CHANGES MADE IN LOCAL COMPANY

CONTINENTAL TRUST PASSES FROM CONTROL OF J. H. KUGLER TO RESIDENTS.

Ald. McCaffery and Ald. Naden Have Assumed the Chief Ownership of Stock.

In spite of the fact that this is not a time when investments are being made with any degree of rapidity there has taken place in this city a transaction of more than passing importance. This is the transfer of the control of the stock in the Continental Trust Company from J. H. Kugler, of Vancouver, formerly of this city, to local interests. The local interests are represented by M. P. McCaffery and G. R. Naden.

The Continental Trust has been one of the financial institutions of the city for some time. It was organized by M. J. Hobin, of this city, who has, ever since the beginning of its affairs, had the management of the instiution. His careful administration of the affairs has had much to do with the success that has attended the institution. He will remain at its head under the new order, and, in fact, it is said there will be no changes made in connection with it.

As at first organized the majority of the stock of the company was in the hands of J. H. Kugler, who was then a resident of this city, but who later moved to Vancouver and went into business there. His son, Jay H. Kugler, however, remained here and took an active part in the management of the concern, representing his father's interests in it. A few weeks ago J. H. Kugler had the misfortune to fall in Vancouver, and he

REV. W. H. McLEOD HAS RESIGNED

PASTOR OF BAPTIST CHURCH HAS DECIDED TO LEAVE THE CITY.

He Announced His Determination on Sunday Evening—Has Left for South.

Rev. Dr. W. H. McLeod, pastor of the Baptist Church here, has decided to retire from the pastorate of the church at once. His determination to take this step was made known to his congregation Sunday evening. At a meeting held after the service he placed the situation fully before the management of the church and asked to be liberated at the end of July. His resignation was accepted.

Yesterday Mr. McLeod left for the south to attend the church conference in Victoria. He will return after the meeting and continue the pastorate until the close of the month, when he will leave with his family.

Dr. McLeod is a fluent speaker and a great worker among the young people of the congregation. He will therefore remain out of a church but a short time, it is felt, as there will be many congregations anxious to secure him. During his stay in the city he has made many friends, not only in his own congregation but among the other denominations.

He has been deeply interested in athletics and on that account has made many warm friends among the young people. He led in their sports and at all times was ready to lend a hand in planning for field sports.

ELECTRIC LIGHT PLANT IS PAYING

Report Of Committee Presented Last Night Before Council Shows That For Past Six Months Over $1500 Has Been Earned By This Service

A report that was presented at the meeting of the city council last night relative to the city electric lighting plant showed that during the past six months the plant had earned for the city a net amount of $1567.-20. The report gave the amount that was earned each month for that time. It showed that only during one month had there been a deficit of the current account. This was the month of May and the explanation was given by Ald. Dybhavn that this was due to the fact that in that month there had been a very heavy call upon the department for coal. The coal had cost more than usual and was of poor quality.

Ald. Maitland said that in view of all the circumstances he marvelled that there had been a gain at all. It was a good showing that there was a profit during the time.

In January the earnings had shown a net surplus of over $1400. In February it dropped to $80.87. In March it was only 59 cents, while in April it went up to $540.04. In the month of May a change took place and the order was reversed with a deficit shown of $514.04.

ENGINEER OPPOSES PROPOSED GROUNDS

THE LOCATION THAT WAS PROPOSED BY FRED STORK DOES NOT SUIT.

It Would Cost Too Much for the Size That Is Available—Other Proposal.

The proposition that Fred Stork put before the council last week looking to the securing of a playground for sports in the Acropolis was turned down by the city engineer in a report that was presented last evening. The ground of the turning down was that the site proposed would be too small for the amount of expense that there would be in connection with it. The cost was estimated at $15,000.

Ald. Bullock-Webster thought that even if the price was more than was thought advisable to spend in such a work there was the possibility that it might be wise to do something in view of the fact that Mr. Stork was going to get it financed by local people so that the city would not have to bear the expense for some time.

The acting mayor, Ald. Naden, however, said that there were negotiations on foot now for the acquiring of a better site and one that would not cost so much to get in shape. He hoped this would soon be ready.

The report was adopted.

STEAMER DOLPHIN MET WITH SERIOUS ACCIDENT

The Passengers Bound To Alaskan Ports Were Picked Up At Alert Bay By The C. P. R. Steamer Princess May Which Reached Here Last Night Ten Hours Late In Consequence Of The Delay In Transferring---Capt. McLeod Is Having A Busy Time Accommodating His Increased Passenger List---Some Had To Remain Up All Night As A Result.

Confirming news that was received by wireless that the steamer Dolphin of the Alaska Steamship Company had gone ashore near Alert Bay, the Canadian Pacific steamer Princess May brought among her passengers last evening a large party of travellers who had been making the trip by the Dolphin and who transferred at Alert Bay to the Canadian vessel. The May was accordingly late in reaching this port, being at least ten hours behind her scheduled time. The delay was due to the fact that assistance at Alert Bay had been given in the matter of the transfer of the passengers and the mails from the disabled ship to the May. Captain McLeod, with every foot of space on board his vessel crowded, reached port looking happy amid all the inconvenience that he had been put to.

The Dolphin went ashore on the south-eastern end of Pearse Island, which lies only about three or four miles from Alert Bay. The trip was the first one that the vessel had made on this run this season.

Passengers who were on board at the time of the accident have different reasons to ascribe for the accident. They agree that the weather was very thick. It was impossible to see any distance ahead of where they were, but some of them are ready to condemn the officers and the officials for not bringing a searchlight into play. They say that the vessel was found to be seven miles out of her course when she landed up on the rocks. This, they agree, was not to be wondered at, however, in view of the situation and all the difficulties that had to be taken into account.

It was about 1:30 on morning of Sunday that the vessel hit the rock. She was being manoeuvred at the time, and had it not been for the fact that it was low water she would have escaped the rocks. The striking was attended with a good deal of disturbance and nearly all were immediately aroused by the force of the impact.

It was at once ascertained that the vessel was badly damaged and was taking considerable water. Accordingly, no time was lost in getting the passengers all to safety. With Alert Bay so close at hand it was decided to get there. While the steamer hung on the rock, the passengers were got off and sent to Alert Bay. The cannery management, ascertaining the conditions, at once turned in and rendered all the help possible. Scows from the cannery were sent to the place and the passengers placed on these and safely towed to shore. The sea was calm and there was no trouble connected with the landing.

By 3 o'clock they were all at a point of safety. On shore everything was done to look after the comfort of the party until aid would come. Fortunately they had not long to wait and the arrival of the Princess May was hailed with delight by the exiles.

In the morning at high tide the steamer floated off the rocks and proceeded to Alert Bay. She was taking water to a considerable extent and when the May arrived a survey was held in which Captain McLeod acted as one of the surveyors. It was decided that in view of the amount of water that the vessel was taking it would not be advisable for her to leave without a consort. The passengers were all taken on board the May and the decision reached that the Dolphin should remain where she was until help came from the south. The salvor from the Esquimalt Marine Works was ordered to come to her assistance and will take her in tow to the place of repair.

The captain was not on the bridge at the time of the accident, the passengers say. The pilot was there, however.

Captain McLeod agreed that he would take all the passengers that wanted to take voyage with him to the ports where the May called. This included Ketchikan, Wrangle and Skagway. There were some for Peterson Bay, and here the captain agreed to call if the authorities allowed him. If they did not he would land them at the nearest point to it. The passengers all took advantage of the offer, all well pleased to take voyage under as capable an old sea dog as Captain McLeod.

The result of the additional passengers was that the May came in with about 250 passengers all told. There was not accommodation in the way of sleeping quarters for all of them and several of the passengers had to sit up all night. The mail was all taken on also.

The purser of the Dolphin was advised by Captain McLeod to come along and look after his end of the passenger list, while the May's well known and popular purser, Tommy McLaughlin, looked after his own end of the list. There was a general fraternizing of the passengers of the two boats and the whole made up a happy passenger list, resembling somewhat the days many years ago when on this coast there was the rush to the Klondyke and all could not get berths.

AUTHORITY FOR AN INDIAN CAMP

CITY COUNCIL AGREES TO ALLOW EXHIBITION BOARD TO LOCATE ENCAMPMENT.

What Is Proposed to Be Picturesque Sight Is Planned for This Occasion.

At the meeting of the city council last night the question of an Indian encampment in the city at the time of the Fall Fair was raised on a letter received from L. Bullock-Webster, the secretary of the board. It was pointed out that not only would it be an advantage to have the Indians thus camping together from a morality standpoint, but in addition the sight would be a picturesque one.

On the motion of Ald. Sutherland the scheme was approved and the council gave its sanction to the proposition.

I appreciate the business you have given me in the past, either for cash or on credit, but there are so many who have abused the confidence I have extended to them that I am compelled to take this action.

The loss of money and the trouble and time in looking after these numerous small accounts is more than the profit on this kind of business.

Thanking you for the business you have given me and trusting that my action will in no way inconvenience you and that I will still continue to have the benefit of your business and assistance.

MISERABLE TACTICS.

One of the most miserable examples of party tactics that has been exemplified in the Dominion of Canada for a long time is brought to light in South Bruce, where there is a bye-election on, made necessary owing to the elevation of J. J. Donnelly, the former member, to the Senate. There, in condemning the naval policy of the Borden Government, the Liberal party had the temerity the other day to pass a resolution condemning that policy on the ground that the money that it was proposed to spend was to be devoted for the building of ships for the North Sea to serve as a means of attacking Germany.

This move was made barefacedly, because in that riding of the Province of Ontario there is a very large body of German settlers. At least a quarter of the population of that riding is of German blood and this move on the part of the Liberals is intended to stir up animosity on the part of these German settlers to the rest of the community. Nothing could be more despicable than the tactics that are there employed and it is to be hoped that it will rebound upon the Liberals themselves and work to their own undoing. It is to be hoped that the Germans of that part of the Dominion will show these Liberals that they can rise much higher than the men who passed the resolution can do in the matter of loyalty to this country, where they are earning their living.

May Attend Convention.

At the meeting of the council last night there was a report from the fire committee recommending that the holidays of the fire chief be given him at the time of the convention of the fire chiefs and that he be allowed the sum of $75 towards defraying his expenses to the gathering.

HEALTH OF CITY.

Prince Rupert is an exceedingly healthy city in which to live. This is shown by the vital statistics that are presented each month at the council meetings. It was shown by those presented last night that the births were fifteen during the month with only four deaths in the same The city, it was reported, was very free from all kinds of infectious diseases. There had been only one case of mumps and one of measles during the month. The water was reported to be free from all germs.

UTILIZING WOOD WASTE.

Some of the New Ways in Which Material Is Being Saved by Manufacturers.

Perhaps the most interesting development in the manufacture of wood products has arisen in the increasing variety of uses to which wood waste can be put. Beginning in the forest the closer utilization of the various wood products can be traced through the sawmills and large wood-working industries, right down to the firms working only on small specialized lines.

It is now commercially possible to reduce the fifty to sixty per cent. waste formerly left in the woods by the lumberman to no more than five per cent., by a combination of three well-developed chemical industries, namely, paper making, wood distillation (in a modified form) and the manufacture of resin oils. Practically al the valuable constitutents from the stumps, tops, branches and defective stems which would otherwise be left to rot in the forest are thus converted into useful commodities.

The utilization of mill waste is being made increasingly possible by the developing markets for odd and short lengths in lumber instead of a few assorted sizes. Many sawmills use their waste products in the manufacture of laths, mouldings, pickets, roller blinds and paving blocks. The manufacture of wood pulp from the small waste wood now being fed to the burner is also a commercial possibility. Even sawdust has its uses, and in countries where more intensive utilization prevails it is being successfully manufactured into a variety of products. Several plants have been erected in this country for its manufacture into ethyl (or grain) alcohol, sugar and briquets for fuel.

The bulletin now being issued by the Forestry Branch, Ottawa, on The Wood-using Industries of Ontario, throws considerable light on the utilization of wood waste. Sash and door factories sell or use their short ends and trimmings for the manufacture of boxes, baskets, bobbins, butter moulds, insulator pins, novelties, skewers spindles, spools, stakes and wooden ware. They bale their common sawdust and sell it for floor covering, for the manufacture of composition novelties, and for cleaning screws. They sell shavings for bedding, packing, and drying wet land. Hickory and other hardwood dust is sold for smoking meats. In fact, just as the pork packers boast of using all the pig but the "squeal," so wood manufacturers will soon be able to boast of using all the wood but the bark—and even that, in the case of some woods, such as hemlock, is of considerable value.

LILLOOET IN.

The Dominion Hydrographic steamer Lillooet, Captain Musgrave, R.N., is in port for the holiday. She has been engaged in Hecate Straits, continuing the survey there. For July Captain Musgrave intends to work in Dixon Entrance, which is still to be coupled up with the former surveys. The month of July, he believes, will be the best month in which to do this.

MOVEMENT OF GRAIN GROWERS

CRITICISM OF THE ACTIONS OF THIS GREAT ORGANIZATION ON PRAIRIES.

How It Did Good and Where It Failed in Its Mission to Improve Conditions.

The Round Table for the current quarter contains a very striking article on The Grain Growers' Movement in Western Canada, says the Edmonton Journal. It is written by some one who has made a very close study of the history of farmers' organizations in this part of the Dominion and the conclusions are, for the most part, those which careful and unprejudiced observers have come to in regard to these.

Full credit is given to the agricultural leaders who have through the Grain Growers' Grain Company and allied bodies accomplished great things in improving marketing conditions. They have organized a powerful revolt against the tyranny of unbridled capitalistic combinations that have sought to deprive the farmer of a fair result of his labors. In the co-operative principle they have introduced a new social and economic principle in the life of the community.

The writer in The Round Table describes very fully and very clearly the conditions surrounding the business of raising and selling grain in the west and the means that have been adopted by these farmers, both on their own initiative and through the various governments, to bring about better results for themselves.

Their weakness arises when they undertake to embark on the wider field of politics. Though the article does not say so in so many words, nobody can be in any doubt that it is as the movement launches out on this that it stands in the greatest danger of coming wholly to grief.

"The Grain Growers, we are told, are extreme Radicals and the violence of their demands is in itself a barrier to their success. In certain political issues they are probably the best informed element of the Canadian electorate, but they are sadly ignorant and regardless of many of the broader facts and conditions of national life. They have undoubtedly great grievances, but they exaggerate them unduly, apparently on the principle that the most exaggerated statement is likely to be the most widely accepted. They fail to realize that they are part of a great nation and empire and that their organization does not yet include more than a minority even of Canadian farmers. As a result their present extremism is abhorrent to the hitherto opportunist Whiggism of the Liberals as to the tepid Conservatism of the Tories and a more moderate attitude would undoubtedly command wider sympathy on the part of the general community."

This is a very keen and very fair criticism. As to their actual influence in political contests, there is a tendency throughout the article to overestimate this.

The result of the last election for the provincial legislature in Manitoba recurs to mind. The Grain Growers made a dead set against the Roblin administration, but to most people's surprise the government made large gains in the rural ridings and lost ground in the towns and cities.

However, it may be that this verdict is correct as to the effect on the Liberal party: "Not a single Liberal candidate in a western rural constituency," we are told, "can hold his seat without the backing of the Grain Growers. They flatly proclaim that if the Liberal party does not adopt radical and progressive policies it must, in the west at least, be submerged. In short, the Liberal party in Canada must sooner or later be driven to become a Radical party, planning and advocating advanced legislation, such as the Australian and New Zealand democracies have put into effect."

This reference to the Grain Growers' attitude towards the main issue now before the Canadian people is of especial interest:

"They completely fail to recognize that, as grain exporters, they are probably more vitally interested in the Empire's naval supremacy than any other class in Canada. Evidently they regard any naval policy in Canada as the fruits of jingoistic capitalist ostentation and protectionist desire to consume revenues and avert lowering of tariffs. Their attitude illustrates one of the grave dangers of Imperialism in Canada. Devotion to the Empire has too often been tacitly assumed as a monopoly to be shared by the loyalists of Toronto and financial magnates, and as a result Imperialism has become to a certain degree suspect by the man in the street."

The Liberal party on this issue is apparently quite willing to line up with the Grain Growers, though up to the present it has made a pretence of being prepared to do something for the Empire. When the time comes for the registering of the opinion of the electors, however, there should be no doubt as to where Western Canada should stand.

CHANGES MADE.

has never recovered entirely from the effects of it. It has been necessary for Jay Kugler to leave the city and return to Vancouver to take a more active part in his father's affairs there owing to the fact that Mr. Kugler is not sufficiently strong to give the time to the business that he would wish to do.

With the removal from the city of Mr. Kugler there will be general regret, for he was one of the firmest friends that the city had, although he in no wise was ostentatious in his manner of making known his faith in the place.

In the changes that have taken place there is introduced into the business men who have a deep interest in the city and who are on the spot. The company should in no wise suffer, but, on the contrary, it is to be expected that there may be even greater energy shown in the affairs from a local standpoint than in the past.

The fact that Mr. Hobin is to remain with the company is a decided advantage to it. He is one of the most progressive of the younger element in the community and withall is not easily led into unsafe ground. He is a conservative business man and looks well to the interests of all intrusted to his care. There will be a general meeting of the company on July 7 for the purpose of electing a new board of directors and to transact other business.
