MANSON'S BETRAYAL OF LABOR EXPOSED

Mr. J. S. Cowper Produces Parliamentary Papers Showing That Manson Voted Against the Eight Hour Bill and Other Labor Measures---Ovations For Aldermen Mobley and "Lloyd-George Pattullo"---Will Fight the Machine to the Death.

On the eve of the battle of the ballot, Alderman Mobley and his supporters held their final rally in the McIntyre Hall last night. As such it ranked high both for the merit of the speeches delivered and for the enthusiastic responsiveness of the audience. As befitted the occasion Mayor Stork, the retiring Mayor presided. He took occasion to say some strong things in connection with the License scandal perpetrated yesterday when Mr. A. J. Prudhomme was refused his licence. Mr. A. J. Prudhomme as also on the platform and he made a vigorous appeal for the square deal not only for himself but for the city of Prince Rupert, and pointed out that while he was being made the victim of the machine methods today it would be the people's turn tomorrow. Alderman Pattullo delivered a forceful speech and was accorded a tremendous ovation. An already strong bill was strengthened by the inclusion of Mr. J. S. Cowper, editor of the Optimist, who discussed the governemntal attitude, as represented by the Manson party in Prince Rupert in relation to the labor question.

With the Raw Uns

Not unnaturally Mayor Stork devoted a part of his speech to the action taken earlier in the day by the Licence Commissioners in refusing to renew the licence of the Hotel Savoy. He thought that after that exhibition the public would now be able to see where the real Tammany Hall was. "I have been fifteen years in public life," he said, "and I have never done what I understood to be a mean action, and when I see a mean and contemptible action committed it grieves and angers me. And when you see such an absolutely contemptible action as was enacted at the Board of Licence Commissioners today I tell you that it is time you put your foot upon the neck of the Tammany Hall which we find here in Prince Rupert. The Tammany Hall of New York would blush for shame if they carried out such an action as was carried out today by the Licence Commission." This stinging criticism struck a responsive chord in the audience for they cheered the speaker to the echo. Contonuing, he said, "Mr. Merryfield belongs to that class of animals which works in packs. He did not work man to man. (Applause.) On being catechized once he informed me that what I said would have no effect. It simply went in one ear and out the other." "Yes," retorted the Mayor, "because there is nothing to stop it." To his, the Mayor's mind, the most dastardly thing in connection with the whole of the miserable trial was Alderman Smith's statement that it would be punishment sufficient for Mr. Prudhomme to be deprived o his licence till March. "Punishment f what for?" asked the speaker. "Because he did not choose to line up with the Tammany Hall gang." (Loud applause.)

Manson's Last Rally

Alderman Mobley's introductory was a very happy one. He had picked up a dodger in the course of the day bearing the legend: "Manson's Last Rally." "I have no doubt it will be," was the Alderman's pert and confident comment. He then went into a discussion of the aims which he, if elected to the Mayor's chair, would keep in mind with a view to the real development of the city. It was all very well to haggle over figures regarding contracts, etc., but after all, important as these issues were, they were not the most important. If Prince Rupert was ever going to be the great centre which they all hoped it would be, if it was going to take its place among the great ports of the Pacific, then other considerations must be considered. These were the ensuring of facilities, and the encouragement as far as possible, for young industries to come into the town and start their operations. (Loud applause.) In his platform he had endeavored to place before the electors some of the points along this particular line which he would keep in mind. The pay roll of such concerns would be a great asset to the city, and he reminded them that until the railway was right through things might nor be so very bright in Prince Rupert. They would require all the money they could get and he thought therefore that it would be advisable to encourage the installation of industries that would help by their presence to maintain the population. (Loud applause.)

Prudhomme Says Things

Mr. A. J. Prudhomme, who then rose to speak was accorded a magnificent reception, it being very obvious that the sympathies of the large audience were entirely with him. He had just come over from the Empress Theatre where he had endeavoured to state his case in the presence of his opponents but they would have none of him. He chastized them as cowardly curs and challeneged them to meet him in public debate. He rehearsed the facts and incidents that had led up to the refusal of his license, and accused the Mansonites of having made him the victim in order to obtain votes. Their desire for power had affected him today; tomorrow it might affect the people.

He explained again how his difficulty arose with the carpenters when they demanded an eight hour day after he had tendered for a contract on a ten hour basis. He conceded one hour but declined the other. Mr. Manson came to him and told him that if he conceded the other hour his licence

COLD WEATHER MAY CONTINUE

THERE WILL BE A COUPLE OF DAYS AT LEAST

It Is 37 Below at Hazelton—Cold Winds Are Coming From the Interior—Barometer Is Steady and No Change Imminent.

Indications in regard to weather point to the present severe snap of frost lasting for at least a couple of days. While in the city the mercury is hovering consistently about zero up at Hazelton it is 37 points below and at Aldermere it has recorded forty and over. The chill winds continue to blow from the interior intensifying the cold and making the outdoor conditions of the severest character. The barometer is keeping steady. With a change of wind the cold weather will moderate.

RESIDENTS LEAVE TONIGHT

Mr. and Mrs. Sloan and Mr. Martin O'Reilly Leave Us

When the Prince George sails tonight she will take away three of our best known citizens in the persons of Mr. and Mrs. Sloan and Mr. Martin O'Reilly. Mr. and Mrs. Sloan are going on a visit to Victoria, Vancouver and Seattle. Mr. Sloan will return in a couple of weeks and Mrs. Sloan five weeks later.

Mr. Martin O'Reilly is going on an extended business trip to Toronto, Hamilton and other manufacturing cities in the East. He will visit the factories and lay in an ample spring stock for his outfitting store.

INCIDENTS AT CITY HALL IN THE ELECTION CONTEST

Candidates Were on Scene Early---Douglas Stands Sentinel at Entrance---Forty per cent. of the Expected Poll was in by Noon.

Election day has arrived at last. The wordy warfare is over and the battle of votes is on. Each and every candidate is being weighed in the scale of public opinion: those that turn the beam will assume or resume office as the case may be, and those that do not will retire into kindly obscurity.

Candidates Satisfied

At the City Hall this morning an animated scene was witnessed. The council chamber was crowded with voters and officials all the time. Mr. Manson and Mr. Mobley were early on the scene. In conversation with the Optimist both of them expressed their satisfaction at the numbers voting and also their confidence that they would win. Voters in a steady stream, were piloted to the booth consigned to the registering of their votes, and then departed with the flattering knowledge that they had done their duty by Prince Rupert.

No Boo Hoo Voters

Of incidents there was a great dearth. It seemed that the quiet, sober looking people who were casting votes were in no way connected with the boo hooing mob that had made some of the election meetings more of a vaudeville entertainment than part of an educational campaign. One incident there was—and it was more an impressio than an incident—was the aspect of the third mayoral candidate, Mr. Hamilton Douglas. Lest any one should overlook the fact that he was in the fight he posted himself like a sentinel just inside the door of the Council building so that his appearance there in solitary state would be the last impression that the voter would carry with him as he passed to record his favors. Like the melancholy Dane braving the "cold night" to have intercourse with the ghost of his father, the little mayoral candidate was waiting to do honor to the shadow of his first supporter.

Poll May Be Light

Neither o the candidates anticipate that the poll will exceed more than nine hundred at the outside. Up till noon about forty per cent of that number had exercised the franchise according to his light or lack of it.

Miss Pollock of Victoria came up on the Prince George on Wednesday. She will assist the Misses Barbeau in the conduct of their dressmaking parlors.

Libraries of the Ancients

The very earliest libraries, harking back possibly as far as the ancient Phoenicians who first showed the world how to fashion the stuff that libraries are made of, were simply storehouses. They collected manuscripts, carefully laid them away in safe places, and took no thought of use except by a favored few. By and bye, as scrolls grew to volumes, the custodians of valuable collections widened their shpere of influence, and for money, allowed their treasures to be examined in the building, and under their strict surveillance. It was years before it occurred to people that it was possible for a book to be taken from one of these museums and actually used at home, but once the idea came to life it grew, until men of research, upon payment of a fee, enjoyed the privilege of carrying back and forth to their own studies, the particular volumes from which they expected to gather riches. Then came the time when all who paid were admitted, and after many days, as the emancpiation and education of the middle classes made knowledge a national right, with much misgiving, the doors were finally thrown open to the people, and the accumulated stores made free to all comers.

But there were still many times with many variations to be played upon that word "free," and it is only within the last fifteen or twenty years that it has seemed necessary for a public library, supported by public taxes, to really exist for the public use.

That it should do so now, is the aim of the newer movement, and that it should do so to the full. Utility, convenience and efficiency, for the people themselves, these make the standard, and "whatsoever is not of these, savoreth of evil."

Queer Chinese Ways

Writing in the Kobe Chronicle, a Japanese correspondent in China says: "It seems to me that Chinese women pay more attention to the adornment of their feet than to their dress. Every one knows the peculiar Chinese custom of regarding the possession of unnaturally small feet as a sign of great feminine beauty, but few foreigners have noticed that Chinese women are almost as particular about their head dress as about their feet. They are far in advance of Japanese women as far as care in the dressing of their hair is concerned. They have a variety of ornaments for their head dress and wear different hairpins appropriate to each month of the year. What seems strange to us Japanese is that when Chinese women grow up they use even more showy hairpins than those used by young women. This is done, it is said, from a desire to divert their husband's attention as far as possible from the signs of advancing old age.

"There are various kinds of graves in China. The graves are dug generally from twelve feet to thirteen feet below the ground; while, according to an old custom, the mounds of the graves of the emperors were thirty feet in height, those of territorial lords fifteen feet and those of barons without territories and of lord stewards eight feet, while for inferior officials and common people mounds only four feet in height were erected. Pines were planted on the tombs of emperors, a species of oak on those of territorial lords, a species of willow on those of inferior officials."

The School Girl's Hair

An attractive and almost invariably becoming way of arranging hair that is straight and not necessarily thick was first adopted last summer by the young girls in Paris who still had a year in school, but whose frocks were for the first time being made full length. In this arrangement the hair is divided front and back, somewhat more being allowed for the front and side pompadour than for the back piece.

After a small soft pompadour had been arranged with the front piece the ends were tied firmly either with a narrow black tape or with a strand of the hair itself. A regular, rather high back comb is then put in, the teeth facing the front of the head. The front hair is then rolled over the wide piece of the comb, and the ends turned in and pinned beneath it, so as to form a big, loose puff.

Next the hair that is left in back is divided in two parts, these pieces crossed and then twisted loosely about the puff in the centre. Two or four large shell pins or small, narrow side combs, such as are now made for just this style of hairdressing, are used to hold the outer strands firmly in place.

The effect when finished is of a small, simple pompadour at front and sides, with a soft, loose coil at the back of the head, such as could ordinarily be evolved only with an unusually generous amount of hair. If the hair is of the sort which stands out well by itself, the big comb inside will not be needed to aid the puff in the centre of the coil.

DAILY COOKING RECIPE

How to Bake a Turkey

After the turkey has been drawn and trussed stand it in a shallow pan, add to the pan two teaspoonfuls of salt and half a cupful of boiling water—just enough to keep the pan from burning. Put it at once into a very hot pan. When the turkey is thoroughly browned take it from the oven, brush it over with butter, put it back, reduce the heat of the oven, and bake it slowly for fifteen minutes to each pound. There should be sufficient fat in the pan for basting. Do not add any more water to the pan. Just before the turkey is done baste the breast thoroughly with fat, dust it thickly with flour and put it back to brown.

BLEW GREAT GUNS

Men and Vehicles Tossed About Like Chaff

Cheyenne, Wyo., Jan. 11.—(Special)—The terrific winds unroofed several buildings, overturned vehicles, and paralyzed business. It also led to a large number of people sustaining injuries. One William Long was blown right across the railway yards from the roof of a box car and escaped with a broken leg. George Gardner was actually blown under the wheels of a moving train and lost an arm. The storm was the worst experienced in the country for years.

War to the Knife

There can be little room for doubt that the action of the License Commissioners in cutting off the Savoy Hotel license was influenced by political considerations; that the proprietor was offered up as a sacrifice in an attempt to catch the votes of a section of the workingmen, and as a warning to other license holders of what may happen should they exhibit any sign of holding political opinions contrary to those held by the majority of the License Board. Their action in withholding the Savoy license upon a technicality, and at the same time granting another license obtained under the same alleged breach of technicality, destroys whatever excuse they may present. It is a piece of flagrant discrimination; an offence so rank it smells to Heaven.

The whole incident can have but one meaning. It is the first turn of the wheel which betokens that the machine has come. That which has long been planned has come to pass. Prince Rupert is to be governed, not in its own interests, but in the interests of the ward politicians.

The incident is a clarion call to all who have the best interests of the city at heart to combine now and crush the machine. Till seven o'clock tonight the polls will be open. The return of a business-man Mayor and the rejection of the politician-candidate is the one sure way in which citizens today can deal a blow at the machine. Let every voter resist the temptation to indolence, and the comforts of the fireside, by turning out to register his vote for Frank Mobley, his pledged supporters, and the downfall of the machine.

A Word to the Workingmen

On March 10th last, Mr. William Manson voted in the House against the eight hours bill, the twice a month payday bill, and against a bill for the protection of white labor against yellow labor on the C. N. R.

Alderman Smith as president of the Empress Theatre company refuses to employ union musicians or pay the union rate.

Express your opinion of them at the polls today.

Little Glowworm Manson

The song "Manson for Mayor" prettily sung by little Miss Gray at the Empress last night was set to the appropriate air of "Shine Little Glowworm."

But who wants a glimmering glow worm for Mayor of Prince Rupert? We want something with backbone to it.

CHINESE ORGANIZE SECRET SERVICE TO DRIVE JAPS OUT

Japd Take Notice and Strengthen Garrisons Throughout Country—Russia Reported to Clip in With Desire for Occupancy of Harbin.

(Special to the Optimist)

Pekin, Jan. 11.—It is reported here that the Chinese have organised a secret service in Manchuria to drive the Japs out of the country. The Japanese are alive to the fact and are strengthening their garrisons throughout the country. Their activity in this respect is causing no little alarm. The issue is further complicated by the rumor that Russia intends to have a say in the matter by occupying Harbin.

The plague which has been raging in Manchuria is now under control and the death rate is reported to be reduced to ten daily.

WOULD NOT HEAR MR. PRUDHOMME

MR. MANSON'S SUPPORTERS HAD FINAL RALLY

Many Speakers Tried to Explain Away the Action of the Licensing Board in Cancelling Savoy Hotel License.

In the Empress Theatre last night Mr. Manson and his staunch supporters held their final rally before election. Mr. Manson led off the oratory with a general summary of the subject matter of his former speeches. His declaration that he certainly intended to use the influence of Richard McBride, and of Sir Wilfrid Laurier if need be, in settling the G. T. P. assessment difficulty was applauded.

At the end of Mr. Manson's speech A. J. Prudhomme rose in the body of the hall and requested the Chairman's permission to speak. O. H. Nelson who was chairman refused this until after all the other speakers had been heard,

There were cries of "Stay with it, Prudhomme," and "Give him a hearing."

From the platform Alderman Hilditch asked Mr. Prudhomme if he imagined Mr. Mobley's party would give him a hearing at the McIntyre hall and Mr. Prudhomme assured him that he would be allowed to speak there. Mr. Prudhomme then left the Empress to go to the McIntyre hall.

J. Kirkpatrick and Dr. Clayton spoke after Mr. Manson and both were listened to with patience.

Alderman Smith's announcement that he favored the 45 cents rate per hour for labor was welcomed. He answered the Optimist's questions to him, saying that he was not responsible for the various matters charged against him which he did not deny might be truly stated cases. He declared there was no musicians' union in Prince Rupert. He alone was responsible for his action in the Licensing Board that day. Finally Alderman Smith called for the election of Mr. Manson and his supporters all down the line.

Mr. Manson spoke again in emphatic denial that he was in any way connected with the action of the Licensing Court that morning, and Alderman Hilditch gave a plausible explanation of the matter which was greeted with silence broken only by a solemn voice remarking "Great applause." Then there was 'aughter.

S. M. Newton, too, referred to that business saying he would not call the Board's action the "cancellation" of Mr. Prudhomme's license, but "the dropping of it for a time."

After brief speeches by G. W. Kerr and P. I. Palmer, the chairman brought the meeting to a close, those of the audience who remained joining in "God Save the King," and cheers for their candidates.

MOBLEY RALLY

would be all right. There was no clause in the contract calling for an eight hour day. And why did not Mr. Manson—if he was so desirous of helping the labor interest—why did he not go to Victoria and do what he could to have the law amended, so that the eight hour clause might be inserted before the tender was accepted. Another grievance he had against the commissioners was that they had held his case up for so long. Now he had only three days to get rid of his stock, a quantity of liquor to the value of $1000.

He contended that the men who had taken away his business to obtain thirty or forty votes would give away the birthright of the city to gain a little more power. "Whether you elect me or not," he exclaimed in conclusion, "the ring will still hear from A. J. Prudhomme and in such a way that the echo will resound throughout the mountains." (Loud applause.)

The Greatest of All

The reception of the evening awaited the advent of Alderman T. D. Pattullo. Not content with the first great salvo the audience let themselves go again and again. He corroborated the assertions of Mr. Prudhomme, and said that while he was in perfect sympathy with the aims and objects of the Trades Unions there were circumstances under which their power might be a danger to themselves. He warned them therefore to see to it that all the points of the game were considered before they attacked men for political ends. He declared that in going after Mr. Prudhomme they had been punishing the wrong party. There was no eight hour clause in the Provincial Government Act under which the contract was granted. Why did not Mr. Manson, when he learned of the situation, go to Victoria and insist that the eight hour clause be inserted. "I will tell you why. Bevause he voted against the eight hour principle when it was brought up in the House at Victoria." (Loud applause.)

Editorial Criticism

The editor of the Optimist. Mr. J. S. Cowper, also came in for a warm reception. He delivered a clever speech upon the relation of labor not only to the development of the city but to all the great questions now looming up before the public and which will require solution within the next few years. Referring to the campaign which was closing he said that Mr. Tom Dunn, the gentleman who settled the G. T. P. question, had now settled the Optimist also and in the same way. (Laughter.) At a meeting on the previous evening in the Empress Theatre he had read off to the audience a series of arguments couched in atrocious English stating why Alderman Mobley was not the right person for Mayor. After completing the list he turned to the audience and said with fine dramatic effect that seemed to clinch the matter for good and all, "There, gentlemen, gentlemen, that is from the Optimist."

"As a matter of fact, "went on Mr. Cowper, "a bright-eyed reporter of the Optimist saw the cutting in the hand of Mr. Dunn and without saying anything managed to examine it when lo and behold, it was a cutting from the Empire!" (Loud laughter.)

The Parish Aristocrat

This gentle, titillating form of criticism was then turned upon Dr. Clayton, the "parish aristocrat" of Prince Rupert who though it an outrage that a newcomer should have opinions and the ability to express them. (Laughter.)

Alderman Smith Dissected

He also fired a few pungent criticisms at Alderman Smith on his professed espousement of the labor cause. One instance of that gentleman's view of labor was brought to him only that day. Mr. Smith is president of the Empress Theatre company. The Union musicians who formerly played there were members of the Vancouver local body and would not accept less than the standard $35 a week. Well, what happened? They had to take $21 a week or clear out. So they cleared.

He quoted from the official proceedings of the Provincial House of Commons showing that on every occasion when a question or a bill came up for the betterment of thw working classes Mr. William Manson voted against it, but when it came to the corporations he was in favor of almost anything they might desire.

Houston's Mantle

His last shaft of ridicule was fired at Mr. S. M. Newton of the Empire. That gentleman he said, had assumed unto himself the mantle of the late John Houston. Mr. Cowper said it was enough to make the late Mr. Houston turn in his grave. (Laughter.) Amid much merriment, Mr. Cowper read from John Houston's writings that gentleman's opinion of Mr. Manson.

Like Yellow Labor

Mayor Stork concluded the meeting after scoring heavily over Alderman Hilditch in regard to the employment of Orientals in the Prince Rupert Club. The Mayor was one of the men who tried in vain to have them excluded while Alderman Smith and Tom Dunn wanted them kept.

The proceedings came to a conclusion with a great scene of enthusiasm, the audience rising bodily and giving three ringing cheers for Mr. Mobley and his supporters.

AN OLD TRICK IN A NEW TOWN

ALLEGED SPANISH PRISONER TRIES TO GULL RUPERT MAN

Has Secret Worth $330,000 but Cannot Use It as He Is in Prison—Helper Promised One-third for Aid.

A good example of the Spanish prisoner swindle whereby dupes and their money part company has come to light in Prince Rupert. The game is for the alleged prisoner to fish out from the directory of some distant town or country the name of a person whom he thinks will lend himself to the gentle art of gulling. He then writes him a letter telling him of great possessions that will come to his hand if only he were free to lay his hands on them, and asking for assistance on the assurance that one-third part of the teasure will be given over to the helper. It is an old trick and it has done often service in the past. In order to facilitate the release of the alleged prisoner sums varying from hundreds to thousands of dollars are sometimes asked for, and as the police records of the European countries can show, asked for with success.

In the present instance the Rupert resident whom it was agreed to fleece is R. Oshland, who, prior to coming here, resided in Cordova, to which place the letter was addressed. Knowing that the subject might be of newspaper interest he remitted it to the Optimist.

The letter is dated Madrid, 26th October, 1910, and is in the following terms:

"My dear Sir,—I am imprisoned in the city and I beg to beseech you herewith whether you want to come here to take away my equipages in order to seize upon a trunk containing a secret in which I have hidden a document indispensable to you to come into possession of $330,000 that I have in the United States. As reward I will yield you the third part of the aforesaid sum. Fearful that this letter don't arrive at your hands I will wait your answer and then I will send you my secret with every detail and susbcribe to it my name. As here is a newspaper that publish all the cablegrams whose addresses are unknown, which it is allowed to me to read, and as I cannot receive here your reply, you must send a cablegram to the address indicated at the end. Notwithstanding your cable not reach me this will be sufficient to know that you accept my proposition. Awaiting eagerly to read your missive, I subscribe only—

"V," ex-Banker

Then comes the footnote with the address. Above all please to answer by cable but not by letter as following: Ontero Callya, Colegiata 30, Madrid.

LONGFELLOW'S MESSAGE

Vote for Mobley, Pattullo & Co. He Says

The recent cries of "Liar" on various occasions, have caused several poets and other peace-loving worthies of the past to turn in their graves. As Longfellow turned over he was heard by an attentive listener to murmur the following lines:

Should you ask me where's Prince Rupert
Where's the town of hot elections?
I should answer, I should tell you
On the land called Kayenne Island
Lies the City of Prince Rupert,
Lies the land of rock and pine wood.
Forming now a mighty City,
Forming now a lively people.
If still further you should ask me
Saying who is Frank H. Mobley?
Tell us of T. D. Pattullo.
I should answer your inquiries
Straightway in such words as follows:
On the frozen Yukon River
Lies a city that is Dawson.
Many men have travelled thither.
Many never reached that city,
Many never left that city,
For the Yukon is the tester
Of the sand and grit a man has.
All the baser metal perish,
All the weaklings they go under.
Many hundreds so have perished;
But the strong come out the stronger.
Tested there by hard endurance:
It's the sand and grit a man has
Breaks a man, or makes a man there.
From that North, these men came to us.
They have worked with Mayor and Council.
We have seen them, we have heard them,
Learned of every man his platform,
How they graded streets all winter,
Worked hard at it all the summer,
Put the "Vitches" in the ditches
When the Saxon came not thither
That the work should not be hindered
By distinctions in white labor.

We have listened to their message,
We have heard their explanations.
We will think on what they tell us.
We must vote for them, O brothers
That Prince Rupert more may prosper.

Out of childhood into manhood
Soon will grow Prince Rupert City.
We must have strong men to serve her;
Men of ripe and tried experience,
Men of honor, men of metal.
That is why we'll vote for Mobley.
That is why we want Pattullo.

LAST SCHOOL BOARD MEETING

MR. J. CURRIE RETIRES IN ORDER TO BECOME ALDERMAN

Mr. P. G. Stewart Refers to Gracious and Sincere Work of Mr. Currie While Serving on the Board.

The Prince Rupert School Board held its last meeting for the year the other afternoon. The accounts for the balance of the year were submitted and approved. At the close of the business a pleasing little incident occurred. Mr. D. G. Stewart referred to the able services rendered during the year by Mr. John Currie, who is retiring in order to stand as an aldermanic candidate. His services, he said, had been as graciously given as they had been arduous and necessary, and they would all regret his severance from the board. Mr. Currie briefly replied.

INQUEST OPENED

Last night Coroner McMullin opened the inquest on Eric Kouri, the Finlander, who with five comrades was killed in the Seal Cove blasting accident. After viewing the body the jury adjourned until Friday week at 7:30 p.m.

How Sleep the Brave?

Weary no doubt at the end of his aldermanic career the wary watch dog of the council, the redoutable Hilditch, he of the eagle eye and ever open ear, fell fast asleep in his chair during the city council meeting yesterday afternoon. He woke with a start at something Alderman Lynch said, and looked wise, but everybody knew it was a bluff all the same. He was asleep. He nearly snored.

"Is this Florence or Venice?"

"What day's today?" the other asked in turn.

"Wednesday."

"Then it's Florence."

The deaf man got out of the tramcar on to the other line of rails.

"Look out! There's a car coming!" cried the conductor.

"What?" said the deaf man.

"There's a car coming."

"What?"

Just then the car caught and knocked down the deaf man and as he picked himself up he said:

"I wonder what that fool kept me there talking about?"

"Do you know that man's views on the tariff?"

"No," replied Senator Sorghum; "but I'll bet I can tell what they are as soon as I find out what business he's engaged in."

"Do you think John Milton would be facing poverty if he were alive today?"

"Not if he were willing to go into vaudeville."

"Just before I married," Saunders was saying, "my girl's mother threatened never to cross my threshold."

"I would call that a great piece of luck," said Kidders.

"My mistake," said Saunders, "was that I didn't get her to put it in writing."

She—They say that experience is a great teacher.

He—Yes; but you can be a coachman all your life, and not know how to bet on a race horse.

"Hello, Johnny," said the village blacksmith, "I hear your paw has gone into politics."

"Sure."

"Well how did that happen?"

"Well, my uncle Abe left him a silk hat and a Prince Albert coat in his will, and paw had to do something with them."

"Jackson Wentworth, after an absence of thirty years, returned to the home of his youth. Jackson had a slight affection of the skin which made his nose very red. Hence when he called at the parsonage the old minister remarked:

"Jackson, Jackson, my man, I'm afraid you've become a hard drinker."

"Don't judge by appearances, Dr. Steenthly," said Jackson Wentworth. I hardly average two glasses of beer a week."

"Well, then," said the minister, in, a soothing voice, "I guess your face Jackson, is like my gas meter. It registers more than it consumes."

PRUDHOMME VS. MERRYFIELD

HOW THE BOARD DEALT WITH THE SAVOY LICENSE

Some Significant Sentences by Com. Merryfield under the Sharp Attacks of A. J. Prudhomme. Vernor Smith's Position in the Matter.

When at the Licensing Board meeting yesterday City Solicitor Williams had given it as his opinion that A. J. Prudhomme's license application was still before the board and must be either granted or refused, Mr. Prudhomme put in an appeal for fairness and equity in a couple of words.

Commissioner Merryfield after a spell of silence said he thought the legality of the license should be decided before anything was done.

Commissioner Stork pointed out that no fault could be attached to Mr. Prudhomme in the matter. The error if any, was an error of the board.

"And we can't go and lay any complaint against Mr. Prudhomme now, for it wouldn't be fair to him when the city granted him a license," put in Commissioner Merryfield. "At the same time I would not like to go ahead and grant a renewal of a license which I think was not legally granted."

At this point the carpenters' petition was menticned. Mr. Prudhomme claimed the right to question some of those concerned in getting this up.

A witness O'Brien was called. In answer to Mr. Prudhomme's direct question, he replied that he knew only by hearsay that cheap labor was employed in the erection of the Savoy.

Mr. Prudhomme—Is there any band organized in this town to prevent my getting this license?

Witness—There is an organized body of men in this town who are anxious that you should not have the license.

Q.—Is there any other reason against my hotel other than differences with the carpenters' union?

A.—There is the statement that you brought in labor.

Another union witness, Mr. Sibbald, stated that the petition was rushed up in four hours, during which time 150 names had been got for it. He averred that Mr. Prudhomme had had the petition in his hand afterwards and had used threats to get names removed. Paul Kauffman he had heard was the man threatened. Mr. Prudhomme had said if he did not take his name off he would never be allowed to play in the Savoy Hotel. Another name Mr. Sibbald said he knew, but refused to give it. This witness also said that after the carpenters had decided that the hotel was being unfairly built they paid no further attention t it at all.

Mr. Prudhomme stated that the greater part of the materials used in the building had come from Prince Rupert firms. A little had come from Vancouver. He said that he could bring as witnesses many who had signed the petition under a misapprehension, and one whose name was there but who had not signed it at all. He then demanded that the board give an answer "yes" or "no" regarding his application and treat him with justice.

Commissioner Merryfield—I am not here to do you any injustice, Mr. Prudhomme, but to do justice to the people as a whole.

Mr. Prudhomme—I am glad to hear that and I want to say that there would have been no question about my license if I had appeased these petitioners.

This Commissioner Merryfield denied whereupon Mr. Prudhomme directly charged Commissioner Merryfield with having on Third avenue asked him "What are you going to do to counteract the effect of this petition?"

"You bring your proof!" exclaimed Commissioner Merryfield.

"There is only my word against yours," said Mr. Prudhomme. "You took good care that we were alone when you spoke, but I will say this, that Mr. Manson was close by and may have even heard the question."

"You cannot prove it," was all Commissioner Merryfield said in reply.

"You would have liked to turn my application down before only you hadn't the courage—you weren't man enough to do it," declared Mr. Prudhomme.

Commissioner Merryfield, white in the face and digging the blotting pad with his pencil, replied without looking up, "This is bringing political issues in. We don't want political issues here."

Commissioner Stork here said the application must be settled one way or the other.

Commissioner Smith: "Apparently Mr. Merryfield is not ready to go on with any decision as he is not satisfied on points of law in the matter. The difficulty is the result of differences between yourself and Mr. Merryfield which took place in my absence. I am between two fires in the matter, but I would say let Mr. Prudhomme apply for an entirely new license in March, and I will be in favor of granting it. I want to be fair to everybody."

"From that I infer," said Mr. Prudhomme, "that Commissioner Smith wishes to inflict punishment on me for acting independently. If any man or bunch of men have the right to inflict punishment where they have no legal status then I say that this is certainly a farce."

The Commission then proceeded to ballot on the question as reported yesterday with the result that Mr. Prudhomme's renewal was refused.

Mr. Prudhomme desired to know how he should dispose of his stock and an informal meeting of the board will be called to decide this.

Wild Attempt Made to Rescue Prisoners When Train Arrived at Viterbo—Police Ready, However, and Beat Off Crowd.

(Special to the Optimist)

Viterbo, Italy, Jan. 11.—An armed detachment of police and carbineers surrounded the station depot of this city on the arrival of the train bringing the thirty-two members of the Camorra who are coming from Rome to stand their trial for the murder of James Cuocola, the former leader of the gang, who incurred the vengeance of the Camorrists for treachery. Cucola's wife was also slaughtered in satiating the desire for revenge.

Immediately the prisoners alighted from the train there was a riot. Wild attempts were made to rescue the prisoners and a battle royal ensued between the police and the populace whose sympathies were obviously with the prisoners. The police, however, had anticipated such a scene and were prepared to deal with it. They resisted the attack and lodged their prisoners safely in custody.

Enrico Ilfano, better known as Ericone, head of the Camorra arrested in New York by Petrosini was among the prisoners. The authorities here have determined to exterminate the gang.
