AUSTRIA PROTESTS AT ITALY'S MOVE

ITALIAN MINISTER HAS SENT FIRM REPLY

THE TURKISH FORCES ARE MAKING ANOTHER STAND

THE GERMANS AND ALLIES ARE DIVIDING HONORS

Austrian Protest Made Against Italy Which Firmly Replied

Milan, Jan. 8.—The Secolo asserts that Count Von Bucktold, the Austrian minister of foreign affairs, has sent a note to Italy protesting against the Italian occupation of Avlona in Albania.

Baron Sidney Sonnino, the Italian minister of foreign affairs, has sent a firm reply to the note received.

Delayed in Leaving.

Turkish Army Is Now Making Another Offensive Movement

Petrograd, Jan. 8.—An official statement says the Turks have apparently made a fresh rally in order to relieve the predicament of the tenth army corps, part of which was reformed hurriedly after the battle of Sari Kamysh. The Turks have again taken the offensive vigorously in the vicinity of Karaourgan.

The situation is unchanged at present on the other fronts.

CONTRACTOR'S CLAIM FOR HALF A MILLION

Messrs. Foley, Welch & Stewart Are Defendants in Suit Concerning Drilling of Tunnel.

A case involving a claim for $527,000 damages has started in Vancouver before Mr. Justice Clements and two assessors, the suit of Messrs. J. McIlvie & Sons, Denver, Col., against Messrs. Foley, Welch & Stewart. The trial is expected to last a couple of weeks, and will involve much expert evidence, engineers, geologists and other professional men being here from all over the continent to give evidence. Mr. S. S. Taylor, K.C., is chief counsel for the plaintiff company, and Mr. E. P. Davis is for the defendants.

The suit arises out of the drilling of the tunnel through the Selkirk Mountains, which will ultimately provide a way for the Canadian Pacific Railway, instead of the present ascent of the Rogers Pass. The defendants are the contractors in chief for this work and sublet the drilling of the rock work to the McIlvie concern. A disagreement resulted in the cancellation of the contract after some four or five months' work had been done, the greater portion of the work being done on a pioneer bore, which was designed to give access to the main working.

The total claim is made up of $250,000 loss of profits, it being alleged that they were improperly deprived of their contract, and the balance is asked for to make up for loss of bonus for speedy performance of the work.

The defence is that the contract was cancelled because of improper action on the part of the McIlvie company, and that they cannot claim a bonus, as that was only due when the work was completed and, owing to the nature of the rock, progress would have been slower as the bore was driven further into the mountain.

GRADUATING BALL FOR THE NURSES

HOSPITAL BOARD DECIDE TO HOLD FUNCTION IN CONNECTION.

A Committee Composed of Len Bell and J. A. Kirkpatrick Will Have It In Charge.

About the end of January it is expected that a dance will be given by the nurses of the City Hospital in honor of the graduating class—the first class of nurses to take out their diplomas from the institution. The function will be under the auspices of the board of directors and the officers of the hospital. This was decided upon at a meeting of the board held yesterday.

The diplomas for the class have been received and await the putting in of the names of those who pass, with the signatures of the necessary officials of the hospital. These are covered with pebbled leather, neatly bound, similar to the ones used in the Vancouver General Hospital. It is expected that the formal presentation of these will take place at the function that is being arranged. A committee consisting of Len Bell and J. A. Kirkpatrick was appointed to look after the arrangements.

Mr. Bell offered the McIntyre Hall for the purpose and in view of the fact that a fancy ball is to be held there possibly a few evenings before the other the decorations will be in place also. The dance will be by invitation of the nurses.

A resolution passed by the Royal Columbian Hospital Board at New Westminster was read at the meeting yesterday in which it was urged that the Government should increase the per capita allowance by about double the amount now in vogue and grant other privileges to hospitals to raise funds in an endeavor to put the hospitals in the province on a sounder financial basis. This was referred to the finance committee to investigate and report upon.

PARLIAMENT WILL PROVIDE PENSIONS FOR DEPENDENTS

Ottawa, Jan. 8.—To provide pensions for widows and dependents of soldiers who lose their lives or are disabled at the front, it is estimated that ten million dollars will be required every year for each fifty thousand men in the field.

The initial appropriations will be made at the coming session of Parliament. The exact scale has not yet been determined, but it will be very considerably increased over the rate which heretofore has prevailed. It is being dealt with by a special subcommittee.

Expenditures for clothing, equipment, etc., of the expeditionary forces so far have aggregated about twenty millions, and have involved over five thousand separate contracts.

INDIAN WOUNDED FOR BRIGHTON

ORIENTAL PAVILION HAS BEEN MADE READY FOR THEM.

His Majesty Took an Active Part in the Move for This Work.

The most romantic incident in Brighton's history is now being enacted, says the Brighton Herald. Our Oriental Royal Pavilion has been turned into a hospital for our Oriental soldiers. Hundreds of dusky warriors from far India, sorely wounded while fighting our battles on the stricken field of France, are to be nursed back, so we trust, to health and activity in those bizarre and beautiful buildings that are Brighton's distinctive pride.

There is something peculiarly romantic in the whole story. "East is East, and West is West," but here the twain do meet—in spite of Kipling. Here in our midst for a century or more have we had this Royal pavilion, compounded oddly but interestingly of all manner of eastern styles, Hindu or Mahommedan without, Moorish, Arabian and Chinese within. People who did not know Brighton have wondered at those domes and minarets which have lifted themselves above the slate roofs and the chimneys of our commonplace west. The pavilion had stood in Brighton like an architectural exile from Asia. Now it has come into something like its own as an abode for the people from whose continent it came. It is a romantic chapter in the history of the British Empire that brought men from the Ganges and the Indus to fight on the Aisne and the Yser. How much more is it romantic for Brighton to have these eastern men brought to its eastern pavilion. Imagine dark-skinned Gurkhas lying under the great vault of the dome, looking up to where the sunlight comes through in many-colored arabesques of glass and gleams on the gilded edges of Saracenic pillars and arches. Or perchance their bright eyes rove among the glittering intricacies of the great central chandelier hanging lustrous and many-tinted from the great vault. Bearded Sikhs may gaze in wonder on the flying dragons and the lotus chandeliers of the banqueting room, while they themselves lie amid surroundings that must seem to them like part of their own fairy stories come true.

These wounded warriors from the east are to fill up the dome; they are to fill up the pavilion; they will soon fill the corn exchange. They have turned out from the pavilion all that furniture and those appointments on the restoration of which the pavilion committee have been so rightly priding themselves. They have caused the great kitchen, newly renovated and fitted with electric stoves, to be changed into an operating room. Henceforth—for how long who can say?—the scene of balls, of concerts, of bazaars, is changed into a scene of hospital wards. The place of pleasure has become the paradise of pain.

The pavilion, dome and corn exchange is not the only piece of corporate property that the town has given up to the Indian soldiers. Almost as sensational a piece of news

Britain Has Replied To Communication Of The United States

Leaving for Front.

At a meeting of directors of the Western Associated Press, Ltd., in Winnipeg, the resignation of the treasurer, W. L. Roblin, was accepted with regret a few days ago. Mr. Roblin is secretary-treasurer of the Winnipeg-Telegram and the elder son of Sir Rodmond Roblin, premier of Manitoba, has been appointed captain and paymaster of the Canadian Mounted Rifles, now mobilizing for the front at Brandon, Man., and joins his corps at once.

Washington, Jan. 8.—William Jennings Bryan has announced the receipt of a note from Great Britain replying to the American communication of December 28 respecting American commerce. The note, which is about the same length as the American communication, will be made public on Sunday afternoon by mutual agreement between the State Department and the British Foreign Office.

French Forces Are Fighting to Possess Trenches Of Enemy

Paris, Jan. 8.—The official report as to the situation at the front says north of Soissons we have captured a German redoubt. We have taken two successive lines of trenches and are reaching the third line now.

Three counter-attacks by the Germans have failed in Argonne.

Very violent German attacks on the summit of the Heights of Chevauches have been made. We were first forced to retire two-thirds of a mile on this front, but later made counter-attacks and re-occupied our former positions.

GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC IS BECOMING POPULAR

Budget of Letters From Travellers to Officials Tells of Their High Appreciation of Road.

The Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, although only opened for through traffic to the Pacific Coast during the last few months, has already established an enviable reputation for the excellence of its transcontinental service and the grandeur of its mountain scenery, says the Montreal Star.

Each day brings the officials of the line a budget of letters from travellers telling of their high appreciation of this new trail through the

REMEMBERED BY FRIENDS.

At the meeting of the Hospital Board yesterday afternoon the announcement was made by the president that a sum totalling about $73.93 had been received from Scotland from a sister of the cripple, J. Moffatt, who has occupied a bed in the institution ever since it opened. The money had been sent in in recognition of the care taken of the old invalid. On motion of J. A. Kirkpatrick a part of the amount was set aside in the funds to be used as the sick man should designate, while the remainder went to the general funds of the Hospital.

A BUSY POLITICIAN.

The Liberal organ is very busy at the present time making political slaughter of Premier McBride and Hon. W. J. Bowser. The News is going to send Sir Richard to Ottawa, where, it is to be presumed, he will meet with this terrible defeat that is about to strike Conservatives wherever they may have their field of influence. Mr. Bowser is to remain at home to be politically slaughtered by Duncan Ross, Chief Justice Hunter and the editor of the News.

In the meantime it would appear as if these Conservatives have little to fear from the attacks that might spring from a party led by Joe Martin, H. C. Brewster, F. Wade and Ralph Smith. There is nothing in common among these except a desire to defeat the Conservatives and come into power themselves.

P. BURNS HONORED.

So close are the 'associations' of Mr. Patrick Burns with Edmonton that we regard him as one of ourselves and are accordingly more than interested in the great distinction that has been conferred upon him by Pope Benedict, says the Edmonton Journal. He becomes a Knight Commander of St. Gregory the Great and is the first citizen of Canada to whom the honor comes. Irrespective of locality and creed, the people of Alberta will agree heartily with the opinion expressed by Bishop McNally in announcing the Pope's decision.

"He has rarely mingled ostentatiously with those who claim the title of empire builders and philanthropists," said his lordship, "but in his own peculiarly quiet and Christian way, he has been and will be to the end an empire builder and philanthropist of the purest and most effective type, and the name of Commander Burns will be held in benediction as long as Calgary endures."

THE KAISER AS A COUNTERFEIT MOSES

INTERESTING ARTICLE WRITTEN OF HIM BY PORTUGUESE AUTHOR.

Some of the Characteristics of the Emperor Foretold Years Ago.

The London Times publishes a striking forecast of the Kaiser's career, written twenty-three years ago by the famous Portuguese author, Eca de Queiroz.

The character sketch, extracts from which are given below, first appeared in the Lisbon Journal a Capital in 1891, and belongs to the author's maturer years.

It exhibits all the conspicuous powers of observation and description which German critics concede to this classic writer, says the Times.

Throne as Stage.

True it is that since he mounted the throne William II., Emperor and King, has never ceased to attract and hold the curiosity of the world an amused and expectant curiosity awaiting surprises and events — as though the throne of Germany were nothing but a gaudy stage set up in the centre of Europe. Up to the present, the picturesque work of William II. has been to convert the throne of the Hohenzollerns into a stage on which he exhibits himself constantly and proudly in unexpected parts. Again, at times he descends from his stage—that is, from his throne—he travels, he gives entertainments in foreign courts, where, freed from the Imperial state which in Berlin gives to his every act an Imperial character, he comes forward under the most interesting guises that a man of imagination can adopt in society.

When in England he finds himself in a luxurious social centre and becomes the dandy, his fingers sparkling with rings, a huge carnation in the buttonhole of his light-colored overcoat, he hovers and flirts with the splendid verve of a d'Orsay. Then suddenly in Berlin, during the dead of night, the bugles sound the alarm, the telegraph wires of the Havas Agency vibrate; Europe, in a fright, rushes to the morning papers, and the fateful report spreads, war will break out in the spring. What is it? "No es nada," as is sung in "Pan y Toros." It is only William II. who has returned to his stage—that is, to his throne.

The Problem of the Age.

The world in perplexity murmurs Who is this man that changes and multiplies himself incessantly? What thing will germinate in the well-groomed head of a regulation officer? Thus William II. has become a contemporary problem — there are theories regarding him as there are regarding magnetism, the influenza, or the planet Mars. Some say he is merely a youth ardently thirsting for newspaper fame, and who, with an eye to publicity, prepares his impromptus with the spectacular method, art and patience with which Sarah Bernhardt prepares her costumes. Others aver that there is in him nothing but an overbalanced fancy, carried madly along by the impulses of a morbid imagination, and for the very reason that he is an almost omnipotent Emperor he is allowed to exhibit without restraint the disorders of his fancy. Others again see in him simply a Hohenzollern in whom are summed up and in whole flourish with immense parade all the qualities of

GEORGE LEEK AUCTIONEER

SYNOPSIS OF COAL MINING REGULATIONS.

Coal mining rights of the Dominion in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, the Yukon Territory, the Northwest Territories and a portion of the Province of British Columbia, may be leased for a term of twenty-one years at an annual rental of $1 per acre. Not more than 2,560 acres will be leased to one applicant.

Applications for a lease must be made by the applicant in person to the Agent or Sub-Agent of the district in which the rights applied for are situated.

In surveyed territory the land must be described by sections, or legal subdivisions of sections, and in unsurveyed territory the tract applied for shall be staked out by the applicant himself.

Each application must be accompanied by a fee of $5, which will be refunded if the rights applied for are not available, but not otherwise. A royalty shall be paid on the merchantable output of the mine at the rate of five cents per ton.

The person operating the mine shall furnish the Agent with sworn returns accounting for the full quantity of merchantable coal mined and pay the royalty thereon. If the coal mining rights are not being operated, such returns should be furnished at least once a year.

The lease will include the coal mining rights only; but the lessee may be permitted to purchase whatever available surface rights may be considered necessary for the working of the mine at the rate of $10 per acre.

For full information application should be made to the Secretary of the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, or to any Agent or Sub-Agent of Dominion Lands.

THE KAISER.

Caesarism, mysticism, sergeantism, red tapeism, dogmatism, which alternately characterized the successive Kings of that most lucky race of petty lords of Brandenberg.

A Dilettante of Activities.

It may be said that each one of these theories contains, as is fortunately the case with all theories, a particle of truth. It is my opinion, however, that he is nothing but a dilettante of activities—I mean a man strongly enamoured of activity, comprehending and feeling with unusual intensity the infinite delight it offers, and desiring therefore to experience and enjoy it in every form permissible in our state of civilization. William II., now that he has thrown off the harsh comptrollership of Bismarck, he can give the reins to his insatiable dilettantism of activity with the licence with which "the young steed (according to the Bible) gallops in the silent desert." Does he desire the pleasure of commanding vast armies or that of ploughing the waters in a fleet of steel? This it is that makes the German Emperor so prodigiously interesting a figure. In him we have among us in this philosophical century a man, a mortal who more than any other expert prophet or saint lays claim and appears to be the ally and intimate friend of God.

Moses II.

The world has never seen since the days of Moses on Sinai such intimacy, such an alliance between the creature and the Creator. The reign of William II. seems to be, as it were, an unexpected resurrection of the Mosaism of the Pentateuch. He is the favorite of God, he holds conferences with God in the burning bush of his Berlin schloss, and at the instigation of God he is leading his people to the joys of Canaan. Truly, he is Moses II. Like Moses, too, he never tires of proclaiming daily and loudly, so that none may ignore the fact and through ignorance controvert it, his spiritual and temporal relationship with God, which makes him infallible and therefore irresistible. He has but to expedite a telegram to sound a bugle. If the desire seize him to transform in his potent hands a whole social organization he has but to announce the fact. This is my conception! When slowly at his feet a new world will arise.

To him nothing is impossible, for he commands 2,000,000 million soldiers, and a people who seek liberty only in the regions of philosophy, ethics, and exegesis, and who when their Emperor orders them to march silently obey. And, further, to him nothing is impossible, for it is his firm belief that God is on his side, inspiring him and sanctioning his power.

"Gott Mit Uns."

In every assembly, every banquet where William II. holds forth (and of all contemporary kings William II. is the most verbose) he always introduces in the guise, as it were, of a law the sacerdotal assertion that God is with him, as in the days of Abraham, in order to help him and serve him in everything with the power of that formidable arm which can disperse like particles of impotent dust the stars and suns of ethereal space. The certainty, the habit of this alliance, grew so much upon him that he ever refers to God in terms of greater equality—as he might allude to Francis of Austria or to Humbert of Italy. Formerly he spoke of Him as the Master who is in Heaven, the Almighty who orders all things. Latterly, however, while haranguing with flowing champagne his vassals of the mark of Brandenburg, he speaks of God familiarly as "my old ally." Here we have William and God as a new limited company administering the universe. By degrees, perhaps, God will disappear from the signboard as a mere subordinate partner, who entered the business only with the capital of light, earth, and man, and who, quiescent in his infinitude, does no work but leaves to William the management of this vast terrestrial concern. Then we shall have only William and company—William, with supreme powers, will direct all human undertakings; "company" will be the vague, condescending form with which William II. and Germany will designate Him to whom, we believe, William II. and Germany are as much or as little as the sparrow now chirping on my roof.

The Most Dangerous of Sovereigns

A splendid and insatiable desire to enjoy and experience every form of activity under the sovereign conviction that God warrants and promotes the ultimate success of his every undertaking explains, I think, the conduct of this mysterious Emperor. Now, were he hedged round by public opinion as active and coercive as that of Britain, William II. would merely be like many other Emperors in history, peculiar from the mobility of his fancy and the illusion of his Messianic office. But being unfortunately in the heart of the workshop of Europe, with hundreds of disciplined legions, with a people formed of citizens disciplined and obedient as soldiers, William II. is the most dangerous of sovereigns. For in his dilettantism he has still to experience the most seductive form of activity that a king can know—war and its glories.

The Forbidden Fruit.

It may, indeed, happen, that one day Europe will awake to the roar of clashing armies, only because in the soul of this great dilettante the burning desire to "know war," to enjoy war was stronger than reason, counsel or pity for his subjects. Not long ago, indeed, he gave this promise to his faithful retainers of Brandenburg:—"I will lead you," he said, "to splendid and glorious destinies." What destinies? Battles, of course, in which the German eagles shall triumph. William II. has not the slightest doubt as to the issue, for, besides several minor sovereigns, he has for his ally the Supreme Sovereign of heaven and earth, fighting among the German Landwehr as in the days of old, when Minerva, bearing her spear, fought with the black phalanx against the Barbarians.

The Certainty of a Divine Alliance.

Truly nothing can give a man more strength than such a faith which almost renders him divine. On the other hand, to what risks it exposes him. Nothing can make the fall of a man more disastrous than the proof borne out by the crude contradiction of facts, that such a certainty was but the chimera of a mad infatuation. Then is realized the biblical fall from the "heights of Heaven." There was once a people that proclaimed themselves the elect of God. But it was proved that God had not elected them, nor preferred them before others, seeing that he disdainfully forsook them. They were overthrown with incomparable fury, dispersed through the world, lapidated, penned up in ghettos, their houses and tombs branded, as is branded a counterfeit coin.

The Gamblers' Fate.

William II. runs the awful danger of being cast down the Gemoniae. He boldly takes upon himself responsibilities which in all nations are divided among various bodies of the State. He alone judges, he alone executes, because to him (it is not to his Ministers, to his Council or to his Parliament) that God, the God of Hohenzollerns, imparts His transcendental inspiration. He must therefore be infallible and invincible. At the first disaster—whether it be inflicted by his burghers or by his people in the streets of Berlin, obey the Allied armies on the plains of Europe—Germany will at once conclude that his much-vaunted alliance with God was the trick of a wily despot.

Then will there not be stones enough from Lorraine to Pomerania to stone the counterfeit Moses. William II. is in very truth casting against Fate those terrible "iron dice" to which the now forgotten Bismarck once alluded. If he win he may have within and without the frontiers altars such as were raised to Augustus. Should he lose, exile, the traditional exile in England, awaits him, a degraded exile, the exile with which he so sternly threatens those who deny his infallibility. There is nothing more attractive at this period of the century than to witness the final development of William II. In the course of years—may God make them slow and lengthy—this youth, ardent, pleasing, fertile in imagination, of sincere, perhaps heroic, soul, may be sitting in calm majesty in his Berlin schloss presiding over the destinies of Europe; or he may be in the Hotel Metropole in London sadly unpacking from his exile's handbag the battered double crown of Prussia and Germany.

SPLENDID FOR PLUMBERS

The sale of Product No. 99 is strictly confined to the high-class supply houses. Its cost of manufacture is therefore not affected by Dept. or "price cutting store" influence that so often drives manufacturers to the use of inferior chemicals and processes. Nor is the dealer allowed to reduce the retail price under penalty of having his supply terminated.

A POWERFUL SOLVENT FOR

CLOGGED UP DRAIN PIPES

"99" destroys accumulations of lint, paper, cloths, hair, slime, grease, vegetables, soap, fruit and many others. It is harmless to finest plumbing.

DON'T ARGUE DON'T PUT OFF TEST IT

This preparation has been so generally successful in clearing drains that it is bought over and over again by those who have tried it, but inasmuch as no one can know the actual condition existing within a pipe, it is absolutely impossible for the manufacturer or the dealer to guarantee the result.

Well Attended Drill.

The turn-out last night at the Exhibition Building for drill by "A" Company was an excellent one.

CASE OF ALLEGED ARSON.

Stevenson discovered fire in the tent behind the store, in which a pane of glass had been cut to enable the fire to be lighited, Goodman was arrested.

The plate glass windows of the store, together with the windows of Jamieson's Drug Store, the Semaphore Pool Hall, Nielsen's Tailor Shop, several houses along Second Avenue, toward the printing office, and other buildings, had been slashed with a glass cutter. In the event of the fire having spread the whole of the buildings facing the park would have gone, as there was a strong wind. A new glass cutter was found in Goodman's pocket.

INDIAN WOUNDED.

is that we are handing over to them our great workhouse on the hill, our important and much-treasured secondary school at York Place, as well as the school at Pelham Street. We are certainly giving the Indians our best.

Wholly romantic, too, is the way this great sacrifice of Brighton to its eastern allies has come about. The initiative arose wholly with His Majesty the King. From sources that are authoritative enough, one learns that when His Majesty inspected the Indian wounded at Brockenhurst he expressed certain wishes that led to a high official coming to Brighton on Saturday. This was General Bond of the War Office. He had an interview with the mayor (Alderman Otter), the town clerk (Mr. Hugo Talbot), and the chairman of the pavilion committee (Councillor Barflett) on Saturday morning. By Saturday evening the whole building was well on the road to being made a hospital. It was a dramatic event, carried out with a promptitude that speaks as well for the Brighton corporation as for the War Office.

GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC.

Yellowhead Pass to Prince Rupert. Mr. Phillip Orr, one of Western Canada's best known business men, wrote the other day: "It affords me great pleasure to tell you very candidly that I enjoyed my return trip from the Coast over the G.T.P. far more than I can express, and I do not have to make any allowance or deduction for the service. I had elegant weather, fine service, and we made splendid time. I could not make any suggestions that would improve the comfort of the travelling public at the present time."

Mr. J. A. Hodgson, Toronto, after a trip westward to Prince Rupert, and thence down the Coast, through the "Norway of America" to Vancouver on the S.S. Prince George said he had been many times across the Alps and had crossed America on other transcontinental railways, but had never had finer service than he received on the Grand Trunk Pacific. The view of Mount Robson, the highest peak in the Canadian Rockies, from the train, was one of the finest pieces of scenery he knew of, and was alone worth a trip from the east.

GERMANS AND TURKS HAVE SECRET TREATY

In the Event of Victory Germany to Receive One-fifth of Indemnity Paid Turkey.

Sofia, Jan. 8.—Alleged details are printed here of the treaty between Germany and Turkey, which was signed in the middle of November.

Germany agreed to supply the necessary war material and money throughout the war, in addition to officers, expert military men and engineers. In case of German victory, that nation agreed to pay Turkey one-fifth of the war indemnity which she will receive from the Allies. In case of defeat Germany pledged herself to defend the territorial integrity of Turkey.

In consideration of these promises Turkey on her part agreed to declare war on Britain and Russia, and to proclaim a holy war.

She also promised to follow Germany's plans, and not to conclude a separate peace with any of the enemies of Germany.

MISSING LINK IDENTIFIED PROFESSOR McGRAG SAYS

Arthur P. Coleman, Toronto, was elected president of the Geological Society of America, which is meeting at Philadelphia in connection with the annual convention of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

That the earth is about one hundred million years old is one of the deductions of George F. Becker, of the United States Geological Survey, presented in a paper read recently. Radial activity is confined to a relatively thin zone in the upper crust of the earth, he declared.

The missing link between man and his ape-like ancestors has been identified in the Pithecanthropus erectus, whose skull found in Java showed all the characteristics intermediate between man and ape, according to James H. McGrag, sr., associate Professor of Zoology at Columbia University, who presented a series of restorations of skulls and reproductions of the appearance of primitive man.

Charles D. Walcott, secretary of the Smithsonian Institute at Washington, demonstrated that huge beds of limestone were the work of microscopic plants known as algae, which he said solved a mystery that has long been a source of argument among geologists.

Iron ore deposits in Newfoundland are now known to be the result of plant activity, accordincg to Prof. Gilbert van Ingen of Princeton University.

Budweiser

175,000,000 Bottles Yearly

That was the demand for Budweiser last year.

The Anheuser-Busch Plant covers today more than 142 acres—equal to 70 city blocks. It gives steady employment to 6,000 people, and to 1,500 more in its branches.

Every process, every room, is immaculate.

Every bottle is Pasteurized and inspected. This Quality-Plant, started nearly 50 years ago, is a model of modern facilities.

The hundreds of visitors who go through every day know that nothing of its kind could be made any better than Budweiser.
