LARGE PRICE PAID

Sells Corner of Columbia and Sixth for $175,000.

FINE BLOCK FOR CITY

B. S. Securities Company Is Purchaser, —Announces Plans for Future— Mr.. Cliff's Big Turnover.

One hundred and seventy-five thousand dollars was the big price paid yesterday afternoon for corner of Columbia, Sixth and Carnarvon streets. The purchasers are the British-Canadian Securities Company, who intend to erect a fine eight-storey fireproof steel building on the site. Included in the purchase is the Cliff block, and this building will be left standing. On the rest of the lot, which measures 66 by 132 will stand the new construction, the groundfloor corner of which will be occupied by the Dominion Trust Company, through whose office the deal was transacted. It is planned to make these offices the most up-to-late and best equipped in the city with fine vaults excavated below.

It is interesting to note that it was little less than three years ago that Mr. Cliff, who has just sold out, bought this property for some $40,000. He erected the building that now bears his name as a cost of some $60,000 so that one more man has made handsome profit out of New Westminster real estate.

This announcement of the B. C. Securities, that they intend to build, makes it certain that this city will have three new up-to-date office buildings in its main street erected in the future. The Westminster Trust Co. is rapidly nearing completion; the People's Trust company is busy with plans for its building, and now the third block is to be run up short-

TRIANGULAR RUN; THOROUGH TRY-OUT

Agent of World-Wide Firm Investigates Possibilities—Ocean Shipping Better Than Ever Now.

Charles V. LaFarge, freight agent of the worldwide shipping firm of Dodwell & Company, Ltd., which has its headquarters in London, was a visitor in New Westminster yesterday for the purpose of looking into the prospects of the new triangular service now being supplied by the "Alskan" between New Westminster, Victoria and Seattle.

Mr. LaFarge made the welcome announcement that the steamer is going to adhere strictly to her schedule, and that she will not deviate one point from her course. In fact, yesterday the captain of the boat turned down a big offer of freight at a port off his run, so that he could stick to his scheduled hours. The firm running the boat realises that this is the only business-like way to build up the business. At present Mr. LaFarge said that it was too soon to say whether the service would pay or not. His firm meant to give it a thorough try-out, and it was up to the business men of New Westminster to patronise the vessel, otherwise it would be forced to discontinue the run. Up to date very little freight had been brought here from Seattle, although a good deal has been carried between here and Victoria.

Speaking of the shipping conditions on this coast in general, Mr. LaFarge said that they were excellent this year, in fact, the overseas trade was far better than ever before. His firm is agent for the Blue Funnel line, and he stated that that company had chartered eight special tramp steamers for this year's business, a number far in excess of the usual requirements.

UNCERTAIN SHELTER FOR ACCUSED RUSSIANS

The sixteen Russians implicated in the intimidation affair at Burnaby are having an unsettled time. A few of them have found accommodation in the Burnaby cells during the period of their remand, and the rest were sent down to the provincial gaol for housing. They were admitted within the building, but a telegram from Victoria officially refused to accept delivery of them, a fact which may worry the authorities more than them themselves. In order to release everybody from this uncomfortable predicament Magistrate Walker has decided to bring the men up before him this morning insted of on Saturday.

LOCAL SYNDICATE BUYS ON LULU IS.

Pays $14,000 for Three Hundred Feet of Water Frontage on Annacis Island.

Capitalists are still looking towards Lulu Island waterfrontage, as is proved by a deal, which has just been completed of 300 feet fronting on Annacis channel at a price of $14,000. The purchasers of this property are a local syndicate who bought the land through the firm of Motherwell & Darling. The exact location is block 16 of lot 757, including, as has been said, a front of 300 feet on the water.

"DANDY DICK" APPEARS ONCE MORE

Amateur Actors Carry All Before Them in St. Barnabas Hall.

A large and appreciative audience greeted the St. George Dramatic Society last evening in St. Barnabas Hall when they again presented "Dandy Dick." Any slight nervousness that appeared among the cast when they presented the comedy last month, had entirely disappeared, and their performance last evening was indeed creditable in every way. Mr. B. R. Hill, under whose direction the play was produced, was at his best as the Dean of St. Marvell's, while Mrs. J. D. Taylor, as a vivacious widow, sister of the Dean, acted her part in a charming manner. Mr. A. Matthison, as a typical English "cop," was humorous in the extreme, and Miss Peele, as Hannah Topping, the constable's wife, scored repeatedly by getting her husband out of great difficulties. The other members of the cast were in no wise inferior in playing their respective parts, and lastnight's performance reflects much credit on all concerned.

The performers and others who had assisted in the creditable work, were afterwards entertained at the home of Rev. E. R. Bartlett.

CONVERTED JEW WILL PREACH HERE

Rev. S. Mendelssohn, who was being educated as a Jewish Rabbi, will preach on Sunday in Olivet Baptist Church at 11 a. m. and in St. Andrew's Prebyterian Church at 3:30 p. m. His subject in the afternoon will be "The rebuilding of Jerusalem."

It was at Jerusalem, the capital of Palestine, that Mr. Mendelssohn became a convert to Christianity. Although surrounded by strict Jewish Orthodoxy, and studying at the time for the Rabbinic seat, yet the true missionary spirit of a converted Jew, the Rev. Ben Oliel, came in contact with his, and the stutdy of the New Testament made a lasting impression upon him. Particularly these words of the Master: "O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, thou that killest the Prophets and stonest them which are sent unto thee, how often would I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathered her chickens under her wings, but ye would not. Behold your house is left unto you desolate." Matthew, Chapter 23."

These and similar passages set him to think and ponder, but as a Jew he could not partake of the Messianisk claims of Christ. Mr. Mendelssohn ventured to ask some of his Rabbis for enlightenment. But to his amazement he was requested to hand over the New Testament and promise never again to read it, under no less a penalty than that of being dismissed from the college and excommnicated from the Synagogue.

This he did, but evaded the promise, since his mind was set to investigate further into the truth of Christianity. Night after night the Rev. Ben Aliel expounded to him the scriptures regarding the Messiah. Eventually taking the advice of his new teacher, Ben Oliel, he left for England, where his opportunities for study inareased, and he was finally sent to Scotland to complete his education as a missionary to the Jews.

Mr. Mendelssohn has traveled in thirteen countries, preached in six languages, occupied the leading pulpits in England and Scotland, including Christ Church, Westminster, London, where Rev. F. B. Meyer was pastor, and Regent Square Presbyterian Church, London.

He also organized missions to the Jews in seven cities Now he is on his way to see his aged mother and visit the 42 colonies bought up by the Zionists at Palestine. There he intends to distribute 10,000 New Testaments in Hebrew and Yiddish.

Would Amend King's Speech

London, Feb. 15.—Sounding the keynote of the Labor party in the House of Commons here today, J. R. Macdonald moved to amend King George's address to Parliament. He expressed regret that His Majesty had failed to recommend the minimum wage legislation and other measures designed "to procure an equal division of the fruits of industry."

BOARD OF TRADE HOLDS ITS MEETING OF THE YEAR

President White and Secretary Stuart Wade Submit Their Reports---Industrial and Commersial Progress of New Westminster---Royal City Goes Ahead.

There was a large attendance at the annual meeting of the Board of Trade last night. Prominent features of the proceedings were the reports of the president and the secretary. Mr. John R. Duncan was elected president for 1912.

The president sugmitted his report as follows:

Gentlemen:—Another round of the circle has been made and we have again arrived at our annual meeting. While the activities of the Board during the past year show no especially outstanding features, its efforts have at no time been relaxed and I think we may feel that steady progress has been made in nearly all departments.

Our membership shows a fair increase and our finances would be in excellent condition, except for the large total of dues outstanding. More general promptness in the payment of dues on the part of our members is much to be desired. The attendance at meetings has been fair, but I hope that a marked improvement in this respect will be noticeable during the coming year.

While the questions taken up by the Board have been numerous and varied, there is one which it seems to me has been rather overlooked, whose importance merits greater attention than has been given to it, viz. the agricultural interests of our district. Production in grain and hay, dairying, fruit, poultry, etc., is not advancing in response to the demand quite to the etxent we would like to see, and I think the Board should have more accurate information about, and be in closer touch generally with these interests, and seek by every possible means to aid their development. I sincerely hope that among our members will be found those who will take up this subject earnestly.

Business conditions in the city have been excellent throughout the year. All returns, postoffice, customs, land registry, etc., shew large increases over the previous year. Our record of $1,600,000 of new buildings will certainly compare favorably with, if it does not surpass, that of any other city of equal size in Canada.

Commendable and successful efforts are being made by some of our merchants to etxend their trade further afield in various directions throughout the province, and our Board has been constantly engaged in endeavoring to secure better shipping facilities inward and outward, by rail and water, with beneficial results. That there is no subject of more vital importance to our commercial progress than cheap, convenient and adequate transportation, is, and must always be, recognized by this Board.

The opening of an office here by the Bank of Vancouver since last annual meeting may be noted.

All the established industries of the city have, I think, enjoyed a prosperous year, and in many instances their capacity has been largely increased.

A gratifying number of promising new industries also have been induced to locate here during the year, some of which deserve more than mere mention.

The Western Paper Mills, financed largely by English money, will represent an investment of well over $100,000 and will employ at the start about 50 hands, making 15 to 20 tons of paper per day. It is expected the mill will be turning out paper by April 1st, contracts to a considerable amount for the finished product having already been entered into by the company. The raw material will be principally rags and paper gathered up in this and neighboring centres, and with equitable freight rates its output will be marketed as far east as Winnipeg.

The Dominion Match Co., financed partly by subscriptions in B. C. and partly by American capital, have under way the construction of an initial factory 200x100 to turn out one carload of matches per day. Other buildings will be added for veneering and allied products, the total investment of the company probably running into $150,000. The raw material of the company is our common alder, cottonwood, spruce, etc. Their improved process combined with cheap raw materials and unusually favorable local facilities are expected to enable them to market their goods, if desired, in Eastern Canada and in foreign countries.

A complete cocoa manufacturing plant is under order to be installed in connection with the local condensed milk factory now known as Pacific Chocolate Company, and which will be operated in the future in the manufacture of cocoa and chocolate products and milk food specialties.

B. C. Brass Co., Ltd., now preparing ground for immediate erection of its building and plant will be an ally of the Westminster Iron Works, complementing in brass the work of the latter in iron.

The British Canadian Lumber Co. is building a sawmill on Lulu Island of a capacity of 250,000 feet in ten hours and which will employ 200 men.

The Westminster Nail Co., also on Lulu Island, is now in active operation producing 60 kegs of wire nails per day and employing 12 hands, increasing its capacity to its limit of 125 kegs per day as rapidly as possible.

Other new industries are a feed mill, engine works, soda works, vinegar works, etc. It will thus be seen that our commercial connections with the outside world are broadening and we must think and act accordingly.

Special efforts have been made by your officers and members of committees to develop and cement feelings of goodwill and mutual interest between New Westminster and the surrounding municipalities, and I hope and believe that tangible results have been obtained, by way of better relations with our neighbors.

I am glad to believe also that the most cordial sentiments of friendship exist between our Board and City Council. The maintenance of these desirable conditions is of prime importance to the success of our Board I need only mention the great success and happy effect of our recent banquet to Sir Donald Mann and his associates of the Canadian Northern Railway Co.

I am glad to note the recently projected formation of an associattion primarily for purposes of publicity and "Boosting" of our city. This is a splendid move and one which merits the sympathy and asistance of this Board.

I thank you, genetlemen, one and all, and especially the other officers and chairmen of committees, for unfailing kindness and support during the past year. I trust the coming year will bring to the Board double the success of the past.

Secretary's Report.

Mr. President and Gentlemen:—In accordance with a custom established aver a quarter of a century ago it becomes my duty to report, as briefly as possible, on some of the subjects which have come before you for consideration during the past twelve months, and in doing so I am satisfied that you will agree with me in the opinion that never in our past history have subjects of such vast importance to the communities of the Lower Mainland, and our own citizens especially, come before any body of business men in New Westminster.

Broadly speaking, there seems to have been no branch of industry and no matter of public importance which has not been originated or effectively considered by this Board. It is not my province to refer to these in detail, as the various chairmen of standing committees will doubtless call many things to your recollection.

The Fraser River is of far greater importance to us than the River Tiber was to the citizens of Ancient Rome. Realizing this, we have devoted many hours to the Fraser River. We have discussed its depths and verified its soundings. We have for years strenuously fought for perfect freedom of access. We have expended hundreds of dollars in expert advice as to the means to be adopted to this end, and eventually we have succeeded in convincing the Federal Government that what we desired wa sa necessity—not only for our city, but for the benefit of Western Canada—and we hope at our netx anniversary to report some 7000 feet of petty at the sandheads approaching completion.

The opening in 1915 of the Panama Canal has inspired the city fathers, headed by our ex-President John A. Lee, to further efforts in river work, and this Board has frequently expressed its support of the projected harbor works which will, it is believed, be necessary to meet the requirements of ocean shipping once the entrance of the Fraser is available at all times for vesels from all parts of the world. Steps have also been considered for better lighting and other river improvements, and these are matters of urgent moment at the present time if our city is to be placed in the front rank as a commercial port.

We are pleased to report that the weekly service, long desired, with Victoria, Seattle and Tacoma, has become an accomplished fact; and if the merchants and citizens support the enterprise, as they should be, it means the establishment of a trade which will need a daily service in the not distant future.

A disability in the way of navigation has recently caused considerable friction, but the B. C. Electric Railway Company has generously given way and will shortly raise their power line by 25 feet.

The Pitt river line of the Western Canada Power Company has, through our efforts, been so safeguarded, that whenever navigation demands it, the line also will be raised to a satisfactory height.

We have moved the Dominion Government to improvements in our Postal facilities; obtained additional letter carriers, boxes, a better and daily service south of the Fraser and etxensions to our suburbs where the exceedingly rapid growth of population placed new settlers at a considerable disadvantage at first.

While we may not have been officially recognised as home-builders, our discussions have shown the ever-increasing need for residences, and have doubtless attracted the attention of the building trade as is evidenced by the steady progress shown by the reports of the building inspector.

The telephone service badly needed attention, but the building now nearing completion, will, we believe, place this city in a position equal to that of the largest cities on the continent for effective work. It is only right to admit that this service has considerably improved during the latter half of the year, and the installation of a 5000 switchboard should prevent a recurrence of past troubles.

The health of the city has been excellent, but notwithstanding this, the subject has been constantly before this Board, which was largly instrumental in introducing a firm now operating with approved milk.

We have yet to depiore the delay in building the Great Northern Railway depot, but the plans are completed and the difficulties in the way have, we believe, been almost overcome, so that we may hope to see a building created shortly worthy of the Royal City.

For the benefit of new settlers steps were taken with a view to getting government help in clearing bush land but this has not yet been accomplished.

We are still endeavoring to assist Surrey Municipality in obtaining a public park of natural growth on the Yale road, and have hopes of success.

It has been our pleasure to entertain many individuals visiting our city, amongst the most notable being the British Press Association of Editors, who were met by your secretary at North Bend, and who have acknowledged their appreciation by letter.

The most notable events of the year I venture to submit are the steps taken to direct the attention of he Federal Government to the peculiarly desirable and strategic position of this city and port as a naval base. The discussion in May last of the Potato contest at New York and the subsequent appointment of your secretary as a commissioner to the Pa-Ame.ican Expositions where British Columbia captured the Stilwell Trophy valued at $1000, and especially the epoch-marking banquet given to Sir Donald Mann, who, with his colleague, Sir William Mackenzie, deserves special recognition from the entire communities of this valley for their services in opening up the fertile regions of the Fraser to the commerce of the interior and the coast cities.

While recognising in the heartiest manner the magnificent work done by our civic authorities in every department, I think this Board may justly claim some share in the credit of upbuilding and beautifying our city, for in our discussions we have frequently considered subjects of moment to our during the year we admitted 27 new members and lost only four by resignation, leaving a total membership of 143.

We held 14 meetings (exlusive of five council meetings), at which there was an average attendance of 19.

The financial report may be taken as ample evidence of the progress permeating this city in every branch of commerce, industry and general development; and whilst our labors are carried out with that painstaking and thoughtful earnestness which has been so signally visible during the past year, I venture to predict that this Board of Trade will attract the most brilliant citizens to its deliberations and be respected as a body of men who are working in the interests of the public alone and for the welfare of the communities scattered throughout the Lower Fraser Valley.

SIGN PETITION FOR PAVING OF TWELFTH

Property Owners Wish to Improve Vancouver Entrance Into Heart of City.

Property-owners on Twelfth street are circulating a petition to have that street paved with Hassam pvoment from Tenth avenue to Columbia street. On the grade from a point half-way between Third and Fourth avenues to one between Fourth and Fifth avenues stone setts are called for by the petition. For the scheme to carry, it is necessary to secure the names of representatives of two-thirds of the assessed property along the street, but it seems that there will be no trouble in obtaining these.

The result of the improvement would be that the Vancouver-Westminster road would be paved from the boundary to the heart of the city, and that two of the main entrances to New Westminster would be a credit to the place.

YUAN IS PRESIDENT

Dr. Sun Yat Sen Steps Down and Out.

ELECTED BY THE COUNCIL

Graceful Recognition of Ability of Older Statesman—Dr. Sen Appears in New Light.

Nanking, Feb. 15.—The National Chinese assembly elected Yuan Shi Kai, former premier, president of the Chinese republic. It also decided that the provisional capital will be located here.

This action followed the resignation late yesterday of Dr. Sun Yat Sen as provisional president. Dr. Sen urged his adherents to rally to the support of Yuan Shi Kai. Despite contrary reports, it is believed that Tang Shao Yi, who acted as Yuan's representative will be made prime minister. Tang, it is said, declined the proffered premiership, but it is believed Yuan will be able to obtain his acceptance.

Dr. Sun Yat Sen will retain the presidency until Yuan Shi Kai is inaugurated and his cabinet named.

The selection of the ministers is scheduled for tonight. In his letter to the national assembly Dr. Sun says:

"Yuan Shi Kai is a man of constructive ability and one upon whom a united nation looks hopefully. The happiness of the country depends upon your choice. Farewell."

Yuan Shi Kai's failure to come to Nanking has caused many persons to oppose him, fearing that he planes a military distatorship.

BURNED TO DEATH IN COLLISION

He Was so Wedged in That He Could Not Be Extricated Before the Enveloped Him.

Yarmouth, Me., Feb. 15.—Three trainmen were burned to death today when the fire in the wreckage of two Grand Trunk freight trains, which collided near North Yarmouth, reached the demolished engine in which they were imprisoned. One of the men in the engine cab, Harry Corliss, was alive when villagers reached the scene but he was so wedged in he could not be liberated before the fire enveloped him.

Corliss begged that something be given him to ease his sufferings and chloroform was administered by a physician. Shortly after the villagers were driven back by the heat.

C. P. R. DIGNITARIES PAY VISIT TO CITY

Several C. P. R. dignitaries were in the city yesterday morning on a tour of inspection. Mr. Bury, vice-president and general manager of western lines, was the most important of them, but the chief engineer of the same division was also among the party. Ed. Goulet, local manager, introduced the visitors to Mayor Lee, who took up several matters connected with their line with them. Mr. Bury promised an alteration of the schedule between this city and the Junction which would do away with all delays for travellers coming to New Westminster. More trains were also promised, and also the racking of the roadbed in soft spots between here and Coquitlam.

Order of Eastern Star.

On Monday evening, Feb. 12, the Royal City Chapter, No. 7, Order of Eastern Star, held an open meeting in honor of the reception of the charter. There were present Bro. Taylor, P. W. P., of Vancouver, who presented the charter and also gave a very interesting address. Bro. Proctor, P. W. P., of Vancouver, who presented Sister A. F. Gilley, P. W. M., with a past matron's jewel, was assisted by Sister Fugler, P. W. M. of North Vancouver. Mrs. Munroe, P. W. M., and Mrs. Jones of Grandview Chapter, were also among the visitors. There was an excellent programme provided, with Bro. S. J. Ritchie, W. P., in the chair. The first item was a selection by the talented children of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Cameron, which was heartily encored. Songs were rendered by Miss McMillan and Mr. Stanley Gilchrist. Miss K. Laidlaw rendered a piano solo in her usual finished manner. Miss A. Tidy favored the audience with a recitation which was much enjoyed. The company then adjourned to the supper room where an excellent repast was provided by the members. The entertainment was closed by short speeches given by the Vancouver visitors. Special mention must be made of the very instructive remarks made by Mrs. Fugler, P. W. M., of North Vancouver.

Australian Immigration.

The sixth annual report of the British Immigration League of Australia, is to hand from Sydney, says the London Standard. This league, which announces its object "to foster the spirit of democratic imperialism in the direction of building up a new Britain in Australia as distinct from an Australia composed of peoples from all the nations of the earth," is the most progressive of the bodies formed in Australia to encourage immigration. Yet the record of its actual achievement last year is not very impressive. It claims to have placed upwards of one thousand immigrants in New South Wales, and during its existence as a league it has "increased the population of the Commonwealth by over two thousand men." As regards Canada, the other great Dominion, figures for a period of six years would run into hundreds of thousands, to something indeed beyond a million. The value of the work of the British Immigration League in securing new population is, however, in the future rather than the present. It is educating public opinion in the Commonwealth to the necessity of a bold immigration policy, and when success attends the league's educational work there will follow surely government action to attract a broad stream in place of the present trickle of immigration. "There is no reason why, with proper organization and adequate land settlement systems, the number of immigrants to Australia should not be at the rate of from 100,000 to 200,000 per annum," states the report of the British Immigration League. This statement can be endorsed cordially. There is no reason at all, for the resources of Australia are quite equal to the task of finding them profitable employment, and, until a reformed tariff system begins to take effect in the Mother Country, there will necessarily be a great overflow of surplus population from here.

The educational work of the British Immigration League is carried out on sound lines. It emphasizes the importance of the "White Australia" policy, and links up effectively the allied subjects of defence and immigration. That is the appeal to which the Australian people are most likely to be responsive, and at the call of which they are most likely to turn a deaf ear to those who would still argue for a dog-in-the-manger policy. There is a natural nervousness in Australia regarding her strategical position. The name which is comprehensive of Australia, Tasmania and New Zealand—Australasia—has in itself a suggestion of terror. Its plain meaning is "Southern Asia," and without a doubt the natural destiny of Australasia was to provide a great southern province for the overflow of the Asiatic peoples. The British race, with its two little nations holding Australia and New Zealand, thwarts that destiny. It must therefore, prepare for the great struggle which is inevitable one day for all who stand in the way of a natural development. Preparation for that struggle must take the form not only of arming, and training the present population, but also of increasing the population hugely, for, allowing it the greatest of devotion, of courage, and of skill, it is far too thin a garrison for the territory it has to defend. There was thus a happy fitness in the proposal of the president of the British Immigration League, Dr. Anderson Stuart, that the £100,000 collected by private subscription towards providing a "Dreadnought" for the Empire's navy (a responsibility afterwards taken over by the Australian Government) should be devoted half to a naval college, half to providing what are called "Dreadnought farms" for the training of young immigrants. The proposal was adopted, and these "Dreadnought farms" will do sound work for the security of the Empire in turning the young unemployed of Britain into prosperous Australian farmers.

Cruikshank's Bank Note.

The most unconventional design for a bank-note was undoubtedly George Cruikshank's "Bank-Note—not to be imitated," published in 1818. It was inspired by the sight of several women dangling from the gallows outside Newgate for uttering £1 notes. The design included a lavish arrangement of fetters and suspended figures, and there was such a demand for copies that Cruikshank had to sit up all night to etch a duplicate plate. He had the satisfaction of knowing that no man or woman was ever hanged for the offence, for his plate led to an act that put a stop to the punishment of death for forgery.—London Chronicle.

A CRIMINAL OFFENCE.

Whether indicating a greater strain in international relations, or merely a desire to put an end to a privilege hitherto enjoyed by a military class, it is an interesting fact that in the past few weeks several European nations have radically changed their procedure with regard to foreign spies. A third possible explanation is that the spy profession was becoming overcrowded. There were too many spies, and, regarding them either as a menace or a nuisance, the governments concerned resolved to abolish them. Readers of the daily newspapers must have been struck with the number of cases that have occurred in the past few months in which German spies in England and British spies in Germany have been detected and punished. We are not apt in the future to hear of so many cases of espionage, for the very good reason that henceforth foreign spies will be treated as burglars or other malefactors about whose unlawful deeds no romance has been twined.

The Spy of the Past.

Until the present time it was considered no disgrace for an officer to be detected in the patriotic act of communicating to his government information regarding the military situation of a foreign power. When undetected, the officer, if his reports were valuable, was rewarded by promotion or by a money grant. When found out he did not forfeit his chances of preferment at home, and was treated by the foreign government very much as a prisoner of war. His imprisonment was not that of a criminal. It was the sort of imprisonment that is reserved by foreign nations for those officers who commit what are considered technical offences, such as dueling. The convicted spy was a "first-class misdemeanant," as the English legal phrase has it. He was not required to be shaved by the prison barber. His own clothes were left with him, and he was not forced to don the badge of disgrace. He was allowed, both in Great Britain and on the Continent, to receiv ehis own mail, to order such food as he chose, and to receive such visitors as might desire to see him. In fact, his imprisonment was merely nominal, and implied no disgrace either while it was in progress or after he had been discharged.

Hard Labor for Spies.

It was Russia that changed this time-honored procedure, by sentencing an Austrian spy to five years' penal servitude with the chain gang. The spy was an officer in the Austrian army, and was detected in the act of espionage in the southwestern provinces of the czar. When the news came that he had been sent to the hardest and most degrading sort of imprisonment in Siberia, military circle were rudely shocked, but hardly had they recovered when they heard that an English court had sentenced a German spy to 18 months with hard labor, which implied the shaving of his head, the wearing of stripes and the harsh treatment of an ordinary highwayman or burglar. Nor did Germany show any more consideration for a British officer who was convicted of espionage.

THE KAISER SCORES.

Count Von Arenthal, the Austrian Chancellor, is said to have tendered his resignation to the emperor, but it is added that he will be asked not to quit his position until the Turko-Italian war is at an end. Out of deference to his sovereign Von Arenthal may yield this point, but his day as an influence in Austria is past, and his resignation marks another step in the triumph of German diplomacy at Vienna. The resignation of Arenthal is somewhat akin to that of Delcasse a few years ago, for both were the victims of the German Foreign Office, which had recognized in Delcasse a formidable enemy, and in Arenthal a lukewarm friend, if not a hostile critic. The resignation of Arenthal has little international significance in itself, but is important as another evidence of what Austria's foreign policy will be when the venerable Franz Josef passes away, and his nephew, the Archduke Francis Ferdinand, ascends the throne of the dual monarch.

It is generally understood that the relations of Germany and Austria are more intimate than those existing between any other two European powers. The people of Austria are more closely akin to the Germans than are the British to the Americans, and besides this natural affinity they are bound in strong alliances and by common interests. Germany has long aimed to be the dominant partner, and she has succeeded pretty well in establishing this position. An indiscreet telegram from the kaiser a few years ago almost undid the work of years, and provoked an anti-German sentiment in Austria. The resignation of Arenthal we may confidently interpret as a sign that the breach has been healed and that the terms between the two nations are such as Germany has sought to bring about. It will be recalled that after the Algeciras Conference Emperor William sent a telegram to Count Goluchowski, the Austrian Minister of Foreign Affairs, in which he expressed his warm thanks to Austria for the manner in which the dual monarchy had acted as Germany's "second" in that memorable conference.

Such trains as the "Better Farming Special," which will be sent out shortly by the Ontario Department of Agriculture, do very valuable work in disseminating knowledge of more scientific methods among the farmers. The lectures in connection with the exhibits reach thousands who otherwise would be out of touch with the latest and best in agricultural methods and discoveries. The train exhibit works in well with the departments's many other efforts to keep the farmer posted on current affairs.

AN ENGLISHMAN IS THE SHIPPING KING

Britain still rules the waves, but as far as commerce is concerned, she rules them through the agency of Sir Owen C. Philipps, K. C. M. G., who recently completed the greatest steamship merger in history. A few years ago, when Pierpont Morgan established the International Mercantile Marine Company, he smashed all existing records in the matter of consolidating shipping interests, but Sir Owen has surpassed the Morgan mark by far. The International Mercantile Marine Company represent 127 steamers, of 1,113,107 gross tonnage; while the Philipps concern controls 308 ships, with a tonnage of 1,370,000 tons. Nor are these ngures apt to permanently represent the strength of the new combine, for there is a possibility that the Orient Line will be absorbed in the near furture. For more than fifty years the Orient has had a working agreement with the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company, and as the agreement has now expired the probability of the Phillips company either swallowing its only African rival seems greater than that of a war rate between the two. One of these alternatives is considered almost inevitable.

Buys the Union Castle Company.

The coup by which Sir Owen Philipps rounded out his shipping trust was the purchase of the Union Castle Line, which shares with the Orient the South African carrying trade. Before this stroke he was recognized as the most important man in the British shipping industry, but the general public knew little of him, famous though he was in certain circles. His absolute mastery of the great trade through his latest purchase attracted attention to Sir Owen, and the people are being made aware of what a remarkable young man has been at work in their midst. It would not be correct to say that he has been undistinguished until the past fortnight or so, for he was a well known figure, if for no other reason than his height. He is si xfeet seven inches tall, and some time ago a popular periodical calculated that if Sir Owen and his two brothers were laid head to heels they would stretch over considerably more than 19 feet.

Of Ancient Family.

The father of these three giants is Sir James Erasmus Philipps, canon of Salisbury Cathedral. He is the twelfth baronet of his line, the family being a very ancient one of Welsh extraction. The Philipps trace their descent, in common with practically all Welshmen, to Cadifor ap Colhon, a witness of the Norman invasion, and if put to it can stretch still farther back and prove that Maximus, Emperor of Rome, was one of their ancestors. In fact, Sir Owen is now so important a man that he can prove his descent form pretty nearly any one he chooses. He was born in 1863 and was educated in Newton College, South Devon, but did not come before the public until, at the age of 32, he contested Montgomery Boroughs and Darlington as a Liberal. He eventually entered parliament in 1906 as member for the Pembroke and Haverford West division, but at the last general election he retired in order to devote his whole time to the shipping combine that he has now completed.

Seven Years' Work.

How he found time for the public and semi-public duties that he has undertaken in the past few years is a mystery that only a busy man will solve, but the fact remains that he has been High Sheriff of Pembrokeshire, a member of the Royal Commission on shipping rings, a director of the London and Southwestern Railway Company, and the St. Thomas Dock Engineering Company. He has been on the Executive Committee of King Edward's hospital fund since 1908, chairman of the Departmental Committee on Distressed Indian and Colonial Subjects in 1909, nad is now vice-chairman of the Liverpool School of Tropical Medicine, and trustee of the Royal Alfred Aged Merchant Seamen's Institute. Is is only seven years since he took charge of the old-fashioned Royal Mail Steam Packet Company. He speedily reorganized this concern, and then joined with Lord Pirrie in the formation of a company to take over the large carrying trade held by the late Sir Edward Jones, the capitalization of the company being $10,000,000.

An English Morgan.

Appreciation of the effect of the Panama Canal is said to have been responsible for his next step, the purchase of the Pacific Steam Navigation Company's fleet of forty-one steamers. This move gave him the shipping trade of South America. Subsequent amalgamations made him a force in the trade to China and Japan, and the only rival of the P. and O. Then he bought the Forwood Line, and thus captured a large portion of the Mediterranean and North African trade. The absorption of the Union Castle ships hands him half of the South African business, and leaves him few more fields to conquer. For an old-fashioned Englishman, in his 48th year, this record must be admitted to be a somewhat remarkable one.

The Royal

The best show yet was the verdict of last night's audiences at the Royal Theatre. Every act went with snap and vim and the pictures were excellent. The big feature that Manager Gillis has engaged for this programme is the Zokovs Trio of Russian whirlwind dancers, and they well deserve the title as they certainly move some. Novelty is a relief to see; this dancing act fills the bill, and they were recalled time and time again. One of the male members of this trio is an excellent flute soloist and he played music that suited all tastes, both classic and rag-time. They introduced a Russian folk song in their native tongue and it was well received. The two Hardyns are a young fellow and a girl, who do a singing act with a little patter. They do it very nicely. Irish stories of a high calibre are in demand and those present last night heard a few good ones that are not moss eaten, told by Tom Whiteside. Mr. Whiteside also gives an excellent impersonation of an East Side Italian who has only been in New York a few weeks. Louise Byrd sang a new song, which was betautifully illustrated, and won the hearts of the audience. An unusual moving picture is "The New Superintendent," which is a story worked in around the great oil fire in California.

IS GOOD SHOW TOWN.

Westminster Has Shown Its Appreciation of First-Class Shows—"Rosary" Tonight.

It is often said that New Westminster is no theatre town; that the people will not patronise a good show when it does come and that a poor production is most likely to draw a full house. Whatever may have been the past history of the show business here the experience of the past few months since the opening of the remodeled opera house has proved that with confidence in the management and provided with good, clean entertainment, Westminster has a higher and better appreciation of dramatic and musical art than most cities of equal size.

While crowded houses have not greeted every play, yet the attendance has been sufficient to encourage the production of better class plays, and most of the companies playing here have gone away more than satisfied with their reception.

In "The Rosary," which plays at the Opera House tonight, is offered an attraction which the management believe will appeal to all classes and to all creeds. It is one of those sweet, tender portrayals of human life and emotions that teaches a true lesson to everyone who thoughtfully sees and hears the play. "The Rosary" has been endorsed by the priesthood and clergy of scores of leading cities throughout this continent. It is based upon an emblem of purity and will live, in some form or other, as long as the passions of love and hate sway the human heart. It was written by Mr. Edward E. Rose, author of such stage successes as "The Prisoner of Zenda," "Janice Meredith," "Alice of Old Vincennes," "Eben Holden," "Rock of Ages," and others equally well known.

The story of "The Rosary" is one of fascinating and enobling interest.

The sweetness and tenderness of the play is well mirrore in the following lines:

"The hours that I spent with thee, dear heart,
Are as a string of pearls to me.
I count them over every one apart,
My Rocary, my rosary,
I tell each bead unto the end,
And there a cross is hung!
I kiss each bead and strive at last to learn
To kiss the cross, sweetheart, to kiss the cross."

DR. SUN YAT SEN.

Dr. Sun Yat Sen's declaration that Yuan Shi Kai might be the next president of China is evidence that the foreign press has not incorrectly estimated the relative strength of the two men. Dr. Sen is merely the provisional president, having been chosen by delegates with no regular authority to act. A duly constituted accembly is quite likely to undo the work of the enthusiastic revolutionists, and choose as president the one strong man in China today, namely, the premier. It is worth noting that in the terms that he presented to the government at Pekin Dr. Sen insisted that Yuan Shi Kai should pledge adherence to the form of government approved by the National Convention. He regards the resignation of the Prince Regent as a gratifying, but unimportant, step in the process of ending the Manchu regime, but appreciates the fact that the attitude of the premier is of more consequence than the submission of the Prince Regent.

Prince Regent Resigns.

This resignation, which was brought about by the premier rather than by the president, is perhaps the most significant event in the progress of the Chinese revolution. The edict in which it is accepted is signed by tht Empress Dowager, and the translation of a couple of paragraphs is interesting:

"The Prince Regent has memorialized, saying that he has now acted as Prince Regent for three years, and that in his management of the government an in the employment of officials he has acted contrary to the popular wishes. In introducing constitutional government his efforts have been futile and insincere. Abuses have therefore accumulated, and the opinion of all is that the calamitous condition of the country is due to the faults of one man, who has brought misery upon all.

"It is too late to repent. If power is still entrusted to him, and if he does not retire, the confidence of the people will be lost. Although in acting as regent he might exert himself anew, he could hardly hope to remedy his faults. So, weeping, he begs to resign his position as regent, and no longer concern himself with affairs of government. This he asks in perfect sincerity."

Yuan's Revenge.

The edict goes on to nominate the two regents who will succeed the departing prince, one of them being a Manchu and the other a Chinese. Both are the nominees of Yuan Shi Kai. In spite of the anxieties of his position, the premier must have taken some satisfaction in ordering the Prince Regent to retire, and in dictating the edict that accepted his resignation. It will be recalled that the Prince Regent was Yuan's enemy, and that it was he who brought about his retirement from the Chinese court three years ago, using the famous excuse about the "sore foot," which Yuan took care to mention when summoned to the aid of the tottering dynasty a few weeks ago. Ordinarily the Chinese habit of belittling services rendered is understood as mere politeness, but in the case of the Prince Regent everybody is ready to believe that he admitted nothing to his own hurt that the event had not abundantly proved. Had there been no Prince Regent there might have been no Chinese revolution, for while he was by no means such a tyrant as the old Empress Dowager, he lacked her diplomatic ability.

The retirement of the Prince Regent leaves Yuan Shi Kai unhampered to deal with the revolutionists. According to Western ideas, the event would seem to be indication that the revolutionists had the government "on the run," and that the throwing over of the Prince Regent was only a preliminary to the downfall of the dynasty. Chinese students, however, do not take this view, but agree that Yuan is reinforced rather than weakened by the disappearance of the Prince Regent. He may not be able to save the Manchus; indeed, the probability is that he will not, but he has improved his own position with the moderates, and has correspondingly weakened the power of the president and his personal following. It is to be borne in mind that Yuan Shi Kai is himself a Chinese, and that he has what Dr. Sen has not, the tacit support of the foreign powers, which show him of old as a progressive yet conservative statesman.

The Manchus Doomed.

In the long run it is likely to be the foreign powers, rather than the Chinese themselves, who will decide the fate of China. If the powers grant the loan that Yuan requires there is reason to believe that he will weather the storm and prestrve some form of monarchical government for China. If they refuse, it remains for Yuan to make his terms with the Republicans and abandon the Manchus to their fate. In any event, a parliament seems assured for China, and it is likely to be a parliament that will have no superior power to veto its actions. The Manchus as a class are doomed, whatever may be the lot of the members of the royal family, and about the only details that remain to be settled are the exact form of government and the personality of the man who will be called to its head.

My Body and I.

I got this body in the Fleshing Shop
When it was small and pudgy-like and red;
No teeth it had; nor could it stand erect—
A fuzzy down grew sparse upon its head.
At sight of it the neighbors stood and laughed,
And tickled it and jogged it up and down;
Then some one put it in a little cart.
And wheeled it gaily through the gaping town.
When it grew bigger and could walk and run,
I wet it in the pond above the mill,
Or took it to a building called a "school."
And there I had to keep it very still.
And later, when its muscles stronger grew,
I made it sow and reap and get its grain,
And tanned it in the summer's fiercest suns,
And toughened it with wind and cold and rain.
It served to keep me near my friend, the Earth,
It helped me well to get from place to place.
And then, perhaps, a tiny bit of me
Has sometimes worked out through its hands and face!
How long I've had it! Longer than it seems
Since first they wrapt it in a linen clout,
And now 'tis shriveled, patched and breaking down—
I guess, forsooth, that I have worn it out!
And I? Oh, bless you! I am ever young.
A soul ne'er ages—is not bent nor grey,
And when the body breaks and crumbles down—
The Fleshing Shop is just across the way!

Who Said

BOVRIL ?

KILLED BY BUFFALOES.

Two White Men Fight For Life In African Wilds.

Adventures of the most perilous description have been the lot of Lieut. Paul Gratz, the German who is endeavoring to cross Africa by the Zambesi River, Lake Bangweolo, and the Congo River. M. Octave Friere, a French cinematograph operator, who was the only other white member of the expedition, lost his life in a terrible encounter with wild buffaloes. The tragedy happened on Sept. 9, but the details have only just reached London.

The death of M. Friere occurred just when the expedition was at Lake Bangweolo. They had hardly reached the spot when they saw three gigantic wild buffaloes. With the almost automatic precision of the adventurer in savage lands the two unslung their rifles and fired. Unfortunately the beasts were only wounded, and, unaware of their danger, the hunters followed them as they started and wheeled off in rapid flight. But suddenly—so suddenly that the pursuers had no time to escape—the quarry turned and charged.

Against this furious onslaught the men were practically defenceless. They struggled fiercely, but the infuriated beasts caught and tossed and crushed them, inflicting terrible injuries. Lieut. Gratz had his jaws broken, and was badly crushed, narrowly escaping death. His colleague was knocked down, tossed and gored, and only survived his injuries a few hours, dying in sight of success.

The native servants sent runners with messages for help to the nearest station inhabited by white men, Kasama, in Northeastern Rhodesia. Dr. Randall, the district surgeon, and Mr. Cookson, the magistrate of Kasama, arrived, after two days' forced marches, and the lieutenant was carried back to the station.

The Frenchman's body was buried at Charemama, but will later be brought to Kasama and re-interred by the White Father's staff. The German was recovering steadily under medical care at Kasama on Sept. 20, the date of the latest despatch, and he hopes to complete his daring exploration by reaching the mouth of the Congo at the end of the year.

The most elaborate plans were made for this expedition. Lieut. Gratz left Berlin on Feb. 25 on his 6,000 mile journey, with the wonder lake of Bangweolo as his chief objective, going straight to Quilimane, the port on the coast of Portuguese East Africa, to ascend the Zambesi in his motor-boat, the Sarotti.

Strange stories had reached him about this lake. It was said to be an inland sea on whose surface no white man had ever sailed. The lake, the natives told him, was studded with islands, on which were to be found colossal elephants and tall giraffes, while in its waters huge water-serpents and other strange creatures swam. From the surface hot springs rose and fell like fountains in the air, and pestilential winds, sweeping across the reedy marshes, carried death to all living beings.

No native who had ever ventured upon its surface in his frail canoe had ever returned. It was regarded by one set of blacks as a sort of Hades where departed souls suffered continual torments, and by another tribe as the approach to Paradise, where the spirits of their dead relatives and friends enjoyed perfect life under the protection of their gods.

Extraordinary arrangements were made for securing comforts en route. Twenty stations on the way were plentifully provided with food and drink and other necessaries by a relay of native carriers. At each station wre placed meat, fruit preserves, butter, jam, salt, pepper, flour, rice, vinegar, oil soap sausages tinned milk, mustard, cakes, preserved cucumbers, pates de foie gras, chocolate, matches, candles, cognac, white beer lager beer, champagne, mineral waters, coffee, cocoa, tea, cigars, cigarettes, tobacco, dentifrice medical chests, cartridges bioscope films, photographic chemicals, petrol, and oil. Plenty of fire works and conjuring apparatus were also carried to overawe the natives.

Balfour a Farmer.

The fact that Mr. Balfour took all the principal prizes for Oxford sheep at the Highland Agricultural Show at Inverness is a reminder that the ex-Premier has been, longest of all, a farmer and agriculturist. Years before politics engaged his attention he was intent on his agricultural studies, and the local papers published during the days of his youth frequently announced that "Mr. A. J. Balfour, of Whittinghame, has taken prizes for his agricultural exhibits." Aided by his mother, Mr. Balfour devised many plans for improving his farms and for the promotion of the comfort of the tenants on his estate. In fact, his first speech, made at the age of twelve, was due to these agricultural connections.

Marble Bust of Laurier.

Paul Chevre, the Parisian sculptor who is responsible for the Champlain monument on the terrace of the Chateau at Quebec, and the Mercier monument to be unveiled next spring in the ancient capital, was in Montreal the other day. Mr. Chevre has just booked an order from the G. T. R. for a marble statue of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, to adorn the centrepiece in the lobby of the Chateau Laurier in Ottawa.

It will slightly exceed the natural size and will be supported by a marble column adorned with appropriate allegories of a height of about five feet. The statue will be ready in the spring and will cost $5,000.
