MALE SUFFRAGETTE KILLED ON TRACK

Emulating Feat Of Miss Davidson Man Threw Himself In Front Of Belmont's Horse Tracery While Leading Field---Fanatic Will Die

London, June 19.—Emulating the feat which cost Miss Davidson her life during the running of the Derby, an unidentified "male suffragette" during the running of the Gold Cup race at Ascot today attempted to stop August Belmont's horse Tracery while leading the field.

The man was knocked down in front of the King and Queen. His skull was fractured.

There is no chance of the man's recovery. The horse escaped injury.

BODY HAS BEEN FOUND.

Bank Clerk Who Disappeared Some Time Ago Had Fallen Into False Creek.

Vancouver, June 19.—The body of John McLennan, a bank clerk in the Molsons Bank, who disappeared on March 22, for whom a search was made far and wide, was found floating, in a badly decomposed condition at the head of False Creek yesterday afternoon.

There were no marks of violence about the body, and it is believed he stepped into the water on a dark night from the street end. He was 30 years of age and had been employed in the bank for thirteen years.

ELECTRIC CARS IN COLLISION

ACCIDENT IN CALIFORNIA RESULTS IN DEATH OF ELEVEN —MANY INJURED.

Victims Have Not Yet All Been Recovered From Wreckage on Line of Railway.

Vallejo, Cal., June 19.—Eleven were killed and many more were injured as the result of a collision on the electric railway just outside the city today. The cars telescoped each other. The victims have not all been removed from the wreckage.

FIVE DAYS FREEDOM.

Jack Johnson, Negro Heavyweight, Is Granted a Short Term for Appeal.

Chicago, June 19.—Jack Johnson, negro heavyweight prize fighter, obtained five more days of freedom when Federal Judge Carpenter granted him five days to prepare a writ of error to bring the negro's case before the United States Court of Appeals. Johnson was sentenced to a year and a day in the State penitentiary when he was convicted of a violation of the Mann White Slave Act. The suspension of the sentence now is until June 23.

Romanones Still Premier.

Madrid, June 19.—King Alfonso has requested Count Alvaro De-Romanones to remain in office as premier and to form a new cabinet.

END OF MARCONI SCANDAL.

London, June 19.—Messrs. Isaacs and Lloyd George, in connection with the Marconi report, admitted in Parliament today to having acted thoughtlessly and mistakenly, although without any dishonest intentions. They regretted their failure to divulge all the facts when making denials to the House of Commons last October respecting the buying of English shares.

Having finished their defence, both ministers walked from the House. No discussion followed, and the ending of the affair was a tame one.

VESSEL WRECKED.

San Francisco, June 19.—The lumber steamer Riverside from Everett to San Pedro it is reported has been sunk. The crew escaped and were rescued by the steamer Farragut according to a wireless report.

GREAT REVIVAL NEEDED.

Presbyterian Pre-Assembly Congress Says Church Should Rise to Meet Urgent Conditions.

The following resolution was adopted by a standing vote at the session of the Presbyterian Pre-Assembly Congress recently:

"This Congress desires to place on record and to lay before the church its conviction that the present situation in Canada, so unprecedented and so urgent, demands the immediate and united action not only of the ministers and elders but of the individual members of our church.

"(a) To bring to a personal confession of their faith in Jesus Christ as Lord and Master those whose relations to our church is at present merely nominal.

"(b) To bring into the fellowship of our church those of our own communion coming to us from other lands.

"(c) To unite the whole body of our Presbyterian people in the work of humanizing and of Christianizing the social, the industrial, the civic and every other department of our national life.

"And, further, that the situation is such as to call for the sympathetic co-operation of all the Christian churches in Canada, to the end that our fellow-citizens of other speech and race may come to know and love and serve Jesus Christ our Lord, and thus join with us in building up the Kingdom of God in our beloved land.

"Also, this Congress desires to place on record and to lay before the church its conviction that the present world situation is so unique as to compel the solicitous attention of our church and of the whole Christian world.

"And more especially this Congress interprets the sudden and marvellous transformation of the ancient and mighty Empire of China into a democracy vivid with life, and open to new thoughts and ideals as the call of God to the Christian nations of the world for a united movement upon the non-Christian world with the message of the Gospel through the open door of China.

"And that the members of this Congress here met for prayer and counsel offer themselves in solemn dedication to the high and sacred cause of world-conquest for Christ, and pledge themselves to loyal support of such action as the general assembly in its wisdom and under the Spirit of our Lord may devise."

JAPAN IS STILL HOSTILE

Tokio, June 19.—An anti-American demonstration is planned here, failing the indefinite action of the Government with respect to the California Land Law. The feeling in this country continues strong in antagonism to the United States.

RUSSIAN WOMEN BURNED TO DEATH

VILLAGERS BAR EXITS FROM BARN IN WHICH VICTIMS WERE AND SET FIRE.

Act Was Result of Cheap Labor Being Employed on a Sugar Estate in County.

St. Petersburg, June 19.—Eighty women were burned to death by villagers today while sleeping in a barn. The exits from the building were barred and the building fired.

This occurred in the Province of Polta. The villagers were enraged at the employment of cheap labor for the sugar estate there.

NOT COMING WEST.

Premier Borden Is Not Likely to Visit Pacific This Summer—Wishes a Rest.

Ottawa, June 19.—Premier Borden, who returns from Halifax at the end of the week is being pressed to visit the West Coast, but he is unlikely to do so. Plans, however, are not definitely made.

Mr. Borden's desire is to have a real holiday somewhere instead of going on a political tour. During the autumn and summer Messrs. White, Coderre, Pelletier, Crothers, Cochrane, Roche Hazen, Hughes and Rogers will go west, but not as a party.

WILL TESTIFY AS TO CHARACTER

H. S. CLEMENTS, M.P., HAS GONE TO CALGARY TO GIVE EVIDENCE IN PELKY TRIAL.

The Member Knew the Accused When a Boy in the County of Kent, Ontario.

Vancouver, June 19.—H. S. Clements, M.P., left here today for Calgary. He has been subpoenaed to give evidence at the Pelky trial in which the accused is charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of McCarthy, the boxer.

Mr. Clements will testify as to the good character of Pelky, both having been born in the same township in Kent County, Ontario. They knew each other well as young boys and youths.

Pelky pleaded not guilty to the charge.

The case is one arising out of the fatal boxing contest when McCarthy died in the ring a few weeks ago after going only one round.

Made a Commotion.

A drunk last night created more than the usual amount of interest at the corner of Second Avenue and Sixth Street. There was not the proverbial absence of the policeman, however, for within a few moments of each other three "bobbies" appeared and quickly effected an arrest.

W. Ellis, the well-known timber cruiser, leaves this morning for Vancouver on business. He will return in a few weeks' time.

FUNERAL TODAY.

New Westminster, June 19.—The funeral of the late Ex-Mayor John Lee, president of the Provincial Conservative Association, will take place tomorrow from his late residence to the Methodist Church, and later to the cemetery. The attendance will be exceptionally large. The whole city will practically suspend business during the hour of the funeral.

TO SHIP TEN CARS OF ORE ON G. T. P.

BURNED TO DEATH.

Chico, Cal., June 19.—Two men were burned to death and twenty others were seriously injured, many of them fatally, in the destruction of the Barbour Hotel here.

MINISTER'S WEDDING.

Quiet Event Took Place in Ottawa a Few Days Ago.

Hon. George H. Perley, minister without portfolio, of the Dominion Cabinet and Miss Milly White, daughter of the late Hon. Thomas White, minister of the interior under the late Sir John A. Macdonald, were very quietly married in St. John's Church, says the Montreal Star. The Rev. J. F. Gorman, assisted by Rev. Canon Pollard, performed the ceremony, which, owing to a recent bereavement in the bride's family was witnessed by only immediate relatives. The bride, who was given away by her brother, Mr. Robert S. White, of Montreal, wore her travelling costume, a handsome creme serge suit with collar and cuffs of white moire, and a blouse of white embroidered marquisette, white tegal straw hat faced with black and trimmed with ostrich feathers, and carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and white roses. She also wore the bridegroom's gift, a pendant of diamonds and pearls set in platinum. Miss Laura White, the bride's sister, as bridesmaid wore a gown of white silk shadow brocade crepe, with trimmings of white satin and pearls, and a white hat with a pink chiffon crown and a mount of pink roses at the back. She also wore the bridegroom's gift, a bracelet of platinum set with whole pearls and diamonds, and carried pink roses. Dr. Fred Perley was best man. Mr. and Mrs. Perley left by private car for Toronto and Detroit.

Remember that Harry C. Evans, the pioneer piano tuner, is in the city. Leave orders at Hayner's. tf

The Silver Standard Mine near Hazelton will begin shipping ore to the Trail Smelter. There are to be ten carloads of the ore sent here by the company over the Grand Trunk Pacific to be taken south on the way to the smelter at Trail.

This is the news that was brought from the interior by A. E. McMaster, the agent of the Grand Trunk Pacific who returned last evening from a trip to the district. The new rate that has been arranged between the company and the mining men seems to be entirely satisfactory and there promises to be considerable ore sent by this route.

The mines about Hazelton are all reported to be showing up well and the prospects are that there will be a large tonnage before long to go forward for treatment at the reduction works. The shipments will be made by rail to Prince Rupert and from here by steamer for the south.

LORD MILNER ON AGRICULTURE

THE BRITISH STATESMAN EXPRESSES HIS OPINION ON IMPORTANCE OF FARM.

Some of the Improvements He Suggests for the British Land Holders.

Recently at a meeting of the Farmers' Club, Lord Milner said that one could not help asking what use the nation was going to make of the fortunate conjunction of circumstances in the improved economic outlook of agriculture and the increased appreciation of the importance of agriculture on the part of statesmen.

Two objects, it seemed to him, were of great importance—one was the greater productivity of the land of the country, and the other was an increase in the number of those directly and consciously interested in the growth of that productivity. He was certain that a great increase in productivity was possible by more technical methods and by a more liberal application of capital to soil. There was also an immense need for further encouragement by the state, both in the direction of technical and agricultural education and in the fairer treatment of agriculture with regard to some of the burdens to which it was subjected.

There was a great difference of opinion with regard to the increase of small holders and small owners, but he felt that on the broadest possible grounds, it was essential to the welfare of the community, to the welfare of land owners and farmers, that the reviving prosperity of English agriculture should be shared by a greater number of people. He did not think the agricultural laborers of this country would be satisfied, nor could they expect them to be satisfied, even with an increase of wages, so long as there was not more opportunity for the individual to raise himself by his own efforts in the social scale.

He believed himself that what the most enterprising and energetic of the actual tillers of the soil looked forward to, and what they most cared about, was the prospect of themselves owning something. He believed it was economically desirable that the land of England should be farmed in farms of considerable size. He saw great advantages in the existence of large land-owners. But it was indirectly to the interest of land-owners and farms and vital to them, that the large ownerships of England should be interspersed with

THE CANADIAN EXPRESS ALSO EXPECTS BIG THINGS

Company Has Already Placed Requisition For About 60 Refrigerator Cars To Be Available At Prince Rupert For Business As Soon As The G. T. P. Is Connected With This Point---The Fish Business Is Looked Upon As One Which Will Call For A Tremendous Number Of Cars---Visiting Officials Tell How Trade Is Being Built Up Along Line Of New Road

The completion of the Grand Trunk Pacific as a going concern to Prince Rupert will be attended with grand results in all lines of trade. This is borne out by the officials of the Canadian Express Company now in this city on a tour of inspection. The officials are M. T. Pullen, the general manager of the company, and N. J. Ross, the superintendent for this part of the service. Mr. Pullen is accompanied by Mrs. Pullen and is making a holiday trip, while Mr. Ross is on one of his regular tours of inspection of the different offices. The business of the company is conducted through the offices of the Grand Trunk Pacific, the local agents of the railway company acting as the agents of the express company.

Mr. Ross is fully alive to the possibilities of this port as is evidenced by the remarks which he made last evening on his return from a trip along the line of the Grand Trunk Pacific as far as Hazelton in company with W. E. Duperow, representing the Grand Trunk Pacific in Vancouver and A. E. McMaster, the local representative.

Mr. Ross stated that already in view of the great possibilities that fishing had at this port his company had put in a requisition for nearly sixty refrigerator cars to be ready for use here as soon as the railway was connected up as a going concern with this city. This number, he feels, will be needed at once for the trade that there will be here to start with. This will, of course, develop to far greater things. On the start, however, he is satisfied that this number of cars will be put to use to take care of the fish that will go out of here frozen for the markets of the east.

As an evidence of the way in which the completion of the railway to different points is developing trade, he points out that the express company is now laying down in the city of Edmonton every day 300 cans of cream alone. This trade has been built up with the opening of the various farming sections through which the railway passes. This is independent of the milk business that is handled by the company. It applies to the cream only.

In the interior of this province he looks to the opening up of great farming sections where there will be great quantities of farm produce put on the trains that will run continually to this port. The trip to the interior afforded him the opportunity to see what that part of the country is likely to produce and he sees in the territory that lies along the line of the Grand Trunk Pacific immense possibilities.

Made Inspection.

Captain G. Robertson, of Victoria, superintendent of marine on this coast, has made an inspection of the station at Digby Island. He found everything in first-class shape. Mr. Tremaine, the inspector of offices, will remain a few days longer in the city. Captain Robertson will go south this morning.

A PORT OF FIRST RANK.

Everything points to this becoming a port of the very first rank at the time it is open for general business as far as through freight is concerned. The plans of the Canadian Express Company as detailed elsewhere is another of the many indications that this is to be the condition. That company is not going to take any chance on the cold storage shipments and accordingly has had provision made for the placing of a large number of refrigerator cars ready for the business that will originate out of this port. It is safe to say that there has never been a port on the Coast that started off at the very commencement of its existence and a handler of through freight that had the same provision made in this respect as is promised for Prince Rupert.

The road is assured it would seem for early next summer, so that there will be within a year's time the opening up of a port second to none on the Coast here. The facilities will be here for the handling of all kinds of trade. The Grand Trunk Pacific seems to be thoroughly alive to the importance of the place that is to be developed and there will therefore be an awakening in the city that will surprise even the most sanguine with respect to it. Within a few months the road will be through and the city will be athrob with life in a commercial way. The preparations for that time must of necessity produce a great deal of activity. The greatest movement in the history of the place is due now at any moment.

MONEY AND CIRCULATION.

The amount of money in the world varies very little from month to month, although there is doubtless a steady increase. There is just as much money in times of depression as in times of activity. The difference is in the activity of circulation, says an exchange. If a million dollars is exchanged once a year, it represents only a million dollars of business for the year; but if it is exchanged once a month, it represents twelve millions of business for the twelve months. Money is never scarce; it only moves slowly at times. A day or two ago we read that the transactions on the New York Stock Exchange represented 300,000 shares. Most of this was no real business. If the conclusions reached by the Pujo Committee of Congress are at all accurate, only about 30,000 shares really changed ownership. The other 270,000 shares represented so much gambling, and in order that this gambling may be carried on millions upon millions of money were kept out of legitimate circulation.

In Europe just now there is a financial stringency. There is just as much money as ever, but it is being kept from circulation for one cause or another. Perhaps one reason is that it is likely to be needed to meet the liquidation ensuing upon the conclusion of the Balkan war. As soon as there is any certainty as to how much money will be needed for that purpose, circulation will become freer and there will be an end to the stringency. A very little money moving freely will suffice for a very great deal of business.

POVERTY AND GENIUS.

Lord Curzon made some interesting remarks bearing upon the question of poverty and genius when presiding at the Literary Fund dinner. Differing from Lord Rosebery, Lord Curzon said: "I decline to admit that there is any stimulus in poverty or any inspiration in squalor. Byron was a genius although he was a peer. Burns was a genius although he was a ploughman. But Burns's genius was not due to his being a ploughman any more than Byron's genius was due to his being a peer. If Burns had not been a ploughman, but had been a planter in Jamaica, he would still have written great works of genius, although they would have been works of a different kind. Chaucer was a rather impecunious person, but his best work was done when he was in good circumstances. Chatterton did not write better because he was penniless and starving. Goldsmith died in debt for over £2000, but his best work was written when he was in comfortable circumstances. I ask you to take the cases of Shakespeare, Milton, Addison, Swift, Pope, Dryden, Burke, Macaulay, Shelley, Gibbon, Wordsworth, Tennyson. None of these men were poor in the sense that Burns was poor. Most of them were fairly well off, some of them were exceedingly well off, while a limited number of them belonged to the classes."

Lord Morley, speaking at the same banquet, said he agreed with Lord Curzon that poverty was no stimulus at all to literature. "In Murray's immortal dictionary he found the saying fathered on him that 'literature is the most seductive, the most deceiving, the most dangerous of all professions.' He stood by that, and thought that that description of it, if not over-colored, was sound. Insecurity was the root of all our social mischief, and until he got into what the Dean of Durham called the Parnassus the literary man had to suffer insecurity in the most poignant degree."

Sealed tenders addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Doctor's Residence, Digby Island, Prince Rupert, B.C.," will be received at this office until 4 p.m., on Monday, July 7, 1913, for the construction of a Doctor's Residence, Digby Island, Prince Rupert, B.C.

Plans, specification and form of contract can be seen and forms of tender obtained at the office of Mr. Wm. Henderson, resident architect, Victoria, B.C., at the Public Works, Canada, District Engineer's office, Prince Rupert, B.C., and at this Department.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures, stating their occupations and places of residence. In the case of firms, the actual signature, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm must be given.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honorable the Minister Public Works, equal to ten per cent. (10 p.c.) of the amount of the tender, which will be forfeited if the person tendering declines to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order,
R. C. DESROCHERS,
Secretary.

BENEFITS OF BRITISH RULE

RESULT OF LORD KITCHENER AS OFFICIAL REPRESENTATIVE IN EGYPT.

Sudan Is Now Very Near Self-supporting—Egypt Not Now Solely Dependent on Cotton Crop.

Lord Kitchener is the official representative of British rule and influence in the land of Egypt, and his annual report of the economic progress of the country has just been published.

"The prosperity of Egypt," says the London Times, in summarising this report, "depends upon cotton and the price of cotton. The production of Egyptian cotton had been doubled by 1894, but the country was no better off, because prices had fallen greatly. At the end of last century prices bounded upward, the value of cotton exports doubled, and money poured into Egypt. It was largely wasted in the period of inflation which ended in the 'boom' of 1907, with its subsequent disasters. Only a continuance of abundant crops and good prices has enabled Egypt to emerge successfully from that time of trial. There are other precarious aspects of this dependence on cotton. Egypt is fighting the common boll-worm, which has been ravaging the crops, and she has now become aware of the presence of a pink boll-worm which threatens to be a menace. The cultivators are greater enemies to their crops than are these insects. Their wilful adulteration of their cotton has been damaging the high reputation of Egyptian cotton. Legislation is now checking these suicidal practices.

"Again, variation in the flow of the Nile is an important factor. For several years the Nile has been comparatively low, but in accordance with precedent a series of exceptionally high Niles may now be expected, which means a danger of floods in Lower Egypt and possible widespread disaster. The danger was lessened when the raising of the Assuan dam was completed last December, but it is proposed to build a new dam on the White Nile forty miles above Khartum, by which the supply can be still further regulated.

"The fellah has to be still further protected against himself. Egypt is a multitude of small holdings, and the improvident peasantry were rapidly being expropriated from their land by swarms of rapacious moneylenders. The Agricultural Bank was not quite realizing expectations, and the facilities it offered were not a sufficient check. Lord Kitchener turned to his Indian experiences for a remedy. He had a share in passing the Punjab Land Alienation Act, and knew how invaluable that measure had proved. He has now been instrumental in passing in Egypt the Five Feddan Law, which exempts the holdings of small farmers from seizure for debt. His Cantonal Justice Law is a reform which will give effect to local usage and provide the peasantry with swift access to justice from their own notables, without recourse to the elaborate procedure of larger courts. He is establishing rural savings banks upon methods which are encouraging thrift, because they make it easy to save.

"He has become a roadmaker, and Egypt will soon become covered with a network of good roads, and no longer be chiefly dependent upon her railways and her waterways for means of communication. Above all, he has perceived that Egypt's dependence upon cotton must be lessened, and to that end he is stimulating the development of the other resources of the country. Lord Kitchener's report on the progress of the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan is equally encouraging. The Sudan is now very nearly self-supporting; in four years its external trade has increased from under two to over three millions sterling, and the great Gezira triangle between the White and Blue Niles should soon be producing large quantities of excellent cotton."

Gambling in France and England.

A bill has been introduced in the French Chamber for increasing the State control over gambling in France. There are at present 147 watering-places with authorized gambling tables, and the sums staked at these amount to over £40,000,000 a year. The profits made at the Enghien Casino last year reached £400,000, and those at Nice £380,000. The new bill provides for an increased tax upon the net takings at the tables, ranging from 15 per cent. on £20,000 to 45 per cent. on £200,000. "While everyone will recognize that gambling upon this huge scale is very much to be deplored," says the Spectator (London), "we doubt whether it is so serious as the evil of betting, fostered as it is in England by inducements in the daily press. The insidious allurements of the half-penny paper penetrate into every house and meet us at every street corner.'

LONDON STREET TRAFFIC.

Interesting Statistics of the Most Frequented Streets and Roads in London.

The most frequented street in London would appear to be Piccadilly, where 31,335 vehicles pass the Ritz Hotel in twelve hours, says the Dundee Advertiser. The equivalent traffic volume is 78.4. Other high figures are 75.6 units in Kensington Park Road and 72.1 in Commercial Road, E. The bridge taking the heaviest traffic is London bridge, over which 17,253 vehicles pass in the twelve hours This is followed closely by Westminster Bridge, with 17,204; Blackfriars, with 16,307, and the Tower Bridge with 13,010. Reducing these figures to units of congestion, Blackfriars Bridge, says Engineering, is the most crowded, its traffic volume being 102.8. The Tower Bridge comes next, with 95.8 units, the corresponding figure for London Bridge being 85.6 and for Westminster 84.3 units. By dividing these units of traffic volume by the width of the roadway taken in tens of feet, the relative traffic density is obtained. The highest figure noted is an average 27.3 on the Tower Bridge, rising to 53.7 during the heaviest hour of the day. Brentford High Street has on the same basis of comparison, an average traffic density of 24.9, Old Street one of 23.3 and Canning Town Bridge one of 21.

BRITAIN'S GREAT IRRIGATION WORK

GREAT CANAL IN INDIA HAS JUST BEEN COMPLETED—IRRIGATING VAST AREA.

Work Accomplished Makes the Indian Irrigation System One of Wonders of the World.

The greatest enterprise ever undertaken by British irrigation engineers—the Lower Bari Doab Canal, in the Punjab, has just been completed, and its opening makes a landmark in the wonderful and romantic story of Indian irrigation. The Engineering Supplement of The Times (London) contains an account of the completion of this third and last section of the "Triple Canal Project" which is now irrigating vast areas in the Punjab.

"The Lower Bari Ooab Canal is unusual in construction, for it actually crosses, upon a level, the important river Ravi. The new canal has cost about one a half millions sterling, and it is expected that it will irrigate over 871,000 acres of crops. The Chenab Canal, which is another section of the Triple Project, alone irrigates an area equivalent to two-fifths of the whole cultivable area of Egypt. The great Punjab canals have done more, for they have literally peopled the desert wastes. The cultivators have been established in districts which were formerly quite useless. Their villages are thriving, their land is growing in value, and for them the desert sands have indeed proved golden. The Triple Project cost close upon £7,000,000, but it yields to the Government a return upon capital outlay of 7 1-2 per cent. Yet it means affluence to the peasantry also, and life in the canal colonies is so popular among the stalwart men of Northern India that the development of irrigation is seriously affecting recruiting for the Native Army.

"The attraction of irrigation schemes for the uninitiated is that the results are so visible and concrete. To enter an irrigated area in Northern India is an unforgettable experience. The stranger passes in a flash from monotonous, barren sand-hills into a land of smiling plenty. On the one hand, the interminable desert; on the other, green waving crops, prosperous villages, and cool, refreshing gleams of water. Small wonder that in the presence of such visions men have sometimes been led to form exaggerated ideas of the possibilities of irrigation. It seems so easy and so simple to collect and guide the waters pouring downwards from the Himalayas, and 'bring the deserts in.' But it is not so easy, and there is a definite limit, now fairly well ascertained, to the prospects of irrigation in India.

"When all the programmes are completed, over 85 per cent. of the surface flow of the rainfall of India and of the water from the Himalayan snows will still escape to the sea. Rain does not fall in greatest volume where it is most needed. The 30 inches of annual rainfall in the Cherrapunj Hills of Assam perforce runs to waste, though it would make the arid emptiness of Sind blossom as the rose.

"Though the scope for irrigation in India is not immeasurable, enough has already been done under British rule to make the Indian irrigation system one of the wonders of the world. We have expended £40,000,000 on irrigation, have brought millions of acres under cultivation, and provided means of livelihood for millions of the peasantry. Incomplete though they are, the irrigation works constructed by the British in India are in some respects the most practical monument of our rule. They have not exorcised famine, but they have done much towards that end. Railways are destined to furnish the ultimate solution of the problem of famine. Crops never fail simultaneously throughout the whole of India. The difficulty has been to convey food to the stricken districts, and that difficulty the spread of railways is over-coming."

GOLD PRODUCTION OF EMPIRE.

World's Gold Production of 1912 Nearly $500,000,000, of Which $300,000,000 Was British.

Great as the national and Imperial progress has been in the past generation, it is bound to be vastly exceeded in the future. That anticipation is warranted by the incalculable natural wealth and resources of the Empire still but partially developed, the commercial products yet to be exploited or created, the growth of population in the Dominions, and the attraction of capital and enterprise to the Empire's tempting areas.

Compare the area of the Empire with that of the Continent of Europe. The European total, even incluring Nova Zembia and Spitzbergen, as well as Iceland, is 3,870,000 square miles, against our Empire's 11,345,000, so that the British Empire is nearly as large as three Europes put together. The Empire includes every variety of soil and climate, and yields all the land and sea products of the temperate, the tropic and the frigid zones, it is unequalled as a treasure store of minerals, and it has the enormous advantage in this electrical age of abundant water powers for cheap production on the grand scale—including such mammoths as the Victoria Falls of Rhodesia, Canada's Niagara and the still unutilized great falls in the interior of British Guiana.

Many speak of the Empire as a treasure-house of natural wealth, and the justice of this statement is abundantly manifest if one considers what her share is in the world's total gold production. That world total in 1912 amounted to $475,000,000, of which $300,000,000 was produced in the British Empire. The details of that Imperial production are as follows:

Transvaal	$193,787,800
Australasia	56,875,500
Brit. India, E. Indies	17,783,500
Rhodesia	13,375,000
Canada	11,250,000
West Africa	7,375,000
	$300,445,800

The Transvaal's increasing output in recent years has been persistent and notable. If we take even a survey of three years only we get the following comparison:

1910—$160,014,560.
1911—$172,458,100.
1912—$193,787,800.

Whilst the Transvaal showed a substantial increase last year among the British Empire's producers, other African sources of gold supply also showed an increase. The Asiatic mines likewise increased their production, especially those of the Kolar district, in British India, where deeper workings have restored the level which dropped in two or three of the principal mines in 1909 and 1910. The output of Australasia has shown a declining tendency in recent years, due to the long exploitation of existing mines, but there, as in other immense areas of the British Empire, of which great expectations have been formed, new discoveries may compensate for the gradual exhaustion of old mines.

Turning to non-British gold-producing countries, we find that the outputs of the United States, Mexico and Russia fell off. In the first-mentioned case exhaustion may account for the decline, while Mexico was affected by revolutionary disturbances and the Russian output was handicapped by labor troubles and water scarcity.

The maintenance of the world's gold supply in adequate proportion to the world's needs is a question that now excites some misgiving, and in this connection great attention is devoted to India's extraordinary absorption of the precious metal. It is now reckoned that from 1908 to 1912, both years inclusive, India has absorbed no less than 15 per cent. of the world's total gold output.

LORD MILNER.

a considerable number of small ownerships.

There was a political reason for that. He knew no big country in Europe where agricultural interests commanded so little respect where politicians looking for office cared so little for agricultural interests. Why had agriculture so little power in England? Because the number of people in England who were directly interested in the profits of it, not as mere wage-earners, was so small as compared with other countries in Europe. This disregard, however, was diminishing. He believed that economical variety in the size of agricultural ownerships was advantageous. That might be arguable. What was not arguable was that it was politically desirable if the agricultural community was to have the political influence which, for the sake of the nation, it ought to have.
