GENERAL STRIKE ON SOUTHERN PACIEIC

Engineers, Firemen, Conductors and Trainmen Walk Out.

Over 2500 Men Are Affected—Wages and Alleged Violation of Contract Given as Cause.

Houston, Tex., Nov. 13.—Approximately 2500 trainmen and engineers on the Atlantic division of the Southern Pacific railroad on the Sunset lines went on strike at 7 o'clock tonight, in accordance with an ultimatum presented to the officials of the road here yesterday by delegates representing the four union organizations involved.

The walkout came after more than six months of futile negotiations which sought an amicable adjustment of difficulties between the company and the men.

An eleventh hour appeal to the federal board of mediation and conciliation by the railroad failed to stop the walkout and with engineers, firemen, conductors and trainmen from El Paso to New Orleans out tonight the southwest faces a possibility of one of the most serious tie-ups of traffic in years.

Railroad officials were silent tonight as to what efforts were being made to relieve the situation, but reports from other points indicated hat preparations were being made for the coming of strike-breakers.

All trains due to leave terminal points after 7 o'clock tonight were cancelled until further notice. Those leaving before that time, it was stated by union officials, would complete their runs after which their crews will join the other strikers.

Locally the walkout was accomplished quietly. Promptly at 7 o'clock the yard crews left their trains and as other trains reached the terminals here the men ceased work. Similar conditions were reported all over the Sunset Central lines, which embrace a total of 2400 miles of track.

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, Order of Railway Conductors and Order of Railway Trainmen are involved in the strike.

The men claim they were unable to secure a satisfactory settlement of a list of 67 grievances or to enforce observance of their contracts through their respective organizations and when they combined their forces W. B. Scott, president and G. S. Waid, general manager of the Sunset Central declined to meet the joint committee.

The referendum strike vote was then taken. It proved overwhelmingly in favor of a strike.

The grievances included the question of wages, alleged violation of contract by the railroad and various personal complaints.

MAY BE ORDERED TO MEXICAN WATERS

San Diego, Cal., Nov. 13.—The armored cruiser South Dakota, which was to begin target practice off the Coronado islands next Monday, received orders today to await further word from the navy department. This change of program causes belief that the South Dakota may be ordered to Mexican waters.

Orders have been issued to Lieut. Martin Metcalf, commanding the Pacific torpedo flotilla, now in Southern California waters, to have the vessels of his command ready for service on 12 hours notice.

The destroyers are due to arrive from San Pedro tomorrow when they will fill their bunkers at once.

Tapping the Maple.

Ottawa, Nov. 13.—A bulletin of he department of agriculture states that while Quebec, Ontario, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick produce two million dollars worth of maple sugar annually the industry is declining. Only about 10 per cent is No. 1 grade, while No. 4 grade, which brings one half the price of No. 1., is 60 per cent of the total production. Thus on quality alone the makers lose a million dollars.

VAINLY PROTEST CEMETERY SITE

Vancouver Gets Permission to Establish Burying Grounds.

Municipality Stands to Lose $6000 Annually in Taxes—Deputation Returns from Victoria.

By a decision reached in Victoria on Wednesday the protest of the Burnaby municipal authorities as to Vancouver locating a cemetery in North Burnaby appears to have been in vain and the residents of the municipality will be forced to stand an annual loss of about $6000, owing to the exemption from taxation of the land purchased by the Vancouver council.

The Burnaby delegation, composed of Reeve McGregor, Solicitor McQuarrie, Municipal Clerk Moore and Engineer Macpherson, argued that with the transformation of D.L. 143 and 148 into a cemetery site, the municipality would not only lose $6000 a year but would be faced with a heavy upkeep of through roads to the burying grounds.

Reeve McGregor suggested that the city buy a cemetery site in the vicinity of Point Roberts and not in such a close-in section as Burnaby.

Mayor Baxter of Vancouver stated the property in purchase and improvement was costing the city $400,000, from which there would be no return and the people of Vancouver would be compelled to pay $20,000 annually in sinking fund and interest. Burnaby would have the right to bury their dead in the cemetery on payment of the usual fees, which would be turned into the cemetery fund.

Premier McBride pointed out to both delegations that it was evident the government had approved of the cemetery site in Burnaby because it had set a price on the property it owned there itself. He urged the Vancouver authorities to prepare a plan of the project and arrangements might be made later for co-operation between the two municipalities.

Yesterday a delegation of several aldermen from Vancouver visited the site and evolved a plan which the city engineer will prepare. The site is accessible form New Westminster via the Port Moody road and also along the Johnston road which is in good repair.

COL. GOETHALS WILL NOT RETIRE AS PANAMA ENGINEER

Washington, Nov. 13.—Col. George W. Goethals, chief engineer of the Panama canal, is not to retire, as has been reported recently. On the contrary he is on terms of the closest friendship with President Wilson, Secretary Garrison and the Washington administration. This was made plain today by President Wilson himself.

The president had expected to visit the canal zone last summer before the water was let into the ditch, but developments in Washington prevented. He let it be known today that he saw no particular occasion for a visit now until January, 1915, when the ceremony of opening the canal is planned.

Comes to Good Country.

Edmonton, Nov. 13.—Tired of the continual strife in Mexico, tired of the loss of business and the perpetual hand to mouth existence, M. K. Hannamaker of Vera Cruz, Mexico, arrived in Edmonton today for the purpose of studying the conditions in Canada, with a view to locating upon a suitable farm. He has sold out his business in Mexico after having come to the conclusion that conditions would not improve.

MAKE VEILED ATTACK ON SECRETARY BRYAN

Columbus, O., Nov. 13.—The convention of the Anti-Saloon League of America, adopted a resolution today making a veiled attack on Secretary of State Bryan for his part in the recent senatorial campaign in Maryland.

The resolution states that federal officers interfering in state politics should consider themselves the moral guardians and political sponsors of the men elected to office through their influence and should hold themselves responsible for the conduct of these men while in office.

Members of the resolution committee said that they had in mind Secretary Bryan and the part he took in the election of Blair Lee as United States senator from Maryland, when the resolution was drawn.

The convention adopted resolutions favoring nationwide prohibition secured a federal constitutional amendment and opposing the system of licensing or taking revenue from the liquor business. The convention also urged that anti-liquor shipping laws be passed by the various states.

The convention elected national officers today. Reorganization of the league to permit state associations to work in closer harmony with the national organization was effected. The convention adjourned tonight, but the temperance conference will continue through tomorrow. Delegates will outline a definite program for securing the federal prohibition amendment. A delegation of 1000 or more will be named to travel to Washington and present the petition for a prohibition amendment to congress and President Wilson.

Rev. Dr. Purdey A. Baker was re-elected national superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league for two years.

Bishop Luther B. Wilson, of New York, was re-elected national president of the league by the board of trustees today. S. E. Nicholson, Richmond, Ind., was elected secretary, and Foster Copeland, Columbus, treasurer. Under the new constitution they will take office June 1, 1914.

LARGE NEW YORK BANK GOES UNDER

H. B. Hollins & Co. Has Liabilities of $5,000,000—Assets $2,500,000.

Established Over Twenty Years Ago—Difficulties Date Back to Panic of 1907.

New York, Nov. 13.—The failure of H. B. Hollins and company, an old established banking and brokerage house, with international connections, was announced simultaneously today on the stock exchange and in the United States district court. An involuntary petition in bankruptcy against the firm had been filed in the court. Liabilities are estimated at $5,000,000 with assets, largely bank loans of from $2,500,000 to $3,000,000.

The firm was established over 20 years ago but recently underwent several changes in personnel. Harry B. Hollins, the senior member, was a business associate of the late J. P. Morgan. William K. Vanderbilt also was at one time identified with the firm in its outside enterprises. Mr. Hollins' partners include Briton N. Busch, the board member, and Walter Kutzlebb, for some years the manager in this country of the Russo-Chinese bank.

According to the firm's lawyers, the failure was precipitated by the withdrawal of several large deposits which seriously reduced its working capital. At one time Hollins and company had extensive interests in Mexico, and represented in this country the National Bank of Mexico and the International Mortgage Bank of Mexico City.

Trouble Since 1907.

Hollins and company participated in the preliminary negotiations of the so-called six-power group of bankers which contemplated the issue of a large loan to the Chinese government. This project was abandoned soon after the advent of the Wilson administration, which announced its opposition to the plan.

The difficulties of the firm are believed to date back to the panic of 1907, at which time they were burdened with a number of unprofitable properties.

On the stock exchange it was understood the firm had closed out its few remaining contracts or commitments a few days ago. Its principal creditors were the Hanover National and the Bank of the Manhattan company. These institutions are said to be fully insured as also are some banks supposed to have made loans to the insolvent firm.

Harry B. Hollins is a director in numerous financial and industrial corporations and is prominent in social circles. His town house was recently leased for the season by Vincent Astor.

COMPANY REFUSES OFFER OF COUNCIL

Columbia Cold Storage Plant Will Be Removed from Waterfront.

Negotiations Concluded and Contract Will Be Awarded at Once for New Buildings.

The Columbia Cold Storage company has refused the city's inducements to remain in New Westminster. This was the message brought by Geo. Cassady, manager here, from W. H. Barker, manager of the B. C. Packers' association last night following another conference yesterday. Moreover Mr. Cassady said orders for the immediate letting of contracts for the Steveston plant had been given. It is stated to be final and it looks as if negotiations were over and the cold storage company would leave the local waterfront.

By both delegates from the local branch of the B. C. Manufacturers' association and the city council the proposition submitted was thought to be fair.

In part it was that a site 222x300 feet at the foot of Tenth street, the equivalent of seven lots, and five water lots, be offered. The rental to be $1250 per year for the first five years; $1500,, $1750, and $2000 per year for the succeeding three five-year periods.

The company withdraw all claim for compensation on the present site.

That it erect a plant worth $175,000 or more. The city would agree not to tax improvements so long as this remained the policy.

That white labor solely be employed and that the company conform with the harbor line of the city.

Though no announcement has been made it is understood that the contract for the Steveston plant will go to the B. C. Granetoid company for a sum less than $100,000, by some thousands of dollars.

Asked last night what the company's move would be, Mr. Cassady had little to say else than that the contract was ordered to be let immediately.

DAYS OF HUERTA ARE NUMBERED

Elimination of Provisional President Will Soon be Accomplished.

President Wilson Says Situation Looks Much More Favorable to Settlement.

Washington, Nov. 13.—United support from the great powers abroad for the American policy towards Mexico, shown in a variety of quiet diplomatic activities, gave President Wilson and Secretary Bryan confidence today that the elimination of General Huerta as provisional president of Mexico, soon would be an accomplished fact.

An exchange of cablegrams with Ambassador Page, an agreement by Great Britain to leave the solution of the Mexican situation in the hands of the United States and an announcement that no moral or financial support would be granted by England to the Huerta regime, set forth in London press dispatches, created a favorable impression throughout official Washington.

It was felt that Great Britain, Germany, France and other nations now stood together in acquiescence in the plan of the United States for the elimination of Huerta.

President Wilson had prepared early today a statement of the situation outlining the communications presented by Clarge O'Shaughnessy and John Lind, but within a few hours such favorable advices had been received as to cause the president to withhold the document from publication.

Much More Favorable.

"There are elements in this case," said the president, "which I cannot discuss at present, but which make it look to me very much more favorable."

The president spoke thus of the situation to half a hundred Washington correspondents at their semi-weekly conference. It was apparent that he felt decidedly encouraged by recent advices. Asked about the word "favorable," he explained that he meant "favorable to a settlement."

The president gave no details to show upon what his optimism was based, but he made it clear that a primary condition of settlement was the ousting of Huerta and all of those who stood for the kind of government he was conducting. It was evident that the president had received important dispatches, but he declined to say whether they were from Mexico City or Nogales, the Constitutionalist headquarters.

Worst Passage in Years.

Boston, Nov. 13.—Three belated trans-Atlantic liners, the Cambrian from London, the Hanover from Bremerhaven, and the Parisian from Glasgow, arrived today, each bringing reports of the terrific gales and mountainous seas. The Cambrian reported the worst passage in years. On the Hanover storm life lines were rigged to prevent sailors from being carried overboard and the passengers were not permitted on deck for several days. The Parisian encountered head seas and westerly gales all the way across.

May Be Out Here.

Winnipeg, Nov. 13.—The policemen here are making diligent inquiries for Fred S. Crawford, aged 41, a native of Ontario who for some years past has been following his trade as an electrician at Redford, Mich. Last April he went to Detroit on business and his wife has heard nothing of him since, but now has a clue he is in western Canada. The man is steady and there is no theory to account for his disappearance. His description is: Height 5 feet 9 inches, weight 140 pounds, fair, light hair, grey eyes.

DEATH TOLL IS GROWING DAILY

News of Further Disasters on Lake Huron in Saturday's Storm.

Full List of Dead May Never Be Known—Many Boats Still Missing.

Port Huron, Mich., Nov. 13.—News received today continued to add to the total of disasters on Lake Huron in last Saturday's storm and the full toll taken by the gale is not yet known. Bodies of sailors of five and perhaps six vessels were found on the shore of the lake. Wreckage from two other boats, still missing, was cast up by the waves and no trace had been obtained of two other vessels or their crews which number more than 40 men.

Never has Lake Huron been the scene of such a succession of catastrophes.

Conservative estimates of the loss of life fix the total at 150 at least.

This meeting is held to give opportunity to local union members of hearing the visitors speak, as there are no grievances to bring forward.

Upon returning to Vancouver the delegates will speak at 8 p.m., going to Seattle on the midnight boat.

James M. Lynch, for 13 years president of the International Typographical union, will not come to this city as was at once time expected. He has accepted the commissionership of labor for New York state and is now in the east.

FARM HOLDINGS INCREASE IN B.C.

Increase in Value of Live Stock in 1911 Over 1901 Was 650 Per Cent.—Dairy Products.

Ottawa, Nov. 13.—The last of the census bulletins dealing with agricultural statistics of the western provinces gathered in connection with the census of June 1, 1911, was issued tonight. It deals with British Columbia. The bulletin shows that farm holdings of 50 acres and under, increased from 2086 in 1901 to 11,000 in 1911. The number of the holdings over 50 acres were 4653 in 1901 as against 7457 in 1911. The development of the fruit industry is no doubt responsible for the rapid increase in the number of small holdings.

Land in field crops increased from 171,424 acres in 1900 to 239,820 in 1911. The number of acres under crops in 1910 was 214,069, being an increase in the area under field crops in ten years of 42,645 acres. The land under orchard and nursery increased from 7507 acres in 1901 to 33,606 acres in 1911; land in vegetables increased from 2840 acres to 9313 acres; land in vineyards increased from 18 acres to 399 acres.

The total value of the field crops, vegetables and fruits in 1910 was $9,619,881, as against $3,843,721 in 1900, being an average per holding for the last census of $530.85, as compared with $534.71 in the previous one. Large acreage represented by non-bearing fruit trees, indicates the setting out of new orchards and not being productive, the consequence is that the average value of the farm products per holding is kept down.

The value of the live stock held in 1910 was $3,290,047, which is an increase of $2,536,882, or 654 per cent over the figures of ten years ago. The value of the animals slaughtered on the farm rose from $207,307 in 1901 to $414,814 in 1911. The value of the dairy products which was reported at $1,126,[illegible] in 1901, increased to $2,620,[illegible] in 1911. This was an increase in the value of over of $1,494,[illegible], and of [illegible].

PLAN RESERVOIR AT STAVE LAKE

Western Canada Power Co. Will Carry Out Huge Improvements.

Similar to Operations at Lake Coquitlam by B. C. E. R.—Flood Adjacent Land.

The federal authorities have granted permission to the Western Canada Power company to turn Stave lake into a mammoth reservoir for water to be used for power generating purposes, according to the officials of the Dominion timber office in this city.

The huge reservoir will be similar to that which has been created out of Lake Coquitlam by the B. C. E. R. and will be created by enlarging the basin of the lake. The operation will consist of increasing the height of the dam and flooding the land adjacent to the present shores of the lake. The area which it is proposed to flood is several square miles in extent and is at present rich in timber wealth.

To arrange for the disposal of the timber which is now growing on what will constitute part of the bottom of the reservoir, E. F. Stephenson, chief inspector of crown timber agencies, with headquarters at Winnipeg, in company with E. W. Beckett, the local timber agent and P. McDougall, timber inspector, is now on a visit to Stave lake.

The timbered land will be released to the Western Canada Power company on the payment of certain dues, it is stated, and the amount of timber available on what will constitute part of the reservoir is now being ascertained by the crown timber officials.

Licenses from the crown to individuals and corporations have been issued on part of the timbered land and to secure this portion the power company will require to negotiate with the license holders.

As in the case with Coquitlam lake the timber on the land adjacent to Stave lake will be removed before the lake basin is enlarged. The reservoir when completed will assure the Western Canada company an abundant source of water for generating purposes at all times of the year and will permit the extension of its generating stations.

TWELVE KILLED AND MANY INJURED

Central Georgia Passenger Train Plunges Over Embankment.

Consisted of Five Cars Crowded With Excursionists—Hundreds Pinned Under Wreckage.

Eufaula, Ala., Nov. 13.—Twelve persons were killed and more than a score injured, some of them fatally, early today when three coaches of a Central Georgia passenger train left the rails at a point 17 miles south of here and plunged down a steep embankment. The train, which consisted of five cars crowded with excursionists was en route from Ozark, Ala., to Eufaula, where a fair is being held.

The identified white dead are:

Pomp Chtsey, superintendent of the Barbour county poorhouse at Clayton; Monroe Floyd, Clayton; Miss Bonnie Brock, Clio; Curb Bell, Clayton; Mrs. Laura Williamson, Clio; Mrs. Wilbur McLean, Clio; child of B. F. Black, Clio; Mrs. Allo Adams, Elamville; Zack Peak, Clayton.

Three dead negroes also were taken from the wreckage.

Among those who escaped with minor injuries was Jefferson D. Clayton, a wealthy Alabaman and brother of the congressman, Henry D. Clayton, of this state.

A broken rail is said to have caused the accident. As the crowded excursion train rounded a curve the three cars at the rear, packed with passengers, suddenly left the track and, breaking away from the others, rolled down the steep embankment. The coaches were demolished.

Occupants of the two coaches which remained on the rails immediately bent their efforts to rescuing the hundreds who were caught in the tangled mass of wreckage. Relief trains bearing surgeons and nurses were dispatched from Ozard and Eufaula, where many of the dead and injured later were taken.

Many of the victims were cared for at Clayton, where the citizens turned their residences into emergency hospitals. All the physicians within a radius of many miles hurried to the scene. So large was the number of victims, however, that available space at Clayton soon was exhausted and many were placed on cots on porches and in front yards.

Because of the isolation of the place where the wreck occurred and the confusion which prevailed, identification of the dead and injured was slow. Not until tonight were the names of a majority of those killed known with certainty. A majority of the injured received only painful scratches and bruises from splintered woodwork and cuts from flying glass.

Railroad officials issued a statement tonight in which they ascribed the wreck to a broken rail. It was announced that an investigation would be made.

Fatal Fall on Ice.

Edmonton, Nov. 13.—Neal Currie, aged 54, who fell on the ice Tuesday while learning to skate, died at the south side hospital today.

SEATTLE SUICIDE MAY BE EMBEZZLER OF ARMY FUNDS

Seattle, Nov. 13.—A man who committed suicide early today at a cheap hotel in Yesler Way, where he registered under the name of W. B. Walker, San Francisco, is believed by the police to have been an embezzler of United States army funds.

A woman companion of Walker's told the police she had joined him at San Francisco and that on the way to Seattle he told her he was a purchasing agent at the Presidio, San Francisco, and had got away with funds belonging to the government. The woman said she did not know his real name.

The woman, who said her name was Gertrude Lynn, told the police she met Walker about Nov. 1. He told her that he was a quartermaster sergeant in the United States army and had stolen money belonging to the government with the intention of having a good time, after which he intended to commit suicide. He asked her to join him and them came to Seattle together, arriving here Nov. 5, after stopping one day in Portland. Last night, the Lynn woman said, Walker told her he had spent all the money and would commit suicide this morning. At 4 o'clock this morning, she said, Walker announced his intention of committing suicide immediately. She asked him to wait until she had gone, and packing her suitcase left the hotel. Late today the proprietor of the hotel, having seen nothing of Walker during the day, entered the room and found him dead. He had taken poison. The woman was arrested by the police soon afterwards at the home of a friend. The police are investigating her story and have telegraphed to the commanding officer at the San Francisco Presidio to learn if any one answering Walker's description is missing.

DYKING B. C.

Never before has the Progress club of Vancouver taken a stand more calculated to justify its bearing the name under which it operates than when, on Wednesday evening of this week, its directors declared for a white Canada and a campaign to attain that end. The plans of the Progress club have been laid for a vigorous protest against oriental immigration to be made at Victoria and Ottawa, backed by a mass meeting to be held in the near future in Vancouver.

In speaking on the question Dr. F. B. Vrooman, who is a director of the club, touched the core of British Columbia's oriental boil when he intimated that, while the gravity of the situation seemed to be generally appreciated, yet there never had been any unanimous action taken. He pointed out that a single ship had brought 800 orientals to these shores and that this year 8000 had come from the far east to settle in British Columbia.

The gravity of the situation always has been admitted, but in the past it has seemed impossible to rouse the public to action. There may have been some excuse for this attitude in years gone by, since, while the matter was serious enough, it was not so pressing. Now, however, it is different. Japan of today, China of today, India of today are not the countries of twenty years ago, nor of even ten years ago. They are developing fast, where formerly they stood still in a slough of indolence. Then they did not know the necessity for reform, now they do and therein lies the pressing need of a Canadian policy of exclusion.

The combined population of these three countries is more than ninety times as great as the population of Canada. Canada, in common with other civilized nations, has built up her institutions on lines which have been developing for centuries, developing while the eastern peoples slept. Canada has born her part in rousing the giant of the orient, in telling him of his needs and impressing on him his shortcomings. The pupil has been apt and he has taken hold with a whirlwind energy, born of his new convictions, that has developed into a menace to his teachers. Every man and every nation must go either forward or backward. Canada is going forward, but compared with the far east, she is going slowly, because she already is abreast of the times and in this twentieth century of progress national development is not of mushroom growth. Japan, China and India are in a different position. They started with centuries of lessons in civilization to learn, but with those lessons laid out for them by the white races who had taken generations to acquire the knowledge themselves. Japan has shown how fast an oriental nation can pick up and pull abrease of the leaders. Little more than fifty years ago Japan was the home of an unenlightened people. Today she is neck and neck with the leaders of civilization and already she has humbled in open war a mighty European power; and Japan has a population of only forty-seven millions. China is following in Japan's footsteps and what will happen when China with her four hundred millions pulls to the front? India is under the watchful eye of Britain, but India has a population of two hundred and ninety-four millions of people, who will speak for themselves.

In the matter of population these three races hold an advantage over Canada of more than ninety to one. Where we take one slow step in advance, they take ninety leaps. Where one Canadian realizes his responsibilities and his abilities, ninety orientals are doing the same thing and doing it with a greater vigor because it is a new road they are travelling and they see what they never saw before, a veritable fairyland of opportunity.

The seven hundred and forty-odd millions of the east will realize—and at no distant date—that Asia is too small for them and their ambitions. Some Horace Greely of the orient will point them the way to Western America and unless Canada builds and maintains a high wall of exclusion the time will come when the census returns of the Dominion will show the Jap, the Chinaman and the Hindu forcing the white man to the wall.

MODERN METHODS RE-OPEN MINES

Long Abandoned Placer Ground in Idaho Now Yields $1,000 Per Day.

Seattle, Nov. 13.—Gold at the rate of $1,000 a day is being taken from the long abandoned placer ground of the Boise basin, near Idaho City, Idaho, through thme use of modern machinery operated by electric power, and pay dirt that the miners of thirty or forty years ago were unable to work is making a Boston company rich, says W. C. Ritchie, a government timber cruiser, who is in Seattle on official business.

"W. A. Estabrook, a young Boston mining engineer, who was fortunate enough to be able to command big capital to back his theories, is responsible for the revival of the Boise basin, which was abandoned by the old time placer miners thirty years ago," says Mr. Ritchie. "Estabrook made a thorough survey of the district and discovered that thousands of acres of rich placer ground had been merely skimmed over by the old time miners, owing to the fact that they were unable to work their claims any deeper than the water level would permit. Whenever they encountered standing water, being without means or facilities to drain their shafts they simply abandoned them, often before they had been able to reach bedrock.

"Estabrook and his associates have put in a big hydro-electric power plant on the Payette river near the old diggings and are thereby enabled to work two big dredges with electricity in the old ground. They have succeeded in going as deep as forty feet below the surface and in consequence have reached bedrock in places where such a feat was entirely impossible to the pioneer gold seekers without capital and machinery.

Ground Enough for Years.

"Their investment has been $400,000, perhaps, and their second dredge alone cost $200,000, but their two machines are now taking out a total of $1,000 a day, net, and there is ground enough to last for many years. The Estabrook company has located and patented all the ground available, although such a course was not necessary since the company owns the only source of electric power, without which it would be impossible to work the gravel.

"The Estabrook syndicate is now turning its attention to some of the abandoned silver mines of the same district and is planning to run a drainage tunnel three-fourths of a mile long to enable the miners to work again in the old Banner mine, which was abandoned on account of flooding a third of a century or more ago after the bottom dropped out of silver. The mine was producing $200 or $400 rock when it was abandoned and the drainage tunnel which will tap it hundreds of feet below the old bottom level will make it a bonanza again. Electricity from the Payette river makes this scheme also feasible."

BROODING DRIVES CUSTOMS OFFICER MAD, SAYS WIFE

Seattle, Nov. 13.—Neil MacArthur, former United States customs inspector, who was suspected of complicity in recent opium smuggling cases and who last January shot Emil Sorenson while arresting him in the Milwaukee hotel, is charged in a complaint made in the probate court as being insane. Upon the petition of Mrs. MacArthur, Judge A. W. Frater derected that a warrant be issued and this was placed in the hands of Deputy Sheriff William Griffiths.

The former customs official was arrest shortly after and an inquiry regarding his sanity is in progress.

Mrs. MacArthur told the court that her husband had ben subject to recurring attacks of hysteria since he shot Sorenson and that in them he became violent and attacked her. She said he beat and choked her recently and then waited with a loaded revolver to kill anyone who came near him.

Husband and wife have been conducting the Virginia hotel, 615 1-2 Fourth avenue, for some time.

Sorenson was crippled for life by MacArthur's shot. The latter claimed Sorenson had been trying to escape when arrested for smuggling contraband.

Investigation showed that the shot had been fired from a gun belonging to Charlie Louie, Chinese merchant. Later, Louie was arrested charged with conspiracy to smuggle opium and MacArthur was called as a witness. He disappeared from the city shortly before the trial was due to begin and was dropped from the customs service. Thirty days later he returned to the city and the government declared it had no evidence on which it could prosecute him for complicity in the smuggling traffic.

FORTY SELL LIQUOR WITHOUT A LICENSE

Spokane, Nov. 13.—Acting under instructions for W. V. Tanner, attorney general for the state of Washington, Deputy County Prosecutor Irving Davis yesterday swore out complaints in the court of Justice Fred Witt, charging seven local saloon men and druggists with selling intoxicants without a state license.

Warrants for thirty more will be issued as soon as necessary papers are prepared. Prosecutor George Crandell was recently advised that the license records indicated that nearly forty dealers in Spokane were subject to arrest.

Mr. Davis said those who will be arrested at once by Sheriff George Stone and deputies are J. W. Chambers, 108 Post street; Frank Beegan, 121 1-2 Howard street; Clarence Emery, 428 Main avenue; P. Granberg, 201 Mai navenue; H. J. Hamlin, N530 Washington street; Henry Horstman, 7 Wall street, and Sol Price, 351 Main avenue.

The state law provides that all dealers disposing of spirits must take out a $25 license from the state in addition to the federal licenses and those demanded by the various cities.

The attorney general has demanded the arrest of several hundred dealers in his state-wide crusade to collect the licenses. The law provides a fine ranging from $1 to $250 for convicted offenders.

TO BE SOLDIER YOU MUST HAVE MOUSTACHE

Paris, Nov. 13.—A certain grievance exists in the army because of the regulation requiring soldiers to wear a moustache.

Boulanger, when minister of war, allowed beards apparently because he wore one himself. The order has not changed. M. Etienne has no beard, but a moustache. Perhaps that is why his perference goes to the moustached warrior.

In any case colonels insist that they shall look upon a line of moustaches when they inspect the regiment.

One young man who tried to spend his evening without his moustache, was called back to the barracks to put in on—or, at least, was told that he could have no exeat until he had grown one. The soldier has written anonymously to his favorite newspaper about it.

His complaint leads to the query: Is the moustache really military? Caesar wore no moustache, neither did Napoleon. When one comes to think of it, the great warriors of the world were bald of face. Von Molke wore no moustache, and he proved, alas! superior to many a French moustache.

Should this appendage be counted more masculine than long hair? Should it not be left—together with the soft, silken beards—to philosophers, artists, pacifists and revolutionaries?

A soldier ought to look like a Roman legionary. This is one viewfi in conformity with the new sporting spirit; but it does not find favor with the authorities, who insist on the tradition—a moustache with turned-up ends—and that there is no reason to depart from it.

TWO INJURED WHEN LAKE BOATS BUMP

Naramata, Nov. 13.—As a result of a head-on collision between the new 40-foot gasoline freight and passenger boat, the Skookum, and a scow loaded with cement pipe, belonging to the Okanagan Lake Boat company, Captain F. J. Languedoc, and the C. P. R. tugboat Casselgar, and its eight-car barge, a short distance from Naramata, Captain Languedoc and Peter Roe are laid up as a result of serious injuries. Captain Languedoc had a leg broken in two places and a hand badly bruised. Roe escaped with less serious bruises.

Asleep in the hold of the vessel were six men from the Peachland Cement works, who were going dong to Penticton to unload the scow. These men, being below the line of cleavage of the Casselgar, escaped without a scratch.

Blame for the accident, it is said, is due to the fact that the C. P. R. tug carried no head or side lights at the time.

Mayor Quits Job.

Coeur d'Alenes, Idaho, Nov. 13.—The council chambers were filled last night when citizens eager to hear the resignation of Mayor R. F. Nelson, it was accepted. Mr. Nelson said that his health required his moving to a ranch and quitting the city life. He called the president of the council, Charles Seil, to the chair.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

THE EPICURE'S LAMENT.

WHERE has it gone, that happy time
We knew in days of yore
When one could take for half a dime
Home from the little store
A steak delectable and sweet
To feed the hungry brood,
Whose only purpose was to eat
A heaping lot of food?

In days that not so distant are
The dame for fifty cents
Could fill the family cooky jar
And make some pies immense,
Buy ham and add her Sunday roast,
A little bit of cheese
And have enough for breakfast toast,
Her family to please.

It didn't take in times gone by
Half of your monthly roll
To buy the chicken for a pie
Or fill the family bowl
With pork and beans, enough to still
Your tender nestlings' cry.
Ten cents would let them eat their fill,
Nor pass the puppy by.

But down the chute of Father Time
Those good old days have sped.
In every country, every clime,
Down to the last lone red
One has to dig to get enough
To buy a bit of lamb.
That, sport, is why we make a bluff,
But pass up steaks and jam.

She Was Sorry.

"I fancy that Mrs. Black wasn't asked to Mrs. Jones' last party."

"Why do you think so?"

"From the way she spoke."

"Was she called out of town that afternoon?"

"That's old."

"Did she wonder that any one should care to go to Mrs. Jones'?"

"Nothing so crude as that. She only said what a pity poor Martha should feel she had to strain the talent that was only equal to sewing circles to meet the requirements of a bridge party."

On to His Job.

"Are those things good for anything?" asked the peruickety purchaser contemptuously, pointing to some vegetables that had been vegetables too long.

"Yes, ma'am," returned the grocer's boy contentedly.

"For what?" asked the incredulous patron.

"To sell," returned the complacent youth.

A Man's Privilege.

"I wish I were a man."

"So you could leave your soiled clothing in the bathroom, scatter cigar ash all over the house and strew the lawn with the Sunday papers, I suppose."

"Nothing to it."

"Then why?"

"So I could have business downtown when people that I have to entertain are at the house."

The Usual Way.

"Maud and Jack scrapped an awful lot before their marriage."

"Is that so?"

"Yes."

"And what is the end?"

"There isn't any end?"

"Isn't any end?"

"No. They keep it up right along now."

Envious.

It's human nature through and through—
On it 'tis always safe to bet—
For those who have to walk to laugh
When those who ride a puncture get.

POLICEMEN'S POKER GAME LEADS TO GRAFT PROBE

Portland, Ore., Nov. 13.—Out of the investigation of draw poker as played in the Portland police department has grown a "scandal," likely to smut the record of more than one officer, high and low, with worse charges than gambling to answer, according to the Oregonian.

Deals to protect criminals are indicated strongly, and not denied.

The investigation is in the hands of the civil service commission of oPrtland. Sergeants Rupert, Casey, Thatcher and Captain Riley are among those whose alleged confessions have been received during several days of investigations by Civil Service Commissioners Caldwell, A. E. Clarke and John F. Logan, who have made public some of the disclosures following general open confessions and discussions among the policemen.

Games of draw poker among the policemen for large wagers involve one captain and six sergeants. One officer lost $100 in a night. His salary is $175 a month.

There was a "ring" formed to protect the criminals during a former administration, according to the evidence at hand.

The "moral squad!" is under investigation now and a disclosure of irregularities is predicted.

Officers are scurrying to make confessions and half a dozen have been heard. Former Chief Slover is now a captain and has recently announced intention of retiring.

The disclosures have resulted mainly from a "frame up" worked on one of the higher officials after it is alleged he rehearsed his men as to what to say, should an investigation be started. The men began by sticking to rehearsed stories, but later broke away and made individual confessions.

MANY CATTLE SHIPPED FROM PRINCE ALBERT

Prince Albert, Sask., Nov. 13.—Great activity is taking place at the point of shipment of cattle from the Prince Albert district. At the yards of Russell Baker Packing company are 700 head of cattle, three hundred of which were brought in from the surrounding district yesterday and today. The majority of the 700 are from Davis, Leask and Kinistino districts. A further shipment of 200 is expected by the company on Sunday, which will bring the number in the yards up to the thousand mark. Next Monday the cattle will be shipped out, mostly to Edmonton and Calgary, and the first shipment will be made up of 500 head for these points.

For a number of weeks past cattle has been leaving for the large western centres in big consignments. This constant export is testimony to the progress of mixed farming in the Prince Albert district.

In Search of Fenby

He Led Them a Chase

By ADELAIDE BURNHAM

Sackett's cablegram had summoned Roy Bardwell to the little Central American republic, where were situated the 10,000 acres of mahogany forest belonging to the Bardwell syndicate of New York.

Roy found Cyrus Sackett at his desk in the consular office at Lontigua, and after the preliminary greetings were over the consul pushed a box of cigars across the table and lighted a cigarette for himself.

"You sent for me. I am here. I suppose there is something wrong." began Roy nervously as he scratched a match. "What's the matter?"

Sackett looked at the glowing end of his cigarette, while he answered the question by asking another.

"Known this Fenby chap very long?"

"Oh, a few months before he came down here. Why?"

"Ever do business with him before?"

"No, but he came highly recommended from your predecessor on this job. Seems he used to be secretary to old Kerfoot when he was in Lontigua some fifteen years ago. I have perfect confidence in him."

"Then maybe I'm mistaken in calling you down here, but his head man, the one in charge of the native help, came to me a short time ago and said Fenby had disappeared."

"Disappeared!" echoed Roy blankly. "Impossible, Sackett! Why, he had $10,000 of our money in his pockets. I sent him a draft on the 1st of the month. It was for running expenses in getting out the timber, his salary, etc."

"He has cashed the draft," said the consul.

Roy was pacing the floor now, his brows meeting in a black frown and his hands clinched in his pockets. Suddenly he turned and faced the consul.

"Tell me what to do, Sackett," he pleaded. "Why, we've got orders for timber enough to clear expenses and pay a handsome dividend, and I have promised delivery at the time specified by Fenby. The $10,000 I sent to him was a special issue of stock, and the stockholders are people in moderate circumstances. If I can't recover the money the whole thing will go to smash!"

"He hasn't had it long enough to spend much," said Sackett thoughtfully. "This morning I learned that he was last seen in Galveston. Oh, yes, they usually make for the States to spend money. I suggest that you go there and take up the trail. Get a good detective, and when you find your man nail him and see if you can't get some of the money back. Only my advice is to locate him as soon as possible, before he gambles it away. That's his failing—cards. Look for him where there is high play and you'll find him."

"I'll do it," said the boy, with sudden decision. "When can I get a boat?"

Sackett consulted a small book.

"A fruit steamer should be at the wharf now, clearing for New Orleans early tomorrow morning. I can get you passage on her if you wish."

* * * * * * *

Two days later Roy Bardwell was in Galveston in company with a New Orleans detective.

"Man named Fenby? Stammers? No, sir; never heard of him. Had a fellow here named Jacobs. He stammered some. Cards? Well, yes; he did play a mighty lot when he was here. Don't know where he went, but he did say he aimed to go to New York."

That was a sample of the information that Roy and Fox, the detective, gathered in their search for a clew to Fenby's present whereabouts. At last there came a day when a definite clew was obtained.

Fenby, or Jacobs, as he now called himself, if he was the late superintendent and manager of the Bardwell Lumber syndicate, was at the Hot Springs. So Roy and Dan Fox journeyed north to the famous health resort.

Two days' search of the city failed to result in finding the absconder.

Then Roy developed a touch of his old enemy, rheumatism, and he resorted to the baths in earnest.

"I will go on to Richmond," said Fox. "A man named Fenby has just cleaned $5,000 out of one of the gambling houses there, and I believe he's the man. You stay here, Mr. Bardwell; it is possible that he may come back again, for it is my belief that he has been here and left."

"I'd go in a minute if I didn't have a feeling that he'd be around here," said Roy. "I've got to get him. Fox, with the money if I can. There are a couple of hundred small stockholders in New England that must be protected. He's got the money, the cur!"

The third morning after Fox's departure Roy Bardwell went down to the bathhouses for his morning dip. His rheumatism was yielding to the treatment.

Pete, the black attendant, prepared Roy's bath, and the president of the Bardwell Lumber syndicate entered the compartment and prepared to endure the suffocating atmosphere prescribed for his ailment.

From outside came the sound of voices in conversation.

"B-b-ath ready, Pete?" asked a southern voice, mellow in its drawling accents.

"Yes, sah; jes' a minute, sah."

That was all. But it was quite enough for Roy Bardwell. Without pausing to use the towel, he hopped out of the steaming tub and into his bathrobe with nervous haste.

When he heard the stammerer enter the adjoining compartment and heard the splash of water Roy stepped outside where Pete was hanging the newcomer's clothing in the checking room.

"Why, sah, you done kotch yore deff!" gasped Pete as he beheld Roy's flushed face, moist with the steaming vapor. "Whuffor you comin' out dissaway. De doc say you have to stay in dere an hour and"—

Pete's mouth opened so wide with astonishment that speech was utterly impossible, for Roy was holding a twenty dollar bill agreeably close to that black, toil worn hand.

"Pete," he whispered softly, "I'm hunting for the man that stutters. He's committed a crime. In the pockets of his clothes—you have 'em there, my man—should be a weapon, pistol probably. He is a dangerous man and might muss up your floor here with my blood. Sure thing, Pete, if he sees me first! This twenty is yours if you hand over the pistol to me. How many are there? Two? By Jove, Fenby isn't taking any chances! Now, bring me my own clothing. Oh, don't you worry, Pete, the police will be here in a jiffy and you'll be protected."

The scared but opulent Pete assisted Roy into his clothes and led him to the nearest telephone booth. There he washed his hands of the whole transaction and went back to his duties in the checking room.

Roy had a few moments' conversation with the chief of detectives and then sat down to wait for the arrival of the officers with the warrant for Fenby's arrest.

It was two hours before they heard Fenby's preliminary cough and then his stuttering call for the attendant.

Pete waited on him and obediently carried in the pile of neatly arranged clothing.

Ten minutes afterward there stepped out of the compartment a tall, loosely built man with bright blue eyes staring from a sun tanned countenance. His eyes darted hither and thither and concentrated on Pete's frightened features.

"B-b-bring that g-g-gun back!" he commanded roughly.

"Wh-what gun, sah?" parried Pete, ashy white with terror.

"I'll show you, you black"— Fenby's form curved into snakelike litheness as he slouched toward the black man. His right hand suddenly darted down and the men watching from their hiding place in one of the compartments saw that now in his hand there was a keen two bladed knife.

"Hand it over!" snarled Fenby savagely.

"B-but, sah"— protested Pete.

Just then Fenby leaped, but the police officer was too much for him. He darted out, his foot flashed forward against Fenby's advance and the absconder measured his length on the tiled floor. For an instant he lay there stunned, and before he recovered sufficiently to rise Bardwell and his men were upon him and the handcuffs were slipped over his wrists.

"B-b-bardwell, b-b-by Jove!" he said dazedly. "They t-told me you had gone b-back to N-new York."

"I'm on the job," said Roy grimly.

"W-well, what do you w want of me?" asked Fenby, with sudden bravado.

"About $10,000," was Roy's cool reply.

Bardwell threw back his head and laughed. "I lost every p-penny last n-night," he asserted.

But the detectives were not so easily convinced. When Fenby was searched at headquarters it was found that he was possessed of $15,000 in cash.

A week later Roy Bardwell started north with $10,000 in his pockets and his copy of a contract signed by the new manager of the Bardwell Lumber syndicate in the Lontigua district. And the new manager was well known to Cyrus Sackett, a man to be trusted, but Bardwell did not tempt him with the possession of large sums of money.

As for Fenby, he served a term in prison for his offense and lived to attempt revenge upon Roy Bardwell's company. How he accomplished it and the result are part of another story.

Seattle, Nov. 13.—Championing the policy of the British trade unionists in affiliating with the Labor party of that country in working for legislation in the intrests of the working classes; explaining the effect of laws that have been enacted and attacking the subsidized press, while commending the establishment of daily labor journals, Tom Greenall, fraternal delegate from Great Britain, to the American Federation of Labor, addressed the convention at the Hippodrome this morning.

"We, in the old country," said Mr. Greenall, "have adopted the method of working in connection with the Labor party. Trade unions and the Labor party have joined together to work industrially and politically for the objects which we hope to achieve. Through legislation our people have been greatly benefited.

"We have for the protection of miners an act of parliament known as the mines eight-hour law. That, in my opinion, is the foundation, the bedrock, upon which the miners have been enabled to permanently benefit the memberse of their organization. For years we were sending men from the mines to lobby members of the house of commons. We knocked at tht doors for many long years, but not until we sent our representatives to voice their opinions upon the floor of the house of commons could we get legislation enacted."

Success for Labor.

Mr. Greenall predicted that the the approaching election in Great Britain the labor forces would be further successful and would return many members to the house of commons to legislate intehe interest of labor. In this connection he declared that efforts were being made to elect men to the local legislative bodies of the country in order that the act pasesed in the house of commons might not be nullified through failure of proper enforcement. That thise object of the trade unions may be accomplished Mr. Greenall stated, the Miners' Federation of Great Britain has imposed a per capita tax upon its members to provide for a political fund to be used in the inteerst of labor's candidates.

Referring to the need for a daily paper devoted to the interests of trade unions, Mr. Greenall spoke of the publication which the unions maintain in England and commended the plan as of great benefit to the struggle waging for industrial advancement.

In discussing legislation that has been enacted in Great Britain Mr. Greenall spoke of the mines minimum wage act and declared that it had been of even greater benefit to the working classes than its sponsors had anticipated. He stated that the miners are earning more money collectively than ever before in the history of mining in England. The old age pension act, amendments to the compensation act, the act providing for the feeding of school children and other legislative reforms were mentioned and the positive declaration made that without the affiliation of the trade unions with the political organization of the labor party these beneficial reforms could not have been achieved.

"So far as Great Britain is concerned," said Mr. Greenall, "for some time past we have had what we have been striving for for years—plenty of work. Working people have been employed all the hours that the law would permit them to work. Trade has been good and conditions of labor—bad as they are—have been greatly improved as the result of industrial and political action."

In extending the greetings of Great Britain to the American Federation of Labor Mr. Greenall referred to the better understanding of conditions in America, which a personal visit to this country had brought him, and spoke of the tasks which confront the federation in its work in the interest of labor.

KNIFE DUEL IN HOTEL AND BOTH ARRESTED

Spokane, Nov. 13.—In a fight with knives George O. Berg, 26 years, of 1132 1-2 College avenue, and C. M. Robbins, 45 years, proprietor of the Banquet hotel, at W927 1-2 Sprague avenue, received dangerous slashes in the side, and are held at the jail detention ward charged with assault with deadly weapons. The fight occurred at 7 p. m. in the Banquet hotel.

After Robbins had plunged a long butcher knife three times into the left side of Berg, and Berg, with a pocket knife, had opened a gash six inches long in Robbins' side, and slashed his mouth, the men were separated by lodgers who rushed in at the sound of the fray.

Berg was arrested half an hour later by Detective Edward Edwardson at the office of Dr. C. F. Rigg, in the Peyton building, where he was taken to have his wounds dressed.

The arrest of Berg resulted from a coincidence. Detective Edwardson was struck by a motorcycle while crossing Bernard street and sustained a sprained left wrist. He was sent to Dr. Rigg for treatment, owing to the emergency hospital being filled to capacity. He reached the door of the office as Dr. Rigg was about to dismiss his patient. His inquiries as to the cause of Berg's cuts were given no answer, and suspecting Berg of complicity in the stabbing of Robbins, he arrested him.

According to Robbins, the stabbing followed trouble over a telephone conversation Berg was carrying on which Robbins interrupted. Berg said: "Robbins attacked me, and I tried to protect myself. He had a knife, and I drew mine, and we went at it." Berg is the son of G. W. Berg, and a nephew of F. C. Berg, a merchant.

GAS GETS HIM AND MINER DIES

No Blame Attached to Company for Death of Man at Wallace, Idaho

Wallace, Idaho, Nov. 13.—Falling 150 feet down a chute of the Interstate-Callahan mine, near Wallace, caused the instant death of John Harris, aged 26, an employee of the company, his lifeless body being taken out a few minutes after the mishap.

Harris and his partner, Pete Vitelli, were clearing the top of the raise, which had ben choked by a blast of the preceding shift. They worked as long as they could stand the foul air and then started down the ladder, Vitelli going first. He was so weak that he fell a portion of the distance, but was able to reach the manway.

Harris attempted to follow, but evidently was so overcome with gas that he lost his hold at the top of the ladder and fell to the plank, where Vitelli heard him gasp. It is supposed that he lay on the plank a moment before he fell into the chute.

Vitelli was so overcome that he was powerless to help his companion and as soon as he had sufficiently recovered he crawled down the manway and notified other workmen of Harris' predicament.

At the bottom of the chute the gate was opened and Harris' body, still warm, was pulled out of the muck. All efforts at resuscitation were fruitless.

Harris had been employed in various mines of the district for several years and was an experienced miner. He was married a little over a year ago and leaves a widow and 5-month-old baby. The wife is prostrated.

A coroner's jury held that the deceased came to his death through his own negligence in not taking the proper precautions in fastening the ladder and absolved the company from all blame.

PRESIDENT WILL ADDRESS CONGRESS

Will Not Prepare Long and Voluminous Message as His Predecessors Did.

Washington, Nov. 13.—President Wilson announced today that he would read in person his first annual message to congress.

The president thus far has read three brief addresses—on tariff, currency and the Mexican affairs—but it was not definitely known whether his first communication to the regular session of congress would be in accordance with the century-old precedent which he revived last March.

Mr. Wilson told inquirers that he had just begun work on the address.

He indicated that no such long and voluminous messages as have heretofore been sent to congress by presidents would be prepared by him.

JAPANESE MAY BE DROWNED

Victoria Police Think the Men They Chased Threw Him Overboard—May Be Ex-Convicts.

Victoria, Nov. 13.—The Victoria police believe that there may be murder in the hurried flight from Vancouver of Leicester and Holland, the two men who were chased by the police here last Thursday, Leicester, or Lester, being arraigned, and Holland escaping after a sensational chase through the streets of the city. Holland is still at large, somewhere in the neighborhood of this city.

The story is that Holland, who is also known by the name of George Frank Van Horst, is an old Victorian, and long ago was sent to New Westminster for two years following a conviction here on a theft charge. Later, it is claimed, that he spent ten years in Walla Walla, following the holding up of a saloon in Seattle. Where the possibility of murder lies in the fact that when the two men left Victoria last week they went to Terra Nova and there bargained with a Jap named Ogada to take them to Vancouver island.

The launch reached Beaver Point, Salt Spring island, on November 5, with Lester and Van Horst on board, but no Jap, it is claimed. The two men, it is alleged, fired the launch and then came on to Victoria on the Joan. The police are now endeavoring to find out what happened to Ogawa.

Charles Hawkins was arrested here yesterday and concealed weapons were found on him. He is held on suspicion of being an assistant of Van Horst. It is said that he is also an ex-convict from Walla Walla.

WILL CO-OPERATE WITH COMMISSION

Benevolent Society to Assist in Work of Aiding Mothers Required to Work for Living.

The social service commission, of Victoria, which is engaged in the philanthropic work of aiding mothers who are compelled through necessity to leave their families for a number of hours daily in order to earn a living for themselves and their children will be assisted in its humane efforts by the local benevolent society. The ascertaining of names of mothers thus situated in this city will be the nature of assistance rendered by the local organization.

At the regular meeting of the Benevolent society yesterday a letter from Wm. Stevenson, secretary of the commission, describing its work and asking assistance so far as the procuring of names of working mothers was received.

In brief Mr. Stevenson's letter stated that the commission was endeavoring to lend working mothers sufficient assistance to enable them to stay at home with their children and give them the parental attention necessary. The work of the commission extends over the entire province. A number of the prominent men of Victoria are connected with it and the nature of the stationery used by Mr. Stevenson would indicate that the provincial authorities are a party to the good work of the commission.

As the winter season approaches the work of the local benevolent association is extending slightly. At yesterday's meeting three fresh applications were considered and it was decided to render assistance in each. The society is now lending aid to 13 separate cases of distress and during the month of September $113.50 was disbursed on benevolent work. The accounts for October totalled $130. Nine ladies attended the meeting yesterday, Mrs. Hill, the vice-president, being in the chair.

LETTER STAGGERS SCHOOL BOARD

City Council Says Trustees Are Responsible for Children—Police Have No Authority.

School trustees may have to don policemen's uniforms and pound the pavements to protect children going and coming from school if the letter read at last night school board meeting means business. The letter was from the city council and in reply to one sent on October 10 asking what could be done to keep theatre advertising men from soliciting business in school grounds. It was dated October 15 and said:

"Replying to your letter of October 10 in regard to distribution of theatre passes to school children I am directed to state that school children are under the control of teachers and the board of school trustees from the time they leave their homes to attend school each day until they return to their homes after the schools are closed and the city council and police have no charge of them between the times stated."

The letter was signed by W. A. Duncan, city clerk.

Now the trustees could not see the affair in this light. In fact Trustee Mrs. Cross wanted to know what she was to do if she saw little boys being bullied by older pupils. Would she have to stop the fight herself?

What made the reply seem absurd to the trustees was that a parent reported that his daughter had been accosted on the street. If the police were not to have charge of pupils during school hours there was no telling where this sort of thing might end. A reply to this effect will be sent to the city council.

Several increases were given to teachers. Mr. Summers, the new teacher at night school, was reported to be doing fine work. Some of his pupils had thanked the board for appointing so proficient an instructor.

GRIM TRAGEDY FROM THE FROZEN NORTH

Snowslide Sweeps Prospectors to the Edge of Precipice—One Killed—Others Suffering.

Valdez, Nov. 13.—Robert Martin was killed and John Connelly, Warren Nelson and E. S. Bruner are suffering from exposure and bruises as the result of a snowslide a few days ago on the Big Four mining claims on Mineral creek.

Bruner, Nelson, Connelly and Martin were overwhelmed in their tent by the avalanche of snow that came down upon them and carried them and their tent to within 10 feet of a 100 foot precipice.

Bruner managed to work himself loose by using a part of a whiskey flask that was near as a knife. With his hands badly cut and not a shred of clothing on him he walked a quarter of a mile to the tunnel and secured a shovel, with which he dug out Warren Nelson, after the latter had been pinned down three and a half hours. Bruner and Nelson continued the work of rescue until John Connelly, another partner, was released. He had been buried for seven and a half hours before he was rescued, but he was still alive.

Martin's body was not found until the next day. It was crushed. The accident occurred at an elevation of 5000 feet.

FIRE DESTROYS CHILLIWACK BLOCK

Chilliwack, Nov. 13.—Originating in an overheated stove in the dark room of the Chapman photographic studio, fire today practically destroyed the two storey frame structure known as the Henderson block. The blaze broke out shortly after 9 o'clock and after over two hours fighting the fire department managed to extinguish the flames.

The building was valued at $8000 and carried $5000 insurance. It is one of the oldest structures in the city and although it would be possible to make repairs the new bylaw will prevent this and the ruins will require to be razed.

This afternoon the underwriters arrived from New Westminster and they will estimate the damage with a view to settling the insurance on the various stores in the block which suffered loss.

The following merchants suffered: Chapman, $2000 loss, $500 insurance; Parker, clothier, stock damaged by water, $6000 insurance; R. A. Henderson, surveyor, $1000 loss; Lillie grocery, goods almost total loss, insurance not known; W. R. Gilbert company, dry goods, and Carlson, tailor, were also occupants of the building. Their loss is not estimated.

Those helping to serve were Mrs. B. Brown, Miss Nora Dockrill and Miss Julia Gifford. Miss E. Major and Miss L. Savage presided in the ice cream room. Opening the door to the guests were little Miss Joy Major and Master Bobby Bourne. The rooms were prettily decorated, the whole color scheme being in red. The tea tables were decorated with streamers of tulle and smilax while the centre table was a mass of red roses.

There were over 70 people present at the meeting of the Woman's Educational club last evening which was held at the home of Mrs. T. Meredith, Fifth avenue. Dr. Sipprell gave an address on "Higher Education in Other Lands." Mrs. Byron Renshaw rendered a solo. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. George Adams.

IN AMATEUR HOCKEY

Signing on of Vancouver Players by Local Teams Likely to Cause Trouble.

Trouble is said to be looming up in the Westminster Amateur Hockey league on account of two teams signing on Vancouver players. This matter was brought to a vote at a recent meeting of the league delegates, two teams making the play to have local players only perform with the teams, giving Fraser Mills all territory covered by Port Coquitlam and Coquitlam municipality, while the other two stood pat to sign on any players they see fit as long as they conform with the amateur status and are not signed with any league in Vancouver. The president's vote was necessary to pass the motion opening wide the territory to be covered by the league.

Now, the other teams in the league, the Beavers and Sappertons, claim that amateur hockey will not thrive to the extent it should, if outside material is brought in as the public will pay money to see outside professionals play, but in amateur games the public desire to know every player performing on the team and this they claim will not be so if Vancouver players are imported.

The league will open in the near future so that it is probable that the matter will reach an acute stage before the next few days have passed.

AT THE GOLF LINKS

Miss Bunce beat Mrs. Tweedale.
Miss Peele beat Mrs. Bond.
Mrs. Jenkins won from Miss Skillicorn, W.O.

The fourth round which was played yesterday lay between Mrs. Jenkins and Mrs. Page, the other two semi-finalists being Mrs. MacKenzie and Mrs. Rhodes.

The game between Mrs. Page and Mrs. Jenkins was a tight one for the first 14 holes, after which point Mrs. Page slowly gained a lead on her opponent. They started the second nine holes with Mrs. Page having the advantage of one hole. The tenth was halved and Mrs. Page won the 11th but lost the 12th. The 13th also went to Mrs. Jenkins, making the match square. Mrs. Page won the 14th, halved the 15th, won the 16th and 17th and thereby won the match by 3 and 1.

Mrs. MacKenzie was too strong for Mrs. Rhodes and eventually won by 4 and 3. Mrs. MacKenzie won the first three holes and was four up at the 5th. Mrs. Rhodes won the 6th and the 7th and 8th were halved. Mrs. Rhodes again won the 9th, making the match two holes in Mrs. MacKenzie's favor. The 10th went to Mrs. MacKenzie, the 11th and 12th were halved; Mrs. MacKenzie secured the 13th and halved the 14th and won the 15th, winning the game 4 and 3.

Report that Johnson Will Join Art Ross in an American Tour—Royals Worried.

The report that Ernie Johnson had refused to sign with the Royals came as a little surprise to the fans yesterday morning and all kinds of rumors are now afloat in connection with the famous coverpoint player.

The latest is that Johnson, unless he makes better terms with the Royal management, is agreeable to join the outlaw band under Art Ross of the Montreal Wanderers and tour the Eastern American cities. Ross, Ernie Russell and Harry Hyland have yet to sign with the Wanderers and the former is stated to be organizing an all-star team which will visit Cleveland, Pittsburg, Detroit, Syracuse, Boston and New York.

While the refusal of Johnson to come to terms is regarded in some circles as being merely temporary, the officials of the local company are worried as to the outcome seeing that regular practice is slated to start on November 20.

Victoria has its team practically made up, while Vancouver only requires one more player to round up a septette. Immediate action has to be taken by the New Westminster officials and another meeting with Johnson is slated for today or Saturday when it is hoped that the Moose will see the proper light and affix his name to a 1913-14 contract.

Received Scores at Sea.

San Francisco, Nov. 13.—Exceeding all previous wireless records for ships at sea by 300 miles, C. H. Germain, operator on the United States army transport Thomas which arrived from Manila today, reported that on September 24, when the Thomas was near Guam, and 4700 miles from San Francisco, all of the scores of the Pacific Coast league baseball games were received.

Americans Defeat Nationals.

Oakland, Cal., Nov. 13.—The New York National league, pennant winners, lost to the Chicago Americans by a score of 5 to 2 here today. Wiltse and Russell were the opposing pitchers. Wiltse was touched up for 11 hits.

Jim Thorpe, the famous Indian athlete with McGraw's team, was given a chance to warm up in right field today, replacing Mike Donlin. The score:

	R.	H.	E.
Chicago	4	11	2
New York	2	7	4

Batteries: Russell and Schalk; Wiltse and Meyers.

BASKETBALL TONIGHT

Crescents Will Oppose Tigers—Adanacs to Be Hard Pressed by Columbian College.

Basketball will reign at the Y. M. C. A. this evening when four city league teams will clash in the race for the championship.

The Crescents, who have yet to meet defeat, will oppose the Tigers in what is predicted to be an interesting battle. The Adanacs, last year's high school team, will oppose Columbian college for the first time, in the second of the doubleheader. Both teams appear to be on an equal footing.

Walker Sangster and Joe Evans will likely be the officials.

Here are the line-ups:

Crescent Beach—Forwards, Pentland and Rogers; centre, Storme; guards, McDonald and Dougherty. Spare, C. Fletcher.

Tigers—Forwards, Swanson and Smith; centre, Wattam; guards, Whittaker and Dawe. Spare, Gordon.

At Omaha Next.

Columbus, O., Nov. 13.—Omaha was selected as the next meeting place at the final session of the annual convention of the National Association of Professional Baseball leagues here today. Omaha won convention in a close contest with Nashville, Tenn., received 17 of the 32 votes cast.

There was no discussion today of the demands submitted by the Baseball Players' fraternity. No date has been set as yet. The report of the committee that it would be impossible to have uniform contracts for all leagues which are parties to the national agreement, was adopted by the convention.

The damage to vessels and cargo will be several millions of dollars.

Lying in various morgues along the Canadian shore are bodies of sailors who had shipped on the steamers James Carruthers, Regina, John A. McGean, Wexford and Charles S. Price. It virtually is certain those vessels went down with all on board. There also are a number of bodies not identified.

Wreckage of the steamers Argus and Hydrus has been cast ashore. Neither of those boats has been heard from since the storm swept the lakes. The freighter Isaac M. Scott is also missing. The freighter that has been upside down in Lake Huron for several days remains unidentified because of rough weather.

Greatest among today's tragedies was the confirmation of the loss of the steamer John A. McGean, a 432 foot freighter. Twenty-eight bodies of her crew have been washed ashore.

Another vessel may lie beneath the wreck of the overturned vessel in Lake Huron, 13 miles north of here.

This theory was advanced today by Milton Smith, assistant engineer of the ill-fated steamer Charles S. Price. Mr. Smith had a premonition of the approaching danger and left his ship at Cleveland the day before it rode into the teeth of Lake Huron's gale and foundered with all hands on board.

Mr. Smith returned to Port Huron tonight from Thedford, Ont., where he went to aid in establishing the identity of the men whose bodies were in the morgue there.

The first body he identified was that of John Groundwater, chief engineer of the Price, whose home was in Cleveland.

"Are you sure?" asked the coroner.

"As sure as I know my own name is Smith," he replied.

"Well this man had one of the Regina's life preservers wrapped about his body," said the coroner.

Smith was dumbfounded. How the chief engineer of the steamer Price came in possession of one of the life preservers of the Regina was more than he could fathom.

HEIR TO CZAR APPROACHES DEATH

Surgeons Give Boy Six Months to Live—Suffering from Tuberculosis of Bones.

Vienna, Nov. 13.—The czarevitch, the czar's heir and only son, cannot live more than six months. Such is the opinion of the most distinguished surgeons here who have been called in consultation over the boy, now in his tenth year. They say he is suffering from rapid tuberculosis of the bones and that his malady is incurable.

Of course, no one dare whisper this in St. Petersburg, but the czar knows his son is in an extremely precarious condition. He cannot walk and a muscular orderly carries him when he appears in public.

Many baths and special treatments have been tried and every sort of expert advice has been consulted but the boy's condition has defied the skill of the greatest doctors and specialists. The agony is really very great for the czar and his wife and much sympathy is given them.

Shop windows throughout Europe are hung with pictures of the czarevitch and silently the public awaits the inevitable; they realize that the tragedy must soon reach its climax.

Aside from the father and mother, the greatest sorrow is felt for the old Baron Alexieff, who was the private tutor of the boy's grandfather, Alexander III, of his father Nicholas II and now of the young and doomed czarevitch.

The czarina is quite well again. She has just returned from a sanitarium in Hamburg, one hour's ride from Frankfort. Although Austria is the blood enemy of Russia, yet the whole nation is stirred with sympathy over the unhappy family and the certain fate of the only son.

The czar has four daughters, but under a law of the Emperor Paul I, no woman can ascend the Russian throne. The nearest male heir, once the young Carevitch is gone, is the Grand Duke Michael, the czar's brother.

REGRET LOSS OF LADY STRATHCONA

Acting Premier Sends Message of Condolence on Behalf of Canadian Government.

Ottawa, Nov. 13.—The sympathy of the Canadian government with Lord Strathcona in the loss of his wife, Lady Strathcona, is expressed in a cable of condolence forwarded this evening by Hon. G. E. Foster, acting premier, who returned to the capital from New York at noon:

"The members of the Canadian government desire to assure your lordship of the profound sympathy on the occasion of the death of Lady Strathcona. They feel that in her all classes in this country have lost a warm friend, who during a long lifetime labored not less effectively because quietly and unostentatiously to assist your lordship to promote the well being of her Canadian fellow subjects while her kindly and gracious hospitality will long be remembered by those privileged to share it. We trust that your lordship may be strengthened to bear this great affliction and that you may yet be spared many years to continue your work on behalf of Canada and the empire."

JAPANESE RETURN ON PLEASURE TRIP

Local Citizen from Land of Mikado Says Return of Brethren Has no National Importance.

Denial that the return of many Japanese to their native land was deeply significant, was made yesterday by J. Miya Gawa of this city. A report was published in a Vancouver paper stating that 82 young Japs had left that city Monday for Japan and it was suggested that the depletion of the B. C. colony might have a national reason; it was pointed out that all were fit for service in the army or navy.

The explanation of Mr. Gawa, who is a graduate of the university at Tokio and a newspaper man in Japan for over 10 years, was that there are two societies of Japanese here whose object is an annual return to the fatherland. These clubs ask $120 from each man who wants to make the home trip. This covers second class passage and sight-seeing tours of the mikado's country.

Since the slack season in the lumber mills and the fishing industry is now on hand many Japanese are visiting their own country.

REBEL TROOPS BEGIN SIEGE ON CHIHUAHUA

El Paso, Tex., Nov. 13.—General Francisco Villa's rebel troops today began a siege on Chihuahua. They cut railroad and telegraph lines connecting Chihuahua with the border and have the city completely isolated. Rebel junta members stated tonight that it is Villa's plan to starve Chihuahua out instead of again trying to take the town by assault.

A passenger and troop train passed the point where the line was cut a few hours before the arrival of the rebel forces at the north of Chihuahua. The trains reached Juarez tonight, bringing more than a hundred Americans, foreigners and native refugees. The 23rd battalion of federal infantry accompanied the trains as a guard.

WIRELSS PLAYED NO PART

Ottawa, Nov. 13.—Wireless telegraphy played practically no part in the wrecks on the Great Lakes during the storm of Sunday. The reason is that with the exception of the Huronic none of the boats that were in trouble was equipped with wireless apparatus.

At the last session of parliament provision was made compelling most of the passenger vessels on the Great Lakes except the ones carrying less than 50 passengers or larger ones that do not make long trips, to become equipped with wireless. However, the act went through so late that it was decided not to make it effevtive until the first of next January.

Drowned in Alberta.

Deary, Idaho, Nov. 13.—Word has just been received here of the drowning of Roy Grannis, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Grannis. A brief telegram from the mounted police of Canada recites that the young man wsa drowned in Island lake, near his homestead, and about 25 miles from Athabasca, Alberta, the nearest post office. His parents are prostrated.

Ships Hold a Firey Furnace.

Halifax, Nov. 13.—With the forward hold converted into a firey furnace by spontaneous combustion of cotton cargo, the Britihr steamer Muirfield Head docked last evening after steaming for 100 miles at full speed from mid-ocean.

At the Theatres

New Features.

The Royal theatre will have a number of features starting with today's performance. The world's series of baseball games between the National league and American league recently played on the New York Polo grounds will be shown for the first time in this city.

The British war balloon test, showing England's latest addition, the "Victoria," will be an interesting picture and there will also be many other of the latest world happentngs. "Voodoo Vengeance," a wonderful animal picture, 3000 feet long, featuring Capt. Jack Bonivata, world-famed lion tamer, is sure to be an interesting one. To round out this excellent program Manager Gillis will also have Pete Murphy sing some of the latest eastern song hits.

Booking Cancelled.

Bookings with the company which was to come to the Royal theatre in stock next week have been cancelled by Manager Gillis of the Royal, following an unsuccessful attempt of the show manager to cause Mr. Gillis to raise his seat prices from the popular prices. The Royal manager insists on keeping his prices down. To replace the road company an attraction with Vancouver players in the principal roles has been secured for next week.

THE SPIN OF THE SPORT WHEEL

Frank Barrieau and Joe Bayley will not clash at Steveston as intended, but Barrieau will meet a 'Frisco lightweight, Johnny McCarthy, who comes up north with a rep of having beaten Frankie Burns a few days ago. Bert Halstead, of Eburne, is trying to arrange the bout for the first week in December.

Kitsilano Presbyterians will be the visitors at Sapperton park on Saturday afternoon where they clash with the Junior Alliance team of the R. C. H. S.

Abe Attell, who everyone thought was through with the fight game, is going to try and come back against Johnny Kilbane. It will be curtains for Abe when Kilbane gets through with him.

After dropping $15,000 last summer on baseball, the directors of the Wichita, Kan., team have decided to make another attempt next season. The citizens will now probably flock to the banner.

Thirty-one points to nil was the dose handed the Santa Clara varsity rugby team by the All-Blacks on Thursday. The All-Blacks will wind up their Californian tour on Saturday when they meet the best of the southern state. Up to date 455 points have been scored on the home teams and three against the New Zealanders.

Hanns Kohlemainen, the Finnish Olympic runner, is not a professional. That is, the amateur officials failed to get the goods on the long distance star whose expense accounts have totalled three figures during the short time he has taken up his residence in the States.

Reports from the East indicate that Frank Patrick has wired Lalonde to name his price and to leave immediately for the coast. Up to the present time Newsy is still stalling to get his release.

Manager Percy Lesseuer evidently believes in as much publicity as he can possibly get. The manager of the Ottawas is reported to have every star in the country signed up which leaves the Stanley cup contest settled before the season starts.

Eddie Gerard and Coo Dion, two well known amateur hockey players, are reported to have signed up with Ottawa.

Look out for squalls in the Amateur Hockey league before another week has passed. There was some talk on the street yesterday of a movement which will bring a little fight before the schedule opens.

Clem Hill, the famous Australian cricketer, has accepted a position of paid steward and his new duties will probably necessitate his retirement from the summer game.

Manager Grant, of the Rovers, will take no chances with West Vancouver tomorrow afternoon and will field the strongest possible eleven.

A meeting of the billiard players of the city is due to be held in the Royal pool rooms at 8 o'clock this evening for the purpose of electing officers and drawing up a schedule for the season.

Victoria Branch of Council of Women Agitates for Circulation of Copper Coins.

Victoria, Nov. 13.—The question of bringing into general use the copper coinage in this city was a point of much discussion yesterday afternoon at the regular monthly meeting of the Local Council of Women.

This question was first brought up at the annual meeting of the Local Women's Council in 1912, when the Victoria Musical society drew the attention of the council to the fact that with the advent of the increased cost of living, it was essential that the copper coin should come into use, and the Local Council of Women were asked to take steps to obtain this coin, which is in use in every other province of the Dominion.

The matter has once more come up for discussion and some of the members spoke very warmly on the absolute necessity for the same. To a certain extent the smaller coins are in currency now, used in the form of bread tickets, milk tickets and in every manner possible whereby householders can save a cent. This, however, does not apply to the drygoods stores, and the banker and the merchant is naturally against the introduction of the copper coin, the former because it would not only be a nuisance but a loss to him, as his profit would be reduced.

By being deprived of the copper coinage the cost of living is increased, it is contended, from 25 to 30 per cent. and for the poor this is a great loss. It was stated that copper coins may be obtained from several firms and that up to a certain amount they could not refuse to take copper at the post office, but that this was never given out again as change, but shipped out of the city.

It was eventually moved by Mrs. Gould and unanimously carried, that all the affiliated societies be asked to circulate the copper coinage.

STEER LIVES 22 DAYS WITHOUT FOOD OR WATER

Calgary, Nov. 13.—An interesting story is to hand from Halkirk, illustrating the wonderful endurance of a two-year old steer, which belongs to F. O. Duke. On October 6, last, Mr. Duke lost the anima, as well as a calf a few months old. As he has had the misfortune to lose several cattle as the result of a mysterious disease, recently, when they were not with the rest of the cattle on the above date, he assumed that they had strayed away into the brush and died. Search was made for them high and low, but without result and they were given up as lost. On October 28, however, exactly twenty-two days later, they were found in a 10x12 shack, which they had apparently entered and, the door closing upon them, they were imprisoned for the period named without food or water. When discovered they were still alive, and when released the steer, after licking up a few mouthfuls of grass, made a bee line for the farm, where it was taken care of and apparently none the worse for the experience, beyond the fact that before its incarceration it was a fine fat steer, but on its release it more resembled the lean kine referred to in Pharoah's famous dream. The calf was in a somewhat debilitated condition, but the prospects are that they will both survive their twenty-two days' fast.

HELD ON MURDER CHARGE HIS HAIR TURNS GRAY

London, Ont., Nov. 13.—Thomas Riley, the young Grand Trunk brakeman who will be tried for murder shortly for shooting George Blackburn, a bartender, who refused to give him a drink, will base his defense upon the fact that he was intoxicated at the time. His home is in Everton, Mo., and word that a number of his townspeople will pay for a lawyer for him, aided by the Trainmen's union, of which he is a member.

Riley has worried over the affair so much that, although a young man and in prison only a few weeks, his hair has turned gray.

MINER'S SKULL CRUSHED BY CAVE IN AT ORIENT

Orient, Wash., Nov. 13.—Dave McKenzie, a miner, was probably fatally injured last night by a cave in at the Napoleon mine, eight miles south of here. He had not regained consciousness this morning, and little hope is entertained for his recovery. His skull is fractured and all his limbs broken.

The cave in is said to have been caused by the filling in of an old stope and the giving away of an old trapdoor.

McKenzie was rushed to the hospital at Marcus and his mother, living here, telephoned for. She made the 18-mile drive to Marcus in the night.

MAGIC OF COLORS

By It We Know of What the Sun and Stars Are Composed.

SECRETS OF THE UNIVERSE.

How They Were Revealed by the Discovery of the Spectrum and the Reasoning to Which It Led—Our Eyelashes Are Primitive Spectroscopes.

The miracle of the spectroscope is repeated before our eyes every day and every night without our recognizing it.

If people were more observant and more accustomed to think about the meaning of what they see great discoveries would be as plentiful as diamonds in a Kimberley pipe.

A man said to me the other day, "What is all this color that I see when I squint my eyes and look at an electric light?"

I replied: "It is the greatest revelation that man has ever had in the physical world—it is spectrum analysis. Your crowded eyelashes become an astronomical instrument and analyze the light for you into its primary colors. The multitude of narrow slits through which the light passes as you squint your eyes act like a diffraction grating and change the direction of the various waves of light in accordance with their length.

"The red waves are long, one thirnine thousandth of an inch in length, and they keep on without much change of direction, but the violet waves are short, one fifty-seven thousandth of an inch in length, and they are considerably turned out of a straight line. All the intermediate waves, from orange, through yellow, green, blue and indigo, decrease in length and are more and more turned aside as they get shorter. The consequence is that you see through your nearly closed eyelashes a band of colors, which is nothing but the famous spectrum of the astronomers."

By the discovery of that spectrum and the reasoning that it led to we have found out what the sun and the stars are made of. Every known element of matter, when it is made to shine, gives out wave lengths peculiar to itself. Spectroscopic instruments more perfect than the eyelashes reveal these special waves in the light of the sun and the stars and by that revelation enable us to detect the incandescent clouds, composed of the hot vapors of iron, copper, nickel, platinum, carbon, calcium, sodium and many other substances which glow in the atmosphere of the heavenly bodies. We find these things in stars so far away that their light may require 1,000 years to come to us, although it flies with a speed of 186,300 miles per second.

Look around you when you enter a brilliantly lighted parlor with crystal chandeliers hanging from the ceiling. The mysterious spectrum flashes at you from a hundred directions at once. The glass crystals of the chandeliers are also spectroscopes, and they, too, separate the various colored waves, though on a somewhat different principle. They act not as diffraction gratings, but as prisms, but the effect is nearly the same. When light goes through a prism the red waves are less bent out of their course than the orange, the orange less than the yellow, the yellow less than the green, the green less than the blue, the blue less than the indigo and the indigo less than the violet. The result is that what was white light, with all its waves intermingled, when it entered the prism, comes out in beautiful sheaves of color.

A similar effect is produced by the beveled edge of a mirror or the facets of a piece of cut glass glittering on a dinner table.

The beauty of jewels depends upon their spectroscopic powers. Every transparent substance has its own "index of refraction," which means its peculiar power of turning light waves aside. The diamond, as the king of gems, possesses this power in the highest degree. Calling the refractive index of air 1.00, that of glass is from 1.51 to 1.71, according to its density, while that of the diamond is 2.47.

This property alone furnishes a means of detecting the genuineness of a diamond. Taking advantage of its high refractive power and shaping its facets accordingly, the jeweler can vastly increase the brilliancy of a diamond by proper cutting. He can bring about internal reflections that make the stone blaze as if its atoms were all afire.

The shimmer of colors in an opal is due to the existence of invisibly minute fissures, which split up the light waves and scatter their hues in delicate, intermingled rainbows.

Nature has been doing these things for thousands of years in plain sight before man found out that he could use the principle on which she acted to uncover the secrets of the universe. Very likely she is giving us many other equally valuable hints which we are still too stupid to understand.—Garrett P. Serviss in Spokane Spokesman-Review.

Untrustworthy.

"I'm glad I refused that man. He's untrustworthy."

"Why do you say that?"

"He vowed he would pine away and die if I turned him down, and now look how fat he has grown."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

CANADA NOT FOUND WANTING

Dominion Has Stood Test and Will Reap Reward is Opinion of Prominent Victorian.

Victoria, Nov. 13.—"That Canada has so splendidly weathered an exceedingly trying period has made a very favorable impression on hte minds of British capitalists. After the recent pronounced real estate activity and the undoubted inflation of values in some quarters it was thought in the old country that there would be a serioush reaction—one that would amount to a collapse. This expectation failing, the sentiment in Canada's favor is gathering strength every day, the magnificent crop on the prairies having given is added momentum."

J. J. Shallcross, president of the board of trade, who returned after a two months' stay in the old country, thus summarized, in an interview, the financial situation as it appeared to him. He emphatically asserted that it would not take long to achieve the re-establishment of the former satisfactory conditions. Of necessity there had to be a period of "house-cleaning. Canada had and was continuing to bear up in splendid style, and there was no doubt that she would emerge with colors flying.

Unusual Condition.

In the old land he had found an unusual and peculiar state of affairs with respect to the money market. Capital was in demand the world over and the home trade was remarkably good. Consequently, there was scarcely enough of the "sinews of war" to go round. Besides, the investors were not looking for the same kind of securities that they insisted on having some years ago. Then, national and municipal bonds, known to be absolutely safe, were sought and taken up with avidity at a low rate of interest. Now, industrial securities, something which before were regarded by conservative investors as unsound, were demanded. They, of course, yielded the higher rates. There never was a time before, Mr. Shallcross declared, when trustees insisted on having the rates now sought for trust funds.

Illustrating the difficulty which was being experienced in raising money in London because of the conditions described, Mr. Shallcross referred to the effort of New Zealand made a short time ago to renew an old £3,000,000 loan which had reached maturity. It had been secured originally at 99, and at a rate of 4 per cent. interest. When it was placed on the market, not 8 per cent was applied for by the public. This, in his opinion, was astonishing and was so regarded by many of those who were considered to have their hands on the pulse of the financial world.

Outlook Reassuring.

With respect to Canada, Mr. Shallcross stated that the outlook was most reassuring. He repeated that the general belief was that there would be a pronounced reaction in the Dominion as a result of the exceptional development and activity of the past few years. When this did not come, the British capitalists began to realize that they had underestimated the country's powers of resistance. It followed that the conviction of its great resources and its general substance was more firmly fixed than ever. When there came the reports of the remarkable crops of the prairie provinces, the complete restoration of Canada to the respect of the British investor was assured. That was the present sentiment among most of the financiers in a large way.

USE OF TOBACCO BY TEACHERS NOT APPROVED

Wenatchee, Wash., Nov. 13.—Miss Viletta Guthrie, superintendent of schools, is much pleased with the resolution passed at the convention of school superintendents at Spokane last week on the subject of smoking by teachers. Hereafter she intends to be more outspoken against every teacher in this county who makes a practice of smoking in public.

"The law compels us to teach the injurious effects of the smoking habit," declared Miss Guthrie. "The effect of that teaching is largely nullified when boys see their instructors light a cigar just as soo nas they leave the class room and walk down through the business district puffing. It is a filthy, expensive habit.

"I am glad that the public school system is arrayed against it. If a teacher thinks he must smoke I am in favor of making him be just as sneaking about it as possible."

BLEW SAFE AT WALLACE AND GET ONLY $15

Wallace, Idaho, Nov. 13.—A gang of safe breakers visited this city last night. Three business establishments found their safes and cash registers rifled on opening this morning. Apparently the cracksmen started operations at the office of the Wallace Produce company, near the Northern Pacific depot, whither they had taken sledge hammers and literally beaten the safe to pieces. No powder was used her and no money was obtained.

After demolishing the safe the robbers apparently made their way to the United States, on Cedar street, where entrance was gained by breaking the lass out of a rear window and the cash register robbed.

Their next visit took them to the Anderson Lumber and Hardware company store on Bank street, where the cash register was also robbed. It is reported that only about $15 was secured by the robbers.

As they made their entrance to the United Stores, they were heard to break the glass, but no attention was paid to the matter at the time. No clue was left at any of the places visited.

SIGN OF THREE BALLS

IT WAS DERIVED FROM FAMOUS SHIELD OF THE MEDICI.

Florentine Family Whose Operations In the Field of Banking and Loans Brought Them Enormous Wealth Ruled the Civilized World For Three Centuries — Six Balls at First.

Back in the 13th century, there lived in Florence, Italy, a family called Medici, whose chief business was running the city of Florence and most of the banks in the civilized world.

Besides owning a large number of banks, the Medici had a monopoly on the loan business in that part of the country. Their coat of arms was a shield with six balls emblazoned on it, but as the loan business spread to other parts of the world and slipped out of the Medici hands, three balls and the shield were dropped and the remaining three, suspended over a doorway, have always sufficed to indicate that within money can be borrowed.

No other house in mediaeval Europe can boast of such a strange career as that of the Medici. Bankers by profession, possessing no military resources, gifted with no experience in war, aided by no general convulsion, they established a despotism which lasted for three centuries. The Medici owed their earliest distinction to their success in various branches of commerce which brought them enormous wealth, and the liberal spirit with which they devoted their money to general utility.

Cosmo de Medici was fond of paying the taxes of those who had run behind and so when he suggested to this large majority of the city that he would like to take a hand in running Florence as it ought to be run, they all agreed that they should like to see him do it. And when a rival family, called the Albizzi, established a successful opposition against the policy and credit of the Medici rule, they came forward and chased the presumptuous Albizzi clear up to Venice; and Cosmo, who had been banished to the same city, came back and became the uncrowned King of Florence, and was given the title, "Father of His Country."

The most famous member of the family was Lorenzo, surnamed the Magnificent. He was a grandson of Cosmo, and besides running loan shops and banks in France, England, the Low Countries, the Levant and a few other places, he became the virtual head of the Florence state, and what he said was law. He had a crowd of five or six men hanging around who, theoretically, had something to say about how the city should be governed, but Lorenzo merely ignored them, and they were glad to be allowed to draw their salaries.

Before he succeeded to power, and while his father, Pietro, was getting things in smooth running order for him, Lorenzo married Clarice Orsini, a member of one of the greatest families in Italy. Lorenzo was not very enthusiastic as he had had his eye on a certain black-eyed Lucrezia Donati, but his wise father realized the benefit of an alliance with the Orsini who divided the most of territorial Italy with their hereditary enemies, the Colonna. Besides the house was famous for its numerous cardinals and gay blades, valuable considerations in those days.

In 1473, the conspiracy of the Pazzi came near putting an end to the Medici, but after much mutual murder and with the help of the Orsini, Lorenzo got a firmer hold on the state of Florence than ever, so that in the end he was glad he took Clarice instead of running after Lucrezia.

Lorenzo now started in to rule his native city as it had never been ruled before. He followed in the footsteps of his grandfather and won the favor of the lower classes, thereby making absolute his own power. And to win the favor of the highbrows, struggling authors and the club women, he encouraged literature and the arts, employed learned men to collect choice books and antiquities for him from every part of the known world, established printing presses in his dominions, founded academies for the study of classical learning and filled his gardens with a collection of the remains of ancient art. He himself wrote a number of poems and dramatic compositions, and could talk Greek and Latin as well as he did Italian. When his munificence and conciliatory manners had gained for him the affection of the higher and the devotion of the lower classes, Lorenzo lost no time in making use of his popularity. While they were all praising him and telling each other what a noble fellow he was, he slipped in and took away from them all forms of constitutional independence that he and his predecessors had allowed to exist.

Some few Florentines, alarmed by the progress of the voluptuous refinement which was smothering every spark of personal independence, tried to call a halt on Lorenzo and stem the current of corruption by an ascetic severity of morals, which gained for them the name of "piagnoni," or weepers. Foremost among them was the Dominican friar, Girolamo Savonarola, whose eloquent appeal to the people in favor of a popular government and a life of asceticism threatened for a time to overthrow the Medici. But after Lorenzo's death a reaction against the monk's preaching set in and he was burned at the stake.

Lorenzo's name is associated with all forms of loveliness, yet his physical personality was peculiarly unlovely. He was above the middle height and strongly built, but his face was undeniably plain, the nose flat and spreading, the chin sharp, the complexion sallow and the eyes weak. His movements were exaggerated and ungainly, his voice harsh and croaking. His sense of smell was almost wholly lacking, which probably was a fortunate thing for him, living in Florence when he did.

YOUR MILLINERY.

In the Fall Hats Women Will Look Older.

In the majority of fall models women will look older. This is because the bonnet, mushroom and bell shapes have given way to the hat with an upturned brim, and to be strictly in style the brim must turn at the back.

If you are young and fair to look on, by all means wear a chin band on your new fall hat. This can be of velvet ribbon, taffeta or moire or of tulle and malines. It can have a fastening by means of a hook and eye, or the streamers can be tied at one side, coquettishly, under one ear or just in front. The chin band will be noticeable on hats for afternoon and evening this season.

One "cap" is of velvet, with a puffed crown and a visor which comes down in front. At one side is a panache mounting to great height and giving a dashing effect that would look well with a military suit. On a black velvet hat for evening there is used chantilly lace for the brim and for the wired bow at the back that holds the turned up brim. The illustration shows an exceedingly stylish piece of millinery—a jaunty sailor of black velvet, with fancy quills. The upstanding medici ruche worn with this chapeau will add ultra chicness to any costume.

TRAVELER'S LUNCH.

Home Fare Often Better Than Dining Car Meals.

To pack lunch for a traveler requires much more finesse and care than if you were preparing for a day's picnic. Traveling is apt to be tiresome, for long hours of riding, even in a comfortable twentieth century train, have many drawbacks, and if a lunch is to be enjoyed on the road the same must be the acme of daintiness. Many travelers prefer to carry several meals instead of patronizing the dining car service when going on a long journey, and if each meal is packed separately and offers enough variety there is no reason why the last should not be as enjoyable as the first. Have white, clean pasteboard boxes, wrap each in a white paper and mark neatly. Use the best grade of white paper napkins, dishes and waxed paper. A small fruit knife or butter spreader, aluminium fork and spoon and a collapsible cup can be carried in one's grip.

When using these recipes remember all measurements are level. Use a graded half pint measuring cup and sift flour before measuring.

Pimento Cheese Sandwiches.

One soft cream cheese, one teaspoonful of cream, one canned red pimento, one teaspoonful of pimento oil; mash the cheese with the cream to a smooth paste, cut pimento into small bits, add that and the oil which will be found in the can, mix well and then spread on unsweetened crackers.

Boston Sandwiches.

One cupful of baked beans, two thin slices of bacon, one teaspoonful of ketchup, one teaspoonful of mustard sauce, steamed brown bread. Run the beans through a fruit press, cut the bacon into tiny cubes and fry to a golden crispness; drain off the fat and add the cubes to the beans; add other ingredients and run to a smooth paste; spread between thin buttered slices of brown bread.

Marshmallow Fingers.

Split lady fingers and spread with marshmallow icing, put a little sprinkling of ground almonds between, press together and ice on both sides, placing a half blanched almond on each center.

Deviled Macaroni.

Boil, blanch, drain and chop four ounces of macaroni rather fine. Rub two tablespoonfuls of butter and two tablespoonfuls of flour together, add one-half pint of milk and stir it till boiling. Press three hard boiled eggs through a sieve or chop them very fine, and add them to the thick sauce. Add one tablespoonful of chopped parsley, one-half teaspoonful of salt, a few grains of cayenne pepper, a grat jug of nutmeg and one tablespoonful of onion juice. Now mix in the macaroni and a small quantity of cayenne. Put in individual shells, cover the top with breadcrumbs moistened with melted butter and run them into a quick oven to brown. When done make an indentation with the back of the spoon in the center of each, put in a teaspoonful of tomato ketchup or chili sauce and serve at once.

Spelling by Rule.

"Why do you insist so strenuously on my placing by order right away?"

"I have taken a course in a school of scientific salesmanship and according to all rules and theories this is the psychological moment for closing this sale."

FOUND IN A SAUSAGE SHOP.

How Letters of the Czar Peter the Great Were Sold For Four Cents.

There has just come to light a rather interesting story of how some rare documents worth thousands of dollars were sold for four cents in St. Petersburg. The documents in question were autograph letters of the Czar Peter the Great and they were discovered in a herring and sausage shop, where they were being used as wrappers.

Peter the Great had a long correspondence with Count Tatcheff, the president of the government mines in the Ural mountains, over the question of the disposal of the riches contained in the mines. These letters of the Czar were bequeathed by the count to the official museum of the mines in Ekaterinburg. The present management of the mines recently conceived the idea of selling all the old deeds, but they did not feel called upon to satisfy themselves as to the contents and purport of the literature unearthed. The deeds were all lumped together and three weeks ago were put up at auction. The whole of the supposed "waste paper," which was really worth scores of thousands of pounds, went for a small sum.

The buyer was the proprietor of a large number of provision shops, including some sausage shops. One day a professor, who was an antiquarian, noticed that the girl behind the counter in one of these shops was wrapping up his sausage in a peculiar kind of paper with a crown on it. He looked at it more closely and soon saw that he held in his hands a most important autograph letter of the Czar Peter. He went at once to the sausage dealer to find out how this extraordinary literature came into his hands and learned the manner of it, as has been just related. Thereupon he offered to buy the rest of the letters, and the manager of the shop let him have them all for four cents.

When Birds Are Helpless.

Some of nature's most active creatures show strange helplessness under certain conditions. Place a buzzard in a pen six or eight feet square entirely open at the top, and the bird will be as absolutely a prisoner as if it were hermetically sealed in the inclosure.

This is because buzzards never begin a flight from the ground without starting on a run of three or four yards. If they cannot have that preliminary run they either cannot or will not attempt to fly, and so a buzzard will remain a prisoner for life in a jail with a wide-open top.

So with the bumblebee. One of these lively insects dropped into a goblet or tumbler will remain there always unless taken out, because it never notices the means of escape at the top.

A Change.

"Does he like politics? He fairly eats 'em."

"That's better. Most men drink theirs."

A Careless Remark.

"Well, sad to say, I'll have to tear myself away."

"That'll be rippin' won't it?"

Stopping and Starting.

"Tis money makes the auto go,
A dollar you can drop
And hardly know that it is spent—
A tack will make one stop.

MR. MACKENZIE HAS FAITH IN NEW MINES

Dr. Thomson, M. P., for Yukon, Says Shushana Is Good—The Wealth of His Constituency.

"Of course," he said, "it is not another Klondike. The field is much more limited, at least so far as at present appears.

"It will take some time," he continued, "before the field is definitely proved. There are a large number of Youkon old timers and 'sourdoughs,' perhaps to the number of a thousand, who are ready to go to the new diggings. These are experienced men who know how to meet conditions as they arise in frozen lands; consequently we are not likely to hear of tales of suffering and hardship such as garnished the accounts of the disastrous trail of '98. When these experienced men make their reports, probably in the spring, we shall know just what the value of the new strike is."

Dr. Thompson reports that the conditions in the Yukon are entirely satisfactory, and that the clean-up of gold during the last season was between five and six millions of dollars.

"And I want to point out to you," continued the doctor, "a little indication of the amount of gold that the Yukon yields to mankind. In the last sixteen years between 160 and 170 millions of dollars' worth of gold has been mined in the Yukon, which is considerably more than has been taken from British Columbia soil in the last sixty years. The total output of British Columbia in six decades is somewhere in the neighborhood of 140 millions.

"The effect of this tremendous output has been to enrich, develop and build up the cities of the Pacific coast through which the gold has passed. The Yukon does not derive from its own output the benefit that one would imagine it would derive under the circumstances."

The doctor hopes, however, that before long there will be discovered lode mines which will involve more extensive mining operations than is carried on in placer mining, and which will necessitate the employment of more hands, and the building up of various settlements which will be permanent in the territory.

Walla Walla, Wash., Nov. 13.—"The American woman is crazy over dress, whether grocery, fuel or rent bills are paid," was the conclusion reached by Mrs. W. W. Maxwell, of this city, in a paper read before the Women's Educational club.
