RUSSIAN ARMY IS PROVING ITS GREAT SUPERIORITY

SOUTH AFRICAN TROOPS MET WITH NO OPPOSITION

Tremendous Struggle Is Going On In Carpathians With Russians Victors

Petrograd, April 7.—An official report says:

"In the Carpathians, despite the counter-attacks of the enemy, who have obtained large reinforcements, our offensive continues between the River Toplia and the region in the direction of the Uzsok Pass. All the summits of the principal chain of the Beskid Mountains are now in our hands. We took 2,900 prisoners, three guns, and several machine guns during the fighting.

"The German attacks in the region of Rosicuvka and Rozanka have ceased after eight weeks of continued fruitless attempts to take the Russian positions by assault. The German suffered enormous losses in the attempts.

"An aeroplane was brought down off Libau after dropping bombs in the city. The aviators were made prisoners."

Has Been Great Struggle.

Poland has almost dropped from sight while Russians and Germans and Austrians have been sending up their forces for this great battle in the Carpathians, which has been going on for weeks.

The difficulties that have to be surmounted by the invading Muscovites seem almost beyond human endurance, but the Russians, faced by the necessity of driving their way through the passes if they are to reach the Hungarian plains, are fighting with desperation, those in the front ranks knowing that heavy reinforcements are behind them and coming up with all speed.

A correspondent of a Vienna paper describes the efforts of the constantly increasing Russian forces as almost superhuman and says they are directing their operations against the centre of the Austrian line along a front of about 40 miles.

GREAT BRITAIN BUSINESS LIKE

SURVEYOR-GENERAL OF BRITISH COLUMBIA VISITED THE BATTLEFIELDS.

He Thinks There Will Be Aggressive Business After the War.

G. H. Dawson, surveyor-general of British Columbia, has just returned from Europe, where, after the battle of the Marne, he visited the scene of the famous struggle, and noted the rapidity with which the devastated country was being restored to something like its former picturesqeness.

In one of the large French towns, Great Britain has established her military headquarters, he says, "like a mighty tent." The manner in which it has been erected and is being maintained, the order and discipline that mark here every movement are the wonder and admiration of the French army and people. "It is the business-like methods being employed by Great Britain that have put so much courage into the hearts of the French people as a whole. They feel that the entire resources of money and men of the greatest Empire the world has ever seen are thoroughly and sincerely at the back of the republic." Mr. Dawson believes that when the war has been brought to a successful close Great Britain and France will embark upon one of the most aggressive business campaigns the world has ever known.

Local Contingent Doing Well

News received from Shorncliffe Camp, Kent Co., England, conveys the information that the 30th Battalion of the Canadians, in which regiment Prince Rupert is represented by the first contingent sent from here, is winning praise. The camp is a model one, and the local members all seem to be well pleased with it. Letters state that Brigadier-General Babington has inspected the 30th and complimented the officers and men on their appearance. They are said to be the best regiment so far sent to England.

TO THE ELECTORS OF PRINCE RUPERT

Having decided to allow my name to be placed in nomination for the office of Mayor I hereby solicit your vote and influence.

Yours respectfully,

T. McCLYMONT.

To The Electors

Owing to a vacancy being caused in the Council membership I leave the decision of choice of candidates to be elected in your hands. Thanking you for pas support, being now a candidate I await your decision with pleasure.

Yours truly,

D. W. MORRISSEY.

Political Pointers For The Electors To Ponder Over

The slogan of the Liberals in the present political campaign—"Smash the machine"—is at once an evidence of the weakness of that party in its contest for power. This cry against some sort of ethereal machine which is supposed to be in the hands of the Conservatives represents no policy and nothing to recommend them to become the trustees of the electorate. The Liberals would be more honest if they would acknowledge that they were imbued with a strong desire to get into power; that the fact that a wave of depression was sweeping over the country afforded a good opportunity perhaps to snatch a victory at the polls, and that returned to power they would continue to carry along business in as close an imitation of the Conservatives as possible.

A NEW CRY AS TO MACHINE.

The Liberal party did not always look with such dread upon what they describe as a machine. Many will remember that machine politics in this country never reached, before or after, the same perfection that it did under Liberal rule in old Ontario. There the election trials contain evidence in which the leaders of the Liberal party in that province admonished one another and the workers, to "hug the machine." That party was at the same time preaching up and down the country, just as they are in British Columbia today, political purity.

If the electorate want to see real machine rule they should elect the Liberals. The only smashing the Liberals will do will be their own machine in the warmth with which they follow the advice given the Ontario leaders to "hug the machine."

THE WORK OF THE MACHINE.

In the northern constituencies the work of the machine politics of the Liberals is everywhere in evidence. That system prevailed when the Liberals were in power in Dominion politics. It has been in evidence only recently again in the choice of candidates. The Prince Rupert party machine dictated who should be the standard bearers for the whole of the north. In the case of Omineca a few weeks after the local machine had got in its work a convention in Omineca was asked to ratify the course taken in Prince Rupert.

As a matter of fact, the Conservatives might well, in view of the history of the Liberals, adopt a slogan, "Beware of the machine."

PROMISE BREAKERS.

The Liberals are notorious promise breakers. The electorate will recall the pledges they made to the people for years before 1896 with regard to the reforms they would introduce if given power in the Dominion. They succeeded to power, but only to give the electorate the shock of seeing the party continue to no small extent the policy that was pursued by the Conservatives when in power.

The electorate should know the Liberals well enough as a party not to trust them. The campaign with them is anything to gain a victory in the constituency affected. Keep out the Liberal machine with all its iniquities.

JOE MARTIN'S ATTACK.

Joe Martin's "Journal" continues its sharp criticism of the Vancouver Liberal platform. "We doubt very much," says the "Journal," "if Dr. Mackay, who drew up this new platform, took the trouble to read the regular platform of the party."

Civilian Rifle Association

A meeting will be held in the Agricultural Hall this evening at 8 o'clock sharp for the purpose of forming a Civilian Rifle Association. Members of the 68th Regiment and all others interested are invited to attend the meeting.

Took Out Heavy Train

The Express yesterday morning leaving for the east over the G. T. P. was the heaviest one that has left the city. It consisted of twelve cars. Of these, six were express refrigerator cars loaded with fresh fish for eastern markets. The remainder of the cars are the regular ones.

Telegraph Opened At Usk

The Government Telegraphs has opened a new office at Usk. This is done mainly to serve the convenience of those who are interested in mining operations. The Cordillera property, in which Messrs. Welsh and Robbins are interested, is located a short distance from this point. By means of the new connection, which is a telephone one, direct communication can be had with the outside.

Germany's Counter Moves On Western Front Did Not Accomplish Anything

Paris, April 7.—The official news issued today says: "Activity has been pronounced between the Meuse and the Moselle, where we maintained all our gains and made further advances. All day the Germans have been engaged in violent counter-attacks, but they regained nothing. Their last attack was particularly heavy, but they were mowed down by our fire.

"Near Pareid east of Verdun we have taken two lines of trenches.

"At Eparges we made an important advance.

"In the Ailly woods several counter-attacks were repulsed. We remained masters of the position which we gained yesterday.

"A German detachment of three machine guns which crossed the Yser yesterday was dislodged by the Belgians.

"At Etain we c[illegible]ed two hills and gained ground at Eparges, taking many prisoners.

"The German positions at Ban-de-Sept were blown up."

HEARING APPEALS IN ASSESSMENTS

MANAGER OF BANK OF COMMERCE WANTS 75 PER CENT. TAKEN OFF.

Quite a Number of Appeals Have Been Entered by Property Owners.

The Court of Revision sat yesterday morning to hear appeals against the assessment this year. The court consisted of Acting Mayor Kerr, Ald. Edge, Ald. Beveridge, Ald. Montgomery, and Ald. Nicol. There are quite a few appeals entered. These are likely to be taken up today.

The most pronounced reduction asked for was by L. M. De'Gex, local manager of the Bank of Commerce. He wanted 75 per cent. of the assessment taken off.

VANCOUVER HAS RIOTS OVER RELIEF WORK

As a Result of Discontinuation of Free Meal Tickets Fighting Ensued.

Vancouver, B. C., April 7.—Serious rioting and raiding in the downtown stores took place last night by a mob of five hundred unemployed. They were principally Austrians, Russians and Italians. They raided the Boston Lunch, the White Lunch, P. Burns & Co., the King Shoe Store, and several Italian fruit stands, smashing windows and looting the stores.

A squad of police, with mounted men, got in the melee and used their batons freely. Gus Erickson, Tony Valentine, Sam Pushoff, Frank Enstrom, and A. Battistoni were arrested.

The relief work had been stopped yesterday afternoon and the free meal tickets discontinued.

Jack Dowling Promoted.

Jack Dowling, son of F. W. Dowling of the Dominion Telegraph Service, has been promoted at Shorncliffe Camp. He has been given the rank of lance corporal and is attached as staff bugler.

THE MAYORALTY

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE CITY OF PRINCE RUPERT:

Ladies and Gentlemen,—Having consented to again become a candidate for the office of Mayor, I would appreciate a renewal of the confidence which you have reposed in me in the past, after having returned to you that confidence directly it became hinted that I may have transgressed the strict letter of the law. In the past I strove to conscientiously serve you, and should you see fit to again honor me with a renewal of your confidence, I pledge you a continuation of that policy.

CORRESPONDENCE

PRICES OF FURS.

Editor of The Journal:

Dear Sir,—In your today's issue you have given a brief report of the London Fur Sale, which was fully encouraging. In order not to mislead the parties concerned in this line of business I would ask you to give space to the following:

Considering that only a small quantity of Lampson's outfit was sold, while two other auction fur houses in London withdrew their sales, and considering the small attendance of only a few British manufacturers, while the European buyers have been entirely absent, no wonder that prices prevailed better than have been expected.

As a matter of fact, there are still on hand furs worth many millions of dollars, which cannot be sold at any price, and the American and Canadian markets are suffering of this state of affairs.

Hoping that it will be of importance to the people concerned, I thank you in anticipation and remain.

Yours very truly,
H. RASKIN,
Representing the Edmonton Hide & Fur Company.

CAREER ON STAGE MEANS MUCH SACRIFICE

Miss Maynard Says It Is Pleasant for Proper Temperament, However.

Here's what Miss Dorothy Maynard, of the Princess Musical Comedy Company, thinks of a stage career for young girls:

"Where is the girl who at some period of her life has not ardently longed to be on the stage? The fascination of the footlights, the admiration bestowed on the successful actress, the flowers, the gifts, the whole romance of the stage—real or affected—throws its glamor over the young girl's heart. Yes, it all looks very lovely from the orchestra seats.

"And it is lovely if gone about in the right way. Most parents throw up their hands in despair if their good-looking daughters announce their intention of going on the stage. But that idea is often wrong. The stage is as safe as the home if the girl wants it to be, and if she is adapted to the life. The trouble is, there are so few girls who in their secret souls do not think they would make a successful actress. They think it looks easy, that it is a rose-leaf life.

"They only see one side of it. The work is very hard and the hours long. My advice to those girls who think they are fitted for stage life is to go to a good theatrical man who knows his business well and he will be able to tell you in a very little while whether or not the stage is your sphere. These men are always on the lookout for promising young actresses and are the best judges as to whether a girl has real talent or not.

"It is by no means easy to persuade yourself that you are not fitted for the stage after you have dreamed for years about being a great actress. The girl who falls asleep each night dreaming about the time when she will take audiences by storm will find it hard to lay aside her hopes just because some cranky old theatrical man—and sometimes they are cranky—said she was not fitted for the life.

"Personally, I have never regretted going on the stage. But you must not forget that I work very very hard. Acting and singing with 'stock' carries with it, as you know, a tremendous amount of studying. However, taken all in all, the stage life is a pleasant one. You hardly have time to indulge in your grievances before you are plunged into somebody else's life and taking as much interest in it as if it was your own.

"If you want to go on the stage, girls, and you discover you have talent in that direction, then my advice to you is to do so. For with all these difficulties conquered and past you will have the time of your life, and you will be able to take keen pleasure in a really delightful vocation."

How The Guns of the Allied Fleet Are Battering the Dardanelles Forts

The allied fleet is employing indirect fire at the Dardanelles to accomplish the demolition of the Turkish forts. This is the same form of fire used by the Germans at Liege and Namur with the heavy 42-centimetre siege guns.

The British are delivering indirect fire from the Queen Elizabeth, the Inflexible and the Prince George over a range of seven miles. The English warships are in position in the Gulf of Chiros, just outside and to the north of the entrance to the Dardanelles, where they can approach close up to the shore line and still have ten fathoms (60 feet) of water. The Queen Elizabeth and her consorts demand five fathoms depth as a minimum for safety, and a study of the soundings shows that this depth is not reached until close into the beach. In a ten fathoms depth the warships can approach to within less than a mile of the shore, and as the beach in their front is flat no opportunity is afforded the Turks to bring guns to bear.

The indirect fire which the British ships are delivering may be resorted to when the object fired at cannot be seen or when it is desired to hide the guns which are making the attack. As the word implies, the guns are not aimed direct, but, on the contrary, are elevated at high angle in order to get a high curve to the flight of the shell.

The indirect fire of the Queen Elizabeth and her consorts is just now being directed across the Gallipoli Peninsula at the Turkish works at Kilid Bahr. The fire is being corrected by lighter ships already inside the straits, and which are acting in the capacity of observers.

The shots of the vessels firing indirectly must be rectified by these observers; that is to say, the observers must signal from time to time if the shots are over or under, right or left. Once the right angle for laying the guns has been obtained the indirect fire can be kept up by night and day, recourse being had by night to lighted projectiles, or tracers, as they are called, the flight of which can be followed by the eye in the darkest night.

Shells fired from guns at high angle plunge downward at the end of their flight in an almost vertical line, and tear and crash through overhead obstructions, finally fetching up deep in the ground. Then comes the explosion, and the chances are always excellent that an enormous crater will result into which will tumble guns, carriages and whatever happens to be within the zone of the burst. At Liege and Namur the burst of the 42-centimetre shells when deep in the earth caused even the armored cupolas to turn complete somersaults.

The Queen Elizabeth is employing 15-inch guns in the attack on Kilid Bahr. These guns have a range of sixteen miles, and therefore the seven miles distance over which the present indirect firing is being conducted is only a medium range for those big pieces. Naval men here see in the plan which the Allies are following a policy not to expose the dreadnoughts to possible destruction by mines in the straits so long as the forts can be reached by fire from the outside. It will be time enough, it is said, to take the dreadnoughts inside the Dardanelles when the forts are silenced and the channels doubly swept clear of mines.

The guns of the allied forces are being subjected to excessive strains, it is recognized, in the sustained firing on the Turkish works. The British are employing cordite for propelling charges, and ordnance men freely predict that probably every British ship, following past experience, will have to be rebatteried if the bombardment continues much longer. The British are prepared for this and have reserve guns, it is said, for all the larger ships in service.

The Japanese just before the battle with the Russian fleet succeeded in obtaining an almost entirely new supply of British guns to replace the pieces which had originally come from English gun plants.

The British 6-inch 45-calibre gun uses 18 pounds of cordite for a charge. This charge gives a muzzle velocity of 2,500 feet a second. By having recourse to 25 pounds of cordite for a charge a muzzle velocity of 2,800 feet a second is obtained. It has been found that so long as the 18-pound charge is used—provided the 2,500-feet a second velocity is deemed sufficient—there is no serious loss in accuracy and velocity in 400 rounds, but if 25-pound charges are employed there will be a loss of 300 feet a second in the first 100 rounds. All this spells loss in accuracy. Specially devised gas checks may check loss in velocity for a few rounds, but no gas check yet invented, it is declared, can stop the wear of bore due to erosion and wash.

Erosion is the outcome of powder gas moving rapidly at a very high temperature, under pressure. Wash is the wear and tear caused by the gases between the projectile and the walls of the gun. Erosion is seldom found serious in the powder chamber for the reason that the gas is not in rapid motion, nor is it serious at the muzzle, since the temperature of the gas has become considerably reduced by the time the muzzle is reached. About the seat of the shot, and a few calibre lengths beyond, the erosive action in big guns after some rounds is truly frightful. The metal is found gouged out in great fissures, and in consequence the powder gases pass the shell, fail to exert full power in the base and even tend by reason of the unequal pressure to give to the shell a deflective line of travel. In other words, not only is velocity reduced but all accuracy is gone.

The British here found that their 67-inch guns had a life of 120 rounds, and the 11-ton guns a life of 75 rounds. The 67-inch guns can

BRITISH WAY OF TREATING PRISONERS

THOSE WHO WERE TAKEN FROM SUBMARINES KEPT SEPARATE.

Reply Sent to the Communication From the German Authorities.

A German protest and threat of reprisals on account of the treatment by Great Britain of the prisoners taken on board German submarines was made public yesterday. This protest was transmitted by Germany to Great Britain through the United States. The reply of Great Britain also was made public.

Under date of March 20, the American ambassador wrote Sir Edward Grey, British foreign secretary, as follows:

"The ambassador presents his compliments to his majesty's secretary of tate at Washington, to transmit the hereto annexed text of a telegram dated March 17, which Mr. Bryan has received from the German foreign office through the embassy at Berlin:

"'According to notices appearing in the British press the British admiralty is said to have made known its intention not to accord to the officers and crews of German submarines who have become prisoners, the treatment due to them as prisoners of war, and especially not to concede to the officers the advantage of their rank.

"'The German government is of the opinion that these reports are not correct, as the crews of the submarines acted in the execution of orders given to them, and in doing this have solely fulfilled their military duties.

"'At any rate the reports in question have become so numerous in the neutral press that an explanation of the true facts appears to be of the most urgent importance, if for no other reason than consideration of public opinion in Germany.

"The Imperial Foreign Office, therefore, requests the American embassy to have an inquiry of the British government made by the medium of the American embassy in London as to whether, and in what way, they intend to treat the officers and crews of German submarine boats who have been made prisoners in any respect worse than other prisoners of war.

"'Should this prove to be the case the request is added that, in the name of the German government, the sharpest protest be lodged with the British government against such proceedings and that no doubt be left that for each member of the crew of a submarine made prisoner, a British army officer held as prisoner of war in Germany will receive corresponding treatment.

"The Imperial Foreign Office would be grateful for information at the earliest convenience regarding the result of the steps taken.'"

Sir Edward Grey replied to the American ambassador, under date of April 1, as follows:

"The Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs presents his compliments to the United States ambassador and with reference to his excellency's note of the 20th ultimo respecting reports of the press upon the treatment of prisoners from German submarines, has the honor to state that he learns from the lord commissioner of the Admiralty that the officers and men who were rescued from the German submarines U-8 and U-12 have been placed in naval detention barracks in view of the necessity of their segregation from other prisoners of war.

"In these quarters they are treated with humanity, given the opportunity for exercise, provided with German books, subjected to no forced labor, and are better fed and clothed than British prisoners of equal rank now in Germany.

"As, however, the crews of the two German submarines in question before they were rescued from the sea were engaged in sinking innocent British ships and wantonly killing non-combatants, they cannot be regarded as honorable opponents, but rather as persons who, at the order of their government, have committed acts which are offences against the law of nations, and contrary to common humanity.

"His majesty's government also would bring to the notice of the United States government that during the present war more than 1,000 officers and men of the German navy have been rescued from the sea, sometimes in spite of danger to the rescuers and sometimes to the prejudice of the British naval operations. No case, however, has occurred of any officer or man of the Royal Navy being rescued by Germans."

HOW THE GUNS OF THE ALLIED FLEET

fire 100 half charges or 200 three-quarter charges, and the 11-ton guns 250 half charges or 125 three-quarter charges.

The British have in recent years adopted the wire-wound system in their heavy gun construction. In this system around the A tube are wound successive layers of flat steel wire, extending from the rear end of the chamber to within a few inches of the muzzle. The ends of the wire are secured to steel rings provided for the purpose. A steel ring forming a stop for the wire is shrunk onto the A tube at the breech end. The B tube and jacket are slipped over the wire and are secured by shoulders.

The British wire-wound system is strong and reliable. The guns will stand heavy pressures, but what they will not stand is long sustained firing under conditions which obtain in the use of smokeless powder. This statement applies to all services, only it seems to be recognized that the cordite of the British navy is more deleterious in its action on bores of guns than the powder of other nations—certainly more so than the powder of the American navy. But with all its advantages and wearing down of bores, cordite probably is the safest powder afloat in its ability to withstand climatic changes, and by this is meant that climatic changes do not tend to bring about chemical changes in the mixture and therefore render it unstable.

The British, it is thought here, will be prepared to relieve the ships of the Dardanelles fleet very quickly after the reduction of the Turkish forts in order to permit of the installation of new guns. The Admiralty long ago adopted the policy that it would be cheaper to undertake to rebattery vessels rather than attempt to substitute some new and less certain powder for cordite. To completely change the entire system for powder making would not only mean new works, new machinery and new methods, but an entire change in design of existing guns.
