs. Miss Noel Armstrong and little Miss Beverly Jones attended the door. The invitations included Mrs Annandale, Mrs. English, Mrs. Dickinson, Mrs. Doyle, Mrs. Leamy, Mrs. James Brymner, Mrs. Charleson, Mrs. Yuengling, Mrs. Allen, Mrs. Henderson, Miss Fraser, Mrs. T. J. Armstrong, Miss Nora Armstrong, Mrs. Arthur Malins, Mrs. Coulthard, Mrs. A. G. Hill, Mrs. William Gifford, Madame Gauvreau, Mrs. Gaynor, Mrs. Corbould, Miss Corbould, Miss Wright, Mrs. N. Brydges, Mrs. Cotton, Miss Cotton, Mrs. Fletcher, Mrs. H. Latham and others.

Mary Mannering

Miss Mannering, who will come to the Westminster Opera house, Monday, January 30, in a "A Man's World," by Rachel Crothers, has a long and varied dramatic career.

From the time she was eighteen years old Miss Mannering has been on the other side of the twinkling footlights, a mistress of charm, and an emotional actress who has on many occasions soared to the pinnacle of dramatic achievement.

Yet at the same time, while still keeping in view her stage ideals and aims, Miss Mannering has never been so carried away in the world of glitter and glamor that she has forgotten the quieter and more peaceful issues of life.

A great reader, Miss Mannering is often found by visitors to her New York home cloistered in her library, delving into the pages of some ancient tome, or reading some modern work with a butterfly existence.

She still is true to the English notion of dispensing afternoon tea at four o'clock, an doften at that hour a delightful informal party is held at her home.

Miss Mannering's little daughter is her constant companion; the two are inseparable as twin stars—though only the mother is one at present.

It is only at rehearsals that Miss Mannering banishes her child completely, and works earnestly for the end of art—perfect and harmonious intention blended into achievment. Miss Mannering often takes the wand of power out of the stage manager's hand, and with keen insight and feeling for sympathetic accord instructs the players.

Her new play, "A Man's World" had a long run at the Comedy theatre, New York, and is the greatest of all in which this popular star has appeared. It is a modern drama, dealing with some gripping problems and containing some startling and unusual situations.

LLOYD GEORGE IS FRIEND OF FRANCE

Tells People of That Country Liberals Were Always With Them.

Lloyd George, the British chancellor of the exchequer, who has been spending a holiday in the south of France, has given several newspaper interviews, the most interesting of which was to the Matin. In this interview the chancellor bitterly complained that English politics are largely described to the French public from the Conservative point of view. "What madness," exclaimed, "to assert that the Libereral party is less well disposed to France than the Conservatives! It is incredible! Is nothing about history known among you all? Has everything been forgotten? Since Fox the Liberal administrations in England have always been the friends of France."

He attributes the state of things "to the penetration of the powerful English Conservative press on the continent."

Lloyd George defended his budget from charges of being "revolutionary, Socialistic and anti-National," and said: "What we want is that a group of wealthy men who by the accident of birth are born peers shall no longer oppose the will and rights of the people. And it is here in France, where for the same ends you resorted to rather violent methods 120 years ago, that our pacific solution is criticized! It is truly incomprehensible!"

He emphasized the fact that the government have a majority of sixty-five in Great Britain, without counting Ireland, and said that had it not been for plural voting the government would have had fifty seats more. He went on:

"I read in the French press that the government ought to submit the question of the abolition of the Lords' veto to another conference, in order to reach a compromise. Another idea of the Conservatives! Why should we have another conference? We had one. It failed. We have submitted the whole question to the people. They gave us a majority of 126. We have no need of another conference. That majority is amply sufficient. The lords' veto will be abolished by the house of commons and by the house of lords, and everything will pass off quite normally and smoothly.

"We intend settling our home affairs very plainly and logically. They will not affect in the least the country's strength, and our means of action for the maintenance of peace in the world. My budget provides £10,000,000 more for the navy than was asked only a few years ago.

"The Liberal government intend having a navy which will give up an incontestable superiority, and no sacrifice will appear too heavy for the assurance of that superiority. As to the political agitation over the upper chamber, this last verdict of the people has put an end to that."

This interview was received with considerable enthusiasm by the French press.

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Between T. A. Swift, plaintiff, and William Cullen and John McDonald, defendants.

To John McDonald, late of Abbotsford, B. C.

Take notice that T. A. Swift has commenced an action in the Supreme Court of British Columbia against William Cullen and John McDonald for payment of monies due under a contract dated the 13th May, 1910, whereby the plaintiff agreed to sell and the defendants agreed to purchase part, one (1) acre of a portion of the southwest quarter of section twenty-two (22), township sixteen (16), townsite of Abbotsford, district of New Westminster, being re-subdivision of Abbotsford townsite, and for specific performance of said contract, or in the alternative for determination of said contract and for possession of said lands.

And further take notice that by an order made in said action the 7th of January, 1911, by the Honorable Mr. Justice Martin, service of the writ of summons on you was ordered to be made by serving a copy of said writ of summons, and a copy of said order on the defendant William Cullen, and also by publication of the notice of said writ of summons in a daily newspaper published and circulating in the district of New Westminster for a period of two (2) weeks, and that service and advertising be deemed to be good and sufficient service of the said writ of summons upon you at the expiration of two (2) weeks from the first issue in said newspaper.

And further take notice that the first publication of the said notice is made on the 24th day of January, 1911, and unless appearance be entered for you within two weeks from said last mentioned date, at the office of the District Registrar, New Westminster, B. C., judgment will be entered against you.

Newfoundland to come to an agreement. It further became evident that all disliked the sub-tribunal named in the Hague Award. The general disposition was to try diplomatic means, and if such was to fail to lay the matters in dispute before an independent board or mixed commission. If, for example, Newfoundland and the United States failed to agree, this mixed commission should consist of one Newfoundlander, one American, and a third member chosen by the other two, who should not be a national of either party. A minute to this effect was drawn up and signed by all parties.

The representatives of Newfoundland thought that they could make no further progress, and Sir Edward Morris and Captain O'Reilly, his expert adviser, left Washington.

Sir Alan Aylesworth and Mr. Brodeur hoped that so far as Canadian legislation and regulations were concerned, a further conference might prove effective. They discussed the whole situation with Sir Edward Morris, and he acquiesced in their intended action. They accordingly renewed their conferences with the American authorities, and reached the agreement outlined at the head of this letter. They succeeded in convincing the Americans that the their prohibition of purse seines and Sunday fishing were reasonable, and that the right to board suspected vessels was necessary to the policing of the waters. With regard to the licenses, the situation was one of peculiar difficulty. The treaty of 1818 gave to the Americans certain liberties, and the question was whether Canada could impede them in the exercise of these liberties, by imposing on them the obligation to take out licenses and pay fees. The British foreign secretary, Sir Edward Grey, declined to support Canada on this aspect of the case. The Canadian government, however, regards the license system as valuable as giving it control over the individual fisherman and inducing them to comply with the regulations. Mr. Brodeur succeeded in convincing the Americans that the system of licenses benefited alike the fisheries and the individual fishermen. By making some concessions which Mr. Brodeur thought were not of consequence, and which could not practically hurt Canadian fishermen, fisheries and system of maintaining licenses he had been able to remove the American objection. And then Sir Alan Aylesworth explained the three modifications already set forth.

Dropped Their Objections.

In return, the Americans dropped their objections—for a time at least. The United States representatives stipulated that they could not finally close with Canada in view of the fact that the Newfoundland regulations were still under consideration. Such an action might prejudice their arrangements with Newfoundland. Thus the United States retain their right to renew their objection. However, Sir Alan Aylesworth did not regard this as a serious drawback. If the Americans were to renew their objection Canada would be no worse of than she is now.

Incidentally, the minister of justice regarded the American request for a recognition of the right of Americans to be granted licenses as of great value from a legal standpoint. It constituted the clearest possible recognition of the propriety of the Canadian system.

A compliment to the reasonable spirit shown by the American negotiators closed Sir Alan Aylesworth's speech.

Mr. Foster made some general observations on the arrangement effected.

Some Questions Asked.

Dr. Daniel, of St. John, asked if American fishermen had had in the past the right to take out Canadian licenses. The minister replied that no case had arisen in which an American had applied; but that he would think as a matter of law that the treaty of 1818 gave them that right.

Mr. Crosby, of Halifax, asked if there was any disposition to divide Canadian interests from those of Newfoundland.

No, replied Sir Alan Aylesworth. Sir Edward Morris was consulted. There was no desire to desert Newfoundland in any circumstances which demanded joint action.

SHOWER BLESSINGS ON NEWSPAPERMEN

Regina, Jan. 27.—A question which has been much discussed of recent weeks in the United States and Canada, the power and tendency of the daily press, was touched on by Rev. T. Albert Moore, D. D., head of the Temperance and Moral Reform committee of the Methodist church in Canada, in an address at the Metropolitan church.

Dr. Moore expressed the opinion that the newspapers told more of the bad things in the world than of the good was because it was ordinary for things to be good and extraordinary for them to be bad. He did not think the world had ever been better than it was now.

Dr. Moore called down blessings upon every one connected with the make-up of the daily papers in Canada. They are helping to make Canada better by taking the right views, said Dr. Moore. There never was a time in Canada's history when the daily papers had so many editorials teaching the citizenship of Canada, the glorious value of morals and of Christian conduct as during 1910.

Dr. Moore had a few severe things to say regarding some week-end sheets published in Canada, which are opposed to any attempt at moral reforms. They are not helping the cause of righteousness in Canada, he stated.
