THE PAYSTREAK

BOOK IV. SANDON, SEPTEMBER 1 1900. CHAPTER 48

HAPPENINGS IN BRIEF.

John C. Winter is behind the counter in Atherton's.

C. M. Wilson returned from Spokane yesterday.

Dudley Blackwood returned to Nelson on Thursday.

Monday will be Labor day. Cody will not celebrate.

Albert Kurr returned on Monday from his trip to Alberta.

The Comique in Kaslo is to be reopened by Sandon parties.

Robt. Cunning will move into the new Sandon hotel next week.

The Atherton stock will be moved into the new store early next week.

Harold Hatt has taken a situation with the Byers' hardware company.

Mrs. Funk is making preparations to open the Sandon hotel dining room.

Miss Jennie Hammond of Slocan attended the opening ball at the Reco.

The new bank offices are nearly completed and will be occupied next week.

J. K. Clark came up from New Denver yesterday to see the sights of the city.

Hamilton Byers spent Thursday and Friday in town, taking in the Reco opening.

Mrs. B. M. Walton left on Monday for a visit to her home in Waterloo, Ontario.

F. L. Christie will occupy office rooms in the second story of the Atherton block.

There was a meeting of the city council on Monday evening at which no business was done.

Frank Townsend is again at the throttle on the K. & S. Limited, after a holiday trip to the east.

Wm. Walmsley and Ed. McLeod went to the Halcyon Springs on Wednesday for a two-weeks' visit.

Macdonald Bros. have revised the plans for their new building and will now build only 50 feet deep.

The K. & S. bridge gang is operating in the vicinity of Sandon. Harry Swan of Kaslo is in charge.

The report that J. J. Fleutot has secured a controlling interest in the Florida is denied by that gentleman.

Excavation for the Miners' Union hall was commenced on Wednesday. Tom Duffy is in charge of construction.

Jimmy Williamson will open the new cigar store in a few days. The debating society will then have larger rooms and will be prepared to let in new members.

Jim Kerr, journalist, struck town by the tie route during the early part of the week and spent a few pleasant but hazy evenings doing the square thing by De Kuyper.

The Sappho company went thru to Kaslo on Monday to play a date in that town. They came all the way from Australia, and judging from the indications of appearances they probably hit the overland route in several places.

Captain Haas of the Salvation Army spent a couple of days in town this week collecting funds for the refuge homes which the Army conducts in Spokane and Vancouver.

Mayor Pitts leaves Aultsville, Ont., on September 5th and will arrive in Sandon about the 10th. He remained in the east longer than was his original intention in order to attend his brother's wedding.

About two months from now the winter season will be on again, and unless action is taken in the near future Sandon will again be without a good skating or curling rink. Parties who are interested in these winter sports should get together and see that something is done in the matter.

A liberal convention is called to take place at Revelstoke on Wednesday next, September 5th, to nominate a candidate to contest the constituency of Yale, Cariboo and Kootenay for the Dominion Parliament. So far Sandon liberals have taken no step to appoint delegates.

The $5000 appropriation to the city of Sandon found a place in the supplementary estimates and should be placed to the credit of the city within a few days. It will then be in order for the city council to commence the construction of a city hall and make arrangements for the construction of the flume at the lower end of town so that the new street can be opened down to the power house.

Sheriff Tuck held an auction sale in Nelson Tuesday of goods to satisfy judgements. The first lot was the interest of Abbie H. Williams in the Bertha mineral claim located west of Jackson creek near the Dardanelles. This was purchased by Henry Giegerich for $86, which about covered the judgment. A promissary note drawn by the Britannia Mining company in favor of Philip McVicar for $2500 was bought by Giegerich at $640.

E. H. Thomlinson arrived in Sandon on Thursday from Allegheny Springs, Penn, where he spent the early part of the summer. Yesterday he went out to McGuigan to visit the Lone Jack group, of which he is the owner, and will spend the next few days in Sandon and vicinity. Altho Mr. Tomlinson spends most of his time at his southern home in St. Petersburg, Florida, he is heavily interested in mining property in B. C. and has been identified with the industry in the Slocan since its early days.

E. E. Chipman, assessor, collector mining recorder was in town from Kaslo on Thursday and Friday gathering data for the assessment rolls which must be completed by November 1st. He finds it difficult to arrive at a basis of value for personal property in Sandon, as the stocks carried by local merchants now will be much increased before the 15th of January, when the taxes are due. Anything that taxpayers can do to assist the assessor in his work will be duly appreciated by that official, whose duties are onerous under ordinary circumstances but are more exacting on the present occasion from the fact that this work which should have been commenced on the 1st of July was not taken up until the appointment was received by the present incumbent.

SLOCAN MINES.

In the old workings of the Sovereign a strike of six inches of steel galena has been made.

The Noble Five tram suspended operations on Wednesday. The mill will be shut down again as soon as the bins are empty.

There are 12 men working at the Corinth mine. Tee property is looking better than ever before. A. Muir, who had charge a year ago, is superintendent.

The tramway builders at the Ivanhoe are now stringing the standing wires. The wires are made in four sections with the tension station half way up the tram. There will be 38 buckets on the running rope, which will be over 15,000 feet long.

The minister of mines has under consideration the establishment of a uniform code of signals for use in all mines of the province. The present intention is to adopt the code used in the mines of Montana, and gold commissioners have been instructed to receive suggestions from mine managers in connection with the matters.

Twelve men are employed at the Red Fox taking out ore which is being packed down to McGuigan for shipment. The Red Fox is one of the most difficult properties to handle in the Slocan. Its situation is such that it can be operated for only a short period during the summer season, as snowslides make it to hazardous in other seasons.

The reconstruction of the Last Chance tram has been completed and it was started on Tuesday evening. The crusher has been put in place again and is now working on ore shipped down. Timber, supplies and material are being shipped up and as soon as arrangements are completed the force at the mine will be increased.

Fire at the Ivanhoe.

There was a disastrous fire at the Ivanhoe mine on Tuesday morning by which the bunk house and boarding house were both destroyed. The fire originated in the drying room and was well under way before being noticed, so that the men only had time to get out without saving their clothes or bedding. Tents and temporary structures have been rigged up and work will be carried on without interruption. The reconstruction of the buildings will not be commenced until the tramway is completed, when material can be handled much more easily.

The Monitor Bonded.

Acting for the London syndicate which he represents, Maurice Gintzberger has taken a bond on the Monitor mine at Three Eorks. The property will be re-opened immediately and will be on the shipping list in the near future. The terms of the bond are not given out.

The consummation of this deal marks the close of negotiations which have been pending for many months. The Monitor is a developed property of proven value from which large shipments have already been made, and as it has been a dividend-payer from the grass roots the purchasers are assured a handsome return on their investment.

The Legislature.

According to the government's program the house was to prorogue last night. There was the usual rush toward the latter end and a good deal of more or less important business will have to go over. Helmcken's bill providing an educational test for workmen on works chartered by the provincial government was amended so as to make it apply to employees on the operation of the same. This bill was calculated to prevent the employment of Mongolians on railroad and government works.

Tatlow's bill, which was intended to keep orientals out of the province was amended so that it would not apply to any immigrants against whom there was dominion legislation. This makes the act inoperative as applied to Chinese but will operate against Japs. The act was passed but it is questionable whether the Governor General will give it his signature as it may be conflicting with the dominion government's policy.

Houston's water clauses act, which gives cities the right to acquire water rights in the same manner that private companies would, was passed at the lost moment.

Formal Opening of the Hotel Reco.

The ball on Thursday evening which marked the formal opening of the Hotel Reco was a success in every sense of the word. Nearly 200 dancers gathered in the big hotel and tripped to the strains of the Sandon orchestra until an early hour. The house was gaily decorated and brilliantly lighted upstairs and down, presenting a gaudy and festive appearance. The large dining room makes an ideal dancing hall, and it was crowded from the first to the last number on the program. Supper was served to the large concourse of merrymakers in the dining room and the viands produced did credit to the house and the management.

Lord Kitchener will be almost prepared to affirm that DeWet and his force broke thru where an X-Ray would have turned back and acknowledged itself beaten.

E. A. Brown's family arrived from Spokane and are now residing on Cody avenue.

Bert Creech will raffle a saddle pony at the Filbert to night.

W. F. OF M. IN POLITICS.

The Western Federation of Miners, which indeed practically includes all the miners west of the Missouri river, at their recent annual convention in Denver, enunciated the following set of principles:

The Western Federation of Miners sends greetings: Impressed with the righteousness of labor's cause, and believing that beneficial reforms in industrial conditions can be accomplished only through radical changes in the present governmental institutions, we respectfully submit the following vital principles which we believe should receive the thoughtful consideration of all who toil and to govern political affiliation of the members of the Western Federation of Miners.

We believe that the wage system should be abolished, and the production of labor be distributed under the co operative plan.

We believe representative form of government a failure, and regard direct legislation as the first step necessary to enforce legislative reforms, and therefore demand the initiative and referendum in making all laws, state and municipal.

We regard public ownership and operation of all the means of production and distribution as the logical solution of the industrial problem, and respectfully urge all working people to give the subject the thoughtful consideration its importance deserves.

We believe the time has arrived when all labor unionists should study and discuss economic and political subjects with the view of supporting the candidates for office best calculated to inaugurate the reforms for which we stand.

We recommend the full and free discussion of all economic questions by all unions of the federation.

COLVILLE RESERVATION OPENS.

The President of the United States by proclamation has opened for settlement 1,500,000 acres of rich farming land in the north half of the Colville Reservation This reservation lies in the north eastern part of the state of Washington, fifty miles north-west of Spokane; 150 miles north east of the capital, Olympia, and 100 miles east and north of Seattle. It borders on the Canadian boundary, and is about 30 miles from Greenwood, B.C.

Many years ago this land was set apart for the once great and powerful Siwash tribe of Indians The tribe has dwindled to such a degree that one twentieth of the land is sufficient for their needs. Four years ago Congress opened the lands for mining purposes only and since then many well paying mines have been operated there and numerous thriving towns have sprung into existence. Among these are Bolster, Baker Creek, Chesaw and Republic. Republic is a thriving town near the Boundary line and well known as a mining camp of great promise.

The opening of the Reservation will take place on October 15th, and from all accounts there will be plenty of land for those who desire to take up farms, etc. The Indians have each been allotted a farm so that their claims are forever satisfied.

His Directions a Trifle Indefinite.

Some time ago a well-to-do Mexican wrote for several ready-made suits to a New Orleans merchant, and, to insure a good fit, sent this description: "I am 42 years old, weigh 120 pounds, dark complexion, notary public." Another worthy subject of President Diaz sent an order for rather a curious outfit, which he said was intended for his brother. It consisted of a black suit, with one white shirt, black tie, collar, cuffs and a pair of patent-leather shoes. The day following its receipt a telegram arrived, saying: "Do not send things. Brother is getting better." It turned out afterward that the brother had been seriously ill and the garments were intended to array him for the tomb. This upset the theory of one of the clerks, who had suggested that maybe the brother was going to be hanged and had been unexpectedly reprieved. — New Orleans Times-Democrat

ANOTHER B. A. C. FLOTATION.

The Whitaker Wright group of British Columbia Companies in London has recently been again increased by the flotation of the Kootenay Mining Company, Limited. This is the third subsidiary company issued by Mr. Whitaker Wright during the last few weeks. First we had the Le Roi No 2, then the Rossland Great Western, and now the Kootenay Mining Company. This company has been formed to take over the remaining properties of the British America Corporation in the Rossland District. They are the Columbia, Kootenay, Tip Top, Copper Jack and South Kootenay Junction, of which the first two are the best known. The capital of this company is £400,000, and the purchase price is £350,000, payable as far as possible in cash, and £50,000 to be devoted to working capital.

The bubonic plague has broken out in Glasgow. The government over where the heather grows should put a two per cent. tax upon it.

A Letter From Bob Ingersoll.

Banks of the Styx River, Hades.
Aug. 20th, 1900.

Dear ——,

I will endeavor to write you the letter I promised before leaving New York. Sam Jones inadvertently told the truth, for just as he predicted, and as I myself secretly expected, I am in Hades. I came thru without a stop. I am sitting on a hot cinder writing this letter on a piece of slate gouged from the roof with my trident. A "trident," you know, is one of those funny looking little pitchforks like Neptune used to pack around with him at the seaside. Everybody has one, and it makes a fellow think he's at a Populist Convention.

When I was on earth I didn't believe in Hell, for I had travelled in Kansas and didn't think there could be two places so much alike. But I hadn't been here half a day 'till I believed it it a whole lot, It is more genuine and realistic than I anticipated. Just now my feet are blistered from walking on the hot pavements and I'm dabbling them in the Styx river to cool them off.

I was talking to Moses a while ago, and he says they will soon get calloused and then I'll be all hunky-dory. He has read my "Mistakes of Moses" and laughingly admitted that he made a good many when he was new to the business. He is a jovial cuss and I rather like him. Told me on the dead—everything is "on the dead" here—that he didn't write the Pentateuch, but knows who did.

There are lots of people here, and strangers arrive daily. I would not advise you to come down 'till fall or winter—and even then you needn't bring anything but a light summer suit. You won't need an overcoat or umbrella or skates, but you might bring a palm leaf fan or two. For an "imaginary," "mythical," "figurative," "allegorical," "unorthodox" hell this is about the hottest one I ever got into.

But say! I got here just in time to strike a snap. Henry Ward Beecher has just been retired on account of age and Mephistopheles has appointed me to succeed him as boss of the New York colony—the largest one here. I have a lovely new trident with cute little spear-point businesses on the tines, and the devil has promised to get me a long red tail and a pair of horns like his, when he goes to the city next week. He seems to have taken a great fancy to me.

There are ministers here of every denomination and several camp meetings are in progress down the river. Horace Greeley introduced me to Spurgeon and old Peter Cartwright last night and we had a very pleasant little lark together. They expect Talmage to join them before long. I have also shaken hands with Tom Payne and Voltaire and find them very pleasant gentlemen. Said they had been watching my career for same time and were expecting me daily. Ben Franklin is calling on me this morning. He is wearing his hair short now and doesn't look so much like Queen Liliuokalani as he used to. I could never tell their pictures apart.

Of course the trust is here "bigger'n a chipmunk." Solomon and Brigham Young have all the women cornered, and the politicians are organizing to defeat the present administration and elect a new devil. They want me to mvke the nominating speech. You know I nominated Blaine for president once and did it up in good shape. Don't know who will be the nominee. Jay Gould is running well on account of his money, and Judas Iscarot and Annanias are quite popular.

I wish you could send me the papers. I would like to know what is being said about me. I suppose they will print a lot of my old letters and publish enough pictures of me to start a rogues gallery, and every little two-bit preacher will tell how it happened, and water-brain spiritualists will commune with my spirit, and all that sort of thing. I wish the whole dodrotted pack were down here awhile—they wouldn't feel so all-fired gay.

Well, must close. We need rain the worst kind—crops are almost a failure. If you're ever down this way, drop in.

Yours truly,
BOB INGERSOLL.

SANDON, B. C., SEPTEMBER 1, 1900.

WITH THE APPROACH of the dominion elections the time has arrived for the people of British Columbia to see to it that they are represented in the next parliament. This province has never had the right kind of men at the federal capital, and unless immediate action is taken the Pacific members in the next house will be no more representative than British Columbia's aggregation of freaks in the last. The constituency of Yale, Cariboo and Kootenay has been about as poorly represented as it possibly could be While the present member may be a very refined, educated, accomplished and high-principled gentleman, he has been as helpless as a wooden Indian , and, to paraphrase the Toronto Telegram, "inherited wealth and purchased newspapers have not provided a future for Hewitt Bostock in British Columbia politics."

Bostock has declared his intention of withdrawing from the political arena, and has notified every liberal association thruout the Kootenay that he will not again contest the riding. His successor will be chosen by the liberal convention to be held in Revelstoke on September 5th. There seems to be no definite idea as to who the nominee will be, but it is a matter of indifference to the great mass of electors. No candidate running under the auspices of the liberal party as we find it at Ottawa today could command the confidence of the people. Laurier, Tarte, Sifton & Co. have violated every principle, repudiated every pledge and broken every promise on which they were elected, and their four years' administration has been one wild saturnalia of robbery, corruption and general all-round rottenness from start to finish.

There is no reason to hope for anything better from the conservative party, and to elect a candidate on that ticket would be to endorse a new lease to the gang who exploited Canada for so many years under the able leadership of Tupper, Langevin, Connley, Larkin, McGreevey, et al.

It is simply a matter of impossibility for an honest man who hopes to better the conditions of the country to affiliate with either of the old parties. Common honesty is not to be found in the same street with professional politicians. They are interested in the advancement and maintenance of a social and economic system wich is recognized by every thinker to be a monumental triumph of injustice. All the laws which degrade labor, all the enactments which create monopoly and centralize wealth, all the statutes and privileges which make the exploitation of the people possible are the work of the professional politician. To place power in their hands is to abandon self respect.

It is from the people themselves that a new and better government must come. It is from the ranks that representatives must be chosen and it is by the votes of the workingmen that these representatives must be elected. The laboring classes have the controlling vote in the constituency of Yale, Cariboo and Kootenay, and a labor candidate should be elected to represent the inland empire of British Columbia.

Action should be taken immediately by every labor union in the Kootenay. The time is short. The campaign is already on in every other part of Canada, and the announcement of the date of election is due almost any day. A convention should be called in the immediate future and a candidate who can command the respect of the electors placed in the field. There should be no uncertainty of purpose and no procrastination. The workingmen of this great constituency need but to name their candidat now and the fight is theirs. But they must act in the immediate present. Once permit the professional the politicians to get a lead in the field and they will divide the attention of the voters with their time-worn appeals to prejudice and their hackneyed bias of partyism, and the golden opportunity of organizing a solid labor party in the Kootenay will be gone beyond recall.

THE PEOPLE of Vancouver are evidently a trifle stuck on royalty. On his return from the Klondike the governor-general is to be given a blowout that will be sufficiently gorgeous to make Minto tired and make Vancouver people look like chumps. If folks were satisfied to regard Minto and others of his class as hired men who are in no way different from other government employees except in point of salary, it would be more pleasant for all parties concerned. Demonstrations to dignitaries are an expense to the public and a bore to the dignitaries, and if Minto could be candid and hold his job he would probably tell the Vancouver people to save their money and spare him the agony of being loaded with cheap fizz and cheaper compliments and being toted around behind a four-horse team like Barnum's snake charmer or the wild man from Borneo.

J, RODERICK ROBERTSON, who inherited wealth from the same source as he derived his shortage of intellect, has again obtruded himself into the publie gaze. This time he is posing as a star actor in the drama now being pulled off in Victoria. The plot was deep and well worked out. It took J. Roderick many moons to become main push of the associated boards of trade of Kootenay. Supported by his hired man, Roderick Finlayson Tolmie, author of the Tolmie uppercut, he has used the prestiage which attaches itself to such an office to secure the appointment of a commission to re-open the eight hour question and again yank it into the political game. Some day an exasperated electorate will take a shift off and prepare such men as J. Roderick for a coroner's inquest.

COLLIS P. HUNTINGTON, a plebian at birth and a plutocrat at death, is now numbered among the good American millionaires who underpaid heathen Chinamen to dedicate Christian churches. Collis should be long remembered by the preachers and workingmen. He broke every law of church and state and received his due reward therefore—a position of honor on earth and a promise of wings in kingdom come. He never overlooked an opportunity to degrade his fellow men or swindle the state, and the requiems which resounded thru cathedral domes from Hell Gate to Golden Gate are a modern guarantee that the religion of Christ as exemplified in the Sermon on the Mount is not forgotten in our day—and not regarded.

ACCORDING to the government returns the Kaslo and Slocan railway's total receipts for the year 1899, were $69,077, and total working expenses $45,278, leaving a margin of $24,999 profit. The road received $20,063 for passenger traffic, $46,296 for freight and $2,745 for carring the mails. The earnings per train per mile were $2.38½ and the expenses of running per mile $1.56½. The K. & S. is evidently a profitable proposition.

Everybody Wondered How He Knew.

There are often little trifles that were better left unsaid
But are uttered in an unaffected way,
Which reminds me of a funny little matter which occurred
At a fashionable ball the other day ;
The host espied a silk embroidered
garter on the floor,
And gaily dared the owner to declare,
When a jolly-looking fellow said without the least concern :
"Oh, I know it, it belongs to Mrs.
Dare !"
Now wasn't that a silly thing to say ?
Wasn't it a silly thing to do ?
It came as quite a starter
When he recognized that garter
For everyhody wondered how he knew.
Now wasn't that a silly thing to say ?
Wasn't it a silly thing to do ?
But they didn't hear till later,
That she got them from his mater,
So everybody wondered how he knew.

They were crowding round the baby at a christening, after which He was handed round for everyone to see,
And a circumstance which somehow seemed to please the people most
Was a dainty little dimple on his knee ;
Said Cousin Jack from Kaslo, who was staying there just then :
"This looks like a hereditary strain, for isn't it a funny thing that just in this respect
He's exactly like his elder sister Jane ?"
Now wasn't that a silly thing to say ?
Wasn't it a silly thing to do ?
It was really worse than simple
When he talked about that dimple
For everybody wondered how he knew.
Yet he chanced to see that dimple
While out bathing—ain' it simple ?
But everybody wondered how he knew.

Folks were gazing at the very latest painting at a sale,
Labeled "Beauty Unadorned" upon the list,
When a gentleman remarked to several others standing by :
"It's not true—such perfect beauty can't exist."
"Excuse me, sir," a gentleman remarked, "but you are wrong,
And if you like I'll bet a case of fizz
That this painting here before you is exactly true to life,
And represents the girl just as she is !"
Now wasn't that a silly thing to say ?
Wasn't it a silly thing to do ?
The ladies blushed and wriggled,
And the men turned round and giggled
For everybody wondered how he knew,
Yet nothing could be quainter,
You see he was the painter,
Yet everybody wondered how he knew.

They were eagerly discussing different reasons for divorce
At a dinner when a married man opined
That snoring loud on either side should constitute a case,
For it sufficed to drive you off your mind.
"Quite right," remarked a smartly dressed young letter to a friend,
"I never snore by any chance,—do you ?"
On hearing which her fiance absentmindedly remarked :
"Don't tell such stories, dear ; you know you do !"
Now wasn't that a silly thing to say ?
Wasn't it a silly thing to do ?
It only sounded shady
But it quite upset the lady
For everybody wondered how he knew,
Until he said : "Don't scold me,
Your sister Fanny told me," Why, everybody wondered how he knew.

SOME TRUTHS IN HOMESPUN.

Be wise and envy not the man
Attired however spick and span,
True greatness empty fripperies but scorns,
Silk hats may serve alone to dress
A noddle full of emptiness,
And patent leathers hide a wealth of corns.

No garments, fine they be, yet can
Make lady or make gentleman;
No garb, how poor it be, can ever hide
The mark of true nobility,
Nor velvet cloak, but we may see
The boor, once its rich folds are dropped aside.

No lady yet was made with lace
Or silk, for Nature leaves a trace
That every artifice is vain to hide.
The lady is, in calico,
Not less the gentlewoman, though
She had no mark of gentleness beside.

The practiced-oft deception thin
By asses in a lion's skin,
In some unthinking bray with ease we read,
A vulture, be he decked and dressed
With plumes from any eagle's crest
Betrays, in seeking carrion, his breed.

Count no man your superior,
Whatever his exterior,
Appearance of true worth is not a rule,
The jester's cap and jingling bells
Full many a gleam of wisdom tells,
And wisdom's mortarboard may deck a fool.

A king, by right and nature grown,
Is king without a crown or throne,
Simplicity but marks his kingliness,
No crown or throne or signet ring,
Can make a knave seem more a king,
The purple only makes him seem the less.

The boor, of any style or ilk,
Is but the greater boor in silk.
The garb but marks the more his boorishness;
No person ever yet that rose
Above himself by help of clothes,
The manner makes the man, and not the dress
—J. W. Foley, jr., in Bismarck Tribune.

CAUSES OF THE CHINESE TROUBLE.

An article of profound interest—indeed, the most complete and satisfactory account yet published of the "Causes of Anti-Foreign Feeling in China"—is contributed to the August number of the North American Review by Dr. George B. Smyth, president of the Anglo-Chinese college at Foochow. The present disturbances he attributes to the resentment felt by the people on account of recent appropriations of territory by European nations and the fear of the natives that they portend the seizure of the entire empire. But the circumstances which are responsible for the deep-seated hatred of the "foreign devils" are varied, some being related to the conduct of Europeans toward China in the past, and some arising out of influences that are at work to-day. Dr. Smyth's article should be read by every one who is interested in the present Chinese situation. From the bitterness of the prejudice against the missionaries, Dr. Smyth draws the following conclusion:

"Two lessons, at least, may be learned from this, namely, the tremendous responsibility which our missionary societies incur in sending missionaries to China, and the solemn obligation under which such responsibility puts them to send to that distant, difficult and dangerous field only the choicest men and women they can find. There is no service for which the selection of candidates should be so carefully made. The ordinary qualifications are not sufficient. Zeal alone will not do. Besides the passion for humanity, of which every missionary should be possessed, he should have in addition the great virtues of intellectual sympathy, the power of appreciating another's position, the ability to see the truth where it exists, the tact which is untailing. With such qualities as these, the missionaries may hope in time to overcome prejudice, make their position clear, and win an acceptance for the great message which they preach. In that message only is China's salvation, for in it alone are the promise and the power to effect the moral regeneration which is her supreme need."

THINKER'S THOUGHTS.

With the body, as with the mind, to cease to strive is to begin to die.—Fiske.

Individuals who are true to their own convictions are always helping the public conscience to rise to a higher plane.—Lydia Maria Child.

Just government must guarantee not only freedom of the mind but liberty of the body as well in everything which does not infringe the equal rights of others.—Sentinel of Liberty.

Fear not the evolution hypothesis. Steady yourselves in its presence upon that faith in the ultimate triumph of truth which was expressed by Gamaliel when he said: "If it be of God, ye cannot overthrow it; if it be of man, it will come to naught." It does not solve—it does not profess to solve—the ultimate mystery of the universe; it leaves, in fact, that mystery untouched.—Tyndall.

The unanimous support of the Christian churches in South Africa is raised into authority by leaving out of account the Dutch Christian churches, which are, of course, equally unanimous in denouncing the war. It is, indeed, curious that men and women with any knowledge of history should adduce the backing of the churches as testimony to the justice of any cause. Where have the priests ever failed to bless a war supported by authority and popular passion?—J. A. Hobson

We have taught the young for a hundred years that making the most frightful noise is the way to express joy. How long will it take us to teach the healthfulness of quiet? How soon shall we learn that one has no more right to throw noises than they have to throw stones into a house? Every physician knows the baleful effect of noise upon his patients, and every physiologist understands its pathogenic effect upon the nervous system. Above all things unnecessary noises at night should be mercilessly stopped. If all the physicians and medical societies of a city should use their influence upon the city governors, the greater part of such could be eliminated.—Medical Journal.

In love, as in all things, it is more blessed to give than to receive. The reward of love is in the loving. And just so the reward of life is in the living. Why go straining aching eyes towards the clouds when honest living lies in the path before us? What is there in this life that makes it nothing but the vestibule of the vacant future, to be hurried through with the one regret that it is not more quickly crossed? To vapor about the imperfections of this world and the tremulous hope of another—this is not the faith of which the healthy man is enamoured. Faith is to set one's face against all ills of life; content to know what can be known, and to outstare the brazen truth with the unconquerable resolution born of self-respect. Faltering doubt can never creep into the philosophy of a brave man who can think straightforwardly. Only two attitudes befit him; investigation towards what is possible of discovery; indifference to all else. Does his friend die? He faces out the truth; he is gone for this life, and it is hopeless work to guess about another. He reels and goes on, torn with the pain, but never surrendering his free soul to it by so much as one groan.—G. W. Stevens.

COST OF SMELTING ZINC ORE.

A correspondent in Great Britain criticises the statement in "The Mineral Industry," Volume II., page 627, to the effect that "It is desirable for smelters to secure the richest ore possible, since the cost of production is thereby reduced correspondingly," the purpose of that statement being to show an advantage which American smelters have over the European in the possession of a much higher grade of ore. Our correspondent points out that the same returning charge being deducted from a rich ore as a poor ore, for example, a 50 per cent. ore compared with a 25 per cent. ore, and consequently his profit ought to be twice as great. This raises a rather complicated question which it is difficult to answer categorically. Our correspondent is in error, however, in assuming that the cost of smelting a ton of poor ore is the same as for a ton of rich ore.

Assuming that the ore is blende, the lower it is in grade, the less is the loss of weight in roasting, and the greater the bulk of the ore because of the higher percentage of gangue of low specific gravity. Consequently the lower the grade of the ore, the less of it can be put in the same volume of retorts, and the greater the cost of smelting, even if the percentage of iron and other injurious impurities have not increased with the decrease in the zinc tenor of the ore. Moreover, the percentage of zinc recovered will go down also with the grade of the ore. The increased cost and loss have to be covered by a higher smelting charge.

Although the smelting charge comes out of the miner, it is a mistake to consider the smelter as independent of the miner, their interests being allied in obtaining the maximum profit on the zinc contained in the ore won from the ground by the miner, though they may be keen competitors as to the division of that profit. It is, therefore, contrary to the interests of both that fuel and labor should be wasted on worthless gangue, and the question should resolve itself into a balance of costs and losses; that is, whether the greater loss of mineral in making a high-grade concentrate is offset by the saving in freight and smelting, or vice versa. The company which operates both mines and smelting works has to settle that question, and although the independent smelter is not confronted directly by it, we fancy that in the long run his business adjusts itself on the same basis.—E. and M. Journal.

An important strike of a new lead is reported on the Two Friends. It was made in one of the lower workings and was totally unexpected, as the ledge did not appear in the upper tunnels. In one of the stopes on the property a body of ore four feet across has been encountered.
