BOOK IV. SANDON, AUGUST 18 1900. CHAPTER 47

HAPPENINGS IN BRIEF.

Give us a name for the new street.

F. M. Kelly is in town from Spokane.

The city council has declared the new street open.

The Whitewater Miners' Union will give a ball in that town on Thursday evening next.

There are only one or two countries in the world that can have weather like Sandon is getting.

Wm. Walmsley has sold the Whitewater Hotel business, in Whitewater, to G. Mosley, of that town.

Walter Westerburg, who was at one time proprietor of the Miners' Hotel is visiting in town from Greenwood.

J. B. McArthur, president of the Rambler-Cariboo, has been spending a few days in the Slocan this week.

Robt. Cunning will open the Sandon Hotel on the 1st of September. Mrs. Funk will conduct the dining room.

The Relief Committee will call for tenders for 275 feet of flume to make the connection thru to Kootenay Street.

M. P. Croteau held the lucky number on Duncan McCrae's raffle for a lot in Silverton. He held ticket No. 313.

Dick Orando has had a metallic ceiling put on the bar room of the Ivanhoe hotel, which gives it a very fine finish.

Geo. Williamson is setting poles and stringing telephone wires for the new central which will be in the Atherton Co's. block.

There is nothing in the estimates to indicate that Sandon is going to get that $6000 which we have heard so much about.

F. J. Donaldson has moved his stock into his new store. The Red Cross Drug Store is the title of the new establishment.

Johnny Angus Macdonald and Chas. McLaughlin will be in partnership with Wm. Thompson in the liquid dispensary at the new Palace.

The Filbert Cafe was opened on Monday. It is a neat and comfortable little dining room. E. P. Burns is manager and proprietor.

Jas. Williamson will open his new cigar store in about ten days. He will carry a line of fruits and confectionery as well as tobacco and cigars.

Blake Wilson is in town making arrangements for the meat market which the P. Burns company will build. The location has not been dedided on yet.

J. M. Harris and the Sandon Water & Light Co. will occupy office rooms in the flume street building until an office is built on the site of the Virginia Block.

Macdonald & Ross have opened their grocery and gent's furnishings store in the Harris block. Altho their arrangements are not yet complete they report a fair business already.

Jas. Vallance has rigged a fire protection system on his residence by which he can turn on the water and keep the roof of the house wet in case of danger from flying sparks.

The Atherton company store will be ready for occupancy in ten days or two weeks. Heavy additions to the stock are now on the road and will be placed in the new store as soon as possible.

Angus Macdonald and Rod J. Macdonald left hurridly on Thursday for the home of their parents in Bridge End, Ontario. Angus received word that his father was in a precarious condition.

The Provincial government's accounts in connection with the recent election are now being paid. A. B. Docksteader has been packing a voucher book for several days lately to square himself and the government.

Macdonald Bros. will commence next week on a 30x70 building for the Balmoral hotel. The building will be two stories, with bar room, sitting room, billiard room and barber shop on the ground floor and a lodge room on sec-story. The new hotel will face the flume street and back onto Reco Ave.

There is an average attendance of about 35 pupils at the Sandon school, which is being held in the big Methodist Church tent. The attendance will increase to about 60 when better accommodations can be furnished. Miss English, of Cobourg, Ont., has taken Miss Moore's place on the teacher's staff.

At the investigation on Tuesday evening the police commissioners suspended Chief Stubbs for three days for allowing Clancy to escape. The public is still in the dark as to whether Mr. Stubbs was rewarded with a three-days holiday for ridding the community of the obnoxious presence of Clancy or whether his suspension was due to the gigantic pull which Albert David wields in the community.

SLOCAN MINES.

J. C. Ryan has let a 300-foot contract on the Eureka property, in the Blue Ridge camp. Work was commenced this week.

W. W. Warner is opening up a fine ore chute on the Mountain Con. A fine sample of the ore is exhibited in front of the Reco hotel.

A shipment of five tons of ore from the Peoria was packed down to McGuigan this week. This property was recently taken over by a reorganized company but no work has been done yet.

The Noble Five mill was started up on Thursday for a short run to put thru the ore that has accumulated in the stopes and bins from the development tunnels. The mill will be working about 15 days.

Settling tanks have been built at the Ruth mill to catch the silver in the carbonates and other light substances which cannot be retained on the tables. The grade of ore caught in the tanks contains values as high as sixty ounces to the ton.

There are 55 men on the payroll at the Star. A 150-foot winze was recently started which is to open up the ledge down to where it will be tapped by the projected long tunnel. Some of the finest ore ever found in the mine is being taken out of the winze.

LATEST FROM VICTORIA.

An Interesting Week in the Legislature

At Monday's meeting of the house the main feature was Hayward's naturalization resolution, which was the outcome of the naturalization frauds practiced on the Fraser in connection with the imported Japanese fishermen. The resolution read as follows:

Whereas, the provisions of the Naturalization Act are believed to be constantly evaded by Chinese and Japanese and

Whereas, it is most desirable that such practices should be at once stopped;

Resolved, that it is the opinion of this house that an humble address be presented to His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, respectfully requesting him to urge upon the Dominion government the desirability of amending the provisions of the Naturalization Act in such a manner as to compel all persons wishing to become naturalized to be identified before a judge of the supreme or county courts personally.

In moving this resolution, Mr. Hayward said that there seemed to be good ground for believing that a large number of Japanese had been admitted as citizens of Canada without having shown that they were people properly qualified. The law as it stood at present was inadequate to meet such cases. After a long discussion in which almost every member of the house was heard the resolution was adopted by 22 to 7, the opposition voting solidly against it.

Tatlow of Vancouver has been notified that his presence at the government caucuses is no longer required. Following so closely on the introduction of his immigration bill, his dismissal from the councils of the Dunsmuir government has considerable significance. It would seem to indicate that the present government does not intend to be in any way identified with any anti-mongolian legislation whatsoever.

Smith Curtis moved an amendment to the Vancouver and New Westminster railway charter limiting the capitalization of the cost of the road and the interest to five per cent. and giving the government power to purchase at or after the expiration of ten years. After a long debate on Monday and Tuesday the amendment was voted down by a solid vote of the government.

The estimates brot down on Tuesday showing the proposed expenditure of nearly two and a quarter million, against a million and a half last year. Salaries of government servants and school teachers will be restored to their former level before the reductions of the Cotton government. The grants to hospitals are increased by nearly one half. Ten thousand has been apportioned to the London office.

The grant to county court judges for sitting as stipendiary magistrates is to be restored and arrears to the old rate paid since the reduction was made. Over four hundred thousand is appropriated to roads, trails and bridges, the the Kootenays getting one-third.

In bringing down the estimates the announcement was made that the mineral tax would be increased from one to two per cent. on tho product of all mines shipping over 40 tons a month.

On Wednesday the principal event in the legislature was the fight over the report of the railway committee, which was against granting a charter for another road thru Canadian territory to the Alaska coast. The government took the same view on the ground that it was unwise to build up American towns on territory which is in dispute between the two countries. McInnis attacked premier Dunsmuir to the effect that his opposition was that of an interested party who would benefit by an all Canadian railway from British Columbia port into Atlin, avoiding the border line.

The mining committee recommended that the cost of surver of a quartz claim be allowed as assessment, no matter when such survey took place. It also recommended an amendment by which deliniquent co-owners could be dispossessed by advertisement in a local paper instead of by action in court.

On Wednesday the finance minister made his budget speech. He figured a net increase of $209,000 in the revenue. The change in the mineral tax, he said, would require the metalliferous mines to pay a greater percentage on their output, but would relieve the smaller properties.

A higher import will be placed on timber, the tax on large incomes will be increased and the new tax on the coal output, would realize $70,000. This tax is five cents a ton besides the five cents a ton royalty. The large increase on public works, $300,000 more than last year, was, he said, because the last government had allowed public works to fall into disrepair.

As Dunsmuir is himself the heaviest coal producer in the province the people of B. C. now have the opportunity to witness the present premier imposing a tax on himself which all former governments were two weak or too vacillating to exact. The two per cent mineral tax is likely to go thru without opposition. The large producing mines of the Kootenay have escaped with a rediculously low taxation and the proposition to make them pay their way now that the industry is thoroly established, will not be seriouly objected to.

ONTARIO MINING NOTES.

A prospector named Wilson, of Perth, has just unearthed a large deposit of iron ore near Crow lake, north of Frontenac. It is the largest deposit of ore yet discovered in Frontenac county, and active operations have begun to sink a shaft.

A Belleville exchange says that the output of arsenic in North Hastings promises to be greater than in any country in the world and that the owners of arsenical properties will probably realize handsome profits from this important mineral.

Work was commenced this week on the foundation of a large addition to the works in connection with the Belmont gold mine in Marmora and Belmont townships, owned by the Cordova Exploration Company. The milling plant is to be increased by the addition of forty stamps. This will make the Belmont mill the largest in Ontario.

Mr. D. E. K. Stewart and three other gentlemen a few days ago purchased the Kenefic mine in the township of Anglesea, Addington county. The ore from this property is mispickle, resembling very much that from the Deloro mine, and there is a large well-defined quartz vein, from which very fair assays in gold and arsenic have been obtained.

The Cordova Exploration Company are preparing to develop their water power on Deer River falls, lately secured from the Gilmour Company. This will supply power for the mine much more cheaply than by steam. The company will also increase the number of stamps in their mill. The Belmont gold mine is being thoroughly developed and will be one of the finest mines in Canada within the near future.

There is a much brighter outlook at the Malone mine, says the Herald. A well-defined vein of mispickle has been struck. Mr. J. W. Lindsay has returned from Nova Scotia and is taking charge of the mill. Mr. Lindsay is an experienced mill man. He was foreman at the Deloro mill last year and, needless to say, the results at Malone have been a great deal different under his management. The mill is now running steadily night and day. A large force of hands has been added.

A meeting of the shareholders of the Atlas Arsenic Company was held at Deloro last week. The company have expended over $30,000 during the last year in development work, and have one of the most complete plants in Ontario, with a ten-stamp mill, compressor and everything required for the reduction of their ores. Their output during the month of June was $9,860. They intend to put in some of the latest machinery at once for the reduction of arsenic and concentrates, and expect that the monthly output will be greatly increased.

At Port Arthur there has been much development in the iron district. Several American capitalists have invested extensively, and are sinking shafts at intervals on the properties. The Mikado mine at Rat Portage has doubled its capacity, and other mines are adding to their machinery. Several gold discoveries have been made at Rat Portage within the past few weeks, and further iron discoveries have been made along the north shore. Thirty-two miles of the Algoma Central railway have been completed at the Soo.

Mr Wilson, of Kingston, who was last week on a visit to the Sovereign gold mine, of which he is manager, returned home Saturday. He took with him a gold brick weighing forty-two ounces, valued at nearly $900, which has been deposited at the Standard Bank. This brick was taken from 202 tons of ore and was crushed in 196 hours. Besides the above there are eight tons of concentrates that have to be treated by a different process, valued at $14 50 a ton. The true "fissure vein" has been discovered and it is three feet six inches wide and can be traced for over two miles. The mill is now washing a test run on the ore taken from this vein, the results of which will be known in two weeks.

Since operations were resumed about twelve days ago in Mr Harrison's talc mine, work has been steadily pushed ahead. A carload of thirty-three tons of the material has been shipped to Belleville and about 225 tons more have been taken up to the G. T. R. station to be in readiness for shipment as soon as boats and cars are available. Four men are now employed about the mine taking out ore and three teams draw the stuff to the station. The talc now being taken out is clean and white and an idea of its purity may be had from the fact that in culling what is now at the station hardly fifty pounds was thrown out. Over the shaft a rough but durable building has been erected, and in it has been placed a strong hoist, which is operated with an ordinary horse power. The shaft has been sunk between 30 and 40 feet and is 20 or 25 feet wide. This, however, is not the full width of the vein, as that has not yet been ascertained. The staff have commenced work in a drift in a northwesterly direction, and nothing but the pure white talc is being taken out. There is a great amount of grey talc also, but this is not being worked, as it is of an inferior grade. A tramp over the property shows the quantity to be almost inexhaustible.—Madoc Review.

THINKER'S THOUGHTS.

No one can possess knowledge of every kind, but everyone ought to learn what pertains to his duty.—Confucius.

Men (as all philosophers of antiquity have said) made God in their own image; which is the reason why the first Anaxagoras, as ancient as Orpheus, expresses himself thus in his verses: "If the birds figured to themselves a god, he would have wings; that of horses would run with four legs."—Voltaire.

With reference to some remarks of mine on missionaries a pious correspondent asks if I do not know who was the author of a certain command to go forth into all the earth and preach the gospel—the Christian gospel. No, I do not, nor does he, but I know that it has cost more hundreds of thousands of human lives than it contains words.—Ambrose Pierce.

The peculiar evil of silencing an expression of an opinion is that it is robbing the human race, posterity as well as the existing generation, those who dissent from the opinion still more than those who hold it. If the opinion is right, they are deprived of the opportunity of changing error for truth; if wrong, they lose, what is almost as great a benefit, the clearer perception and livelier impression of truth, produced by its collision with error.—John Stuart Mill.

Why should it be taken for granted that the men who devoted their lives to the liberation of their fellowmen should have been hissed at in the hour of death by the snakes of conscience, while men who defended slavery—practiced polygamy—justified the stealing of babes from the breasts of mothers, and lashed the naked back of unpaid labor, are supposed to have passed smilingly from earth to the embraces of the angels? Why should we think that the brave thinkers, the investigators, the honest men, must have left the crumbling shore of time in dread and fear, while the instigators of the massacre of St. Bartholomew; the inventors and users of thumb-screws, of iron boots and racks; the burners and tearers of human flesh; the stealers, the whippers, and the enslavers of men; the buyers and beaters of maidens, mothers and babes; the founders of the Inquisition; the makers of chains; the builders of dungeons; the calumniators of the living, the slanderers of the dead, and even the murderers of Jesus Christ, all died in the odor of sanctity, with white hands folded upon breasts of peace, while the destroyers of prejudice, the apostles of humanity, the soldiers of liberty, the breakers of fetters, the creators of light, died surrounded by the fierce fiends of God?—Ingersoll.

Worth Remembering.

Avoid as far as possible drinking any water which has been contaminated by lead pipes or lead lined tanks.

Avoid drinking water which has been run through galvanized iron pipes.

Avoid using anything acid which has been kept in a tin can.

When grippe or other epidemics are prevailing wear a little crude sulphur in your boots or shoes.

Philosophy.

An Indian sage of ancient time said: "Who knows not, and knows not that he knows not, is a fool—shun him." Yet when I come to consider what a great poet set down on the same subject, I am puzzled to know quite where I am at. The bard remarked that, "Where ignorance is bliss, 'tis folly to be wise!" and really, he seems to me to give a better idea of the case than the Indian philosopher. For instance, a man might not know that he was a fool, and still be as happy as a honey bee on a flower. He might also deem himself immensly wise and yet be miserable. In fact, I entirely agree with Solomon that knowledge increaseth sorrow, and that your only happy man is he who knows the least. For, look ye what a burden learning is. The educated person is a slave to grammar and style; but the man in the street expresses himself freely and picturesquely, and his words strike like a hammer. And, after all, what do any of us know—even the most erudite? Essential truth is as dark to the man who understands the differential and inferential calculi as to the man who only knows, or thinks he knows, that two and two make four, and that there are six in half a dozen. Both the learned and the ignorant soon get to the circumferences of their circles.

The Trail Smelter.

The smelter at Trail is to be largely increased, and, according to the Trail Creek News, the following are the developments contemplated: The capacity of the smelter will be increased from 700 to 1000 tons per day. There will also be a great increase in the working force about the works. Two new lead furnaces will be commenced at once. Additional roasters for lead ores are to be built. Another large copper furnace will be added to the one already in use. More receiving bins are to be built. A new crushing plant is to be put into operation.

St Eugene Shipments.

MOYIE, August 13.—Messrs. Goodderham, Blackstock and party reached here last night and examined the St. Eugene mine which is controlled by them. The St. Eugene in the month of July shipped 2396 tons of ore, and, it is claimed, produced more ore during that month than any other silver lead mine in the United States or Canada excepting the Silver King mine of Utah.

More Martins Needed.

Martin is called a wrecker of governments, but with all his faults there are too few Joe Martins and too many Turners, Dunsmuirs, Mackintoshes, Greenways, Rosses, Whitneys, Lauriers, Tuppers and others of their kind, who are the willing creatures of the corporations. A Joe Martin is needed in Ontario.—Citizen and Country.

Cariboo Creek Developments.

Writing from Burton City, W. G. Clark sends in a budget of news of the Cariboo Creek camp. On the Chieftain he has seven men at work and the property is showing up better than ever.

Jamieson, on Canyon creek, a tributary of Cariboo creek above the Chieftain, has a fine property in the Hailstorm and Halifax claims. He has a shipment of ore on the dump, but the packers want $30 a ton to take it down to the landing. Good roads are badly needed and until they are built the lack of transportation facilities will keep this promising district back.

Two Rossland companies have small outfits working on the Reco and Portland claims, from which good reports are heard. The Silver Blaze is working four men. The Silver Queen company shareholders had a meeting on the 28th of last month at which it was decided to assess the stock to develop the property.

Burtonites have gone ranch crazy. There is some fairly good land along the Columbia bottom which is being rapidly taken up for truck farms.

Byron N. White, who has been spending a few days at the Slocan Star, left for Spokane on Wednesday. He recently returned from the White Horse Rapids country, on the Yukon, where he and Pete Larsen of railway fame have a most promising copper proposition. Judging from present indications, Byron considers the White Horse Rapids district one of the coming great copper camps of the world.

The seductive American game of Faro has made its appearance in the camp again and together with black jack, stud, roulette craps, chuckluck, and other moveable securities will furnish amusement for the suckers during the long autum evenings that will soon be here.

R. H. Trueman closed up his tent studio on Wednesday and left for the main line. He will visit Field, Glacier, and Banff to replenish his views of scenery along the C. P. R. He will build a studio in Sandon which he will occupy on the occasion of his next visit, in October.

The City Clerk's office is now to be found in the rooms above Misses McKinnon's millinery establishment.

SANDON, B. C., AUGUST 18, 1900.

THERE are many indications that the dominion election will take place in October. The voters' lists used in the provincial election on June 9th will be used for the dominion election. As there is likely to be a revision previous to election all who are not already on the list should have their names placed thereon at once.

TATLOW, of Vancouver, has introduced a bill in the legislature to regulate immigration. It provides that the immigration into British Columbia of any person who, when asked to do so by the officer appointed under the act, shall fail himself to write out and sign, in the characters of some European language, an application to the secretary of the province of British Columbia, to the effect of the form set out in schedule "B" annexed to the act, shall be unlawful.

It was to make room for this legislation that the government sidetracked McInnes' labor bill. The difference between the Tatlow bill and the McInnes bill is that Tatlow undertakes to provide against Mongolian immigration, which is a matter largely in the hands of the dominion government, whereas McInnes confined himself to provincial jurisdiction by legislating only regarding the employment of people already within the province.

If Tatlow's bill is passed and it does not conflict with any dominion immigration regulation it may accomplish something toward shutting the Asiatics out.

If McInnes' bill were passed it could not conflict with any dominion immigration regulation and it would assure the early departure of the Mongolians from the province altogether. McInnes' bill was the better legislation.

THE Japanese government has issued an imperial edict which aims to prohibit the emigration of Japs to Canada or the United States. This destroys the usefulness of Laurier's "Imperial reason" bluff. If Wilfy wants to stand in with the Jap government now he will have to switch the cut and deal out law that will help the emperor of Japan to keep the Japs at home. But that would be exclusion. Would Wilfy's managers stand for that?

HUGH JOHN MACDONALD is being travelled thru Ontario like a prize steer at a county fair. The managers of the conservative hippodrome are exhibiting him to the natives as the all-around athlete who knocked out the Greenway-Sifton-Bill-Dan-and-Van outfit and caught the temperance vote of the hay rubes from the prairies. The fact that Hugh John crawfished on his government railway policy does not figure to any great extent in his list of accomplishments, but his imitation prohibition law is given all the prominence it will stand. It begins to look as tho a grand stand play was being made in Manitoba to catch the votes of the Ontario temperance fanatics.

ON THE EVE of a dominion election, after three years of robbery and mal-administration the dominion government has decided to revoke the ten per cent. royalty clause and has promised to give the Yukon representation.

The administration of the affairs of the Yukon will forever be a dirty spot on Canada's record. The ten per cent. royalty was, all things considered, greater than the tax imposed by Paul Kruger. The Britishers in the Transvaal found cause for an overthrow of the Boer government in the fact that they had no representation therein. The Yukon only this week received a promise of representation in the dominion parliament. The Uitlanders in Johannesburg complained because they had no municipal government. Dawson is still without a municipal government. It was charged that Paul Kruger sold water and light monopolies to private speculators who gouged the people. The Yukon administration not only did the same thing, but it disposed of water front privileges to the N. A. T. Co., gave toll bridge rights to side partners of Major Walsh, handed over almost a complete monopoly of the timber rights in the vicinity of Dawson to prize-fighter Slavin, and put up every other skin game that could be made to drag an extra dollar out of the people who went to the Yukon to open the country up. And, as tho that were not enough, the record office was made the home of the most rotten system of corruption that has ever come to light in America. The justice department was made a perfect burlesque, and the officials from top to bottom were consorts of prostitutes, thieves, grafters and official liars.

These things are patent to every reasonable man in Western Canada. Everyone in this country knows that the Yukon officials from Walsh and Ogilvie down to the cheapest swamper around the record office were all out with their mitt. Everyone in this country knows that the Yukon administration was a systematic swindle from start to finish. And yet we find politicians and newspapers east and west whitewashing the government with all its corruption and hailing the announcement of intended reforms as a triumph of justice for the Yukon.

Every government in every land reflects the morals of the people who create it, and the people of Canada must be superlatively dishonest and corrupt or they would not stand for such dishonesty and corruption as has been practised in the Yukon since ever the gold fields were opened up.

THE SIFTON LIBERAL machine in Manitoba has nominated Valentine Winkler, a Mennonite, to contest the constituency of Lisgar against R. L. Richardson. With the possible exception of Frank Oliver in North Alberta, Richardson is the only liberal in the dominion parliament who has stood consistently by the '96 platform of the liberal party. He is an out and out free trader, an uncompromising champion of the people's cause, and an ardent opponent of railway subsidies and elevator monopolies. For faithfulness to the people who elected him the Sifton liberals will spare no effort to down him at the next election.

IF THE LABOR organizations in Yale, Cariboo and Kootenay would put up a candidate for the dominion parliament they could elect him without a struggle. Neither liberals nor conservatives are organized for the federal contest and the people of this province have a hearty mistrust of the old party line politicians. The strength of the labor unions was demonstrated at the recent provincial elections, and many voters outside the organizations would vote for a labor candidate because they recognize that from the workingmen themselves must emanate the legislation which is necessary to our country's salvation.

BY A REFERENDUM the labor organizations in the dominion have decided that it is in the best interests of labor to enter dominion politics and place straight labor candidates in the field for the forthcoming elections. Ralph Smith is spoken of as the probable leader of the party.

KILLED---A SON.

(From the report—Killed: White, Oliver, Company H, Thirty-Sixth Infantry, in action at Calamba, May —.)

Out in the Philippines (can't tell where,
Jes' exactly, tho' Pa has read
All it gives in the atlis there)
Ollie—but, mebbe, you've heard ?—is dead.
Pa, he says that it mayn't be so;
Things in the papers ain't always right,
Specially names—but I know, I know!
(Killed, in action, Oliver White.)

Mus' be Ollie—for it's the same
Regiment—company, even, too.
Pa insists: "It's a common name;
We'll jes' hope that the news ain't true."
Yet why, when the paper come to day.
Was I of a sudden took with fright
Ere ever I saw what it had to say?
(Killed, in action, Oliver White.)

Few, I reckon, will think it's him;
"Oliver" sounds so stiff and queer;
To all the people he's "Spike" and "Slim"—
No one spoke of him different, here.
Wasn't the steadiest kind of lad;
Loafed—a little; and drank—a mite;
But, then, he wasn't precisely bad.
(Killed, in action, Oliver White.)

And praps we ought to be glad he went
I was willin'—I cried a bit,
But thought if soldierin' was his bent
'Twas wrong to keep him away from it.
And now the people who called him wild
And good-for-nothing, will see they might
Hev all misjudged him—my child! my child!
(Killed, in action, Oliver White.)

THE POWER OF THE BANKS.

The recent absorption of the Bank of British Columbia by the Canadian Bank of Commerce directs attention to the centralization of capital now going on in Canada. It is announced that when the purchase is completed the capital of the Bank of Commerce will be $8,000,000, and its reserve $2,000,000, making its total working capital $10,000,000. It will have sixty-nine branches in Canada and the United States.

It is idle to say that this amalgamation is called for by the growing needs of the Dominion. The number of commercial transactions in Canada is small compared with those of the United States, yet there are only two banking institutions in the United States that will now outrank the Bank of Commerce. The fact that banking institutions are proportionately larger here than in the United States is because our laws afford opportunities for centralization, while the people of the United States have for the past 60 years viewed with suspicion any move tending to centralize "the money power" and have steadily opposed any attemp directed to that end. Here, a bank may establish any number of branches, while in the United States no bank is permitted to have more than one office. The Bank of Commerce has taken over the Bank of British Columbia, not because the business interests of the Dominion require it, but because it desires to increase the volume of its business and the profits of its shareholders.

Not only do our laws offer facilities for the concentration of capital to an extent known in few, if any, other lands, but the configuration of the Dominion and the sparseness of our population afford opportunities to use that power to an extent that it can be used in no other country. In the United States population is comparatively compact, and an attempt of the moneyed interests to exert an undue influence in public affairs at once arouses the people who can take united action to circumvent them. But a bank magnate at Montreal or Toronto can bring his whole tremendous power to bear at any point in Canada, while population is so scattered and the interests of the various provinces so diverse, that it is next to impossible to secure united public action against his encroachments.

When we incorporated the Canadian Pacific Railway Company we created a body which now dominates the Parliament to which it owes its existence. Our course in connection with the banks seems likely to lead to similar results. If the banks and railways join forces, as now seems quite likely, we might as well throw up our hands.—Toronto Sun.

A SOFT SNAP.

"I-gol, maw," ejaculated Lab Juckett, a gap-mouthed, peaked headed Arkansaw youth, upon his return from an afternoon stay in the county seat, "I'm a-goin' to be an editor whin I git a little older."

"Why, pshaw, Labby," returned his mother. "How do you know you'll ever be smart enough?"

"Hoh! Don't you ever worry about that!" confidently replied the ambitious young man. "While pap was talkin' hoss-swap with a feller I sawter dropped into the office of the Weekly Banner and see how the whole thing was done. The place was a dirty front room upstairs, with a dirty back room behind it, that had a greasy durned machine in it that looked right smartly like a cider press, and a lazy man a-pickin' little hunks of lead out of a flat box with cubby-holes in it. The editor was in the front room a-editin; he was settin' and smokin' and cuttin' pieces of printin' out of a newspaper with a pair of shears, and cussin' the hard times and the opposition party. Bime-bye some feller across the street shot one of the front windows out with a load of slugs and the editor cussed some more; and directly a man came in and the editor told him blankety-blank p'intedly that he wouldn't donate no more printer's ink to be used in tar and featherin' persons that wasn't subscribers to the paper. Pretty soon another fellow came up and give the editor a jug of licker which he proceeded to taste, and then taste some more, and so on, every now and then; and directly he quit cussin' and began to grin. Then a farmer came in and handed him three dollars and didn't take anything away and the editor took another drink. Next thing a plug hat man came up and gave him a whole lot of circus tickets for nothin', and they took a drink together, and the plug hat man whacked him on the shoulder and told him he ought to move to the city. After the plug hat man was gone the editor took another drink, and directly he said that times 'peared to be gettin' easier, and he didn't care who shot his front windows out if they enjoyed the performance, and if he didn't feel so tired he would go out and hunt up the tar and feather man that wanted the ink and give him all he could carry away. Then he took a few more drinks and directly rolled off from his chair and went to snorin' under the table. Shucks! I guess I am smart enough to be an editor myself, right now."

THE COMSTOCK LODE.

Bozeman, Mont. — The Comstock lode has produced more gold and silver than any other group of mines in the United States, and for that reason is known to the greater part of the people of America, and especially to every western man who has ever had anything to do with mining, either directly or indirectly.

Comstock was buried in the cemetery of Bozeman in September, 1870, without any of the usual mourning, pomp or display which is usually accorded to a great discoverer or a great man, for who in those early frontier days of thirty years ago cared what became of a broken down miner, without a cent of money and no hopes or prospects, and who had disobeyed the laws of his Maker and taken his life with his own hand?

Comstock came to Bozeman with a remnant of the "Big Horn Expedition" in the fall of 1870 from Cheyenne, Wyo. He was a big, strong, dark complexioned pioneer, but when he arrived in Bozeman was broken both in spirits and finances. His mind was deranged by the loss of the Comstock lode, which he had been swindled out of, and he could be induced to talk only when some one mentioned mines or mining. Even to those friends with whom he came to the little frontier settlement, he would not speak except on rare occasions. One day he stepped out of the little log cabin he was living in, which some years ago could be found at the rear of Osborne's drug store, and which, at that time, was next to the county jail, and walking to a hole made by the builders of the jail to get dirt to cover the roof of the county's first lock-up, he got down into it and shot himself just above the right temple with a revolver. Judge A. D. McPherson was passing by at the time and turned when he heard the pistol shot in time to see Comstock fall over. The hole being only about three feet deep part of the body was exposed. The judge and occupants of the cabin ran to the hole and found Comstock breathing, but life was soon extinct. Having no friends or money the county of Gallatin provided the necessary coffin and he was buried in September, 1870, in a little plot on the hill. Some years later distant relatives wrote concerning his demise, but on learning he had left no effects or fortune, no further inquiries as to how or where he was interred were made.

Rather than let the name and last resting place of Comstock be lost forever, there is a movement on foot to erect a suitable monument over his grave, to take the place of the little mound of earth now covered with weeds and grass.—The Minneapolis Journal.

JUST LIKE THEIR ELDERS.

The Episcopal Bishop Anderson has a daughter of four. The other day the family entertained some friends from Denver. In the visiting family there was a little girl of the same age as the Anderson child. Her family were Presbyterians. It was proposed that the two little girls share the same bed, which was assented to by the children. When bedtime came they both knelt down to say their prayers in unison.

When little Miss Anderson was saying, "Forgive us our trespasses," she heard her companion say, "Forgive us our debts," and she said, sharply:

"It's 'trespasses!' "

"No it ain't," said the Denver Calvinist. "It's 'debts.' "

"Trespasses!"

"Debts!"

"Trespasses!"

"Debts!"

Out flew a chubby Anderson fist which struck a Presbyterian eye. There was a mixup immediately.

"Now it's 'trespasses,' ain't it?"

"No," said she, stoutly. "It's 'debts.' "

Peace was restored, and the two consented to go on with the prayer. When they came to the end the little Presbyterian said "Amen," giving the flat "a" of the dissenters, while the little Episcopalian intoned "Ah-men," with the broad sound to the first vowel.

"Amen," repeated the Presbyterian.

"Ah-men," said Miss Anderson, with conviction.

They were only saved from another encounter by being bundled into bed. As the door was closed upon them each was still maintaining her idea of pronunciation.—Chicago Chronicle.

NOTED BOOK AGENTS.

Napoleon Bonaparte, when a poor lieutenant, took the agency for a work entitled "L'Histoire de la Revolution." In the foyer of the great Palace of the Louvre can be seen to-day the great emperor's canvassing outfit, with the long list of subscribers he secured.

George Washington, when young, canvassed around Alexandria, Va., and sold over 200 copies of a work entitled "Bydell's American Savage."

Mark Twain was a book agent.

Longfellow sold books by subscription.

Jay Gould, when starting in life, was a canvasser.

Bismarck, when at Heidelberg, spent a vacation in canvassing for one of Blumenbach's handbooks.
