BRING CAPITAL FOR WESTMINSTER

English Financier Inspects Harbor With View of Extending Purchases.

Connected with Proposed Line of Freight Steamers from This Port Via Panama.

Mr. J. A. McDonald, of London, England, manager of a syndicate of British capitalists whose vested interests and business affiliations extend from the mother country, and em brace Canada from ocean to ocean, was in the city on Saturday and Sunday, in company with Mr. H. Greenwood, of Toronto, for the purpose of inspecting investments here, which include the B. C. Transport Company's wharf, the holdings of the Westminster Properties Ltd., and the plant of the Pitt Lake Brick and Cement company.

Mr. McDonald has left on a trip of inspection to up coast points, but will return to the city on Tuesday, 20th inst. He expresses himself as vastly delighted with prospects and conditions here, particularly in the shipping line.

Looked Over Harbor.

On Saturday, in company with Mr. J. D. Taylor, M. P., Mr. McDonald and Mr. Greenwood visited the site of the proposed harbor scheme, the B. C. Transport Company's wharf, better known as the Fader wharf, Pitt Lake and other industrial points along the river adjacent to the city.

The object of this river trip is stated by Mr. McDonald to be for the purpose of approximating conditions for the accomodation of a line of freight steamers having their western terminal point at New Westminster which the B. C. Transport Co. proposes to operate once the Panama canal is completed.

Wants More Frontage.

Mr. McDonald was greatly impressed with the great natural facilities afforded by the river for shipping, and while he could not be induced to disclose his immediate plans, he admitted that negotiations had been commenced for a large block of waterfrontage for dockage purposes, as he considered the already large holdings of his company inadequate for the development which must ensue from the impetus derived from trade via the Panama. The line of freight steamers, he declared, would be operated directly between old country manufacturing points and Westminster on the Pacific coast.

Hamar Greenwood's Brother.

Mr. W. H. Greenwood, of Toronto, is a brother of Hamar Greenwood, M. P., of London, England, and he is also largely interested in the holdings of the B. C. Transport, and Westminster Properties, companies. He is of the opinion that his brother will accompany Mr. Winston Churchill in his contemplated visit to Canada.

It is understood that before going east Mr. McDonald will invest several large sums of money for private English clients and companies, some of which may be spent at Pitt Lake, where Captain C. H. Zeigler, acting for the B. C. Transport company, recently purchased the plant and site of the Pitt Lake Brick and Cement company.

Manufacturers Testify.

On their trip up the coast Messrs. McDonald and Greenwood will visit Prince Rupert, Hayesport and a number of large cannery towns where the interests they represent have vast sums invested.

It is also understood that the visit of these two gentlemen was brought about the glowing accounts of the Fraser rendered by the British manufacturers who recently paid Westminster a flying call.

MISSED BIG HAUL

Thieves Took $72.000 and Passed by $3,000 000—Crime Concealed.

New York, Aug. 12.—It was learned today that private detectives are working on a $72,000 bank robbery which took place in the heart of the financial section two months ago, but which has not been openly reported.

Skilled cracksmen are said to have entered a bank building by way of a coal hole, dug through a thick ceiling and bored into a steel vault, where they helped themselves to $72,000 in bills.

A safe in a corner of the vault, which the burglars apparently overlooked, is said to have contained at the time more than $3,000,000 in bills and coin.

LINER RAMS ICEBERG—HAS 200 PASSENGERS

Montreal, August 12.—The Allen liner Corsican, bound from Montreal for Liverpool, struck an iceberg east of Belle Isle at 4 o'clock this afternoon. The damage is not thought to be serious. The Lake Champlain and the Scandinavian are reported as proceeding to her assistance. The Corsican sailed Tuesday with 200 passengers.

WILL BRING BACK TORONTO ARRESTS

Officer Entrains Today for the East—Events Moving Fast in the Robbery Case.

With the arrest in Toronto on Saturday last of two more alleged accessories in the famous Bank of Montreal robbery, and the appearance of Dean in a Canadian court of justice, events are coming thick and fast, and are likely to move with greater celerity in the near future.

This morning Chief Bradshaw dispatched a member of the Westminster police force to Toronto to bring here Walter Davis, alias Frank Walsh and Alice Walsh, in whose belongings $9216 was discovered, and of which money $2020 was in stolen Bank of Montreal bills.

PREVENTION MUCH BETTER THAN FINES

Burnaby Does Not Wish to Reduplicate Situation in Point Grey—Mounted Police.

Edmonds, Aug. 12.—"Burnaby does not want to be in the same position as Point Grey is in today regarding the prosecution of motorists who violate the speeding law." This statement was made this evening by Acting Reeve McGregor when suggesting that two mounted policemen patrol the Westminster-Vancouver road during special days when there is a lacrosse match in Westminster.

"We do not want to get a reputation of fining these drivers of cars when other measures can be taken which would make them comply with the law. The situation in Point Grey today is that automobilists have shunned the road in that municipality. This we wish to prevent in Burnaby and I believe that if two men are stationed on the roads on these special days the drivers of the cars will exercise a little more care in observing the speed limit."

These remarks were concurred in by his colleagues and steps ordered to be taken in accordance therewith.

Chief of Police Parkinson sent in a request to the council that a camera be purchased for the use of the police and also that a supply of hose be purchased to protect the municipal buildings in case of fire. While no action was taken, it was evident that the council looked upon the requests with favor.

NEW INDUSTRY FOR SAPPERTON OPENS

Royal Furniture Company Now Has Plant in Operation Near Brunette River.

With the establishment of a furniture factory on the Brunette river by Messrs G. Eckland and A. Chutes, the district of Sapperton can now lay claim to another new industry. The new business is known as the Royal Furniture Company and quarters have been secured in the turpentine factory building erected on the Brunette river some time ago.

New machinery has been installed in this building and the plant commenced to operate for the first time a few days ago. Only ordinary furniture will be made at the factory, for a time at least, but later it is the intention of the firm to exend the plant so that all kinds of furniture may be manufactured.

DEAN REMANDED

Will Appear Again This Day Week—Proceedings Formal.

Charles Dean was taken from the jail to the police court yesterday morning and there charged formally with being implicated in the robbery of the bank of Montreal branch last year.

Mr. Adam Johnson, appearing on behalf of the accused, pleaded not guilty to the charge, but a remand was granted until August 20, at the request of the prosecuting attorney, Mr. Douglas Armour of Vancouver.

No evidence of any description was submitted to his worship, Magistrate Edmonds, with the exception of a warrant of recipias, or extradition warrant, which proved that Chief of Police Bradshaw was possessed of the proper legal authority to bring Dean across the border.

Dean is alleged to have lived for a time in Westminster just previous to the robbery and this fact together with the story of alleged operations in Vancouver is expected to be revealed at his hearing.

FIVE MEET DEATH IN TRAIN WRECK

Two Engines of Olympian Limited Break Down Bridge In Cascades.

Seattle Lady is Only Passenger Killed—Cars and Locomotives in Wreck.

Seattle, Aug. 12.—The westbound Olympian Limited train on the Chicago, Milwaukee and Puget Sound railroad was wrecked on the east slope of the Cascade mountains this evening.

The dead:
Mrs. Simon Jurich, Seattle.
Engineer Townsend.
Engineer Noble.
Fireman Thimbel.
Unidentified fireman.

Mrs. Jurich was the only passenger killed. The names of the injured have not been received, but three trainmen are known to have been injured. Officers of the Milwaukee say no passenger, besides Mrs. Jurich, was hurt.

Bridge Crashed Down.

The train, drawn by two locomotives, was approaching the summit of the Cascade mountains when the forward engine was derailed on a bridge over a small stream. The pounding of the wheels over the ties broke down the bridge and both engines, the mail car and the baggage car fell into the creek. One coach was partly derailed. The rest of the train remained on the track.

The train which left Chicago Friday night and was due in Seattle tonight, was running on time and passed Kecchelus at 5 o'clock, a minute before the accident happened.

MR. BORDEN WILL VISIT GERMANY

Leaves for Canada on August 30—Sir George Askwith Returns With Hon. Mackenzie King.

London, Aug. 12.—It is announced that Mr. Borden will likely visit Germany and spend there the last week of his time before he sails for home in the steamship Victorian on Aug. 30. By present arrangements he will return from Scotland on Aug. 19.

Mr. Borden will participate in the ceremonies of the launching of the Canada-Australia liner, Niagara, at Clyde Bank.

The premier's arrangements for the time between this and his sailing date were not made public. It is now stated, however, that it is his intention to visit Germany in a private capacity. There is no doubt here that he will meet a warm reception.

Mr. Heldeman, secretary to Mr. Hazen, who is now in Berlin, speaks German, and will accompany Mr. Borden. It is believed that many Germans are pleased that the Canadian prime minister should visit their country after his trip to France. The Germans put great faith in Mr. Borden.

The Hon. Mr. Doherty spent the week-end at Oxford. After a run to Ireland he will sail Aug. 16 with Hon. Mr. Pelletier.

Hon. Mr. Mackenzie King is in London on the invitation of Hon. Sydney Buxton to discuss a contemplated bill modelled on the same lines as the Canadian Industrial Deputes Act. Mr. King will return with Sir George Askwith, who goes to Canada to study the workings of the Lemieux Act.

THE SOCKEYE RUN

Yesterday's Totals Show Good Returns, Especially Terra Nova.

Yesterday's catches showed that the sockeye run is by no means over, all the canneries reporting large arrivals at their plants. The Terra Nova company reported that eight boats had an average of 115, which is by far the best brought in yet this season.

Small catches of cohoes are being made, but the regular run of this species of salmon is not expected for some weeks to come.

The following is the twenty-third daily report issued by the B. C. Canners' association: Bellingham, 27,000 sockeyes and 500 cohoes; Anacortes 13,000 sockeyes and 150 cohoes; Terra Nova, 5300 sockeyes; Ewen's, 2500 sockeyes; St. Mungo, 2100 sockeyes; Phoenix, 3900 sockeyes, 20 boats in average 80; Imperial, 9000 sockeyes, five boats in average 80; Brunswick, 2000 sockeyes, two boats in average 63; Scottish Canadian, 1000 sockeyes.

EARTHQUAKE AGAIN DEVASTATES TURKEY

Constantinople, Aug. 12.—Three earth tremors rocked Turkey again today, killing and injuring, it is reported, scores of persons.

Many of the tottering walls left standing after Friday's quake were thrown down. The ruins are being searched for victims.

FIFTY SIX SLAIN IN TRAIN AMBUSH

Zapatistas Kill Wounded, Hack Fingers Off Men and Women for Rings.

Fired Cars, Burning Soldiers and Passengers—Two Newspapermen Meet Their Death.

Mexico City, Aug. 12.—Thirty-six soldiers and more than twenty passengers were slaughtered yesterday by Zapatistas in a canyon one kilometre north of Ticuman, 110 miles southeast of Mexico City, when a passenger train southbound from this city, was attacked from ambush. Only meagre details have been received. So far as known only a part of the train crew escaped.

After the murderous rifle fire had ceased the rebels swarmed down the hillside and set fire to the three cars composing the train. A few of the wounded had crawled out of the right of way, thus escaping the fate of those unable to leave the cars, who were burned.

Slaughtered Wounded.

According to reports, the leader of the rebels, made absolutely no effort to restrain his men from acts of brutality greater than any that has yet marked the campaign in the south. The wounded, pleading for their lives were struck down without pity and even looting was held in abeyance until the slaughter was complete.

Not satisfied with robbing their victims in any ordinary manner, the the fingers of men and women were chopped off with machetes, that rings they wore might be more quickly obtained. Ornaments were torn from the ears of women and their bodies were otherwise mutilated.

Newspapermen Killed.

Among the passengers were two newspapermen and they were among those killed. They were on their way to interview Emilio Zapata, the chief of the rebels. One of these, H. L. Strauss, a native of Uruguay and consul agent of his country in this city, was employed at one time on the New York Herald. He was making this trip to see Zapata as a representative of El Imparcial. The other correspondent was Ignacio Herraras of El Pais.

The ill-fated train left yesterday morning from Mexico City. Most of the passengers belonged to the farmer and lower classes. The soldiers who had been detailed to act as a guard, were from the eleventh battalion, commanded by Lieutenant Reyonaza.

Loose Rail in Canyon.

By costly experience, the troops had learned to be on the alert, but from the time they left the national capital not the least hostility had been encountered until the train ran into the canyon. Here a rail had bee loosened and as the locomotive left the track a volley of rifle shots was poured into the train with deadly effect. It was centred on the coach in which most of the soldiers were riding, but soon became general, the rebels apparently not caring whether they distinguished passengers from federal soldiers.

Lieutenant Reyonaza's orders to reply to the fire were carried out by the entrapped soldiers, notwithstanding the advantage which the hillsides gave the rebels. Pluckily every man of the guard fought until silenced. A few passengers, seizing guns from the fallen soldiers, assisted in the defence, but the unequal battle only lasted a short time.

SEVEN MURDERERS PAY LAST PENALTY

All But One Protested Innocence—Six Italians and One Negro—Record Number.

Ossining, N. Y., Aug. 12.—Seven murderers were electrocuted in Sing Sing prison today.

This is the largest number to suffer the death penalty by electricity in one day since the electric chair was adopted. Six Italians and one negro were put to death quietly within an hour and sixteen minutes. The condemned were executed in the following order: John W. Collins, Lorenzen Cali, Salivatore DeMarco, Felippo DeMarco, Angelo Guisto, Vincenzo Conal and Jos Ferrone.

All the prisoners with the exception of Collins walked in the death chamber protesting their innocence. Guisto, Cona, Call and the two Demarcos were convicted of the murder of Mrs. Mary Hall, wife of Henry Hall, superintendent of construction of the Croton aqueduct, in a lonely farm house at Griffin's Corners, Westchester County, Nov. 9, 1911. John W. Collins, a young Florida negro, shot and killed Michael Lynch, a New York City policeman, on July 1, 1911. Joseph Ferrone killed his wife in New York City, Oct. 1, 1911.

CHINESE SEARCH FOR MISSING MAN

Ling Quon Disappeared from Hospital in Quarter Leaving no Trace—Suicide Feared.

The Chinese quarter of the city is much agog over the disappearance of an inmate of the Chinese hospital there, who decamped without giving due notice on Thursday evening of last week.

His name is Ling Quon, and he is said to have been in a very serious condition at the time when he dropped from sight. Search has been made for him in Vancouver, but no sign of him has been revealed, and one Chinaman states that it is thought he "has gone down the river," or in other words has made away with himself.

Some interesting light of the doings of the Orientals in British Columbia came to light yesterday. One of them was that the Chinese government helps to support a hospital in this city which is located in Chinatown. The government employs an attendant there at a salary of $30 a month, while the other expenses pertaining to the upkeep of the place are defrayed from subscriptions which everyone of the yellow men of the city are supposed to pay sometime around the Chinese New Year.

Montreal, Aug. 12.—Arrangements were completed here today whereby at the close of the Toronto exhibition the sixty-two British cadets who will have taken part in the big cadet display and contests will be given a trip across the continent.

They will travel as the joint guests of the Canadian Pacific railway and the Canadian National Exhibition company.

The thirteen cadets from New Zealand will travel with the British boys, the parties separating at the coast.

COMMISSION SCHEME MEETS CRITICISM

Private Incomes are Necessity Among Naval Officers Under Existing Circumstances.

London, Aug. 12.—The scheme elaborated by Winston Churchill, the first lord of the admiralty, for a regeneration of the navy by the promotion of officers and men to commission rank, which was greete with universal approbation, is now beginning to be criticized. The original announcement painted a glowing picture, according to which a boy of exceptional character, ability and zeal, would be able to rise not merely to the rank of lieutenant, but to the highest in command.

The first handicap is the question of pay. A lieutenant of less than eight years standing receives only 10 shillings a day, which is very little for a commanding officer even when unmarried and is impossible for a married man.

The junior naval officers have to depend principally on private incomes and men from the lower deck are not likely to have private resources or they would not have enlisted.

A second objection is well put by G. N. Barnes, a labor M. P. from Glasgow.

"Even when seamen have attained commissioned rank," he says, "they find difficulties in the wardroom. Some time ago 26 commissions were given to artisans and engineers in the navy but not one of these officers has been employed afloat for the reason that they can not get on with the other officers of the wardroom. I will not say whose fault it is, but it is true that these officers are employed on shore duties, such as the inspection and coast guard services."

DIED SUDDENLY

Advance Agent of Barnum's Show Expires Near G. N. R. Depot.

Albert T. Hightower, who was in charge of advance car No. 3 of the Barnum and Bailey show which visits Vancouver next Monday, died suddenly near the G. N. R. depot about 11 o'clock last night.

The exact cause of his demise is not known. He appears to have had a sudden seizure, whereupon Dr. Drew was summoned to the scene. An inquest will be held today at the Fales undertaking rooms, where the remains now are.

Hightower was about 27 years of age, and from a letter found on him had friends in Seattle. They state that he hails from Springfield, Mass.

BURNABY FAVORS HARBOR SCHEME

Helps In Project of Commission Governing North Arm From City to Gulf.

North Burnaby Must Await Decision re Transportation—Additional Lights—Contracts Awarded.

Edmonds, Aug. 12.—Transportation matters and the deepening of the North Arm of the Fraser formed the salient features of this evening's council meeting. The present tangle relating to the B. C. E. R. and the municipality regarding transportation in the northern section of Burnaby led Mr. W. J. Holdom to express a few opinions on the case.

Mr. Holdom asked what had been done in straightening out the suit now pending between the two parties. The people he represented had waited long enough for transportation, and, after listening to promises from the council, he thought they were perfectly in the right in asking that some action be taken.

"If I guarantee," he said, "that a petition signed by 15 per cent. of the ratepayers will be handed in to the council might I ask whether this body will consider same and lay the whole matter before the people once more and ask their decision?"

He was answered by both the acting reeve, Councillor McGregor, and by Councillor MacDonald, who stated that until the suit of the municipality of Point Grey against the B. C. Electric was settled by the privy council, nothing could be done with the same question in Burnaby. The two cases were identical, and if Point Grey wins out in the courts, then Burnaby's chances will be bright indeed.

Councillor Fau Vel and Mr. Holdom furnished a little breeze in the chamber which ended by Councillor Fau Vel exclaiming "You can't jolt this body, Mr. Holdom."

Harbor Commission.

The deepening of the North Arm was brought up by a deputation consisting of Messrs. B. G. Walker, president of the Burnaby board of trade; R. C. Hodgson, president of the board of trade of South Vancouver, and John Armstrong, chairman of the waterways committee of the latter organization.

Mr. Walker explained the situation by stating that South Vancouver had lent its moral and financial assistance towards the creating of a harbor commission which would govern the deepening of the North Arm from the westerly limit of New Westminster to the Gulf of Georgia.

It was, he stated, the most important matter that affected Burnaby today, and if the municipality did not take hold of it at this stage, the chances of securing better facilities in regard to its waterways would be lost for years and perhaps for all time to come. There were three methods, he went on, by which this project could be obtained. One was by private enterprise or by a railway company. Another by municipal effort, and the last by a harbor commission created by act of parliament by the federal government.

The latter course was favored and the council by a motion guaranteed the sum of $350 and up to $500 towards the cost of getting the bill passed.

The delegation will appear before the Point Grey council tomorrow evening with a similar request, and, later, before the council of Richmond. South Vancouver, explained Mr. Walker, had already agreed to assist, and assistance from the federal members, Messrs. J. D. Taylor and H. H. Stevens, would be sought at the earliest possible moment.

Light, Water and Contract.

Mr. Rummel, representing the Vancouver Power company, appeared before the council regarding the extension of the present lighting system now in use in Burnaby. A contract will be drawn up this week for the addition of another 43 lamps throughout the municipality and it is probable that this number will be increased to 80 before the year ends.

Several complaints were made regarding the water service which were met with the answer that everything was being done to alleviate the distress in several parts of Burnaby until the mains could be laid.

The clearing contract for a portion of the Boundary road was let to E. A. Besoloff for $1270. The work is to be completed within six weeks time.

Messrs. Dewar and Oxley were awarded the contract for the building of a trestle bridge on Guichon road in Central Park for the price of $1511.

The Duke of Connaught will then be towed to Montreal by two of the most powerful tugs in the world.

FAMOUS HOUSES.

London Is Studded With Associations of Great Men.

As one may well imagine, a city of London's antiquity, greatness, and size is rich in the possession of historic houses; but, alas! it has nothing like the number it ought to have, had they been properly treasured and preserved by the nation. In this respect, however, one must in fairness add that other nations do not show any greater sentiment regarding their historic houses than the English, says a London writer.

I propose to point out first a few London houses made famous as being the temporary abode of some of our great statesmen. In this connection one's mind at once turns to Lord Beaconsfield. He was born at 22 Theobald's road, opposite Gray's Inn Gardens, and at later periods of his life lived at 5 Bloomsbury square, 2 Whitehall gardens, 29 Park lane, and at 19 Curzon street, Mayfair, where he breathed his last. Next mention should be made of some of the dwelling places of his great opponent, William Ewart Gladstone. Amongst these were 11 Carlton House terrace, 16 Buckingham gate, and 10 St. James' square.

Other houses of famous politicians include 37 Conduit street, the residence of George Canning; 18 Clifford street, the home of John Bright; 37 Gerrard street, where lived Edmund Burke; 23 Suffolk street, Haymarket, the death place of Richard Cobden; 5 Arlington street, Piccadilly, the residence of Sir Robert Walpole; 4 Whitehall gardens, where Sir Robert Peel died after his lamentable accident whilst riding in Constitution hill; and 14 York place, Baker street, the residence of William Pitt. His father, the great Earl of Chatham, resided at 10 St. James' square, a house specially to be noted as being the home at different periods of no fewer than three Prime Ministers—namely, the one just mentioned, the fourteenth Earl of Derby, and William Ewart Gladstone. Before leaving the statesmen, mention must, of course, be made of the most historic and famous house of all — 10 Downing street, the official residence of the First Lord of the Treasury, and the home of most of England's Prime Ministers during the past two centuries.

Two of our greatest novelists, Charles Dickens and William Makepeace Thackeray, were apparently very fond of moving, their places of abode being extremely numerous. No fewer than twelve houses are known as being the residences of Dickens; tablets are to be found on 1 Devonshire terrace, Marylebone, and 48 Doughty street. Thackeray's houses were rather less numerous, but yet I know of as many as nine. These include 16 Young street, Kensington, at 28 Clerkenwell road, and in this where he wrote "Vanity Fair"; 36 Onslow square, South Kensington; and 2 Palace green, Kensington, where he died.

I now want to mention the greatest man England has ever produced — Francis Bacon, who lived for considerable periods at Canonbury Tower, Islington. This is an unusually interesting house, for here Bacon was visited on more than one occasion by Queen Elizabeth, and it was also the temporary home of several other celebrities, including Oliver Goldsmith, who died at 2 Brick court, Temple.

Congregation of One.

One of the strangest services ever held in a Somerset church was that which took place on Sunday morning recently at the pleasant little village of Holton.

The only worshipper, besides the aged rector himself, was a newspaper representative; and the two, surrounded by empty pews, went through the full Anglican service, with many angels, as the rector said, as their companions.

On his arrival at Holton Parish Church at 10.55, writes the correspondent, I found the wooden gate fastened by a loop of string. Having unfastened it, I walked through the uncut grass into the church, where the rector, Rev. Joseph Sorrell, was already engaged in reading the Psalms to empty pews.

The rector, although over 90 years of age, conducted the service in a vigorous and devoted manner. There was only one hymn which was read and not sung.

In an able sermon, dealing with the subject of the Ascension, the rector said that unfortunately for England there was a decay in religious worship.

Humors In the Commons.

In the course of a debate on education in the British House of Commons a well known scholar once said, "Mr. Speaker, we have listened with considerable satisfaction to certain things that have been said by the right honorable gentleman, but I am bound to add that we have listened with great disappointment to certain things which we expected to hear, but which were not said!"

On another occasion a well known member of the Jewish race observed in the course of a dry as dust debate, "We owe much to the Jews." Whereupon a voice in a remote corner caused roars of laughter by saying: "We do! We do!"—London Mail.

Infant Politicians.

That the late W. S. Gilbert's contention in comic opera that every little child born in England is either a little Liberal or a little Conservative, has a special application in Montreal is proved by a reference to the birth certificates filed at the city hall there. A number have lately come in in which the word "Nationality" has been erased and either the word "Liberal" or "Conservative" inserted. In one case a fond parent made it "Nationalist."

Chalk for Coal.

In England there is a chalk which is very cheap and can be burned in a grate with coal.

GOVERNMENT TAKES BREATHING SPACE

Speculation Rife in Britain as to the Changes in Ministry and Length of Ofice.

London, Aug. 12.—With the adjournment of parliament for a brief vacation there has been a recrudescense of the rumors of a cabinet reshuffling that are always revived at the close of a session.

The vacation heretofore has been used as the opportunity for many important changes, but it is likely that there will be much alteration this year. This doubtless is due to the belief that the end of the present Liberal administration is not far off.

Another two years is about as much as can be expected should the present state of things continue, while it is even possible that unexpected defeat may overtake the government considerably earlier, according to the government's opponents.

Some who are supposed to have inside knowledge of public affairs, think a dissolution is probable within the next year. Every election tells against the Liberal administration, and, as the latter's majority is fast dwindling, it may soon be found to provide too narrow a margin on which to keep office.

By-elections, however, are not always to be relied on as an accurate index of the general feeling of the country. Northwest Manchester, which has just voted heavily and unexpectedly against the government, is a notoriously fickle constituency, and has a habit of returning a Unionist at by-elections and a Liberal at general elections.

The causes of the Liberal defeat are thus not easily determined. The Liberal candidate contended that free trade was the chief issue, and the return of his opponent would thus appear to be a staggering blow to Cobdenite principles. The Manchester Guardian, one of the leading advocates of free trade says:

"We are sorry for the heaviness of the blow the Unionist success might give to free trade. There is only one issue in which the vote of Northwest Manchester can do more than any other constituency and that is free trade."

The Times, on the other hand thinks it "would be unwise to draw from this election the conclusion that the electorate has made up its mind to accept tariff reform. We believe the real reason to be a general weariness and distrust of the government."

This, in the opinion of those best able to know, is true, and the moral doubtless is that when the general election comes Northwest Manchester will return to its old allegiance.

Of the speculations as to cabinet changes which have recently filled the newspapers, the most interesting is that the Hon. Neil Primrose, son of the Earl of Rosebery, is likely to be given a government position. Members of all parties in the House recognize him as thoroughly worthy of advancement. Every one is impressed by his ability and fair-mindedness and on all sides it is agreed that a brilliant career is before him. He is still quite young, having been born in 1882.

Further than that the only proposal as to changes in the ministry concerns the front bench in the House of Lords, which it is said, must be strengthened for the coming debates on Home Rule, Welsh disestablishment and the franchise bill. This is notoriously the government's weak spot and it is quite possible that Augustine Birrell will be asked to accept a peerage and a secretaryship of state in exchange for the chief secretaryship of Ireland, while it is also probable that Harold J. Tennant, under secretary of state for war, will go to the Upper House, retaining his post.

Two other junior members of the government may expect promotion soon. C. F. G. Masterman, official secretary to the treasurer, has shown himself worthy of higher rank by his competent handling of the routine work of the Insurance Act, while T. J. McNamara, parliamentary secretary to the admiralty, has proved a thoroughly efficient lieutenant to Winston Churchill. The promotion of either would afford an opening for the advancement of Neil Primrose.

Other than these it is not likely that there will be any important changes and certainly none that would affect the policy of any of the great departments. Mr. Churchill is quite at home at the admiralty, and is likey to remain.

On the other hand, it is the ardent wish of Mr. Lloyd George's opponents and of many of his more moderate colleagues that he resign the chancellorship of the exchequer. For many the pace set by the the fiery Welshman is too hot. It is unlikely, however, that he will resign, for it is evident that he fully intends to prepare the way for his land reform, which is almost certain to end in his advocacy of the single tax.

STRICKEN TURKEY.

People Everywhere Appealing for Aid —New Volcanic Island Appears.

Constantinople, Aug. 12.—The interruption of telegraphic communication makes it difficult to obtain accurate details of the disastrous seismic disturbance which occurred Aug. 9 on both sides of the Dardanelles.

Some estimates place the death list at 1000 and the injured at from 5000 to 6000.

Everywhere in the stricken zone there is terrible want and distress. Appeals for doctors and help are being received constantly at the capital and the government is doing its utmost to satisfy them. The hospitals here are crowded.

It is reported that a volcanic island is forming in the Sea of Marmora.

PANAMA CANAL; RAIL AND WATER ROUTES

The decision given last year by the Interstate Commerce Commission, the body in the United States corresponding to the Dominion Railway Commission in this country, on what is known as the Spokane case stands on record as a notable mile-post along the way of public regulation of transportation corporations on this continent. The Dominion Railway Commission has not yet dealt with the question involved in that case, though sooner or later it will have to do so, inasmuch as the railway rate doctrine against which the city of Spokane headed the fight is a doctrine which has been in operation in this country as well as in the United States. To state it briefly by way of concrete illustration of its workings, it is the doctrine that the rate on shipments from eastern points to Spokane, or to Nelson, B. C., should be the rate to Seattle, or to Vancouver, respectively, plus the rate back from the Pacific coast to Spokane or Nelson.

The great argument of the railways, in this country as in the United States, in support of that doctrine and practice has been that the rate by water carriage around Cape Horn must be met. This argument ignores the fact that the merchandise that could be subjected to the delay of the route around Cape Horn is limited in character and in amount, that the shipping is limited, and that, giving the argument its fullest weight, it cannot be made to justify the charging of the full rate to the Pacific coast plus the rate from the coast back again to the point of destination. Moreover, why should that doctrine be made to apply to shipments from points in mid-continent, such as Chicago and Winnipeg, for example? Freight cannot be shipped from Chicago to Spokane, or from Winnipeg to Nelson, by water around Cape Horn.

The judgment of the Interstate Commerce Commission on the Spokane case, was that material reductions should be made in freight rates from the east to points between the longitude of Denver and the western terminals of the transcontinental railways in the United States. In dealing with the railway argument based on competition of water carriage around Cape Horn, that judgment said incidentally:

"The railways must, moreover, soon meet with a competition by water more intense than any they have heretofore suffered; for within three years another route one more important, searching and determinative in its effect upon railroad rates than any other, will then be opened—a route all water, by way of the Panama Canal. The cutting of this canal will in effect bring the Straits of Magellan 3500 miles to the northward, and with modern steamships it is estimated that San Francisco will by water be removed from New York but fourteen days."

That the opening of the Panama Canal, which is to be on January 1 1914, will do more than affect railway rates upon this continent is very evident. The new ocean highway will be truly "important, searching and determinative" in its effect not only upon transcontinental rates and routes, but upon ocean trade routes as well. Two notable articles in the current World's Work discuss this whole matter in an enlightening manner.

At present freights from this continent seeking Oriental markets cross the Atlantic, almost wholly in British ships, and go through the Mediterranean and the Suez Canal to the Orient. The traffic between the Atlantic seaboard of this continent and the Orient will all go through the Panama Canal. As for the traffic between the manufacturing centres of the east and the Pacific slope, C. M Keys, who writes one of the articles in World's Work referred to, says that the only freight that will move by rail to the Pacific ocean, if there is a regular twelve-day service by the Panama Canal, rates one-third lower than the present lowest railway rates, will be freight that can almost afford to pay express rates in order to get quick delivery and to move without being reloaded. To quote:

"Most railroad men claim that the high grade freight traffic will never leave the railroads crossing the continent. Fruits, dressed meats, and other perishable commodities, in the handling of which speed is the main element, would possibly continue to move on the rails under any circumstances. It is, however, in the lower grades of traffic that one must look for the real future of the Panama route. For instance, it is a well-known fact that on the Pacific coast there is practically no coal which compares with the anthracite and better bituminous coal of Pennsylvania and West Virginia. It is equally well known that the future supply of lumber for eastern markets must be drawn from the Far West. Here are two low-grade freight items, one produced in abundance in the east and lacking in the west, and another standing in abundance in the west and growing scarce in the east. Both are so heavy in proportion to their value that they can barely stand a transcontinental journey by rail, except in rare instances; so that the markets which could naturally be tributary are supplied as best they can be supplied from other sources."

Discussing the probable shifts of routes of ocean traffic, Edward N. Vose assumes that if the United States congress, in violation of the spirit, if not of the letter, of the Hay-Pauncefote Treaty, makes the Panama Canal virtually free to United States shipping by rebating the tolls, several other countries will do the same for their ship owners, either by subsidies or by refunding the tolls paid. In no event is the toll to exceed $1.25 per net registered ton, while it may be as much less as is consistent with providing for the actual maintenance and operation of the canal. Mr. Vose's article sets forth the great savings which the Panama Canal will make, by the elimination of Cape Horn, in the carriage of freights from Europe and the Atlantic seaboard of this continent to the Pacific coast and the Orient, and shows also that the Panama Canal will not compete with the Suez Canal for the European traffic with India.

The readjustment of ocean traffic routes of the commercial world which will follow the opening of the Panama Canal, as Mr. Vose figures it out, will affect, directly or indirectly, more than half of the countries of the globe. Next to the United States, the republics situated along the western coasts of South America will be most benefited. He shows that the "great circle" route from Europe to Panama will pass within a day's distance from New York, which will probably, he says, be made a port of call on that route. A second new route will also follow the "great circle," namely the route across the Pacific from Panama to Yokohama. This route will be within from a hundred to a couple of hundred of miles of the Pacific ports of this continent, which will undoubtedly benefit greatly from the new ocean highway across the isthmus.—Winnipeg Free Press.

FRANCE AND PANAMA.

Le Temps Says United States Should Hold to Its Pledged Word.

Paris, Aug. 12.—The Temps discusses the action of the United States senate in voting for no tolls for American ships passing through the Panama Canal, saying:

"The chief American newspapers have protested that the senate's action is a flagrant violation of the Hay Pauncefote treaty, which an attempt has been made to justify by the equivocating argument that the clause pledging equal treatment to all nations does not affect the United States itself as constructor and owner of the canal. Such an argument is essentially open to discussion."

The Temps urges that the treaty, both in spirit and letter, assimilated the Panama and Suez Canals. After quoting Professor Giddings, of Columbia University, and Senator Root, the Temps produces the Sun's St. Petersburg dispatch as to the Russian-Japanese alliance, which was prominently printed here in every important newspaper, and continues:

"We are not anxious to intervene in this polemic before the policy of the United States has been definitely decided and until that time we will limit ourselves to remarking with the Herald that perhaps the United States would serve its commercial interests better by a more scrupulous respect for judicial engagement and more fidelity to her pledged word."

BRITAIN WILL PROTEST

The Times Deprecates Employment of Strong Language on Pamama Question.

London, Aug. 12.—Arguing that well informed opinion in Canada and France and even in the United States is unable to reconcile the differential treatment of American shipping in the matter of the Panama Canal with the Hay-Pauncefote treaty, the Times deprecates today the employment of strong language on the subject because it would be calculated to impede a quiet and friendly discussion of the matter with the United States, which it will be the British Government's duty to undertake.

Whether joined by other powers or not, the newspaper adds, Great Britain assuredly will protest if the bill remains in its present shape.

North Vancouver Resident Suddenly Becomes Demented—Was Inventor

North Vancouver, Aug. 12.—Mr. W. Braim, a well-known citizen and property owner of North Vancouver, suddenly became demented yesterday evening, imagining that he had been called upon by the Almighty to rectify the tides and weather, became very violent and had to be placed in the police station in a straight-jacket.

It appears that Mr. Braim has not been well for some days past, causing his friends, with whom he was staying, much uneasiness owing to his strange remarks, he having advised them not to eat bread or drink water. Yesterday evening Mr. Braim went out for a walk with no unusual symptoms showing, and going to one of his houses on the corner of Third street and St. George, which is occupied by a tenant, and who had gone out a little while previous, he found an entry and when inside alone became very violent, smashing all the windows and some of the furniture. The neighbors sent for the police and Constable G. Gould approached Braim single-handed and by a strategic move managed to get hold of him, and after a severe struggle, and with the assistance of some onlookers, the policeman handcuffed the unfortunate man and brought him to the police station. Dr. Thomson examined the patient and pronounced him insane. He will be taken to the asylum at New Westminster today.

Mrs. Braim and daughter are living in Portland and have been notified by wire.

Mr. Braim is well-known as the inventor of a street car switching device bearing his name.

NOTES AND NEWS OF TRADES AND LABOR

Trades and Labor Council

The semi-monthly meeting of the Trades and Labor Council will be held on Wednesday night in the Labor Temple. Among other matters that will come up for consideration will be a list of the standing committees for the ensuing year, which list was drafted by the executive committee at a special meeting held last week. It is likely that a notice of motion to amend the constitution will be brought in for the purpose of making it possible to appoint alternates as well as delegates from such unions as are affected by some of their members working at night. The unions affected in this respect are the Street Railway Employees, the Typographical and the Bartenders.

Trades and Labor Council Smoker.

Arrangements are now complete for the big smoking concert, to be given on Friday evening, Aug. 16, in the Labor Temple, under the auspices of the Trades and Labor Council. A program has been arranged containing the names of some of the best talent obtainable in the city. Refreshments will also be served and there will be clay pipes and good union-made tobacco on hand.

Dividend Declared.

At an extraordinary meeting of the shareholders of the Westminster Labor Temple Co., Ltd., held in the Labor Temple, it was decided to declare a dividend of 10 per cent. for the five months, ending June 30. At this meeting it was decided to go ahead with the improvements to the building which will cost in the neighborhood of $3000.

Leave of Absence.

At a meeting of the directors of Westminster Labor Temple Co., Ltd., held in the office of the company, Labor Temple, corner of Seventh street and Royal avenue, on Saturday night, Mr. D. S. Cameron, the secretary-treasurer, was granted leave of absence for three months, during which time he will represent the New Westminster Trades and Labor Council, at the Twenty-eighth Annual Convention of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, which will be held in the City of Guelph, Ontario, Sept. 9 to 14, inclusive.

As soon as the business of the convention is finished, Mr. Cameron will leave for Montreal, where he will embark for London, England; he will also visit his old home in Glasgow, Scotland, before returning to New Westminster.

Alderman Walter Dodd, vice-president of the Westminster Labor Temple Co., Ltd., has been appointed acting secretary-treasurer of the company during the absence of Mr. Cameron at the Guelph convention and in the Old Country.

Teamsters' Union.

The New Westminster General Teamsters' Union is in a flourishing condition, taking in new members at every meeting. Within the last three months 40 new members have been initiated. The organization at its last meeting voted $15 to the Trades and Labor Council to help to defray the expenses of sending Mr. D. S. Cameron to the Twenty-eighth Annual Convention of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, which is being held in Guelph, Ontario. Mr. Cameron is secretary-treasurer of the Teamsters' Union, and the teamsters naturally feel proud of the fact that one of their number should be the unanimous choice of the Trades and Labor Council for such an important position as delegate from the central body to the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada.

Bartenders Local No. 784.

At the last regular meeting of the Bartenders' Union the following delegates were elected to the Trades and Labor Council for the ensuing year: F. Keeler, W. Archbould George Whyte and J. E. McDonald. The union decided to comply with the request of the Trades and Labor Council in the matter of paying its per capita taxes for the next quarter in advance in order to help out the ways and means committee of the council in obtaining the necessary funds to send its delegate to the Twenty-eighth Annual Convention of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, which will be held in Guelph, Ontario, Sept. 9 to 14, inclusive.

The Bartenders' Union of this city is one of the livest bodies in connection with the Trades and Labor Council, holding that proud position—and one which few unions hold—of having every house in the city carrying a card of the organization.

Typos in Convention.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 12.—With delegates present from all over the United States and Canada, and even Hawaii and the Philippines, the Fifty-eighth Convention of the International Typographical Union was opend here today. President James M. Lynch presided.

The women's auxiliary also is in session.

Before the credentials committee of the women's auxiliary convened it was announced there would be a contest over the seating of Mrs. Frank Kennedy, of Omaha, Neb., who is declared to have been irregularly elected. There will be no election at this meeting. New York, Nashville, Tenn. San Antonia, Tex., and Montreal seek the next convention.

DIED OF THIRST

Laborer Perishes in Alkali Desert—Dug in Vain for Water.

Pasco, Aug. 11.—Dr. L. P. Murphy, the coroner, and Undertaker P. E. McDuff returned to Pasco last night from White Bluffs, where they were called by a telephone message saying a dead man had been found by some immigrants in the desert between that place and Beverly.

The man was identified as Edwin Hart, 60 years old, a laborer, who had been employed on the construction work by the Milwaukee railway. He had been dead a month, and it seems he had started to walk from Beverly to White Bluffs in the middle of a hot day and with no water.

The country between the two places is an alkali desert, with no springs or streams. It was a plain case of death from thirst.

The dying man had torn up great sage bushes by the roots and dug holes in the ground over a considerable area either in a vain endeavor to find water or from the promptings of an overtortured mind.

A grave was made in the desert, and with the body the corner buried a bottle containing the facts and dates.

ALIEN IMMIGRATION.

Yesterday, seven men, presumably American citizens, paid the extreme penalty of the law in Sing Sing prison. They are described as being six Italians and one negro. If one glances down the list of the wanted men in the famous Rosenthal case, the fact that many of the names bespeak central and southern Europe as their place of origin, will serve to accentuate the statement that a very large proportion of the criminal population of the United States is, by descent or otherwise, of the foreign element as distinguished from the races of the British Isles.

In New Zealand criminals are said —with but a margin of truth—to come from "the other side", meaning the Australian continent. In British Columbia the statement has been made that a large proportion of the criminally inclined also come from "the other side" meaning the United States

It should not be forgotten that the population of Canada is being augmented in very much the same manner as is that of the United States; and it does not need a very observant eye to note that colonies of foreigners are springing up in all our cities, even as they now exist over the border.

It is quite natural that the German or the Russian or the Italian should wish to hang together, neither is it to be expected that they will forget the land of their birth, and suddenly put on the garb of British citizenship with its veneration for law and order.

It is therefore earnestly to be hoped that instead of encouraging emigration like that of Russian peasants, several thousand of whom have announced their intention of coming to settle in this province, no effort should be spared to keep British Columbia if not white, at least British, in people, in thought and in institutions.

THE CATTLE PROBLEM.

The cost of living is being continually enhanced by the rising price of beef. That, again, is a consequence of the growing scarcity of cattle, the control of the cattle trade by combinations of business interests, and the development of restrictions to ensure a higher grade of quality. Such commodities as sugar, tea and coffee have not advanced materially. Flour has not increased proportionately with meat. Neither have vegetables or fruit. Could we double the number of cattle, sheep and swine on the continent probably greater relief would be given—if concurrent measures to effect a natural movement from the stock-raiser to the consumer could be enforced—than by any other single change.

The decrease in the visible supply of cattle in Canada has been so alarming that conferences have been held to consider methods of restoring the live stock business to its former vigor. The Winnipeg convention of government agricultural authorities a few days ago considered the situation in the west. But Ontario, mixed farming province though it is, is being drained of its cattle supply on the farms. The number of cattle in Ontario in 1906, according to the Bureau of Industry report, was 2,963,618, valued at $80,303,000. In 1910 there were 2,567,128 cattle, valued at $76,828,723. The decrease in cattle was 14 per cent., but the decrease in value was only 4 per cent., this representing a material enhancement of value for the remaining supply. The price for veal is attractive enough, apparently, to induce many raisers to kill off their calves and young cows rather than feed them to maturity. At the beginning of August beef prices at the Chicago stockyards reached a figure never before equaled in that cattle centre. Officials of the Live Stock Exchange have begun to call for legislation to prohibit the slaughtering of young cows and calves, in order to further breeding, and thus re-stock the depleted herds. The situation is one of peculiar complexity, and remedies that are likely to prove quickly effectual do not readily suggest themselves. Our imports of meat from Australia and New Zealand are growing steadily, and while this moderating influence on the rising tendency of prices in Canada has been distinctly helpful to the consumer, it would be much more satisfactory were Canada in a position to do some exporting. The encouragement, on a large scale, of live stock growing is one of the biggest problems of Canadian agriculture.

So far from being incompatible with the expansion of the dairying industry, the development of the beef-producing industry should be a concomitant of the dairying industry's growth. True, there is a preference for cows that yield large quantities of milk. But this is good neither for the dairying nor the beef industry, for the milk of such cows is usually low in butter fat content, and the animals themselves are the least economical and in every way the least suitable for beef-producing purposes. Every public influence that can be reasonably brought to bear to improve the breed of cattle kept in Canada and eliminate the unfit ought to be exerted. The good husbandman need not be told that it pays to bring up good calves, even if they are for some months consumers of merchantable milk.—Toronto Mail and Empire.

HARBOR MANAGEMENT.

Hamilton is to be congratulated on the growth of her harbor beyond municipal capacity and the establishment of a managing commission. Our sister city is fortunate in the possession of an excellent natural harbor, and also on a determination to make the best possible use of it. Our harbor, jutting out into the lake, makes natural provision for two entrances and affords a choice in rough weather. Hamilton's harbor is a large land-locked way with a single entrance, thus affording a contrast in practical management.

Toronto has shown how first-class natural advantages can be nullified commercially by bad economic management. We have given Hamilton an excellent illustration of how not to manage a harbor. We have allowed the railways to fence us off from the harbor to a great extent, and by a foolish policy of leasing have left ourselves without a wharf or dock where a vessel may ship or discharge cargo.

Cities must consider their own interests in this regard. A vessel owner will not ship cargo for a fenced-off harbor and then start a political agitation for the establishment of an available dock. He declines the offered freight, and leaves the people who have leased away their docks at the mercy of transportation monopolies. When Toronto, Hamilton and other lake cities awaken to the need of providing public wharves they will enjoy the important advantage of competitive freight rates.—Toronto Globe.

MAINTAIN BRITISH CONFIDENCE

Canadian investments and Canadian exports have been recently subjected to some unfavorable criticism It is not of general application, but the fabric of British confidence can be easily affected in spots, which, like a canker, extend to the portions that are sound and not of themselves open to attack. Complaint is made particularly with regard to what is practically the fraudulent packing of fruit and to the vending of real estate in the west by representations that are contrary to fact.

Practices of this kind cannot be too strongly condemned, and their repression is even more in the interest of Canada than of British purchasers and investors. Canadian companies and exporters that indulge in them are not only injuring the individuals whom they deceive, but casting a serious stigma upon their country. It is much easier to create distrust than to remove it, and both the Dominion and Provincial Governments should be active in preventing any untoward impression from exercising its baleful influence and either checking the flow of capital to Canada or restricting the demand for Canadian products.

It may be possible to protect British investors from bogus shares and real estate offerings made by Canadian companies and speculators through such an investigation system as that adopted by the State of Kansas in connection with the sale of securities and stock within its territory. Before starting to sell these, the vendors must satisfy the state board that they have a legitimate proposition to offer, and that the facts accord with the statements made in the prospectus or in any other document or advertisement to which publicity is given.

This might be more difficult of accomplishment in the case of Canadian shares and real estate offered in Britain, unless there was co-operation on the part of the British authorities, but the issues involved are grave enough to warrant interference. With fruit exports and other exports of similar kind, a system of inspection might easily be introduced whereby the products could be graded according to quality and their packing supervised.

Denmark and other exporting countries have found that it pays them to cultivate honesty and accuracy in this regard and to maintain the standards they have themselves set. It is for the direct advantage of all Canadian exporters that the strictest attention be paid to correct grading and thorough business integrity. — Toronto World.

Senator La Follette's Autobiography is Nearly Ready—Disclosures.

Washington, Aug. 12.—Senator La Follette, of Wisconsin, is putting finishing touches to his autobiography, which will be issued in book form in about a month.

Close friends expect some details of the union, and subsequent break between La Follette and Roosevelt forces heretofore only vaguely hinted at, which in their fullness will be likely to create a lively sensation.

Some of his friends feel that the senator is riding rough-shod for a headlong tumble into the Ananias Club. That Colonel Roosevelt will be brought into the story in a very personal manner indeed, is assured.

Some intimate views regarding Clifford Pinchot and other leaders who turned La Follette to Roosevelt also will be presented, it is expected.

It fully was arranged for the Sultan to announce that it was for reasons of ill health, and to avert a possible fanatical outbreak that he had decided to take the step.

The Army Gazette says today the French resident governor in Morocco, General Lyautey, has urgently demanded reinforcements to the number of 30,000 men to enable him adequately to deal with the unrest among the Moorish tribesmen.

DEATH TO ANARCHIST.

Shot by Policeman at I. W. W. Meeting in Los Angeles.

Los Angeles, Aug. 12.—A riot near the Plaza yesterday resulted in the death of Leonidez Guitterez, alleged to have been a Mexican anarchist.

The affray was begun at a meeting which was addressed by alleged members of the I. W. W. Two policemen had been informed that Ed. Moreno, a Mexican, was a pickpocket and had started to arrest him. Moreno eluded the officers several times. His friends tried to assist him. In the crowd was Guitterez, who was said to have aimed a revolver at one of the officers before the latter drew his own weapon and shot the Mexican.

Guitterez was said to have arranged a plot three years ago which was reported at the time to mean the contemplated death of President Taft and of President Diaz, of Mexico, when they met on neutral ground at El Paso.

SPORTS

HOW EASTERN FANS REGARD SITUATION

Feeling Was Mainly in Favor of Westminster—Toronto Opinion on Jones' Visit.

After reading the junk which many of the eastern sportwriters have fallen to during the past three weeks when Con was visiting in the east, it is a real pleasure to come across the following by C. H. Good in the Toronto News.

Mr. Good does not mince matters and an ardent fan in the Queen City even went so far as to mail a special clipping to Manager Gray stating that the feeling of lacrosse fans in the east was in most instances with the Royals. Here is the dope:

"JONES NEEDED HELP.

Judging from the manner in which Mr. Con Jones acceded to practically every request made by the officers of the Big Four, at yesterday's powwow, for the purpose of forming a National Lacrosse Commission, the coast mogul is really up against it. When Conrad came east in the spring, he had a swagger that struck fear into the hearts of the D. L. A. clubs. He produced his thousands and copped some of the men he wanted. His last visit, however, was featured by his change of manner. He came as an angel of peace, or rather a sufferer appealing for succor. The Big Four clubs are anxious to form a commission, and will no doubt deal fairly with Mr. Jones, but at the same time it must be remembered that Con brought the whole thing upon himself, and must expect to suffer for his "raids" of the past few years. 'It is a long road that has no turning' and the abrupt ending of the coast magnate's serene journey, hastened his peace proposals.

If Con Jones had not agreed on peace with the New Westminster club he stood to lose something like $40,000. His salary list aggregates nearly $30,000, while the rental of his park and incidental expenses are also to be considered. Exhibition games would hardly cover such an expenditure, and Conrad would have been a ruined sportsman, but for the successful peace negotiations with the Royals."

Sidelights on Jones.

Under a heading "B. C. League Accepts Con Jones' Conditions" the Toronto World has a little article placing the Vancouver side of the recent lacrosse tangle. It will be remembered by many of the fans that this Mr. Jones returned on Saturday from the east where he made "arrangements" with the leading teams in the Big Four and the N. L. U. to come out to the coast in quest of the Minto Cup.

Con must have been smoking a porcupine homegrown when he sputtered out the following anent the situation in the west.

"Con Jones, who is at the King Edward on his way back to Vancouver, stated last night that he had signed no players for the proposed new team. Since the Vancouver-New Westminster row was patched up there is no need for a new team, and Jones did not approach any of the eastern stars.

'When a chance showed of clearing up the matter I wired conditions from Montreal and they were accepted' said Mr. Jones. 'Now I am on my way back to make a big fight for the Minto Cup.

By the new arrangement our season will close on Septemeber 14. Saturday's loss was quite a setback, but we have still a chance.

New Westminster has won six of the nine games played, and there are seven to play. It is up to Vancouver to get five of the seven or lose the Cup."

Practice Tonight.

The Salmon Bellies will hold a full practice this evening in preparation for Saturday's game in Vancouver. It is rumored that Mr. Jones, who on most occasions goes under the name of "Con", is sorely disappointed with the showing of his cornfed athletes at the park on Saturday afternoon, and will read the riot act to several of them before the end of the week.

LACROSSE MEN OF TWO CITIES PAY LAST RESPECTS

Vancouver, Aug. 12.—The last rites over the body of Waldo Matheson, the former lacrosse player who died on Saturday through diving in English bay on the previous Sunday, were performed this afternoon. Among the many friends of the deceased were the members of the Vancouver Lacrosse club, its players and also Manager Gray and several players of the Westminster club.

IN RUGBY CIRCLES

Games to Be Arranged Next Monday—Westminster Men Meet Tomorrow.

At a meeting of the Rugby union, held in Vancouver last evening, the application of the New Westminster club was favorably considered and the rugger fans of the city are assured of seeing some exciting contests this season. The schedule will be drawn up on Monday night of next week.

It is thought that there is abundance of material in Westminster to ensure the formation and the success of a rugby football fifteen. All former players, or those who would like to try their hands at the game will be cordially welcomed at the meeting which is to be held tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock in Messrs. Sherriff, Rose & Co.'s office, Columbia street.

FIRST SOCCER GAME SET FOR SEPT. 7

Season to Open on Moody Square Grounds—Westminster Cup Competition—President Mahoney.

The first definite news of the opening of the soccer season was forthcoming last evening, when, at a meeting of the Vancouver and District League, Westminster obtained the honor of having the first game. This is to be played on the Moody square grounds, and will be a memorial game between the Celtics and the Rovers, the proceeds to go towards a monument to be erected in memory of David Pearson, a former Celtic player.

September 7 is the date of this event, and on the following Saturday the Rovers visit Vancouver and engage the Celtics in the first league game.

A letter was read from Mr. A. S. Beaton, of New Westminster, declining the honor of being president of the league, which honor was conferred upon him last spring. In his place Mr. Tim Mahoney, of this city, was elected president, and Mr. Philip Samphor, the present secretary of Rovers, vice-president.

Mr. Bob Brown, manager of the Vancouver Baseball team, was present at the meeting, and agreed to allow the teams to use his new grounds which he was having prepared. These will be ready by the latter end of October, but the stands will not be built until sometime in January. Another meeting will be held next Tuesday night, when the league schedule will be drawn up.

The Westminster cup, another addition to the many that are now being played for, and given by Mr. Samphor, will be played for on October 5. In the first round the Rovers will meet the Hibernians, and the Celtics versus the Thistles. The final of this series will be staged in New Westminster.

Manager Grant and Secretary Samphor, who attended the meeting last evening, speak highly of the treatment accorded them in Vancouver, and with the good feeling that now exists between the different clubs, nothing but a successful season can possibly be enjoyed.

Secretary P. Samphor yesterday completed arrangements with Mr. S. Clare, recently of St. Helen's Lancashire, England, whereby the latter gentleman will undertake the training of the Rovers for the coming season.

Mr. Clare is said to have gained valuable experience as trainer of the St. Helen's Town team, and with such a galaxy of stars that has been signed up by Manager Grant, it is needless to state that some of the silverware which is lying around this part of the country will be headed towards the the Rovers, vice-president.

EAST BURNABY FOOTBALL MEN GETTING TOGETHER

Football meetings are all the go these days. The next on the program is one at Edmonds on Friday evening when the East Burnaby aggregation will consider the proposition of again entering the City league

With the influx of many settlers during the past year, the manager of the surburbanites is said to have unearthed several promising players and the chances look good to East Burnaby giving the league leaders a good run this coming season, should the necessary support be forthcoming.

CROPS AND RAIN

Some Damage to Hay and Oats—Harvest Promises Well.

According to reports emanating from Chilliwack and the surrounding districts severe damage was done to the cut hay on the fields by the rain storm of Thursday last. The standing hay was not hurt, but the downpour had a decidedly bad effect on that curing on the ground. It is the usual custom while cutting hay to cut just sufficient to be cured and harvested on short notice as a protection against rainstorms, but it seems that the farmers in certain parts of the valley became over confident that the good weather preceding the bad of last week would last, and so cut more of the grass than they could conveniently handle in a short time.

As a result those farmers and ranchers who were most careless suffered the heaviest, and it is said that in some cases the losses will be severe.

The growing oats on the Delta also suffered to some extent, but the crop which is now being garnered will be affected very little if at all. The heavy rain laid the standing stalks almost flat, but apart from making it a little more laborious in the cutting no severe monetary loss will be sustained by the farmers.

According to one farmer who was in the city recently, and who has kept a close watch on conditions throughout the valley this year, the crops all round will be well up to last year's standard. The fruit, contrary to earlier expectations, is now coming along finely and though bumper crops are not expected, good ones at least are assurred.

About the only places where the ranchers felt gratified for the rain which has fallen throughout the summer are the higher sections of the valley, where the rainfall was very beneficial to the fruit.

FORGERS CAUGHT.

French Police Hold Men Who Forged Russian Notes Successfully.

Paris, Aug. 12.—The French police made a notable catch in arresting at Paris yesterday, Robert Lewenthel and Emile Wolvnke, on the charges of forging Russian bank notes. At the beginning of the present year, Russia was flooded with false 100 ruble ($50) notes and the Russian Government was obliged to withdraw the circulation of bank notes representing $2,000,000 and to change the design. Persons were arrested by the Russian authorities on the charge of circulating the spurious notes but they refused to divulge the names or whereabouts of the counterfeiters. The French police recently traced the leaders of the counterfeiting band to Nice, and on raiding a villa occupied by them, found a large quantity of material used in the fabrication of the bills and 150,000 false ruble notes. The suspects have, however, flown. The police later again ran the band to earth in a poor quarter on the banks of the Seine.

Today Lewenthel and Wolvnko disappeared and a search of their apartments revealed an extensive plant and a large quantity of the false notes.

PROFESSIONAL APPLAUDES DISAPPEAR FROM LONDON

London, Aug. 12.—With the closing of the Alhambra last night for the summer vacation of seven weeks, the paid claque disappears from the staffs of other theatres. Not long since virtually all London theatres had a regular staff of paid applauders.

The Alhambra was the last to keep up the practice. Professional applauding continues, however. There is at least one claque master in London with a band of trained hand-clappers, and managers like to employ him, as do performers, who seek his services when they make their debuts in new parts.

For the greater part, the London theatres now rely on regular employees in the front of the house to start the applause.

BURGLARS OPERATE AT ROYAL THEATRE

Scared Away by Report in Blowing Up Safe—Fire Brigade Quench Blaze.

In the still small hours of yesterday morning when the city slept, burglars entered the Royal Theatre, drilled and cracked the safe, setting fire to the building at the same time, but were so alarmed at the noise caused by the explosion that they faded from the scene before the arrival of the police, not even stopping to gather up the money from the shattered safe.

The price of the steel safe and the utter ruin of a large carpet which was wrapped about it by the cracksmen to deaden the sound of the detonation constitutes the loss to the management of the theatre.

About 2.45 a.m. residents in the downtown district were startled by hearing a terrific explosion, the police were notified and immediately began to investigate its source. Smoke issuing from the rear of the Royal theatre finally attracted attention and the fire department hastily summoned to the scene found the fire to be issuing from a heavy carpet smouldering near the rear door. Investigation brought to light the theatre safe wrapped in the carpet, its door blown completely off by some powerful explosive and the contents, which included money and valuable papers, strewn about the floor. Nothing of value was missing, the robbers having evidently been intimidated at the noise which they rightly surmised had awakened the entire neighborhood.

There was only about seventy dollars cash in the safe at the time of the robbery, for although the theatre played to packed houses on Saturday afternoon and evening, Manager Al. Gillis banked the afternoon's receipts and when the evening performance was over paid his three acts, and his employees, leaving himself with only a small amount of cash on hand.

The burglars had evidently made a very complete survey of the building before attempting the robbery, effecting an entrance through the rear door by the simple expedient of lifting out the pins in the hinges. The safe was moved from the box office down the aisle, near the orchestra, where the robbers commenced operations.

Finding it impossible to knock off the combination by means of a cold chisel, the diamond drill was resorted to and it was with an instrument of this description that the cracksmen cut a small hole in the side of the safe where the "soup" (nitro-glycerin) was pumped in sufficient quantity to accomplish their purpose. To deaden the noise a large property carpet and a number of towels were wrapped about the safe and the charge set off by means of an ordinary dynamite detonator and time fuse. The explosion awoke the echoes and the neighbors, setting fire to the carpet and giving the alarm as above stated.

Through the ticket seller at the Royal, the police have a description of two men who were supposedly the perpetrators of the deed. These two men were observed hanging about the street in front of the theatre on Saturday night. The details of their appearance have been supplied to the police, who have the case in hand.

For the Children

Princess Victoria Louise, the Kaiser's Only Daughter.

Princess Victoria Louise, only daughter of the German emperor, is very popular. She has six brothers, all of whom are older. Being the youngest of the family and the only girl, she has always been the pet of her parents and brothers. She is also a great favorite with the German people, her sweet disposition and gentle ways having endeared her to all with whom she comes in contact.

Dog Smugglers.

Previous to the year 1795 in the Netherlands dogs were employed in smuggling, which was the more easy as they are exceedingly docile. The dogs were trained to go forward and backward between two places on the frontier without any person to attend them. Being loaded with little parcels of goods, lace, etc., like mules, they set out at midnight and only went when it was perfectly dark. An excellent, quick scented dog always went some paces before the others, stretched out his nose toward all quarters and when he scented custom house officers turned back, which was the signal for immediate flight. Concealed behind bushes or in ditches, the dogs waited till all was safe, then proceeded on their journey and reached at last beyond the frontier the dwelling house of the receiver of the goods, who was in the secret. But here also the leading dog only at first showed himself. At a certain whistle, which was a signal that all was right, they hastened up. They were then unloaded, taken to a convenient stable, where there was a good layer of hay, and well fed. There they rested until midnight and then returned in the same manner over the frontier.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Game of Spillikens.

Collect a number of straws, stand them up so as to meet at the top and spread out at the bottom like a tent or haystack. Get nice little sticks and make a hook at the end with a crooked pin or else find little hooked sticks. Each player takes a hook in turn and tries to remove a straw without shaking or throwing down any of the others. The one who succeeds in removing a straw under these difficult conditions counts one. She who gets most straws wins the game.

Sometimes two or three straws are marked and called king, queen and bishop. The king, safely removed, counts four, the queen three and the bishop two. The straws thus named should be larger than the others or have a tiny flower stuck in their hollow tubes to distinguish them from the plain spillikens.

Hide the Thimble.

In this game the company generally divides in two parts, half being players, while the rest do the work of guessing. A thimble is then produced by one of the party, or something equally small that may easily be held in the hand. Seated by the side of the table, the players begin passing the article from hand to hand. When the work has been done sufficiently the closed hands are all placed on the table for those on the opposite side to guess in turn whose hand holds the thimble. As soon as the right guess is made the opposite side takes its turn.

Button Puzzle.

Place twelve buttons or stones in a hollow square so that you count four along each side of it.

Now take the same buttons and arrange them so that they form another square and you can count five along each side of it.

Solution: Make a square with three on every side and place the remaining four, one on each of the corner buttons.

Moving Time.

When moving time comes round, alas,
The dollies dread what comes to pass!
They hear their little mother say:
"I'll have to give some toys away.
They say I cannot take them all,
For we must store them till the fall.
I wonder which I'll keep, dear, dear!"
Oh, how the dollies dread to hear
Those words, for fear she has in mind
Perhaps to leave some doll behind!

But moving day comes round and goes,
And when the fall arrives it shows
The dollies all together still.
Their little mother never will
The family circle break, oh, no!
She loves each precious dolly so!
The other toys of many styles
She gives away, but always smiles
And says, "Of course, my dolls, you see
Must always, always go with me!"

SHADOW PICTURES.

Photographs That Can Be Made by the Aid of a Magnet.

It is possible to produce, with the aid of a magnet, shadow photographs resembling those made by action of the X ray. Either an electromagnet or a permanent magnet will answer the purpose.

Place a key or other iron or steel object on the sensitive film of an ordinary photographic plate, then bring the poles of the magnet near the other side of the plate and keep them there for five minutes or more. Upon developing the plate a shadow picture of the key or other object, as sharp and well defined as any of the X ray pictures, will be found.

By this method only iron or steel or other paramagnetic substances may be photographed, but the sensitive side of the plate is turned toward the magnetic poles and a disk of iron nearly as large as the plate is placed on the other side then shadow pictures of any nonmagnetic objects, placed on the sensitive film facing the magnet, may be obtained. The operations are, of course, conducted in a dark room.

With an electromagnet capable of lifting a weight of 100 pounds one scientist has made such pictures through two inches of interposed wood. He has also obtained shadow pictures with a compound steel magnet weighing little more than a pound.—New York Tribune.

ORIGIN OF "BLACKLEG."

The Term Came From Race Track Men Who Wore Black Top Boots.

The term blackleg, which has come to mean one who systematically tries to win money by cheating in connection with races or with cards, billiards or other games of skill or chance and is used as synonymous with a swindler, a welsher, is of uncertain origin. Some authorities connect it with the black legs of a gamecock, so much used by the sporting fraternity for betting purposes.

According to another and more probable view, the expression had no disgraceful sense attached to it at first, but was applied to turf and sporting men because they were often in the habit of wearing black top boots. When blackleg had thus become a current phrase for professional sporting men it probably passed into use as applied more particularly to those who took an unfair advantage of their opportunities to cheat the unwary.

The derivation of this term was once solemnly argued before the full court of queen's bench upon a motion for a new trial for libel, but that learned tribunal was unable to decide its origin.—London Standard.

The Bitter End.

You have probably often heard a person say "I will follow it to the bitter end" or something to that effect, but very few persons know that this is a nautical term and is borrowed from a ship's cable. If you have ever been on a big ship you must have noticed two big pieces of wood sticking up out of the deck forward, alongside each other. They sometimes have a windlass between them, and they are used to secure the cable that goes to the anchor. These pieces of wood are called the bitts. When the ship comes to anchor and the cable is paid out all that part of it which is abaft or behind the bitts is called the bitter end of the cable. In a storm or in poor holding ground for anchors the more cable that is paid out the better the anchor will hold and when the captain is at all doubtful he pays out his cable to the bitter end sooner than risk any harm to his ship.—New York Press.

Animal Ink.

Along the rocky shores of New England is much indelible ink. It is better than any that can be bought, a beautiful crimson in color and when applied to fabrics absolutely unchangeable. This ink is contained in little bottles put up by Nature herself, the receptacles in question being certain whelks, or sea snails, of the species known to science as Purpura lapillus. If the shell of one of these whelks be broken there will be found just under the skin of the back a slender whitish vein containing a yellow liquor. The latter when applied to linen with a small brush and exposed to the sun turns first green, then blue, then purple and finally a brilliant crimson. Nothing will wash it out.

Somewhat Mixed.

"Willie, can you tell me what a vegetarian is?"

"A vegetarian is a person who lives on vegetables," replied Willie.

"That is correct. Now I wonder who can tell what an octogenarian is."

"I know," replied Eddie.

"Well, what is an octogenarian?"

"An octogenarian is a person that knocks the other genarians."—Chicago Record Herald.

Weddings in Barcelona.

The wedding invitation means much in Barcelona, Spain, for then every one who receives one must go and give a coin to the bride. That is for her dowry. The father is usually unable to furnish one. He has had to buy a house for her and fit it up, and that is usually expensive.

Very Extraordinary.

"Eh, doctor," said a gillie of a small Scotch town to a friend, "he maun hae been an extraordinary man, that Shakespeare. There are things hae come into his head that never would hae come into mine at a'."—Christian Register.

Oblivion is the rule and fame the exception of humanity.—Rivarol.

BALKED THE BULL.

Presence of Mind That Saved the Life of a Little Child.

A regiment of the German army resting in a country road was appalled to see a great bull madly pursuing a little child in a field near by and yet so far away that the child could not be reached in time to save it nor yet saved by the shooting of the animal.

The bull had his horns down, and all the soldiers were horrified to see that in another moment the child must be gored to death. For an instant no one seemed to know what to do, and then the drum major shouted to the buglers of the band, who stood near with their instruments in their hands, to sound a loud blast. They looked aghast.

"Sound, I say, for God's sake, to save the child!" repeated the drum major.

Then the buglers blew a blast at the top of their lungs. The drum major knew that animals of that species were so much affected by strange and high pitched musical sounds that they seemed compelled to imitate them. This bull proved to be no exception to the rule.

As soon as he heard the bugle blast he paused in his pursuit of the child, glanced toward the band, raised his head and began to bellow madly. The buglers kept up as high and discordant a tumult as they could, and meantime soldiers were running to the rescue of the child.

Before the bull had finished his attention to the bugles the child was in a place of safety.—New York Tribune.

STOCKINGS OF SILK.

The First Pair Queen Bess Wore Made a Hit With Her Majesty.

Up until the time of Henry VIII. stockings were made out of ordinary cloth. The king's own were made out of yard wide taffeta. It was only by chance that he might obtain a pair of silk hose from Spain. His son, Edward VI., received as a present from Sir Thomas Gresham "a pair of long silk stockings." For some years longer silk stockings continued to be a great rarity. Says Stow:

"In the second year of Queen Elizabeth her silk woman, Mistress Montague, presented her majesty with a pair of black knit stockings for a New Year's gift, which after a few days' wearing pleased her highness so well that she sent for Mistress Montague and asked her where she had had them and if she could help her to any more, who answered, saying, 'I made them very carefully, of purpose only for your majesty, and, seeing these please you so well, I will presently set more in hand.'

"'Do so,' quoth the queen, 'for indeed I like silk stockings so well, because they are pleasant, fine and delicate, that henceforth I will wear no more cloth stockings.'

"And from that day up to her death the queen never wore cloth but only silk stockings."—New York Herald.

Ant Colonies.

An ant nest or colony arises from eggs and by one or more "queens." The developing young are tended by the sexless neuters, or "workers." The maggots, or larval ants, are fed by them, often nourished out of the nurses' mouths, and are as carefully watched in respect of the temperature and other conditions of the nurseries as are infantile human beings. When full development occurs the pupae change into ants, which are either winged or wingless. The latter are the "neuters," or workers. They may develop big jaws and appear as the "soldiers" of the colony. Those which are winged are the founders of new colonies. They are of both sexes, and they produce the eggs whence the new generations will be evolved.

Doughnuts.

Light, tender doughnuts quite unlike the usual solid kind are made with a cupful of sugar, a teaspoonful of butter, two eggs and a cupful of milk. Mix a scant pint of flour that has been sifted with two rounding teaspoonfuls of baking powder, making a paste that is soft. Stand the bowl containing it on the ice until it is very cold and then roll it out and fry before it loses its shape. The idea is to make the paste a little softer than can be rolled before it is stiff with cold and to use as little flour as possible. The doughnuts should be turned continually while they are frying.—Baltimore American.

Too Professional.

"I saw that man gazing into your eyes," said Maud.

"Yes," replied Mamie. "I felt complimented until I learned that he is studying to be an oculist. I had the same disappointing experience with a young dentist who was always anxious to make me smile."—Washington Star.

BRUNONIA

How a Town Took Its Name From a Mystery

By ELIZA B. TREAT

Names often fasten themselves upon things or places from some incident connected with them in their beginning.

There is a town in what is now the middle west, but half a century ago was the far west, called Brunonia. Singularly enough, the town took its name when it was in the rough from a man whose name no one knew. He came to the place a stranger, without introduction, and when asked his name said:

"Call me Brown; that's as good a name as any."

This man Brown turned out to be the embodiment of a mystery which set the inhabitants agog. When this mystery reached its climax the town showed signs of permanence, and a name was sought for. Some one suggested that they call it Brown. The proposition was laughed at till a young college graduate who had recently settled there suggested the Latin for Brown, or Brunonia. This euphonious word pleased the people, and the town was thenceforth known by that name.

Brown was a spare man, who wore his hair quite long and dressed in buckskin, his head covering being a sombrero. One looking at him would remark:

"What a strange looking man that fellow is!"

But he would not be able to determine wherein the strangeness lay. It was not in his costume, for a number of men thereabout wore buckskin, and long hair was a "plains" fashion. If it lay in any one thing it was in a sphinx-like expression the man always wore on his face. The strangeness of appearance was enhanced by a peculiar reticence, for Brown never told whence or why he came to the town or anything of his past or what he might hope for in the future.

JUMPED INTO BROWN'S ARMS.

Brown had not been long in his adopted home when it was noticed that he seemed either to be looking for some one or was conscious that some one was looking for him. A boy one day walking behind him down the main street noticed that at every corner he would turn his head to the right, then to the left, or vice versa, before crossing. The boy saw him cross half a dozen streets, and he never failed to look in both directions.

Brown was a handsome man, and this, taken in connection with the mystery attending him, attracted the young women of the place to him. A number of them at different times endeavored to secure some notice from him, but they all failed. He seemed insensible to feminine charms. This added to the wonder the man excited in every one and led to the theory among the younger persons that he had been crossed in love and among the older ones that he feared some woman he had wronged who was looking for him. There were men of the town who believed that a woman was looking for Brown; but, as to Brown having injured her, they thought it more likely that she had got him in her toils and made it hot for him.

Be that as it may, the attention Brown attracted grew instead of declining. He was pointed out to strangers as the town curiosity, and they carried the story of the mystery to other places. It is quite possible, even probable, that this had some effect in fastening the name of Brown on the town.

With every month that passed the man's watchfulness increased. He was seen at times to start, but so adept was he in concealing the cause that those who noticed the starting either thought that they were mistaken or that it was merely a nervous twitching.

One girl in the town, and one only, refused to put up with Brown's indifference. That was Ellen Wykoff. It was apparent that she was trying to penetrate the armor which protected him from those who sought to gain an inside view of him, and her efforts were watched with a keen interest. For awhile he paid no more attention to Miss Wykoff than to any of the other girls. When in the morning he sauntered down the street she would waylay him at her gate and attempt to engage him in conversation. The only adornment in the town was a flower bed she cultivated in the front yard of her home. One morning she was seen to offer Brown a posy. He accepted it, but without fervor, and after having passed a few blocks away from the donor, where she would not see him, he dropped it.

All these incidents were observed by the watchful citizens, and some of them did a little spying. But that was after Miss Wykoff had seemed to make some headway with Brown. If they wished for information they must get it from another source than Ellen, for she proved to be very close mouthed. She had not been considered so before she sought Brown's attentions, and every one was surprised at her reticence. "Can it be," they said, "that this impenetrable man makes any one with whom he comes in contact impenetrable?"

Ellen Wykoff's efforts to break through Brown's shell continued, increasing the while up to a certain point, when it seemed that she had succeeded. At any rate, her efforts ceased and apparently from the fact that Brown seemed to have yielded. After that the two were often seen together, even to taking walks in each other's company, and Brown no longer threw away any posy the girl gave him.

But here arose another cause for tongue clatter. Was the condition between Brown and Ellen Wykoff that of lovers or of friends? There were those who held to the former and those who held to the latter opinion. All efforts to draw an admission of any kind from Ellen failed, and, as to Brown, no one ever thought of asking him any question whatever.

One day something occurred which led Brown's fellow townsmen to think that the mystery was solved. He was not seen on the street as usual nor the next day nor the next. Then came a woman, a coarse, disagreeable looking creature, who made inquiries about a man, giving a description resembling Brown.

If Mr. Brown was the man she wanted he had doubtless heard of her and taken a timely departure. She left, and the next day Brown reappeared. Brown was told that a woman had come into town and looked for a man answering his description, but the news didn't seem to trouble him. He said he'd been called away to look out for a legacy he had received, and it was not long before there were indications that he had really had a windfall.

The woman who was looking for him or some one like him did not return, but Brown kept up his watchfulness. Indeed, her appearance evidently had not changed the situation. He was the same mystery as before, and as time wore on many came to believe that she had been looking for another person.

Then came a man worse looking—if that could be—than the woman who had been there who was hunting for one whose description fitted her exactly. He did not seem to know Brown, and it was at once inferred that Brown had nothing to do either with the ill favored man or woman. He said he hadn't, and there were good reasons why he should be believed.

Every evening at 5 o'clock the stage drew up at the tavern on its way through the town. One evening while the crowd was awaiting the usual daily excitement the coach appeared at the other end of the street, and Brown, who was present, was seen to change color. Several persons who noticed him looked knowingly at each other as much as to say: "His enemy is coming. Look out." The coach came on and sitting on the seat beside the driver was a comely woman of twenty. Seeing Brown, her face broke into a beautiful smile, and when the coach stopped she stepped down on to the wheel and jumped into Brown's arms.

The news spread throughout the town that the Brown mystery was solved. But the curious citizens were doomed to disappointment. Neither Brown nor the new arrival gave any explanation. Since they went to housekeeping together without any marriage ceremony it was inferred that they were man and wife. But Brown was a new man. He became a permanent resident of the place, and he and his wife—especially the latter—grew in the affections of their fellow townsmen. But neither ever lisped a word as to the story that every one believed was connected with them.

This much came from Ellen Wykoff. She averred that she had formed a resolution to get Brown's secret. For the purpose she pretended to have fallen in love with him. She found him a very honorable man, who felt it his duty to shut off a love that could not be returned. On her promise not to reveal what he said he informed her that he was a married man. But the rest of the mystery she could not get out of him.

Miss Wykoff learned, however, the cause of his looking up and down a street before crossing it. He was blind in one eye and to avoid accident had formed this habit. His starting came from the same cause, a shadow on his blind side being the most frequent cause.

It was soon after Mrs. Brown's arrival when the interest in their story—a story doubly interesting from remaining untold that the town was named—Brown's legacy proved to be a bona fide one and sufficiently large to enable him to do a great deal for his adopted town. And doubtless this was another reason for its being called Brunonia.

MAGNIFIED HER WEALTH.

A Five Dollar Bill That Seemed to Be a Small Fortune.

The woman handed her friend a five dollar bill. "See the number of small fives engraved on it?" she asked. "When I was in Denmark a few years ago such a bill as that caused me a great deal of amusement, and I had to surrender one before I could prove myself clear of a false belief regarding my finances.

"An aunt whom I was visiting saw in my purse one day a number of these bills, and she asked to examine one, as it was so different from any of the Danish money. She studied it attentively a few minutes and then asked me how much it was. I told her it was $5, and, to my surprise, I saw she did not believe me. 'If it is only that amount,' she said, 'why has it so many little figures on it?'

"I tried to explain, but I made little impression on her. Later I heard she had told our relatives that I was 'worth thousands and thousands of dollars' and was trying to conceal the fact from the family lest they should expect some things of me that they would not otherwise.

"When I heard that I was visiting in another part of the country and could not very well defend myself, so I hit on the expedient of sending my aunt a present of a five dollar bill. When she went to have it changed into the money of the country she was at last convinced, though at the price of having her dream of wealth rudely shattered."—New York Press.

A FAMOUS BEACON.

The Navesink Light, Near Sandy Hook, Is a Wonder.

The most powerful light in America is housed on a promontory near Sandy Hook, 250 feet above the beach, where it acts as a safeguard to all ships entering or leaving the harbor of New York. It is called Navesink light and is of 95,000,000 candle power. At fifteen or twenty miles its flash is as pointed and brilliant as a star. On a perfectly clear night its shaft of light can be seen 100 miles at sea. When it was erected it was operated at twice its present candle power. But ocean pilots objected to its strength, saying that so amazing an electric flash actually blinded them and interfered with their work. Uncle Sam heard the prayer of the pilots and turned down his pet lamp to 95,000,000 candle power.

The amount of oil consumed by the engine that provides the power for the light is only one gallon and seven eighths an hour. That is the astonishing thing to the unscientific visitor—the comparatively small expense and effort required to maintain so great a light. There are two fair sized dynamos and two oil engines. One set is always kept in reserve. Of course the tremendous candle power is developed by means of a great lens, made in France. The lens weighs seven tons and a half, is seven inches thick and rests in mercury. It is revolved with ease.—Saturday Evening Post.

Purely Mental.

Mrs. Holden had been blessed with remarkable eyesight all her life. It was a great trial to her when at the age of seventy-two she was obliged to put on "reading glasses." "But they are really becoming to you, Aunt Hilda," said a gentle niece by way of consolation.

"No, they aren't," said Mrs. Holden, with her usual scorn for compliment. "Anybody's eyes look better without a glass in front of 'em, and you know it."

"But you couldn't read without them," ventured the niece, "and you love"—

"I could, too, read without 'em," said the old lady, refusing to be soothed. "I could read most as well as ever, but I couldn't sense it all—that's the only trouble."—Youth's Companion.

England's Largest House.

The proud distinction of being the largest house in England is generally accorded to Lord Fitzwilliam's Yorkshire seat, Wentworth Woodhouse. Of this house it is said that the three principal entrances are so far distant from each other that visitors are advised to bring three hats with them, one to be kept at each point of egress. A house which is 600 feet long, has a hall in which two average suburban villas could be comfortably placed and boasts a room for every two days of the year is certainly large enough to satisfy any reasonable ambition.—Exchange.

Handy Shakespeare.

"Can you loan me four volumes of your Shakespeare set?"

"Certainly. Which volumes do you wish?"

"It makes no particular difference. We're to play bridge tonight, and our card table isn't quite high enough."—Louisville Courier Journal.

Irresistible.

"However did you reconcile Adele and Mary?"

"I gave them a choice bit of gossip and asked them not to repeat it to each other."—Fliegende Blatter.

Only One Exception.

Teacher—How is it that you don't know your lesson? Boy—I can't learn it. Teacher (angrily)—If it were not for me you'd be the biggest blockhead on earth.—Exchange.

Money in Her Own Name.

Hewitt—He married a girl with money in her own name. Jewett—Is that so? Hewitt—Yes; her name was Cash.—New York Press.

Your mistake in life is that you do not look forward far enough.—Dickens.

TO TAME VOLCANOES.

Plan to Divert Their Energy Before It Gets to the Boiling Point.

In 1767 Sir William Hamilton declared that were he to live long enough he might solve the problem of chaining up the lava streams in volcanoes. As it was, after studying the crater of an extinct volcano, he foretold with exactitude when an eruption might be expected. It has now been established by experiment that the earth grows warmer as the the zone of volcanic activity is approached. Hence it is that a German who has made a great study of earthquake and volcanic phenomena advocates the establishing of volcanic stations for observation purposes, these to be located about the area chosen at certain distances from each other and connected with wires and a registering machine.

First of all, the temperature of the soil and its average fluctuations are to be exhaustively studied, with a view to finding a means of dissipating the energy in the interior of the earth. The earth is to be sounded in the volcanic area and a system of wires and electric batteries introduced at a level which must necessarily be very deep. It is pointed out that a wire system under the earth connected with one above would make possible the study of volcanic action, as it is registered step by step on the recorder. When this shall be accomplished, attention can be directed to diverting the energy concentrated on a particular point before the volcano has a chance to get fairly started.

It is said that the Italian government has been approached in the matter and has considered proposals with reference to a study of Vesuvius.—Harper's.
