SUDDDN DEATH OF FRANK MORGAN

WELL KNOWN RESIDENT OF PRINCE RUPERT DIED WHILE OUT WALKING

His Father And Mother Reached City Yesterday Morning.

The citizens received a decided shock on Sunday evening when it became known that F. E. Morgan, chief clerk in the Provincial Government officers here had died. He was about an hour or two before in the best of health to all appearance. He had started out on a walk, as was his habit on Sunday afternoon, and was proceeding along the railway track in the direction of the harbor entrance. Seized with heart failure or an apoplectic stroke, he had sunk down on the tracks and died shortly afternoon. He was in a dying condition when found.

The deceased was familiarly known in the city as "Doc" Morgan. Coming into the city about seven years ago as a newspaper correspondent, he had remained here ever since. He became very popular and was respected by a wide circle of friends. As a mark of the esteem in which he was held, the flags of the city were all half-masted yesterday.

The body was discovered by two foreigners who had passed him a few minutes before. Coming back, they

COLD STORAGE STAFF GIVES THE FIRST MACHINE GUN

Gen. Hughes Has An Offer Telegraphed Him Yesterday By Local Fishing Company---Quick Action Was Taken

With commendable zeal the officers of the Canadian Fish & Cold Storage Company have provided the means of providing a machine gun for the Canadian forces at the front. Action was taken yesterday at a meeting called at the offices of the company at Seal Cove.

It was decided to raise $1,000 and place it at the disposal of the Minister of Militia. This has been done. The gun so furnished, is the first to be provided from here.

Washington, July 26.—The reply of Great Britain has been received answering to protests made by the United States against the blocade under the British order-in-council.

Prince Rupert Men Did Not Falter When Subjected To Rain Of Bullets

Major Peck Describes The Incidents Connected With The Dash From The Trenches To The Enemy's Quarters---Local Men Fought Determinedly Through The Night To Dislodge The Germans---Incidents Leading Up To The Severe Test When Commanding Officer Was Wounded And Captain Don. Moore Was Probably Killed

The greatest interest was manifested on Sunday morning in the most graphic account furnished by Major Peck, of the movements of the first contingent from here, in a letter written to the editor of the Journal. In the following, the remainder of the letter is given with the account of the terrible charge made by the local men.

Orders Received To Take Part In Charge Upon The Enemy Under Withering Fire

We thought an attack was on, and worried about the boys in the trenches. I went out to have a look with Williams. As we passed around the ruin, several shells struck it. How we ever "got by" was marvellous—such showers of brick and lead! However, all seemed well with the trenches, and after about two hours the most of the shelling ceased, and became fairly normal again.

Rumors Of Attack.

That afternoon we got rumors of an attack in the evening, and some officers of other Canadian battalions came up to look over the situation. It was nearly six when I got word we were to be in it.

Major Rae came up to look after the operations. He came about 6:30, and we did our best to look over the situation.

The artillery was to shell the whole position of the enemy until 7:45, when we were to attack with the 15th Regiment and the 5th Royal Scots, of Montreal, attacking on the right. It was very unfortunate that we had not more time to reconnoitre the situation and see that the artillery thoroughly shelled the points of attack. However, we did the best we could, and hurriedly made preparations.

Important Assignment.

No. 3 Company were on the left, and were to attack an orchard, while my company was to bring up their shovels and then attack a house on the right.

The men left their packs and great coats in piles behind the trenches. Capt. Moore was to go ahead with No. 1 and 2 platoons, and I was to come along with No.'s 3 and 4 in reserve.

Wounded In Fight.

The artillery stopped at 7:45 and we were out of the trenches like a flash. I waited a moment to see they all got out, and then ran across in front of them. I was shot through the thigh just then, and had to limp badly, but managed to get about.

The Last Time Major Peck Saw Capt. Don. Moore Was Under Fire

An old German breast-work led diagonally across towards the point of attack. We went up along this. When I got up near the house, I saw Capt. Don Moore and his men charging through a huge gap in this breast-work.

I came up and through the gap and stood behind a brick wall talking to him a short distance off. He was coolly setting there with his revolver in his left band, (I remember that).

I said we would have to charge the house, which he concurred in, but remarked that he was losing many men. The house was full of machine guns, and the air was literally full of flying lead.

I said I would get more men, and ran through the gap again. No. 3 platoon was just coming up, and I told them to get ready to charge through the gap.

An Awful Slaughter.

They were just preparing, when someone said "the others are charging." I looked over the breast-

A Machine Gun For Contingent

Local citizens have set out to raise a sufficient fund to purchase a machine gun for the last contingent that left here. This will cost about $1,000. L. M. De Gex, manager of the Bank of Commerce has undertaken the task, starting off the subscription list with R. L. McIntosh for $50 each today. The list is in the Bank of Commerce. It is the intention to have the same raised by August 4, the anniversary of the declaration of war. Yesterday $135 was raised. The subscriptions were as follows:

R. L. McIntosh	$50
L. M. DeGex	$50
C. C. Purdy	$20
C. S. Garden	$ 5

A STIRRING LETTER.

The letter from Major Peck, which has been published in the Journal is one that shows that in him the first contingent that left Prince Rupert has a worthy commanding officer. Throughout the letter there is breathed the finest sentiments of sympathy with the men serving under him. At no stage will Major Peck needlessly sacrifice his men.

It is evident from the letter that Capt Don Moore has paid the penalty of patriotic service. There will be more than ordinary regret at this news, for Capt. Moore was justly popular.

A LAUDABLE GIFT.

The gift of a machine gun, which has been made by the officials of the Canadian Fish & Cold Storage Company, is a timely one, and is such as will be greatly appreciated by the soldiers at the front. The spirit prompting the gift is one that might be emulated by other concerns. The local citizens are being stirred to act along similar lines. It is reported that the cannerymen of the Skeena may do something similar.

COLD STORAGE STAFF

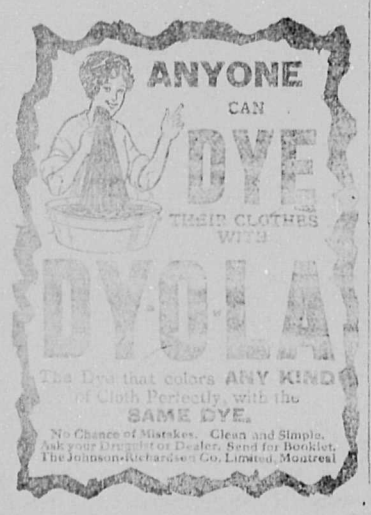
The following message sent, explains the action:

Gen. Sam Hughes July 26, 1915.
Minister of Militia,
Ottawa, Ont.

At a spontaneous meeting held tonight in the offices of the Canadian Fish & Cold Storage Company Limited, Prince Rupert, it was decided to purchase a machine gun, with funds to be subscribed by the employees of the above mentioned company. The heads of departments present, collectively and individually, guarantee that the sum of one thousand dollars be collected and forwarded within seven days, so that the gun can be forwarded to France, P. D. Q. a certified cheque will be forwarded accordingly. The employees of this company respectively present this gun to your department for use by the Canadian overseas forces for disposal at the discretion of the department.

J. W. NICHOLLS,
Hon. Sect. of the committee.



Ald. Casey's Motion Failed

At the council meeting last evening Ald. Casey introduced a motion condeming the action of members of the Irish Fusiliers in interfering with Chas. Lester while speaking on the street. It condemned the course as being calculated to strike at the liberties of the British people, and further proclaimed the right at all times to speak on the streets, when nothing objectionable was said. The motion was not seconded, and so never reached a vote.

Prince Rupert Men Did Not Falter

works and saw them trying to charge. But it seemed to me every man fell. Nobody could live in that death-rain of lead. I also saw some barbed wire entanglements near the house. Only a dozen men came back of those two platoons.

I resolved to waste no more lives on this effort, without support.

I sent over to Capt. Morrison of No. 3 Company, who had occupied the orchard, asking for a platoon, but he had lost heavily and was very hard pressed, and could spare no men; but advised sending for reinforcements. I left Lieut. Wallis, of Victoria, who behaved very gallantly in command to hold the breast-work until we were reinforced.

I then went back along the trench to find the Prince Rupert platoon, which had not yet arrived.

Milburn's Death.

I found that their leader, Sergt. Milburn, of Fort George, had been killed when leaving the trench, and the men did not know what was to be done. I was greatly attached to Sergt. Milburn, who was a very brave and promising fellow, loved by all.

I put Corp. Carr, of Terrace, in charge and told him to go up with the platoon to support Lieut. Wallis. Poor fellow, he had only got out of my sight when he was badly wounded, and the men were leaderless again.

I met the major (Gibson) filing past, and he gave me some morphine pills, which helped me for a while. I got back to my headquarters and phoned to the colonel.

The Tragedies Of A Battle Fought During The Hours Of The Night

Everything was a tremendous tragedy that night. Officers and troops coming and going; the wounded passing in endless procession, reports of my brave men killed, each one causing a heart pang—a grand finale for me, for the time being in that great death play of war—grand, awful, and such a stage-view as one shields one's eyes from.

Tragedy Of War.

The battalions on our right beaten back, parties of stretcher bearers and wounded shelled to pieces—the signallers killed and wires shot away—ration parties cut off almost to a man—everything a great whirlwind of death-dealing war.

I relayed messages to Major Rae for a while, whose headquarters and our poor machine guns had been shot away.

Went Back Again.

About twelve I resolved to get back to see how things were going with my company, and with the help of Lieut. Locke, and a brave young soldier named Lyons from Victoria, I got back up the breast-work to where my company—all that was left of them—were "standing like a stone wall" waiting an attack or any old thing.

Capt. Moore Lost.

I was particularly anxious about Capt. Moore, my cousin, business associate and companion from my boyhood. I could learn nothing of him. The last thing I did was to pledge an officer to get the stretcher-bearers to try and get him out. He had lots of Irish blood with all an Irishman's gay defiance of danger, and would as coolly look on danger and death, as he would raise a man in a poker game on a couple of deuces.

Relief In Sight.

We had orders about 1 p.m., that the 16th, (all that was left of them), were to be relieved. After talking dluover the situation with Major Rae, I resolved to wait for a while, and then go over to the dressing station, as I could not get across country with the company.

I remember a man rushing up and calling me.

I said, "who wants me."

He said "I'm an old 30th Battalion man, I'll take you out."

I told him I was not badly wounded, and my orderly would take me out.

Compliment To Men.

It does one so much good to have these loyal souls about you. Our fellows are so grand and self-sacrificing when the hour of danger is full upon them.

About 2 p.m. I went out with young Lyons, of Victoria, helping me along. We passed along that terrible death-road, where our wounded had been carried out. For a thousand yards there was not 15 feet that was not marked with a shell. Dead men and wrecked stretchers everywhere. When we got to the dressing station, our terrible enemy had shelled that too.

I found I would have to go out. I remember young Lyons coolly remarked he was going back for his pack, which he did; up that road, and also brought back my field-glasses.

Well, I was shot out by automobile and train, reaching England on Sunday. That's the end of the story so far.

Ordered Back.

I have just this moment received orders to go to the front again at 4 p.m., and I must hurriedly close.

This letter has spun out tremendously to a great length, very much more than I had calculated.

However, I hope it may prove interesting. What I want Prince Rupert and northern people to know, is that the troops that represent them at the front are true blue, and as good as any of the gallant Canadians who have covered themselves with glory, and whose name is on every tongue.

W. A. Noble's Injuries.

Many of those brave men have been killed—they died with their boots on! Many have been wounded, some for life. Poor Walter Noble leaves in a short time for Canada minus an eye, but cheerful and philosophic—willing to make the sacrifice for the Empire.

Whatever happens the rest of us I don't know, but I'll promise that if they beat us, we'll keep the flies off of them while their doing it.

C. W. PECK,
Shorncliffe,
July 5, 1915.

Is Business Slow?

It probably serves you right

You are not letting the public know what you have

That is the Solution

That manufacturers should increase their advertising appropriations during a period of business depression and curtail during the years of prosperity, was the opinion advanced by Roger Babson, the financial and business statistician, at a meeting of the Technical Publicity Association, held in New York.

"Directors of your company regard advertising as a luxury to be cut down when business is poor," said Mr. Babson. "They give you orders what to do rather than you giving them orders.

"If you solved this advertising problem in a scientific way you would tell them what to do, the same as their lawyers and their bankers tell them.

"In a year of prosperity they are willing to give you a big advertising appropriation, and when the reaction comes they cut down to almost nothing. Take the big appropriation in the fat years and salt it away for use in the lean years.

"If you all did this the business of the country would move along more evenly; the business boom would be less, and the reaction, the area of business depression, smaller."

SUDDEN DEATH

came upon his body where he had suddenly sunk down near Morse Creek. They tried to give him help, for he was then alive and able to speak a little. A phone message was sent to the city and Dr. Cade and the police arrived. No aid could then be afforded.

A particularly distressing feature of the event, was the fact that his father and mother, both well advanced in years, arrived by the steamer yesterday from the south, having come west to vist him and his sister, Mrs. Seal at Granby Smelter. They were horified when the news was broken to them this morning of the death of their son.

Mr. Morgan was about 45 years of age. He was married, his wife and two children living in Hamilton.

Before coming west, he followed newspaper work in Toronto, having been identified with the Globe, the Mail and the Star at different times.

He came to Prince Rupert, and for a time acted as correspondent here. Later he entered the Provincial Government service here. The funeral services will be held on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock in Hayner's Chapel. The government offices will be closed for business from 12 to 3 p.m. The body will be taken east to Hamilton for interment.

CITY WILL PUT PIPE IN ORDER

THE WATER HERE WILL BE WEDGED UP WHERE NECESSARY

The Watchman Will Be Put In Charge To Do Work.

The pipe line from Woodworth to Shawatlans will be put in order by wedging up where necessary. This is in compliance with the report of the electrical engineer T. C. Duncan, who pointed out there were places that need this.

The Mayor said this came as somewhat of a surprise. He had thought that the late city engineer had left everything in good shape.

Ald. Kerr said nothing was seriously wrong. In company with Ald. Casey and Maitland he had visited the place. This work should be done.

Ald. Maitland detailed the wedging needed.

The Mayor thought there should be time allowed to go into this by the Board of Works.

Ald. Nicol said the city engineer knew of these necessary changes. He did not know why the watchman did not drive these wedges in.

Ald. Casey did not want delay. The blocking should have been done before.

It was decided to start the wedging at once.

SYNOPSIS OF COAL MINING REGULATIONS.

Coal mining rights of the Dominion in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, the Yukon Territory, the Northwest Territories and a portion of the Province of British Columbia, may be leased for a term of twenty-one years at an annual rental of $1 per acre. Not more than 2,560 acres will be leased to one applicant.

Applications for a lease must be made by the applicant in person to the Agent or Sub-Agent of the district in which the rights applied for are situated.

In surveyed territory the land must be described by sections, or legal subdivisions of sections, and in unsurveyed territory the tract applied for shall be staked out by the applicant himself.

Each application must be accompanied by a fee of $5, which will be refunded if the rights applied for are not available, but not otherwise. A royalty shall be paid on the merchantable output of the mine at the rate of five cents per ton.

The person operating the mine shall furnish the Agent with sworn returns accounting for the full quantity of merchantable coal mined and pay the royalty thereon. If the coal mining rights are not being operated, such returns should be furnished at least once a year.

The lease will include the coal mining rights only; but the lessee may be permitted to purchase whatever available surface rights may be considered necessary for the working of the mine at the rate of $10 per acre.

For full information application should be made to the Secretary of the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, or to any Agent or Sub-Agent of Dominion Lands.
