CANADA'S SECOND CONTINGENT IS CALLED FOR

GERMANS HAVE SUFFERED TERRIBLE LOSSES

FEBRUARY BANK STATEMENT SHOWS INCREASED DEPOSITS

Feature of the Monthly Return Is a Total Gain of Approximately $7,000,000 in Deposits—Current and Call Loans in Canada Both Increased About $1,500,000 — Current Loans Elsewhere Up Over $4,000,000 — Circulation Practically Unchanged.

The February statement of Canadian chartered banks shows fewer noteworthy changes than has been the case since the outbreak of the war. The outstanding feature of the return is an increase in both demand and savings deposits, the former showing a gain for the month of approximately $1,500,000 to $331,415,179, and the latter an increase of $5,120,000 to $671,088,613. As compared with the figures for February, 1914, demand deposits show a decrease of over $6,000,000, but savings deposits have increased during the year nearly $32,000,000. Deposits outside Canada increased about $300,000 during February, and now stand at $92,092,034. This figure is $17,000,000 less than a year ago. Bank note circulation at the end of the month stood at $97,789,392. This is an increase of less than $60,000 for the month. Last year circulation stood at about the same figure.

That there was comparatively little change in business conditions during February is indicated by the way the increased deposits were invested by the banks. Current loans in Canada stand at $771,635,208, an increase of just over $1,500,000 for the month—this increase corresponding almost exactly to the increase in demand, or current, deposits. As compared with February, 1914, current loans in Canada show a decrease of over $40,000,000. Current loans outside Canada are $12,500,000 less than a year ago, this item having been reduced some $300,000 during February.

Lack of demand for commercial loans is reflected by the increases reported in call loans. Call loans outside Canada were increased during February by over $4,000,000 to $89,890,982. Call loans in Canada show an increase of nearly $1,500,000, standing at $67,591,769 at the end of the month. It is quite possible that a further increase in call loans in Canada will be shown by the March statement. If this is the case, the contention that the banks are beginning to "loosen up" will be at least partially verified.

Current coin and Dominion notes in the hands of the banks at the end of February show little change for the month, the former standing at $66,125,031, and the latter at $138,727,871. Total assets stand at $1,525,052,085, an increase of less than $4,000,000, while liabilities total $1,281,079, an increase of over $3,500,000.

Principal figures of the February statement compare with the preceding month and February, 1914, as follows:

	Feb. 1915.	Jan. 1915.	Feb. 1914.

The Mayor's Thanks

I wish to warmly thank all my supporters for the hearty support given me in the mayoralty contest just closed. I am indeed surprised at my opponents in attempting so vicious a campaign upon the issue of what their organ stated to be a mere technicality, especially in view of their interests being so vitally bound up in the success of our financial arrangements. However, as I waged no campaign whatever, and did not personally solicit a single vote, my re-election is doubly gratifying to me, from the fact that the whole credit of my return belongs to my supporters. A year and a quarter ago I was elected by a majority of 87; this time by 86, with some two hundred of my former supporters having gone to the front to well and truly serve their empire. Surely, therefore, my present supporters should feel fully satisfied with the result of this contest. Again I thank them, with the assurance that I shall still strive to measure up to their expectations.

German Troops Have Been Annihilated Practically In Fighting With Allies

Paris, April 10.—An official statement between Meuse and Moselle, we retained all the ground gained. We also made fresh progress. Between the Orne and the Meuse there have been no engagements. "At Eparges the enemy has undertaken no action The day passed quietly, the whole position being in our power and the statement of prisoners emphasize the importance of our success over the Germans since the end of February. They had at this part of the front the entire twenty third division and the reserves which were necessary for this division. These were exhausted and the tenth active division composed of the best troops were brought up, this division has just been lost in a veritable fortress. The troops were frequently ordered to hold on at all costs. A general stated that the order to keep it would sacrifice the whole division. In the forest of Montmare we carried another line of trenches and repulsed a counter attack.

"To the north of Regnieville we consolidated and slightly extended our positions."

"In Lorraine half a company which rushed forward to as far as a village situated between our lines and the German lines was surrounded and captured."

HOSPITAL TICKETS TO BE EXPLAINED

MEETING WILL BE HELD IN CITY HALL NEXT THURSDAY EVENING

Employers of Labor and Workers Will be Asked To Attend

The Hospital Board met yesterday afternoon in the City Hall with the President O. H. Nelson in the chair. There were also present Wm. Manson, G. W. Morrow, Ald. Nicol, J. A. Kirkpatrick, W. P. Lynch, and O. Besner. The two latter were the new members recently elected to the Board. Dr. Wall, the house surgeon was also present.

A communication was read from the Medical Association relative to the nursing staff. The letter set forth that there was a necessity for two trained nurses to be added to the staff to increase the efficiency at the present time.

The matron reported also that there was need of an additional nurse.

Dr. Wall upon being consulted expressed the opinion that the need really existed. There was a shortage of trained help.

The Board discussed the question with respect to the financial aspect. It was felt that just at present the proposition of an increase could not be entertained. The Medical Association will be so advised. The communication was referred to the finance committee to consider.

The question of Hospital tickets was fully discussed at the meeting. It was decided to call a meeting on Thursday evening next in the City hall to go into the subject with employers of labor and with labor organizations.

A letter will be sent to those interested and an open conference will be held with the Board.

The question of planting shrubs and flowers at the grounds was referred to the Grounds committee with power to act.

AUSTRIA SEEKING HONORABLE PEACE

IT IS SAID THAT OTHER ALLIES ARE AGREEABLE TO RUSSIA MAKING SUCH

Only Restriction is that Serbia Must be Protected Under the Terms Made

Petrograd, April 10.—Negotiations to obtain an honorable peace have been opened by Francis Joseph Emperor of Austria-Hungary. Fear of "irreparable devastation" is the cause of the Austria move.

Britain and France have agreed to let Russia conclude a separate peace with Austria, provided Serbia is allowed to realize her aspirations. Russia demands the surrender of all Galacia, including Cracow.

Germany is expected to protest against the Russian occupation of Cracow as a menance to Prussian Silesia.

The Emperor has appealed to the Vatican to aid peace.

Abandon Serbia

Geneva, April 10.—The Austrian movement against Serbia is abandoned. The General Staff admits a loss of 26,000 men, two batteries of 12-inch mortars, twenty quick firers, and four miscellaneous batteries in the fighting on the Dukla-Epries front.

APPEAL TO CIVILIZED NATIONS ON BEHALF OF POLAND

In the midst of a terrible war attended by atrocious misery, the Demons of death and destruction now dispute the Empire of the world.

Thousands upon thousands of soldiers are dying on the field of battle, and millions of peaceful human beings are perishing of cold and hunger.

Two countries have been more especially the victims of these sanguinary conflicts. Two countries, but yesterday prosperous, are now wastes of desolation. These are Poland and Belgium.

The assistance given to Belgium has honored humanity. Poland, my country, now appeals for aid.

An area, seven times as vast as that of the realm of King Albert, has in Poland been crushed and devastated by the iron heel of war. The blood of our unhappy country cries out for divine justice. Her sons, compelled to fight in hostile armies, slay one another in fraticidal combat. From the banks of the Niemen to the summits of the Carpathians fire has destroyed the towns and villages and o'er the whole of this huge, desolated country the spectre of famine has spread out its wings.

All labor and industry has been swept away. The ploughshear is rusted; the peasant has neither grain nor cattle. The artisan is idle; all work and factories have been destroyed. The tradesman cannot sell his ware; there is no one to buy. The hearth is extinguished, and disease and misery prevail. The aged and infirm have no shelter from the cold and hardships of the winter weather. Little children, stretching out their arms to their mothers for bread, receive in answer—but tears.

Of such starving people, crying out for aid, listen to me Christian nations, there are millions.

Has Poland no right to your assistance?

Each unfortunate nation has such right in the name of Humanity, but the Polish nation has also other claims to plead her cause before the Universe. Conquered and torn asunder, she ever struggled against brutal force, remembering always her glorious past and ever affirming the sacred right of Liberty. For centuries she was the rampart of Civilization, the barrier of Christendom in its struggle with the Crescent. She ever fought side by side with all defenders of freedom. The names of Sobiski and Kosciuszko will be ever graven on your memory. Where was any generous cause in which Poland did not freely shed her blood? Where was human suffering, which by her means she did not attempt to alleviate? Our genius, our labor and our creative powers have left their imprint upon many pages of the World's History. Our voice ever rose in unison with the great call of civilized Humanity.

Therefore, in the name of universal fraternity, in the name of a country ever faithful to that sacred principle, in the name of the teachings of Christ, and of our past and present sufferings, to you Civilized Nations I appeal!

Help us to save my country from terrible distress. Let us give the laborer bread to restore his strength and seed, wherewith to reap his future harvest. May Polish mothers be enabled to give their famished children something more than tears. May the Polish Nation survive this hour of supreme trial and with renewed strength and hope await the dawn of her near Resurrection.

Second Contingent To Go Now

Ottawa, April 10.—Right Hon. Sir Robert Borden announced today that Viscount Kitchener had called for a second expeditionary force from Canada. This will mean the moving of the various regiments composing it from Canada to Europe.

Another Steamer Has Been Sunk

Rottendam, April 10.—The British steamer Harlyce under charter to the Belgium relief commission, has been either torpedoed or sunk by a mine in the North Sea, twenty-seven out of a crew of fifty-three have been accounted for.

Aviators Are Now Wanted

Lieut.-Col. J. Duff-Stuart, commanding the 23rd Infantry Brigade with headquarters in Vancouver, has receiver order authorizing him to accept men desiring to volunteer for the British aviation corps. Mechanics are the class chiefly desired, men with an intimate acquaintance with gas engines. Previous experience in flying will, of course, be an advantage, but it is not expected that many so equipped will come forward. The men will have to volunteer on the understanding that they will have to take their chances of progress in the corps after arriving in England, where they will have to undergo the rigorous course of instruction prescribed for the corps.

much better than he had expected. There has been evidence of activity in the mining industry which indicates that many are getting into the hills in an effort to develope the mineral wealth.

In Vancouver, Mr. Dierick says, it is quite evident the bottom has been reached. There is a tendency toward improvment now which he thinks should continue to increase. Within six months time, he would not be surprised he says, to see excellent times in the province of B.C.

FISH RETURNS OFF BRITISH COAST

WHAT THE INDUSTRY MEANS TO DIFFERENT PARTS OF HOMELAND.

Many Kinds of Fish Contribute to the Wealth of Those Engaged.

In the annual report on the sea and inland fisheries of Ireland for 1913, it is noted that the decline in the quantity of fish landed and in the number of boats and men employed, which was pointed out in previous annual reports, still continues, the decreased quantity being partly explained by the comparatively poor mackerel fisheries and the suspension of trawling at Dublin owing to labor troubles. The decrease in fishing boats is, however, accompanied by an increase in high-powered motor vessels. In 1913 there were 5,093 vessels actually engaged in the sea fisheries as against 5,198 in 1912, a decrease of 105; of the total, thirteen were steam trawlers, while 359 sailers and thirty-eight motor boats also carried on trawling; most of the others were engaged in long-lining, thirty-five having motor engines. There were 17,823 men and 251 boys employed—800 fewer men and 101 less boys than in 1912. About 4,000 persons were engaged in the lobster and crab fisheries, about 350 in taking mussels, 280 in picking cockles, and 2,300 in gathering periwinkles.

The Fish Landed.

According to the returns, the total of sea fish (other than shellfish) landed was 676,392 cwt., valued at £294,625 as compared with 894,144 cwt. and £306,786, or decreases of 217,752 cwt. and £12,161. The quantity landed was less on all the coasts, but the value increased on the north and east coasts. The average price per cwt. was 8s. 9d. against 6s. 10d. in 1912. Soles, turbots, brill, cod, haddocks, hake, mackerel, rays and skates, and whiting diminishing in quantity and value; conger eel, herrings and ling decreased in quantity but had higher value, while plaice increased both in quantity and value. Mussels, cockles and lobsters increased in quantity and value; periwinkles and oysters decreased in quantity and value. The total value of the shellfish is placed at £63,922, as against £60,581 in 1912. The amount of fish, excluding herrings, mackerel, shellfish, salmon and trout, which passed through the Dublin market was 3,256 tons, or 1,170 tons less than in 1912. This was owing to the labor troubles causing the steam trawlers to work from other ports. Cod was the chief fish landed, then came whiting and hake, and in lesser quantities rays, pollock, ling, gurnard, plaice, megrims, black soles, brill and turbot.

The Mackerel Catch.

The catch of spring mackerel in 1912 was 118,253 cwt. valued at £32,165, while in 1913 it was only 74,276 cwt. of a value of £22,244. The average price per cwt. rose from 5s. 5d. in 1912 to 6s. in 1913. The number of barrels cured for export was only 3,571 as compared with 17,805 in 1912, while 2,225 cases of tinned mackerel were sent to the United States. In the autumn fishery the catch amounted to 124,791 cwt. valued at £41,422, as against 167,903 cwt. and £44,927 in 1912; 30,402 barrels were cured for export, as against 44,445. The early part of the season was very unproductive, and about one-third of the catch was obtained in January and February, 1914. The department continued its work in curing mackerel for the American market, where the branded fish have earned a good reputation. In all 223 barrels were cured, the net prices realized being £1 12s. 3d. for No. 2 grade at Philadelphia, £1 7s. 6d. for No. 3 grade at Philadelphia, and £1 8s. 11d. at Baltimore, and £1 5s 6d. for No. 4 grade at Philadelphia, and £1 1s. 11d. at Baltimore.

The Herring Fisheries.

The catch of herring in the summer fishing (May 1 to October 31) was 229,000 cwt., valued at £93,000 as compared with 252,000 cwt. and £79,300 in the previous year—a decrease of 23,000 cwt. and an increase of £13,700. The aggregate cure was 42,117 barrels, 4,762 half-barrels, and 8,000 boxes kippered. In the winter fishing the catch was 142,000 cwt., valued at £37,580, as against 208,000 cwt. and £68,332. The larger part of the decrease was at Buncrana and Downings. Great damage to nets from dogfish was reported. The total cure amounted to 14,090 barrels, compared with 34,590 barrels in the previous season. The Irish Crown Brand for pickled herrings which, it is stated, continues to grow in favor with curers and continental buyers, was availed of in 1913 by two curers, one at Howth and at the other at Cloger Head. The number of barrels branded was 8,540½, which was a considerable proportion of the total cure. In 1912 the number was 10,894 barrels, and in 1911 4,814½ barrels. Curers generally were able to sell their branded herrings at the place of cure, while unbranded herrings had mostly to be "consigned" to German markets, a large proportion being sold at a sacrifice.

Loans to Fishermen.

During the year ended March, 1914, ninety-seven applications for loans were received from 144 persons, the amount asked being £15,990 13s., ninety-four loans, amounting to £15,765 were granted to 141 persons. The department continued to assist by loans to fishermen, in the development of mechanically propelled fishing craft, but this development reached such a stage that the funds were unable to meet all the demands, and a loan of £4,000 at 3 per cent. interest, was obtained from the Development Commissioners. Since April 1, 1900, £81,543 has been granted as loans, repayments having amounted to £50,865, outstanding notes not arrived at maturity represent £36,455, arrears are £2,055, and bad debts written off only £344, or less than 1 per cent.

Scotch Fisheries in January.

The returns from Scotland for January, 1915, show a large decrease. The quantity landed was 198,350 cwt., valued at £154,272, as against 584,763 cwt. and £228,910 in January last year. The only fishes which showed increased quantity were sparlings (smelts), catfish, hake, lemon soles and megrims, while sprats, sparlings, tusk, gurnards, catfish, anglers, hake, lemon soles and megrims increased in value. There was a large decline in herrings, from 361,251 cwt. and £85,227 to 76,435 cwt. and £34,151—decreases of 284,816 cwt. and £51,076. Cod decreased by 21,141 cwt., but only by £167, while haddocks showed decreases of 14,509 cwt. and £5,567. Halibut fell from 1,074 cwt. and £3,474 to 555 cwt. and 2,120; lemon soles increased from 1,308 cwt. to £4,259 to 1,788 cwt. and £6,745. The general appreciation in the price of fish is indicated by the figures for sprats. In January last year the quantity was 4,672 cwt., valued at £486; last month the quantity was only 1,986 cwt., but the value was £754.

Trawlers at Aberdeen made 731 landings against 892 in January, 1914; they landed 59,261 cwt., valued at £64,971 against 115,554 cwt. and £85,560, the average catch being 81.0 cwt. worth 21s. 11d. per cwt., against 129.5 cwt. and 14s. 9½d. Steam liners made twenty-four against sixty-four landings; the catch was 3,858 cwt., worth £4,774, against 10,843 cwt. and £5,479; the average catch was 160.6 cwt. worth 24s. 8¾., as against 169.4 cwt. and 10s. 1½d.

MORE OPTIMISM IS APPARENT IN WEST

Financial Outlook Everywhere Improved and Manufacturers Have Been Busier Than In Previous Years.

"People who have been most timid with regard to the financial situation in Canada are becoming more optimistic. The announcement that Canadian Pacific Railway earnings were $507,000 higher in February this year than February last year is one of the signs of the times. From now on (says the "Canadian Curier") the railway earnings should exceed those of last year. There has been some question of the C. P. R. dividend, a few pessimists predicting a reduction. With increased earnings and improved prospects there is practically no danger of a reduction.

"Some of the pessimism is due to a misunderstanding of the annual reports which are coming out. These relate only to business up to Dec. 31, and do not include business results obtained in the first three months of 1915. These months of January, February and March have been much better than the last three months of 1914. The manufacturers have been busier. Municipalities have found it easier to finance, and hence have increased their activities.

"As spring advances conditions must improve. The prospects for a bumper crop in 1915 are better than in any year during the past decade. Retail merchants, even in the West, are ordering more freely, because their stocks are too low to meet even the ordinary requirements of the present economical period.

"Investors should not be misled by reports of last year's business. Nearly every company in Canada will show larger profits in 1915 than they did in 1914."

NORWEGIAN FISH INDUSTRY REVIEW

FACTS PREPARED ABOUT FISHERIES OF NORWAY FOR YEAR 1914.

Figures Gleaned From Report Have Much to Interest Local Industry.

The Fish Trades Gazette in their issue of February 27, 1915, published a review of the fisheries of Norway in the year 1914, which is submitted herewith for the information of those interested in the Canadian fishing industry and desirous of being acquainted with conditions in competitive sources of supply.

Outstanding Features.

The statistics of the fisheries of Norway last year are not yet published, but a review of them is given in the last number of the Norsk Fiskeritidende, from which the following account is taken. The cod fishery gave a result over the average as to quantity, and considerably over it as to value. The good prospects in the dried-fish markets allowed a higher average price to be paid to the fishermen. The quantity cured as split-fish was larger than in 1913, and the disposal of the product was good until the outbreak of the war, which disturbed business, with the consequence that the stocks at the end of the year were greater than for a long time. The cod fishery itself did not start very well, but things improved, and the aggregate catch was 57,900,000 fish as compared with 41,200,000 in 1913 and 62,400,000 in 1912. The Lofoten fishery was very poor, and that at Tromso province and outside the Lofotens was also poor, but in Rmsdal prvince the catch was unprecedentedly large, viz., 12,000,000 fish. The "Lodde" (capelan) fishery at Finmarken for small cod and codling began in the last days of March, and yielded 23,600,000 fish, as compared with 34,300,000 in 1913 and 33,700,000 in 1912. The prices were exceptionally high. The aggregate catch of cod (full-grown fish, or "skrei" and "loddetorsk," or capelan-caught small cod) amounted to 81,500,000, of which 17,900,000 were "hung" for drying as stock-fish and 60,000,000 salted for split-fish.

Herring Fisheries.

These were rather unequal, the "large" and the "spring" fisheries giving less returns than in 1913, and the quantity salted was less. The stocks at the end of the previous year were large, and the great Yarmouth fishing in 1913 kept prices down. In this instance, however, things brightened very much after the outbreak of war, and the demand for Norwegian herrings became active at good prices, and the whole stocks were soon cleared off. The catch of "fat" herrings was larger than in 1913, but they were generally of small size. The war here also soon cleared off the fish, and the financial returns were good. The "large" fishery began late, and little was caught before Christmas (1913); it improved in January and February. The total catch was about 220,000 crans, of which 128,300 crans were iced for export, 79,850 crans were salted, and the rest used for home consumption. The value was about 3,300,000 kroner, as compared with 4,200,000 in the previous year. The total catch in the spring fishery amounted to about 717,000 crans, against 1,000,000 crans in 1913. The average price was only 3.55 kroner per cran, the total value being about 2,545,000 kroner. The fat-herring fishery also began late, and though the quantity was less than in the previous year, the value was greater owing to the high prices. The catch was about 500,000 crans, as compared with 170,000 crans in 1913 and 336,000 in 1912. The average price was 11 kroner per cran, the aggregate amounting to about 5,330,000 kroner. About 23,000 crans were iced and 212,000 crans were sold to the herring-oil factories; 254,000 barrels were salted, against 106,000 in 1913 and 231,000 in 1912. The drift-net fishing in the North Sea was a small affair, yielding only 2,900 barrels, as compared with 9,900 in 1913 and 20,900 in 1912. At Iceland the Norwegians salted 148,664 barrels, the Icelanders 71,742 barrels, the Danes 24,960, the Swedes 25,972, and the Germans 1,950 barrels.

This is of great importance to the tinning industry, and it was not very good in 1914. On the old grounds in the Stavanger Fjord and Sondhordland the sprats were practically not to be got. Later they were secured in the Hardanger, at North Bergenhus province, and Romsdal. The total brought to Stavanger, which is the headquarters of the "sardine" tinning industry, was 245,000 "skjaepper" (half bushels, equal to 21.13 quarts), valued at 938,000 kroner, as compared with 208,500 skjaepper, valued at 882,500 kroner. The supply was insufficient for the factories, which therefore used a much larger quantity of small herrings and mixed catches of herrings and sprats than formerly, viz., 514,000 skjaepper, respectively, in 1913. The value of the small herrings was 851,000 kroner, and of the mixed catches 831,000 kroner.

Mackerel.

The fishery for the American market (Dorgemakrelfisket), which takes place in the North Sea, began better than in the previous year, but was interfered with on the outbreak of the war, the grounds being exposed to the possible warlike operations of the belligerent fleets. The fishery closed much earlier than usual on this account, and the catch amounted to 35,512 barrels, as compared with 42,949 barrels in 1913 and 48,699 barrels in 1912. The prices were fairly uniform throughout, about 90 ore per kilogramme for No. 1's down to 30 ore for No. 5's. The average price was higher than in 1913, and the aggregate value was etimated at about 1,978,000 kroner. About 18,000 barrels were brought into Norwegian ports by Swedish vessels, nearly all to Kristiansand. The coast mackerel fishery yielded between 12,000,000 and 14,000,000 fish, valued at about 1,300,000 kroner. About a million and a half were salted and split, and 421,000 kilogrammes were exported fresh, against 735,000 kilos. in the previous year.

WILL GIVE BALL FOR THE HOSPITAL

COMMITTEE HAS BEEN NAMED TO TAKE MATTER UP AND ARRANGE DATE

Proposal is to Make it a Means of Raising Money for the Institution

As one means of raising funds for the Hospital it was proposed at the meeting of the Directors yesterday afternoon that a ball should be given. A committee has been named to go fully into the subject and report at once. It will co-operate with the Ladies Auxiliary of the hospital.

G. W. Morrow at the meeting felt that there could be considerable money raised by such a ball. He said other places held these and it afforded a large number to contribute to the funds of the institution.

It was decided to name a committee as follows: G. W. Morrow, J. A. Kirkpatrick, O. Besner and T. Maitland.

METHODIST SERVICES

Rev. G. H. Hamilton will occupy the pulpit of the Methodist Church today. He will preach both morning and evening.

SYNOPSIS OF COAL MINING REGULATIONS.

Coal mining rights of the Dominion in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, the Yukon Territory, the Northwest Territories and a portion of the Province of British Columbia, may be leased for a term of twenty-one years at an annual rental of $1 per acre. Not more than 2,560 acres will be leased to one applicant.

Applications for a lease must be made by the applicant in person to the Agent or Sub-Agent of the district in which the rights applied for are situated.

In surveyed territory the land must be described by sections, or legal subdivisions of sections, and in unsurveyed territory the tract applied for shall be staked out by the applicant himself.

Each application must be accompanied by a fee of $5, which will be refunded if the rights applied for are not available, but not otherwise. A royalty shall be paid on the merchantable output of the mine at the rate of five cents per ton.

The person operating the mine shall furnish the Agent with sworn returns accounting for the full quantity of merchantable coal mined and pay the royalty thereon. If the coal mining rights are not being operated, such returns should be furnished at least once a year.

The lease will include the coal mining rights only; but the lessee may be permitted to purchase whatever available surface rights may be considered necessary for the working of the mine at the rate of $10 per acre.

For full information application should be made to the Secretary of the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, or to any Agent or Sub-Agent of Dominion Lands.
