ESIDENTS OF SHACK-TOWN BESIEGE THE CITY HALL

larmed by Ald. Naden's Notice of Motion, Shack-Dwellers on G. T. P. Reserve Petition Council To Be Allowed to Stay Till the Spring---Their Request May be Granted

"The Assyrian came down like a lf on the fold!"—Well not the Assyrian ctly, nor, strictly speaking, the fold, something similar. The inhabitants the jungle known as the G. T. P. erve swept down in their hordes on sacred precincts of the City Hall night. They came to meet that tion of Ald. Naden's to clear off shack dwellings, with a petition ing leave to remain at least until severe weather is over. As a result health committee will visit the rve to see whether the clearance of shacks there may safely be deferred not until spring.

Had Four Arguments

n four grounds the shack dwellers' ition was based. First that if they evicted there are no homes available them to go to in the city within the its of their pockets as regards rental. ond, that the season is ill-chosen for order to remove owing to the in-mency of the weather. Third, that re are no diseased amongst them due insanitary conditions nor are their llings a menace to other citizens; fourth, that they are as moral, -abiding and peaceful a community ny other group in the city.

Invaded the Council Chamber

rrived with their petition to this ct bearing about fifty names, the ck dwellers filed into the City Hall by W. H. Montgomery. City Clerk ods was reading the minutes. His erful voice was drowned by the dy tramp-tramp of the deputation's t. By twos and by tens the army invaders thronged into the hall. All available chairs were occupied. The ck dwellers leaned against safes, inst desks, against walls, packed e as sardines. Behind the Mayor d press table, was soon a serried lanx of them; and in the corridor m the City Hall door to the hall lf another dense detachment formed W. H. Montgomery beamed on battalions ke a Napoleon on the of Waterloo. There, too, by the big , scanning the ranks with eagle was that grizzled veteran, H. Doug- hero of a hundred skirmishes with city clerk, chief watcher of councils, keen student of Mayoral methods. an hour the deputation waited till question came up in the order of iness.

Ald. Naden Gave Reasons

n answer to a question Ald. Naden e the grounds on which his motion based, mainly the very adverse ort of the medical health officer arding the condition of the shacks the reserve. He maintained that shack dwellers had received about ee months' notice to quit, since it all that time since the shacks had n examined and condemned by the lth officer whose report had been d in open council.

he reason for the introduction of the tion now he said, was because they had had to wait until a plan of the trict in question had been prepared the city engineer. To delay taking ion would only mean the same tion for postponement again later He regretted having to incon-ience any section of citizens but in this case he had to.

Council May Inspect Shacks

Ald. Naden then read his motion which embodied in detail a sweeping clearance of the shack district of the reserve at ten days' notice. It was suggested that the petition be referred to the health committee and the motion allowed to stand over meantime.

When Ald. Lynch suggested that it did seem a little far fetched to say as the medical officer's report said: that all the shacks were insanitary. Ald. Hilditch arose with the suggestion that the council should go and examine the place for themselves. W. H. Montgomery here referred the Mayor and council to the scavengers' report on the state of the shacks.

Fleas and Bubonic Plague

Since the weather is so cold now, thought Ald. Pattullo, those shacks cannot be quite such a menace to the town as reported. He thought that the clearance might take place more fitly in spring. Certainly it would be a hardship on the shack dwellers to have to clear out just now.

On the other hand Ald. Barrow, who spoke from personal experience of Bombay, stated that similar huts there had harboured the rats that fed the fleas that spread bubonic plague. He held that the council could not but support the view of the medical health officer, but was ready to favor an extension of time on the understanding that the shack dwellers would at once endeavor to secure other quarters.

Did Not Wish to Be Hard

As a tenant himself of premises previously adjacent to the alleged insanitary area, Ald. Mobley viewed the shack dwellers petition and deputation with a kindly eye. He thought them a decent looking bunch of men even

Can Anyone Suggest the Writer of This Verse?

"Oh never-ending Hays Port case!
Oh, lingering sweet delay!

The above lines were found scribbled on the back of an envelope in the neighborhood of the Provincial Court room this afternoon. Can anyone suggest their probable author? Perhaps Mr. Patmore knows.

BIG TRUNK LINE THROUGH AIR

FLIES FROM BOSTON TO THE NATIONAL CAPITAL

Branches Projected to Serve Large Inland Cities Such as Cleveland and Chicago—Drexel Fails to Defeat Dead Man's Record.

(Special to the Optimist)

New York, Nov. 29.—Charles Glidden, the famous aviator, announced this morning the successful formation of the Aerial Navigation company. It is said the company has been backed by a large capital and that its first great line will run from Boston to New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington. This is to be the great trunk line from which there is to be numerous branches to inland cities, such as Cleveland and Chicago. Vanneman, who was the constructor of Wellman's balloon to cross the Atlantic, has been engaged and is now at work upon the first big dirigibles for the new lines.

Dead Man the Winner

New York, Nov. 29.—The Aero Club of America has decided that Anthony Drexel did not beat the late Ralph Johnston's figures in his flight at Philadelphia last Wednesday. The record made by Johnston was 9714 feet, while the record of Drexel was only 9450 feet.

Another Mexican Revolt

El Paso, Nov. 29.—(Special)—The Mexican revolt has broken out afresh, following the successes of the rebel arms in the state of Chichihua yesterday.

ITALIAN LABORER IS FINED FOR STRIKING CONTRACTOR

Sequel to the Row at S. H. Watson's Contract on Second Avenue last Saturday---Some of the Evidence Rather Amusing---Peacemaker Got Hit on the Nose

For banging S. H. Watson over the head with a dinner can Antonelli Angelo was fined $10 and costs by Magistrate Carss today. The Magistrate took a night to think it over and decided to dismiss the charge against Angelo's brother Allersandro of assisting in the assault.

Dispute Over Wages

About thirty Italians were present when the case was heard and there were twenty of them on the list of witnesses for the defence. V. Bassobert acted as interpreter. S. H. Watson had five witnesses who told princpailly how they had seen ,the scuffle and the blows struck while they were at work on the Second avenue contract on Saturday. The dispute arose over Antonelli's time whether 55, 57, 59, or 60 hours. Of course he stuck out for 60. The contractor raised the amount from 55 to 59 but held out there. Then the trouble began.

How the Row Started

Funny things happened. Antonelli's brother Allessandro came up as peacemaker, and quit with Antonelli. The men were walking up a path past the cut and Watson was following them ordering them off the job.

"After you my dear Alphonse" (or words to that effect) said Allessandro with Itailan politeness, to the contractor who didn't quite see it. A push, a pretty phrase or two, and bang, bang went the dinner can.

Peacemaker Got Hit

Allessandro the peacemaker, according to his countrymen's evidence "did nothing but receive a blow on the nose." He was all balled up between his brother and the contractor in the battle.

A Vivid Picture

Nikloa Silvestrini pictured the scene in the single sentence "Alessandro took his hat, and the blow on the nose and went away."

Asked if it were the custom of his countrymen not to retailate when hit on the nose Nikola said: "It was so in this case. It would not be so in all cases. It depends upon the nose that was hit." And he drew himself up in the witness box with unmistakable meaning.

Lots of Corroboration

With marvellous similarity all the Italian witnesses called gave the same version of the fracas.

L. Fredis said that he had heard what was described as "a mixture of bad language and bad Italian." His two countrymen did not run away. They would scorn the very thought!

Magistrate Carss did not decide the case last night. He slept on it, with the result reported. L. Patmore appeared for the prosecution and W. F. Eisher for the accused.

PRESIDENT HAYS' PROPOSITION

Reply to Letter Containing It Being Drafted by Committee

The city has not yet reported to C. M. Hays' letter with that proposition regarding the assessment. Why is tihs? asked Ald. Hilditch last night. The reason, explained Ald. Pattullo is that the finance committee is framing a reply which being an important one requires time. They hope to present a draft letter for the council's approval on Thursday.

Able to Report Progress

The city council in committee as a whole discussed the by-law to amend the Local Improvement By-law last night, and rose reporting progress.

Board of Trade and C. M. Hays

As secretary of the Prince Rupert Board of Trade, M. M. Stephens has acknowledged receipt from the city council of a copy of C. M. Hays' letter re the G. T. P. assessment, but nothing further is reported as having been done in the matter by the Board of Trade.

ALL BRITAIN EXCITED OVER THE ELECTIONS

Seventy Thousand People Hold Mass Meeting in Belfast to Protest Against Home Rule Being Granted to Ireland---Active Campaigning in Scotland---Mr. Balfour to be Returned Unopposed

(Special to the Optimist)

London, Nov. 29.—The general election is now on and all over the British Isles there is probably more active interest taken in the possible results than in any election for many years not excepting that of last year.

Feeling Against Nobles

In the Midlands and throughout England generally, it may be said, there is a strong feeling for curtailing the privileges of the house of lords but against the home-rule-all-round policy. In fact the general opinion seems to be that to make England one of four powers represented in the Imperial parliament would tend to destroy the prestige of the empire itself.

Manufacturing Centres Liberal

The manufacturing centres, including such large centres of population as Manchester and the seats of the cotton and carpet industries are all intensely Liberal. The same may be said of the potteries and the large iron and coal centres of South Staffordshire and Warwickshire, with the exception of Birmingham, which is immensely loyal to Joseph Chamberlain and his family. But the counties show the same loyalty, with but a few exceptions, to the house of lords and its traditional influences.

Active Campaign in Scotland

Scotland, so far, is the scene of the most active campaigning, and although one of the issues is home rule for Scotland, the Conservatives say they can gain four or five seats there. It is understood, however, that the seats of all the cabinet ministers from the land of brown heath and shaggy wood are considered safe. Balfour is sure to be returned unopposed, and it seems probable that Winston Churchill will have no opposition in Dundee.

Ireland Torn Over Home Rule

In Ireland there is the greatest kind of an excitement on home rule question, and it is curious that after so many years of agitation there should be at this juncture an opposition to home rule in any form. Yet there is a most strenuous opposition.

Demonstration in Belfast

At Belfast last night there was a great demonstration by the Ulsterites. They numbered some seventy thousand people and the speeches were of the most fervid character. It was boldly proposed that all the members of the organization should forthwith arm themselves to oppose home rule.

Presbyterian Divine Defiant

One Presbyterian minister—and Belfast is ultra-Protestant,—declared that if home rule carried all should refuse to pay taxes to the Dublin parliament. The majority of the speeches were very bitter against Redmond and other Irish leaders.

Austen Chamberlain will hold a meeting in Glasgow this evening and there is likely to be an exciting discussion.

DEVOTED PRINCIPALLY TO THE INTERESTS OF WOMEN

This is a little section of the paper, which from day to day will be devoted to subjects of special interest to women. Any and all of the ladies of Prince Rupert are invited to contribute to its columns, and to take part in its discussions. Suggestions and criticisms are invited by the editor. The hope is expressed that "The Cosy Corner" will fill a social need.

Wives of the "Members"

There is no more ardent worshipper at the shrine of politics than Lady Laurier. Every debate worth listening to finds her in her place in the front seat of the speaker's gallery, and she misses not a word uttered by the supporters or the opponents of her distinguished husband's government. She has a most attractive personality, and wherever she goes, you will observe young men and older men around her enjoying immensely her vivacious conversation.

Lady Laurier still shows the same keen interest in her husband's work that she displayed in earlier years. It is rarely that she misses driving him home from his offices on Parliament Hill, and she looks annoyed and anxious if he does not leave work aside for the day punctually at 6 o'clock. It is related that on one occasion the Premier had been kept unusually late over a matter of considerable consequence, and asked Lady Laurier not to wait for him. Accordingly she drove home alone. Eight o'clock came and Sir Wilfrid had nort yet arived. Ordering out the automobile again, she drove to the Premier's office, and sent in this message: "Lady Laurier insists that Sir Wilfrid Laurier comes home to dinner." The Premier came and stayed dutifully at his house for the rest of the evening.

At the instance of Lady Laurier, after the new western wing of the Parliament buildings was completed, the wives and daughters—or sisters, when they had none—of the cabinet ministers held weekly receptions in the parliamentary restaurant. These functions, it is said, have done much to solidify the government side of the House. Men getting to know one another socially learn to like their fellows the better, and loyalty becomes the stronger. Apart from party loyalty, however, these meetings have had the effect of bringing together members on the opposite side of the House, and while the tenacity of the parliamentarians to their own political views and leaders has not been diminished, some of the rancour of party struggle has been lessened and the standard of debate during these last few years has risen the higher.

Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux freely acknowledges the debt he owes to his wife, who is a daughter of Sir Louis Jette. She has given considerable time to the study of matters which come under his administration.

Another lady who has had a great deal to do with the success of her husband in politics is Mrs. Templeman, wife of the Minister of Inland Revenue. The little story behind the appointment of the Hon. William Templeman will serve to illustrate this.

Early in 1906, there being a vacant portfolio, the leading newspaper correspondents of the capital sent out the statement that Mr. Templeman would become Minister of Inland Revenue. No appointment had been made, but the effect of the publication of the dispatch was such that Sir Wilfrid Laurier had no option but to give Mr. Templeman the portfolio. It was a newspaper tribute to Mrs. Templeman, between whom and the newspaper fraternity there had always been a bond of sympathy. To the young reporter in his dark days and with hopes almost blasted, she had been a faithful friend and adviser. She had never forgotten her husband's early struggle in newspaper work.

Mrs. H. B. McGiverin did a great amount of hard work for her husband at the last election when he and Sir Wilfrid Laurier were returned as members for Ottawa, and Mrs. William Wright has considerably strengthened her husband in his constituency of Muskoka. Mrs. Gerald V. White of North Renfew keeps a close eye on Mr. White's political affairs, and a pretty compliment was paid her at a political dinner in Pembroke a few years ago, when one of the speakers said that if Mrs. White ran she would beat anybody around.

The Cure for "Nerves"

"A nervous breakdown is, as a rule, the result of weeks, months, even years, of strain," says Dr. Jean Williams in Woman's Home Companion for November, "and at almost any time before disaster has overtaken one a complete change of habit, the shutting off of waste, the increasing of energy-,making products, perfect rest until balance has been restored, would save the day. But here we must acknowledge the greatest difficulty. The victims are so often blind or indifferent to their own physical deterioration until they have arrived at that miserable state where only their own sad condition and numerous abnormal symptoms are of interest to them. We witness then the appalling self-engrossment characteristic of so many neurasthenics. Such patients often fight against relief, refuse to cooperate with a physician or others who try to aid and encourage them, and feel almost insulted if symptoms of good health or improvement are noted. In such cases effort must be directed towards the mental attitude, and at the same time, and this is very important, the physical basis of a healthy nervous system must be obtained."

Education in Cookery

The night classes inaugurated by the School Board of Vancouver now in their second year, appear to be doing exceedingly good work. They are enabling a considerable number of young men and women to utilize their evening in a way in which the future in they will not regret. The third cooking class has been opened and all are well attended.

These afford a capital opportunity for young women who are employed during the day, but who do not wish to lose touch with domestic matters. It is said that as soon as one of them becomes "engaged" she loses no time in joining a cooking class, realizing that her experience with a typrwriter or behind the counter is hardly enough to enable her to look forward to a successful manage when she has a little house or flat or her own.

What Women Are Doing

Countess Emilia Pardo-Bazan, the authoress, has been made a member of the Ministerial Board of Education by the King of Spain.

When a servant in Germany falls ill her mistress is not allowed to discharge her, but must pay 50 cents a day for her hospital expenses until she is able to return to work.

Mrs. Russell Sage has given the largest ambulance ever built for the transportation of animals to the New York Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. It will hold 200 dogs and cats, and will transport them without injury.

They have women conductors on the electric cars of Santiago, the capital of Chili. This was made necessary by the late war, which took so many men to the front, and imposed upon women the work usually done by men. The custom has been kept up, the women having proved equally as efficient as the men had been.

SAVE US FROM OUR FRIENDS

Under the above caption, "The Khan" writing in the Toronto Star has an article which leads us to believe that when he wrote it, "The Khan" knew all about those petitions which the friends of William Manson M. P. P. were circulating, calling on the member to come out from his comfortable retreat, and run for Mayor once more.

As an unbiased and dispassionate observer, the words of "The Khan" are worth hearkening to. Here they are:

"I don't believe that Jeffries wanted to come back. It was his friends did it. When the big darkey walloped Miss Burns they rushed to Jeff and told him that he was the only hope left. If the truth ever comes out it will be known that poor Jeff didn't want to—never wanted to. They hurrahed him into it; they appealed to his vanity, to his patriotism, to his pocket, and they dragged him away from his alfalfa and his sure fame and made a holy show of him. It was too bad.

"A few years ago a band of politicians wanted Sir John A. Macdonald to come back in the shape of his hopeful son. Now, his hopeful son knew better. I have a slight acquaintance with him, and he isn't a fool; but if the body of schemers that dragged him out of his happy home may be dubbed Nobody, then he was Nobody's fool for several moons. It is wrong, I know, to open up these painful memories, but I remember that it was a terrible sight. The spectacle of the image of his father trying to do the old man's stunts will never fade from my memory.

"Now, when the municipal elections are on all over the land, watch out for the old war-horses coming to the polls. They are a pathetic cavalcade. They are the victims of greed—they will be harnessed by schemers. There will be men presext themselves for election who would be wise to stay at home. But they won't. It is not so much their fault as the fault of their friends, so-called.

LET US INVITE THE COMMISSION

Now that the Royal Commission on Technical Education has arrived at Vancouver, Prince Rupert should not lose the chance to send to the Commission an invitation to visit the city, and confer with the Board of Trade and the educational authorities. It is an opportunity which should not be allowed to pass. An invitation extended by the City Council, the Board of Trade, the School Board or other representative body, would be sure to receive very favorable consideration.

Apart altogether from the pleasure it would give the members of the Commission to exchange the cold rains of Vancouver for the balmy sunshine which we are at present enjoying, the trip would be full of interest and educational value.

From the city's point of view, a visit from the Commission would present an opportunity to express our views on the problems of technical education, and in addition would prove a valuable advertisement for the city.

Let us invite the Commission.

OFFICER RESENTS "DRY" WELCOME

VISIT OF H. M. C. S. RAINBOW AROUSES VANCOUVERITES

Lieutenant G. H. S. Potter, a Retired Naval Officer, Says It Is an Insult to the Men of the British Navy.

The action of the Vancouver authorities in giving a "dry" welcome to the men of the cruiser "Rainbow" at the request of a delegation of city clergymen has aroused the ire of one retired naval officer at least.

Writing to the Province, Lieutenant G. H. S. Potter says:

"I wish to enter an emphatic protest against the insult offered the men of H. M. C. S. Rainbow by D . Spencer. There has never been a worse display of bad taste than that of which the reverend gent of local option has been guilty. Here we have the first Canadian cruiser coming to Vancouver manned by picked men from the royal navy, men tr ined in the finest service the world has seen, men of character, men of discipline, men of restraint, and on their arrival they are enlightened to learn that public opinion in Vancouver, if Dr. Spencer is to represent it, considers that they are unfit to take a drink of beer! What will the think of hospitality which infers that they are undisciplined drunkards whom a glass of beer would send crazy! The men would earn the hearty approval of the majority of Vancouverites if they refused to participate in the affair now planned. The absolute bad taste of the controversy is evident to all who are not paid to agitate.

"Because there is no grog tub on the Rainbow does not mean that the men are abstainers. It means that the daily issue of grog customary on his majesty's ships is done away with. In the service a large percentage of the men do not avail themselves of the grog issue, which, for the reverened agitator's enlightenment, is rum. But at the same time these same "abstainers" as Dr. Spencer terms them are quite ready to enjoy a drink of beer.

"The Rainbow men are picked men of the royal navy, who are here to show Canada how to make sailors and on their first visit to Vancouver they find themselves discussed by local option cranks and prohibition nuisances as if they were some strange animal not fit to be trusted without a chain. I have seen seventeen years in the royal navy and I fancy that during my period of service I learned the sentiments of the lower deck. The British bluejacket is the finest tpye of man one could wish to meet and can be trusted in far more serious matters than a glass of beer. He has self-respect. The men of the Rainbow are not abstainers, but like all bluejackets of the royal navy they are temperate and it may interest the reverend gentleman to know that whatever the civic authorities may see fit to do, he can rest assured that if the Rainbow men want beer they are going to get it with other hospitality from the service men of this city."

READ ABOUT RATS

ouncil Will Consider London Literature in Their Extermination

The city will obtain from the Royal nstitute of Public Health, London, ng., the literature regarding the exrmination of rats issued by that initution. This will cost the city only 2-cent stamp. The matter was deded by the council when the health ommittee recommended that the pamhlets be sent for as a result of the ouncil's attention having recently been rawn to the rat problem. Nothing can e done to prevent rats from landing ere until the piles at the wharf are nade strong enough to enable booms o be used between ships' sides and he wharf. This fact was embodied in he health committee's report which as approved and adopted.

JUST TWO WEEKS MORE

(The following is published by the Press Committee of the opponents of the Scott Act, and is not the expression of the views of this paper.)

In two weeks from today the vote will be taken to decide whether Prince Rupert is to continue to rank with Chilliwack or to take its place with Vancouver and Victoria as one of the great cities of the province. Remember that the Scott Act if passed now will remain in force for three years, and during that time the railway will be nearing completion if it is not completed. People will be coming from all parts of the world to help in the building up of our city, and we must not be hampered by country village legislation at such a time. We wish to attract to Prince Rupert men of brains and enterprise, not reformed drunkards who are afraid of the temptations of a bar nor fanatics of any kind. A speaker not long ago referred to the fact that Mohammedans and savages do not touch liquor until they come in contact with the whites. This may be so, but it is not this class of people which we need in Prince Rupert. We need intelligent white men, men of broad minded views, and whether they like a drink of liquor or not is none of our business. There are plenty of people in Prince Rupert today who do not use liquor, but they do not consider that this fact makes them any better than any one else or gives them the right to dictate to other men in this or any other matter which solely concerns the individual. If we wish Prince Rupert to remain the size it is now by all means pass the Scott Act or any other act which will keep people out, and take our place with Chilliwack to the end of the chapter. But if, as we all hope, this city is to rival Vancouver in the near future, we must have no handicaps. People will not come to a town which has the reputation of being run by a lot of faddists. The drinking of liquor is not considered a crime by the world at large, and to make it a crime in Prince Rupert and not in Vancouver is no reflection on Vancouver but merely shows that some of the early settlers in this city were a pretty narrow-minded bunch of citizens.

The only thing that will give the Scott Act any chance of passing in this city is indifference on the part of the business men, and it is this that should be guarded against. The Scott Act advocates will poll every vote. They always do. It is one of the results of fanaticism in anything that the fanatic never spares himself. It is the broader minded citizen who is apt to be indifferent. The issue seems to be so clear to him that he cannot understand anyone taking the opposite view, and he is apt to let things drift. It should be remembered, however, that the people who will eventually have to foot the bills will be the business men of the town. If capital and population shuns the city as the result of restrictive legislation, they will have to pay and pay dearly for their indifference. Now is the time to get busy. This Scott Act can be killed now with very little exertion. But it will not be done by sitting back and expecting the other fellow to do all the work. It is the fight of the business men as a whole and it is up to them to get in and help things along.

ECONOMICS AND THE BAR

(Letters in this column do not necessarily express the opinion of this paper on the subject under discussion.)

Dear Sir,—The inference from the present agitation over the Scott Act issue seems to be that those who favor it are either bigots or fools while those who oppose it are broad-minded and wise. The fact is that a large number of those who believe in this treatment of the liquor problem have not formed their opinions from the Sunday School library, nor indeed from the daily press, but rather from an historical survey of the question in every land 'neath the sun. Surely, a subject that has gained such universal prominence within the last few decades must have, at least, a few among its advocates whose opinion should be respected. The supreme criterion of any cause is its success. If you want to find the "Truth" test it by the "useful." We are all modern utilitarians, and the fact that the temperance cause has taken such a hold upon our age, should be enough to convince us that it lies in the direction of the ultimate good.

Now, let us analyze a few of the arguments that are levelled against this movement. They tell us that it will retard the progress of our town; that it will discourage prospective citizens and investors. Do you know, that side by side with the advertising of this townsite for sale by the G. T. P., went out the far-flung news that it was to be preserved as a typical temperance town? Did this scare away capital? Surely, no sane man will say that it did. Has not all our progress up to date taken place under a restricted liquor sale? What man—except an interested one—will dare say that business has been better since licenses were issued? What money-loving nation in all the world can, in that respect, be compared with the United States? And yet in spite of that what nation has made such rapid strides in its fight against the bar? All of which goes to prove that it is all rot to say that the prosperity of any town is inseparably tied up with half a dozen saloons.

Further, do you know that the biggest enemy capital has today is the bar? What have the captains of industry to say about it? Is it not the universal cry that it is tearing at their very vitals? Why is it that soulless corporations are right now handsomely endowing such institutions as the Y. M. C. A.? Because they want to sing hymns and say their prayers? Not by a long shot! It is because the success of their business depends on sober men. Time was when the only opponent the bar had, was the weak arm of sentiment, whereas today the lion in its path is one of its own breed. That lion is Mammon himself: Greed being turned againsr greed! The economic forces have been aroused. Do you know, that the driving force in all history has been the economic? Self-preservation and independence are the most primitive instincts of the race, and the most powerful, too. A man will fight for his belly, and second for his pocket, and for both of these he will die fighting. Developed tastes remain away in the rear, but whatever prevents the satisfaction of these primitive inctincts must die. The bar hits these and because it does, the bar must go.

They tell us that it will hurt business. If by that they mean the liquor business, we will at once agree. We are not so sanguine as to think that it will at once be wiped out, but we do believe that it will be decidedly restricted. If you think that it will hurt the small trader, just drop into the fruit store, or the tobacco and confectionery stalls around the corner and ask them. They will tell you that all the small cash now goes to the bar. If you think that our merchantile houses are in danger, have a talk with the dry goods man and the grocer, and they will explain why it is that they are forced to give extended credit. If you fear that it will reduce land values, ask the real estate man why he is not selling the same proportion of cheap lots that he did a year ago, and he will inform you that there is not money enough to buy both lots and Booze. It is a conservative estimate that a thousand dollars a day passes over the bars of this city. It is also well within the limit to say that the amount of liquor drunk has doubled since the dawn of the open bar. Should the Scott Act lessen this waste by only one half, all legitimate businesses would at once feel the result. Money would become more evenly distributed, instead of finding its way into the pockets of a few as it does at present. Give us an average prosperity rather than wealth for a few.

Our opponents inform us that the bar brings a great deal of money into town that would otherwise go to our neighbors. Suppose we admit that; but what becomes of that money when it does get here? Is it not laid by in order that the rum-seller may have his family winter in some southern clime, or take an extended vacation through the older lands. As far as this city is concerned, it might as well have gone south in the first place, especially as it takes along with it a large amount of other money that would otherwise stop here.

Now, Sir, we don't take this attitude primarily for any sentimental or religious reason. We believe that from the hard and fast economic standpoint the dry town prospers most. At the same time we don't believe that you can separate the sentimental from any human action, and if we could we gravely doubt the wisdom of so doing. The liquor advocates scoff at any one aspiring to be his "brother's keeper." Did it ever occur to them how mechanical and cruel life would be, if there were absolutely no sympathy or helpfulness among men. Life is bad enough as it is, but we are not yet all callous to the misfortunes of our neighbors. If men are not their "brother's keepers" they ought to be, and until our opponents can produce more effective arguments than they have done in the past, we shall continue to stretch out a helping hand to the poor devil who has lost his way, and at the same time most persistently pursue the battle of the bar.

SUICIDED ON TOLSTOI'S GRAVE

HIS FAITHFUL RETAINER WAS INCONSOLABLE

Was Master of the Late Count's Horse and Accompanied Him When the Writer Was Fleeing from World into Unknown Solitudes.

(Special to the Optimist)

St. Petersburg, Nov. 29.—The recent death and burial of the great Russian philospoher Tolstoi were vividly recalled this morning by a most pathetic incident. The master coachman of the count, who fled with him from his home with the plan of journeying into unknown solitudes, because inconsolable over his dear master's death. He was prominent as a mourner when Tolstoi's remains were laid under the shade of "Poverty Oak," the spot where the novelist in his childhood had buried a green rocking horse and which he specified explicitly his remains should be buried "with ceremonies of the simplest and without the rites of the orthodox church."

This was done and the latter point weighed heavily upon his old servitor. Early this morning his dead body was found stretched upon Tolstoi's grave. He had opened a vein in his arm and had with fortitude to be wondered at lain there until he had bled to death.

CHIPS FROM THE HUMORISTS

"A self-made man," remarked the thoughtful thinker, "is a good deal like a home-made shirt."

"What's the answer?" we queried.

"More useful than ornamental," replied the t. t.

Confidence Man—Why, how do you do, Mr. Wilson. I met you last—— Westerner—See here, young fellow, my name ain't Wilson. My name's John Joes alias Pete Rodney, alias Jim Hall, alias Joe Peters. So you better move on.

Daddy (who always comes for his good night kiss)—May I come in? Voice of Nurse from inside (reproving)—But you can't receive your daddy in your chemise. Dolly (poking head out of door)—You can come in now daddy; it's off.

"So this is your daughter's coming-out dinner, is it?" a friend said to the debutante's father. "Yes," the stern old man replied, "and if I hadn't put my foot down on that dressmaker, she'd have been out even further than she is."

"Do you and your wife ever have any differences of opinion?" asked the impertinent acquaintance. "Only once in a while," answered Mr. Meekton, "when Henrietta changes her mind about something and neglects to notify me."

Fortune-Teller—You will be very poor until you are thirty-five years of age. Impecunious Poet (eagerly)—And after that? Fortune-Teller—You will get used to it.

Didn't Know Them

The late Rev. Horatio Stebbins, of San Francisco, was a man of large mind and noble powers, but more familiar with the world of intellectual and scholastic interests than with trivial and timely things. His household was blessed with a charming daughter who grew up tall and beautiful, commanding the admiration of all who saw her. One day a visitor said to the good doctor: "Doctor, your daughter grows more charming day by day. Why she's a regular Gibson girl." "Ah, thank you, thank you," replied the doctor in his best manner. When the visitor had gone, turning to his wife the doctor asked: "My dear, who are the Gibsons?"

Alex Noble Gives Evidence Today in Hays Port Dispute

Again this morning the arbitrators got busy with the long drawn out Hays Port dispute. Alex Noble was examined today and gave some scientific information regarding the ice formation on the Skeena explaining why anchor ice was not formed there. According to Mr. Noble's evidence 70 per cent of the fish caught on the Skeena are caught at Point Marwitch, and while only ten fish per man is the average per day at Balmoral cannery, the average at Hays Port is seventy per man. Till you come to Hays Port there are few places for large vessels to tie up on the coast here except Prince Rupert. Mr. Noble said the railway company had taken possession of the ground without permission, and considered that after the line was ballasted the ground at the back of the grade would get soggy owing to the stoppage of the natural drainage.

RESIDENTS OF SHACK-TOWN

though they evidently had put on their glad rags to appear before the council. But all the same he kind of shivered at Ald. Barrow's picture of peril from the plague propagating flea. He intended to have a look round those shacks to see if they could not be kept sanitary enough for safety till spring.

Willing to Defer Date

Ald. Naden said he would be ready to alter the ten day clause in his motion to a sixty days one; and Ald. Pattullo went even further being ready to postpone the clearances until the weather became suitable. To make the term sixty days satisfied Ald. Barrow, provided the period was taken by the shack dwellers as an opportunity to look for other quarters.

May Need the Reserve Soon

A vague promise of possible G. T. P. activity in spring on the reserve, was given by Ald. Smith, when he suggested that the postponing of the clearance till Spring would do no harm as the shack dwellers would probably have to shift then anyway.

Finally Ald. Mobley moved that action in this matter be deferred for a week, and this amendment to the original motion was seconded by Ald. Smith and carried. Ald. Hilditch's idea that the council should see the shacks will be carried out especially if the snow gives within the week.

Heard Mr. Douglas, Too

H. Douglas, who asked permission to speak, gave it as his view that the condition of the reserve was as good as that of any other portion of the city. Many of the shack dwellers, he said, own lots in parts of the city unimproved by plankways. He said that the remedy for the shack dwelling system was to provide plankways for such owners to enable them to build and so improve their conditions, and the city also. His remarks were applauded by the deputation which then retired.
